Commissioners nix rental subsidy, too

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

In a vote that raised more questions than it answered, Midland County commissioners Monday voted to apply for $230,000 in federal Community Development funds — without rental subsidy or housing rehabilitation in the application.

It was the same stand the city of Midland took in its unsuccessful application for $946,000 in Community Development funds. But, a previous commitment of the Commissioners Court to the principle of rent subsidy makes the status of county obligation in that direction uncertain.

The commissioners were pessimistic about the likelihood of the application being approved without the housing programs.

Immediately after the vote, Commissioner Win Brown, the only member to vote against the proposal, said, "I look for it to be rejected."

"I do, too," replied Commissioner Jack Leonard, who made the motion to apply for the funds.

The motion was seconded by Commissioner Durward Wright, who said he has doubts about the acceptability of the plan to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

After the meeting, Leonard explained why he made his motion in spite of his pessimism. "I just think we might get it (the money) because they want to give it to somebody so bad."

Earlier this year, the county applied for $20,000 in Community Development funds for 1977. In making that application, the commissioners approved a resolution agreeing to participate in rental subsidy if money was made available for the program and if an outside agency was available to administer the program under contract.

HUD officials in Dallas have said the county is not obligated to do any more in rental assistance by accepting a total of $250,000 than it is in taking $20,000.

County Judge Barbara Culver urged the commissioners not to apply for the $230,000 and to reject the original $20,000 for 1977 and $40,000 already approved for 1976.

She suggested using county general funds or revenue sharing money to replace the Community Development funds, which have been earmarked for a rehabilitation center.

Judge Culver said she believes HUD will be more concerned with seeing that the county follows through and has funds available for rent subsidy if the $250,000 is awarded for 1977.

If the commissioners had rejected all the funds, there would be no rental assistance obligation, she said.

Judge Culver said after the meeting that she does not know what effect Monday's action will have on the $20,000 already applied for from 1977 funds. Also, she said, she does not know how the action will affect the county's rental subsidy obligation.

Commissioner Charlie Welch said after the meeting he does not think the action negates the previous commitment to rental assistance if funds and an agency to administer them are available.

The money for rental assistance comes from a different federal program, but acceptance of funding is a condition for receiving Community Development funds. Welch said any housing rehabilitation funds would come out of the $230,000.

During the discussion preceding the vote, Wright said a HUD official told the commissioners no money could be spent within the city of Midland without the consent of the City Council.

Leonard and Welch said the money, if it is received, should be spent primarily on roads in voting Precincts 17 and 24. Both are outside the Midland city limits.

Wright said a public hearing would be held before any of the money actually is budgeted.

Gene Wright, supervisory community planning and development representative for the Dallas HUD office, this morning said he is not in a position to comment on the likelihood of the application's being successful.

In fact, Wright said, HUD has not officially invited the county to apply for the funds. "We anticipate the funds will be made available to us," since the city's application was rejected, he said.

In the original $20,000 application, the county adopted a housing plan, Wright said, and it is obligated to make "some progress" toward meeting the goals outlined in the plan.

What happens if the county submits the application for the other $230,000 without mentioning rental assistance or housing rehabilitation?

"If they fail to mention it, we will remind them that it's part of the application. I don't think the county is going to ignore a basic part of the application. We've had good communication with Judge Culver," Wright said.

In other action Monday, the commissioners agreed to accept a bid of $107,700 for a rehabilitation center. The bid from Rose and Sons Inc. was the only full bid received on time.

In accepting the bid, the commissioners agreed to contribute $60,000 toward construction.

The remaining funds have been committed by the Midland Council on Alcoholism and the board of directors of the Permian Basin Community

Burnett believes crime solution in judiciary funding

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

More money for the judicial system is the answer to an increasing crime rate, Warren Burnett, Odessa lawyer, told area law enforcement officers Monday at the Midland Hilton.

"The American people are going to have the justice and law enforcement system that they are willing to pay for," said Burnett, who was speaking at the Texas Police Association Regional Seminar.

In the past 20 years, Burnett said, every politician seeking a legislative post has said he supports more severe punishment for offenders.

"This was taken by the public as the action of a loyal public servant, but it is the response of a fool in the face of an emergency," Burnett said.

America, Burnett said, has more people locked up for longer periods of time than any nation in history, yet crime is still increasing.

"Armed robberies are a growing crime, yet the penalty is the stiffest of any nation in history," Burnett said.

The crime problem in the U.S., the lawyer said, has passed the crisis stage, and is now in the emergency stage.

"More than half the people past retirement have had to alter their life styles dramatically to protect themselves from crime," he said.

Burnett cited a Massachusetts Institute of Technology study that said an American male child born in 1974 is more likely to be murdered than an American soldier was to be killed in action while serving in World War II.

Burnett said he attended a state sheriff's conference once when the state attorney general and the lieutenant governor both criticized the Supreme Court and defense lawyers for hindering law enforcement.

"But they never did mention that we may have to raise taxes drastically to provide the most efficient court and law enforcement system to reduce crime," Burnett said.

The state legislature every year refuses to appropriate money for the state judicial and law enforcement systems, he said.

"Who are the leaders of law enforcement improvement?" Burnett asked the lawmen. "You ain't got one," he replied to his own question.

Burnett said that in the 20 years he has practiced law, the only measure to come along and stand on its own merit was the concept and notion of probation.

"Yet while the people in Texas said they needed $60 million for the probation system, the legislature appropriated $20 million," he said.

"If you want to see who the friends of law enforcement are, see who voted for and against the (probation funding) proposition. You will be shocked," Burnett said.

Burnett, a defense lawyer, said his profession is not responsible for the "sad state we're in."

Burnett said if indictments are studied, it can be found that not one in 25 cases goes through the court system to a verdict.

Most of the cases are disposed of by plea bargaining, he said.

"Defense lawyers are not responsible for plea bargaining, but the American people (are) in that they never wanted to pay for a court system to provide a speedy trial," Burnett said.

If you go to any metropolitan area in Texas, you would see a court system that has essentially failed. If the defendants would stand their ground (and not plea bargain), the system would collapse," he said.

Defense lawyers, said Burnett, are not involved in enough cases in America to have an effect on the judicial system.

One-half of the assault-type crimes are not reported, Burnett said, and only one-fifth of the reported crimes result in an arrest. And, he added, only one-half of the arrests result in formal charges.

"So you find the defense lawyer is

No Christmas without Christ for school board

BAYTOWN, Tex. (AP) — The Goose Creek Consolidated Independent School District board voted unanimously today to permit the singing of carols and presentation of Christmas programs in the district's schools.

The board went into a closed session late Monday night to consider the policy after at least 2,400 parents and students in the district packed an auditorium to urge the changing of the policy which was handed down recently by school Supt. Johnny Clark.

Clark notified school principals that the traditional Christmas singing and plays would not be held this year in light of an American Civil Liberties Union suit filed in federal court.

The suit was filed in February in behalf of Ruth Johnson. She alleged that her Jewish children's religious rights have been violated by Christmas activities in the schools.

The suit, set for trial in May, also argues that Mrs. Johnson's rights as a parent to determine the religious training of her children have been violated.

She said her two children are being subjected to daily readings from the Bible and recitations of the Lord's Prayer in violation of the U.S. Constitution.

The suit seeks to stop such prayers and also seeks to prevent the district from having prayers at extracurricular activities such as graduation ceremonies, football games and Parent-Teacher Association meetings. The suit seek $45,000 in damages.

Clark issued instructions to stop the traditional Christmas carols and pageants on the advice of school district attorney Richard Peebles.

Monday night several people asked the board to change the policy and allow the traditional Christmas plays and songs.

The Rev. Tommy Harrison of the Northside Baptist Church in Highlands, said the matter of Christian religion and extracurricular activity is likely to become a test case in the nation's courts.

He asked if the citizens were ready for possible loss of state and federal funds and whether they were prepared to spend thousands of dollars to fight the ACLU suit.

The questions brought cheers and a standing ovation from the parents who had sung Christmas carols, religious hymns and patriotic songs before the meeting began.

Argument ends in death

BIG SPRING — A 22-year-old Big Spring man in the Howard County Jail this morning following an apparent argument late Monday night which resulted in the death of 37-year-old man.

Chief Deputy Bill Whitton said that Tommy K. Donahue, 37, had been hit over the head with a baseball bat after he cut a 22-year-old man with a knife during an argument. The fight occurred at 1501 Hilltop Road.

Both men were taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital. Donahue died shortly after midnight, and the man who had been cut received 14 stitches before he was taken to the Howard County Jail, Whitton said.

Wanted: Martin County saints who want to march through time

STANTON — For Martin County folks who want to be remembered in the pages of history, the deadline is looming.

Next Monday, which happens to be the eve of All Saints' Day, is the final chance Martin Countians will have to submit biographical material to be included in a book on the history of the county.

The book task is being undertaken by the Martin County Historical Commission, which, by the way, is selling "the limited edition book" only on a presale basis. The price: $21.50.

The work will give more than a traditional accounting of the history of the county, its principal town, Stanton, and scattered-about communities.

It will present sketches of the lives of Martin County families. Those accounts should run up to the present, said Mrs. J. Alex (Ruby) Haggard, the commission's chairman.

As significant as the fleeting past is, the present is at least just as important. Just give it time, and today will be history. That's as certain as the rising sun, she pointed out.

"What happened this morning will be history this afternoon," Mrs. Haggard said.

"We want biographies of all of the people living in the county now," she said.

The book, to be about the size of an encyclpedia volume, will number from 400 to 600 pages in length.

It will incorporate material from an earlier (1970) historical study of Martin County. That one was devoted to the county's early years and was compiled by Pat Wilkinson Hull and by the late Fay Eidson Smithson.

The book will include communities such as Lenorah, Tarzan, Courtney, Ackerly, Knott, Flower Grove, Lomax, and Klondike, even though some of those communities are not in Martin County. However, some are close enough to the border to be included, Mrs. Haggard said.

Basically, the account of the county will begin with 1881, when the Texas & Pacific Railroad placed a station here and called it Grelton. That year, when Catholic settlers first arrived, the name was changed to Marienfeld (Field of Mary) and in 1890, the town, under strong Protestant influence, was renamed Stanton.

Much of Martin County's heritage is linked to farming, ranching and to the oil industry.

Committee rejects ban on fuel-consuming cars

By JIM LUTHER

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee working on compromise energy legislation today turned down a Senate proposal for an outright ban on automobiles that get poor fuel economy.

The measure was rejected when House conferees voted 23 to 1 to dump the proposal.

The Senate had passed the ban, to begin in 1980 with cars getting less than 16 miles per gallon, as an alternative to President Carter's proposed tax on fuel-thirsty cars.

House conferees made it clear they intend to stand behind the tax measure, even though the Senate Finance Committee has rejected such an approach. The conference committee came as the full Senate prepared to take up the tax aspects of the legislation as sent to the floor by the finance committee.

Earlier today, House Democratic Whip John Brademas said after a congressional leadership breakfast with Carter that approval of an energy program is "a few weeks off." But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said he thought the legislation could be on the President's desk within three weeks.

Carter had said last week that if Congress fails to get the energy package to him soon, it could force him to cancel a four-continent trip planned for next month.

The President raised that possibility anew today when he met with Saudi Arabian foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal.

At the committee session, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, urged the conferees to go along with the Senate ban on fuel-thirsty cars.

"Should those who can afford gas guzzlers be permitted to drive them?" Metzenbaum asked.

House conferees argued that the fuel savings from such a flat ban would be negligible. And they said it would ban the production of vehicles such as station wagons, ambulances and hearses.

Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, chairman of the House energy committee, also claimed that such a ban would pose a severe economic hardship on American Motors Corp., smallest of the "Big Four" automakers.

Senate conferees indicated they would stand behind the proposed ban, but the overwhelming rejection vote by the House members had the effect of killing the proposal since both sides must agree on each issue.

Carter is scheduled to leave on the trip on Nov. 22, four weeks from today, but he has said he would postpone or cancel the journey if Congress is still working on the energy program.

Asked whether the President raised such a threat at the meeting today, as he had last week, Brademas said "he did not allude to that."

But Brademas agreed that the "few weeks" he predicted it may take to pass the legislation could delay approval until December.

Young favors sanctions against South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young says he favors mandatory United Nations sanctions against South Africa but the Carter administration has not decided yet whether to go that far because of the white South African government's latest crackdown on blacks.

In a Security Council debate that began Monday, black African nations are demanding that the council order a mandatory arms embargo and other stringent international measures against South Africa.

Young, emerging from the first day's debate, replied "Yes" when asked by reporters whether he supports some form of sanctions against the Pretoria government.

But he added: "My role is to describe the situation and possible alternatives (to the White House). ... The President and secretary of state will have to decide what sanctions are appropriate in these conditions."

The United States, Britain and France used their vetos in the Security Council in 1975 to block a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa. However, the U.S. government put an arms cutoff into effect voluntarily.

Young, who met with Carter at the White House earlier Monday to discuss South Africa, hinted the United States would seek a compromise resolution short of a binding arms embargo.

"We're in a good position to come to a draft resolution we could all agree to," he said. "We are still trying to serve as sort of a bridge between East and West."

Young last March managed to fend off the same African resolution, which also calls for a halt to new investment in South Africa. But U.S. diplomatic sources say the situation has changed considerably since then.

"There are a lot of people in Washington saying we can't just dig in our heels and stick with the status quo," said one American.

Last week the Pretoria government outlawed 18 black organizations, shut down two black newspapers and arrested at least 50 leading black critics of its apartheid policy of racial segregation.

Black Africans are also angered by continued South African control of South-West Africa, or Namibia, in defiance of U.N. orders, and by the South African government's refusal to cooperate in the U.N. trade embargo against Rhodesia's white government.

Carter points out debt to Vietnam War veterans

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says America owes "a special debt of gratitude" to Vietnam veterans who won little thanks for their sacrifices.

Speaking at Veterans Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery on Monday, the President compared his experience as a military veteran to what his son Jack faced after fighting in Vietnam.

"Although I came back from the war as some kind of hero, although I was not a hero, my son came back unappreciated, sometimes scorned by his peer group," Carter said.

"I think there's a special debt of gratitude on the part of the American people for those young men who died in Vietnam, because they have not been appreciated enough," he said.

After laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Carter noted that his administration has recommended increases in Veterans Administration compensation, pensions and GI Bill coverage.

"When we initiated our jobs program this year, we put veterans at the top place in the responsibility to give them gainful employment," the President told the crowd of 3,000.

The speech had special meaning for 31-year-old Ian Stirton, an unemployed Vietnam veteran with a master's degree in international affairs.

"The GI Bill by anyone's standards has been totally inadequate and every time we've had an increase we've had to fight tooth and nail for it," Stirton said. "The joblessness rate among Vietnam veterans ... is disgusting."

Unemployment for all Vietnam veterans has dropped over the last year from 8.9 per cent to 7.7 per cent, but it has increased from 16.5 per cent in the first quarter of 1977 to 20.1 per cent for veterans aged 20 to 24.

"I think a lot of Vietnam veterans have just gotten to the point where they're disgusted," Stirton said. "They don't believe anything that they hear."

Fair weather due to continue

After a cool and damp weekend, Midlanders should see a return to Indian summer weather with fair skies and warm afternoons through Wednesday.

The weatherman said the low temperature tonight is expected to fall to the low 50s with light and variable winds. The high temperature Wednesday should climb to the mid 80s.

Many Midlanders might have noticed some dew on their cars' windshields when they got up to go to work this morning, but the weatherman said there wasn't much fog in the city.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal recorded a high temperature Monday of 80 degrees and an overnight low temperature of 48 degrees.

not involved in enough cases to affect what's going on."

Burnett said there are too many laws to allow the law enforcement officer to adequately protect the public.

Burnett cited drug enforcement as an example. "Many people believe police should be relieved from drug enforcement so they can concentrate on crimes against the person," Burnett said.

In addition, he said, every recent presidential administration, Republican and Democrat, has said there is a great need to overhaul the laws, Burnett said.

Burnett also cited a Rand Corp. study that showed a detective spends over one-half of his time on things other than investigating crimes and making arrests.

"There's got to come a time when law enforcement officials are not satisfied with stronger penalties, Burnett said in closing.

"I appreciate the many things you are doing and have done. But don't refuse to face the reality of what must be done," Burnett told the lawmen.

Gunman kills UAE official, surrenders

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — A gunman in a white robe shot and killed a top United Arab Emirates official today and surrendered after trying to hijack a Czechoslovakian cargo plane, authorities reported.

The victim was identified as Saif Ghobash, 47, the No. 2 man in the foreign ministry. He was shot while seeing off Syrian Foreign Miniser Abdul Halim Khaddam.

Informed sources said Khaddam, who escaped one assassination attempt last December in Damascus, was the real target of the airport gunman.

Reports conflicted on whether there was more than one gunman. Iraqi radio said a "group" took part in the assassination.

Ghobash died at the hospital, an official spokesman said.

After shooting the minister during airport ceremonies for the visiting Syrian official, the gunman took seven persons hostage and forced them into the Czechoslovak cargo plane, which he tried to hijack, the official spokesman said. But he later surrendered.

Chili cook-off set Saturday

SLATON — For those of you who missed entering grandma's secret recipe in the Terlingua chili contest, you can try at the Lubbock Jaycees Lone Star Chili Cook-off Saturday.

The cook-off will last from 10 a.m. to midnight at a site 3 miles north of Slaton. The site can best be reached by going north on Farm Road 400, 2.8 miles, and turning at the cook-off sign, contest officials said.

Anyone may enter in the cook-off and compete for the trophies. Contestants may register by picking up an entry form from the Lubbock Jaycees or by signing in at the gate. The fee is $10 per team or $2 per person for teams having more than five persons.

Though campfire areas will be provided, contestants must provide their own cooking equipment. No electrical outlets are available. Each team must prepare the chili from scratch at the site only.

Trophies will be awarded for taste and showmanship. Included in the event a cow-chip throwing contest and a tobacco spitting contest. Music and refreshments will be available.

A $2 admission fee will be charged for the public to offset the cost of the event, as well as to support the various Jaycees' charities and community service projects. More information about rules or preregistration may be obtained by telephoning Brent Armstrong at 806-765-6341 or Ronnie Roach at 806-765-6057.

Abilene pilot killed in crash

ALBANY, Tex. (AP) — A crash near this West Texas city has claimed the life of an Abilene pilot and resulted in severe burns to an Albany rancher.

The victim was identified as Robert Keith Utter, 38, of Abilene who died when the small plane, an experimental two-man Steen Skybolt crashed Monday just short of an airstrip on a private ranch.

Police said Watt Matthews, 28, was injured in the crash. He was reported in guarded condition today at Parkland Hospital in Dallas with burns over 85 per cent of his body.

Also at the Monday meeting, the Commissioners Court agreed to cooperate in formulating a Civil Defense plan to evacuate the city of Midland in case of nuclear attack.

They also raised the cleanup deposit for use of the Midland County Exhibit Building from $50 to $100, effective Nov. 1. Judge Culver said that amount would be "subject to negotiation" for groups which already have been quoted the $50 figure and plan to use the building during November.

In other action, the commissioners approved a request for use of an additional office in the Courthouse Annex by Manpower.

Bob Dole no longer acts like No. 2 man

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Dole, flying to speaking engagements around the country and moving to the forefront of the Panama Canal treaty controversy, acts like he's still Gerald Ford's running mate.

But Dole, no longer interested in being anyone's No. 2, is thinking of 1980 and a run for the White House.

"I'd be less than honest if I said I didn't know 1980 was coming up," the Kansas senator commented in an interview in his Senate office.

"We've been active, I can't deny that," he says when asked what he's up to.

With public opinion polls showing President Carter could be vulnerable, Dole is one of several Republicans showing an unusually early interest in the race.

He's been in the forefront of the Panama Canal issue and has taken strong, early stands opposing aid to Vietnam and normalizing relations with Cuba.

Although he's not a member of the Senete Foreign Relations Committee, he has used its hearings on the treaty as a platform for his views.

Dole says he wants to clarify the language of the Panama Canal treaty, but does not want to defeat it.

He sparked Senate debate over the defense provisions of the treaty with his Oct. 4 release of a confidential cable from the U.S. embassy in Panama to Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

The cable contained a warning from Panamanian negotiators that U.S. leaders should refrain from saying the treaty guaranteed the right to intervene in the event of war after the year 2000, when Panama is due to take control of the canal.

Nine days later, Dole charged that members of Panamanian head of state Omar Torrijos' family had been implicated in drug trafficking, a charge that was confirmed by the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

Since January, Dole has made nearly 150 appearances in 24 states, Puerto Rico and Israel. And hardly a week goes by without a position paper coming from his office.

As the ranking Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee, he has a forum for maintaining that the administration is responsible for declining farm income.

And as a member of the Senate Finance Committee, the panel with jurisdiction over Carter's energy tax, welfare reform and Social Security proposals, Dole has another forum for speaking out on major domestic issues.

Not a bad spot for a senator with White House ambitions.

With Carter coming under increasing criticism from the American Jewish community for what is perceived as a policy tilt toward the Arab viewpoint in the Middle East, Dole is emerging as a strong supporter of Israel.

Soviets take Tito's wife to task

By MICHAEL DOBBS
The Manchester Guardian

BELGRADE — The mystery of what became of the wife of Yugoslavia's President Josip Broz Tito took a new twist Monday with reports that she is being questioned by a commission inquiring into the extent of her influence over political and military appointments.

According to informed Yugoslav sources, Mrs. Tito, who at 52 is more than 30 years younger than her husband, is being held at the presidential palace in Dedinje pending the outcome of the investigations by senior party officials. The president, meanwhile, is understood to be staying at another residence.

Yugoslavs have been aware for some time that Jovanka, as Mrs. Tito is popularly called, is in disfavor. But until recantly the nature of her trouble has been a losely guarded secret, known only to an inner circle of Communist leaders.

From fragmented details being handed down to junior officials, a picture emerges of a woman who allegedly used her personal position to control access to the president. Contrary to some reports, she does not appear to have been particularly interested in political policy but reportedly did try to influence senior appointments.

The name most often mentioned in connection with Mrs. Tito is that of Gen. Djoko Jovanic, who held the post of assistant minister of defense until last year.

Like Jovanka, General Jovanic is a Serb from the Lika district of western Croatia. Their acquaintance goes back to World War II, when Mrs. Tito, then a beautiful young partisan, served under Jovanic's command.

According to one account, Mrs. Tito pressed for Jovanic to become minister of defense in place of the present minister, Gen. Nikola Ljubicic. It is reasonable to suppose that she would have felt that Jovanic would be more favorably disposed towards her than Ljubicic, a rather colorless party bureaucrat, in the event of Tito's death.

Tito, who was ill with a liver ailment at the end of last year, does not appear to have been aware of the extent of his wife's activities until fairly recently. Matters are believed to have come to a head shortly before he was left for the Soviet Union, North Korea and China in the middle of August.

Yugoslav sources say the president may have begun asking his staff questions about his wife's influence following a row over whether or not she would accompany him on the trip. Usually it was her custom to go with him on state visits abroad, but according to diplomatic sources, she was not invited to the Soviet Union.

A number of senior officials in both the president's private office and the defense ministry were removed to less sensitive posts.

Magazine claims Israel developed nuclear arsenal

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Israel built an arsenal of nuclear weapons from uranium that Israeli commandos hijacked nine years ago in France and Great Britain, according to a forthcoming story in Rolling Stone magazine.

"The stolen material was used to give Israel a last-resort military alternative in the Mideast," wrote the article's two authors, Howard Kohn and Barbara Newman. "By the Central Intelligence Agency's estimate, Israeli scientists have fashioned as many as 15 powerful nuclear bombs" from the hijacked uranium.

Kohn and Newman said their sources were two unidentified officials in the United States government, "one a highly-valued Pentagon consultant, the other a former National Security Agency official." The authors said the information was "corroborated" by a former CIA official, a former White House aide and "other government officials."

Intelligence sources told The Washington Post they had never heard of any uranium hijackings in France and Britain and doubted that any had taken place.

One source close to the international nuclear trade said that the French government exercises strict controls over all uranium shipments, providing police escorts for all trucks hauling weapons-grade uranium and stopping them overnight at French military bases.

The Rolling Stone article claims that commandos from the Israeli Mossad secret service attacked a 25-ton truck ferrying government uranium inside France in 1968. The story says the commandos disabled the truck's driver with teargas, then smuggled the truck and its uranium 2,000 miles to clandestine bases in the Negev Desert.

"The Mossad squad repeated the scenario in England with the same success," the article goes on, "but that operation ended in disappointment," Rolling Stone said the British shipment contained only "yellowcake," which is the yellow uranium ore from which the metal is extracted.

"Israeli scientists, however, were close to completing a facility where a sophisticated process is used to refine yellowcake into bomb material," the article goes on.

Nuclear experts claim that Israel has no such facility and no such process. They point out that if Israel wanted to make nuclear weapons it could do so by building a relatively inexpensive ($30 million) facility to extract plutonium from spent uranium fuel burned up in a research reactor Israel has operated since 1956.

Final effort for public election financing slated

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The House Democratic leadership is making a last-minute effort to get Congress to approve partial public financing of next year's House elections.

Tuesday morning, the House Administration Committee will attempt the final draft of a bill with an eye to getting it on the House floor before adjournment.

Although public financing of the 1976 presidential election met with almost unanimous approval, pressure for carrying the system on to Congress has faded.

The Senate dropped a proposal for public financing of its elections earlier this year in the face of firm Republican and conservative Democratic opposition. In the past, the Senate has approved such measures.

Traditionally, the House has been opposed to public financing of its elections. The large number of House races, opponents have claimed, would make it an administrative nightmare. There is also underlying opposition from incumbents who believe they would get tougher election day opponents if there were a guarantee of adequate campaign funds.

The current push on public financing came from the Democratic Study Group. Some 155 members asked Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill and House Administration Chairman Frank Thompson, Jr., (D-N.J.) to move on the measure which had been tied up since the spring.

Adding impetus to the request was defeat of the cargo preference bill. There campaign contributions from maritime unions and shipping interests helped stimulate opposition to the measure.

As drafted by the committee staff, federal funds would be available only to major party candidates in House general elections.

They would have to raise $10,000 in contributions of $100 or less for their first federal aid which would be a free districtwide mailing rather than cash.

Thereafter, every contribution of $100,000 less would would be matched by federal funds up to a total of $25,000.

A candidate could continue to raise campaign funds but they would not be matched. Furthermore any candidate accepting federal funds could spend only a total of $150,000 on his race — including the free mialing which would be valued at $25,000.

If one candidate exceeded the $150,000 limit, his opponent could also go higher — and receive further matching funds up to another $50,000.

HEW study asked

The Los Angeles Times

SAN FRANCISCO — The federal government will launch a major investigation into the decline in basic skills of American students, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., disclosed Monday.

Califano said he has asked the National Institute of Education (NIE), the education research arm of HEW, to do a "major study of the reason why students fail to perform well on (standardized) tests and basic skills."

The HEW secretary, speaking to the annual business meeting of the college entrance examination board, also announced several other federally-sponsored efforts aimed at curbing the decline.

Included, he said, is the creation of a "Project on Fundamental Skills." This program, to be operated by HEW's Office of Education, will bring 13 existing federal programs under one umbrella to "ensure better targeting of funds by HEW as we work to help states and localities develop effective plans for improving basic skills," Califano said.

Among the federal programs involved will be Right to Read, bilingual education, teacher corps, vocational education, education for the handicapped and compensatory education.

In a wide-ranging speech Califano, in an apparent allusion to the Bakke case, the so-called "reverse discrimination" suit now before the U.S. Supreme Court, also defended the need for special admissions programs in the nation's professional and graduate schools. He also rejected the notion of a national scholastic achievement test or national standards of scholastic achievement.

Gay club's members injured

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — At least five men were killed and as seven others injured, several seriously, in an accidental explosion and fire Monday evening at a Washington club for homosexuals.

The blaze, which apparently was caused by the explosion of either cleaning equipment or a gas heater, broke out about 5 p.m. at the Cinema Follies. The flames blocked the front door and firemen had to smash through a rear door locked from the outside on the second floor to reach the unconscious victims inside.

Most of the victims appeared to have choked on billowing black smoke that filled the interior of the two-story brick building, where about a dozen persons were watching "all male, X-rated" films on the second floor.

On the gravel roof of an adjoining one-story building, teams of fire fighters worked desperately over the prostrate bodies of the victims, trying to resuscitate them.

"The firemen did a terrific job," said the Rev. Joseph J. Miller, pastor of the nearby St. Vincent de Paul Roman Catholic Church. "They worked like hell."

The victims were not immediately identified.

Carter welfare plan in trouble

By PEGGY SIMPSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's welfare plan has been before Congress for scarcely seven weeks, and people already are talking about a salvage operation.

At hearings before the special House welfare subcommittee last week, witnesses casually talked about what might be saved from the overall $30.2 billion welfare package.

Nobody agreed on what should be salvaged any more than they agreed what should be abandoned.

But the widespread uneasiness with the cost, the lack of guarantee of jobs for all poor persons wanting them or the low level of benefits has raised the specter that Carter's plan faces the same conflicting expectations that killed former President Richard Nixon's proposed welfare reform.

Brookings economist Richard Nathan, who says the present welfare system has been finetuned to rid it of most errors, says the early enthusiastic reactions to Carter's plan were misleading.

"The governors, in particular, were quite eager to see some fiscal relief coming their way," Nathan said. But after hard study of the details, many "are coming forward now with questions and with criticisms, and quite a few people, myself included, conclude that this really isn't a good approach."

Governors and other state officials are among the 80 witnesses scheduled to testify in the weeks ahead. But some key groups already have been heard.

The unions are skeptical that the private sector jobs will exist in the numbers the administration says they will. They are afraid that the 1.4 million publicly funded jobs for welfare recipients will be make-work jobs or, worse, be genuine jobs paying only the minimum wage that will compete with jobs paying higher wages held by unionized city or county workers.

Women's groups are skeptical that either kind of job will be provided for the bulk of the existing welfare population, women with children, and they are uncertain whether to push hard for the rest of the package.

The associations representing the 15 million blind and disabled citizens say the President's program doesn't provide high enough benefits for their constituents and, furthermore, assumes they are all unemployable. The associations said many disabled and blind persons "need only an active job training and placement program in order to become employable."

And the President's prime Senate sponsor, New York Democrat Daniel Patrick Moynihan, says that despite his initial praise he now has read the fine print and finds the program "grievously disappointing."

Some critics say Moynihan is retaliating against the White House after not getting a guarantee of immediate fiscal aid to New York City, but, whatever his motives, his turn-around dramatically focused attention on the problems Carter faces in getting his program through.

Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., chairman of the special House welfare subcommittee, says he isn't discouraged by the considerable criticism thus far in the hearings.

"I realized that each group has its own stake in this and that a welfare reform plan is as full of conflicting interests as the tax code," Corman said in an interview.

"But I would ask any of them: do you like this better than what you have?" he said.

He also says no one is comfortable with the complexities of the jobs portion of the bill and fears over that section have to be resolved "or I wouldn't vote for it."

Corman is disturbed that few of the Democrats have attended the all-day hearings, while most Republicans have, but he is most unhappy at the prospect that the subcommittee can't finish marking up the bill by Dec. 22 as he had planned.

Congress may not recess until mid-November, partly because of delays on the energy bill, and he's not sure he can get his members back right after Thanksgiving for another three weeks' hard work. But time will be even more scarce in January, he noted.

"The time problem leaves me very discouraged," he said.

The ranking Republican, Rep. Barber Conable of New York, says he thinks it will take more time than Corman is counting on anyway because, as a veteran of most recent attempts to revise the welfare system, he finds Carter's plan "unduly complicated."

But Conable says he isn't giving up on the plan.

"It will require a considerable laying on of hands by Congress, but I'm all for looking at it and trying to work something out," Conable said.

A good theme, IF ....

The Tuition Tax Credit Act of 1977, as the bill co-sponsored by Senators Robert Packwood and Daniel Moynihan is called, is full of good ideas. But that just might be its political problem.

The philosophical purpose of the bill is to beef up the private educational sector, unquestionably a good idea. The practical means to this end is the creation of a federal income tax credit; that's a good method of subsidy, and so the tax credit is a good idea.

The credit, furthermore, could amount to as much as $500 for the tuition expenses of an individual or spouse or dependents; surely that's a generous enough sum to influence choices in favor of private education, and so the $500 is a good idea.

Where, then, are those good ideas which constitute a political problem?

They lie in a sentence concerning eligibility: "Any part-time or full-time student who attends an elementary or secondary school, a vocational school, or college or university is eligible for the credit." And it requires little discernment to understand that here the Packwood-Moynihan bill effectively would encourage private elementary and secondary education.

These are good ideas, but they are also mines likely to be detonated when debate on the bill commences in January. The sponsoring senators likely will be charged with trying to encourage white flight, wreck desegregation, and generally discombobulate race relations.

It will do them little good, against those fevered accusations, to quote, as Senator Moynihan is wont to quote, Joseph Schumpeter's remarks on how the end of liberal society will be effected by the "conquest of the private sector by the public sector."

No, Senators Packwood and Moynihan had better salvage their bill before it gets savaged, and the way to do that, obviously, is to edit out of that eligibility sentence the words "any elementary or secondary school."

It's a shame that this is necessary in the face of an overall excellent bill, but that's the way it is at this stage of the game.

Perhaps in time, the fevers on race and education will run their course, and someone — perhaps these same senators — can propose a tax credit which would perk up private elementary and secondary education.

But for now, politics dictates the possible, and the possible — encouragement to private higher education — still would be quite an achievement.

Sputnik remembered

Twenty years ago on Oct. 4 awed Americans peered into the night sky to watch reflected light from a hidden sun bounce off Sputnik I, orbiting the earth at anywhere from 140 to 560 miles in space.

The 184-pound sphere, launched by the Soviet Union, completed an elliptical orbit every 1 ½ hours, nagging watchers across the United States with highly visible proof that their nation had been left at the starting blocks in the race into space.

Chagrined federal officials took the lead in urging a new national emphasis on science and educational programs in science.

And the national response was spectacular. Some critics contend, in fact, that an overreaction has created a glut of scientists and technicians which contributes to unemployment problems.

But the launching of the first U.S. satellite on Jan. 31, 1958, was the forerunner of manned U.S. flights to the moon and beyond.

And the anticipated contribution of the coming space shuttle program to the peaceful exploitation of space argues that the American response to the space challenge was justified.

New 'Smoking Stinks' campaign might work

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — A news item out of Chicago reports that the American Cancer Society has decided to launch a new advertising campaign entitled, "Smoking Stinks," aimed at teenagers who are buying cigarettes. The campaign will publicize the fact that smoking causes bad breath.

The reason for the switch is that studies showed that while most teenagers do not fear death, they are, thanks to TV, frightened silly of bad breath.

I believe the Cancer Society is on the right track. Anyone who watches television knows that death is not the ultimate put-down in our American culture.

Teen-agers are fed a daily diet of murders and killings on television programs every day, and most of them accept it as one of those things. But they are aware, from watching the commercials, that bad breath is no laughing matter and no matter who you are you could be a victim of it.

I know this from personal experience. I was watching a TV program the other night with some young people in which there was a knifing, a rape and a shootout. I lost count after five people were killed.

No one in the room except me seemed bothered by it.

The commercials were something else.

In one, a young man took his date home and refused to kiss her. She went inside in tears.

The two young ladies watching with me were riveted to their seats.

Fortunately, the young woman's mother was still up and she explained to her daughter what the problem was. It was BAD BREATH. The daughter protested that she had already used a mouthwash. But the mother said, "This one is different. It freshens your mouth for 24 hours."

In the next scene the same boy took the daughter home and kissed her fully on the mouth. "Can I see you again?" the boy asked.

Inside the house the girl rushed into her mother's arms. "How was your date?" the mother asked. "Wonderful," the girl replied. "Thanks to you and...."

My two young lady visitors breathed a sigh of relief. They identified with the poor girl and it seemed that the problem had been resolved to everyone's satisfaction.

A few commercials later it was the boys' turn to squirm. The scene took place in a locker room. The star basketball player had just scored the winning play but all his teammates were ignoring him.

The young men in my living room stared intently at the screen.

Finally, the coach came over to the boy and said, "Nice game," and handed the star a can of underarm deodorant. The boy took the can and sprayed it under his arms. In seconds the entire team gathered around him and congratulated him on his game.

"All right," one of the young men in the living room said, which is, as I understand it, the highest compliment a teen-ager can pay to anyone or anything.

"Do the knifings and rapes and killings bother you?" I asked.

They all looked at me as if I was crazy.

"It's only a TV show," one of the teen-agers said.

"But the bad breath and underarm deodorants are for real?"

"Well, yeh," someone replied. "I mean that's life. No one likes anyone who smells bad."

Unfortunately, the next commercial had to do with constipation. It showed an old man who didn't want to go fishing until his wife gave him a new mint-flavored laxative.

The kids laughed at this one.

"What's so damn funny?" I wanted to know.

"Who ever heard of a guy who wouldn't go fishing until his wife gave him a new laxative?" a teen-ager said.

It suddenly dawned on me that these kids were in a world of their own, and the American Cancer Society's new bad breath campaign just might work.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Headed in wrong direction(?)

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The National Cancer Institute, which is waging the war on mankind's most dreaded disease, may be leading the charge in the wrong direction.

Although most cancer is caused by substances in the environment, less than one-fifth of the institute's $819-million budget is devoted to cancer prevention. Congressional investigators have concluded, therefore, that the giant institute is spending too much of its money looking for exotic cures.

For example, the institute has spent nearly $25 million on a program to develop "safer" cigarettes. "One might ask for an explanation in view of the unanimous opinion that smoking is related to cancer," declares a confidential House memo prepared for Rep. Andrew Maguire, D-N.J. "Shouldn't this cost be borne by the tobacco industry?"

The head of the safe cigarette program, Dr. Gio Gori, agreed that "any cigarette is hazerdous ... Our efforts to develop cigarettes with less tar and nicotine may help the tobacco industry, but it will benefit the country's 55 million smokers more." He added that the institute is trying to develop drugs to help people stop smoking altogether.

Meanwhile, the institute has not yet tested most of the 1,900 chemicals suspected of causing cancer. It has completed only 13 of 400 scheduled tests and is still working on such substances as cholesterol, castor oil, Tris, saccharin, gum arabic, cosmetics, acetic acid, pesticides and various food colorings.

"We've beeen caught with our pants down," an institute spokesman confessed. "It takes time to test these new substances. We're trying to catch up on the backlog," he explained.

At the same time, the House memo states, "Environmental research has been looked upon as second-class research," and most private research funded by the institute has not focused on the environmentel causes of cancer.

The estimated costs of regulating chemical hazards, the memo adds, "are largely based on information from the industry to be regulated." Corporations once complained, for instance, that it would cost $65 million and 1.6 million jobs to reduce their use of cancer-causing vinyl chloride, but they have since adjusted at very little cost and few reductions in jobs.

Nobel Prize winner James Watson, who advised the institute for two years, called its war on cancer a "total sham" that consists mostly of "political logrolling."

The House investigations subcommittee may ask the institute to issue annual reports describing what action needs to be taken against cancer-causing substances. The institute, however, is expected to refuse. The subcommittee plans to hold hearings soon on the institute's shortcomings.

BOYCOTT BROUHAHA: The Commerce Department appears to be seeking a way for American companies to boycott Israel — supposedly a violation of U.S. law.

Last year, Congress barred businesses from complying with the Arab boycott of Israel and asked Commerce officials to draft regulations to put the law into effect. But congressional sources complain that the regulations contain loopholes large enough to drive an oil tanker through.

The sources say the language of at least half a dozen exemptions would enable companies to go along with the boycott without fear of prosecution. The House consumer and monetary affairs subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., will hold hearings today on the issue.

Surprisingly, Commerce official Stanley Marcus, who helped formulate the loophole-ridden regulations, has already briefed Arab and Israeli leaders on them. Now that the Mideast leaders have been briefed, our sources maintain, it will be difficult to change the draft regulations.

Marcus insisted, however, that he told the Arabs and Israelis the rules were not yet final. He contended the language will carry out the "full intent" of Congress in halting the Arab boycott.

LOAN LAXITY: The Economic Development Administration is supposed to fight unemployment by giving loans to companies that can't get other financing. Yet the EDA has granted a $1 million loan to a firm owned by a billion-dollar foreign corporation, according to a confidential report by the General Accounting Office.

The report, labelled "restricted," blasts the EDA for approving the loan to Keystone Georgia Metal Co. for an aluminum recycling plant. Keystone's foreign ownership was disclosed on its loan application. But agency officials did not even consider whether its overseas owner could finance the project, the report charges.

The study, requested by Rep. John Moss, D-Cal., also said that EDA failed to question, as required by law, whether the loan would hurt existing companies. The investigators insist that there wasn't enough need for the recycling plant to justify the loan in the first place.

NICK THIMMESCH

Well, why not create a U.S. Department of Health?

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — Sen. Charles Mathias (R-Md.) wants to carve the "H" out of HEW and create a new Department of Health. Since hearings are being held on Sen. Abraham Ribicoff's (D-Conn.) bill to slice out the "E," that could leave "W" standing out like a sore thumb. If Mathias and Ribicoff succeed, there would automatically be a Department of Welfare, or Department of Sore Thumb depending on your viewpoint.

"Then maybe we'd get around to the welfare reform we've talked about for the past 20 years," muses Mathias, one of the Senate's more thoughtful members. "Welfare would be the last straw."

Anyway, Mathias is convinced that an independent Department of Health is needed to straighten out the mess in our health delivery system, plagued with an inflation two-and-a-half times cost-of-living increases and growing confusion about what makes for good health.

He argues that no HEW secretary, including Joseph Califano, should be logically expected to keep track of what's going on in the health business with the maze of federal health activities and programs. The United States is the only major nation which jammed health, education and welfare into one super department.

"The bureaucratic morass at HEW defies description," Mathias says. "We in Congress probably know more about the inner life of the CIA than we do about HEW.

"Ideas bubble up from the medical profession and from government medical agencies which demand response, and they never get answered. They just sit there."

One such new concept is that preventive health care and environmental medicine could eventually reduce the staggering cost of care — and cause people to be healthier besides.

With 80 percent of Americans covered by private health insurance — mostly paid for by employer contributions — and federal programs covering millions of other people, it seems that everybody wants to get his or her body repaired by medics or hospitals. This great demand escalates costs to unbelievable levels.

"The way medicine is financed today," says Mathias, "it's almost never coming from your pocket. It's coming from insurance or government.

"When I was a boy, our doctor had a white goatee and carried a black bag. He had a blue pill and a red pill. You got one or the other, and either way you didn't die and it didn't cost very much.

"Now they take you to the hospital and they pump out your blood and do all those wonderful and extraordinary things. But they do it at enormous expense. There's unnecessary surgery, unnecessary administration of drugs and reactions to those drugs."

Mathias believes a Department of Health would be able to get involved in preventive medicine and environmental problems and could be a national voice educating people about health.

"They might be able to teach that taking pills won't make you feel better, that taking pills may make you feel worse. This is the very thing that Joe Califano and his predecessors wanted to do, but couldn't, to their regret."

Mathias also believes that a Department of Health, with the status and power of full Cabinet rank, could take leadership in cutting the skyrocketing costs. He assigns first blame to the federal government which, he says, "has become the nation's biggest and most undisciplined health spender."

The private sector in health doesn't pinch pennies, either. Doctors authorize expensive procedures, because they know that insurance covers them and that their flanks will be protected against malpractice suits. Hospitals fall into wasteful ways, figuring more federal funds are en route.

He likes to tell how Johns Hopkins Hospital's cost improvement program, begun two years ago, now saves $1.2 million annually. "They took a hard look at old practices," Mathias says. "For instance, they started looking down laundry shoots and discovered a treasure trove of supplies and equipment that got mixed up with dirty linen. They found lead aprons, X-ray film, a surgeon's head gear, hot water bottles and enough other stuff to save $20,000 in one year."

If there's any doubt that the health industry is big, Mathias can point out that it is now the nation's third-largest employer, consumes 12 percent of the federal budget and 9 percent of the gross national product. The pharmaceutical and medical supply industries have a whopping cash flow of $10 billion.

And still some proud people without means won't go through what they regard as the demeaning experience of getting health care through welfare or private charity. Additionally, an estimated 15.5 million American children have not been vaccinated against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus — even though there is federal budgeting for these immunization programs.

Mathias admits that a Department of Health (every state seems to have one) would cause a problem. "It will bring one more black Cadillac to the streets of Washington," he says. But he feels it's worth it.

He also feels that a department, speaking with authority, could bring focus to the endless discussion and debate over passage of legislation for a national health program.

Meanwhile, Mathias advocates a "healthy lifestyle" for all, admitting his 14-hour days don't fit his own prescription. He talks about an end to junk food, enjoying life more through exercise and all the rest.

"I play tennis with a cardiac specialist," says Mathias, whose wit is an ample as his belly. "My wife teases me about that."

Nevada man crowned world chili champion

ROSAMOND, Calif. (AP) — Some cooked with tequila and chocolate, others threw in raccoon or buffalo meat. Many followed family recipes handed down like heirlooms from generation to generation.

But the Las Vegas realtor who simmered up the winning concoction at the 11th World Championship Chili Cook-off was a rank amateur who simply stuck to basics.

"I have no secret ingredients," said Jay Pennington, who was crowned 1977 world chili champ Sunday before an overflow crowd of 35,000 chili buffs at the Tropico gold mining camp, a Mojave Desert ghost town. "I use good meat and keep out the grease."

The award-winning batch of "Jay's Good Ol' Chili" was the sixth ever cooked by Pennington. His first won a Las Vegas Kiwanis chili cooking contest, and his second clinched him the Nevada state chili cooking championship.

Pennington, sponsored by the Circus Circus Hotel in Las Vegas and the Kiwanis club, beat out more than 30 other state and several foreign champions, including 1976 winner Rufus Valdez, a full-blooded Ute from Albuquerque, N.M. who brought along 20 Indian dancers for moral support.

Valdez claimed his "Indian's Revenge" recipe included a pinch of chili grown from 2,000year-old seeds.

While his friend Joe Michaels looked on, 61-year-old R.S. "Red" Holmes of Stony Brook, N.Y. stirred the New York state pot.

"We were both pilots in the China theatre during World War II," Michaels said. "I came down with symptoms of Malaria. Red had me eat a pot of his chili and two days later I was completely cured."

Leo Wagner of the North Dakota claimed his team's "Roughrider chili" is so strong "it wakes up the dead."

"Roughrider Chili is what squared Teddy Roosevelt's teeth," said Wagner.

Master of ceremonies and chief judge at the International Chili Society culinary competition was C.V. Wood, himself a two-time world champion. He described chili as "the native nourishment of mankind — the dish of the people."

Other judges included actors William Conrad, Ernest Borgnine, Marty Allen, actress Joanne Dru, race car drivers Carroll Shelby and Bobby Unser and California Atty. General Evelle Younger.

Spectators paid $4 each to attend the event, whose proceeds will go to the Los Angeles Childrens Hospital.

South ruffed the opening lead and led the king of clubs. When West discarded a diamond, East won and returned a spade.

South took the ace of spades, drew trumps and led dummy's jack of clubs. When East eventually covered with the queen, South ruffed, ruffed a spade in dummy and discarded his losers on dummy's good clubs.

"It wouldn't do any good," West pointed out. "He'd lead a trump to the king, ruff out a top club, back to the ace of hearts to ruff out your other top club, and dummy would be good."

RETURN QUESTION

Then West asked a question of his own: "Why didn't you refuse to take the king of clubs?"

There was no answer to this. South can't draw West's trumps and then set up and cash the clubs. Nor can South ruff out his spades since he must return to his hand by ruffing clubs, and West would soon over ruff and lead another trump.

State board to hear Connally next month

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State District Judge Joseph Connally of Odessa, chairman of the Board of Private Investigators and Private Security Agencies, said Monday the board will not consider allegations against him in regard to his expense vouchers until Nov. 10.

Connally issued a statement through the board's office saying he had offered to meet with Atty. Gen. John Hill regarding the vouchers but that Hill said he would prefer that the matter be aired before the full board.

Connally said he attempted to call a meeting for today, but meetings can only be called by a majority of the board members.

"Since General Hill had said that today was a convenient day for him, I offered to meet with him on that day in order to publicly answer any questions that he might have about my expense accounts and other board business.

"However, since General Hill has stated that he would prefer a meeting with the entire board rather than with me individually, I don't plan to waste a trip to Austin since I have a full docket this week and need to be in Odessa," Connally said.

The board will meet Nov. 10 for its regularly scheduled session.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Fever sores call for care

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am frequently bothered by fever sores around my mouth. Is there any way I can get rid of them? They keep coming back and are sure a nuisance—and they look so awful.—Edie R.

Dear Edie: Unfortunately, there is no really effective treatment for fever sores, or herpes simplex infection of the lip, as it is also called. Many drugs have been tried, but none seems to work consistently. The one that has been getting the most favorable comment lately is iododeoxyuridine. However, this does require a prescription from the doctor.

Some dermatologists say you may short-circuit a fever sore if you apply very hot water or collodion before it gets going— just when you begin to feel the preliminary itchy, prickly sensation. Once the little blisters have formed, however, do not use moisture because this makes the inflammation worse and may delay healing. What often provides relief at this stage is some simple drying lotion like calamine, camphorated alcohol or just plain, 70 percent alcohol.

When the crust has formed, a bland cream, like zinc ozide, may be helpful.

A recent article in the New England Journal of Medicine said that several new compounds have shown promise in the treatment of herpes simplex infections in laboratory animals, so we may be hearing more about these shortly.

Fever sores are caused by a virus that seems to be present on yur skin all the time. They are apparently triggered when your resistance is low—you may be under some emotional strain or just run down. Excessive sunlight, or, of course, fever, may also set them off.

Luckily, they are short-lived as a rule, and natural healing starts rapidly. If it is any consolation, they are very common—somewhere between 20 and 40 percent of the population gets fever sores at one point or another.

A note of caution: if you ever get a herpes infection of the eye, this requires immediate medical attention. Herpes in the genital region also needs a doctor's care.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Both sides encouraged by Panamanians' vote

By ANNE ZUSY

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos says he is content with his people's 66 percent "yes" vote for the new Panama Canal treaties. But opponents of Torrijos' authoritarian rule say the size of the "no" vote is encouraging to their campaign for a return to democratic government.

An unofficial count of 95 per cent of the votes in Sunday's plebiscite, announced Monday night by Controller General Damian Castillo, showed 468,664 in favor of the treaties, 228,697 against, more than 12,000 invalid ballots, and a turnout of 96 to 98 percent of the estimated 800,000 persons eligible to vote.

Castillo, who headed the election board, said Torrijos told him he was "content with the turnout and the results." Other government officials said the vote for approval was a "bit less" than the 70 per cent they had hoped for.

Torrijos' opponents also expressed satisfaction with the results.

"These were very good results and show we are in a very good position," said Diogenes Arosemana of the Independent Lawyers' Movement, which led the opposition to the treaties.

"We have been fighting for the renewal of political parties," Arosemana continued, "and now that we have this backing, we believe we have enough popular support to continue."

Director given date to report

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Movie director Roman Polanski has been given less than two months to finish preparing for a $14 million Tahitian film epic before he reports to a prison for psychiatric tests.

The 44-year-old director, who has pleaded guilty to a sex crime involving a 13-year-old girl, was told Monday to report to Chino state prison Dec. 19.

"His imprisonment at Chino will not be postponed beyond that date under any circumstances," said Superior Court Judge Laurence Rittenband.

Polanski took the witness stand Monday to tell the judge that he was really working — not living it up — when he was photographed amid beer mugs and beautiful women at the Munich Octoberfest.

Defense will attempt to identify 'assailants'

By MIKE COCHRAN

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A lawyer defending millionaire Cullen Davis said today the defense will endeavor to show it was angry business associates of Stan Farr who triggered the bloody shooting spree at the defendant's Fort Worth mansion last year.

"...Mr. Farr was a target of those assailants because of his business connections with other people," lead lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes told the jury in his opening statement.

Haynes said the defense would provide evidence indicating that the assailant or assailants entered the mansion the night of Aug. 2 1976 to collect money that had not been paid by Farr.

He said the defendant's stepdaughter Andrea Wilborn was an accidental victim and that Davis' estranged wife Priscilla likewise "was not a primary target."

Haynes said the defense also would show that Mrs. Davis, Gus Gavrel, and Beverly Bass all "took liberties with the truth" when they identified Davis as the "man in black" who touched off the midnight shooting spree. Gavrel and Mrs. Davis were wounded in the shooting. Farr and Davis' stepdaughter were killed.

Haynes said he would demonstrate that the three key state witnesses all stand to profit by the conviction of the millionaire defendant and contended that Davis had no motive "to participate in the events of Aug. 23."

The defense, Haynes said, also will endeavor to show that Gavrel told investigators and others after the shooting the he did not know and did not recognize his assailant.

Haynes did not name whom he believes the real killer to be, but he told the jury he will bring to the stand a former boyfriend of Mrs. Davis, W.T. Rufner, whose name has surfaced frequently during the two months of testimony.

Commissioners nix rental subsidy, too

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

In a vote that raised more questions than it answered, Midland County commissioners Monday voted to apply for $230,000 in federal Community Development funds — without rental subsidy or housing rehabilitation in the application.

It was the same stand the city of Midland took in its unsuccessful application for $946,000 in Community Development funds. But, a previous commitment of the Commissioners Court to the principle of rent subsidy makes the status of county obligation in that direction uncertain.

The commissioners were pessimistic about the likelihood of the application being approved without the housing programs.

Immediately after the vote, Commissioner Win Brown, the only member to vote against the proposal, said, "I look for it to be rejected."

"I do, too," replied Commissioner Jack Leonard, who made the motion to apply for the funds.

The motion was seconded by Commissioner Durward Wright, who said he has doubts about the acceptability of the plan to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

After the meeting, Leonard explained why he made his motion in spite of his pessimism. "I just think we might get it (the money) because they want to give it to somebody so bad."

Earlier this year, the county applied for $20,000 in Community Development funds for 1977. In making that application, the commissioners approved a resolution agreeing to participate in rental subsidy if money was made available for the program and if an outside agency was available to administer the program under contract.

HUD officials in Dallas have said the county is not obligated to do any more in rental assistance by accepting a total of $250,000 than it is in taking $20,000.

County Judge Barbara Culver urged the commissioners not to apply for the $230,000 and to reject the original $20,000 for 1977 and $40,000 already approved for 1976.

She suggested using county general funds or revenue sharing money to replace the Community Development funds, which have been earmarked for a rehabilitation center.

Judge Culver said she believes HUD will be more concerned with seeing that the county follows through and has funds available for rent subsidy if the $250,000 is awarded for 1977.

If the commissioners had rejected all the funds, there would be no rental assistance obligation, she said.

Judge Culver said after the meeting that she does not know what effect Monday's action will have on the $20,000 already applied for from 1977 funds. Also, she said, she does not know how the action will affect the county's rental subsidy obligation.

Commissioner Charlie Welch said after the meeting he does not think the action negates the previous commitment to rental assistance if funds and an agency to administer them are available.

The money for rental assistance comes from a different federal program, but acceptance of funding is a condition for receiving Community Development funds. Welch said any housing rehabilitation funds would come out of the $230,000.

During the discussion preceding the vote, Wright said a HUD official told the commissioners no money could be spent within the city of Midland without the consent of the City Council.

Leonard and Welch said the money, if it is received, should be spent primarily on roads in voting Precincts 17 and 24. Both are outside the Midland city limits.

Wright said a public hearing would be held before any of the money actually is budgeted.

In other action Monday, the commissioners agreed to accept a bid of $107,700 for a rehabilitation center. The bid from Rose and Sons Inc. was the only full bid received on time.

In accepting the bid, the commissioners agreed to contribute $60,000 toward construction.

The remaining funds have been committed by the Midland Council on Alcoholism and the board of directors of the Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Also at the Monday meeting, the Commissioners Court agreed to cooperate in formulating a Civil Defense plan to evacuate the city of Midland in case of nuclear attack.

They also raised the cleanup deposit for use of the Midland County Exhibit Building from $50 to $100, effective Nov. 1. Judge Culver said that amount would be "subject to negotiation" for groups which already have been quoted the $50 figure and plan to use the building during November.

In other action, the commissioners approved a request for use of an additional office in the Courthouse Annex by Manpower.

Burnett believes crime solution in judiciary funding

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

More money for the judicial system is the answer to an increasing crime rate, Warren Burnett, Odessa lawyer, told area law enforcement officers at the Midland Hilton.

"The American people are going to have the justice and law enforcement system that they are willing to pay for," said Burnett, who was speaking at the Texas Police Association Regional Seminar.

In the past 20 years, Burnett said, every politician seeking a legislative post has said he supports more severe punishment for offenders.

"This was taken by the public as the action of a loyal public servant, but it is the response of a fool in the face of an emergency," Burnett said.

America, Burnett said, has more people locked up for longer periods of time than any nation in history, yet crime is still increasing.

"Armed robberies are a growing crime, yet the penalty is the stiffest of any nation in history," Burnett said.

The crime problem in the U.S., the lawyer said, has passed the crisis stage, and is now in the emergency stage.

"More than half the people past retirement have had to alter their life styles dramatic to protect themselves from crime," he said.

Burnett cited a Massachusetts Institute of Technology study that said an American male child born in 1974 is more likely to be murdered than an American soldier was to be killed in action while serving in World War II.

Burnett said he attended a state sheriff's conference once when the state attorney general and the lieutenant governor both criticized the Supreme Court and defense lawyers for hindering law enforcement.

"But they never did mention that we may have to raise taxes drastically to provide the most efficient court and law enforcement system to reduce crime," Burnett said.

The state legislature every year refuses to appropriate money for the state judicial and law enforcement systems, he said.

"Who are the leaders of law enforcement improvement?" Burnett asked the lawmen. "You ain't got one," he replied to his own question.

Burnett said that in the 20 years he has practiced law, the only measure to come along and stand on its own merit was the concept and notion of probation.

"Yet while the people in Texas said they needed $60 million for the probation system, the legislature appropriated $20 million," he said.

"If you want to see who the friends of law enforcement are, see who voted for and against the (probation funding) proposition. You will be shocked," Burnett said.

Burnett, a defense lawyer, said his profession is not responsible for the "sad state we're in."

Burnett said if indictments are studied, it can be found that not one in 25 cases goes through the court system to a verdict.

Most of the cases are disposed of by plea bargaining, he said.

"Defense lawyers are not responsible for plea bargaining, but the American people (are) in that they never wanted to pay for a court system to provide a speedy trial," Burnett said.

If you go to any metropolitan area in Texas, you would see a court system that has essentially failed. If the defendants would stand their ground (and not plea bargain), the system would collapse," he said.

Defense lawyers, said Burnett, are not involved in enough cases in America to have an effect on the judicial system.

One-half of the assault type crimes are not reported, Burnett said, and only one-fifth of the reported crimes result in an arrest. And, he added, only one-half of the arrests result in formal charges.

"So you find the defense lawyer is

Man's 'last attempt' at acceptance fails

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Robert and Carol Murray, a young white couple, tried for three years to win acceptance in a predominately black neighborhood. They lost.

Murray was beaten to death Sunday while walking home after making what his widow says was "his last attempt to get the neighborhood to accept him."

Now the young woman vows never to return to their home.

Murray went to an evening meeting a half-mile from his east Oakland home after offering to donate some athletic equipment for a new youth center.

The 28-year-old real estate salesman walked home at about 8:30 p.m. At about that time, homicide Sgt. Ed Subica said, a woman called police and reported "four or five of the local thugs are beating up on a white man."

Murray was unconscious when police arrived. He died two hours later during surgery at Vespers Hospital in nearby San Leandro.

Mrs. Murray said in an interview that trouble started right after they moved into their tract home in the old neighborhood called Sobrante Park, an area police say has one of Oakland's higher crime rates.

She said black neighbors called her husband names when he walked their dog. They urged their dogs to attack the Murrays' pet, the young woman recalled, and children chased her husband with sticks.

Once, Mrs. Murray recalled, as she was driving home a man leaped onto her car and smashed a window.

Last month, the people running a neighborhood rummage sale refused to accept their donated clothing because they were white, Mrs. Murray said.

The Murray slaying was on the agenda of a Monday night meeting of the Elmhurst Community District, which includes Sobrante Park.

"We've never had any problems like this out here before," board member Leonard Scott said. "This is probably just an isolated incident, not a racial incident."

Added Larena Epperson: "I heard they were nice people and made an effort to get along in the neighborhood and liked it here."

Police say they aren't aware of any similar attacks by blacks on white residents in the area.

Murray's father, realtor Bernie Murray, said his son didn't want to move because he liked their home. But things had deteriorated to the point were "he told me last week they would have to get out," Murray said.

Argument ends in death

BIG SPRING — A 22-year-old Big Spring man is in the the Howard County Jail this morning following an apparent argument late Monday night which resulted in the death of a 37-year-old man.

Chief Deputy Bill Whitton said that Tommy K. Donahue, 37, had been hit over the head with a baseball bat after he cut a 22-year-old man with a knife during an argument. The fight occurred at 1501 Hilltop Road.

Both men were taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital. Donahue died shortly after midnight, and the man who had been cut received 14 stitches before he was taken to the Howard County Jail, Whitton said.

Wanted: Martin County saints who want to march through time

STANTON — For Martin County folks who want to be remembered in the pages of history, the deadline is looming.

Next Monday, which happens to be the eve of All Saints' Day, is the final chance Martin Countians will have to submit biographical material to be included in a book on the history of the county.

The book task is being undertaken by the Martin County Historical Commission, which, by the way, is selling "the limited edition book" only on a presale basis. The price: $21.50.

The work will give more than a traditional accounting of the history of the county, its principal town, Stanton, and scattered-about communities.

It will present sketches of the lives of Martin County families. Those accounts should run up to the present, said Mrs. J. Alex (Ruby) Haggard, the commission's chairman.

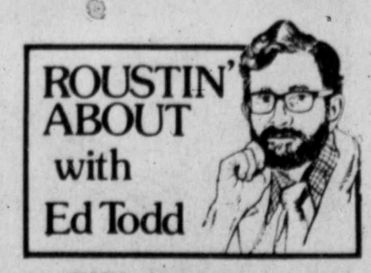
As significant as the fleeting past is, the present is at least just as important. Just give it time, and today will be history. That's as certain as the rising sun, she pointed out.

"What happened this morning will be history this afternoon," Mrs. Haggard said.

"We want biographies of all of the people living in the county now," she said.

The book, to be about the size of an encyclopedia, will number from 400 to 600 pages in length.

It will incorporate material from an earlier (1970) historical study of Martin County. That one was devoted to the county's early years and was compiled by Pat Wilkinson Hull and by the late Fay Eidson Smithson.



The book will include communities such as Lenorah, Tarzan, Courtney, Ackerly, Knott, Flower Grove, Lomax, and Klondike, even though some of those communities are not in Martin County. However, some are close enough to the border to be included, Mrs. Haggard said.

Basically, the account of the county will begin with 1881, when the Texas & Pacific Railroad placed a station here and called it Grelton. That year, when Catholic settlers first arrived, the name was changed to Marienfeld (Field of Mary) and in 1890, the town, under strong Protestant influence, was renamed Stanton.

Much of Martin County's heritage is linked to farming, ranching and to the oil industry.

not involved in enough cases to affect what's going on."

Burnett said there are too many laws to allow the law enforcement officer to adequately protect the public.

Burnett cited drug enforcement as an example. "Many people believe police should be relieved from drug enforcement so they can concentrate on crimes against the person," Burnett said.

In addition, he said, every recent presidential administration, Republican and Democrat, has said there is a great need to overhaul the laws," Burnett said.

Burnett also cited a Rand Corp. study that showed a detective spends over one-half of his time on things other than investigating crimes and making arrests.

"There's got to come a time when law enforcement officials are not satisfied with stronger penalties, Burnett said in closing.

"I appreciate the many things you are doing and have done. But don't refuse to face the reality of what must be done," Burnett told the lawmen.

Solons disagree on time of energy plan approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic Whip John Brademas said today that congressional approval of a national energy program is "a few weeks off," raising the possibility that President Carter may be forced to cancel his four-continent trip next month.

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said after he and Brademas, D-Ind., emerged from a White House breakfast with Carter that the legislation may be on the President's desk within three weeks.

Carter is scheduled to leave on the trip on Nov. 22, four weeks from today, but he has said he would postpone or cancel the journey if Congress is still working on the energy program.

Asked whether the President raised such a threat at the meeting today, as he had last week, Brademas said "he did not allude to that."

But Brademas agreed that the "few weeks" he predicted it may take to pass the legislation could delay approval until December.

O'Neill, unusually reticent, said no agreements on the legislation had been reached among House and Senate Democratic leaders at the meeting.

But, he said, "I think the President is doing everything he can."

Brademas said Carter emphasized his hope that the Senate will act quickly on the energy tax proposals coming out of the Senate Finance Committee so that conferees reconciling differences between the House and Senate bills can begin work on the entire energy program.

He said Carter told the congressional leaders he wanted an energy bill that treated consumers fairly, wouldn't enrich oil companies, encouraged reduced energy consumption and wouldn't destroy his hopes for a balanced budget.

The whip reported that Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the chairman of the Finance Committee who has been at odds with Carter on many aspect of the energy legislation, said he did not want to sign a conference report for a bill that Carter would veto.

The Senate today is debating whether to raise taxes to force fuel saving or cut them selectively to reward conservation.

How the question is settled in the Senate, and in a Senate-House conference committee next month will have long-term effects on the U.S. economy and national security.

In the floor battle opening today, the Senate faces the choice of new taxes proposed by Carter and passed in reduced form by the House; the more than $40 billion worth of tax incentives approved by the Senate Finance Committee, or a combination of the two.

The Carter administration opposes the finance committee's proposals. But to avoid an anticipated defeat in the full Senate of the new taxes, the President's supporters would like the Senate to quickly approve the committee's bill and let the conference committee write the final legislation.

Even before reaching the Senate floor, the bill produced by the finance committee was under sharp attack. Some senators called it a give-away to the oil industry. Others said the $40 billion price tag over the next eight years would make it difficult to balance the budget and would take money needed for other national programs.

In a study of one of the tax breaks, the Congressional Budget Office said a $200 million tax credit the Senate committee proposed for reduced intercity bus fares and purchases of new buses would produce insignificant energy savings.

But backers of the Senate committee's bill say the full package would reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil by 2.32 million barrels per day by 1985. The measure already passed by the House would reduce consumption by 1.7 million to 2.5 million barrels, mainly by making gasoline, natural gas and boiler fuel more expensive and by imposing a stiff tax on inefficient automobiles.

The United States now imports about nine million barrels of oil daily. Carter wants to cut imports to about seven million barrels a day by 1985 to reduce U.S. vulnerability to foreign influences.

As proposed by Carter, the taxes would have been felt by virtually all consumers. But the President proposed that a big share of the taxes be returned to Americans through the income tax system.

Most of the tax cuts proposed by the Senate committee would go to businesses, industries and utilities to help them save energy and to help pay the costs of reducing their use of oil and natural gas.

For individuals, the Senate bill would contain a tax cut of up to $400 for a person who buys insulation and other energy-saving devices for his home or apartment, and a credit of up to $2,200 for installing solar heat.

Young favors sanctions against South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young says he favors mandatory United Nations sanctions against South Africa but the Carter administration has not decided yet whether to go that far because of the white South African government's latest crackdown on blacks.

In a Security Council debate that began Monday, black African nations are demanding that the council order a mandatory arms embargo and other stringent international measures against South Africa.

Young, emerging from the first day's debate, replied "Yes" when asked by reporters whether he supports some form of sanctions against the Pretoria government.

But he added: "My role is to describe the situation and possible alternatives (to the White House). ... The President and secretary of state will have to decide what sanctions are appropriate in these conditions."

The United States, Britain and France used their vetos in the Security Council in 1975 to block a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa. However, the U.S. government put an arms cutoff into effect voluntarily.

Young, who met with Carter at the White House earlier Monday to discuss South Africa, hinted the United States would seek a compromise resolution short of a binding arms embargo.

"We're in a good position to come to a draft resolution we could all agree to," he said. "We are still trying to serve as sort of a bridge between East and West."

Young last March managed to fend off the same African resolution, which also calls for a halt to new investment in South Africa. But U.S. diplomatic sources say the situation has changed considerably since then.

"There are a lot of people in Washington saying we can't just dig in our heels and stick with the status quo," said one American.

Last week the Pretoria government outlawed 18 black organizations, shut down two black newspapers and arrested at least 50 leading black critics of its apartheid policy of racial segregation.

Black Africans are also angered by continued South African control of South-West Africa, or Namibia, in defiance of U.N. orders, and by the South African government's refusal to cooperate in the U.N. trade embargo against Rhodesia's white government.

Carter points out debt to Vietnam War veterans.

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says America owes "a special debt of gratitude" to Vietnam veterans who won little thanks for their sacrifices.

Speaking at Veterans Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery on Monday, the President compared his experience as a military veteran to what his son Jack faced after fighting in Vietnam.

"Although I came back from the war as some kind of hero, although I was not a hero, my son came back unappreciated, sometimes scorned by his peer group," Carter said.

"I think there's a special debt of gratitude on the part of the American people for those young men who died in Vietnam, because they have not been appreciated enough," he said.

After laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Carter noted that his administration has recommended increases in Veterans Administration compensation, pensions and GI Bill coverage.

"When we initiated our jobs program this year, we put veterans at the top place in the responsibility to give them gainful employment," the President told the crowd of 3,000.

The speech had special meaning for 31-year-old Ian Stirton, an unemployed Vietnam veteran with a master's degree in international affairs.

"The GI Bill by anyone's standards has been totally inadequate and every time we've had an increase we've had to fight tooth and nail for it," Stirton said. "The joblessness rate among Vietnam veterans ... is disgusting."

Unemployment for all Vietnam veterans has dropped over the last year from 8.9 per cent to 7.7 per cent, but it has increased from 16.5 per cent in the first quarter of 1977 to 20.1 per cent for veterans aged 20 to 24.

"I think a lot of Vietnam veterans have just gotten to the point where they're disgusted," Stirton said. "They don't believe anything that they hear."

Fair weather due to continue

After a cool and damp weekend, Midlanders should see a return to Indian summer weather with fair skies and warm afternoons through Wednesday.

The weatherman said the low temperature tonight is expected to fall to the low 50s with light and variable winds. The high temperature Wednesday should climb to the mid 80s.

Many Midlanders might have noticed some dew on their cars' windshields when they got up to go to work this morning, but the weatherman said there wasn't much fog in the city.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal recorded a high temperature Monday of 80 degrees and an overnight low temperature of 48 degrees.

Gunman kills UAE official, surrenders

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — A gunman in a white robe shot and killed a top United Arab Emirates official today and surrendered after trying to hijack a Czechoslovakian cargo plane, authorities reported.

The victim was identified as Saif Ghobash, 35, the No. 2 man in the foreign ministry. He was shot while seeing off Syrian Foreign Miniser Abdul Halim Khaddam.

Informed sources said Khaddam, who escaped one assassination attempt last December in Damascus, was the real target of the airport gunman.

Reports conflicted on whether there was more than one gunman. Iraqi radio said a "group" took part in the assassination.

Ghobash died at the hospital, an official spokesman said.

After shooting the minister during airport ceremonies for the visiting Syrian official, the gunman took seven persons hostage and forced them into the Czechoslovak cargo plane, which he tried to hijack, the official spokesman said. But he later surrendered.

Chili cook-off set Saturday

SLATON — For those of you who missed entering grandma's secret recipe in the Terlingua chili contest, you can try at the Lubbock Jaycees Lone Star Chili Cook-off Saturday.

The cook-off will last from 10 a.m. to midnight at a site 3 miles north of Slaton. The site can best be reached by going north on Farm Road 400, 2.8 miles, and turning at the cook-off sign, contest officials said.

Anyone may enter in the cook-off and compete for the trophies. Contestants may register by picking up an entry form from the Lubbock Jaycees or by signing in at the gate. The fee is $10 per team or $2 per person for teams having more than five persons.

Though campfire areas will be provided, contestants must provide their own cooking equipment. No electrical outlets are available. Each team must prepare the chili from scratch at the site only.

Trophies will be awarded for taste and showmanship. Included in the event a cow-chip throwing contest and a tobacco spitting contest. Music and refreshments will be available.

A $2 admission fee will be charged for the public to offset the coat of the event, as well as to support the various Jaycees' charities and community service projects. More information about rules or preregistration may be obtained by telephoning Brent Armstrong at 806-765-6341 or Ronnie Roach at 806-765-6057.

Nevada man crowned world chili champion

ROSAMOND, Calif. (AP) — Some cooked with tequila and chocolate, others threw in raccoon or buffalo meat. Many followed family recipes handed down like heirlooms from generation to generation.

But the Las Vegas realtor who simmered up the winning concoction at the 11th World Championship Chili Cook-off was a rank amateur who simply stuck to basics.

"I have no secret ingredients," said Jay Pennington, who was crowned 1977 world chili champ Sunday before an overflow crowd of 35,000 chili buffs at the Tropico gold mining camp, a Mojave Desert ghost town. "I use good meat and keep out the grease."

The award-winning batch of "Jay's Good Ol' Chili" was the sixth ever cooked by Pennington. His first won a Las Vegas Kiwanis chili cooking contest, and his second clinched him the Nevada state chili cooking championship.

Pennington, sponsored by the Circus Circus Hotel in Las Vegas and the Kiwanis club, beat out more than 30 other state and several foreign champions, including 1976 winner Rufus Valdez, a full-blooded Ute from Albuquerque, N.M. who brought along 20 Indian dancers for moral support.

Valdez claimed his "Indian's Revenge" recipe included a pinch of chili grown from 2,000year-old seeds.

While his friend Joe Michaels looked on, 61-year-old R.S. "Red" Holmes of Stony Brook, N.Y. stirred the New York state pot.

"We were both pilots in the China theatre during World War II," Michaels said. "I came down with symptoms of Malaria. Red had me eat a pot of his chili and two days later I was completely cured."

Leo Wagner of the North Dakota claimed his team's "Roughrider chili" is so strong "it wakes up the dead."

"Roughrider Chili is what squared Teddy Roosevelt's teeth," said Wagner.

Master of ceremonies and chief judge at the International Chili Society culinary competition was C.V. Wood, himself a two-time world champion. He described chili as "the native nourishment of mankind — the dish of the people."

Other judges included actors William Conrad, Ernest Borgnine, Marty Allen, actress Joanne Dru, race car drivers Carroll Shelby and Bobby Unser and California Atty. General Evelle Younger.

Spectators paid $4 each to attend the event, whose proceeds will go to the Los Angeles Childrens Hospital.

South ruffed the opening lead and led the king of clubs. When West discarded a diamond, East won and returned a spade.

South took the ace of spades, drew trumps and led dummy's jack of clubs. When East eventually covered with the queen, South ruffed, ruffed a spade in dummy and discarded his losers on dummy's good clubs.

"It wouldn't do any good," West pointed out. "He'd lead a trump to the king, ruff out a top club, back to the ace of hearts to ruff out your other top club, and dummy would be good."

RETURN QUESTION

Then West asked a question of his own: "Why didn't you refuse to take the king of clubs?"

There was no answer to this. South can't draw West's trumps and then set up and cash the clubs. Nor can South ruff out his spades since he must return to his hand by ruffing clubs, and West would soon overruff and lead another trump.

State board to hear Connally next month

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State District Judge Joseph Connally of Odessa, chairman of the Board of Private Investigators and Private Security Agencies, said Monday the board will not consider allegations against him in regard to his expense vouchers until Nov. 10.

Connally issued a statement through the board's office saying he had offered to meet with Atty. Gen. John Hill regarding the vouchers but that Hill said he would prefer that the matter be aired before the full board.

Connally said he attempted to call a meeting for today, but meetings can only be called by a majority of the board members.

"Since General Hill had said that today was a convenient day for him, I offered to meet with him on that day in order to publicly answer any questions that he might have about my expense accounts and other board business.

"However, since General Hill has stated that he would prefer a meeting with the entire board rather than with me individually, I don't plan to waste a trip to Austin since I have a full docket this week and need to be in Odessa," Connally said.

The board will meet Nov. 10 for its regularly scheduled session.

Fever sores call for care

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am frequently bothered by fever sores around my mouth. Is there any way I can get rid of them? They keep coming back and are sure a nuisance—and they look so awful.—Edie R.

Dear Edie: Unfortunately, there is no really effective treatment for fever sores, or herpes simplex infection of the lip, as it is also called. Many drugs have been tried, but none seems to work consistently. The one that has been getting the most favorable comment lately is iododeoxyuridine. However, this does require a prescription from the doctor.

Some dermatologists say you may short-circuit a fever sore if you apply very hot water or collodion before it gets going— just when you begin to feel the preliminary itchy, prickly sensation. Once the little blisters have formed, however, do not use moisture because this makes the inflammation worse and may delay healing. What often provides relief at this stage is some simple drying lotion like calamine, camphorated alcohol or just plain, 70 percent alcohol.

When the crust has formed, a bland cream, like zinc ozide, may be helpful.

A recent article in the New England Journal of Medicine said that several new compounds have shown promise in the treatment of herpes simplex infections in laboratory animals, so we may be hearing more about these shortly.

Fever sores are caused by a virus that seems to be present on yur skin all the time. They are apparently triggered when your resistance is low—you may be under some emotional strain or just run down. Excessive sunlight, or, of course, fever, may also set them off.

Luckily, they are short-lived as a rule, and natural healing starts rapidly. If it is any consolation, they are very common—somewhere between 20 and 40 percent of the population gets fever sores at one point or another.

A note of caution: if you ever get a herpes infection of the eye, this requires immediate medical attention. Herpes in the genital region also needs a doctor's care.

(If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Both sides encouraged by Panamanians' vote

By ANNE ZUSY

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos says he is content with his people's 66 percent "yes" vote for the new Panama Canal treaties. But opponents of Torrijos' authoritarian rule say the size of the "no" vote is encouraging to their campaign for a return to democratic government.

An unofficial count of 95 per cent of the votes in Sunday's plebiscite, announced Monday night by Controller General Damian Castillo, showed 468,664 in favor of the treaties, 228,697 against, more than 12,000 invalid ballots, and a turnout of 96 to 98 percent of the estimated 800,000 persons eligible to vote.

Castillo, who headed the election board, said Torrijos told him he was "content with the turnout and the results." Other government officials said the vote for approval was a "bit less" than the 70 per cent they had hoped for.

Torrijos' opponents also expressed satisfaction with the results.

"These were very good results and show we are in a very good position," said Diogenes Arosemana of the Independent Lawyers' Movement, which led the opposition to the treaties.

"We have been fighting for the renewal of political parties," Arosemana continued, "and now that we have this backing, we believe we have enough popular support to continue.

Director given date to report

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Movie director Roman Polanski has been given less than two months to finish preparing for a $14 million Tahitian film epic before he reports to a prison for psychiatric tests.

The 44-year-old director, who has pleaded guilty to a sex crime involving a 13-year-old girl, was told Monday to report to Chino state prison Dec. 19.

"His imprisonment at Chino will not be postponed beyond that date under any circumstances," said Superior Court Judge Laurence Rittenband.

Polanski took the witness stand Monday to tell the judge that he was really working — not living it up — when he was photographed amid beer mugs and beautiful women at the Munich Octoberfest.

Rosary was said at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home. Additional services will be held in Evergreen Park, Ill., directed by Lawn Funeral Home of Oaklawn, Ill.

Mrs. Schroeder was born Aug. 20, 1894, in Hubbardston, Mich. She lived in Chicago for many years where she worked as a registered nurse. She moved to Midland in January 1977. She was a Catholic.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Mary Beatrice Grubaugh of Midland and Mrs. Catherine Baer of Chicago, and two nieces.

Davis' prosecutors expect 'counterattack'

By MIKE COCHRAN

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The defense, its dander up, was to launch counterattack today designed to show that Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis did not kill his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, an unwilling participant in a bizarre incident Monday, was expected to open the defense case with a carefully guarded but somewhat predictable statement to the jury.

Such remarks traditionally spell out what the defense intends to prove. And in this case Haynes was expected to focus in part on the credibility of the state's eyewitnesses.

"I expect a wholesale assault on Priscilla," said prosecutor Joe Shannon Monday, referring to the defendant's estranged wife, one of two wounded in the Aug. 2, 1976, shooting spree in which two died.

Mrs. Davis' live-in lover, Stan Farr, 30, was killed in the midnight gunfire and a chance visitor to the hilltop Davis mansion, Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, was critically wounded.

Mrs. Davis, Gavrel and the young man's date that night, Beverly Bass, testified Davis was the "man in black" who triggered the deadly shooting spree.

The state rested its case Monday after two months of testimony from 21 witnesses, the final one, Fort Worth crime director Frank Shiller.

After the state rested, the trial judge routinely denied a defense motion for an instructed verdict of acquittal and rejected another appeal to dismiss the capital murder count against the defendant.

Shiller told the jury it was his conclusion that the bullets which killed Farr and Miss Wilborn were fired from the same gun, a .38-caliber Smith & Wesson.

Shiller's testimony provided the key circumstantial element to the state's case because there were no witnesses to the shooting of Miss Wilborn and no murder weapon was ever found.

Minutes after the state rested, Haynes emerged from the courtroom and was confronted by W.T. Rufner, Mrs. Davis' ex-boyfriend whose name has surfaced often in the proceedings.

The jury did not witness the confrontation or hear the ensuing comments by Rufner and Haynes.

Rufner, an Arlington, Texas, electrician, was the nearly nude figure with Mrs. Davis in a poster-size photograph that Haynes twice tried but failed to enter as evidence.

The bearded, brown-haired Rufner, criticizing Haynes for involving him in the case, handed the Houston trial lawyer a T-shirt depicting himself as he appeared in the picture.

His genitals were covered only by a red stocking and the inscription on the T-shirt read, "W.T. Rufner . . . socks it to them."

Although obviously angry, Haynes, whose wife was at his side, quipped: "I recognize you from your picture." He accepted the shirt but told Rufner, "You left out your girlfriend." Mrs. Davis, who appeared in the photograph in a revealing halter top, was not included on the T-shirts, one of which Rufner wore under his button-down shirt.

Rufner, saying he is now in the T-shirt business, accused Haynes of trying the murder case as if it were a lurid divorce case and said his Amarillo appearance was a matter of principle.

"Mr. Haynes has brought drugs, whiskey and sex and every thing else into this case. What in the hell does that have to do with a 12-year-old girl being murdered by someone?" declared Rufner, who has been subpoenaed as a defense witness.

He also accused Haynes of making him his "whipping boy," to which Haynes later responded:

"I'm not the guy who moved in with Priscilla Davis . . . I'm not the guy who had the cocaine bust. I'm not the guy who had all the pistols. I don't know how he can be my whipping boy."

Haynes said the incident raised "serious or at least curious questions," as to who if anybody put Rufner up to the incident.

Gophers earn setback

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Thompson, who turned down a $1 million pro offer to finish his senior year at the University of Minnesota, has been declared ineligible by a university committee.

The university's Assembly Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics also declared Dave Winey ineligible Monday, both actions ending a year-long impasse between the university and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The NCAA on Oct. 21, 1976 placed the entire mens' athletic program on probation for an indefinite period because the university had refused to declare the two basketball players ineligible.

Monday's action by the committee came after two court decisions, the second by a higher court that had sided with the NCAA.

By the action, the committee hoped to have the probation lifted and also hoped that the NCAA will decide to have the ineligibility of the two players lifted or at least shortened.

Thompson, who was expected to be one of the the top centers in the country this season, said if the NCAA penalized him for 13 games or more he would take legal action or leave the university. He said if the penalty was five games or less he would sit out the games and remain at the university.

"I had a gut feeling that this was coming, but it was still a shock," he said.

Thompson was accused of selling two complimentary season tickets for more than face value. Winey was alleged to have accepted free lodging from a university booster at a Wisconsin lake cabin during two holidays.

The university had claimed that declaring the players ineligible was too harsh a penalty.

The sanctions imposed by the NCAA bars all mens' teams from post-season play and NCAA-sponsored television appearances.

The resolutions were approved on a 9-5 vote. The committee is the top policy-making body for university athletics and its decisions are final and not subject to veto by University President C. Peter Magrath.

Committee members said they had discussed the issues with the NCAA staff, but were informed that there could be "no horse trading" until the university took the first step and declared the players ineligible.

Both Thompson and Winey are seniors and it was not immediately clear if they would be reinstated by the NCAA sometime during the 1977-78 season. The 6-foot-10 Thompson holds most of the Gopher career scoring records and last year led the Big Ten in scoring with 410 points in 18 games.

Gopher basketball Coach Jim Dutcher said the committee's "timing was unfortunate," particularly for Thompson, who could have turned pro during the off-season.

"I'm convinced that they voted their consciences and that they're honorable people," Dutcher said of the committee. "They were under tremendous pressure and it's not for us to second-guess them."

Autry has new sidekick

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Gene Autry has a new sidekick.

E.J. "Buzzie" Bavasi took over officially Monday as executive vice-president of Autry's California Angels baseball team.

Bavasi headed the front office of the San Diego Padres the past nine years and directed the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers for many years before that.

Former cowboy movie star Autry also gave himself an expanded new role in the front office shakeup of his Angels. Autry becomes president and continues as chairman of the board. The hiring of Bavasi and retention of most or all other top Angel officials had been reported last week.

The Angels' penchant to spend money for new players is not expected to change. Like the Angels, San Diego also went the free-agent route a year ago n an effort to improve a team which appeared ready to contend for a pennant.

But star-quality additions were cancelled out by injuries on both teams, making 1977 a lot like every other year at Anaheim and San Diego.

It's reported that free-agent players eyed by the Angels this winter include Mike Torrez, who pitched two victories for the New York Yankees in the World Series, and relief ace Rich Gossage of Pittsburgh. The Angels also are reported working on a multi-player deal that would bring them third baseman Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers.

But an executive reorganization was Autry's first priority following the Angels' 74-88 finish in 1977.

Bengals turn bellyflop

CINCINNATI (AP) — What's with the stumbling Cincinnati Bengals? Their great leap forward has turned into a bellyflop.

Touted as a Super Bowl contender six weeks ago, the 2-4 Bengals are flirting with their first losing season since 1971.

INDEED, THE factors that transformed the once-proud Bengals into paper tigers are puzzling.

"It's a continuation of things that are getting us beat," said Bill "Tiger" Johnson, who is stumped by the stumbling start. "It always seems to come from a different area."

Capsulized, here are some of their troubles:

—Passing wizard Ken Anderson has mysteriously lost his touch.

—A high-powered offense that produced 11-3 and 10-4 records the past two years has been reduced to cha-cha football — 1-2-3, kick.

—Morale has been undermined by a steady stream of mistakes, including 15 fumbles and 41 penalties, many on key downs.

THE SLIDE started on opening day with a 13-3 loss to arch-rival Cleveland. It was the first home opener setback in the Bengals' 10-year history.

Since then, the problems have seemed more psychological than physical.

Anderson's decline has been the most disturbing aspect. Twice the top-rated quarterback in the NFL, Anderson has not been himself the last two seasons. A year ago, his efficiency ratings slipped drastically from a league-best 94 in 1975 to 77. After Sunday's 24-13 loss to unbeaten Denver, it dipped to a lowly 55 for this season.

ONE OF the theories for his slippage is that he has suffered from the loss of play-calling geniuses Bill Walsh, who tutored Anderson to greatness, and Paul Brown, who left coaching last year at age 67.

Walsh departed last year for San Diego, where his imaginative talents transformed the Chargers from 2-12 to 6-8. Walsh took over as head coach at Stanford this year and has produced a surprising 5-2 record.

Brown was recently described by former NFL quarterback Frank Ryan as "the greatest caller of plays in football."

Anderson's inability to get the ball to brilliant receiver Isaac Curtis has taken away a prime strike weapon. Curtis has only 14 receptions in six games this year. In three of the games he was limited to one catch and appears headed toward his career low in receptions and yards gained.

California state legislature gives taxpayers incentive to utilize sun

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The state Legislature has given California residents the nation's most generous tax incentive to encourage the heating of homes, swimming pools and tap water with solar energy.

But there are few regulations on the young, burgeoning solar industry to protect against rip-offs.

There is reason for concern because the solar field is heavily populated by inexperienced firms struggling to become established.

Few formal complaints have been registered so far against solar companies, according to state and federal agencies and the local Better Business Bureau.

That may be simply because not many solar heating systems have been installed until recently.

Those within the industry admit the kind of failures inherent to all new technological fields. They recall, for instance, how early plastic collectors placed on roofs split and leaked after about a year's exposure to the sun's ultraviolet rays — costing at least one major manufacturer a fortune for replacements.

While most in the solar industry apparently are well intentioned, it is conceded that the field has its share of opportunists and incompetents.

Moreover, there is a widespread speculation that California's tax incentives will lure more sharks into the solar market in coming months.

"We hope it won't develop into a massive rip-off," said David Ackerman, staff deputy for the Contractors State License Board, which he said has been put on alert.

Regulations to protect the consumer are on the horizon, with state and federal agencies and private associations rushing to develop quality control tests, standards, ratings and codes of ethics.

Many of the programs will not be in place for at least another year, however.

So what is a consumer to do today?

Those interested in solar development do not want the public to postpone making solar purchases until there are more assurances.

"If everybody decides to wait, the industry will collapse before it happens," observed David C. Moore, manager of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's solar heating and cooling demonstration program.

However, Moore conceded that buying solar equipment now is a risk. "You have to be careful at this stage of the game. It's kind of like buying a car in 1910 to 1920," he said.

It has been proven that solar technology works, is environmentally clean and conserves other energy resources, especially for heating swimming pools and domestic hot water.

And while solar energy can compete economically with electricity, it normally fails against natural gas at present rates for water and space heating.

Numerous solar "experts" interviewed recently expressed fear that they might sound too negative (because of rising fossil fuel prices, solar energy has a propitious future, they say, and the industry's problems are simply growing pains), but they conceded that the best advice for consumers is: "Buyer beware."

"Any solar system will work," said Frank Krieth, chief of the thermal conversion branch of the federally funded Solar Energy Research Institute in Golden, Colo. What is important, he said, is "getting the optimum return on your dollar.

"There have been systems to expensive and installed so poorly that no savings was achieved," he said.

Although 55 per cent of the cost of insulating and equipping a home for solar heating — to a maximum of $3,000 — may now be subtracted from this state's income tax bills, going solar is not cheap.

It is estimated that solar heating equipment commercially installed costs from $1,000 to $3,000 for a swimming pool, $1,200 to $2,000 for domestic water and $5,000 to $10,000 for space and water heating for an entire house.

Anyone in the market for solar equipment today runs the definite risk that the firm from which he buys will not be operating when the equipment needs servicing.

"The field is so new that companies come and go almost weekly," said Willis Thompson, an assistant professor in the natural science department at San Diego State University.

Among Thompson's caveats: "Avoid companies that call on the phone or send a mailer.

"Don't go blindly to the Yellow Pages.

"A recommendation from a friend who has a system is best."

Wildcat, discovery, field tests reported

A new Pennsylvanian gas production area has been opened in Tom Green County, while a wildcat site was staked in Schleicher and Crockett and Coke fields drew stepout sites.

Falls Petroleum Co. of Wichita Falls completed No. 1-A Walter McGregor, Pennsylvanian pay opener in the Ju-Jan-Jac field of Tom Green, for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1.180 million cubic feet of gas per day.

It finaled through perforations at 6,393-6,403 feet. Gas-liquid ratio is 65,000-1, and gravity of the condensate, 49.6 degrees. The pay section had been fractured with 10,000 gallons and 18,500 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 6,890 feet, it topped the Canyon at 6,144 feet, and the Strawn line at 6,740 feet, under ground elevation of 2,297.9 feet. It has 412-inch casing set on bottom, and is plugged back to 6,450 feet.

Location is 1,985 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 6, block 21, H&TC survey.

SCHLEICHER PROSPECTOR

Cadasco, Inc., Fort Worth, plans No. 2 Enochs, a 7,400-foot wildcat in Schleicher County, one location northwest of the firm's No. 1 Enochs, a scheduled wildcat, seven miles west of Eldorado.

Location is 1,130 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 168, block A, HE&WT survey, seven miles west of Eldorado.

Also in Schleicher, Lloyd Patton of Fort Worth has scheduled No. 7-B Capitan Bowling Center as a location southwest stepout to the two-well Schleicher portion of the Four Corners (Cross Cut) field.

It has a projected depth of 4,950 feet, and spots .93 feet from south and 1,025 feet from west lines of CC-SD&RGNG survey 17, abstract 41, 18 miles north of Fort McKavett.

CROCKETT STEPOUT

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., Midland, will drill a northeast stepout to the four-well Ecklaw (San Andres) field of Crockett, 14 miles north of Ozona. It is No. 8-58 Eck.

Location is 1,029 feet fron north and 1,102 feet from east lines of section 58, block OP, GC&SF survey. Planned depth is 1,500 feet with cable tool.

Joe McGuire, Midland, intends to plug back to 1,500 feet at No. 1-A Joe F. Bean, South, for completion try as a ¾-mile east stepout to production in the Donham (San Andres) gas field of Crockett. Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 34, block UV, GC&SF survey, 14 miles northwest of Ozona. The old total depth is 8,400 feet.

COKE TESTS

Corpenin Enterprises, Fort Worth, will drill two stepouts to the Meadow Creek (Canyon) field of Coke County, nine miles northwest of Robert Lee.

Both have a projected depth of 5,200 feet, and are in section 467, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

No. 3 I. A. Bird, ½ mile southeast of production, is 2,450 feet from south and 467 feet from east lines of the section.

And No. 4 I. A. Bird, ⅝ mile southwest of production, is 2,450 feet from south and 2,300 feet from west lines of the section.

RUNNELS STEPOUTS

Production Oil Corp., Metairie, La., will drill two offsets to the current lone well in the Clarke (Gardner) field of Runnels County, six miles northeast of Winters.

Both are scheduled to 4,600 feet.

No. 1-B Galatian, a south offset, is 216 feet from south and 967 feet from east lines of section 320, block 64, H&TC survey.

No. 1-C Galatian, ⅝ mile south of production, is 1,716 feet from north and 1,165 feet from east lines of section 319, block 64, H&TC survey.

Eddy, Lea regions gain explorer tests

Wildcat sites have been staked in Eddy and Lea counties, N.M., while stepouts have been planned in two Eddy sectors.

Petroleum Reserves Corp., Tulsa, Okla., will drill No. 1 Elliott-Federal, an 11,700-foot venture in Eddy, 19 miles southwest of Maljamar.

Drillsite, six miles east of the Turkey Track, North (Morrow) gas field, is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 30-18s-30e.

A 1¾-mile southwest outpost has been scheduled in the Four Mile Draw, West (Morrow) gas field of Eddy by Dorchester Exploration, Inc., operating from Midland.

No. 1-B Secrest, et al, spots 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 7-19s-26e, 10 miles southwest of Artesia. It is slated for a bottom depth of 9,500 feet.

The discovery, Samedan Oil Corp. No. 1 Fanning, finaled in November 1973, for 2.97 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 9,207-9,233 feet.

A Yeso stepout has been staked in an undesignated area of Eddy, nine miles south of Artesia. No. 1-IV White has been scheduled by Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia.

The 2,900-foot test is 1,650 feet from south and 330 feet from east lines of section 28-18s-26e, ½ mile east of Yeso oil production.

O. H. Berry, Midland, No. 1-V State is slated as a 4,100-foot undesignated test in Lea, 10 miles west and slightly north of Oil Center.

Location is 3,222 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 2-21s-34e, ⅞ mile northeast of a depleted unnamed Yates oil discovery.

Appointment announced

NEW YORK (AP) — The appointment of Jeff Katzenberg as vice president-programming for Paramount Television Service has been announced by Paramount Pictures Corp.

In another announcement, Paramount said John Barry had been signed to write the score for the movie "First Love."

President Carter meets with Saud on oil prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is meeting with Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal of Saudi Arabia, a nation rich in oil and Middle East influence, to look for ways to hold down oil prices and reconvene the stalled Geneva peace conference.

However, the Saudi prince is offering discouraging prospects on the cost of imported oil and says he has no new ideas on the central issue of Palestinian representation at the Middle East talks.

The meeting today with Saud is one of a series Carter is holding with

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

Middle East leaders in an effort to reconvene the stalled peace talks.

It was scheduled to follow a breakfast with House and Senate leaders pushing to wind up work on the President's energy program.

The President's agenda also includes signing a bill toughening penalties for doctors and others who are convicted of defrauding Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Although oil prices and the Middle East political situation were likely to be the major points of discussion in the session with the Saudi Arabian prince, Carter and Saud also were likely to talk about the proposed sale of 60 F15 supersonic jet fighters to Saudi Arabia.

Proponents of the sale argue it would help cement ties between the United States and Saudi Arabia, whose economic aid to its Arab neighbors makes it one of the most influential nations in the Middle East. Critics say it violates the President's policy of holding down arms sales.

On the Middle East situation, Saud said on Sunday that he had "no new suggestions" for Carter on the issue of Palestine Liberation Organization representation at Geneva.

"I don't think it possible to reconvene the Geneva conference to tackle the Palestinian problem without the presence of the PLO," the prince said on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

During the interview, Saud also made it clear he favors an increase in the price of oil. Oil prices will be debated in December when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets in Caracas, Venezuela.

The Carter administration has vehemently opposed any increase in the world price of oil, but Carter wants to raise the price paid for petroleum products in the United States by new taxation, saying the higher prices would encourage conservation.

The Medicare and Medicaid bill now before the President was passed 402-5 by the House and by a voice vote in the Senate.

The bill stiffens penalties in cases where physicians or nursing homes are convicted of defrauding either of the health programs or where members of the medical profession solicit kickbacks or bribes to gain more business.

Gulf well completes

Gulf Oil Corp. has completed No. 2-A O. Deal, a 214-mile northwest extension to Strawn production and a confirmation well to that pay in the Velrex, Southwest field of Schleicher County.

It gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 625,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 7,398-7,400 feet. The pay section had been acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 28,500 gallons and 26,050 pounds of sand.

It is located 2,173 feet from north and 467 feet from east lines of section 33, block TT, TCRR survey, 14 miles northwest of Eldorado.

Oil found in Upton

Union Texas Petroleum Corp. No. 1-51 Amacker, Upton County scheduled prospector, seven miles northwest of Rankin and ½ mile north of the depleted Amacker-Tippett, Southeast (Strawn) field, was drilling below 10,558 feet in lime and shale, after recovering oil on a drillstem test.

Tool was open 2½ hours on the test taken from 10,444-10,483 feet. Recovery was 45 feet of free 39-gravity oil and 360 feet of heavily gas- and oil-cut mud. The sampler contained 1,500 cubic centimeters of oil and .324 cubic foot of gas.

Location is 467 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of section 51, C. C. Phillips survey.

Existance threatened

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Unethical conduct by multinational corporations threatens the continued existence of free enterprise, says Fred T. Allen, chairman of Pitney Bowes.

Speaking at the recent World Trade Week Dinner here, Allen conceded the difficulties of defining ethical behavior on a global scale. Instead, he proposed a simple test: If an executive's actions can be defended publicly, they are probably above reproach.

"We cannot depend solely on codes of ethics that, when applied in an international context, may sometimes seem too general or specific to be practical," he said.

Spurious art display slated

DETROIT (AP) — "Fake" may be a bad word to art museums and collectors, but it's going to put money in the till of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Capitalizing on the public's interest in spurious art, the Institute is planning a display of famous fakes as a fund-raising promotion. The Institute of Arts, which houses some of the finest examples of genuine art in the nation, will stage a one-night display Nov. 3 of fabulous phonies, with tickets for $12.50 and $25 entitling patrons to see Orson Welles' "F-For Fake," a movie about art forgery.

Val Verde tests set

Three exploratory tests have been scheduled to drill in Val Verde County.

Pennzoil Co. of Midland accounted for the deepest, a 19,000-foot venture, 20 miles south of the Vinegarrone (Pennsylvanian) gas field, and 10 miles south of Juno. It is No. 1 Fawcett.

Drillsite is 890 feet from middle south line and 990 feet from middle west line of section 34, block V8, J. H. Wakefield, abstract 2430.

Texland-Rector & Schumacher of Fort Worth staked sites for two 4,000-foot prospectors, 3¼ miles southeast of the upper Permian gas pay opener in the JM field, and about five miles north of Pandale.

No. 8 Lela Bunger is 550 feet from south and 2,350 feet from west lines of section 45, block Q-3, TCRR survey.

No. 9 Lela Bunger is 3,150 feet from south and 2,250 feet from west lines of section 16.

Explorer site staked

Marshall R. Young Oil Co., Fort Worth, will drill No. 1 B. O. Wilkie, a 5,100-foot venture in Lynn County, three miles northeast of the Miriam (Glorieta) field.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 3, block J, EL&RR survey, 3½ miles northeast of Wilson.

Midland Lee football coach Jim Acree

Ruling angers Acree; lashes out at THSCA

The following is a prepared statement by Midland Lee football coach Jim Acree, relative to his recent suspension from the Texas High School Coaches Association which was dated Oct. 23 and received Monday at The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

"I am shocked and outraged that I could be suspended without a hearing, by what the THSCA president, Tommy Hudspeth, told me was a telephone caucas, and for an as yet indefinite period. I protest the timing, the middle of football season, and the haste in which it was made — I was not attempting to flee the country.

The action reeks of a total lack of professional ethics and concern for my rights and privileges as a member of the association and as a citizen of the United States of America.

Coach Hudspeth is quoted in two AP newspaper articles as saying I "was on probation and therefore suspension was almost automatic." I am not on probation with either the UIL nor the THSCA. The UIL penalty set in August could have been 1) probation; 2) suspension; 3) loss of eligibility for us to represent the district in the play-offs. The last was the penalty set.

I have never been on probation with the THSCA. In March of this year, I was investigated by them and cleared and I have a letter so stating and there were no strings attached. Our magazine, Texas Coach, October 1977, has a list of 40 coaches on probation. I am not on it.

This suspension by the THSCA states "violation of rule 24," remember that this is the same charge as the UIL in August—that we used the blocking shields during the first four days of practice, and did it so innocently and stupidly that we performed a drill for a television pre-season show. There have been no other charges. Our UIL probation was May 1975 to 1976 and was over 18 months ago.

I do not feel that the use of the shields gave me such an advantage over the other district members that it warrants my suspension from my professional organization and the resulting damage to my career and reputation.

This action has been taken hastily and non-professionally. It would have been better for all the steps to have been taken in December — a hearing, evidence, witnesses, voting and penalty, if any. This seems to have been taken to hurt me and my boys as much as possible at a critical time, by men supposedly concerned with youth. I have therefore retained legal counsel."

Acree denies ever being on probation with THSCA

PAUL DOMOWITCH SPORTS CHATTER

It was about 3:15 p.m. Friday afternoon when I went in to talk with Jim Acree about his suspension from the Texas High School Coaches Association. The Rebel pep rally had ended minutes earlier, and the game with Big Spring was just 4½ hours away.

I leveled with Acree. I told him that I had known about the suspension for almost two weeks, but had decided not to print the story. Why, I'm not quite sure. Maybe I thought the news was better left untold right now. Or maybe I figured people were just sick and tired of reading about the continuous adventures of "Life With Jim."

But news of the suspension was leaking out anyway, and it looked like it would only be a matter of time before someone else pieced the puzzle together and broke the story. I told Acree I had no choice but to break it myself.

He agreed.

I also told him I was going to be fair and objective about it. I wasn't going to make any judgments, or express any opinions. I was just going to write the facts.

He thanked me for that.

IN SATURDAY'S October 22, edition of the Reporter-Telegram, I kept my promise. I wrote just the facts. The three most significant included: 1) the fact that Acree had been suspended by the THSCA for his part in Lee's violation of rule 24 of the University Interscholastic League code this past August; 2) the fact that Acree had been put on probation by the THSCA during the summer of 1975 for a prior violation of rule 24; and 3) the fact that Acree had been investigated by the THSCA last winter for still more possible violations of rule 24, but was eventually cleared. He was however, given a stern warning to be extremely aware of all UIL rules, or severe action would be taken by the association.

I guess I shouldn't have been surprised by what followed. I mean, after the stunt old Don Sparks pulled at that school board meeting on August 27 (when he charged everyone over the age of three of conspiring to run Acree out of town), nothing should surprise me about this whole mess.

But Jim, when you struggled through that 2½ minute statement on a local television station Sunday night, I was surprised. I might have thought it was all an hallucination were it not for the fact that you provided me with a copy of the statement the following day.

In not so many words, you called me a liar. Now, I've been called a lot of things in the brief time I've been in this business, but a liar was never one of them, until now. And so, I must take offense.

YOU CLAIM, in your statement, which appears on this page, that you were never placed on probation by the Texas High School Coaches Association. I beg to differ.

Unless the mail got screwed up, you should have received a letter two years ago from the THSCA, dated August 11, 1975, that in no uncertain terms, said you were on probation. I imagine there could have been a mixup with the mail, but copies were also sent to the then Midland Athletic Director Tugboat Jones, and Midland Schools Superintendant Dr. James Mailey, and I'm sure one of them would have mentioned it to you in passing.

L.W. McConachie, the executive vice-president of the THSCA, and Eddie Josephs, the chairman of the association's ethics committee, both remember sending you the letter. And Josephs, who drew up the letter, was even kind enough to read it to me over the phone just in case you forgot what it said.

It reads: "The Board of Directors, sitting in regular session on July 26, 1975 at Fort Worth Coaching School, after throughly discussing the facts of the case of Midland Lee High School, have put you, the head coach, on probation for the 1975-76 school year for violation of rule 24 (quarterback working out for longer than 60 minutes).

"The probation period will not mean anything but a warning at this time, but if further violations should be reported and found to be true, the board might take more strenuous action at that time.

"It is the board's hope that you will get your house in order and refrain from any other violations of UIL rules, so that we can keep the rules as we know them."

Does that ring a bell?

AFTER LISTENING to you deny that you were ever on probation, I found it a little difficult to believe that you would ever admit to the fact that you were investigated by the association last winter for possible further violations, but wonders never cease I guess. However, you add that you were cleared with no strings attached. The association understood it differently.

"There were a number of allegations made against Coach Acree," explained Josephs, who headed the investigative team that looked into the matter. "But no documentation on these charges were found. We told Coach Acree however, that if his school were ever put on probation by the UIL again, he would be suspended."

All this conspiracy talk that's going around is really starting to become quite amusing. It's like chicken soup. It's a cure for everything. When things aren't going your way, or somebody's getting on your back, just shout "conspiracy." It works all the time.

I mention this Jim, because in your statement, you add that the association's action "seems to have been taken to hurt me and my boys as much as possible. . ."

You don't honestly believe that, do you? I mean, you were warned by the association on a number of occasions to abide by the rules or suffer the consequences. You didn't and now you are.

I'll go along with your attestation that the blocking shields that were used by your team during the first four days of practice this year were used "stupidly." But ignorance is no excuse for breaking the rules.

I rest my case.

Louis still in hospital

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis faced further tests today for a suspected heart attack.

The boxer—who wore the heavyweight crown longer than any other and defended it more times—remains in guarded condition in the coronary care unit at Sunrise Hospital, his heartbeat monitored electronically.

The 63-year-old "Brown Bomber" was rushed to the hospital late Saturday after experiencing chest pains at his home. He experienced symptoms related to those of a heart attack, but tests failed to show conclusive evidence of one.

Louis, who has worked as a host-greeter at Ceasars Palace for a number of years, has received scores of telephone calls and telegrams from all over the nation. The only visitor permitted in his room is the former champ's wife, Martha.

The couple's 15-month-old adopted daughter, Janet, is in critical condition at the same hospital. She remains in a coma after being injured Oct. 3, when she fell into the family's backyard swimming pool.

Texas climbs to top rung in grid poll

By The Associated Press

In a near-unanimous vote, the amazing Texas Longhorns are the new No. 1 team in college football.

Picked by most experts to finish somewhere around the middle of the Southwest Conference, 6-0 Texas surged to the top of The Associated Press poll today by defeating Southern Methodist 30-14, while previously unbeaten Michigan was upset by Minnesota 16-0 and skidded from first place to sixth.

Texas received 65 first-place votes and a near-perfect 1,336 of a possible 1,340 points from a nationwide panel of 67 sports writers and broadcasters.

Taking advantage of Michigan's loss, Alabama, Ohio State, Oklahoma and Notre Dame all moved ahead of the Wolverines.

Alabama, No. 3 a week ago, inched up to second by pasting Louisville 55-6. The Crimson Tide received 1,077 points.

Ohio State moved from fourth to third with one first-place vote and 963 points for a 35-15 licking of Northwestern. The Buckeyes were followed by Oklahoma, a 35-16 victor over Iowa State, with 952 points.

Notre Dame vaulted from 11th to fifth with 740 points by trouncing Southern California 49-19 while the losers dropped from fifth to 10th.

Sixth-place Michigan received 719 points while Kentucky climbed from eighth to seventh with the remaining first-place ballot and 610 points by crushing Georgia 33-0. The two voters who didn't rate Texas No. 1 had the Longhorns second on their ballots.

Arkansas, a 34-0 winner over Houston, rose from ninth to eighth with 505 points. The Razorbacks were trailed by Penn State, which turned back West Virginia 49-28 and jumped from from 10th to ninth with 484 points. Southern Cal, the No. 10 team, received 315 points.

The Second Ten consisted of Texas A&M, Nebraska, Pittsburgh, Texas Tech, Colorado, Clemson, Brigham Young, Florida, Minnesota and Florida State.

Last week, it was Notre Dame, Texas A&M, Texas Tech, Pitt, California, Iowa State, Brigham Young, Nebraska, Florida and Clemson.

OSU woman holds lead

HOUSTON (AP) — Alicia Ogrin of Oklahoma State University held a six stroke lead today going into the third round of the third annual Houston Baptist University Women's Golf Invitational.

The freshman from Waukegen, Ill., fired a four-under-par second-round 67 Monday for a two-day total 138.

Lori Garbacz of Florida was second with a 144 followed by Sherry Donovan of Houston Baptist with a 146.

Florida was the team leader with a two-day total of 299. Texas was second with 614 followed bt Southern Methodist with 614

Haden lifts Rams over Vikings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Namath, in the twilight of an illustrious career, now knows that youth must be served.

Fran Tarkenton also might be giving a little thought to the prospect after the Minnesota Vikings fell 35-3 to the Los Angeles Rams and youthful Rhodes Scholar Pat Haden.

It was a triumph for the 24-year-old Haden before a near full house at the Coliseum and a national television audience. He won his spurs last season and then lost them to Ram newcomer Namath at the start of this National Football League season.

The Rams were 2-2 with Namath at the helm before Haden again got the call against New Orleans and came out on the winning end of a 14-7 score. The rout of defending NFC champion Minnesota ended any doubt that Haden was No. 1 and that Namath, acquired from the New York Jets as a free agent, was No. 2.

Haden credited his teammates on the offensive platoon, saying: "They just gave me great protection all night. Most of the time I had time to count the house, eat a snow cone and then throw the ball."

Haden ran 7 yards for the first touchdown and passed 2 and 9 to Charlie Young and Harold Jackson for the next two TDs. Late in the game, he accepted the suggestion of guard Dennis Harrah and called a play on which Wendell Tyler dashed 44 yards for the final touchdown.

Coach Chuck Knox declared, "This game puts an end to the quarterback controversy." Former Southern California star Haden added, "Yes, I expect to start against New Orleans next Sunday."

Now 4-2, Los Angeles is tied with Atlanta in the NFC West Division. Minnesota, despite the loss, stays atop the NFC Central Division at 4-2.

Even at the game's end, Knox kept Namath on the bench and inserted No. 3 quarterback Vince Ferragamo to finish up.

"I didn't want to put Namath in on a situation when we are ahead 35-3," said Knox. "We felt it was a good chance to give Ferragamo some work." Knox has wrestled with the youth vs. age quarterback situation since Namath joined the team last summer.

Haden hit 12 passes of 21 attempts for 116 yards and the two touchdowns and rushed three times for 13 yards, including the initial score.

Tarkenton, the 37-year-old Minnesota quarterback, hit 10 of 27 for 108 yards and had two picked off — both by cornerback Pat Thomas. And both led to scores by Los Angeles.

Thomas commented, "It was great to be in position where you could get those balls. You have to give credit to the defensive line which kept the pressure on Tarkenton all night."

Haden said he called most of the plays except the pass to Young "and the one that Harrah called."

He explained: "It wasn't in the game plan. Harrah kept telling me all through the third quarter that it would work. More or less to shut him up, I called it."

The playwas a slant through the right side of the line and the 257-pound Harrah said, "John Williams and I got together at halftime and between ourselves we changed our blocking assignments on the play.

"The idea was to let linebacker Matt Blair come through, I would block him to the left and Williams would move to the right.

Ranked schoolboy elevens take wins

By The Associated Press

Hardly a ripple disturbed the tranquility of the Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll this week with only one loss and one tie among the top 50 teams in five classes.

The No. 1s all stayed that way for another week as the season heads toward the playoffs. Port Neches-Groves in 4A, Gregory-Portland in 3A, Bellville in 2A, Seagraves in A and Wheeler in B easily held onto their top billings.

Jacksboro, ranked No. 2 in Class 2A much of the season, was tied by Lake Dallas 7-7 last week but still remained in the top 10 as the No. 6 team this week.

Motley County, ranked No. 6 last week in Class B, also survived the only loss of a ranked team falling to 10th place this week.

Although there were no losses among the 3A ranks, defending champion Beaumont Hebert, ninth a week ago, jumped ahead of Andrews and San Angelo Lakeview into the No. 7 position this week and polled two first place votes.

Petersburg wedged its way into a tie for the No. 10 spot in A with Blooming Grove as the only newcomer in any classification this week.

While the rankings have been a tough fraternity to break into the past two weeks, there are several teams standing in the wings should there be any upsets.

Unbeaten Highland Park, which garnered one first place vote this week, and once-beaten LaPorte are possible choices in 4A.

Kaufman, Whitehouse, Brady and Dayton are among the also-rans in 2A. Lovelady in A and Sundown in B, also narrowly missed the rankings in their classifications.

Penalty vaults Cards to win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals say a rarely imposed penalty baffled them while they were en route to their 49-31 triumph Sunday over the New Orleans Saints.

But the coach of the Cards, Don Coryell, gratefully acknowledged Monday that the ruling in the opening quarter ultimately helped them prevail in the wild National Football League contest.

The penalty, for illegally "batting" the ball, was assessed against New Orleans after Saints defensive end Bob Pollard burst through to block Jim Bakken's attempted field goal from the Saints' 20.

A wild scramble or the ball ensued, with Cards holder Roger Wehrli eventually scooping it up and running out of bounds at New Orleans' 14 after several players had hands on it.

That brought about a lengthy huddle of officials. When it ended, confusion still hung over players from both teams as St. Louis was moved half the distance to the goal line for a first down at the 7.

As it turned out, the penalty was called against Saints linebacker Jim Merlo, who was ruled to have slapped the ball as it bounced along Busch Stadium's artificial turf.

"It was unclear to me at the time," Coryell admitted, however. "What I thought was that they had jumped up on each other's backs to slap the ball. I haven't heard anything different, but I understand one of their people slapped the ball toward their own goal."

Bolstered by the ruling, the Cards scored two players later on Wayne Morris' 9-yard run. The touchdown gave them a 21-0 lead and enabled them to weather a three-touchdown New Orleans rally in the second quarter.

At Monday's Quarterback Club luncheon, Coryell defended St. Louis' beleaguered defenses by labeling the struggling Saints an "explosive team" despite their 1-5 record.

AP poll doesn't impress Akers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas muffed eight possible pass interceptions and made several mental mistakes in getting penalized 108 yards, but Coach Fred Akers says the Longhorns' 30-14 victory over Southern Methodist was better than average.

Texas was assured of the No. 1 spot in college football as a result of the victory, but Akers said Monday, "We haven't talked that much about standigs and polls."

"It was not just average," Akers told his weekly news conference. "Our defense against the rush was outstanding," and except for a 49-yard pass completion "we played very well defensively."

He also said he was impressed with Texas' "quick striking power" as it rolled up 20 points late in the first half to take a 20-7 halftime lead.

Johnnie Johnson got Texas' only interception although freshman quarterback Mike Ford of SMU threw 46 passes.

Ford completed 21 for 253 yards and two touchdowns — the first in six games against Texas' first-team defense. Akers said Texas dropped possible interceptions on both of SMU's touchdown drives.

"I haven't seen that many opportunities missed before," Akers said of Texas' inability to latch onto errant passes. "Maybe we got it out of our system."

Asked if being No. 1 offered any "special incentives" to his team, Akers said the Longhorns "have done a great job of taking games one at a time."

"I'm not getting concerned over problems we can't control — polls being one of those things," Akers said.

The fact that Texas Tech, 5-1, plays here Saturday "is plenty of incentive as far as I'm concerned."

Akers said the coaching staff had for the fourth week in a row selected running back Earl Campbell as the most valuable offensive player for Texas. Campbell ran 32 times for a personal record of 213 yards, including a 58-yard touchdown dash.

Akers said it was probably the best offensive performance in the nation.

The coaches selected senior co-captain Morgan Copeland, who had 13 tackles, including four behind the line of scrimmage, as the best defender in close competition with sophomore middle linebacker Lance Taylor, who also had 13 tackles.

Akers said of Copeland, "Some of his tackles you could hear 'em."

Wimberly leads Chap linksters

Bert Wimberly shot a 54-hole score of 223 to finish in eighth place in the New Mexico State Intercollegiate Golf Tournament held over the weekend.

Arizona State was an easy winner over New Mexico State while Midland College finished 11th in the 12 team Field with a 946.

Heinsohn fumes after big loss

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Pistons bombed the Boston Celtics with a second-half lurry that gave the Pistons a victory and left the losing team's coach, Tom Heinsohn, fuming.

Heinsohn didn't have much praise for Detroit in its 100-85 National Basketball Association triumph Monday night. The reason? The Boston coach was too busy bracing his own team with criticism.

"We played dumb, non-hustling basketball," said Heinsohn. "We played well enough in the first half, then rolled over and died. They are not thinking out there."

Bob Lanier, who teamed up with Eric Money to pace a second-half blitz that overcame a 49-42 halftime deficit for Detroit, agreed with the Boston coach.

Lanier said Boston "isn't the team out there that it was before. They don't play well together. Usually, they keep coming at you, but right now they're not doing that."

Woody won't play game

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Third-ranked Ohio State vs. No. 1 Texas in the Cotton Bowl?

One newsman proposed that postseason college football match to Woody Hayes Monday, wondering if there were a legal way to worm out of a committment to the Rose Bowl.

Of course, the man conveniently dismissed the matter of four regular season games remaining for Ohio State, all against Big Ten opposition including Michigan.

Little did it matter to him that the Wolverines planted a 22-0 shiner on the Buckeyes in Columbus a year ago.

And he was trying to bypass the Big Ten-Pacific 8 tieup with the Rose Bowl, in which each conference sends its champion to the New Year's Day classic.

Hayes gingerly stiff-armed the proposal that likely would decide the 1977 national champion, providing Texas and Ohio State win all of their regular season games left.

"You would have to ask people who know the rules," replied the Ohio State coach. "I doubt if there is. But I'm not thinking about it. It's the farthest thing from my mind. We have got to get ready for Wisconsin."

Of more concern to Hayes is a rash of fumbles that has struck his 1977 team. The Buckeyes have fumbled 13 times in the last two weeks, including eight in a 35-15 victory at Northwestern Saturday.

Sports in brief

HORSE RACING
NEW YORK — Steve Cauthen became the first jockey ever to win purses of more than $5 million in a single year when he finished first on Rare Joel in the second race at Aqueduct.
The $6,000 winner's share of the $10,000 purse boosted the 17year-old Cauthen's earnings for 1977 to $5,004,312.

TENNIS
LOS ANGELES — Frew McMillan, the doubles ace whose consistent play helped the Golden Gaters reach the World Team Tennis playoffs, was named the WTT's Most Valuable Player for the 1977 season.
McMillan, 35, and Tom Okker won their third WTT men's doubles title in as many years in 1977, recording a .559 gamewinning percentage.
The South African also had an outstanding year in mixed doubles, teaming with Francois Durr for a 212-155 game record, .578 percentage and a 30-9 set mark.
McMillan edged New York's Ray Ruffels, Boston's Tony Roche and Butch Walts of Phoenix for the MVP honor.
PERTH, Australia — Veteran Harold Solomon trounced countryman John Whitlinger 6-0, 6-3 to advance to the second round of a $46,000 international tennis tournament.
In other matches, Tim Wilkison ousted Brian Fairlie of New Zealand 6-1, 6-1; Australian Phil Dent beat Brad Rowe 6-7, 6-3, 6-4; Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia edged Pat Dupre 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 and Marcelo Lara of Mexico defeated Australian Mark Edmonson 1-6, 6-2, 6-1.
NEW YORK — Pearl Necklace, $6.40, took the lead shortly after the start and led the rest of the way in winning the $54,050 Long Island Handicap at Aqueduct by 1¼ lengths over Javamine.
PHILADELPHIA — Jay's Win, $15.20, came from off the pace and upset favored Knock Out Punch by a nose in the feature at Keystone.
LAUREL, Md. — Trumpeter Swan, $27.20, and Grey Beret, $5.60, each won divisions of the Laurel Turf Cup. Trumpeter Swan romped to a 5½ lengths victory over heavily favored Bemo in the second division while Grey Beret made his bid on the final turn and scored a 2½ length win over Island Tim in the first division.
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Tiger Heart, $4.60, posted a one-length victory over Likely Double in the $25,000 Castle Forbes feature at the Meadowlands.
LANDOVER, Md. — The Cardinal, a 7-year-old chesnut gelding ridden by Bernie Trawrig, won a jumpoff and the $1,500 Inverness Farm Trophy in the 19th annual Washington International Horseshow.
The Cardinal, one of seven entries in the field of 30 to go faultlessly in the opening round, then turned in the best time — 35.2 seconds — among the entries whoo went clean into the jumpoff. BOWLING
BATTLE CREEK, Mich. — Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa, won his third Professional Bowlers Association title this year with a 128-pin victory over Don Bell in the $60,000 Buzz Fazio Open.
Berlin, who was in 23rd place after the cut, finished with games of 238, 248, 239, 175, 225, 195, and 199. He had a 42-game pinfall of 9,951 and a match record of 17-7.

COLLEGE
MINNEAPOLIS — The University of Minnesota reversed itself and voted to declare Big Ten basketball scoring champion Michael Thompson and Dave Winey ineligible.
The National Collegiate Athletic Association had placed the entire University of Minnesota men's athletic program on probation on Oct. 21, 1976 for failing to comply with an NCAA ruling calling on Minnesota to declare Thompson and Winey ineligible.
At that time, the NCAA charged that Thompson was selling complimentary season basketball tickets for more than their face value. Winey was alleged to have accepted free lodging from a university booster at a Wisconsin lake cabin.
Following the NCAA probation decree, the University took the matter to court and won a decision in federal district court. However, an appeals court last summer sided with the NCAA and upheld the probation, forcing Minnesota to reconsider its position.

'Dog netters win titles

Tim Baird and Vicki Vasicek walked off with titles Sunday in the Midland Country Club Singles Championships.

Baird, a Midland High senior defeated Bulldog teammate Jeff Rea in the men's final, 6-4, 6-4, while Vasicek, a junior at MHS, downed Susan Britton in the women's final, 6-3, 6-0. Vasicek lost only three games in the entire three-day tournament.

In the men's 'A' division, David Sparks defeated Hauep Hodges, 6-4, 6-3 in the finals, while Susan Cowden was a 4-6, 7-5, 6-1 winner over Dana Davis in the women's 'A' finals.

The men's championship consolation title went to Duncan Kennedy, who tripped Craig Aldridge in the finals, 6-1, 7-6, 6-3, while Louise Patterson downed Amy Davenport in the women's consolation battle, 6-2, 6-4.

Booster clubs meet tonight

The Robert E. Lee and Midland High Booster Clubs will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in their respective cafeterias.

Lee faces unbeaten Odessa Permian in W.T. Barrett Stadium Friday while the Purple Pack will be celebrating homecoming by facing the Odessa High Bronchos in Memorial Stadium.

A film of the Lee-Big Spring game will be viewed by the Rebel Booster Club while at MHS the San Angelo-Midland film will be shown.

Scouting reports on the Panthers and Bronchos will be given at the two meetings.

Allison doubtful

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Tech Coach Steve Sloan said Monday senior quarterback Rodney Allison is a "very doubtful" participant in Saturday's Southwest Conference game against Texas and added that backup quarterback Mark Johnson was injured in practice last Saturday.

"Allison can't run or jog at all ...it would take a miraculous recovery," said Sloan in a telephone interview.

Allison broke a small bone in his leg four weeks ago against the Texas Aggies.

Sloan said Johnson, a sophomore, pulled a thigh muscle.

"We might start Tres Adami at quarterback," said Sloan.

Berlin nabs win

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) — Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa, won his third Professional Bowlers Association title this year with a 128-pin victory over Don Bell Monday night in the $60,000 Buzz Fazio Open.

The victory, worth $6,000, boosted Berlin's earnings for the year to $48,215, fifth-best on the PBA tour. It was his fourth career title.

Curt Schmidt of Fort Wayne, Ind., finished third while Roy Buckley of Columbus, Ohio, was fourth and Eddie Ressler of Allentown, Pa., fifth. Twotime defending champion Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., finished eighth.

Vermeil blasts violence

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Dick Vermeil of the Philadelphia Eagles condemned Monday what he tagged "cheap shot artists" in the National Football League who make hits after the whistle or when they think officials aren't watching.

"Some day someone will get hurt seriously, so they'll fire the official that missed it," Vermeil said in commenting on NFL violence, particularly against quarterbacks, running backs and pass catchers.

"I think it's the coaches' fault because some allow it to go on. They see the films after the game and they can do something about it.

"When we see it, we correct it. We warn if it's unintentional. I'd bench a guy if it was flagrant.

"I don't believe in that kind of football."

Vermeil, in a postmortem of Sunday's 16-10 loss to unbeaten Dallas, said he doesn't think NFL violence is more flagrant now than five years ago, but suggested that more publicity about it is bound to lead to stronger safety rules.

"And automatic suspensions and that kind of stuff," he added.

Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski suffered a broken small bone in his right thumb, but played the entire second half without realizing he was injured. Vermeil said Jaworski might not be available for Sunday's game at Washington against the Redskins.

"Right now I'm mentally preparing for Roman Gabriel to play with reactivated John Walton as backup," Vermeil said. "I've got confidence in both of them.

"I probably won't know until Thursday about Jaworski, but he'll play if he's ready. I can't worry about the injured man. I'm going to concentrate on the guy who is going to play."

Vermeil said quarterbacks are going to get sacked and banged around because it's the nature of the game and pointed happily to the five sacks of Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach.

"One reason we got to him was because the pass coverage was so good," Vermeil said.

Vermeil admitted disappointment that the Eagles failed to upset the Cowboys after leading into the fourth quarter. A blocked kick for a Dallas touchdown turned the game around.

"It was a mental mistake, and it's a shame that it happened," Vermeil said. "We knew what it would take to beat the Cowboys, and we darn near did. But darn near is not enough.

"I'm disappointed for the players, and I'm disappointed for owner Leonard Tose. I wanted to give him one win over somebody we shouldn't beat. We almost did it against Dallas."

Police investigate crash

TOKYO (AP) — Police investigating the fatal accident at the Japan Grand Prix race Sunday say the two drivers involved in the accident drove "in accordance with the rules of the International Federation of Automobiles."

A spokesman at the Gotemba police station near where the race was held 90 miles southwest of Tokyo said Tuesday the two drivers, Gilles Villeneuve of Canada and Ronnie Peterson of Sweden, were questioned Monday.

He said police have completed the investigation of the two but are continuing to question officials and witnesses at the race. He added that it will be weeks before the probe could be completed.

The accident killed two people and injured 10 other in an area where spectators were prohibited from entering. One of the two persons killed was a 21-year-old part-time track guard, who had gone in to the area to order the spectators to move out.

Track officials said the spectators were removed from the site earlier, but went back after the race started to get a better view. Many were hit by broken pieces of metal flung from Villeneuve's car.

The two drivers escaped injury. Peterson said after he returned to the pits that "Villeneuve hit me in the back and went over me."

Red Sox executors clean house, fire O'Connell

BOSTON (AP) — "What good would it do to say anything now?" asked Dick O'Connell, shortly after he was fired — "terminated immediately" — as general manager of the Boston Red Sox. "It wouldn't change anything."

O'Connell, one of baseball's most respected men, didn't have a chance to continue with the Red Sox after his boss, Tom Yawkey, died in July of 1976.

Yawkey, a multimillionaire who purchased the Red Sox as a toy in 1933, and O'Connell were close, both personally and in business.

But O'Connell's relationship with Yawkey's wife was strained. When Yawkey died and his widow became one of the three executors of his estate, the handwriting was on the wall.

As executive vice president and general manager, O'Connell survived this year as the Red Sox drew two million fans to tiny Fenway Park for the first time in history. But he was in limbo and he knew it.

In April, Mrs. Yawkey announced the club was for sale, not to the highest bidder, but to whomever would carry on the tradition of her late husband.

On Sept. 29, Joseph LaCour, an executor of the estate, announced that Haywood Sullivan, vice president of player personnel with the Red Sox, and Edward (Buddy) LeRoux, a former trainer, were the successful bidders as heads of a group that included Mrs. Yawkey.

O'Connell had hired Sullivan and LeRoux in the 1960s. The three are friendly. But business is business — Mrs. Yawkey wanted O'Connell out.

Mrs. Yawkey has almost a mother-son relationship with Sullivan. So it was no surprise when she and her two co-executors picked the Sullivan-LeRoux group. The sale price, not announced, reportedly was $15 million, including $3 million put up by Mrs. Yawkey.

The sale is due to be finalized on Oct. 31. However, it must be approved by at least 10 of the 14 American League clubs. That could be sticky. There is considerable talk about sufficient financing. And AL owners may be reluctant to approve new management without O'Connell.

O'Connell, a native Bostonian, was an outstanding ballplayer at Boston College and on the sandlots in the late 1930s. He served as an intelligence officer in the Navy in World War II. Then, in 1946, he was hired by the Red Sox of Lynn, Mass.

He was promoted to the parent club in 1947. Yawkey named him a vice president in 1960. In 1965, he became Yawkey's right-hand man as executive vice president and general manager.

Under O'Connell, the Red Sox won two pennants and became a hit at the gate, packing in fans at home as well as on the road. Now, O'Connell doesn't "fit into future plans" with the Red Sox. It could be a disastrous mistake.

Carew paces AL All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — A .388 batting average, 239 hits, 128 runs scored, 14 home runs and 100 runs batted in. Even Rod Carew would be impressed by those statistics.

Since those numbers belong to the Minnesota first baseman, it is understandable that he was the leading vote-getter on The Associated Press' 1977 American League All-Star team. Carew, after having the best season of his illustrious career, impressed a whopping 405 of 422 voters in the balloting by sports writers and broadcasters across the country.

Joining Carew on the AL squad was teammate Larry Hisle, who led the league with 119 RBI, in addition to 27 home runs and a .301 batting average. Hisle led the outfield voting with 195 votes, six ahead of Baltimore's Ken Singleton and 24 votes more than collected by Bobby Bonds of California. New York's Reggie Jackson, the most valuable player in the World Series, was fourth.

The world champion New York Yankees placed one player on the squad, second baseman Willie Randolph, who gathered 108 votes in easily outdistancing rookie Bump Wills of Texas. Several Yankees placed second at their positions, including catcher Thurman Munson, who lost out to Boston's Carlton Fisk 260-116, third baseman Graig Nettles, whose finished 97 votes behind Kansas City's George Brett, and lefthanded reliever Sparky Lyle, who wound up second to Frank Tanana in balloting for the top left-handed hurler in the AL. Yankee left-handers Ron Guidry and Don Gullett followed Lyle in the voting, giving New York three of the top four lefthanders.

The right-handed pitcher on the team was Jim Palmer of Baltimore.

Aside from Fisk, Boston's Rick Burleson was named a starter at shortstop with 231 votes and Jim Rice was selected the designated hitter with a 291-vote total. It was the first time the designated hitter spot was included on the team.

George Foster leads ballots

By The Associated Press

Cincinnati's George Foster, baseball's leading slugger in 1977, received the most votes of any player on The Associated Press National League All-Star team announced today.

Foster, whose 52 homers and 149 RBIs made him one of the top single season sluggers in baseball history, received 418 votes from a nation-wide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Foster was one of three Reds named to the NL squad. The others were second baseman Joe Morgan, who had 270 votes to 95 for runnerup Rennie Stennett of Pittsburgh; and righthanded pitcher Tom Seaver with 255 votes to 150 for Rick Reuschel of the Chicago Cubs.

First baseman Steve Garvey was the only member of the NL champion Los Angeles Dodgers named to the team in the voting that was completed before the start of the playoffs. Garvey scored the most lopsided victory in the balloting, receiving 352 of the 377 votes cast for his position.

Besides Garvey and Morgan, the NL infield consisted of Philadelphia third baseman Mike Schmidt and shortstop Garry Templeton of the St. Louis Cardinals. Schmidt received 262 votes to 87 for Ron Cey of Los Angeles and Templeton, in his first full major league season, had 218 to 79 for Larry Bowa of Philadelphia.

Joining Foster in the NL outfield were Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski, who had 375 votes, and batting champion Dave Parker of Pittsburgh with 365.

Only three left-handed pitchers received votes, with Steve Carlton of Philadelphia the easy winner over Tommy John of Los Angeles and John Candelaria of Pittsburgh. Carlton received 304 votes to 82 for John and 40 for Candelaria. All three were 20-game winners.

The only close vote on the NL team was for the catching job, where Cincinnati's Johnny Bench had been an annual selection. Ted Simmons of St. Louis broke his hold on the job, winning 240-159. The Cards catcher batted .318 with 21 homers and 95 RBIs compared to .275, 31 homers and 109 RBIs for Bench.

Except for Garvey, no Dodger came close to winning a spot on the team. Cey and John were distant seconds to Schmidt and Carlton. Catcher Steve Yeager and second baseman Davey Lopes both finished third in their races while shortstop Bill Russell and outfielder Reggie Smith placed fourth at their positions, far behind the leaders.

The American League team announced Monday had Minnesota's Rod Carew at first base, Willie Randolph of the New York Yankees at second, Boston's Rick Burleson at shortstop and George Brett of Kansas City at third. Minnesota's Larry Hisle, Ken Singleton of Baltimore and Bobby Bonds of Caloifornia were chosen in the outfield with Boston's Jim Rice picked as the designated hitter and Carlton Fisk of the Red Sox named the catcher. Baltimore's Jim Palmer and Frank Tanana of California were picked as the right-handed and left-handed pitchers respectivelv.

Panty hose, skirts may replace uniforms

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Joe Greene awaits a basic change in National Football League uniforms.

"We're all going to be out there wearing skirts," said the Pittsburgh Steeler tackle, upset by what he sees as misdirected and excessive efforts to control violence on the field.

"We're all going to be wearing fashion panty hose before long," Greene added in a tone that was hardly dainty after a victory Sunday over Houston.

To Greene, the referees have been lax in taking immediate action against "flagrant fouls" — NFL jargon for downright dirty plays.

"The referees aren't doing the job. Throw the player out of the game and penalize the team," said Greene.

He also tackled network television and the NFL retirees who inhabit the booths.

"The TV networks got Rozelle running," Greene said.

He referred to NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, who met Monday in New York with cornerbacks Mel Blount of the Steelers and Mel Morgan of the Cincinnati Bengals to discuss hits they made in a game at Pittsburgh a week ago.

It remains to be seen what action Rozeelle takes against the two.

In the game, Morgan drew a 15-yard penalty after his one-handed belt to the head of Steeler receiver John Stallworth.

Blount got no penalty later when he hit Bengal receiver Bob Trumpy, cracking his face mask and knocking him cold.

But ABC broadcasters Frank Gifford and Don Meredith threw their own yellow flags on Blount.

"It's another hit that, well, it shouldn't take place like this ...There isn't any room in football for it," said Gifford.

"I agree, Frank," said Meredith.

Greene didn't agree. To him, Blount's hit was hard-nosed football. He said the television response, not the referees' respose, brought Blount under NFL scrutiny.

"I can't believe guys who played can call it as stupidly as they did," said Greene. "This ain't gonna be football for long. Let football people take care of it."

Greene also didn't like the trips to New York — no matter what Morgan and Blount did.

"That's bull," he said. "Just look as the film, fine their rears if they deserve it, and let it be. They don't need to play games. They don't need that to bring people out."

Gophers earn setback

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mike Thompson, who turned down a $1 million pro offer to finish his senior year at the University of Minnesota, has been declared ineligible by a university committee.

The university's Assembly Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics also declared Dave Winey ineligible Monday, both actions ending a year-long impasse between the university and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The NCAA on Oct. 21, 1976 placed the entire mens' athletic program on probation for an indefinite period because the university had refused to declare the two basketball players ineligible.

Monday's action by the committee came after two court decisions, the second by a higher court that had sided with the NCAA.

By the action, the committee hoped to have the probation lifted and also hoped that the NCAA will decide to have the ineligibility of the two players lifted or at least shortened.

Thompson, who was expected to be one of the the top centers in the country this season, said if the NCAA penalized him for 13 games or more he would take legal action or leave the university. He said if the penalty was five games or less he would sit out the games and remain at the university.

"I had a gut feeling that this was coming, but it was still a shock," he said.

Thompson was accused of selling two complimentary season tickets for more than face value. Winey was alleged to have accepted free lodging from a university booster at a Wisconsin lake cabin during two holidays.

The university had claimed that declaring the players ineligible was too harsh a penalty.

The sanctions imposed by the NCAA bars all mens' teams from post-season play and NCAA-sponsored television appearances.

The resolutions were approved on a 9-5 vote. The committee is the top policy-making body for university athletics and its decisions are final and not subject to veto by University President C. Peter Magrath.

Committee members said they had discussed the issues with the NCAA staff, but were informed that there could be "no horse trading" until the university took the first step and declared the players ineligible.

Both Thompson and Winey are seniors and it was not immediately clear if they would be reinstated by the NCAA sometime during the 1977-78 season. The 6-foot-10 Thompson holds most of the Gopher career scoring records and last year led the Big Ten in scoring with 410 points in 18 games.

Gopher basketball Coach Jim Dutcher said the committee's "timing was unfortunate," particularly for Thompson, who could have turned pro during the off-season.

"I'm convinced that they voted their consciences and that they're honorable people," Dutcher said of the committee. "They were under tremendous pressure and it's not for us to second-guess them."

Autry has new sidekick

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Gene Autry has a new sidekick.

E.J. "Buzzie" Bavasi took over officially Monday as executive vice-president of Autry's California Angels baseball team.

Bavasi headed the front office of the San Diego Padres the past nine years and directed the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers for many years before that.

Former cowboy movie star Autry also gave himself an expanded new role in the front office shakeup of his Angels. Autry becomes president and continues as chairman of the board. The hiring of Bavasi and retention of most or all other top Angel officials had been reported last week.

The Angels' penchant to spend money for new players is not expected to change. Like the Angels, San Diego also went the free-agent route a year ago n an effort to improve a team which appeared ready to contend for a pennant.

But star-quality additions were cancelled out by injuries on both teams, making 1977 a lot like every other year at Anaheim and San Diego.

It's reported that free-agent players eyed by the Angels this winter include Mike Torrez, who pitched two victories for the New York Yankees in the World Series, and relief ace Rich Gossage of Pittsburgh. The Angels also are reported working on a multi-player deal that would bring them third baseman Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers.

But an executive reorganization was Autry's first priority following the Angels' 74-88 finish in 1977.

Bengals turn bellyflop

CINCINNATI (AP) — What's with the stumbling Cincinnati Bengals? Their great leap forward has turned into a bellyflop.

Touted as a Super Bowl contender six weeks ago, the 2-4 Bengals are flirting with their first losing season since 1971.

INDEED, THE factors that transformed the once-proud Bengals into paper tigers are puzzling.

"It's a continuation of things that are getting us beat," said Bill "Tiger" Johnson, who is stumped by the stumbling start. "It always seems to come from a different area."

Capsulized, here are some of their troubles:

—Passing wizard Ken Anderson has mysteriously lost his touch.

—A high-powered offense that produced 11-3 and 10-4 records the past two years has been reduced to cha-cha football — 1-2-3, kick.

—Morale has been undermined by a steady stream of mistakes, including 15 fumbles and 41 penalties, many on key downs.

THE SLIDE started on opening day with a 13-3 loss to arch-rival Cleveland. It was the first home opener setback in the Bengals' 10-year history.

Since then, the problems have seemed more psychological than physical.

Anderson's decline has been the most disturbing aspect. Twice the top-rated quarterback in the NFL, Anderson has not been himself the last two seasons. A year ago, his efficiency ratings slipped drastically from a league-best 94 in 1975 to 77. After Sunday's 24-13 loss to unbeaten Denver, it dipped to a lowly 55 for this season.

ONE OF the theories for his slippage is that he has suffered from the loss of play-calling geniuses Bill Walsh, who tutored Anderson to greatness, and Paul Brown, who left coaching last year at age 67.

Walsh departed last year for San Diego, where his imaginative talents transformed the Chargers from 2-12 to 6-8. Walsh took over as head coach at Stanford this year and has produced a surprising 5-2 record.

Brown was recently described by former NFL quarterback Frank Ryan as "the greatest caller of plays in football."

Anderson's inability to get the ball to brilliant receiver Isaac Curtis has taken away a prime strike weapon. Curtis has only 14 receptions in six games this year. In three of the games he was limited to one catch and appears headed toward his career low in receptions and yards gained.

DEAR ABBY

Education doesn't always pay

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband works long hours (without overtime pay) in a position of importance with a large, nationally-known firm. He's had six years of college, but some of the men who operate machinery make more money than he does. This hurts.

For example, our neighbor never even finished high school. He does manual labor, but because he belongs to a union, he earns more and has more benefits than my husband. It doesn't seem fair that with all my husband's education he isn't able to give his family as much as some uneducated laborers.

I am not saying that common laborers should make less, but in a society screaming for youngsters to get an education, it's ironic that uneducated laborers should make more than college graduates. I hope you aren't too intimidated by big business to respond in your column.—RESENTFUL

DEAR RESENTFUL: I understand your resentment, but perhaps those whom you label "common laborers" are skilled laborers in their fields. Many men who have never seen the inside of a college (or high school) have a technical knowledge equal in importance to some college educations.

I, too, would like to see higher education bring greater rewards, but don't confuse a man's worth with his college education—or the lack of it.

DEAR ABBY: May I air my pet peeve? It's people who invite guests to their home to play cards and then bring out decks of cards that are old and filthy.

To compound the insult, they moisten their fingers when they deal. Yech!—CANDY

DEAR CANDY: You may "air" your pet peeve, but don't expect results until you direct your complaints to the offenders.

DEAR ABBY: I know you must get thousands of letters every day, so this will probably go unread and unanswered. It is really important, though, as I know lots of teenage girls my age with this problem. It might even help some of the boys who read it.

Whenever I walk down the street, boys in cars stop and honk, etc. Some of them are very nice and quite cute, but if a girl stops and talks to them, or goes for a ride with them, she gains a reputation as a pickup.

On the other hand, if she doesn't, the boys consider her a stuck-up snob. Which would be better, to stop and be sociable, or to act like a snob?—WANTS TO BE SOCIABLE

DEAR WANTS: One of the first things a mother teaches a little girl who is old enough to walk down the street alone is, "Don't talk to strangers or even get into a car with one!"

Whether the girl is 6 or 16, the advice is still good. To refuse invitations to socialize from strangers in automobiles is not snobbish, it's sensible.

Altrusa Club observes 29th year

Altrusa Club of Midland, Inc. observed its 29th birthday with a luncheon meeting in the Midland Hilton.

Mrs. H. N. Phillips, a charter member, presented the program, which was a history and achievements of the club. Following the meeting, a birthday cake, presented to the club by Mrs. Ann Hicks, was served members. Charter members recognized and presented corsages were Mrs. Phillips, Annie Ford and Caroline Keisling.

The Midland club was organized by the San Antonio club in August 1948 and received its charter Oct. 13, 1948. Mrs. F. N. Shriver served as the club's first president. Of the 25 charter members, five are still active. The other two are Bertie Boone and Geraldine Simmons.

"On our birthday we always have a tendency to look back over the years and assess our accomplishments, as well as admit our failures," Mrs. Phillips noted. "At the time this club was organized there was little or no federal aid, no welfare, no organized community help for the underpriviledged or the underfed. Possible projects for the club grew on every bush."

One of the club's most successful projects and one that has had a continued effect on Midland County was aid to the Midland County Public Library. The club organized Friends of the Library, contributed to the library itself and assisted with the petition to build the current building.

Working with the tuberculosis offices and the Salvation Army were other projects.

Setting a mute couple up in a home laundry to be self-supporting, and sending a woman with a family to support through beautitian school were two more outstanding projects.

On the International level, the club was able to assist a doctor from Mexico to attend the school for leper treatment and also was active during World War II in securing medical supplies for Korea and received a personal letter from Madame Sygman Rhee, wife of the then president of Korea.

Because of Federal aid, welfare, old-age assistance, other governmental projects and Midland's many other civic clubs, working to provide a better life for the community's citizens, projects are hard to find now, but the club still finds individuals to assist and projects.

Midland Altrusa assists with Christmas in April, provides Christmas presents for a Big Spring hospital, dresses a "living doll" at Christmas and Easter and, through its international FFVA fund, has assisted over a dozen licensed vocational nurse trainees. One of the major projects in which the club is currently involved is the Crime Check program.

"The world-wide program of Altrusa International this year is to reduce illiteracy," Mrs. Phillips continued. "And while Midland can boast of being in the top five cities in the United States in the number of graduates per capita, we, too, have illiteracy in our city. Many people cannot apply for a job because they cannot fill out an application form. They cannot read street signs, nor labels on canned goods in the grocery store. How can they read enough to vote intelligently? The influence of education in the moral world is like light, rendering luminous what was before obscure."

In concluding, Mrs. Phillips challenged local members of the club by urging them to attend meetings, be committed, accept assignments and become involved in all of Altusa's activities and projects.

"Altrusa offers many things. It opens the door, but only you (the member) can walk through."

Mrs. Agnes Park, a longtime member, also spoke on advantages of being an Altrusan and of some of the activities of the club during its 29 years of organization.

Making double batches gets cook off the hook

By BETSY BALSLEY
The Los Angeles Times

If yours is a household in which the seniors are working and the juniors are in school, mealtime probably is just plain a hassle. There simply isn't enough time at the end of the day to get a decent dinner on the table at a reasonable hour.

As a result it's easier to eat out or pick up something at the nearest fast-food spot or your favorite deli. At least that may seem easier if you don't utilize your freezer to its fullest.

As a matter of fact this is a good time to check out the freezer and see exactly what's in there. You're probably in for a few surprises in the form of some mysterious, unmarked packages you have resisted opening became once opened you'll have to use whatever it is and that may not be what you had in mind for dinner. Or you may find a package or two of dessicated turkey left over from last Thanksgiving that somehow slipped in behind larger packages of something else left over from Easter.

So there you are—the proud possessor of a heavily laden freezer filled with a sizable collection of non—wanteds or unusables.

The time has come to quit wasting all that good freezer space on things you can't or won't use and fill it up with home—prepared casseroles and other foods that will let you avoid a mad last minute rush to toss something together after a long day at the office.

Be brutal about it. Shut your eyes and pitch out (or foist off on a ravenous pet) those useless items only your frugal soul made you put in the freezer in the first place. Then sign a mental pledge that never again will you allow anything to remain in the freezer more than three months.

Once you've reached such a decision, you're ready for step two.

You gotta get organized. Sit down and figure it out. Add up what you're spending when you eat out and see how much you can save by doing it yourself. In all probabilities, and not even considering the nutritional advantages of having total control over what goes in your mouth, you'll find you can save a bundle—often enough to splurge at a really good restaurant every couple of weeks.

Once you've admitted to yourself that you'll be better off by doing your own cooking, it's time for step three.

Assuming that you do cook two or three respectable meals a week, at least, figure on making them do double duty.

CHILI CON CARNE

2 tablespoons oil
1 clove garlic, minced
3-4 pound ground chuck
1 (15¼-ounce) can red kidney beans, drained
2 teaspoons chili powder
2 pints thawed Spanish Tomato Sauce

Heat oil in skillet. Add garlic and stir 30 seconds. Add chuck and stir until browned. Stir in drained beans, chili powder and Spanish Tomato Sauce. Cook over low heat 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve garnished with sliced olives or diced American cheese if desired. Makes 4 servings.

CHICKEN ESPANOL

1 (3-pound) broiler-fryer, cut up
Seasoned flour
¼ cup oil
2 pints thawed Spanish Tomato Sauce
1 (3-ounce) can sliced mushrooms, drained
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
Hot cooked rice

Shake chicken pieces in bag containing seasoned flour. Brown chicken in hot oil in large skillet. Remove chicken. Add Spanish Tomato Sauce, mushrooms, allspice and poultry seasoning. Stir to blend. Add chicken and turn to coat. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes or until chicken is tender. Serve with hot rice. Makes 4 servings.

MSUW cooking school to start Wednesday

Interested persons can purchase tickets at the door for the Gourmet Gala, a cooking school to be held Wednesday and Thursday in the Midland Community Theatre.

Frances James of Little Rock, Ark. will conduct the school, which is open to the public.

Two sessions will be held Wednesday, one from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and again from 7 to 10 p.m. The morning session only will be conducted Thursday. Any one of the three sessions can be attended.

Special prizes will be awarded and a complimentary booklet of Mrs. James' recipes will be given to all persons attendipg the benefit.

The Midland Society of University Women is sponsoring the event.

Event to benefit programs

The Opportunity Center Auxiliary is planning a benefit wine and cheese tasting party Thursday, with proceeds going to programs for the retarded citizens.

The event will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Daniel of 201 S. H St.

In charge of the benefit arrangements are Mrs. Kay Bates and Mrs. Louise Patterson, co-chairmen.

The Daniel home was built in 1934 by R. L. York and is being restored with a mixture of contemporary antiques and traditional with strong use of contemporary color. Among the additions underway are a swimming pool and landscaping changes.

With dances, a summer camp, a swimming program and a youth center, retarded citizens in Midland are kept busy with an active life.

Responsible for many of these programs is the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens, which was organized in 1959 to promote the general welfare of mentally retarded persons.

The Opportunity Center is owned and operated by the association. It houses a day care program co-sponsored with the Permian Basin Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center.

Through MARC, mentally retarded children have their own youth center known as the Pop Bottle, their own Boy and Girl Scout troops, and they attend a summer resident camp at Prude Ranch in Fort Davis. They also have a learn-to-swim program each summer.

The Midland association, which has a speakers' bureau to help the public develop a better understanding of mental retardation, is affiliated with the state and national associations which have been active in research and legislation.

Giving backup support to MARC is the Opportunity Center Auxiliary which was organized in 1966 to provide financial aid for programs for the mentally retarded and to help educate the public to the needs of a retarded person.

It is the only organization of its type, focusing on the mentally retarded, in the United States. In 1972, the auxiliary was cited by the Texas Association for Retarded Citizens as "the organization which has done the most to recognize the needs of the mentally retarded locally."

With the auxiliary working in conjunction with MARC, mentally retarded persons in Midland are leading active lives.

ZTA celebrates Founder's Day

The Zeta Tau Alpha Alumnae met in the Racquet Club for their Founder's Day luncheon.

Zeta Tau Alpha sorority was founded in 1898 at Longwood College in Farmville, Va. There were nine founders, one of whom is still living today. She is Ruby Leigh Oragain and greetings were mailed to the local club from her.

At the annual luncheon, Mrs. William Nelson and Mrs. Thomas N. Sloan were recognized as 50-year Zetas. They wear the white violet pin.

Also, Mrs. L. W. Henshaw Jr., candle coffee chairman, announced the 10th Antiquea to Burn Candle Coffee" will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 2 in the home of Mrs. Austin Allison of 3100 Gulf St. Proceeds will benefit the Midland Cerebral Palsy Center.

Mrs. David Greenlee announced Cary Ann Nixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Nixon, pledged ZTA at Southwestern University.

In a Panhellenic report, Mrs. Don Ewan announced the Midland City Panhellenic will host a "Panhellenic Gourmet Affair" for all Panhellenic members Nov. 16 in the home of Mrs. Bill Kennedy of No. 1 Racquet Club Drive.

Guests at the affair were Mrs. Roy Williamson, Mrs. J. K. Hartman, Mrs. V. J. Cummings and Mrs. Gene Jeary. These women have daughters who are Zetas, Jana Williamaon at The University of Texas-Austin, Diane Hartman at UT-Austin; Ann Cummings at Texas Tech University and Linda and Brenda Jeary at Texas Tech.

Odessa Zetas attending were Mrs. Charles Blythe, Mrs. William Narman and Mrs. Ken Martin.

Serving as hostesses were Mrs. Bob Bales and Mrs. David Greenlee.

Baby shower honors Morales

Mrs. Jesse Morales was honored with a baby shower in the home of Mrs. Landon Jordan, 2610 N. A St.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Roy Frazier and Faye King.

Centering the gift display table was a pink and blue vase containing pink and blue carnations.

Mrs. Morales, who is employed by Cities Service Co., received a special gift from her co-workers.

AT WIT'S END

Small band of people force end to fun holiday for kids

By ERMA BOMBECK

This column is an apology to the children of the '70s on what happened to Halloween.

Because this is a generation conceived after the Tonight Show, born during a commercial, educated by a big yellow bird, and has Baretta as a night light, I will explain it in language they can understand. Television.

I am saddened to inform you, kiddies, that Halloween has been cancelled due to poor ratings and a preponderance of sex and violence.

One of the original holidays, it has enjoyed high ratings for 66,304 weeks. (Second only to Christmas and "Roots".)

The holiday, an ASD (All Saint's Day) Production, was originally created to focus attention on fun and games. (Like a Gong Show with taste). Little children would dress up like witches, ghosts, and goblins and roam the streets at night, then rush up to a door and yell, "Trick Or Treat." In keeping with the game, the person answering the door would opt for a treat and give them an apple or a piece of candy. Then they would try to guess who was behind the mask.

In the 50's, Halloween got the "Cher" touch. It became more elaborate, costumes became more sensational, and I opened my door to one group who were choreographed. The little bags gave way to pillow cases and the patter of little feet on the porch to track shoes. It was like a greed Olympics. Cars and buses would bring in kids from all over the city and dump them into plats. Olders dominated the night. Some of them had mustaches that tickled their masks.

In the '60s, the critics did a number on Halloween, as did sickies who put razor blades in apples and drugs in the candy, and Halloween fell out of its primetime spot and into daytime programming. It lost a lot of its audience and those who wanted to roam the darkness were at the mercy of parental discretion. Charlie's Angels couldn't have protected the little people. (The bionic dog? Maybe.)

Holidays are a ratings game. Few of them have the clout to name their own day. Many have been delegated to Mondays where they compete with Monday Night football. The cancellation of Halloween should never have happened. We, as a people, should have been so outraged that a small band of people could take away an imaginative fun day for children that we would have fought to keep it.

I, for one . . . apologize.

German wines present decision problems

By NATHAN CHROMAN

German wines are presenting a delightful problem these days. The vintages of 1971, '75 and '76 have been so extraordinary that wine drinkers are indecisive about which to favor.

Frankly, I would try all three, with an eye towards enjoying the taste subtleties that separate one great vintage from another. What a rare experience it is to have three glorious vintages to heighten German wine tasting and provide the unique pleasures not found in off years!

It's too early to evaluate the 1977 vintage, currently believed to be similar to 1970. Ten million hectoliters is anticipated. (A hectoliter is the equivalent of 26 U.S. gallons.) By contrast, the super-great vintage of '76 produced 8 million hectoliters.

A more serious problem — Americans have not resolved what to eat with German wines. Most are unwilling to drink the flowery fruitiness of fine German bottles with traditional American fare of beef and sea food dishes. Most agree that a great German sweet wine is hardly a fit companion for fast foods like hamburgers and hot dogs. Blue Nune claims to the contrary.

Bernhard Breuer, founder of the German wine academy and managing director of his family's export company Scholl and Hillebrand, suggests that there are now dry wines that would be proper mates for the same American dishes enjoyed with a French white Burgundy or California Chardonnay. He claims that as his wines — particularly in the Kabinett Spaetlese and Auslese category — begin to lose some of their fruity character, they also part with sweetness, giving the distinct taste impression of a dry table wine. Therefore, with the passage of time, fine German bottles, including many '71s, are perfect candidates for conventional American dinner fare.

The others would do well too, but keep in mind the sweeter they start out, the longer they will need to dry out. California and French white wine lovers might give this system a try, beginning first with the light supper dishes at the Movius' tasting.

The tasting compared the vintages of 1975 and '76 along with '71. While I was favorably impressed with the excellence of the '75, it was the '76 that again captured my fancy.

Perhaps it is the fatness and depth of flavor that is so captivating.

Carter says energy bill will determine next trip

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, meeting today with Foreign Minister Saud al Faisal of Saudi Arabia, raised anew the threat of canceling his four-continent trip next month if Congress fails to send him an energy bill.

"I look forward to being in Saudi Arabia if we get an energy bill," the President told the Saudi prince in the Oval Office.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

While Congress continued work on the energy legislation, Carter and Saud planned to talk about oil and the prospects for a reconvened Middle East peace conference in Geneva.

The President said Saud represented "one of the nations that has been extremely helpful to us in many areas of the world in the past nine or 10 months since I've been in office."

Carter's public schedule for today also called for him to sign legislation toughening penalties for doctors and others who defraud the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

By raising the possibility of not making the trip to Latin America, Africa, Asia and Europe, scheduled to begin four weeks from today, Carter put additional pressure on Congress to finish its deliberations on the energy program. He planned to make a refueling stop in Saudi Arabia during the journey.

'In a meeting last week with congressional leaders, Carter left little doubt that he would be willing to call off the trip if Congress was still debating the energy legislation. At a similar meeting earlier today, however, he did not mention such a possibility.

House Democratic Whip John Brademas suggested that final approval of the legislation might be "a few weeks" away.

In his meeting with Saud, Carter was looking for ways to hold down oil prices and get the stalled Middle East peace talks moving again.

However, Saud has offered discouraging prospects on the cost of imported oil and has said he has no new ideas on the central issue of Palestinian representation at the Middle East talks.

Although oil prices and the Middle East political situation were likely to be the major points of discussion in the session with the Saudi Arabian prince, Carter and Saud also were likely to talk about the proposed sale of 60 F15 supersonic jet fighters to Saudi Arabia.

Proponents of the sale argue it would help cement ties between the United States and Saudi Arabia, whose economic aid to its Arab neighbors makes it one of the most influential nations in the Middle East. Critics say it violates the President's policy of holding down arms sales.

On the Middle East situation, Saud said on Sunday that he had "no new suggestions" for Carter on the issue of Palestine Liberation Organization representation at Geneva.

"I don't think it possible to reconvene the Geneva conference to tackle the Palestinian problem without the presence of the PLO," the prince said on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

During the interview, Saud also made it clear he favors an increase in the price of oil. Oil prices will be debated in December when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets in Caracas, Venezuela.

The Carter administration has vehemently opposed any increase in the world price of oil, but Carter wants to raise the price paid for petroleum products in the United States by new taxation, saying the higher prices would encourage conservation.

The Medicare and Medicaid bill now before the President was passed 402-5 by the House and by a voice vote in the Senate.

The bill stiffens penalties in cases where physicians or nursing homes are convicted of defrauding either of the health programs or where members of the medical profession solicit kickbacks or bribes to gain more business.

State Fair sets records

DALLAS (AP) — Attendance at this year's Texas State Fair set a new record as 3,178,455 persons visited the 92nd edition of the fair.

The previous record, according to fair officials, was 3,176,028, set in 1975.

On Sunday, the last day of the fair, 248,197 visitors swarmed through the fairgrounds.

The record one-day attendance came in 1971 when 355,000 persons visited the fair.

IPAA president says consumers see Carter's plan for 'what it is'

By MAX B. SKELTON

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America says President Carter is wrong in blaming oil companies for his energy program's troubles in the Senate.

"The problem the President has run into is a coalition of consumers who are seeing his program for what it is, a massive tax on the consuming public," A.V. Jones Jr., Albany, Texas, said Tuesday.

"We wish we had the type of lobbying power that has been attributed to the industry but it simply is not there."

In a speech made as he prepared to end his two-year term as head of the 5,000-member trade group, Jones also rejected Carter's charge of potential war profiteering by oil companies during the energy crisis.

"In his zeal to gain what I think is a very ill-conceived energy plan, I think Carter has engaged in what I call political profiteering in its lowest form," Jones said.

"He is trying to play one region of this country against another, one economic strata of the country against another for political gain."

Jack Allen, Perryton, Texas, was elected to succeed Jones and also rejected the Carter charges.

"In all my years as an oilman, I have never delt with a war profiteer nor a rip-off," Allen said. "The truest supporter of the private enterprise system is the independent producer of oil and gas."

Jones said a compromise energy package acceptable to industry could have been put together.

"But Carter seems to have taken a tough position set in concrete, and a lot of blood has been shed," he said.

Jones said Carter campaigned on a theme of "Trust me" but that people no longer trust him because he has switched positions on so many issues.

"He basically was elected on the decontrol issue but has made a political assessment and changed his mind," he said. "It looks like the man does lie."

Carter's war profiteering charge was made after the Senate approved a plan to decontrol new gas prices, 50-46. The House earlier had backed the Carter program by rejecting decontol by a 28-vote margin.

"Carter's effort for political gain is something he will have to answer for and he may have to answer very soon because the program is in trouble and the man's political future is in trouble," Jones said.

Jones and Allen both said they believe the industry is making progress is convincing the public oil and gas prices should be returned to the marketplace.

"We have a long way to go in getting the consumer to walk arm in arm with the oilman in telling Congress we want this man to get more money for his product," Jones saidd.

"But the consumer understands that if his income is taxed away from him and he is not given anything in return he is going to be in very bad shape."

Wildcat, discovery, field tests reported

A new Pennsylvanian gas production area has been opened in Tom Green County, while a wildcat site was staked in Schleicher and Crockett and Coke fields drew stepout sites.

Falls Petroleum Co. of Wichita Falls completed No. 1-A Walter McGregor, Pennsylvanian pay opener in the Ju-Jan-Jac field of Tom Green, for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 1.180 million cubic feet of gas per day.

It finaled through perforations at 6,393-6,403 feet. Gas-liquid ratio is 65,000-1, and gravity of the condensate, 49.6 degrees. The pay section had been fractured with 10,000 gallons and 18,500 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 6,890 feet, it topped the Canyon at 6,144 feet, and the Strawn line at 6,740 feet, under ground elevation of 2,297.9 feet. It has 412-inch casing set on bottom, and is plugged back to 6,450 feet.

Location is 1,985 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 6, block 21, H&TC survey.

SCHLEICHER PROSPECTOR

Cadasco, Inc., Fort Worth, plans No. 2 Enochs, a 7,400-foot wildcat in Schleicher County, one location northwest of the firm's No. 1 Enochs, a scheduled wildcat, seven miles west of Eldorado.

Economic sanctions asked against countries promoting terrorism

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Increasing acts of terrorism around the world Monday prompted a new plea for the United States to impose economic sanctions against those countries that harbor and promote terrorist activities such as airline hijacking.

Calling terrorism an "ongoing and continuous war," Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.) sponsored legislation Monday that would identify and impose tough economic sanctions on any country that harbored or promoted terrorist groups and their activities.

As part of his proposal, Ribicoff said the President would draw up a list of countries that would be classified for Americans as dangerous to travel or live in. Once on the list, the countries would become subject to the suspension of all commercial air service to the U.S. Other sanctions would include restrictions on export licenses for certain armaments as well as a ban on the sale or transfer of any nuclear facilities, materials or technology.

"No one is safe today," Ribicoff said. "There isn't a person in any country that is safe from terrorism." Ribicoff, who has been working on his plan for a year, said that between 1968 and 1975 there were 913 international terrorist incidents that affected U.S. citizens.

He cited a Central Intelligence Agency report that said there was a 79 percent chance for terrorists to escape punishment and death as a result of their violent acts, and a 100 percent possibility for them to receive major publicity. Ribicoff also disclosed that a Library of Congress study, done at his request, identified the Soviet Union, China, North Korea, Cuba, Libya, Algeria, Syria, Yemen, Iraq, Lebanon, Tanzania, the Congo and Zaire, as countries that aid and abet terrorism and terrorist groups.

The lawmaker said that Libya and Algeria were two countries that are key havens for terrorists today. Moreover, he cited Libya as the No. 1 country in the world for the training of terrorists.

Ribicoff's proposal came in the wake of a terrorist act in which passengers of a hijacked Lufthansa jet were freed after a West German commando raid.

As part of his proposal, Ribicoff would also require that the President rank the security at airports, ports and other public facilities around the world. If these facilities were found to be lax, they could be considered dangerous for use by Americans. There would be no economic sanctions against countries involved in these instances, except for bad publicity.

As examples of lax security, Ribicoff cited Spain as being totally lax in its airport security and France as being lax in security for its domestic flights. The lawmaker also called security in both Rome and Athens inefficient and inconsistent.

The Ribicoff bill would require charter flights to meet the same security standards that presently must be met by commercial aircraft flying out of or into the United States. Up to this time, charter flights have not had to undergo the same scrutiny of their security.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Assns. had earlier called for a work stoppage on Oct. 25, but postponed that action after meeting last Friday with U.N. Secretary-Gen. Kurt Waldheim to discuss the problem of air piracy. The U.N. General Assembly is expected to take up the issue of hijacking soon, possibly the middle of this week.

Apples part of Halloween for centuries

NEW YORK (AP) — For centuries apples have been associated with Halloween celebrations.

"Maybe it's because apples ripened at Halloween time, and were sacred to the early Druids," says Sally Hopkins. "They also figured in the Roman equivalent of Halloween, a festival honoring Pomona, the goddess of fruits."

The Halloween game of bobbing for apples or biting at apples suspended by a string originated generations ago in Ireland, Scotland and parts of England, according to Miss Hopkins. Sometimes a riskier variation was played by fixing an apple and a lighted candle at opposite ends of a suspended stick. The stick was rotated and the object was to bite the apple without getting burned by the candle.

Hijackers' nationalities unknown

By ROGER MANN
Special to The Washington Post

MOGADISHU, Somalia — The four terrorists who hijacked the Lufthansa jetliner last week remain officially unidentified but foreign diplomatic sources here disclosed that three of them possessed Iranian passports while the fourth was traveling on a Dutch passport.

It was not revealed, however, whether these travel documents were forged or stolen and the Somali government continued to maintain strict secrecy surrounding their investigation, not permitting anyone to visit the sole surviving suspect.

The survivor, identified as Shahnaz Gholam, 22, is kept under a heavy guard at a Mogadishu hospital with slight gunshot wounds in her shoulder and leg.

She was arrested while shouting in Arabic to bystanders following the spectacular West German commando raid last week.

During the five-day hijacking odyssey, the four hijackers were heard to communicate in Arabic and in broken English. Since neither Iranians nor Dutch normally speak Arabic, some diplomats here were skeptical about the authenticity of the passports.

A well-informed Arab diplomat here said he knew the passports were genuine and that none of the hijackers was Arab. A Chinese doctor who saw the bodies reportedly suggested the three slain terrorists were all rather fair colored, looking more European than Arab. Some sources suggested that the surviving girl was a Palestinian.

Some Arab sources here suggested the terrorists may have been associated with the extreme Palestinian group, the so-called Popular Organization, led by Wadir Haddad. Haddad dropped out of sight after he was expelled two years ago from the leadership of another radical Palestinian group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Although the front is regarded as one of the most radical of the Palestinian gorups, Haddad's expulsion from its leadership was reported to have been based on charges that he had been too radical.

The general feeling here is that the hijackers were part of an international terrorist network that embraces offshoots of the West German Baader-Meinhof group, the Japanese Red Army and allies of Carlos, the Venezuelan terrorist operative.

According to the passports, the dead hijackers were Johannes Gerdus, a Dutch citizen, Reza Abassy and Soraya Ansary, both Iranian nationals.

Continuing partnership aid to solving problems

HOUSTON (AP) — Great Britain's Prince Charles says a continuing partnership between his country and the United States can aid in solving the world's energy problems.

Such a solution, the prince told a formal dinner here Monday night, "can make it possible for you and me to survive a little longer."

The heir apparent to the British throne flew today to San Antonio where he was to visit the Alamo on his last day in Texas.

Earlier Monday, Prince Charles piloted a space shuttle simulator at the Johnson Space Center with astronauts Fred Haise and Gordon Fullerton looking on. Haise and Fullerton will pilot a real shuttle next Wednesday in a flight at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

The prince said the simulated flight was "very, very nice." Haise said the royal pilot "flew very well."

Dr. Chris Craft, the director of the space center, said Prince Charles had apparently been keeping up with advances in space exploration.

"The prince showed a great deal of interest in our projects and obviously was greatly interested in what we have done to date," Craft said. "He showed a good technical knowledge of our projects."

The visitor's tour of the space center was conducted by astronaut John Young.

At the formal dinner hosted by Houston Mayor Fred Hofheinz, the prince said, "Our two countries have had a long partership, through wars and other problems. And together we can solve the future problems."

England may be able to supply its own oil needs by 1980 if the U.S aids in the development of offshore wells in the North Sea, according to the prince.

The prince was presented a pair of silver-plated spurs at the dinner.

In a lighter tone during the dinner, the prince said he told an American friend during his visit, "I would like to make a sporting tour of America."

Going to class can be fun, profitable

MIAMI (AP) — Pupils who play hooky from two local schools may miss out on Frisbees, hamburgers, T-shirts and yo-yos as well as readin', writin' and 'rithmetic.

Children and teachers at Brownsville Junior High and Douglas Elementary schools in Dade County are being offered gifts in an effort to curtail sagging attendence. The prizes for the teachers include gasoline, record albums and dinners.

The two schools have the worst truancy and teacher absenteeism rates in the school system, and that is costing the schools state funds.

The state pays $824 annually for every student enrolled, but only if the student is in school during an annual census count. That count was taken earlier this month, and gave Brownsville and Douglas the poor records.

Brownsville averaged 13 per cent absenteeism last year and Douglas 8 per cent. But both schools reported improvement this year after school officials began putting pressure on parents to send their children to school.

School officials hope their campaign will help pupils even if it doesn't solve the money problem.

The gifts, called "attendance incentives" are being donated by local businesses.

Brownsville principal Walter Oden says the program won't eliminate the problem.

"With some kids, nothing is going to help them," Oden said. "They'll still be out on the street no matter what we do. But this is something we haven't tried before. If it works for five kids, it has been a help."

Sugar import quotas considered

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is considering a package of new duties and restrictive import quotas on foreign sugar to bring slumping domestic sugar prices up to the level set by Congress in the 1977 farm bill.

The action, if taken, could add several cents a pound to raw sugar prices — a 35 per cent increase — and eventually could mean that American consumers would have to pay more.

Administration officials said Monday that they had agreed to speed up their timetable for dealing with the sugar situation after a showdown with Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.) last week.

A threat by Dole last Wednesday to push a tough, mandatory quota through the Senate spurred a frenetic round of compromise negotiations. An aide to the Kansas Republican said the threat to bring the matter to the Senate floor had been withdrawn on Thursday after the administration "capitulated" and promised to act by Nov. 8.

Raw cane sugar traded in New York City Friday for slightly over 10 cents a pound. The 1977 farm bill, which President Carter signed into law last month, established a minimum domestic price of 13 1-2 cents a pound.

Administration officials said it appeared that sharply increased tariffs, and possibly tightened import quotas, will be required to get prices up to that level.

Chief economist Howard Hjort of the Department of Agriculture said the action "has the potential to give windfall profits" to refiners, importers and big suger users who have built up large stocks in expectation of higher prices.

"We have to implement the farm bill," Hjort said. "It's the law."

The resolution of the sugar controversy will have broad impact at home and abroad. At present about 5 million tons of foreign sugar are imported a year, considerably less than the existing import quota of 7 million tons.

Any sharp reduction in the quota would be felt in dozens of sugar-exporting countries, including many developing nations that depend heavily on sugar income. It could also be taken as a setback for President Carter's efforts to fight off various protectionist currents now manifesting themselves in such sectors of the economy as shoes, television sets and steel.

Ironically, however, jobs at home could also be lost if foreign sugar imports were cut too sharply, because a number of domestic refineries handle only imported sugar.

On Sept. 15 President Carter announced a temporary income-subsidy program of relief to farmers who grow cane and sugar beets. It provided for direct government payments to these farmers, to make up the difference between the 13 1-2 cents a pound minimum and the money they actually received.

That has the advantage of not affecting domestic sugar prices while compensating farmers, administration officials say. Agriculture Department officials, describing that measure as temporary, said they plan to have a long-term program for boosting sugar prices by the end of the year.

Pressure to get prices up has been coming not only from farmers and cane growers, but also from speculators and from representatives of the powerful corn sweetener industry, a new agricultural glamor business.

Corn refiners, which include some of the fastest growing and most aggressive companeis in U.S. agriculture, have invested hundreds of millions of dollars in new wet milling plants that manufacture a sweetener that competes against sugar in soft drinks, ice cream, jelly and jam.

Soft-drink manufacturers have been among the biggest sugar users in the country, and they have also been turning to corn sweeteners. When sugar prices are low, as they now are, the corn-sweetener makers have to cut prices to levels at or near what it takes to amortize their expensive new plants.

Two thefts net roughly $1,423

Two thefts of approximately $1,423 in total estimated cash and merchandise were reported Monday afternoon to the Midland Police Department.

According to police, sometime between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Monday, $823 in cash was removed from a desk drawer at Growth Energy Inc. at 3201 W. Wall St., No. 201.

Approximately $600 in carpet was removed from a Clyde Green Carpet warehouse at 412 Andrews Highway sometime between Sept. 8 and Oct. 15, Clyde Green told police. Missing are approximately 81 yards of carpet, Green reported.

Pickett to get masonic degree

State District Judge Perry D. Pickett of Midland has been elected to receive the 33rd degree in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry.

He also will receive the designation of inspector general honorary.

The group's Supreme Council approved Pickett for the honors recently in Washington, D.C.

Soccer film showing slated

The Midland Soccer Association and the Parks and Recreation Department will show a film from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday on soccer rules and playing procedures.

All persons interested in becoming a coach, referee or participant in soccer are invited to attend the film showing in the Parks and Recreation Department Gym, 300 Baldwin St.

One-half of the film will be shown on each of the two nights

Money given to establish fund

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Mr. and Mrs. George T. Abell of Midland have donated $25,000 to Colorado State University to establish a scholarship fund in the College of Engineering.

Abell, a retired oilman, was graduated from the university in 1923 with B.S. degrees in civil, mechanical and irrigation engineering. He and his wife, Gladys, donate through the Abell-Hanger Foundation of Midland.

The scholarship, in the name of George T. Abell, was specified to benefit deserving and needy students majoring in engineering.

State wants to change name of high mountain

By OWEN ULLMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Ohio congressman says Alaska is trying to deal a low blow to one of his state's favorite sons, stripping William McKinley's name from North America's highest peak.

But Alaskans maintain the mountain was Denali, The Great One, long before a wandering prospector had the temerity to attach the name of a flatlander politician, a name chosen partly in a fit of revenge.

The dispute involves the 20,320-foot Alaska mountain which has borne McKinley's name for 81 years. Alaska wants its historic name restored.

Rep. Ralph S. Regula, R-Ohio, says it would be "an affront to the presidency and to the memory of William McKinley" to rename the mountain now.

Except for Ohio's 25-member congressional delegation, Regula says there is no organized opposition to the change. But he hopes to marshal support for his cause following today's Interior Department hearing on the proposal.

"Out of respect for a president, and a martyred president at that, this change ought not to be made," said Regula, who concedes he has never been to Alaska or seen the peak.

The Alaska Legislature petitioned the interior secretary in 1975 to approve the name change. Alaska's governor, several conservation groups and the National Park Service back the move.

Congress also is considering a bill to rename the 1.9-million acre Mt. McKinley National Park, where the peak is located, to Denali. The interior secretary can rename the mountain, but only Congress can rename a national park.

According to officials of the U.S. Board on Geographic Names, which is conducting the hearing, the mountain was called by the Indian name Denali for centuries. But in 1896, prospector William A. Dickey stuck the McKinley tag on the peak.

Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond said Dickey "fell in with a trio of prospectors who were rabid champions of free silver, and after listening to their arguments for many weary days, he retaliated by naming the mountain after the champion of the gold standard."

Hammond said Dickey also selected the name because the first news he heard upon leaving the wilderness was that McKinley had received the Republican nomination for president.

The name grew in status after McKinley won the election that fall, and his assassination in 1901 further popularized the name, even though McKinley never set foot in Alaska.

Interior Department officials say the department has received 6,000 letters and petition signatures on the issue, and 62 per cent favor the name change to Denali. The only opponents, other than those in Ohio, are several Alaska chambers of commerce and vacation firms which contend the name change could harm the tourist trade.

Congressman seeks more challenging job

By JANET STAIHAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania congressman says he is giving up his Capitol Hill career to return to a job in a steel mill, convinced that any guy next door can make a good legislator.

"I look at my colleagues, and some of them who have gone on to the Senate and probably someday will be considered presidential material — and I just don't see there's much difference between them and the people who are my neighbors or relatives back home," said Republican Gary A. Myers.

"I'm convinced that many white- and blue-collar people I come across in my daily life back home could serve as president," said the 40-year-old Butler, Pa., resident who plans to quit Congress when his second term expires in 1979.

Myers, a former steel plant foreman, said his political life hasn't left him with enough time for his family.

He didn't realize, he said, how much he would be away from his wife Elaine, 12-year-old daughter Michele and 10-year-old son Mark.

He spends up to 120 days a year in his western Pennsylvania district, leaving his family behind at their McLean, Va., home. And when he's in Washington, he works 80-hour weeks.

On top of that, he said, he usually brings home a briefcase full of paperwork.

His congressional career has placed other strains on his home life.

Myers complained that when he leaves home in the morning, he doesn't know if a prolonged debate or committee meeting will delay his return that evening.

"I don't want to wake up suddenly a couple of years from now, see my kids on the high school graduation stage and realize I didn't even know them at all," he said.

His public life has cut into the time he spends with his wife, Myers said. They don't go out as much and Mrs. Myers finds herself alone at home more often than before, he said.

Before his election, he was a foreman at the Armco steel plant in Butler. His old job has been filled by someone else, he said, and he doesn't know what he'll be doing when he returns.

Whatever it is, he faces a hefty salary cut, to less than half the $57,500 he makes as a congressman.

Myers ignored tips from political pros to slowly work his way up the ranks — from local elective office, to the state legislature, to the Congress.

"You just don't have to wait, or go through training," said Myers, pointing to his own career. He ran for the House in 1972, lost, but tried again and won a seat for 1975.

Myers also vows never to seek another political position, comparing his two terms in Congress to a tour of military duty. "Once it's over, it's time to move on," he said.

Old people pessimistic

Most old people in the United States seem to hold negative views toward aging, themselves—and life in general. They share these negative views with the young, although it appears that old people are no more or less gloomy about aging than are young people, according to Mrs. Vivian Blair, family life education specialist-aging, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

WHEREAS, on the 9th day of November, 1976, in Cause No. T-3136 in the District Court of Midland County, Texas, wherein Midland Independent School District, City of Midland, Texas, were Plaintiffs, Impleaded Party Defendants, and Intervenors, and recovered judgment against Valerio Guerrero, Defendant, for taxes, penalty, interest and cost against the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, on the 11th day of October, 1977, by virtue of said judgment and the mandates thereof the Clerk of the above mentioned District Court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale commanding me as Sheriff of said county to seize, levy upon, and sell in the manner and form as required by law, the hereinafter described property;

WHEREAS, by virtue of said judgment and said Order of Sale and the mandates thereof, I did on the 11th day of October, 1977, seize and levy upon as the property of the above defendant the following described property, situated in Midland County, Texas, to-wit:

W 50' of Lot 2, Block 21, Haley Heights Addition, Midland, Midland County, Texas E ½ of Lots 3 & 4, Block 19, Original Town Addition, Midland, Midland County, Texas.

And I will, on the first Tuesday in the month of November, 1977, the same being the 1st day of said month, at 2 pm at the South entrance to the Midland City Courthouse to the highest registered bidder for cash; provided, however, that none of said property shall be sold to the owner of said property directly or indirectly or to anyone having an interest therein or to any party other than a taxing unit which is a party to this suit for less than the amount of the adjudged value of said property or the aggregate amount of judgments against said property in said suit, whichever is lower, subject also to the right of the Defendant to redeem same in the time and manner provided by law and subject also to the right of the defendant to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole.

Said sale is to be made by me to satisfy the judgment rendered in the above styled and numbered cause, together with interest, penalties, and cost of suit; and the proceeds of said sale are to be applied to the satisfaction thereof, and the remainder, if any, to be applied as the law directs.
