Unemployment falls to record low 2.3 percent

By Mella McEwen
mmcewen@mrt.com

Midland's unemployment reached a record low in April, according to information released Friday by the Texas Workforce Commission.

The commission said the Midland metropolitan statistical area had an unemployment rate of 2.3 percent, down from 2.7 percent in March and 3 percent last April. The previous low was 2.4 percent in April 2008, according to commission records dating back to 2000. Midland continued to record the lowest unemployment in the state.

Midland's March rate was the lowest nationally. The Tall City has reported the nation's lowest or tied for lowest unemployment three of the last four months and will likely report the lowest again when the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics releases its April figures later this month.

Odessa joined Midland with a sub-3 percent unemployment rate, reporting a 2.9 percent rate, down from 3.3 percent in March and 3.7 percent a year ago.

Statewide, the unemployment rate fell to 5.2 percent from 5.5 percent in March and 6.4 percent last April and is the lowest rate since September 2008.

Texas employers added 64,100 jobs for a total of 348,000 seasonally adjusted nonfarm jobs added over the last 12 months.

While Midland had the lowest unemployment, the highest was in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission at 8.6 percent. None of the state's MSAs reported double-digit unemployment in April.

Police: Shooting victim dies; suspect still at large

From staff reports

A Midland man died late Thursday night from a gunshot wound he suffered in a shooting that morning.

Alfred Lee Hemphill, 54, died from his injuries at about 10:30 p.m. in a Lubbock hospital.

Midland Police and Fire departments found Hemphill inside his residence in the 500 block of West Cowden Avenue with a gunshot wound to the head. Public safety officials responded to a shots-fired call at 8:39 a.m., according to an MPD report. Public information officer Sara Higgins said MPD is investigating the shooting as a homicide and the suspect, who is still at large, will be charged with murder.

Police continued its search for the suspect Friday. He was described as a 5-foot-11 black male who weighs about 175 pounds. He was said to be wearing a gray hoodie and light gray pants at the time of the incident.

Witnesses said the suspect was dropped off at the scene by the driver of a black car with a rear spoiler, then fled the scene on foot.

Thursday's incident was the second non-self-inflicted shooting-related death in Midland this year.

A Midland firefighter died April 25 at Midland Memorial Hospital after a five-hour-long armed standoff and apparent murder-suicide.

Midland police and firefighters found Henry "Trey" Rodriquez III, 35, with life-threatening gunshot wounds when they arrived at a residence in the 2200 block of South Baird Street at about 2:33 p.m. He was transported to MMH, where he died, according to a previous Reporter-Telegram article.

Permian Basin leads country in horizontal drilling

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — New numbers show the Permian Basin continues to lead the country's boom in horizontal drilling.

Citing data by Baker-Hughes, the U.S. Energy Information Administration said Thursday the number of horizontal oil rigs in the Permian Basin's West Texas and southeastern New Mexico fields rose by 63 rigs in the first five months of the year, representing 50 percent of the total increase in the United States.

Of those rigs, 80 percent were in the West Texas counties of Reeves, Ward, Martin and Midland, as well as New Mexico's Eddy County.

During the first quarter of 2014, the increase in horizontal rigs in the Permian Basin was more than four times the combined increase in South Texas's Eagle Ford Shale and the Williston Basin in North Dakota and Montana.

State Sen. Dan Patrick, right, debates with Lt. Governor David Dewhurst at WFAA studio in Dallas on May 7.

Sen. Patrick acknowledges depression treatment in '80s

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Newly leaked court documents showing that Republican state Sen. Dan Patrick, the favorite to become Texas' next lieutenant governor, was hospitalized for depression in the 1980s further escalated an already rancorous primary runoff for the powerful state office Friday.

Early voting begins Monday, and the disclosure of Patrick's treatment drew rebuke from several Republican senators who had so far stayed out of the acrimonious race between their colleague and Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, who's fighting to hang onto his job of 12 years.

Patrick in a statement acknowledged voluntarily admitting himself but said he hasn't needed additional treatment or medication in three decades. The Houston radio show host accused Dewhurst of stooping "to a new low" with less than two weeks before the May 27 runoff.

"Now comes David Dewhurst, caked in mud, and oozing sleaze, with his latest personal attack," Patrick spokesman Allen Blakemore said in a statement.

The court documents were leaked by Land Commissioner Jerry Patterson, who finished last in a four-way March primary race for lieutenant governor. He has since endorsed Dewhurst and waged a scorched-earth campaign against Patrick, suggesting at one point that Patrick dodged the draft in the 1970s. Patrick admonished the attack and said he was drafted but deemed medically ineligible.

Patterson said he believes voters should know about the hospitalization before deciding who should occupy one of the most influential positions in Texas government.

The Dewhurst campaign released a statement saying Patterson released the records over his objections, adding "My heart goes out to Dan and his family for what they've endured while coping with his condition."

Texas is on the verge of its biggest political shake-up in two decades, with every statewide office up for grabs and Gov. Rick Perry leaving office after 14 years. Dewhurst, who was first elected in 2002, is the only incumbent who could survive, but he must overcome finishing 13 points behind Patrick in the primary.

The campaigns have traded slings over financial debts and accusations of lies. A hostile debate last week largely devolved into both candidates talking over each other.

Patrick's stint at a now-shuttered Houston psychiatric hospital was revealed in a court transcript from a lawsuit that he brought against a Houston newspaper. Blakemore said Patrick's medical past was no secret and that he had discussed it on his radio show for years.

Republican Jane Nelson, who chairs the Senate's Health and Human Services Committee, broke her silence in the race and called the disclosure an invasion of medical privacy and said it hit "a new low in Texas politics."

U.S. Sen. Ted Cruz said during a visit in Austin that he was staying out of the race but urged candidates to steer clear of personal attacks.

"I would encourage every candidate in that race and every other race to stay positive," Cruz said.

The winner faces Democratic state Sen. Leticia Van De Putte in November.

Man gets death for stabbing deaths of woman, child

A North Texas jury returned a death sentence for a man convicted of fatally stabbing his ex-girlfriend and her 8-year-old son before fleeing to Oklahoma.

The Tarrant County jury deliberated about seven hours before condemning Cedric Allen Ricks for killing 30-year-old Roxann Sanchez and her son Anthony Figueroa at their Bedford apartment on May 1, 2013.

Sanchez's 12-year-old son, Marcus Figueroa, also was stabbed but survived his wounds.

The same jury deliberated less than an hour May 8 before finding the 39-year-old medical assistant guilty of capital murder.

The killings happened as Ricks was free on bond from an assault charge stemming from allegations that he choked Sanchez the previous November.

EL PASO

Bodyguard of cartel boss pleads guilty to murder

The bodyguard of a now-dead Mexican drug cartel boss pleaded guilty Friday in a West Texas federal court to murder and drug trafficking charges.

The U.S. Attorney's Office said Rigoberto Ruiz-Alatorre entered the plea on the third day of his trial in El Paso.

Ruiz-Alatorre admitted to murdering Fermin Rodriguez-Gonzalez in Albuquerque, New Mexico, in July 2006, a former associate who had decided to start his own trafficking enterprise. Prosecutors say Ruiz-Alatorre feared that Rodriguez-Gonzalez, a resident of Roswell, New Mexico, would be caught and start cooperating with authorities.

During opening statements, prosecutor John Johnston said they had evidence and witnesses to convince the jury that Ruiz-Alatorre had shot Rodriguez-Gonzalez in the head.

Johnston also said Ruiz-Alatorre had been paid $50,000 to provide security for Gabino "El Ingeniero" Salas-Valenciano, a man believed to have run the Sinaloa drug cartel's operations across the border from El Paso County until Mexican authorities killed him last year.

A statement from the U.S. Attorney's Office says Ruiz-Alatorre faces up to 28 years in federal prison. A call to his attorney's office was not returned.

The defendant was arrested Feb. 16, 2012, when Drug Enforcement Administration agents learned he had gone to El Paso for a drug deal.

Until Friday, Ruiz-Alatorre had maintained his innocence, saying he did not know of Salas-Valenciano's drug trafficking activities.

Ruiz-Alatorre is to remain under federal custody until his sentencing hearing is scheduled for Sept. 3.

'Affluenza' wreck victim wants doctor's testimony

The psychologist who said a teenage drunken driver who killed four people suffered from "affluenza" shouldn't have to testify again at a crash victim's behest, the teen's attorneys argued Friday.

Judge R. H. Wallace Jr. of Fort Worth is expected to issue a ruling early next week on a request from Ethan Couch's attorneys to prohibit psychologist Dick Miller from testifying.

Lawyers for the family of Lucas McConnell, a boy injured in last year's crash, are suing the Couch family and want Miller to explain his theory that Couch's parents coddled him into a sense of irresponsibility — a condition Miller called "affluenza." That term became the subject of national outrage after a juvenile court judge gave Couch probation for the crash.

Michael Yanof, an attorney for the Couch family, said Miller should be barred from testifying because he remains a consultant protected by attorney-client privilege, as well as a doctor whose medical records should remain sealed under state law. Yanof said the case also raised issues about the privacy of juvenile defendants.

"It is about whether this court is willing to set precedent that is unprecedented in the state of Texas," Yanof said.

Todd Clement, an attorney for McConnell, countered that Miller's testimony was already public, through media coverage of Couch's case and interviews Miller gave afterward.

"Once the genie's out of the bottle, you can't put it back in," Clement said.

Clement said after the hearing that Miller's testimony would be "important, but not critical" to the McConnell family's case for damages. The family has said it does not want to settle with Couch's family as most other victims of the crash have.

The McConnells' attorneys want to get the sworn testimony of Couch, now 17, who is getting treatment in a state-run lockdown rehabilitation facility. They agreed to delay their request Friday after Couch's attorneys said the facility would almost certainly not allow Couch to undergo a deposition.

Scott Brown, another of Couch's lawyers, said in court that he thought Couch would be in the facility for at least six months and as long as a year. Afterward, he said the estimate was based solely on his experience with other clients.

Watergate conspirator Jeb Stuart Magruder dies

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Jeb Stuart Magruder, a Watergate conspirator-turned-minister who claimed in later years to have heard President Richard Nixon order the infamous break-in, has died. He was 79.

Magruder died May 11 in Danbury, Connecticut, Hull Funeral Service director Jeff Hull said Friday.

Magruder, a businessman when he began working for the Republican president, later became a minister, serving in California, Ohio and Kentucky.

He spent seven months in prison for lying about the involvement of Nixon's re-election committee in the 1972 break-in at Washington's Watergate complex, which eventually led to the president's resignation.

In a 2008 interview, Magruder told The Associated Press he was at peace with his place in history. The interview came after he pleaded guilty to reckless operation of a motor vehicle following a 2007 car crash.

"I don't worry about Watergate; I don't worry about news articles," Magruder said. "I go to the court, I'm going to be in the paper — I know that."

Magruder, who moved to suburban Columbus in 2003, served as Nixon's deputy campaign director, an aide to Nixon Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman and deputy communications director at the White House.

Magruder said in 2003 that he was meeting with John Mitchell, the former attorney general running the Nixon re-election campaign, when he heard the president tell Mitchell to go ahead with the plan to break into the Democratic Party headquarters at the Watergate office building.

Magruder previously had gone no further than saying that Mitchell approved the plan to get into the Democrats' office and bug the telephone of the party chairman, Larry O'Brien.

He made his claims in a PBS documentary and an Associated Press interview.

He said he met with Mitchell on March 30, 1972, and discussed a break-in plan by G. Gordon Liddy, a former FBI agent who was finance counsel at the re-election committee. Mitchell asked Magruder to call Haldeman to see "if this is really necessary."

Haldeman said it was, Magruder said, and then asked to speak to Mitchell. The two men talked, and then "the president gets on the line," Magruder said.

Magruder said he could hear Nixon tell Mitchell, "John, ... we need to get the information on Larry O'Brien, ... and the only way we can do that is through Liddy's plan. And you need to do that."

Historians dismiss the notion as unlikely, saying there was no evidence Nixon directly ordered the break-in.

Magruder stuck to his guns in the 2008 AP interview, saying historians had it wrong.

He became a born-again Christian after Watergate, an experience he described in his 1978 biography, "From Power to Peace."

"All the earthly supports I had ever known had given way, and when I saw how flimsy they were, I understood why they had never been able to make me happy," he wrote. "The missing ingredient in my life was Jesus Christ and a personal relationship with him."

Magruder, who was born in New York City on Nov. 5, 1934, held sales and management jobs at several companies, including paper company Crown Zellerbach and Jewel Food Stores. He also became active in Republican politics.

He received a master's degree in divinity from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1981, then worked at a Presbyterian church in California, First Community Church in suburban Columbus and First Presbyterian Church in Lexington, Kentucky.

Former MHS hoops star arrested on drug charges

From staff reports

Former Midland High basketball star Kirby Lemons was arrested Thursday on drug charges after being at the wrong place at the wrong time.

Lemons

Ramirez

Midland police stopped and questioned Lemons after he left the scene of a shooting Thursday near downtown Midland.

Officers determined he was not connected to the incident but arrested the 34-year-old on a state felony charge of possession of marijuana and third-degree felony charge of possession of a controlled substance after he fled on foot.

A $500 bond has been set for an additional misdemeanor charge of evading arrest. No bond had been set for the felony charges as of press time.

Sanjuana Ramirez, a 19-year-old Midland woman who was with Lemons at the time, was being held on a $30,000 bond Friday for the state felony charge of possession of marijuana and third-degree felony charge of possession of a controlled substance.

Midland police responded to a shooting Thursday morning in the 50 block of West Cowden Avenue.

After setting up a perimeter at Parker Avenue and Marienfeld Street, police observed a gray car leaving the area. Officers made contact with the occupants, Lemons and Ramirez, who said they were in the apartment complex during the shooting, according to their arrest affidavits.

While being escorted to police vehicles to preserve their testimony, Lemons fled eastbound on Nobles Avenue, jumping a fence into the backyard of a residence and crossing back over Marienfeld Street into an alley between Nobles and Cowden avenues.

"At this point, Lemons turned south and ran through the courtyard ... toward, literally, a dozen officers and detectives that were investigating the aggravated assault at the victim's residence," according to the arrest affidavit, which reveals Lemons was ultimately detained.

Police found a black duffle inside his gray car with about 3.6 pounds of marijuana in individual Ziploc baggies, 2.3 grams of cocaine cut into individual rocks, a scale and a razor blade, the affidavit states.

Lemons was part of Midland High's 1998 state championship basketball team. If convicted, he and Ramirez face up to 10 years in prison for each third-degree felony charge and two years in prison for each state felony charge.

MPD: Teen arrested for tampering with evidence

From staff reports

Lopez

A 17-year-old Midlander was arrested Thursday for allegedly hiding marijuana from police in a wad of chewing gum on the bottom of his shoe.

Dante Lopez was being held Friday on a $10,500 bond for a third-degree felony charge of tampering or fabricating physical evidence.

Lopez was a passenger in a vehicle stopped by Midland police at about 12:30 p.m. Thursday for leaving the Lee High School parking lot at a high rate of speed.

The officer smelled a strong marijuana odor from the vehicle, which had its windows down.

After spotting "marijuana crumbles" on Lopez's T-Shirt, the officer noticed a green substance falling off his shoe, which tested positive for illegal drug, according to the affidavit.

"The entire bottom of the shoe had marijuana stuck to it with chewing gum," the affidavit states. "Dante had apparently been chewing gum and chewed the marijuana in an effort to conceal and tamper with the evidence and stick it to the bottom of the shoe to conceal from police."

Lopez was arrested and also charged with a misdemeanor for possessing marijuana. If convicted, he faces up to 10 years in prison for the third-degree tampering charge.

Los Alamos container linked to nuke dump leak

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — A radiation leak at the government's troubled nuclear waste dump has been linked to a waste container shipped from Los Alamos National Laboratory, officials said Friday, raising questions about the safety of other barrels being stored on the lab's northern New Mexico campus and at a temporary site in West Texas.

Lab Director Charlie McMillan, in a memo Friday to lab employees, said Los Alamos "is fully cooperating" with state and federal officials and has taken extra precautions to ensure that similar waste drums at the lab and those sent to Waste Control Specialists in Texas "are in a safe and controlled configuration."

"Based on this," he wrote, "we do not believe there is any imminent threat to the safety of our employees, the public, or the environment at this time."

Watchdog Don Hancock, however, said that until more is known about the breach, "we can't have assurances."

In a statement, the U.S. Department of Energy said pictures from the latest entry into the half-mile deep Waste Isolation Pilot Project (WIPP) near Carlsbad in southeastern New Mexico confirm that a container from Los Alamos has a cracked lid and evidence of heat damage.

Officials last week zeroed in on the containers from Los Alamos, prompting officials to suspend shipments of waste from Los Alamos to the temporary site in West Texas.

Los Alamos is under orders to remove thousands of such barrels of toxic waste from outdoor storage on a mesa. The presence of the waste, and its potential dangers, came to light three summers ago as a massive wildfire lapped at the edge of lab property. The lab had been on target to have the last of the containers shipped to the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant by June 30 when the repository was shuttered by the leak Feb. 14 that contaminated 22 workers with low levels of radiation.

Last week, Department of Energy officials said the leak was likely caused by a chemical reaction in nuclear waste that was mixed with nitrate salt. Among the possibilities that officials have since confirmed are being studied: a switch in the kitty litter-type substance used to absorb moisture before the containers are sealed and shipped to the nuclear-waste dump.

"While many details remain unknown," McMillan said, "additional investigative work is being planned to pinpoint the cause of the breached drum, the radiological release, and whether other containers were involved in the release. Experts from DOE, WIPP, Los Alamos, and Savannah River National Laboratory are working together to establish the range of possibilities that may have caused this event."

The Waste Isolation Pilot Plant is the federal government's only permanent repository for low-level nuclear waste from Los Alamos National Laboratories and other federal facilities. The containers include things like gloves, tools and protective clothing worn by lab workers.

Nine days before the release, a truck hauling salt in the mine caught fire. But officials have said the fire was far from the waste-handling area and that the events were likely unrelated.

Initial investigations into both accidents have blamed them on a slow erosion of the safety culture at the 15-year-old, multibillion-dollar site.

Agency says firefighters unprepared for blast in West

Associated Press

WEST — Brian Renegar saw emergency crews fighting a blaze consuming his small Texas town's sprawling fertilizer plant. The former plant employee raced to the scene and warned the fire chief to get everyone out.

"(It's) gonna blow," Renegar, also a volunteer firefighter, told the chief as he drove by the scene in West. Minutes earlier, he urged another firefighter to evacuate to at least a half mile away.

The West fire chief issued no such order after hearing from another firefighter that the massive amounts of ammonium nitrate stored at the plant would likely not explode. But minutes later, it did — killing 15 people, including 12 responding to the fire, and leveling West Fertilizer Co. along with nearby homes and schools.

The narrative of those minutes leading up to the April 2013 explosion was included in a report released Thursday night by the Texas State Fire Marshal's Office that concluded firefighters weren't prepared for the dangers of the blaze. Renegar was among those who survived.

The report also concluded that firefighters weren't to blame and were victims of a "systemic deficiency in training and preparation" for a fire that was too big for them to fight.

"It's very hard because my husband walked out of the door for a fire call and never came back," Carmen Bridges, the widow of firefighter Morris Bridges, said after a town meeting where victims' relatives and neighbors were given the report. "And it could have been prevented."

The report also renewed calls for state and local action to better prepare first responders.

"The lack of adherence to nationally recognized consensus standards and safety practices for the fire department exposed firefighters to excessive risks and failed to remove them from a critically dangerous situation," the report said.

Investigators concluded that firefighters' water didn't cause the explosion, noting they were trying to stop a blaze "significantly beyond the extinguishment phase."

Even as some first-responders expressed misgivings about the size of the fire, the firefighters did not pull back, according to the report.

One of the West volunteer firefighters, Cody Dragoo is quoted in the report as telling another firefighter that the building had ammonium nitrate but "it could never get hot enough for it to go off." Dragoo died in the blast.

Emmanuel Mitchell, an assistant West fire chief who survived the blast, told investigators he remembered thinking firefighters "needed to go" but did not order a withdrawal. Renegar also warned West Fire Chief George Nors Sr. that an explosion could occur. Nors declined comment when reached by The Associated Press on Friday.

Original art of Wolverine auctioned

A high-end collector of comic art has bought at auction the original art for Wolverine's first comic-book appearance.

Dallas-based Heritage Auctions says the collector, who asked to remain anonymous, made the high bid of $657,250 Friday for the debut of the ferocious fighting mutant with a penchant for beer and cigars. Heritage spokesman Noah Fleisher says the bid was almost three times the expected sale price of $240,000 for the ink, graphite and blue pencil drawing.

Most of the after-tax proceeds will benefit the nonprofit Hero Initiative that helps comic book creators in times of financial need.

The artwork was drawn by Herb Trimpe 40 years ago for "The Incredible Hulk" No. 180 and was thought lost until a person to whom Trimpe gave it in 1983 contacted Heritage.

University of North Texas addressing budget bind

Regents at the University of North Texas System have approved spending $1.35 million to a consulting firm to address financial problems at the Denton-based school.

The school's governing board voted Thursday to spend the money with the firm Deloitte and Touche so the company can identify problems and then help fix them.

An investigation last month found the school, with a budget of about $520 million, overstated revenues by $23 million thanks to an accounting trick.

The investigation also showed millions may have been wrongly spent on employee benefits that may have to be returned to the state and that basic accounting practices weren't followed.

Judge halts state takeover of Beaumont schools

A state district judge has issued an order that temporarily blocks the state takeover of the troubled Beaumont public school district.

Judge Lora Livingston did not provide a reason Friday for granting the restraining order, which came at the request of Beaumont school board members.

The state last month announced it was taking over the nearly 21,000-student Southeast Texas district. It's been under fire for its finances and handling of services to disabled students. Two former school officials already have pleaded guilty to fraud charges.

Investigators look for arson in wildfire outbreak

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — A 57-year-old man was charged with arson Friday in one of at least 10 wildfires that erupted in Southern California this week, and investigators were working to determine whether other blazes in the unusually early and intense outbreak were ignited by something as ordinary as sparks from cars or something more sinister.

State fire officials said the first blaze that erupted between Tuesday and Thursday was caused by a spark from malfunctioning construction equipment. But it could take months to get to the bottom of the most damaging fires.

Alberto Serrato pleaded not guilty to arson in connection with one of the smaller fires — a 105-acre fire in suburban Oceanside that started Wednesday and is fully contained. Bail was set at $250,000.

Tanya Sierra, a spokeswoman for the San Diego County district attorney's office, said witnesses saw Serrato adding dead brush onto smoldering bushes, which flamed up. He has not been connected to any other fire, Sierra said.

Oceanside police Lt. Sean Marshand said Serrato is believed to have added fuel to the fire but not to have started it.

"Unfortunately we don't have the guy that we really want," he said.

Serrato was booked into jail Wednesday, according to the San Diego County Sheriff's Department website, but his arrest wasn't announced until Friday. Sierra didn't know if he had an attorney.

All together, the wildfires have raced through an estimated 20,000 acres about 30 miles north of San Diego, causing more than $20 million in damage. One burned body was found in an encampment of homeless people. At least eight houses and an 18-unit condominium complex were destroyed, and tens of thousands of people were warned to leave their homes.

Eight of the blazes popped up between late morning and sundown on Wednesday, raising suspicions that some had been set.

The region has become a tinder box in recent days because of conditions not normally seen until late summer — extremely dry weather, 50 mph Santa Ana winds and temperatures in the 90s. On Friday, though, cooler weather aided the 2,600 firefighters, and thousands of people began returning home.

Perry aides appear before grand jury

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Several top aides to Gov. Rick Perry appeared Friday before a grand jury investigating whether the governor abused the powers of his office with a 2013 veto.

Mike Morrissey, Perry's deputy chief of staff; Ken Armbrister, legislative director; Rich Parsons, a Perry spokesman; and Mary Anne Wiley, the governor's general counsel, declined comment on their way in and out of the grand jury room.

Friday was the first time Perry's staff has been seen entering the grand jury room at the Travis County courthouse in relation to the investigation. The panel is looking into whether Perry broke the law when he vowed to veto funding for the office of Travis County District Attorney Rosemary Lehmberg's anti-corruption unit if the Democrat didn't resign after a drunken driving arrest.

Lehmberg refused to resign and Perry vetoed $7.5 million. A political watchdog group then filed a complaint alleging that Perry tried to coerce Lehmberg to leave office.

The probe could be a problem for Perry, who is considering making another run at the White House in 2016.

Perry has said he never sought a deal with Lehmberg and his aides insist the governor was within his rights to exercise his line-item veto power the way he that did.

Grand jury proceedings are secret, and none of Perry's staff who went in the room would say if they were subpoenaed or came voluntarily. It was unclear if Wiley was a witness or providing legal counsel. She escorted each of the others out of the building at different times over the afternoon.

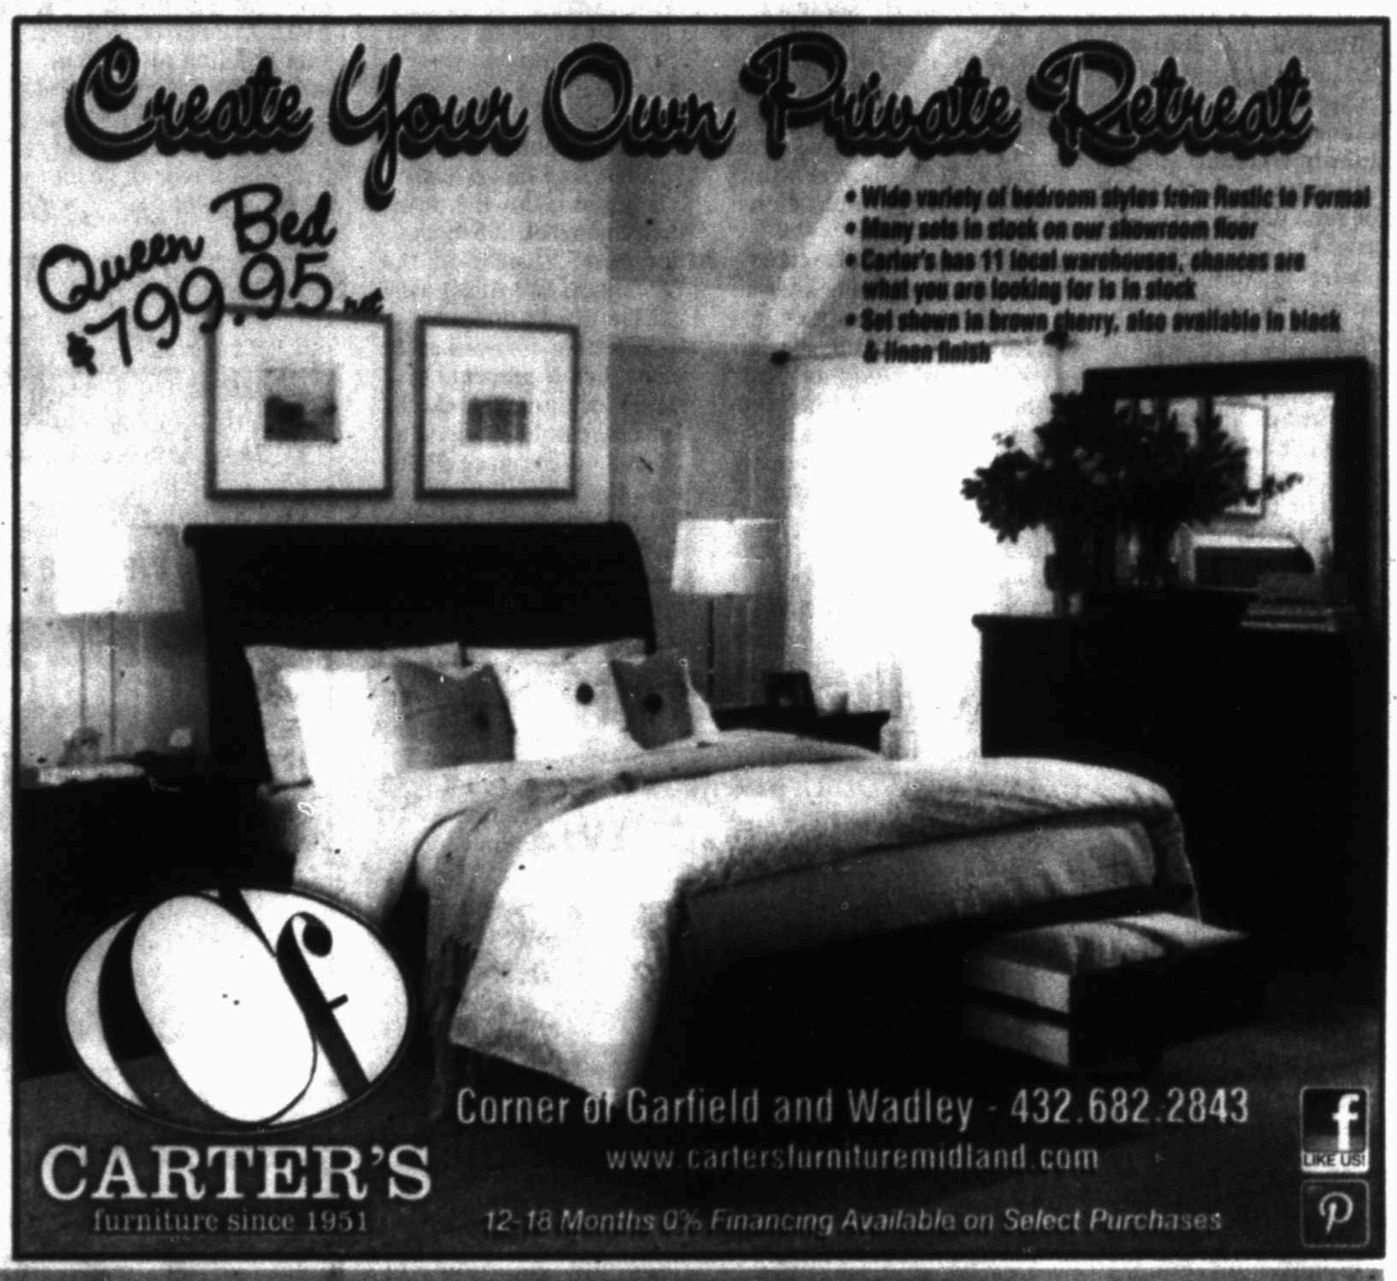
Michael McCrum, the special prosecutor investigating Perry, has said he has specific concerns about Perry as part of the investigation. No charges have been filed.

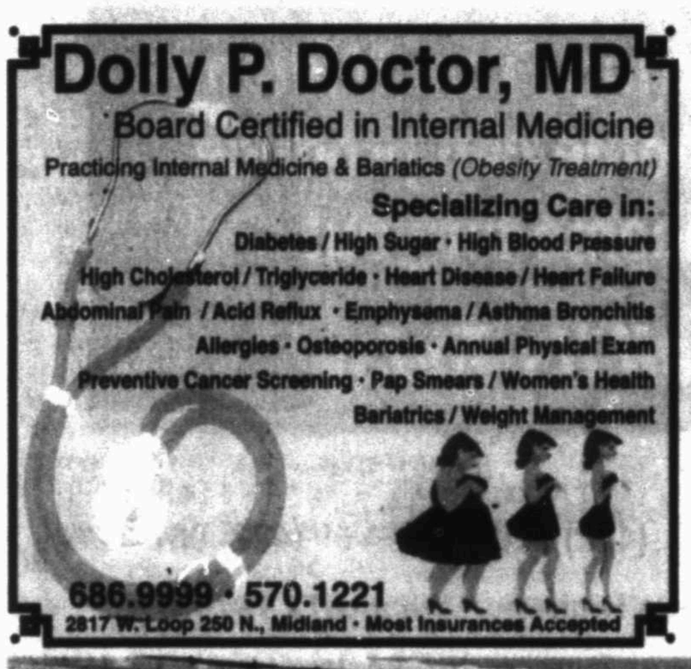
"It's proceeding methodically, and we're doing our best to understand what happened," McCrum said. He said the panel would reconvene June 6 and would likely meet again after that, but declined further comment.

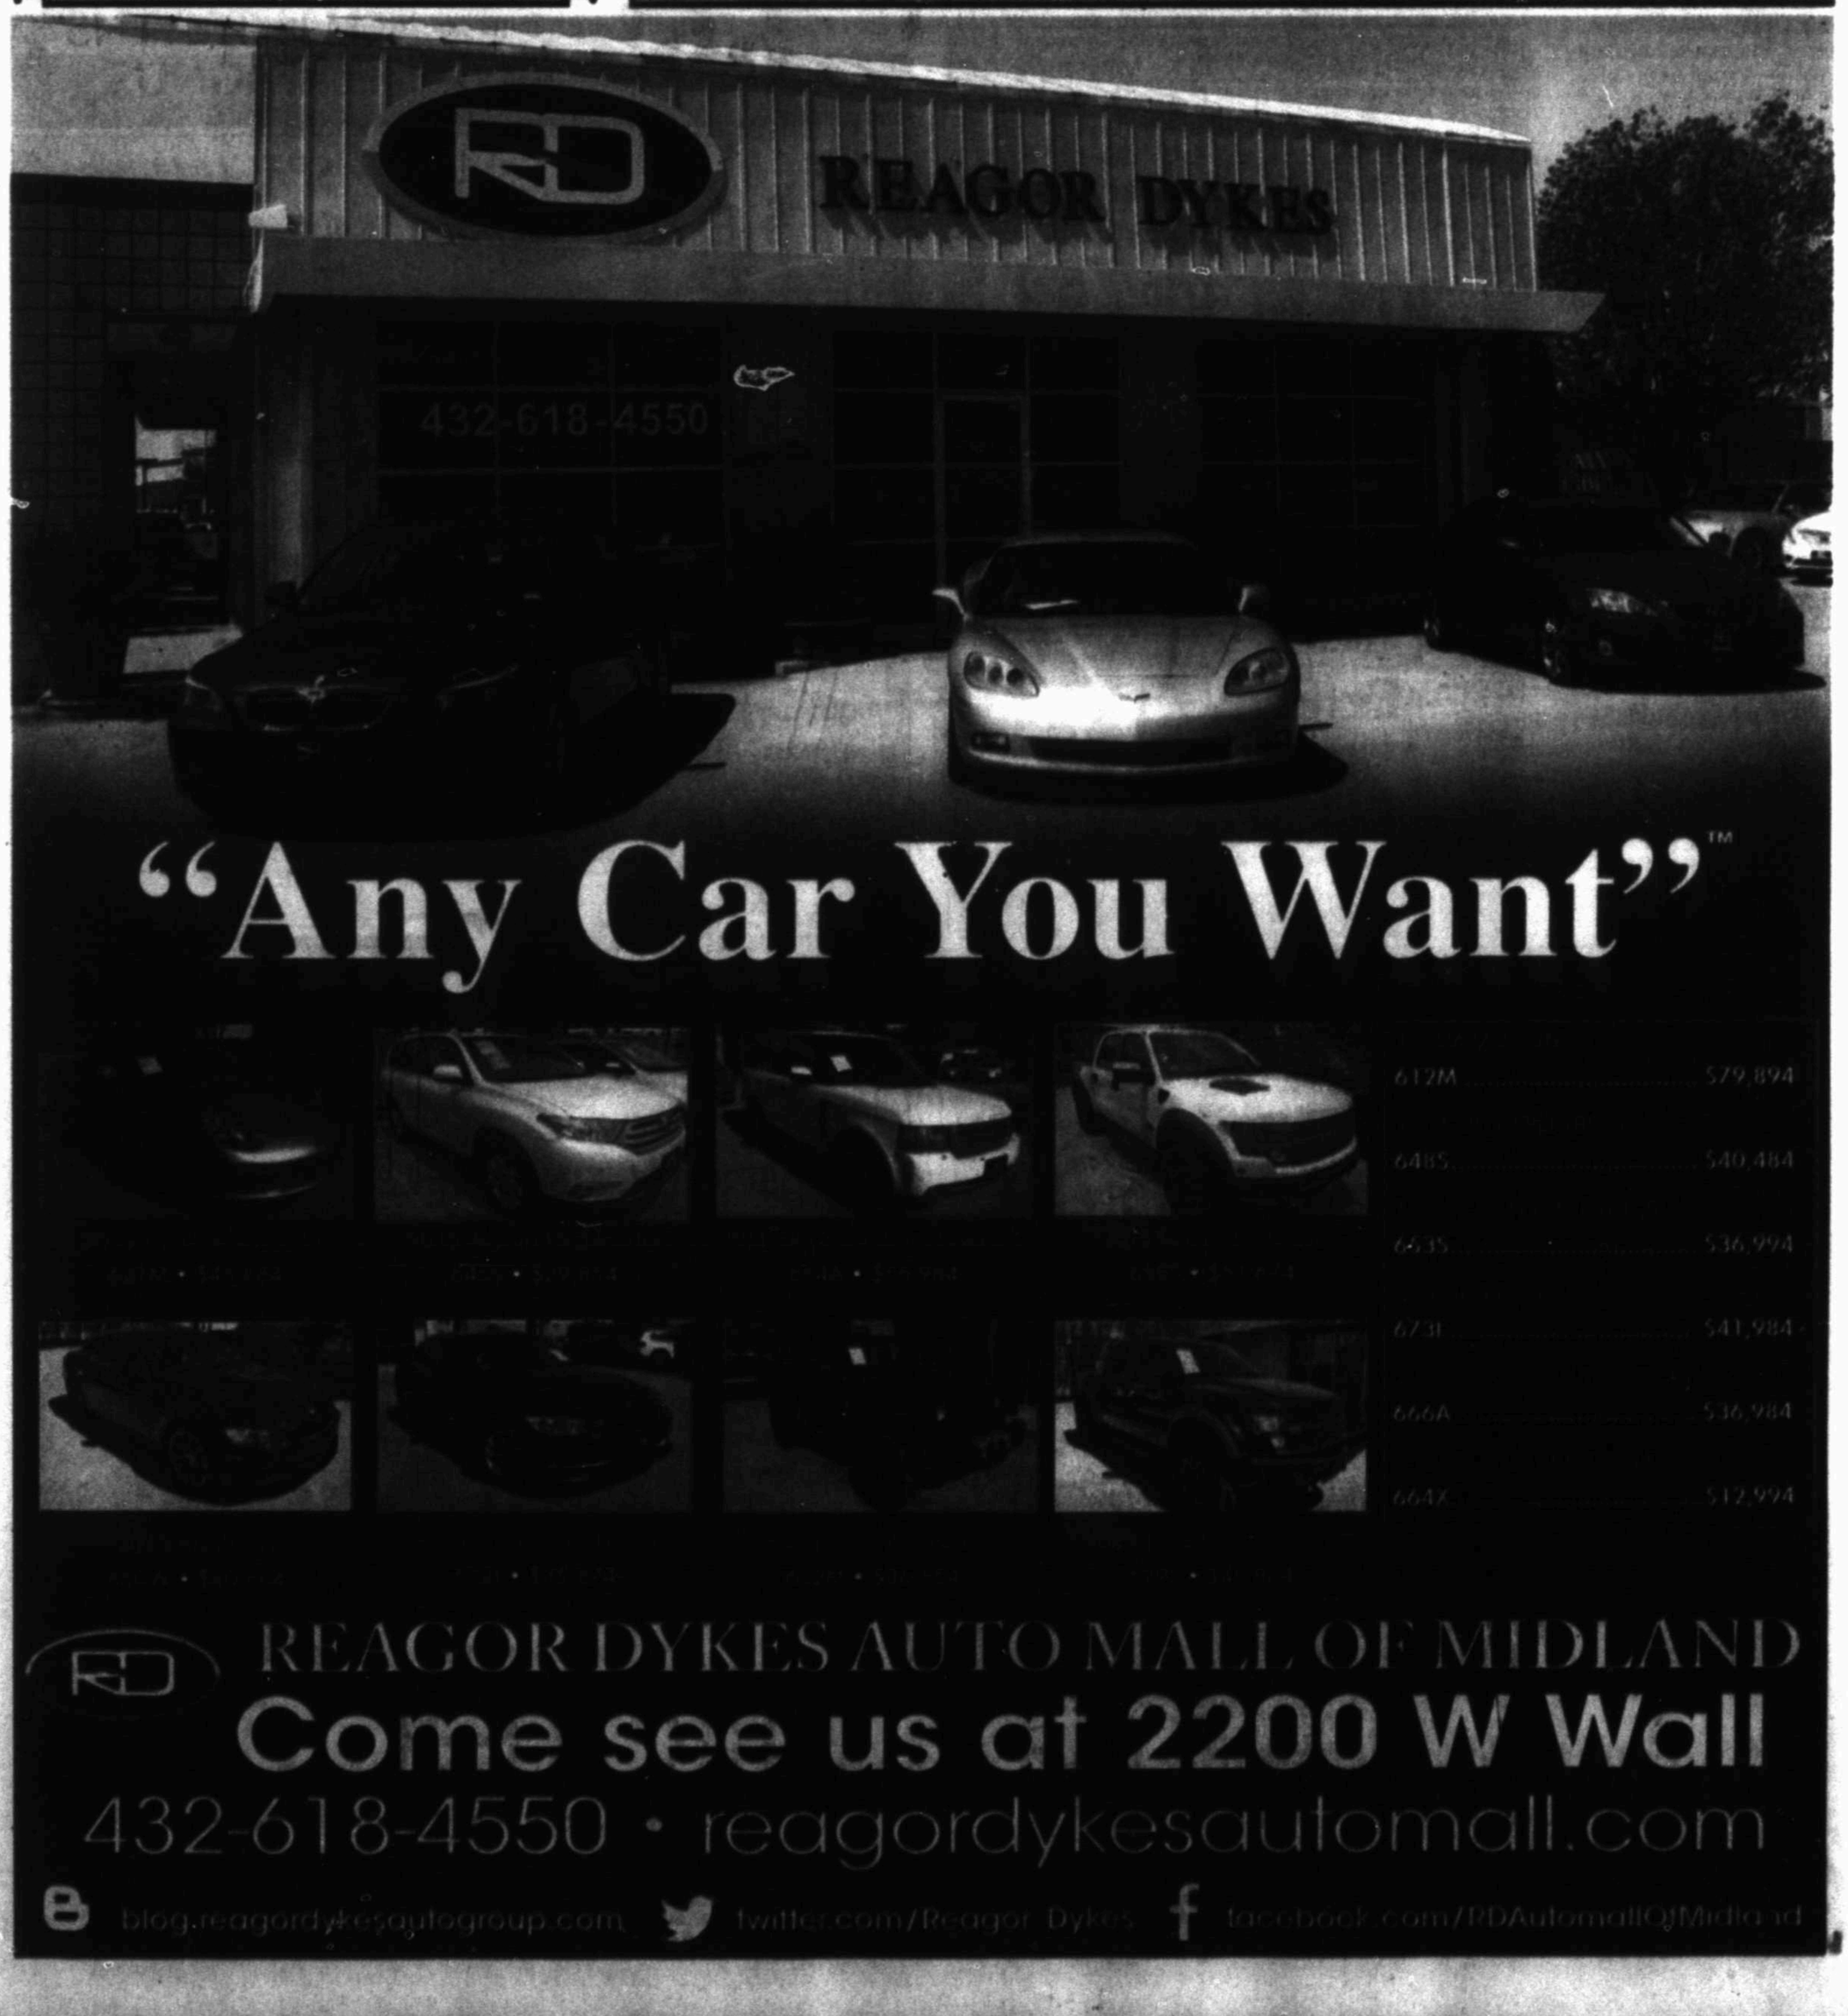
Perry spokeswoman Lucy Nashed refused to say if Perry has been subpoenaed.

"We respect the longstanding legal principle of grand jury confidentiality, and therefore it would be inappropriate to comment on the proceedings. The veto in question was made in accordance with the veto power afforded to every governor under the Texas Constitution, and we remain ready and willing to assist with this inquiry," Nashed said.

Lehmberg said earlier this week that Perry's personal attorney made an unusual request to the judge who seated the grand jury to be allowed to use a discreet entrance away from reporters staking out the main doorway. There is a private entrance to the grand jury room through Lehmberg's office, but the Perry staff members used the main door Friday.







Permian Basin rig count up one this week to 546

From staff reports

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the Permian Basin increased one this week to 546, according to the weekly rig count report released Friday by Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

Texas decreased four rigs, ending the week at 891. In other Texas basins, the Eagle Ford added one rig to end the week at 219, the Granite Wash was down two for a total of 62 and the Barnett finished the week with 25 rigs, down one.

At this time last year there were 469 rigs in the Permian Basin and 837 in Texas.

The number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in the U.S. increased six this week to 1,861. There were 1,531 rigs listed as searching for oil, up three; 326 as searching for natural gas, up three; and four as miscellaneous, unchanged. A year ago this week there were 1,769 rigs in the U.S.

By trajectory, there were 406 vertical drilling rigs, up two; 1,248 horizontal drilling rigs, up five; and 207 directional drilling rigs, down one.

The top five basins by rig count this week were the Permian; the Eagle Ford; the Williston with 183, up one; the Marcellus with 83, down one; and the Mississippian with 77, down one.

The top five states by rig count were Texas; Oklahoma with 193, up 3; North Dakota with 174, unchanged; Louisiana with 113, down one; and New Mexico with 89, down two.

In the U.S. there were 1,791 rigs listed as on land, up nine; 13 as in inland waters, down one; and 57 as offshore, down two.

There were 56 rigs in the Gulf of Mexico, down two.

The number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in Canada increased eight this week to 153. There were 62 rigs listed as searching for oil, up eight; 91 as searching for natural gas, unchanged; and zero as miscellaneous, unchanged. At this time last year there were 123 rigs in Canada.

The total number of rigs in the North America region this week — which includes the U.S. and Canada but excludes the Gulf of Mexico — increased 14 to 2,014. A year ago this week there were 1,882 rigs in North America.

For more information about the weekly rig count, visit the Baker Hughes website at bakerhughes.com.

NEW YORK

Oil rises on US housing data, Ukraine tensions

The price of oil rose past $102 a barrel Friday on strong U.S. construction activity and increased tensions in Ukraine.

Benchmark U.S. crude for June delivery rose 52 cents to close at $102.02 a barrel in New York. Oil gained 2 percent for the week.

Brent crude for July delivery, a benchmark for international oil used by many U.S. refineries, rose 60 cents to $109.75 in London. The Brent crude June contract expired Thursday.

The Commerce Department said Friday that U.S. housing construction surged to its highest pace in six months, which could signal higher demand for gasoline, diesel, and the crude oil needed to make those fuels.

U.S. economic data this week was mixed, however. The Federal Reserve said Thursday that industrial activity slowed in April, and the Commerce Department said Tuesday that retail sales were weak in April.

Crude prices were pushed higher, though, by signs of increased demand in the U.S. and around the world. The Energy Department reported surprisingly high demand for gasoline this week, and the Paris-based International Energy Agency increased its prediction for global crude demand.

Tensions in Ukraine continue to hang over the oil market. Traders worry that the conflict could bring new sanctions by the West that could keep Russian oil and gas from world markets.

In the U.S., the average retail price of gasoline rose less than a penny to $3.65 per gallon. That's the same as it was a month ago, and five cents cheaper than last year at this time.

NEW YORK

Wheat logs its biggest weekly decline since 2011

Wheat logged its biggest weekly drop since 2011 as traders reassessed the outlook for supplies of the grain.

The price of wheat for July delivery fell 4 cents, or 0.6 percent, to $6.74 a bushel on Friday. The grain has fallen for eight straight days and is down 6.6 percent this week, its biggest such decline since September 2011.

The price has fallen after rainfall in growing areas helped alleviate dry conditions. A government report estimated that global wheat production this year would be the second-highest on record.

Traders may also have taken some profits after a big run-up in the price of the grain since the start of the year, said Sterling Smith, a commodities strategist at Citigroup.

Wheat rose on concerns that a harsh U.S. winter would damage the crop and on worries that exports from the Ukraine would fall amid the country's clash with Russia.

"The U.S. does have a wheat problem," said Smith. "But generally speaking, the world does have plenty of wheat."

In other trading of farm products, corn and soybeans fell.

Corn for July delivery eased 0.8 cents, or 0.2 percent, to $4.84 a bushel. The grain is down 4.6 percent this week. Soybeans declined 5.25 cents, or 0.4 percent, to $14.65 a bushel.

Metals were mixed.

Silver for July fell 15.5 cents, or 0.8 percent, to $19.33 an ounce. Gold for June was little changed at $1,293.40 an ounce. Platinum for July fell $3.80, or 0.3 percent, to $1,466.10 an ounce.

Copper for July was little changed at $3.15 per pound. Palladium for June rose $2.90, or 0.4 percent, to $815 an ounce.

In energy trading, oil for June delivery rose 52 cents, or 0.5 percent, to $102.02 a barrel. Wholesale gasoline rose 1 cent to $2.97 a gallon. Natural gas fell 5.6 cents to $4.41 per 1,000 cubic feet and heating oil rose 0.3 cent to $2.95 a gallon.

GOP leaders block military immigration measure

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House Republican leaders intervened Friday to prevent a vote on immigration legislation, dealing a severe blow to election-year efforts to overhaul the dysfunctional system.

The move came after a Republican congressman from California announced plans to try to force a vote next week, over strong conservative opposition, on his measure creating a path to citizenship for immigrants who were brought illegally to the U.S. as children and serve in the military.

Rep. Jeff Denham labeled his bill the ENLIST Act and said he would seek a vote as an amendment to the popular annual defense bill, the National Defense Authorization Act, or NDAA.

In response, Doug Heye, spokesman for House Majority Leader Eric Cantor, said: "No proposed ENLIST amendments to NDAA will be made in order."

Heye said no stand-alone vote on the measure would be permitted, either.

It was the latest setback for President Barack Obama's efforts to move comprehensive immigration legislation through Congress to boost border security, remake legal worker programs and offer legal status to the estimated 11.5 million people now living here illegally. The Senate passed an immigration bill last year, but it's been stalled in the GOP-led House.

But in recent weeks prominent conservative groups, including the Heritage Foundation, announced their opposition. Heritage Action, the group's political arm, announced it would include the vote in its ratings on lawmakers and called Denham's legislation "deplorable."

Cantor himself, who previously had supported offering a path to citizenship for immigrants brought illegally as children, faces a primary challenge in Virginia on June 10 from a tea party opponent who has criticized the majority leader for not being conservative enough and accused him of supporting amnesty for immigrants living here illegally.

Dave Brat, an economics professor at Randolph-Macon College, is a long-shot to unseat Cantor, but his campaign has won attention and support from conservative leaders such as radio host Laura Ingraham, partly because of his attacks against Cantor over immigration.

Cantor, House Speaker John Boehner and other House GOP leaders have insisted they want to advance immigration legislation, though they've rejected the Senate's comprehensive bill. Chances have always looked slim, but the White House and outside advocates saw a window for action over the next several months, before Congress' August recess and November midterm elections.

Friday's developments seemed to all but rule out anything happening on the issue this year in the House, if even Denham's limited measure could not advance. Despite a wide coalition of business, labor, religious groups, farmers and others pushing for an immigration overhaul, many individual Republican House members who represent largely white districts have been unmoved.

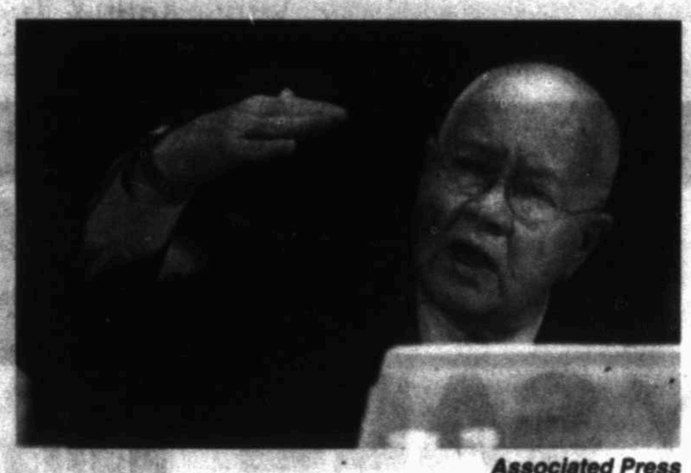
Associated Press



Associated Press

Veterans Affairs Undersecretary Robert Petzel testifies Thursday on Capitol Hill before the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee hearing to examine the state of Veterans Affairs health care. Petzel resigned Friday.

WASHINGTON — The top official for veterans' health care resigned Friday amid a firestorm over delays in care and falsified records at veterans' hospitals.

Veterans Affairs Secretary Eric Shinseki said he has accepted the resignation of Robert Petzel, the department's undersecretary for health care. Shinseki had asked for the resignation, a department official later said on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to speak for attribution.

Rep. Jeff Miller, R-Fla., chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, mocked the announcement, calling it "the pinnacle of disingenuous political doublespeak" since Petzel had been scheduled to retire this year anyway. The American Legion, which has called for Shinseki to resign, said pretty much the same thing: "This move by VA is not a corrective action, but a continuation of business as usual."

The White House said President Barack Obama supports Shinseki's decision on Petzel and thanks Petzel for his service. "As the president has said, America has a sacred trust with the men and women who have served our country in uniform and he is committed to doing all we can to ensure our veterans have access to timely, quality health care," the White House said.

The announcement came a day after Shinseki and Petzel were grilled at a four-hour hearing of the Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs, where lawmakers and veteran groups expressed exasperation of long-standing problems at the department.

Meanwhile, House Republicans scheduled a vote for Wednesday on legislation that would give Shinseki more authority to fire or demote senior executives and administrators at the agency and its 152 medical centers.

When senior leaders in the VA "fail the men and women who have put their lives on the line for our country, they deserve a pink slip, not a bonus," House Speaker John Boehner said Friday. While some Republicans in Congress have joined the call for Shinseki to resign, Boehner is not among them.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., has backed Shinseki but appeared to waver after Shinseki came before a Senate committee this week.

"If he doesn't give a better answer, then I'm not sure how he wouldn't have to do anything but resign," McCain told Fox News Channel on Thursday.

Lana is a beautiful 3 yr. old Chihuahua. We believe that she is the mother of Nala a 2 yr. old precious female Chihuahua. They both are so sweet and are very attached to each other. They also get along great with other small dogs. We would love to adopt them together. If they can go together there will only be one adoption charge. They will make great family members but would probably do best with older children.

Rural county, feds locked in water-rights dispute

Associated Press

WEED, N.M. — The latest dispute over federal control of land and water in the West has erupted along the banks of the Agua Chiquita, a small spring-fed stream in the mountains of southern New Mexico where the federal government has installed metal fences and locked gates to keep cattle out.

The move has enraged one rural county, where the sheriff has been ordered by the county commission to cut the locks. The U.S. attorney for the district of New Mexico hoped a meeting Friday would ease tensions enough to avoid an escalation like the armed standoff last month over grazing rights in Nevada.

The discussion resulted only in more frustration and disappointment.

Otero County Commissioner Ronny Rardin said after the meeting that the dispute was far from over.

"Ultimately, it is incumbent upon the commission, the sheriff and the citizens of Otero County to stand up for our constitutional rights," he said.

Forest Service officials could not immediately be reached for comment.

Decades in the making, the dispute in Otero County centers on whether the Forest Service has the authority to keep ranchers from accessing Agua Chiquita, which means Little Water in Spanish. In wet years, the spring can run for miles through thick conifer forest. This summer, much of the stream bed is dry.

The Forest Service says the enclosures are meant to protect what's left of the wetland habitat. Forest Supervisor Travis Moseley said the metal fences and gates simply replaced strands of barbed wire that had been wrecked over the years by herds of elk.

The Otero County Commission passed a resolution earlier this week declaring that the Forest Service doesn't have a right to control the water. Ranchers say they believe the move is an effort by the federal government to push them from the land.

"If we let them take over our water rights, that's the first step. Then we would have nothing left here," said Gary Stone, head of the Otero County Cattleman's Association.

U.S. Rep. Steve Pearce, R-N.M., said what's happening in Otero County is another example of overreach by the federal government.

"These disputes could be easily avoided if federal bureaucrats would stick to their constitutional oath and respect property rights," he said.

Water pipes top Grand Canyon's maintenance list

Associated Press

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — A busted pipe that cut off a water supply for hikers at the Grand Canyon this week is the latest sign of aging infrastructure that could cost up to $200 million to replace.

Two pipelines that feed water from a spring deep in the canyon to storage tanks on the rim are the top priority for maintenance in the national park, said maintenance chief Tim Jarrell. Grand Canyon officials are stashing away a portion of entrance fees and doing engineering studes to determine how best to move forward.

"The Park Service has recognized that because of the magnitude of it, the implications and the cost to it, it's no longer just Grand Canyon's problem," Jarrell said. "It's the Park Service's problem, so we have everyone's ear."

The pipelines are the primary water source for park staff, visitors, hotel guests and residents at the Grand Canyon. A portion of a steel pipe that runs up to the North Rim burst Tuesday when a rock fell on it. Crews boarded a helicopter with supplies to fix it at a cost of about $25,000, Jarrell said.

'Chrome' looks for golden Preakness run as favorite

By Beth Harris
Associated Press

BALTIMORE — California Chrome has run away from the competition in five consecutive victories, winning by an average of over five lengths.

The Kentucky Derby winner has had it his way ever since Victor Espinoza climbed aboard back in December when the streak began.

Whether they do again in the 1 3-16-mile Preakness at Pimlico on Saturday depends on a good trip, the tactics used by the chestnut colt's nine rivals and a little luck. California Chrome is the even-money favorite against nine rivals.

"When you run a 3-5 shot, you've got a lot more pressure on you knowing you're going to be the favorite, but I think we can handle it," trainer Art Sherman said.

California Chrome galloped two miles in the rain Friday. A small blister in the colt's throat that caused him to cough a day earlier was blown out of proportion, according to Alan Sherman, Art's son and assistant trainer.

"California Chrome is fine. His throat is fine. He had a little tickle," he said. "He is not scratching from the Preakness."

The colt had a similar blister before his Derby win. He was being treated with a glycerin throat wash.

If the chestnut colt with four white feet can repeat his Derby success in the $1.5 million Preakness, he'll set himself up for a Triple Crown try in three weeks in the Belmont Stakes.

It's been 36 years since Affirmed swept the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont to become horse racing's 11th Triple Crown winner.

"The Triple Crown means so much, but I'm old school," Art Sherman said. "Let's just go one race at a time."

California Chrome extended his winning streak to five with a thrilling victory in the Derby two weeks ago, when Espinoza kept him no worse than third in the 19-horse fray before accelerating in the stretch to win by 1 3/4 lengths.

In the Preakness, California Chrome will break from the No. 3 post, a spot that has seen 11 winners but none since Prairie Bayou in 1993.

"If he runs his race, and he's come back good from the Kentucky Derby, he should be tough in there," Espinoza said.

Social Inclusion is the 5-1 second choice and is one of eight horses coming in fresh, having skipped the Kentucky Derby. Only two

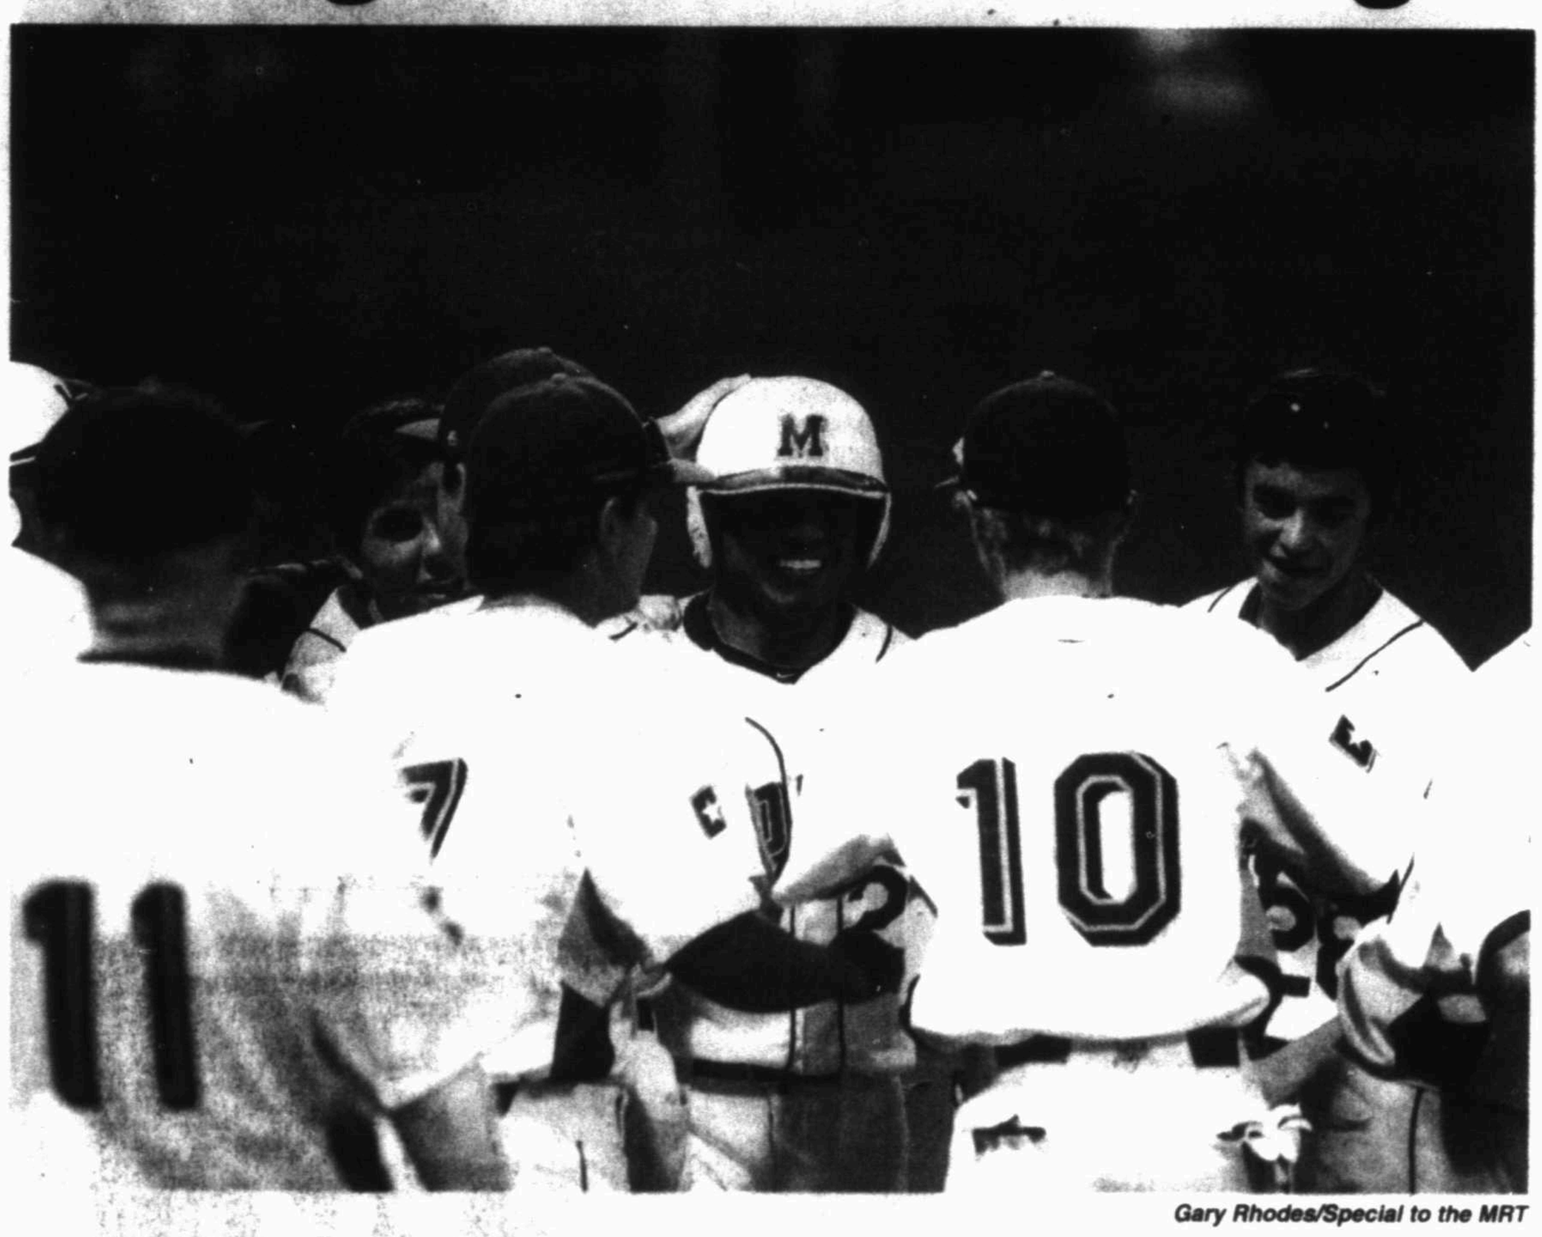
Dawgs take series edge



Gary Rhodes/Special to the MRT

Midland High shortstop Gilbert Sanchez is congratulated by teammates after scoring on a two-run single by teammate Jackson Lancaster in the top of the seventh inning of Game 1 of a Class 5A regional quarterfinal series against Amarillo Tascosa on Saturday at Hunter Field in Abilene.

Midland High leads series, 1-0

Lancaster

So when the senior came up to the plate with two runners and the game tied at 2 in the seventh inning, he was confident he would deliver.

Lancaster came through with a one-out, two-run single to left center to give the Bulldogs the lead and pitcher Lance White did the rest for a 4-2 victory over the Rebels in a best-of-three Class 5A regional quarterfinal series at Hardin Simmons University's Hunter Field.

MHS (25-9) takes a 1-0 series lead and will look to close it out at noon today in the second game. If Tascosa (23-9) wins that, a third game will follow 30 minutes after the conclusion of Game 2.

"We kind of expected this," said Lancaster, the designated hitter, who was 3-for-4 in the game. "We knew we had to battle for everything we got. Coach told us before the game started said if we got four runs we would win the game, and we got four runs."

Gilbert Sanchez started the seventh by getting hit by a pitch, and then Braden Rushton drew a one-out walk against Tascosa pitcher Jason Conway. After a wild pitch moved both runners into scoring position, Lancaster said he adjusted his bat speed for Conway's change-up and he was able to connect for what proved to be the game-winning pitch.

MHS coach Barry Russell said he switched Lancaster and Travis Wilbanks in the lineup with Lancaster batting sixth and Wilbanks hitting in the eighth hole. The switch seemed to work for both players as Wilbanks hit a solo home run to right field in the second inning.

"Jackson has been swinging the ball pretty well and Travis had been struggling a little bit, so I gave Travis maybe a chance to get a breath," Russell said. "Jackson is one of those guys that's been here and he's been with us a long time."

Wicks loses playoff hole, finishes 2nd at nationals

From staff reports

BURLINGTON, Iowa — Midland College freshman David Wicks had a chance to become the first Chapparal golfer since 2009 to win the medalist title at the NJCAA National Tournament.

But Wicks had a bogey in a one-hole playoff while Wallace State's Cooper Brown carded a birdie, and Wicks finished in second place overall on Friday at Spirit Hollow Golf Course.

"Long term, I'm sure I'm going to look back and be very pleased with how I played, and be proud of the achievement," Wicks said on Friday. "But in the short term, I'm pretty choked."

Wicks

Wicks was the Chaps' most consistent golfer all week long as conditions were consistently cold and rainy, but he put himself in position to win the tournament as he was either first or second in all four rounds. He shot a 1-over par 73 on Friday as the freshman from England had a round with three birdies and four bogeys, including a three-putt bogey on 18 that forced the tie.

Wicks, though, was one of only a handful of players during the week to shoot under par on the course in the conditions. Wicks ended the tournament with a 71-73-76-73—293 and is the first NJCAA First-team All-American from Midland College since 2009 when Midland High grad Tommy Sikes won the medalist title.

"(Friday), I left a lot of shots out there, and Wednesday I left a lot of shots out there," said Wicks, a freshman from East Sussex, England. "I really struggled putting, and outside of four feet I really struggled on my pace control. I just focused on getting it on the putting surface and it worked out for the most part."

As a team the Chaps finished sixth overall at the four-round tournament with a four-day total of 1,228 after shooting a 308 on Friday. The Chaps finished one stroke behind fifth-place Odessa College. Indian Hills Community College, which is about 40 miles from Burlington in Ottumwa, Iowa, won the tournament with a four-round

Sockers FC opens season today

From staff reports

The Matt Barnes era for Sockers FC officially begins at 7:30 p.m. today against the Austin Aztex at Grande Communications Stadium.

Barnes, who is also the head men's soccer coach at Lubbock Christian University, will begin his first year coaching the Premier Development League squad today.

Sockers FC finished 3-9-2 in 2013 in the PDL's Mid-South Division, and will begin this season against the defending PDL Champion Austin Aztex. The Aztex defeated the Thunder Bay Chill in the PDL final in 2013.

This year's Sockers FC squad features players from nearly every corner of the world as countries such as Brazil, New Zealand, Paraguay, Croatia and Mexico are represented on this year's roster, along with a handful of players from the United States.

Linehan reunited with Garrett, eager to see Romo

By Schuyler Dixon
Associated Press

IRVING — Scott Linehan wanted a reunion with Dallas coach Jason Garrett, which is why he's the passing game coordinator for the Cowboys.

Now the former Detroit offensive coordinator is waiting to see how the live version of Tony Romo matches with what he remembers from the opposing sideline and what he's seen on film.

"He's been a little bit slow as far as out here physically doing things," Linehan said of early offseason sessions with Romo coming off his second back surgery in eight months after a herniated disk sidelined him for the last game of 2013. "But he's done enough for me to see that this guy's really got some special qualities."

The Cowboys opened a three-day rookie minicamp Friday with their third play-caller in three seasons in Linehan. The same goes for defensive coordinator, with Rod Marinelli replacing the demoted Monte Kiffin.

Marinelli and Kiffin were on the Dallas staff together a year ago. Linehan was calling the plays for Matthew Stafford and Calvin Johnson before a four-game losing streak to finish the season kept the Lions out of the playoffs and cost coach Jim Schwartz his job.

BULLDOGS

From 1B

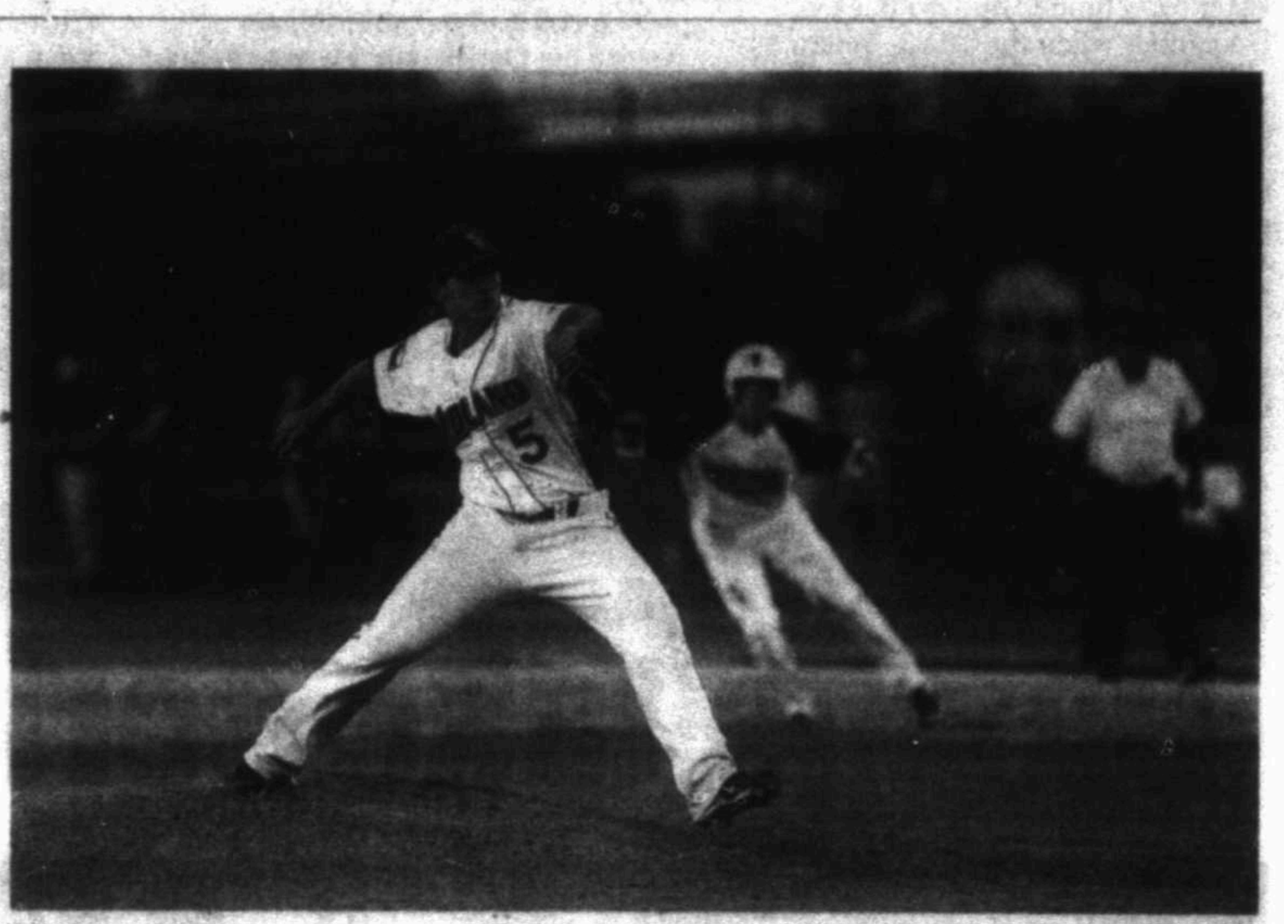
After giving up two runs in the second inning, which gave Tascosa a 2-1 advantage, the senior right-hander settled down and allowed two hits the rest of the way.

"I felt really good out there," White said. "I felt like I could throw all my pitches for a strike any time. After they got those two runs, I told the guys 'I'm not going to let them score.' I just buckled down after that and just focused on one guy at a time."

Russell said what White did was phenomenal.

"He did everything we asked him to and kept them off balance," Russell said. "He did a great job. I don't know if he could have thrown a better ballgame. He had all three pitches working. He had a curve ball, a good change-up and he really spotted up with his fastball."

The Bulldogs tied the game at 2 in the fourth with an RBI single by Sean Grebeck, but left the bases loaded. They again left the bases loaded in the sixth, before Lancaster got the timely hit they were looking for.



Gary Rhodes/Special to the MRT

"You know someone is going to come through late in the game for us," White said. "We've done that deep in a ballgame where we've pulled out a lot of games."

As the Bulldogs were celebrating a key victory, Russell was quick to remind his team that this was just one game as he knows the Rebels will not be going away quietly in this series.

"We can celebrate for a few minutes and then move on," Russell said.

Red Raiders edge WVU with 9th-inning run

From staff reports

LUBBOCK -- Tim Proudfoot's RBI single in the bottom of the ninth inning scored Zach Davis and gave the Texas Tech baseball team a 3-2 victory against West Virginia on Friday at Rip Griffin Park.

The two squads were tied at 2 entering the final inning, and Proudfoot's single came with two outs.

Texas Tech improved to 39-16 overall and 13-10 in Big 12 play, and West Virginia fell to 27-23 and 9-13.

Midland Christian grad Bryant Burleson was 2-for-3 with an RBI. Proudfoot also had two hits along with the game-winning RBI.

Cameron Smith earned the victory, pitching the final 3 2/3 innings not giving up a hit or a run along with four strikeouts.

The victory gave Tech the Big 12 series victory. The two teams will finish the three-game series at 2:05 p.m. today at Rip Griffin Park.

TCU 5
BAYLOR 0

WACO — TCU's Preston Morrison pitched eight solid innings to help the Horned Frogs to a 5-0 victory against Baylor on Friday night at Baylor park.

Morrison gave up three hits in eight innings and improved to 8-3, and he issued one walk and struck out six.

With the victory, TCU improves to 37-15 overall and 16-7 in Big 12 play. The Frogs will close out the regular season at 6:35 p.m. today against Baylor.

RockHounds rally from four-runs down for win over Hooks

RockHounds	9
Hooks	7

From staff reports

CORPUS CHRISTI — The Midland RockHounds rallied for a win for the second straight night, but this time it wasn't in extra innings.

The RockHounds (24-17) came back from a four-run deficit to score eight runs in the final four innings and take a 9-7 victory against the Corpus Christi Hooks on Friday night in front of 6,154 at Whataburger Field.

The Hooks (21-20) jumped out to a 5-1 lead in the third when they scored five runs in that inning.

Midland cut the lead to 5-3 when Jefry Marte hit a two-run home run. But the RockHounds weren't done.

Midland tied the game at 6 with three runs in the seventh as Miles Head hit a three-run home run to left field.

Midland then took the lead with a solo home run from Kent Matthes in the eighth, and finished the scoring in the ninth when Marte hit a two-run single to make it 9-6. Marte was 2-for-5 on the day with four RBI, and Head was 3-for-4 with three RBI.

Seth Frankoff pitched the final two innings to earn his eighth save of the season, as Frank Gailey pitched one inning of relief in the seventh to earn the win.

Midland kept pace with Frisco, a 4-1 winner against San Antonio on Friday, in the Texas League South Division and remianed two games behind. Midland and Corpus Christi will play the second game of a four-game set at 7:10 p.m. today at Whataburger Field.

Cabrera lifts Blue Jays to win over Rangers

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Drew Hutchison outdueled Yu Darvish and Melky Cabrera hit a two-run double in the eighth inning to lift the Toronto Blue Jays to a 2-0 win over the Texas Rangers on Friday night.

Cabrera's liner sailed just beyond the outstretched glove of Texas first baseman Mitch Moreland, scoring Erik Kratz and Anthony Gose.

Hutchison (2-3) shut out Texas on three singles in his first career complete game, earning his first victory since his first start of the season on April 1. He struck out six.

Kratz and Gose each reached against Darvish (3-2) on infield bunts. The right-handed hitting Kratz bunted to third and beat an off-balance throw by Adrian Beltre. Gose, a left-handed hitter, drag bunted up the first-base line. Moreland's throw to second baseman Rougned Odor covering first base wasn't in time.

Associated Press

Toronto's Anthony Gose, right, slides into home plate beating the tag of Texas catcher J.P. Arencibia, left, as home plate umpire Hal Gibson looks on for the call during the eighth inning Friday in Arlington, Gose scored on a double by Melky Cabrera.

Darvish went eight innings, allowing two runs on five hits. He struck out 11 and walked three in his first start since throwing a one-hitter against Boston last Friday that Major League Baseball on Wednesday ruled was a two-hitter.

Neither team got a runner beyond first base until the sixth inning — thanks in part to a successful Toronto challenge in the third inning that reversed a safe call on a steal of second base by Leonys Martin.

In the bottom of the sixth, Martin walked, was bunted to second, advanced to third on a sacrifice fly. He was stranded when Elvis Andrus grounded to shortstop.

Darvish was working on six days' rest because of a shuffling of the Rangers' starting rotation when Martin Perez experienced elbow pain in his start Saturday.

The first hit off Darvish came in the fifth inning, a leadoff single pulled to right field by Adam Lind.

The previous Friday night, Boston's David Ortiz singled to right with two outs in the ninth inning for the first official hit off Darvish in an 8-0 Rangers victory. The first Red Sox base runner that night against Darvish came with two outs in the seventh when Ortiz popped a fly into shallow right that fell between Texas right fielder Alex Rios and second baseman Rougned Odor, playing his second game in the major leagues.

Official scorer Steve Weller ruled the play an error, that the ball should have been caught. On Wednesday, Major League Baseball awarded Ortiz with a hit.

Darvish has hit double digits in strikeouts 22 times in his three-year major league career. That's the most of any major leaguer during that span and already third in club history behind Nolan Ryan (34) and Bobby Witt (24).

FROM WIRE REPORTS

American League

TIGERS 1
RED SOX 0

BOSTON — Max Scherzer tossed six shutout innings, outdueling Jon Lester and leading Detroit over Boston in the opener of a three-game series.

Torii Hunter delivered an RBI single in the first inning for the Tigers, playing their first game against the defending champion Red Sox since losing last year's American League Championship Series in six games.

ATHLETICS 11
INDIANS 1

CLEVELAND — Josh Reddick homered twice, including a grand slam, and drove in a career-high six runs, and Josh Donaldson added a three-run shot in Oakland's rout of Cleveland.

Reddick's second career grand slam and Donaldson's homer sparked an eight-run second inning. Reddick added a two-run homer in the seventh.

Sonny Gray (5-1) allowed one run and two hits with nine strikeouts in six innings for Oakland, which has won seven of eight.

ROYALS 0

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Chris Tillman tossed his first career shutout and Nelson Cruz drove in two runs for Baltimore.

Tillman (4-2) scattered five hits and a walk while striking out three. His dominant outing came one night after Wei-Yin Chen and four relievers combined to beat Kansas City 2-1.

Chris Davis homered and Steve Clevenger also drove in a run for the Orioles.

TWINS 5
MARINERS 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Kyle Gibson allowed one run in seven innings, Brian Dozier and Josmil Pinto homered, and Minnesota held on to beat Seattle.

Dozier and Trevor Plouffe each hit RBI doubles in the third inning against Chris Young (3-1) to give the Twins an early lead on their way to their fifth win in their last six home games.

National League

ROCKIES 3
PADRES 1

DENVER — Jorge De La Rosa carried a no-hitter through six innings and pitched seven scoreless innings, as the Colorado Rockies withstood a late rally to beat the San Diego Padres 3-1 Friday night.

De La Rosa's bid for the first no-hitter by a Rockies pitcher at Coors Field ended in the seventh inning, when Chris Denorfia led off with a triple off the scoreboard in right field, just the second time a Padres batter had gotten the ball out of the infield to that point.

REDS 3
PHILLIES 0

PHILADELPHIA — Alfredo Simon allowed five hits over 7 2-3 strong innings, Devin Mesoraco hit a three-run homer and Cincinnati beat struggling Philadelphia.

Simon (5-2) had a season-high eight strikeouts, walked one and hit one batter. Manny Parra got one out in the eighth and Aroldis Chapman struck out pinch-hitter Cesar Hernandez on a 102 mph fastball with runners on second and third for his second save in two tries.

CARDINALS 5
BRAVES 2

ST. LOUIS — Allen Craig had three hits, drove in a run and scored twice and Lance Lynn allowed two runs over seven innings to lead St. Louis.

Lynn (5-2) allowed seven hits, walked two and struck out three. Carlos Martinez retired the Braves on four pitches in the eighth and Trevor Rosenthal set down the side in order for his 12th save in 13 opportunities.

Matt Carpenter and Kolten Wong had two hits each and scored a run for St. Louis. Matt Holiday, Matt Adams and Yadier Molina all drove in a run for the Cardinals.

NATIONALS 5
METS 2

WASHINGTON — Tyler Moore had two hits and drove in a pair of runs, and Washington's relievers threw four scoreless innings in the win over New York.

Scott Hairston had an RBI double and a single for Washington, which has won nine straight against the Mets going back to last season.

Nationals starter Tanner Roark (3-1) pitched five innings, giving up two runs on four hits.

Ross Detwiler, Drew Storen, Tyler Clippard and Rafael Soriano each pitched one inning. Soriano got his ninth save after walking two batters with two outs before Jayson Werth made a jumping catch against the right field wall on a drive by Daniel Murphy in the ninth.

BREWERS 4
CUBS 3

CHICAGO — Kyle Lohse pitched seven effective innings in his first victory in three weeks, and Milwaukee beat sloppy Chicago.

Lohse allowed three runs and seven hits as NL Central-leading Milwaukee won for the fifth time in six games. He retired his last 13 batters in his first win since April 23 against San Diego, ending a streak of three starts without a decision.

Jean Segura had three hits and two RBIs for Milwaukee, which improved to 15-9 against its division this year. Elian Herrera doubled twice in a spot start in right field for Ryan Braun, who got the day off as he makes his way back from a right oblique strain.

total of 1,190. Indian Hills won by 16 strokes over Wallace State.

It's the Chaps' best finish at the national tournament since 2012, and the 24th time since 1988 the team has finished sixth or better.

Trinity grad Trace Morrow had the best four-round total for the Chaps after Wicks as the freshman and University of Texas-San Antonio signee shot a 311 over the four days, including a 78 on Friday. Morrow ended up tied for 36th in the 113 player field.

"I felt it was a good effort on their part," Midland College coach Delnor Poss said. "I felt like the guys handled (the conditions) pretty well. It was a good team effort, and I'm proud of their competitiveness and willingness to stay in there under adverse conditions."

Todd leads by 2 at Nelson, Casey has record back 9

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

Tony Gutierrez/AP

Brendon Todd watches his shot off the 18th tee during the second round of the Byron Nelson Championship on Friday in Irving. Todd finished the round at 8-under par.

IRVING — Paul Casey was scuffling midway through his second round at the Byron Nelson Championship, hoping he could do enough just to make the cut.

After a record back nine, Casey was near the top of a crowded leaderboard. He was in a group of eight players at 6-under 134, two strokes behind leader Brendon Todd.

Casey was over par Friday before matching the PGA Tour record for the best score on a back nine, an 8-under 27 with six birdies and an eagle. That was part of his 7-under 63 that was the low round of the day, though he could never remember such a good nine.

"On par-3 courses, I think," Casey said. "I like to think I would be good at shooting low rounds of golf through the past, but certainly nothing like that."

When Casey made the turn, he was coming off a three-putt at No. 9, his third bogey of the day. The 36-year-old Englishman, whose only PGA Tour victory was five years ago, was then 2 over for the tournament, even after making a 9-foot eagle putt on the par-5 seventh hole.

"I think it's easier when your back is up against the wall, like I was today" Casey said. "I was backed into a corner and had to do something. A little shift in, let's say, attitude, and a little shift in goals."

Also at 6 under were Martin Kaymer only five days after he won The Players Championship, and 2003 Masters champion Mike Weir (66). The others were Graham DeLaet and Morgan Hoffmann, who had had bogey-free 66s, and Tim Herron (66), Charles Howell III (66) and Marc Leishman (68).

Kaymer had his second consecutive 67, and has been in the 60s for all six of his rounds at TPC Four Seasons. The German won at TPC Sawgrass on Sunday.

"If you had a good week, obviously you can take a lot into the next week. You play a little bit more free, a little bit more relaxed," Kaymer said. "It's a new week, and I want to do as good as possible here."

For the second time in five years, Todd is back on the PGA Tour after getting his card back through the Web.com Tour. He ended his round with back-to-back birdies to wrap up a round of 64 in which he needed only 22 putts. That included the 6-footer at the par-3 17th after his tee shot rolled just past the hole.

"It's nice to put two under-par rounds together before the cut. That's been a challenge for me this year," Todd said. "I was patient today."

Todd, who started with six consecutive pars before four birdies in a five-hole stretch, first got to 7 under with a 12-foot birdie at the par-3 13th hole, but gave that stroke back at the par-4 15th when he hit his first two shots into the rough and had his only bogey.

Peter Hanson was leading after a first-round 65, but was eight strokes worse Friday and dropped back to a tie for 25th at 2 under.

David Duval, only a stroke off the lead after an opening 66 that included birdies on four of his last five holes, shot a 76 Friday and missed the cut by a stroke at 2-over 142. The former No. 1 player, now 890th in the world 15 years later, had six bogeys over his last 11 holes and had only one birdie during his second round.

Weir hasn't had a top-25 finish since 2010, when the 44-year-old Canadian left-hander suffered a partial ligament tear in his right elbow.

"The work I've been doing over the years is to get back into this position, and now I've got to see if I can handle it and get momentum going and play well on the weekend," Weir said. "It's been difficult to play and not be in contention."

Casey made a 6 1/2-foot birdie putt at No. 10. His drive at the short par-4 11th was short of the greenside bunker, and from an awkward stance hit his approach over the pin onto the fringe before making a 24-foot birdie. He also had birdies at Nos. 13-15, a 32-foot putt for an eagle-3 at the 16th, and closed with another birdie.

The overall nine-hole scoring record is Corey Pavin's 8-under 26 on the front nine in the first round of the 2006 U.S. Bank Championship in Milwaukee in 2006. Seven others have had 27s on nine holes, the last Nick Watney in the third round of the 2011 AT&T National.

Scottie Scheffler, a 17-year-old amateur from Dallas, shot a 68 with six birdies and four bogeys to make the cut at 1-under 139.

Jordan Spieth, now 20 and the eighth-ranked player in the world, made the Nelson cut at ages 16 and 17 when he too was a top-ranked junior player from Dallas playing on a sponsor exemption. Spieth was 3 under after a 67 Friday.

No. 1 pick Clowney joins Texans for first practice

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — No special treatment for Jadeveon Clowney.

On his first day of practice as a Houston Texan, the No. 1 overall draft pick's locker was among several temporary ones plopped down in the middle of the locker room. Just like those for the rest of the rookies.

That was OK with him though. He just wants to be one of the guys.

"Just really trying ... to be a part of the team and learn, learn from these other guys around me," he said.

The defensive end, who will play linebacker in Houston's 3-4 scheme, is most concerned with studying the playbook. The former South Carolina standout mentioned it seven times in a six-minute interview Friday.

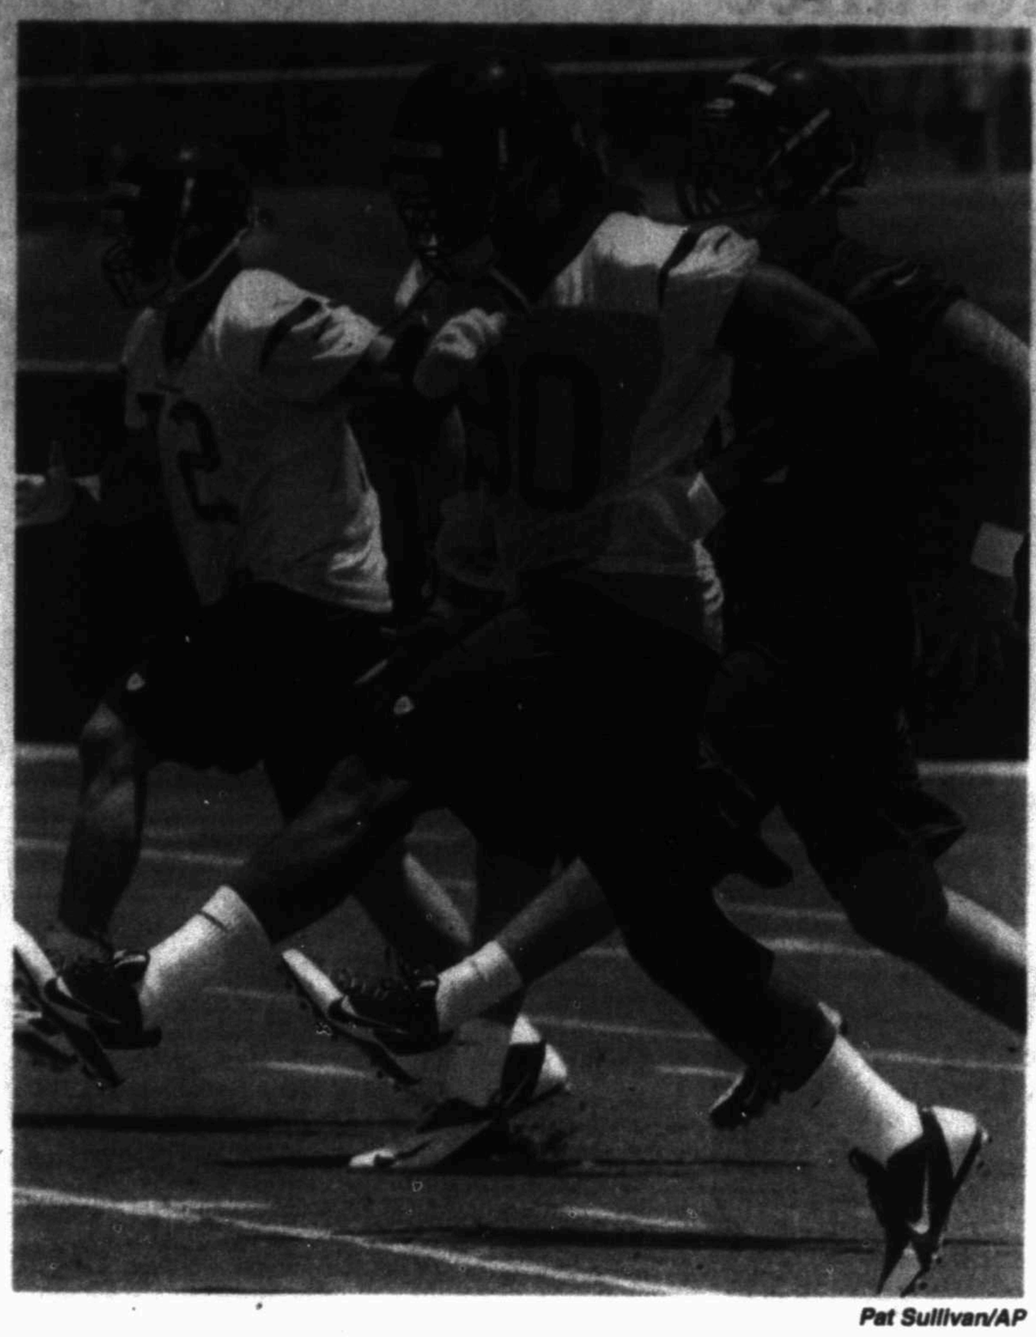
"I'm here to learn the playbook and get the ball rolling with the Houston Texans and show what I've got on the field," he said.

The 6-foot-5, 266-pound Clowney is expected to pair with 2012 Defensive Player of the Year J.J. Watt to boost Houston's already stout pass rush. Clowney piled up 47 tackles for losses and 24 sacks in a three-year career at South Carolina. He doesn't think the transition to linebacker in Houston will be that difficult.

"I don't see any big differences," he said. "I'll go where they tell me."

He didn't seem concerned with the attention and scrutiny he'll be subjected to as the first overall pick. The 21-year-old Clowney said he's only worried about gaining the respect of his teammates and showing the Texans what he can do on the field.

New coach Bill O'Brien refused to talk specifically about how Clowney looked in his first workout, rather addressing how all the young players fared.



Pat Sullivan/AP

Houston Texans' number one draft pick Jadeveon Clowney (90) runs drills during a rookie mini-camp Friday in Houston.

"I think all these guys being rookies, they all came in here and it's an eye-opener," he said. "Just like anybody, it's not just one guy. It's a different level of competition. All these guys have come in, they've been on time, they've worked hard. So they just need to take it one day at a time and continue to work hard."

The 34 players went through a workout that lasted about 90 minutes in shorts and helmets.

Clowney believes being humble and ready to listen to advice will be the key to success in the NFL.

"We don't know what we think we know, basically," he said. "We're here to learn. We haven't been here before."

Also practicing for the first time as a Texan was quarterback Tom Savage, a fourth-round pick out of Pittsburgh. He'll get a lot of work during this minicamp as the only quarterback in the group.

"It's definitely a jump from college, but I think it's going to be fun," he said. "I'm excited. I've already ... started trying to get as much as I can and soak up as much knowledge as I can from this whole deal so that when I go into OTAs, then I'm ready to go."

O'Brien, who worked with Tom Brady as an assistant with the New England Patriots, did speak about how Savage performed in the workout.

"Quarterback is not an easy position to play in any system, for any team," O'Brien said. "I thought for the first day, Tom came out, he tried to grasp what we were telling him. He's got a lot of corrections to make. He seems to be working hard and processing through it."

Dallas took the play-calling duties away from Bill Callahan just a year after trying to ease Garrett's load by giving those duties to him, and Garrett reached out to Linehan. They were on Miami's staff in 2005, Garrett's first year in coaching.

"We were doing some meshing and molding back then," said Linehan, who was head coach in St. Louis for two-plus seasons before going to Detroit.

Now they're doing some meshing again, as Linehan likes to call it — combining a Dallas system that's been in place since Garrett's first season as offensive coordinator in 2007 and a Linehan program that Detroit had for five years.

"If you're going in and you say, 'Hey, we used to call this apple but now we're calling it orange,' it slows you down," Linehan said. "There's no reason to do that. So we'll keep the language pretty much the same as it's been. We come out here so we can play fast and operate. That's the goal."

Callahan's focus is back on the offensive line, which is where it was when Garrett brought him in two years ago. The switch in 2013 was mostly driven by owner and general manager Jerry Jones wanting Garrett to have more time for game-management decisions.

The latest change brings a coach who shares more of Garrett's passing philosophy — but doesn't want to be known as a pass-first coach. Garrett has been preaching balance, and the Cowboys made another move to improve one of the league's worst rushing attacks by drafting an offensive lineman in the first round for the third time in four years.

The Cowboys believe running back DeMarco Murray can lead a strong rushing attack.

"We threw it a lot in Detroit but a lot of our passing game was designed to be a lot of what we didn't feel we had in the running game," Linehan said.

The defensive switch in Dallas is mostly about who's running the meetings. It's Marinelli now instead of Kiffin, whose title is assistant head coach/defense.

"The great thing about those guys is they know each other so well," Garrett said. "They play off of each other so well. So it's really a collective effort. It's great having those guys."

NOTES: The Cowboys signed DT Amobi Okoye and released LB Jonathan Stewart. Okoye was 19 when Houston picked him 10th overall in 2007. He played four seasons for the Texans and two with Chicago before sitting out last season.

Top NBA seeds advance after wild early rounds

By Cliff Brunt
Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — After a wild start to the NBA playoffs — dramatic Game 7s, overtime games — the league's postseason has returned to normal.

The top seeds in the East and West have advanced to the conference finals.

The two-time defending champion Miami Heat have been the most dominant team in the postseason, losing just once. Meanwhile, top-seeded and wildly unpredictable Indiana has staggered into the East finals rematch with the Heat, although the Pacers did win five road games to advance.

It took San Antonio seven games to eliminate Dallas in the first round, but then the top-seeded Spurs rolled past Portland in five to advance to the West finals. Oklahoma City rallied from a 3-2 deficit against Memphis, then fought through a dramatic six-game series against the Los Angeles Clippers.

The East finals begin Sunday with Indiana hosting Miami; the West tips off Monday night when OKC travels to San Antonio.

The Pacers have made no secret they were looking forward to rematch with Miami after pushing the Heat to seven games before losing on the road in last year's East final. Oklahoma City beat San Antonio 4-2 in the 2012 West final, and many felt they might have beaten the aging Spurs last year if the teams had met, but Russell Westbrook was injured and the Thunder were eliminated. The Thunder know it will be challenge, but are confident after sweeping San Antonio this year in their four-game regular-season series.

"There aren't really any surprises," San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich said. "It's the conference finals, and players step up and play well. That's basically what it's all about. Everyone is going to have energy, passion and those sorts of things, but execution for more of those 48 minutes is what it's all about. To make sure that you don't have too many dry possessions offensively, to make sure defensively that everybody is on track and communicating.

Eric Gay/AP

San Antonio's Kawhi Leonard scores against the Portland Trail Blazers during the second half of Game 5 of a Western Conference semifinal series Wednesday in San Antonio.

"It's the same for both teams, but who will do it more for the 48 minutes. We'll see."

The Heat, led by four-time MVP LeBron James, are looking for their third straight title.

James is averaging 30 points and 7.1 rebounds in the playoffs while shooting 56 percent from the field. He told Pacers coach Frank Vogel during All-Star weekend that he expected to see him in May, and both teams held up their ends of the deal.

"It's the two best teams in the Eastern Conference," James said. "It's that simple. Both teams defend at a high level, both teams share the ball. Both teams get into the paint, and both teams have a desire to win."

After talking all season about having homecourt in a potential Game 7, they have earned it. But the Pacers haven't played well at home in the playoffs, giving up homecourt advantage in the first round against Atlanta and in the second against Washington. James said none of that matters.

"I don't believe the Pacers who struggled at home will be the team we play on Sunday," James said.

The Pacers believe the challenges they have overcome — self-inflicted or otherwise — have made them a dangerous team.

"We worked so hard to get here," Pacers guard Lance Stephenson said. "The Hawks, the Wizards, they put us through a lot. And we had (the media) talking bad about us, and I think it made us stronger."

The Spurs and the Thunder are both a little banged up.

San Antonio point guard Tony Parker strained his left hamstring in Game 5 against Portland. The Spurs aren't sure what shape the All-Star will be in for the opener

"I'm hopeful that he'll be ready to go," Popovich said Friday. "He's going to stay off it again today and tomorrow. They're going to put him on the treadmill a little bit and a bike and shoot a little bit and see where he's at. So, we'll know more tomorrow."

Oklahoma City's Serge Ibaka hurt his left calf in the third quarter of Game 6 against the Clippers, and the Thunder announced Friday that he is out for the postseason.

LA Kings eliminate rival Ducks

Los Angeles wins series, 4-3.

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Justin Williams, Jeff Carter and Mike Richards scored in an overwhelming first period, and the Los Angeles Kings advanced to their third straight Western Conference finals with a 6-2 victory over the Anaheim Ducks in Game 7 of their second-round series Friday night.

Anze Kopitar, Marian Gaborik and Tanner Pearson also scored, and Jonathan Quick made 25 saves to help the Kings claim the first postseason Freeway Faceoff series in thrilling style, winning back-to-back elimination games over their top-seeded Southern California rivals.

The Kings improved to 6-0 when facing elimination this spring, shredding rookie goalie John Gibson for four goals in the first 23 minutes in Game 7.

The defeat likely ended the career of 43-year-old Teemu Selanne, who intends to retire.

"It's got to be a lot of happiness later, but it is hard right now," Selanne said. "It was going to be ending in a great celebration or a big disappointment and we didn't get the win.

Game 1 is Sunday in Chicago.

The Kings added the victory to their 7-1 record in elimination games over the past two years, showing off the remarkable poise that has led to eight playoff series victories in three seasons. The 2012 Stanley Cup champions took charge in the first period and led 5-0 late in the second, never allowing the Ducks to get close in their own building.

Los Angeles, which chased Gibson on Kopitar's goal early in the second period, hung on to win its second straight seven-game series. The Kings rallied from an 0-3 deficit to stun San Jose in the first round.

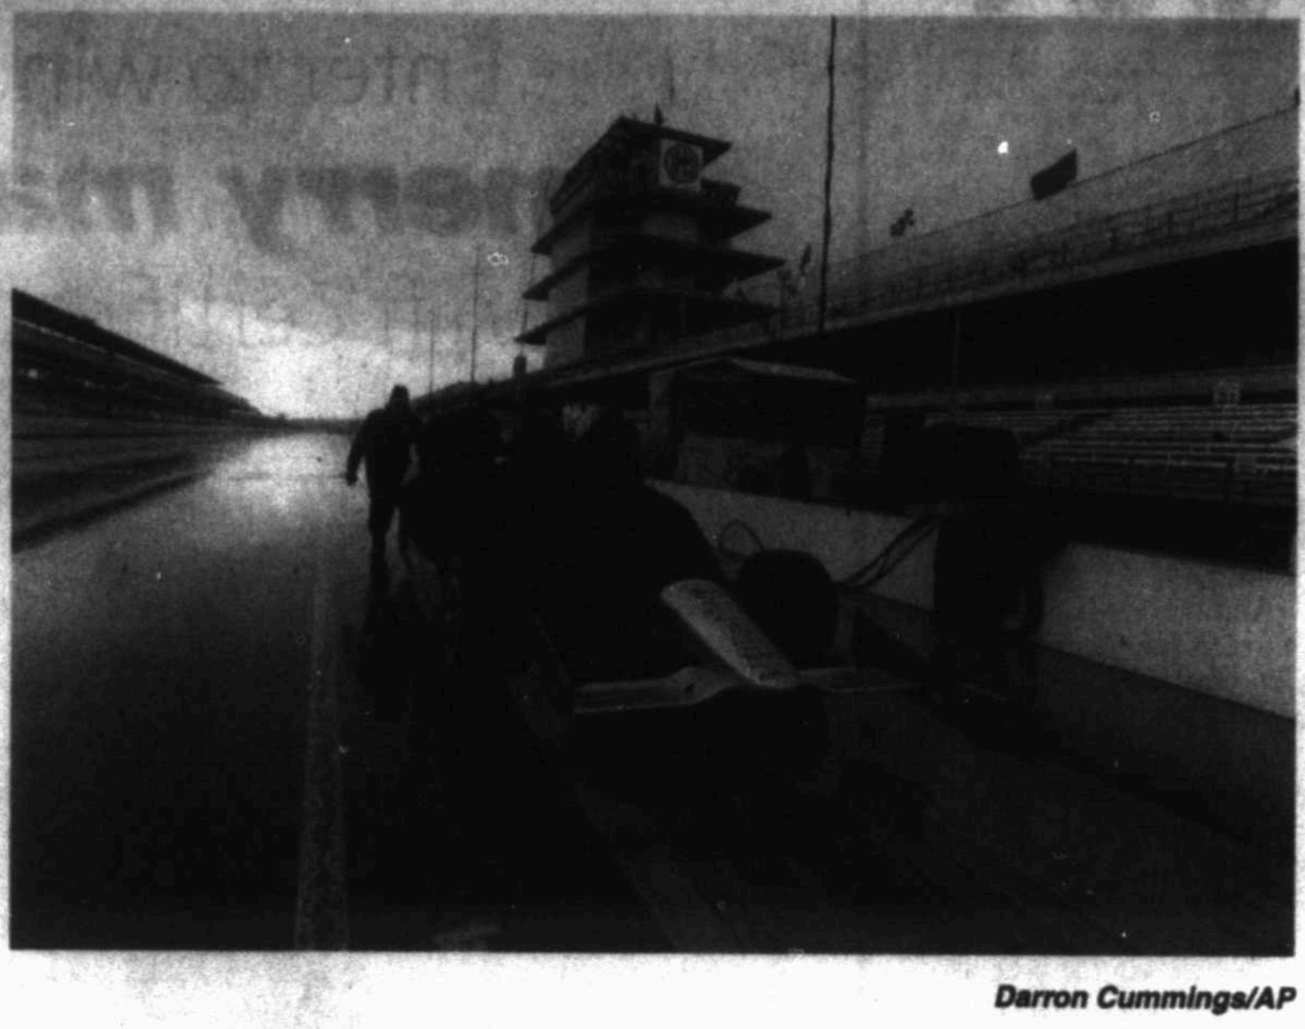
Indy 500 injects drama back into qualifying

By Dan Gelston
Associated Press



Darron Cummings/AP

The crew of Tony Kanaan pushes the car back to the garage area as rain halted practice for the Indianapolis 500 on Friday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS — IndyCar gave the bump to Bump Day, and the series is ready to say hello to a new Indianapolis 500 qualifying format.

The Indy 500 is ready for its dramatic makeover, with a revamped two-day show loaded with points incentives that makes one of IndyCar's signature weekends relevant again, and throws a significant wrinkle in the championship chase.

Gone are Saturday's traditional Pole Day and Sunday's Bump Day.

In their place, a new format that locks the fastest 33 drivers in the field today, then sets the top nine Sunday.

"Do I want to qualify twice in two days? Not really," reigning Indy 500 champion Tony Kanaan said. "But I think it will bring a lot more excitement."

IndyCar wanted to shake up its staid way of four-lap qualifying runs that had set the field since 1939, in part because the last two years have lacked a 34th entrant and there was no bumping on Bump Day. So all entries this year will be guaranteed at least one four-lap attempt to qualify, and the fastest nine drivers will move into the shootout.

The previous days' times will be erased on Sunday and entries 10 through 33 will complete another four-lap qualifying attempt to determine their starting position. The fastest nine drivers from Saturday will then make one four-lap attempt to determine the prestigious pole winner and starting front row.

For the first time, IndyCar is awarding points based on qualifying runs. The top qualifier on Saturday earns 33 points, second place gets 32 and so on, all the way to one point for the 33rd-place entrant.

The pole winner earns another nine points Sunday, decreasing to one point for the ninth-place starter.

Will Power holds a one-point edge over Ryan Hunter-Reay (149-148) in the standings entering the weekend, a lead in theory he could surrender before the green flag drops for the May 25 Indianapolis 500.

"I'm sure if you're one of the fast cars at the front competing for the championship, you would definitely go back out to gain some points," Power said.

The Indianapolis 500, the Pocono IndyCar 500, and the 500-mile season finale race at Fontana, California all award double points.

That setup could give a huge boost to oval aces like Kanaan, Helio Castroneves and Marco Andretti. In theory, an oval racer could win the championship on three or four weekends. But should a more versatile driver like Scott Dixon — who has won everywhere from Indy's oval to Pocono's triangle — swig the winner's milk in Victory Lane, he could emerge as a heavy favorite to defend his series championship.

Roger Penske and Chip Ganassi expect their cars to load up the Fast Nine field. Penske's three entries include three-time Indy 500 winner Castroneves, former Indy winner Juan Pablo Montoya and Power. Ganassi boasts Kanaan, Dixon, Ryan Briscoe and Charlie Kimball.

"We have to be in that top nine," Penske said. "I think that's going to be critical to get three cars in that Fast Nine, Fast 10."

FAST FRIDAY: Ed Carpenter had the fastest speed on Fast Friday of the Indianapolis 500. Last year's Indy 500 pole-sitter reached 230.522 mph in just eight laps before practice concluded due to inclement weather. Carpenter was the first to top 230 since the start of practice. Helio Castroneves was second at 229.843 and Marco Andretti was third at 229.419. Rain delayed the start of Fast Friday for almost three hours and lasted only 20 minutes before a yellow flag due rain. Track activity was canceled just before 4:30 p.m.

COR-SAGE: Sage Karam saved some money on a tuxedo rental and a corsage. The 19-year-old rookie driver out of Pennsylvania skipped his Nazareth Area High School prom on Friday night and practiced for the Indy 500. Karam, the reigning Indy Lights champion, will drive the No. 22 Chevrolet in a car fielded jointly by Chip Ganassi Racing and Dreyer & Reinbold Kingdom Racing. "Instead of going to senior prom today I'll be dancing with some extra boost! (hash)fastfriday," he tweeted. Karam, who spent a rainy Friday morning playing Xbox in the garage, hardly seemed bummed about missing the high school ritual. "It's OK now," he said. "I've gotten to the point where I'm doing something so much cooler. I'm so thrilled that I'm here doing this. Most of my friends aren't even going to prom anyway because they've got a wrestling tournament they're going to."

INDY 2015: Jonathan Byrd's Racing is returning to the Indy 500 next year. The team will return with Bryan Clauson behind the wheel. JBR fielded Indy 500 cars from 1985 to 2001, and it last had an entry in 2005. Clausen was 30th in the 2012 Indy 500 driving for Sarah Fisher Hartman Racing.

AWARD WINNER: Andrea Toso, head of research and development and U.S. Racing Leader for Dallara for the Dallara Racing Simulator, was honored with the 48th Louis Schwitzer Award on Friday. The award is given for innovation and engineering excellence in race-car design. The winner receives $10,000.

SENNA: Simon Pagenaud will honor his racing hero Ayrton Senna by wearing a specially-designed helmet in the Indianapolis 500 as a tribute to the three-time World Champion. Pagenaud will auction off the helmet to benefit the Instituto Ayrton Senna, which aids children in need in Brazil.

Ellis named coach of US women's national team

By Anne M. Peterson
Associated Press

Jill Ellis has been named the U.S. national team coach in the run-up to the women's World Cup next summer in Canada and beyond.

Ellis has been the interim coach since Tom Sermanni was surprisingly dismissed in early April after an exhibition victory against China.

It was Ellis' second stint as an interim coach with the team; she also took over when previous head coach Pia Sundhage resigned in 2012 to become head coach of Sweden's national team. Ellis has a 6-0-3 record overall as the team's interim coach.

Ellis

Ellis was an assistant to both Sermanni and Sundhage. She was on the staff of the gold medal-winning U.S. teams at the Beijing and London Olympics.

The 47-year-old coach, who is well respected among national team players, has had a lengthy coaching career, including 12 seasons at UCLA.

"Not beating around the bush, I know the expectation, embrace the expectation," Ellis said Friday. "I know that we want to win, and I think this group is capable of winning. That's what we want, it is always the expectation. People ask me if that's intimidating and I say no, because when you work for U.S. soccer it's about winning gold medals and standing on the first-place podium."

The U.S. women's team, which has been ranked No. 1 for the past six years, next plays a pair of exhibition matches against France in Tampa, Florida, and East Hartford, Connecticut, in mid-June.

The United States will host the eight-team CONCACAF qualifying tournament in October for the 2015 World Cup, according to an announcement Friday. The tournament was originally scheduled to take place in Mexico but there were "issues" concerning the venues, U.S. Soccer President Sunil Gulati said. The venues and schedule for the tournament have yet to be determined.

Despite the team's success on the international stage in recent years, the U.S. women haven't won a World Cup title since 1999. Japan won the 2011 World Cup in Germany, defeating the United States on a penalty shoot-out following a 2-2 draw after extra time.

"The job description is to win next summer," Gulati said during a conference call Friday announcing Ellis' appointment.

Beyond that, the U.S. team will also look to defend back-to-back-to-back Olympic titles in Brazil the following year.

Sermanni helped the U.S. to a 13-0-3 record last year, but the Americans went 1-2-1 at the Algarve Cup in March, the last major tournament for the U.S. before qualifying this fall.

The seventh-place Algarve Cup finish included a 1-0 loss to Sweden and Sundhage, ending a two-year, 43-game unbeaten streak. That was the first loss following a 16-0-4 start under Sermanni.

Ellis led the team to a 3-0 exhibition win in the second match against China after Sermanni was dismissed.

"We're comfortable with Jill, we love Jill, we have a lot of respect for Jill, and she didn't really miss a beat. She put the pen on the board and she just started coaching," U.S. goalkeeper Hope Solo said following the match. "I'm always honored to be coached by Jill. Every time she has something to say, I always perk up and listen."

Ellis will step down from her position as U.S. Soccer women's development director now that she is the head coach, the organization said.

"We think Jill's got all the right credentials, both in terms of experience, and how she relates to the players — we've been able to see that firsthand in the two times she'd been with the senior team and previously with our youth teams," Gulati said. "She gets top marks in all the work she's been doing on the technical side with all of our programs in the last several years. It's all of those things."

FROM WIRE REPORTS

YOUNG FINISHES 28TH IN CHARLOTTE TRUCK RACE: At Concord, N.C., Midlander Tyler Young finished 28th in the North Carolina Education Lottery 200 NASCAR Camping World Truck Race at Charlotte Motor Speedway on Friday.

Young started 23rd in the 134-lap event and finished 66 laps in the fourth NASCAR Trucks race of the season..

Kyle Busch won the race, leading 130 of the 134 laps at the 1.5-mile track.

BOWYER WINS SHOWDOWN, JOSH WISE WINS FAN VOTE: At Concord, N.C., Clint Bowyer has won the Sprint Showdown to advance into the $1 million All-Star Race.

AJ Allmendinger finished second to also advance into Saturday night's main event.

The Sprint Showdown is traditionally held immediately before the All-Star race, with the top two finishers and the winner of a fan vote transferring into the dash-for-cash. But the qualifier was moved to Friday night at Charlotte Motor Speedway and the warm-up wasn't a thriller.

Until the winner of the fan vote was announced.

Josh Wise was the upset winner, powered by the online community at Reddit and fans who support him through the digital currency Dogecoin. He beat out favorite Danica Patrick to earn a spot in the All-Star race.

DEJORIA, ENDERS-STEVENS LEAD NHRA QUALIFYING: At Commerce, Ga., Alexis DeJoria topped Funny Car qualifying, and fellow female racer Erica Enders-Stevens led the Pro Stock field Friday in the NHRA Summer Nationals at Atlanta Dragway.

DeJoria, the wife of television personality Jesse James and daughter of entrepreneur John Paul DeJoria, had a run of 4.012 seconds at 313.95 mph in her Toyota Camry. She won this year in Arizona and Las Vegas.

Enders-Stevens, the points leader coming off a victory in the last event in Baytown, had a 6.530 at 212.59 in a Chevrolet Camaro. She also won this year in Las Vegas.

Blatter: World Cup in Qatari summer 'a mistake'

Associated Press

ZURICH — It is "a mistake" to hold the World Cup in the searing summer heat of Qatar, FIFA president Sepp Blatter said.

"Yes. Well, a mistake. A mistake. You know one makes many mistakes in life. The technical report on Qatar clearly indicated that it was too hot in summer," Blatter told Swiss TV station RTS on Thursday. "But the (FIFA) executive committee decided with quite a large majority that we are going to play in Qatar."

Blatter

Blatter also said it was "more than likely" that the 2022 tournament will be moved to winter to avoid the extreme heat of June and July in the Gulf nation.

On Friday, FIFA issued a statement insisting that Blatter was not questioning the choice of Qatar itself.

"As explained in his answer to the journalist, the president reiterated that the decision to organize the World Cup in summer was an 'error' based on the technical assessment report of the bid, which had highlighted the extremely hot temperatures in summer in Qatar. At no stage did he question Qatar as the host of the 2022 FIFA World Cup," FIFA said.

In the interview, Blatter denied a suggestion that Qatar used its vast gas and oil wealth to buy the World Cup. He said political pressure from France and Germany had a role in FIFA's choice of Qatar, noting that major companies from both European nations work in the Gulf state.

"I will never say that they bought it, because it was political pushing. Really, both in France and Germany," Blatter said.

France's Foreign Ministry denied that assertion, calling it "without foundation."

Blatter also said he aims to stay on as FIFA president.

"Of course, I want to. Not just want to, I intend to continue," he said.

Blatter, who has led FIFA since 1998, will be 79 when the election is held next May.

CHROME

From 1B

Derby horses — Ride On Curlin (seventh) and General a Rod (11th) — have returned to challenge California Chrome in the Preakness.

"You need a good trip, a good setup and to have everything go your way," said Mike Maker, who trains General a Rod. "Obviously, California Chrome is head and shoulders above everybody so far. He's proved it, and every race, he's continued to do so."

Other rival trainers aren't conceding the race to California Chrome, either.

Billy Gowan oversees Ride On Curlin, who has started just as many races in his young career (10) as the Derby winner. He'll have a new jockey in Joel Rosario, who replaces Calvin Borel.

"I've got a whole lot of respect for California Chrome," Gowan said, "but I'd like to try him one time at the top of the stretch and see how we are."

That's the point in the race where Espinoza has turned California Chrome loose during their winning streak. In the Preakness, the speed horses will break from the gate on the outside of California Chrome. Rivals like Social Inclusion and Ride On Curlin could try to box in the Derby winner in an attempt to put pressure on him early.

"But he's not chicken-hearted, by no means," Sherman said. "My biggest concern is the first 70 yards leaving the gate. I don't want him to get impeded behind horses with no place to go. All you can do is hope for a good trip."

Sherman calls California Chrome a "push-button horse," meaning Espinoza can pretty much position the colt anywhere he wants in the race.

"He doesn't have to go to the lead, but if you ask him to run, he'll give you a burst," the trainer said. "The way he wins races, blows them away, blows my mind."

Still, six of the past eight Derby winners did not win the Preakness.

There's a posse of contenders that would love to extend that history.

One of them is Social Inclusion, who will be making just the fourth start of his career and first since finishing third in the Wood Memorial more than a month ago. He's trained by 85-year-old Manny Azpurua, who would become the oldest winning trainer in the 139-year history of the Preakness.

Another is Ria Antonia, the first filly to run against the boys since Rachel Alexandra won in 2009. She is on a streak of her own, having lost six straight races. Borel, who rode Rachel, is aboard.

And there's Hall of Fame trainer Bob Baffert, who will try to win his sixth Preakness with Bayern, a colt disqualified for bumping in his last start in the Derby Trial at Churchill Downs. Rosie Napravnik will be aboard, trying to be the first female jockey to win the race at the track where she rode her first winner in 2005.

Linda Rice is trying to become the first female trainer to saddle a Preakness winner with Kid Cruz, named for New York Giants wide receiver Victor Cruz. He's the only colt with a win over the Pimlico track.

The other challengers are Dynamic Impact, the Illinois Derby winner; Pablo Del Monte, third in the Blue Grass; and Ring Weekend, a gelding who was second in the Calder Derby last month.

After heavy rain overnight Thursday and into Friday, the forecast calls for mostly sunny skies and a high around 70 degrees, ensuring Pimlico's dirt track will be fast.

Stopchargingmaria wins Black-Eyed Susan

By David Ginsburg
Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Stopchargingmaria pulled away from Vero Amore in a two-horse stretch duel to win the $500,000 Black-Eyed Susan Stakes by a neck Friday.

Stopchargingmaria, the 7-2 favorite, sat back behind pace-setter Image of Anna and angled four wide near the backstretch before driving to the finish under jockey Javier Castellano.

It was the fourth Black-Eyed Susan win for trainer Todd Pletcher, who also won this Grade 2 race for 3-year-old fillies in 2005, 2007 and 2012.

Stopchargingmaria is named for owner Mike Repole's wife Maria, who he has said jokingly that she likes to shop a lot. The filly has won half her eight career races but was winless in two tries this year before this one.

Stopchargingmaria paid $9.60, $5.60 and $4.

Repole and Pletcher teamed to run Breeders' Cup juvenile winner Uncle Mo, but the colt was scratched the day before the 2011 Kentucky Derby with a gastrointestinal infection.

Being boy's second choice diminishes prom's excitement

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to my first prom yesterday. The boy is a senior and the son of a friend of my mom's.

We have a lot in common. We have been friends for years and compete against each other in academics. The problem is, he asked a close friend of mine to go to the prom last week, and he did it right in front of me.

My friends, including the girl who said no, keep telling me he really does like me, even though I was apparently his second choice. The trouble is, I already said yes and I don't want to go back on my word. How do I keep myself from feeling like a consolation prize? — SECOND BEST

DEAR S.B.: The boy who asked you to the prom wants to have a good time. As you said, you are friendly and have a lot in common. Please don't let the fact that he asked your friend first get in your way. It's not a contest for anyone's affection; it's only a dance.

DEAR ABBY: I met an amazing lady. She's beautiful, sexy, charming, attentive, classy, smart and conservative. In short, she is almost everything a good man would ask for in a woman except for one thing — she's a tad clingy, and in some instances, it is annoying.

I'm the type of guy who loves my space. She seems to respect it, but gets a little down when I decline an offer to spend time. To avoid hurting or offending her, I sometimes just do whatever will make her happy, although it feels like a chore. Don't get me wrong, I'm physically and mentally attracted to her, but I'm not sure about the emotional part.

The more I feel I'm forcing myself to spend time with her, the more I lose interest. I know this is cliche, but I honestly feel that it's not her, it's me. Am I just not ready to settle down? — LIKES MY SPACE

DEAR LIKES: That's what it sounds like to me. And that's what you should tell the lady, because someone with all the wonderful qualities you attribute to her won't be alone and heartbroken for long. In fact, if she knew that you feel you must "force" yourself to be with her, your relationship would already be history.

DEAR ABBY: In June of last year I fractured my kneecap. I was employed at the time and asked my daughter to fill in for me while I recuperated. Not only did she walk away from the job, she has yet to visit or even call me to see how I am doing.

I can't imagine anyone being so cold and distant. It hurts me to this day. How can I get past this hurt and disappointment? — STILL HURTING IN PALM DESERT

DEAR STILL HURTING: I can't imagine anyone being so cold and distant — not to mention irresponsible — unless there were unresolved issues between the two of you before you hurt your knee, or your daughter has emotional problems.

How do you get past something as painful as this wake-up call has been? The first option would be to try to understand what has caused your daughter to act the way she has. Another would be to fill your days with enough activities that you don't have time to dwell on it.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, May 17, 2014:

This year you tend to look at the big picture more. Some of you will opt to grow intellectually by going back to school or by traveling. Your imagination is the key to achieving your desires. You will need to share some of your wilder ideas with a friend to see how feasible they are. If you are single, you could meet someone from a different culture. This person might not be the right person for you, but he or she will help you see life from a different perspective. If you are attached, the two of you will plan a special trip. You will want to share more and be together more. CAPRICORN is practical.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ You might feel as if you must handle a responsibility. If you really want to enjoy your weekend, you will make this a priority. An older person will play a significant role in your plans. Be smart, and don't put this person on the back burner. Tonight: Avoid a quarrel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Dare to reach past your limitations. You could feel inspired by a conversation with someone close to you. Be careful, as you might be more accident-prone than usual today. Your perception on a specific matter will change as the day goes on. Tonight: Check out a new place.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ Deal with a partner or loved one directly. A conversation might stop and start at different times today, and at some point, it even might escalate to fighting. A new beginning becomes possible. Tonight: Togetherness works.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ You might want to try a new approach or have a lighter discussion. Try not to blame your sweetie or someone else for your own problems. It is your interaction that could change at any moment. Tonight: Say "yes" to an offer.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You might want to accept an invitation to go to a baseball game, or perhaps you would prefer to actively participate in racquetball or softball. You could be inspired by a partner to walk a new path and interact on a new level. Trust that you can adapt. Tonight: Relax a little.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You could become childlike when interacting with a loved one. This person will delight in seeing you like this, and in some sense it might provoke his or her inner child to emerge. Use some self-discipline when it comes to spending. Tonight: Have a good time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ A disconnect is likely between you and a family member. You might want to understand what triggers both of you. Wait until you get off the warpath before starting this conversation — that is, if you want a successful result. Tonight: Most comfortable at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Keep communication flowing. You are capable of making excellent choices by yourself, but what about when it comes to deciding on a group consensus? Surround yourself with like-minded people, and you will successfully find a solution. Tonight: Hang out with family.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ You make a difference to others because of your energy and spirit, yet today it could be about your dubious good sense about money. Others want you to encourage them to take a risk. Friends surround you, and they want you to join in on a happening. Tonight: Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Act the way you want to feel, and you might be surprised at how easily you can manifest this mood. Bring others together for a fun get-together, as your friends naturally seem to gravitate to you. Tonight: You intrigue someone because of how you are changing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★ Recognize that you can't be on top of your game every single day. In fact, it would be appropriate to take a step back and do less. You also might opt to go shopping. Be careful when handling money. Stay within your budget. Tonight: Not to be found.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ Zero in on what you want, and invite the right people along. Others seem to be resourceful and full of ideas. You will be much happier and relaxed if you are with those who care about and support you. A loved one could be feisty right now. Tonight: Throw a party!

GENERAL INFO

To ensure the integrity of our newspaper, for the benefit of our readers and advertisers, the Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right to revise, reclassify, edit or refuse any advertising. We also reserve the right to convert all advertising into digital and/or print formats within our other products and services.

Please check your ad the first day it appears, and, if you find a mistake, please call our office at 682-6222 so we can correct the error immediately. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. If an error does occur, you can choose to rerun your ad once for free, or we'll gladly refund the cost of the portion of the ad affected by the error. If an ad is inadvertently omitted, we will assume liability up to the cost of the ad itself – consequently, we will publish your ad in our next available edition or refund the price you have paid.

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classifications require payment in advance. Credit applications are required for business accounts.

We welcome suggestions or comments. Please call:

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
I'm not the type of person to shop the classifieds. However after reading one of your columns, I was inspired to read the business services' section. I'm really glad I did. For years I've had my hair done at a small salon near my home. Although the owner was nice, I didn't always love the way she did my hair. Surprisingly, I found a hair stylist who advertised in the classifieds. Although it was unlike me to try something like this, I threw caution to the wind and tried it anyway. It turned out that the woman gave up her salon when she had kids and found working out of her home had less overhead and more flexibility. I have to tell you, she is not only very personable, but I love what she did with my hair. It's priceless! What I can't decide is if I should tell my old stylist that I won't be coming back. After so many years, is it rude to just stop going? I don't want any hurt feelings.

• • •

Cash: I think many women would agree with you that a good hair stylist is priceless. Although, there's probably many husbands who could put a price limit on them!

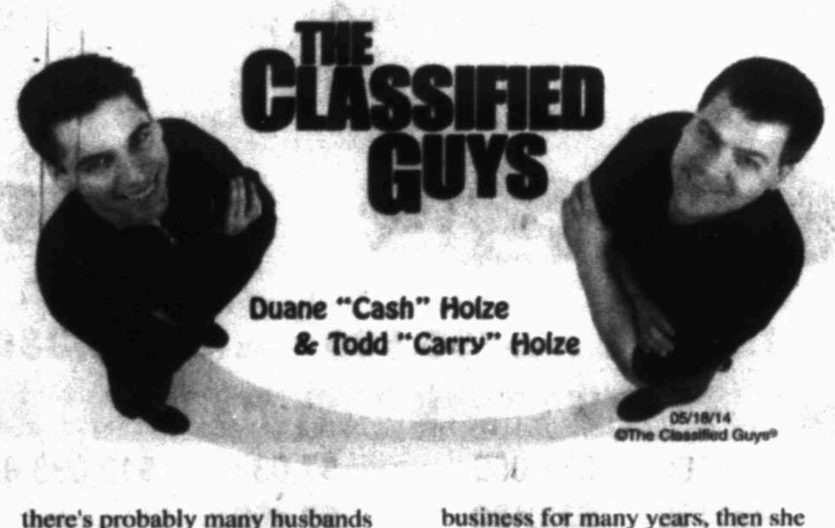
Carry: Now the good part is that you found a new hairstylist you like, and you did it trying something new, by reading the business services' section.

Cash: It's very nice of you to be concerned about the feelings of your previous stylist, but you have to remember that at the end of the day, she is running a business. When you don't like the quality of someone you hired, it's perfectly normal to discontinue using the service.

Carry: From your stylist point of view, it's likely she has experienced this before. If she's been in business for many years, then she knows that customers will come and go. They may move out of town, desire a new cut or just want some new gossip!

Cash: Whether you tell your stylist or not, she'll eventually realize you're not coming back. It's likely not an issue unless you bump into her around town. Then, you can simply tell her that you've decided to try someone new. Regardless of the awkwardness, it's always best to be upfront and honest.

Carry: Of course telling the truth does have its limits. You may want to avoid letting your husband know what it really costs to get your hair styled.



Fast Facts

Pony Tail

Most of us cut our hair every 1 to 3 months depending on the hairstyle. Considering human hair grows about ½ inch per month, you can accumulate about 6 inches in length every year. So what would happen if you never cut your hair? That's a question best answered by a woman named Xie Qiuping of China. In 1973, at the age of 13, she stopped cutting her hair. Today, she is the world record holder of the longest hair measuring over 18 feet in length.

Twisted

While most businesses advertise with a sign, some barbers still choose to mark their shop with a red, blue and white striped pole. This icon has been around for hundreds of years and originated when barbers were known for more than cutting hair. Centuries ago a barber also performed the surgical procedure of bloodletting, the act of removing blood from the body as a cure for diseases. After the procedure the stained bandages were hung out to dry on a pole as a sort of advertisement. They often twisted in the wind, forming the pattern of the modern day barber pole.

Every time my wife goes to the hair salon she wants a new hairstyle. Some styles she likes and some she doesn't. I'm constantly chuckling at the hours she spends searching through magazines for a picture of the style she wants that month.

Last time she cut out a picture of a famous celebrity walking her poodle and said she wanted the hairstyle on the woman. When she returned home from the salon, she was completely dissatisfied with the results.

"Sure they do," I laughed knowing I'd get into trouble. "They just look more like the poodle!"
