LOCATE GAME REFUGE IN ROOSEVELT COUNTY

SEVERAL SECTIONS INCLUDED IN RESERVE NEAR MILNESAND

Establishment of a game refuge in Roosevelt county in response to petitions from this city and county, in the movement supported by the Roosevelt County Game Protective Association, is announced by Thos. P. Delgado, state game and fish warden.

The area included in the preserve is as follows:

Sections 25, 26, 35, and 36, township 12 south, range 35 east; Sections 1, 2 and northeast half of section 12, township 8 south, range 35 east; Sections 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33 and west half of section 24, township 7 south, range 36 west; Sections 5, 6 and north half of section 7 and 8 township 8 south, range 36 east.

This refuge is in the Milnesand community and in the words of the order of establishment, "is hereby set aside, created and established as a game refuge for the purpose of creating a safe sanctuary in which game may breed and replenish adjacent hunting grounds."

Under the law there is no open season, during which hunting will be permitted in this refuge and there is a heavy penalty provided for violation of the law.

The establishment of game refuges is a movement that has gained great popularity among the better class of sportsmen and has been given the support, also, of game protective associations and the Isaac Walton League in nearly every state in the union.

Owing to the fact that the hunting seasons will begin to open in this state within the next three weeks, it behooves hunters to become familiar with boundaries of this preserve in order that they may not find themselves in a "mess of trouble" with the state and federal authorities.

The duck season in New Mexico opens October 16, while the quail season does not open this year until December 1 and closes December 31.

PORTALES HI TO MEET FORT SUMNER FRIDAY

The first football game of the season will be played in Portales Friday of this week when the High School team meets the Fort Sumner aggregation.

The game is called for 2:30 o'clock and a large crowd is expected to witness the struggle. The Portales boys have been going through some strenuous practice games and work outs and are ready to give a good account of themselves in the face of all invaders this fall.

RESUME WORK ON NEW BUSINESS STRUCTURES

With the coming of clear weather and sunshine again Wednesday morning, workmen on the new brick business block on State street began clearing the way for the brickwork. Much of the material is now on the grounds and more is arriving daily. The foundations are about finished and the work will go forward now without interruption if the weather just permits.

Construction on the Roswell pump company warehouse near the Santa Fe station was also started again Wednesday. This is a sheet iron building and should be completed within the next week.

CALLS LEGION MEET HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Plans for the Armistice Day celebration are to be further discussed at a meeting of the Carl McDermott post of the American Legion to be held at the court house here Friday night of this week.

All legion members and all those who are eligible to membership are being urged to attend this meeting. The celebration is going to require the cooperation of every ex-serviceman in the city and county in order to put it over as it should be put over, and every one should lend a hand.

Several of the committees are ready with reports and these will be made at this meeting. They will be of interest and should be acted upon immediately.

RICHLAND SCHOOL OPENS

The school at Richland was opened for the fall term on Monday of this week with a good attendance and prospects for more pupils later in the season.

Officers Get One Man and Some Corn Liqueur

Walter Hill, prohibition enforcement officer, Sheriff Bob Polndexter and others whose names were not learned, composed the raiding party which, continuing the campaign started last Wednesday, swooped down upon an old farm house in the northeastern part of Roosevelt County last Sunday and gathered in one man by the name of Cain and about six and a half gallons of liquor. Another man by the name of Lofton, in whose possession the officers found half a pint of liquor, was told to report in Portales at 10 o'clock Monday morning. He didn't, but sheriff Polndexter says that is good ridance and saves the county and state some expense.

Cain was brought to Portales where he was arraigned, plead guilty and held under bond for action of the federal court.

A raid on another place by the officers Sunday proved a "dry haul" as not a bit of moonshine evidence could be found.

EVERY FARMER SHOULD SOW FEW ACRES WHEAT

Every farmer in the Portales Valley should sow a few acres of wheat and this is an excellent time to make the start. While the amount to be sown should be determined by the farmer himself, it would be a wise move to make the patch large enough to do some good.

Besides making an excellent pasture and providing a little grain, this crop would be just the thing to hold the loose soil of the cotton patch from blowing out.

What should be grown here, even if on a small scale, it is a big crop in the county to the north and across the state line east.

THREE NEW SWEET POTATO CURING PLANTS STARTED

Work was started this week on three new sweet potato curing plants or storage houses having a combined capacity of 17,000 bushels.

One of these, being built by Messrs Thigpen and Breshers, is located on Main street just south of the railroad. This will have a capacity of 9,000 bushels.

E. L. Hammett is building a 4,000 bushel plant across the road from the Baptist orphanage, and Edgar Foreman is building one on the Portales-Clovis highway, near the northeastern city limits.

ARTHUR JONES GIVES THE COUNTY A SLOGAN

Readers of the Portales Valley News will kindly notice the "ears" of this paper this week. "Portales, Sweet Potato Town, U. S. A." and "Roosevelt County—The Egg Basket and Butter Tub of New Mexico."

The history of the first slogan you are all familiar with. It has caught the eye and the fancy of all who have heard it and has been carried to all parts of the country. The second one, and used in the News this week for the first time, was originated by Arthur Jones who presides over the destinies of the First National Bank here, and is going to prove just as catchy and popular as its older brother. They make an excellent team and are going to pull well together.

Use 'em, folks. Have them printed on your stationery. Tell your friends about them and sing them at every opportunity.

PORTALES WOMEN WIN PRIZES AT AMARILLO

HOME MAKERS CLUB BRINGS HOME FIVE FIRST AND FIVE SECOND PRIZES

In addition to their club exhibit in the Woman's Home Demonstration department carrying off fourth prize, members of the Roosevelt county Home Makers Club brought home five first and five second prizes from the Tri-State fair at Amarillo last week.

As no special effort was made by the ladies to prepare this exhibit, and only about a dozen gave the exhibits any extra attention, it can be readily seen that had makers set their minds to do it, they could have just about won all the ribbons offered in this department.

There is not a single one of the ten women who won first and second prizes who will admit that this was her best effort. Their everyday work, like everything else in Roosevelt county, is the best there is, and every time a chance has been offered for comparison, this fact has been proven.

Come to Roosevelt County!

The awards won by the Roosevelt county women were as follows:

Club making best exhibit—Home Makers Club, Portales, fourth.

Six quarts Canned Products—Mrs. Hamelin Hill, second.

Three quarts preserves—Mrs. A. C. Woodburn, second.

Best pillow cases—Miss Katherine Hickman, second.

Lye soap, cold—Mrs. J. R. Stephenson, first.

Man's shirt—Mrs. C. M. Robinson, second.

Cook apron—Mrs. B. F. Smith, first.

Refooted stocking—Mrs. J. R. Hickman, first.

Stocking darn—Mrs. Leslie Smith, second.

Bound button holes—Mrs. Bettie Stephenson, first.

Best six button holes worked—Mrs. J. R. Stephenson, first.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Roberts of El Paso left in their car for their home Wednesday after a week's visit to the home of Mr. Robert's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Burleson. Mr. Roberts was so well pleased with the country that he expects to sell his farm near El Paso and return to Portales to live.

Inform the Universe That New Mexico is One of United States

Would you loyal New Mexicans believe it that there are persons in this United States who do not know that New Mexico is one of the United States? They are, so authority for this statement is no less a person than Joe F. Grizzle, ranking parson of the Baptist church of Portales, and the preacher insists that we write it, "Portales, New Mexico, U. S. A."

"Not long ago I was in Memphis, Tenn.," said Reverend Grizzle, "and was talking to a Baptist preacher who has a pretty extended reputation as a learned man and a great preacher. He is a man possessing a college degree.

"What about that trouble you are having down there?" this man asked me shortly after I had met him.

"What trouble, I asked him."

"Why that squabble you are having down in Mexico."

"Mexico? Why we don't know any more about Mexico's trouble than you do, I informed him."

"Say, aren't you in Mexico?"

"No, brother we are in New Mexico, with emphasis on the New."

"New Mexico; he repeated in awe. 'Say where is that? Who is the president of New Mexico now?'"

"President of New Mexico! That's rich. Why down there in New Mexico we are plum civilized and are one of the United States—in fact any of us will admit on the witness stand under oath that New Mexico is the best one of the United States. Yes-sir-ee, don't you forget it. And we have no president but a governor just like you other civilized folks. We call our state the 'Sunshine State'; our town the Sweet Potato town U. S. A. We have schools and churches just like they do in the old worn-out states of the north and south and east. Come down and visit with us some time, Brother, and see with your own eyes that our claims to the best in states is, rather than over-drawn, away short of the really almost ideal."

That conversation is not, maybe, the verbatim talk of the two divines, but it is the gist of the confab. The point Reverend Grizzle wishes to stress is made clear, and clinches his argument that lots of the folks in other states are just a little ignorant in their geography. We gotta show 'em that we are a part and parcel of Uncle Sam's domain and that we are under his rule.

Headquarters for opportunity is located in New Mexico. Tell your friends in other states about it. Tell them that there are acres and acres of uncultivated lands here awaiting the plow, and that they can be bought for less than a quarter of what they pay for lands in the older states. Tell them that, although she is young in the game, New Mexico is fast swinging into the list of agricultural leaders. Then tell them some more facts.

Tell them that Roosevelt county is marketing a 20,000 bale crop of broom corn this fall; between 4,000 and 5,000 bales of cotton; the largest sweet potato crop in her history (and that is SOME sweet history). More tomatoes are raised in Roosevelt county than in any other county in the southwest; and that this county is one of the largest growers of peanuts in the United States.

Make the argument convincing. Jolt 'em with the facts and stagger 'em with statistics. Tell all about the chickens and the cream and the fruit we raise here in the Portales Valley. Let the world know that we are not in the least fearful of crop failures for we raise such a variety of stuff that all cannot fail. We always have a money crop for market.

Silence has played the loudest horn in the band in this section of the southwest long enough. Let's give 'em some real old-fashioned jaw-bone relative to the merits of this county.

"All together now folks—let's go."

FARM FACTS WANTED: WHAT DID YOU DO?

The News wants little stories of the activities of the Roosevelt county farmers, of their success with certain feed crops, potatoes, cotton, broom corn, peanuts, poultry, hogs, etc.

These stories are wanted for use in a campaign of advertising the Portales Valley and Roosevelt county to the world. Every week the Portales Valley News goes to hundreds of persons in every section of the United States. Help us put facts concerning Roosevelt county into the hands of our out of the state readers.

Come to the News office and tell us what you have done. Don't wait until you have performed a miracle, but tell us of the every day things which you have accomplished. Just the "regular stuff" is what we want and not anything dressed up for the occasion.

Missionary Society Held Meeting Here

The annual district meeting of the Missionary society of the Methodist church was held in Portales Thursday of last week. A lunch was served at the church at noon for those delegates who arrived during the forenoon.

The meeting opened at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Little presiding and reports were heard from Carlsbad, Artesia, Roswell, Texico, Melrose and Portales. These reports showed all the societies to be in good working order.

Mrs. Higbee of Artesia, gave a wonderful talk on "The Missionary Garden," and the meeting asked that she send the paper to the Missionary Voice and the Advocate.

Mrs. Carver, of Melrose, also gave a wonderful talk.

The evening meal was served at the church and an hour's session was held in the evening. The orchestra from the Methodist church at Clovis rendered two pieces which were enjoyed, as was, also, the reading by a young lady from Clovis.

An interesting talk was that of Reverend Lee of Hagerman, and Rev. W. G. Gaston, the pastor at Carlsbad, preached a great sermon at 7:45.

There were five delegates from Carlsbad, four from Artesia, three from Melrose, five from Texico, one from Roswell, and about twenty-five from Clovis present.

BUSINESS REGIME IS PROMISED BY DILLON

G. O. P. CANDIDATE HEARD BY PORTALES VOTERS THURSDAY NIGHT

On Thursday night of last week, a number of republican state candidates addressed the voters of Roosevelt county at the Portales court house. The meeting was called to order by County Chairman Ezra Watts. Rev. MacArthur introduced the speakers.

The first speaker was R. C. Dillon, republican nominee for governor. Mr. Dillon merely announced his candidacy, promising a business administration of elected.

The next speaker was Miss Mary Bartolino, candidate for secretary of the state who made a short address, setting forth her claims and qualifications for the office.

Nathan Jaffa, candidate for state treasurer, stated that he had been a citizen of Roswell for 30 years, when there was a population of 75, 6 republicans and the balance democrats; that his business had been banking and a business man.

Mike A. Otero, candidate for state auditor, made a very short talk, in which he stated that he was glad that this campaign had been started without mud-slinging, and for his part there would be none.

Hugh H. Williams, present member of the state corporation commission, and candidate for reelection, outlined the duties of the commission, and the value of the commission to the public, advising them to use it and get full returns from it. He made a very good talk along that line.

Francis E. Wilson, candidate for attorney general, made a fine democratic speech in which he pleaded guilty to all charges which had been brought against the republican party in the past, but that now they were going to be good, and "won't you please believe us and elect us this fall." Later on he scored Governor Hannett for running on the same ticket with Lorenzo Delgado. However, in all his talk he could find no other charge against the administration, with the exception that he did not like the way that Ed Swope was administering the state land office, and that while he admired the stand of Governor Hannett in his fight to clean up the corruptness of the republican party, now that they were all reformed, he thought that it was time to retire the governor.

Hon. Adam Bede, former congressman of Minnesota, was the chief speaker of the evening. Mr. Bede is a famous platform lecturer and kept the audience roaring. He stated that he regretted very much that there were so many republicans in Minnesota and so few in Roosevelt county.

Taken as a whole, the evening was a rather joyful one for all concerned and the Democrats who attended heard nothing to convert them to the cause of republicanism.

NO LONGER THE LAND OF THE LONG DROUGHT

New Mexico is no longer the land of the long drought. Cultivation and vegetation have broken the dry seasons and the prairie wind storms. Today the wind and sand storms are rare occurrences and the average rainfall is increasing each year.

This has been the history of all prairie countries and it will not prove an exception in New Mexico. Eastern New Mexico can look back only a few years to the time when the spring and fall wind and sand storms made life miserable for country and city residents alike. Not so today. There are occasional winds but they have lost their punch. The rainfall during the past year has been more than sufficient and the dry-farming sections of the Portales Valley have prospered alike with the irrigated lands.

Three years from now and the valley will have forgotten what a sand storm is and will no longer look forward with apprehension at the coming season with fear that there will be insufficient rainfall.

Come to the Portales Valley!

Mrs. A. H. Yoder, of Clovis, mother of Mrs. Milton Kornegay was in Portales Wednesday.

County Teachers to Meet Here Oct. 8-9

The regular teachers meeting will be held here Friday and Saturday, Oct. 8 and 9, J. W. Williamson, Co. Sup't., announced, the first of the week. Mr. Williamson expects a large attendance from over the county for this meeting.

Among the speakers who will be here to address the teachers at this meeting will be president E. L. Kent of A. and M. college, and Prof. O. T. Doran, of the State Teachers' College, Silver City. Others who will appear on the program are prominent and well known in New Mexico educational circles.

Special programs are being prepared for both days, to include musical numbers, readings and exercises.

The business sessions will be especially interesting to the teachers as many of the problems of the school room are to be discussed by speakers from other parts of the state as well as by local teachers.

Many Portales and Roosevelt county teachers are making preparations to attend the New Mexico Educational association convention at Santa Fe, November 4 to 6 inclusive.

"Every teacher in the county should attend this meeting," Mr. Williamson said, not only for the good they will get out of the convention, but because they will be able to see one of the oldest and most interesting cities in the United States.

MORE ROOM FOR THE JOYCE-PRUIT STORE

One-third more floor space for their store room will be secured by the Joyce-Pruit company here when the work of tearing out the partition between the store room and rear room which was formerly used by the wholesale grocery department, has been completed.

The rear room is a space forty by fifty feet and above this was a balcony. Neither has been used for anything other than a storage room for some time, while the store has been crowded for display space.

When this work is completed it will give this store a room 50 feet wide by 125 feet deep. Just as soon as possible the work of occupying the new space will begin, according to Mr. Walton, manager of the store. It will probably be ten days before the balcony floor can be removed and the plastering completed.

A CORRECTION

Through oversight the name of the New Mexico Utilities Co., was omitted from the list of those who made possible the sending of the Roosevelt county exhibit to the T-O Fair at Wichita Falls. Mr. Martin the local manager of the N. M. U. T. Co., was one of the first to contribute to this cause, and was largely instrumental in securing the financing of the exhibit.

GRAND JURY OCT. 4; PETIT JURY OCT. 6

The statement carried in the Portales Valley News two weeks ago that the grand and petit juries were called for October 10, was an error. The grand jury has been called for Monday, October 4, and the petit jury for Wednesday, October 6.

All who were summoned on the juries are urged to note this correction—grand jury October 4, and petit jury, October 6.

Thank you.

FIRST WINTRY BLAST ARRIVED HERE EARLY

CENTRAL SECTION OF U. S. SWEPT BY COLD WAVE AND RAINFALL

There will become who dispute the statement that the weather man played a dirty trick on the Portales Valley and the rest of the plains country when he sent the temperature tobogganing from above 90 degrees on Friday to below 50 Sunday morning and soaked the country with a rain that measured slightly more than three inches in Portales and vicinity between Friday night and Tuesday morning, but its an undisputable fact that it wasn't right.

The blasts from Enklomland hit here all in a bunch rather early Friday night, accompanied by first a drizzle, then a little shower and from that into a downpour. It quit a spell then drizzled, showered and poured down some more. Monday night it fell without ceasing for most of the night and everything was thoroughly soaked. The temperature began a feeble ascent, though, Monday forenoon and by Tuesday evening was warmed up considerable.

Crop damage throughout this part of the state will be slight, most of it being confined to the cotton and broom corn, although some frosted stuff will suffer also. Cotton which was beginning to open rapidly under the glare of the sunshine of last week, will be delayed and much of that which is open will suffer some. Some of the fields were too muddy to permit picking when the rain did cease.

The sudden and unprecedented weather was not confined to any section but was general throughout the central and eastern portion of the western part of the United States. Temperatures dropped to lowest marks in years at many places, while snow fell over several of the northern states.

While the temperatures in the Roswell, N. M., area were about the same as at Portales, there was a light snowfall in the mountains near there, and at Amarillo about noon last Saturday, snow flakes were seen.

Crop damage throughout the area swept by the wintry blasts and rains varies from serious to slight. Highways in many places were impassable. In Iowa great loss was sustained by the corn growers.

Broomcorn Not Hurt

The damage to the broom corn crop of the valley will be nominal, in the opinion of Frank Shaw of this city, broom corn buyer. "Some of the corn that was down may be damaged slightly, and some of the bales that were not protected may have the outside layer slightly colored, but that is about the extent of the damage," said Mr. Shaw.

In this connection Mr. Shaw urges the broom corn raisers who are determined to hold their crop to put it under cover. "Many of the men who decline to sell at this time, and who will hold for higher prices, fail to take into account the deterioration of the corn if left in an unprotected place. There is always plenty of fodder on the farm and a few armloads of this over the bale will give ample protection. If the bales are left exposed to the weather they will not bring as much money even at a higher price as they would at today's prices because of the weather damage that will result."

CANNING PLANT HERE PUT UP POTATOES

Manager Carl Case is making an investigation of the market demand for canned sweet potatoes with a view of canning that product when the tomato crop is out of the way.

Nothing definite will be known for a few days yet, but in all probability a demand for the potatoes will be found, in which event the plant here will be able to run indefinitely, canning them.

To date over fifteen cars of tomatoes have been canned and the seasons output is estimated at twenty car loads.

BIG IMPROVEMENTS FOR WILSON HOTEL BUILDING

Workmen are busy this week putting the wire screen on the exterior of the Wilson Hotel building preparatory to giving it a stucco coating.

When this is completed the hotel will be one of the best looking buildings in the business district.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

The Lord shall preserve thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth, and even for evermore.—Ps. cxli. 8.

Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations.—Ps. xc. 1.

With grateful hearts the past we own;

The future, all to us unknown,
We to Thy guardian care commit,
And peaceful leave before Thy feet.

—P. Doddridge.

We are like to Him with whom there is no past or future, with whom a day is as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day, when we do our work in the great present, leaving both past and future to Him to whom they are ever present, and fearing nothing, because He is in our future as much as He is in our past, as much as, and far more than, we can feel Him to be in our present. Partakers thus of the divine nature, resting in that perfect all-in-all in whom our nature is eternal too, we walk without fear, full of hope and courage and strength to do His will, waiting for the endless good which He is always giving as fast as we can get us able to take it in.—G. MacDonald.

Back to the Shipyard

Gene Tunney, ex-Marine, college graduate, fraternity man and a REAL fighter, easily dethroned Jack Dempsey, ex-shipyard worker and cheese champion last Thursday night when he pummeled Jack unmercifully throughout ten rounds of fighting.

This ends the career of one of the most unpopular champs that ring history has ever known. Dempsey's war record brought a blush of shame to the cheeks of every real American. He was not a fighter in the army and he was not a fighter in the prize ring. Jack Dempsey never fought a really first-class heavyweight until he met Tunney and he lost to him, being outclassed at every point of the ten rounds. He pummeled lubberly old Jess Willard, and even stooped to shady tactics to do that. He beat Bill Brennan in twelve rounds after Bill nearly had him out; Georges Carpentier was an easy victim for him, but Carpentier was not any sort of a heavyweight; Firpo was no fighter, just a powerful hitter. Dempsey would not fight Harry Willis, the "enlud" heavy, because he was afraid of him, and stalled through two years to avoid the clash.

On what was Dempsey's claim to championship calibre based? Jim Jefferies could have licked all the Dempsey's you could pile into a 24-foot ring; Sharkey would have mauled him into the canvas in less than two minutes; Fitzsimmons would have hammered him into jelly; Jim Corbett would have made an ignoramus of Jack; Jack Johnson would have toyed with him and pounded him at will, just as a tom-cat plays with a mouse.

Jack Dempsey a fighter!
"So's your old man."

Crop Diversification Pays

Roosevelt county farmers are fast learning the logic and advantages of diversification and crop rotation. Acceptance of the ideas has been rather slow during the past, but today practically every farmer in the Portales Valley is a diversificationist. The Portales Valley News believes in it and while it does not profess to be an authority on the method, it knows there are authorities from whom such information can be obtained. This newspaper is not going to tell the farmer how to farm, but it is going to continue to urge the farmer to take his problems to the county agent and to others who do know, and from them receive information and instructions.

The day of the one crop farmer is past. He has gone with the cowman. In his place today is the farmer who plants a variety and who studies his soil; the farmer who has a few milk cows, some chickens and some pigs. He does not plant his every acre to cotton, broomcorn or potatoes, but sets aside certain acres for certain crops, hence he always has a crop of something which he can turn into ready cash.

There is not a farmer who owns as much as sixty acres in the Portales Valley today who cannot live on his farm excepting for a very few articles which must be purchased at the stores. Corn bread and homey are no longer the ingredients of the farmer's meal, but on the table in the dining room of the Portales Valley farm home will be found a variety such as no city dweller enjoys, and most of it was raised on the farm. The drab and the monotony of farm life as the parents of the present generation knew it, have disappeared. Today the daily newspaper, the radio, the telephone, phonograph, piano and the automobile carry the pleasures of the world into the farm home.

Partisan Newspapers

There seems to be a sort of an epidemic which every once in a while sweeps over the country causing certain newspapers without any sort of a backbone, and also, those who do not wish to take a partisan role in political campaigns, to denounce a newspaper which is partisan and devotes space to laudation of the candidates of the editor's political faith.

Why should it be a crime to be a partisan in politics? by what law is it a crime? Since when is it the rule of newspaperdom to read any partisan editor out of the fold of respectability? Readers can notice for themselves that there are powerful newspapers that are really independent, but those papers never denounce the partisan paper. The large papers recognize the right of an editor to be as partisan as he wants to be, just so long as he is guided by truth and morality.

It is the weaklings that are always howling at the partisan newspapers. It is those who haven't the backbone to fight for the principles they believe in, for there does not live an editor who can say he is not partisan to some political faith. Why then, should he not make a fight for those principles which he believes are right and for the welfare of the people? What if he is mistaken, if it is an honest mistake?

Partisan newspapers wrong or deluded poor saps! Bosh! Pity the editor of any newspaper who hasn't the "guts" to speak out for his party.

The News is democratic and will say so in any way it sees fit. If that be wrong, Brethren, make the most of it, or "lay on, MacDuff" until your denouncer is satisfied.

Good Democratic Speeches

The Portales Valley News is sorry that every democrat in Roosevelt county was not at the court house on last Thursday evening to hear the republican candidates speak. Had they been there they would have learned that the present democratic administration is composed of high class, efficient men and women and that the only excuse there could be for making a change, is that the republican party has reformed and will be good from now on. Somewhere back in the dim ages, when Richard Hannah was the democratic nominee for United States Senator the editor of the News has a faint recollection that someone told him, that somebody else told him that Carl Magee told him, that Holm O. Bursum told him, that he would be good if he was elected to the United States Senate. Carl Magee believed him. The editor of the News was doubtful then and is doubtful now. If we have such an excellent force of state officials, why not keep those we have who are eligible to reelection and elect the balance of the democratic ticket? They are all good and efficient men—the republican candidates told you so on last Thursday night.

Peevish or Complimented

This week the editor of the News received a card from a diamond merchant, wanting his name on their list of diamond buyers. Should he be peevish and consider that they were trying to place his name on a "sucker list"—or should he be complimented that they consider him a diamond buyer?

However, this warning might be of advantage to a number of the readers of the News. Refrain from signing cards from mail order houses regardless of what they sell. It may save you from the realization that you have unknowingly signed for the purchase of some worthless article. If you wish to buy diamonds and can afford them, you will find many reliable diamond merchants who are ready and willing to serve you. If you wish to buy clothing, you will find reliable dealers with a reputation of many years back of them who will give you value and service for your money. If you wish to buy shirts, you will not have to wait for some good looking Miss from a mail order house to come along and take your measure—there are seven or more dealers in Portales with splendid lines to select from. If you wish to buy a dress you can save money and value by buying it in Portales.

The home merchant is your friend and will not knowingly sell you an article that will not come

THE COW, THE SOW AND THE HEN

Editor Paul Dodge of the Tucuman News has, for the past several years, been persistently and everlastingly hammering, hollering, bawling, crying and printing every week of the year the value, the need, the importance and the necessity of the COW, THE SOW AND THE HEN, and the result of his agitation has been that the farmers up in Quay county are beginning to believe that the blamed editor is really on the right track, and that there is sure-enough something to that theory—not to the cow alone, not the sow alone, and not to the hen alone, but to them collectively, altogether in a bunch.

The preachments of Editor Dodge might well be applied to Roosevelt county and the great Portales Valley where the farmers are already sold on the diversification idea and the value of a few head of livestock and poultry as a side line on the farm. It is said by those who know that the farmers of Roosevelt county have the advantage of the very best market and are able to receive the highest prices for their produce and dairy products at all times of the year.

The Cow, Sow and Hen plan have secured a firm hold here, but it could become more of a fad, much to the financial benefit of the land owners. It is impossible to flood the market with cows and sows and hens, for there is a demand all over the United States today for all of them. The more of them Roosevelt county can raise the more money will flow into the bank accounts of the farmers. The beauty of this plan, too, is the fact that it is not a season crop, but a weekly income, lasting the year through.

About a year ago J. A. Tinsley, living about six miles southwest of Portales, borrowed $56.00 with which to buy hogs. Checking up his records a few days ago, Mr. Tinsley found that one of the hogs had died, but he has sold $200 worth of hogs and still has $150 worth on hand, from his original investment of $56.00. He sold the under today's market price which would make them worth at this time about $308. The sum of $24 dollars was spent for feed during the year.

Now for the sow. Jim Noland, another valley farmer, says that he has only common cows, that some of them are and always have been strippers, and that no particular care or attention has been given them. He has only six head of milking cows, but from that six head he has sold over $150 worth of cream during the past year. That is a little more than half the profit. The skimmed milk was fed to the hens and pigs.

What Mr. Noland has done many other valley farmers are doing and some of them doing it on a larger scale, with the result that their bank accounts are well developed if not opulent.

Last but not least is "Old Biddy" the hen. Thousands of dollars worth of eggs are being sold in Portales every month of the year, and more thousands of dollars worth of poultry. Everyone here knows that the hen is doing her part for the prosperity of the Portales Valley farmer. The Cow, the Sow and the Hen are able to shoulder a large portion of the running expense of the farm home, and more, if they are given the opportunity to work for you as they would like.

No matter if you do get more for your money in telephone service than anything else you buy—

You'd like to keep down the cost.

The simplest way is to use Station-to-Station service. It is quicker and costs less.

Instead of insisting on a particular party, just tell the Long Distance operator that you will talk to any person who answers at the distant telephone. Chances are you will get your party just as quickly or can talk business to someone else in the same house or office.

Station-to-Station rates are from 20 per cent to 50 per cent less than Person-to-Person rates.

We encourage you to use this less expensive service because it takes us less time to complete the call and therefore costs us less.

SOME FACTS TO HELP YOU DECIDE

Ford Factory Production for September is 7500 units per day for the United States alone and 750 units for Exports from the Canadian Factory and at that they are running from two to three weeks behind with orders.

This can mean only one thing and that that Fords are the Most economical transportation in the World, this has been proven by more than two and one-half Million Ford users per year.

There is no Guess work about the above statement and we stand ready to prove this to you at any time. Now that your Big Crops of this season makes it necessary that you have some kind of transportation to Quickly and economically get them to the best available market it be a pleasure for us to show you that we have it.

WASHINGTON LETTER
(Special to Portales Valley News)

Washington, September 29.—There is much confusion regarding the election issues. Members of the major political parties cannot agree as to what constitutes the party program. Candidates for office coming to Washington to seek the support of the President, or in the case of the Democrats the aid of their national leaders, differ as to issues. At one time party politics was based on clearly defined issues which aroused the populace but time apparently has wiped out the line of demarcation and party labels have faded somewhat.

As an illustration, a Republican candidate for the Senate after conference with the President this week said that, in his opinion, the tariff was an issue in the fall campaign in his state, and that the crest of the farm troubles had been reached, so that agricultural relief is no longer a political issue. He insisted that it is one of economic adjustment. At the same time one or two other candidates of the same party said that farm relief was distinctly an issue, and that the administration favored additional work stressing the effectiveness of cooperatives instead of legislative help. Federal officials have already indicated that the government would gladly extend loans to cooperatives with the idea of relieving agricultural depression.

On the other hand, in the Democratic campaign officials stated that the question of state rights was something worth consideration by the voting public. Revival of the state rights issue was very pronounced this week in Maryland when the Democratic state platform carried a recognition of this old time principal. The activities of the Democrats in Maryland is considered important in Washington because the platform was drafted under the direction of Governor Ritchie, who has been boomed for Democratic nomination for President in 1928.

It is almost a certainty that the question of direct primaries will figure prominently in the debate in the Senate this winter, especially in view of the report of the special investigating committee headed by Senator James Reed, Democrat of Missouri, who has been investigating expenditures in the primaries in Pennsylvania and Illinois. Prediction is made that the matter will become so important that it will take on national aspects. Already movements are under way to abolish direct primaries. It is direct issue in the gubernatorial campaign in Wyoming where the Republican candidate for Governor opposes direct primaries, and Mrs. Nellie Ross, the incumbent, defends the direct primary system. The Republican party of New Jersey has demanded removal of the direct primary law and the Democrats have opposed this proposition. In the state of Illinois there is a court proceeding which may vitally affect the primary situation. Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Mexico have never adopted direct primaries for public office.

The fact that the Federal Trade Commission has again been rebuked by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia affords grounds for discussion at the Capitol. The Commission was enjoined a few days ago from participating in so-called fishing expeditions which is a form of legalized search into the files of business organizations for documents which might aid the Federal prosecution.

In the case of Miller's National Federation of Chicago the court decided that it was high time the Commission be curbed from attempting to infringe on constitutional rights. Thus the Federal Trade Commission has lost the majority of its court cases. The President has a problem on his hands in filling the Commission's Democratic vacancy which occurred with the retirement of Houston Thompson, whose term expired last week.

The party in power to assess the Civil Service has again sounded a warning to Federal employees against the solicitation of funds for political purposes. In some municipal, state and county organizations it is a practice for help ten per cent of their salaries for a fixed period as a contribution to the party office. This is not permissible under the Civil Service Act. Congressmen seeking financial aid from those who hold civil service jobs will find it difficult to obtain financial aid from their friends in the Government service in view of the latest warning.

Members of the cabinet have assembled in Washington and the President and his associates are whipping their ideas into shape for presentation to Congress when it convenes within a few weeks.

With the knowledge that the surplus in the Federal Treasury is increasing every day it is believed that the question of tax reduction will come to the fore just prior to elections and again when Congress convenes. Treasury officials and members of the Appropriation and Ways and Means Committees of the Congress are giving consideration to the statistics showing the income and expenditures of the Government. Just now the administration does not propose to recommend further reduction in taxes. It is interesting to note that the Democratic leaders are advocating an immediate reduction. It is the intention of the Treasury officials to apply a large portion of the surplus to the reduction of Florida Gale Rips Up Theater.

This shows a theater building in Miami, Fla., literally ripped apart by the recent hurricane. The top and front were torn off and carried into the next block, leaving only a shell. Note how the street in front is flooded.

The public debt which is still of impressive proportions. The claim is advanced by the financial experts of the government that the $375,000,000 surplus, which accumulated during the last fiscal year, has already been applied to the retirement of the public debt and that this sum cannot be considered in tax reduction matters. It is said by reliable authority that the administration has not yet definitely determined the position it will take before Congress in regard to reduction in taxes. It all depends upon the budget and, of course, will be governed by political developments.

SPECTACULAR PARADE TO OPEN BIG COTTON CARNIVAL

While the big spectacular parade will be on the opening morning of the Chaves County Cotton Carnival to be held in Roswell, October 14, 15 and 16, the Old Timers parade on the second morning will be none the less interesting. It will recall the days of Billie the Kid, the days when Carlshad was Edly and Roswell nothing more than a blacksmith shop. On burros, horses, in hacks and chuck wagons the old timers will ride. And it is hoped that every man or woman who was in Eastern New Mexico thirty or more years ago will take part in the parade. J. S. Lea, of Roswell, is chairman of this committee and will be glad to hear from those planning to come. It has been suggested that the old timers may get together for a dinner on that day, and that a group picture be taken. There are many other details not yet completed.

Standing out above all the other entertainment features will be the music and programs provided by the famous Cowboy Band of Abilene. And there will be other bands to keep the crowds happy from morning until late at night. The Automobile show will be housed in a tent 120 by 220 feet. The agricultural building will be crowded to the limit. The canned fruit and vegetable department and the fine arts division are attracting a lot of attention among the ladies. The decorations will be gorgeous. The athletic events, the rodeo and dozens of other features will all combine to make the fourth annual carnival an enjoyable as well as a profitable event for eastern New Mexico.

Thousands of dollars are being spent in preparation and if indications mean anything the largest crowds ever in Roswell will be there for the three days of the carnival.

ANOTHER LIGHT POST SUFFERS IN A COLLISION

The street light standard at the Portales Garage corner suffered a severe shock a few days ago when a small car driven by a lady took the bit in its teeth and rammed over the corner curb and bumped its nose on the post. The large globe was smashed to smithereens but that constituted the damage.

These posts seem to incur the hatred of automobiles, and every time they stand out too prominently said auto shakes its head, bows its back and charges. They sure are hard to control when they see an electric light post.

ROEBUCK REPORTS

We had no Sunday school Sunday on account of the rain. Also had a big rain Friday night and it rained almost continually until Monday morning.

Several of the farmers around here have loose and bunched broom corn on the ground that will be considerably damaged by the rain, but we trust the good that the rain will otherwise do will overbalance the broom corn loss.

Mrs. Luma Knight, who has been visiting in the R. M. Harding home for the past year, has gone for a visit with relatives in Wheeler county, Texas, before returning to home in Oklahoma.

C. B. Robinson and Walter King made a trip to Roswell the first of the week.

Miss Elsie Green of Garrison, visited Mrs. Lois Blakley a few days last week.

Our school has been dismissed for the next few weeks in order that the children may help gather the crops.

Cotton has been opening real well in this part of the county, but guess this cool spell will check it up for a few days.

The crowd at the last third Sunday night singing school was the largest there for some time. Everyone is invited to attend and take part in this entertainment.

Luther and Lois Blakley and Velma and Opal Gates visited Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Harding Sunday evening.

PEN POINTERS A recent New York fashion parade shows a tendency to longer skirts. Are women discovering the real truth about their knees? New York has just added 1447 new policemen to the force. They need 'em to watch padlocked places. Three thousand Americans are reported "broke" in Paris. Maybe we've gone too far trying to prove that we're not Shylocks. The new thing, they tell us, is permanent waves for men. After all a baldheaded man does have something to be thankful for. New Jersey farms recently issued a manifesto that all leopard hunting on their property must cease. Most of the people who were hunting an escaped leopard didn't know a leopard from a cow. Norma, 24-Ounce Baby, Fights Her Way to Health, With Odds All Against Her

NORMA DOUGLAS, 5, is healthy and active as any rosy-cheeked Oklahoma farm girl, got a mighty slow start in life, but you would never know it to look at her now.

Five years ago Norma was heralded over the nation as one of the tiniest babies ever born.

She was just a mite of human flesh, weighing 24 ounces at birth with a cotton wrapping around her. She measured just nine inches long. She was so tiny that the ring on an average woman's finger would slip over her entire hand and elbow up to her shoulder.

"Could she live? There was not a chance in the world, everyone said. The doctor who delivered the baby told the father and mother that there was not a chance."

Charmed Life

But if there is such a thing as pre-destination, little Norma bears a charmed life. The baby was born in the farm house of the Douglases near Oklahoma City. Four days and four nights after birth the father kept the bedroom at the insufferable heat of 100 degrees for the baby's sake.

And the baby lived and grew very slowly. In six months it weighed six pounds, still two pounds under what a normal baby should weigh at birth.

Then one day the proud father took the baby outdoors. It contracted a severe case of pneumonia, and it looked as if Norma's time had come. But it just wasn't time for Norma to die. She didn't even go to the hospital. In two weeks she fought her way to recovery.

When she was 18 months old and weighed 18 pounds, death again attacked her from three different sides. She had pneumonia, whooping cough and measles all at once.

It looked pretty bad, especially for a child so tiny as Norma. But Fate apparently is saving Norma for something. After a hard fight in the pine-board farm house, she shook off her illness in three weeks.

Pronounced Perfect

Then she began to gain rapidly. At the age of two she was examined by the state nurse, who pronounced her the most perfect baby she had ever examined in the state.

Now Norma is five, weighs over 31 pounds, is perfectly shaped, normal and healthy in every way. Since 18 months old, she has never had a single day of sickness, her parents say.

"And you should see her eat," her father explained. "We can cook a two-pound chicken and Norma will eat half of it at one meal. I bought her four big sandwiches in a row at the fair."

The Douglas family lives at Choctaw, a village 15 miles from Oklahoma City.

day. These people were all neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Whitcomb at Texico several years ago.

Mrs. J. W. Burleson, mother of E. T. Burleson, Mrs. Harve Gibbs, a sister to Mr. Burleson, were guests in the Burleson home last week. These all live at Lubbock.

Mrs. A. C. Browne returned Tuesday night from a three week visit to her parents at Chico, California. She also visited in Los Angeles and other points in the state.

Dave Isenberg of the Famous store, returned Wednesday night from Fort Worth where he was called on account of the illness of his father. Mr. Isenberg rallied from the sudden attack, however, and is now out of danger. Dave made the trip in his car but on account of the heavy rains was compelled to abandon the car at Post on the return trip and come home on the train.

Miss Sarah Kerr was in Clovis Wednesday acting as a judge at the Curry County fair.

J. E. McLain of Amarillo was an overnight guest at the W. H. Catt home Wednesday.

Miss Gladys Townsend left today for the western part of the state where she will teach this year.

The H. M. C. held the regular meeting at the court house with thirteen ladies present. After the business session some time was spent preparing a memory book to be sent to Mrs. Ransom, who recently moved to Albuquerque.

Mrs. A. G. Tusha arrived Wednesday from Lubbock, (a) a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Small.

The hum of the harvester can now be heard on every hand. Cotton is opening up very fast at present.

Will Foster, star mail carrier, was stricken with an attack of appendicitis about a week ago and was taken to a Roswell hospital.

Mrs. John Blakley is making an extended visit with friends at Elton, Texas.

Mrs. Maude Judah is under the care of physicians in Clovis.

M. L. Blakley of Spur, Texas is visiting his children this week. His daughter, Iris, will accompany him home.

The people in this section of the county are preparing for their winter entertainment. They will order some new song books for the singing classes which were recently organized.

Miss Georgia Richardson, who is teaching just over the line in Texas was a visitor in our community last Sunday.

On Saturday, September 25, the thermometer registered 36 a drop from 98 on the previous Thursday.

The rural route is looking more and more like a probability. There is a big demand for this and many mail boxes are being ordered daily, as the farmers get ready for the delivery of mail to their homes.

PORTO BELLO GOLD

By ARTHUR D. HOWDEN SMITH

COPYRIGHT BY ARTHUR D. HOWDEN SMITH

CHAPTER XI.—Moira O'Donnell comes to accept Robert and Peter as friends. Murray leaves O'Donnell, Moira, Robert and Peter to bury his half of the treasure on the Dead Man's Chest (Treasure Island) while he sails on a five-day voyage. Thus the pirates are ignorant of the whereabouts of part of the treasure, the gold being hidden when Murray returns.

CHAPTER XII.—Flint is indignant over the division of the spoils made in his absence, but after a conference with John Silver agrees to take his portion and accept the situation.

"Nobody from the Royal James assisted them," said Murray. "You have my word for that. I cannot say as much for your own ship, although they told me when they discovered themselves to me, several days after our sailing, that they had acted alone."

"Alone or not, where's my two men?" blustered Flint. "Good hands don't grow on trees."

"No," aboared the Walrus they stab one another to death," agreed my great-uncle. "Come, come, you have no proof in support of your charge."

"Well, two broke free and two died," insisted Flint. "And if the two who broke free were not the means—"

"What proof have you of it?"

"Aye, proof, I said. Their bodies, what of them?"

"Why, we never—"

My great-uncle shrugged his shoulders.

"You see? You have been talking loosely, I fear, my friend."

Flint's fingers twitched on his hanger-hilt.

"I tell ye, Murray, there's a foul smell about this whole business. You were all for giving me hostages—twas no idea of mine. And then they no sooner come aboard my ship than they're away again. I like it not. Here's trickery or ye may get me for a preacher."

"Had I found your hostages on the James before sailing or within a day after, you should have had them back again," said Murray firmly. "But there is no point in this argument; for hostages or no hostages, you see me returned with the treasure, as I promised."

"Ye must ha' had rare success," Flint admitted unwillingly. "We ha' the gold o' the Indies here!"

He looked up and happened to meet the awestruck gaze of Moira O'Donnell. A sneer curled his lips. "But ye carry passengers, I see," he insinuated. "Gold and women! 'Tis a fine combination, Murray, but there's a rule in our Articles you were all for establishing. Number Four, eh? It sticks in my crop, for ye called it once on me."

"And that there may be less occasion for broils amongst our company, we do further decree that gaming may be prohibited at any time when in the captain's judgment it becomes dangerous to our harmony, as likewise, that at no time and under no circumstances may women be taken and kept as spoil aboard our vessels or any vessel upon which our company may chance to fare."

"What d'ye say to that? What of Rule Four now?"

My great-uncle took snuff.

"This lady," he said, with the slightest emphasis, "is the daughter of my friend here, Colonel O'Donnell, a gentleman who represents in our venture the group of my friends who made it possible for me to intercept the treasure ship."

O'Donnell, whose face had been growing redder and redder throughout this conversation, plucked his daughter by the elbow and led her away.

"Colonel O'Donnell and his daughter are my guests," my great-uncle continued. "They have played essential parts in our capture of the treasure. I must insist, Flint, that you accord them a courtesy similar to that which I should extend to friends of yours in a like situation."

"They're no friends o' mine," growled Flint. "This is more o' your cursed political blathering. Well, I'm sick o' it, Murray, and I care not who knows it. First, ye carry us north to America, just to crimp two men, with not two hundred pounds in booty to show for the voyage. Next ye shut me up here for the better part of six months for my men to rot with—"

"—and last," Flint fumed on without heeding him, "ye bring to the Rendezvous a man and a woman who are not of our company, and who, for all ye know, may go hence, and loose a king's ship on us some day when we are careened and helpless."

"Not you," returned Murray sarcastically. "You'll not careen, Flint. That would mean work for your crew. But you concern yourself needlessly. Colonel O'Donnell has reasons for keeping his share in our enterprise under cover. He is more safely to be trusted in the circumstances than any another."

"I care not who he is or what you may have on him," cried Flint, working himself into a fury. "Ye ha' introduced four strangers into our midst without the let or permission of others of our company."

"I shall not do," replied my great-uncle haughtily. "Such as it is, this company is the creation of my efforts, and I venture the assertion, Captain Flint, that it will not long survive my leadership. The four strangers of whom you complain have been essential factors in enabling me to win the treasure before you—which now awaits your convenience for division, according to the terms which I originally stipulated."

If Murray's last words were intended to stimulate Flint's cupidity anew they succeeded. "How—how much?" he asked, almost fearfully.

"Seven hundred and sixty-three thousand, nine hundred and ninety-five pounds in coin and bullion, without counting a chest of jewels and three chests of plate," replied my great-uncle promptly. "You will note that I have favored your people in the division, allotting to them all in excess of the million and a half pounds the Santissima Trinidad was expected to carry."

A cunning look crept into Flint's face.

"Where's the rest?" he croaked.

My great-uncle took snuff.

"Quite safely disposed of, I assure you," he answered.

"Down below?"

"No, 'tis no longer aboard."

Flint swallowed hard.

"Ye mean it ain't here? It ain't aboard the James?"

"Precisely, captain."

"Cut me!" roared Flint. "Ye divided it by your lones? W'out a man from the Walrus to stand by and see fair play? I'll not support it, Murray. Curse me, if I will! I know your tricks! May I be—"

— for a — if any lousy swab of a sea-lawyer politician is a goin' to cast dust in my eyes. 'Twould be the very thing ye'd do, Murray, to attempt to cozen me into believing seven hundred thousand pounds had been set aside for your friends by throwing in an extra hundred thousand pounds for our division. 'Friends! By thunder, the only friend ye know is yourself, ye dried-up wisp of a—"

"That will do," said my great-uncle in his usual level voice.

Flint opened and shut his mouth rapidly without a sound issuing forth.

"I bar personalities, captain," warned my redoubtable relative. "One hand barely touched his sword-hilt."

"I trust there will be no occasion for me to repeat the warning," he remarked.

Flint's baffled rage was comic to behold.

"Aye, you and your fine gentleman ways!" he choked. "I know ye! Gut me if I'll support it to be swindled thus! A woman and strangers aboard! And eight hundred thousand pounds missing!"

"Safely disposed of," says you! I'll warrant. Safe where you can collar it any time you please. I knowed it as soon as I marked the flutter of a petticoat. A woman and gold—"

Long John Silver swung himself up on the poop from the head of the port ladder and stamped to ward us.

"I hopes as how ye'll overlook my boldness, Cap'n Murray, but I ha' a word to speak to Cap'n Flint—fo'c'sle council, sir."

My great-uncle took another pinch of snuff.

"Ah, yes," he observed dryly. "I recall that aboard the Walrus the fo'c'sle council must be heard. I trust that you can instill some common sense into your captain's head. He hath need of it, Silver."

Flint glared, but Silver snatched whatever reply he intended out of his mouth.

"Thank 'ee, sir. You just let me an' Cap'n Flint ha' a word in private, and maybe we'll see a way out o' this tangle."

"Suit yourself," said my great-uncle with a shrug.

Silver pulled his forelock, and his large face lighted up as if a considerable favor had been conferred. "We won't be no time at all, sir. Thank 'ee kindly."

He put his free hand under Flint's elbow, and I marveled to see the ease with which he was able to bend his captain to his will. Accustomed as I was to Murray's autocratic discipline, it was a revelation to establish contact again with the free-and-easy spirit of the Walrus, where any man might become commander if he was able to muster a majority of the fo'c'sle to raise cutlasses in his behalf. Flint obediently followed his quarter-master to the starboard side of the poop, and there they laid their heads close and colloqued for a quarter-glass, Silver at first arguing and Flint resisting him.

"Silver is no man to let hard on four hundred thousand pounds slip through his hands," I said.

"And maybe he says not to let eight hundred thousand pounds get away, needer," commented Peter. "Ja, I tink so."

Murray nodded slowly.

"You are more like to be right than wrong, friend Peter. Of all the Walrus' people he hath the most intelligence. A choice knife!"

Colonel O'Donnell stalked back to us from the extremity of the stern with Moira on his arm.

"Did ye put a flea in the rascal's ear, Murray?" he demanded. "By the Mass, I never thought to hear ye tolerate such impudence on your own deck."

"I am no man for quarreling without an adequate end in sight," returned my great-uncle. "Never threaten unless you must, chevalier, and then smite with a sure aim."

"Words!" grumbled the Irishman. "This time we had a little action."

Moira disengaged herself from her father and came to stand between Peter and me.

"See, Bob! There's the red-headed boy will be making signals to you from the larboard ladder."

Darby McGraw's flaming top-knot projected just far enough above the level of the deck to show his eyes and a hand that jerked mysteriously at me.

"Come up, Darby," I invited him. But he shook his head vigorously, so I crossed to his side.

"What is ailing you?" I asked.

"Sorra a trouble in the whole of creation," he returned in his rich brogue. "But I'd walk my two feet over the galley-stove as soon as stand so near the old devil as yourself, Master Bob."

"He's no more to be feared than Flint," I answered, laughing.

"Ah, there's little ye know to be saying a thing the like of that!" exclaimed Darby. "With Flint 'tis a blow and a curse and 'take it or leave it'! But him! He'd put the evil eye on the lot of us if the notion but came into the head of him."

"I'd rather be his friend than his enemy," I admitted. "Do they fear him so aboard the Walrus?"

Darby squinted sideways at me.

"Whiles they fear him. And then again, when the rum is flowing— But I'll be saying what maybe I'll be sorry for later. I see ye found the elegant young maid that went to the Whale's Head with ye. My faith, ain't she the pretty creature! Will she be a pirate, too?"

"No more than Peter and me."

"Do ye tell me that same! And ye took her along with the treasure, the lads do be saying below. That was the grand haul! But they say, too, a good half of it ye buried on that island Long John do be always singing about."

"So you have heard that!" I cried.

"Troth, yes. They was telling Long John and me before he come up to speak with Cap'n Flint. God save us, who'd think there was so most intelligence. A choice knife!"

Colonel O'Donnell stalked back to us from the extremity of the stern with Moira on his arm.

"Did ye put a flea in the rascal's ear, Murray?" he demanded. "By the Mass, I never thought to hear ye tolerate such impudence on your own deck."

"Sorra a trouble in the whole of creation," he returned in his rich brogue. "But I'd walk my two feet over the galley-stove as soon as stand so near the old devil as yourself, Master Bob."

"He's no more to be feared than Flint," I answered, laughing.

"Ah, there's little ye know to be saying a thing the like of that!" exclaimed Darby. "With Flint 'tis a blow and a curse and 'take it or leave it'! But him! He'd put the evil eye on the lot of us if the notion but came into the head of him."

"I'd rather be his friend than his enemy," I admitted. "Do they fear him so aboard the Walrus?"

Darby squinted sideways at me.

"Whiles they fear him. And then again, when the rum is flowing— But I'll be saying what maybe I'll be sorry for later. I see ye found the elegant young maid that went to the Whale's Head with ye. My faith, ain't she the pretty creature! Will she be a pirate, too?"

"No more than Peter and me."

"Do ye tell me that same! And ye took her along with the treasure, the lads do be saying below. That was the grand haul! But they say, too, a good half of it ye buried on that island Long John do be always singing about."

"So you have heard that!" I cried.

"Troth, yes. They was telling Long John and me before he come up to speak with Cap'n Flint. God save us, who'd think there was so most intelligence. A choice knife!"

Colonel O'Donnell stalked back to us from the extremity of the stern with Moira on his arm.

"Did ye put a flea in the rascal's ear, Murray?" he demanded. "By the Mass, I never thought to hear ye tolerate such impudence on your own deck."

"I am no man for quarreling without an adequate end in sight," returned my great-uncle. "Never threaten unless you must, chevalier, and then smite with a sure aim."

"Words!" grumbled the Irishman. "This time we had a little action."

Moira disengaged herself from her father and came to stand between Peter and me.

"See, Bob! There's the red-headed boy will be making signals to you from the larboard ladder."

Darby McGraw's flaming top-knot projected just far enough above the level of the deck to show his eyes and a hand that jerked mysteriously at me.

"Come up, Darby," I invited him. But he shook his head vigorously, so I crossed to his side.

"What is ailing you?" I asked.

"Sorra a trouble in the whole of creation," he returned in his rich brogue. "But I'd walk my two feet over the galley-stove as soon as stand so near the old devil as yourself, Master Bob."

Sunset Park

To meet a demand in Portales for desirable resident property in acreage tracts, the owners of the Santa Fe block of 40 acres have decided to sell this land in small tracts or as resident lots to suit the purchasers.

Sale Opens Saturday, October 2, 1926

EVERY HOMESEAKER AND INVESTOR OF MODERATE MEANS LIKES TO FEEL THAT IF HE MAKES A NEW VENTURE IN REAL ESTATE, INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION OR AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT, HIS MONEY IS GOING INTO A TERRITORY WHOSE FOUNDATION AND PERMANENCY IS ASSURED. IN THIS RESPECT PORTALES AND THE PORTALES VALLEY STAND OUT AS AN EXAMPLE OF WORTH AND VALUE ALREADY TRIED AND PROVEN. TODAY EASTERN NEW MEXICO IS BEGINNING TO REALIZE ON THE FAVORABLE ADVERTISING HER WONDERFUL AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES HAVE GIVEN HER THROUGHOUT THE NATION AND HOMESEAKERS ARE COMING IN LARGE NUMBERS EACH MONTH.

Sunset Park
Sunset Park, the most beautiful residence addition to Portales, lies to the west of the Santa Fe station. It is located on one of the highest points in the city and within easy walking distance of the business section.

Sunset Park will have every convenience enjoyed by the other residence sections—electricity is there and water is accessible; streets will be graded and property lines drawn. It is the ideal site for the small home owner.

A CHALLENGE TO THE MODERN AGE
Every family in its own home. Parents and children united to make the home the most wonderful place in all the world. Family life based on the sure foundation of home ownership will withstand the restless spirit of an age whose symbols are jazz music and the jeyride. Do you own your own home? You should. Every citizen who has the interests of his family at heart, who wants to build for himself and his family a position of respect and happy contentment, should own his home. You will find the road to home ownership in beautiful Sunset Park addition to Portales.

THE FUTURE OF PORTALES IS ASSURED
There are no pessimists in Portales today in regard to the future of this city. It has withstood the hard years, the years when many who had located here did not know whether they were going to be able to "stick it out" or not. Today Roosevelt and the great Portales Valley are among the agricultural leaders in New Mexico and the Southwest. Roosevelt county will produce 20,000 bales of broom corn and 4500 bales of cotton in 1926. The tomato, the sweet potato and the peanut crops assure this county a place as a leader. In the center and as the known marketing place of this great county stands Portales as the principal city and chief marketing place.

You are going to choose that location for your home sometime, why delay? Now, at the pre-development period of SUNSET PARK, when prices are the lowest they can possibly be, is the proper time to make your selection and investment. Property values in this choice addition are going to increase as improvements are made—as the different tracts are improved by the owners, and as new homes are constructed. The ones who take advantage of the opening day prices will get the greatest value for their money.

There is not to-day, nor will it be in the future, a more desirable residential addition to Portales. Sunset Park has every natural advantage. It is already within the city and is surrounded by residential properties. It is within walking distance of the business section of the city. Modern city advantages and conveniences are there, and the streets are to be graded. We will be glad to show this property, discuss with you that home of your own you would like to own, and tell you how your dreams of such can be made come true.
