Police to question teen-ager in death

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Police hoped to question a 16-year-old boy today about his stepfather's shooting death Wednesday at their west Pampa trailer home, but the youth may be released before the end of the day, authorities said.

Police Chief Robert Eberz said the youth, N. Mike Patterson of 533 N. Doyle St., was being held today at the Potter County Juvenile Detention Center in Amarillo in connection with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

The Patterson youth officially hasn't been detained in the early-morning slaying of his stepfather, Edward Allan Patterson, 38. Patterson was shot to death early Wednesday in his mobile home at Doyle Street and Montagu Avenue.

Gray County Juvenile Probation Officer Ed Barker said today that authorities currently have no evidence linking the youth to the death and, therefore, no grounds to hold him in connection with the homicide.

"It's still under investigation, is what I'm trying to say," Barker said late this morning.

Barker and Pampa police Detective Terry Cox, the department's juvenile officer, traveled to Odessa Thursday to bring the youth back to the Panhandle.

Police found Mr. Patterson's body slumped over with numerous gunshot wounds to the head at about 2 p.m. Wednesday, after being notified by the man's supervisor, Earl Tarbet of Enron Corp. Tarbet was the first to find the body and told police that his employee's company truck was missing.

Patterson's son was taken into custody about five hours later at a Monahans motel, while apparently en route to see relatives in Pecos, authorities said. Monahans Police Chief David Mills said the teen-ager was driving the missing Enron truck when officers spotted him.

Eberz said today that the youth had a pet parrot with him when police found him at the motel and apparently drove to Monahans with the parrot in the truck.

After spending the night at the Ward County Law Enforcement Center in Monahans, Mills said, Patterson was transferred to the Odessa Juvenile Detention Center, where Barker and Cox picked him up Thursday. They arrived in Amarillo at about 2 a.m. today, Barker said.

Barker briefed Eberz about the journey late this morning, but Eberz was unavailable for comment on their discussion.

Barker said the Potter County juvenile center requires a detention hearing within 24 hours of the time a youth is taken into custody. He said no hearing has been scheduled, and "it appears there may not be any hearing."

Without a hearing, he said, the youth will be released from the center, if he agrees to stay at a youth home in Amarillo or goes to live with his mother in Midland.

The teen also may face an appearance in juvenile court on the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle accusation, Barker said.

Barker said the teen-ager denies stealing the truck.

"He has a totally different story about it altogether, which I probably can't go into with you right now," Barker said.

Police still were reluctant today to release many details about the shooting. Eberz said detectives now believe a pistol may have been used but don't know the size of the gun.

"We'll have no way of knowing until we get the lab tests back," Eberz said.

Police took six or seven guns from the home Wednesday, all loaded, but don't know if any were used to kill Patterson. The confiscated weapons include three pistols, two shotguns and a rifle, said Lt. Roy Denman, who is heading the investigation.

Chief Eberz said that he doesn't know when de-

Chautauqua celebration biggest yet

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

Linda Nowell could describe Monday's annual Chautauqua celebration at Central Park with one word: "Big."

Nowell, chairman of the 1987 Chautauqua, says the sixth annual end-of-summer funfest will feature about 80 craft, food, activity and information booths filling the park on Duncan Street. She believes this is the biggest collection of craftsmen and organizations in the festival's history.

And it's growing. Nowell said Thursday that one food booth, El Mejor Mexican food, and four new crafts booths — New Life Worship Center, Karen Young, the Doodling Dodgers and J.B.'s 24 Carats — have been added to the list since the official "map" was released last week.

"Diverse" might be an appropriate word, too.

The entries range from mariachi music to holiday handcrafts, from crime dogs to exotic dogs, from children's activities to tugs-of-war.

Nowell reports that this year's "main stage" will feature more outstanding local area performers, including the Pampa High School Show Choir, the Los Caballeros Mariachi Band of Amarillo, and a slew of area rock and country-western bands.

Robber takes hostages in Cactus store, dies in fire

CACTUS (AP) — A man was found dead inside a grocery store after he tried to rob it, took four hostages, shot at police and then set the store on fire, authorities say.

"This is the worst thing that's ever happened in Cactus in my 11 years as city secretary and probably since we were founded back in 1969," Glennis Ruby said after the Thursday incident in this Panhandle town.

Authorities said the as-yet unidentified Hispanic male entered the Cactus Service Co. in this town of about 1,000 shortly before 10 a.m., fired several shots and ordered the clerk to give him the store's money.

Mrs. Ruby, who works at City Hall, told the Borger News-Herald she got a phone call about 10 a.m. from store clerk Maria Herrera, 23, after convincing the man that someone at City Hall could open the safe.

Herrera said the man had a gun, a pocketful of bullets and a large knife and was extremely upset, according to Mrs. Ruby. She said he spoke no English.

"I've never done anything like this before," Mrs. Ruby said. "I tried to talk to him on the telephone, and I didn't do a bit of good."

Meanwhile, five Moore County deputies, two Department of Public Safety troopers and a Texas Ranger staked out the store, Moore County Chief Deputy Z.Q. Bingham said.

Two men and an elderly woman in the store when the gunman entered escaped a short time later, and clerk Herrera escaped about 10:30, he said.

After a three-hour standoff, the man set fire to the store using matches and "anything else he could find," Bingham said. The man shot out the store's front doors and began firing at the officers outside the store, but authorities did not return fire.

When the gunfire stopped, and the fire was extinguished, the officers were able to enter the partially destroyed store, where they found the gunman dead, officials said. The suspect's body was sent to Amarillo for an autopsy, Bingham said.

"The smoke suffocated him or maybe he shot himself," Bingham said.

Forest fires force 11,000 from homes

By PETE BROWN
Associated Press Writer

Wildfires raged on 682 square miles in seven Western states today, threatening valuable timberlands, closing campgrounds to Labor Day vacationers and scorching giant California redwoods in one of the worst forest fire outbreaks in decades.

The fires in northern California, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Wyoming, Arizona and Washington have destroyed at least 42 homes and injured more than 50 people while consuming 437,000 acres of tinder-dry brush and timber.

Nearly 11,000 people in California and Oregon have been evacuated, authorities said, and the fires are costing the government $3 million to $5 million a day to fight.

"This is perhaps the worst fire situation we have ever had at one time," said George Dunlop, assistant U.S. secretary of agriculture, at the Boise (Idaho) Interagency Fire Center, which coordinates federal firefighting nationwide.

Most of the blazes are believed to have been touched off by lightning.

More than 18,000 firefighters, some from as far away as the Northeast and Deep South, battled countless hotspots but were so shorthanded that some blazes were allowed to burn unchecked.

The firefighters include a contingent of volunteers from the Panhandle.

"They will be fighting some of them until the snow flies," said George Leonard, associate chief of the U.S. Forest Service, said in Boise.

Smoke hung heavy over parts of the West. At Yosemite National Park, motorists were advised to drive with their headlights on in daylight. Oregon officials issued an air pollution health alert for the state's southwest valleys.

In California, where 22 counties were under a state of emergency today, forestry officials said the outbreak was the worst since the summer of 1977, when blazes blackened more than 500,000 acres.

By late Thursday:

- Nearly 13,000 firefighters battled more than 1,300 fires in California covering 334,000 acres from the Oregon line to the Mojave Desert. About 8,000 people were evacuated. At least 52 people were injured and 32 homes lost.
- Fire covered 67,000 acres in Oregon, and at least 2,800 people had been evacuated. At least 10 homes were destroyed and seven firefighters hurt. The number of firefighters reached 3,900.
- More than 31,000 acres were burning in Idaho; only 13,000 acres were being fought. An 18,000-acre blaze 29 miles east of Cascade was being allowed to burn because of the high cost of fighting it.
- Firefighters in Washington mopped up a 355-acre fire north of Spokane, and controlled an 80-acre blaze that forced the evacuation of campers in the Cascade Mountains.
- A 540-acre brush fire was contained in central Montana, and a 175-acre forest fire was out of control near Townsend.
- An 80-acre fire in Wyoming was allowed to burn near Polecat Creek, near the southern gateway to Yellowstone Park.
- Three fires totaling nearly 3,900 acres burned in Arizona.

In California, about 4,000 people were evacuated from communities in Tuolumne County because of a 100,000-acre cluster of fire near the northern gateway to Yesemite National Park. Three homes and one trailer were lost.

Many campsites at national parks were closed because of smoke and fire, and Labor Day vacationers were advised to change their plans.

Saudi ship hit in gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — An unidentified Saudi Arabian vessel was attacked and some of its crewmen killed or wounded in the Persian Gulf, shipping sources said today. There was no official confirmation of the report.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said two people were killed and seven wounded in the attack late Thursday.

The reported attack occurred as another convoy of U.S. warships and Kuwaiti tankers steamed south through the gulf. It was the latest incident in fighting between Iran and Iraq that has damaged at least 20 ships since Saturday.

Meanwhile, the Kuwaiti Defense Ministry said a long-range missile crashed at 4 a.m. today into southern Kuwait, close to the Al-Ahmadi oil terminal, where two reflagged tankers flying U.S. flags were anchored for loading.

No damage to the ships or casualties were reported, and it was unclear whether the missile was related to the gulf war between Iran and Iraq.

The Kuwait News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, quoted a Defense Ministry source as saying the origin of the unidentified missile was unknown. Stray missiles have often struck Kuwait during the 7-year-old gulf war.

Nowell says she expects a heavy crowd of Pampans to stroll through the park at this year's Chautauqua.

Pampa school children will be part of that crowd. A Pampa school spokesman confirmed that school will be dismissed Monday for Labor Day — despite the holiday's omission from the school calendar.

Another word might be "electrifying."

The city of Pampa, with donated labor and equipment by Larry Beck Electric Co., is installing new electrical lines in the park to provide electricity to the multitude of booths at the park.

Nowell said the new electricity will be funded through money raised from last year's Chautauqua celebration.

Each year, the Pampa Fine Arts Association takes the profits from the Labor Day festival and spends it on park improvements. That's how Central Park got its wooden "stage" and park benches.

Nowell said proceeds from this year's event could go for more trees in the Pampa park system or for another foot bridge across Red Deer Creek.

The fun begins with a bang early Monday when Pampa area runners and would-be's race in 5-kilometer and 1-mile runs sponsored by Coronado Community Hospital. Registration begins at 7 a.m. Monday at the corner of Cuyler-Mary Ellen and Georgia streets. The race begins at 8 a.m. Proceeds from the run will benefit the Pampa United Way. The run winners will be announced at 10:05 a.m.

While some Pampans will be out burning calories, others will be piling on pancakes the Pampa Soccer Association pancake breakfast from 7 to 10 a.m. near Georgia Street.

At 9 a.m. at the main stage the Rev. Darrel Cory, minister of evangelism and education at First Presbyterian Church, will give an invocation.

Emcee Danny Parkerson will then take Pampa parkgoers through a day of diverse entertainment. Among the local groups to perform are Pampa's Harvesters Four, a gospel quartet that won Pampa's Fourth of July Talent Search. Also scheduled are Pampa's rousing rock band Kickback, the Pampa country-western band Fencewalker, Jack Selby Fiddlers, the Los Caballeros Mariachi Band of Amarillo, The Campbells contemporary country group of Amarillo, Bill Bridgeman's Gloryland Band, the gospel group Living Water and the Tri-State Bludgrass express.

Also featured will be some of Pampa's most talented youth — Pampa High School Show Choir, PHS cheerleaders and Pampa Dust Devils gymnastics team, which will also have its popular dunking booth this year.

Eddie Burton will take a break from running sound for the other acts to perform some of his recorded gospel songs.

An unusual highlight of the main stage shows will be String Art, a unique blending of dulcimer and acoustic guitar. In the latter act, Esther Kreek, a research consultant in 19th century music at St. Joseph Museum in Kansas City, Mo., will blend her delicate dulcimer music with the acoustic guitar of Charles Pinzino, a Kansas City resident and former high school teacher who has been playing acoustic guitar for 20 years.

Kyukyu Kempo Karate of Pampa will also give several demonstrations of their martial arts skills.

In keeping with the educational theme of Chautauqua, there will be several informational exhibits ranging from Tralee Crisis Center to the Pampa school take-home computer program to Tough Love parental counseling group to Pampa's new Hospice Program.

Conner Hicks will chip arrowheads from flint with a deer horn at the White Deer Land Museum exhibit. The Pampa Fire Department will demonstrate a "jaws of life" rescue at its exhibit. The National Guard will bring a 40-foot trailer to allow festival-goers to try their aim at air rifle shooting.

The Pampa Garden Club will display pictures of such national garden clubs projects as landscaping, conservation, horticulture and botany.

For real tail-wagging variety, Pampans can visit with a friendly Brussels griffon, bichon frises or shar pei. Those are among the unique dogs at the Top O' Texas Kennel Club dog obedience display on the tennis court. The American Kennel Club registered pooches, plus breeds ranging from Santa schnausers and Wheaton terriers to dour English bulldogs, will go on display at 1 p.m. A dog obedience demonstration follows at 2 p.m.

By the way, Brussels griffons resemble pugs, bichon frises dogs are similar to poodles and shar peis are those famous saggy dogs.

Another famous dog will be McGruff the Crime Dog, who will offer tips on crime prevention and help with finger printing at the Pampa Police Department booth.

AMBUCS will begin its Tug-o-war contest at 10 a.m. along Red Deer Creek.

Dieters be warned — there will be a more abundant array of food booths this year. Before festival-goers will have digested their soccer pancakes, they will be tempted by stuffed baked potatoes, steak and sausage on sticks, hamburgers, soft drinks, lemonade, Gatorade, barbecue sandwiches, hot and corn dogs, and corn on the cob.

If there is any room for dessert, the celebration offers popcorn, cotton candy, fruit kabobs and cakes.

Children are sure to get worn out before they get bored with all the events geared toward them. The Pampa Classroom Teachers Association — just this once — will let students get back at them at the PCTA sponge throw booth. Gray County REACT will make balloon animals.

Pampa Gifed and Talented classes will paint faces while First Presbyterian Youth will make punk hair. First United Methodist Church will have a maze and a rice box. Briarwood Full Gospel Church and the Children's Chapel will share the good news with puppets and song.

The Gray County 4-H Horse Project will offer pony rides. Kids may also ride horse-drawn wagons.

People can play Bingo for baked goods at the St. Vincent's Home & School Association booth. Pampa Friends of the Library will tell stories and give out balloons.

Pampa Chautauqua celebrators will be asked to do their part in keeping Central Park clean.

tectives will question Patterson. He said he hopes the youth can be questioned sometime today.

The district attorney's office also has been brought in on the case, Barker said.

Barker said the teen-ager had been living with his stepfather in Pampa only a few months. His parents were divorced.

The slaying occurred six months to the day after Pampa's only other homicide this year. In that case, Jaime Garza Barrientes, 22, of 412 N. Somerville St., died from a single stab wound to the abdomen after confronting a peeping tom at his apartment building.

George Rodriguez, 17, of 420 N. Cuyler, is scheduled to go on trial next month on a charge that he murdered Barrientes.

anonymously, said they had no direct information on the reported attack on the Saudi ship. They said their registers indicated there were no tankers flying the Saudi flag in the gulf at the time, but that several supply vessels and other craft were sailing in the waterway.

The Spanish maritime radio network, Onda Pesquera, quoted a Spanish ship captain as saying a Saudi Arabian ship near his own in the gulf was "attacked and sunk by unspecified boats" late Thursday.

Iraq said Thursday its warplanes raided a tanker, and shipping sources said Iranian fighters on speedboats hit a Japanese tanker and an Italian motorship.

Since Saturday, when the so-called tanker war was renewed, fire from Iraqi warplanes or Iranian speedboats has hit at least 20 ships registered in nine different nations, according to gulf-based shipping sources.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said that number at least doubles the average for a month in 1986.

Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980.

Also Thursday, Britain reflagged its first Kuwaiti tanker, located off Khor Fakkan port on the Gulf of Oman. Sources in the United Arab Emirates said the 263,679-ton supertanker Al-Faiha, renamed the Tonbridge, will be accompanied at least partway up the gulf by British warships.

The United States has given its flag to 11 Kuwaiti vessels so the U.S. Navy can protect them from attacks by Iran, which regards Kuwait as an ally of Iraq.

On Thursday, Iran and Iraq reported air strikes on each other's territory, and Iraq claimed its gunners downed an Iranian plane.

Soldiers take control in Burundi

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Mutinous soldiers from the Central African nation of Burundi say they have ousted President Jean-Baptiste Bagaza, who was attending a conference in Canada, and set up a junta led by an army major.

Radio Burundi, monitored in Kenya, broadcast a communique Thursday from the Burundi army supreme office saying Maj. Pierre Buyoya was the new leader of a junta called the Military Committee for National Redemption.

"Bagaza is relieved of his duties as head of state, party and army," the radio said. The statement gave no reason for coup, except to say the actions were taken by "your soldiers, together with Burundi's gallant people, considering the state of the Bagaza leadership."

Schools coping with handful of AIDS cases

DALLAS (AP) — Texas school officials have taken careful note of Floridians' opposition to three children with the AIDS virus going to school and have taken steps to ensure a similar problem doesn't develop here.

A family with three hemophiliac children carrying the AIDS virus left Arcadia, Fla., last week after members of the community strongly opposed the children's attending school, and a suspicious fire later gutted their home.

"We do not want what happened in Florida to happen here," Kirk Lewis, administrative assistant at Pasadena Independent School District, said Thursday. "Education is the best way to deal with the problem."

So far, state school officials have had to deal with only a few AIDS cases. At least two children in Pasadena schools carry the AIDS virus or related symptoms, and a Midland elementary teacher resigned this year after testing positive for tne disease. In Dallas, an employee who carries the virus is working this year.

"Parents are concerned, but if we hadn't had discussions with the PTA on our policy dealing with AIDS, there would have been more concern," Lewis said.

School districts in Pasadena, Midland and Dallas have outlined policy procedures recommended by the National Centers for Disease Control, Texas Education Agency and the Texas Department of Health Services.

Under the guidelines, each AIDS case is handled individually, but the person carrying the virus must meet with a committee made up of school administrators and school health officials. The person's doctor must be present.

But Pasadena officials say a bill passed by Texas legislators this summer states that only a school's nurse be informed if a student or teacher has the AIDS virus.

The law went into effect Sept. 1. Lewis said school officials are trying to determine whether it will affect their policy.

PISD is planning to integrate AIDS education into their curriculum, adding information on the disease into science and health classes. Students in the sixth through the 12th grades will learn what the disease is and how one can contract and spread it, Lewis said.

In Dallas, a reviewing committee is charged with deciding the best course of action, said Rodney Davis, spokesman for the Dallas Independent School District.

"The National Centers for Disease Control determined AIDS is not spread by casual contact," Davis said. "So employees and children should be allowed to go school."

Educating the community on the AIDS issue also helped calm anxious parents in Midland when they learned this summer that a teacher had contracted the fatal disease.

Initially, some parents said all children and teachers should be tested for the AIDS virus. But following a public meeting held in June, most of those fears were put at ease, said Becky Ferguson, spokeswoman for Midland Independent School District.

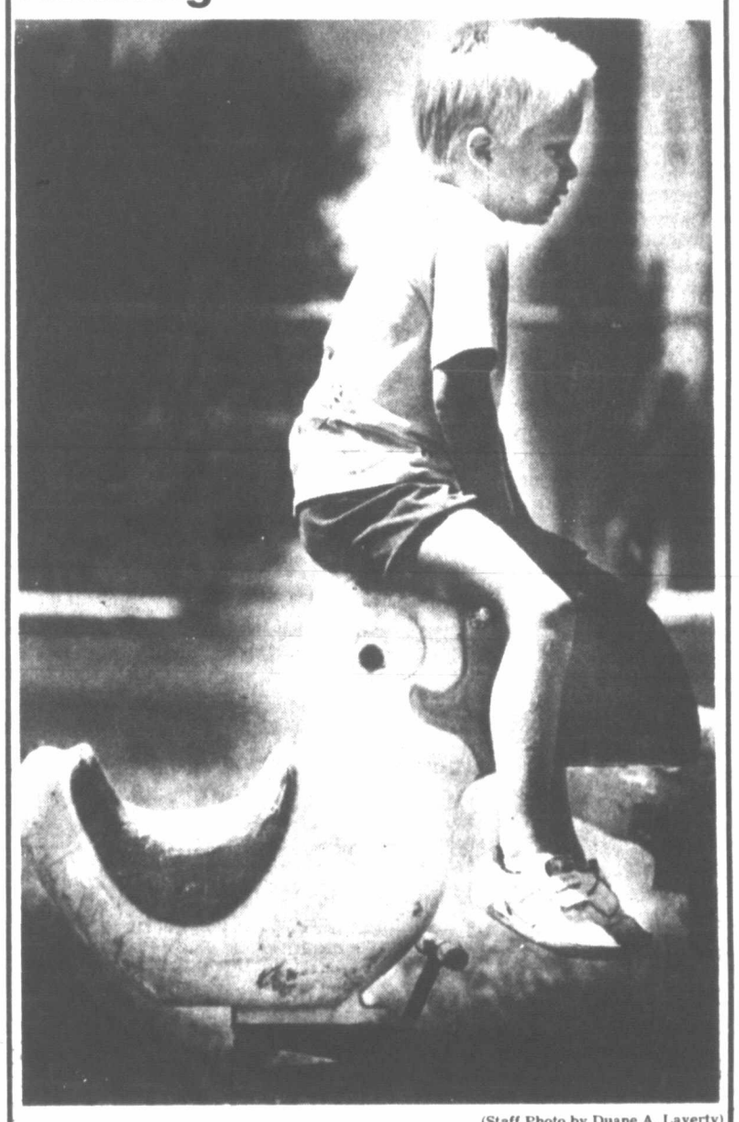

"We dealt with a rational group of people compared to the Florida situation," Ms. Ferguson said.

Midland ISD, along with a local hospital, is planning an AIDS symposium this month that will be open to the public, Ms. Ferguson said.

Last year, the Lubbock Independent School District implemented a homebound program for one student during the fall semester. The child, who tested positive for the AIDS virus, was admitted into a regular classroom after school officials approved their policy in December.

This year the child is now being tutored at home at his guardians' request.

Three maverick bids shock officials

DALLAS (AP) — To the surprise of many Texas officials, the Department of Energy's final list of contenders for the federal government's $4.4 billion "super collider" included three maverick bids from Liberty County, east of Houston.

The proposals were backed by seven members of a Liberty County church, the Ark Apostolic Revival Center in Nederland.

Rev. Phil Volk, the church's pastor and self-styled "spiritual leader" for the Liberty County proposals, said his group wasn't joking.

"I'm not blowing steam," he said. "We put a bid in. We're legitimate."

The bid was offered under the auspices of Major Tom Enterprises Inc., which Volk said would be the project's chief contractor. When the company isn't bidding for atom smashers, it sells irrigation systems and sprinklers.

Volk said he first had the idea to bid for the scientific facility in 1977 — four years before scientists first proposed the idea of a super collider.

"I am a pastor, and the Lord told me about it," Volk said. "I have it on paper. The Lord told me there would be a major plant in this area with work."

He admits that it wasn't until 1985 that he first heard official word about the super collider project, which would act like a giant "microscope" for scientists to probe the structure of the atom.

Volk said the chief reason for the Liberty County bids is the 20 percent unemployment in the area. The scientific facility would offer 3,500 construction jobs, 2,500 permanent operational jobs and a $275 million operating budget.

"It will lift our economy out of depression," Volk said. "You think 20 percent unemployment don't do a number on an area? I think you can understand the havoc we went through."

The Liberty County proposals to the federal government weren't expected by observers.

"These are maverick squared! They've come as a complete shock to everybody," said William Black, a Houston engineer.

Federal mediator asked to end turkey-leg flap

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The turkey-leg flap has gotten so out of hand that a federal mediator has been called in to help resolve the dispute between Bayfest '87 organizers and a Hispanic group.

Efrain V. Martinez, a conciliation specialist with the U.S. Justice Department, said Thursday he will try to find out if discrimination occurred when the League of United Latin American Citizens was allegedly told to sell tacos instead of turkey legs at this year's Bayfest celebration set for Sept. 25-27.

"We're the conciliation mediation arm of the Justice Department. Any time there are allegations of discrimination, we're obligated to respond," Martinez said from his Houston office.

The mediation process is non-binding and voluntary, Martinez said, adding that the mediator was called in by the state director for LULAC.

Joe Garcia De Lara, state director of LULAC in San Antonio, said he contacted the Justice Department to look into the dispute after reading about it in state and national newspapers.

John Perez, director of the Justice Department's Community Service Relations in Dallas Thursday confirmed De Lara had filed a complaint with his office alleging Bayfest had discriminated against LULAC.

Bayfest organizers are surprised a federal mediator had been brought into the turkey leg squabble, said Linda Walker, president of Bayfest Inc.

"We are unaware of the possiblity of a mediator coming in to resolve any conflict," Mrs. Walker said. "Whatever the issues are, I hope we don't lose sight of Bayfest's primary goal as a unifying community event."

De Lara said he hopes the conciliator doesn't conclude that Bayfest organizers discriminate in how they decide what food each group sells at the celebration.

"But it feels like discrimination. We just need it clarified," De Lara told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

The turkey-leg squabble began in July when LULAC Council No. 1 said its request to sell turkey legs at Bayfest '87 was turned down because festival organizers had a stereotypical attitude toward Hispanics.

Bayfest organizers told them to sell tacos instead, LULAC officals say.

Residents protest waste dump plans

LONE STAR (AP) — A congressman vowed to about 1,000 people rallying to protest plans for a waste-burning plant that he would do whatever it takes to keep the facility out of East Texas.

U.S. Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, said Thursday night he opposes the plant — proposed by Thermal Kinetics, a subsidiary of Lone Star Technologies of Dallas — because he is concerned it could threaten East Texans' health.

The congressman announced his opposition during a public protest meeting at the United Steel Workers Union Hall that attracted about 1,000 people. Critics say they are worried about the plant's potential health and transportation hazards.

Gramm to expedite Midland application

MIDLAND (AP) — The Permian Basin needs the economic diversification that an international trade zone would bring, Sen. Phil Gramm says.

The Republican senator said at a Thursday news conference he will try to speed up Midland Regional Airport's application for international trade zone status.

"This has been a successful concept elsewhere," Gramm said. "A new job base for the Permian Basin is vitally important."

In July, U.S. Customs granted the airport status as an international port of entry. That status allows passengers and cargo to enter the country through the airport.

International trade zone status would allow industries to ship goods in and out of the country through the airport.

The drinking bill with no teeth

Off Beat

By Jimmy Patterson

Well, our fearless Texas legislature has done it again!

Earlier this year they decided it wise to raise the speed limit on the Interstates to 65 m.p.h.

Then, this Monday, they tell us it's no longer OK to be caught drinking whilst steering a motor vehicle.

Sounds a little contradictory, huh?

First, they jeopardize our safety by increasing our speed limits.

Now, they want us to be careful, so they "ban" booze.

But — and think about it — lawmakers haven't banned booze. This new bill won't even put a dent in DWIs or accidents or injuries or fatalities.

At least not in its present form.

Lawmakers in Austin are too worried about pleasing big money lobbyists to completely ban alcohol like their counterparts have in Oklahoma.

In Oklahoma it is illegal — period — to have an open container of alcohol in the car. If you do — bingo — you're busted.

But, here in the Lone Star (Beer) State, they'll slap us on the wrist and let us go our merry way.

Legislators call the bill the "open container law."

I like to refer to it as the "beer mug law." In other words, the only way you can be fined is if they catch you with a beer up to your mug. As in taking a swig in the presence of a peace officer.

If I may, for a moment, paraphrase a Los Angeles columnist: This law will have about the same effect as "a pit-bull with dentures."

It is now a Class C misdemeanor to drink and drive. Maximum fine of $500.

Comparison: In Pampa, it can now cost you as much as $2,000 for dumping litter out of your car.

So, in a twisted sort of way, it is now more acceptable to sip a brew in your car than to dump your litter bag on the street.

This "beer mug law" also allows that if you see the flashing red lights in your rear view mirror, you can pass the bottle to your passenger.

If you have a passenger, he or she can drink merrily in front of an officer while you, the driver, are being not-so-merrily interrogated about being intoxicated. Because, you can get rid of the bottle, but you can't get rid of what was in the bottle and is now on your breath.

Ross Newby, executive director of the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, made this understatement to the Associated Press recently:

It is too bad that Newby's statement won't come true.

This bill won't educate the public. It will only make drinking drivers drink more cautiously.

Unfortunately, it will probably make some drivers so paranoid that they'll spend more time with their eyes off the roadway looking for troopers than with their eyes on the road looking at the car ahead.

And, of course, there is the intelligence of the police officer that the legislature has insulted.

Scenario: A trooper pulls over a car. There are five empty, sweaty beer cans in the backseat. There is a sixth beer can positioned in between the legs of the driver of the car.

Is that officer supposed to really believe that the driver was just taking his favorite six-pack out for a Sunday afternoon drive?

According to our new "beer mug law," that's all the officer can believe.

"What are you doing with those five empty, sweaty beer cans in the back seat and that sixth beer between your legs?" the officer asks.

"Well, officer, my beer is sick and I'm rushing it to the hospital."

"Well, OK, sir. You're free to go. But you better go straight to the hospital!"

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Detroit crash leads to regulation pleas

In the wake of the disastrous airliner crash in Detroit, you can sense the subtle linking in news coverage and commentary between declining air safety and deregulation. A few re-regulators and pols come right out and say that we wouldn't have these crashes if air travel were still regulated. But network newscasters, more subtle, can hardly discuss a crash without mentioning the rising number of "near misses" and vague "concerns" that have grown since air travel was partially deregulated in 1978. Do you detect the creak of arthritic knees jerking?

It is particularly inappropriate to link the Detroit disaster to deregulation. The crash was the first of a major commerical airplane in the United States in almost a year, and the first involving a domestic carrier in almost two years.

It would be marvelous if the airline accident rate could be reduced to zero, but hoping for that should not keep us from recognizing progress. Until the crash, the last three years had been the safest in the history of commercial aviation. The accident rate declined 26 percent from the 1970s to the 1980s, despite the fact that (largely due to the price reductions brought on by deregulation) traffic has grown from 275 million passengers in 1978 to a probable 450 million this year.

This is not to suggest that concern about the growing number of near-misses is unwarranted. Serious real and potential problems exist in the air-traffic control system. The best way to approach those problems, however, is not through blindly re-regulating the industry, but by privatizing the air-traffic control system and the nation's airports.

The Federal Aviation Administration now finds itself in a situation fraught with potential conflicts of interest. It is charged both with providing air-traffic control services and with regulating and monitoring the safety aspects of that same system. Its job has not been made easier by the explosion in airline flights unleashed by economic deregulation nor by the aftermath of the air-traffic controllers' strike of 1981. As a government agency, subject to congressional micromanagement and political pressures, the FAA has not been able to respond effectively to the dynamic and changing environment in which it has found itself.

If air-traffic control responsibilities were spun off into a private, non-profit, user-owned corporation (as suggested in a comprehensive study from the Reason Foundation), the new corporation could implement innovations more quickly and price services more rationally (and be free to hire the former controllers the FAA is still barred from rehiring). Meanwhile, the FAA could concentrate on safety regulation and enforcement.

We all mourn the deaths in Detroit. The tragedy would only be compounded, however, if its emotional aftermath led to a new round of regulation.

Berry's World

Put 'only' in its proper place

The Writer's Art

James J. Kilpatrick

The time is at hand for our semiannual discussion of the proper placement of "only." Those of you who have heard the lecture before, and have mastered this not very difficult art, may be excused. Meanwhile, consider a sentence that came from the recent economic summit in Venice.

Ann McFeatters, who covers the White House for Scripps-Howard, put the heavy stuff aside one day in order to write a light piece on the logistics of the meeting. Among the items that had been flown to Venice was the president's bed. "Europeans," she reported, "especially seemed fascinated that the Reagans will only sleep in a king-sized bed."

Delicacy suggests that we not parse that sentence at length. Suffice it to say that a considerable difference separates "only sleep" from "sleep only."

There is nothing difficult about the placement of "only." The trick is to make certain that it modifies what you want it to modify. The Aberdeen (Wash.) Daily World noted at one time that "Washington is only one of five states" that has no income tax. The Miami Herald reported that an informant "would only tell police that more than one person is responsible for the killing." A sportswriter let us know that a Russian tennis star "has only played in five other Grand Prix tournaments."

In each example, the "only" was out of place. Washington is one of only five states ... The informant would tell police only ... Chesnokov had played in only five tournaments.

What is wrong in the following sentences? From The Washington Post: "Buchanan said many outstanding cartoonists were not asked because the luncheon could only accommodate 15." From Newsweek: "The president must make a decision that can only be made correctly if he is prepared to annoy the allies." From an opinion of a U.S. District Court: "Immunity is only granted when essential to protect the integrity of the judicial process." From the Mount Airy (N.C.) News: "Before the election, the 12 political action committees had only donated $3,050."

Placement may not be everything in prose composition, but it surely is an important element. When we slip up, we take some awful pratfalls. The Port Townsend (Wash.) Leader had a story about a man who spent 10 days on Kauai in an attempt to learn more about his brother's disappearance: "He also spent days searching himself for any clues as to his whereabouts."

The Birmingham (Ala.) News provided a feature story on a Shakespearean festival: "One of the biggest supporters of Schoolfest was Carolyn Blount, who donated the $21.5 million complex along with her husband, Winton."

In the Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) News, readers learned that "For the sixth time in little more than a year, an elderly pedestrian has died jaywalking across East Hallandale Beach Boulevard."

The Bergen County (N.J.) Record reported a devastating explosion on Staten Island. "Authorities said they did not know how the explosion Friday occurred."

Forbes magazine described the impressive office of Al Neuharth, chairman of the Gannett Co.: "No one who has visited the office is likely to forget the view from his office on the 31st floor of the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Monument and the Capitol Building."

The Savannah (Ga.) Morning News carried a photo of a drowsy little boy sitting on a fire hydrant. "He became a little bored while waiting to be picked from the baby sitter up by his mother."

The Chicago Sun-Times identified a guest columnist: "Janet Cool, who lives in West Chicago, is the mother of four children and a sales secretary."

Mike Royko of the Chicago Tribune asked a rhetorical question last month: "How does one go about 'educating' a drug addict who is so mentally addled that he'll shove a needle into his arm that's been used by someone else?" Good question.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported that two women had pleaded guilty to pandering, "thus ending a 4-year-old call-girl prosecution."

A medical columnist offered some ominous news: "There's no longer any doubt that elevated cholesterol increases the risk of heart disease. A long-term study on more than 1,000 physicians who graduated from Johns Hopkins Medical School showed that the more coffee these doctors drank, the greater likelihood of coronary disease." Put that cup down, doc! You've had all the coffee we can take today.

France peddles guns to world

Paul Harvey

Did the United States sell arms to Iran? Forty nations have been selling arms to both sides in the Iran-Iraq war! And nobody has done a better job of it than France. France dearly loves these wars!

France recently held an Arms Expo outside Paris, displaying and demonstrating the latest killing machine to weapons buyers from all over the world.

And France makes quality stuff.

The French-made Mirage fighter is as good as any.

There were 40,000 invited guests at this Expo. I don't know how much stuff they bought, but last year France sold abroad $6 worth of guns for every $3 worth of cheese.

Incidentally, guests at the Expo were served wine and cheese as they were sold the latest tanks and tank guns.

Iranians and Iraqis were there — and Libyans and Italians and Bolivians — kicking truck tires, wriggling into the gunners' seats of armored tanks.

While pretty Parisian models strolled among the shoppers, they examined machine guns and missiles, mortars and cannon.

In half a hundred languages, French salesmen explained that even if you'd already bought American M-16s or Soviet AK-47s — no matter — "our French ammunition is customized to fit those, also."

There were no sticker price tags.

They boast their anti-tank weapons are more potent than their American counterparts'.

Salesmen never mention the words "dead" or "death." They talk of "terminal effect" or "penetration performance."

The French were selling a rifle called the Famas 5.56 which, their ads say, is "better than a weapon."

They say it can be used three ways for "terminal effect" — bullets, grenades or bayonet.

The Famas rifle is said to be effective on horseback, in a boat or fired from under the seat of a speeding Mercedes.

And it comes with a separate silver-plated bayonet, suitable for ceremonial occasions.

And thus has France been sowing the wind.

Yet, Paris pretended shock and surprise last July 13 when a French merchant ship in the Persian Gulf was attacked by gunboats from Iran.

And guess where the ammunition came from?

Big mouths in Congress need whacking

By William A. Rusher

Now that the Iran/contra hearings are over, attention is shifting to the question of who, if anybody, ought to be prosecuted.

It is widely expected that special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh will go after Adm. John Poindexter, Lt. Col. Oliver North, Gen. Richard Secord, and a couple of lesser fry on various charges. But there are those who believe that this would be a grossly one-sided way to dispense "justice."

Every thoughtful person recognizes that this affair was basically just one episode in the ongoing battle between a Republican president and Democratic Congress for control of U.S. foreign policy.

In recent years, Congress has enacted a whole series of laws compelling the president to bring Congress closer to the decision-making process in the foreign policy field. Among other things, it has required him to disclose to various key members of Congress any covert operations in which certain intelligence agencies of the executive branch are involved.

The trouble is that certain members of Congress can't resist disclosing such operations to the media — either because they oppose them, or simply for the publicity. It was this notorious practice on the part of Congress that persuaded President Reagan to delay as long as possible notifying Congress of his covert approach, through his National Security Council staff, to friendly contacts in the Iranian government.

It was, in other words, Congress's bad habit of leaking government secrets that led to the whole Iran/contra episode, and some observers wonder whether, in simple justice, one or more of the prominent congressional leakers shouldn't be prosecuted along with Poindexter, North, et al.

Sen. Joseph Biden, for example, is known to have bragged to one reporter last summer that, while a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, he forced the abandonment of two proposed covert actions (of which he disapproved) by threatening to expose them. But since he only threatened to do so, he may not actually have committed a crime, whatever one thinks of his tactics.

Sens. Dave Durenberger and Patrick Leahy, chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee until January, are believed to have been behind the leak, in 1985, of a covert operation against Libya which effectively killed it, according to Bill Gertz of the Washington Times. But Durenberger and Leahy have declined to comment, and an FBI investigation is stalled.

There is, however, no question whatever that Leahy showed up at 5 a.m. on Oct. 11, 1985 at CIA headquarters in Langley, Va. and demanded to be briefed on the hijacking of the Achille Lauro. Following the briefing, Leahy dashed to the "CBS Morning News" program, on which he dramatically disclosed that we had known Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak was lying when he declared that the hijackers had left Egypt. This, of course, tipped off the Egyptians to tighten their internal communications (which we had been intercepting).

What is particularly chilling about Leahy's damaging disclosure is its motive. He wasn't against intercepting Egyptian communications — on the contrary, he hailed the result as "a major triumph for the United States." But he was up for re-election to the Senate just one year later, and he evidently figured he could use the publicity.

Section 798 of Chapter 37, Title 18, U.S. Code, provides in relevant part:

"Whoever knowingly and willfully ... uses in any manner prejudicial to the safety or interest of the United States... any classified information... obtained by the processes of communication intelligence from the communications of any foreign government, knowing the same to have been obtained by such processes — Shall be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than 10 years, or both."

Has the FBI probed Leahy's sickening performance? Will the Justice Department prosecute him? And will his fellow Democrats in Congress, who are thirsting for Ollie North's blood, insist on Leahy's too?

Study: Vietnam Marines have higher lung cancer rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Veterans Administration study found 58 percent more lung cancer among Vietnam Marine veterans than among Marines who did not go into the war, providing what a veterans group called "the first very clear scientific data" implicating Agent Orange.

The rate was even higher, 110 percent more than expected, for non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, a category of several types of cancers of the lymph system other than Hodgkin's disease. Both excess rates were termed statistically significant.

The mortality study reviewed the causes of deaths of 50,000 military personnel, approximately one-third of the U.S. Army and Marine Corps ground troops who have died since the Vietnam War.

Although the study, conducted by the agency's Office of Environmental Epidemiology, was not designed to determine a cause of the higher death rates, the report said "exposure to Agent Orange may be suspected."

"That's dynamite. It's astounding information," said Mike Leaveck, spokesman for the Vietnam Veterans of America, a congressionally chartered organization that has sued the VA seeking compensation for Agent Orange victims.

"That's the first very clear scientific data that would confirm our suspicions, that there really is a reason to fear Agent Orange," he said.

When all types of cancers were considered, Vietnam veterans did not suffer excessive rates, the VA study said.

The higher cancer rates noted among Marine veterans who served in Vietnam were not found among their U.S. Army counterparts. Although reasons for the difference were not clear, the scientists said environmental exposure in Vietnam was different according to location and duties.

Most Marines served in what was known as I Corps, in the northernmost part of South Vietnam. Army units generally served in other areas. Leaveck said there is evidence I Corps was "where the biggest hits were" of Agent Orange spraying.

Dick Christian, director of the Army and Joint Services Environmental Support Group, said no records exist for much of the spraying, however, as both the Marines and Army did not record all Agent Orange use.

The Centers for Disease Control said in July it was unable to proceed with a separate Agent Orange study because it could not determine exposure to the defoliant among troops.

Agent Orange was one of the herbicides sprayed from U.S. aircraft in Vietnam to defoliate dense jungle hiding places. Its use has been suspected by veterans as the cause of various ailments, including cancer and birth defects in the veterans' offspring. An ingredient, dioxin, has been shown to be a potential source of cancer.

The study examined deaths among 24,235 veterans who served in Vietnam and 25,685 who served elsewhere between 1965 and 1973.

VA spokesman, Bonner Day, said the agency would have no comment until the study is presented next month to its Advisory Committee on Environmental Hazards.

Earlier studies by the Air Force have reported no evidence that personnel who handled Agent Orange were dying at a higher rate. Critics, however, say that studies did not look at the troops who were in areas of spraying and who could have been exposed from the air or indirectly through food and water.

A study by the federal Centers for Disease Control released in February said Vietnam veterans had a 17 percent higher death rate in the first five years after their discharge than those who served elsewhere. The added deaths were mostly from external causes, including car accidents, suicides, homicides, and accidental poisonings.

Delta jet came within 30 feet of Continental 747, NTSB says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Delta Air Lines jetliner that flew 60 miles off course last July over the North Atlantic came within 30 feet of colliding with another jet, much closer than was previously thought, investigators say.

The National Transportation Safety Board also said Thursday the three-member Delta crew did not have the oceanic charts needed to verify that the plane's computerized navigation system was in fact directing the aircraft on course.

The NTSB said the crew made no attempt to verify their location as they flew across the North Atlantic on July 8. Instead, they relied solely on the automated system, the NTSB said.

It is widely believed among investigators that Delta Flight 37, a Lockheed L-1011, flew so far off course because a wrong coordinate was punched into the plane's computerized system before the plane left London on a flight to Cincinnati.

The NTSB, in a letter to the Federal Aviation Administration, urged that the FAA require pilots on transoceanic flights to verify their location, independent of the automated system, at least three times during a flight.

FAA spokesman Dick Stafford said the recommendation was being reviewed.

The FAA in 1980 advised airlines that such verification is prudent on flights over the ocean where no ground-based radar is tracking planes, but the agency does not specifically require it.

In its letter to the FAA, the safety board disclosed that the Delta plane and a Continental Airlines Boeing 747 bound from London to Newark, N.J., came closer to colliding than previously thought.

Witness reports had indicated previously that the two planes came within about 100 feet of each other 31,000 feet over the North Atlantic. But the NTSB said a Canadian inquiry into the incident established that the separation was actually about 30 feet. The two planes carried nearly 600 people.

Delta officials, meanwhile, disputed the NTSB's contention that the crew of Flight 37 was not supplied with oceanic charts to plot their course. "The pilots have those charts," Delta spokesman William Berry said.

The three crew members involved in the incident have been disciplined because they violated Delta procedures, Berry said, but he did not elaborate. "They are not flying," he said.

But the NTSB said the joint U.S.-Canadian investigation in the matter has revealed that the flight crew "was not supplied with the oceanic charts" that would have allowed the pilots to "graphically display the coordinates and path of the assigned route" as they flew over the ocean.

"Consequently," the safety board continued, "the ... flight crew did not plot their present or predicted position upon crossing waypoints, or perform other track verification procedures while en route."

The NTSB cited a number of en route techniques that it said should be used as a check to the automatic navigation system but were not used by the Delta crew.

The near-collision was one of a number of incidents involving pilot mistakes that brought widespread attention to Delta this summer.

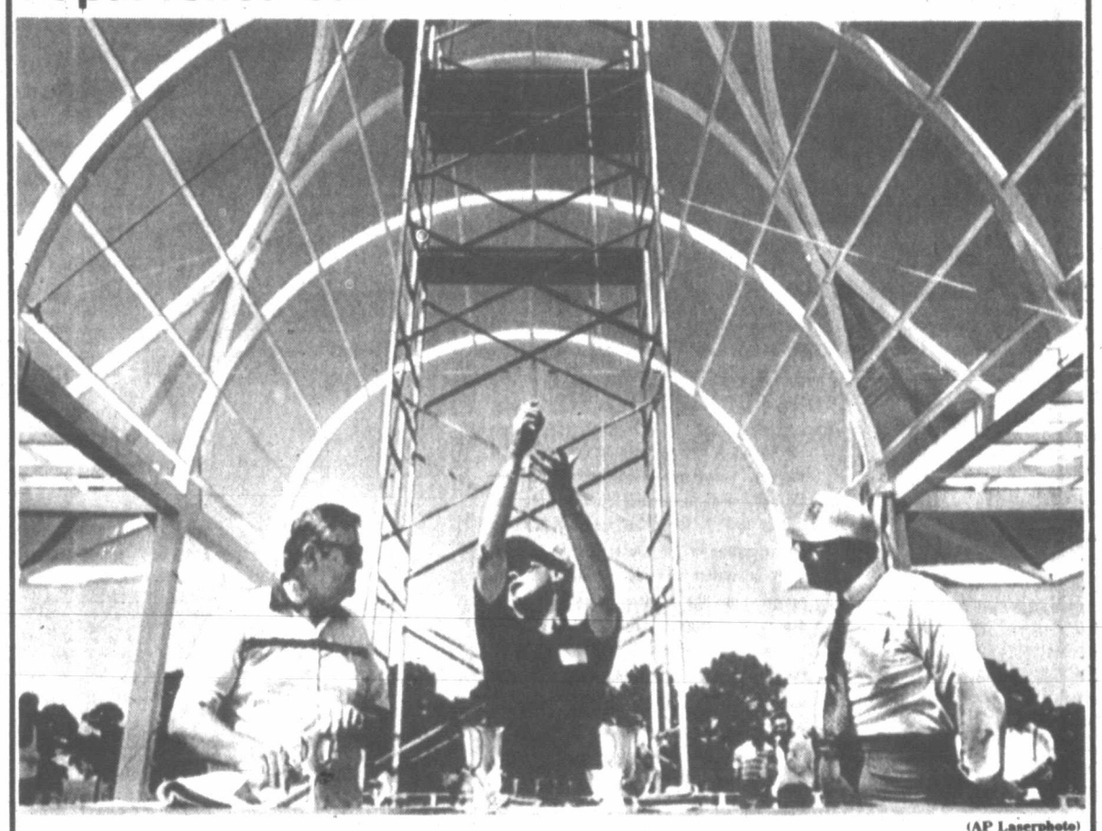

The most serious other incident involved a captain of a Delta flight mistakenly switching off both engines after leaving Los Angeles.

"LABOR IS LIFE"

Carlyle

Let's talk about labor — work, if you please, for that is what labor is. Labor has come a long, long way since ancient times when work was closely related to slavery. Aristotle described a slave as "a tool with life in it." In the Middle Ages, labor gained dignity and respect as slavery declined and Christianity spread. Then, later in the 1700's and 1800's the industrial revolution created conditions that led to the modern labor movements. Today labor has gained respect, wages and working conditions hitherto unknown before.

Labor is life. Work is satisfying. Through his work a man accomplishes, and creates, and provides for himself and his family. When deprived of the opportunity or ability to work, man often becomes depressed, even ill.

I Corinthians 3:9 tells us that "We are laborers together with God." We are His hands, feet, voice, and compassionate heart here on earth to spread the gospel, lift up the poor, eradicate ignorance and destroy disease.

Honor God and Labor this week by attending church.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH — THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Gospel group to appear at Bible Baptist

The Lighthouse Singers of Corpus Christi will be presenting a program of quartet singing and testimonies at Bible Baptist Church, Starkweather at Kingsmill, at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10.

There will be no admission charge. Rev. Richard L. McIntosh, pastor, said the public is cordially invited to attend the program.

The Lighthouse Singers are from the Roloff Evangelistic Ministry.

The group will present a program of quartet singing of the old hymns of the faith and share testimonies of their lives in Christ and of release from crime and drugs to the Savior and hope, Rev. McIntosh said.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: When you were slaves to sin, you were free from the control of righteousness. What benefit did you reap at that time from the things you are now ashamed of? Those things result in death!

But now that you have been set free from sin and have become slaves to God, the benefit you reap leads to holiness and the result is eternal life. For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord. (Romans 6:20-23 NIV)

In 1902, a banker and developer named James B. Wheeler donated a 44-acre parcel of land to Oklahoma City. The beautiful woodland bordered the Canadian River and was designated for development into the city's first public park.

The land was a free gift, with the only cost to the city being a requirement that a minimum of $2,000 a year for five years be appropriated to improve and maintain the park. The city council, ambivalent about parks and complacent about aesthetics, wrangled heavily until public opinion forced them to accept the gift in behalf of the city.

Wheeler Park quickly became a popular amusement center with vaudeville entertainment, a scenic railway, magic mirror parlors and a skating rink. It also became the home of the only zoological garden in the Twin Territories and by 1909 housed 125 specimens of animals.

In seven short years the park had appreciated to a value of $60,000. Perhaps more importantly, Wheeler Park blazed a trail through the city leaders' shortsighted avarice and indifference. As a result, other city parks were acquired and developed for the beautification of the community and the enjoyment of all people seeking rest and recreation.

One of the most common reasons for rejection of salvation is the belief acceptance comes with a price to be exacted from favorite vices.

Good intentions to be Christians "some day" dissolve in the desire for freedom to self-destruct in the manner of choice. Vision is cut short by ambivalence about eternity, complacency about the present and unwillingness to make a moral investment.

The point missed is that salvation is a grace gift, absolutely free, paid for on a cross nearly 2,000 years ago by a Benefactor!

Whatever moral changes one feels compelled to make as a result of acceptance of the Gift are investments in self-improvement and soul beautification. Every investment results in widened personal spiritual horizons and greater effectiveness of Christian influence on others.

The voluntary change in virtues is a gradual sloughing off of confining tethers. The metamorphosis feels so good under the tender watch of the Savior, it is no longer a sacrifice of pleasure, rather an exercise in free-flight soaring!

(If you are seeking salvation, read John from the New Testament of the Bible. For additional guidance, contact a clergyman of your choice.)

Youth leadership seminar set

Youth leaders from throughout the area will have the opportunity to learn creative new ways to work with young people at the Youth Leadership Development Seminar on Saturday, Sept. 19, at First Christian Church, 1633 N. Nelson.

Although sponsored by First Christian Church, the seminar is directed to anyone in the High Plains area who is a youth group sponsor, camp director, Sunday School teacher or youth program volunteer.

Topics to be covered in the seminar include knowing and understanding the needs of young people, exploring ways to make programs and worship more exciting, involving parents, and encouraging spiritual growth, witness and service among youth.

Larry Keefauver, senior minister of First Christian Church of Lubbock, will be the keynote speaker for the event.

Keefauver

Keefauver brings to the seminar 17 years of experience as youth minister, associate minister and senior minister of the largest Disciples of Christ church in Florida. He also served as director of special events for Group magazine in 1985 and 1986.

He has keynoted regional youth events for Disciples, Methodists and American Baptists in Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Florida and Texas.

Keefauver has also been workshop and seminar leader for regional and national events for Rainbow workshops and Group magazine's National Youth Congress and Jamboree, as well as numerous conference level leadership training events in youth ministry and Christian education for Methodists, Disciples, Church of God, Baptists and Greek Orthodox.

A registration fee of $10 covers lunch and two breaks. The seminar begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 3:30 p.m.

Deadline for registration is Tuesday, Sept. 15. Registration can be made by calling First Christian Church at 669-3225. Registration fees may be paid at the door the day of the seminar.

Religion Roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that Central American conflicts must be solved politically rather than militarily, U.S and Central American Roman Catholic bishops urged negotiations at national, regional and international levels.

In dealing with Central America, the United States should "give clear priority not to military aid but to economic assistance for development," the bishops said in a statement.

The statement, issued after a July 21-23 meeting of five U.S. and 11 Central American bishops in San Jose, Costa Rica, said they supported peace initiatives drawn up by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez as well as the Contadora process outlined by a group of Latin American nations.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) The president of InterVarsity Christian Fellowship, Gordon MacDonald, has resigned because of involvement in an "adulterous relationship in late 1984 and early 1985," says the organization's board chairman, James Kay.

The board elected Thomas Dunkerton, a retired New York advertising man, as new president of the organization that works among college students.

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Jewish Congress says in its "Boycott Report" that not a single American bank maintains branches in Israel for fear of offending Arabs, despite extensive trade between the United States and Israel requiring extensive banking services.

Coming to Amarillo

Recording artist Larnelle Harris will be appearing in concert at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 10, at the San Jacinto Baptist Church in Amarillo. Benson artist Harris recently received Dove Awards for best male vocalist and inspirational album of the year for his latest album, I've Just Seen Jesus. Following his multiple Grammy wins (best male vocalist and best gospel duet with Sandi Patti) this past spring, his Dove Award achievements are further endorsements of his talent and music.

Court tangled in religion cases

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As religion pushes more vigorously into the social arena and opponents fight against it, a swelling welter of lawsuits work their way to the nation's highest court, where many issues remain tangled.

The upsurge of such cases was reflected in the recently completed 1986-87 term of the U.S. Supreme Court, and still more are pending when it opens its new term in October.

Both jurists and church-state specialists note that such cases have multiplied steadily in the last two decades, the number in that period surpassing the total for the entire previous history of the nation.

Twelve such cases were handled by the court last term. In six, the court declined to review or let lower-court decisions stand, and in the another six, it laid down new rulings.

"Separation of church and state was a big winner," says Stan Hastey of the Baptist Joint Committe on Public Affairs.

Diverse interpretations of the constitutional caveat — either strict elimination of religion from the government sphere or neutral accommodation of it — are the nub of persistent, unsettled litigation.

In its latest term, the high court made these decisions:

■ It unanimously upheld a challenged 15-vear-old congressional law exempting religious organizations from complying with the Civil Rights Act's ban on religious preferences in hiring practices.

Numerous religious bodies had filed friend-of-court briefs backing the right of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) to fire a former building engineer because he did not meet certain religious standards.

■ The court by a 7-2 decision threw out a Louisiana law requiring public schools that taught evolution also to teach the "creation science" theory that life arose in abrupt stages.

The majority, without getting into the scientific basis for either view, held that the law's purpose, as shown in the state Legislature's discussion of it, was to advance a theory favored in some religious circles.

Dissenting justices contended the court shouldn't judge the intent of legislators, and said the scientific evidence offered for "creation science" justified schools including the abrupt-origins concept.

■ The court, by an 8-1 majority, ruled that the state of Florida, by refusing unemployment benefits to Paula Hobbie, a Seventh-day Adventist fired by a Florida jewelry chain for refusing to work Friday evenings and Saturday (the Adventist Sabbath), violated "free exercise of religion."

■ The court ruled that the Los Angeles airport commissioners had no constitutional authority to impose a blanket ban on religious activities inside the Los Angeles International Airport.

Airport police had arrested a "Jews for Jesus" member for handing out literature.

■ The court ruled that Jews qualified as a minority under an 1870 anti-discrimination law, used by a Silver Spring, Md., synaogue in a lawsuit against vandals who defaced the synagogue with Nazi swastikas and other anti-Semitic graffiti.

■ In a 5-4 decision, the court ruled that officials at Leesburg State Prison in New Jersey did not violate the rights of two Black Muslim inmates by denying them permission to attend a weekly Friday service as required by the Islamic faith.

Stadium set lets students show school spirit

By BETH COTTEN

There's nothing like the phrase "Back to School" for stirring mixed emotions.

Yes, the kids will finally be under the supervision of someone else for at least a good portion of the day.

Yes, traffic in the house will die down to a reasonable trickle, and there will be something besides bread crumbs and soda pop droppings in the refrigerator at the end of the day.

This year I started early, because I wanted to make a very special gift for a college-bound daughter. This cozy stadium blanket was inspired by memories of cold autumn football days, each game like a trip to the Arctic.

The warm, reversible wool blanket in team colors employs an amazingly fast and easy assembly technique; it is quilted as it is pieced together. The arrangement of colored strips results in the school initials displayed on both sides.

Makin' Things

The handy tote bag is made of the same material and colors as the blanket, with pockets for an umbrella and a thermos. The ends close with drawstrings.

Our easy-to-follow plans will guide you through the assembly of this project in just a couple of afternoons. They include a worksheet to help you design the initials and figure materials required, in addition to complete cutting and sewing instructions.

We are also offering plans for our quick-quilted bedspread, a log cabin design made in the same assembly technique as the stadium blanket. Instructions are included for all standard bed sizes.

To order plans for the stadium blanket, specify Project No. 1564; or for the bedspread, specify No. 1572. Send $4.95 for either plan, or save a dollar and receive both for only $8.90.

Mail to: Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008-1000. Add $2.95 for a catalog with discount coupons.

The stadium blanket requires no batting if lightweight wool fabric is used. Other fabrics may require a layer of batting.

My blanket measures 48x53 inches overall, large enough to cover two laps but not so large it is unwieldy. It has two borders, one red and one white, surrounding the 29x34-inch center section that contains the "OU" school initials.

Start by drawing your blanket design on graph paper, using colored pens to differentiate the various colors. Draw the school initials in big block letters. Measurements will vary, depending on the letters included and the width of the border strips.

When your diagram is finished, mark it vertically and horizontally to determine what size fabric strips will be required. Each strip should be cut 1 inch longer and wider than the graph indicates, to allow for ½-inch-wide seams.

Cut two of each fabric strip to accommodate the double-sides feature of the blanket.

When you have all of the pieces cut, lay out the strips that will comprise the letter section of the blanket front. Any vertical stroke that is composed of more than one color should be pieced together at this point. Repeat for the letter section of the blanket back.

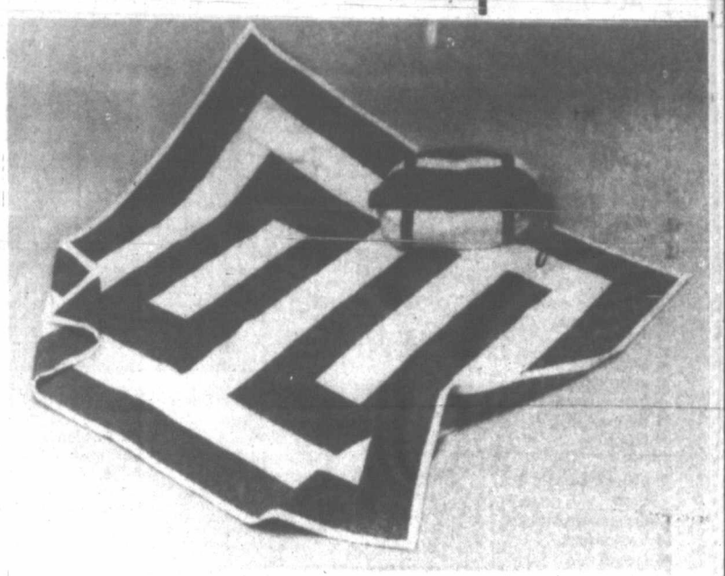

Label each vertical stroke with a small number in the top seam allowance. This way, you'll know at a glance which stroke you are looking at and which end is the top. The strokes for the back of the blanket should be numbered in reverse.

To assemble, stack the #1 front and back strokes wrong sides together, with a batting stroke between if you are using batting. Baste together along the right-hand edges.

Place the #2 back stroke right side up underneath the stack, and place the #2 front stroke right side down on top. (Place a batting stroke on top, if using.) Stitch the seam along the right-hand edge. (Trim the batting seam allowances.)

Turn the #2 strokes outward and press the seam. Continue adding the letter strokes in this manner until the entire letter section is complete.

Add the border strips in the same manner. Encase the outer edges in bias tape of self-binding strips.

Warm, reversible stadium blanket displays schoo initials and is made with a unique, time-saving assembly technique.

Tall men don't measure up to woman's high standards

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Just yesterday, my father pulled a clipping of your column out of his wallet and asked me to write to you and find out how old it is. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "Too Tall," women in the know go for small men. That's why so many women go wild over Latin Americans and fight over jockeys. The big, tall men tend to fall apart earlier. They get potbellies and double chins, and succumb to heart attacks in their mid-40s, while the little wiry men are still going strong.

The next time you go to a dance, notice that the best dancers on the floor are the smaller men. Half the women married to tall, dark, handsome men would love to trade them for this little runt they wouldn't go out with before they got married.

VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

Thanks, Abby.

BARBARA SAGLIMBENI, SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

P.S. My father is 5 foot 3.

DEAR BARBARA: Your father has been carrying that clipping in his wallet since 1968. Hug him for me, Barbara.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to ask you two questions:

1. Will "kids" ever be "children" again?

2. Will electronic toys ever replace parents as storytellers?

NEIL M. ANDERSON, MALDEN, MASS.

DEAR MR. ANDERSON:

1. What difference does it make what children (or kids) are called? Labels are meaningless. Feelings speak volúmes.

2. Electronic toys will never replace parents as storytellers because electronic toys cannot answer questions, nor do they kiss the kids goodnight.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our 20-year-old unmarried daughter brought her 1-month-old baby girl to us and said, "Here, keep her; she's yours!"

My wife worked days and I worked the night shift so one of us would always be with that beautiful child we called "Sweetie." We cared for her for five years. We were the only mother and daddy she knew. Our daughter, Sweetie's real mother, would run in and run out. She paid not one penny for the support of her child. Meanwhile Sweetie had become a truly remarkable little person, bright, beautiful and well-mannered. Everyone who saw her fell in love with her.

Then one day, our daughter came and took Sweetie, saying she would be right back. Well, she didn't return. She kidnapped the child. We found a note in our car telling us that she was married now and could take care of her daughter. When we went to see Sweetie, she sobbed her heart out, begging us to take her with us. We went to a lawyer and tried to get Sweetie back, but to no avail. It's been nearly a year, and my wife is still on tranquilizers. We are not even permitted to see th child.

Our hearts are broken. Abby please warn other parents never t agree to raise a grandchild unles they get a legal adoption! Ever time I see a little girl, I think o Sweetie.

TOT tourneys famous for exciting finishes

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

Winning the Top O' Texas Golf Tournament is seldom an easy task. Often, someone charges out of the pack in the final round to either threaten the leader or overtake him for the win. Last year's exciting finish is a perfect example.

Clint Deeds used his putter and wedge to overcome Richard Ellis' 4-stroke lead going into the back nine to win his first TOT title. Deeds, the PCC grounds keeper, had an eagle and three birdies down the stretch to win the '86 championship by two strokes. Deeds had shot an amazing 7-under par 29 on the back nine.

Both Deeds and Ellis, a 6-time TOT winner from Plano and a Pampa native, return for this year's 50th event, and don't be surprised if these two take it down to the wire again.

The rest of the field can't be taken for granted, however. A group of talented college players from Cameron University, Texas Tech and Oklahoma State are among the 228 entries, plus veterans like Amarillo's John Goodwin and Ken Bailey, the '87 Tri-State Senior champ, and Borger's Jackie Coffey.

"We've got another good field," said PCC Pro Mickey Piersall. "Any of them could win it."

The tournament gets underway Saturday at the Pampa Country Club course with eleven flights teeing off for three days of competition. In the championship flight, the final 36 holes will be played Labor Day with tee time at 7:45 a.m.

Past TOT tournaments have provided the galleries with many thrilling rounds.

It was a college player, E.J. Pfister of Oklahoma State, who won the '85 title in familiar fashion. Pfister won by three strokes, charging back from seventh place after two rounds of play with one outstanding shot after another.

The '84 tournament was tight right down to the end with Steve Russell defeating Ellis in a playoff after the pair were tied at the end of regulation play.

Even Ellis, who won five of his six titles consecutively, had to overcome adversity during his championship reign.

He trailed by five strokes after the first round of the '83 tournament and had to shoot a 6-under par 65 on the final day for the win.

There have been some lopsided tournaments.

Tulsa's Lloyd Moody, who later was successful on the PGA tour, won back to back titles with relative ease.

He won both the '71 and '72 tourneys by 6-stroke margins.

Bobby Greenwood of Cookville, Tenn won by a whopping 15 strokes in 1967 and Don Prigmore of Pampa won the '58 tourney by 11.

More common, though, have been the two-man battles like the Deeds-Ellis shootout of a year ago.

Borger's Don Seamster made one of the most incredible comebacks in TOT history when he won the 1960 tournament in a playoff with San Antonio's Bobby Briggs.

Seamster trailed first-round leader Jim Deaton of Pampa by five strokes after the first round of the 54-hole tournament.

Deaton faded in the second round and Briggs took sole possession of first place. Seamster had cut the gap to two, but he was still tied with three others and five more were one stroke ahead of him. However, Seamster registered a 4-under par 67 in the final round to deadlock Briggs and he won the tournament on the first playoff hole by sinking a 5-foot putt.

One of the most dramatic shots in TOT history came in 1973 when PCC assistant pro Jody Richardson, then an Oklahoma State freshman from Borger, eagled the par 4, No. 6 hole with a 90-foot chip in the final round. That shot helped him maintain the lead and an eventual 2-stroke victory over Amarillo's John Farquhar.

There were the 'turnabout' tournaments in 1964 and '65. Greenwood, the 15-stroke winner of 1967, won his first TOT title in '64 by one stroke over Farquhar. Farquhar avenged himself a year later with a 5-stroke victory over the second-place Greenwood.

Then there was Dickie Weston's 1-stoke win over Tom Jones in 1974 and Jim Haren's 276-277 win over Tom Jones in the '77 tourney. And the list goes on...

McEnroe, Graf advance

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Has John McEnroe really mellowed? Or is his mind so preoccupied with personal matters that he can't be bothered with on-court confrontations?

McEnroe got fired up by a brush with a fan late in the third set Thursday night on the way to a 7-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2 U.S. Open victory over Richey Reneberg that moved him into the third round.

Third-seeded Chris Evert and No. 5 Pam Shriver were the featured players this afternoon. Evert was matched with Niege Dias of Brazil and Shriver took on Poland's Iwona Kuczynska.

Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia, the men's fifth seed, played John Fitzgerald of Australia and Joakim Nystrom of Sweden, seeded 10th, met Ramesh Krishnan of India.

On Thursday, a courtside fan applauded after the eighth-seeded McEnroe double-faulted. The four-time Open winner smashed his racket against the railing in front of the stands and spoke to the fan, who then tossed an object at McEnroe.

McEnroe used that incident to raise the level of his game, serving out the set and easing to the win in the fourth set.

"It's the first time in a long while I've gotten pumped up from something like that," said McEnroe, whose wife, actress Tatum O'Neal, is expecting the couple's second child any day. "It felt good I responded from it. Distractions usually have hurt me lately."

Top seeds Steffi Graf and Ivan Lendl also won Thursday, as did 12 other seeds.

Advancing to the third round in women's play were No. 2 Martina Navratilova; No. 4 Hana Mandlikova and No. 6 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia; No. 8 Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina; No. 9 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch and No. 12 Bettina Bunge of West Germany; and No. 14 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden.

The seeded men who won were No. 4 Boris Becker of West Germany; No. 6 Jimmy Connors; No. 9 Andres Gomez of Ecuador; No. 11 Henri Leconte of France; No. 13 Brad Gilbert; and No. 16 Anders Jarryd of Sweden.

Graf, playing her first Grand Slam tournament as a No. 1 seed, overcame a succession of moon balls by Petra Huber of Austria for a 6-2, 6-3 win.

Shockers drop football opener

The Pampa Shockers were shut out by Palo Duro 42-0 in a junior varsity football opener Thursday night at Harvester Stadium.

By halftime the visitors had built a 36-0 lead, scoring three touchdowns in the final three minutes of the second quarter.

The Shockers were hurt by four turnovers while the PD offense was free of mistakes throughout the game.

Pampa end Mike Cagle snared three passes from quarterback James Biby for 40 yards, but the Shockers' ground game was virtually shut down by PD's aggressive defense.

The Shockers' next game is Sept. 10 at Borger, starting at 7 p.m.

Game of golf dates back to ancient Romans

Sports Forum

By Warren Hasse

A HALF CENTURY IS a long time if you've lived it. But placed in the context of the age of the earth, it is but the flick of an eye. So it is with the Top O' Texas Invitational Golf Tournament at the Pampa Country Club starting Saturday. This year's event marks 50 years since Borger's Dale Storie defeated Grover Austin, Jr. of Pampa for the first championship. This year's tournament, however, will be only the 46th annual event, since a four-year hiatus took place during World War II.

While golf isn't the oldest sport in the world, it is up among the grandaddies like track and field, archery, wrestling and chess to name a few older. The Scotch, of course, claim origin of the game, although they bought their equipment from Holland, where the Dutch had been playing a very similar game they called "kolf". Both nations have to take a distant back seat, however, as sports historians found that the ancient Romans knew the game and called it "paganica".

In 1457 the Scotch parliament passed an act discouraging "golfe" as it interfered with the practice of archery, the national means of defense. The "gentlemen golfers of Leith", a club formed prior to 1744, offered a silver club as an annual prize. They appointed their own ball-maker, club-maker, tailor and chaplain, and members who played without uniform were fined. In 1608 five Scotchmen were thrown into prison and fined 20 pounds for playing golf on Sunday.

There was a course at St. Andrews in 1552 but the club was not formally organized until 1754. And today, St. Andrews sets the accepted laws and etiquette for the golfing world. It was from that landmark club in Scotland that golf was brought to America. King William IV was the first royal patron of the game, joining the St. Andrews Club in 1834.

The first established golf club in America was at Charleston, South Carolina, built in 1795 on Harleston Green. However, golf in the United States was confined to Scotch and English immigrants and visitors until 1894 when the first national tournament was held, an amateur meet at Newpoint, R.I. Even as late as 1900 golf was considered a game for dudes and sissies. But it has started getting more and favorable recognition. The federal government has issued three stamps honoring the sport and its champions. And a recent survey by the business publication Accountemps of top officers of the nation's 1,000 largest corporations discovered 58 percent rank golf as their top exercise activity; jogging, at 16 percent, came in a distant second.

Unfortunately, Dr. Ronald Lawrence, who has the credentials to back him up, claims "no one over 40 should play serious golf. It's bad for your health. You might as well stay in the boardroom for all the good it will do you," says the fitness expert who serves as secretary of the American Academy of Sports Physicians and co-chairman of the Amateur Athletic Union's sports medicine committee. "On a scale of 1 to 10 in fitness," says Lawrence, "golf is a minus 2." He does concede that golf is a mental game requiring concentration and skill, but it imparts no physical reward, he claims. Moreover, golf's competitive pressures are likely to raise blood pressure and adrenalin levels. And other harmful effects are from courses that discourage walking, he says. "The trend is to rely on golf carts. The best courses insist on them now." And although he played golf for 10 years, the 61-year old Lawrence, a runner and bicyclist, considers himself a "recovering golfer" and intends to stay that way.

But it is a fun sport that involves constant challenges. Like the 125-yard COURSE with four doglegs and only one hole, a par 9 layout. It's called "hallway golf" and was devised by a Newport Beach, Cal. advertising agency. It's played in the firm's offices with players putting around elevators, potted plants and office doors. Tournaments begin after 5 pm. Free copies of the rules are available from the firm.

And then there's the "Shark Trek", teeing off Dec. 7 in San Francisco's Olympic Club, site of the recent U.S. Open. Pro golfer Greg Norman, NBC's Bryant Gumbel and three others will play five courses on five continents in five days. From San Fran they jump to Melbourne, Australia's Royal course; then to Kasumigaseki near Tokyo; the fourth day to Royal Dar Es Salaam near Rabat, Morocco; and concluding at Wentworth outside London. Beneficiary will be Ronald McDonald's Children's Charities which will receive $500 for each birdie, $1,000 for every eagle.

Long a 'white man's game, more black golfers are starting to take up the sport. In fact, the just-opened Joe Louis Golf Course on Chicago's South Side has added a unique touch. Unlike some American courses where the holes are named after great courses of the world, at this one named after the world's greatest heavyweight boxing champ, you can play holes honoring great black sports legends. For example, No. 17 is dedicated to former Olympian Ralph Metcalfe, No. 16 for track great Jesse Owens, and No. 13 goes to tennis great and golfing pro Althea Gibson.

Perhaps the PCC could dedicate some holes to former TOT winners in similar manner at tourney time. Unfortunately, only five would go to golfers registered from Pampa. For in the 45 events to date, 40 have been captured by non-locals in this highly-competitive tournament, which has seen many champions continue in the sport professionally with great success, including a green jacket at Augusta.

This golden anniversary competition will have another exciting field and you're invited to gallery. To the golfers, welcome to Pampa, have fun and good luck.

Astros' Hatcher suspended

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Hatcher is in the midst of a nightmare but he's thinking of a pleasant dream.

National League President Bart Giamatti suspended Hatcher Thursday for 10 days without pay for using an illegal bat in Tuesday night's game against Chicago.

"I hope we win the pennant, and play in the World Series and they check every one of my bats and have to say they're all legal," Hatcher said Thursday night.

"I'll tell you straight out that I didn't know the bat was loaded," Hatcher said. "People are going to believe what they want to believe. I can't get inside their heads and make them believe the truth."

Hatcher earlier told General Manager Dick Wagner that he would not appeal any suspension but Thursday night the outfielder said an appeal was not out of the question.

If Hatcher appeals, he would be able to play until a hearing could be arranged and the Astros start a three-game series at home with the first-place San Francisco Giants on Monday.

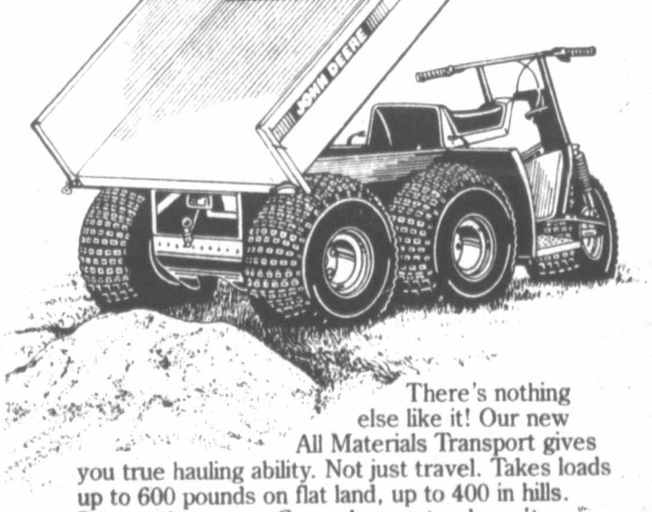

"I am not concerned about Billy Hatcher right now, I'm only concerned about the team," Hatcher said. "If it's best for me to appeal and play against the Giants and Pittsburgh, that's what we'll do."

Hatcher said a decision on a possible appeal would be made today in a meeting with Wagner and Lanier.

"It's just a matter of do they want me to do my 10 days now or later," Hatcher said.

Hyundai stikers recruit fellow workers.

Riot police storm two major plants in crackdown on labor violence

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Thousands of riot police stormed the nation's largest shipyard and a major auto assembly plant today, arresting hundreds of striking workers in the first government crackdown on recent labor unrest.

Police raided the Daewoo Co. car plant, site of a weeklong occupation, and the Hyundai Heavy Industries Co. shipyard, occupied by workers after they damaged company buildings and set fire to vehicles on Wednesday and Thursday.

The government also said it had arrested a North Korean spy and an opposition official and charged them with fomenting strikes.

About 3,000 riot police moved in before dawn to remove strikers holding the Daewoo assembly plant at Pupyong outside Seoul and arrested 135 workers. Two workers were injured when they jumped from a second-floor window and police overpowered several others who threatened to set themselves afire, police said.

Control of the Daewoo plant was returned to company officials, but the Hyundai shipyard in the southern Ulsan remained occupied by 8,000 striking workers. The raids were the government's first against strikers holding plants.

Riot police arrested about 90 striking Hyundai shipyard workers' in early morning raids, authorities said.

Police later fired more than 500 rounds of tear gas in a clash with strikers after some seized a detective who was arresting a worker. Riot squads rescued the detective and arrested about 10 workers, police said.

The detained shipyard workers were questioned about worker rampages Wednesday and Thursday, when some attacked company and government buildings and set fire to vehicles, police said.

"The government will crack down on violent protests such as arson, destruction and holding people against their will," Home Minister Chung Kwan-yong said today after the raids. He said the government would stick to its policy of not intervening in peaceful strikes.

Supreme Court convicts Rust

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Supreme Court today convicted West German pilot Mathias Rust on all three counts and sentenced him to four years in a labor camp for his dramatic flight to Red Square in May.

Judge Robert Tikhomirnov said the 19-year-old pilot's unauthorized flight across more than 500 miles of Soviet territory was motivated by "adventurism" and "self-advertisement."

The judge said Rust would be sent to a "general regime labor colony," but gave no other indication of where he would serve his sentence.

Rust reddened slightly when the judge read out the verdict at the end of a three-day trial, but showed no emotion. He spoke briefly with his parents in the courtroom before two soldiers led him away.

Diplomats in Moscow have speculated that Rust could be expelled before serving some or all of his sentence. But there has been no official indication from Soviet officials on the fate of the young pilot.

The official Tass news agency reported that the sentence is final and not subject to appeal by either Rust or the prosecutor.

Rust was found guilty of violating international flight rules, illegally entering the Soviet Union and hooliganism.

Prosecutor Vladimir Andreyev had asked for an eight-year term, and Rust's Soviet defense attorney, Vsevolod Yakovlev, had sought the minimum sentence of a fine or one year in labor camp.

Rust has been jailed at Moscow's Lefortovo prison since May 28, shortly after ending his unhindered flight from Helsinki, Finland, by buzzing Lenin's mausoleum and other Kremlin landmarks then setting down on crowded Red Square.

His flight in a single-engine Cessna created headlines around the world and made him a folk hero in West Germany. But it embarrassed the Kremlin and caused a military shakeup, including dismissal of air defense forces commander and the forced resignation of Defense Minister Sergei L. Sokolov.

Rust said he sought East-West disarmament and an audience with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, but prosecutor Andreyev said he wanted only "cheap popularity."

Andreyev accused Rust of endangering hundreds of passengers on airliners nearing Moscow's Sheremetyevo International Airport, and said there could have been a dangerous international incident if Soviet forces had shot him down.

Earlier today, Rust appealed for leniency and said that if he received a light sentence, "I'll never betray the court's trust, never in my life."

Names in the news

JERUSALEM (AP) — Sylvester Stallone has arrived in Israel to film "Rambo III" in the Dead Sea's rocky surroundings.

The actor was whisked to his hotel Thursday from Ben Gurion International Airport near Tel Aviv in a special armored jeep, Israel radio said.

"Rambo III" is about the one-man commando squad's adventures in Soviet-occupied Afghanistan.

Weight-lifting equipment in the hotel was removed to make way for Stallone's personal 18-piece gym, flown in from Los Angeles, said Ilan Gayer, the hotel's sales manager.

DARWIN, Australia (AP) — Australia's most celebrated aboriginal actor, David Gulpilil of the hit movie "Crocodile Dundee," has been sentenced to a month in jail for drunken driving.

The 35-year-old Gulpilil was also barred Thursday from driving for three years.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Magnum P.I." star Tom Selleck secretly married his longtime girlfriend, Jillie Mack, last month, his publicist disclosed.

"He's very private about all of that," publicist Esme Chandlee said Thursday, just hours after denying a newspaper report of the wedding.

Other details, including the exact location of the Aug. 7 wedding near Lake Tahoe and the honeymoon itinerary, were kept secret even from her, Ms. Chandlee said.

The 42-year-old actor met Miss Mack in 1983, when he was filming the movie "Lassiter" and she was appearing in the musical "Cats" in London.
