Shattered Dreams: A Cautionary Tale for Highschool Students

By Marilyn Wood

Death walked the hallways of the high school Friday, May 26, as students participated in the Shattered Dreams Program. The program is a dramatization of the results of an alcohol related accident. The intent of the program is to remind students of the consequences of their choices. Much of the time underage drinking and driving ends in tragedy. The community of Sonora once again came together to support its youth by supporting the Shattered Dreams Program.

Soon after classes began on Friday, a heartbeat sounded over the intercom and the grim reaper made his appearance. He took one student from class every 15 minutes in order to demonstrate the rate at which death occurs by drunk driving. The students' obituaries, which had been prepared by their parents, were read to their classmates. The students applied white make-up and returned to class as the living dead; the symbolization of victims of drunk driving. A total of nine students were taken from class.

At 10:45 am the sounds of a crash and 911 call were played over the intercom. The living dead were removed from class and sent to the crash scene in front of the school. All students were then escorted to the scene by their teachers. They witnessed one of their own lying on the pavement, "dead," after being thrown from the wrecked vehicle, three other students were trapped in the vehicle, and one intoxicated student pacing the street trying to make sense of what she was seeing. DPS troopers, local police and sheriff deputies, EMS, and fire department arrived at the scene. The jaws of life were used to free the victims trapped in the vehicle. Two of the victims were transported by ambulance. The Shannon AirMed helicopter arrived and transported one critically injured victim. The Justice of the Peace arrived and pronounced one student dead at the scene. The intoxicated student was arrested and taken to jail in handcuffs. After lunch students were called to the auditorium for a wrap-up assembly.

The Shattered Dreams Program at Sonora High School would not have been possible without the help of our Community. Thanks to the following for their participation and assistance:

Sutton County Independent School District School Board Members and Mr. Hartman for approving the program and providing for the necessary supplies, DPS Trooper Henderson, Officer Cody Gann, and Mrs. Wood for coordinating the project, DPS Trooper Baxter for presenting the assembly, Mr. Ricks for playing the part of Grim Reaper, Mrs.

West Texas Friends Of Nra Awards Grants To Sutton County Sheriff's Dept. And Sutton County 4H Shooting Sports

The West Texas Friends of NRA Grant Committee held its' meeting in Brownwood, Texas on Jan. 25, 2014. Of the 27 committees within the West Texas Region, 20 were represented to review the 81 grant applications submitted. Sutton County Friends of NRA was represented by grant committee member, Tonya Brown and Donna Keese, a local committee member.

The West Texas events alone grossed over $1.6 million in 2013. New records were set with 11 events qualifying as High Caliber and two events netting over $100,000 in one night! WOW.....now that's a hats off to all those hardworking committee members.

Grants are awarded to qualifying projects or activities that promote firearms and hunting safety; enhance the marksmanship skills of those participating in the shooting sports; educate the general public about firearms and their historic, technological, and artistic context; or contribute to the well-being of the public at large. Grants benefit a variety of constituencies including children, youth, women, individuals with physical disabilities, law enforcement officers and competitive teams.

The committee approved 59 grant applications and awarded in excess of $370,000. Surrounding area recipients included: Kimble County 4H, Menard County 4H, Fort Concho Foundation, Golden Spread BSA (Abilene), Crane Police Dept., Tom Green County 4H, Christoval High School Shooting Team, Coleman County 4H, Midland High School JROTC, Val Verde Sheriff Dept., San Saba County 4H, etc.

The Grant Committee allocated $25,000 to be set aside for the 2014 scholarship fund. High school graduating seniors, furthering their education and meeting set GPA requirements, were eligible to apply. A 1000 word essay was required on the topic: Should Texas Concealed Carry Laws be changed with respect to college campuses? Six (6) essays were received and are being decided on by the Scholarship Committee. Five (5) scholarships will be awarded with one lucky winner receiving $10,000!

Our local Sutton County Friends of NRA committee is proud to have had a hand in raising money that benefits such worthwhile entities within West Texas. Of the money raised at each Friends of NRA event, 50% of the net proceeds is earmarked by The NRA Foundation to support qualified, eligible charitable projects at the grassroots level in the state in which it is raised. Since 2007, West Texas Friends of NRA has raised and returned to West Texas grant recipients in excess of $1.4 million.

There's no doubt West Texans support our 2nd Amendment Rights! Join us for this year's Sutton County Friends of NRA event on Saturday, September 20, 2014. Mark your calendar. You're guaranteed a fun filled evening for the entire family!

Drought!

Sutton County Drought Index Well Water Level & Average Precipitation for 2013

By Jim Polonis

Springtime is the season of blooming wildflowers, greening grasses, flowing water splashing over rocks in a creek or river, along with many other signs of the season. Not this year! Springs—some are dried up while others are flowing very slowly. Rivers are trickling or have ceased flowing. Lakes and ponds are at very low levels or have completely dried up. Trees are dying; grasses have all but disappeared from the landscape. Winter and spring rains were nonexistent. Farmers and ranchers are trying to meet their needs without depleting their water resources. Municipalities are closely monitoring their water resources hoping the supply will support their populations until lifesaving rains return. The list of large and small municipalities at TCEQ's website, with short supplies of water continues to lengthen. Water, the essential substance of life, is taken for granted, abused, and neglected. As long as it flows from the faucet, we use it to drink, cook, bathe, wash clothes, water lawns, clean vehicles, grow crops, sustain livestock and wildlife, incorporate into products we manufacture, and many other uses. Yet, if we do not conserve, none of these uses will be possible and our very existence will be threatened.

The Sutton County UWCD (Underground Water Conservation District) is monitoring our water resources by gath-

What a glorious rain we enjoyed over the weekend! The kids and I were camping out in a tent when the severe lightning and rain storm hit in the middle of the night, and it was a wet, scary, muddy scramble back to shelter. But we were giddy from the excitement of such an awesome storm and all that it would mean for us and our fellow ranchers. You could practically hear the Earth drinking and see the green grass growing. Sometimes it's scary waiting for God to provide. But He does provide. And why have we been waiting with bated breath for rain? For our plants. For our animals. Which ultimately turn into our food. God is good and provides every thing we need for our good health. The other lesson learned here is that if you need it to rain – go camping!

For ground that drinks the rain which often falls on it and brings forth vegetation useful to those for whose sake it is also tilled, receives a blessing from God. Hebrews 6:7

Body Clocks Can be the Cause of Obesity

COLLEGE STATION – A team of Texas A&M University System scientists have investigated how "body clock dysregulation" might affect obesity-related metabolic disorders.

The team was led by Dr. Chaodong Wu, associate professor in the department of nutrition and food sciences of Texas A&M's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, and Dr. David Earnest, professor in the department of neuroscience and experimental therapeutics, Texas A&M Health Science Center. Study results were published recently on the Journal of Biological Chemistry website at <http://www.jbc.org/content/early/2014/04/25/jbc.M113.539601>.

"Animal sleeping and eating patterns, including those of humans, are subject to a circadian rhythmicity," Earnest said. "And previous studies have shown an association between the dysregulation of circadian or body clock rhythms and some metabolic disorders."

Wu said circadian clocks in peripheral tissues and cells drive daily rhythms and coordinate many physiological processes, including inflammation and metabolism.

"And recent scientific observations suggest that disruption of circadian clock regulation plays a key role in the development of metabolic diseases, including obesity and diabetes," he noted.

He said this study affirms that eating unhealthy foods causes health problems and that it's much worse to eat unhealthy foods at the wrong time. It also indicates that "time-based treatment may provide better management of metabolic diseases."

"To promote human health, we need not only to eat healthy foods, but also more importantly to keep a healthy lifestyle, which includes avoiding sleeping late and eating at night," he said.

Wu and Earnest said while previous studies using mice with genetic mutation of the removal of core clock genes has indicated that specific disruption of circadian clock function alters metabolism or produces obesity, the mechanism remained unknown. As key components of inflammation in obesity, macrophages, which are immune cells, contain cell-autonomous circadian clocks that have been shown to gate inflammatory responses.

"Our hypothesis was that overnutrition causes circadian clock dysregulation, which induces pro-inflammatory activity in adipose tissue. This then worsens inflammation and fat deposition, leading to systematic insulin resistance," Wu said.

To test the hypothesis, the team conducted experiments with "reporter mice" in which the circadian rhythmicity of various types of cells could be monitored by looking at their reporter activity. Accordingly, the reporter mice were put on a 12-hour light-dark cycle and were fed a high-fat diet. Additional reporter mice were fed a low-fat diet and served as controls. In this set of experiments, the team was able to characterize the effects of a high-fat diet on circadian clock rhythmicity and inflammatory responses in immune cells, or macrophages.

To further define a unique role for circadian clock dysregulation in metabolic disorders, the team conducted "bone marrow transplantation" experiments, through which the rhythmicity of circadian clocks was disrupted only in a specific type of immune cells. After high-fat diet feeding, the transplanted mice were used for collection of blood and tissue samples. A number of physiological and immunological assays also were performed on the mice.

Earnest said results showed that during obesity, that is when mice were fed a high-fat diet, the rhythmicity of circadian clocks in immune cells of fat tissue is dysregulated by a prolonged rhythmic period. This is, in turn, is linked to increased accumulation of immune cells in fat tissue and decreased whole-body insulin sensitivity.

"Animals on a high-fat diet display metabolic problems associated with obesity," Earnest said. "The problems are worsened in animals whose circadian clocks in immune cells are disrupted."

Earnest and Wu said the study will help those involved in human health and nutrition better understand the underlying mechanisms related to obesity and diabetes.

our water resources by gathering data from water wells around the county, collecting rainfall data, and verifying the quality of the water supply. The District has adopted a drought contingency plan containing a series of drought stages associated with a series of trigger levels corresponding to water levels in the drought index well. The water levels from this well are recorded and graphed along with any precipitation measured during the same time period. See graph on Page 1.

Large rain events such as the one that occurred in September 2013 gave rise to a higher water level in the well. Note over time, without more rain the level starts to drop once again. In order to keep the water level higher, we need more rain. To prevent the water level from dropping during this drought, we need to conserve our water by putting into practice water conserving methods. Some conservation methods are very easy and you may already be practicing them. Washing laundry only with a full load or by utilizing the small load setting is a simple but effective water conservation practice. Also, keeping showers to a minimum of four to five minutes or replacing shower heads with a low flow head will save much water over time. If washing dishes by hand, use a pan to wash and another to rinse. Rinsing under running water uses much more water than if a pan were used. For additional water saving tips please go to the following website:

http://fcs.tamu.edu/housing/efficient_housing/water_management/water_conservation_checklist/laundry.php

There are many people in the community and surrounding area, who are already conserving water in their homes, businesses and ranches. The District would like to hear from you about the ways you have been conserving water. Ideas received that could help others in the community will be shared in a future article or possibly on the radio at KHOS. With everyone joining the conservation effort, we can conserve our water supply and hopefully not have to invoke stringent water saving measures. By working together we can save a lot of water.

For example, there are about 4300 people in the county, including Sonora, if everyone saved five gallons of water per day that is 21,500 gallons. In a month that amounts to 645,000 gallons of water. In a year that is 7,740,000 gallons, or 23.75 acre-feet of water saved. Of course, if that amount were increased our savings would be greater. It is estimated the average American family uses 300 gallons of water per day; 70% of that within the house and 30% outside. Let's make our District the shining example for the state on how to save water. Remember let us know how you are saving the precious resource. The District would appreciate your input.

Game wardens also responded to seven search and rescue situations and assisted local agencies during severe flash flooding in Val Verde, Lubbock, Archer, Medina, Uvalde and Medina counties.

"The work conducted by our game wardens over the weekend is a testament to their professionalism," said Col. Craig Hunter, TPWD Director of Law Enforcement.

Hunter noted that game wardens focused on ensuring public safety throughout the state's waterways.

"Everyone must play a part in increasing water safety in Texas," he said. "I urge every Texan to wear a life jacket while on our lakes, rivers, and bays and to not consume alcohol while boating in Texas. Your life could well depend on it."

Look Back Over Your Future

There is this game that all adults play at one time in their lives. It is the "If I could go back and do some things differently" game. Whether we like to admit it or not, all of us at one time in our lives will find ourselves asking that question. At this point in your lives it is probably impossible to figure out what exactly the 36 year old version of yourself is going to want to change, but trust me...there will be more than one thing the "older you" would do differently.

Thankfully at your age, most of your long term plans do not involve appeasing some older version of yourself (which is a wise move) but I am sure that even you can look back over your 12 years of education and pick out a few things you could do differently.

I remember being 18 and going through the same things all of you are facing. All of which can be boiled down into one sentence, "Well, what in the world do I do now?" I felt like I was given a multiple choice question where the answers to choose from didn't make any sense.

Q: Two Plus Two equals what?

- A: Bird
- B: Cheese
- C: Happy
- D: All The Above

The point is that there is no right or wrong answer, there are only options. Any option you choose from here on out will be your choice alone, so then the question evolves into, "What in the world is the best option for me to take?" The answer is found right over your shoulder. All you need to do is look behind you.

On March 5, 1946 Sir Winston Churchill gave a speech that would become known as the "Iron Curtian Speech". In his oration he essentially warned the world about the dangers of a Communist Russia. At that point the world had accomplished a great task in defeating the Germans, Italians, and Japanese in WWII and were faced with a simple question, "what in the world do we do now".

Churchill had a unique solution to the kind of answer where there is not black and white. He laid out the case that the best way to move forward is to look behind.

"The farther back you look, the farther forward you can see"

As each of you cross the stage of graduation look back over your years and determine for yourself the path you should take. Your past has helped define who you are, and you should not ignore it. Make your future on the foundation of your past.

After graduation you will scatter to the wind on your different pursuits, and to be honest that's when Churchill's words become even more powerful. Remember where you came from otherwise you will get lost in the future. Always listen to your heart and make sure whatever you choose fills you with peace and purpose. If not, you will find yourself growing tired.

The key to living a successful life is not to outgrow who you were, but to simply become a better version of who you will be. Remember that the decisions you face after graduation become much more difficult with each passing year. If you look back far enough though, you will find a simple solution to that vexing problem.

God Bless and Good Luck Graduates!!

Go to Angelo State University and pursue a degree in business.

"For I know the plans that I have for you, declares the LORD, plans for welfare and not for calamity to give you a future and hope. Then you will call upon Me and come and pray to Me, and I will listen to you. You will Seek Me and Find Me when you search for Me with all your heart." Jeremiah 29:11-13
