STATE ACTS IN GRAHAM OIL DRILLING DISPUTE

Parker's Rejection Crushing Blow To Hoover

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Along with an increase in its net earnings the M.-K.-T. railway reports a 50 per cent reduction in its accident record for 1929. These are good showings on which both the management and the employes are to be congratulated.

This mechanical age of ours has brought greater hazards to the workers and to the general public, yet in spite of these greater hazards the development of an "accident consciousness" on the part of workers is resulting in an actual reduction in the number of accidents in many lines.

Propaganda is a term that isn't any too popular in these days but propaganda has been freely used to create this accident consciousness that is preventing many injuries that might otherwise result. Nowadays the general effectiveness of an organization can almost be appraised by its accident record. An organization that doesn't keep preventable accidents to a minimum can quickly be judged as inefficient.

Our congratulations to Vernon and to Altus, Okla., on their census showings. Vernon's population is reported as 8,816 and Altus as 8,472. Vernon's increase is at the rate of 71 per cent and Altus' at the rate of 87 per cent.

Both remain in the small city class but both show very satisfactory growth and it's a whole lot better to be a fine small city than a poor large one. Neither city has grown out of proportion to its industries or to the country about it. Except for the temporary situation of unemployment which is country wide both cities offer business and employment to all who have been counted in the census.

Crowell is to be the scene of a gathering Friday celebrating the completion of the pavement on the Lee Highway from Vernon to that city. A few years ago the Lee highway, so far as the Texas part of it was concerned, existed only on paper and in the dreams of its promoters. Now, through the activities the chambers of commerce of Vernon, Crowell, Paducah, Matador and other towns and cities very considerable portions of it are being improved for all-year travel.

For citizens of Wichita Falls the completion of the pavement to Crowell means there is now an all-concrete highway from Wichita Falls to that place over the shortest route it could be reached. To citizens of Crowell it means they are connected with a great state and national system of improved highways. Wichita Falls can join with Crowell in the celebration of the event. We hope a number of Wichita Falls citizens do attend the celebration.

Improved highways giving greater opportunities for the use of automobiles and larger engines in the newer cars are believed to be the reasons for a greater consumption of gasoline per motor vehicle. The average annual consumption of gasoline per motor vehicle in 1929 was 600 gallons. In 1928 it was 564 gallons, in 1927, 517, and in 1926, 499. These figures, of course, are estimates based upon the total consumption of gasoline in the country divided by the mean number of automobile registrations. In 1929 the mean registration of automobiles was 25,250,000 and gasoline consumption 13,400,180,062 gallons.

Hiram P. Maxim, noted inventor of the Maxim silencer for firearms, has announced that he has discontinued the manufacture of firearms, and hereafter will devote his energies in the elimination of noise in industry. He predicts that within 12 months he will make it possible to have a quiet office or a quiet room even in the midst of the busiest sections of New York.

The noise of the city is one of its biggest handicaps and it is irritating and unsettling to all and to many it is unendurable. It causes mental and physical ills and lowers efficiency and causes unhappiness.

Hiram Maxim's inventions for the most part have been devices to make destruction more efficient and deadly. He now turns in the declining years of his life to make life more endurable and happier. May he be as successful in his new effort as he has been in the old.

Is it symptomatic of the times that men turn from destruction to construction and from the thought of death to the thought of life and making it better and happier? We hope so anyway.

Tornado Toll Goes To 70

RUINED HOMES YIELD BODIES OF VICTIMS

Deaths of Two Injured Persons Adds to List of Fatalities

RELIEF IS RUSHED

Help Rushed to Town of Frost, Worst Hit of 12 Communities

DALLAS, May 7. (AP)—Digging through debris of tornado-swept areas of Central and South Texas, rescue workers today had recovered 70 bodies and removed more than 100 injured to hospitals and homes for medical treatment.

No estimate of the number made homeless was available, nor had any official estimate of the property damage been made. Those in touch with the situation predicted the loss would exceed $500,000.

The series of tornadic disturbances hit widely separated places over an area of 281,250 square miles and from Abilene on the West to Marshall, about 450 linear miles, and from Childress, on the north, to Runge, about 625 miles to the south.

Killed in Homes

A large number of those killed were caught in the destruction of their modest farm homes.

In one case a relief party found the bodies of nine members of the family in the wreckage of their home near Runge, where 26 persons lost their lives and 60 were injured.

Frost, a town of 1,000 in Central Texas, was the hardest hit of the towns struck. Its business district was practically destroyed, 22 of its residents killed and a large number injured.

The rest of the death toll was as follows: Seven at Bynum; two at West; six in other parts of Hill county; one at San Antonio; three near Ennis, and two at Bronson.

Relief Started

Throughout last night rescue workers searched the ruins for the injured and dead, and today the work of rehabilitation was begun. A relief fund of $900 was raised at Corsicana, near Frost, and a donation of $500 was announced by a Dallas newspaper.

Declaring he would not declare martial law unless it became necessary, Gov. Dan Moody ordered the adjutant general to send as many troops as needed to patrol the streets and to aid in the relief work at Frost.

An appeal to Texas for $150,000 for immediate relief work was made tonight by the American Red Cross, Miss Ada Miller, secretary of the Dallas county chapter, announced.

Cannon's Exoneration Seen As Five Charges Against Church Leader Are Drawn

DALLAS, May 7. (UP)—Filing of five charges against Bishop James Cannon Jr., for political activities and stock market activities and his exoneration was predicted tonight by delegates attending the 21st quadrennial session of the Methodist church, South.

Although the conference's opening session today was featured by the Episcopal address of Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, Bishop Cannon was the center of interest and conversation.

Called Lobbyist

Five charges have been prepared for filing against him. They first specify allegations that he has been active as a lobbyist in Washington; second, that he has used the Methodist board of temperance and social activities in his lobbying activities; third, that he was a hoarder of food during the world war; fourth, that he had dealings with a Wall street bucket shop and gambled through the bucket shop on the stock market; and fifth, that in 1928 Bishop Warren A. Candler of Atlanta, and Bishop Collins Denny, senior members of the college, charged that he had endeavored to effect an ecclesiastical-political combination which might precipitate a split in the church.

Exoneration Expected

While none of the delegates, either churchmen of laymen, would allow themselves to be quoted, several, considered well versed in affairs of their denominatiion, predicted Bishop Cannon would be exonerated after but little consideration.

He already has been presented with the charges, according to Methodist church code, it was reported.

Bishop Cannon maintained his silence today, refusing to talk of the impending charges.

ADDRESS SCORES MODERN TRENDS

DALLAS, May 7. (UP)—Calling upon its church members and to the public at large to aid in a fight against war, companionate marriage, motion picture shows and attempts to repeal the prohibition laws, Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon today read the Episcopal address prepared by 13 bishops, at the opening session of the 21st quadrennial session of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

"The prohibition amendment was no experiment when it was written," Bishop Mouzon read. "It was the demonstrated success of prohibition and the constant determination of the liquor business to circumvent or defeat the law that caused the people of the United States to rise up and outlaw the traffic."

"With so-called companionate marriage and trial marriage with no thought to its sanctity and permanence, many people have gone through a ceremony that has only given some sort of social decency to what is nothing more than legalized adultery."

The address, the feature of the opening day program, strongly censored popular fiction and moving picture shows in "their utter disregard for decency."

Possibility of Re-Naming of North Carolinan Seen In Washington

By EDWARD L. RODDAN

WASHINGTON, May 7. (US)—President Hoover received a crushing blow today when the senate formally rejected Federal Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, as unfit by experience and judicial temperament to serve as an associate justice of the U. S. supreme court.

By the narrow margin of two votes, 41 to 39, the senate refused to confirm a presidential nominee to the supreme court bench for the first time in 36 years.

Had a single senator changed his vote from "no" to "aye," a tie would have resulted to be broken by the vote of Vice President Curtis in favor of confirmation.

Hoover Silent

President Hoover received the report of the rejection of Judge Parker by telephone. He had cut short his luncheon hour so that he could be in his office. The president, it was stated, had expected a close vote but believed that the nomination would be confirmed. He was unprepared to say what he would do, but it was indicated he might have something to say tomorrow.

Immediately after the vote Senator Allen, Republican, Kansas, and Under-secretary of State Joseph P. Cotton held a long conference with the president. They were understood to have been discussing the advisability of the president issuing a statement.

Several prospective nominees were already being mentioned as possible successors to the late Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford who died on March 8.

Re-Nomination Seen

There was a belief in some quarters that the chief executive might let the vacancy stand until congress reconvenes next fall. Such a course would permit the re-nomination of Judge Parker, who will continue on

She Deserts Society for Stage

About six months ago Fifi Laimbeer, 18-year-old New York Social Register beauty, determined to go on the stage. Partially overcoming parental objections she entered into a compact with her mother, the late Mrs. Nathalia Laimbeer, president of the American Women Bankers' association and one of the most prominent women in the financial world at that time. They agreed on a six months "probation" period, at the end of which time the daughter would either quit the stage, or, if displaying talent, continue her career. Following her mother's death recently, other relatives found that Fifi was entitled under the terms of the compact to continue on the stage.

C.-C. APPROVES CENSUS COUNT

'Boom' of 1920 Reduced Gain in 1930, Says Boswell

Satisfaction with the manner of enumeration, with the probable results of the 1930 census tabulation, and conviction that material increases in Wichita Falls' population will be recorded during the ensuing 10 years were expressed Wednesday afternoon by John Boswell, general manager of the chamber of commerce, to a representative of The Record News.

"Wichita Falls is in a much better position now to expect an increase in population in the coming 10 years than she was in 1920," Mr. Boswell observed. "At that time we had a situation which made it improbable that there would be any increase during the ensuing decade. The great oil boom had put this city several years ahead of its natural growth. Much of our population then did not consider making Wichita Falls a permanent home. Many of them went elsewhere for other oil booms. That census in 1920 was taken at the height of a tremendous oil boom; this one is being taken just when this city, like many others, is just at the point of emergence from its lowest recorded depression. The past few years have applied acid tests of citizenship to residents of Wichita Falls, and we can count definitely upon the loyalty and permanence of those here now.

"It is certain that conditions are improving in this territory now, and that such improvement will bring back many people who formerly lived here, and they will bring others with them. As shown in the advertising campaign in which we now are engaged, Wichita Falls is the center of an area whose natural resources and industries are capable of supporting a city much larger than our city is today. This is true, despite the fact that our natural resources are only partially developed. There is every reason to believe that when this city takes full advantage of our opportunities for development, and when resources are more completely capitalized, Wichita Falls can sustain a population of more than 100,000 persons in a state of prosperity.

"We should not expect to reach any such goal within the next 10 years," Mr. Boswell continued, "but we should conservatively expect to

Big Gains At Vernon And Altus

Vernon, Texas and Altus, Okla., have seen spectacular increases in population during the last 10 years, according to official census reports made public Wednesday.

Vernon has jumped from a 1920 population of 5,142 to 8,816 in 1930, an increase of 71 per cent. Altus, with a present population of 8,472, has added 87 per cent to its 1920 population of 4,522.

The rapid development of Vernon was attributed partially to the oil field activities as well as to the growth of industrial and agricultural enterprises. The population of West Vernon, a suburb, is 943 as compared to 1,088 in 1920, the count shows.

Duncan, Okla., county seat of Stephens county, has outstripped the others by an increase of 72 per cent, census enumerators report. The town now numbers 8,516 inhabitants against only 4,852 in 1920.

Chickasha, Okla., has a population of 14,019, a gain of 3,840.

COMMISSION TO PICK SITE FOR RAILROAD WELL

Oil and Gas Hearing Agrees To Moncrief and Carter Offset to Gusher

CURB PLANS TOLD

Nash and Windfohr's Big Producer Precipitates Lease Wrangle

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, May 8.—At least one oil well on the Rock Island railroad right of way, within a few hundred feet of the Nash and Windfohr McCloud discovery well near Graham, was assured at the close of a railroad commission hearing Wednesday on application of B. E. Moncrief for a permit. The commission will decide just how close it will be located to the Nash discovery and another well being put down by the same operators nearby.

The permit will be conditioned on proof that Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth publisher, actually holds a lease on the railroad right-of-way.

James P. Nash and others appeared before the commission to protest putting down the Moncrief-Carter well where a derrick already has been built, 225 feet from the big Nash-Windfohr gusher.

Moncrief claimed a lease exists on five acres of the Manning survey, alongside the big well. He refused an offer of Nash to agree to putting only one well in this five-acre strip of the 100-foot right-of-way, and R. D. Parker, oil and gas supervisor, announced the commission itself will fix the location of the one well in this survey.

Mr. Nash said operators in the field have agreed to a one well per 10 acres schedule of drilling but would agree to an exception to permit Moncrief a well on the five-acre strip, on condition that it would be located a proper distance from his well to obviate the necessity of his doing costly extra drilling to offset it. He has now a well down 1200 feet, he pointed out, that would have to be abandoned and drilled near the property line if Moncrief is permitted to drill at the nearest point to the McCloud discovery well.

Tom Slick, Oklahoma City operator, and representatives of the Rathke Oil company of Wichita Falls also were present protesting the granting of a permit as an exception to the rule 37 requirement that well must be back 150 feet from the lease line, and spaced out at least 300 feet apart on any lease.

Judge R. L. Batts was present for Gulf Production company, taking no part except to protest if the Moncrief well location should be moved so as to drain Gulf leases.

The body of the aged Indian woman, wrapped in richly woven blankets of her people and adorned with jewelry, was placed in a carved cedar casket and lowered into the grave yesterday. Indian braves chanted and danced to the gods asking that they welcome her spirit. For 24 hours they danced and sang over the spot where the aged Indian woman was buried.

Texas Oil Promotion Schemes Lead 'Smiling Jimmie' Cox Back to Jail

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 7. (UP)—S. E. J. Cox, prominent Oklahoma oil man and an official of Universal Oil and Gas company, was tonight arrested on charges of alleged mail fraud prepared by Roy St. Lewis, United States district attorney.

Eight other company officials were named in warrants prepared by Lewis. At a late hour tonight none others had been arrested.

Less than a decade ago Seymour E. J. Cox—"Smiling Jimmie" to his acquaintances—was found guilty of similar charges and was sentenced to serve in the Leavenworth prison with Dr. Frederick A. Cook, one time explorer and oil promoter. When Cook was paroled recently Cox appeared as one of his "two best friends."

Eight others, including Cox's pretty wife, were ordered arrested in charges prepared by Roy St. Louis, United States district attorney. Lewis charged Cox as being the "brains" of the Universal Oil and Gas company, which he alleged carried on fraudulent oil stocks sales by use of the mails.

The company claimed holdings of the Rising Star properties in Texas would be worth several million dollars and advertised that fortunes could be made by the small investor on oil stocks. Lewis said investigation disclosed the properties had been purchased at a receiver's sale for $67,500 with a $3,000 down payment.

Carnival Worker Jailed in Attempt To Rob Girl of Diamond Ring

A complaint charging assault with intent to rob was filed here Wednesday against Henry Davis, who was arrested in Iowa Park earlier in the day after he is alleged to have threatened the life of a 13-year-old girl and poured a portion of the contents of a bottle of liniment down her throat in an effort to force her to tell where he could find a valuable diamond ring he believed to be in the girl's home, according to information given by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney. Davis was placed in the county jail in lieu of $1,500 bond set by Judge O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace.

Another man arrested at the time Davis was taken into custody and suspected of connection with the assault was released from the county jail here Wednesday afternoon after questioning. Davis was identified by Helen Brown, the 13-year-old girl, when she accompanied Iowa Park officers to the carnival, now showing in Iowa Park, where she said he was working.

The man is said to have followed the girl into her home Wednesday while her mother, Mrs. W. T. Brown, was visiting a neighbor. Mr. Anglin was told the girl had visited the carnival several days ago in company with another girl who was wearing several diamonds and that a man had asked her if

CHICAGO, May 7. (UP)—Another farmers' cooperative commodity marketing organization of the federal farm board has been formed here. The organization, the fourth of its kind, will be known as the National Livestock Marketing association, and is capitalized at $1,000,000.

Representatives of 17 cooperative livestock agencies attended the meeting with Chairman Alexander Legge of the farm board at which the new organization was formed.

Legge said he believed the organization will give livestock raisers ample opportunity to develop a unified marketing organization.

Two livestock agencies withdrew from the meeting, declining to join the new group. They are the Farmers' Union and the Central Livestock Producers' association.

Home Brew Equipment To Go Under the Ban

WASHINGTON, May 7. (UP)—Plans for a national campaign of seizing bootlegger's paraphernalia, which happens to include much of the material used by home brewers, were announced by Prohibition Commissioner Doran today.

The drive was made possible by the supreme court's Danovitz decisions upholding confiscation of bottles, barrels, caps and the like, seized in a bottle company raid.

Doran said the treasury drive would be designed to stop all sale of stills, malt and hops, kegs, bottles and all preparations sold with simple directions for making liquor in the home.

Famous Psychiatrist Says Congress Wastes Time in Passing New Laws

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

WASHINGTON, May 7. (INS)—The law making of congress is but a vain gesture in America's effort to reduce crime, William A. Healy of Boston, famous psychiatrist and one of the trio which defended Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb in their famous murder trial said today.

Healy is here attending the International Congress on Mental Hygiene.

He condemned the American penal system as an utter failure. Congress, he said, has gone on enacting new laws for years, building up legal barriers which are but invitations for the mentally sick to crash through.

Prevention Urged

Instead of law making, said the psychiatrist, the nation should have been studying its law breakers, finding crime motivation, working for prevention rather than cure by punishment. The best of laws alone, he continued will never solve the crime problem. There must be sympathetic, intelligent supervision of the mental conduct of the child, and it must be followed up with adult habit and conduct records. Under such conditions, and under these alone, said Healy, can a nation hope to control and suppress crime.

Prisons, said Healy, are the devil's workshops. Men kept inside idle must think, he added. Their thoughts are far from reconstructive with nothing but punishment to think about.

"We have tried," he said, "and what have we done? From the mental standpoint, law is utterly failing.

"Individuals are confined in prisons and come out to repeat their crimes. Eighty per cent of the 'reformed' go out to re-enter a criminal career, reliable statistics tell us."

Inmates Not Studied

The psychiatrist complained there was not a single institution in America which made an adequate individual study of its inmates.

"Of course we have classification," he went on. "But what we need is systematic observation and mental correction. We should study the habits and tendencies of the criminal, and try to direct juvenile minds away from the paths the criminal adult has followed."

America, however, is no worse than her foreign neighbors, the mental expert solaced.

"In England," he said, "the follow up system is better than ours. But the early, social work among juvenile is not so good as that in this country."

For American youth, however, the criminologist had nothing but encouragement and optimism. The signs of the times, mentally speaking, he said, are healthy.

"Look at the improvement over the Victorian era," he said. "Look at the immoral conditions of that age, where immorality was rampant, but never mentioned in conversation. Youth of today is frank, but the mind is basically more healthy than those of other times."

Healy suggested colonization of criminals under comprehensive supervision and observation as the path to eradication of crime.

GAME WARDEN PRESENTS CASE

Former State Witnesses Help Simmons

LAGRANGE, Texas, May 7. (AP)—Two witnesses who at former trials were called for the state testified on behalf of M. K. Simmons, former state game warden, at his third murder trial today on a charge of slaying Bud Stoner.

Sheriff Hunt of San Patricio testified that he found Simmons drunk with a head wound in a wrecked car shortly after the shooting; and Dr. J. A. Orr, the state's chief defense witness at Simmons' two other trials, declared Stoner said repeatedly while being taken to a hospital that a "Pueblo Mexican" shot him.

Most of today's session was occupied with arguments with these two statements regarding their testimony at the previous trials, at each of which Simmons was convicted and sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. Each sentence was reversed and remanded on appeal.

Highway Improvement Contracts Awarded

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 7. (UP)—Contracts were let today by the state highway commission for grading and drainage of four miles on highway 66 from the Oklahoma county line east, and for a bridge on the same highway.

The contracts were awarded following an agreement with Lincoln county commissioners to permit modification of a court order enjoining the work.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 7. (UP)—The state corporation commission today approved plans for construction of the $2,000,000 Rock Island-Frisco union station here.

George V Planning Public Appearance

LONDON, May 7. (INS)—King George will make his first state drive since the beginning of his illness 18 months ago, on June 2, the day of the second levee of the season, which he will hold at St. James' palace.

It is the king's own decision that the journey between Buckingham palace and St. James' should take the traditional form of a state drive with all its quaint ceremonial and pageantry. The fact that the doctors have permitted this is a testimony to the king's rapid recovery of strength during the past few weeks.

The next day, his birthday, the king will again appear in public on the occasion of the trooping of the color on the horse guard's parade.

This time the king will be on horseback, riding out to the parade ground to take the salute of his troops and leading them on their way back at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Missouri Democrat Officials to Resign

ST. LOUIS, May 7. (INS)—At a meeting of the Democratic state committee to be held here May 14, Mrs. Katherine Kalterman of Kansas City and Fred G. Zeibig of St. Louis, secretary and treasurer of the committee, respectively, will resign, it had been announced here today by Charles M. Howell of Kansas City, chairman.

Mrs. Kalterman, it was learned, signified her intention to resign immediately after the 1928 election. However, it was said, the chairman and members of the committee persuaded her to continue her work. Her intention to resign became definite after she was elected secretary of both the Pyramid Life Insurance company of Kansas City and the Kansas Life Insurance company of Topeka, Kansas, it was declared.

Private Leasing Of Power Project Favored

WASHINGTON, May 7. (US)—By a vote of 11 to 5, the house military affairs committee today favorably reported a bill to lease the great Muscle Shoals project to private interests. Two members voted present.

With the committee thus split, a battle against the bill was expected on the floor of the house. Southern Democrats will lead a fight for adoption of the Norris bill providing for government operation. This bill already has been passed by the senate.

Hearings on Naval Pact Begin Tuesday

WASHINGTON, May 7. (UP)—Chairman Hale of the senate naval affairs committee announced today his committee would begin hearings on the naval treaty next Tuesday, provided Secretary of Navy Adams is heard by the foreign relations committee Monday.

If Adams does not complete his testimony before the foreign relations committee Monday the naval affairs committee will defer its hearings.

The cut-out corners

cut out "razor pull"

No longer can damaged corners spoil your shave

EVERY ONE of the big improvements in the New Gillette was made after careful experiment. Each plays its definite part in increasing the shaving comfort of the millions of men who have bought the New Gillette Razor and Blade since their introduction.

For instance, all four corners of the new blades are cut out. All four corners of the new razor cap are heavily reinforced. These changes, in combination with the new shaped guard teeth, prevent "razor pull," caused in the old razor by dropping it and denting the corners. The channel guard leaves the blade edge free, but protected. The rust-resisting blade saves you the tedious task of taking the razor apart and wiping the blade. Now you just shake it dry.

These, and all the other improvements, are yours in the New Gillette Razor for a dollar—in a beautiful case with one New Gillette Blade. Additional new blades at one dollar for ten, fifty cents for five—in the new green packet.

See your dealer today.

Mrs. Wallace Hostess To Club At Pretty Luncheon

Mrs. Charles William Wallace's lovely home on Huff avenue was made more beautiful with tall baskets of larkspur and roses Wednesday when she entertained with her annual luncheon in honor of members of the Wednesday Study club of which she is director. The luncheon, which is one of the two social meetings each year for the club, officially closed the activities of the group for the year.

The dining table was centered with a huge vase containing three dozen pink carnations, the club flower, and the cloth was of fine Italian handwork. The four course luncheon was served at the dining table and five small individual tables, the latter of which were centered with dainty vases of snapdragons. Mrs. Wallace used her rare antique silver service in serving her guests.

On the buffet were two lovely candelabra of the same design as the silver, bearing tall pink lighted tapers.

An interesting moment during the luncheon occurred when Mrs. Wallace proposed a toast to the club at which time she gracefully thanked the members for the dainty rock crystal goblets which they presented her as a token of their regard for the work she has done in the club as director.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. James C. Humphrey called the meeting to order and Mrs. W. W. Cook gave a toast to Mrs. Humphrey as the retiring president. Mrs. Humphrey responded by introducing and toasting Mrs. T. F. Durkin, the incoming president. Mrs. Durkin then had charge of the program which included a solo, "The Gypsy Trail" (Galoway) by Mrs. Walter Priddy, accompanied at the piano by her mother, Mrs. Carey Hunter. As an encore they responded with a duet, "Billy Boy." Mrs. Ella Merle Mathis Bristol gave a reading from "Gentle Julia" by Booth Tarkington and as an encore, read the poem "Wild White Rose."

A contest in which members were requested to answer a group of questions with names of Shakespeare's plays was conducted by Mrs. N. B. Chenault who awarded the prize to Mrs. Bert Bean.

Guests included Mesdames C. N. Alexander, Bert Bean, J. W. Cantwell, E. B. Carver, W. W. Cook, N. B. Chenault, Harry Davis, T. F. Durkin, Charles Dent, O. C. Dickson, B. L. Fain, E. R. Fain, W. B. When Love Dies Divorce Is Best, Says Dorothy Dix

Dear Miss Dix—We have been married 25 years. We were a poor boy and girl when we started out, but we were both ambitious, industrious and we have prospered, and now at middle age should be happy. To the public our married life looks ideal. To me for the last 15 years it has been a torture, and had it not been for two wonderful children it would have ended long ago. Now they are grown, educated and started in the world. Now must I continue the balance of my life in this torment?

My wife is a wonderful housekeeper, but that is all. For years she has refused all obligations as a wife and has given me no companionship. I have bought and furnished a beautiful home, but I don't dare live in it. Hardly dare to sit on a chair. To read the paper or to lay it down is a crime. To smoke is out of the question. I am merely the bank account, the handy man about the place, a watchdog at night. I get no smiles in my home, nothing but nag, nag, nag insults, slurs or complete silence.

My wife is not happy, either, so why should we go along keeping up appearances for the public? The children know the situation and would not disapprove if we got a divorce. I am willing to make a fair settlement on my wife. I am not in love with a flapper nor do I want to marry any woman. All I want is peace, contentment and happiness for the remaining years of my life. Why is it not better for two people who have ceased to love each other and come to hate each other to be divorced than to live as strangers? Why should homes be kept up after they become a hell on earth? Mr. X. X.

Answer—I don't think they should, Mr. X. X. I thing when a man and woman get to the place where you and your wife are that the only decent and moral thing for them to do is to part and go their separate ways. I think that for a husband and wife to lixe together after they have come to hate each other is the most demoralizing thing on earth, because they bring out everything that is mean in each other's nature.

I know that when a man and woman get married they toke a solemn oath to stick together until death parts them, but intolerable conditions often arise that make a vow more honored in the breach than the observance. I know that many persons consider it a husband's and wife's duty to live together, no matter how miserable they make each other, but common sense asks: How can it be a duty for us to be miserable when we are doing no good to any other human being by our sufferings?

We are past the days when we believed that there was some mysterious virtue in misery, that we were uplifted and purified by wretchedness, that we were better men and women when we were unhappy.

We are wiser now. We know that happiness is like sunlight, in which the soul expands and blooms, that it fills us with kindly thoughts and sympathy and faith and hope in all beautiful things. And we know that unhappiness, and especially domestic unhappiness, wraps our views and fills us with bitterness and cynicism. So how can it be a duty for a man and woman to be found together who make each other wretched and turn the milk of human kindness in each other into clabber?

And how can it be a duty to live together when they cannot live in peace? When their natures are so antagonistic that they fight like cat and dog?

The most beautiful thing in the world is a home in which there is love and peace and understanding, but the most terrible thing in the world is a home in which there is constant bickering an quarrels and argument and which is a perpetual storm center. The atmoaphere of such a home is more poisonous than the most deadly malaria. It slays everything that is good in man and woman and, it seems to me, there is no more duty to cherish a pest hole.

The chief obligation in every marriage is to the children who are the result of the marriage. They do not come of their own volition into the world and it is their parents' duty to give them as good a chance as they can in it. It is their parents' duty to provide them, if possible, with a settled home in which to grow up and to give them the advantage of having both a father and a mother instead of half-orphaning them.

You have done this and now that your children are grown and on their own, I see no reason why you and your wife should any longer endure a marriage that has become a martyrdom for you both. I can see no good that would be attained by your living together in strife. I cannot see how it will make you a better man and woman to be thrown in daily contact with one who irritates you and keeps your temper and your nerves on edge and your hearts filled with hatred and murderous thoughts.

But, Br X X., how did you and our wife get that way? You started out as lovers, and as partners who worked and struggled together. You must have been congenial then. You must have been pals and companions then. You must have hoped and dreamed together then. You must have been happy then.

What caused the parting of the ways? What killed your love? What turned your wife into a nagger and a shrew? What made her lose interest in you? What turned your marriage from a success into a failure?

Were you too immersed in business, too keen on making money to pay her any of the little attentions that women crave? Did her love starve to death because you ceased to feed it on the honeyed words it hundred for? Did you ever try honestly and with set purpose to deevlop her so that she would keep step with you and be a companion to you at middle age? Did you ever try to interest her in the things in which you were interested?

Were you too soft with her? Did MORE— MORE— MORE— MOR you take the line of least resistance and meekly give in when she first began to henpeck you? Why did you let her monopolize the house and tell you where you could smoke and where you could sit and whether you could lay down a paper or not? Isn't it a man's own fault w hen he leis his wife bulldoze him into wiping his feet on the mat and using the back entrance to the house he bought and paid for?

When a couple who have been married a long time separate it always seems as if the divorce is a sudden tragedy, but the cause of it always goes a long ways back and it begins in a man and woman not having deliberately and intelligently tried to make a success of their marriage from the start.

DOROTHY DIX.

YOU'RE INVITED TO THE SILVER JUBILEE!

A GREAT occasion for the family silver! Instead of polishing tarnished pieces, try this: Put a tablespoonful of White King Granulated Soap in an aluminum pan, and let the water come slowly to a boil. Then remove it from the flame and put in the silver. Wash a little, soak a little—Presto!—the tarnish is gone.

The explanation is that the tarnish adheres to the aluminum. But pans are easily cleaned—and silver is hard to polish.

And that's only one of many uses for White King. It washes anything from lingerie to blankets, in hard water or soft, thoroughly, gently and economically. It is condensed. A little goes a long way. Try it today. Sold by grocers everywhere.

Sacred Heart Church To Give Benefit Concert

Sale of tickets to the benefit concert being given by the Sacred Heart church choir and assisting artists Thursday night indicates that a capacity audience will crowd the church hall for the event, according to ladies of the church, who are sponsoring the concert.

Perusal of the program announced for the evening reveals a program of unusual variety, with numbers well chosen for popular appeal, and with a personnel of performers which promises a high standard of musicianship throughout.

The choir will be assisted Thursday evening by the String Ensemble, the Bluebonnet ladies' quartet, the Mahaffey studio male quartet, and by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey and Mrs. W. L. Underwood, accompanists.

Conspicuous among the ensemble numbers to be included in the benefit concert is the "Gloria" from Mozart's 12th mass, which will be sung by the choir and all assisting singers under the direction of A. H. Mahaffey, choir director. Groups also will be given by the Bluebonnet quartet, the male quartet, and the String Ensemble.

Among the soloists announced for the evening is Louis Bond, bass, who will sing the stridently dramatic complaint of the British Tommy, "Boots," by Rudyard Kipling. Lighter feeling will pervade solos to be given by John Flynn, baritone; Jules Constantin, tenor-baritone, and Willard Underwood, tenor.

The Sacred Heart church hall is located at 1309 Ninth street, just west of the church. Tickets are selling at 50 cents, it was announced. The program will be given as follows:

There is no curl like the Eugène Curl

There is no wave like the Eugène Wave! The Eugène Curl falls naturally into beautiful waves that begin close to the scalp, set naturally into any style of coiffure, and last months longer than cheap permanent waves.

No wave is a Eugène Wave unless it is given with genuine Eugène Sachets—the exclusive Eugène device for control of the steaming. They are well worth the small extra cost.

SHE LONGED for friends—real friends. Girls who would drop in to see her often, go shopping with her or to the movies, stay overnight. But in spite of her cordiality, people didn't respond. They were polite, pleasant—but kept her at arm's length.

At last she found out why. "B.O."—body odor. . . . Now her lonely days are over—she has friends galore. She knows the easy way to avoid offending.

No one is safe!

Body odor is a fault people seldom mention—and never overlook. Yet unless we adopt some simple safeguard, any one of us may be guilty—and not know it!

Our pores constantly give off odor-causing waste—as much as a quart daily, doctors say. We soon become accustomed to this ever-present odor and don't notice it in ourselves. But others do.

That's why millions of particular men and women have adopted Lifebuoy as their toilet soap. For with Lifebuoy you can feel safe. Its bland, creamy, deep-cleansing, antiseptic lather purifies pores—banishes every trace of "B.O."—leaves you gloriously fresh and clean.

And what wonders Lifebuoy can do for the complexion! It goes straight to the source of most complexion troubles—clogged pores. The old style bathroom is inconvenient, unsanitary and ugly. It is unmodern! But no longer will you need to be ashamed of it. New fixtures and tiled walls will bring it entirely up-to-date in appearance and convenience. See how attractive this typical bathroom in an old home has been made by modernizing.

You can provide an extra finished room and insulate the roof of your house by finishing off the attic. Thousands of government experts are working constantly for the benefit of all citizens of the United States. They will work directly for you if you will call for the fruits of their labors through our Washington bureau. State your inquiry briefly, write clearly, and, enclosing two-cent stamp for a personal letter in reply, address The Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Which Roman ruler first used the name Caesar as a title?—C. P.

A.—Caesar was a title assumed by Octavianus, adopted son of the great dictator, Julius Caesar, and was by him handed down to his adopted son, Tiberius. It continued to be used by Caligula, Claudius, and Nero as members either by adoption or female descent of Caesar's family, but though the family became extinct with Nero, succeeding emperors still retained the name as part of their title and it was the practice to prefix it to their own names as Imperator Caesar, Domitianus Augustus. When Hadrian adopted Aelius Verus, he allowed the latter to take the title of Caesar and from this time, though the title Augustus continued to be confined to the reigning emperor that of Caesar was also granted the second person in the state and the heir presumptive to the throne. After the death of Nero, his name was adopted as a kingly title by succeeding Roman emperors. This practice continued and the same title was used in modern times, as in the case of kaiser and czar.

Q.—What important things did Woodrow Wilson do for labor?—M. O.

A.—The Adamson Eight Hour Law, enacted during his administration, was one; the creation of the National War Labor Board to handle industrial controversies during the world war was another.

Q.—What are the five great steps in civilization?—H. W. B.

A.—As outlined by Dr. Will Durant the progress of mankind is indicated in the following stages: Speech, fire and light, the conquest of the animal, the passage of man from hunting to agriculture, social organization, the moral sense, the sense of beauty, science, writing and print, and education.

Q.—What will clean a granite tombstone?—C. E. G.

A.—Wash the surface of the tombstone with a mixture of finely powdered pumice stone and vinegar and leave it for several hours. Then brush it hard and wash clean.

Q. What kind of flowers will grow where the soil is poor?—T. L.

A.—Such flowers as the following are suggested: Love-lies-bleeding, prince's feather, Joseph's coat, cape marigold, godetia, dwarf nasturtium, portulaca, Scotch pink, sweet alyssum, garden balsam, and calliopsis.

Q. How long was Bryce ambassador from England to this country?—H. G. W.

A.—James Bryce held his position in Washington from 1907 to 1913.

Q.—Who chose the site for Fort Washington, near the city of Washington, D. C.?—J. B.

A.—The site of Fort Washington was recommended by General Washington. The general plans were drawn by Major L'Enfant. The first fortress was erected in 1808. It was destroyed in 1814. The present fort was built in 1898.

Q.—How many miles a day did Capt. Frank Hawks make in his glider trip? Who piloted the airplane that towed him?—T. N.

A.—Captain Hawks' 2,800-mile transcontinental flight was made in 19 stages varying from 290 to 710 miles each day. The stops at night were made at Tucson, Ariz.; Sweetwater, Texas; Tulsa, Okla.; East St. Louis, Ill.; Columbus, Ohio, and Buffalo. He had one setback at Tucson, Ariz., due to a gust of wind's breaking the tow cable. Also there was a one-day delay on account of bad weather, forcing him to cover a two-day schedule in one. The plane was piloted by J. D. Jernigin. The glider was attached to the plane by means of a 500-foot cable. Thirty-six hours were spent in the air.

The Record News Offers Its Readers a Booklet on Making Cellars Dry

Real estate dealers say that a good dry, light cellar adds from $500 to $1,000 to the value of an ordinary dwelling. Moisture and darkness favor mildew, molds, decay, and putrefaction; moisture also hastens the corrosion of metals. Hence, a dry cellar makes for wholesome, sanitary conditions in the home; promotes comfort and health; lengthens the life of homes, furnishings, and plumbing; and increases the usefulness of basements for storage, workshop, and laundry purposes.

Our new government booklet, Making Cellars Dry, tells all about this. Send for a copy today, using this coupon.

Cloak and suit manufacturers are to establish a chair in a large eastern university to prepare young men for positions. The matter of style should come easy to students who know so much about cuts.

An English clergyman breaks into print with the prediction there will be a war between the sexes. We weren't aware the present one was over.

If you think that people have lost their sense of humor notice the answer you get when you ask any one to change a $20 bill.

A Zeppelin Over London

ONE OF the most encouraging things about the human race is that it has such a deplorably short memory.

In some ways, of course, this habit of forgetfulness does a good deal of harm. But by and large it is a big help. It keeps the desire for revenge from burning for too long.

A short time ago the Graf Zeppelin made a flight over England. It circled gaily over London, with thousands of people clustered in the streets and on housetops to wave greetings and cheer. All in all, it was a "good will trip," with all hands uniting to give the big airship a cordial welcome.

Now it so happened that the Graf Zeppelin appeared over London on the anniversary of the very worst of the many Zeppelin raids that London experienced during the war.

Furthermore, the Graf Zeppelin was the first German airship to fly over the British capital since the war.

The English had not seen a Zeppelin for nearly 12 years; and the last ones they had seen had given them death and destruction. Those Zeppelin raids were dreadful things. Twelve years are not a very long time. The Londoners surely could have been forgiven if they had greeted the Graf Zeppelin with a stony, hostile silence.

But they didn't. They cheered. They were glad to see it. Not one spark of the old enmity flared up into flame.

People's memories, after all, are rather short; and—let it be repeated—it is a good thing for all of us that this is so.

Human stupidity, greed and jealousy have brought some terrible troubles down on humanity's head. Wars, revolutions, riots and invasions dot the pages of history pretty thickly, right from the beginning. Men do frightful things to one another every now and then.

But they don't remember them long. Hence they are able to make up afterward.

Perhaps you can remember the feeling of war days. Germany was to be an "outcast" nation forevermore. Business men were agreeing never, never to trade with Germans again. The misery and tragedy of the world war were to be held against Germany forever.

Somehow all of those dire threats have broken down—fortunately. We are rapidly working our way back toward friendship. A German Zeppelin can fly over London and receive cheers instead of bullets.

No matter how badly they are hurt, people will always forget about it sooner than you would think.

There wouldn't be much hope of progress if this were not so.

Learning About Yellowjackets

RESIDENTS of the Country Club estates may have been surprised, or even shocked, last Saturday morning at the sight of a well-known young minister jumping hastily from his car to rid himself suddenly and momentarily of trousers. Their understanding would have been not only complete but sympathetic had they known that a vigorous, well-developed jellowjacket had found his way inside those trousers and had unsheathed his sword as a protest against imprisonment. Temporary loss of dignity at that moment was the essence of ministerial discretion.

Which incident comes immediately to mind upon reading Monday's dispatches from India, announcing that Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, was placed under arrest shortly after midnight Sunday by British authorities. In view of recent events in India, supported by the amazing developments the world over during the past 50 years, it would not be surprising should England find herself moved to as sudden action as that with which the young preacher yielded to the penetrating arguments of the determined insect.

Americans, like others of the Western hemisphere, are apt to retain too exclusively impressions of India drawn a generation or more ago. Especially since devout readers of Rudyard Kipling far outnumber those who study history, our conception of India is apt to overlook civilizing and unifying forces which have accomplished tremendous advances since this century was born. With increased knowledge of the world and its governments inevitably come new aspirations to complete political freedom. This prisoner may feel reasonably sure that the trousers could be removed, and act accordingly.

England may have some spare time to continue her reading of Kipling, and it may safely be ventured that she is now prepared better to understand one of his verses (from the "Naulahka") which runs:

Nor it is not good for the Christian white
To hurry the Aryan brown;
For the Aryan smiles and the Christian toils
And it weareth the Christian down.
And the end of the fight is a tombstone white,
With the name of the late deceased,
And the epitaph drear: "A fool lies here
Who tried to hustle the East."

Looking Facts in the Face

THE long-looked for business revival may not begin properly until fall, according to the Business Conditions Weekly issued by the Alexander Hamilton institute. Conditions are gradually improving, and, as the Weekly remarks, "a foundation is being laid for a sound business recovery"; but the whole thing may take longer than we have supposed.

All of this, of course, does not mean that we should give away to pessimism and grow dour and hopeless as we look to the future. It does, however, suggest that we may have been a little too optimistic for our own good. The problems that oppress American business can be solved, but they can only be solved if they are fully recognized and carefully studied. A mere parroting of hopeful phrases is not going to help us a bit.

Quotations Worth Noting

"The curriculum of our life and death is mostly made up of required courses."—Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin, D. D.

Man About Town

What probably will prove a sensation in the Park Avenue belt will be Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.'s book, "Park Ave.," due on June 16. The advance proofs scorched this desk and very likely they will sizzle the libraries in the tony territory, for most of the characters, according to the author's intimates, are based on living natives and actual happenings.

The Vanderbilt victims are thinly disguised, to hear the whisperers tell it. The character "Strawbridge" being an exaggerated Sigourney Thayer, now the groom of Emily Davies Vanderbilt. "Harriett Van Cortland" could be a composite of Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies and Emily Post. "Hugh Smiley" is obviously Louis Wiley of the New York Times. The girl "Violet" is a composite of some of the author's alleged friends. Ernie Bobel is Bernard Sobel, now a radio executive, but for many years the exploiter for Herr Ziegfeld.

"Percy Lynie" might be Billy Hoffman of the National City bank. "Hawkins" is the deceased Gerald Goodman, long in the service of the Vanderbilt mansion. "Audrey" is perhaps Craig Biddle. "De Lavelle" is not Kesselear, as might be believed, but the late Hans Stengel, who committed suicide in a similar manner, and "Gertrude James" resembles Zita Johann, the actress. The author calls himself "Schuyler Van Cortland" in his expose of the set he despises. "The Baroness de Marchienne" is the well known Madam de Cartier de Marchienne, the much wedded squaw of a former Belgian ambass to the U. S.

The revelations, incidentally, remind us that "The New Broadway Brevities," which suspended publication a few years ago, will be revived late next month, backed by a mountain of Wall street coin.

It appears that Sir Harry Lauder didn't buy those seats to "The Green Pastures," as was recorded here. They were given to him by a friendly male admirer, who also provides the distinguished comedian with an apartment at the Mayflower while he is in New York. Lauder isn't so Scotch, either. All the royalties of his book, "Roamin' In the Gloamin'," go to orphans of war vets. His own son, you know, was killed in action. But Lauder won't give your little boy any taffy. "Children," he says, "should never be given candy."

He's Lauder and Funnier that way.

That promising young prima donna who used to rate your esteem now has to be carried out of the night clubs. . . . In one of the rowdier asylums the other ante meridian her escort was just as drunk and was no aid. . . . It must be the blazing brand of stuff. . . . Within an hour five different men and women collapsed on the dance floor. . . . The drunk who escorted the woman who had her molars knocked out (by an East Side gangster) was a Central Office detective.

The shake-up in Life's editorial rooms was the most devastating known in magazine circles. Almost the entire staff was fired. The new editor is last-named Mallory and comes from the Erwin-Wasey Advertising Agency's Pacific branch. . . . That ad outfit, it appears, prepared Life's anti-prohibition campaign, and so pleased Clair Maxwell, the publication's president, that he decided Mr. Mallory would be more Life-like than the deposed editor, Norman Anthony.

Mr. Anthony, incidentally, who quit Judge for Life, is seeking a job as columnist, as if he hasn't enough trouble.

The spenders that infest Broadway have a spark, at any rate. Dorothy Dawn, of Mr. Carroll's "Vanities," who doubles at the Club Abbey after hours, was notified the other 5 a. m. that her grandmother, who raised her, had succumbed in Texas. The grief-stricken kid didn't have a sou. Two hours later, however, she was on a rattler, bound for the Lone Star state, with round-trip coin supplied by a Times Squareguy.

Miss Ethel Barrymore's criticism of New York "wisecracking critics" is championed by Franklin P. Adams of the N. Y. World, in which Miss Barrymore's interview with Paul Sifton appeared the other Sabbath.

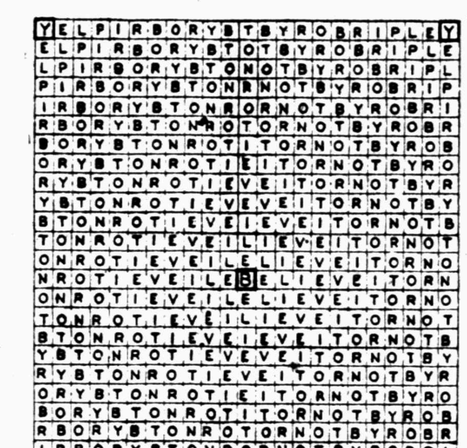

You may recall that the actress said among other things: ". . . one or two of them ought to be shot at dawn. It is a sad comment on American manhood that Walter Winchell is allowed to exist." We replied that we found it difficult to believe that she ever said anything of the sort or even mentioned our name because we called her "America's greatest actress" when we saw her for the first and only time two years ago in "The Constant Wife."

Mr. Adams, however, defends Miss Barrymore with: ". . . we will bet anything to nothing that Miss Barrymore's expressed wish to have Mr. Winchell annihilated was not founded upon his views on the drama. What many persons want Mr. Winchell exterminated for is his gossip column. Their notion is that he invades what tradition, and often a sense of decency and good taste, have taught them to think inviolable . . . it is unlikely that she would have the slightest feeling for or against Mr. Winchell's dramatic critiques."

Well, a pair of tut-tuts and a pish-tush. The World, which employs Mr. Adams, last year desired the sort of gossip column that Mr. Adams would have you believe he doesn't devour. The World, or one of its executives, offered a job to us at a wage that was topped by another rag, and the executive at the time clearly asserted: ". . . we do not care what sort of a column you write all week, so long as you do that gossip stuff for us every Monday." The job also called for dramatic reviews as assistant to St. John Ervine.

But what we started out to report was that the public library files reveal that The World published the verbatim testimony of Evelyn Nesbit's seduction by Stanford White, printing more of it than any of its contemporaries. That apparently wasn't considered 'poor taste" by Mr. Adams, whose employer, the late Joseph Pulitzer, said, in dictating the paper's policy: ". . . never be satisfied with merely printing the news, always be drastically independent . . ."

CARESSE ⚜ A Complete Novel By RUTH TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS

Caresse O'Neill, daughter of the owner of Shady Lawn Inn in the village of Riverton, is pitied by her sweetheart, Ted Branard, son of the town's wealthy banker, on the day of the wedding. Caresse insists on continuing the party which had been arranged in her honor, and telephones Billy, a New York friend, to come down and bring two other friends as escorts for Miriam Newell and Bess Parker, her best friends. They later go to a nearby roadhouse.

A few weeks later Caresse and friends are riding on a lonely road when the car gives out of gas near the old Morton place, which they believe abandoned. They go to the house, find a lighted lamp and a grand piano, and start dancing. Suddenly the door opens and the owner, Lee Deering, enters, to confront them.

Caresse's friends slip out of the house while she tries to explain their presence to Deering, and Caresse accepts his invitation to muffins and coffee before she returns home.

Deering becomes a boarder at Shady Lawn Inn and his friendship with Caresse develops rapidly. Teddy Branard returns suddenly, and calls on Caresse. She forces him to take her to a local roadhouse as a blow at Ted's father.

The elder Branard promises Ted a new boat if he will forget Caresse, then offers Mrs. O'Neill $50,000 for the inn on condition she leave Riverton. The offer is refused.

At a birthday party for Caresse the next night, the village constable appears and informs them a complaint has been signed against them for disturbing the peace.

In court the next day the case is dismissed for lack of prosecution. Teddy forcing his father to drop the matter on the threat to "tell the truth" about the whole affair and the persecution of the O'Neills.

Caresse and Teddy elope, but the car crashes into a wall when Teddy, drunk, loses control.

CHAPTER IX

Edythe Leigh awoke at 10 o'clock in the morning in the smallest, least expensive and most undesirable room in the smart family hotel that was her temporary home. She looked about her discontentedly.

She felt it was late. She could not tell without looking at the clock, for the light that entered her one window was dimmed by the long way it had to go to reach her. the sun never shone in Edythe's room.

"One more day," she yawned, as she lifted her round arms above her head, and slowly rose. "What will it bring, I wonder. Hope it gets me out of this dump. More than a week here now, and not a soul to rescue me."

She meant that no invitations had been forthcoming from anyone inviting her to live in the home of some wealthy friend for a time. Edythe was a visitor. Long since her "visits" had taken on the aspect of a business.

She had no settled home. No one knew better than she that any settled home of hers would perforce be in a dingy boarding-house, or at best a small two-room apartment far up in the Bronx or out in Brooklyn.

Since the last of her small patrimony had gone, Edythe Leigh's home had been the homes of her friends. Invitations to her were life's necessities—to tide her over from one precarious week to the next. Invitations, preferably, to homes where bridge was played. Bridge, to Edythe, was not a pastime. Were it not for her ability to play that game cleverly, and an uncanny knack of evading payment when she did lose, she quite well knew she would not even be able to pay for the tiny room she now occupied. She had selected it for its address rather than for any comfort.

She slipped into a dressing gown and picked up the telephone.

"Please send up the mail," she ordered, when the operator answered. "And have some rolls and coffee sent to me, will you? Thank you."

"Rolls and coffee," she muttered, as she hung up the receiver. "Ugh! Rolls and coffee 10 days running. Hohum! I could do nicely with a piece of Casaba melon, a Spanish omelet, and some scones. And not an invitation for lunch! I'll have to do some telephoning later."

She took the mail the boy brought, eagerly, and hesitated over the dime she handed him.

"You don't need it as badly as I do," she remarked, with a laugh.

"Want I should lend you one, Miss Leigh?" asked the boy, impudently.

Edythe Leigh's financial resources were no secret in the Marlborough Arms.

She closed the door and sat down near the window to look over her correspondence. A bill or two. She discarded those, unopened, with a word of annoyance. An invitation to a dressmaker's opening, with a line in handwriting suggesting that "Miss Leigh will find it to her advantage to attend."

Edythe smiled at that. It might mean a new gown. Most of her frocks came that way, from couturiers who knew her financial position, but also recognized her entree to homes of wealth, where a word about an admired gown could do so much.

"Goodness knows I need a new dress or two," she sighed. "I'm in rags."

She picked up a thick white envelope and examined the writing on it before she slit it open.

"Now who can this be?" she wondered. "Riverton. A missive from the old home town. Who can be writing me from Riverton, and why?"

She unfolded the closely written pages and glanced through first at the signature.

"Mary Branard."

"Well!" she exclaimed, in astonishment. "Things are looking up. 'Mary Branard.' Old lady Branard. Now what can she have to say? Looks like it might be considerable. Wonder if by any chance she's opened up with a bid."

Edythe grinned as she read.

"Old cagey," she commented. "Wants something—but what is it? What can I do for the wife of the millionaire Branard, except honor her with the light of my presence? She says that's what she wants. It's a bit of luck, but I wonder if——"

She resumed her reading.

"By the way," she read, "it may interest you to know that there is an old friend of yours near here, Lee Deering. You were once engaged to him, were you not? I never heard what happened, but I am sure you knew what you wished to do. I have heard that he is quite the rage in musical circles in New York, but for some reason he is soured. We have been anxious to entertain him, and of course to hear some of his new compositions, but he refuses everything. Perhaps you might be able to persuade him——"

The letter dropped into her lap.

Lee Deering!

"So that's where he is is!" she murmured, triumphantly. "Right in my old home town, and nobody could find a trace of him. Ah-ha, my merry lad, so you would run away from Edythe. We shall see!"

All during her preparations for the trip the nearness of Lee Deering had persuaded her to make, she was thinking of him. She was still thinking of him when she left the train at Riverton, and saw the familiar town for the first time in years.

Mrs. Branard was at the train to meet her. She kissed Edythe on both cheeks, and enthused over her as though she were her best and oldest friend.

"Most lovely of you to come, my dear," Mrs. Branard assured her. "You'll cheer up a lonely old woman. But I was almost afraid to ask you, knowing how much you're in demand, and all that?"

"A change will be wonderful!" Edythe declared, thinking of the "demanded," as she stepped into the limousine.

It purred off toward the Branard home as noiselessly as a rocking chair.

Some car! thought Edythe. Things might be worse. She was thinking, too that she could do nicely with a car like the Branard's—but she rather disliked the thought of what would have to go with it.

"Where's Ted?" she asked, as she thought of him. "How is he?"

Mrs. Branard's brow clouded.

"He's in the hospital," she said.

"No!" I didn't know he was sick. You must be so worried, dear Mrs. Branard. Oh, you shouldn't have had me down—"

"He's not sick—exactly," said his mother. "Though he probably believes he's the sickest man in the world. He's hurt—we feared badly, at first. He's doing nicely now, though, and we hope to have him home before you leave."

"But—but—how—"

"I'll tell you all about it after dinner, dear," she said. "It's a long story, and you must be tired, now. I'll tell you the whole thing. You'll have to know some time—the whole town does—so I would rather tell you myself."

The matter of Heddy's accident was not mentioned at dinner. There were other guests besides Edythe, and afterwards there was bridge in her honor.

Edythe was sitting before the long glass in front of the dressing table, carefully cold-creaming her face for the night, when Mrs. Branard's light knock came on the door.

"You don't mind if I have a little talk with you before bed, do you, dear?" she asked.

"I'd love it, dear Mrs. Branard."

"I want to talk about—Teddy. He's so much on my mind, and, as you know, there are few in Riverton I would care to take into my confidence."

Edythe Leigh nodded.

With little preliminary, Mrs. Branard went into her version of the story of Ted and Caresse O'Neill. It was, though making allowance that it was the boy's mother telling it, the version that had come to be generally accepted by the people of Riverton. Neither Caresse nor her mother, however, would have recognized themselves from their description at Mrs. Branard's hands.

She told Edythe of the averted marriage, but carefully glossed over what might have seemed caddishness on Ted's part in leaving the girl at the last moment. Then she told of his return, and declared that the O'Neills, mother and daughter, had been too designing for Teddy.

"And now this!" she declared. "My dear, it is almost too dreadful for belief. Just think! That O'Neill creature has almost killed Teddy—almost killed my son!"

"Killed him?"

"It would have been murder," Mrs. Branard said, with compressed lips. "We had no chance to stop it, for we did not know what the whole town knew—that the O'Neill girl was in the habit of driving Teddy's new roadster through the town and about the country at a simply terrific speed. But, of course, that she drank was no secret from us. The whole town knew that."

"I'd have had her arrested," declared Edythe, promptly.

Mrs. Branard smiled smugly.

"Oh, you know Teddy. Too much of a gentleman to admit the girl was driving."

"Mrs. Branard! Oh, you dear woman! How you must feel!"

Mrs. Branard raised her large bulk, and lumbered over to the side of the dark-eyed girl sitting before the dressing glass. She slipped her arms about Edythe's shoulders, and tilted her chin.

"My dear," she said, softly, "I have something to say to you. I hope you will not misunderstand me. I would like very much to have you for a daughter. No.—don't say anything now."—as she saw Edythe's eyes widen, and the color mount slowly to her cheeks. "I know it's sudden but—but, well, will you think it over?"

"Mrs. Branard! I—I don't know what to say—"

"Nothing now, dear girl. There's time. Think it over tonight."

GANG SAVAGES MUTILATE MAN

Disfigured Body of 'Ride' Victim Found

CHICAGO, May 7. (INS)—The brutally disfigured victim of one of Chicago gangdom's most savage torture killings was found by police today.

The dead man, whose identity presented a baffling mystery, apparently had been taken for one of gangland's notorious "rides," and had been gouged, choked and beaten before being riddled with bullets and put to death.

The body, lying head downward in a ditch beside a lonely road near the Southtown airport, was discovered by a truck driver, who notified the Willow Springs county highway police.

Examination of the body revealed evidence of fiendish torture, both eyeballs were gouged from their sockets, the throat was bruised, as though by choking fingers, and the man's tie formed a tightly drawn noose about his neck. His face was battered, adding to the difficulty of identification.

Sixteen bullet wounds were counted in the body.

Powder burns around the bullet wounds showed that the weapon or weapons had been fired at close range.

The police interpreted the brutality of the murder as pointing unmistakably to a revenge motive.

British General Writes Frank Book

LONDON, May 7. (UP)—One of the most startling of the many startling books in the world that the past 12 months have produced probably is that contributed by Brig. Gen. F. H. Crozier of the British army.

The book, containing many grim accounts of military justice, of life among the soldiers and of carefully cultivated methods of instilling blood lust into the troops, was on sale in London today.

General Crozier handled his subject with utter frankness, disclosing startling opinions within the army.

"The Christian churches," General Crozier wrote," are the finest blood-lust creators which we have, and of them we made free use."

He described the execution of a soldier for cowardice.

the federal bench of the fourth circuit, although this is considered hardly likely.

Party lines were rent assunder in the final vote which was preceded by an intensity of feeling and a warmth of debate unrivaled in recent senate history.

Voting against confirmation were 17 Republicans and 23 Democrats. Also one Farmer-Laborite, Shipstead. The lineup in favor of confirmation included 29 Republicans and 10 Democrats.

Titanic Struggle

Sixteen senators were paired. This group included five Republicans and three Democrats for Parker and five Republicans and three Democrats against him.

From the time Judge Parker's nomination first reached the senate, it was apparent that a titanic struggle was to be waged between President Hoover and the liberal leaders of the senate who believe the supreme court should be more responsive to the changing conditions of American industrial and social life.

Labor opposed his confirmation on the ground that his judicial decisions branded him a supporter of the "infamous 'yellow dog' contracts which condemn workingmen to economic serfdom."

The Association for the Advancement of Colored People opposed him for his pledge while a candidate for governor of North Carolina, that if elected by a single colored vote, he would resign the office.

Embalmer Won't Tell Why He Slew Fellow Worker

TEXARKANA, Texas, May 7. (AP)—Clearing of the mystery as to what started an argument which resulted in Lester Cooper, 21, shooting his friend of years, Paul Hunter, 23, in an undertaker's morgue here may decide the fate of the confessed slayer.

"I didn't want to do it, but I had to," Cooper replied to queries as to why he killed his roommate a few minutes after they had scuffled in an undertaking establishment on April 27. The youthful slayer is held under $10,000 bond for action of the Bowie county, Texas, grand jury which convenes on May 12, bond having been granted in preliminary hearing.

Witnesses testified that the two youths had been inseparable friends and roommates for years. What brought about the tragedy is known only to Cooper and he remains silent. Cornish Malone, companion worker of the pair, testified he was employed in a room near that in which Cooper and Hunter were embalming, overheard them arguing and heard one of them call the other a "liar." He said they started scuffling, and that he went into the room to intercede.

Richard Harding, friend of both Cooper and Hunter, testified he took the former into his room and argued with him to "forget his trouble with Hunter."

"Suddenly," he testified, "Cooper dashed to his trunk, obtained a pistol and rushed back to the room where Hunter was proceeding with his work."

Malone testified that he saw Cooper enter the room and level his gun at Hunter and start firing. Hunter was shot in the chest and stomach. He died three hours later.

"It didn't take many doses of Argotane to satisfy me that I had found the right medicine for my case at last," declared L. A. Clark, prominent farmer residing on rural route 2, Lubbock, Texas, while in town the other day.

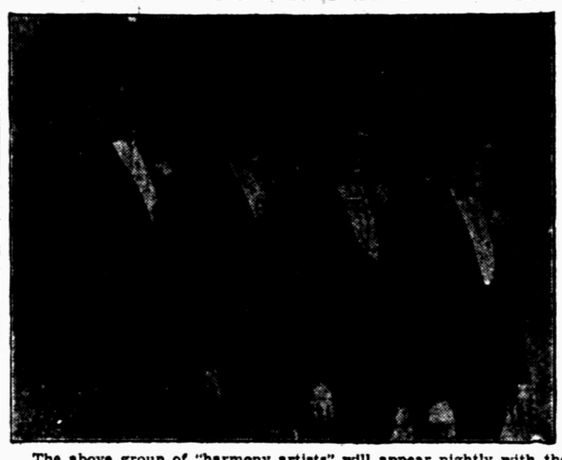

"For five years," continued Mr. Clark, "my stomach was in such a terrible condition that everything I would eat bloated me up with gas until I was miserable most all the time. I got me a bottle Argotane upon the recommendation of a personal friend who had used it, and I began to pick up right off, my appetite has improved so much that I can eat and enjoy everything set before me and I never have any trouble with gas or sour stomach now, my nerves are getting in fine shape and I sleep like a child."

the girl was her sister. She said she jokingly told him the girl was her sister and that she had not seen the man again until Wednesday, when he followed her. He entered the house and demanded she tell him where the diamonds were hidden, she said. When she told him she did not know of any diamonds, he threatened her and when she screamed, he seized a bottle of liniment and tried to force the liquid into her mouth, officers were told. Her screams attracted her mother and the man fled.

A ring, officers were informed, had been purchased by the girl's mother as a graduation present for a daughter who is a member of the graduating class of the Iowa Park High school, but the younger daughter did not know of its purchase. Officers were unable to say whether the man knew of the purchase of this ring.

Davis was arrested by Bill Detlef, Iowa Park city marshal, and he and the man later released were brought to Wichita Falls by Charles Gant and Dick Morris, deputy sheriffs.

realize a large increase during that period, even without any abnormal periods of growth, such as a renewed oil campaign would produce.

"There are some factors, recently brought to light, which assure substantial growth. First, the completion of paved highways into our immediate trade territory. Secondly, our irrigation project gradually has passed the experimental stage, and is in position to really contribute to the development and prosperity of this district. In the third place, new interest is now alive in the oil industry, particularly since the organization of the Deep Oil Development company here. Finally, and most important perhaps, the people of Wichita Falls at last have won their own consent to forget boom days, and to accept normal conditions, and are prepared to take aggressive advantage of every opportunity."

Continued new additions to the census roll for the city are being received daily as a result of the chamber of commerce 25-cents-per-name campaign, inaugurated last Saturday, it was announced. The campaign will continue through Thursday, according to Mr. Bowell. Names of any persons not enumerated but qualified to be enrolled as citizens of this city should be taken to the chamber of commerce or the census offices in the Perkins—Snider building.

Cox, a middle aged man, impresses his acquaintances with his megnetic personality. While in Leavenworth he was editor of the penitentiary magazine. This position he surrendered to Cook after his 33 months term was up.

Next to Doctor Cook's trial, his oil fraud case was the most spectacular in the Southwest. It was bitterly contested and attracted nationwide attention. During procedure he attempted to have the case postponed on the plea he needed to have one of his legs amputated, part of which had been previously cut off, but Federal Judge F. A. Youman ordered the trial to proceed.

Charges were brought through letters sent to William J. Diffey of Paterson, N. J.

USE MORE SOAP

The use of soap is one of the outstanding evidences of culture. Soap is one of the first things we meet with shortly after we enter the world, and something we should have every-day acquaintance with thereafter. Babies soon find out that soap is not good to eat, and burns when introduced into the human eye.

Some soaps are lightly perfumed; some are medicated until they have a distinctive smell; some soaps are white, some pink, some green, some float, some are transparent. It doesn't make very much difference what color, flavor or odor a soap has, it is good to use. Plenty of soap and water is one of the best ways there is to remove dirt and germs. All soaps are good in this regard. Even the medicated soaps are not much better than the ordinary kinds. The germs of diphtheria, pneumonia and blood poisoning and other infections have been found to be removed after a good washing with soap.

Cleanliness has been placed next to godliness. A person who has just stepped from a fresh tubbing is exhilarated and has a sense of well-being and feels presentable. No one likes to have an unclean companion or one who suffers from body odors. Many people do not realize that they are affected in this way. There is no better remedy than using plenty of good soap and a scrubbing brush.

Almost everybody knows what soap is. It is made by boiling together some kind of fat with an alkali which may be either potash or washing soda. The toilet soap used for the face and hands is usually a mild soap, often delicately perfumed. Some popular toilet soaps are made of palm or cocoanut oil, lamb fat or olive oil. Transparent soaps may be made by using cocoanut and castor oil with the addition of small amounts of sugar, alcohol, glycerine and rosin. Imported soaps usually command a high price due to the costly fragrance used in them, but they clean the skin no better than ordinary good toilet soaps. A floating soap is made by adding air to the soap in liquid form and beating it in. The presence of the minute air bubbles causes the soap to be lighter than water and therefore it never sinks to the bottom of the tub.

In choosing a toilet soap for your complexion, consider whether your skin is oily or dry. An oily skin calls for soap with more alkaline in it which cuts the grease from the skin. On the other hand, dry skins call for soap which has more oil in it which leaves a faint oily film on the complexion. You can readily determine the difference between these soaps after using them.

Laundry soap is generally either white or yellow. The white soap usually has sodium silicate of water-glass added to it to aid in its cleansing power. If you keep a bar of white washing soap on the shelf for some time you may notice a white coating which is due to the water glass. This soap should not be used for silks of woolens but is splendid for cotton goods. Borax or naphtha is sometimes added to soap to give it extra cleansing power. They soften water and aid in dissolving of fats so that greasy and dirty clothes have the dirt loosened more easily. Yellow and brown laundry soap usually has rosin added to it. The rosin tends to soften the water and makes better soap suds and also keeps the soap from becoming rancid. A little is a help, but too much makes the soap sticky. As far as general washing goes, either type of laundry soap does very good work.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A New Complex

Question—Anna Q. writes: "I have a complex that changes my personality and disposition — a breaking out, pimples, rash or whatever it may be called, almost constantly in the middle of my forehead and nose. It dries and scales off like dandruff. Sometimes my nose (to me) feels and looks like a horned toad. Would appreciate it very much if you would suggest a remedy."

A.—This is the first time I have heard acne called a "complex." However, pimples or other skin blemishes may lead to worry and certain distressing mental conditions. I have found that all types of acne seem to respond well to an acid fruit fast, using no food other than apples or oranges, etc.

Bad Combinations

Q.—P. B. writes: "I have been eating for supper one-fourth of a pound of cottage cheese, one gill of cream, one glass of Jersey milk and a half dozen graham crackers made with honey. Do you regard this as a good meal for an office man who has hyperacidity and more or less trouble with nervous indigestion?"

A.—I would not advise the meal you inquire about for anyone suffering with stomach trouble or nervousness. The combination of crackers and milk is not a good one as crackers contain starch, and milk is a protein. You will probably be able to overcome the hyperacid condition of your stomach by learning to use the proper food combinations. I will be glad to send you my article on food combinations if you will send me your name and address on a large stamped envelope.

G. A. R. VETS HOLD PARADE

Lawton Honors Thin Ranks Of 'Boys in Blue'

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., May 7.—The shattered remnants of the Oklahoma Grand Army of the Republic organization, assembled here in reunion, closed the wide gaps in its ranks at 10:30 Wednesday morning in parade march with 35 grizzled and enfeebled old boys in blue leading a four-block march which was participated in by 200 members of the ladies of the G. A. R., the W. R. C., the D. U. V., and a color squad of the American Legion. Music was furnished by the Lawton High school boys band and the official fife and drum corp of Oklahoma City, composed of veterans.

Drill team of the W. R. C. 17, Oklahoma City, presented an interesting street exhibition of the work following the parade.

The visitors were taken to Post field at 3:30 this afternoon where an infantry drill was presented by the 20th infantry. The rugged soldiers of the regular army were in marked contrast with the aged followers of Abraham Lincoln.

The veterans are having a wonderful time at the Camp Fire sessions where incidents of the days of '61 are vividly recounted. The reunion will come to a close Thursday. All auxiliaries are meeting twice daily.

Police Recover Car From Bed of River

Police late Tuesday night recovered an automobile from the sands of the Wichita river, at the end of Bluff street where it had been driven off a 20-foot embankment by an unknown driver, more than an hour before the car was reported stolen at headquarters, according to information given by Night Sergeant J. C. McIntyre.

Tracks made by the car showed its driver had not attempted to turn at the end of the street but had driven straight over the bank, where the car lodged between the bank and a tree. Wreckers worked for an hour and a half before they could extricate the machine.

Company to Pay Premiums on Babies Baffles Officials

Mutual Birth Benefit Association Is Said to Be 'Something New'

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 7. (UP)—Atty. Gen. J. Berry King was asked today by State Insurance Commissioner Jess Read if a company which pays premiums for the birth of babies is an insurance company.

Read admits he doesn't know, although he thinks it is not.

"Anyway, it's something new. I never heard of such a plan before and believe it is the first in the United States," Read said.

The question arose when an agent asked Read if it would be necessary for the company to comply with the Oklahoma insurance laws before he might represent the firm in this state.

The company, the Mid-West Birth association, of Lubbock, Texas, is operated on the same plan as assessment life insurance companies, Read said.

Whenever a baby is born to a mother on which the company holds a policy, each member of the association is assessed $1.25. Of this amount $1 goes to the beneficiary, while 25 cents is applied to the operating costs of the company, Read was told. The mother may name anyone she wishes as the beneficiary.

If the child is born within three months after the policy is written no premium is paid. Should it be born from three to six months after issuance of the certificate a premium of $250 is paid. A $1,000 premium is the prize if the child arrives anytime after 12 months from date the policy is obtained. Other premiums are paid in proportion, Read was advised.

The agent told Read there were a number of prospects for the policies.

The insurance commissioner sees in the activities of the company a drive against "race suicide."

Terms of the policy indicate that larger families are being encouraged and paid for, he said.

Chest Board Appeals for Payment Of Pledges as Nursery Tells Needs

An urgent appeal that delinquent pledges to the community chest be paid at once was issued Wednesday following the report of a committee from the day nursery that the nursery would be unable to function if it had to accept the 20 per cent cut in monthly allowances ordered by the directors of the chest at their last meeting.

The nursery committee, composed of Mrs. G. R. Ellis, Mrs. J. A. Kemp, Mrs. O. T. Ailes and Mrs. Frank Kell, presented their report at the regular meeting of the chest finance committee Wednesday afternoon in the office of W. E. McBroom, chairman.

It was pointed out the nursery has an average daily attendance of from 58 to 70 children and that the children are fed on an average of 12½ cents per day each. This low amount is adequate to feed the children properly only because of the large number of donations given to the nursery by various church societies, it was said. It was further stated the church societies are unable to donate more.

In asking the finance committee for relief, the nursery delegation pointed out that no child is accepted if there are others to care for him but that many children come to the nursery daily whose parents can furnish only the barest diet or possibly no food at all at home, it being necessary for that reason that these children obtain the best food possible at the nursery. The finance committee stated it could offer no aid, referring the nursery committee to the executive committee of the chest.

In auditing the accounts of the recipient organizations, the finance group stated it would grant their monthly allowances on the basis of the 20 per cent reduction ordered by the directors but would even then lack more than $1,700 of being able to pay the regular amounts on June 1 unless that amount is collected from about $6,000 in delinquent pledges. Those at the meeting, in addition to the nursery committee, were W. E. McBroom, A. E. Kelly, Jacob B. Price and Miss Myrle Neely, executive secretary of the chest.

Relief Rushed To Storm Area

county stood at 13. Twenty-three injured were in a Hillsboro hospital. Some of the injured were in a serious condition and the death toll was expected to be further increased by other deaths. It was estimated the total number injured in the county was around 75. Approximately 50 farm homes were destroyed.

Frost, leveled by a terrific storm, saw 23 killed, either crushed or burned to death in the following fires. Nordheim, along the gulf coast, felt the greatest fury of the storm, 24 being killed there and in nearby communities.

Victims Unprepared

In every town struck—it was the same story—victims caught unprepared by the swiftness and deadliness of the swirling clouds. Houses and business establishments were damaged in every community struck.

An authentic estimate of the damage done throughout the state still was impossible tonight although it will run well into the millions.

Relief efforts were centering upon Frost, almost completely wiped out. Additional guards were posted there to prevent looting of stores. Supplies of anti-toxin were received this afternoon and administered to the injured.

Wichitans Named by Dry Goods Association

Jack C. Barnard, of the P. B. M. company here and Marvin Smith, president of W. B. McClurkan and company, were elected directors of the Texas Retail Dry Goods association Wednesday at the closing session of the association's annual convention Dallas, according to a dispatch to The Record News. A. M. Goldstein of Waco was elected president.

'JAKE' TESTS

Texas Chemists Find Carbolis Acid in 'Beverage'

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 7. (UP)—Government chemists at Fort Worth testing jamaica ginger from Oklahoma City drug stores reported today that carbolic acid in injurious quantities had been found in the samples, Deputy Prohibition Administrator Bee Demonbrun said.

The "jake" was first tested and found substandard and now is being tested for poisons, Demonbrun said.

The evidence obtained from the tests will be presented in the trial of 38 Oklahoma City druggists indicted for conspiracy in selling jamaica ginger.

Elks to Give Benefit Dance at Lakeside

The opening affair in the program of summer entertainments sponsored by the Elks club here will be a benefit dance open to the public at the Lake Wichita pavilion Thursday night, it was announced Wednesday by F. A. Rinehart, exalted ruler.

Other entertainments are being planned for the summer months, when the club has moved into its new lodge building now under construction at the corner of Ninth and Travis streets, it was said. The building will be ready for occupancy in the near future and an elaborate opening program is being worked out, Mr. Rinehart said. Charles de Sautelle and his Royal Terrace orchestra with nine singers and entertainers have been engaged for the dance Thursday night. The committee in charge is composed of Walter Mahanay, B. D. Caffee and C. B. McConnell.

London's force of policewomen is to be doubled in strength. In 1925 the number was raised from 24 to 50. Now it is to be more than 100.

W. T. C. C. PLANS AD CAMPAIGN

Stamps and Booklets to Carry Slogan

STAMFORD, Texas, May 7. (AP)—As a means of acquainting the world with its slogan—"West Texas, the Raw Material Capital of the World"—and thereby stimulating development of the territory's resources, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has arranged for a cooperative advertising campaign to cover the entire United States, in which every town and city in the district can join with the regional organization for individual and collective exploitation.

An order has been placed with the regional organization for 100,000 sheets of 15 lithographed stamps and for 300,000 four-color booklet covers. Distribution of the stamps and booklet covers will start at the annual West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Abilene, May 29, 30 and 31. D. A. Bandeen, general manager, has announced.

All towns in West Texas will be asked to use the stamps and booklets. Each local chamber of commerce will sell the stamps to business and industrial establishments in the community served for use on all correspondence.

The booklet covers will have a special color design with sufficient blank space below to allow each town to publish a distinctive piece of community advertising.

Each of the 15 stamps will carry West Texas Chamber of Commerce slogan and also call attention to some outstanding fact concerning the section.

Approval of the plan has been accorded by a large number of commercial organization executives in West Texas, and the chambers of commerce of Fort Worth, Amarillo, El Paso, Stamford, Graham, Coleman and Sweetwater, have joined the regional organization in sponsoring the undertaking.

Every town in West Texas, no matter how small, will be financially enabled, Bandeen declared, though this cooperative advertising campaign, to issue a booklet giving information about the community. The stamps will be sold at a low price, but one sufficient to pay for the literature, according to the plan.

Bandits Torture Girl To Learn Money Cache

CHICAGO, May 7. (US)—Two torture robbers beat and strangled Mary Summerio, 17, into unconsciousness early today when she refused to reveal the hiding place of her father's money.

They trussed her up with sheets from her bed, took $18 belonging to her, and set fire to the curtains before they left.

Two passers-by noticed the blaze at the windows and rushed into the house as the robbers were making their escape.

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, May 7.—J. W. (Bud) Aiken was found guilty of the murder of D. F. Cox and sentenced to 50 years imprisonment by the verdict of a district court jury here Wednesday night. WITNESSES TELL OF BANK PLOT

FORT WORTH, May 7. (UP)—John Alsup tried for a year to get Will Vincent, a chauffeur, to persuade two negroes to attempt the robbery of the First State Bank of Polytechnic, it was testified late today in the former Fort Worth policeman's trial for murdering Will Tate, a negro, in the attempted holdup of the suburban bank, April 11.

That was the main point in the testimony today in the trial. Alsup also is charged with killing George Terrell, another negro. A. P. Boyt, a barber, also has been charged in the double killing but will be tried separately.

Vincent, a negro, and Mrs. Maude Raines, housekeeper at a hotel here, were the witnesses.

SEVEN JURORS IN JOHN BRADY TRIAL

DALLAS, May 7. (UP)—Completion of a jury to try former Judge John W. Brady for the murder of Lehlia Highsmith by the end of Thursday's court session was predicted tonight after seven jurors already had been chosen.

COLEMAN WOMAN TELLS OF CRASH

Special to The Record News

COLEMAN, Texas, May 7.—A courtroom that has been crowded since Monday morning was packed tighter this afternoon as concluding chapters were written in the Mrs. Louise Labaron murder case. The defendant gave her version of the automobile collision here the night of Oct. 14, 1929, in which Garland Roy Greeman was fatally injured and out of which the murder indictment grew. Arguments were under way tonight.

Clock 113 Years Old In Canyon Museum

CANYON, Texas, May 7. (AP)—A clock which it is claimed has been ticking away the hours for 113 years now stands in the Panhandle-Plains Historical society museum, still marking the passage of the minutes.

A. G. Noble of Dimmitt deposited the clock in the musuem, with the information that he had used it 65 years, and that it previously had been used by his family for 48 years.

The clock, manufactured in Connecticutt, was purchased in Richmond, Va., from whence it journeyed to Missouri, carefully wrapped in the folds of a featherbed. In 1910 it made a similar journey to Texas.

Police Fear Move To Free Condemned Men

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 7. (UP)—Rumors that gangland members would attempt to wreck the county jail here to liberate condemned prisoners, tonight caused a police guard to be placed about the building to reinforce sheriff's forces.

The aged Jackson county jail houses six condemned men sentenced to hang for murder. In addition police said the jail has never housed as many desperate characters who would assist should a jail break be attempted.

Escaped Convict Wins Court Fight

But He's Back in Texas Penitentiary

County officers in Texas have no legal right to hold prisoner any person who has escaped from jail in another county when officers in the county from which the person escaped refuse to take him in custody, even though that person was a state convict and sentenced to additional terms in the penitentiary at the time of his escape, according to a ruling of the court of criminal appeals Wednesday in reversing the action of the 30th district court here, which had refused to order the release of Hope Nicely, in whose behalf a habeas corpus hearing was held several weeks ago.

Nicely was arrested by police here following his escape from an East Texas jail while under penitentiary sentences aggregating more than 30 years, it was alleged. He had been taken from the penitentiary for trial on additional charges at the time he escaped, officers were told. Authorities in the county from which he escaped and agents of the state prison both refused to take him in custody and he was held in the county jail here. Although the higher court Wednesday denied the right of district court here to hold Nicely, he was transferred to the penitentiary some time ago and officials here said the reversal would presumably not question the right of state prison officials to hold him.

The court of criminal appeals also reversed the conviction of Paul E. Parkins in the county court at law here several weeks ago on a charge of barratry, when a jury fixed his punishment at $250 and 45 days imprisonment. In dismissing the case, the higher court held the charge against him was defective.

Parkins and E. A. Martin, former Wichita Falls attorney, were indicted on charges growing out of an alleged attempt to cause Martin's employment as attorney by an Iowa Park woman to collect an insurance policy carried by her husband. Martin was tried and acquitted on a charge growing out of the incident. It was alleged Parkins previously had been connected with the insurance company with which the policy was carried.

Commission of Appeals t Denies Removal Plea

The commission of appeals of the supreme court Wednesday overruled a motion to remove from the court the suit involving the Great Southern Life Insurance company and H. I. Johnson, justice of the peace at Burkburnett, on his claim to the second installment of $2,000 alleged due him from an accident policy as a result of the loss of one of his legs through the accidental discharge of a gun, according to an Associated Press dispatch to The Record News.

The suit was the second to have resulted from litigation begun by Judge Johnson against the insurance company on the same claim. In the first suit he asked payment of the first $2,000 installment following his injury and obtained judgment in district court here for that amount. The judgment was affirmed and collected after the appeals court affirmed the action of the court here. The second suit was filed when the next installment claimed by Judge Johnson fell due, according to the terms of the policy. It was on this suit, carried to the higher courts following a second judgment, that the commission of appeals ruled Wednesday.

WILTSE'S SECOND SHUTOUT OF SEASON STOPS SAN ANTONIO, 4-0

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Really, when we recounted our grievances against howling railroad whistles the other morning we did not expect the railroads to come right in with a probable solution of the problem. We expected to continue suffering with punctured ear drums and loss of sleep the remainder of our life. But no. Tuesday afternoon's paper carried a story to the effect that the Katy lines will shortly install musical train whistles. And no doubt other lines will follow suit.

The new whistle should be described, as anything that would tend to relieve countless sufferers from the ordinary steam blasts likely will be regarded as a heaven-sent instrument to rescue the perishing. It will be in front of the engine, not just over the engineer's cab, where it now is in position to hurl its scream everywhere. The new device is funnel shaped, and will project the sound straight down the track. A person standing at right angles to the whistle will scarcely be bothered. Six whistles, combining three treble and three bass notes, are to be combined in the device, and in contrast to the terrifying blare now in use the new whistle will simply play a tune.

To list the advantages of such a contraption would be to spend a lifetime in research. No longer will our sleep be wrecked, to say nothing of the repose that will be offered delicate nervous systems. No longer will we be awakened by what to the auricular centers seems to be Gabriel's trombone heralding the end of the world. No longer will the delicate process of getting to sleep be impeded by this nuisance. Instead we will be lulled to sleep by a mechanical and wholly industralized version of something that probably will faintly resemble Rubinstein's Melody in F.

The result will be a happier race, totally refreshed with eight hours of sound sleep, leaping joyously from between sheets early in the morning and striding out with vim to repair the muddled condition of the stock market, the grocery store or the pop corn stand, as the case may be.

There is another, and deeper advantage, one wholly psychological which no doubt will introduce an unimaginable increase of wealth, both mental and material. To begin with, every psychologist recognizes that music stimulates thought. Certain authors there are to whom the muse will not come unless it is privileged to dance in to some tune or other. These authors, when they can't afford to hire a symphony, wear out an ordinary victrola in a week. With the ingenious device contemplated by the Katy music will be hurled through the air, not in all directions, of course, but down certain paths in the atmosphere, and all these authors would need to do is rent a room in the proximity of the railroad track, a thing that with the present steam belcher in vogue no sane man or woman would think of. Music would be there in abundance, and the literary marts consequently would be overflowing with astute novels and penetrating tracts on the life and fate of man such as scholars never dreamed of. The world of culture would be amazed at the increase of knowledge. To say nothing of the improvement in the minds of ordinary people who likewise would be stimulated in the general direction of thought by the melodious purring of the southbound local. Who knows but what discussions of the Einstein theory might replace the banter we now hear among brakemen?

And finally, to stop this list of benevolences short where we might go on forever, there is the advantage the melodious train whistle would bring to the farmer. Science has proven that even as music stimulates thinking in man, allegedly the most noble of all animals, so it works queer tricks in the lower orders of life, notably in the lowly hen and the humble cow. In brief, with a Beethoven symphony singing in its ear, a hen will fill the barnyard with eggs, according to what we have read; and similarly, broadcast a soothing Chopin waltz into the meadows and Farmer Jones will have to increase the number of his tin buckets in order to preserve the flow of milk. Bees are also said to be affected in such a manner, but the latest treatise on this subject is not at hand, and we would not say for sure.

At any rate, the wonders of this new invention are obvious. Farmer Jones will not have to sing to his chicks or buy a radio for his cow. The railroad will bring music to his farm, if only six notes of the scale. The farmer living near the railroad, of course, will be the only one to benefit. This being the case, and agricultural conditions in this area being what they are, this department recommends that railroads be routed through or near every farm in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma, with the farmers carrying part of the burden by giving the railroad a share of his profits, which are bound to be enormous. I dedicate this idea to my town and to my fellow citizens in this area.

Early Singer-Berg Meeting Is Urged

NEW YORK, May 6. (UP)—The New York State Athletic commission recommended today that Al Singer, lightweight contender, meet Jack (Kid) Berg of England before meeting Sammy Mandell, the champion. Singer and Mandell are matched for July 17.

Berg won public recognition as a title contender by his decisive victory over Tony Canzoneri. Singer is now under contract to fight Ignacio Fernandez at Madison Square garden, May 23.

Joseph Memorov, an attorney representing Primo Carnera, appealed to the board for a hearing for the Italian heavyweight, whose license was revoked last week. He was assured Carnera would be given a hearing when he arrives in New York.

Spudders Pound Hits Off Two Indian Hurlers

Special to The Record News

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 7.—The San Antonio Indians today were helpless before the southpaw slants of Hal Wiltse, who pitched his second shutout of the season, Wichita Falls defeating the Tribe 4 to 0.

Three of the Spudder runs were off Darrow, who gave way in the eighth to Malicky. Levey, Storti, Fitzgerald and Bettencourt led the Spudder attack with two hits each.

As Wiltse was up to his old perfection in the box, the Spudders started scoring in the fourth. Storti opened the inning with a double to center. Fitzgerald singled to right, scoring Storti. Kloza and Burns fanned. Bettencourt singled to left, sending Fitzgerald to second. Crouch popped to second.

Two more tallies came in the sixth. Storti again started the fireworks, beating out a slow tap down the third base line. Kott threw wild to first and Storti continued to second. Fitzgerald doubled to left, scoring Storti. Kloza flied out to center. Burns grounded out, second to first, Fitzgerald taking third. Bettencourt was safe on first on Kott's fumble, Fitzgerald scoring. Crouch flied out to right.

The final score was given up by Malicky in the eighth. Fitzgerald flied to right and Kloza strolled. Burns forced Kloza, second to short. Bettencourt tripled to center, scoring Burns. Crouch walked and Euller flied to left, closing the inning.

The two teams meet Thursday in the second game of the series.

Drivers Enter Lists for Sunday's Auto Races

Several stock car drivers who competed at the 1928 and 1929 100-mile grind on the Texas-Oklahoma fairgrounds speedway have again signed up for the third annual 200-lap grind which will be held on the local half mile oval next Sunday afternoon, it was announced. These entries of the long distance classic include Mat Ward and Jimmie Davis of Duncan, Okla., Henry Williams of Wichita Falls, one-armed driver and winner of the first annual event in 1928, George Weber, formerly of Wichita Falls but now of Los Angeles, Earl Hovendon, formerly of Duncan now residing in Phoenix, Ariz., Vern McCombs of St. Jo, Mo., Jimmie Lawrence of San Antonio, Jim Hall of Houston, and many other well known stock car speed aces.

The long race here has been an annual affair since 1928 and the two previous races have attracted national comment due to the fact that the 200 laps is one of the longest events staged on the dirt tracks of the country.

Sonnenberg and Shikat to the Fore 'As Scribe Ponders Over Mat Champ

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, May 7.—If somebody should suddenly haul off and ask me the name of the present heavyweight wrestling champion of all the world, I would have to stammer around quite some, and put plenty of 'er-er-er-er, and several wells into my reply. And I doubt if said reply would be greatly illuminating.

As a matter of fact, I do not know who is the heavyweight wrestling champion of all the world. I have heard that the culprit is Gus Sonnenberg, the Dartmouth young man who is built like a dull, sickening thud, and who disposes of his opponents by butting them like a william goat. I have also heard that the guilty man is one Richard Shikat, a Prussian.

You can take these contradictory reports for what they are worth. I have no personal knowledge on the subject. Maybe Sonnenberg is one-half champion and Shikat one-half title holder. I have been unable to locate my only wrestling operative, X-33, otherwise Mr. Gene Fowler, lately, as he is busy writing a number of new sequels to "Trumpet in the Dust," and when Mr. Fowler fails me, I am completely lost on wrestling.

Mr. Fowler is the only man of my acquaintance who can get really heated up over a wrestling contest. Of course there must be others. I saw the good M. Jacques Armand Curleycues, the wrestling entrepreneur, prowling around the office of the New York boxing commission the other day looking very prosperous, and the prosperity of M. Jacques argues wrestling fans other than Mr. Fowler, for I am sure Mr. Fowler never permits himself to get heated up enough about wrestling to become a paying customer. Unless he is going back.

Had the thought occurred to me I would have asked M. Jacques about the heavyweight wrestling champion, but he would probably have said Shikat. Then the next man I asked would have said Sonnenberg, and my confusion would have been increased. I hear that M. Jacques would like to have the matter settled by having Sonnenberg wrestle Shikat, with himself as the promoter to insure a square deal to the customers, and I am in favor of it. I mean I am in favor of a square deal to the customers.

As I understand the situation, and the numerous wrestling press agents will undoubtedly correct me if I am wrong, Sonnenberg is recognized in some places as champion, and Shikat is recognized in other places. For example, the great state of Pennsylvania has placed the official seal on Shikat, and he is champion of the keystone country from Emporium to Darby creek.

I believe that the vast empire state of New York also recognizes Shikat's claim to the championship, but in Massachusetts if you spoke of the Prussian as champ, the citizens might run you bow-legged, for in those parlous parts they think the hard-headed Sonnenberg is the title holder, in spades.

Shikat has frequently challenged Sonnenberg, if I am to believe the Prussian's pals. On one occasion, it is said, "Toots" Mondt, who manages Shikat, offered to give Sonnenberg $50,000 cash money to wrestle, but Gus wouldn't accept. This "Toots" Mondt used to be a wrestler himself, and the fact that he could even think of that amount of money, whether he had it or not, shows that wrestling is a remunerative dodge.

Shikat bases his title claim mainly on his victory in a wrestling tournament conducted in Philadelphia last year for the purpose of developing a champion, the promoters holding that Sonnenberg had no claim to the title. Gus didn't compete in that tournament, of course. Jim Londos, the Greek, and Shikat met in the tourney finals and Shikat won.

Oddly enough, Shikat's present manager, "Toots" Mondt, was heaved in 42 minutes by Shikat in a wrestling bout, which is said to have decided "Toots" to manage Shikat. "Toots" allowed that he never before encountered a man as good as Shikat, and "Toots" was no mud turtle at that wrestling business. He beat Joe Stetcher and Strangler Lewis out on the coast just before the Philadelphia tournament, breaking Lewis' arm, it is said, in a private bout, and causing him to forfeit $5,000 he had posted for a title bout.

Shikat is as picturesque and colorful in his own line, as is his fellow citizen, Max Schmeling, in the manly art. The wrestler was born at Koenigsburg, in East Prussia, where his father was a landscape gardener. When the war came on, young Shikat joined the navy and was on the Kron Prinz, one of the battleships bottled up at Jutland.

He never wrestled before he became a sailor, but presently he was champion of the German fleet. After the war he became a professional wrestler under the direction of a German sportsman by the name of Albert. Six years ago this chap brought Shikat to this country with Hans Steinke and a wrestler named Doestal. Albert went broke and sold Shikat's contract to Rudy Miller, who took Shikat to Chicago, and then to the west coast.

At this time Shikat wasn't so hot as a grappler because he knew little of the American catch-as-catch-can style, but on the coast he beat Ed Santel, a good man at the all-around grips game, and Santel later tutored Shikat. Then the German won 20 matches on the coast where wrestling goes big. He beat Wladek Zbyscko, Dan Koloff and a number of others, and he repeatedly challenged Strangler Lewis, then the champion.

Finally Shikat went home and got married, returning in time to take part in the Philadelphia tournament. "Toots" Mondt not only backed this tournament, but took part in it. The promoter was Ray Fabian, who later made the arrangements for Mondt to handle Shikat, whose contract with Miller had run out.

Mondt has turned out to be a very clever manager. You know one of these big wrestlers, properly handled, can make more than a top notch fighter. Mondt thinks he will gross a million with Shikat before he gets through.

The wrestler's name is properly spelled Schickat. He is not yet 30, is six feet two inches tall, and weighs 224 pounds. He is accounted a corking showman, and showmanship is 50 per cent of wrestling, so I am informed.

Shikat is returning to Europe for a tour under the auspices of Dick Lean, who is the M. Jacques Armand Curleycues of Europe. By the way, M. Jacques says a match between Shikat and Sonnenberg in almost any man's town would draw upwards of $250,000.

And that ain't hay!

FRENCH NET TITLE MENACED

America and England Stand To Win

LONDON, May 7. (US)—The supremacy of France which has dominated the Wimbledon Tennis championships will be seriously threatened this year. Cochet's title as singles champion is imperiled by both America and England.

Wimbledon, however, loves old favorites. Bill Tilden, although he is not to be included in the American Davis cup team, is still their American idol.

Cochet has shown very poor form this spring, and there are those who believe that Big Bill has an outside chance of scoring a sensational victory in the championship this year.

Johnny Doeg, young member of the American Davis cup team, ranks high in British estimation. He defeated H. W. Austin, the English champion last year and his all-around good play indicates, in the belief of the British, that he will go further in the tourney than his team-mate George Lott.

There are one or two dark horses in the Australian team which is visiting Europe for the Davis cup matches. The team is a very strong one including J. Crawford, J. H. Hopman, J. Willard and F. Moon.

Germany is sending Prennon Kleinschroth and Landmann. Germany has greatly improved her brand of tennis the past few years and it would not be surprising to see Prenn reach the semi-finals, or even the finals. He is one of the most improved players in Europe.

Holland does not threaten seriously. Their best representatives, H. Timmer is a good player on hard courts but appears weak on the Wimbledon turf.

Italy will be at her full strength, which means that De Morpurgo will be included in their contingent.

As to the women, it is practically certain that Helen Wills Moody will be the champion again. Most of her British opponents have taken a backward step. Betty Nuthall has not progressed, but England's new star, Doris Round, is not without merit and should be a formidable opponent for America's star.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—An early advance today in cotton on reports of relatively steady Liverpool cables was followed by reactions under near month liquidation and scattered selling of new crop months. May sold off to 16.23 or about 30 points from the high level of the morning and closed at 16.25 compared with 16.38 at the close of the previous day. Later deliveries were relatively steady but the new October reacted from 14.41 to 14.26 and closed at that figure with the general market closing steady at net declines of 13 points on old crop positions while the new crop was 1 to 14 points net higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of 6 to 11 points with the active months selling about 15 to 18 points net higher during the early trading. July sold up to 16.66 on the initial demand, while new December advanced to 14.45.

The decline which followed was accompanied by reports that several thousand bales of cotton were being shipped back here from Havre, presumably for delivery this month, and there was considerable scattering near month liquidation also undoing of old straddles between near and late months. The latter held relatively firm with the new December selling at 14.40 or 19 points net higher during the early afternoon but offerings increased later, with July selling off to 16.32 and December to 14.33. Closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest on most positions, with May 11 points under July and 199 points over the new October.

Stocks of certificated cotton at designated delivery points increased 365,089 bales according to today's reports. An early July premium of about 200 points over old October was reduced to 184 points at the close.

Liverpool reported continental buying and covering in that market.

Exports today 13,303 making 6,341,693 so far this season. Port receipts 5,441. U. S. port stocks 1,636,186.

Futures closed barely steady, 13 points lower to 14 higher; spot, quiet; middling, 16.45.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 7. (AP)—Active trading featured cotton here today and price fluctuations were wide and decidedly erratic. Stimulated by favorable cables and dry weather in the eastern half of the belt prices advanced 17 to 18 points during the first part of the morning but eased 13 to 16 points before midsession.

After midsession active selling of July developed and that month dropped to a level 33 points under the early high, while October was in brisk demand and advanced to a new high 16 points above its low.

The discount of October under July widened to 189 points during the morning narrowed to 155 in the afternoon.

July declined from a high of 16.28 to 15.92 and closed at 15.94 down 16 points net. The general market closed steady 11 up to 18 down.

October closed at 14.31 or 9 points net higher while May closed 18 net down and December 11 net up.

CHICAGO COTTON

CHICAGO, May 7. (AP)—Old crop cotton declined $1.50 per bale while new crop months advanced 50 cents per bale today. The market here made a feeble opening in response to better cables than due. After an early bulge prices on the old crop sagged off while new crop months held fairly steady thus reversing the spread between summer and fall months. The close was barely steady from 33 points net lower to 10 points net higher. Reports from Manchester indicated a better demand for goods.

DRYGOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—Cotton goods continued in moderate demand today with buyers uncertain about contracting ahead. Raw silk was priced very attractively, but trade in goods continued sub-normal. Retail demand has increased following hot weather. Calcutta cables told of continued unrest in burlap mills, more business was reported on men's wear at retail and in fabrics.

Stocks Sag Under Militant Short Selling as Banks Withhold Support

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, May 7. (US)—More aggressive short selling broke out today on belief that sufficient recovery had been staged and with practically no banking support in evidence the entire list sold lower. Further indications of lower steel production and prices in the mid-week reviews enhanced uncertainty and induced some further liquidation.

Steel finished with a loss of 4⅝, while Consolidated Gas dropped 1⅛, American Telephone 2¾, General Electric 2⅜, Radio 4½, Bethlehem 1¾, Westinghouse 1, Vanadium 6¾, Sears Roebuck 2¼, Electric Power 3¼, Union Pacific 3, Baltimore & Ohio 3⅛, Johns Manville 6 and Celotex 15⅝ points. Short covering held the coppers fairly firm. Call money was held at 3 per cent all day in official channels but several loans were made outside at as low as 2½ per cent. Total turnover dropped off to 4,300,000 shares.

Steel common continued under heavy pressure, as weekly trade reviews told of further curtailment in production and additional readjustment in prices. Ingot output for the entire industry now averages around 77 per cent of capacity, compared with 78 per cent a week ago, while the Iron Age composite price for finished steel is now $3.68 a net ton below the price prevailing at this time last year. April pig iron production, as reported by the Iron Age, was the smallest for any April since 1922. Output for the first third of the year at 12,094,023 tons has been exceeded in 10 of the last 14 years.

Analysis of April sales of department stores, as compared with April, 1929, by one individual discloses that, first there is buying power in this country, and, second, of necessity, that the people have money. The only difficulty with the present situation, as seen by this individual, is a psychological one, and that there is too much talk of gloom and not enough optimistic talk. Big banking interests will not again tolerate the bear raiding which has hurt innocent people and business, in his opinion.

More confidence was displayed in the Utility group due to the belief in important quarters that Utilities were again selling on a basis more closely in line with their indicated earnings for the current year. Electric Bond & Share interests showed more inclination to support their favorites with the result that this group displayed a buoyant tone.

Borden rose to a new high for the year on estimates that earnings during the first quarter were substantially above the same period in 1929. Good buying also was noted in Warner Bros., Loews, Inc., Paramount-Famous and other stocks in the amusement field. Standard Oil of New Jersey held firm and other issues in this category also held well. The Oils are particularly favored in many quarters due to the improvement that has been manifest in the past several weeks.

The brokers loan report which will be issued after the close tomorrow is expected to show a slight reduction in the total borrowings due to the heavy liquidation that has taken place in stocks during the past week. This, together with the fact that the volume of new financing was relatively lighter, should result in a fair reduction in the total loans. Little change is expected in the reserve statements generally. Purchases of bills in the open market will be light due to the ease of credit, while little increase is looked for in the amount of bills discounted.

Sterling yielded moderately in another irregular foreign exchange market. Cotton showed little special change with professional operations predominating, while wheat yielded nearly 2 cents a bushel under the weight of scattered professional selling.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 7. (AP)—Under a big load of selling, wheat values tumbled today accelerated by reports indicating the best prospect in many years for domestic spring wheat. Canada's seeding of spring wheat was reported as likely to be finished a week ahead of last year and with acreage uncurtailed. Enough moisture to ensure auspicious growth for several weeks was noted throughout practically the entire domestic spring wheat belt, with general rains in United States wheat sections as well.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1⅝@2⅛c lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ⅜@⅝c decline to ⅛c advance. Oats ⅛c off to ¼c up, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

Corn sympathized with the increased weakness of wheat. Independent strength that corn prices developed early owing more or less to reports that all the corn in Chicago public elevators is owned by a single industry faded away at the last. Oats also sagged with wheat.

Provisions held about steady, responsive to the action on hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, May 95¼@$1.04; July 99½@99⅝c, $1.02½@1.02⅞; Sept. $1.01⅛@1.01¼; $1.05⅛@1.05¼; Dec. $1.05, $1.09@⅝@1.09⅞. Corn, May 79c, 80⅛@80⅞c; July 80⅛c, 82c; Sept. 80⅞@80⅞c, 82⅞c, Dec. 74⅛@76c.

GULF TESTING SAND IN COOKE

No. 1 Donald Flows From 2893-Foot Sand

The Gulf Production company No. 1 J. T. Donald located in the Guffy survey, northeast of Rosston townsite, and southeast of the city of Gainesville in Cooke county, is testing a sand at 2893-94 feet.

The well, which is an absolute wildcat test, about two weeks ago bailed considerable oil from a sand at 2665 feet which for a while showed the earmarks of a small producer but was later passed up. The new sand was encountered at 2893 feet and when barely penetrated it made a number of flows of high grade oil into the derrick.

The showing of the well has created considerable excitement among the oil men and others in this part of Cooke county, and further developments will be watched with more than passing interest.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, May 7. (US)—Those in the wheat trade who have been considering bearish effect of the improved crop conditions as largely discounted were disappointed by today's market action. Pit observers said much of the selling appeared to be liquidation.

With seeding delays possible and an improved situation in the cash market corn has been finding more friends on the constructive side. However, complaints of delay of field work, while justified, are inclined to overlook the fact that there is still plenty of time to accomplish the seeding and field operations were unusually advanced.

A message from Minneapolis said that another half-inch of rainfall over the four Northwestern states has given enough moisture to insure favorable growth for several weeks.

Frank Phillips Plans Pipeline

Special to The Record News

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., May 7.—A huge pipe line project that may cost from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 is announced by Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum company. The Phillips Pipe Line company of Delaware is to be formed out of 1,000,000 shares of capital stock of the Phillips Petroleum company.

The Phillips Pipe Line Company is to be chartered and organized for the purpose of building an eight and ten-inch pipe line to transport the products of the Phillips Petroleum company from the Panhandle of Northwest Texas into Kansas and points east. It may be from 800 to 1,000 miles long when completed and will be equipped to handle either crude oil or natural gasoline, or both and refinery gasoline may be handled through the new line.

It is announced that Phillips Petroleum company already has sufficient production on any one of the three products in adjacent territory to insure the success of the project. The Phillips Petroleum company has for a long time, Mr. Phillips said, been making deliveries of natural gasoline to be transported with crude oil by pipe line to the gulf of Mexico.

The Phillips Petroleum company is said to be the largest producer of natural gasoline, and is also one of the major factors in the production of petroleum and petroleum products in the Mid-Continent field.

C.-C. INVITES CHURCH GROUP

Christian Leaders Asked to Meet Here

Chamber of commerce officials here Wednesday afternoon sent a telegram to Dr. H. T. Wood, pastor of the local First Christian church, who is in attendance at the state convention of Christian churches at Austin, extending an invitation from Wichita Falls for that convention to meet in this city in 1931.

Information received from Doctor Wood stated that a persistent effort was being made to swing the next convtnion to Wichita Falls, and the chamber of commerce wired its support in that movement.

City Asks Physicians To Observe Quarantines

Letters were mailed Wednesday by Dr. H. D. Filmore, city health officer, to all physicians of this city asking for more strict enforcement of the city's ordinance covering quarantine periods for various diseases.

The letter requests that care be exercised in every case to withhold certificate of release until the minimum period of quarantine as prescribed by ordinance shall have expired, regardless of the varying degrees of illness suffered by different patients. Reported premature dismissal of light cases, the letter indicates, has aroused questions in the minds of other citizens as to why one quarantine should be for a longer period than another.

MAJESTIC: "Loving the Ladies," with Richard Dix and Lois Wilson. Richard does himself proud of late. Christie comedy. Sound news.

STRAND: "Hold Everything," closing day. Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner in playful moods. Song feature. Bridge comedy, "He Trumped Her Ace." Sound news.

STATE: Hoot Gibson talking in "The Long, Long Trail." Outdoor western picture. "The Love Tree," comedy. Felix the Cat being funny, and sound news.

GEM: "The Gun Runner," with Ricardo Cortez and Nora Lane. "All Wet," comedy.

Scores of silent film stars found the general adoption of talking-photography about two years ago a precipitant which quickly settled them quite definitely into two groups. The first, and much the larger, is that vast colony of pantomime successes who just don't fit into the sound-pictures scheme. The smaller second cluster contains those who have developed (or already had) the qualifications for legitimate stage performances. Of this colonly, none perhaps feels more indebted to sound-innovation than Richard Dix and Lois Wilson, who now are playing "Loving the Ladies" at the Majestic.

The type of comedy in which the genuinely attractive Dix now appears—and which began with "The Love Doctor"—must make him look with amusement upon "The Quarterback," "The Red Skin," and others of that ilk which endeavored to capitalize upon his rugged physique and studied masculinity. "Ice Bound," which some few still remember, did right well by Richard and he by it, but of the many Dix motion comedies which followed—well. Now that sound-recording has brought to the Hollywood studios comedies laden with clever (sometime) dialog, satirical shots at the smart set, and balanced casts, Mr. Dix has found a much smoother road into the hearts of his clamoring and cherished public.

The plot-story of "Loving the Ladies" suffices, as such plots should do, to bring about farcical situations—nothing more. Mr. Dix is admirably aided in such moments by the rejuvenated Lois Wilson—another who probably breathes thanks for the talkies in her daily meditations. Lois was in a fair way to fade out of a screen which more and more devoted itself to glorifying individual physical pulchritude. As an actress who also talks she too is back in good standing. Only one scene in "Loving the Ladies" is badly overdone. This scene on the divan with Louise must have stopped the clock—it assuredly ran considerably over-time.

Jimmie and Lucile Gleason—wot-ta pair!—in another comedy of social life, trotting along with the Dix-Wilson pictures. These shorts continue, now and then, to contribute the most skillfully constructed and best acted entertainment issuing from the factories which surround Mr. Hays' conning tower. But Saturday looms ahead, with the always astonishing Ruth Chatterton in "Sarah and Son." Mark that date.

PARK PROGRAM TO OPEN SOON

Recreation Supervisors Named by City

Supervisors of recreation to be sponsored during the coming months by the city park department have been selected and will begin their work on the first day following the dismissal of public schools here, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent.

Seven persons will be employed full time throughout the summer in connection with supervising playgrounds, wading pools, baseball matches, tennis and other recreational activities planned by the department. All boys' baseball games will be in charge of O. W. Harvey Jr. Tom McCarthy will supervise tennis, archery, wading pools, horseshoe pitching, volley ball, track, and will conduct singsongs at various gatherings, both juvenile and adult.

Playground work will be handled by Misses Dorothy Rollins, Merle Barnett and Erma Pearce. According to present plans, activities on the city playgrounds will be supervised during six hours of each day, from 8 to 11 a. m., and probably from 3 to 6 p. m., it was said.

Direct charge of wading pools has been consigned to J. C. Anderson and Glenn Wharton.

In connection with playground recreation, Mr. Bunnenberg said, children will be given periods of handicraft, soap carving, story telling, etc.

Motion picture programs will be shown regularly throughout the summer months as formerly, it was announced, but an operator has not yet been secured for this activity. Vaudeville programs will be continued weekly, but will be given this year on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium instead of in Bellevue park as in former years. Elaborate equipment for making all such programs distinctly audible to large audiences has been secured. Mr. Bunnenberg said, including microphone, amplifiers, microphone panel, loud speakers, electric portable record-amplifier, and other aids to broadcasting of outdoor programs.

Optimist Club Told History of Telegraphy

Members of the Optimist club were given a detailed review of the development of telegraphy from the first use of the Morse code, in 1856, to the modern system of automatic printers, at their weekly meeting Wednesday noon by P. B. Green of the Postal Telegraph company.

Entertainment was furnished by the Junior college quartet, composed of Bob Murrell, Orville Medford, John Flynn and Bob West, with Mrs. Hermione S. Vaughan as director and accompanist.

The club will hold its luncheon next Wednesday at the Grace Methodist church, it was announced.

Many to Attend Highway Opening

Considerable numbers of business men belonging to both chambers of commerce here already have indicated their intention of joining the "booster party" which will go from this city next Friday to assist Crowell and Vernon in celebrating the opening of their new paved highway in the former city at 4 p. m., according to local chamber of commerce officials.

Six automobiles already had been pledged for the trip Wednesday, it was said, for use of senior chamber of commerce members, and at least that many are expected to transport Junior chamber of commerce representatives to Crowell. The Wichita Falls party will join the Vernon group at Vernon about 3 p. m., and proceed in a combined caravan to Crowell.

Entertainment to be carried from this city for the celebration will include R. E. Shepherd, soloist; Frank Humphrey and daughter with bagpipe and the Highland fling dance; a six-piece band being formed by Leo M. Underwood, and other members, it was announced.

Good Will Committee To Lead C.-C. Luncheon

Members of the good will trip committee of the Junior chamber of commerce will have charge of the next organization luncheon, to be held on May 16, it was announced Wednesday.

Final preparations for taking a delegation of 200 persons on a good will tour to Quanah May 20 will be made at the luncheon meeting on May 16, it was said.

Rains Raise Level of Lake Wichita Six Inches

Rains of the past 10 days have raised the water level in Lake Wichita, the city's water supply, more than six inches according to Dr. A. H. Douglass, water department superintendent.

This volume of increase represents more than a week's supply for city consumption and irrigation purposes in dry weather, Doctor Douglass said. Additional increases were anticipated during Wednesday night as a result of Tuesday's rains in this territory.

BASEBALL LEAGUES

Boys who have organized, or now are organizing, baseball "nines" for the juvenile league sponsored by the city park department should call at the offices of C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, next Saturday, May 10, or within the next few days after that date, Mr. Bunnenberg said Wednesday. Captains of boys' teams will receive helpful instruction relative to the coming season of league competition, it was said.
