Shuttle mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Brimming with thousands of crickets, snails and other creatures, shuttle Columbia soared into orbit Friday on a two-week mission to explore the mysteries of inner space — the brain. "It's a little bit like a Cecil B. DeMille production: years in the making, cast of thousands, and it went off like it was supposed to," said NASA's chief veterinarian, Joseph Bielitzki. The space agency expects the mission to provide the best look yet at how the brain and nervous system adapt and develop in weightlessness.

Affirmative action

WASHINGTON — A coalition of Hispanic groups vowed Friday to fight Republican-sponsored legislation to curtail affirmative action admissions policies at federally-supported colleges and universities across the nation. Officials of five organizations representing the nation's estimated 30 million Hispanic residents challenged an effort by Rep. Frank Riggs, R-Calif., chairman of the House Education Committee's panel on children, youth and families, to bar federal education funds to colleges and universities that grant preferential admissions to any group.

Survey: 1/3 of state's teachers hold 2 jobs

■ Past president of the Midland Federation of Teachers says many Midland teachers hold outside jobs for additional income.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — More than one-third of Texas teachers hold outside jobs to make ends meet, double the national average and the highest figure since a state teacher group began surveying educators in 1980. Then, 22 percent of teachers moonlighted.

The survey released Friday by the Texas State Teachers Association also found 40 percent of teachers are seriously considering leaving the profession because of stress, poor working conditions and low pay.

That's down from 44 percent in 1996, when the biennial survey last was conducted.

"I don't know why the figure would be lower," Beth Smith, a German teacher at Plano Senior High, said when asked for her reaction to the survey. "We've continued to get salary increases, but I don't think it's enough that it would convince people to stay, necessarily."

TSTA spokeswoman Annette Cootes also had no explanation for the difference.

No local figures were available regarding the percentages of teachers who hold second jobs or are seriously considering leaving the teaching profession.

Many Midland teachers do hold second jobs for additional income, however, according to Samuel Manning, a past president of the Midland Federation of Teachers.

And many do consider leaving the profession, mostly due to increased paperwork in the form of skyrocketing paperwork demands consuming more and more of teachers time, Manning explained.

Since changes began in the early 1980s, documentation has now grown to the point that each teacher must prepare and submit reports to state

Last suspect in drug operation turns himself in

By Rick López
Staff writer

ODESSA — The final suspect sought in connection with a drug-selling operation in Odessa turned himself over to U.S. Marshals in Midland early Friday after agents already had arrested three members of his family earlier his week on drug charges.

Authorities said Jason Gabriel Dutchover, 25, was charged with possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance.

His father, Adan Salcido Dutchover, 53, sister Carole Dutchover Aguilar, 28, and her husband, Gilbert Lawrence Aguilar, 30, also were arrested in connection with the undercover bust. They faced the same charges as Jason Gabriel Dutchover.

Terry Kincaid, supervisory special agent of the Midland FBI office, explained that the round-up was the result of an undercover investigation that the FBI had initiated in January. The Odessa Police Department, Drug Enforcement Administration and Texas Department of Public Safety Narcotics Division assisted in the case.

The four suspects allegedly had sold drugs — usually hits of methamphetamine or cocaine — to undercover agents during the course of the investigation. After obtaining warrants for their arrests, authorities arrested three of the suspects Thursday.

Ms. Aguilar was arrested at the family's residence, which is located in the 4300 block of Robin Road. Agents searched the house and recovered 7.2 grams of black tar heroin that appeared to be prepackaged for street sale. The narcotic, he said, was wrapped in cellophane envelopes.

Officials also seized an undetermined amount of a substance they think might be methamphetamine. Kincaid said the suspicious substance was taken to a lab for testing Friday.

Agents who searched the house said they did not encounter any evidence that led them to think that the suspects were

Trinity students win honors at state competitions

By Richard Enos
Staff Writer

Trinity School's upper-school students recently won high honors at two TAPPS state competitions.

The school won the TAPPS 3A State Academic Competition in Austin earlier this month for the fourth consecutive year. It also won the state arts meet in Abilene. The TAPPS (Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools) competition is similar to UIL meets.

"It shows that our academic program is successful statewide," said Bill Coombes, head of the upper school. "Academics is the reason the school's here. The school was founded because of a desire for academic excellence. This demonstrates that we're achieving our goal."

Some of the many winners are Rob Buchanan, Sarah Gifford, Kathryn Chandler, Jerrod Moore and Laura Wilson.

Ms. Gifford, a senior at Trinity, won fifth in advanced math. She said it took weeks of preparation but it paid off.

Ms. Chandler, a junior, won first in math, third in science and third in Spanish.

"I thought it all pretty exciting," she said. "It was well worth all the work we were putting into it. I think it was kind of neat because we always hear about sports teams winning championships, but this was a big deal."

Moore, a freshman, won second in the Abilene arts competition under the male vocalists category. He sang "Il Mio Bel Foco" by Benedetto Marcello.

"It took a huge amount of work," he said. "I worked with my music teacher here at the school, as well as my private teacher. It's very exciting because there was a vast number of people competing."

Miss Wilson, a senior, won many honors at the arts competition. She won third in piano solo, second in sculpting, second in ink drawing, third in photography, second in prose interpretation and fourth in solo acting.

She said she spent many

Slaying of black baby by white farmer in South Africa stirs calls for vengeance

By Andrew Selsky
Associated Press

BENONI, South Africa — While black demonstrators shouted for justice outside a rural courthouse, a white farmer accused of shooting and killing a black infant withdrew his bail request Friday, preferring the safety of jail in a case that has stoked racial anger in South Africa.

Miles away, Violet Dlamini sat disconsolately in a cinderblock shack, two candles burning in memory of her dead 6-month-old daughter, Angelina.

"I feel what has happened to me should not happen to anyone, black or white," said Mrs. Dlamini, her face taut with grief.

Angelina's 11-year-old cousin, Francina Dlamini, had been carrying Angelina, in a blanket wrapped snugly against her back, across a grassy field on April 11. A white man who owned the land allegedly shouted at them to stop, then opened fire.

One bullet went through the baby's head and plowed into Francina's back. An 11-year-old boy walking with them was not harmed.

Nicholas Steyn, 42, reportedly told authorities he shot in the children's direction because they were trespassing, a scant hundred yards from the shack where the baby lived.

Many blacks say such killings by whites in rural areas were not uncommon in the apartheid era, and those killers routinely went unpunished. Apartheid ended with the nation's first all-race elections in 1994.

The shooting near Benoni, 25 miles east of Johannesburg, has become explosive due to the unprecedented attention it has received from President Nelson Mandela and other top leaders, the callousness of the shooting and the fact that police didn't bother to arrest Steyn for two days.

"Racism in South Africa has been entrenched for more than 300 years," Mandela said when he visited the girls' parents Tuesday. "We can't expect it to be eliminated in four years."

The case has been debated on several radio talk shows and has made front-page banner headlines.

"Obviously (Steyn) has good reasons for believing that two children and a 6-month-old baby were a serious threat, otherwise he wouldn't have shot at them. Would he?" white columnist Carol Lazar wrote sarcastically in The Star, a Johannesburg daily.

About 50 demonstrators in an open area in the courthouse spontaneously made up song verses Friday.

"Why are they killing us like this?" they sang in the Zulu language. "Steyn is killing the children." Then, after police shoved them back, they sang the national anthem.

Outside, 350 other demonstrators faced off against riot police.

In the courtroom, Steyn withdrew his request for bail. A police spokesman, Superintendent Eugene Opperman, said Steyn made the move for his own safety.

One protester was particularly incensed that police had let Steyn go on the day of the shooting and had not arrested him until Monday.

"If the SPCA lays a charge against you for shooting a dog, they will arrest you," said demonstrator Mary Botes. "Here, a man shot a baby and they let him walk away for the weekend."

Police defended the move by saying they knew where he lived and did not expect him to flee.

After the court hearing, Francina's parents went to visit her at the hospital. Her father, Richard, sat next to her bed, leaned over and looked into her big brown eyes. He smiled. Her face lit up as she returned the smile. But few words were said.

Pol Pot's widow praises him as 'good man'

By Jerry Harmer
Associated Press

ANLONG VENG, Cambodia — They clipped samples of his hair, photographed his teeth and brought out an inkpad to capture his fingerprints.

A Thai military team collected evidence Friday from the body of Pol Pot, former chief of Cambodia's Khmer Rouge guerrillas, to lay to rest doubts that one of the century's worst tyrants was truly dead.

As television cameras recorded the scene in a jungle hut, plainclothes Thai military men from just across the border cut wisps of hair and took pictures and fingerprints. But they resisted pressure to perform an autopsy on the man who imposed a genocidal reign of terror on Cambodia. One rebel said Pol Pot would be cremated in a private ceremony Saturday.

When the Thai team finished, ice blocks were replaced around Pol Pot's head and feet and his body wrapped again in a plastic tarpaulin to slow decomposition in the tropical heat. Guerrillas in the tiny shack where the body lay covered their faces against the smell.

Journalists and other independent observers here have little doubt that the body is that of Pol Pot, whom the Khmer Rouge said died Wednesday night of a heart attack at age 73.

Some questioned whether he might have been killed to shut him up.

The physical evidence gathered by the Thais could provide clues of foul play. But the Thais said the fingerprints were being taken simply for identification purposes — to compare to any that might later turn up in archives — and the hair samples to determine why the color had changed from gray to black.

Non Nou, Pol Pot's chief jailer, said the former guerrilla dyed his gray hair black the day before he died to disguise himself if he had to flee the jungle.

The United States has been pushing for a full autopsy, but Thailand is reluctant to move the body onto Thai soil, according to Thai military sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Meanwhile, Pol Pot's cremation seemed imminent.

Non Nou said the remains would be cremated Saturday without journalists, monks, Ta Mok or other Khmer Rouge leaders in attendance. It was unknown where the ashes would be kept.

Pol Pot's widow praised her husband as a "good man" Friday, the 23rd anniversary of the day the Khmer Rouge army won a civil war and imposed a four-year reign of terror over the country.

Experiments on minority children draw complaints

NEW YORK (AP) — A government-funded study in which poor black and Hispanic boys were given a now-recalled diet drug to test for violent tendencies is being criticized as risky and racist. The federal government has launched an investigation.

Scientists at an institute affiliated with Columbia University were testing the brain chemistry of 34 boys using fenfluramine, which has since been taken off the market because of suspected links to heart-value damage in adults. It is the "fen" in the diet drug combination fen-phen.

Critics say the experiments offered no medical benefits and put the children at risk.

"These racist and morally offensive studies put minority children at risk of harm in order to prove they are generally predisposed to be violent in the future," said Vera Hassner Sharav, director of Citizens for Responsible Care in Psychiatry and Research.

The researchers defended their efforts as a legitimate attempt to understand the roots of violence.

The children were given a single fenfluramine pill and were kept in a hospital bed for at least five hours with a catheter in their arm while blood samples were taken. They were without food for at least 17 hours.

The boys all had older brothers who were juvenile delinquents, and the scientists wanted to know whether levels of serotonin in the brain could signal aggression. Fenfluramine induces the brain to release serotonin.

The boys' parents signed consent forms for the research at the New York State Psychiatric Institute.

Similar research, conducted by Queens College and Mount Sinai School of Medicine, is also under fire. That project used fenfluramine on 66 boys of various ethnicities who had been treated for attention-deficit disorder.

The institute, which reached no firm conclusions in a study published in September, issued a statement Thursday saying its research tried to identify factors that could trigger aggression "in a population at risk for the development of antisocial behavior."

Fenfluramine and a chemically similar diet drug, Redux, were pulled from the market because they were linked to potentially deadly heart valve damage. Earlier this month, however, a large study found no sign that brief use of Redux causes dangerous heart value problems.

Queens College, which is part of the City University of New York, said its study "posed no danger to children. ... No child was harmed in any way." Mount Sinai said the research complied with federal regulations. Its subjects were one-third black, one-third Hispanic and one-third white.

Two nonprofit legal groups filed complaints about both experiments with the federal Office of Protection from Research Risks in Rockville, Md., which has begun investigating.

Members of the state's congressional delegation, the New York City Council and activist minister Al Sharpton are among those demanding investigations.

The institute's experiment, which was partially federally funded, was conducted in 1994 and 1995 on boys ages 6 to 10. They were chosen through Family Court records, and came from mostly low-income, troubled families in Manhattan and the Bronx.

"The question is, what were the parents told, and what did they understand when they signed the consent form?" Ms. Sharav said. "These were just kids with no history of misbehavior, whose brothers were in trouble."

The research on attention-deficit disorder was conducted at Mount Sinai's medical school over three years, ending in 1996. Those children, ages 7 to 11, were given fenfluramine after treatment for the disorder.

Because all 100 boys received only small, one-time doses of fenfluramine, "it's highly unlikely it would cause any problems," said Dr. Emil Coccaro, a psychiatrist at the Medical College of Pennsylvania who pioneered the use of fenfluramine for adult brain studies.

Coccaro, who worked at Mount Sinai in the 1980s, said the experiments were legitimate.

"It's frustrating. We're not trying to do Jurassic Park science here," he said. "Aggression is a real problem and we need to know if it's environmental or biological."

Foreign oil opportunities becoming more attractive

From Staff Reports

The large independent oil companies are migrating overseas and that migration would continue, according to the chairman of Santa Fe Energy Resources.

"For large independents it will not be a matter of whether or not they go international, but rather when and how," James Payne said Friday at the 1998 Executive Oil Conference.

Diminishing opportunity and rising costs in the United States, coupled with expanding opportunity overseas, was the reason for the migration, Payne told the more than 200 people gathered at Midland Center.

"Domestic opportunities for growth are declining in the U.S. because the basins are more mature, the prospects are smaller and competition is higher," said Payne, who noted that U.S. oil companies must continue to demonstrate growth in reserves, production and cash flow to be rewarded in the stock market.

The former Chevron executive said that growth was easy to attain for small independent companies reaching for the $200 million level, but growth comes much slower for the super independents who operate above that level.

'For large independents it will not be a matter of whether or not they go international, but rather when and how.'
—James Payne, chairman of Santa Fe Energy Resources

"Acquisitions will continue, but the heyday for growth by acquisition is over."

Payne said that while 50 percent of his company's assets are within 150 miles of Midland, 36 percent of the company is international. "We are seeing overseas prospects the size of which we have not seen in this country in decades," Payne said. Santa Fe now has operations in Argentina, Ecuador, West Africa, Indonesia and offshore China.

Payne said foreign opportunities were becoming more attractive because governments were opening up to oil and gas exploration and western expertise could be exported easily to capitalize on international opportunities. He defined international opportunities as large basins that have not been fully exploited; large unexplored areas, and fields that had not been optimized.

He said there was a great opportunity to apply U.S. expertise in international waterfloods, field management and infill drilling, and to apply enhanced technology to international properties with upside potential. He said many of his employees in Argentina had come from the Permian Basin. "We keep doing the same type of geology over and over," he said.

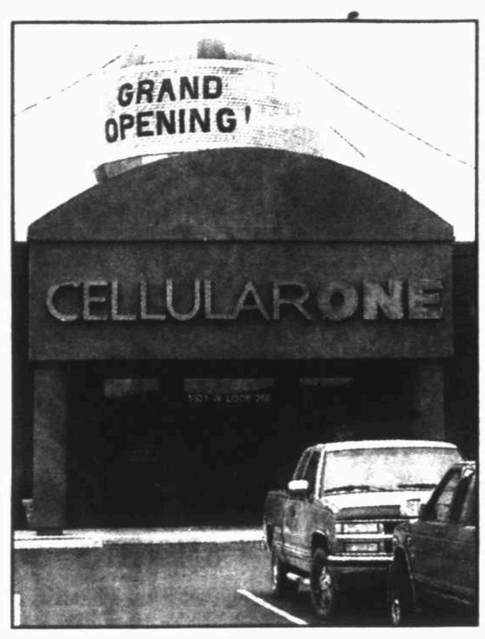

"In this country we are finding that finding and development costs are increasing at a time when we are harvesting the easy stuff. We are not increasing reserves as much as we are harvesting what we already knew was there," Payne said.

He pointed out that international finding and drilling costs were approximately $4 a barrel.

Grand opening

A grand opening celebration was held Friday at Cellular One store on Loop 250. The 7,000-square-foot store offers cellular phones, accessories and wireless packages.

manufacturing the drug, Kincaid said.

Aguilar was arrested in Fort Stockton, where he was working in the oil field.

Adan Salcido Dutchover was arrested Thursday while allegedly making a drug deal a few blocks away from the house on Robin Road. The man, Kincaid said, has a prior conviction in federal court for heroin possession.

Kincaid added that the family could have sold drugs valued at $25,000 during the operation. The figure, he said, is a wholesale estimate and could be three or four times that at street level.

The four suspects remained at the Midland County Detention Center on Friday and were pending a detention hearing that was scheduled for Monday. The FBI is still conducting an investigation into that same drug ring, Kincaid said.

hours practicing.

"My solo acting piece I've been working on since this fall," she said. "I did it at UIL competitions — that helped me out a lot."

Buchanan prevailed with a first place in the number sense category at the academic contest, in which students take a 10-minute, 80-question math test. He also got sixth in computer science.

There's no secret to winning number sense, he said.

"You use study sheets. I always tend to think in numbers. That helped out a lot," he said.

Other students who placed at the Austin academic meet are:

Ryan McKenna, third in computer science; Brent Morgan, fifth place in number sense and sixth in history; Jon Hoose, fifth place in dramatic interpretation; Mark Villanueva, fifth in computer science; Layne Rouse, second in poetry; Katherine Case, fourth in literary criticism; Krista Frederick, fifth place in current events; Leeann Hanson, first place in prose; Tarfia Faizullah, second in spelling, fifth place in original oratory, sixth place in poetry; Garen Hover, fourth place art history; Javon Clay, third in ready writing; Ben Blackketter and Thomas Nagy, fifth in Duet Acting.

Other members of the state academic team: Greg McCabe, Will Crump, T.C. Turner, Jon Nelson, Kristen Faudree, Grant Buchanan, Jessica Harvey, Kate Tucker, Lindsey Kay, Mary Jane Philpy. Coaches are Doris Cooper and Mary Rulla.

State Music TAAPS: Matt Hinkley, I rating (superior), first place male vocal solo. Among the other winners were Kelly Rathbone, Margery Grella, Sarah Stasney, Emily Timko, Michael Midkiff, Mark Villanueva, John Grella, Lee Wiesenfeld, Meredith Younger, Sarah Little, Elizabeth Sloan, Becca Beal, Rose Callo, Casey O'Neill, Chris Timko and Garen Hover. Jack Hickman is coach.

Police Reports

Crime of the week

Midland Crime Stoppers needs help in solving a burglary at the the D-FY-IT office, 300 E. Indiana Ave.

The Midland Police Department received information Feb. 8 that a break-in occurred. Complainants said that a 52-inch RCA television and $2,000 were taken. The money was a donation from a private citizen, officials said.

Crime Stoppers spokesman Sgt. Jim Crouse said authorities believe that the TV set is sill in the possession of the person who took it because it's very heavy and a very noticeable piece of equipment to sell. He said that authorities want to recover the TV, which is used as an instructional tool for the youth program.

If you have any information on this case or other felony crimes, call Midland Crime Stoppers at 694-TIPS or 1-800-7-LOCK-UP. You can remain anonymous and Caller ID is never used.

TEACHERS: Midland salaries below 2 state averages and federal agencies on dozens of different topics, Manning said.

This growing paperwork burden is making some teachers seek other employment options and the low entry-level salaries sometimes keep talented young teachers from coming to Midland, he said.

The survey was conducted by David L. Henderson of Sam Houston State University and Travis W. Henderson of the prison system's Windham School District, both in Huntsville.

Questionnaires were mailed in February to 699 Texas teachers chosen from 100,000 TSTA members. Of them, 312 returned questionnaires. The survey has a margin of error of ±3 percentage points.

The survey found the average teacher in Texas is a 45-year-old woman who has worked 16.2 years in the state's public schools and is paid $34,572 before taxes, retirement and insurance deductions.

Forty percent of teachers are the major family breadwinners, 73 percent are married and 15 percent are men.

Although a 1995 state law raised the minimum salary scale for teachers and tied it to state per-student expenditures, the survey found 34 percent of Texas teachers hold second jobs. That compares to 17 percent of the nation's teachers and about 5 percent of U.S. workers overall.

Ms. Smith, who is 50 and earns above the average salary, said she doesn't moonlight since re-marrying but did when she was a single parent. She said Texas' high rate of moonlighting isn't surprising because Texas teacher salaries are lower than the national average.

"Teachers really want their kids to go to college. That's probably why most of them are working a second job," she said.

According to a national survey released this week by the American Federation of Teachers, the average teacher pay in the United States was $38,436 in the last completed school year. The Texas average for 1996-97 was $32,426. The teacher group said Texas ranked 38th among the 50 states that year in teacher salaries.

While the TSTA survey estimates the Texas average teacher salary at $34,572, the American Federation of Teachers' survey estimated that figure at $32,426.

The Texas average teacher salary, however, was calculated by the Texas Education Administration as $33,038, according to a TEA spokesman.

In Midland, the average salary for a public school teacher is $32,980, which is just above the AFT estimate, but substantially below the TSTA figure and below the TEA calculated average.

In Texas, 63 percent of moonlighting teachers said their outside work is detrimental to the quality of teaching, but they'd need an average raise of $6,300 to quit. That would place Texas just above the national average.

Ms. Smith said she believes salaries will continue to be an issue in trying to keep teachers in the classroom, especially because those just getting into the business often could make much more money elsewhere.

But she said despite the difficulties, the job is satisfying. Her daughter has even followed her into the profession.

"It is a job which is challenging. I really enjoy working with the kids, and it's different every day, and it's different every year. You can't really get bored teaching. If you do, you're doing something wrong," she said.

Staff writer Gary Shanks contributed to this report.

OBITUARIES

Kenneth Boehm

Kenneth Boehm was born August 5, 1958, in San Angelo, Texas, to Joe Milton Boehm and Linda Nell Posey Boehm. He was raised in Eldorado, Texas, where he graduated from Eldorado High School in 1976. After high school, he began a career in the oil fields. He worked for B&H Maintenance in Eldorado. Mr. Boehm was then employed as a roughneck and driller for TMBR/Sharp and FWA.

He is survived by his mother, Linda Boehm of Jal, N.M.; his brothers, Ronny Boehm of Jal, N.M., and Billy Boehm of Midland; his sisters, Sheila Menoud and Sherry Boehm, both of Midland; and three nieces and three nephews.

Mr. Boehm died at a local hospital Tuesday.

Graveside services have been scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at Resthaven Memorial under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Lorene Smallwood

Lorene Lee Smallwood was born August 1, 1916, in Malone, Texas, to Mabe and Willie Wright. Before moving to Midland 13 years ago to be near her family, she was a longtime resident of Fort Worth, Texas. She was a member of Crestview Baptist Church.

Mrs. Smallwood was preceded in death by her husband of 63 years, John E. Smallwood, February 23, 1998; two grandsons, Jeff Hale and Tim Gallaher; five brothers, Thomas, Melton, Vernon, Cell and R.M. Wright; and one sister, Frances Moser.

She is survived by two daughters, Jody Hale and husband, Merv, of Midland and Sharon Deweber and husband, Jim, of Midland; her grandchildren, Jamie Hamm of Midland, Kenny Gallaher of Dallas, Sherry Maruska of Midland and Nikki Deweber of Austin; five great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Smallwood died at a local hospital Thursday, April 16, 1998.

Funeral services have been scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, April 18, in the Ellis Chapel with Dr. Larry Ashlock officiating. Interment will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Serving as pallbearers will be Edmond Koury, Rick Hamm, Richard Wright, Kenny Gallaher, Tim Maruska and Mike Hamm. Honorary pallbearers will be the staff and residents of Trinity Towers.

The family requests memorials be directed to Trinity Towers Auxiliary, 2800 W. Illinois Ave., Midland, Texas 79701.

Martha Meador

Martha Lee Dudley Meador, 77, a longtime resident of Eldorado, Texas, passed away, Thursday, April 16, 1998, at Shannon Hospital in San Angelo.

Services will be held Sunday, April 18, 2:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church of Eldorado with the Rev. George Lumpkin conducting the service.

Martha Lee was born November 28, 1920, in Goose Creek, Texas, to P.S. and Nell Dudley. She was preceded in death by her father, P.S. Dudley and her sister, Mary Lou Thompson.

She is survived by her husband of 55 years, Edward F. Meador; two sons and their spouses, Lynn E. Meador and his wife, Christy, of Eldorado, John "Rusty" Meador and his wife, Dawn, of Sugar Land; a daughter, Claudia Lee Stephens and her husband, Gary Ben, of Palmer; six grandchildren, Stan, Chris and Erin Meador of Eldorado, Regan and Taylor Meador of Sugar Land and Savannah Lee Stephens of Palmer. She is also survived by her mother, Nellie L. Dudley of Eldorado.

Martha Lee was not only a devoted wife, loving mother and grandmother, she was also an active participant in and around the community of Eldorado.

Before graduating from Southern Methodist University in 1942, she had been involved in the Association of University Women; a member of Sigma Kappa sorority and Kirkos. She also served on SMU's Rotunda staff, and was a "Rotunda Favorite" in 1942.

After the end of World War II, she and her husband, Ed, moved to Schleicher County where they started their family on the X Bar Ranch. After moving to Eldorado, she became an active member of the First United Methodist Church of Eldorado. In addition, she taught in the local schools was a leader in Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts, the local PTA, and a variety of other civic organizations. She was an avid sports fan with a very strong dislike of referees!

Martha Lee never met a stranger. Her love and care for her family, friends and neighbors were unmatched, and cooking was her best way of expressing her love and concern for others. The network of lives that she touched stretches far beyond the boundaries of West Texas. Likewise, the love that is felt for her and the sense of loss at her death is boundless.

Memorials may be made to the Martha Lee Meador Memorial Fund, c/o The First United Methodist Church, P.O. Box 678, Eldorado, Texas 76936.

Potent, high-priced marijuana becomes major Canadian export to U.S.

By David Crary
Associated Press

TORONTO — In the past, Canada's high-profile exports to the United States featured hockey players and comedians. Now there's a cash crop on the list — homegrown marijuana that ranks among the priciest and most potent in the world.

The pot is so coveted on the West Coast that it sometimes trades pound-for-pound for cocaine, officials say. Stepped-up searches for it have led to vexing backups at some border crossings.

Although the United States' border with Mexico remains its No. 1 smuggling zone, U.S. customs agents are devoting increasing attention to the northern border, particularly in Washington state. In the past year, the Customs Service has nearly doubled its enforcement effort there because of a surge of marijuana smuggled in from British Columbia.

"The price of B.C. marijuana has become very high," said Gene Kervan, customs director at the busy border crossing at Blaine, Wash. "It's the drug of choice in many locations."

Much of the prized pot is grown indoors by the increasingly popular hydroponic method — using bright artificial light and nutrient-laced water, but no soil. Kervan said the product can earn as much as $6,000 a pound in parts of California — 10 times the typical price for marijuana from Mexico.

Kervan's officers have been searching more and more vehicles coming south from the Vancouver area, and uncovering more and more pot — a change that has sometimes resulted in two-hour backups for motorists trying to enter the United States.

The border crackdown in Washington has pushed some traffickers east into Idaho. Customs officers there conducted a two-week operation in March that resulted in eight drug arrests — about the number usually made in a year.

Farther east, police say hydroponic marijuana-growing is on the upswing in Ontario, some of it apparently destined for export to upstate New York.

"You don't hear of boatloads or airplane shipments of weed coming into the country," said Bryan Baxter, a drug-squad detective in Hamilton, Ontario. "Pot is being exported from Canada — particularly B.C. and Ontario — instead of being imported."

Marijuana is believed to rank now as British Columbia's most lucrative agricultural product — with illegal revenues estimated at anywhere from $400 million to more than $3 billion.

Some of the growing operations are elaborate. Officers on Vancouver Island last week seized 2,400 marijuana plants from an indoor pot farm and arrested a couple who were covertly diverting electricity to power 62 1,000-watt lights.

Several thousand British Columbians are believed to be growing pot commercially. Smugglers range from amateurs to professional, well-equipped couriers recruited by Asian-linked crime gangs in Vancouver.

Kervan said there is no typical pot smuggler.

"That's the toughest part for us," he said, recounting one border bust involving a husband and wife carrying 17 pounds of marijuana along with their two young children. That same day, a couple in their 70s was arrested for carrying 24 pounds of marijuana in their truck.

"They looked like a normal grandma and grandpa coming down to go shopping," he said.

Mike Lovejoy, director of anti-smuggling efforts at the Customs Service headquarters in Washington, D.C., said border drug seizures in Washington state more than tripled from 1996 to 1997 — and the amount seized this year already has surpassed the 1997 total of 1,486 pounds.

Clinton cheers Chile's reforms for democracy

By Tom Raum
Associated Press

VALPARAISO, Chile — President Clinton cheered Chile's reclaiming of its democracy and called it a model for Latin America for the 21st century. But he told lawmakers on Friday a "second generation of reforms" is needed across the region for democracy to spread its roots.

"There are still too many citizens who exercise their right to vote, but, after the election is over, feel few benefits from the decisions made by their officials," Clinton told the National Congress.

Gen. Augusto Pinochet, the Chilean military dictator ousted in 1990 after 17 years of authoritarian rule, chose not to attend. Pinochet, 82, is a "senator for life" in the Congress.

Clinton, in a well-received speech in the spacious marbled-lined congressional chamber, did not mention Pinochet but said a strong democracy "honors its soldiers for their commitment to defend the people, not rule them."

And, in another pointed reference, Clinton declared: "I know here I am in a roomful of people who love freedom." It drew a loud round of applause.

Clinton came to this bustling port city on the Pacific to address the National Congress on the eve of a 34-nation summit of Western Hemisphere leaders. He called the second Summit of the Americas the next step "in our united efforts to build strong democracies that deliver for all of our peoples."

A few hours after Clinton spoke a light earthquake struck the area. It was felt in Valparaiso and Santiago 100 miles inland, but reporters with Clinton in Vina, near Valparaiso, said it was not noticed there.

Fidel Castro's Cuba is the only remaining nation in the hemisphere without a democratically elected government — and the only one excluded from the weekend session.

"Freedom's victory now has been won throughout the Americas. With a single exception, the day of the dictators is over," Clinton said.

South cleans up from killer tornadoes

By Karin Miller
Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Mayor Phil Bredesen was stunned by the damage he saw during an aerial tour of his city Friday. He was even more astounded that nobody was killed by the two tornadoes that ripped through Nashville the day before.

"I was not prepared for what I saw in east Nashville," he said. "There was one street where just basically all the power lines are snapped halfway up the poles, the lines are in the street, trees are in the street."

Vice President Al Gore took in similar sights, and also marveled that nobody died out of the 100 or so people injured in Nashville. He told a 16-year-old girl she did the right thing by diving in a bathtub when the tornado hit Thursday.

"This could have been an awful lot worse than it was," he said.

Six people in rural Tennessee were killed from the storm system that spawned at least eight other tornadoes elsewhere in the state. The second round of tornadoes to hit the South in eight days also killed three people in Kentucky and two in Arkansas.

Damage totals were slow to arrive, but officials said east Nashville was hardest hit, with at least 300 homes damaged. Thirty private planes worth an estimated $3 million were destroyed at Cornelia Fort Airpark, said Bill Colbert, director of operations.

"I was looking out the front window of the building and I saw a Cessna 150 do a back flip toward the building," he said. "I took a dive because I thought it was coming through the plate glass window. It landed right in front of it."

Highway 70 was littered with uprooted trees, battered houses and twisted billboards. Few signs were left intact in front of the many businesses fronting the highway.

The Hermitage, where Andrew Jackson lived until his death in 1845, suffered only a few broken windows. But hundreds of trees were uprooted on the 600-acre estate, including three dating to the 1700s.

Among the 11 victims of Thursday's severe weather, which stretched from the South into the Midwest, were a 2-year-old boy and his 5-year-old sister. They were killed in Manila, Ark., in the northwest part of the state.

While many Nashville buildings were damaged, landmarks including the Ryman Auditorium and Nashville Arena were largely unscathed. The Tennessee Oilers' football stadium, which is about one-third complete, was not so fortunate. Cranes toppled onto the field and scaffolding splintered.

Gore said reports about the tornadoes unleashed a flood of emotions for him. He lived in Nashville while working as a reporter for The Tennessean and covered a tornado in 1974. Gore said it blew out the back window of his car. He returned to his duplex and found wife Tipper huddled with their baby daughter.

"I know just recalling that experience the awful feeling that families have when they go through an experience like that," he said.

Columbia launched with cast of thousands

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Brimming with thousands of crickets, snails and other creatures, shuttle Columbia soared into orbit Friday on a two-week mission to explore the mysteries of inner space — the brain.

"It's a little bit like a Cecil B. DeMille production: years in the making, cast of thousands, and it went off like it was supposed to," said NASA's chief veterinarian, Joseph Bielitzki.

The space agency expects the mission to provide the best look yet at how the brain and nervous system adapt and develop in weightlessness.

The shuttle vaulted into a clear afternoon sky to the delight of the tens of thousands who jammed the Kennedy Space Center in a postholiday crush. The ship glittered for nearly five minutes as it sped toward the east.

One day late in taking off, Columbia was outfitted with a new data processor to replace one that failed in the final hours of Thursday's countdown. It also was loaded with a fresh batch of crickets and mice.

As if there weren't enough animals on board — 2,052 crickets, snails, fish, rats and mice, to be exact — a bat tried to hitch a ride.

The small, black bat attached itself to the back of the huge external fuel tank late in the countdown, said launch director Dave King. As soon as the booster rockets ignited, the bat let go and tried to fly away. In all likelihood, officials said, the bat became toast.

The seven astronauts quickly began preparing Columbia's bus-size laboratory for 16 to 17 days of neurological tests. Exams — some of them unpleasant — will be conducted on the crew and the animals.

The shuttle is carrying 1,514 crickets, nearly half in the soon-to-hatch egg stage. None is old enough to chirp. Also aboard are 18 pregnant mice, 152 rats, 60 snails and 75 snail eggs, and 233 fish.

"One of the big goals of this mission is exploring inner space, or the innermost workings of the human nervous system," one of Columbia's four medical men, Dr. Dave Williams, said before the flight.

By knowing how the nervous system adjusts to weightlessness, NASA will be in a better position to send astronauts to Mars and establish moon colonies.

The space agency also hopes to solve some of the nagging health problems that afflict astronauts in orbit as well as older people on Earth: insomnia, vertigo, imbalance, reduced blood pressure and weakened immunity.

Twenty-six experiments valued at more than $100 million will be conducted during the mission. Among other things, the astronauts will be spun on a chair, jabbed with needles, covered with electrodes, squeezed into a decompression chamber, and monitored during sleep.

The four oyster toadfish have electrodes in their heads to measure nerve impulses, and 24 of the rats have temperature and heart rate sensors attached to their skulls.

All of the mice and some of the rats will be killed and dissected in orbit. Most of the other animals will be killed for dissection once they return to Earth.

Sluggish Japanese economy causes plunging U.S. sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's trade deficit climbed to a monthly record of $12.1 billion in February as sales to Japan plummeted. The Clinton administration, worried about a political backlash from soaring deficits, said Japan must do more to restart its economy and create markets.

Asia's economic troubles were also blamed for the weakest growth in U.S. industrial output since the last recession.

The Commerce Department said the February deficit in goods and services was 4.2 percent higher than a revised $11.6 billion imbalance in January, as U.S. merchandise exports fell to their lowest point in a year.

In a second report Friday, the Federal Reserve said that while output at the nation's factories, mines and utilities rose by 0.2 percent in March, that was due primarily to a huge rebound in utility output following exceptionally mild weather.

Output at U.S. factories actually fell for a second straight month, and overall industrial production for the quarter was up just 0.9 percent, the worst showing since the 1990-91 recession.

Analysts blamed the drop in industrial production and the falling export sales on the Asian currency crisis, which has slashed economic demand in some of America's biggest markets.

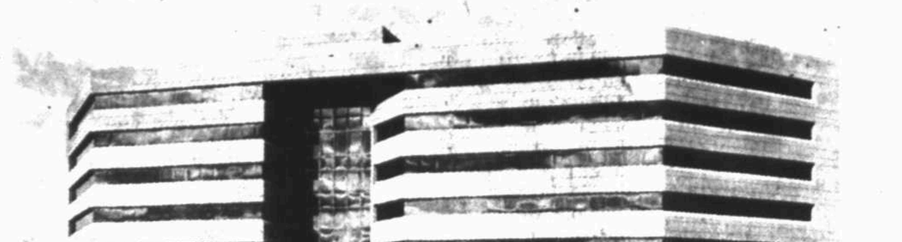

"Clearly, Asia is beginning to have a big impact on the U.S. economy," said Larry Chimerine, chief economist at the Economic Strategy Institute, a Washington think tank. "Every capital-goods exporter has seen a sharp falloff in their orders and we haven't seen the worst yet."

Chimerine said the falling orders would force American manufacturers to make more cuts in production in coming months. He forecast the trade deficits would climb to monthly figures of $14 billion to $15 billion with the deficit for the year likely to hit an all-time high of $160 billion, surpassing the $153 billion set in 1987.

Other economists forecast the fallout from a widening trade deficit would subtract as much as 2 percentage points from economic growth this quarter. However, with domestic demand remaining strong, the economy was still expected to grow at a respectable 3 percent.

For February, the U.S. deficit with Japan widened to $5.3 billion, up from $4.4 billion the previous month. It was the worst showing since a $5.9 billion deficit last October, reflecting the fact that U.S. exports to Japan dipped to the lowest level in three years.

Hispanics challenge proposal to end affirmative action admissions

By Stewart M. Powell
Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON — A coalition of Hispanic groups vowed Friday to fight Republican-sponsored legislation to curtail affirmative action admissions policies at federally-supported colleges and universities across the nation.

Officials of five organizations representing the nation's estimated 30 million Hispanic residents challenged an effort by Rep. Frank Riggs, R-Calif., chairman of the House Education Committee's panel on children, youth and families, to bar federal education funds to colleges and universities that grant preferential admissions to any group.

The proposal, which the House is expected to vote on in the next two weeks, is modeled after a ballot initiative approved by California voters in 1996 that ended state affirmative action programs in hiring, contracting and education.

Speaking at a news conference on Capitol Hill, Cesar Collantes of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) warned GOP leaders that approval of Riggs' proposal would be "very disruptive" to bipartisan cooperation between the Republican majority in Congress and the Congressional Hispanic Caucus and the Congressional Black Caucus, both of which are heavily Democratic.

"We're going into an election year," said Collantes, who heads the Washington, D.C., chapter of LULAC. "This Congress does not want to be seen as a do-nothing Congress. I'm sure they'll see the nation is focused on education."

Collantes cautioned that opponents of affirmative action could jeopardize higher education for Hispanics. He noted that Latinos, because of their growing share of the population, will be paying a large part of the payroll taxes into the Social Security system.

"Consider your own financial future," Collantes said. "Would you rather have a high school dropout paying taxes to help your Social Security check or would you rather have a Hispanic college graduate who pays more taxes toward your Social Security?"

Fifty-three percent of the nation's projected population growth by 2050 is expected to be among Hispanics, boosting their share of the nation's population from 10 percent to 24 percent.

Ester Aguilera, executive director of the 18-member Congressional Hispanic Caucus, said Hispanic lawmakers hope to build on their recent success thwarting anti-affirmative action proposals working their way through the Republican Congress.

Aguilera said that a centrist coalition in the House defeated a GOP proposal to end a federal program that seeks to award 10 percent of transportation department contracts to firms owned by women or minorities.

The proposed amendment to the $219 billion highway funding bill was rejected, 225 to 196, on April 1.

"We have a decent trend now in Congress for defeating anti-affirmative action proposals, and hopefully that trend will continue," Aguilera said.

Carmen Joge, a civil rights policy analyst for the National Council of La Raza, said her organization will lobby lawmakers to reject Riggs' proposal.

"We're very adamant, we're very united, we're very focused and we're determined to stop Riggs," Joge said.

Ambrosio Rodriguez, a lawyer with the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said that "without affirmative action, minority representation (in universities) will become a thing of the past. Ending affirmative action is premature, unnecessary and dangerous and (would) dismantle the progress that has been achieved over the last 30 years."

Angelica Santa Cruz of the Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities noted that anti-affirmative action measures in California and Texas have reduced the number of Hispanic students in the states' taxpayer-financed university systems.

"Any policy that does away with affirmative action significantly hurts these students," Santa Cruz said.

Riggs defended his proposal, saying it would prevent college admissions officials from discriminating against or granting preferential treatment to any group based on race, sex, color or national origin.

"I believe we must focus on equality of opportunity in this country, not mandate equality of results," Riggs said in a statement. "Affirmative action policies all too often discriminate against certain groups of Americans and lead to segregation rather than assimilation."

Beau Phillips, spokesman for Riggs, said his measure is expected to come to the House floor for a vote during the week of April 27 as part of the debate on the Higher Education Act.

The Hispanic officials lamented the impact of California's Proposition 209 on minority admissions in the University of California's nine-campus system.

Between 1997 and 1998, the enrollment of Hispanics, blacks and American Indians dropped from 23.1 percent to 10.4 percent at the University of California at Berkeley and from 19.8 percent to 12.7 percent at the University of California at Los Angeles, the officials said.

But they also conceded that enrollment of Hispanics, blacks and native Americans has increased at some other campuses in the University of California system.

At the University of California-Riverside campus, enrollment of Hispanic students rose 31 percent and enrollment of African Americans jumped 42 percent, the officials acknowledged.

But Rodriguez said policies that reduced Hispanic and black enrollment at the state's premiere university campuses at Berkeley and Los Angeles deprived minority students of the contacts that could prove valuable after graduation.

"Is Physics 101 inherently different at UC-Riverside and UC-Berkeley? Probably not," Rodriguez said. But he added, "It's the networking abilities that Berkeley and UCLA provide — that is what we're talking about ... and that's the real issue."

Nurse shark clamps down on teen after getting tail pulled

MARATHON, Fla. (AP) — A 3-foot nurse shark chomped down on a boy's chest and hung on all the way to the emergency room after the teen-ager tugged on its tail.

Doctors split the shark's spine to unlock its jaw, and the boy, Kevin Morrison, 16, of Rockford, Ill., was released from the hospital the same day.

The boy was on a diving trip off the Florida Keys with his family Thursday when he became fascinated with a shark swimming nearby. He pulled its tail, and the shark whipped around and bit him, the Coast Guard said.

The captain aboard the diving vessel radioed the Coast Guard, which took the boy and shark by boat and then by ambulance to Fishermen's Hospital.

Gunman opens fire in post office break room, kills postal clerk

By Christy Lemire
Associated Press

DALLAS — A 15-year postal service veteran was shot to death after an argument in a post office break room Friday and police arrested an armed co-worker shortly afterward.

A group of postal employees witnessed the shooting of the 34-year-old distribution clerk around 11:30 a.m. Police did not immediately release her name.

Several of the victim's relatives — and family members of other postal employees — flocked to the post office in tears to check on loved ones.

"She had a very large family," Dallas police Senior Cpl. Chris Gilliam said.

Investigators interviewed witnesses Friday afternoon and tried to figure out what motivated the attack.

Both Gilliam and Cesta Ayers, U.S. Postal Service manager of corporate relations for the agency's southwest area, said the two were not linked romantically.

"We don't have any information to indicate there was a relationship between the victim and the suspect," said Gilliam.

The suspect, a 27-year-old letter carrier, brought a large-caliber gun with him to work Friday, Gilliam said. A fight between the female clerk and the carrier, who had worked at the post office almost a year, led to the shooting, Ayers said.

The suspect then ran from the building, jumped into a car and sped away from the post office about two miles north of Love Field in Northwest Dallas.

Southwest Dallas patrol officers spotted him a short time later and arrested him.

No customers were hurt and none saw the shooting because it happened in the back of the building.

"It's an area most customers never get to see," Ayers said.

Another postal worker received minor injuries while trying to escape from the break room, but was treated at the scene, Postal Inspector Linda Kirksey said.

Police aren't releasing the name of the suspect until he is charged. Kirksey said he was a temporary full-time employee.

The shooting caused chaos in this normally serene suburb. Police blocked the post office parking lot as detectives and medical examiners arrived. Dozens of people stood outside a Dairy Queen across the street, watching media vans and helicopter.

Martinez said several people ran from the post office following the attack, which "took place in an instant."

Ayers said the shooting would have no effect on mail deliveries in the city.

It's unknown whether the suspect had a permit for the weapon, but Kirksey said it's illegal to bring a weapon on postal property.

Cattlemen hope for better luck in new lawsuit

LUBBOCK (AP) — If Oprah Winfrey grew homesick for Chicago while spending six weeks in an Amarillo court, wait until she gets a load of Dumas.

Less than the two months after a federal jury said the talk show queen did not defame the U.S. beef industry, a similar lawsuit has been filed in state court in Dumas, a rural town of 13,000 about 45 miles north of Amarillo.

Paul Engler, a plaintiff in the original case, is among the 138 livestock owners who filed the lawsuit Thursday. It's too early to know when or if the case will make it to court, and there's no telling whether Ms. Winfrey would bring her popular show on the road to the Texas Panhandle again, as she did with much fanfare during the federal case.

Kevin Isern, an attorney for the plaintiffs in the new case, said the state case makes essentially the same claim as the federal one, although it is structured differently.

"We tried to get all these customers in on the first lawsuit — one shooting match, so to speak — but the defendants objected," Isern said. "Like the saying goes, watch out what you ask for, because now they're getting a second lawsuit."

Like the original case, the new suit claims vegetarian activist Howard Lyman violated Texas' "veggie libel" law during an April 1996 edition of "The Oprah Winfrey Show" by saying that U.S. beef could be at risk of spreading mad cow disease.

In the weeks following the show, already slumping cattle prices dropped to 10-year lows. Plaintiffs in the federal case claimed losses of $11 million, while the state case claim cumulative losses of about $1 million.

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson ruled in the first case that the cattlemen didn't prove that "knowingly false" statements were made and that a perishable food was involved. Cattle don't count, she wrote. The jury then decided the cattlemen didn't have a case under traditional business disparagement laws, either. Engler has appealed, saying the judge erred.

In the new lawsuit, Engler is not individually named as a plaintiff, although Isern said Engler owns a few of the entities suing Ms. Winfrey, her production company and Lyman.

Mexican official begins hunger strike to protest radioactive dump site

EL PASO (AP) — A Mexican official and a small group of supporters have set up camp on an international bridge and launched a 30-day hunger strike to protest plans for a West Texas radioactive dump.

Jose Luis Rodriguez, a city councilman in Ciudad Juarez, said he is hoping to sway U.S. authorities to halt efforts to build the proposed site in Sierra Blanca, 90 miles southeast of El Paso.

"It's been a long struggle, and we've knocked on many doors from Austin to Mexico City. This is one of our last resorts," Rodriguez said Thursday on the Bridge of the Americas, which links El Paso and Juarez.

Rodriguez said he will sleep at the midpoint of the bridge along with supporters from Mexico's Green Ecologist Party, which supports environmental causes and indigenous peoples. They will only drink fluids.

El Pasoan Alma Luisa Chavez paused on the bridge to say she supported Rodriguez.

"Someone needs to do something about this nuclear dump about to be built in our back yard," she said.

Texas officials are now seeking a license from the state's environmental agency for the dump, which would accept low-level waste from Texas utilities., hospitals and universities.

The U.S. Senate last month also approved a compact that would allow Maine and Vermont to ship their low-level waste to Texas. The U.S. House approved the agreement last year.

But both bills contain different provisions which must be reconciled.

Anti-nuclear activists from the United States and Mexico as well as residents throughout West Texas are fighting the compact and the dump itself.

They have challenged the facility on a variety of grounds, including environmental, diplomatic and geological.

Texas officials say the dump site is safe.

Vandals target crucifixes

HAYS, Kan. (AP) — Holy Week vandals wreaked havoc at cemeteries in three small western Kansas communities near Hays.

The worst damage was in Catherine, where two figures of Christ, at the St. Catherine Catholic Church and at an altar in the local cemetery, were pulled from crucifixes and broken.

"It's gone! It's gone!" a girl cried out Thursday as she and friends ran in the cemetery. "They took the Jesus off."

"It was smashed into a million pieces," said John Schmeidler, president of St. Catherine parish. The Italian marble statuary, he said, had been at the cemetery for 35 or 40 years.

At the church, two angels and a crucifix were vandalized.

At Munjor, 17 headstones in the St. Francis of Assisi Cemetery were knocked over and several crosses broken off. At the St. Fidelis Cemetery in Victoria, an arm was broken from a Christ on a cross, and the memorial to unborn children was vandalized.

Schmeidler called the vandalism beyond a prank, "an attack on the whole concept of Christianity... .They were specifically targeting crucifixes."

No sermons in stereo

HARLEYSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — The Faith Bible Fellowship Church is having trouble sending the word of God to worshippers.

Three recent break-ins stripped the church of audio equipment set up for Easter. The last of it, some $5,000 worth, was stolen after Good Friday services.

The Rev. Dave Armstrong tallied the damage. "They cleaned us out of all of our good AV equipment: our sound boards, amps, tape decks, microphones, a wireless system — the stuff we use every Sunday."

On March 13, a window at the 101-year-old church was broken, doors were kicked in, and more than $12,000 in computer, audio and electronic equipment was stolen. Ten days later, thieves returned for a $200 stereo speaker.

"I have been to Cuba, North Korea, Haiti and many other places in the world but haven't seen such suffering and malnutrition," Page told The Associated Press."The sanctions hit the children, the poor, the old and the sick. It is not the government leaders (who suffer)."

The U.N. imposed sweeping trade sanctions on Iraq following its 1990 invasion of Kuwait. Though food and medicine are not blocked, Baghdad said sanctions leave no money to pay for imports.

The U.N. has said sanctions would not be lifted until inspectors certify that Iraq has eliminated all weapons of mass destruction. The church group, Page said, had brought $3 million in humanitarian goods to Iraq since 1991.

Midland men continue missionary work in remote Northern Uganda

The very goal of entering the ministry is to win souls to Christ. In the Baptist faith, after each worship service, those in the pews Sundays are extended an invitation to accept Christ as their Savior.

On most Sundays, a small handful will move to the front of the church at the completion of the minister's message in acceptance of that invitation. During a revival, holiday or other special occurrence, or when a transformation has occurred in a person's life, the number of people who accept Christ often swells.

So in March, when Don Norris, Crestview Baptist Church's Minister of Education, and three other men went on a week long mission trip to Moyotown, in the Moyo District of Northern Uganda, it's easy to understand Norris's "amazement" at the site of everyone in the congregation coming forward on what was the final sermon preached during the mission.

"I was asked by the preacher at the church in that particular village to preach the same sermon that I had that morning in a different village," Norris recalled. "It dealt with what Jesus said about God's love. The hardest point

Welcome ...

Thank you for taking the time to browse through our first Religion section. Every Saturday, we will bring you local and national stories of people and issues in the news. Religion is an integral part of many people's lives and that fact alone warrants a section devoted to the subject on a regular basis.

Issues pertaining to religion that will be spotlighted will cross all religious boundaries and include as broad a spectrum of subjects as possible. We'll focus on the role religion plays in America's minority communities ... what problems are being addressed by specific congregations or denominations ... and explore any subject related to religion which has been in the news here or elsewhere.

In other words, we realize the news of religion can be, and often is, as important to people's lives as any other type of coverage.

Our goal, of course, will be to cover those subjects and present that news without espousing any particular doctrine or dogma. The Religion news section will present news. It will not preach but will leave that to those best qualified.

We've talked about how to best present this section and decided that the best way would be to do so with your help. We'd like you to tell us what is going on in the religious community of which you are a part.

You can mail your comments and suggestions to The Midland Reporter-Telegram Religion Department, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas, 79702.

More than 50 guest missionaries attend conference at FBC

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Missionaries from around the world will gather at First Baptist Church in Midland April 24-26 for a World Mission Conference.

First Baptist will host the conference, assisted by Alamo Heights, Bellview, Calvary, Cotton Flat, Crestview, Cuthbert Avenue, Emmanuel, Greenwood, La Gracia, New Hope, Northwestern, Primera, Wilshire Park and West Kentucky Baptist churches.

More than 50 guest missionaries working in Africa, the Far East, Eastern Europe, the Middle East, Central America and around the country will attend the conference along with those involved in missions around the state.

Also in attendance will be Dr. Jerry Rankin, president of the International Mission Board for the Southern Baptist Convention, Dr. Bill Pinson, executive director of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, Dr. Bill Morgan, director and assistant vice president, Creative Access Networks, Dr. Keith Parks, coordinator, Cooperative Baptist Fellowship Global Missions, and Minette Drumwright, retired director, Office of International Prayer Strategy.

"The purpose is to educate people about the missions, and to motivate people to participate," explained Dale Pond, minister of Missions at First Baptist. "We want to raise people's awareness of what's going on in missions and how they can be involved."

He added that the conference is part of the church's theme this year of "Worldview 1998: Focus on Missions."

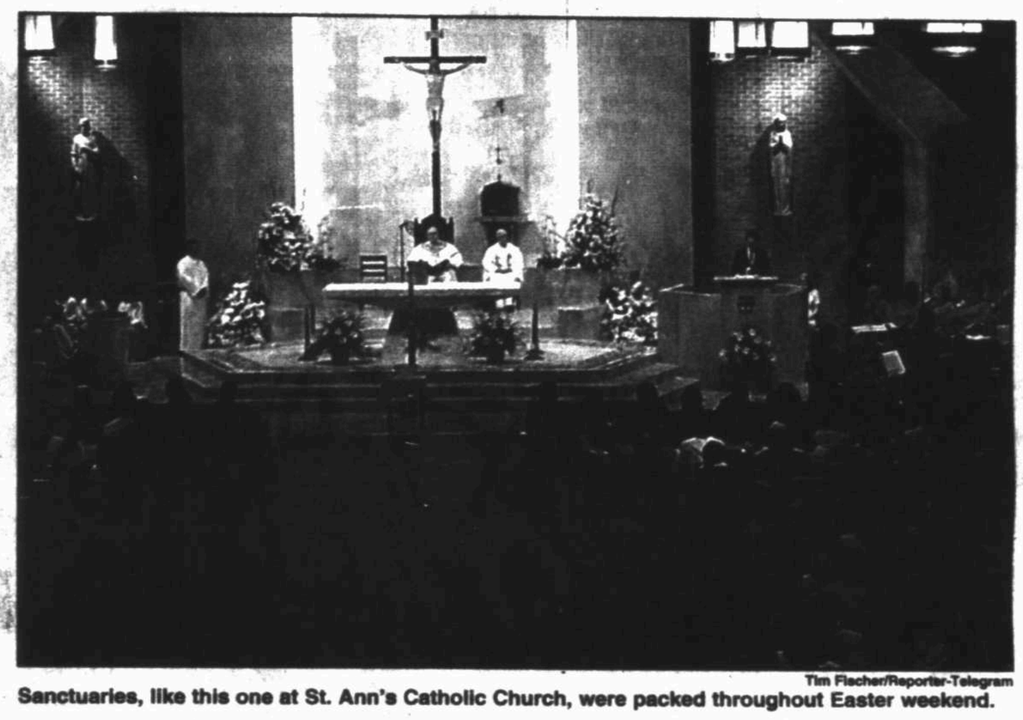

Another purpose of the conference, he said, is "instead of just sending our financial support, we wanted people to see where their money goes and to meet the people who are out in the field. The missionaries will share how the Lord has blessed them and their work."

The public is invited to attend a worship service 7:30 p.m. April 23 at First Baptist Worship Center, where Parks will be guest speaker.

A Missions Fair is planned for the church's Fellowship Hall 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. April 24.

"There will be lots of cultural exhibits from the different missions on display and the missionaries will dress in native costumes," Pond said. "It

Keepin' the faith

Post-Easter attendance, interest often a ministerial concern

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

It's hard to top Easter.

In fact, in the Christian faith, it can't be topped. The foundation of Christianity is based on the death and resurrection of Christ, which is why the pews are packed every spring when the holy day is celebrated.

It's the Sunday after Easter that's the problem. And for that matter, the Sundays after Christmas and Mother' s Day will never make a Top 10 list in terms of high church attendance either.

Retaining people's interest in attending church — when there is not a special celebration occurring — has always been an issue confronting ministers of all faiths. And it is a concern that will likely be with us as long as there are churches to attend.

"How to maintain a high level of commitment is a concern in all faiths," according to Dr. Larry Ashlock, pastor at Crestview Baptist Church. "Scripture even speaks of this matter. The Old Testament profits were noted for their call to commitment."

Tommy Potter, senior minister at First Christian Church-Disciples of Christ, said Christianity issues and faith opportunities worthy of hearing and learning about present themselves year-round.

"The story of Christ doesn't end at Easter," Potter said. "The post-resurrection narratives — the things that happen after the resurrection — are just as important as what happened on Easter."

There is even ministerial jargon applied to such widespread lack of commitment. Gilbert Cowley, pastor of Hollowell United Methodist Church, said it is sometimes referred to as the "CME syndrome." Packed pews can be counted on at Christmas, Mothers Day and Easter.

The Rev. Tom Kelly, parish priest at Our Lady of San

OK, so we were wrong — but we're not a cult

■ Taiwanese group in Garland that insisted God would appear via television in Dallas insists it is not a cult — and its members have no plans to commit suicide.

By Ted Anthony
AP National Writer

GARLAND — He said it in Chinese, and then for emphasis Simon Tsai switched to slow, deliberate English. "People keep asking us if we're going to commit suicide," he said last month. "But we're not. We are not a cult."

Tsai and nearly 150 other Taiwanese followers of "Master" Chen Hon-ming and his "zhen dao," or "true way" movement, didn't see God in suburban Dallas last month as they expected. And because they took no drastic action afterward, attention waned.

But Tsai's protestation illustrates the pejorative aura that surrounds the word "cult," once the catchall for any religious movement that struck people as unusual or excessively controlling.

Academics, writers, television reporters — all seem more reluctant, in varying degrees, to use "cult" in recent years. "Sect" is the word of choice.

AP Laserphoto

Chen Hon-Ming, who heads his own "zhen dao" or "true way" movement, holds a news conference outside his home in Garland. After God failed to appear last March 31, as Chen had predicted, the group took no drastic action and denied it was a cult.

In academic circles, "new religious movement" is a favored alternative.

But when, then, is a "cult" a cult?

"I frequently campaign against the use of the word," says Gerald McDermott, an associate professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke (Va.) College and an expert on, well, cults or new religious movements.

"It's shunned now," he says. "This is in contrast to 15, even 10 years ago."

Many say the term "cult" has become stigmatized because of the images it evokes — images of unwilling participants, extreme rituals and instability.

On the Internet, everything from Mormonism to Scientology to Jews for Jesus has been described, dismissed or denounced as a cult, often to loud objections of group members.

Consider the most notorious groups called "cult" in recent years:

■ The Rev. Jim Jones' Peoples Temple, where more than 900 people died after drinking cyanide-spiked grape punch in 1978.

■ Aum Shinrikyo, the Japanese group believed to have released lethal gas in Tokyo's subways in 1995.

■ Heaven's Gate, whose members wore black to their deaths last spring and expected a UFO behind the Hale-Bopp comet to carry them off to paradise.

■ And perhaps the most dramatic of this decade: David Koresh's Branch Davidians, 80 of whom went up in flames in Waco, Texas, after a 51-day standoff with federal agents ended five years ago Sunday.

UGANDA: Only 'downtown' area of village has electricity — 3 hours a day to that sermon deals with what the love of God means and how it relates to one's enemies. As I developed that sermon, I thought of how here in America, we think we have disagreements and we get frustrated or bent out of sorts with people. But most of the people in this country don't understand what a true enemy is. A true enemy is the type that will come into your village, shoot your family members to death, rape your wife and daughters and bludgeon your family members before your eyes. That's an enemy, and that's what these people experience. Most in the village had lost a parent or a brother or a child during the Civil War in Uganda."

At the conclusion of the ceremony, Norris said, when the invitation was extended, "to my amazement every single person that was there in that worship service responded during the invitation time. They knew this was the high call of God in their lives and it is what God wanted them to do and they knew that Jesus had done that and that they were being called to love their enemies. That blessed the socks off me."

Norris said up to 100 people were at the service, 50 or 60 of whom were adults, the rest children.

Crestview Baptist made a three-year mission commitment to work in Northern Uganda. The March trip, also attended by Crestview members Jim Sellers, Jimmy Stewart and Darren McInturff, was the second in the church's three-year arrangement with the people of Moyotown. Of the three who made the trip along with Norris, Jim Sellers has the most mission work to his credit, having traveled to Rwanda, Chile, Brazil and Israel.

The chief purpose of the men's trip to Moyotown, aside from ministering, is to help the people of the Moyo district construct a multi-purpose building at the Moyotown Baptist Church.

The four men flew from Entebbe, Uganda, to Moyotown in a 10-seat Cessna, landing on a grass airstrip. Accomodations included a 6 ft. by 10 ft. room, each with one bed, a mosquito net and small table.

Topographically, Norris said the surroundings are much like those found in Central Texas but with banana, mango and mahogany trees.

Electricity is available for a small area downtown, but only from 7-10 p.m. each day, and the main mode of transportation is by bicycle. The Moyo people's diet consists mainly of beef, chicken, fish, rice and termites — considered a source of protein.

"Even though the conditions were primitive, the Madi people are a loving and generous people," Norris said. "Although they've experienced many years of suffering due to war and politcal corruption they have a deep desire to better their living conditions."

The church will return mission workers to Moyotown in October.

CULTS: Terminology of 'religious movements,' 'sects,' confusing

(From 1B)

"Waco was really a watershed that opened the eyes of many, many academics to the cynical and interested and manipulative use of the word," McDermott says.

Not surprising, then, that most groups want nothing to do with such terminology, terminology that often picks up additional words: "suicide cult," "doomsday cult," "UFO cult."

By its most basic definition, in the third edition of Webster's New World College Dictionary, a cult is foremost "a system of religious worship or ritual." But its second definition is more detailed: "a quasi-religious group, often living in a colony, with a charismatic leader who indoctrinates members with unorthodox or extremist views, practices or beliefs."

Pretty wide definition, especially when you consider that "Methodist" and "Quaker" were once considered derisive terms for groups with "unorthodox or extremist views."

"It becomes so easy for us to discredit religions that don't fit our immediate paradigm," says Mark Radecke, a Lutheran pastor and chaplain and Susquehanna University in Selinsgrove, Pa.

But linguistic change is taking place, however subtly. For example, the German government has referred to Scientology as a cult; many German journalists call it a sect, which implies more mainstream tendencies. And in Garland last month, some of the dozens of reporters awaiting God's non-arrival could be heard discussing. "I know this is a cult," one said, "but do we come out and call it that?"

The answer, for now, appears still to be yes. An AltaVista search on the Internet this week produced 8,254 responses for the search term "cult" and just 214 for "new religious movement." So euphemism, if it is taking hold, is doing so slowly.

"What we're talking about is avoiding terms that are offensive to the set of people who are named by it," says Terry Kaufman, a lexicographer and linguistics professor at the University of Pittsburgh.

"Whatever term is used that turns out to be accurate is eventually going to become offensive," he says. "People are afraid of having legal action taken against them. And people are afraid of having people kill them. And people don't want to sound like a redneck or a bozo. Those are the issues."

EASTER: Misplaced priorities, lack of daily commitment lead to lax attitude

(From 1B)

Juan Catholic Church says clergy circles also refer to it as "hatch, match and detach."

"People want to be close to the Lord when they are born, when they are married and when they die," Kelly said.

All too often, according to Rev. Jerome Burnet, priest at Our Lady of Guadalupe, it takes a life-altering or life-threatening event for a person to realize the commitment they've made may not be quite enough.

"The long range effect is that you don't reach all the people, but you have to reach some of the people every year," he said. "Getting through to parishioners is crucial and you have to start when they are young. I don't think a few words on Easter will make that big of an impact. There has to be some sort of conversion in their lives. Something has to happen to make them realize what is important in life."

'The story of Christ doesn't end at Easter. The post-resurrection narratives — the things that happened after the resurrection — are just as important as what happened on Easter.'

— Tommy Potter,
Senior Minister,
First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

The culture of the late 20th century, Dr. Ashlock said, is such that its people often deny their mortality.

"It often takes catastrophic circumstances to awaken us to the reality that life is frail and fragile and outside of our control. We need God's help to recognize our need and the first realization of need grows out of an encounter with God."

But why does it take such an attention-grabbing event? And why is committing a minimum of an hour a week so hard on many people? Rev. Burnet sees it as misplaced priorities.

"We are often more focused on pleasure than on happiness," he said. "Not that pleasure is wrong, but happiness is what we should be looking for. I did a little study and found that in the New Testament, there are at least 30 incidents where Christ tells us to love our neighbor. There are at least 15 occurrences where he tells us to forgive our enemies. If we took that to heart, everything else would fall into place."

Quite likely every minister who stands behind a pulpit every Sunday will tell you the solution to the commitment problem would be more easily achieved if only people put faith in their lives on a daily basis instead of trying to get pumped up for just an hour a week.

"I have found that a personal daily time of prayer, devotion and meditation on faith matters serves to encourage me to maintain a high level of commitment," Dr. Ashlock said. "But more than that, I cannot say how important it is to cultivate a personal relationship with the Subject of Easter and that subject is Jesus Christ.

"We have to keep Easter before them year-round. Easter is as much about a living Savior that communicates and encourages and loves and challenges us daily as it is about a once-a-year event or observance."

Faith Enrichment Opportunities in the Permian Basin, April 18-25

New religion briefs policy

Policy concerning the Reporter-Telegram's policy on the Religion in Brief column has changed.

Because of increased religion news content, items can be published only once, with each column containing news of events to be held the following week.

An exception will be made for events that require advance registration. These will be published within eight days before the registration deadline, and will apear again if a second notification is sent before the actual event.

Deadlines have not changed. Information is due by noon Wednesday for publication the following Saturday.

Items should be mailed to Georgia Temple, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, 79702; faxed to Georgia Temple, at 570-7650, or emailed to jpatterson@basinlink.com.

Today

✔ Christmas in April

Hope Lutheran Church and AAL Branch No. 10519 will participate in Christmas in April today. The house is located at 1727 E. Oak and belongs to a family of 12 that the Hope Lutheran congregation adopted as a service project in 1997.

AAL Branch members will participate with the labor and a monetary contribution from AAL (Aid Association for Lutherans) will be made to Christmas in April as part of AAL's Helping Hands Program. All church and AAL members are invited to participate.

✔ St. Nicholas luncheon

The ECW of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church is having its Spring Luncheon at 11:30 a.m. today in the Parish Hall.

Diane Stanton will speak on Angels, Part II.

For more information call 694-8856.

✔ St. Paul's UMC ladies day

A Ladies Day Apart is set for 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. today at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive.

The event is sponsored by the Big Spring District United Methodist Women. The program begins at 9:30 a.m. following coffee and fellowship.

Guest speaker will be Helen Alexander from Atlanta. Her subject is "One in Spirit" from Galatians.

Those attending are asked to bring a salad for the lunch.

✔ Author to speak

John W. Smith is speaking on excellence in marriage at the North A & Tennessee Church of Christ at 9 a.m. today and 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Smith, an author and speaker, is from San Diego. He has been a preacher and teacher for more than 40 years.

Before his work in ministry with the Canyon View Church of Christ in San Diego, he preached for congregations in Texas and Alabama. He is the author of two books, "My Mother Played the Piano" and "My Mother's Favorite Song." He also had a series of devotional books, "Hugs for the Heart," published in 1997.

For more information call 682-8653.

Sunday

✔ Installation service

The public is invited to an afternoon of worship and praise as the Midland Ministers' Wives and Widows Alliance celebrates its annual program and holds its installation service.

Amye McNeil, wife of the Rev. R.T. McNeil, pastor of St. James Baptist Church in Odessa, will be the guest speaker.

The services will be at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams St., at 3 p.m. Sunday.

✔ Healing Mass

The Rev. Robert DeGrandis will be teaching and offering a healing Mass beginning 1:30 p.m. Sunday at Chaparral Center.

Teaching will begin at 1:30 p.m. The celebration of the Mass will begin at 4:30 p.m. DeGrandis is a member of the Society of St. Joseph.

All denominations are welcome. Degrandis' visit to Midland and Odessa is being sponsored by Holy Redeemer Catholic Church in Odessa.

For more information call 580-4295.

✔ School reunion

ALPINE — A registration drive is planned for 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Parish Hall, 406 S. 6th St., of Our Lady of Peace Church. The church is preparing for its first Catholic school reunion. The event is set for Memorial Day Weekend, May 22-24.

The purpose of the event is to raise funds for the restoration of the church and building. The public is invited to attend. Registration forms and newsletters may be picked up at the church or by calling (915) 837-3304, faxing (915) 837-1752, or e-mailing olp@givepeaceachance.com and requesting one.

Many records and addresses have been lost since the school closed leaving no way to locate and send newsletters and registration forms to former colleagues. Many former nuns and priests are planning to attend.

The main event is a dance featuring Gary Hobbs May 24. Tickets will be $12 a person.

Monday

✔ Weight Down Workshop

Second Baptist Church, 3125 Travis St., begins a new semester of the Weight Down Workshop 8:45 p.m. Monday.

A free orientation is planned for 6 p.m. Monday and April 6 at the church in the Adult Ministry building.

For more information call 682-3050.

Also, the church is offering a free series of Bible studies entitled "Marriage Matters" at 6:30 p.m. Sundays. Topics include "Pull Together When You Are Pulled Apart," "When You Are Married to the Wrong Person," "Fanning the Flame of Romance" and "When a Marriage Ends."
All interested parties are invited to attend.

Wednesday

✔ Hospice sessions

Hospice of Midland is presenting "Visiting with Shut-Ins and the Bereaved" at St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

The sessions are designed to give participants skills in visiting with shut-ins, the terminally ill and bereaved families. Presenters include Mark Mercer, Debbie Lindsay and Carol Armstrong.
The remaining two sessions are 6:15 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and April 29 in the church's fellowship lounge.

Topics are "Using Good Listening Skills with Shut-Ins and the Bereaved," Wednesday; and "You Can Do It: Visiting with Confidence," April 29.

For more information call Kasey Cantwell at St. Luke's UMC, 694-2571.

Saturday, April 25

Houstonian recalls Odyssey as Israel turns 50

By Cecile S. Holmes
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON — For several years during World War II, Ada Poller Roger was a child without a country.

Born in Przemysl, Poland, in 1934, Roger was among a group of youngsters known as the "Tehran Children" who escaped death in the Holocaust because other Jews saved them.

More than 800 children reached Palestine through Iran in February 1943, according to the Encyclopedia of the Holocaust. Most were orphans.

In Palestine, early Israeli settlers welcomed them as rare surviving jewels. By the war's end, 6 million European Jews, including 1.5 million children, had perished.

The backgrounds, customs and personal needs of the Tehran children were as diverse as the Jewish multicultural mix which founded Israel.

The nation, and Jewish supporters worldwide, celebrate its 50th birthday this spring. Like Israel's pioneers, the Tehran youngsters braved discrimination, persecution, near-starvation, infectious diseases, even death, en oute to a plae which Jews believe is their promised land.

Ada Roger, now a 64-year-old American citizen in Houston, will tell her story, but only as a tribute to others like her. She is not particularly special, nor especially brave, she insists. "Only a survivor," alive today because others cared.

Roger vaguely remembers the enthusiastic reception given the children upon arrival in what was then Palestine. Adults, their faces tear-streaked, greeted the beleaguered tribe of pint-sized emigres. Many of the children wore only ragged clothes and clutched tiny bundles, the sole remnants of their shattered childhoods.

Flowers, candles and toys were handed to the little ones. People carried placards proclaiming "WELCOME!" Ambulances were on hand, provided by worried organizers from the Jewish agencies sponsoring the trip. But the Tehran children alighted on foot in Atlit, the final destination for many.

Roger recalls her 10,000-mile journey by train, truck and boat with her brother, David, as though it were a very bad dream. She was sick for most of the train trip. "It was endless riding in the train," she said. "Later we were in trucks. My brother tells me that I was sick half of the way. He would have to hide me, cover me, whatever he could do. Whenever we would stop, they would take the sick people off. They couldn't afford to have sick people. The journey was too long."

For Roger, it began in pre-World War II Poland. The daughter of Abraham and Sarah Igel Poller, she was born into a well-established family who had lived in Poland for several generations. Her father was a banker and a factory owner, her mother a homemaker. Her mother survived the war; her father, an officer in the Polish army, did not.

War broke out with the invasion of Poland by the Germans in 1939. The San River divided Roger's hometown. On one side of the river, the Germans remained in power. The river's other side, where her family lived, was invaded by the Russians. Soon the Russian secret police compiled a list of people considered enemies of the state by the communist regime.

"My father, being a bourgeois factory owner, the head of the Chamber of Commerce, was on that list together with some judges and professional people, lawyers, industrialists," Roger said, "and they were all arrested. As political prisoners, not as Jews or Poles, but just as political prisoners who were against the Russian regime."

Several days later, April 13, 1940, Russian soldiers arrested Roger, her brother and her mother in the middle of the night. With hundreds others, they were shoved onto a train and taken to frozen misery in Siberia.

"We had no idea where we were going," Roger recalled. "We were sent to a labor camp. And my mother who at that time was 32 — I remember she was making slab bricks, very heavy ones. My brother and I used to go and collect dried-up sheep manure to keep us warm."

The weather was so cold and living conditions so terrible that Roger's mother schemed to go elsewhere. For a short time, surviving relatives in Poland smuggled valuables to Sarah Poller in care packages. Her father sent soap, scarce in Siberia. Concealed in one bar was a valuable watch, useful to raise money to survive.

Ada Roger cannot recall the details, but she knows "somehow my mother managed to save enough money for someone to transfer us from Siberia to Samarkand in central Asia.

"The reason was the climate. It was easier to take. She must have heard there were a lot of Jews in central Asia. But conditions there were hard. People crowded the streets. So many were starv-

Catechisms balance ancient, modern statements of faith

By David Briggs
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — "Won't heaven be a boring place?" "Is Christianity the only true religion?" "Does 'God the Father' mean that God is male?"

Replacing rote exercises with conversation, two proposed catechisms for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) explore how ancient truths apply to contemporary culture.

Instead of hurling Reformation anathemas at other Christian churches, these brief recaps of Presbyterian teaching talk about being part of "the holy catholic church" and ponder whether salvation is available to non-Christians.

Interpreting masculine images of God without excluding women is also part of the proposed catechisms, which will be presented to the church's General Assembly in June. If approved, they will be sent to the denomination's 11,000 churches as study documents.

If they pass muster in the pews, they may become part of the church's authoritative Book of Confessions. But "only if they enable the contemporary church to confess Jesus Christ today," said Richard Osmer, a professor of Christian education at Princeton University.

Osmer led a special committee, appointed by the General Assembly in 1994, to create a contemporary statement of church teachings.

Unlike the 688-page Catholic catechism, Presbyterian catechisms avoid definitive stands on such issues as abortion and homosexuality that have divided the denomination in recent years. As with earlier catechisms, the 14-page Study Catechism and the five-page First Catechism — a simpler document intended for ages 10 and up — focus on traditional teachings.

The documents rely heavily on the Apostle's Creed, the Lord's Prayer and the Ten Commandments, and affirm such core teachings as the belief that Jesus rose from the dead and that he was both divine and human.

But the catechisms do not stop there. While upholding traditional teachings, they affirm modern scholarship as a tool for interpreting the Bible.

Among other contemporary concerns, the environment is not forgotten. Human beings made in God's image, the catechism states, have a responsibility to care for the planet so "that future generations may continue to enjoy the abundance and goodness of the Earth in praise to God."

The Study Catechism also recognizes concerns about Biblical language, asking outright whether "God the Father" means that God is male.

The answer? "No. Only creatures having bodies can be either male or female. But God has no body, since by nature God is Spirit. Holy Scripture reveals God as a living God beyond all sexual distinctions."

In balancing the traditional and the contemporary, the catechisms are likely to disappoint the extremes of the Presbyterian theological spectrum, according to one of the authors.

"We tried very much to produce a consensus document, the broad consensus, the broad middle within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)," said George Hunsinger, who directs The Center for Barth Studies at Princeton.

In a Presbyterian church split by bitter struggles over issues of sexuality, reaching agreement on basic statements of faith is "an historic moment," he said.

As for the future, be happy. Heaven is not as boring a place as the modern mind might imagine, according to the proposed Study Catechism.

"Our deepest, truest delights in this life are only a dim foreshadowing of the delights that await us in heaven, the catechism says, referring to Psalm 16.

"You show me the path of life. In your presence there is fullness of joy; in your right hand are pleasures forevermore."

CONFERENCE: Cooperative effort important in mission work should be a very interesting exhibit of what's going on in the world."

Pinson will be the guest speaker at a worship service 7:30 p.m. April 24 at First Baptist. On April 25, visiting missionaries will speak at the participating churches: Rankin will address First Baptist's worship service.

Pond said mission work is important to the Baptist church.

"Mission work is very important, and cooperation among churches is very important. The way the Baptist church is organized, it allows us to accomplish the great commission in Matthew 28: 19, when Jesus said 'Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.' For Baptist churches, that's why we're here. And for our church especially, missionary work has been our heartbeat."

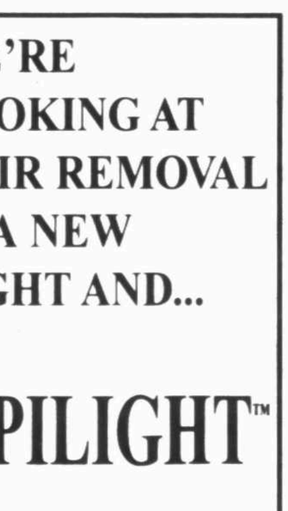

The church's different Sunday School classes will adopt a church in a state or country far away and send financial support, supplies and even volunteers to help work with those churches.

"Our involvement and commitment to mission work is one reason the Lord has blessed our church. Our people have been generous and giving and now they're going," Pond said.

First Apostolic celebrates 36th year Sunday

Staff Report

It's been over 40 years since Lowell Cessna laid his last brick and took up the pulpit. In his time as a pentecostal preacher, Cessna has noticed the similarities between bricklaying and winning souls.

"At the close of the day, it's wonderful to look back over the day's work and see something there that wasn't there that morning," Cessna said. "With masonry, you put up a wall, and that is creative and it's an accomplishment and it's a wonderful thing. Every time I go by an area of town where I built a house, my mind goes back. It's the same way with winning souls. It's wonderful to be able to come to the close of the day when you know you've tried to help someone, when you haven't been selfish and when you haven't served self, and you take time out and be a Good Samaritan along the way.

"Winning souls and being a masonry contractor, it takes teamwork. It's not just one person. As a mason, you work with plumber sand contractors. It's the same way when you work with the Lord. It's teamwork."

For 36 years, Cessna has teamed with God to lead the people of the First Apostolic Church, 710 S. Baird. Sunday, Services at First Apostolic are Sundays at 10 am, 11am and 7 pm and Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m.

For 36 years, Cessna has teamed with God to lead the people of the First Apostolic Church, 710 S. Baird. Sunday, the church's congregation will gather for a celebration lunch following the 10 a.m. worship service.

Lowell Cessna

"The Lord has done a wonderful work here," Cessna said. "It hasn't been me, it's been all Him, during these 36 years there's been all kinds of opportunities for me to leave here, but I've felt the Lord calling me to stay in Midland"

At Sunday's service, "we'll look at the history of the church, the miracles that have happened. The Lord has kept it going. The Lord has saved a lot of people, rescued a lot of people from sin. He's put a lot of families back together. We really work on God's two divine institutions: family and church."

Cessna, a Bedford, Pa., native, recalled a miracle that occurred in the early days of the church, when a 6-month-old baby girl quit breathing in the congregation and was delivered to the alter and was "saved by the Lord."

"We've had people come to church drunk and the Lord has sobered them up. We had one man, who was a helicopter pilot in Vietnam, crawl through the window of the church. He said he thought the Lord called him and he came right through the window. He got up the alter and asked that we pray for him. The Lord called his name three times when he was standing there. It wasn't me, it was the Lord."

Services at First Apostolic are Sundays at 10 a.m., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., and Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m.

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1998

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, April 18, 1998:
Correct use of your intuition helps you make career progress this year. Valuable friends share their wisdom; as a result, you make excellent decisions. You can be overly sensitive at times, and take comments as criticism. By being aware of this tendency, you will grow personally and gain ground professionally. If you are single, you might get involved with someone special but unavailable. Be sure you want this. If attached, share your thoughts with your partner; it will enhance your relationship. CAPRICORN helps you climb the ladder of success.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Take the lead, and invite others over. Intuitively, you know how to let others enjoy themselves and help them release anxiety. What you think is humorous could fall flat when others hear it. Expect to chuckle to yourself and smile like a Cheshire cat. Tonight: You are a force to behold.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Invite others along for a fun day trip. Explore a new area, and be open to experimentation and change. Discussions with friends when you are away prompt a different outlook. Distance breeds a more comfortable atmosphere. Tonight: Get home as late as you can!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Someone honors you and makes you feel wonderful. Accept a special offering or compliment. Others love you. Take time to share, whisper in another's ear or just talk. Quality time enhances this bond. Tonight: Must I spell it out?

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ News from a distance promotes a positive outlook. An offering is impossible to turn down. Be open to positive changes. Discussions promote a trip. Go with popularity and the moment. You won't want to drag your feet now, so don't. Tonight: Saturday-night festivities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Be a whiz around the house, and finish work. After all, you want time to indulge in your favorite sport. This is your time to relax and do what you love. A partner does a wonderful job of enticing you to his way of thinking. Tonight: Whatever pleases you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ You exhibit a side that makes others stand back and watch. You can be a wonderful companion. Let others see your fun, gregarious qualities. The heat in a relationship is building. Be sure you can handle the intense energy. Tonight: Put on your dancing shoes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You feel good about yourself because you get so much done. Work presents a lot of action, though you might opt to play a favorite sport or get into a preferred pastime. A family member wants to join in. Why not? You want togetherness. Tonight: Order a favorite meal in.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ You need self-control if you are going to get through the door. Phones ring, bills need to be paid and there is much to do. Make a late lunch date and visit a dear friend. Browsing through a flea market or visiting an art gallery adds to your day. Tonight: Hang out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Your more possessive side emerges. You want to give, yet you have a deep feeling that the gesture wouldn't be enough. Count your blessings, and be grateful. Optimism is better than negativity. Get together with family. Tonight: Invite a couple of friends over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Reach out for others. You have many invitations, as you attempt to decide who and where. Popularity peaks as your magnetism speaks. Listen carefully to some in-house gossip. It not only pleases you, but also is key information. Tonight: You call the shots.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ You decide to take a lucky gamble. Spending is a bit out of whack, though you enjoy living large. A moneymaking idea could work. Check it out before making a mistake. Intuition is right on target about a child or a friendship. Tonight: A little mystery becomes you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ Share a joke, laugh out loud and put a smile on a friend's face. He appreciates your caring personality. Whatever you do seems to bring happiness and success to the people around you. Make calls, bring friends together and do what makes your heart sing. Tonight: Where the fun is.

Lawyers haggle over Burt Reynolds' earning power in his bankruptcy case

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — What's Burt worth?

Lawyers in Burt Reynolds' bankruptcy case are haggling over his earning power now that his going-nowhere career has been revived by "Boogie Nights."

Burt Reynolds' lawyers project he'll make $150,000 a month for the next two years.

The actor wasn't in court Wednesday when a judge told attorneys to take a couple of weeks to redo a reorganization plan for creditors' approval.

Reynolds' lawyers project he'll make $150,000 a month during the next two years.

"We believe in light of Mr. Reynolds' enhanced or renewed career, that number is too low," said Robert Gilbert, who represents some of the creditors, including CBS Inc., several law firms and Reynolds' former hair stylist.

Reynolds, who filed for Chapter 11 protection in 1996, owes $10 million. His 160-acre ranch, with an appraised value of $4.6 million, is up for sale.

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Add talk show host to Joey Buttafuoco's resume.

The Long Island Lolito's local half-hour talk show on public access cable premiered Thursday, joining the "Eggroll King," porno aficionado Colin Malone and other cult celebrities allowed free airtime by law.

"This is a forum for anybody who has been jammed up by law enforcement, who has been abused by the media, who has been chewed up and spit out by the system," Buttafuoco said in an interview.

The first guest on his weekly late-night show was Divine Brown, who was arrested in 1995 while engaging in a sex act with Hugh Grant in a car.

Buttafuoco spent four months in jail for a liaison with Amy Fisher, who was 16 when she shot and injured his wife in 1992. He went back to jail last year for violating probation by soliciting sex from an undercover cop, though he denies it.

The Buttafuocos moved from New York to Los Angeles about two years ago.

LOS ANGELES — Robert Downey Jr. showed up for the premiere of his new movie, "Two Girls and a Guy."

The appearance with co-stars Heather Grant and Natasha Wagner was his first major public appearance since his March 31 release from jail.

"I'm just glad I have my freedom back and it's nice to see all these folks and seeing Natasha and Heather. I'm just having a great time, you know," Downey said.

After serving 113 days of a six-month sentence for violating probation and using drugs, Downey entered a residential drug rehabilitation facility.

PORTLAND, Ore. — Eldridge Cleaver no longer sees the world in black and white. He's gone green.

"I've gone beyond civil rights and human rights to creation rights," the former Black Panther said in Friday's Oregonian.

Cleaver, 62, was in town to open an Earth Day conference Saturday.

"I am appalled that man is waging war on creation, that we have poisoned the water, broken the food chain, put holes in the ozone layer and sent bulldozers into the rain forest," he said. "What we are doing is harming tomorrow."

Eldridge Cleaver has "gone beyond civil rights and human rights to creation rights."

In Panthers' minister of information wrote campus best seller "Soul on Ice" in 1968. After a shootout that year with police in Oakland, Calif., he fled abroad with his family.

Cleaver turned himself in 1975, denounced his past and became a born-again Christian, but he later became a crack addict. Today, he works as a university diversity consultant near Los Angeles.

INDIANAPOLIS — The prince of Monaco won't have Mike Tyson's RSVP to a royal ball until a judge approves the trip.

Under terms of his probation for a 1992 rape conviction, the former heavyweight champ sought Marion County Judge Patricia J. Gifford's permission Tuesday to attend the ball and be a presenter on the World Music Awards in Monaco next month.

The judge hadn't ruled on the request by Friday.

Tyson spent three years in jail for raping a beauty pageant contestant. He was banned from boxing in July when he bit off a piece of Evander Holyfield's ear during a fight.

ODYSSEY: Survival instinct strong for Ada

(From 4B)

ing and ill and dying," Roger said.

"But there my memories are very vague. We had dirt floors. I remember we shared one room with a lady and her daughter. Her husband had been arrested with my father. It was very difficult. We just had it bad. Our spirits snapped. We used to get bread sticks once a day. Those days when my mother didn't get into the line early enough or someone stole the sticks from my brother, those were the days when she put us to bed. Those days when we didn't have enough to eat."

Through the odd network of connections Jews forged during wartime, Roger's mother learned of a Jewish orphanage in Samarkand. She arranged for her children to become part of a group of orphans after learning of plans to relocate that group to Palestine.

"The day to leave came and somehow my mother got us to leave with the orphans because that was the only way. I remember she bought raisins and dried fruit. She sewed in my brother's jacket the name of a relative, our uncle in New York. She wrote in it my name, my brother's name, the address of our uncle, the names of our parents. She told him, 'Don't you ever lose that jacket.' "

Numb with uncertainty and confusion, Roger, by then 7, and her brother, David, 9, departed. It was years before Roger felt able to explore her feelings about that time in her life. But she never felt forsaken by her mother.

"She didn't send us (away) to abandon us, but because it was the only way. She sent us because that was the only way she could see that she could save us and she could survive. She absolutely shoved us onto the train."

From Samarkand, the children and their small group of adult protectors traveled to Karachi, Pakistan. En route, the train stopped along a seacoast and Roger, who felt very sick and thirsty, begged her brother to go get water and bring her some. He tried, but spit it out because of its salty taste. Neither had ever seen the ocean. Neither had any idea its water wasn't fit to drink.

In Karachi, the children stayed in tents, warned to keep the tent flaps shut because of bears roaming the area. "I remember I stayed wide awake two nights, frightened of the bears," Roger said. "I didn't know what they were, but I remember I was terrified."

The Tehran children's journey continued. Chronicled like a novel in the book, "The Tehran Operation" (B'nai B'rith Books) by Devora Omer, the journey was one long struggle for the children and their care-givers. Exhausted, terrified and homeless, the children protested each time their heads had to be shaved after a new outbreak of lice at one stop or another.

When the book was published, Chaim Herzog, then Israel's president, talked of all that the Tehran children symbolized. "The path of their redemption from Holocaust to rehabilitation symbolizes the fate of the Jewish nation — the dramatic transition from Auschwitz to Jerusalem."

According to the book, en route there, the children suffered typhus, scabies, ringworm, tetanus, dysentery and other diseases. Some died. Others banded together in scrappy groups who refused to separate, and sometimes to keep general rules all children were to follow. Older children, in effect, adopted younger ones, refusing extra care for themselves but insisting on special care for their young charges.

Sitting in the graceful living room of her home in a Houston high-rise, Ada Roger struggles with the recollections. Artwork decorates her walls. She sips coffee from a delicate porcelain cup. Remembering is disturbing. Roger's brown eyes take on a faraway look. "It was long ago," she says. "On my father's side of the family, there is nobody left. Absolutely nobody."

Speaking of her mother, her eyes mist. "I wonder why I didn't wonder more where she was. Why we didn't wonder. We always asked about our father. I think we knew she would survive."

Her husband, Robert, supplements the story. His tenderness is obvious. "She was a very little girl," he says. "It was 10,000 miles-plus from Samarkand via Karachi to Tehran to Cairo to Palestine. It was close to a year from leaving Samarkand to arrival in Atlit. Six months of it was because of detainment in Tehran, awaiting the green light to go to Palestine."

But Ada and David Poller were luckier than most. Their uncle in New York, who was searching for his sister (their mother), learned of her children's plight. With help from Jewish relief agencies, he sent them money as they traveled. Additional funds came once they arrived in Palestine.

In Palestine, the youngsters first were separated. Ada Poller cried and cried. Her brother grew sullen. Her uncle complained. Through their uncle's efforts, brother and sister eventually were reunited and relocated to a kibbutz, an Israeli collective dedicated to a communal, cooperative lifestyle.

Eventually their mother, who survived the war, joined them.

Her brothers wanted her to emigrate to America. She had remarried and her husband was willing, but her children, David and Ada, refused. By then, both were fiercely Israeli, Roger says, drilled into a particular way of thinking by the kibbutz's leaders. It took three years for their mother to get permission to enter Palestine, then still under British control. When she arrived, her egalitarian children were embarrassed by her bright red fingernails and her fashionable hat.

Ada Roger grimaces at the memory. They were upset because both wanted so much to belong somewhere. Her mother ingratiated herself into the kibbutz as a gifted cook, but the family still left in the late 1940s after the United Nations proposed the establishment of separate Arab and Jewish states.

On May 14, 1948, David Ben-Gurion declared the establishment of the state of Israel.

Ada Roger remembers pouring out of the kibbutz at 2 a.m. to yell and shout. "I seemed as enthusiastic as anyone else. But if I'm honest with myself, today, I admit it was a little fake. I began began to wonder, what's going to happen to me? Who am I?"

The years of uncertainty had taken their toll.

"I couldn't totally participate at one level. My mother wouldn't talk about it at all. My brother, we couldn't really be in touch. And I was embarrassed to ask anyone."

Roger eventually went to work for the Israeli airline, El Al, meeting her husband, Robert, on a trip to the United States. They have a grown son. Only recently has Ada Roger begun to explore her story with him. She finds it difficult to believe herself, but she is proud that she made it.

"Maybe that teaches us that survival is stronger than anything else," she said.

Christian Coalition leader says rumors of its death are false

By David Briggs
AP Religion Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — In government service, Donald Hodel has gone from checking under his car for explosives while head of the Bonneville Power Administration in Oregon, to balancing business and environmental concerns, first as Energy secretary and then as Interior secretary under President Reagan.

When he left Washington for the mountains of Colorado in 1989, he planned to spend some time as a private consultant. "I had an idyllic life in the eyes of most people, including me," said Hodel, smiling at the thought, at the Fort Lauderdale Convention Center. "I was living in ski country, and I had time to ski."

So why give it all up? As the new president of the unsettled Christian Coalition, he travels almost nonstop to rouse the souls and wallets of religious conservatives. Last month, he was doing just that in Fort Lauderdale, at the Reclaiming America for Christ Conference sponsored by broadcaster D. James Kennedy.

For the 62-year-old Hodel, it's a chance, as a private citizen, to make a difference in a nation in moral decline. "Grassroots is in my blood," he said, and the Christian Coalition "is one of the premier grassroots organizations in the country."

However, these are not the glory days for the coalition, established by religious broadcaster Pat Robertson in 1989. Under the direction of charismatic leader Ralph Reed, the group quickly rose in size and influence, helping to get out the vote for the 1994 Republican sweep of Congress.

Reed's departure last year to become a political consultant left the organization without a visible spokesman. The organization's revenues rose to $26.5 million, between the presidential election year and 1996, and sunk to $17 million last year. About a fifth of 200 national staff workers was laid off, and the organization's magazine ceased publication. Outreach programs for blacks and Catholics were spun off or shut down.

In addition, the Internal Revenue Service is investigating whether the coalition violated its tax-exempt status with voting guides and efforts that benefit conservative candidates. The Federal Election Commission has sued the coalition, accusing it of making illegal corporate donations.

Hodel claimed that the coalition's problems are shared by many politically active religious conservatives. All, he said, are caught in a backlash of resentment against Congress over such issues as abortion and the elimination of the tax code's "marriage penalty."

"I think it's disillusionment," he said in an interview. "We were all paying the price for the Republican Congress' apostasy."

There also has been a subtle shift among religious conservatives away from the practical approach of Reed, who willingly compromised for a seat at the GOP table, to a more confrontational approach.

Earlier this year, James Dobson, head of the Focus on the Family ministry based in Colorado Springs, Colo., warned Republican leaders to stop taking religious conservatives for granted. They will abandon the party, he insisted.

In his speech at the Florida conference, Hodel drew the loudest applause when he talked of the "slaughter of innocents," declaring: "We oppose partial-birth abortion. We oppose abortion."

In an interview, Hodel said the organization plans to concentrate on strengths, distributing election guides, registering voters, and getting them to the polls. The organization claims 1.9 million members in 2,000 chapters, and Hodel calls some 800,000 of them "active."

Spurs edge Sonics

SEATTLE — San Antonio knocked Seattle into a tie for the Pacific Division lead Friday night as David Robinson, who returned after a three-game absence, and Tim Duncan led the Spurs to an 89-87 victory.

Duncan had 31 points and 11 rebounds and Robinson, who missed three games after being knocked unconscious by Karl Malone's elbow, scored 22.

Robinson sank five free throws and Duncan had a three-point play as San Antonio outscored Seattle 8-4 in the final 1:16 for the Spurs' second win over the SuperSonics in a week.

Seattle lost its 21st game and dropped into a tie with the Los Angeles Lakers for the Pacific Division lead.

Duncan put the Spurs ahead with 48 seconds left when he scored on a fastbreak layup and added a free throw after being fouled by Nate McMillan.

After Detlef Schrempf scored on a layup with 18.2 seconds to go, Robinson turned the ball over by inbounding into the backcourt. But Duncan blocked Gary Payton's shot, McMillan shot an airball from 14 feet and Robinson grabbed the rebound and was fouled with 1.2 seconds left and sank the first of two free throws for an 89-87 lead.

Indianapolis Colts president Bill Polian insists that he has not decided on which player the team will take as the No. 1 overall pick in Saturday's NFL draft.

First four picks offer little suspense

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK — There will be no surprises at the top of the NFL draft — the first four players almost surely will be Peyton Manning or Ryan Leaf, followed by Andre Wadsworth and Charles Woodson.

Then the fun begins.

The only suspense in the first part of Saturday's draft, which starts at 11 a.m. at Madison Square Garden, is whether the Indianapolis Colts will use the first pick on Manning or Leaf, the two potential franchise quarterbacks who will go 1-2.

As of Friday, the Colts weren't saying, although they're believed to be leaning toward Manning, leaving the Chargers to grab Leaf, whom they prefer anyway.

"We have until 11: 15, our time, Saturday to make the decision, and we'll take every available minute that we have," said Colts president Bill Polian said.

After the quarterbacks come Wadsworth, the Florida State defensive end, expected to go to the Cardinals, and Woodson, the Michigan cornerback and Heisman Trophy winner, headed for Oakland.

The second mystery?

What will happen to Randy Moss, the hugely talented wide receiver from Marshall who was originally ranked with the top four.

He's now in free fall because of his background — an assault charge, a probation violation for smoking marijuana and misdemeanor domestic charges that were later dismissed. And several scouts say that if he gets by New Orleans, which picks seventh, he could fall past 20th.

But this is a deep draft, from which gems are plucked beyond the first round. Coach Jim Fassel of the New York Giants, for example, is balking at giving up a sec-

MHS' Wilson advances to tennis finals

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

ODESSA — Friday's action at the District 4-5A tennis tournament came and went without much noise.

If you're a fan of the underdog, Friday's competition at Odessa High wasn't really for you.

The seeded players went pretty much unscathed into the semifinals and every No. 1 and No. 2 seeded player made it to today's championship game. One of those high-seeded players included Midland High's Toffee Wilson, who won every set as the No. 2 seed in girls singles play. Wilson faces No. 1 seed Courtney Choate of San Angelo Central in today's 9 a.m. championship.

The championship winner automatically qualifies for the Region I tournament in Lubbock later this month.

Making it into tomorrow's 9 a.m. third place game is Midland Lee's Wes Hunt, the No. 4 seed. Hunt faces No. 3 seed Theron Cole, the defending district champion from Abilene Cooper. Hunt also has a chance to make it to regionals if he gets into a playback situation.

A playback is only needed if the third place winner faces an opponent whom they haven't faced before. If the championship match loser has already beaten the third-place match winner in the semifinals, a playback match is not needed and the runner-up automatically qualifies for regionals.

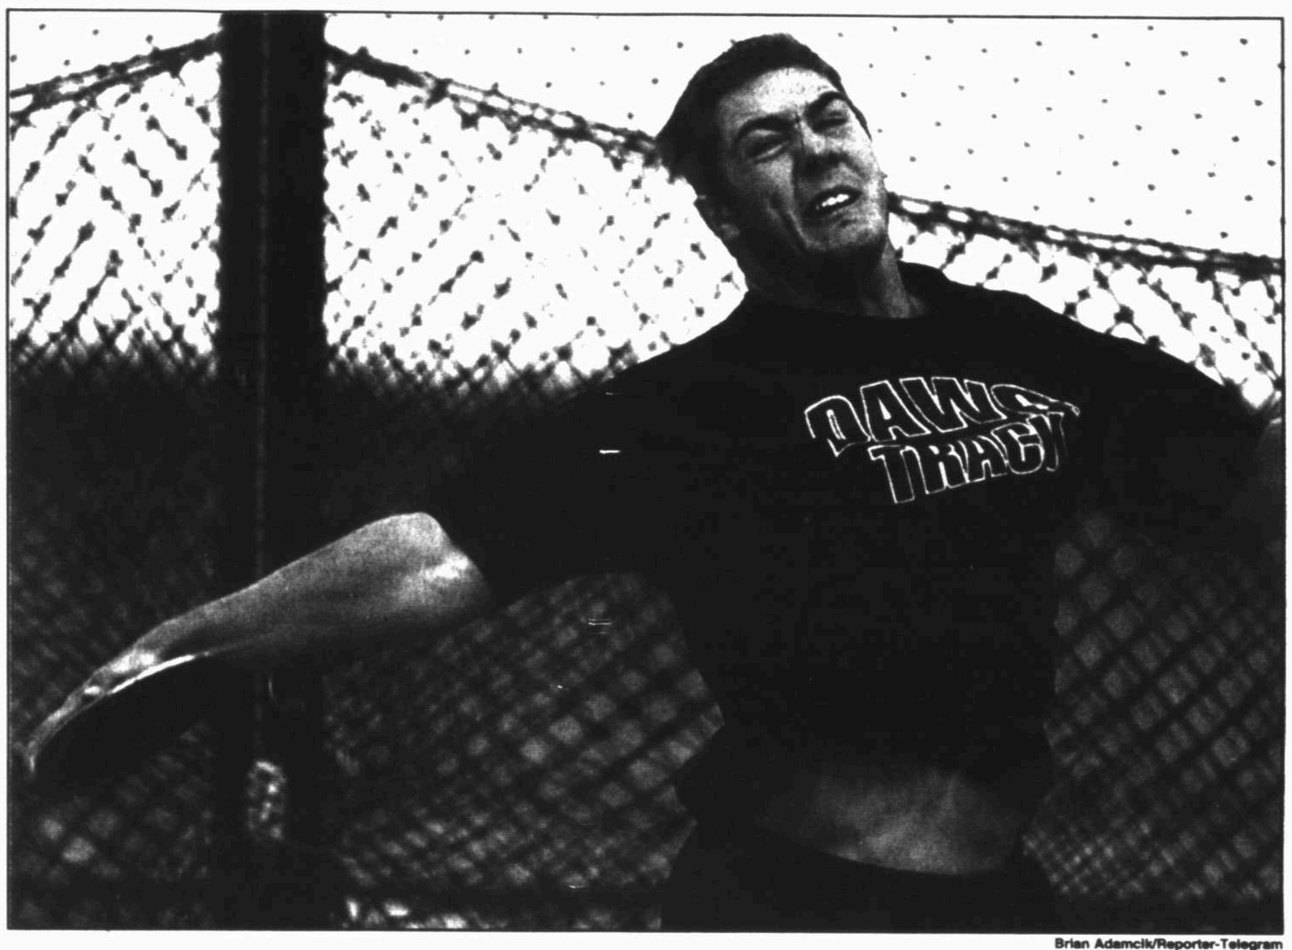

Wilson puts herself in a good position for a trip to Lubbock. The trip to today's championship was made a little easier with a No. 2 seed, which even caught the MHS junior off-guard.

"I was very surprised with the seeding," Wilson said. "I was just hoping to get a seed but I didn't think it was going to be that high."

After receiving a first round bye, Wilson only dropped one game in a 6-0, 6-1 win against Odessa High's Heidi Gerber. Wilson was then tested in the semifinals against San Angelo Central's Sarah Voss, an opponent who she had beaten before rather handily earlier in the year. Voss was the only player in Friday's action to record an upset as she knocked off the No. 3 seed Kadi Kirkland, 7-6, 6-2. Wilson won the first set against Voss, 7-6 (5), and then just relaxed and cruised to a 6-0 win in the second set.

"After getting a bye in the first round, I started off kind off slow," Wilson said. "Even though I played Voss before, this was entirely a different situation considering this is district. After I settled down, I just played my game."

Lee's Glover claims triple jump

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — Leave it to a former Midland Angel batboy to hit the biggest Tall City home run of these District 4-5A Track Championships.

Midland Lee's T.J. Glover, a batboy from 1994-96, became the first Midlander to go deep (literally and figuratively) when he became the second straight Rebel to capture the district's triple jump crown.

For Glover, a sophomore, the performance was anything but sophomoric.

"I'm very excited to win as a sophomore," said Glover, who follows in the footsteps of 1997 champion Dreyfus Andrews. "Coach (Mike) Meeks and (Kelvin) Ratliff put a lot of pressure on me to do better and not use being a sophomore as an excuse.

"There is a lot of pressure (to follow Andrews), but it gives me something to reach for. It gives me a goal to break the school record."

Glover, who won the title with a mark of 44 feet, 7 1/2 inches, was one of three Lee sophomores to score points in the triple jump. Sam Shearod was third with a jump of 43-3 1/2 and James Jackson was fifth with 42-0. In all, Lee scored 18 of its 26 points with the hop, skip and the jump. As Meeks said, "Not bad for a bunch of pups."

Coach Ratliff couldn't agree more.

"Anytime you have one get first, one third and get 18 points from three sophomores in the triple jump, you can't complain about that," Ratliff said. "That is what you want to see. That experience will pay off for the future.

"Three years ago when we had the Pertiles (Corry and Fred) and (John) Norman. They took a beating, but they learned and eventually got better the next year and did really good as a senior. I'm expecting the same thing to happen with these kids."

Along with Glover's heroics, Lee got its second regional qualifier of the day when Brian Boyd placed second in the shot put. In district competition, the top two places qualify for the regionals, and Boyd's heave of 49-11 3/4 was good enough to seal his spot in the Region I-5A meet in Lubbock.

"I can't explain it. This is unbelievable," said Boyd, who placed second behind Cooper's Joey Heath (55-1 1/2).

"This morning I woke up and felt weird. I prayed for strength I needed and went to school. I didn't know that feeling would come to this."

Lee's two region qualifiers tied Midland High for the second most on Friday. Cooper led all boys teams with three. For the girls, the Tall City teams were shut out although one Lady Rebel missed by the narrowest of margins.

Junior Christina Brown, a regional qualifier in 1997, fell short of a second trip to Lubbock by one-half inch in the shot put. Brown had tied Cooper's Lauren Wallace for second place after each ended with best marks of 37-1. However, Wallace's second best heave was 36-9 1/2. Brown's was 36-9. Therefore, Brown gets third and misses competing in Lubbock even with a personal-best mark.

Ethnic groups gravitate toward specific sports

By Claudia Kolker
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON — It's a warm night in Alief, and athletes dot the playing fields near Elsik High, one of the two largest 9th- through 12th-grade schools in Texas.

The scene is peaceful, voices floating through the evening air in English and in Spanish. Black, brown and white faces mingle in the stands and parking lot.

Extraordinarily diverse in population — roughly one-third Hispanic, one-third African-American, one-fifth Asian, the rest white or other — Elsik is a school that takes pride in no-nonsense harmony.

So why, on close inspection, are almost all the varsity baseball players tonight white?

And why, on a nearby field, are all the soccer players Hispanic? Anyone you ask at Elsik will confirm it: with some exceptions, both girls' and boys' sports teams are largely segregated by ethnicity.

Basketball, coaches and students say, is dominated by African-Americans. Baseball, by whites. Soccer is 70 percent to 90 percent Hispanic. And the tennis team members, with a handful of exceptions, are Asians.

Football and girls' softball and volleyball are more mixed.

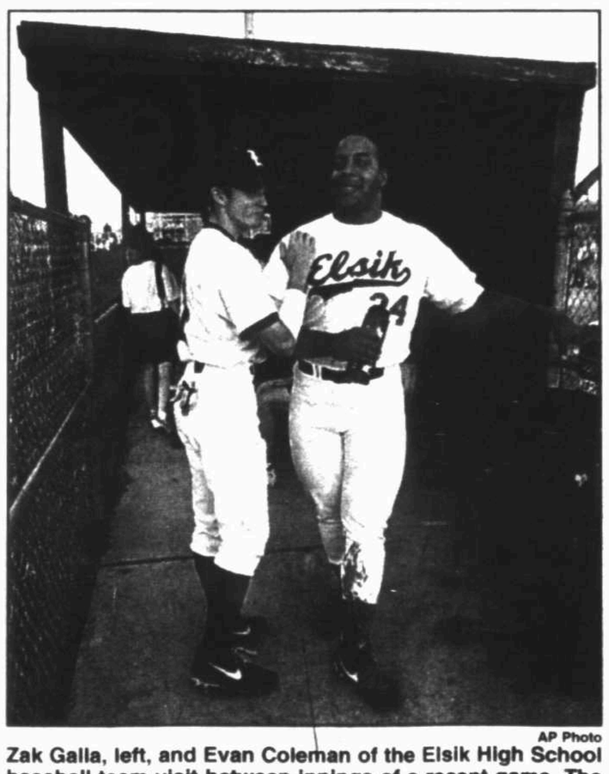

The phenomenon is acknowledged openly, though many, including Principal Sheila Runnels, say that they can't explain it.

Students have a variety of ready theories — often contradicting the views of experts, often contradicting each other.

Their explanations suggest that Elsik students choose their sports based on a mix of culture, parental values, social concerns and stereotypes that carry all the potency of fact.

Many students say they see no problem with the make-up of the sports teams, but others complain about exclu-

Lady Rebs earn playoff spot with 14-inning victory

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — It took longer than usual, the equivalent of a whole other game in fact, but the Midland Lee softball team kept its playoff streak alive.

The Lady Rebels earned the final playoff spot from District 4-5A the hard way, going 14 innings to defeat San Angelo Central 7-2 Friday afternoon to claim the district's No. 3 seed. The win guaranteed the fourth straight trip to the postseason for Lee, which finished the regular season 19-11 overall and 8-4 in district.

Lee broke open a tense game which had been tied at 1-1 in the top of the 14th by scoring six runs. The Lady Rebels did it one base at a time, as six out of the first seven batters in the inning singled. Yvette Bass, Maressa Underwood and Christa Hargrove all drove in runs with singles, then with the bases loaded, Jennifer Aman provided the clinching blow with a two-run double.

That inning was a flash flood of offense for the Rebels after an excruciating drought of 24 innings in which they scored only one run.

"Until that inning we'd been 24 innings without a run so it was kind of a psychological barrier," said Lee coach Perry Young, only slightly overstating his team's previous inability to score. "Once we got one hit it got contagious and everybody started hitting."

Hitting wise, two Rebels broke through with big days, as Jennifer Bryant went 5-for-7 and Underwood went 3-for-6.

Big Spring girls take 4-4A title

Staff Report

SAN ANGELO — Keesha Lott won three events, including a record breaking 25.26 seconds in the 200 meters here Friday night to lead the Big Spring girls to a District 4-4A track championship.

The Big Spring girls were awesome, scoring 211 points while San Angelo Lake View was a distant second with 119.

Big Spring qualified 13 individuals and three relays for the Region I meet in San Angelo in two weeks.

The Big Spring boys didn't win a title, but sprinter Tory Mitchell set records in the 100 with a blazing 10.06 and in the 200 with a 20.89. Marco Torres also won the 3200 and 1600 races.

Shaud Williams of Andrews won two events, winning both hurdles and set the 110 hurdle record with a 13.84.

'Dogs pile points on first day

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — It was a remarkable day for the Midland High boys track team Friday at the District 4-5A Track Championships.

Consider this: In 1997, the Bulldogs scored 39 points in the entire meet and qualified just one entry (the 400 relay) to the region meet. After just five finals this year at Ratliff Stadium, MHS has scored 29 and already qualified two (discus hurler Luke Conder and pole vaulter Wes Solansky) for Lubbock's Regional I-5A meet.

"I'm so proud of these kids. It has been a long time since there has been that many Midland High kids (do this well)," MHS boys coach Wes Cope said. "That (29 points) is just off our total from last year.

"I'm so proud of those guys. Caleb Brown was fifth in the pole vault; Cotey-Joe Cswaykus was fourth in the shot along with Melvin McKee who was sixth; and Randy Gardner was fourth in the high jump. I'm as happy as I can be. We are competing. Just about everyone PRed (set personal records)."

Two, Conder and Solansky, did even better. Competing in the day's first field events, both went out and showed they were among the best in the district.

In the discus, Conder, a junior, again broke the 160-foot barrier, going 160-10. That was good enough for second place, and in district competition, the top two earn an automatic ticket to regionals. Conder, like a number of times before, couldn't get by an old foe, Central's Rich Coffey, who threw 165-4. Of course, he's now got another shot.

"I wanted to get the victory," Conder said. "He's beat me every time we've gone against each other. Now, there is a week off between now and regionals. Hopefully I can work hard, lift weights and maybe give him better competition."

Making it to regionals is pretty good for Conder, whose best throw last year was 137 feet.

"Actually, I didn't think I would throw that good this year," Conder admitted.

Conder has thrown well and consistently been among the district and region's best. Solansky also has been near the top and used the stage Friday to break through to the regional level. Solansky, whose best as a sophomore was 13-6, took second, soaring 15 feet, and that made him very happy.

"(Qualifying for regionals) is everything to me. I got butterflies in my stomach right now and I'm ecstatic," said Solansky, who finished second behind Odessa High's Brent Callaway.

"The jump (on which) I cleared 15 feet would have cleared 15-6. I just didn't follow through."

Solansky's performance was enough to give MHS its second regional qualifier, one behind Cooper's three. It is quite a step for a program which two years ago, before Cope became coach, scored eight points in the entire meet.

"I will have to go home and make some reservations for Lubbock," Cope said. "Now, I don't do that until we get some there. I hate to be one of those people who plan ahead. Do you know what I mean?

"Now that we've got two going I have to go home and make some calls."

There could be more reservations to make. The Bulldogs dominated the short sprints. Weldon Cooks qualified first in the 100 and fell second in the 200 preliminaries, just behind teammate Raji Hickey, who led the field with a 21.52 (a season's best). The sprint relay also goes into today's finals as the district favorite.

Rankin boys claim 12-A crown

Staff Report

GARDEN CITY — The Rankin boys, paced by five first place event finishes, took first place at the District 12-A track and field meet held here Friday.

First place finishers for Rankin were: Robert Stanaland in the shot put, ahead of fellow teammate Bryan Hill; Heath Loftin in the 800; Frankie Rodriguez in the 110 hurdles and the 300 hurdles; and the 1600 relay team placed first with a time of 3:27.12.

In all, the Rankin boys qualified 15 athletes for Region 2-A in two weeks in Abilene.

On the girls side, Garden City's J'Layne Niehues and M'Lynn Niehues qualified in the high jump and triple jump events resepctively. G.C's Patti Garza finished second in the 3200 with a time of 14.29.70. The Lady Bearkats' 800 and 1600 relay teams alos qualified with first place finishes.

Rankin girls had Jeannie Gaines qualify in the 100 and 300 hurdles, along with the 800 relay team.

TRACK: Boyd grabs second in shot

(From 1C)

Christina Brown did her personal best in the shot put today and doesn't get to go to regionals. That half-inch kept her from going," Lee coach Randy Smith said. "That was probably our biggest disappointment. We are proud of her, she PRed (set a personal record) and all that, but she is not going to regionals."

The Lady Rebels are going for the Tall City's first district team title since 1986, and Brown's third-place might not go unnoticed when it is all said and done. It was the best showing of the day. Dominica Glover took fifth in the shot put nd Maurion Strambler and Toya Clater were fourth and fifth respectively in the triple jump. In addition to that Lee had no disasters when it came to qualifying, so Smith is happy where his team stands.

"The way I had figured it (Thursday), we were going home with 12 points and we are going home with 14," said Smith, whose team trails San Angelo's total of 34. Odessa Permian is second with 26 and Cooper is third with 25.

"You can't win any running events today. All you can do is qualify and we qualified all but one we thought we would qualify."

Now the Lady Rebs look to make up that 20-point difference on Central. That starts today at 11 a.m. with the long jump, where Lee had the top two marks going into the meet.

"We will find out (if Lee can make up the 20 point difference)," Smith said. "We have a shot at it."

For the Midland High girls, Keisha Taylor had a personal-best mark in the triple jump of 35-6 1/2 to earn MHS its only point. However, coach Susan Nix saw some top performances on the track as Shai Simpson qualified first in the 400 and third in the 100. Mahogany Jones took first in the 100 hurdles.

"I will tell them to go into the final positive tomorrow," Nix said. "Both are sitting in good spots. Mo (Jones) has the best time in the hurdles and has to compete like she did today.

"For Shai, that is her race. She is fired up about the 400 and knows what she has to do. She jumped in there today and ran the 100 for the first time this year and had the third best time. Maybe she can get out of district in two events."

4-5A NOTES: Abilene Cooper leads the boys race with 35 points. Midland High has 29, Midland Lee 26 and San Angelo Central 20... Three district records were broken or tied Friday. Cooper's Robin Padgett hurled the discus 137-2 for the first record of the day. Katrina Jordan and Tiffany Fowler, both of Permian, each cleared 5-6 in the high jump to tie the existing record which is now shared by four. Lastly, Central's Amber Blaylock, a state runner-up last year, set the new mark in the 300 hurdles with a time of 44.98 seconds.... Cooper's Joey Heath won the shot put with a heave of 55-1 1/2. However, all six of his throws would have been good enough to take first place... Odessa's High-'s Brent Callaway placed first in the pole vault with a season-best of 16-9. He missed on all three attempts at 17-1...

Local Baseball Today

Midland Lee vs. Abilene Cooper

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Lee's Ernie Johnson Field.
Records: Lee is 16-7 overall and 3-5 in District 4-5A; Cooper is 13-8 and 2-5.
Coaches: Lee — Jesse Benavidez; Cooper — Jim Mavroulis.
Last Action: Lee defeated Odessa High 10-8 in a district game Tuesday.
Notes: How nutty has the 4-5A season been? Lee and Cooper, two perennial powerhouses in the district, are helping to hold down the district basement right now. The Rebels left the Cougars alone in last place by defeating the Bronchos. After suffering through its most humbling district defeat of the season five days earlier, a 9-2 loss to cross-town rival Midland High, Lee picked up where it left off offensively against OHS. Ryan Klatt, Matt Whitaker and Kevin Crawford, who figured to carry the Rebels at the plate, all did their jobs, combining for seven hits and eight RBIs. Lee erupted for six runs in the sixth for the win. Senior right-hander Aaron Erdwrum earned the win with a clutch relief performance, throwing three innings for the victory... The last time Lee and Cooper met, Whitaker had a career day, hitting for the cycle and driving in seven runs, but it couldn't keep the Rebels from losing 10-9. Erdwurm was the starting pitcher in that game, lasting only three innings in taking the loss.
Next Action: Lee has a bye Tuesday before going on the road for a district game at Abilene High next Saturday at 2 p.m.

Midland High at Abilene High

When: 2 p.m.
Where: Abilene High's Blackburn Field.
Records: Midland High is 17-9 overall and 5-3 in District 4-5A; Abilene High is 12-8 and 6-2.
Coaches: Midland High — Barry Russell; Abilene High — Jim Reese.
Last Action: Midland High lost to Odessa Permian 13-7 in a district game Tuesday.
Notes and quotes: Now is the time for Midland High to show if it is the rock-solid contender which won five straight district games in convincing fashion or a stumbling team which somehow always finds a way to lose to Permian. First place Abilene High might be the worst opponent for the Bulldogs to face this weekend. Not only were the Eagles crushed by San Angelo Central 10-0 in a run-rule game on Tuesday (in a game which typifies the 4-5A season as well as any to date), but they were the team against whom Midland High started its winning streak with a 12-5 thumping at Zachery Field... Russell is worried only about his team taking care of its own business. "We'll be a lot more ready to compete against Abilene High," said Russell after the Permian loss. "I guarantee that." Russell said senior right-hander Joey Schlaffer will most likely start against the Eagles. Schlaffer beat the Eagles in the first inning, striking out nine in a complete game win, but struggled in relief against Permian, giving up five earned runs in one inning of work.
Next Action: Midland High will host San Angelo Central in a district game Tuesday at 4:30 p.m.

TENNIS: Lee's Hunt plays for third

(From 1C)

Wilson, who never really shows much emotion other than her trademark smile, looked forward to today's match against Choate, the defending District 4-5A champion.

"I think it should be pretty exciting," Wilson said. "Tomorrow is mostly going to be a mental thing. I'm going to have to be mentally tough."

MHS coach Tom Heiting believes that Wilson's calmness on the court will help her in the championship match.

"I think our chances are better than 50-50. I have a lot of confidence that Toffee can be successful tomorrow against Choate," Heiting said. "The key is for her to maintain her consistency on the ground and have a good percentage with first service points.

"I also believe that Toffee has the mental stability to succeed. I think Toffee is more mentally relaxed that Choate. Toffee doesn't get upset with what happens on the court."

Overall, Heiting was all smiles with his team's performance in the district tournament.

"It was very pleasing with how the other kids stepped up and took the seeds to the distance and how they took their matches to the wire," Heiting said.

One of those matches that could have turned into a big upset was when Midland High's Travis Vandergriff fought head-to-head against No. 2 seed Chuck Haddox from Abilene Cooper before falling 7-6 (5), 6-1.

"Haddox didn't know what hit him," Heiting said. "Travis was a good example of kids stepping up for us. Haddox was Cooper's No. 1 player and Travis was our No. 6."

Heiting added that if his Bulldogs maybe had gotten a point here and a point there, then there could've been a possibility that Wilson could've had company in today's play.

"MHS did exactly what I thought it would do," Heiting said. "I think the way our team played says a lot about our program and how much we've improved since the fall."

After surviving a three-set match against Abilene High's Wes Longacre (6-4, 4-6, 6-1), Lee's Hunt cruised into the semifinals after a 6-1, 6-3 win over Odessa Permian's Keary Baillio. Hunt would run into a speed bump, however, in the semis with a 6-1, 6-3 loss to Haddox.

Even though Hunt has to get into a playback to have a chance for regionals, Lee coach Steve Buck said anything can happen.

"Sometimes it's not always good to win in the semifinals. Sometimes losing can motivate someone for a playback," Buck said. "I think Wes' chances are good tomorrow. It was uneventful today but it can be very interesting tomorrow, and with playback, it changes everything."

Elsewhere around district play, Permian's girls doubles team of Beverly Dawson and Tisha Cocoran, the No. 2 seeded duo, reached the championship with a 6-3, 6-3 win over Central's Emiliee Black and Emily Voss, the No. 4 squad. Dawson and Cocoran face Abilene Cooper's team of Lacy Jackson and Andi Wildner.

In boys singles play, Central's Todd Petty faces Haddox for the championship. Petty survived a tough match against Cooper's Cole 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

For the boys doubles title, Permian's Tobias Heiler and Clayton Morgan go up against Abilene's Mitch Aston and Cody Chapman.

Stanton, Iraan teams capture track titles

Staff Report

STANTON — Stanton and Iraan won District 6-2A track titles here Friday as the Stanton boys posted a 216-180 1/2 victory over Iraan, but the Iraan girls had 266 points to spill Stanton 266-169.

The Stanton boys qualified 13 individuals and two relays to the Class 2A Region I track meet in Abilene in two weeks as Tyron Davis led the way with three victories, winning the long jump, 110 hurdles and 200.

Felipe Bernal of Iraan set a shot put record with a 54-10 3/4 while Van Horn's Walt Hale set a new district standard in the 3200 with a 10:29.66.

The Iraan girls also got three wins from Brittney Lanehart as she won the high jump, triple jump and long jump.

The Stanton girls qualified six individuals and three relays for the Abilene meet. Rachel Madison set a record in the 300 hurdles with a 48.72

Rangerettes roll

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood High softball team forced a playoff for the top seed from District 4-3A with a 13-3 win over Colorado City Friday afternoon. The Rangerettes won in only five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Katie Walker was the winning pitcher, striking out five, and also had a pair of hits including a double and drove in two runs. Kim Mauldin had two hits and drove in two runs while Gillian Danley had two hits, including a double.

Greenwood, 14-12 overall and 3-1 in district, will host Kermit Monday at 5 p.m. in a game to determine the district's top playoff seed.

Angels leave Wichita with 10-1 pounding

Staff Report

WICHITA, Kan. — The Matts that the Midland Angels threw out at the Wichita Wranglers Friday night hardly said welcome.

Pitcher Matt Wise and catcher Matt Curtis provided more than the Wranglers could handle, with Wise throwing a three-hitter over eight innings and Curtis driving in four runs, including a three-run home run to lead the Angels past Wichita 10-1 to end their first road trip of the year.

Wise had his second win of the season over Wichita to improve to 2-0, allowing only a run in the sixth. By that time, the Angels had already built up a comfortable lead, thanks largely to Curtis.

The catcher drove in Midland's first run of the game in the first, with a loop single to drive home Norm Hutchins, as the Angels took a 2-0 lead. Chuck Abbott led off the third with a homer off Wichita starter and loser Robert Toth to stretch the lead to 3-0, but that was only a small step toward the big fifth inning.

Hutchins, Abbott and Troy Glaus had consecutive singles to bring home a run before Curtis hit a shot over the right-center field fence off Toth to make it 7-0 and take the Wranglers out of the game. It was the third three-run homer Curtis hit in the series. Toth retired the next three batters to get out of the inning, but he didn't return and the damage had already been done.

The Wranglers scored their only run off Wise in the sixth when they loaded the bases and brought in a run on a groundout by Jimmie Byington. The Angels added a pair of runs in the eighth on an RBI triple by Jason Herrick and a single by Abbott.

NOTES: Abbott and Curtis share the longest active hitting streak on the team at nine games each. Chris Norton, who entered the game with a nine-game hitting streak of his own, lost his chance to extend it to double digits when he was ejected in the first inning for arguing a strikeout call... The Angels return home to Christensen Stadium today for a five-game series against Western Division leaders the San Antonio Missions at 7 p.m. Midland will send right-hander Brian Cooper (1-1, 6.88 ERA) to the mound against left-hander Ted Lilly (0-1, 1.89).

Astros edge Expos; Rangers get over O's

Associated Press

HOUSTON — John Halama got his first major league victory on his fourth try and Craig Biggio drove in two runs with a homer and a double Friday night, leading the Houston Astros over the Montreal Expos 5-3.

Houston broke a 2-2 tie with two runs in the fifth off Dustin Hermanson (1-2), helping drop Montreal to 4-11. The Expos made three errors — two by third baseman Shane Andrews — leading to two unearned runs.

Halama (1-1), who lowered his ERA from 9.45 to 7.08, allowed two runs and five hits in seven innings with five strikeouts and one walk. He struggled in fourth, allowing both runs, but otherwise pitched with command.

Billy Wagner got three straight outs for his fourth save.

With the game 2-all in the fourth, Tim Bogar singled, Halama sacrifice and Biggio doubled in a run. Hermanson followed with a wild pitch and Biggio scored on Derek Bell's sacrifice fly.

Houston added a run in the seventh when Derek Bell reached base on Andrews' second error and scored on Sean Berry's double. Rondell White hit an RBI triple off Mike Magnante in the eighth.

Hermanson gave up four runs and five hits in six innings, struck out seven and walked three.

Rangers 6, Orioles 4

ARLINGTON — Mark McLemore's RBI double keyed a six-run third inning as the Texas Rangers extended their winning streak to five games with a victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Roger Pavlik (1-1) pitched 3 1-3 innings of one-hit relief after replacing Rangers starter Darren Oliver in the fourth.

John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his third save as Texas won for the seventh time in eight games. At 10-4, the Rangers matched the second-best start in franchise history.

Rafael Palmeiro drove in two runs for the Orioles, who dropped their third straight.

Palmeiro's two-run double in the third gave the Orioles a 2-0 lead, but the Rangers chased starter Scott Erickson (3-1) with eight hits in the third.

Tom Goodwin opened the third with a single and scored on McLemore's double to make it 2-1. Juan Gonzalez, Ivan Rodriguez, Lee Stevens and Kevin Elster added RBI singles in the inning, and Erickson was done.

innings Tuesday, finally broke its scoring drought when it tied the game in the fifth. Andrea Rodriguez walked and Underwood singled. Rodriguez tied it when she eventually scored on an error.

"We're pretty exicted to play another game," Young said. "We've got a lot better ball club than we've been showing."

What made the 14th inning uprising possible was the heroics of freshman pitcher Mandy Hacker, who gutted it out the whole way for the victory. Hacker struck out seven and went the distance although she surrendered 13 hits.

"She didn't seem to be real tired and I didn't see any problems," said Young of his freshman pitcher. "I think she had as good of stuff in the 14th as she had in the first."

The Lady Rebels will play a school from the Lubbock area next Friday or Saturday in the first round of the playoffs.

GROUPS: Students discuss race candidly

(From 1C)

sion and limitations — among the issues that surfaced at President Clinton's town hall meeting on race and sports in Houston on Tuesday.

Art Taylor, of Boston's Center for the Study of Sport in Society, is bothered by such ethnic groupings in high school sports. While the situation isn't universal, he says, Elsik is not unique.

"We are in a separatist phase in this country that goes way beyond sports," Taylor says.

"Sports seems to be (a manifestation) of racial separatism. I think it's problematic, because I think sports is a great way to be with other people. It's self-defeating if the teams are not diverse. There may be some very good players who are able to be on that team who don't feel comfortable until that (separatism) is broken through."

Many in the Elsik sports community, especially those already on the elite teams, disagree.

Gathered in a classroom just before gym, members of the girls' basketball team consider why their team is all African-American, except for one white player.

Confident and gracious, they are this year's celebrities, winners of the 1998 state championship. But they agree with each other that in addition to ability, race probably determined who tried out for their team.

"I think it has a lot to do with your environment," says Tylon Harris, 15, choosing her words carefully. "I don't want to — to be racial. But say, you're black, and your father loved basketball." It's natural, she says, to choose the sport that your family and community adore.

Different cultures, Harris says — and she stresses that this is her own view — are attracted to different sports. "You know, black people like to be more physical" in sports, she says. "Basketball and football are more physical."

But Heather Lawrence, 17, argues that social barriers keep Elsik's teams ethnically separated.

"Say, for instance, we have a Hispanic girl on our team," Lawrence says. "I don't think she feels like she fits in. We all feel more comfortable, because we're from the same background. We communicate better. It's chemistry — we have chemistry."

How to explain then, the widespread acceptance of Daniell Nottebart, the sole white player? Wedged leisurely between two teammates, 15-year-old Nottebart says she feels perfectly comfortable on the team.

"But she's an honorary African-American," cracks 16-year-old Teombi Batiste, to laughter from her teammates.

Coach Laura Dawson, also Anglo, is openly adored by the players, some of whom linger after the meeting to tell her their personal news.

The question of separatism on sports teams makes Dawson uneasy.

"I don't see color, I see athletes. I see my kids. I am as white as you are," she tells a white visitor. "And we don't have any communication problems" on the team.

It's culture, more than skin color, that most strongly influences sports selection, other Elsik athletes say.

But the cultural factors vary considerably.

Eighteen-year-old Ola Kunle Oladuni and 17-year-old Gideon Bison, both Nigerian, say they're among just a handful of non-Latinos who play varsity soccer. Nigerians are just as passionate about soccer as Latinos, the young men say. But their style of play is different, as are their parents' expectations.

Nigerian immigrants, many of whom came to Houston for higher education in recent years, are strict and often don't let their kids play after-school sports at all, Oladuni says.

And those kids who may play don't relate to the soccer played in the Americas.

"It's the style of play," Oladuni says. "The aggressiveness is less here. So if you play rough you don't fit in."

Oladuni and Bison also have a theory about why so few whites at Elsik play soccer: North Americans, they speculate, don't like running around in the sun.

Student government leaders Jana Sze and Roni Dagupta, both 17, think the ethnic breakdown of Elsik sports teams reflects culture and economics.

"Look at the parents," Sze, the child of Chinese immigrants from Hong Kong, says of Asian students. "They're foreign. They don't care about sports. They just want the grades."

Realizing that extracurricular activities can help in college admissions, some Asian parents are beginning to loosen their restrictions, Sze says.

But they still favor noncontact sports, such as tennis, "so they leave your brain intact," Sze says. They also want sports their kids can excel in, and possibly use for scholarships.

"They know their kids are not going to be in the NBA," Sze adds dryly.

Economics, both student leaders say, is another issue. Swimming and tennis, previously white-dominated sports, require expensive lessons and facilities, whereas soccer and basketball can be practiced from childhood regardless of economics.

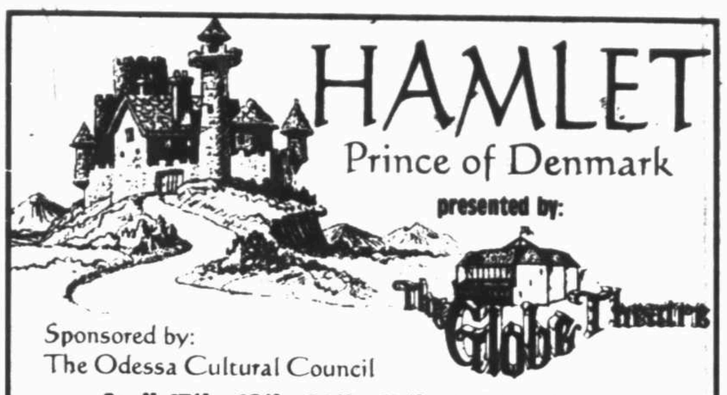

Chinese-American tennis star Michael Chang definitely inspired the recent boom in Asian tennis playing, both agree.

Like many others interviewed, Sze and Dagupta say they don't consider the ethnic exclusivity of many sports at their school a problem.

Over the years, teams probably will integrate naturally, says Dagupta, an Indian on the mostly white varsity swim team.

Principal Runnels and coach Dawson also discount worries that the ethnic separation reflects a problem.

Penn State's Curtis Enis (39), shown running away from Purdue defenders, may be the first running back taken in today's NFL draft, but he won't go before the fifth pick overall.

Manning goes first; 'Boys take Wistrom

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK — The Indianapolis Colts earned the first pick in the NFL draft by losing 13 games. The San Diego Chargers lost 12, but needed to trade to get the second pick.

No matter how they got there, the Colts and Chargers will take the same path when they open the NFL draft on Saturday — each will grab a potential franchise quarterback.

The choice: Peyton Manning, with the great bloodlines and instinct, or Ryan Leaf, with the body of a tight end and the Roger Clemens arm. The book says Manning will be better right away and Leaf may be the better long-term prospect.

Here are some hints.

While Bill Polian, the Colts' new president, won't disclose his choice, Jim Mora, the team's new coach, was in New Orleans for 10 1/2 seasons. Manning's father Archie, a great quarterback who spent his career on awful Saints teams, was the color broadcaster for the team and Peyton actually ran the Saints' scout team occasionally.

"I know Archie well and I know Peyton," Mora says. "He has everything you'd want in a quarterback and he's way ahead of most coming out of college."

Polian probably will heed his coach and take PEYTON MANNING, qb, Tennessee.

■ AP Mock Draft

The rest of the picks

2, SAN DIEGO — "I've never picked this high," says Bobby Beathard, the quirky San Diego GM who built three Super Bowl teams in Washington and another with the Chargers by trading away first-round picks for second rounders. He's lucky no one took him up on that when he tried it last year — the Chargers started in third position and Beathard was able to get them here by trading with Arizona. The only way he doesn't take RYAN LEAF, qb, Washington State, is if the Colts do. Then he takes Manning.

3, ARIZONA — The Cards have decided Jake Plummer is their quarterback of the future so they take ANDRE WADSWORTH, de, Florida State, considered the most talented all-around player in the draft. But these are the Cardinals and who knows what owner Bill Bidwill will do to save money, like trade down to avoid having to pay big bucks.

4, OAKLAND — The Raid-uhs, as Al Davis calls his team, have won Super Bowls with cornerbacks like Willie Brown, Michael Haynes and Lester Hayes. The perfect fit is CHARLES WOODSON, cb, Michigan, the Heisman Trophy winner.

5, CHICAGO — Not only are the Bears bad, but they pick fifth in a draft with four impact players. They might try to deal up for Wadsworth or down to a team that wants Curtis Enis or Randy Moss. CURTIS ENIS, rb, Penn State.

6, ST. LOUIS — Dick Vermeil was stuck with Lawreece Phillips. He won't saddle himself with Randy Moss, another player with a troubled history. KEITH BROOKING, lb, Georgia Tech.

7, NEW ORLEANS — Beggars can't be choosers. RANDY MOSS, wr, Marshall. Maybe Mike Ditka can browbeat him into utilizing his talent.

8, DALLAS — Let's see Jerry Jones make something out of a high pick. GRANT WISTROM, de, Nebraska.

9. JACKSONVILLE — The Jaguars could package this pick they got from Buffalo for Rob Johnson in a deal for Enis. If not, FRED TAYLOR, rb, Florida.

10. BALTIMORE — A team that's drafted decently since it moved from Cleveland. Can trade down with Giants, who want KEVIN DYSON, wr, Utah, or take Dyson themselves.

11. PHILADELPHIA — The Eagles have used four first-round picks this decade on offensive linemen and still have one of the worst fronts in the NFL. KYLE TURLEY, ot, San Diego State.

12, ATLANTA — Dan Reeves has to turn a run-and-shoot offensive line into a run-blocking one and TRA THOMAS, ot, Florida State.

13, CINCINNATI — The Bengals always draft studs who flop until they leave town. Is FLOZELLE ADAMS, ot, Michigan State, the next Anthony Munoz?

14, CAROLINA — The Panthers are still negotiating with the Redskins over compensation for Sean Gilbert and this pick could be part of it. Try GREG ELLIS, de, North Carolina, if the Redskins don't get it. Or even if they do.

15, SEATTLE — They can use another offensive lineman. They take TAKEO SPIKES, lb, Auburn.

16, TENNESSEE — If VONNIE HOLLIDAY, dt, North Carolina, falls here, it will be hard for the Oilers to stay away.

17, CINCINNATI — This is the pick the Bengals got for Dan Wilkinson. They hope BRIAN SIMMONS, lb, North Carolina, is more consistent.

18. NEW ENGLAND — With six picks in the first three rounds, the Pats have the trading power to go up for Enis. Robert Edwards has a history of injuries so ... SHAUN WILLIAMS, s, UCLA.

19. MIAMI — Jimmy Johnson has drafted 12 good players in his first two years in Miami. He's not the primary need, but ROBERT EDWARDS, rb, Georgia, gives Jimmy the speed he loves to complement Karim Abdul-Jabbar.

20, DETROIT — The Lions have lacked a pass rush for years and still need a linebacker to replace Reggie Brown. LEONARD LITTLE, lb, Tennessee, gives them both.

21, MINNESOTA — The Vikings are desperate for a defensive back like DUANE STARKS, cb, Miami.

22, NEW ENGLAND — Try again to replace Curtis Martin. ROBERT HOLCOMBE, rb, Illinois.

23, TAMPA BAY — They got their receiver when they signed Bert Emanuel. TERRY FAIR, cb, Tennessee.

24, NEW YORK GIANTS — Could go up for Dyson or down for more picks. GERMANE CROWELL, wr, Virginia, although he has flaws.

25. JACKSONVILLE — If it falls this way (and it probably won't), the Jags get what they need — JASON PETER, dt, Nebraska.

26, PITTSBURGH — ANTHONY SIMMONS, lb, Clemson, is described by one scouting guide as "a hit-and-run guy." Does that describe a Pittsburgh linebacker?

27. KANSAS CITY — Need a running back but have had awful luck drafting one. VICTOR RILEY, ot, Auburn, could atone for the flop of Trezelle Jenkins, the OT they took No. 1 three years ago.

28. SAN FRANCISCO — They've drafted late forever, one sign of a good team. They could trade down or take ALAN FANECA, g, LSU.

29. GREEN BAY — Another team that knows what it's doing down here. Faneca fits. So does COREY CHAVOUS, db, Vanderbilt, on a team that needs depth in the secondary.

30. DENVER — Terrell Davis in the sixth round in 1995 was one of the great finds. One of their busts was Ted Gregory of Syracuse, but it won't keep them from taking TEBUCKY JONES, s, SYRACUSE.

DRAFT: '98 pool is deep

(From 1C)

ond- or third-rounder to move up for Kevin Dyson of Utah, the receiver he wants.

"I'd say there are at least 100 guys who will be good productive NFL players," says Gil Brandt, the NFL's draft consultant. "It's a deep draft with a lot of good players."

An indication of that is the trade Thursday between Carolina and Miami in which the Dolphins surrendered their first pick in 2000 for Carolina's second this year, 43rd overall. That's where Dolphins coach Jimmy Johnson excels at finding players and it's where there are a lot of good ones available.

Who's to say, for example, that safety Tebucky Jones, center Olin Kreutz, offensive lineman Alan Faneca or wide receiver Marcus Nash won't be stars even if they're taken in the second round? A quarterback named Brett Favre was the 33rd player taken in 1991, early in that second round by Atlanta — then traded the next year to Green Bay.

But the first round is still the attention getter.

After the first four, the player that could start the action is Curtis Enis, the Penn State running back.

Jacksonville and New England would like him and both have multiple first-round picks That gives them the ability to trade with the Bears, who like North Carolina defensive end Greg Ellis or Auburn linebacker Takeo Spikes, who should be available a little lower.

But Jacksonville has tried already to move up and been met with what coach Tom Coughlin considers outrageous demands — prompted in part by the two No. 1 picks and players that San Diego gave Arizona to move from third to second.

"They don't even bat an eye. It might as well be your whole draft and half your roster," Coughlin said after calling a couple of teams that draft high.

As for Moss, he seems to be suffering from the Lawrence Phillips syndrome — Phillips being the troubled Nebraska running back who was more trouble for the Rams when they took him two years ago with the sixth overall pick.

He presents a particular dilemma for Dallas, which picks eighth, needs a receiver to complement Michael Irvin but has had more than its share of off-field problems.

"I really won't know where I am until we're right in there at that particular time on draft day," says owner Jerry Jones, who will make the final decision. "With his talent, he's somebody that we have to give a lot of consideration."

That's true for others as well.

"He definitely has the talent," Jeff Fisher, the Oilers' coach, said of Moss. "He's an extremely talented athlete who was a very productive receiver at Marshall. And, yes, he's one of those players along with others that we have to evaluate."

The problem for Moss is that in this draft, there are so many players to evaluate.

Raiders let McGlockton go to Kansas City

By Doug Tucker
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Chiefs' defense, already one of the better ones in the NFL, added a new centerpiece on Friday when the Oakland Raiders declined to match the offer sheet to nose tackle Chester McGlockton.

A day before signing the sometimes underachieving 320-pounder, the Chiefs signed former Pro Bowl defensive end Leslie O'Neal, who has been one of the NFL's finest pass rushers during an 11-year career with San Diego and St. Louis.

McGlockton, who has 39 1/2 career sacks, signed his offer sheet Thursday night just minutes before the 10:59 p.m. deadline, bolstering a unit which already featured nine-time All Pro linebacker Derrick Thomas and allowed the fewest points in the NFL last season.

"It's very exciting. I can hardly wait to get started," said Chiefs' defensive coordinator Gunther Cunningham. "But you've got to develop your chemistry. Last year was last year. We're going to have to build for this year."

Beefing up their interior defense, which allowed an average of just 14.5 points during a 13-3 campaign last year, should let the Chiefs concentrate on finding a halfback in the draft to replace the retired Marcus Allen.

For losing McGlockton, the Raiders will get a compensatory pick in Saturday's draft, the 31st overall, as well as the Chiefs' second rounder, the 59th overall. They also have their own first and second picks.

"We're going to take the draft picks and move forward," Raiders coach Jon Gruden said.

The rap on McGlockton has been that he was inconsistent and moody.

But Cunningham and head coach Marty Schottenheimer are confident they can draw out his full potential. Cunningham coached McGlockton in Oakland before he joined the Chiefs' staff.

"I coached Chester with the Raiders and I coached Leslie when I was at San Diego and I know them both as good people and good players," Cunningham said.

O'Neal, who turns 34 next month, may be used primarily in passing situations. McGlockton will help plug the middle and provide the only thing missing from last year's defense, consistent pressure up the middle.

The Chiefs signed O'Neal to a free agent contract on Thursday and spent Friday hoping the Raiders would let them have McGlockton.

"You take a guy like Chester and myself, and Derrick Thomas, guys who can get to the passer and play the run — now all of a sudden, who are you going to double team?" said O'Neal, a six-time Pro Bowler. "It could be fun."

O'Neal has 122.5 sacks in his 11-year career in San Diego and St. Louis. He sacked quarterback Elvis Grbac four times during a Chiefs' victory over the Rams last year.

"This defense was very good last year," he said. "My deal is just to come in and add a little bit, a few more sacks, a few more plays, maybe help a couple of guys get better. It's not a matter of me coming in and changing things. This was a playoff team last year."

O'Neal said he doesn't care if the Chiefs ask him to play a limited role.

'Boys re-sign DB Williams

IRVING (AP) — Restricted free-agent safety Charlie Williams, entering his fourth season for the Dallas Cowboys, has signed a two-year contract believed to be worth $1 million with the team.

Williams, who will get a chance to compete with second-year safety Omar Stoutmire for the starting free safety position, established himself last season as special teams performer.

Terms of Williams' deal Thursday were not released, but were believed to include a signing bonus of about $300,000. He will count about $400,000 against the Cowboys' salary cap this season.

"I believe I've got a legitimate shot to be a starter this year and I'm going into training camp like that," Williams said. "I know they have some concerns about me making mental mistakes, but I just have to work a lot harder at it.

"It's a matter of me getting repetitions in training camp," he said.

Brock Marion's signing of a three-year, free agent contract with Miami opened up the position for Williams.

Williams, who played receiver and safety at Bowling Green, was drafted by the Cowboys in the third round because of his abilities on special teams.

Switzer going to Hollywood

DALLAS (AP) — Barry Switzer's critics will say he's still acting up, but now he'll get paid for it in the wake of his Dallas Cowboys' coaching stint.

A talk show and movie deal could even result from Barry Switzer's coaching days, that included personality clashes and some off-field misbehavior.

The former coach of "America's Team," is heading to Hollywood and has plans to portray a coach on HBO's Arli$$ and in a movie about Texas high school football, according to The Dallas Morning News' Friday editions.

His agent reports he also has plans for a film version of Switzer's autobiography, Bootlegger's Boy, which chronicles the coach's rise from poverty in Arkansas to the pinnacle of college football with three national championships at the University of Oklahoma.
