Judge Ponders Nixon Report

Positive • Thinking

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

A Seven-Day Mental Diet

An interesting and dynamic friend of mine used to be a miserable fellow. I very well recall that in the case of this man, others would come into his presence in more or less jaunty and optimistic frames of mind. But he was a jauntiness extractor. He threw cold water on optimism. In no time at all he could take all the up-beat out of everyone and drain off optimism as well.

He was super-critical of everyone. He would say of someone, "I try not to say critical things about anybody, but . . ." There was always a "but." Then the old knife would go in and twist around.

• • •

No subject of a positive nature could be broached without his taking a negative position. His natural approach to any question was always negative. Yet, in a way, this man was a good fellow and obviously had real possibilities.

In the course of events he moved to another part of the country and I didn't see him for three or four years. And when I did see him again he was a different man.

• • •

Asked how he achieved this amazing change, he replied "I went on a seven-day mental diet." He explained that someone had given him a little pamphlet called "The Seven-Day Mental Diet" by the late Emmet Fox. In this pamphlet Fox observed that Americans are diet conscious from a physical point of view but that it is even more important that we place equal emphasis on the type of thoughts fed into the mind. And he advocated this "Seven-Day Mental Diet."

• • •

Resolve that from a given moment — any minute you select — you will for seven days thereafter watch your every word and, for those seven days, you will not make a single negative or mean or dishonest statement. You will not make an off-color remark for seven days. You will not voice a depressing concept.

Now, that is a big order! A food diet is easy by comparison.

• • •

"I tried it one day and failed," my friend continued. "I tried it again and went two days before I slipped. It was really hard going. It's difficult to try thinking differently. I tried again another week and made a poor start. Then I became annoyed and determined that I would stubbornly keep at it because I knew I had to change myself or real happiness was out for me.

"Finally, I succeeded for one whole week! Not once did I fail."

• • •

Such mental dieting surely offers great possibilities for self-improvement. It is of course a fact that we are what we think. A mental diet can make a person strong, happy, effective through the simple expedient of changing his thought pattern.

What a challenging test to try on yourself? Can't you afford seven days' effort out of your lifetime to change your life? And any moment is the perfect time for you to begin. The best time to start is now.

Heath Makes Bid To Keep Office; Seeks Coalition

LONDON (AP) — Conservative Prime Minister Edward Heath met with Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe Saturday in an opening bid to stay in office with help from former political foes, but each said no commitments were made.

Results from Thursday's election were virtually deadlocked and left Britain facing its worst political and economic crises since World War II. Critical economic problems demanded immediate attention but there was no elected government to deal with them.

Thorpe told newsmen he would discuss "the matters that have arisen this afternoon" with his party colleagues over the weekend. He gave no clues to the basis of his talks with Heath.

Heath's office said the two leaders agreed to report back to their colleagues "to see whether a basis existed for further discussions," and that "no commitment was entered into on either side."

Heath was the main loser in Thursday's inconclusive election which swept away his parliamentary majority but produced no outright winner. The prime minister was reportedly assured of voting help from some Ulster legislators, but will still need Liberal support to stay in office.

No decision on forming a government was expected before today at the earliest.

Former Prime Minister Harold Wilson, whose opposition Labor party won the most seats in the new Parliament but fell short of a majority, awaited a call from Queen Elizabeth II. If Heath fails to form a government and resigns, the queen would call on Wilson next to try to resolve the political crisis.

Sirica Facing Decision On Baring Content

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sealed report said to concern President Nixon's involvement in the Watergate cover-up lay locked in a courthouse safe Saturday while a federal judge pondered whether to release its contents to the American people.

Meanwhile, two more Watergate grand juries had work to complete on cases that could bring still more charges against former top administration officials.

The sealed presentment was handed to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica on Friday along with an indictment charging seven former administration officials with lying and attempting to obstruct the investigation of the June 1972 Watergate break-in.

The long-awaited indictments in the cover-up case climaxed a 20-month investigation by the same grand jury that indicted the original Watergate conspirators on Sept. 15, 1972.

Named in the indictment were former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell; former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman; former White House domestic affairs adviser John D. Ehrlichman; former presidential aides

Area's Dry Spell Termed Drought

By LARRY LOVELACE

"We sure do need some moisture."

This refrain has been heard increasingly more often in the Tall City as one parched month after another has come and gone.

And now, as the prospect of titanic water bills, culling of cattle herds and greatly diminished crops continues to grow, the National Weather Service has added to the burden.

If the weather service is right, March will be the eighth straight month of sub-normal precipitation. The dry spell already has run long enough for James E. Lunney, meteorologist in charge at Midland Air Terminal, to term it a drought.

Since Aug. 1, just 2.75 inches of precipitation have been recorded officially in Midland. That's 58 per cent below normal for the period. The 1973 total of 11.28 inches was more than two inches below the 30-year average of 13.51. March rainfall will total less than .4 inch, according to the weather service's 30-day outlook.

The weathermen have another criterion for declaring a drought, and it's especially relevant today. A drought is also defined as a period when usual agricultural activities are curtailed or destroyed.

Clyde Goodman, district conservationist here for the Soil Conservation Service, says, "We're dry and we're going to be hurting bad if we don't get some moisture soon."

Goodman notes that dryland cotton farmers must have planting — moisture in the top 8-12 inches of soil — precipitation by mid-April.

As bleak as the picture is for farmers, Goodman believes it's even more bleak for cattlemen. He says most area ranchers have begun cutting back herds because there is no spring grass growth and supplemental feeding has become almost prohibitively expensive. Further culling of herds is ex-

City Due Winds, Clouds

Midland area weather will see mostly cloudy skies today, with winds northwesterly 20 to 30 m.p.h. and gusty, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Air Terminal.

Cloudiness will decrease tonight, becoming partly cloudy Monday.

Warm temperatures will continue, although somewhat cooler than the 83 recorded at the Air Terminal Saturday afternoon. High today will be near 70, with an overnight low in the upper 30s. High Monday will be in the middle 70s.

Winds up to 40 miles per hour whipped across the state Saturday, bringing rain to the eastern portion and blowing sand to the western section, The Associated Press reported.

An area from Abilene to Mineral Wells to San Angelo reported temperatures in the 90s Saturday, while the rest of the state had highs in the 70s and 80s.

Visibility around Dalhart dropped to four miles at one point due to the blowing sand.

Windy conditions were caused by a deep low pressure system across the Northern Plains, which is expected to break up today when a cold front from the Rockies approaches West Texas.

'Wide Gap' Still Separates Israel, Syria

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — A "very wide gap" still separates Israel and Syria in Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's campaign to get a troop disengagement pact for the Golan Heights, a senior American official said Saturday.

Israeli and Syrian military and diplomatic representatives will travel to Washington later this month to try to narrow the gap, reversing the "shuttle diplomacy" that has brought Kissinger to the Middle East four times since the October war.

The official made his comment as Kissinger flew into Amman for an overnight stop in Jordan after a visit with King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

During the five-hour stop in Riyadh, the Saudi capital, Kissinger discussed with Faisal prospects for easing the Arab oil embargo against the United States. U.S. officials declined to give the substance of the conversation or say whether Kissinger had made any headway in getting the embargo lifted.

In Amman, the secretary is taking up with King Hussein the role Jordan will play in the over-all Geneva peace talks. Officials said the most difficult settlement may be the one between Israel and Jordan because religious elements in Israel oppose yielding any part of the Jordanian west bank captured in 1967, particularly east Jerusalem. The territory was in the ancient Biblical Jewish kingdom.

The secretary leaves the Middle East today for stops in Bonn and Brussels on his way home to Washington.

The officials, who declined to be identified, said that on the Golan front the Syrians no longer are insisting on immediate total Israeli withdrawal from lands captured in 1967 and October. A limited first-phase pullout could reduce the danger of conflict while negotiations proceeded for a wider agreement.

This marks a step forward in Kissinger's mediation mission since Israeli leaders have vowed not to give up all the Golan Heights territory seized in 1967.

Moreover, the official said, Kissinger has succeeded in his major goal for the current Middle East tour: Setting up a negotiations forum.

The secretary hopes to get the process started by mid-March with the arrival of an Israeli mission to be chosen after Premier Golda Meir forms her new cabinet. The Syrians presumably would arrive soon afterward.

Some East Coast Stations Will Be Selling Gas Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gasoline-hunting got a little easier this weekend with the arrival of March allocations and the news that stations in some East Coast areas will be open today. But motorists also found higher prices, with boosts of up to 25 per cent in some cities.

Officials in several areas asked the service stations to stay open Sunday to ease the crunch. The facilities have been closing from late Saturday to early Monday since the beginning of December in accordance with a presidential request to conserve fuel.

Gov. Sherman Tribbitt of Delaware noted that in accordance with the state's mandatory gasoline rationing plan, Sunday is a "free day." That means all motorists can buy gasoline — no matter what their license plates.

Gasoline stations on the Massachusetts Turnpike will be open today at the request of Gov. Francis Sargent. Sales will be limited, however, and opening hours will be staggered.

The higher prices started showing up Friday in accordance with federal regulations that permitted retail and wholesale price boosts in addition to "pass-through" increases reflecting higher crude oil costs.

Prices jumped anywhere from two to eight cents at Ohio stations and there were increases of up to 13 cents a gallon in Wisconsin.

Pennsylvania service station operators said higher prices were no help if there isn't any gasoline to sell. The state's Service Station Dealers Association — representing slightly more than half the 10,000 stations in Pennsylvania — authorized a strike within 10 days unless more fuel is made available.

Federal energy chief William E. Simon said Friday that the average price of gasoline "could very easily be 60 cents a gallon" in New England by summer.

He also said, however, that urban areas in Massachusetts should be getting more gas this month than last month. The extra, he said, will come from ski resort areas where gasoline consumption has been lower than expected because of a lack of snow.

Council Election Has Single Race

Saturday proved a quiet day for the city council race as no more candidates filed for either of two council seats or the mayor's chair before the midnight deadline.

Raymond E. Howard, who filed for the Place 5 seat being vacated by Mayor Pro Tempore John Pike Friday afternoon, was the last person to file with City Secretary James McCullough for a place on the April 2 ballot.

A drawing for position on the ballot will be 10 a.m. Monday in McCullough's office.

Also seeking the Place 5 post are Mark Martin, Warren Faller and Mrs. Pat Griffith.

Florida Businessman Seized, Released For $30,000 Ransom

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — A 52-year-old businessman kidnaped Thursday was released unharmed early today after his abductors were paid $30,000 ransom, police said.

George R. Jackson Jr. was freed shortly after midnight, 26 hours after being abducted from his bakery ingredient shop in this small central Florida town.

"I don't know why they picked me," Jackson said today after a tearful reunion with his family. "It was like a nightmare.

"I was only able to give very limited help to police in describing anything about the whole thing," he said. His eyes had been taped shut, he added.

Hands, Feet Bound

"My concern was just that they might abandon me after they got the money and no one would find me. I didn't think they'd kill me because they had blindfolded me.

"The whole time, my hands were taped behind my back and my feet were tied together."

Jackson said he is not well known in Sanford, calling himself "a family man not much interested in politics or making any kind of a public name for myself."

Police said Jackson walked into a fire department near Sanford to ask for help shortly after his release. His car, taken by the kidnapers, was found abandoned and free of fingerprints, police said.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said at least two men were involved in the kidnaping.

Polk said the ransom was left in a bag on a rural dirt road by Jackson's son. Attempts to track down the kidnapers from the drop point failed, he said.

The abductors had told the son in a telephone call that they would kill his father if they heard or read any news accounts of the kidnaping. And at Polk's request, the news media carried no stories until Jackson's release.

Wife Bound, Gagged

Polk gave this outline of the abduction:

Jackson and his wife Laura were working late at the family shop Thursday when two masked men armed with shotguns broke in. They bound and gagged Mrs. Jackson while taking her husband. Mrs. Jackson managed to free herself and notify police.

Court Dismisses Lubbock Woman's Sterilization Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal court here Friday dismissed a suit filed by a woman who sought to force an order of sisters at a Lubbock hospital to provide sterilization facilities.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals dismissed the suit filed by Bernice Allen against the Sisters of St. Joseph, ruling the suit is moot because Ms. Allen was subsequently sterilized at another hospital.

Ms. Allen, mother of three minor illegitimate children, had charged the order would not permit her to be sterilized at the St. Mary of the Plains Hospital at Lubbock.

"We are unable to discern any viable controversy in the instant case that is susceptible to judicial resolution and relief," said the court. "The plaintiff asked only for injunctive relief, coercing the Sisters of St. Joseph to provide facilities for sterilization."

Judge Sentences Heroin Smugglers

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Two Mexican nationals involved a heroin smuggling case that led to the indictment of two Cameron County officials on murder conspiracy charges were sentenced Friday.

U.S. District Court Judge Reynaldo Garza sentenced Jesus Miranda of Guadalajara to 12 years in prison and Gonazlo Menchaca to 10 years in prison.

Miranda, Menchaca and Noe Alaniz Trevino, 44, of Matamoros, plead guilty to smuggling a kilo (about 2.2 pounds) of heroin valued at $1.5 million. Alaniz Trevino, a central figure in the murder conspiracy case, is to be sentenced later for his part in the heroin smuggling.

Democrats Adopt New Party Rules

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic National Committee has approved new delegate selection rules that could lead to a wide-open presidential nominating convention in 1976.

The new rules, the result of a year's work by a party commission that compromised on most major issues, were approved Friday by an overwhelming voice vote of the national committee in the form recommended by the party's Executive Committee a day earlier.

They retain large portions of the 1972 rules that reformed party procedures but make several important changes, the most important being a proportional representation system throughout the delegate selection process.

This means that 1976 delegates will be awarded according to the relative strength of the different candidates, a change over the system under which a candidate often got virtually all of a state's delegates by finishing a few votes ahead of his nearest rival.

Every candidate with at least 15 per cent of the vote could receive delegates in 1976.

Most party observers think the new system would benefit Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who demonstrated in 1972 he could get some support in all parts of the country.

However, it would force most candidates to expand their efforts into more states since they could no longer count on winning a large chunk of delegates in just one primary, such as California's which gave 1972 nominee George McGovern almost 20 per cent of the needed delegates.

Although Friday's vote makes the rules the official party policy, the national committee asked the Compliance Review Commission, which will supervise their implementation, to recommend if changes should be made.

Chairman Robert S. Strauss headed off a challenge from the party's state chairmen by referring to the compliance panel the question of how the new rules will apply to state party activities besides delegate selection.

Fertilizer 'Black Market' Reports Crop Up In Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Reports of "black market" sales of fertilizer to Texas farmers cropped up Friday at a legislative inquiry into fertilizer prices and sales.

"I looked in the paper the other day and there were eight want ads offering fertilizer for sale, yet not a dealer in town could deliver a load," said Norman Hinchliff, a dealer in Earth, west of Plainview.

Hinchliff said he had been able to get only five loads of anhydrous ammonia this year. "One came from Oklahoma and one from a trucker and I have no idea where he got it. I just told him if he got any more at that price I'd take it."

Hinchliff said he had called every major supplier in Texas and many in other states only to be told they either were out of fertilizer or had already contracted for all they had.

"Whether to deal with black marketeers or not is a question," he said. "I've got to buy from them to supply my farmers, who can't get fertilizer anywhere else."

State Agriculture Commissioner John White said his department has been told to expect a 5 to 15 per cent shortage of agricultural fertilizer this year. "It's a rule of thumb that every ton of fertilizer increases the food supply five tons...to control the food price crisis in the home we have to have the tools to work with and there is no other way to do it. If the fertilizer supply is 5 to 15 per cent short it may be the food production will be down that much," he said.

Rep. Bill Claton, D-Springlake, who headed the special public hearing, said unless farmers get fertilizers right away "we are going to see the production of Texas farmland cut by 25-50 per cent from its 1974 potential. And in this time of serious food shortages, that can only spell disaster."

Dr. Flake Fisher, director of the Texas Feed and Fertilizer Control Service at Texas A&M, testified there will be a 7 per cent increase nationwide in fertilizer production but the demand in Texas this year is up about 70 per cent."

Midland College's Unique Course

Degree Offered Here In Postal Service Technology Is Only One In Country

By TOM MORAN

Community college programs to raise professional standards of public employes always neglected the U.S. Postal Service — until Midland College began offering a degree in Postal Service Technology.

The program, which began in September, 1973, is the only one of its kind, Midland Postmaster David Holster said.

Nine courses covering all phases of postal service operation eventually will be offered by the college.

Course offerings range from general survey courses to finance and cost accounting procedures of the postal service.

Enrollment in the program has jumped from about 30 the first semester it was offered to more than 50 now.

One of the reasons for the growing popularity of the postal technology program stems from the postal reorganization, Holster explained.

All new postmasters are appointed from within the service, he said. Promoting a man to postmaster has a chain reaction effect, causing a number of other promotions.

Employes once were locked into a single post office and had little chance for promotion above assistant postmaster, Holster added. "Now if a job comes open in Florida or New York that an employe here is qualified for he can be promoted to it.

"We may have a man here become a postmaster somewhere else."

Postal service employes helped Midland College officials develop course outlines and content, Holster said. All of the instructors also are from the postal service.

Paul McCarty, training director for the Midland Post Office, said students are not all from the postal service.

"We have two students who have no relation with the post office," he said. Both hope to work for the postal service in the future and think Midland College training will give them an advantage over other applicants.

Five of the students are from Odessa and plans are being developed to begin an extensive program in San Angelo, McCarty added.

The biggest problem in teaching postal technology courses is the complete lack of textbooks, he said.

Texts are developed by the course instructors, often with the help of the Postal Service Training Office at Bethesda, Md.

One of the most important accomplishments of the program is that it allows the student to get an overview of the postal service, he said.

Courses cover history of post offices, organization of the postal service, postal reorganization and probable future expansion, McCarty explained.

"We have even discussed labor organizations which affect us."

The program has helped improve relations between employes and their supervisors, he added.

The college program is only one of the programs designed to raise the quality of postal service employes, McCarty said.

"We hope that some day General Motors and Ford will start taking our employes."

Mystery-Shrouded Murder Plot Trial To Start Unwinding In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — A mystery-shrouded conspiracy to murder trial involving a state representative and his former political opponent starts unwinding here Monday.

Two of the three defendants accused of plotting to kill State Rep. Terry Doyle, D-Port Arthur, are scheduled for trial Monday with indications that the third man in the case may be testifying for the state.

Jerry W. Hanks, 40, a Nederland, Tex., pharmacy owner; Gerald Wayne Castleman of Shepherd and his brother, Harvey Doyle Castleman of Nederland, were indicted Jan. 8, 1973.

Both the district attorney's office here and Tom Hanna, district attorney in Jefferson County, have said little about the circumstances of the alleged conspiracy. Hanna would only say the allegation "involved the attempt to hire someone to commit the murder."

Attorneys for the three defendants have been unavailable to talk about the case. However it was learned that Harvey Doyle Castleman, who is currently in prison in Texarkana after being convicted on federal narcotics charges, has been talking to prosecutors about making a deal in the case.

Neither prosecutor Bob Bennett nor Harvey Castleman's lawyer, Percy Foreman of Houston, will talk about just what the deal entails. However other sources say Harvey Castleman may be testifying against his brother and Hanks.

Doyle, a member of the state House since 1970, has already announced he does not plan to run for re-election. He has so far refused to comment about the case.

Hanks ran unsuccessfully against Doyle in 1970.

The indictment against the three men alleges they entered into a conspiracy in Harris County the first week of January of 1973.

At the time of the indictment, the district attorney's office here said the indictment was the result of a two-month investigation by Jefferson County sheriff's and district attorney's offices, Harris County district attorney's office and state undercover agents.

Parr Seeks Delay In Trial On Tax Evasion Charges

Parr's lawyers filed a motion Friday to have the trial set for a later date and the government submitted one opposing Parr's petition.

U.S. District Court Judge Owen Cox did not rule on Parr's motion at once.

Parr, known as the "Duke of Duval," is accused of trying to evade more than $129,000 in income taxes and filing false tax returns from 1966 through 1969.

No trial date has been set for two Duval County school officials indicted along with Parr on tax evasion charges.

The officials are Eunice Powell, Freer High superintendent, and Bryan Taylor, former superintendent of the San Diego Independent School District.

Bethlehem Steel Increases Prices

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp. has announced price increases of five to 11 per cent on a wide variety of steel products.

The increases, effective immediately, were mostly on heavy construction steel, the second-ranked steelmaker said in its announcement Friday.

Bethlehem said the price hikes originally had been scheduled for Jan. 1 and Feb. 16 but had been delayed by the Cost of Living Council.

Motel Clerk Killed In Kilgore Robbery

KILGORE, Tex. (AP) — A clerk at the Pine Motel in Kilgore was stabbed and slashed to death about 5 a.m. Saturday and a woman was critically wounded during a robbery.

Police said the slain man was Chris Roberts, Brenda Clark was shot in the face.

Cheap FHA Houses Not Available Here After All, City Finds

It's now you see them, now you don't — at least for five houses Midland was to receive for $1 each from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington, D.C.

Two weeks ago, Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. received a call from an HUD undersecretary, saying the city would get the houses for the small fee for use as the city pleased within certain broad guidelines.

One suggestion mentioned for disposal of the houses was for the city to give them to persons who agreed to upgrade and repair them. "They were practically unrepairable, though," Mayor Angelo stated.

The HUD official said the houses would be part of a pilot program being conducted by the federal government. Dallas and Amarillo were also to receive similar houses.

Mayor Angelo made a telephone check with the Lubbock regional office of the Federal Housing Administration, however, and was told FHA has no such houses available in either Midland or Amarillo.

Bomb Blast Kills Three On Okinawa

Bush Expects Some Convictions From Jury Indictments

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — National Republican chairman George Bush said Saturday he expects some convictions to result from the Watergate indictments. He said his overriding concern is "to get it all behind us."

Bush, here to address Louisiana Republicans, said he based his expectations on "the laws of probability. I would like to think that everybody is innocent but I'm not going to make that kind of prediction."

The indictments were returned by a federal grand jury in Washington on Friday named seven men—including President Nixon's one-time high command: H. R. Halderman, John D. Ehrlichman and John H. Mitchell.

Bush said the indictments were actually "an important step forward for the Republican part in terms of getting Watergate behind us. It is part of the legal process. Some of them will probably be found innocent, some of them will probably be found guilty. But not a single Republican running for election had a thing to do with Watergate, directly, peripherally, or any other way."

Bush drew enthusiastic applause from some 500 Republicans when he said Nixon would not resign or be impeached.

He told the crowd the President was "taking the political heat with grace and style" and that though he slumped low in a recent public opinion poll, Congress stands even lower.

Lecturer-Authors Due Tuesday

A public program at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Theatre Centre, 2301 W. Indiana St., will feature talks by two well-known lecturer-authors.

They are Hugh Lynn Cayce, son of the late Edgar Cayce, the famed "Sleeping Prophet" of Virginia Beach, Va., and Robert Krajenke. The two currently are on a Texas lecture tour.

The Tuesday night program is sponsored by local affiliates of the Association for Research and Enlightenment (A.R.E.), the non-profit educational foundation which carries on the work of Edgar Cayce. It will be open to the public free of charge.

Hugh Lynn Cayce, one of the featured speakers here, has written a number of books connected with his famous father's work. His latest, "Venture Inward," is the story of Edgar Cayce, his startling healing powers and his discourses. The book is now in its sixth printing.

Krajenke is probably best-known for his trilogy of books in which he has aligned selected Edgar Cayce readings with the Old Testament in an effort at developing a greater understanding of the ancient Hebrew scripture. The two best-known volumes of the trilogy are titled "A Million Years to the Promised Land" and "Man Crowned King."

Hugh Lynn Cayce's Tuesday night lecture topic will be "The New Testament — A Way to Grace." Krajenke will speak on "The Old Testament As Man's Spiritual Journey."

DESPITE SHARP INCREASES IN WHEAT, SHORTENING, MILK—

Average Retail Price Of Bread Steady In January

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says that despite another sharp run-up in wheat prices, the cost to consumers of a loaf of bread in January did not increase from the previous month.

The figures, provided Friday at the request of a newsman, showed the wheat price increase was absorbed entirely by middlemen all along the bread pipeline from the farm to retail shoppers.

Economists said the January retail price of a one-pound loaf of white bread used as the basic indicator averaged 31.9 cents nationally. That was the same as for December.

The farm value of wheat in a loaf was 6.4 cents, up from 5.6 in December. Other ingredients such as shortening and milk products added another 1.8 cents, up 0.2 from December. That made the January total of all farm-originated ingredients worth 8.2 cents, up one penny from December.

Meanwhile, the figures showed, the retailer's spread or share of the 31.9-cent loaf declined to 5.6 cents from 5.8 in December. The baker-wholesale share dropped to 15.4 cents from 15.9; flour millers from 1.3 cents to 1.1, and other shares from 1.7 to 1.6 cents.

The higher farm value of wheat in the January loaf of bread was based on the grain selling for an average of $5.13 per bushel received by producers in major wheat areas. That was up 55 cents from the December average of $4.58 per bushel.

Going back to mid-1972, at the time large wheat sales to the Soviet Union triggered 18 months of sharp price increases for the grain, the figures show bread prices have gone up about 30 per cent.

In July 1972 wheat sold at farm delivery points for $1.31 per bushel and bread cost 24.6 cents per loaf in retail stores. The farm value of wheat in a one-pound loaf then was 2.6 cents.

Thus, using USDA figures, bread prices by January had risen 7.3 cents per loaf. Wheat accounted for 3.8 cents of the increase and other farm ingredients 0.8 cent, a total of 4.6 cents for all agricultural products used to make a loaf.

The total middleman share of the 7.3-cents increase since July 1972 was 2.7 cents as of January, according to the analysis.

Wheat prices have climbed further since the January statistics were collected, the department said Thursday in a farm commodity price report.

Dallas Police Officer Shot, Killed

DALLAS (AP) — Leslie G. Lane, 25, a Dallas patrolman, was killed by gunfire Saturday as the climax to a wild chase started when a policewoman was beaten.

Several hours later, a massive team of police arrested Edward Lincoln King, 31, in a residence. He was taken before a city judge, where his rights were read to him. Bond was denied.

Two young women were kidnaped from among a group of women after the policewoman was beaten. Both fought the kidnaper and one escaped.

A police department spokesman said King was free on parole after serving nine years of a 110-year sentence for burglary. At the time, he had been sought for some time for parole violation.

Officers said this happened:

Events began at 11:20 p.m. Friday when investigator Betty Robinson, 25, assigned to the youth division, arrived at her home. She stopped her car in the apartment parking lot and was alighting when a man approached her.

The man put a pistol to her head, she fought him and was pistol whipped. The man leaped into her car and drove away with her purse and police pistol.

The abduction of the two young women took place about 2 a.m. While driving, one kicked the car gear into "park" and turned off the ignition, escaping.

The second woman had a fingernail ripped off when she tried to capture the man's gun.

Shortly thereafter, patrolman Mike J. Thomas stopped the car. He then radioed that he was in a chase and at one point exclaimed, "He's doing 100 miles an hour! . . . He's wrecked out!"

As Thomas ran to the wrecked car, the man and woman ran. Thomas said he then heard two shots. Thomas came upon Lane lying on his back, moaning, "Get me an ambulance, I've been shot." He died several minutes later.

Witnesses in nearby houses said they saw Lane tackle and struggle with the man, get pushed away and shot.

Officers converged on the scene as Thomas ran to the wreck. But they could not say where Lane came from since he had not taken part in the radio conversations during the chase.

Special Events Set In Observance Of Public School Week

This week is Texas Public School Week and Midland school officals plan special events in most schools.

Romeo Canales, principal of De Zavala Elementary School, said parents of public school students, have been invited to visit the schools, see classes in progress and eat lunch with their youngsters.

Persons visiting elementary school classes should go to kindergarten and first grade classes Monday, second grade Tuesday, third and fourth grade Wednesday, fifth grade Thursday and sixth grade Friday, Canales added.

No visitation schedule has been set for the city's secondary schools, he added, but parents and visitors may come to classes any day this week.

Midland Optimist Club members will visit Fannin Elementary School Tuesday as part of their observance of Public School week.

The group will hear the school's fifth grade choir sing songs from "Mary Poppins," "The Wizard of Oz" and "Tom Sawyer."

All elementary schools plan PTA meetings and school open houses Tuesday.

Members of Midland Masonic Lodges contributed $300 to the school system to help finance Public School Week.

PUBLIC SCHOOL WEEK — Mrs. Martin Villarreal eats lunch with her daughter Isabel at DeZavala Elementary School as part of Public School Week here. All Midlanders have been invited to visit any of the city's 26 public schools during this week's observance of Public School Week.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Frances Farenthold, a Democratic candidate for governor, criticized Gov. Dolph Briscoe Saturday for not taking a stand on the natural gas shortage in San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi.

"Texas produces more oil and gas than any other state," Mrs. Farenthold told a group at Trinity University. "Yet the governor has exercised no real leadership in the energy crisis."

She said Briscoe has not addressed himself to what she called the "breach of contract" by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co., a subsidiary of Coastal States Producing Co., which has contracts to furnish natural gas for electric generation to San Antonio, Austin and Corpus Christi. "Hundreds of thousands of consumers will have their utility bills hiked considerably," she said.

Mrs. Farenthold also said the Railroad Commission, "with no direction or leadership from the governor, has also failed to back up the city governments in their dispute with Lo-Vaca."

"Last November Gov. Briscoe laid out an energy conservation plan and he promised to re-evaluate it in 90 days," she said. "Those 90 days are up and I believe Texans should be made privy to what the governor has determined—if anything. Or is it nothing as usual in his caretaker government?"

Raymond Howard Enters Place 5 Council Contest

Raymond Howard, a long-time Midland resident, has announced his candidacy for Place 5 on the Midland City Council.

Howard, an engineering graduate of The University of Texas at Austin, is a registered professional engineer.

"I am interested in maintaining the high type of city government that Midland has enjoyed in the past. Midland has been good to me and I would like to return some service to the City of Midland," Howard said.

He is environmental and safety coordinator for the Permian District of Atlantic Richfield Co. Previously he held many engineering positions within the district.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard moved to Midland 25 years ago. He is an elder of the First Presbyterian Church and his wife is a deaconess. She teaches the fourth grade church school class.

Howard is active in the annual School of Christian Living sponsored by the Midland Council of Churches. He served one term as president of the school and also served on the executive committee of the Midland Council of Churches and the Midland Presbytery Corporate Ministry.

Long active in the Society of Petroleum Engineers of AIME, Howard has served the organization in many capacities, including chairman of the Permian Basin Section and as a vice president of the national SPE.

Howard also was active 17 years on the American Gas Association's Subcommittee on natural gas reserves.

Howard and his wife are volunteer workers for the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center and in Midland Community Theatre.

The long-time Midlanders is a member of The Museum of The Southwest and has been designated a Permian Basin Petroleum Pioneer.

Democrat Says Administration Making Try To Undermine Right Of Privacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., speaking for congressional Democrats, said Saturday the Nixon administration has made an unprecedented effort to undermine the constitutional right of privacy.

Hart called on President Nixon to issue immediate orders that no wiretapping, bugging, breaking or entering be carried out by any government agency without prior court approval.

"He should state without equivocation that the label of 'national security' will not be used again to hide or excuse such illegal acts," Hart said.

The speech contained the response of House and Senate Democrats, to the President's promise in his State of the Union message to "make an historic beginning on the task of defending and protecting the right of personal privacy for every American."

Hart said he believes that message contained little of substance.

"Despite all the revelations of Watergate, the President made no promise to instruct his administration to live up to guarantees of personal privacy contained in the Constitution," Hart said.

"Actions by government and White House personnel during President Nixon's administration threatened the privacy of every American," he said.

He said Army agents were used to spy on political meetings and he cited the break-in and bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate, and the burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's pychiatrist.

The President, in his radio speech last Saturday, appointed Vice President Gerald R. Ford to head a panel on rights to privacy. He called for safeguards to "prevent computers from becoming huge, mechanical impersonal robots that deprive us of our essential liberties."

Hart said that, if the President is sincere, he should publicly order everyone in his administration to refrain from political spying of any kind and should support a Senate-passed bill to prohibit military personnel from spying on American citizens.

House Judiciary Committee Still Waiting For Evidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee is still waiting for the evidence it requested from the White House last Monday for its impeachment investigation.

Despite the estimate of Special Counsel John M. Doar that it should take only a day or two to comply with the request, Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said nothing had been received by Friday night.

The committee is scheduled to meet Tuesday for a briefing by Doar, and if the White House still has not responded some members will undoubtedly demand that a subpoena be issued for the evidence.

The committee regards its subpoena power in impeachment cases as superior to any claim of executive privilege and a resort to a subpoena could touch off a serious constitutional conflict.

The committee request is based mainly on the list of documents, tapes and logs the White House already has given to the special Watergate prosecutor's office.

A refusal by the White House to turn over the evidence would dangerously erode Nixon's support among House Republicans.

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the committee's ranking Republican member, viewed the request before it was delivered to the White House Monday and said he thought it was reasonable.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona, who attended a White House meeting Wednesday, told newsmen later he had urged Nixon to cooperate fully with the committee.

At a preliminary meeting between Doar and Nixon's chief impeachment lawyer, James D. St. Clair, on Feb. 11, St. Clair expressed concern that evidence furnished by the White House might be leaked to the public.

DALLAS (AP) — Lewis D. Duncan, 28, and Wanda Crain, 26, were killed about 2 a.m. Saturday when their car failed to negotiate a curve and smashed into a tree.

Indictments Reaction Varied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Praise for the nation's justice system and reminders that indicted persons are considered innocent until proven guilty marked the reaction to the new Watergate indictments.

Seven former White House and Committee for the Re-election of the President officials were indicted Friday.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford told reporters that "our judicial system seems to be working well."

He added that "we must keep in mind under our system of justice an accused person is presumed innocent until convicted."

"I believe all of us are pleased that justice might finally work its will," said Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss.

And President Nixon issued a statement saying that "the indictments indicated that the judicial process is finally moving toward the resolution of the matter. It is the President's hope that the trials will move quickly to a just solution."

Meanwhile, however, Reps. Bella Abzug and Edward I. Koch, New York Democrats, said they feel the indictment will accelerate calls for impeachment of the President.

"The impact on the part of some people first will be that there's one name missing," Rep. Abzug said.

"These were appointees of President Nixon. It was solely in his behalf that these acts took place. I say he's responsible for the actions of his immediate appointees," she added.

"With the whole world looking, I believe the trials will go forward ... and justice will be done," said Samuel Dash, chief counsel for the Senate Watergate committee.

And committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., reflected that "the judicial process will work its way ...."

Among those named in the indictment, former Nixon aide Charles W. Colson said: "My conscience is clear; regardless of how rough the road ahead may be, I know that in the end my innocence will be established because I put complete faith in God and I believe deeply in my country."

Former Nixon adviser H. R. Haldeman told newsmen that he would have something to say "at the proper time to the proper authorities."

"I have no comment whatsoever on what happened in Washington because Judge Sirica informed all persons connected with the matter that they should refrain from discussing it. That's just what I'm doing," said former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Kenneth W. Parkinson, a lawyer for the campaign finance committee said: "I am innocent of the charges ... my connection with the events was as a lawyer seeking honorably and diligently to serve my clients ... my innocence will be clearly demonstrated."

He also said the cabinet would recommend to President Giovanni Leone that the referendum on repealing the divorce law be held on May 12.

The date of the referendum is to be set by Leone.

Rumor's coalition government, Italy's 35th in the last 30 years, had been in office since last July. It was composed of the Christian Democrat, Marxist Socialist, Democratic Socialist and Republican parties.

But the Catholic-Marxist alliance, already plagued by a stagnant economy and an oil scandal reaching up to cabinet ministers, began to fall apart when Treasury Minister Ugo La Malfa, a Republican, resigned Thursday. On Friday, his party pulled out of the coalition government.

La Malfa quit over a dispute involving a $1.2-billion standby credit from the International Monetary Fund to bolster the nation's enfeebled currency, the lira. The IMF had stipulated that the fund not be used for inflationary projects.

La Malfa agreed to the condition but Budget Minister Antonio Giolitti, a Socialist, opposed the Republican leader, and leftists contended that La Malfa had given in to "foreign interference."

Rumor's government, forced to balance the diverging interests of the four parties in it, was unable to halt the nation's inflationary spiral estimated at more than 15 per cent a year.

The Catholic-Marxist governing alliance also lacks a common position on the pending referendum on whether to repeal this Roman Catholic nation's divorce law.

The Christian Democrats, Italy's largest political organization and backed by the Roman Catholic Church, have opposed divorce. The party did not go along with its coalition partners that a referendum on divorce be held.

Convention's Timetable Could Easily Miss Mark

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Price Daniel Jr.'s favorite song must be "I'm Just a Cockeyed Optimist."

But even the Texas Constitutional Convention's perenially sanguine president is beginning to talk about what happens if his 90-day timetable can't be met.

A 30-to 60-day recess for politicking probably will be called around April 5 if the convention's unfinished business is too great to polish off quickly, he told reporters Friday.

Two weeks of debate on the new constitution's education article had just ended without a final vote, despite Daniel's fondest hopes. He seemed unruffled as he sat behind the desk on his podium and talked to the newsmen below. Not a hair was out of place.

The convention has five weeks to go before the 90-day schedule runs out. Nine of the 11 articles of the constitution remain to be debated.

Daniel said he had expected debate on education to run only two days and was surprised it had run for more than two weeks instead.

But he added, "I don't think it's bad," for discussion and amendments to run that long.

After all, "free, full and open debate" was practically his slogan as House speaker. He said he wanted to end a decade of increasingly tight control of the House by its speakers and their "teams."

"If the 90-day schedule was some kind of magic number, I would say, 'Let's work nights, Saturdays and Friday afternoons,'" Daniel said.

He said he thought a recess would be in order anyway after all articles had received preliminary approval. The next step would be editing by the Style and Drafting committee, followed by another vote on each article. Then would come final approval of a complete constitution, requiring a two-thirds vote, for submission to the voters.

Daniel said he did not want to make any commitment to a convention recess because he feared a "tendency to put it all off" until the last minute if delegates had a fixed adjournment date.

"Do not interpret what I am saying as throwing in the towel on the 90-day completion," Daniel quickly added.

The convention must adjourn by May 31 unless the legislator-delegates cast a two-thirds vote to extend it another 60 days.

It won't take many more debates like those on higher education funds and equal educational opportunity, however, to force Daniel to abandon his timetable.

And look what's yet to come: finance, local government, judiciary, general provisions—with such sticky questions as so-called "right to work," branch banking and open beaches; voting rights, ground rules for future constitutional conventions and legislative powers, limitations and pay. Five weeks to fight out all that.

Delegates argued for all or part of three days just on a State Higher Education Assistance Fund to provide the 22 smaller state colleges with guaranteed money for construction before finally reaching a compromise. It took them two days to find an acceptable way of saying school children should have equal educational opportunity. Various attempts to change the way the Permanent University Fund and its income, the Available University Fund, took up another two days.

Dry Spell Is Termed Drought

pected if the drought continues.

Goodman believes the most severe problem facing the area now is wind erosion. That phenomenon has been responsible for the sandstorms blowing through the city from New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle.

And these ill winds have brought just that — illness. Tall City physicians report an increase of upper respiratory ailments whenever a sandstorm blows through.

Solutions to the area's plight are about as plentiful as green grass. Weather control is an inexact science, not to be relied on, and sprinkler irrigation doesn't offer much hope, either.

Charlie Welch, a Midland County commissioner and owner of a water well servicing company, says irrigation can't handle the problem. Most of the wells in the county already are at full production and, as Welch says, "There's not much increase to increase."

Perhaps the only option left is to continue to say, prayerfully, "We sure do need some moisture," and hope someone, somewhere is listening.

Sirica Holds Up Report On Nixon

Gordon C. Strachan and Charles W. Colson; Robert C. Mardian, an official of the Committee for the Re-election of the President; and Kenneth W. Parkinson, a lawyer for the re-election committee.

Sirica told the grand jury it was not dismissed and probably would be called back into session in about two weeks.

The Washington Post said Saturday the grand jury's secret report described "its belief that President Nixon was involved in the conspiracy to obstruct justice in the case." The story, attributed to informed sources, said the report "contains approximately 50 paragraphs outlining evidence against the President."

"According to the sources," the Post said, "the document cites specific acts by the President as well as a theory of the case that holds that Mr. Nixon participated in the conspiracy to obstruct justice."

Nowhere does the indictment mention Nixon, although it is conceded he was a participant in some meetings. That was in line with a decision made earlier by the prosecutors that the House of Representatives was the proper forum for dealing with the President.

Meanwhile, two special grand juries are trying to wrap up investigations of other Watergate cases including:

—The ITT antitrust settlement and whether it was influenced by a corporate pledge of $400,000 to help underwrite the costs of the 1972 Republican National Convention. Part of that investigation involves whether Mitchell and his successor, Richard G. Kleindienst, lied to a Senate committee when they swore they had not discussed the ITT case with the President.

—Additional activities of the White House special investigations unit known as the plumbers. Egil Krogh Jr. already has pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the civil rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding, the Beverly Hills, Calif., psychiatrist whose office was burglarized in an attempt to get information about his patient, Daniel Ellsberg.

And, it was learned last week, John D. Ehrlichman, who supervised the plumbers unit when he was domestic affairs adviser to the President, rejected an offer to plead guilty to the same charge. Ehrlichman was one of the men indicted Friday.

—More campaign contributions cases. The prosecutors already have brought charges against nine corporations and eight corporate officials in connection with illegal contributions to the President's re-election campaign.

But most of the charges have been misdemeanor violations against companies and officers that came forward voluntarily to admit that corporations were made from company funds in violation of federal law.

Still under investigation is whether the methods used by political fund-raisers could lead to extortion charges or whether the expectations of donors could be interpreted as attempted bribery.

Meanwhile, Sirica gave no hint Friday when he will decide what to do with the sealed report given him by the grand jury.

The judge could pass it on to the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment staff without releasing it. He also could order it made public or he could refuse to release it to anyone, including the House committee.

Starlite Back Home After Being Missing 5 Months

Chico, Guero and Pancho might just be three of the happiest younsters in the Tall City.

Maybe not any happier than Starlite though.

The youngsters are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dorian Lamont, 2507 W. College St. They are very, very happy because Starlite, has just returned home after a long, empty absence.

Starlight is a 100-pound Alaskan Husky, at least that is what he weighed when he became missing from the Lamont's backyard early in October. He is somewhat thinner now.

Starlite was sitting on the Lamonts front porch Friday morning when the two older boys, Poncho 11 and Chico, 6, departed for school. Guero is 4.

Lamont said he heard a commotion about 2 a.m. Friday from his other two dogs, but didn't realize it was a greeting to Starlite.

"Of course, all of us were overjoyed to see Starlite. We had done everything we could think of to locate him. We called on the police, the SPCA and all our neighbors. But the dog just disappeared," Lamont said.

"He appears to have had a chain around his neck during much of the five months he was gone. And, his coart is very thick. These Huskies grow a very heavy coat when they are exposed to cold weather — much colder weather than we experience here, so we are sure he has been away from the city," Lamont reasoned.

"A little warm weather and a steady diet, and Starlite will be his old self again, I know it already is much happier around the household," Lamont smiled.

Starlite, now four years old, has been in the Lamont family since he was nine months old.

Patricia Hearst's Silent Kidnapers Puzzling To FBI

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI says it is at a loss to explain why there has been no word from the kidnapers of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst. It would give no estimate on how long it would wait before acting.

"They haven't communicated in over a week," Charles Bates, the FBI agent handling the case, said Friday. "But why, I just don't have any idea."

It has been nine days since Randolph A. Hearst, editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner, heard from the mysterious Symbionese Liberation Army, which claims it kidnaped the 20-year-old University of California coed from her apartment Feb. 4.

The silence continued despite the establishment of a $2 million food handout program for the needy financed by Hearst money as an initial response to demands of the kidnapers.

People in Need, the organization established to handle the food distribution program, said it gave away $300,000 worth of food to 30,500 persons Thursday. It was the second round of handouts.

A. Ludlow Kramer, the Washington state official directing the program, said that if the abductors are not satisfied with the program, they "should contact us immediately."

"They should release Patty to get the additional $4 million promised by the Hearst Corp," he said.

In a tape received Feb. 20, the SLA said it would cease communications with the Hearst family unless an additional $4 million in food were provided.

Joy Ride Results In Youths' Arrest

Two teen-aged Midland youths were arrested at Huckabay Chevrolet about 9:20 p.m. Friday after a report that someone was riding around in the fenced lot in one of Huckabay's cars.

A complaint of unlawful use of a motor vehicle was filed Saturday against Ronnie McNeese, 17, of 4615 Thomason Drive and Justice of the Peace John Biggs set bond at $2,500.

The case against the other boy, 15, is expected to be presented to the county attorney for consideration of presentation in juvenile court.

Energy Shortage Changes Catholic Pilgrimage Rites

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A change has been made in traditional Roman Catholic pilgrimage ceremonies because of the gasoline shortage here.

Bishop John J. Fitzpatrick of the Brownsville Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church Friday designated each parish church in the diocese as a holy year pilgrimage site. He said he was taking the action because of the gasoline shortage.

Officials of the diocese explained that gaining a holy year indulgence means that person would gain a remission of the temporal purgatory punishment for venial sins.

Roman Catholics in the past could gain a holy year indulgence only by making a pilgrimage to a designated church or cathedral.

Bachmeyer Infant Dies In Houston

Michael Francis Bachmeyer, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Bachmeyer of Midland, died Tuesday in a Houston hospital.

He was born here Feb. 22.

Services for the infant were held Wednesday afternoon in Garden of Gethsemane Cemetery at Houston under direction of Earthman Funeral Home.

Survivors, in addition to the parents, include a sister, Sharon, of the home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Bachmeyer of Baytown and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henneke of Schulenburg, and great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pauler Sr., of Schulenburg and Mrs. Annie Henneke of Hallettsville.

Archer Will Ask Probe Into Loss Of Offshore Gas

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Bill Archer, R-Tex., said Saturday the United States is losing millions of cubic feet of natural gas each day because of what he called "federal bureaucracy."

The Houston congressman said the nation is losing 200 million cubic feet from just one Louisiana offshore well.

He said he was told there are "hundreds of wells in the Gulf (of Mexico) that are capped off for the very same reason."

That reason, he said, is the Federal Power Commission has not approved the laying of a pipeline to carry the natural gas from offshore wells to an onshore terminal.

He said the application for such a pipeline at the capped off Louisiana well "has been pending now for over a year."

"It's incredible to me that federal bureaucracy could stand in the way of this nation receiving desperately needed energy and when I return to Washington I am going to contact the Federal Power Commission and ask for an explanation," Archer said.

Archer toured three offshore sites Saturday and he said there were 12 gas wells capped off because of the pipeline approval delay on one platform he inspected.

Besides checking out the capped off wells rumors, Archer said he also went into the Gulf to "see firsthand how offshore drilling was operating" and try to determine "the potential of this type of drilling to help solve our energy shortage."

He said he was impressed with the safety precautions now being taken by offshore drillers and as far as protecting the environment around the platforms he said the drillers are "doing more to protect the Gulf than we are doing to protect our inland streams such as the Potomac in Washington."

WHERE'S THE "SCRIVENER"?

Much of the tradition and ceremony has disappeared from the business of transferring real estate. You might enjoy learning how it used to be done in the old days.

The law has always regarded the transfer of real estate as one of the most solemn acts and thus a great deal of formality attended the transfer. In the early days of land tenure, transfer was accomplished by "livery of seizen" which literally, means transfer of possession.

The buyer and seller would go upon the land in question and there, in the presence of witnesses, the seller would take a clod of turf or a twig from a tree and hand it over to the buyer as a symbol or token of the transfer.

The transfer was then made a matter of record by having the "scrivener" (the person in the community who could write) do his thing and write out the transfer on a parchment and affix his seal.

On Target

"On Target," a joint project of The Reporter-Telegram, Action Line-Fish and the Human Relations Council, solves problems, gets answers, cuts red tape and investigates complaints. Write "On Target," The Midland Reporter-Telegram, Box 1650, Midland, Tex. 79701.

I notice that almost any Sunday or Monday our local newspaper carries a story about our high school sending speech teams to various cities, often as far away as El Paso. My family can't get out of town on weekends because of the gasoline shortage. How do school groups manage it? — J. S.

Woodrow Smith, MISD director of auxiliary services, said the school buses do it just about the same way anyone else would do it—hunt for gas.

School buses leave Midland with full gas tanks, he said, and buy additional gas at gas stations.

"That's the only way we can get it," Smith added. "So far the groups always have managed to make it."

School groups also travel less now than they did a year ago, he emphasized. "We have cut down. We're doing our part of the belt tightening."

One example of gasoline saving was a track team trip this weekend. Teams from both high schools rode the same bus, he said. Last year each school took a separate bus.

What can be done about dilapidated houses and apartments which need to be condemned and destroyed? Is the city doing anything about the old apartments across from Edison School? — R. V. G.

Persons wishing to have property checked should contact the City Inspection Department by phone or mail. An inspection will be made and if the building needs repairs or the yard is messy, a letter will be sent to the owner advising him of the problem. Condemnation is a lengthy process and the Inspection Department prefers not to seek it if at all possible.

Should a building be condemned, and if the owner grants the city permission, it will be destroyed by a demolition company for the salvageable materials in the structure. A deposit of $175 is required for houses with piers and beams and $200 for houses built on slabs, insuring the house will be demolished and the property cleaned. Either the owner or the demolition company pays the fee, which is refundable if the work is completed.

A demolition permit costing $5 is also needed.

The owner retains control of the land. Legal ownership is obtained from city tax rolls.

In the case of the apartments across from Edison Freshman School, the city has obtained the title for back taxes. However, under state law, the owner may reclaim the property during the first year after the city takes over for the back taxes plus a 25 per cent penalty. During the second year, back taxes must be paid plus a penalty of 50 per cent before the owner can reclaim the property.

City Manager James W. Brown said the city has more than a year before it has full claim to the land. In the meantime, rent is still paid to the owner and not to the city.

Should the city retain title to the property, Brown said the building probably will be destroyed and the land sold as soon as possible to get it back on the tax roll. "The city is generally not in the real estate business," he added.

The land south of Edison School is out of the city limits and under authority of the county.

Heart Fund Drive Near Goal With $15,085.15 Collected

The Midland County Heart Fund drive has raised about 83 per cent of its goal, Mrs. Robert Steward, Heart Fund campaign chairman, announced.

"Several of our volunteers are still working to solicit their prospects, particularly in the business campaign and the special gifts campaign," Mrs. Steward said. "It looks like we'll reach our goal of $18,000 as these divisions complete their solicitations."

She reported that a total of $15,085.15 has been received to date. The Heart Sunday drive last week raised $7,187.89 and the special gifts campaign has raised $4,558.50. Memorial contributions have added $2,698.76 and the business campaign, which is incomplete, has raised $640.

Mrs. Steward is assisted in the Heart Fund drive by Mrs. Reid Caskey, special gifts chairman; John B. Billingsley Jr., business gifts chairman; and Mrs. Walter Ford, Heart Sunday chairman. She also recognized the large number of volunteers who have worked for the Heart Fund Campaign during February.

"These generous volunteers visited friends and neighbors distributing information on early warning signs of heart attack and stroke. Money contributed to the Heart Fund supports educational, community servics and research programs aimed at reducing premature death and disability from the nation's number one killers, heart and blood vessel diseases," she stated.

LOSE A POUND A DAY AND MORE

Vitamin 'E' Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss "while still eating almost as much as you want."

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon and eggs and still lose weight.

Chewable (candy-like) vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that quickly curbs and controls the appetite, while also giving the wonderous benefits of Vitamin E which is so essential to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical tests, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein "will double the speed of fat utilization" with the use of Vitamin E.

E-DIET AVAILABLE

To get a copy of this highly successful diet and E Tablets, send $5.00 for 10 day supply (or $7.00 for 20 day supply or $10.00 for 30 day supply) to: Vita-E Diet, Dept. J-2 11826 Burbank Bl., North Hollywood, Cal. 91601 (Unconditional money - back guarantee if not satisfied.)

Midlanders To Attend Reception In Washington

Four Midlanders will join a 40-member West Texas delegation in Dallas this afternoon in flying to Washington, D.C., to attend a West Texas Chamber of Commerce-sponsored dinner and reception honoring members of the Texas delegation in Congress and their wives.

The Midland delegates are Emil C. Rassman and W. H. "Bill" Collyns, president and vice president, respectively, of the West Texas Chamber; Harry W. Clark, chairman of WTCC's Local Action Committee, and Howard "Rocky" Ford, member, who also officially will represent the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

The dinner, an annual event, is scheduled Monday night. Rassman will preside, and Joe Collyns of San Angelo, chairman of WTCC's National Affairs Committee, will be master of ceremonies.

The West Texans will be briefed on national affairs by representatives of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at a breakfast session Monday. They are scheduled to visit with members of Congress and others during the day.

Members of the Texas congressional delegation and their wives each will receive small bottles of West Texas crude oil presented by the Midland Chamber, which also will present a Midland-made core lamp to the wife of one of the congressmen.

Benisen Continues Presidential Hints

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., says President Nixon's position has been worsened by the seven Watergate indictments, but not much.

"I would think it would hurt the President, but when his credibility rate is down to about 27 per cent, I don't think it can go much lower," Bentsen said Friday.

Bentsen, in Chicago to address a businessmen's luncheon, continued to hint that he may seek the presidency in 1976.

He said his decision on the race would come "in about a year."

ROTC Staffers To Outline Program To MC Students

Army ROTC representatives from UTPB will be on campus of Midland College Thursday and Friday to discuss the two-year ROTC program with interested students.

The program is designed for the junior college graduate who wishes to participate in ROTC at a bachelor's-degree-granting college or university.

The information booth will be located in the classroom area.

Students who enroll in the two-year program attend a six-week basic camp during the summer in lieu of the first two years of training on a campus. The basic camp normally is attended between graduation from junior college and enrollment at a higher level institution. Students receive pay during the summer training.

Upon successful completion of the camp, the student signs a commitment with the Army which entitles him — or her — to a stipend of $100 per month for two school years. Upon graduation with a bachelor's degree, the student agrees to accept a commission as a second lieutenant and serve either two years or six months on active duty with a reserve commitment for a fixed period of time.

Poll Reveals Change Of Heart About Daylight Savings Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-commissioned public opinion poll shows that people have changed their minds and no longer like year-round Daylight Savings Time.

Asked last month how they like Daylight Savings Time, 51 per cent of the 324 persons questioned said they dislike it somewhat or very much. The remainder liked it to some degree or didn't care.

As recently as mid-December, the pollsters asked people whether Daylight Savings Time should be instituted all year. Given a "yes" or "no" choice, 76 per cent chose yes.

Similar results favoring all-year Daylight Savings Time had been shown in polls going back to Aug. 31. The polling organization, the National Opinion Research Center of the University of Chicago, did not offer an explanation for the change of heart.

The poll is conducted weekly at the expense of the Department of Transportation to sample public opinion on the energy shortages and policies. Results also are provided to the Federal Energy Office.

Aside from sentiment on Daylight Savings Time, the latest poll reflected an increasing tendency to blame the government in Washington for increasing difficulties in obtaining fuel.

Forty-four per cent of those polled named the federal government as the institution most responsible for the energy shortage, an increase of 4 per cent over the previous week. The 31 per cent who named oil and gas companies was only slightly above the 30 per cent previous week.

Texas Socialists Seek Ballot Spot

HOUSTON (AP) — A statewide campaign to obtain 35,000 signatures to get its candidates on the ballot in the general election next November was kicked off Friday night by the Texas Socialist Workers party.

About 75 persons turned out for the rally.

When questioned by a newsman, Sherry Smith, candidate for governor, said a Socialist party candidate's idea of winning is not necessarily winning an election but winning a few more votes.

"One more vote is a victory," she said.

Midland Splashes To Boys, Girls Regional Titles

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

ODESSA — Coach Jesse Marsh's Midland Bulldog swimmers swept to Region I championships in both the boys and girls divisions before a packed house in the Odessa Permian Pool Saturday afternoon.

Led by Tommy Hart, Danny Cerf, Russell Gunn and Hugh White, the Bulldogs racked up 90 points to Midland Lee's 50 while Odessa Permian was a distant third with 28 points.

The Midland High girls edged out the Lee girls, 93-81 to cart home a second first place trophy with Mary Dowdle, Susan Wemple, and Sandra Spears paving the way. Ysleta Eastwood was third with 18 points.

Hart chalked up first place victories in the 200 individual medley and 100 butterfly races for the Bulldogs. He was timed in 2:08.4 in the medley race and had a timing of 52.9 in the other. White won the diving competition with a first place total of 429.00 while Cerf splashed to a first place finish in the 100 back with a clocking of 59.4. Gunn captured the 100 breaststroke crown with a 1:04.7.

Midland Lee's Kerry Freedman won the 500 free race with a time of 5:04.1, being the only Rebel tanker to pick up a first place. Freedman also won second in the 200 free thus qualifying for the state meet in Austin, March 15-16. Brad Swendig of Lee, nosed out Tim Dowdle of Midland in the 200 individual medley with a second place time of 2:09.4.

The first two places qualify for the state competition with the third place finisher an alternate.

(Summary On Page 2B)

Kirk Smith of MHS also qualified for state in the diving competition with a 423.45 score while Swendig finished second in the 500 free behind Freedman.

The Bulldogs' Sean O'Neill wound up second behind Cerf in the 100 back with a time of 1:01.0.

Where Midland scored big point totals was in the 200 medley and 400 free relays with first place finishes. MHS had a time of 1:48.7 in the 200 medley relay and a 3:27.7 clocking in the 400 free relay.

Other first place winners in the boys division included Larry Page of Amarillo Tascosa in the 200 and 100 free races along with Greg Good of El Paso Burges in the 50 free.

Miss Dowdle chalked up impressive wins in the 50 free and 500 free races. She edged out Lee's Susan Bateman in the 50 free with a time of 25.5 compared to Miss Bateman's 26.2 clocking. In the 500 free, it was strictly no contest with Miss Dowdle finishing with a time of 5:24.4 with Lee's June Scobey a distant second with 5:34.9.

Miss Spears won the 100 breast with a 1:15.3 and Miss Wemple gained her first in the diving competition with a point total of 196.75.

Lee wasn't without its big moments too with Miss Scobey winning the 200 free with a time of 2:04.4 while MHS sophomore whiz, Debbie Freshour second with a 2:10.9.

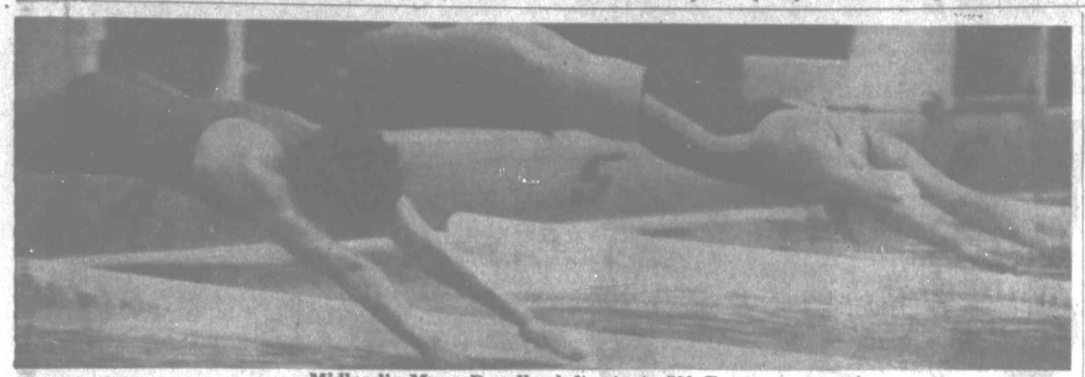

The Rebel girls also got a first place out of Miss Bateman in the 100 free in 58.3.

Midland won the 200 medley relay with Lee second in times of 2:01.5 and 2.04.3, respectively while Lee beat Midland in the 400 medley relay race. Lee's time was 3:59.1 and Midland had a 4:06.2.

BULLDOGS SURPRISING FOURTH—

Angelo Cops ABC Meet

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — San Angelo and Abilene High battled it out to the final lap of the mile relay here Saturday for team honors in the ABC Relays, but the Bobcats finally took top honors to successfully defend their crown won back in 1972 with 120 points.

Abilene's Eagles were leading the meet with 105 points heading into the last event before the Bobcats set a new record in the mile relay with a blistering 3:23.5 while Abilene finished fourth for a meet total of 113 points, seven shy of victory.

Midland Lee's upstart Rebels, who surprised the District 5-4A track world last week in Fort Stockton by winning the Comanche Relays, pulled up lame with 44 points for fifth place. Coach Sam Volpe's Rebs were running without the services of Randy Lewis, Jimmy O'Neal and Lance Posey. Lee probably did as good as expected without those on the cinders.

(See Summary On 3B)

Midland High continued to show improvement with a 75 point output for fourth, just 13 points behind third place Big Spring.

Although Lewis did not compete in the running events, he did set a record in the pole vault with a leap of 14-0 for the second week in a row. Lewis won the event over Big Spring's Sam Dodson, and both had the same height as last week with Lewis winning both with fewer misses.

Midland High turned in impressive performances in the hurdles with Steve Reddell winning the 120 highs with a respectable 14.9 and Larry Munson won top prize in the 330 hurdles with a 41.0. Munson also finished second in the 120 highs to give the Pack the top two spots.

Big Spring's Ricky McCormick was the real man on fire in this meet, however. The lanky junior was the high point individual with 20 points and he set new records in the two mile and mile, which is enough for anyone in one day.

McCormick blazed to a 9:58.3 to knock off 18 seconds of the old mark set by Lee's Rodney Smith in 1972. McCormick then turned around one event later and wiped out Midland's Vic Hirsch's record of 4:35.3. McCormick's new mark is 4:34.0.

San Angelo's hefty Frank Myers completed the five new record sweep with a 58-9 in the shot, erasing the old mark of 51-9¼ by Randy Goss of San Angelo in 1972. Lee's Milton Jones managed a 56-11¾, but ended up losing to Myers for the second week in a row.

Midland's Allen Parks won a second in the two mile with a 10:19.4, but was well off the pace set by McCormick, and Lee's Mike Reavis won a second in the mile with a 4:39.0, another McCormick victim. Lee's David Sheldon

Battle Scene

By Ted Battles

It's Here . . . Spring Training

Like the bowl games, the Masters and Kentucky Derby, baseball spring training is one of the traditional rituals of the American sports scene and although more people read about it than participate, what would we do without it?

For the folks in the north, where it's still cold, when the major leagues break out the bats and balls in the sunny southern and western climes, the headline writers without fail resurrect that wail from the Voice of the Turtle, "If Winter Comes, Can Spring Be Far Behind?"

In recent years, the major league clubs have polarized for comfort and convenience in Florida and Arizona, but it wasn't always thus. Since the New York Giants established the first spring training camp in Marlin Springs, Tex., back in 1908, it has changed a lot.

* * *

Before World War II in 1938-39-40-41, the main concentration of major league clubs was in Florida with Detroit at Lakeland, the Yankees and Cardinals in the Tampa bay area, the Red Sox at Sarasota, the Braves at Bradenton, and the Dodgers at Clearwater.

In the West, California, not Arizona, was the winter headquarters. The Cubs trained on Catalina Island in the Pacific and played their exhibitions in Los Angeles' Wrigley Field, the Pirates drilled at San Bernadino and the White Sox headquartered at Pasadena and Hollywood.

* * *

The wanderlust Giants perhaps were the first team to explore Southern California as a spring training mecca in the 1920s. It proved a flop, but a few years later they talked the Indians into making the trip with them and it proved hugely successful.

By the 1930s, the Giants and Indians continued as a team with New York working out at Baton Rouge, La., and Cleveland at New Orleans. The fact that Mel Ott, the pride of Louisiana, was a New York institution in those days may have had something to do with site along the Mississippi.

Anyway the Giants and Indians eventually moved west to explore Arizona after WW II.

But before WW II even Texas had major league spring trainees off and on, like the old St. Louis Browns at San Antonio.

Paid For The Privilege

In fact, that spring dateline was so coveted that cities used to pay ball clubs to use their facilities. Like one year San Antonio shelled out $10,000 to bring the Giants to the Mission City.

That may not sound like much today, but in the 19.0s when coffee in Midland was 21 cents a pound, choice tenderloin steak went for 27 cents a pound, bacon for 21, a Plymouth sedan for $699 and tennis racquets ranged from 98 cents to $1.98, it was a substantial sum.

Spring training in those days ranged from $25,000 to $34,000, depending upon whether you were the Yankees or the Phillies.

Of course, spring training wouldn't be spring training without the rookie phenoms, the ones who made it like Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Jackie Robinson and the ones who didn't like Clint Hartung, Lou Novikoff and Dick Wakefield . . . at least not to the extent that everyone expected.

Then there were the halfways like Phil Rizzutto and Joe Gordon who were a dazzling keystone combination followed all the way from Class D ball to AAA at Kansas City. They were to replace Yankee shortstop Frank Crossetti and Tony Lazzeri. Gordon made it, but Priddy didn't and was traded to the Tigers where he carved out a respectable career.

* * *

In 1939, the Yankees went to spring training confident that Lou Gehrig could come back after a poor 1938. Of course, he didn't and his long consecutive game streak ended in June. Manager Casey Stengel was being hailed for a minor miracle the year before in bringing the Boston Braves, then called the Bees for a year or two, home in fifth place with people like Elbie Fletcher, Eddie Miller, Tony Cuccinello, Jim Turner, Lou Fette and Fred Frankhouse.

* * *

A year later, Connie Mack was counting heavily on a $45,000 bonus rookie named Benny McCoy while the money-tight Phils were still grousing about the trade that sent third baseman Bucky Walters to Cincinnati where he almost immediately pitched the Reds to two straight pennants.

And, of course, there's always the story of the Houston Colt .45s, Al Spangler and the discovery of the High Sky and

Terrell, Thiel Knock Tech Out Of Lead

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Ira Terrell and Zack Thiel combined for 47 points Saturday as Southern Methodist knocked Texas Tech out of a Southwest Conference playoff by defeating the Red Raiders 78-72.

Texas, which had been tied with Texas Tech at 10-3 going into Saturday's games, beat Baylor 95-84 Saturday to gain an outright conference title. The Longhorns will play Creighton in Denton next Saturday night in a first round NCAA playoff game.

SMU, which would have advanced to the NCAA playoffs had Texas lost, finished in a tie with Texas Tech for second place at 10-4. Texas finished 11-3 in SWC play.

SMU broke open a tight game late in the first half. Rusty Bourquein gave the Ponies a 22-20 lead with a five-foot bank shot with 5:22 left in the first half and the Ponies never trailed after that.

SMU held a 32-27 lead at the half.

Terrell and Thiel led the Ponies with 24 and 23 points respectively, while Rick Bullock of Tech led all scorers with 30.

But most of Bullock's points came after SMU had built its lead to as high as 15 points in the second half.

The Mustangs had a 49.3 shooting percentage and Tech had 44.9 from the field as SMU clearly outshot the Raiders, 34-31.

SMU also had a wide edge on rebounds, 49-32, with Terrell grabbing 13 and Oscar Roan 12.

Bullock had 11 rebounds to lead the Raiders.

SMU steadily built its lead in the second half and after five minutes of play had a 44-34 margin. Midway through the final half, the Mustangs took their biggest lead, 58-44, and successfully held off a late surge by the Red Raiders that cut the final margin to six.

SMU, in upsetting the defending champions, won its eighth straight conference game and 10 of its last 11 to finish with a 15-11 mark for the season.

Tech wound up with a 17-9 campaign and was assured of at least a tie for second place in the conference.

Bulldogs Divide Pair With Lubbock

By TED BATTLES

Midland High gained a doubleheader split with Lubbock High at Memorial Stadium, despite all the Westerners' Kevin Gatewood could do to prevent it. The Bulldogs took advantage of eight Lubbock errors with nine base hits to win the opener, 11-7, but were just putty in the hands of pitcher Keith Martin in the nightcap, bowing out meekly, 6-2.

Midland took advantage of Lubbock's loose fielding to score nine runs in the first three innings of the opener for its win as Charles Northington notched the victory in relief of Alan Buonasera.

Buonasera, who won Friday's game in relief, started and was just one out away from gaining credit for Saturday's win, but couldn't get the final out in the fifth and Northington came on to nail it down.

Terry Copeland and Buonasera each had two hits for the Bulldogs in the opener as Midland used two hits and exploited three Lubbock errors for four first inning runs. Copeland's double and three more errors accounted for two more runs in the second and then the 'Dogs sewed it up in the third with a three run surge.

Successive singles by Buonasera, Brandon Battles, Kenny Krawietz and Ron Helm's double, the 'Dogs' most authoritative bat swinging of the game, accounted for the third-inning tallies.

Gatewood was six-for-nine for the day and after popping out in the first, a young lady fan yelled, "Strike him out, Alan, he can't hit."

Gatewood promptly hit one in the parking lot beyond left that took two bounces and tied up traffic on Cuthbert. When Gatewood got to home plate, he turned and pointed to the stands and said, "Tell that girl I can hit."

He spent the rest of the afternoon proving it with two doubles and three singles.

Martin, a stocky righthander, was simply too much for Midland in the second game, limiting the 'Dogs to three hits, one a wind-blown Texas Leaguer by John Tate in the fourth.

Tate's first single in the second came behind a walk to Jeff Cole and a single by Battles and produced two runs and a brief 2-2 tie.

Actually, except for the first when he yielded two runs on four hits and the third, Littlejohn threw a good game in going the route. Outside of his bad innings, he pitched two-hit ball.

Heard's 69 Seizes Orlando Lead

By BOB GREEN

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Easy-going Jerry Heard whistled his way to a three-under-par 69 and stretched his lead to two strokes Saturday in the third round of the $150,000 Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

Heard, who has owned or shared the lead all the way, put together a 54-hole total of 204, a 12 under par on the warm and sunny 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course.

The husky young man, who has a habit of whistling softly to himself in his casual amble down the fairways, birdied the final hole to expand his lead over Homero Blancas, Bob Murphy and Leonard Thompson, tied for second at 206.

Thompson, who scored his first professional victory just last weekend, had a 69, Murphy posted 68 and Blancas charged into contention with a six-under-par 66.

The big group at 208, eight under par and only four shots behind going into the last round of this chase for a $30,000 first prize, was made up of Hale Irwin, Bert Yancey, Lanny Wadkins, Bob Unger, Australians Bruce Crampton and Bruce Devlin and South African Bobby Cole.

Wadkins, the only one of the leaders who failed to break 70 in the almost ideal playing conditions, had a 71. Unger posted a 69, Devlin and Irwin 68, Yancey and Cole 67 and Crampton a 66.

Lee Trevino had his first good round of the tournament, a 68 for 212. Arnold Palmer could do no better than match par 72 and appeared out of title contention at 213.

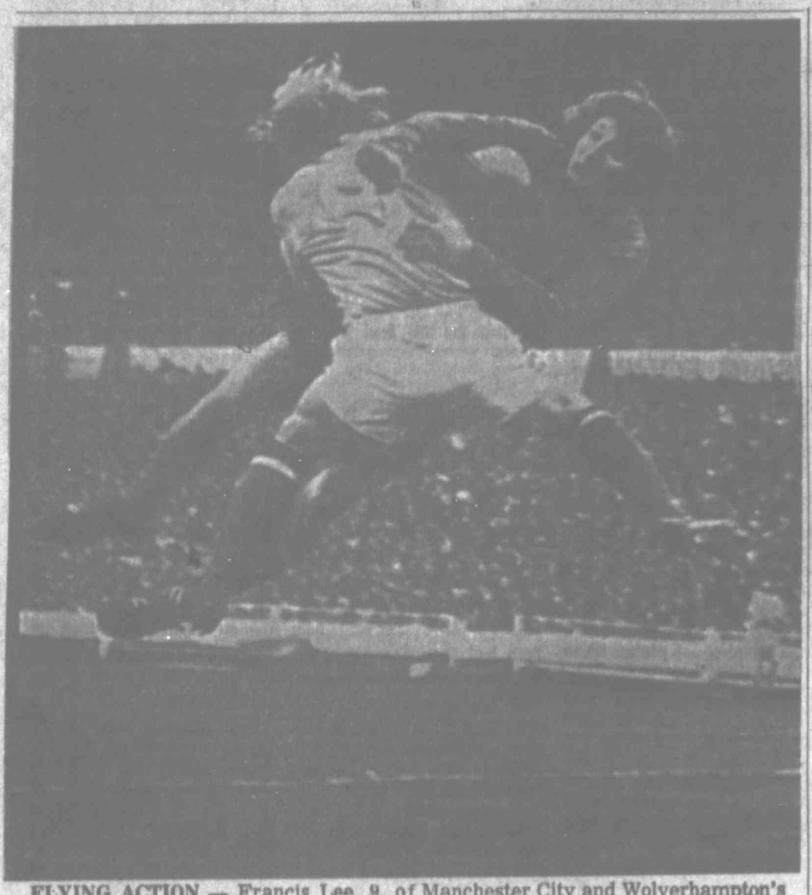

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Johnny Miller and Billy Casper are not competing.

KERMIT — Midland Lee's Rebels completed a three-game sweep of the Kermit Yellow Jackets by scoring a doubleheader sweep here Saturday in non-district baseball action. Lee won by scores 16-8 and 7-5.

Larry Tidwell hit two home runs and knocked in six mates as Lee took the opener.

Tidwell's first homer in the opening inning was a three-run job after a walk, singles by Brett Blackwell and David Clingman and Bobby Stevens' double to produce a 5-run lead.

Tidwell came through again in the seventh frame, hitting a two-runner to highlight a four-run uprising. Tidwell also singled home a run in the third inning.

Blackwell and Stevens also enjoyed three-hit games and no one enjoyed it more than pitcher Jay Frazier, who coasted to a 10-hit victory.

Lee's nightcap victory came behind the seven-hit pitching of Phil Anderson as Steve Hankinson paced the attack with two hits and two runs batted in. Blain Murray also had a couple of hits.

The surge that took out of reach was a four-run blast in the sixth as Lee rallied on walks to Tidwell and Scott Meaders, Rusty Laughlin's run scoring double, another walk, Murray's single and Hankinson's two-run single.

Tech, TCU Divide SWC Doubleheader

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech took advantage of nine Texas Christian errors to upset the Frogs 8-0 in Saturday's opener of a Southwest Conference baseball doubleheader here, but the Frogs bounced back with a 4-3 victory in the nightcap.

Red Raider catcher Jim Boss led with a solo homer in the third inning, followed by two more Tech hits and two TCU errors which produced four runs in that inning.

Tech got another four-run inning in the seventh as TCU had five errors.

TCU first baseman Tommy Crain smashed his fifth homer of the year as the Frogs got three runs in the second inning. Designated hitter Tom Riordan singled in the winning tally

NMJC Strides To Fifth Border Olympics Victory

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — New Mexico Junior College, paced by Bruce Smith's long-distance running and Willie Johnson's victories in the sprints, captured its fifth consecutive Border Olympics division title Saturday and Houston Worthing High School successfully defended its crown.

Smith, a South African, ran a division record mile victory in 4:15.2 Saturday to make him a double winner along with Johnson. Smith cracked the old three-mile standard Friday in 14:13.5.

Johnson won the 100 in 9.5 and breezed to a 220 victory in 22.1. He sacked a third, first-place medal for the Thunderbirds by running a leg on the winning sprint relay team.

Lloyd Toliver was the top athlete for Houston Worthing, winning the 100 in a creditable 9.8 seconds and sweeping the 220 in 22.4 seconds.

Guy Yarborough of Ranger established a new junior college division standard in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles in a time of 54.7 seconds. The old record of 54.8 was set by David Wagoner of San Jacinto in 1967.

Smith, who battled gusty winds and 90-degree heat, beat the old mile record of 4:17.3 by Trevor Viljoen of Odessa in 1973.

New Mexico reeled off the mile relay in a division record of 3:16.6.

Johnson was high point man in the JC division with 14½ points followed by Smith who had 12.

Toliver was the high point star in the schoolboy division with 25 points. Worthing scored 98 points to 54 for runnerup Houston Washington.

NMJC had 68 points to 46 for runnerup Ranger.

missing fly balls at Apache Junction, Ariz., where Houston trained after its entry into the National League.

Fly balls dropped so frequently in the outfield that they were thinking of establishing a flight-control tower. And former Midland Cub manager Spangler came out of spring training shell-shocked.

"I lose the damn ball out there. I'm a good outfielder. I just can't see that baseball. Am I going crazy?"

Midland Coach Ed Nixon was pleased with the Bulldogs improvement. "We took nine kids on this year's squad to Fort Stockton last year and didn't qualify a single one for the finals, but all nine placed this year. They are improving each week, but it just takes time. They did a good job today," Nixon said.

Coach Volpe was not particularly displeased with his tracksters despite the fifth place finish. "We knew we would be weak this week with the injuries and sickness, but I think everyone will be back in top shape soon. We just got wiped out in the middle of the week," Volpe said.

There was also a special sophomore division, but no team points were kept. Both Midland and Lee had good days.

Lee sophomores to win first place honors were Earl Evans, high jump, 5-4; Russell Kelner, 120 highs, 16.0; Otis Butler, 440, 53.8; and the mile relay with a 3:37.7.

Midland firsts include Terry Whitaker, long jump, 19-9½; Paul Garrett, 100, 10.5; Witaker, 220, 23.9; Ralph Diaz, mile, 4:58.1; and the 440 relay with a 45.3.

Soviets Crush U.S.

Hill's 60-Meter Hurdle Record Bright Spot

By STEPHENS BROENING

MOSCOW (AP) — Mary Decker only lost her temper, but an outclassed U.S. track and field team lost the meet Saturday in a crushing defeat by a Soviet squad in near-peak form.

Not even a world-record performance by Lt. Tom Hill in the 60-meter hurdles, a record-tying sprint by Clifford Outlin, or a David-and-Goliath upset of Russia's highly regarded decathlon man could alter the outcome.

The Russians won the third annual indoor meet by a score of 158-124, beating the men 89-72 and swamping Coach Bert Lyle's girls 74-54.

Hill, a 24-year-old Arkansas State college graduate, shaved a tenth of a second off the world indoor mark for the 60-meter hurdles. He was timed in 7.3 seconds. Willie Davenport, of Baton Rouge, La., was a close second in 7.4.

Miss Decker, the best of the U.S. female runners, won the 800-meter as expected. Then, in the women's medley relay, she hurled two batons at her Russian opponent, in a fit of anger.

The 15-year-old schoolgirl from Garden Grove, Calif. was crowded on the last lap of the 800-meter anchor run in the relay by muscular Russian Sarmite Shtula.

Miss Shtula cut in front of Miss Decker on the next-to-last turn, and seemed to elbow the American girl, driving her off the inside lane of the track. Miss Decker wound up with her baton and threw it at Miss Shtula's fleeing back but missed.

Then Mary retrived her weapon and jogged on to the finish where she tried again. Again, she missed.

The judges disqualified the Russian relay team for Miss Shtula's interference and did the same to the Americans for "unsportsmanlike conduct."

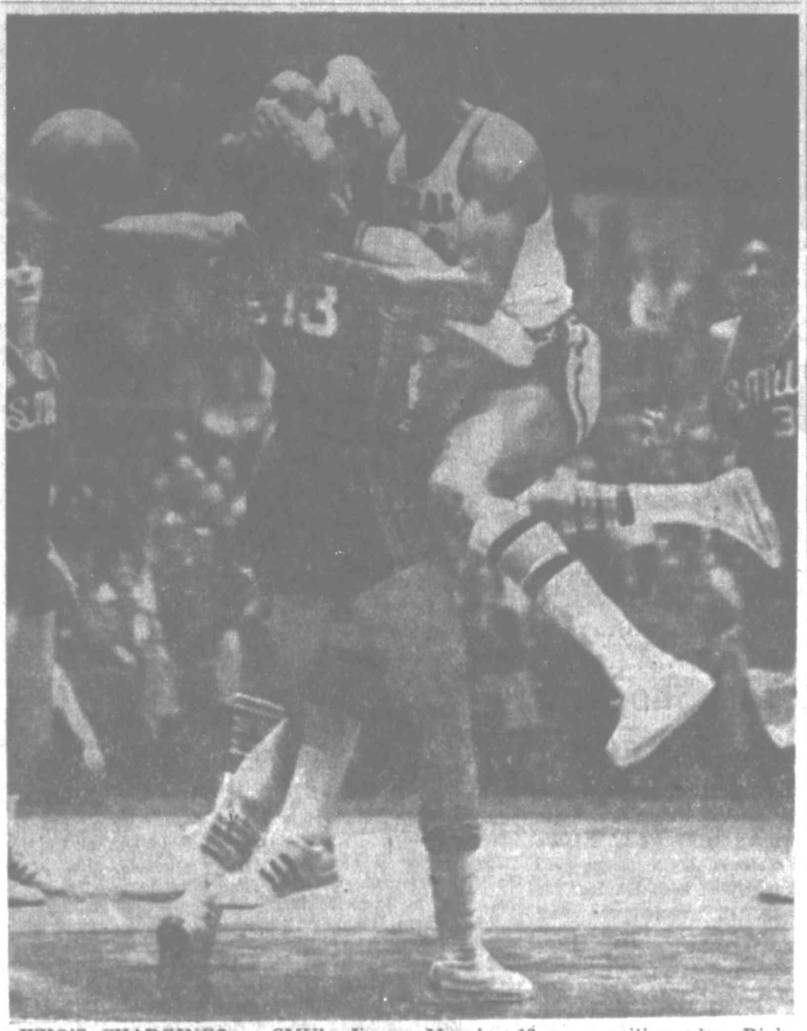

Coach Lyle commiserated with Mary. "She's just a young kid," he said, "she just couldn't believe someone would run her off the track."

The Americans had little to cheer about when Znamensky Brothers Stadium had emptied. But Outlin, a 20-year-old from Birmingham, Ala., equaled the 60-meter indoor mark with 6.4-second sprint and Steve Gough of Seattle performed prodigiously, beating Nikolai Avilov in the pentathlon 4,166 points to 4,106. Avilov, the world-record decathlon champion, was believed unbeatable.

Another bright spot was the courageous victory in the 1,500 meters by Michael Slack of Fargo, N.D. Slack overtook Pyotr Anisin in the last lap, was passed by the Russian and then overtook him in an elbow-jarring rush to give Coach Chernock a victory he hadn't counted on. Slack's time for the metric mile was 3:49.2.

Best for the American women were Martha Watson, a 25-year-old Tennessee State graduate, who won two events, the 60-meter dash in record-tying time of 7.1 and the broad jump with a leap of 20 feet, 8 inches.

But over-all Soviet depth and balance won out; from chunky Nadezhda Chizhova's world record heave of the shot put, 66-11¼ to Olympic champion Viktor Saneyev's winning triple jump of 54-10¾.

WHO'S CHARGING? — SMU's Jimmy Murphy, 13, was waiting when Rick Bullock of Texas Tech tried to get a lob pass and picked up this charging foul. Murphy might have gotten a fat lip out of it but SMU beat Raiders, 78-72. (AP Wirephoto.)

FROM SUPERSTAR COMPETITION—

Kyle, Jr., Gains Fame

By ELOY AGUILAR

DALLAS (AP) — Kyle Rote Jr., 23, who recently won $50,000 defeating top U.S. athletes in a combined-event, nationally televised competition is a young Protestant divinity student with almost a Franciscan frair's attitude towards money.

Rote is the winner of the Superstar Competition in which he topped the likes of O.J. Simpson and Bob Seagren. In the process, the student at Southern Methodist University of Dallas and son of a former American football great, Kyle Rote Sr., made Americans keenly aware of that other game—soccer.

Rote is a professional soccer players—or as professional as an athlete can be on $1,500 a year—and, in his field, he is a star. Playing striker for the Tornado of the North American Soccer League he was rookie of the year this past season scoring ten goals and providing ten assists. That gave him the scoring title.

His sudden national fame brought him an offer of near $20,000 from the Rhode Island Oceaneers, a new franchise in the American Soccer League, but Rote is a home-grown boy who says he would rather play in Dallas even if it is a much lower salary.

"The money is not that important," said Rote who sees soccer as an asset in his future ministry which he hopes to spend working with youth.

"The amount does not make that much difference," he said in an interview, "I am asking for a wage that would be above the minimum standard of living so I can play as a true professional."

Rote says he has asked for a salary in the neighborhood of $12,000 from the Tornado.

"I was born in Dallas," he said, "I think this is my place, I love the people and I want to play here. I would consider the Rhode Island offer only if nothing can be worked out with the Tornado."

Averages in the young NASL are not anywhere the figure that Rote is asking for, but the theology student feels that it would be good for the game to pay more.

"Soccer is the sport of the future," he said. "It is a sport played throughout the world and I am sure that in a few years we will have teams able to compete with the best."

The 6-0, 185-pound player who was a football star in high school says every position in soccer is similar in a way to that of the quarterback in American football.

"You have to react to what the defense is doing, you have to be more versatile, there are any number of alternatives at any moment, whereas in American football each players has a designated move."

Soccer in the United States is currently propped up by a large influx of foreign players, mostly English. Most of them have parttime jobs to go with their soccer contracts.

But there are now approximately 15 U.S. born professional players and Rote feels that the thousands of school-age boys now playing in organized soccer leagues will soon be kicking and scoring for the pros.

"I think we have reached a level professionally where our teams inspire a certain amount of respect from visiting teams from other countries," he said recalling that the Tornado has lost only one game in ten international matches in the past three years.

"The quality of our game will get better as we play more teams from different countries," he said. "I want to see the day when we can play the Mexican National Team, the Brazilians, or the Italians."

Rote is confident the breeding grounds for soccer players in the U.S. schools will soon produce great U.S. born stars.

"They may cut my career short," he said.

UT Cindermen In Border Win

LAREDO, Tex. (AP) — The University of Texas unleashed a 1-2-3-4 "brotherly love" finish in the mile run to smother the field in an avalanche of points Saturday night and successfully defend its Border Olympics track and field championship.

The powerful Longhorns, who recently won the Southwest Conference indoor title, put on an awesome display of depth in the mile. Paul Craig and Mark Klonower finished side-by-side in 4:08 followed closely by Bill Goldapp in 4:09 and Jesse Maldonado in 4:12.8. Texas collected 28 points in that one event alone.

Winning the Border crown for the 21st time, Texas also registered big in the field events, compiling 20 points in the shot put and 18 in the discus. The 880 was the only event in which Texas didn't win a point.

Texas Southern, capturing its 13 of the last 15 border meets in the college division, rode the flashing spikes of sprint man Ainsley Armstrong, a transfer from national JC champion Essex, New Jersey. Armstrong won both sprints, taking the 100 in 9.7 and the 220 in 21.5.

Baylor's Bears rode Tim Son's 440 victory in 47.6 Paul Stevens' 440 hurdles victory in 52.4, and Sonny Rollo's 880 win in 1:53.2 to a closer than expected second place finish in the University division.

No records were established despite a perfect evening for track on the red cinders of Shirley Field.

Texas A&M's Scottie Jones registered an upset in the 120 hurdles, winning in 14.1. Defending champion Randy Lightfoot of Texas was a poor sixth.

Gene Pouncy of SMU was a surprise bombout in the 100-yard dash, falling to Charles Dawson of A&M who ran a 9.6. Pouncy was third.

Dana LeDuc of Texas downed teammate and defending champion Bishop Dolegiewicz in the shot put with an effort of 62-feet, ½ inch. LeDuc, a transfer from Texas-El Paso, beat Dolegiewicz by 14 inches.

Steers Pop Cougs Twice

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Bobby Clark crossed the plate five times as Texas clobbered Houston 20-3 in the second game of a Southwest Conference baseball doubleheader Saturday after taking the opener 6-2.

Clark had two RBI's of his own in addition to benefitting from other RBI's five times. Shortstop Blair Stover had six RBI's and went three for three in the slugfest.

In the first game, the unbeaten Longhorns scored three runs on three hits in both the second and fourth innings to overpower Houston.

Texas is 15-0 for the season and 3-0 in conference play. Houston is 5-8 and 0-3.

Rice Bags Two From SMU In SWC

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice righthander Mike Pettit scattered seven hits and shut out Southern Methodist 5-0 in the second game of a Southwest Conference baseball doubleheader Saturday after Rice had taken advantage of SMU pitcher Jeff Sage's wildness to win the first game, 4-2.

The two victories gave Rice a sweep of the three game series.

Sage, a freshman who pitched a no-hitter for SMU last Tuesday, gave up only one hit in the opener but he allowed Rice to score four runs in the first inning when he walked three batters, threw three wild pitches and made a fielding error.

Notre Dame Rips Wildcats

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Gary Brokaw scored 26 points and John Shumate added 24 Saturday, leading second-ranked Notre Dame to its 12th straight college basketball victory, 115-85 over Villanova.

The Fighting Irish raised their season record to 24-1, the only loss coming at UCLA.

Bonnie Bryant and Marlene Hagge are tied for third place at 140. First-round leader Laura Baugh shot a 73, dropping her back to fifth place with a 141, three strokes back.

SCOTTSDALE JUNKET PLANNED—

Cubs Take To Field Soon

With the major league spring training camps in full swing, it won't be long before Midland's Texas League Cubs will join the parent Chicago Cubs in drills at their Scottsdale, Ariz., base and the approach on the field action is reflected in front-office stirrings in the Tall City.

General Manager John Cox reports 430 box season tickets sold, but adds, "We've still got a long way to go to reach last year's close to 700 figures."

Field Manager Walt Dixon is expected to stop in Midland in mid-March on the way from his home in South Carolina to Scottsdale. Dixon assumes the reigns from Al Spangler, who has moved up to Chicago as coach after two years.

The Midland Booster Club and Chamber of Commerce are cooking up a Scottsdale trip for those who want a sneak preview of their 1974 Texas League representatives.

According to Harrell Feldt, C of C Sports and Recreation chairman, the trip will leave by Continental Airlines at 9:15 a.m. March 22 and arrive in Phoenix at 9:40 a.m. for the three-day Scottsdale stay.

One of the highlights will be a get-together with Chicago Cubs management personnel, some of the Chicago players and some former Midland Cubs at the Sheraton-Scottsdale.

The Texas League season opens April 19 and Midland's home opener is scheduled April 23.

In addition to Dixon, new managers in the TL this summer will be Woody Smith at San Antonio and Dave Garcia at El Paso. Smith comes to the AA circuit from Miami of the Florida State League where his teams won three straight flags. Garcia has been a coach with the San Diego Padres, but spent most of his career as a player and manager in the San Francisco Giants system.

Joe Frazier is back with the Mets farm club, operating this year in Victoria after switching from Memphis. Jackie Brandt is at Alexandria, Denny Sommers returns at Amarillo while Gene Freese will be at Shreveport.

Jack Krol, who won the Dixie Assn. flag at Arkansas in 1971 when the TL and Southern League banded together, returns to the Cardinals' farm club at Little Rock.

GOMEZ ASKS FOR TRIMS—

Clean-Shaven Astros?

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros Manager Preston Gomez has asked his players to shave off mustaches and trim their hair if need be.

"I told them to use common sense," Gomez said. "If they keep their hair neat, a reasonable length in back and on the sideburns, that's fine. I don't mind long hair as long as it is neat and not hanging to the shoulders."

All of the players have taken Gomez' message in stride. There were no loud complaints. Gomez said he also wants the team to wear coats and ties when traveling.

"I think it is important for a major league ball club to look the part," he said.

A year ago when Leo Durocher was managing the policy was not in effect. "What Preston told us," said outfielder Bob Watson, "is that if we are going to be a winner, we might as well dress like one. He had a good point there, and I think all of the guys took it to heart. I know I did."

Fergy Passes Up Hill Turn

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Veteran righthander Ferguson Jenkins passed up his pitching turn Saturday because of a slightly pulled groin muscle, but Texas Ranger righthanded reliefer Steve Foucault returned to action after a two-day absence because of a pulled leg muscle.

Jenkins will probably not pitch again until Monday.

"There's no point in aggravating an injury like that," said Manager Billy Martin. "Missing a day or two at this stage of spring training won't hurt him too much."

Outfielder Jeff Burroughs and utilityman Cesar Tovar were still missing as the Rangers held a 2½-hour practice under the best weather conditions here so far this spring.

Martin also announced that Jim Bibby, who pitched a no-hitter against Oakland last July 30 and the early choice to pitch the season opener against the world champion A's on April 4, would start the Rangers' exhibition opener Friday afternoon against the New York Yankees.

OSU Shocks Indiana Five

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senior Wardell Jackson pumped in 25 points as Ohio State upset No. 9 Indiana 85-79 Saturday to keep the Big Ten basketball conference race alive.

Freshman Buckeye Guard Larry Bolden sank three of four free throws with 19 seconds left to preserve the win for Ohio State, now 3-13 in the league.

Forward Steven Wenner added a shot from the floor to give Ohio State an 85-77 edge. Indiana's Scott May scored the final two points to make it 85-79 before the clock ran out.

Texas Nabs SWC Lead

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Texas captured the undisputed Southwest Conference basketball title Saturday night by taking a 95-84 victory over Baylor as Dan Krueger, Larry Robinson and Harry Larrabee each scored better than 20 points.

Guards Krueger and Larrabee hit 26 and 22 points, respectively, over the Baylor zone defense and Robinson, the SWC scoring leader, added 20 for the Longhorns.

The victory gave Texas an 11-3 league record, one game ahead of SMU and Texas Tech at 10-4. SMU beat Texas Tech 78-72 in an afternoon game and the Mustangs needed a Baylor victory to advance to the NCAA playoffs, but the Texas triumph boosted them into next Saturday night's Midwest Pre-Regional against Creighton at Denton.

Texas took a 47-44 halftime lead as the Longhorns hit 67 per cent and Baylor 56 per cent of their shots in the first 20 minutes.

Texas opened a 68-56 lead, its biggest of the game, early in the second half when Robinson, who had 15 second-half points, hit a three-point play. Baylor only got as close as six points the rest of the game.

Charlie McKinney led Baylor in the game with 24 points and 22 rebounds. The rebounds gave him 375 for the season, six more than the previous Baylor school record set by William Chatmon. Lee Griffin added 22 for the Bears, including 18 in the second half.

The Longhorns' triumph climaxed a complete turnaround during the season. Texas was just 1-11 in non-conference play, and its 11-3 SWC mark upped its record to just 12-14.

Baylor finished with 5-9 and 12-13 records.

The ultimate difference in the game was at the free throw line as Texas hit 19 of 21 attempts and the Bears had only three attempts, hitting two of them.

Aggies Bow To Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Dean Tolson ended his career with a personal high of 45 points to lead the Arkansas Razorbacks to a 97-86 victory over Texas A&M Saturday night in Barnhill Fieldhouse.

The 6-foot-8 senior set an Arkansas field goal record with 20 buckets, beating by two the record set earlier by Tolson and former Razorback Martin Terry.

Tolson hit five of six free throw attempts. He hauled down 16 rebounds.

It was the final game for Tolson and seniors Dennis White, who had 15 points and 11 rebounds, and Roger Spears, who scored one point and got seven rebounds.

Guard Rickey Medlock, the leading free throw shooter in the nation on percentage, went three-for-three, ending the regular season with 87 points on 95 free shots for the season.

Medlock also had six field goals for 15 points.

Stueckler Edges Cagle For Coach Of The Year

Odessa Permian's David Nelson heads the 1974 District 5-4A basketball team with six players being chosen on the first team and six on the second unit.

Nelson, a 6-6 senior, received 12 of the possible 13 first team votes, missing being unanimous by one vote in the final balloting.

Paul Stueckler, who led the Midland Lee Rebels to the championship, edged out Midland's James Cagle for the Coach of the Year honors while Abilene Cooper's Larry Bradford was named Most Valuable Player. Stueckler received six votes to Cagle's four in the close race for coaching honors while Bradford had five votes and Abilene's Monte Harris three.

Players were given five points for a first team selection and three for second team.

Joining Nelson on the all-district team were Harris, Brett Blackwell of Lee, Bradford along with John Thomas Smith of Big Spring and San Angelo's Alfred Fields who tied Thomas with 47 points each.

Lee's Melvin Jackson and Mike Hill were named to the second unit along with Michael Cobb and Doug Mitchell of Midland High. Reggie Leffall of Cooper and Mike Casey of Odessa, round out the second team with Mitchell and Casey getting 17 points each.

Blackwell and Fields are juniors and will be back again next season while Cobb and Leffall are also juniors.

In the balloting for coaching honors, Lynn Mendnehall of Cooper received two votes and Abilene's Rodney Jenkins one while only 12 of the 13 possible votes were cast in the Most Valuable Player award with one scribe not casting a vote for that particular honor.

Gonzales Star Dazzles Scouts

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Dennis Tealer wowed college scouts Saturday by pouring in 37 points as Gonzales whipped Crosby, 77-62, for the Class AAA schoolboy basketball championship.

Bowie dazzled Friona with a third-quarter explosion of 29 points to beat the Panhandle team 76-66 for the state AA title.

Huntington kept its state tournament perfect by nudging Snook, 41-39, in a defensive duel in Class A that set records for low scores.

Tealer, a 6-5 senior, broke the AAA record for most points in two tournament games. He pumped in 41—a single game AAA record—in Gonzales' semifinal victory and his 37 Saturday gave him a tournament total of 78. The old two-game record was 72 by Jerry Mallett of Beaumont South Park in 1953.

Some 25 colleges reportedly are recruiting Tealer, and a close follower of the team said he was thinking of attending The University of Texas.

Tommy Bludau, who had a miserable semifinals game hitting only two of 19 shots, literally came off the floor to aid Tealer by scoring 18 points.

On a drive shot in the first half, Ricky Carter of Crosby cut Bludau's feet from under him and Bludau slammed onto the floor and laid motionless for several minutes. He sat out the final 1:43 in the first half but played the last two quarters.

It was the first trip to the tournament for Gonzales, east of San Antonio. And also the first appearance for Crosby, near Houston.

Two former Bowie players' sons—Bobby Brashear and David Prater—and Darwin McKlinely, whose brother once played for the North Texans, carried Bowie to victory over Friona.

Brashear controlled the ball with his dribbling and zipped his open teammates for scores, once throwing a scoring pass backwards over his head as he raced away from the basket. He scored 15 points, McKinley 17 and Prater, a 6-8 senior, threw in 22, as well as raking in 20 rebounds.

Trailing 36-33 at halftime, Bowie outscored Friona 29-8 in the third quarter to coast to its triumph.

Pigeon Is No Good Omen For Mustangs

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

AUSTIN — For some unexplainable reason, a white pigeon slipped through an open window in steamy Gregory Gym Friday night to join the 4,500 fans on hand to view the Crosby-Andrews AAA semifinal bout, and the large throng of Andrews fans were hoping it was a good omen for Coach Edd Farmer's White Hat Brigade. It wasn't — Crosby easily won, 60-50, to advance to the finals against Gonzales.

Evidently, the white flocked fowl didn't know too much about basketball or omens and seemed contented in his rafter perch just watching the Mustangs in their futile struggle.

And futile it was. Whatever went right for the Mustangs in the Region I playoff tournament, went wrong for the White Hats in Austin. The Mustangs contributed a frigid outlook in what was an otherwise sweaty complex.

Andrews hit only 33.3 per cent from the field and a meager 47.1 per cent from the charity line while the fast breaking Cougars hit for 43 per cent from the field and 56 per cent on Mustang mistakes.

Crosby, not overly impressive as an 89 point season average would indicate, did not strike that often, but then Andrews just didn't strike at all.

Elyard David, Crosby's high scoring guard, paced the Cougars with 19 points, most of which came on unbelieveable driving layups, while Charlie Bass and Randy Marek ripped the cords for 14 and 10 points respectively.

Never Untracked

The Mustang attack which never really got going with 21 of 63 from the field, was led by Charlie Gregg with 15, but the 6-2 senior hit only six of 23 shots. Six-six senior Ronnie Pearson was the only other Mustang in double figures with 10 points.

The Mustangs faltered almost from the beginning and eventually found themselves having to play the running game with the Cougars. David and Bass hit markers for a 6-2 lead in the opening moments and the Mustangs were running after those two for the rest of the night.

Andrews had its lone minute of glory at the 4:02 mark of the first stanza when Gregg hit a long jumper and Morris Roberts connected on a layup after a Crosby turnover to take a 12-11 lead.

That was when the Mustangs went dead from the field and David connected on a corner bomb with 2:40 left in the first period for a 13-12 margin. It was all Cougars after that, and Farmer never got close to donning his victorious white Stetson.

Crosby opened a seven point lead quickly in the second period with David and Ricky Carter doing the dirty work, and by the end of the quarter, the Cougs owned a 29-20 margin as the Mustangs managed only eight points.

The third quarter was more of the same with the Cougars winning the period by a 16-12 margin for a 13 point lead, and that proved to be the zenith of the Crosby attack.

Turnage Gets Hot

Six-six John Turnage turned loose with six of his eight points in the final period, but his 15-footers did not come quick enough to turn the tide. The Mustangs cut the margin by three, but history had already been served.

Farmer's Ponies needed the victory to become the most successfull team in Andrews history. The Mustangs were eliminated in the semifinals in 1966 by San Antonio Marshall.

In the other semifinal bout, Gonzales defeated Atlanta, 68-67, but the big story in this one was the 41 point performance by Gonzales' Dennis Teeler, which set a AAA scoring mark in the state tournament.

In Class A semifinals, Snook edged out Petrolia, 49-45, and Huntington blasted Paducah, 85-53, just seven points shy of a Class A team scoring record in the tournament.

LEE SMACKS FOUR HOME RUNS—

Rebels Pound Kermit, 17-1

By BOB DILLON

Coach Ernie Johnson's Midland Lee Rebels opened the 1974 baseball season with a bang in pounding out a 17-1 victory over the Kermit Yellow Jackets on the Lee diamond in 80-degree temperatures.

Lee combed three Kermit pitchers for 17 hits and hit the long ball, belting four homers, two triples and two doubles in the process.

Keith Bishop and Eddie McNeal combined to throw a four-hitter at the 'Jackets with Bishop working five innings, giving up three hits while walking one and striking out eight. McNeal surrendered one hit, walked none and fanned two.

Third baseman Javier Torres and leftfielder Larry Tidwell paced the attack hitting a triple and homer each as Johnson used 18 of his 20-man roster. First baseman Bobby Stevens also showed some muscle at the plate with a homer and single while Brett Blackwell and David Clingman, out for only two workouts, added a homer and double.

Actually, Tidwell and Blackwell had inside-the-park clouts with Tidwell's coming in the fifth inning and Blackwell's in the sixth with two teammates aboard. Blackwell hit a sinking liner that bounced past centerfielder Don Owens for his round-tripper.

Lee got off to a quick start with three runs off loser Wendell Walker in the first inning. Steve Koch walked and Torres following with a booming triple that hit in front of the 390-foot sign in dead center on the fly to score one run and after Tidwell popped out to second, Stevens unloaded a 360-foot homer that hit in Johnson's back yard and a 3-0 lead.

The Rebels added two more in the second inning on a fielder's choice by Bishop and Torres' homer to the right of the electric scoreboard in left. Tidwell sliced a triple into the right field corner, but was left on third when Tidwell skied out to center.

Bishop aided his own cause to knock in a pair of runs in the bottom of the third when after two were out, Blain Murray and Craig McColloch hit back-to-back singles and Bishop delivered with his two-run single.

Murray knocked in Stevens who had walked and went to second on an error by Walker, to make it 8-0.

Kermit got it's only run of the game in the fifth inning, after two were out. Don Owens walked and Ken Hix singled into left and a broken bat single by Joe Haygood Plated Owens.

Lee stormed back with four more runs in the fifth with the key blow being an inside-the-park homer by Tidwell with one on.

Five more runs poured across the plate in the sixth inning and the big hits were Blackwell's three-run homer and a double by David Clingman.

Bruce Smith's 3-Run Homer In 8th Pulls It Out

WINNING HOMER — Midland's Bruce Smith circles second base after hitting three-run homer against Lubbock Coronado Friday to give Midland 9-7 win.

By TED BATTLES

Bruce Smith erased a lot of opening-game annoyances for the Midland Bulldogs with one powerful swing to give the Purple Pack a 9-7 baseball victory over Lubbock Coronado at Memorial Stadium Field Friday afternoon.

The 'Dogs took a 6-3 lead into the seventh only to have the Mustangs tie it without a hit and then the Lubbock visitors took a 7-6 lead on only one scratch hit in the eighth and it looked like Arlen Dickson's debut as MHS coach would be spoiled.

However, Smith's one out wrong-field blast with two runners on sent everybody but Coronado home smiling.

Alan Buonasera, who wound up as the winning pitcher, was hit by a pitch, with one out in the eighth and Ron Helm walked to set the table for Smith.

His wallop over the right field fence erased a ragged seventh and eighth by the Bulldogs in which the Mustangs used five walks, three hit batsmen, three Midland errors and a scratch single by centerfielder Kelly Utley for their four runs.

Outside of that, however, it wasn't a bad 1974 debut for the 1973 state AAAA champions. Starting pitcher Jeff Cole pitched five-hit ball and surrendered only two earned runs before departing in the seventh and that had to be encouraging. One of Dickson's primary concerns this spring is finding replacements for the departed hill aces of a year ago, Randy Blanscett and Robert Shaeffer.

Midland jumped in front in the second when Karl Brosig reached on an error, Brandon Battles walked and was forced at second on a grounder to short by Kenny Krawietz. However, the throw to first was wild and Brosig scored. Clelland Pierce then dropped a Texas League double into short center and Krawietz, who had stolen second, scored.

Cole faced a minimum nine men in the first three innings and had two out in the fourth when the Mustangs struck for two unearned runs. Kelly Utley reached first when third baseman Pierce's throw pulled Brosig off first. Ed Matthews singled up the middle and Weldon Whiteside punched a single through the right side for one run and the other came home on Ron Helm's bobble at second.

Midland made it 5-2 in the fifth when Jeff Cole singled behind short, Helm beat out an infield hit and Steve Widner drilled a single to left. When the ball was misplayed, Helm followed Mike Gaddy, running for Cole, home and Widner wound up on third. Steve came home on William Goode's infield hit.

Coronado got one back in the sixth, but Midland scored again, on an error, fielder's choice that failed to get anyone, a force out and Terry Copeland's run scoring single.

Coronado rallied in the seventh on a walk, error, and hit batsman that loaded the bases with one out and brought Buonasera, just out from basketball, in for Cole. Alan hit the first batter and walked in two runs before he got out of it to send the game into extra innings.

BULLDOG BITES — Catcher Copeland came up with a deft short-hop stab on Helm's low throw to complete a bases-loaded force at the plate in the sixth and Terry's two hits also led the 'Dogs at the plate. . .Midland showed pretty good base path speed with three steals. . .Eady looked tough in the seventh when he fanned the side and then led off the eighth with a strikeout before Midland put together its winning rally . . . Coronado second baseman Gary Swann got nicked by Helm's spikes in an attempted pick-off play at second in the sixth and it took 11 stitches to close the wound. . .In pregame ceremonies Midland hoisted its state championship pennant on the flag pole in left.

District 5-4A baseball teams all got off on the right foot Friday posting six victories in six outings. Odessa Permian and San Angelo were idle.

Odessa surprised powerful Lubbock Monterey, 5-3, in Odessa while Big Spring downed Lubbock High, 9-8 in nine innings. In other games, Midland edge past Lubbock Coronado, 9-7 in eight innings; Midland Lee whipped Kermit, 17-1 while Abilene Cooper edged Wichita Falls, 5-3 and Abilene High took an 11-6 win over the Ranger College junior varsity.

Rodney Allison, a blue-chipper quarterback in football, rapped a three-run homer of Monterey ace Larry Horn to spark Odessa to its win, giving new coach Denny Ivey a successful debut.

Junior pitcher Jerry Walker scattered six hits including a two-run homer by all-state catcher Jimmy Shankle. Horn struck out 12 Bronchos during the loss.

Big Spring pounded out 15 hits to nip Lubbock with Sammy Rodriguez pacing the Steer offense with four hits in six trips to the plate. Earl Reynolds was the winning hurler for Big Spring.

Poage Denies Any Knowledge Of $12,000 Check From Hearne

HEARNE, Tex. (AP) — Rep. Bob Poage, D-Tex., says he may ask a federal grand jury to investigate a $12,000 check from the City of Hearne allegedly transferred to Poage's 1972 campaign.

"I have never received any money from Hearne and I have no idea where the money went. I don't want to speculate on what happened to it," Poage said in Washington after disclosures concerning the check.

The check was issued in June 1971 by the city and deposited in the account of the T. C. Engineering Co. at the First Bank and Trust in nearby Bryan.

The office of the secretary of state in Austin said it had no record of any T. C. Engineering Co. And the State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers said it had no record of a Troy Cook.

Poage, whose 11th Congressional District includes Hearne, said he hopes the matter can be cleared in a few days. If not, he said, "then I will instruct the Justice Department to take the matter before a federal grand jury."

Poage is chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

Beth Bishop, Hearne city bookkeeper, said Friday she had been ordered to write the check by City Manager E. C. Suggs and Mayor Jack Abrams.

"He (the mayor) told me to keep my mouth shut about it because it involved a congressman," Mrs. Bishop said. "I asked him which congressman and he said Poage."

The check was picked up by city councilman Tommy Mayfield and later deposited in a bank.

Mayfield was not available for comment and Abrams refused to discuss the matter.

Poage said he knew Mayfield but the councilman had not worked for his campaign.

"I thought Mayfield had made a contribution to my campaign in the past. But in going back and checking the record I find he has not," Poage said.

Mrs. Bishop said the check had been signed by city secretary Joe Turner Jr. when blank and by Suggs and Abrams after the amount was filled in.

She said there was no invoice accompanying the check or explaining what services were being paid.

Milk Producers Ask For Price Supports

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — John Buttergrodt, president of the Associated Milk Produers, Inc., has asked the Agriculture Department for favorable consideration of milk price supports for the co-operative, which is in 1974 involved in a federal antitrust suit.

Buttergrodt sent a letter Friday to Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz requesting "early announcement at 90 per cent of parihy which would provide much needed assurance to dairly farmers."

He added, "Milk productive capacity would be sustained that otherwise would be lost through farmers' lack of confidence in the capacity of market prices to recover costs."

AMPI is named in a suit alleging that campaign contributions from the dairy co-operative were solicited shortly before President Nixon in 1971 authorized renewal of milk price supports.

Buttergrodt's letter said AMPI has filed data views and recommendations on price supports for the marketing year starting April 1, 1974. It said the data was consistent with the position expressed by the National Milk Producers Federation.

AMPI said the nation's milk supply was in jeopardy, milk production has dropped each month for 16 months in a row, and imports could not make up production deficits.

Price supports at 90 per cent of parity would give dairy farmers a solid program on which to base long-range plans, the letter said.

Ringing The Bell

with BOB TIEUEL

The Black Experience: We recently visited the offices and plant of The Black Dispatch in Oklahoma City, where one of the older and more successful of black-oriented newspapers was born 62 years ago. It was here, some 43 years ago, that we met the founder-publisher-editor, Roscoe Dunjee, who reminded one of an ebony-hued Indian.

In those days, segregation, lynching, and discrimination of blacks were a way of life, but never for Roscoe. He fought back with every ounce of strength he had in his "personalized" editorial column, in his speeches and his way of life.

We thought of him as a fearless and brave little black god, although we did not always agree with him on some issues prevalent in that day. And it was Roscoe Dunjee who helped furnish us with the challenge and the inspiration to follow the journalistic path these years which have followed. He has passed the mantle to younger and stronger shoulders but his contributions to democracy and the good life for all people will never die. His memory indeed lingers on.

Tieuel

Like Hal Boyle, the long time AP columnist remarked the other day: "There are times when a man should go full speed and there are times when he should slow down." He added: "After more than 30 years I have decided to become an intermittent columnist. Like an old hen, I will lay fewer eggs and spend more time brooding. . . If I have failed to make a better world in 30 years (I have tried for 43, Hal) perhaps I've tried to rush things and now need to plan for a more systematic attack." Good reasoning Mr. Boyle. Think I'll follow you in the same line and slow down some.

From the rural crossroads to the larger cities, Oklahomans are talking about two things today — fuel shortages and soaring food prices. That's the near-unanimous opinion of those who try to keep their fingers on the public pulse, the state's newspaper editors who met in convention in Oklahoma.

Here in Oklahoma City, where we are to be at the bedside of Mom who is recovering from her second serious surgical operation (Mercy Hospital), student volunteers are working to spread the word that job opportunities are abundant in the law field. Presently 17 Indians, three blacks and a Chicano are among the approximately 500 students at University of Oklahoma Law School. Full scholarships are available for minorities who want to be lawyers.

On Power: Business executives are beginning to share more of their economic power with the public at a time when people are demanding more of a say in corporate policy, believes Dr. David A. Hubbard, president of Fuller Theological Seminary, Pasadena, Calif., speaking before an Oklahoma City Kiwanis Club recently. "If corporations won't take that responsibility, they are asking for more government rather than less government to improve our social life and enrich the quality of all our lives," he concluded.

Hubbard recently was appointed to the California State Board of Education by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"The people have a right to know the proven reserves of, say, oil and natural gas, and to understand the basic financing and the use of profits," he added.

Until later, remember neighbors come in all colors. Be a good neighbor. Peace!

— FARM, DAIRY AND RANCH NEWS —

Dirt, Squirt & Quirt

Windy weather, with temperatures climbing into the 80's the latter part of the week, has certainly not improved already dry soil conditions in Midland County, according to Charles Green, Midland County agent.

Livestock producers in Midland County have a definite interest in the 1974 Texas Brucellosis Eradication Program, which officially began Jan. 15. Texas became "modified-certified" in August 1973 which meant that less than five per cent of the cattle herds and less than one per cent of the cattle were infected. The new plan will make Texas a brucellosis - free state. Brucellosis, commonly called Bang's, is a costly, contagious disease of livestock that may also affect human beings. The disease in humans is known as undulant fever. Although it may attack most farm animals, it is more common in cattle, swine and goats. Herds with brucellosis may produce 20 per cent less milk and 40 per cent fewer calves. The new program is designed to locate the infection, contain it and assist the owner of infected animals to elminiate the disease.

All cattle, except steers, spayed heifers and vaccinated animals under two years old, must be tested within 30 days of any change of ownership. A relatively simple "card" test has been developed that gives quick results — an improvement over the old system of sending blood samples to a laboratory. The cost of this initial test by a practicing veterinarian must be paid by the cattleman.

If a brucellosis reactor is found at a sales yard or slaughterhouse, federal or state personnel trace the animal back to its herd of origin by means of registered back tags or ear tags that many sale facilities are routinely putting on consigned animals. Ear tags are required for interstate shipment of most cattle.

Other animals in consignment where the reactor was found can be handled any of three ways — sold immediately for slaughter, sent to a quarantined feedlot or returned to the ranch for quarantine. All members of the herd of origin are considered exposed to the disease and must be tested at 30 and 120 days after the first reactor is found. Government agencies conduct these additional tests and pay the direct costs.

All reactor animals must be branded with a "B" on the jaw and sold immediately for slaughter. Meat from these animals is not tainted.

Final clearance on a state basis can be granted when no more than one per cent of the herds in any one county and not more than two per cent of the cattle in that county are confirmed reactors during an 18-month testing period.

A special gardening meeting, with emphasis on vegetable production, or "Grow Your Own Groceries", will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Planetarium, 1705 W. Missouri St. An evening meeting was scheduled to enable working persons to attend. Topics such as soil improvement and preparation, selection of varieties, planting guides, insect and disease management and irrigation will be covered in a two-hour meeting to be conducted by Dr. William Peavy, area extension horticulturist from Fort Stockton. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Revenue Sharing Chief Claims Almost Half Of Funds Sent States Unspent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The director of the Office of Revenue Sharing says less than half of the funds sent to state and local governments were spent during the opening months of the program.

"We were surprised more of the funds distributed had not been spent," said director Graham W. Watt. He said many communities apparently were waiting for a new fiscal year to start.

The Office of Revenue Sharing said in a report that about $2.8 billion, less than 43 per cent, was spent out of $6.6 billion in funds distributed for the 18-month period ending last June 30.

Of the funds that were spent, it said, state and local governments spent 24 per cent for education, 23 per cent for public safety and 15 per cent for public transportation.

A total of 68 per cent of the funds were spent to cover current expenses, such as teachers' salaries, and the remainder for capital improvements, such as new schools.

Watt said in an interview that because of a delay in approving the five-year, $30-billion revenue-sharing program, payments for 1972 were not made until the end of the year, which meant that recipient governments received 18-months worth of payments in about six months.

"We are sure that a number of states and local governments decided to hold their funds until the start of the next fiscal year," beginning last July 1, Watts said.

He noted that governments have two years to spend the money after it is received.

The revenue-sharing program was started in 1972 as part of President Nixon's New Federalism program, and is funded through 1976. Payments are made every three months to about 39,000 local governments, including Indian tribes and Alaskan villages.

States may spend the money for any legal use of its own funds, while local governments may use it for any capital expenditure, or to meet certain operating and maintenance costs.

The report stated that 45 per cent of all government units said the revenue sharing funds enabled them to reduce taxes, keep from raising them, or not raise them as much as they otherwise would have.

States in the Northeast spent the largest portion of funds for current expenses, such as public salaries, while Western states spent more on capital outlays than other regions.

Capital expenditures would include construction of public facilities, such as schools and roads.

Mexicans Attack Soldiers Burning Tons Of Marijuana

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — Soldiers burning 3½ tons of marijuana in a remote mountainous region of northern Mexico were attacked by an estimated 25 drug traffickers, Mexican authorities said Saturday.

One of the attackers was killed, one was captured although the others escaped following a shootout with the soldiers, the attorney general's office said. The government speculated the incident was an attempt to recover the marijuana.

The soldiers, conducting a search and destroy anti-drug mission in the Sierra Madre Mountains of Chihuahua state about 300 miles south of the U.S. border, found the marijuana hidden in bushes, authorities reported, and began burning the weed where it was found outside the hamlet of La Laguna.

Governors To Get Chance To Bring Gripes About Fuel Directly To Simon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's governors get their chance this week to bring their complaints about fuel shortages directly to President Nixon's energy chief, William E. Simon.

Most of the 50 state governors are expected to be on hand Thursday morning for a three-hour session with Simon that will include a wide-open, question-and-answer period.

The energy situation and the related question of the nation's economic state are expected to dominate the midwinter meeting of the National Governors Conference.

Politics is never far away when governors meet, especially since 35 states will hold gubernatorial elections this November.

Worried Republicans will watch Tuesday's special congressional election in Cincinnati for further evidence of the Watergate impact and are likely to discuss their political problems when they hold a separate meeting Friday.

Democrats plan to meet at a breakfast Thursday to talk about a possible meeting this spring, before the regular National Governors Conference in Seattle June 2-5.

Besides the sessions Wednesday and Thursday mornings on the economy and energy, many governors have meetings scheduled with key administration and congressional figures on matters affecting their states.

"We're going to be looking at bread-and-butter issues," Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky said in an interview. Ford chairs the Democratic Governors Caucus, which includes 32 of the 50 state executives.

In the session with Simon, Ford said, "one of the things we're going to ask for is a voice." He added that "it has been very hard to get information" on fuel allotments from the Federal Energy Office.

Another Democrat, Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, said the energy crisis has created problems for his state's farmers and its tourist industry, even though gasoline for cars has been generally available.

The most difficult problem, he added, is that "from day to day the facts change."

Anderson said he thinks "Simon has done a very fine job playing a bad hand."

Counselor To Nixon Says She Probably Wouldn't Want President Campaigning For Her This Year

HOUSTON (AP) — Anne Armstrong, counselor to President Nixon, said here Saturday she would probably not want the President campaigning for her if she were running for office this year.

But Mrs. Armstrong said she would welcome Nixon's help if she were a candidate in some areas of Texas.

"Candidly, in most areas of the country, I would not. But I draw a distinction here. Whereas most candidates running for office now would not want the President to campaign for them because he is personally low in the polls, the issues that won for him overwhelmingly last fall are still extremely popular."

She said those issues were peace, ending the draft, the turnaround on crime, a tougher stance against permissiveness and returning government to the people.

"I'm not a bit bearish, I'm hopeful for the party prospects for the general election. I remember back to 1964 when the Republican party was almost buried alive and people thought the Goldwater defeat meant the end of the party," she said.

Mrs. Armstrong, chatting with reporters after speaking to the Santa Gertrudis Breeder's Association meeting here, refused to comment on the indictments of seven former Nixon aides Friday.

"I'm glad that finally the judicial process—the proper place to decide this thing—has taken a step forward. And again I emphasize that indictments are not convictions and for the American people to withhold judgment until these people are either cleared or convicted," she said.

Mrs. Armstrong, whose husband is a large rancher in Texas, earlier told the breeder's association, which is meeting in conjunction with the Houston Livestock Show here, that President Nixon's freeze on beef prices last year was a political necessity.

"The political realities were such that had we not given in to a certain amount of controls, I think the outcome would have been a lot worse for a lot longer," she said of the freeze.

Mrs. Armstrong said the cattle industry must do a better job of telling its story to the general public.

"Because if we don't," she said, "let me tell you that the cattle industry will continue to run neck-and-neck with the oil industry as the number one black hat of the American economy," she said.

U.S. Soldier Takes Tank On Joyride

BERLIN (AP) — A young American soldier drove a 50-ton U.S. Army tank on a joyride through West Berlin streets Saturday, caroming off one Communist border barrier and winding up in front of a superhighway checkpoint manned by Russian soldiers.

The GI driver and the tank were quickly returned to U.S. custody with prompt agreement from the Russians posted at the checkpoint to control Allied military traffic into West Berlin. The checkpoint is about a mile inside East German territory.

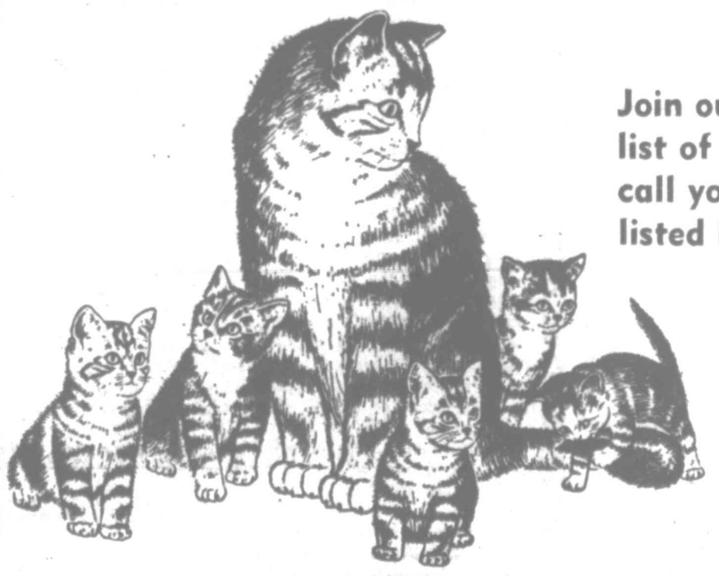

There were no reported injuries and the Army said damage along the way was minor. A U.S. spokesman added that the driver gave up to his company commander after the latter followed him to the Russian checkpoint along with military police who took the GI into custody.

A photographic exhibit noteworthy as a special kind of social documentary rather than for mere entertainment has gone on view at the Museum of the Southwest.

During the years 1908 to 1921, Hine traveled up and down the Eastern seaboard and as far west as Oklahoma to photograph children deprived of the rights and joys of childhood and instead laboring long and hard in manufacturing, mining, street vending, agriculture and fisheries.

Hine produced a staggering visual record of the labor of children, and his pictures played an incalculably vital role in arousing the public and creating new legislation which did much to protect children from exploitation.

The photographic display is on loan from the Smithsonian Institution and is being circulated throughout the U.S. by the institution's traveling exhibition service. Docents of the Junior League of Midland Inc., will provide guided tours of the show beginning March 7.

Running concurrently with the "Children in Bondage" exhibition is the annual Student Art Festival, showcasing the artistic output of students in Midland's public and private schools.

The first segment of the festival displays art works by students in the elementary grades. This display will continue through March 15, to be followed by an exhibit of art works created by junior and senior high school students in the city.

The art festival is under joint sponsorship of the Museum of the Southwest, Midland's City Council of the P-TA, the Junior League and the Midland Independent School District.

The museum's Turner Memorial Gallery, 1705 W. Missouri St., will be open to the public between 2 and 5 p.m. today. Visiting hours Monday through Saturday are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Admission is free at all times.

Piano Students Selected

Midland students of piano, who will be on two teams performing on a special program to be offered by Student Affiliates at the annual convention of the Texas Music Teachers Association, were recently selected. The convention will be held in June at Amarillo.

Student Affiliates is a project of the TMTA designed to provide students with a wider musical experience than is ordinarily afforded in private keyboard study. The program gives recognition for achievement in various phases of musical education and activity.

Fifth and sixth grade students making up one Midland team are Jayle Ann Crawford, Brent Burchard, Jannifer Crawford, Lane Fletcher, Mark Hoover, Stephanie Lucas, Brent Sanders, Kimberly Sherman, Sheri Wells and Tracy Williams, with Kenda Carley and Patricia Moreland as alternates.

A seventh and eighth grade team includes Kimberly Culvahouse, Kayla Fletcher, Shawna Henry, Suzanne Levy, Jana Minihan, Swenna Reed, Lanie Robb, Diana Scott, Caren Sharp and Wade Wells. Alternates are Cheryl Erxleben, Tonya Patterson, Alesa McCright, Diana Sanders and Patty McBride.

The young people are keyboard students variously of Mrs. J. C. Finley, Mrs. C. H. Jasper, Mrs. W. H. Maitland, Mrs. Wayne Matthews, Mrs. Tom Minihan, Mrs. Loyd Sanders and Mrs. Hermann D. Williams.

Laskey To Play At Pancake Jamboree

Tim Laskey of Dallas, one of the Southwest's most popular young organists, will be among a number of top entertainers performing at the Downtown Lions Club's 18th annual Pancake Jamboree, scheduled March 16 in the Dellwood Plaza Mall. Serving hours will be from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Laskey's appearance here is made possible through the courtesy of The Wurlitzer Co. of DeKalb, Ill., and the Shaddix Music Co. of Midland. An electric organ and a piano for the Jamboree will be furnished by Bill Westbrook, owner of the Shaddix firm.

Musical entertainment will be presented throughout the day-long Jamboree, Paul Dively, entertainment chairman, said. A complete list of entertainers will be released prior to the big event, which annually attracts upwards of 8,000 pancake-eaters.

Laskey will perform from 10 to 10:30 a.m., and from 2:30 to 3 p.m.

Tickets now are on sale by the approximately 300 members of the Lions Club, with advance sales to date reportedly being ahead of this time last year.

Laskey, who has performed at the Canadian Exhibition, the largest annual fair in the world, also has performed at other fairs, in hotels and restaurants over the nation. He was for three years the official organist for roller skating tournaments on the West Coast. A native California, he studied music at the University of California in Santa Cruz and Berkley. He will be presented in concert at Big Spring following his appearances here.

Competition Winners Return To Play With Orchestra

Four outstanding young musicians — three instrumentalists and a vocalist — returned to Midland this weekend to claim the honors and rewards due them as top winners in the 12th annual National Young Artist Competition.

The NYAC was held here in late January under sponsorship of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale.

The four were named performing winners in the competition and will be featured as solo artists in the Midland-Odessa Symphony's pair of season subscription concerts this week. The concerts are scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday in Odessa's Bonham Junior High auditorium, and 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Lee High School auditorium here.

Because the young artist concerts are always among the most popular programs of the symphony season with Midland and Odessa audiences, the concerts will be open not only to season subscribers but to the general public as well. Single admission tickets will be for sale at each auditorium before concert time, priced at $4 for adults and $1 for students.

Candace Bawcombe

The four young musicians, who arrived here Saturday or early today for their rehearsals with the symphony orchestra this afternoon, are pianist Candace Bawcombe of Cleburne, coloratura soprano Melanie Harcrowe of Houston, violinist William Fitzpatrick of Nashville, Tenn., and violinist Andres Cardenes of Culver City, Calif.

Miss Bawcombe and Cardenes are the performing winners in the secondary schools division of the NYAC, and Mrs. Harcrowe and Fitzpatrick are the top winners in the college-university division of the contest.

William Fitzpatrick

Miss Bawcombe, 17, attends Cleburne High School and studies privately with Mme. Lili Kraus, acclaimed concert artist and piano pedagogue at TCU Fort Worth. She will be heard in performances of the Weber "Konzertstuck" in the upcoming concerts.

Cardenes, 16, attends the Interlochen Arts Academy at Interlochen, Mich. In his Midland-Odessa appearances, he will be heard with the orchestra in performances of Tchaikowsky's Violin Concerto in D major.

Fitzpatrick, 24, is in his second year at the prestigious Juilliard School in New York City, where his extraordinary talent has brought him a full scholarship for study. Fitzpatrick has selected the Violin Concerto No. 2 of Bela Bartok for his dual performances with the Midland-Odessa Symphony.

Melanie Harcrowe

Mrs. Harcrowe, also 24, is a graduate student at Sam Houston State University, Huntsville, where she is a voice student of Dr. Walter Foster, chairman of the vocal department in the SHSU School of Music.

The young vocalist has chosen an aria, "O Luce di Quest Anima," from the Donizetti opera, "Linda di Chamonix," along with "Pippa's Song" by contemporary American composer Ned Rorem, for the Monday and Tuesday concerts.

In addition to the featured presentations by the visiting artists, the orchestra will be heard in the "Tannhauser" overture of Richard Wagner and in Sibelius' beloved "Finlandia" suite. The dual concerts will be conducted by symphony music director Robert Kreis.

Local Cast Awaits Arrival Of Guest Star Deana Martin

When actress Deana Martin, daughter of entertainer Dean Martin, arrives in Midland Thursday to begin rehearsals for her starring role in "A Shot In The Dark" at Midland Community Theatre, she'll have some catching up to do.

The seven other members of the cast are already well into their roles in the adult comedy.

But Miss Martin is a pro and no one anticipates that she'll be anything less than polished and perfect in her part by the time opening night rolls around March 15!

The talented young actress (also a singer and dancer) will come to Midland from St. Petersburg, Fla., where she is currently concluding an acting engagement in Neil Simon's "The Star Spangled Girl" at a dinner theater.

Joining Miss Martin in supporting roles in the upcoming production here are a number of Community Theatre stalwarts, including Charles Dixon, Gloria Stephenson, Al Beatty, Martha Kent, John Chain, Bill Seward and Jim Walker. They have been in rehearsal at Theatre Centre for the last several weeks, polishing their respective characterizations in order to meld them with the guest star's portrayal of Josefa into a perfect and professional whole.

MCT director Art Cole is staging and directing "A Shot In The Dark," a saucy comedy adapted for the American stage by Harry Kurnitz from a French play, "L'Idiote."

The comedy was an instant success when it opened in New York a number of years ago, with Julie Harris as Josefa and Walter Matthau and William Shatner as her co-stars.

The stage work concerns a parlor maid (Josefa) in an upper-class French household, who is accused of murdering her lover, the chauffeur in the household. The play's action is centered around the investigation of the case by an idealistic young magistrate — and the unexpected truths which come to light in the process.

Following its March 15 opening, the camedy will have performances on March 16, 17, 18, 20, 21, 22, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30. Already, many of the weekend performances are virtually sold out, and MCT is urging theater-goers to make reservations for weeknight performances where possible, in order to obtain the best seating still available.

Mail-order requests for seat reservations are now being filled. The Theatre Centre box office will open to MCT members Thursday morning, and to non-members on Monday, March 11.

THE GANG'S ALL HERE — That is, all except Deana Martin, guest star in Midland Community Theatre's upcoming production, "A Shot In The Dark," and she'll be here soon! Meanwhile, other cast members of the adult comedy are deep in rehearsals in preparation for the actress' arrival on the scene late this week. Taking time out here to pose with an empty chair signifying Miss Martin's central role in the play are Gloria Stephenson, seated left, and Martha Kent, right. Standing, from the left, are John Chain, Charles Dixon, Al Beatty, Jim Walker and Bill Seward.

ON MARCH 30—

Civic Ballet Guild Preparing For Gala

"Civic Ballet Week" here is still almost two weeks away, but members of the Midland Ballet Guild and dancers of the Permian Civic Ballet already are busy with their campaign to promote ticket sales to the "Spring Gala" dance concert scheduled March 30.

During Civic Ballet Week March 14-18, the guild will be asking Midland residents to "put a feather in their hats" by purchasing tickets to the March 30 dance program — and by contributing to the Permian Civic Ballet maintenance fund.

As Ballet Guild members point out, no performing arts group can sustain itself on income from ticket sales alone; financial support in the form of contributions from interested local citizens must also be obtained.

Permian Civic Ballet is a valuable and viable component in the total fine arts picture in the city and area, they say, and financial assistance is necessary in order for the organization to move forward.

Civic Ballet's "Spring Gala" will have its first presentation in Odessa on March 29, followed by the presentation in Lee High School here on March 30. The dual programs will offer Act II of the classic "Swan Lake," plus the Act I pas de deux of that dance work. In addition, the Permian dancers will again present the humorous "Graduation Ball" from company repertoire, and guest artists Susana Benavides and William Martin-Viscount will be seen in repeat performances of "Spring Waters" which they presented with great success on last year's Spring Gala concerts.

Persons wishing to send contributions to the ballet maintenance fund in advance of Civic Ballet Week may mail checks to Midland Ballet Guild in care of Permian Civic Ballet Association, P.O. Box 5261, Midland 79701.

'Oklahoma!' Held Over For Extra Shows At Globe

The musical, orginally scheduled to close March 9, will have extra performances on March 15 and 16 to accommodate ticket demand on the part of Permian Basin theater-goers.

"Oklahoma!" is the Globe Theater's 1974 season-opening production. The season also will offer a double bill of short plays in May; the annual Summer Shakespeare Festival (presenting two Shakespearean dramas and a Moliere comdey) next June through August; the premiere production of a new play next September, and a mystery thriller in December.

Globe season tickets! priced at $22 for family groups and $12 for single adults, are on sale daily at the Globe box office, 2308 Shakespeare Road. Seat reservations for the performances of "Oklahoma!," Friday and Saturday nights this week, and for the final performances on March 15 and 16, may be made by telephoning the theater at 332-4031.

Film Showings On Modern Painting End This Week

The third and final pair of presentations in the film series, "Pioneers of Modern Painting," will be offered here this week.

The screenings are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Lee High School cafeteria, and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri St. The public is welcome to attend either showing free of charge.

"Pioneers of Modern Painting" is being presented as a community service by Midland College and the Midland Arts Council.

The six-part series, written and narrated by Lord Kenneth Clark, deals with six painters of the late 19th and early 20th centuries whom Sir Kenneth considers to be "the pioneers of what we still call 'modern painting.'" The six are Edouard Manet, Paul Cezanne, Georges Seurat, Claude Monet, Henri Rousseau and Edvard Munch.

Gallery I Marks Second Birthday

Gallery I will mark its second birthday and the start of its third year with an open house this afternoon.

Featured at the open house, to which the public is invited, will be paintings by a group of Texas and Southwestern artists, including A. D. Greer, Bob Grigsby, Rose Kelly, Don Warren, Larry Prellop, Jim Shafer and Aldo Giordani. The art collection, brought here by Bob Crutchfield of Austin, includes landscapes, seascapes, still lifes and portraiture.

Today's open house is planned for noon to 6 p.m. The exhibition will continue through mid-March, said Gallery I co-owners Ann Youngblood and Alice Moxey. Hours each weekday are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and other times by appointments. The gallery is in the Gulf Building in Downtown Midland.

Four Cheetah Cubs Born In Texas Park

GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex. (AP) — Lion Country Safari, an African wildlife park here, reported Saturday that J.J., a cheetah, gave birth to four cubs Friday.

The breed is endangered in Africa and few will breed in captivity. A spokesman for the park estimated the cubs are worth $10,000 each.

The cheetah is a handsome, streamlined cat called the fastest animal in the world for short distances—about 65 miles per hour.

Park zoological director Bill McGrath said the births are very rare. Two litters have been born at Lion Country-Georgia, an affiliate of the Texas park.

Brazoria Teacher Chosen As Texas Mother Of Year

WEST COLUMBIA, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Melvin B. Barrow of Brazoria has been named the 1974 Mother of the State of Texas by the American Mothers Committee, local officials announced.

Special ceremonies are scheduled March 11 in her honor with Gov. and Mrs. Dolph Briscoe heading the guest list.

Mrs. Barrow has been a public school teacher with the Columbia Brazoria School System for 33 years and prior to that taught at Damon.

Odessan Arrested In Burglary Case

John Briones, 30, of Odessa was arrested there Friday in connection with a Midland warrant charging him with burglary of a motor vehicle.

He is accused of breaking into a car owned by Flora Traylor of 4821 Princeton St. while it was parked on the Skaggs Albertson parking lot Feb. 9 and taking her purse, Sgt. Ronnie Bryant said.

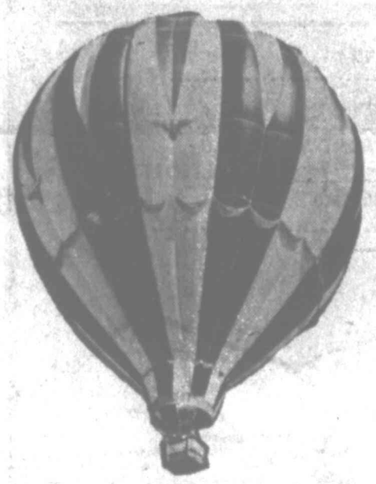

Mrs. Traylor had taken her wallet into the store with her, leaving the purse behind, so no money or credit cards were taken.

A $2,500 bond was set at Odessa shortly after Briones was arrested but none had been set here by late Saturday, authorities said.

Runnels Gets Wildcat Site

Hanson Oil Co., Inc., operating out of Abilene, has filed an application to drill No. 1 R. Heinze, a 4,700-foot wildcat in extreme southeast Runnels County, ⅝ mile southeast of marginal production in the current three-well Urban-Miles (Capps) field producing at 4,250 feet.

It is also ½ mile east and very slightly north of a scheduled 4,700-foot wildcat.

Outpost Staked In Terrell Area

No. 1-A-25 Allison has been scheduled as a ½-mile west outpost to the two-well Allison (detrital) gas field of Terrell County. Seeo Production Co., Midland, is the operator, and it has a projected depth of 9,600 feet.

Drillsite is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 25, block B2, CCSD&RGNG survey, four miles south of Sheffield.

Eddy Project Recovers Gas

Texas International Petroleum Corp., operating from Midland, was preparing to pull tool on a drillstem test at its No. 1 Lowe-Federal, a 1⅝-mile north outpost in the Golden Lane field of Eddy County, N.M.

The three-hour and 35-minute test taken in the Morrow zone from 12,112-12,336 feet had gas to the surface in four-minutes at the rate of 3.4 million cubic feet per day, through a ¼-inch choke. Recovery was 1,000 feet of water cushion.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 780 feet from east lines of section 31-20s-30e, 13 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Ard Testing At Eddy Prospect

Julian Ard of Midland ran a 10-hour flow test through Morrow perforations at No. 1 Hackberry Unit, Eddy County prospect, 12 miles southeast of Loco Hills.

The test was through a 13-64-inch choke and perforations at 11,993-12,003 feet. It gauged a gas volume of 750,000 cubic feet per day, and 7.39 barrels of distillate.

On an earlier test, it flowed 467,000 cubic feet of gas and an estimated six to 10 barrels of condensate, through a 26-64-inch choke and the same perforations, then turned to a ¾-inch choke, flowing gas at the daily rate of 796,000 cubic feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 25-19s-30e, five miles east of the HG (Morrow) field.

Superior Testing At Ward Venture

The Superior Oil Co. is shut in for bottom hole pressure test at No. 1 Lee Unit, a Mississippian wildcat, in Ward County, after taking a flow test through perforations at 16,774-16,784 feet.

It flowed 400,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through the above perforations. Time and choke size were not reported.

Originally completed in August, 1972, as in the Barstow (Fusselman) gas field, it produced 46.146 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 17,673-17,702 feet.

It was drilled to 17,900 feet and plugged back to 16,870 feet.

Test site is 1,320 feet from

ARCO Announces Allocation Fractions For Gas, Distillates

LOS ANGELES — Atlantic Richfield Co. has announced that allocation fractions for March will be 81 per cent for gasoline and 100 per cent for distillates nationwide, in accordance with Federal Energy Office programs.

A spokesman said the company was able to maintain its gasoline fraction above 80 per cent through the purchase of additional high cost foreign crude oil and gasoline, and by switching its domestic refining programs in early February to yield maximum gasoline.

The 81 per cent fraction, computed in accordance with FEO formulas, is approximately equal to 90 per cent of actual sales for the corresponding month of 1972, the spokesman said. The difference represents provisions in FEO regulations which require that full current needs of agricultural users be satisfied, that an emergency state "set aside" be established, and that base volumes for certain essential public services should be their current requirements, he added.

The spokesman noted that the distillate allocation fraction was increased over previous levels as a result of efforts during prior months to maximize distillate production, unusually warm weather and effective conservation efforts by the public.

Mid-Continent Picks Walker As President

Walker holds a degree from the University of Kansas, and worked as an engineer for Phillips Petroleum Co. and J. P. "Bum" Gibbins Inc. in Midland. He joined Loffland Brothers Co. here in 1952.

He was promoted to assistant to the vice president for contracts in Tulsa in 1955 and became manager of contracting in 1957, and northern division manager at Casper, Wyo., in 1959. He returned to Tulsa in 1965 as vice president and general manager of domestic divisions for Loffland, resigning that post to join Mid-Continent.

He is a member of American Association of Drilling Contractors and has served as chairman of several American Petroleum Institute committees.

Exxon Chairman Says Tight Energy Situation To Hang On For Years To Come

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The chairman of Exxon Co. USA says the tight energy situation will be with the nation for years to come.

M. A. Wright agrees with others the situation will likely result in some fundamental changes in lifestyles and business practices.

"The United States must begin now to prepare for an orderly transition to a new energy age," he says.

Wright adds there must be a political and economic environment that will encourage energy conservation and speed the development of conventional and non-conventional energy sources.

"Government and the business community must lead the way toward development of an energy conservation ethic on a par with some of the other major sociological movements of our times, including environmental quality and equality for minorities," he says.

Wright believes the United States, in the future, must strive to increase the Gross National Product through the use of less but more costly energy.

"The investment to provide a new barrel of oil, or its energy equivalent, will be considerably higher than in the past," he says.

"As a result, the higher cost of energy will become one of the principal economic driving forces. Energy cost will become a more significant factor in many facets of daily life and will merit a higher priority in decision making both by the business community and by the consumer. An incentive will thus be created to use less energy and to use it wisely."

Wright says many of the short-term energy conservation measures adopted to help the nation through the winter fuel shortfall may well become accepted practice over the long term.

"In other words, we may never go back to where we were before energy became scarce and more costly," he says.

"The need for long-term conservation of energy, and the changed consumer attitudes anticipated because of this, indicate each industry should examine the ways in which energy use can be reduced and energy-using products redesigned so as to perform more efficiently."

Wright says if there were no limitation on supply the world's demand for energy would likely double by 1985.

"Although the United States will continue to be the largest energy-consuming country, European demand is growing so fast that by 1985 it will be approaching that of this country," he says.

Wright says the only known petroleum sources capable of even approaching the world's needs are in the Middle East and North Africa.

"If Middle East production were to meet the demand that we anticipate, it would have to triple by 1985, from 18 million barrels a day prior to the embargoes to 50 million barrels a day," he says.

After the end of the embargoes, he adds, the Middle East countries may not find it to their own economic interests, must less their political interests, to allow their resources to be consumed at a level that would satisfy world demand.

"Their oil is a finite resource and they want to develop it at a rate that allows them to invest their oil income wisely," he says.

"The implication of all this is clear: world energy consumption, including that in the United States, must be moderated."

Midland Division Wins Driving Award

Employes in the six districts of the Midland division of Halliburton Services, worldwide oil field service organization, were honored last week for helping the division win the Halliburton Safe Driving Award in 1973, the second consecutive year for the division.

The division serves the petroleum industry in the Permian Basin and Four Corners region. Personnel at the 11 locations in the division drove 520 trucks, pickups and passenger cars more than 13½ million miles last year to establish a frequency rate of less than three vehicle accidents per million miles driven.

Dinners honoring district employes were held last week in Odessa, Rankin, Monahans and Brownfield.

Dinners will be held this week in New Mexico at Lovington, Monday; Eunice, Tuesday; Artesia, Wednesday, and Farmington, Thursday.

Employes at the Sonora camp will attend the Rankin dinner; at Andrews, the Odessa dinner, and Cortez, Colo., employes will attend the Farmington dinner.

Attending the dinners from Midland are Gayle M. Pruett, division manager; Burton W. Aulick, regional vice president; Cecil E. Lohn, assistant division manager, J. T. Blackwell, regional safety supervisor.

The Midland division ranked first in the accident frequency rate records among Halliburton's 11 domestic field divisions that serve the petroleum industry in more than 40 states from coast to coast and in Alaska. Halliburton Services is a division of Halliburton Co.

Houston Oilman Has Filed Suit Against Union, Pure

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston oilman has filed a suit against Union Oil Co. of California and Pure Oil Middle East Inc., claiming he has been defrauded of about $100 million in oil profits.

John W. Mecom alleged in the suit filed Friday that the companies have prevented him from receiving profits in a Mideast oil exploration venture.

The suit said the venture began in 1962 when Mecom arranged a partnership with Pure Oil for oil exporation in the Middle East. In 1965, Pure merged with Union Oil, thereby giving Union 50 per cent interest in the Mecom venture, the petition said.

Mecom alleged in his suit that Union has not reported to him the profits from the oil production since the merger.

He said he did not know the value of the oil concessions because of the alleged action by Union Oil but he believes it approaches $100 million.

Joseph D. Jamail, attorney for Mecom, said the suit requests a complete audit and financial settlement of past profits between Mecom and the defendants.

Representatives of the defendants were not available for comment.

HOUSTON — Mrs. Helen Williamson, formerly of Midland, has been promoted to senior secretary for accounting-engineering-sales in Houston, for Drilco division of Smith International Inc.

FEO Official Due At Odessa Meeting

ODESSA — Jack Alexander, director of the operations division of the Federal Energy Office, Dallas, will present a briefing on petroleum allocations at 2 p.m. Thursday in the ballroom of the Inn of the Golden West here.

Well servicing contractors, drilling contractors, wholesale purchasers, jobbers and service station operators are urged to attend the meeting.

Monsanto To Sell Subsidiaries' Stock

CALGARY — Hudbay Exploration Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Hudson Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., has agreed to acquire from Monsanto Co. all of the outstanding stock of Monsanto's two wholly-owned subsidiaries, Monoil Netherlands Inc. and Monsanto Oil Co. of Germany Inc., which together own an undivided 11 2-3 per cent interest in petroleum licenses issued or to be issued covering 13 blocks in the Netherlands and German North Sea area.

These licenses cover approximately 1.2 million acres. A well is currently drilling within the licensed area and another well is being drilled on a location to the north offsetting the licensed area.

WASHINGTON OIL—

'Solutions' Not Adding To Supplies

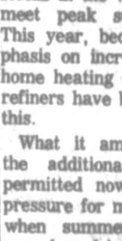

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The trouble with most of the "solutions" being proposed to end the energy crisis is they do not add a gallon of fuel to available supplies.

For example, there is no change in supply simply because the President of the United States says at a press conference that the energy crisis is over, although "problems" remain.

Nor do supply problems evaporate immediately upon a pronouncement by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., that "the world is awash with oil; we're not getting it but everyone else is."

The most pressing immediate problem — gasoline supply — is not ended when the federal government, under pressure from acutely short areas, grants additional gasoline to one region and another. All this means is that either the supply is being taken away from someone else, creating the possibility of shortages there, or that the companies are being forced to dip deeper into their gasoline stocks.

La Motte

Reducing gasoline stocks at this time of year, even before the motoring season really gets under way, sets the stage for a severe pinch when summer arrives. Traditionally, oil companies build up their gasoline stocks in the winter in order to meet peak summer demand. This year, because of the emphasis on increasing outputs of home heating oil, jet fuel, etc., refiners have been unable to do this.

What it amounts to is that the additional driving being permitted now because of the pressure for more gasoline will, when summer arrives, mean even less driving.

The man with the most supply-demand figures at his finger tips, Energy Czar William E. Simon, anticipates a spring and summer gasoline shortage of between 15 and 20 per cent, and this may be on the conservative side. That doesn't sound too bad, but when you consider that the driving of many vehicles, such as taxicabs, delivery cars and the like can hardly be restricted, the result will be that the "average" driver's supply is likely to be considerably less than 20 per cent short.

Finally, those who are ad-

Santa Fe Pipelines Combines Control

CHICAGO — Santa Fe Pipelines System has consolidated supervisory control equipment for the 735-mile Chaparral System and 1,880-mile Gulf Central System at its headquarters in Tulsa, according to Raymond J. Hunt, president.

Utilizing a computer-controlled and a computer-assisted supervisory control system, product movement coordinators in Tulsa can remotely open and close valves, start or stop pumps, control the rate of flows, read tank levels, temperature and gravity, or shut down the operation.

vocating gasoline rationing are likely to find that this isn't a very satisfactory answer, either. The government can print rationing stamps but it cannot refine gasoline.

Obviously, the issuance of rationing stamps does not increase supply. If the government should issue too many stamps, service stations will run short just as they are doing in some areas now. If not enough tickets are issued, then motorists could be stranded even though the local service station had ample supply.

President Nixon and others have stressed the need to increase supply if rationing is to be avoided and if prices are going to be kept within tolerable bounds. The trouble is, little has been done to date to bolster supply.

The congressional hangup over petroleum prices is another example of wasted effort, at least as far as increasing supply is concerned. In fact, a rollback to unrealistic levels will make shortages worse because producers and others will make less effort to boost supply.

Nevertheless, it is also unrealistic to blame Washington for all of today's supply problems, just as it would be unrealistic to put all the blame on the oil industry.

The fact is that the public itself has been more concerned over possible excessive profits by the industry than over means of boosting supply. And, as long lines form at service stations, the pressure for rationing builds even though that will not mean more gasoline for motorists as a whole.

In other words, the general public has not awakened to the need for an all-out effort to stimulate domestic production. When it does, that message will register in Washington and some action will result.

In recent years the public grew concerned over increasing pollution and as a result the government responded with measures aimed at reducing that pollution.

If, in the present setting, the public decides that some environmental improvements may have to be delayed while emphasis is shifted to energy supply development, there will be a quick about-face on the part of many officials in Washington.

Homer W. Barnett

Barnett Honored For Long Service

Homer W. Barnett of Midland has observed his 40-year service anniversary with Exxon Co.-USA. He is assigned as bottomhole pressure operator in the Andrews district of the Mid-continent Production division.

A native of McCamey, he worked briefly for Exxon Pipeline Co. in the early 1930s. He then joined Exxon as a roustabout at Penwell and during his tenure he has worked in the Gulf Coast and North Texas areas, in addition to West Texas assignments. He transferred to the Andrews district in 1964.

Dowdle Gasser Shows Indications

Dowdle Oil Corp. of Midland, independent oil and gas producer, has an indicated natural gas discovery well in Okfuskee County, Okla., Nash J. Dowdle, president has announced.

The exploratory well, the No. 1 Palmer Land Co., approximately 20 miles west of Okmulgee, showed commercial oil and gas indications on a drillstem test between 2,813 feet and 2,828 feet. The well flowed from the Dutcher formation of the Pennsylvanian at daily rates between 400,000 and 900,000 cubic feet of gas plus 15 feet of free 30-gravity oil. Total depth of the well is 3,101 feet.

Dowdle Oil is the operator of the well and owns a 50 per cent working interest in the well and in approximately 520 acres around the well. The area price of gas is 60 cents per MCF.

California Bar Suspends Belli

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Flamboyant trial lawyer Melvin M. Belli has been suspended for 30 days from the practice of law in California.

The California Supreme Court Friday ruled six to one that Belli violated state rules of professional conduct by soliticing business through advertising or other means.

Fuel Crisis Hits Oldest Profession

By JONNIE CLASEN

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Now the energy crisis has hit the world's oldest profession.

Nevada bordello owners say the state's thriving prostitution industry is feeling the pinch of the energy problem as gasoline and diesel fuel shortages keep customers away.

Most of the three dozen houses of legalized prostitution contacted in an Associated Press survey said business is generally down and they blame the energy shortage.

Business Down To Nothing

"Business has dropped to nothing," said the owner of Fran's Star Ranch, located about 115 miles north of Las Vegas on U.S. 95. "We've had very few trucks since the shortage."

She said gas is available for potential customers, but "they just don't know about it."

The ranch has its own airstrip for customers flying in on private planes. "We've had one plane, maybe two, since right after Christmas," said the owner, who asked that her name not be used.

Employes Quitting

Asked if she had to cut down on her employes because of the shortage, she said, "I didn't have to let them go, they left."

Another U.S. 95 brothel, the Cottontail Ranch, 165 miles north of Las Vegas, also has been affected by the gasoline shortage.

"Business is nowhere near par at night, but during the day and early evening we have a little bit of traffic," said owner Beverly Harrell, who said she depends on the highway — the main route between Reno and Las Vegas — for much of her business.

No Weekend Business

The owner of the Hacienda, a 26-year-old establishment in Elko, a northeast Nevada community of 8,000, said: "The crisis has affected weekend business, but not really daily business."

Like the owner of Fran's, the Hacienda operator said many persons stay away because they are afraid of running out of gas. She said the town has about 40 stations, but people don't realize they're open.

"We miss a lot of our truckers and haven't had more than a dozen in a month's time," said the owner of Betty's, one of seven brothels in Elko, located on Interstate 80, Nevada's main east-west route.

Pioneer Names M. D. LaGrone Vice President

AMARILLO — M. D. LaGrone has been named a senior vice president of Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

LaGrone joined Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co. as assistant secretary and assistant treasurer in 1939. He resigned that post to become vice president and treasurer of Consolidated Gas Utilities Corp. of Oklahoma City in 1957.

He joined H. Zinder and Associates in 1961, and was vice president and director of the firm until he resigned to become an independent utility consultant in 1970. As a consultant he has wide experience with utility companies throughout the U.S., Canada and Europe.

He is a member of American Gas Associagion and works with other industry organizations.

Plenty Of Vitamin A

RECEIVES SERVICE AWARD—A. D. Kloxin, left, receives 25-Year Service Award from Stanley L. Smith, district manager for Atlantic Richfield Co. here. Kloxin, district production and drilling superintendent, joined the concern as an engineer trainee in 1949 in East Texas. He came to Midland in 1972 from Roswell, N.M., where he also was district production and drilling superintendent.

Milk Cartons May Feel Energy Shortage Pinch

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP) — The latest of the endless spin-offs from the energy crisis is a budding shortage of cardboard milk cartons.

It seems the leakproof coating on the cartons is made of low density polyethelene—and that's made from oil.

Lawrence Custer, vice president of Pelican Creamery, said his box supplier cancelled deliveries after March 15 and the company had been unable to locate a new source.

Custer said other independent southern milk processors were in the same pickle.

Could they go back to glass bottles?

"We are supposed to give the glass companies at least six month's notice on an increased order, but they'd rather have a year," Custer said in an interview.

"We're trying to get the federal government to put the poly stock on a priority basis ... But we have not been successful," he added.

The problem is apparently limited to the small independent processor now, although most Southern customers of Potlatch Forest, a Midwest paper company, reportedly are affected.

Custer said he knew of problems for suppliers in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Texas.

Three Louisiana firms were cut off: Guth Dairy in Lake Charles, Vermilion Dairy in Abbeville and Pelican. However, no large dairy processing firms in the state were affected.

Suburban

Please excuse our bluntness but these 4 lovely ladies were once Fat.

Here's what they did.

Top to bottom: With Pat Walker's help Kathy Holmes lost 50 pounds and 60 inches. Carolyn Hamm is 20 pounds and 22 inches smaller. Juanita Weaver is slimmer by 15 pounds and 25 inches. Sue Barbour is now 20 pounds lighter, 29 inches trimmer and a lot happier after just a few months. They are all enjoying their new younger looks and new found energy. As a group, they are now 105 pounds and 136 inches closer to their perfect figures . . . without strenuous exercise or crash dieting.

Here's how they did it.

Like millions of other women around the world, they just got tired of failing in their attempts to lose weight and called their nearest Pat Walker's Figure Perfection Salon. They learned that they could reach their goal. They learned that the exclusive Pat Walker method could shape them, tone them, firm them and reduce them with safe, passive exercise. They learned that the half-hour treatments did not require special clothing and a treatment wouldn't even muss their hair. So they tried it . . . and just look at them now.

Yes, you can too!

You can join these and millions of other women who are enjoying a whole new outlook on life by simply calling us. If you've given up hope . . . get it back because this works. Mrs. Carter Gives Program For Trinity Towers

Mrs. Tillie Carter was the guest speaker for the February birthday party Thursday at Trinity Towers.

Members of the Auxiliary to Trinity Towers serving as hostesses were Mrs. M. J. Brenneman, Mrs. Julian Brown, Mrs. Harry Denton, Mrs. Ralph Hickman, Mrs. V. C. Maley, Mrs. Laura Self, Mrs. Allen Watts and Mrs. Ernest Sparks.

Birthday honorees introduced by Clyde Haden, administrator, were Guy Brenneman, Mrs. Louise Haas, Mrs. Maudie Newsom, Mrs. Mary Sims and Mrs. Jennie Sparks. Other residents having February birthdays but unable to attend were Mrs. Ruth Baskin, Mrs. Josephine Ligon and Mrs. Robert Umbach.

The Circle L Class of the First Presbyterian Church arranged for the birthday cake.

The speaker, a designer and executor of bug pictures, told of becoming interested in insects when she helped her son make a collection for his seventh grade class. At about the same time she was taking a course in stitchery. Seeing the beautiful colors in bugs and butterflies, she decided to combine them into a picture. Her efforts to sell the first three met with success. She took examples of her work to Neiman-Marcus, who agreed to handle her work and arranged a show which required 70 framed items. Since then she has had three other shows with 50 to 75 articles in each.

According to Mrs. Carter, the Hill Country is an excellent area for collecting insects. She finds it interesting to see what is going on at "Ground Level." Friends have helped by saving unusual specimens for her. Each picture has a clever title inscribed on a brass plate. The speaker displayed several of these.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. John R. Brenneman and son, John Dooley; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Brenneman and grandson, Andy Nance; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wynn, Mrs. Tom Hughston and Mrs. Virginia Summers.

BETROTHED — The engagement of Lynda Susan Cherry to Randolph Dean Dauley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Ingram Dauley of Grand Prairie, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard William Cherry, 2006 W. Tennessee St. The wedding is planned for 8 p.m. July 13 in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church. Miss Cherry is a second year student at The University of Texas-Austin, where her sorority is Delta Delta Delta. Her fiance, associated with Dauley Enterprises, Dallas, holds a degree in government from UT.

Candelaria Mission Topic Of Altrusa Club Meeting

The Altrusa Club of Midland met Thursday in the Plaza del Sol Restaurant for a program on the Candelaria Mission.

Mrs. John Terry discussed the "Flying Ambassadors," originally of Seminole, who every six to eight weeks make the trip into the remote regions of Southwest Texas to administer medical aid to the residents of ranches and farms along a 190-mile area either side of the Rio Grande River.

"The Flying Ambassadors" was originated by Mr. and Mrs. Shafter Bailey of Seminole with assistance from the First Baptist Churches of Seminole and Denver City. During the last few years the group has been joined by doctors in Midland and Odessa. There are medical doctors, dentists and opthomologists who volunteer their time.

Candelaria received its named from a long-abandoned candle factory there. The town is approximately 100 miles up the Rio Grande from Presidio and is connected to Presidio by a road which becomes impassable during rainy weather. The natives have hewn a small airstrip on the floor of the valley, and the doctors arrival is announced by their "buzzing" the area before landing.

A great need of the people in the area, Mrs. Terry said, is for milk and soap.

During a question and answer period, Mrs. Terry was assisted by Mrs. Herbert R. Cavenaugh, whose husband pilots his own plane when making trips to Candelaria. Mrs. Terry said some of the doctors flying in also take ministers with them to conduct church services while the medical clinics are in operation.

Mrs. Terry and Mrs. Cavenaugh were introduced by Mrs. Roy Gardner, who has been named chairman of the international relations committee for the remainder of the club year. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Elsie Ingham, Mrs. Annie Ford and Mrs. J. P. H. McMullan Jr.

Table decorations were small cans of condensed milk (which the Candelaria area residents enjoy) and bars of soap, which were presented to Mrs. Cavenaugh and Mrs. Terry. Also, several members made donations of cash and cases of condensed milk.

Mrs. W. N. Keisling presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Loleta B. Guffey, president.

A business meeting will be held by the club at 12 noon March 14 in the Plaza del Sol.

Deadline Given For Publishing Wedding Stories

Thinking about having accounts of your engagement and wedding published in The Reporter-Telegram?

If the answer is in the affirmative, brides-to-be should visit the Women's Department of the newspaper and obtain information sheets and wedding forms in order to comply with the R-T policies on wedding stories, photographs and deadlines.

One of the new policy changes requires that wedding or engagement forms must be submitted before 5 p.m. Wednesday for publication in a Sunday paper.

Another important policy to be aware of is that wedding stories submitted more than five days after the weddings will not be published.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Kim Gi Eun, a 6-year-old Korean orphan, became Kim Sue Holsapple recently when a judge declared, "The adoption is granted," but Kim didn't hear the judge's words. Neither did her step brother, 7-year-old Jin Holsapple, nor did her new parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Holsapple.

Legislative Committee is under the supervision of director Howard D. "Rocky" Ford with Harry W. Clark serving as chairman. GARDEN CITY BOY BOUNCES BACK FROM FOOTBALL INJURY—

Handicapped Youth Going To College

It was in November 1969 when Kenneth was a 16-year-old sophomore in Garden City High School and played end on the football team. In a game with Wellman High School, he rammed into a 200 pound bruiser head first.

Kenneth went down and couldn't get up again. He was motionless. His neck was broken. He was given only 30 minutes to live. He was paralyzed from the neck down.

No one seemed to listen when he cried out that his arms and legs wouldn't move, that all he could do was move his eyeballs.

"These young people cannot attend public schools because of their disabilities and related health problems," explained hospital administrator William Hisey. "Yet, they do want to develop skills that would enable them to become self-sustaining, dignified members of our society."

Two other Warm Springs students, like Kenneth, had their necks broken while playing football. Many of his classmates are guadriplegics. Quadriplegia is the paralysis of the legs and arms caused by damage to the upper spinal cord, the bundle of nerve fibers connecting the brain with the muscles, skin and internal organs.

However successful the therapy, the Warm Springs student-patients are creating outstanding records for themselves. Statistics point out that spinal injuries resulting in quadriplegia occur 20 times per million of population per year. What are the causes? A teenager doing stunts on a motorcycle, a skiing mishap, a miscalculated dive into a pool, or the most common cause, an automobile accident.

Following Kenneth's accident, after a year of therapy at Texas Rehabilitation Hospital, feeling returned and gradually movement of arms and legs was possible. While at Warm Springs Hospital he continued his sophomore year studies at the school there and then returned to Garden City where he graduated from high school two years later. Kenneth today stands 6 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds and is fast gaining control of muscular responses.

Kenneth's football jersey carried the number "28". In honoring Kenneth as an outstanding football player the school retired his number. There were only 80 students in Garden City High School and they all became involved in doing something for Kenneth following his serious football crack-up. In three days, going from house-to-house students gathered $3,000 to help their very popular schoolmate.

Many tributes and well-wishes came to Kenneth from football greats. Tom Landry, coach of the Dallas Cowboys, wrote him a warm, personal letter as did Lance Rentzel of the Cowboys and E. J. Holub of the Kansas City Chiefs.

Kenneth looks forward to being independent. . ."I am learning business skills so I can be on my own" he says.

The Junior College level classes Kenneth attends are conducted by members of the faculty of Victoria Junior College. What do they think of students like Kenneth? Ask Robert Jerry Zavesky, of Victoria College, instructor at Warm Springs. Here's what he says:

"I don't believe enough could be said about Kenneth and his classmates. They seem to live in a period of disbelief that something, such as this opportunity for education, could and has entered their lives. They prove this to me by the enthusiasm they show in their work and the pride they take in doing the best job possible.

Dear Abby

Don't Share Your Bed With Your Ex-Husband

—By Abigail van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband and I are dating again. We may get married again, but not right away. (He has to make good a few promises first.)

We have two children, ages 8 and 11, who live with me. They know their father and I have been divorced for over a year and in all that time I have conducted myself like an unmarried woman. I have dated other men, but I have never allowed any man, (including my ex-husband) to spend the night here.

My ex has asked if he could stay overnight when he takes me out. It would save him driving about 20 miles because his place of work is near my home, and he lives on the other side of town. What do you think?

DOTTY

DEAR DOTTY: It's okay — as long as you don't have a "bed shortage," too!

DEAR ABBY: I was all set to have a face-lift by a reputable plastic surgeon when he asked me if my husband knew about it. When I told him I had not discussed it with my husband because I didn't want any hassles over it, the doctor told me he wouldn't do it without my husband's approval!

Abby, it's MY face, and my money, and I am 49 years old, so why should I need my husband's approval?

FLABBERGASTED IN PHOENIX

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Your doctor probably has "survival" (for himself) in mind, and I don't blame him. You told the doctor you didn't even discuss it with your husband because you were afraid he'd object, so the doctor fears if he performs the surgery, your husband may come after him with a deadly weapon, shouting, "What have you done to my wife? I liked her face the way it was!"

DEAR ABBY: Earl and I have four wonderful children and a good marriage. Or we DID have, until a few months ago. Then a young woman (I'll call Vera) joined his organization, and started confiding her marital problems to him. (He repeats them to me.) All Vera's problems seem to be about her sex life with her husband. Earl says it's good for her to "unload" on someone.

Abby, it upsets me to have Earl tell me these things, and I am beginning to wonder why a woman should tell such intimate things to a man she hardly knows. Or do you think maybe they know each other better than Earl lets on?

Should I tell Earl I don't care to hear any more about Vera's sex life? I don't want to drive him away from me. We've always had such an honest and open relationship.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Vera should discuss her marital problems with a professional counselor, and Earl should tell her to. Unloading her problems may be good for Vera. But when Vera unloads on Earl, it's bad for your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and my fiance and I agree that we don't want any children or even young teenagers there. Would it be okay to put, "No children under 18 admitted" on the invitations?

PAT AND GLO

DEAR P AND G: No. It sounds like you're sending out invitations to an X-rated movie.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

SAFE DRIVER — Don Harless, a veteran postal employe, has been selected Safe Driver of The Month by the U.S. Postal Service here. He has an 11-year driving record without an accident.

Postage Rates May Climb Even More Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal service costs you more today than Friday, but maybe not as much as a year from now.

Basic rates went up two cents Friday midnight. First-class letters are a dime. Airmail is 13 cents and postcards are eight cents.

Rates for parcels and some classes of bulk mail went up slightly and will continue to rise for the next few years.

At a news conference Friday, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen said letter and postcard rates could continue to rise, too, if current strong economic pressures continue.

Gasoline, for example, is costing the Postal Service $38 million more this year than it expected. Each penny increase in the price of a gallon of gasoline costs the service $3.5 million, Klassen said. He noted oil companies recently announced that more increases are coming.

Armstrong Church Cancels 15 Ministers' Suspensions

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Worldwide Church of God has lifted suspensions of 15 ministers pending hearings with church leaders here.

Herbert W. Armstrong, president of the church, said Friday that the 15 and five other ministers fired earlier had been invited to participate in "open forum discussions" next Thursday.

Armstrong also announced that two high-ranking church administrators, Albert J. Portune and David L. Antion, had withdrawn resignations they handed in Wednesday after the firings.

Church spokesmen said 20 ministers originally scheduled to be fired because they were bolting the church over doctrinal disputes and taking their congregations with them, but the firing of 15 was changed to suspension because evidence against them was not as strong.

Antonio, vice president for church administration, and Portune, director of personal campaigns, had asked for reinstatement of the ministers because they had been "reacting genuinely to issues and circumstances that have been developing for a long period of time."

The fired and suspended ministers hold congregations across the nation among the church's 85,000 members.

MITCHELL-STANS CONSPIRACY CASE—

Judge Weighs Mistrial Motion

NEW YORK (AP) — The government's criminal conspiracy case against former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans may have crashed on takeoff due to a prosecutor's opening trial statement. The judge is considering a mistrial.

Judge Lee P. Gagliardi of U.S. District Court cited "apparent excesses" in the opening of Asst. U.S. Atty. James W. Rayhill, who launched the government's conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury prosecution Friday.

Rayhill Directed

Gagliardi directed Rayhill to document in writing any legal excuse he can find in case law for his remarks — that the trial jurors should place themselves in the shoes of the grand jurors who indicted Mitchell and Stans.

The defense, in turn, was given an opportunity to bolster in writing its motion for a mistrial.

Mitchell and Stans are accused of accepting a $200,000 secret contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign from international financier Robert L. Vesco. The two defendants had left the Cabinet at the time to run the campaign.

The government charged that, in return, Mitchell and Stans sought to impede a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation directed at Vesco's multimillion-dollar financial empire.

Cover-Up Role

During the day, Mitchell was indicted by the Watergate grand jury on identical charges of conspiracy, obstruction and perjury in connection this time with charges that he played a role in the cover-up of the Washington scandal.

Rayhill, a 35-year-old Yale law school graduate, began his statement routinely before a newly sworn trial jury of eight men and four women.

He called the purported deal between Mitchell, Stans and Vesco a scheme "to sell political influence for $200,000 in cash."

"It's cheaper than paying a lawyer," Rayhill quoted Vesco as telling a business cohort.

"The influence exerted by Mitchell and Stans was subtle and sophisticated," added the slightly built, dark-haired Rayhill, a government prosecutor for four years.

Rayhill went on in that vein for the better part of two hours, as the jury paid him rapt attention. So did Mitchell and Stans, dropping their gaze from Rayhill only to jot notes on pads in front of them.

Then, as he was winding up his statement, Rayhill told the jurors:

"... As you listen to the witnesses testifying before you, put yourselves in the place of the grand jurors who investigated this case, citizens like yourselves."

"I object," he said in a controlled voice.

Rayhill finished his statement, and the jury was sent out to lunch. The last one had barely cleared the courtroom when Bonner was on his feet again. This time he made no attempt to control his emotions. Pointing a finger in the direction of the prosecution table, he cried:

"I move for a mistrial. I move for a mistrial because it was stated by Mr. Rayhill a few moments ago ... in which he indicated, contrary to your instructions to this jury, that because people just like this petit jury had indicted these two men, that they should draw a natural inference from that fact that these men were guilty.

With the jury back after lunch, Gagliardi mentioned Rayhill's reference to the grand jury, without repeating its substance. His own voice rising in crescendo as he spoke, Gagliardi declared:

"You are the first men and women to consider the innocence or guilt of these defendants. A grand jury merely considers where a charge shall be made.

"They do not consider guilt or innocence. A grand jury proceedings is in no way a trial. You and you alone are the judges of the fact."

Gagliardi then sent the jury back to its sequestered hotel accommodations for the weekend, postponing the defense's opening statement that had been scheduled to follow the government's. He is expected to rule on the mistrial motion Monday.

Feminists Polite To Riggs; Steinem Receives Ovation

HOUSTON (AP) — The co-founder of the National Women's Political Caucus says the growing feminist movement in America is bringing "a revolutionary concept to this country—democracy."

Magazine publisher Gloria Steinem was one of the speakers Friday night at an NWPC forum at the Houston Music Theater which attracted a crowd of men and women estimated at 1,500.

Bobby Riggs, the tennis player and self-styled middle age sex symbol, made a brief gag speech. He was greeted politely but not warmly.

Miss Steinem received a standing ovation. She called Houston "the feminist capital of the world."

She congratulated women active in the movement despite what she called the "humiliation that greets women who dare not play their roles."

Also addressing the group were Frances Farenthold, Texas gubernatorial candidate, and Barbara Kilberg, national vice chairperson of the NWPC.

Funds from ticket sales were to be shared by the NWPC and its Harris County (Houston) affiliate.

AFTER ABOUT-FACE ON COLLEGE COORDINATING BOARD—

Constitution Drafters Warned On New 'Sacred Cow'

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Constitutional convention President Price Daniel Jr. says delegates should be thinking hard right now about adding to Texas' collection of "sacred cow" guaranteed funds.

They recessed Friday after refusing, 75-75, to table a proposal setting up a $1.5-million guaranteed annual appropriation for buildings at state technical institutes.

Included in that proposal, by Rep. Lyndon Olson, D-Waco, would be the authority to issue more than $17 million worth of bonds. The institutes, offering technical and vocational education, are at Waco, Amarillo, Harlingen and Sweetwater.

While Daniel passed up the chance to kill Olson's amendment by breaking the tie, he later told reporters: "I believe the delegates will think long and hard over the weekend about creating another dedicated fund."

Legislator-delegates reversed a decision made Thursday and voted 82-78 to leave the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, out of the constitution. The agency would remain in force, however, unless a future legislature decided to abolish it.

Rep. George Preston, D-Paris, sponsored the amendment to remove the board from the new constitution.

"There is no need to put statutory language in the constitution, and that is what this is. You would be tying your hands and abdicating responsibility to the coordinating board, which doesn't have to answer to the voters," Preston said.

Reps. Ben Munson, D-Denison, and Billy Williamson, D-Tyler, said a strong, constitutionally protected coordinating board was needed to balance the power of state colleges and universities.

"The power of the institutions is so overwhelming that a member (of the legislature) with any instinct of political survival has to go out and do their bidding," Munson said.

Williamson related that his bills to strengthen the board in past legislative sessions "have been opposed by the No. 1 super lobbyist against the coordinating board, and I have heard with my own two little ears his vow to abolish the coordinating board."

He said later he was referring to University of Texas regent Frank Erwin Jr. of Austin.

A Rewarding Ministry

Many Midlanders are familiar with the Texas Baptist River Ministry and a number of Tall City Baptists — both youths and adults — have participated actively in the program.

Sponsored by the Baptist General Convention of Texas, the River Ministry is a seven-year old mission effort conducted along the Rio Grande. It is a multi-million dollar project.

There are perhaps 10 missions along the river in West Texas, providing medical services, agricultural training, sanitation, and other assistance programs.

Quite often one hears the question, what are churches doing to help others? Well, here is an excellent example of church members and dollars in action, helping other less-fortunate people.

* * *

Several hundred persons reside in isolated villages scattered up and down the Rio Grande, mostly on the Mexico side, attempting to eke out a bare existence from dryland farming — a tough task at best. Many of the Mexicans suffer from one disease or another, tuberculosis being one of the most prevalent. Many of them had never seen a doctor.

An insurmountable mountain range isolates these poor people from the rest of Mexico. They are isolated from the United States by the Rio Grande and an alert U.S. Border Patrol.

Several years ago, the First Baptist Churches of Alpine, Marfa and Van Horn determined to do something about this particular situation. They pooled their resources and built a medical mission on the U.S. side of the river, across from the village of Porvenir. Volunteers — doctors, medical technicians, nurses and others — operate the mission at least one or two days a month. It isn't an easy assignment, but it must be a rewarding experience.

The Mexicans, of course, have to come across the river to visit the mission, and it was necessary to work out a special arrangement with the Border Patrol.

* * *

Other missions since have been established up and down the Rio Grande, meeting the basic needs of persons who long had been overlooked by more prosperous residents of two nations.

Doctors are few and far between in this isolated region, and as busy as they are in their own communities, they still volunteer their services in this important church work.

The First Baptist Church of Midland, incidentally, long has maintained two missions in Mexico.

Other churches and other denominations also have great programs going in Midland and elsewhere, all doing a tremendous amount of good. But the River Ministry seemingly is meeting a particular need in a most fitting manner.

Yes, today's churches are serving humanity in many fine ways . . . just as they always have.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Jack Anderson Says: Hostility is behind Nixon-press feud.

WASHINGTON—The hate affair between President Nixon and elements of the press is poisoning the flow of information to the American people.

Presidential press conferences deteriorated last year into shouting matches. The efforts to control tempers at the latest give-and-take last week scarcely concealed the underlying hostility.

Yet 80 per cent of the nation's newspapers endorsed Nixon for President in 1968 and an overwhelming 92 per cent supported his re-election in 1972. Why has the relationship gone sour?

Richard Nixon came to power with the conviction that he had gotten there by circumventing the working press and could govern successfully only so long as he continued to do so.

Reporters were to be given comfortable accommodations, fed with daily trivialities and occupied with diversions. But they were to be kept away from the news

The Nixon presidency drew a curtain of secrecy between its internal operations and the outside world unprecedented in the memory of Washington observers. The President did not want the acts and policies of his administration to reach the people through what he considered the distorting prism of the press. What he wanted known, he would communicate directly via television talks or other tightly controlled mechanisms.

Press Distrusted

Not only was the press distrusted. The millions who composed the permanent government were suspect, too. The highest military officers were denied the kind of critical information it previously was considered essential they have.

Even the President's own appointees, the top few thousand in government, were given minimal initiative and not trusted with sensitive information in their areas. This denigration of the regular institutions of government was, in part, aimed at the press. What officials did not know they could not leak.

Deep suspicion and a sense of lifelong grievance — all too often confirmed — were accompanied in President Nixon by a desire for solitude and a craving for an orderly environment undisturbed by trivial interruptions or internecine discord.

In the past, he had made mistakes and lost elections by trying to direct everything personally. He was determined never again to spread himself too thin.

He would encapsulate himself from unnecessary turmoil, dealing regularly only with those select few who had learned not only to resolve conflicts but to modulate their personalities so as not to jar his sensitive vibrations.

Out-Nixon Nixon

And so he came to act through other men who aped him and tended, in the way of young men, to out-Nixon Nixon.

The trouble with all this was that a seething enterprise like America cannot be compartmentalized, cordoned off and led from a glass bubble. Bureaucrats who are denied trust will become untrustworthy. Officers who are sealed off from information they need will find ways to acquire it.

Subordinates blocked from access to the President will grow uneasy and begin to connive at office politics.

It could not work for a more important reason. There is a fundamental conflict between uniformity and diversity, between politician and press, that is built into the American character and system.

It is the mission of the press to give the people an alternative to the official version of things, a rival account of reality, a measure by which to judge the efficacy of rulers and whether the truth is in them, an unauthorized stimulus to action or resistance.

Long before Americans could vote directly, in effect, for their presidents or their senators, before the vote was given to the poor, to women, to blacks, the role of the village editors and dissenting pamphleteer — as monitor, arbiter, critic and rival of the politician — was imbedded as a fundamental of the American system.

From its primitive state when any wanderer, if he was cantankerous enough, might set up his press and begin to assail his townsmen, the press as an institution has evolved through alternating chapters of disgrace and sublimity, of prostitution and martydom, of somnolence and vigilance, taking form in a thousand press rooms, in billions of miles of teletype tape, in the numberless newsrooms of radio and television, gradually assuming the role and shape that confronted Richard Nixon as he sought and finally won the presidency.

He came to think he could stand against or outside of that historical process. He thought he could play to the friendly press and put the hostile press in a bottle. For a while, it seemed to be working — on the surface.

Began To Sizzle

But under the surface, the press was beginning to sizzle in an investigation ferment. What it couldn't get the easy way, it began to go out and dig for. And the underbelly of his administration was becoming a sieve. It was to be, ironically, the day of the investigative reporter.

Many of the exposures that have brought the administration low were leaked to the press by persons within the government who did so as a silent protest to the Nixonian approach to government.

In seeking to contain the press, to control leaks and to silence criticism, the Nixon presidency committed first blunders and then the crimes which placed them in the hands of those from whom they had so carefully planned to escape.

Aviation Pioneer Recalls Early Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the early days of aviation, bonfires guided pilots at night and in the daytime, and air traffic controllers directed Jennies and De Havillands to smooth landings by waving flags.

"It took a while to educate some pilots, and several times my deck chair near the end of the runway was knocked over by planes that strayed from the proper path," recalls Archie W. League, an aviation pioneer who directed traffic at the St. Louis airport.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
(Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Dorothy Sims, wife of Hal Sims and one of the great players, divided experts into two classes. The top ones were sharks. The lesser ones, fresh-water sharks, who were never dangerous to the real tough ones like her husband.

Here we see Hal at work in a match-point game. His opening bid was a Sims three bid which asked for aces. North's response showed the missing ace.

Hal was now able to count 12 top tricks and he felt certain that the Lord would provide the 13th so he went right to the maximum seven notrump contract.

Dummy was disappointing. The only way to get the 13th trick unless the king of hearts would be singleton was to locate the queen of spades, but this was duck soup to Hal, who was playing against mere fresh-water sharks.

Hal knew that they would try to misdirect him. He won the club lead; cashed the second club and ace of hearts and then ran off diamonds. This made it easy for both opponents to see that they had to protect spades to the best of their ability.

The shark sitting West saw that he would have to come down to the king of hearts and just two spades so he threw two spades very early in his discarding. Thus, he tried to look like a man who did not have a high spade. Hal promptly played him for her ladyship and made the grand slam.

The Democrats' 1976 Race Is Yet To Come

WASHINGTON (NEA) — We really can't be sure that the Republican party facing the 1976 presidential race is as bad off as some polling and voting evidence suggests. If it is, then the nation may be getting ready to vote for almost anyone on the ballot with a big "D" after his name.

We do know this. Most of the Democrats jockeying for position at this very premature stage are either not making any special dent upon the public mind, or are not exhibiting any particular skill in the business of seeking the nomination.

Take the case of Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who tried in 1972 and is an unmistakable 1976 bidder. It is a commonplace of the political circuit that, putting aside the uncertain aspirations of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Jackson is far ahead of the rest of the party pack.

By some measures this may be true. The question is whether the measures have much long-range meaning.

Jackson's present course is, so far, largely a repeat of his early efforts for 1972, with somewhat stronger emphasis. For one thing, his partly televised Senate committee hearings on the oil shortage provided the notion he wants to convey — that he is in the thick of the big issues troubling the country.

Around the country, Jackson is cultivating two prime "money constitutencies" — his friends in labor and the contributor-minded Jewish community inevitably impressed by his strong pro-Israeli stands.

It is these latter forays, especially into southern California, that have sent shudders through the more liberal Jewish contributors who see Jackson as arch-conservative.

But these fears are quite misplaced. If you add in his obvious strong links to the defense contractor category, the consequence of his established hawkish defense stance, it is plain that Jackson can now, as for 1972, count on money.

That isn't his real problem. No poll among Democratic voters places him even as high as crippled Gov. George Wallace, who ranges around 15 per cent in second place behind Kennedy. Jackson hardly has begun to sell himself to his own party's electorate.

The effort in 1971-72 was a crashing failure. As one veteran Democratic analyst puts it: "He's deadly on the trail." Immensely likeable personally, he nevertheless came across as dull, inept, unpresidential, unsure.

He had 18 months or so on the road to learn, and he never really improved. And the whole crucial testing period for him in the 1976 race, including the gamut of 23 primaries, is still ahead.

Kennedy's declaration that he won't make his final intentions known until late 1975 puts a crimp in other candidacies which might fit into his center-left part of the spectrum. Most mentioned, and probably chief sufferer, is Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota.

Mondale is attractive, able, widely accepted as decent and honorable. But what he needs most right now he does not appear to have.

One is a body of committed people of the sort Sen. George McGovern corraled early for the 1972 race. No amount of showing the flag will help Mondale unless some dedicated folk fall in line behind him. So far, no sale.

There's doubt on the circuit, too, about the degree of Mondale's desire, a vital element. One Democrat who likes him says: "My 3-year-old son has more desire." Furthermore, Kennedy's delay hurts Mondale.

Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, sharp, calculating, ambitious, a self-professed "moderate," is testing the waters. But he is a big unknown, and his net gains up to now are limited only to widened "acceptability" — a mere first stage.

Dear Editor:

I see where there is still a lot of palaver and grandiosity slathered around about job discrimination on account of color, sex, etc.

The question of whether a discriminatee can — or will — do the job properly is considered so unimportant by the anti-discrimination crowd that it is never even mentioned.

But these "no discrimination" screamers are prominent among the folks wishing to discriminate Mr. Nixon out of his job because he is too midly liberal, or is a Republican, or travels too much, or wants to sit on his tapes.

Korean Christians Put Their Faith Into Action

NEW YORK (NEA) — Just last year we witnessed one of the great gatherings in church history when more than one million people swarmed into Seoul, Korea, to hear evangelist Billy Graham. Today a significant number of Korean Christians are putting their faith into action — confronting the dictatorial policies of President Park.

Historically, Christians have known that freedom of religion and freedom of speech belong in the same bag. Pastors and prominent churchmen are facing squarely the repressive policies of Mr. Park. There is now the realization that the suspension of national elections means an attack on the press, on academic freedom, and on the rights of public worship and assembly. Korea in 1974 reads like America 1776. Korean Christians, at great risk, have channeled their deep personal pietism into intense political activism.

Reports received in this country indicate that pastors, college students, seminarians and ecumenical councils are prepared to go to prison rather than endure the Occidental tyranny that now grips Seoul.

Faculty and students at Hankuck Seminary, a Presbyterian theological seminary, and Teagun seminary, a Catholic seminary, have shaved their heads in public protest against government repression. Major complaints are varied but generally follow these lines:

1. Freedom of faith, speech, publishing, assembly.
2. Academic freedom on campus.
3. Ending police surveillance, release of imprisoned students.
4. Practice of free democracy.
5. End to dominance of Japanese investment.

The Korean Council of Churches summarized the aspirations of many Christians when it stated:

"Human rights are the most valuable thing given by God. God, who created man in his own image, released mankind from all kinds of restrictions, and he intends a society in which human rights are not infringed upon.

"Following his activity the Church believes the establishment of human rights to be its supreme task, and the mission of the church in this generation is to be the establishment of human rights, which is the basis of the survival of the individual and the foundation of the development of society."

For more than a century, Christians in Korea have looked to American churches for support, guidance and fellowship. The early patterns of Korean democracy are traced to our vision of freedom, under a Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Let us hope that as Korean Christians are faithful to their tradition, that our voice will not be silent but affirmative of their courageous stand.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Recent actions against cigarette smoking, according to The World Almanac, includes a Civil Aeronautics Board decree that U.S. airlines institute compulsory non-smoking sections on all flights. The Arizona legislature banned smoking in all public buildings. A motel chain is testing the idea of a ban on smoking on some floors. Also, several car insurance companies have begun to offer lower rates to non-smokers.

HOROSCOPE

by Carroll Righter

(Mar. 3)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early a.m. can bring some upsetting conditions that discourage you if you permit them to. But by noon the planetary influences change, and you then can get influential persons to go along with a conventional plan.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend lectures early and enjoy pleasure at home later. Don't argue. Evening is best to go after fondest aims.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get those annoying duties behind you early and then see good friends tonight. Study. Avoid one who has some rather strange ideas.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't waste too much time on financial worries. Get ideas from one of real experience. Avoid one with a strange notion to discuss.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle personal affairs, then be off to the pleasures you really like. Entertain good friends. Be on time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan the future so you get more of what means the most to you. Get into studies that give you greater understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get out to see those good pals who make you feel aces. Save more time for those you really like who really like you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do nothing in a.m. to get you in trouble with others who are critical. Go to bigwigs with your finest talents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be courteous with all and make new friends in p.m. Communicating with those far away can bring fine results. Get data you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Morning is fine for enjoying mate, but don't get involved in any problems with associate who is busy with own problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) One who opposes you is not agreeable during day, but most understanding tonight. Find out what associates think.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan a better schedule in a.m., then go off to exercise, sports. Talk with an associate who is free on Sunday.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to have a good time, but it is important you get pressing duties out of the way first. Put creative ideas to work.

(Mar. 4)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A new approach to a long-time problem is necessary if you want those close to you to go along with you. Take steps to build a better foundation; activities where family and home affairs are involved. Control your emotions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You know what your family wants but you have to use modern methods to please them. Don't neglect some good relatives. Think constructively.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to make plans now if you want to improve your surroundings. Obtain the information you need and become a successful person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss financial affairs with a business expert. Go over your budget carefully. Get rid of any items that are no longer worthwhile.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate on own affairs now and get right results. Take treatments that will improve your appearance. Entertain good friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan your time so that you can accomplish more in the future. Try to assist others more and get good results. Make future plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contacting congenials is wise now. You can have a happy time with them and get the assistance you need. Help one who is in trouble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Gain the patronage of a bigwig now by using tact. Interest in a civic affair can help you advance. Avoid one who gossips too much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show that you appreciate those who can help you make new arrangements for the future. The evening is fine to attend the social.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Begin the new week properly by handling your obligations. Show more affection for mate and come to a much better understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know just what your position is with others and go along with a plan that means much to you. Avoid one who has ulterior motives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) More up-to-date systems and ideas can facilitate your labors in the future, so put them to work now. Get your work done on time.

Just 2,500 Saab Sonetts will be built this year. For the entire world.

So, naturally, it isn't the kind of car you see every day.

But if you come into our showroom sometime soon, we'll have a Sonett to show you. One you can sit in, and even take for a test drive.

Then you can see for yourself what it's like to drive a car like the Sonett. A car with front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, a fiberglass body, a 1.7 liter V-4 engine, front disc brakes, dual built-in roll bars... things that help make the Sonett one of the most exciting and sensible sports cars you'll ever drive.

The Saab Sonett. Just $4898.

Gas Woes Force Change In U.S. Vacation Pattern

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The energy crisis is forcing Americans to curb the nomadic vacation patterns which have taken them across the country in years past, travel industry officials say.

Instead, Americans are seeking their rest and recreation closer to home and are increasingly getting out of their cars and into planes, trains and buses, they say.

"The less dependent an area is on auto travel, the less the effect of the gasoline shortage," says William D. Toohey, president of he Discover America Travel Organization.

"Vacation spots close to dense metropolitan areas will suffer the least while areas in the sparsely populated Western states are likely to suffer the most," says the head of the trade group formed to promote domestic travel.

His predictions are borne out by the experience of resorts throughout the nation. Travel agents report the gasoline shortage has cut auto travel to ski areas in the Northeast and Colorado, to sun-and-surf spots in Florida and to the national park system.

But metropolitan areas appear to be holding their own. The Hilton chain says occupancy rates for its hotels in Chicago ran 4 per cent ahead of projections in the final three months of 1973. And many movie theaters, museums and restaurants in New York City say attendance has increased.

Resort operators in some hard-hit areas have launched advertising campaigns to reassure tourists troubled by the energy situation.

New Hampshire has set up a toll-free telephone line to tell travelers where they can find gas.

But Florida was forced to abandon its campaign urging sun-starved Northerners "to come down, we've got plenty of gas," because the state hasn't got plenty of gas.

Bad as things are now, the industry fears the worst is yet to come and worries that business during the peak summer months will be destroyed if the energy crisis continues.

Toohey notes that 70 per cent of tourism is sustained by private auto travel and warns that "unless there is some alleviation of this gas shortage the outlook for tourism generally is not bright."

Of course, some auto travel has been shifted to airlines, train or bus. Most of the nation's major airlines report their traffic is up substantially. Amtrack says train reservations are running 2½ times ahead of last summer's peak level. And Greyhound Bus Lines report traffic is up 10 per cent.

Industry sources say it's too early to tell what the situation will be this summer. But indications are that Americans are postponing firm travel plans until the energy picture becomes clearer.

Meat Production Showing Some Signs Of Increasing During '74

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meat production, trailing demand for a year, has shown signs of moving up in 1974, but government specialists think it will be summer before consumers can expect much price relief.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that production of red meat in January rose 12 per cent from December, and output was 2 per cent above January 1973.

All of the January gain was in beef and pork. Production of veal, lamb and mutton was down.

John T. Larsen, a department livestock economist, said it was the first time in 12 months that total meat output moved above year-earlier levels. However, retail meat prices in January rose from December.

A USDA market-basket report Feb. 26 said store prices for both beef and pork were up in January, with higher prices on the farm accounting for the gain.

Another report by the department Friday said meat production this week was up 14 per cent from the week ending Feb. 23 and 4 per cent more than for the same period a year earlier.

Although experts concede that bulges in meat-plant production may mean some lessening of meat prices at supermarkets, they say production increases may be erratic and temporary for this time.

One reason for the January meat increase was a holdback of cattle last fall when prices for live animals were down sharply from record summer peaks.

That meant heavier weights for animals when they finally went to market. The January report showed fewer head of cattle were slaughtered then in the month last year, but that average weights were up 13 pounds per head.

Also, cattle prices recovered sharply in late December and early January, jumping from low marks last fall of about $37 per 100 pounds on the hoof to around $48 in January.

Those prices have dropped since, and this week averaged about $45 per hundredweight for choice steers weighing 900 to 1,100 pounds in Omaha, reflecting the larger slaughter.

The official outlook by USDA calls for meat production to be slightly below a year earlier through the first quarter, with retail prices edging slightly higher. By spring, experts see more livestock moving to market and the flow increasing substantially in the second half of the year.

But livestock producers, particularly those who feed cattle for slaughter, are faced with high corn and other feed costs and say they are losing money.

Department economists agree that many are hurting economically, but they think if larger harvests materialize this year most will be turning out more beef and pork by next winter.

South Vietnam's 'Baby' Air Force Facing Test

By DENIS D. GRAY

BIEN HOA, South Vietnam (AP) — Can a baby air force do the job once tackled by one of the world's mightiest air armadas?

That is the test facing the South Vietnamese, a test that may be answered by a military crisis. On that test hinges a second, knottier question:

Will U.S. air power be called in if the South Vietnamese fail before a North Vietnamese offensive?

Massive U.S. air power helped turn the tide during the final North Vietnamese offensive shortly before the January 1973 truce agreement ended America's fighting role in Vietnam. But even with saturation bombings and round-the-clock, all weather air support — capabilities the South Vietnamese Air Force lacks — the going was rough.

No one really wants to deal with the possibility of reintroducing U.S. air power in Indochina. But the question rests in the back of many military minds as fighting continues between the South Vietnamese and the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

Consider this potential scenario: Massed North Vietnamese tanks and infantry roll down the plains toward Saigon from the northeast. The South Vietnamese Air Force, seventh largest in the world, takes to the skies to act as a shock force to blunt the initial thrust.

"In a large-scale attack we will be able to handle their infantry and armor without any problems," the assistant commander of the South Vietnam air force's largest division speculated. "But if the offensive has depth we will need strategic bombing of the enemy's supply routes and concentrations. This we cannot do. We may have to ask the U.S. for help."

In one capacity or another, the United States has been aiding the South Vietnamese air effort since 1950. Inevitably, the Vietnamese air force has been molded in the image of the U.S. Air Force, although it is a scaled-down version lacking long-range bombers and sophisticated fighters.

Today, the Vietnam air force numbers 64,500 men manning and maintaining more than 1,400 U.S.-supplied aircraft. The U.S. air combat role ended with the cease-fire agreement, but some 1,800 U.S. civilian contract personnel stayed behind to help in training and maintenance.

South Vietnam's air arsenal includes more than 800 Huey helicopters, 32 C130 transports and the fighting core of the air force: more than 460 fighter-bombers. They are propeller-driven A1 "Skyraiders" and jet-powered A37s and F5s.

The F5 "Freedom Fighter" is Vietnam's most advanced combat plane. But it has its shortcomings. Its bomb load — one ton — is miniscule when compared with the 60-ton punch of a single B52 bomber. And it lacks the electronic wizardry that once streaked over Vietnam in such forms as the F4 Phantom.

"We do not have the radar-controlled bombing systems and other devices the U.S. had here. In poor weather we cannot operate, especially when it comes to close air support for our ground troops," the Sixth Air Division's assistant commander, Col. Nguyen Tuong, said.

Another problem is in the increase in the number and sophistication of North Vietnamese antiaircraft weaponry, including the light, Soviet-built SA7 missile. Such weapons, Tuong said, aren't major problems for jet craft but can be lethal for slow-moving propeller-driven planes.

South Vietnamese officers say they can learn quickly to fly anything the United States gives them. While it is doubtful the United States plans to turn over B52s and F4s, military sources say 500 South Vietnamese pilots are being trained in America on very advanced aircraft.

The training program includes the latest model of the F5 — the F5E. Although U.S. officials refuse to comment on deliveries of this faster, more sophisticated fighter-bomber, Vietnamese military men indicate a program is under way to bring the F5Es to Vietnam.

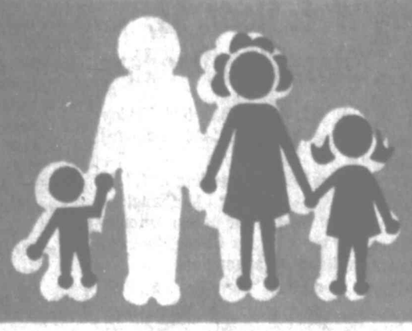

The Paris peace agreement prohibits the introduction of additional aircraft to South Vietnam. New planes can only be shipped in as replacements for those lost in battle. But no ceiling has been set on developing more and better pilots. Bringing advanced aircraft into Vietnam if major fighting resumes, with trained Vietnamese pilots ready to fly them, could avoid direct U.S. intervention.

U.S. influence, of course, permeates below the flight jackets and vocabulary in the most Americanized of South Vietnam's armed services. There is, above all, the U.S. example of fighting an air war with the belief that massive air power can determine the conflict.

Aerial attacks did slow the flow of supplies and turn the tide of battles during the years of American involvement in Vietnam. But air power didn't win the war.
