

Roosevelt Park A Game Refuge

Paul Russell, known as "the wild game man" about Roosevelt park, is working to have a game refuge established with a radius of one mile about the park. He wants two other sections for antelope and sandhill deer.

He is working to get species of the quail and prairie chicken planted this fall.

If his plans work out the shooting in the vicinity of the refuge should be better by this fall.

His plan is to allow no shooting whatever on the refuge. This ruling will make the birds on the refuge gentle and give them protection for raising their young.

When the birds raise they will fly to other parts of the neighboring country where they may be hunted.

There is a good supply of the blue mountain quail already on the refuge. These seem to be the hardest variety of the quail family.

Russell thinks that there used to be a good supply of the bob white quail here. However, on account of the drought and other adversities that the species was not able to withstand they have been exterminated. This species is being planted in the park at the present time.

The other species of the quail that is planned to be planted is the gambel. It is found in the southwestern part of the state along the Rio Grande river and in the canyons.

This is probably the most handsome bird of the three. He is a proud fellow. His back is blue. His wings are brown with white bars. His breast is blue and brown with a large white bar across it. The head is blue with a brown top on which is a long slim black crest.

The gambel species has not been tried in this part of the country; however, judging by their thrift in the Tucumcari country, Russell thinks that they will do well in this locality.

In discussing the prairie chickens, Russell stated "I hope to see the country restocked with prairie chickens as it was in the earlier days."

One of the biggest handicaps at the present time is the lack of feed for this winter. Feed is being planted on the park with a hope that it will rain.

The people who own the land about the park are cooperating very nicely with the establishing of the game refuge. The ones that are holding up the completion of the plans are parties who are not living here at the present time.

"There is no restriction on the land except that there can be no hunting," Russell stated.

Russell pointed out that the insects that the quail would destroy would help the farmers many times over the damage the quails would do to the crops.

Inquiries are being made to get plumb sprouts and other kinds of bushes for the protection of the quail. Any one having an extra supply of plumb sprouts can help the park by donating them.

Phasants are being considered, but they require more marshes and low land than are possible to obtain in this part of New Mexico, at the present time.

In order to have an antelope and sandhill deer refuge, two sections of land will have to be obtained. At present there is no prospect of such an acquisition.

Claudell Development Co. Well Now About Ready to Spud In

Out in the Claudell community the oil derrick of the Claudell Development Company rears 84 feet in the sky.

The erection of this rig actually began on Thursday of last week and the huge steel frame was completed by noon Sunday.

Riggers and mechanics have been busy getting this rig in shape to spud in by the latter part of this week.

Engine house and drillers sheds were erected this week, and several truck loads of tools and equipment were received Monday and Tuesday.

When one considers that over 200 tons of material has been used on this project, an idea of the magnitude of the undertaking is realized.

It is hoped to have the building ready for the second semester.

Clouds coming up in the afternoon cooled the atmosphere to some extent.

President MacKay Announces Aid for Cripples to Attend College

Must Take Vocation Course

State supervisor, Brice Sewell, informed President Donald McKay while here last week that there would be funds to aid students from New Mexico in attendance at college when ever they are crippled or in any other way handicapped by accident or birth; provided, they take courses which train definitely for earning a living.

Any student who is 16 years or over who wants to train for a particular line of work and cannot afford to pay his or her own way should communicate with President Donald McKay or Dean Floyd Golden.

The funds available are sufficient to take care of half of the expenses of the students.

The courses that students may take and get aid are commercial, agriculture, auto mechanics, carpentry, rural education, if handicaps are not too great.

Drilling Started On Park Well

Drilling on the deep well for the Roosevelt Park in the Blackwater draw started yesterday. The machinery has already been purchased.

The pump will throw from between one thousand and sixteen hundred gallons of water per minute. It is to be pulled by a forty-five horse power engine.

The water from this well will be used to fill the lake and make ponds to beautify the park. It is reported that water should be running within the next few days, unless some unforeseen trouble happens.

Crow Has Nice Cutting of Alfalfa

J. B. Crow harvested his third cutting of alfalfa last week on his tract of the edge of town. This is the first year for the alfalfa on this land.

He harvested about a ton to the acre. He does not think that the hay on this land is as good as it will be next year. However, he is not complaining about the quality of this year's crop.

Crow is not selling any of this crop of hay. It is being stored for winter feed for his cows.

Local Feed Crops Are Used Locally

With all the alfalfa fields near Portales, alfalfa hay is being shipped in to feed the teams on the road work of the county.

Upon investigation, it was found that the hay could not be bought from Roosevelt county farmers. The farmers, themselves are needing the hay raised here for local consumption.

One man stated last week that he would be glad to contract millet hay for his stock this winter at $15.00 per ton. Other hay crops show every indication that they are going to be sorter than the local demand.

Some of the grain prices jumped about twenty-five cents on the hundred in one week. Jay Stone who works for the Farmers Co-operative Elevator says that grain can be shipped in from the east about as cheap as it can be bought here.

Some of the farmers in the south part of the county are reported to have feed on hand from last year's crops. This feed is not on the market it is underfoot.

Many of the farmers in the irrigated district are not offering their stock feed for sale. Henry Beebe is feeding his unmarketable potatoes and strings to his hogs.

C. A. Bousman who handles the feed for the road camp thought the first of the week that the county would do well to raise enough feed to furnish it through the winter.

RAIN FALL FOR PORTALES

J. B. Sledge the official weather man for Portales stated that there was 1.41 inches of rain in Portales during the month of July.

The purpose of the early registration, is to allow the pupils time to get their books before starting the regular classes.

A considerable increase in enrollment is anticipated and every effort is being made to make this one of the most successful years we have ever had. And as there is very little to be gathered this year, we do not expect to have to stop to gather crops as has previously been the case.

Lee Recommends Roan Durham Cows

J. H. Lee, cashier of the First National Bank advises farmers when replenishing their herds to turn to the roan durham, as they are an all purpose cattle.

The roan durham is a good milk cow, and the calves bring a good price, and they are more thrifty than the jersey cattle.

Mr. Lee says that in replacing, thoroughbred cattle should be used. He does not advise stocking heavily in the next year or so, as with the present tax which is bound to come to bear the cost of slaughtered cattle, cattle prices will be low.

President MacKay Announces Trades Program Approved

The trades program for the Eastern New Mexico Junior College was approved the later part of last week by Brice Sewell, the state supervisor. This program includes the study of auto mechanics, gas engines, water pumps, and carpentry.

While Sewell was here he interviewed the managers of the various garages and secured an agreement of 100 per cent cooperation in working out the program in auto mechanics. The college is to do no commercial auto mechanic work.

All the make of cars will be furnished by the local business men. Every garage agreed to cooperate in every other way by exchange of help.

The course will help a man learn the trade in one year. This will include a study of the engine, the electrical part of the car, and the body of the car. The work will be on all makes of cars.

President McKay went on to explain that five hours work per day will be one of the requisites of the course. No academic requirements are necessary to take the course.

"The approval of the supervisor means federal aid will be received for assistance maintaining the department," stated McKay.

An instructor with qualifications to meet governmental approval will be selected. One of the requirements of the instructor's qualification is he must have been a master mechanic for five years.

The courses in carpentry, gas engines, and water pumps in intended to be real practical benefit to young men of this part of the country.

"There will be no college credit given for this course," explained McKay. "The point is, it will give the students a chance to learn a practical trade."

He hopes that a building will be available for this work by fall. It is planned to have a building that can be used in connection with the vocational agriculture course.

New Equipment Is Purchased

Coach D. H. Reed was enthusiastic about the prospect for a fair football team for Eastern New Mexico Junior College this fall.

Football equipment sufficient for thirty men was purchased and will be on hand by the opening of college this fall. This equipment is all new and will be of good quality.

The athletes that he interviewed seem to be ready and anxious for football practice to start. He does not plan to have a championship team the first year; however, he thinks that the football fans of Portales will see some good football this fall.

Roosevelt Co. Welfare Assn. Completes Its Organization

1100 Men At Work Now On Relief Project

The Roosevelt County welfare Association completed its organization this week with the addition of J. Robert Woods, of Rogers, to its staff. This brings the number up to 6. The county is divided among the aides as follows: Mrs. Mary B. Moody, Portales; Mrs. Jones Brown Smith Portales; Mr. John McDonald, Floyd and the Panhandle; Mr. Eugene Butts, the southeastern portion; Mrs. Frances Christoe, the Elida district, J.

Robert Wood, Rogers and district. There are approximately 1700 families on relief at the present time. Families that have no one able bodied to work for them are receiving direct relief, except where their needs are small and can be supplied from the surplus commodities. Families that have able bodied men are allowed to work for their relief. There are about 1100 of these on the work projects now. During the extreme pressure of work, uniform budgets were set up, but now the relief association has begun to budget families individually and in the future relief will be given according to the merits in each case.

PAID RELIEF WORKERS

There is some misapprehension as to who is classed as a paid relief worker, affected by the order of Mrs. Reeves. The News interprets this to mean that any one on a salary in the administration of this work, is classed as a paid relief worker and is affected by this order.

The man who is on relief, is not a relief worker, but the recipient of relief work.

All workers will be allowed to exercise their privilege of voting, regardless as to whether they are on the relief rolls or are on the administration end of this work.

This order by Mrs. Reeves, is for the protection of those receiving work under the relief program, and it is their duty to inform themselves so that they may cast an intelligent vote.

ROOSEVELT COUNTY STILL ATTRACTING INHERS OF OIL FRATERNITY

That the oil fraternity is watching Roosevelt county development is demonstrated by the large number of inquiries from distant states for the Portales Valley News.

500 extra copies of the paper announcing the Claudell Development Test have been mailed out, and yet calls for this issue still come in.

Those interested in this development will be kept informed through the News each week, and the safest way to secure this information is to subscribe, as extra copies are soon exhausted, and cannot be supplied.

DO NOT GO HOG WILD ON CROPS

Press dispatches say that the crop reduction program will be discontinued in 1935.

This being the case many farmers will go hog wild on planting great crops of cotton, broom corn, wheat and other money crops, and even one season can produce a great surplus under favorable conditions.

The wise farmer will begin planning his crops at this time and diversify instead of going too heavily on any one crop.

Sudan pasturage for the dairy herds will bring good profit in cream production, and it looks as if with the wholesale slaughter of dairy cattle that cream is bound to be a good price.

Cutting down the dairy herds and giving them a better care will produce greater profits.

BE PREPARED

If Portales is to take advantage of the development headed this way, she will have to be prepared and ready to receive the advantages.

Better roads are needed into every section of the county.

Better housing conditions are needed to take care of those coming here for this development.

Portales, while she may not be facing a boom, is facing a steady growth, that will be of advantage to everyone.

The oil development is bringing many here at this time, and as the well progresses more will come.

The Junior College is bringing in many citizens who are inquiring for homes in a good school town. These make the very best class of citizens.

Portales business interests can reap a fair harvest from this growth of our city if they are on their toes and go after the business.

If they do not go after it some live wire from neighboring towns will get it. Be prepared.

HATS OFF TO ELIDA

Elida is taking advantage of the oil development in the Claudell community, by building better roads into that section, and the Elida merchants are on their toes going after this business.

Business is where you find it, and Elida instead of waiting for this business to come her way, is going out into the field and soliciting it, and getting results.

Hats off to Elida.

THE UNEMPLOYED COUNCIL

On several occasions members of the Unemployed Council have taken issue with the News, and accused it of fighting their interests.

The Portales Valley News is for the greatest good to the greatest number, and has always advocated programs that would bring this about.

In no instance has the News advocated any measure that would work to the disadvantage to the unemployed—in fact it has advocated measures to give employment to a great number, and is pleased that its views are being carried out by President Franklin

In fact the editorials of the News on this subject have been reproduced all over the United States, and many of these suggestions have been adopted.

It is probable that in many instances the News has been wrong, and will continue to be wrong, but the principal object of any editorial is to get the people to thinking.

Whenever the public becomes interested enough in political and economical problems, then a remedy will be found.

The News will welcome the day when every family in the United States will be able to own their own home, and enjoy the conveniences provided by science.

This is also the ideal of our president, and the only way that this can be brought about is by cooperation.

THE JUNIOR COLLEGE DORMITORY

Good news for the Junior College that the appropriation under PWA for the erection of a $49,000 dormitory for the Junior College.

The housing problem is growing in importance and it is becoming difficult to provide quarters for the students of the college, and this difficulty will grow each year.

It will require some time before work may begin in the dormitory building, as the plans have to be approved by the administration, and bids asked for.

It will probably be 120 days at least before this building can be completed.

RESTORING CONFIDENCE

The "handwriting on the wall" seems to indicate that unless the banks of the country loosen up their credit policies the government is going to provide ways and means of extending credit to small industries. Such a step may be taken but it would be unnecessary if the bankers would resume their normal place in the business world.

According to authentic sources, the banks of the United States are bursting with deposits and idle funds are so plentiful that the bankers themselves can turn no profit, while trade and industry are working practically on a day-to-day basis without the credit facilities that are vital to business growth and normal progress.

The problem seems to resolve itself into the failure of the bankers to lend on character rather than on collateral at a time when collateral is none too plentiful. The development of this great western empire would have been slow indeed if credit had been extended to the pioneer settlers only on gilded security. Character as a basis for financial credit played a major part in the early history and its restoration would do much to speed recovery from the depression.

This is primarily a local problem, not one to be solved in Washington or New York if character is to play its logical part in business relationships, then these transactions must be local in nature. They must have the spirit of neighborliness in them. They must be a manifestation of confidence as between friends in a common purpose, the development and progress of the community.

Neighbors must accept each other's promises at their face value. When that is done, fear will be banished and the depression will be over.—Irrigator Selma, Cal.

At Portales I met my friend J. G. Greaves of the Portales Valley News. His face appeared greasy and his smile a lot greasier. You see all the machinery is ready for bringing in a dry hole on his land. He was sort of laughing at me for plastering my town with an extra edition giving out the information that the machinery was all ready for spudding in on this famous duster. Those oil stock salesmen must have greased his palm or imposed on his simplicity.

Seriously, though, and this is no joke, I know whereof I speak that Mr. Greaves has a mighty good bet; that while this location might not prove the one to ring the bell, it will jingle somewhere south of Clovis. I have this from some of the best informed oil men in Tulsa, Oklahoma. And they have some pretty good oil men there too. BUMPER APPLE CROP IN STATE THIS YEAR

The commercial apple crop for 1934, taking the country as a whole, is much under the average according to H. C. Stewart, of the New Mexico State College. The estimate as of August 1 is only 77 percent of last year's crop of 110 million bushels for 1934 as against 143 million bushels in 1933.

This, however, is not the condition found in New Mexico. The estimate of this state as of August 1 was over four times as much as last year's crop. The 1934 State estimate is 1,172,000 as against 285,000 bushels harvested in 1933. The prospects for New Mexico's apple crop is the best in many years. The five year average is only 810,000 bushels.

The big shortage in the National crop is in the Eastern and Mid-Western states. In New York, Maine, and many other states in the northern area of the eastern apple belt, the past severe winter did much damage. In the Hudson Valley of New York the PERA has been appealed to for help in removing dead trees. The extent of the damage is not yet fully known, but it is believed that future crops will show the results of abandonment for a number of years to come.

The crop in the Northwest, the largest commercial growing section of the country, is larger than last year and fully up to the average for the past five years. The Northwest is, of course, New Mexico's principal competitor on the southern and central apple markets. New Mexico has some advantage because of a slightly cheaper freight rate which should be considered when quoting prices. Some of the most experienced growers are of the opinion that well graded and packed apples will move at a wagon. At the close of camp, August 26, Mr. White will assist with the 200 mile horseback pack trip to the Carlsbad Cavern. Girls in camp from Portales, N. M., are Winifred May, Marie Neer, Ethel Ohr, and Barbara Green.

Watermelons Good This Season

Watermelon eating seems to be the fad about Portales these days. Sunday afternoon drivers could see people sitting in the shade of the houses in circles and in the circles were large watermelons or the rinds.

The quality of the watermelons this year seem to be better than it is for the average year. It seems that the Stone mountain and the Shockler are the most popular varieties so far this season. However, there are quite a few Tom Watson and Kleckley's Sweet varieties being eaten.

Most of the water melons, in fact practically all of them are raised on the irrigated farms.

The canteloupes seem to be just as good and popular as the watermelons, but a larger part of them seem to be used on the table.

Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Slaton and Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Partin were in Clovis Friday night.

better price than last year and at a considerable over price received in 1932.

Because of a favorable season, many trees in this state are over-loaded and the farmers, generally, have failed to thin properly. This will doubtless have its effect on the local and nearby markets and, perhaps, not to the farmers' advantage.

EMERGENCY CROP AND FEED LOAN OFFICE

Advices received from Washington to-day permit additional advances to farmers in the drought areas for the purchase of winter seed wheat, rye or barley, or for summer fallowing, or both, according to Mr. Charles W. Sherrill, Regional Manager of the Emergency Crop Loan office of Dallas, Texas.

Mr. Sherrill states that in no cases can a borrower obtain a loan for the purchase of winter seed wheat, rye or barley, or for summer fallowing, or both, during the year of 1934, in excess of $400.00 or an aggregate from the 1934 Emergency Crop Loan Fund exceeding $750.00.

As an explanation, a borrower who has received a crop loan of $250.00 and a wheat loan of $200.00 will be eligible for area. If the borrower has received a wheat loan of $400.00, he will not be entitled to an additional loan to assist him in the planting and cultivating of his wheat crop.

The time for making loans for summer fallowing and for the purchase of seed wheat has been extended to September 15, 1934.

Cotton Farmers Are Irrigating

The cotton farmers in the irrigated area of the Portales Valley were irrigating their crops the first of this week. They are not taking any chances of the plants shedding their blooms on account of dry weather.

Cotton is one of the crops that has stood the dry weather unusually well. The plants on the irrigated farms are full of blooms as a rule. The most of these blooms are red.

One of the questions that all the farmers are asking is how long the frost is going to stay off. If the frost does not come unusually early, this fall, most of the farmers who have cotton that will produce a fair yield.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Conducted by Dr. J. R. Earp, Director, New Mexico Bureau of Public Health.

The Future of Tuberculosis
To utter prophecy is always dangerous; all I shall attempt will be to show the director in which we are moving.

How much tuberculosis was there before health seekers began pouring into the Southwest? Probably not very much. Findings of the health survey made this year show that among 15,000 cases of tuberculosis in the state only about one quarter are among Spanish Americans, the truly native sons of the Southwest. But even this means that several thousand of our present cases of tuberculosis have originated among our own people.

In other parts of America the incidence of tuberculosis is declining. This seems to be largely because there are fewer active cases to spread infection. Some of those cases have left in New Mexico the germ that they have not left in other states. And, contrary to what some people had believed (or hoped) the germs have got a start among our population. Twice as many Spanish American children are infected as Anglo American children. The survey also has shown that a New Mexico child is more than twice as likely to become infected in a family without tuberculosis.

The moral: unless we make an effort today to stop the spread of tuberculosis in this state, we shall be called upon tomorrow to make an effort that will have to be greater and more expensive.

MRS. J. M. McCLURE
Mrs. J. M. McClure died Tuesday, August 14th, at Texico and was buried in Portales cemetery Aug. 15. The funeral was held at the Baptist church with Wheeler Johnson in charge. Rev. J. F. Nix of Clovis preached the funeral.

"43% MORE NON-SKID MILEAGE"

"You're too modest!"
Motorists who got the first G-3's put out—months before the public announcement—say, "You're too modest!" Many of them report 50% to 100% more non-skid mileage. Why, then, do we insist on only 43%? Well, 43% is a definite test-car-proved figure. Very likely it is low for normal use—because the tests which established the 43% average were gruelling: cars speeding up to 50, jamming on brakes, mile after mile, day and night. Very likely most motorists will get more than 43% more non-skid mileage. But we'll string along with 43%—because it's plenty to deliver at no extra cost. Come see the tire that's the talk of the nation.

PUBLIC HEALTH

Conducted by Dr. J. R. Eary, Director, New Mexico Bureau of Public Health.

IN COMPARISON

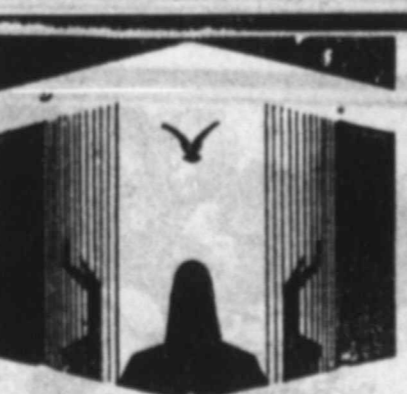

Two items in my evening paper for July 28th suggest a discussion of comparative values. Item one relative to the expenditure of $25,000 for topping roads. Mr. G. E. Mauldin explains to the state board of finance that the cost of topping is $1,500 a mile. That makes $15,000 for a ten mile stretch. Suppose that no further maintenance is required on that stretch for five years then the cost of maintaining ten miles of 16 foot roadway is slightly more than the cost of maintaining a public health nurse or a sanitary inspector. We need the roads, of course. There is no argument about that. But we also need the nurses and inspectors. What will it profit the tourist to travel over ten miles of good road if at the end of his journey he gets typhoid fever?

The second item is on the front page. Returning to his home town Co. Natha Salmon recounts the signs of better times that he has noticed on a trip to Yellowstone Park; amongst them that at the Antlers Hotel in Colorado Springs "six thousand dollars was spent for liquor alone one night." If folks cared for health as much as they care for liquor what a lot of funerals might be postponed.

Mrs. Ed Parker of Lubbock spent the week end with Mr. and Capterton and Betty Jean accompanied her as far as Amarillo where they stopped for a weeks visit.

A MORAL CRUSADE

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

At last the public mind has become aroused at the indecent element in the movies.

Righteous indignation has expressed itself in unmistakable terms. An organized censorship has been created which not only means business, but will prove relentless in its efforts to clean the silver screen of its pictures which savor of immorality.

For many years there was supposed to exist a censorship for this very purpose. It made many promises but they were never fulfilled. Movies grew worse and worse. Those that would not be tolerated in an American theater were sent to China and other foreign countries. The sole object of those who had charge of exporting these pictures seemed to have been the picture could earn. The educational and moral factors never entered their calculations. It seemed that the producers concluded that the public conscience had been completely calloused, consequently their efforts to present the grotesque and immoral became bolder and bolder. All of a sudden something happened. The mind of the public spoke. These producers were given something to think about. As one critic put it, "They've got it coming to them."

There are many channels through which the public conscience may speak. The most effective is the one through which this protest has come, the organized forces of Christianity. Never in the history of modern times have the different divisions of organized Christianity spoken more earnestly or unitedly on any moral issue. The Roman Catholic, the Jewish and the entire Protestant world have arisen in vigorous protest, saying you have gone far enough, you can go no farther, we declare a moratorium, or better still, a complete elimination of the immoral picture. These Christian forces hold the balance of power. The producers know that right well; so we may soon expect better things for this part of our amusement program. The movie may become an important source of great good. Perhaps that day is near.

Why not go farther—why not have a concerted action against the immoral element in all our yellow journalism, our cheap vaudeville shows, etc. Why not? When once the public conscience becomes aroused, something is bound to happen!

CORN STORED IN SILO GIVES BETTER RESULTS

An acre of corn in the silo will winter 50 per cent more cattle than the same acre fed as fodder. The silo saves feed, prevents other wastes, and makes the feed more palatable.

There has never been a year when it was more essential that farmers in all parts of the country should make the best use of every bit of feed on the farm, says A. T. Temple of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

All kinds of green crops such as corn, oats, other cereals, grain sorghums, corn and pea canneries refuse, apple pomace, grasses and legumes ordinarily cut for hay, sunflowers and other edible weeds including Russian thistles, may be cut into silage suitable for livestock feeding. Water-sprayed products, such as cull potatoes, apple culls, and beet tops, should be mixed with straw, stover, or some dry roughage to improve the quality of the silage. Crops which have become mature in the field, such as corn fodder, may be made into fairly good silage by adding enough water to equal at least the weight of the dry material. This prevents much of the waste incident to leaving corn stalks stand.

Killing and Shipping of Cattle Continues through Drought Area

Killing and shipping of cattle throughout the drought ridden section continues.

Three crews are busy in Roosevelt county, and cattle after being inspected and classed as unfit for food are slaughtered.

Those fit for feed are shipped to the processing plants where they are prepared for food or to grass.

Roosevelt county herds are being culled closely, and only the very best cattle are being saved.

At this time it looks as if there will be a shortage of dairy and beef cattle in this county, but those that are retained are of the very best grade, and will greatly improve the herds of the county. In many sections of the county there is insufficient feed and grass to winter the cattle, and it is estimated that should rain come in the next day or so it will be too late to make winter grass.

Mrs. Blanch Trig of Ft. Sumner and Santa Fe was a caller at the News office last Saturday. Mrs. Trig has just been out to the oil rig, and was very enthusiastic as to the prospects for development in this county.

In the field. Corn—even when it is well shocked—loses more of its nutritive value than it would if made into silage. During the process of silage making, under good conditions, corn should lose less than five percent of its dry matter.

In case of mature corn, it is usually advisable to remove at least the best of the ears, if the silage is to be used principally for the maintenance of cattle. But if the silage is to be fed to milking cows, or to beef cattle for gains, it saves labor to leave the ears in the silage. Mature corn in the silage also improves palatability. Larger quantities of the stover silage than of silage containing the ears are necessary for maintenance.

In most cases it is advisable to add one pound of protein concentrate to a full feed of silage for each 1,000 pounds of cattle being maintained. In the case of silage consisting of one-third or more legumes, a supplemental protein feed is not necessary.

WORK STARTS ON SHELTER BELT TO PROTECT VAST DROUGHT AREA

WASHINGTON—By September 1 operations will be under way on the Protective Tree Belt which will convert a strip of semi-arid treeless plains 100 miles wide and over 1,000 miles long into a humid zone and halt the abnormal evaporation of moisture from the rich Midwestern farm belt. Chief Forester F. A. Silcox and Associate Forester E. A. Sherman already are personally supervising surveys along the route, extending from the Canadian border through the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, and Northwestern Oklahoma to the Texas Panhandle. Dr. Raphael Zon, director of the Lake states experimental station of the Department of Agriculture's forest service, St. Paul, is technical director of the work.

More than 190,000 drought-stricken farmers, helpless to check disastrous effects of the hot summer winds which last May scooped up the soil and carried it far out into the Atlantic Ocean are cheered by the Government's swift action in allocating $15,000,000 for immediate use from drought relief funds.

The shelter belt will comprise 20,000,000 acres but only the land to be planted, about 1,400,000 acres will be acquired, through outright purchase, rentals or long term cooperative agreements with the present owners. Three billion, six hundred million trees, one to three year saplings, approximately 2,500 per acre, will be set out in rows 7 yards wide and one mile apart. The rows will be fenced in and the land between the rows will continue under cultivation. The growing trees will cause moisture to collect and their roots will prevent melting snows from draining off completely. This will return ground water to its own level, from which it has sunk 18 to 20 feet.

O. D. Walker, A. D. Ribble, Eras Watts and Lacy Armstrong left Monday evening for Santa Fe on business connected with the Junior College dormitory.

Misses Nina B. and Ina May Cox of Roswell came up Sunday for a visit with their uncle J. O. Cox and family.

Alfalfa Growers Reaping Profits

Portales Valley farmers who are growing alfalfa are now reaping good harvests, not only in tonnage but in price.

From four to six cuttings are being harvested from valley lands, and the price is better than it has ever been in a great number of years.

DRIFTINGS

In conformity with its program of reducing the surplus of livestock by killing off a lot of hogs and other animals, the government recently sent an appraiser into a country district to list the livestock on hand so as to set a value upon the same, so the farmers could be suitably reimbursed for their losses in the reduction program. The young fellow was from the city and did not know one animal from another, so he had a little book of instructions with him describing the various classes of livestock and telling him how to value each according to age, condition, breed, etc. The first animal he struck was a goat and he was unable to find it described in the book. He immediately wired his superiors in Washington, stating that he had found an animal with a forlorn face, a long beard, a skinny body and a bare rump, and asked them to name the animal and set a valuation on it. A few hours later the department wired: "The animal you describe is a farmer and has no value."—Rio Grande Farmer.

Kilowatts—Are Cheap Servants

Did you ever translate the Kilowatt Hours of your electric bill into equivalent man hours? If not try it. The result will surprise you.

For a few cents per day you are doing with electricity, work that represents several human servants.

The ratio of mechanical power cost to human muscle cost has been figured to be more than 200 to 1.

So for a minimum wage of a few cents per day you can operate these unseen but ever-ready electric servants in your home.

Elsewhere will be found an article by the government crop loan department whereby they will lend for the purpose of buying wheat for planting for pasture.

In sections of the county where the jack rabbits are not so numerous, wheat can be planted in the next six days, provided there is sufficient moisture.

However, wheat loans will close on the 15th of September.

NEW MEXICO SEES THE FAIR

By Melvin C. Schumpert

We traveled for hours to the metropolis of our state where the all state band was to accumulate. They came from north, south, east, and west. And in Albuquerque there was much unrest. We drilled for two long days from sunrise to sunset. Then needed more to resemble a soldier with bayonet. On the Governor's Special of thirteen coaches—Well, try and get on; there were no approaches. Many Indians representing three tribes were aboard. All the Spanish Americans Coe Howard could afford. Mingled with the cowboys who were then present. It was a colorful group with but one intent; Advertise New Mexico in every event.

We played at Village, city, and town. Lucky never once did we receive a frown. The Spanish orchestra and singers went over big. So did the Indians with song and jig. While close behind was the official band. Ready to play at every command.

The most important stop was Kansas City—Union Station. The Governor made a talk carrying on our celebration. Turned into something real—now more than a jest. We left them spellbound with a picture of the west. We rode another night upon our iron horse. Arriving in Chicago Tuesday without remorse. They put us in the best of places to stay, Chicago University without delay.

We resided in a dormitory our brief stay there. Catching a bus was our only care.

'Cause we were five miles from the main fair gate. And if we missed one there was no debate. Tuesday was no doubt our biggest day. And to these people we did convey. A story of the greatest state with our display. We marched right up to the main gateway. Where out there marched without delay. A reception committee that would have put to shame. The royal troopers of the King of Spain. Up to our Governor they did march and halt; Look at we might we could find no fault. Away they did whisk him to his own reception. And it was grand for there was no deception. We gathered that afternoon in the court of the states. People came from everywhere; thousands, not to exaggerate. Many speeches were made about our Sunshine State. More nice things were said than I could relate. Miss Greathouse sang with the ease of a bird. Our state song the most beautiful word ever heard. The Indians went on the war path once more. While the Spanish conquered Chicago's Lake Shore. The people all enjoyed it very much. For it was plain to see they'd never seen such. The cowboys rode past on steeds so fine. Making a picture too beautiful to define. New Mexico Day ended with but on regret; Why couldn't it have lasted from then until yet? Then we saw our exhibit so stately and rare. Ours with the others we would not compare. There were no doubts in the minds of those there. That ours was the best at the Great World's Fair. The floor was covered with snow white sand. Some thought it was salt—even asked wha brand. The walls were lined with famous paintings of old. Some so famous you could not buy with gold; Many relics of old that could not displease. In the rear, towering toward the roof. stood a Spanish house, yes, quite aloof. From its rafters dangled dried peppers and corn. With many native relics which seemed to adorn. In the center of the room and close at hand. Sat an Indian doing paintings in the sand. On the walls and draped all around Hung the most beautiful blankets to be found. Thousands of people view it with delight; "Come to New Mexico," it seems to invite. And as we left that great display, We swore from New Mexico we'd never stray.

RFC Making Funds Available for Loans On Cotton

President Roosevelt signed a bill Tuesday authorizing loans on cotton at the rate of 12c per pound. This bill supercedes the one recently passed for a 10c loan, and the president has requested the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make the funds available to the Commodity Credit Corporation immediately.

This loan will be available on cotton classing low middling or better, which the producer has had on his hand continuously. This will enable the cotton producers to take a loan on the cotton he has on hand, if he does not wish to sell it immediately. Cotton has been selling around 13c, but certain conditions have made the farmers uneasy. The fear of a general strike in the textile industry which would stop mill buying has been allayed by this action.
