Precarious position

Talking to reporters through a fence surrounding the Iowa State Penitentiary at Fort Madison is Kenneth Ray Sheffey. Sheffey, serving a life term for murder, told reporters he didn't want to hurt anyone but "I'm willing to die today." See story, Page 11C.

Reagan calls bargaining sacred right

CHICAGO (AP) — President Reagan vowed today not to fight inflation at the expense of workers' "sacred right" to collective bargaining and said his firing of striking air traffic controllers was consistent with the traditional position of organized labor.

In a speech prepared for the AFL-CIO's Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Reagan also said labor opponents of his economic package "may not fully understand what we are trying to do" and that the financial community is wrongly blaming the program for the slumping stock market.

In a bid for peace with rank-and-file unionists, the president said: "I can guarantee you that this administration will not fight inflation by attacking the sacred right of American workers to negotiate their wages."

Today's appearance, following a month-long California vacation, was Reagan's first before a labor group since last month's firing of almost 12,000 air controllers and the administration's attempt to strip the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization of its bargaining authority. The carpenters union supports the controllers.

Reagan said he even led the Screen Actors Guild in its first major strike but insisted that government workers do not enjoy the same right to walk off the job.

Noting that the air controllers as federal employees were prohibited from striking, Reagan said: "We cannot as citizens pick and choose laws we will or will not obey."

He said organized labor always had opposed allowing public employees to strike.

"They were the first to point out the difference between public and private employment: that government could not close up shop, that government workers were employed by the people and the people could not give any group the right to coerce the people's elected representatives," he said.

Reagan said he has been disappointed by the reaction of organized labor and Wall Street to his budget and tax cuts.

The AFL-CIO has been in the vanguard of protest over the administration's economic policies and is planning a huge demonstration in the Washington on Sept. 19.

"One of my only regrets is that some in organized labor who opposed the recovery program may not fully understand what we are trying to do or that our program is designed to improve the well-being of all the people," Reagan said.

As for Wall Street, he said: "A short time ago they said that the big surge in the stock market was due to their optimism about our economic package. That was before it was passed. Then it was passed after a lot of work.

"Now there has been a slump and they say it's because the program is not working," he added. "Well, it isn't. It doesn't start until Oct. 1."

At a reception for Illinois Republicans on Wednesday, Reagan warned the Soviet Union to accept legitimate arms reduction or enter into "an arms race they can't win."

The United States will continue to urge the Soviets "to sit down with us in a program of realistic strategic arms reduction," Reagan said.

"But it will be the first time that we have ever sat down on our side of the table and let them know that there's a new chip on the table," Reagan said. "And that chip is: There will be legitimate arms reduction, verifiable arms reduction, or they will be in an arms race which they can't win."

Asked later, during a brief photo session with Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne, whether he was threatening Moscow with an arms race if it didn't agree to his terms, Reagan replied, "No, I just think it's one of the things that's been missing in the negotiations so far."

But Reagan said he couldn't be specific about what he meant by "verifiable arms reduction," explaining that he didn't know whether on-site inspection of missile silos would be required or whether the United States "has the technology to do it in other ways."

"But...if that's what's required, then I think that's what should be done," he said.

Speedy gas decontrol urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan must move soon to seek a speedup in decontrol of natural gas prices or he will lose the opportunity, Energy Secretary James Edwards says.

"We have a political window we can slip into between now and Jan. 1. If we don't do it then, it is going to make it more difficult because we will be heading toward the congressional elections next year," Edwards said.

President Reagan has been studying ever since he took office whether to venture into the sticky political issue of accelerating the decontrol of natural gas prices — a move critics have charged could increase homeowners' bills by as much as 63 percent.

Reagan's Cabinet Council on Natural Resources recommended last month a three-year speedup and the lifting of controls on all natural gas on Jan. 1, 1985. Under current law, about 50 percent of gas supplies will remain under controls in 1985.

However, the president deferred making a decision, saying he wanted to confer with congressional leaders. The chairmen of the House and Senate committees that would deal with decontrol have said they do not want to take up the issue this year.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Commerce and Energy Committee, has said "deregulation will take place over my dead body."

But Edwards expressed confidence in an interview Wednesday that doubting members of Congress can be persuaded to increase gas prices.

"It is in the best interest of the country to get the government out of the marketplace and let the market work," Edwards said. "When you convince the people on the Hill that the political fallout is not going to be bad, then I think they will come along."

The proposal recommended to Reagan would increase natural gas prices each month over the next three years by 1-36th of the difference between the price of gas now under control and the much higher price of an equivalent amount of oil.

Edwards said such a process would correct the problem in the current law, which was intended to bring natural gas up to the price level of oil but which assumed oil would be selling for $15 a barrel in 1985. Crude oil currently sells for about $35 a barrel.

Critics have predicted that homeowners' bills would go up 63 percent and that 3.4 million jobs would be lost over the next four years in industries dependent on natural gas if the administration is successful in speeding up decontrol.

Edwards said DOE studies don't predict impacts anywhere near that great. In a report released Friday, the department projected increases of 30 percent in the first year of accelerated decontrol but said gas prices would actually be 10 percent lower in 1985.

That would occur, the report said, because higher prices now would stimulate increased production and larger supplies of natural gas would work to moderate future price increases.

Reports concentrate on oil, expenditures

By W. DALE NELSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — New U.S. intelligence information shows that Soviet oil production is booming but that growing military expenditures are a drag on the rest of Russia's economy.

At the same time, according to congressional testimony released Wednesday, the Chinese are lagging in oil production but are putting civilian needs ahead of military spending.

The testimony was given by officials of the Defense Intelligence Agency at a July 8 closed session of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee's international trade subcommittee.

The DIA officials said the Soviet leadership "has apparently opted for further growth in military strength as the standard of living of the population stagnates and even declines in some areas."

They said "continued growth in energy production is one of the few bright prospects in the Soviet economic future."

The intelligence officials said Soviet oil production is expected to continue to experience slow growth until about 1985 and then level off. The Soviet Union has an estimated 80 billion to 85 billion barrels of accessible oil reserves, compared with an estimate of 75 billion barrels made in 1977, they said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the subcommittee chairman, said, "The Soviet Union is not running out of oil, contrary to earlier predictions from within the intelligence community."

Testifying for the intelligence agency were its deputy director, Maj. Gen. Richard X. Larkin, and its vice director for foreign intelligence, Edward M. Collins.

They said China's oil industry "is antiquated, poorly managed, and presently incapable of increasing production to levels necessary to support demands at home and export contracts."

Any significant improvement is probably five to 10 years away, they said in a statement submitted to the committee.

The officials said Chinese leaders "have recognized there are no easy solutions to their (economic) problems and that the civilian sectors have precedence over the military."

"It can be expected that, given the limited resources and competing demands throughout the Chinese economy, military modernization will be a long and slow process," the statement said.

The defense officials said the Soviets spent $175 billion on military activities last year, compared with $115 billion spent by the United States. They said less than 1 percent of the Soviet spending was due to increased costs brought about by the Red Army intervention in Afghanistan.

They said figures available to them indicated that military spending might increase as much as 10 percent each year for the next five years while spending on factories, machinery and equipment was increasing less than 20 percent for the entire period.

"Other indicators of Soviet intentions also show that a continued upward trend in military spending is likely," they added. "The high priority Soviet leaders place on military power has resulted in continued increases in expansion of military production facilities even as economic growth has slowed."

Young neighbor convicted of rape

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 20-year-old Midland housewife, who claimed she was raped a year ago under threat of death and mutilation by a 17-year-old neighbor, convinced a Midland jury of her version of the alleged offense.

The five-woman, seven-man jury deliberated only 70 minutes Wednesday afternoon in the 218th State District Courtroom before finding Walter Ray Webb, now 18, guilty of aggravated rape on the night of Aug. 22-23, 1980.

The jury today was to assess punishment, which could range from five years to 99 years or life in prison.

The blond-haired victim testified in the two-day trial before Judge Vann Culp that Webb had enticed her out of her mobile home west of Midland shortly after 10 p.m. Aug. 22.

"I felt uncomfortable," she said, "because something wasn't right. He was acting funny...suspicious" and was "stumbling" around.

The woman said that she fell down at the driveway to Webb's house, and began screaming.

"I FELL DOWN," she said under examination by Assistant District Attorney David Joers. "I made a breakaway from him...He was choking me...He told me he was going to kill me if I didn't stop screaming. So I stopped."

The woman, who said she thought she was pregnant at the time, said Webb led her to a field near his horse pen, and, while the dogs were barking, told her to remove her clothes. She did.

The woman, who appeared unruffled and detached on the witness stand, said Webb loosened his britches.

The woman testified that Webb then attempted to rape her.

"He tried, tried, tried and got angry because he could not penetrate. He was upset because he couldn't."

She said the assailant told her to try several techniques to help him.

"THE DOGS had been barking the whole time," she testified, while several women from the Midland Rape Crisis Center sat silently and attentively in the courtroom spectators' gallery.

After laboring for a hour or so, the assailant was able to get a partial penetration, she said.

All the while, Webb was holding a folding knife at her throat and side, the victim said, and even threatened to cut off one of her breasts if she didn't cooperate.

The woman said she did the man's bidding and even invited him to bring beer over to her house when her husband wasn't at home.

"I told him that my husband was too old (31) to have sex."

The woman, who suffered multiple abrasions and scratches, said the night-time incident lasted two or three hours until they went in her trailer house about 2 a.m., while her husband was still at work.

Once in the trailer, the woman said that her assailant effected sexual intercourse and that she feigned an orgasm.

"Why did you pretend to have an orgasm?" prosecutor Joers asked.

"Because he told me I had better. He had been watching dirty films, and he knew what it was all about, and I had better."

THE VICTIM said that she told the man "everything was fine" and that "he could come back when he wanted to, and I wouldn't report it."

After Webb had left about 5½ hours after he had first assaulted her, the woman said she went to her husband's boss' house. In turn, Midland County deputy sheriffs were summoned to investigate the offense.

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Bob Freeman, the woman denied that she cried rape

Polish Politburo, newspaper attack Solidarity's stand

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish Politburo and a major Soviet newspaper attacked Solidarity on the eve of Soviet military maneuvers along Poland's northeastern border.

The Politburo, the 15-member policy-making branch of the Communist Party, criticized the independent union in a report read Wednesday to a meeting of the party's 200-member Central Committee.

The report, delivered by alternate Politburo member Jan Glowczyk, charged that the independent labor federation's campaign for worker self-management was "an instrument in the (union's) fight for economic power and ultimate political power."

"Anarchic trends" demanding "absolute autonomy for self-government...negate the role of the state and central planning," Glowczyk charged.

He accused "the anti-socialist opposition" of "conducting a ruthless, sophisticated fight intended to disintegrate the socialist system in our country by bringing about the destruction of our economy."

Glowczyk and other speakers lashed out at "street demonstrations and protest marches and strikes, set in motion by demagogic slogans." Speaker after speaker urged the party leaders to bring the union under control.

Trud, the Soviet labor newspaper, echoed the power-grabbing charges, claiming extremists in Solidarity were working "with the imperialist circles" to ruin the Polish economy, bring down the communist regime and seize power.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa in a nationally televised speech Tuesday night denied the union was trying to take over the government.

Young neighbor convicted of rape

because, in Freeman's words, "You were afraid of what your husband would do to you."

Freeman noted that the woman, who testified that Webb had threatened to cut off her breast and kill her and dump her body in a pool of water, had omitted those allegations in a statement given to Sheriff's Investigator Sgt. Tommy Jones on Aug. 23 and in a 50-plus-page deposition given to Freeman last Jan. 30.

THE VICTIM said she was "upset and nervous" in recounting the rape and had neglected to mention those two threats by Webb.

Under cross-examination by Freeman, the woman said that she had told Webb that she was "sexually abused and raped" by her brothers when she was a child.

"It was more or less passed down from sister to sister," she said.

The victim also testified that she had told the reticent, Western-attired Webb, who opted not to testify in his own defense, that she had "her boy friends" and that her husband had "his girls friends."

Freeman asked the victim if she remembered flirting with Webb sometime earlier.

"No," she answered.

"Did you ever giggle or laugh (during the alleged rape)?" the defense attorney asked.

"I don't think so."

IN CLOSING arguments before the jury, co-prosecutor Jim Rex noted the difficulty of the victim "to get up and tell this humiliating story before...12 strangers."

In his summation, Freeman recounted some inconsistencies in the victim's account of the rape and dismissed her abrasions and superficial cuts as a by-product of making love in a field.

"I think people do things in areas like that," he said, "and maybe they do get scratched up."

Freeman suggested that the victim was a "phony" and that she had altered the story to convict her neighbor of rape.

In alluding to the victim's story inconsistencies, Freeman quoted a saying by Abraham Lincoln: "Nobody's got a good enough memory to be a successful liar."

Co-defense counsel John Hyde suggested that the victim had "invented" the rape story to help convict the defendant.

"She wanted to do what she could to see that that young man's life is ruined," Hyde said.

"She's lonely. She feels neglected by her husband," Hyde said. "It (the alleged rape) was not a matter of force and coercion." He said the victim's account "doesn't compute, doesn't make sense."

In countering the defense's charges of story versions of the rape, prosecutor Joers reflected that the woman "didn't sit there and take notes the whole time."

Republicans tell Reagan to limit military increases

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of House Republicans is telling President Reagan that he must scale down military spending increases now, a year sooner than planned, to retain public support for his economic program.

In a letter made public Wednesday, GOP lawmakers representing Northeast and Midwest districts said a reduction in 1982 defense spending "is necessary for your overall economic program to succeed and for maintaining the support of the American taxpayer."

White House officials said earlier this week that Reagan will cut $20 billion to $30 billion from his defense budget for 1983 and 1984 in the drive to balance to the budget.

The House Republicans, however, suggested cuts of 10 percent in the proposed $226 billion in defense budget authority for 1982.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Wednesday that Reagan will receive, probably on Thursday, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger's recommendations on where to cut the defense budget in fiscal 1983 and 1984.

Speaking to reporters aboard Air Force One as the president flew from Los Angeles to Chicago, Speakes said the report would be preliminary and that Reagan would meet next week with Weinberger and budget director David A. Stockman on that topic.

In Honolulu, Weinberger told reporters no decisions had been made by the administration on defense reductions and predicted, "There won't be any defense cuts."

Five GOP legislators signed the letter to Reagan, but aides said they expected others to endorse it.

Reagan needed the near-unanimous support of outnumbered Republicans to win earlier tax and budget victories in the House and significant GOP defections in future budget battles could lead to defeat for the president.

Only minor injuries were reported in this two-car accident at the intersection of Wadley and Midland Drive about 7 p.m. Wednesday. Released following emergency treatment at Midland Memorial Hospital were 27-year-old Janet Larremore of 5101 Storey and 38-year-old Linda Chalcraft of 4713 Preston, drivers of the vehicles involved. Also treated and released was 6-year-old Mendi Larremore.

Cooler temperatures expected

Slightly cooler temperatures are expected to continue through Friday, as the high should reach only the low 90s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The high Wednesday reached only 91 — mild compared to the record 103 degree mark for the date set in 1937. The low of 67, meanwhile, failed to challenge the record of 55 set in 1974.

A chance of precipitation also is in the weather service forecast, with a probability of 20 per cent existing tonight and Friday. With a trace of rainfall recorded Wednesday by the NWS, the yearly total stands at 10.34 inches.

Winds should be easterly at 10-15 mph through Friday.

Thunderstorms, ranging from heavy to very heavy roamed South Central Texas early today, dumping heavy rainfall and prompting the National Weather Service to issue flash flood warnings for five counties and a flash flood watch for a vast area.

The flash flood warnings were issued for Lavaca, Travis, Hays, Williamson and Burnet counties. The flash flood watch covered a large portion of South Central Texas and the southeast portion of North Texas.

Areas covered by the flash flood watch ranged from Lampassas, College Station and Seguin on the northern edge and Alice and Laredo to the south.

Midland widow files suit

The widow of a Midland County man who was fatally injured when he was struck by a pickup truck last June 21 has filed a $3 million wrongful death suit in Midland's 142nd State District Court against an Odessa company.

The suit, filed by Judy Lynn Shields on behalf of herself and her two children, Christopher Lynn, 14, and Amber Leanne, 2, seeks $3,037,980 from Memco Machine & Supply Co. Inc.

In the petition, Mrs. Shields alleges that her 31-year-old husband, Thomas E. Shields, died as a result of being struck by the pickup truck being driven by Ricki Glenn Money, an employee of Memco, in the pre-dawn hours of June 21. The petition claims negligence on the part of Money.

Shields allegedly was standing on the shoulder of a county road near his home in west Midland County when he was struck by the swerving pickup driven by Money. The mishap occurred at the intersection of County Road 1309 North and CR 122 West.

Reports indicated that the pickup swerved to avoid hitting Shields' car, which was parked on the roadway.

The petition, which says that Shields, a contract welder, was earning $57,000 a year, asks $2,287,980 for loss of Shields' earning for his family upkeep for the next 40.14 years — his reasonable life expectancy; $500,000 for compensation to the widow for loss of her spouse; $250,000 for the "grevious mental anguish" Shields suffered in his injuries and an undetermined amount of money for his hospital and funeral expenses.

Representing the Shields estate in the suit is attorney Marc R. May.

Citizens offer $10,000 reward

ODESSA — Ector County citizens have offered a $10,000 reward for information concerning the stabbing death of Carmen Melinda Croan, 18, according to a Sheriff's Department spokesman.

Ms. Croan's nude body, which had suffered approximately 12 stab wounds, was discovered in northern Ector County Aug. 23. A 1981 graduate of Permian High School, she had last been seen about 11:30 p.m. Aug. 22 at a local disco.

Investigation is continuing, said the spokesman.

Morrow appointed to commission

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements on Wednesday named William C. Morrow of Midland to the Texas Rehabilitation Commission.

Morrow, 46, is senior vice president and director of Magnatex Industries, Inc., an oil and real estate firm.

Morrow was appointed for a six-year term extending to Aug. 31, 1987. He will replace Marjorie C. Kastman of Lubbock, whose term expired.

Bell Petroleum may sell securities

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The State Securities Board has granted an application by Bell Petroleum Services, Inc. of Midland to sell $3.9 million in securities in Texas.

The Bell application was one of seven granted by the board during the week ending Aug. 26 for the sale of more than $8.37 million in securities.

Redistricting begins today

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's back to the maps and computers today as five top state officials try to come up with boundary lines for the 150 House and 31 Senate districts.

The Legislature thought it took care of the politically bloody redistricting task during this year's regular session. Those maps went out the window thanks to a Gov. Bill Clements' veto of the Senate plan and a court rejection of the House plan.

That leaves it up to the all-Democratic Legislative Redistricting Board, which was scheduled to go to work in the Capitol today.

"Hopefully, it won't take the full 60 days, but it will take a good deal of time," Speaker Bill Clayton said Wednesday.

Clements vetoed the Senate plan, complaining that it did not guarantee the election of a minority Senator from Dallas County. The plan he rejected would have paired only two senators, Dallas County Republicans Dee Travis and John Leedom.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, also a board member, has said the Senate plan was fair and constitutional. However, at the board's organizational meeting on Sunday, Hobby steered clear of saying the board would simply approve the plan that Clements rejected.

Two fleeing suspects arrested

Two suspects were arrested as they attempted to flee the scene of a house burglary Wednesday afternoon.

According to police this morning, a 20-year-old man and his 21-year-old accomplice were surprised in the act of burglarizing a car parked in a garage at 3207 Sinclair Ave. about 3:45 p.m. Officers captured the men following a foot chase.

A $95 garage door opener, which allegedly had been taken from the car, was recovered in some nearby bushes. The suspects were expected to be formally charged later today.

In other police activity during the past 24 hours, Alton Anderwald of 1207 W. Texas Ave. said someone entered his unlocked home Wednesday morning and took numerous items, including a CB radio, sterling silverware, guns and assorted jewelry. No dollar value was placed on the items.

Another burglary sometime Wednesday afternoon reportedly gained thieves a television set, stereo equipment, a watch and $30 in change. Ernie Chuter of 4217 Siesta said the items were worth more than $1,000. Entry was gained by prying open the front door of the house.

In a late-breaking report this morning, police were investigating a major burglary at the Union Oil of California Co., 500 N. Marienfeld. No details were available by press time.

2 convicted in area paroled

AUSTIN — Two persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area have been paroled by Gov. Bill Clements on the recommendation of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles. Meanwhile, another person convicted in the Midland area had his parole revoked.

Ynacio Taveras Lopez, convicted of theft over $200 in Ector County Jan. 28, 1981, was paroled to Midland County after serving and earning one year and seven months of a two-year sentence.

Charles Ray Smith, convicted of involuntary manslaughter in Midland County May 11, 1978, was paroled to Harris County after serving and earning six years and six months of a seven-year sentence.

Cecil Ray Moore, convicted of burglary in Ector County in 1976, had his parole revoked because of a new conviction. Moore, who is serving a 10-year sentence, had been on paroled since June 29, 1979.

Construction may begin soon on bond-funded apartments

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Construction on two apartment complexes being funded through the Midland Housing Finance Corporation's Multi-Family Mortgage Revenue bond program could begin within two months, according to an official with that corporation's board.

Fred Kester, a member of the board and secretary of the City of Midland Housing Authority, told the latter panel on Wednesday that paperwork and the bond sale was almost complete on the two complexes.

One should close the deal this month, and the other in early October, he said.

Under this program, applications have been approved for six apartment complexes to be constructed with lower-interest money. However, the applicant must find a buyer for the tax-exempt bonds.

Kester said two other applicants have almost completed the paperwork and the last two are still working on their financial package.

The Midland corporation had set a top limit of 1,650 apartments units that would be allowed under the program. The six applications will bring 1,644 new units to the city.

Kester said two more applications are on hold until a housing feasibility study is completed. If the results show a need for more apartments, the other two applications could stand a chance to be approved.

Outlook for the Single Family Mortgage Revenue bond program under the Midland County Housing Finance Corporation isn't as bright, according to Kester. Some problems have cropped up and may keep the program from going into effect. He said that the bond counsel, Mark Tessier in New Orleans, La., has reported on some restrictions that will make it difficult for the program, and one involves getting investors to buy the bonds.

"The bond counsel is trying. He's got his neck stuck out for this," said Gene Abbott, chairman of the Housing Authority.

Prospects of adding more units to Hillcrest Manor also are still up in the air, the board reported. Kester said the city had listed 50 more units as the goal next year but "negotiations are still being worked out between the City Council and HUD (Department of Housing and Urban Development)."

The city is hoping to locate the additional units of elderly housing near Hillcrest Manor, a 100-unit complex for elderly and handicapped persons.

In going over the bills and budget, Abbott noted that the budget is pegged at $86,000 with the income expected to be $91,000. Bulk of the budget is utility and maintenance costs.

Other survivors include a sister, a brother and two grandchildren.

Actress Ann Harding dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Ann Harding, whose aristocratic portrayals spanned a 30-year stage, film and television career, has died after an illness of several months, a family spokesman said.

No services were planned for Miss Harding, 79, who died Tuesday at her Sherman Oaks home, the spokesman said.

Born in Fort Sam Houston, Texas, on Aug. 17, 1902, she was the daughter of Gen. George C. Gately. She later changed her name from Anna Gately to Ann Harding when she went to New York City to take up acting after studying briefly at Bryn Mawr.

She worked as a clerk in an insurance company while moonlighting as a reader for the Famous Players-Lasky film company. Her first role was as the star of Susan Glaspell's play, "Inheritors."

Vietnam War Memorial begun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Survey stakes for the Vietnam War memorial are in place on the Mall, but the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund still needs about $5 million to erect the monument to 57,962 Vietnam casualties.

Surveyors placed the stakes Wednesday and linked them with a pair of 200-foot-long orange ribbons extending in a V-formation toward the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument.

Project director Robert W. Doubek said about $2 million has been raised and that fund officials hope to complete financing through direct mail appeals, nationwide radiothons and corporate donations.

Doubek said that if the drive goes as planned, ground for the low, black granite-faced monument will be broken next February, with dedication ceremonies on Veterans Day the following November.

Designed by Maya Ying Lin, a 21-year-old Yale architecture student, the monument's face will contain the names of all Americans killed in Vietnam or still listed as missing. Doubek said the engraving along could cost $1 million.

PBRPC receives grant from HUD

WASHINGTON — The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission is the recipient of a $20,000 grant by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development according to a spokesperson for U.S. Sen. John Tower's office.

The grant will be used for comprehensive planning assistance and transition funding.

'Runner's high' may be due to natural pain killer

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — People who run a lot get more than exercise — sometimes they also get high. Now, doctors say, they may have found the cause of this drug-like euphoria.

The source of the elation, well-known among joggers as "runner's high," may be a natural pain killer that shows up in the blood in unusually high amounts with regular exercise, researchers say.

The findings are still speculative, but they support the idea that daily running can be addictive. Runners complain of feeling out of sorts if they miss a day of exercise, and they actually may be experiencing withdrawal symptoms, according to the reseachers.

These naturally produced chemicals, called endorphins, are similar to narcotics. The brain and the pituitary gland release them and among other things, they help the body control pain.

The new study was conducted at Massachusetts General Hospital and published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

The doctors measured endorphins in seven women volunteers who did not exercise regularly. For eight weeks, they worked out an hour a day. Over this time, they built up the level of their exertion as they ran, did exercises and rode stationary bicycles.

The researchers took blood samples from the women before they started exercising and again after one hour. Levels of endorphins rose substantially each time they worked out. But the increases were most dramatic after the women had gotten into regular training.

After two months of these workouts, their endorphin levels jumped 145 percent following an hour of exercise. Then the amounts gradually returned to normal.

"The basic speculation we have to make is that our measurement of blood is an index of something that is happening in the brain," said Dr. Daniel B. Carr, one of the researchers. "That's a very big leap, because in many ways, the brain is insulated from the blood."

If these chemicals are accumulating in the brain, he said, "it may explain in part why people don't seem to notice injuries during strenuous exercise. It might explain why people's mood improves if they do strenuous exercise regularly or they feel badly if they are used to exercise and have to stop."

Joggers frequently speak of this "high" say they feel unsettled if they don't get their daily "fix" of exercise.

"A lot of runners report it," said Dr. Lyle Micheli, head of the sports medicine division at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston. "It apparently comes after running 50 to 60 minutes and doing it consistently. It's a feeling of well-being and euphoria."

Better service, please!

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has been accumulating its share of critics lately, the most recent addition being the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber directors have complained of the telephone company's poor service to businesses, particularly noting delays in getting phone problems corrected. The biggest problem, chamber officials noted, appears to stem from the fact that there is no telephone company management complement located in the Tall City. Directors urge the phone company to locate a full set of management people here.

We couldn't agree more that Bell's telephone service to Midland leaves a lot be desired or that dealing with the company sometimes leaves one feeling as though no one at the company really cares about complaints. After all, phone service problems sometimes drag on for months — even after repair workers have supposedly alleviated the problems.

In all fairness, though, some of the telephone company's shortcomings can be overlooked because all businesses in Midland — including The Reporter-Telegram — suffer from them; those problems are inherent in any community experiencing Midland's rapid growth.

Likewise, we recognize that Bell has taken steps aimed at expanding service in the Midland-Odessa area: increases in original budgets set for Midland from $10 million to $26 million over the next 18 months and from $6 million to $22 million for Odessa over the next two years. But those figures do not diminish our feeling that higher level management should operate in this area. They only substantiate it.

One of the irritating aspects of Southwestern Bell's poor service to Midland customers is the fact the company last June filed a request for a rate hike of $394 million — and yet little, if any, improvement in the company's local service is being experienced by Midland residents. One reason given earlier by Bell for the location of management personnel elsewhere was to be able to keep costs, and thus rate increases, down.

The problem is by no means limited to businesses; it's likely every telephone user in Midland has experienced problems at one time or another. We don't expect all the problems to be alleviated from now on; that's too much to ask of any company. What we do expect is adequate improvement.

One way to improve would be for Southwestern Bell to assign a FULL set of management personnel to its Midland office. That way local business people and residents could have a local contact when problems occur.

A progressive city like Midland just deserves better telephone service. And what's happening in the Midland-Odessa Petroplex, growth-wise, would seem to justify whatever is required in order for Bell to provide that.

A setback suffered

Deregulation of the thrift and banking industry suffered a setback recently in Washington when a federal judge blocked the federal government's first major step toward deregulation of interest rates.

The suit was brought by the United States League of Savings and Loan Associations. The judge ruled illegal the government's plan to eliminate the interest rate ceiling on savings certificates with maturities of four years or more. He said congressional approval should have been obtained for eliminating the advantage of one-quarter percentage point that thrift institutions have been allowed to have over commercial banks in the interest rates they pay on savings deposits.

The setback is unfortunate. Deregulation is bound to come.

The attempt to keep ceilings on interest rates that banks and savings institutions may pay for deposits can only buy time for the troubled savings and loans. It will not correct their problems, which are caused primarily by the ceilings and the attempt to shelter these institutions from the effects of the free market.

Money will continue to move out of the banks and savings institutions as long as they fail to pay competitive interest rates. With interest rates now close to record highs in this country, it is impossible to retain deposits at artificially low rates of interest.

Leaders in the industry should be helping to make deregulation work, and to expedite the process, instead of trying to delay it.

Marxist puppets seeking power

To The Editor:

Classic Marxists' propaganda would well fit Arthur Sullivan's letter of September 16, 1981: unsubstantuated charges cover Marxist terrorist activity by association with Christianity, to make it acceptable, blame capitalism, and above all fault U.S. foreign policy.

The situation in El Salvador is complex, but to better understand one must first know the recent history of this small nation, realizing that neither side in the struggle has a lock on right and wrong. A case in point would be the counter-terrorist right wing death squad that are every bit as vicious as the Marxist terrorist. Both are deplorable.

Since 1932, El Salvador has had more than 30 governments, thus it is readily apparent that there is little traditional political stability in their culture. The current junta is headed by Jose Napoleon Duarte, one of the most devout Catholic lay people in Central America. Duarte was elected president of El Salvador in 1972, was overthrown, imprisoned, tortured and finally exiled, returning to power in 1979 in the overthrow of the oppressive Romero government. Duarte has made it clear that he favors neither left nor right and has clearly stated that he prefers a political solution to a military one.

He has proposed free elections in March 1982, has enacted a land reform program that expropriated all estates of more than 1200 acres and sub-divided this acreage into smaller tracts for the people. Banks have been nationalized with 20 of the shares going to employees and 25 percent made available to the public. All of these decisions, which the leftists had formerly called for, were bitterly denounced when brought to completion by Duarte. This action clearly exposes the real intent of the Frente Democratica Revolucionario front group and their Marxist masters. Their care is not solutions, but power.

Difficult decision

To The Editor:

I would like the following letter published in your "Letters to the Editor" column:

Dear Mayor Akins.

On behalf of the board, staff and clients of the Casa de Amigos, we would like to thank you and the city councilmen for your decision to include new housing construction for the elderly, handicapped and families in the city's recent application for CDBG funds.

We realize that this decision was a very difficult one because of philosophical concerns, but considering the practical situation we are facing now in Midland, we are pleased you made the decision you did.

It takes all kinds of folks to help make a city go, and at this unique time in Midland's history, we feel that your decision will be a beneficial one for all our citizens, but especially for the ones who will live in this housing.

Demand action

To The Editor:

The U.S. Department of the Interior is not telling the truth about oil discoveries on Alaska's North Slope.

Charges have been made that there are at least two other huge oil fields on the Alaskan North Slope besides the Prudhoe Bay discovery, but the Interior Department denied the charge.

Recently Atlantic-Richfield Co. says that there is an oil field just west of Prudhoe Bay called Kuparuk River — which is equal in size to Prudhoe Bay. This announcement contradicts the Interior Department's claim that there are no other oil fields in that area.

It's high time we let our representatives know what is going on. We need to strongly encourage them to develop the oil fields mentioned. We shouldn't be continually misled by our government into thinking that we are in an energy crisis. It's up to you; it's your country. Phone or write your representatives now and demand action.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Ray Donovan's claim has a familiar ring

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary Ray Donovan's recent claim that he lacks the legal authority to seek removal of Roy Williams as Teamsters Union president has a familiar ring. It is disturbingly reminiscent of the Labor Department's action — or, more precisely, inaction — in a similar case six years ago.

Jack Anderson

That one involved a corrupt union, Laborers International, with links to organized crime. The union's Southeast Florida District Council president, Bernard G. Rubin, was convicted in October 1975 of embezzling $400,000 in union funds. While he was appealing his conviction, he held onto his six union positions.

This troubled the Justice Department, which wanted to monitor the disbursement of union trust funds and sought help from the Labor Department. But Labor declined to go along, citing its "lack of authority."

It wasn't until October 1977 that Rubin was finally removed from his union posts — after the Justice Department developed evidence that he had embezzled another $2 million in the two years he had been left in control of the trust funds, with the Labor Department's blessing.

"The only authority that the Department of Labor would have needed was a court order, which was what the Department of Justice was seeking when the Department of Labor withdrew its support," a Justice Department document noted in 1978.

It is axiomatic that federal agencies wind up as captives of the interests and institutions they are supposed to be regulating, and staff members of the Senate Permanent Subcommitee on Investigations have noted this discouraging pattern in the Labor Department. In its report on the department's handling of the Teamsters Central States Pension Fund, the subcommittee investigators cite the "historical institutional incapability of the Department of Labor in dealing with labor racketeering."

The department's attitude cost Laborers Union members dearly in 1975. Records examined by my associate Tony Capaccio show that at the time the Labor Department ducked its responsibilities regarding Rubin, he was working closely with underworld leaders to bleed the union through a mobster-run insurance company.

Rubin's role in the scheme was to throw union insurance business to the Farmers National Life Insurance Co., a small Florida company controlled by the Mob. Such Mafia luminaries as Anthony "Joe Batters" Accardo of Chicago, Santo Trafficante of Florida and Raymond Patriarca of New England took their allotted slices of the kickback pie provided by Laborers Union insurance premiums.

These were paid to Farmers National and another company allegedly purchased for the Mob in June 1976 — the National American Life Insurance Co. of Louisiana.

The mobsters' front man in both insurance companies was Joseph Hauser, a veteran con artist who later turned government witness and helped convict New Orleans mafioso Carlos Marcello a few weeks ago.

At one point in 1975, Trafficante met with Rubin and Hauser and complained that Farmers National's role had to be expanded since his share of the kickbacks up to that time had amounted to "peanuts."

When Hauser bought National American Life at the mobsters' behest, incidentally, the paperwork was handled by former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst and his law firm. Kleindienst insists that he thought Hauser was "a reputable businessman." He said he "absolutely, positively" did not realize the purchase was part of an elaborate Mob plot to milk the Laborers Union.

Footnote: The parallel between Rubin in 1975 and Williams in 1981 is not exact, of course. The Teamsters president has merely been indicted, not convicted, on corruption charges. But Ray Donovan's claim that he has no authority to seek Williams' ouster is specious at best.

●

WATCH ON WASTE: As reported here earlier, the State Department's reluctance to throw anything away has left the Passport Office with at least 140 million passport-related documents in its files. Not only does this cost the taxpayers a bundle in storage costs each year, but now it turns out there's another problem: Because of the sheer bulk of the files, it's difficult for employees to locate individual documents when they're asked to. In 1979, for example, there were 34,000 requests for old passport records; retrieving them cost the department about $87,000.

Foggy Bottom officials are trying to figure out a way to lick both problems — the cost of storage and the difficulty of finding anything. The process, of course, will be time-consuming and expensive.

— The Agriculture Department's national finance center in New Orleans handles the accounting, budgetary, payroll and other personnel functions. As might be expected, the bulk of the work is automated. But a few years ago, department officials decided to install a new payroll-personnel computer system — and with good reason: A General Accounting Office audit concluded that the present computers were "obsolete, high-risk and inefficient." (What kind of risk was involved, the GAO investigators did not vouchsafe.) The new system was supposed to be ready to go by December 1979. But the usual delays forced a deadline revision: The new computers won't be ready until July 1983. And the cost overruns may exceed $3.3 million, the GAO estimates, while Agriculture's 100,000-plus employees' payroll chores are still being handled by the substandard computers.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Sept. 3, the 246th day of 1981. There are 119 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 3, 1939, Britain and France declared war on Germany.

On this date:

In 1791, the French Constitution was approved by the National Assembly, making France a constitutional monarchy.

In 1943, allied forces invaded Italy in World War II.

In 1962, the Katanga government accepted U.N. Secretary-General U Thant's plan for Congolese reunification.

In 1969, North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh died.

Ten years ago: An agreement on the future of Berlin was signed by representatives of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

Five years ago: The U.S. spacecraft, Viking II, made a successful landing on the surface of Mars.

One year ago: Polish coal miners began returning to work, signaling the apparent end of a two-month wave of strikes in that communist nation.

Today's birthdays: Former U.S. Sen. Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma is 60. Actress Valerie Perrine is 38.

Thought for Today: Soap and education are not as sudden as a massacre, but they are more deadly in the long run. — Mark Twain, U.S. writer (1835-1910).

GEORGE F. WILL

Shovels — and water — won West, remain its lifeblood

DENVER, Colo. — Seen from the air, the West seems virtually empty. But the perfect circles of dazzling green, like cut emeralds in sand, produced by huge circular irrigation sprinklers, suggest how much emptier the West would be but for irrigation. Parts of the West, urban and rural, including the High Plains, may be, in a sense, overpopulated, considering the problem of organizing sufficient water.

George F. Will

In a fascinating new book, "A River No More," Philip Fradkin explains that the Colorado River, which is "the Nile of America" in its role as "unifying source of life in the West," is at the core of a "complex plumbing system" that sustains an "oasis civilization" that will wither if (actually, he says when) shortages come.

The Nile extends 4,000 miles and has an annual flow four times that of the Colorado, which extends just 1,700 miles and has a flow equivalent to that of the Delaware. But even more than the Nile, the Colorado is a prodigy of life-giving.

It has the warmest water, highest evaporation rate, and biggest silt and salinity ("hardness" — the accumulation of dissolved minerals) problem of any American river. The salinity increases 17-fold between the headwaters in Colorado and Wyoming and the Mexican border.

For 20 years, not a drop of the Colorado has reached the river's natural outlet in the Gulf of California. Similarly, the Gila River, which used to join the Colorado at Yuma, Arizona, now falls short by about half of its former 600-mile length.

The river that sustains the West sustains, above all else, the artifact at the center of American civilization: the hamburger. Ask not for whom the river toils. It toils for cattle.

In the upper Colorado basin, 60 percent of the land is federally owned; in the lower basin, 52 percent. In Nevada (86 percent), federal holdings are twice the size of New York. In California, they are eight times the size of Massachusetts. In Utah, they are the size of Florida. And nearly 250 million of the 350 million federal acres — an area larger than the Atlantic seaboard states — are administered for grazing.

Since 1950, irrigated acreage in the High Plains has septupled as the region, responding to postwar America's ravenousness regarding red meat, has become the principal supplier of feed grains and feedlot cattle. Livestock feed is raised on 88 percent of the 1.6 million irrigated acres in the upper basin. Of 99 million acres in the lower basin, 82 million are rangeland or pasture.

In 1975, irrigated agriculture — principally alfalfa — consumed 7.5 million acre-feet of water in the Colorado River basin. Evaporation took 2.3 million and industrial uses (including power plants and mining) took just 630,000. Newsweek reports that if you count (and you should) the water that irrigated the grain that was fed to the steer, the steak on your plate may have required 3,500 gallons of water. The water needed to produce a 1,000-pound steer would float a destroyer.

Out here, where a bumper sticker says "Support Beef — Run Over a Chicken," cattlemen face hard times. Prices, and concern about health hazards from fatty red meat, are causing consumers to consume more chicken, pork and fish. Since the peak year of 1976, beef consumption has fallen from 95.7 to 78.3 pounds per person annually.

Conservative ideology and Western regional loyalties are in entertaining tension in the Reagan administration, so it is unlikely that beef will be made less competitive by the government imposing the principle of "full-cost recovery" on water users.

Nine of the 11 Western states have population densities much lower than Maine, the least dense state east of the Mississippi. But for the first time in 50 years, most of the West's population growth is happening outside California. It is happening within the Colorado River basin, and most of the West's population now is directly dependent on that river.

As Fradkin says, the West was not won by the six-gun but by shovels — shovels that moved dirt so that water could be moved. The federal government, much reviled in the West, has been skillfully milked by the West for the reclamation projects on which the region has depended.

As Bernard De Voto once wrote, the attitude toward the federal government has been "get out and give us more money." But there are limits — and they may be near — to what even well-funded ingenuity can do to multiply the usefulness of scarce water.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WHAT REJOICING THAT WILL BE!

O Lord, I will honor and praise your name, for you are my God; you do such wonderful things! You planned them long ago, and now you have accomplished them, just as you said! You turn mighty cities into heaps of ruins. The strongest forts are turned to rubble. Beautiful palaces in distant lands disappear and never will be rebuilt. Therefore strong nations will shake with fear before you; ruthless nations will obey and glorify your name.

But to the poor, O Lord, you are a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, a driving rain that melts down an earthen wall. As a hot, dry land is cooled by clouds, you will cool the pride of ruthless nations. Here on Mount Zion in Jerusalem, the Lord of Hosts will spread a wondrous feast for everyone around the world - a delicious feast of good food, with clear, well-aged wine and choice beef. At that time he will remove the cloud of gloom, the pall of death that hangs over the earth; he will swallow up death forever. The Lord God will wipe away all tears and take away forever all insults and mockery against his land and people. The Lord has spoken - he will surely do it!

In that day the people will proclaim, "This is our God in whom we trust, for whom we waited, Now at last he is here." What a day of rejoicing! (Isaiah 25:1-9)

White House aides don bullet-proof vests

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — White House aides who accompany President Reagan on his travels have started wearing bullet-proof vests occasionally in the wake of the assassination attempt in which three persons near Reagan were wounded.

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III told The Associated Press that the Secret Service makes the protective garments available to any staff aides who wish to wear them. Reagan usually wears one himself.

Baker said he could not confirm a Newsweek magazine report that the president's wife, Nancy, wears a bullet-proof slip. But he added, "It would make sense. I mean, it doesn't make much sense for the president to wear a bullet-proof vest" if those near him don't.

White House press secretary James Brady still is recovering from the head wound he suffered March 30 when he stepped into the line of fire. Secret Service agent Tim McCarthy, now back on the job, took a bullet in the liver and a police officer also was shot.

"There's no policy," Baker said, "but it (a bullet-proof vest) is available to anybody who's in that circle."

Another security precaution in effect since the attempt on Reagan's life sharply limits him access to reporters and crowds at airports.

Many presidents made a habit of walking from their airplane or helicopter to a fenced-off area several yards away to shake hands with people who had awaited their arrival. That also served as one of the few times reporters had informal access to ask the president questions.

But since March 30, Reagan's limousine pulls directly up to his airplane or helicopter, sometimes driving out into the middle of high school football fields to accomplish this, and Reagan goes directly from the aircraft to the automobile without getting anywhere near reporters or crows.

When the president returns to the White House after his four-week vacation, he may be startled to see a large, live Christmas tree standing in his dining room. The tree went up Aug. 8, two days after Reagan left the nation's capital.

The project was sponsored by Ladies Home Journal magazine, which is doing a story on the first family's Christmas, according to Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Shelia Patton Tate. The magazine needed to photograph the decorated tree last month in order for the pictures to make its holiday issue.

Mrs. Tate said the Douglas fir was decorated with "a very traditional, almost old-fashioned look," including red bows and ornaments "to our specifications." She said the tree probably would remain in the family dining room on the third floor of the executive mansion for another week.

Alexander Lomakov of Moscow shows off his German-built 1935 Horch convertible, one of 11 vintage autos he has restored to mint condition. Many of the cars in his collection were brought to the Soviet Union by Red Army officers and then junked.

Muscovite restores vintage autos

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — In a country where private cars are still the ultimate luxury, ramshackle garages hold some of the world's finest old autos, lovingly restored to mint condition by Soviet car fanatics like Alexander Lomakov.

Lomakov owns a fleet of 11 vintage autos and five motorcycles, a collection he claims is unrivaled in the Soviet Union.

Pedestrians gawk, other drivers gape and policemen grin when he takes the oldtimers out for a spin. "Some old ladies come up and pat the fenders. I guess it reminds them of their youth," Lomakov said.

The 53-year-old Muscovite specializes in restoring German-built cars from the pre-World War II era, many of which were brought to the Soviet Union as war booty by Red Army officers and then junked for lack of spare parts.

A Horch 853 convertible built in 1935 for Herman Goering, commander of Nazi Germany's Luftwaffe, is one of his finest vehicles, restored to immaculate condition in 3½ years of painstaking labor.

Russian filmgoers recognize the sleek car with the flaring front fenders as the Nazi "staff car" in a dozen recent Soviet-made war movies, with Lomakov in German uniform behind the wheel.

Two Mercedes-Benz 540 racers from the late 1930s, a 1933 BMW 303 sedan, a pre-war Porsche coupe and a 1928 Opal pickup are other German cars in the collection.

French, Italian and Austrian sedans from the same era are among the other cars Lomakov is restoring at his cluttered workshop rented from a bakery in southern Moscow.

"I spend all my free time here," said the bearded, gray-haired Lomakov, who works as a night watchman to keep his days free for restoration work. "My wife divorced me. She said only a fool can live with such a fanatic."

Lomakov's two teen-age sons are also auto buffs, helping to restore the European cars and Soviet motorcycles their father has acquired from backyards and junk heaps all over the country, usually for several hundred dollars apiece.

The three belong to the "Moscow Vintage Car Club," whose members own 134 separate models. The club is second in size to the 260 vehicles owned by members of a vintage car club in Riga, Soviet Latvia.

Lomakov said the Moscow club lacks an exhibition hall to put its cars on display, but influential friends have promised to help establish a museum.

Chalked on a door in his workshop is a quotation from the Soviet constitution to support their case: "The care and preservation of historical monuments and other cultural treasures is a duty and obligation of citizens of the U.S.S.R."

Lomakov said he first became interested in vintage cars in 1959 while working as a craftsman at the Moscow Zil automotive plant, which produces heavy trucks as well as hand-tooled limousines for top Kremlin officials.

"We were given the job of restoring Lenin's Rolls-Royce for a museum in Moscow," he explained. "I was entrusted with restoring the dashboard, and I decided then to devote my life to saving old cars."

Lomakov's proudest acquisition is a Mercedes-Benz 540 SKL sports convertible. He said it is one of only nine models built by the Stuttgart Automotive Co. in 1938, with a top speed of 120 mph.

"Surviving models have turned up in Australia, France and San Francisco, so mine is the fourth in the world," he said.

How much is the car worth? "The one in the U.S.A. was sold for $400,000 several years ago. But I don't intend to sell mine," he replied.

The 540 SKL was brought to the Soviet Union from Germany after World War II by a Red Army general and remained in the Moscow area until 1962, when it was sold to an engineer in the Black Sea resort city of Sukhumi.

Lomakov was unable to trace the car and had almost abandoned hope of ever acquiring it when a chance encounter suddenly opened the door.

Busts arranged in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A marble bust of Richard Nixon, tucked into an out-of-the-way Senate anteroom for the past two years, is in a new spot where more visitors can see it now that Republicans are in power.

But Elliott Carroll, assistant architect of the Capitol, says the move had at least as much to do with aesthetics as it did with politics.

Carroll said Nixon's bust was one of 10 that were moved about a month ago at the request of the Senate Rules Committee, headed by Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md.

He said the Senate Commission on Arts and Antiquities concurred in the changes.

The Nixon bust was one of several in the Senate Reception Room, an area just off the floor that is frequented by lobbyists but visited by relatively few tourists. Others included the busts of John Nance Garner and Henry Wallace, who served as vice presidents under Franklin Roosevelt.

The Nixon bust's new location is near a bank of elevators in a corridor through which many visitors pass on their way to the Senate gallery. The Garner and Wallace busts were moved to a corridor on the other side of the Senate chamber.

Carroll said the Rules Committee and the Antiquities Commission felt the reception room had a cluttered look with the busts in it.

As a result of the moves, busts of all vice presidents from Charles Dawes, who served under Calvin Coolidge, to Lyndon Johnson are now in the corridors that ring the Senate chamber.

By tradition dating to 1886, the Senate has a bust made of each vice president, constitutionally the Senate's presiding officer.

The Nixon bust had been placed in the reception room when it was brought out of storage two years ago after a delay of several years, at a time when Democrats controlled the Senate.

The Nixon bust is by Italian sculptor Gualberto Ricchi. An earlier version by Ricchi was rejected by the Nixon family in 1967 on grounds it was a bad likeness. By the time Ricchi completed the second version, Nixon was president and decided the bust should not be installed until he returned to private life. Installation of the bust was apparently delayed further by the emotions aroused by the Watergate scandal that forced Nixon's resignation.

Also moved were several busts that had been on the third floor of the Capitol. All are now in locations on the first and second floors.

They include busts of sculptor Thomas Crawford, President Zachary Taylor, Naval hero John Paul Jones and British Ambassador James

Meiji Mura returns to the past

By JOHN RODERICK
AP Special Correspondent

MEIJI MURA, Japan (AP) — The 65 buildings, churches and rolling stock of Meiji Mura are an architect's delight and a historian's dream. Silent, exotic, nostalgic — like giant butterflies pinned to a board — they freeze a brilliant record of Japan's recent history.

Sprawled over 247 beautifully landscaped acres on the outskirts of Nagoya, in the heartland of industrial Japan, Meiji Mura is a village of restored edifices and artifacts from the Meiji Restoration of 1868-1912.

The era got its name from the return to power of the Japanese imperial system after nearly 800 years of feudal rule. Named after Meiji, the first of the restored emperors, it marked Japan's emergence as a modern power. During the more than 200 years which preceded it, Japan was cut off, hermit-like, from the rest of the world.

Visitors to Meiji Mura, 1.4 million last year, 21.4 million since it opened in 1965, step into a world of seeming innocence, without airplanes, television sets, automobiles, skyscrapers or pollution.

It is a sharp contrast to the cramped wooden houses and sterile boxes that are home and office to many Japanese in 1981.

What visitors see, in a leisurely tour on foot or by vintage railway, is an eclectic collection of gingerbread, wedding-cake structures from the late Victorian and early Edwardian periods of the West, arrayed in perfect harmony with simple classical Japanese houses, theaters, bath houses, banks, telephone exchanges, butcher shops and prisons.

Visitors are taken to remote parts of the village aboard an 1895 Kyoto electric streetcar and spartan third-class coaches pulled by smoke-belching English steam locomotives, dating back to the Tokyo Yokohama run of 1874.

The village also exhibits the imperial railway carriage of the Emperor Meiji, built in 1910 in Tokyo for his personal use. It is a tiny palace on wheels, including sumptuously furnished dining room, chamberlain's room, bed chamber and toilet. The interior is decorated with hand-woven brocades, mother-of-pearl and cloisonne work, sculpture and oil paintings.

Other attractions are the imperial railway carriage of Emperor Meiji's empress, Shoken, done up in much the same style, and an elegant imperial horse carriage used for foreign envoys.

Ironically, the most spectacular of the restored structures which cluster on a hillside facing picturesque Lake Iruka is one erected 11 years after the end of the Meiji era.

A shock and a friendship gave birth to Meiji Mura.

The shock was the destruction of a famous Meiji-era Tokyo building, the Rokomeikan. A government guest house where young Japanese could meet and dance with foreigners, its chandeliered ballrooms and velvet-covered furniture seemed to express the spirit and freedom of the age.

"When it was torn down in 1940," said Meiji Mura's director, Dr. Masaru Sekino, "Dr. Yoshihiro Taniguchi, a famous scholar and architect, began to reflect on the disappearance, through fire, earthquake, war, industrial expansion and plain neglect of the famous buildings of the era."

Taniguchi approached his former high-school schoolmate, Motomo Tsuchikawa, then vice president of the Nagoya railroad company, with his concern.

"You find the buildings and I'll raise the money," Tsuchikawa told him.

The old friends had to wait for the end of World War II and economic recovery to realize their dream.

The most expensive structure to rescue was the Imperial Hotel, torn down in 1965 after 42 years as one of Tokyo's most famous landmarks. Though sentimentalists tried to raise a million dollars to put it up somewhere else, it remained for Meiji Mura to salvage the most spectacular part of it — the front and lobby.

Cancer killed the Rabbit

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

CEDAR PARK, Texas (AP) — Seventy-year-old Bill Bullard ambled up to the owners of the Rabbit Habbit, most popular eatery in these parts, and said, "I think I got mine whipped."

Floyd Roberts wandered by, pulled out the electronic device that allows him to talk, and said in a robotlike monotone, "We ate here all the time. They knew me when I had a voice."

Bullard and Roberts, both cancer patients, were among hundreds of local folks at the sixth anniversary party at Pete and Peggy Garner's Rabbit Habbit. The band — including local lawmen — played country hits. The people gabbed and gobbled.

The party spirit belied the poignancy of the evening. The Rabbit Habbit is closed. Peggy, who worked sixteen hours a day for six years here, has cancer.

The restaurant is for sale.

"Right now I'm real happy," said Mrs. Garner, 48, while the party was at its peak. "I think I'm going to be real sad when it's over."

The Garners built the 4,820-square foot restaurant by themselves, a mom-and-pop business in a world of franchises. The rabbit (300 pounds a week), frog legs and other specialties became local favorites in this city of 2,800, which is now 10 miles closer to Austin than it was six years ago, thanks to urban sprawl.

"We thought we'd open a little chicken-to-go place," Garner recalled. They kept adding to the place and wound up with a 200-seat, 16-employee restaurant that served friends from around the state.

On May 23 Mrs. Garner found out she was seriously ill. She underwent surgery in Austin, and then went to M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston.

"They found another tumor. That's what we're up against," Garner said, adding that doctors said it is inoperable.

"It's like someone jerked a rug out from under you," he said.

Roberts and Bullard know what the Garners are going through. Roberts remembers coming into the Rabbit Habbit the night before his surgery.

"I told them I want to talk to you because they're going to do me in tomorrow," he said.

The cancer is bad, but it was the chemotherapy treatments that forced the closing. The Garners climb into their pickup truck every 28 days for the drive to Houston for her treatments.

Garner said his wife wanted to keep the restaurant open.

"She worked so hard to build it. It was her. Her biggest fear was that we were going to close and people would say we didn't make it. She thought everyone would say we failed," he said.

Garner, seeing his wife drained by the monthly treatments, said the decision was easy. "I told her I'd rather devote my time to her than to the place."

The cancer talk was interrupted by Bullard: "I need a beer. My mouth is so dry from those cobalt treatments."

Rare diseases strike

ATLANTA (AP) — Two rare diseases struck more than 100 homosexual men in the United States in recent months — killing nearly half of them — and a medical task force has been formed to find out why, the national Centers for Disease Control said Friday.

The CDC said it has reports of 70 new cases of Kaposi's sarcoma, a rare form of skin cancer, and Pneumocystis, a parasitic, pneumonia-like disease, since July 3. Ninety-four percent of the patients whose sexual preference was known were homosexual men.

The CDC reported in June and July that 26 cases of the cancer and 15 cases of the parasitic disease had been found in homosexual men since January 1980.

The CDC said 43 of 108 of those patients died, and mortality data was not available on the other three patients.

The 70 new cases were reported by doctors who discovered them after reading the initial report, said Dr. Harold Jaffe, a member of the task force assigned to find out how the diseases are linked to their victims.

Kaposi's sarcoma is a rare disease that primarily strikes elderly men and is seldom fatal. But the majority of homosexual patients were young men and 17 percent of them died.

Almost 60 percent of the Pneumocystis patients died. In some cases, Pneumocystis preceded the cancer. The two diseases sometimes occurred separately and sometimes in combination.

There may be a link to some previous disease, or the victims may have a problem with their immune systems. The diseases may be linked to their sexual lifestyle, drug use or some other environmental cause, although no evidence of those connections has been found.

"To be fair, there is no evidence at this point these diseases are sexually transmitted," Jaffe said.

The task force — 20 experts from the CDC's cancer, viral, parasitic and venereal disease branches — is trying to determine if the problem is limited to homosexual men and why they seem to be catching the diseases at unusually high rates, Jaffe said.

A surveillance system is being set up in six cities — Los Angeles; Miami; Rochester, N.Y.; Albany, N.Y.; Oklahoma City, and Atlanta — to try to uncover more cases, Jaffe said. The cities represent a vast spectrum of the population, he said.

"All the past information suggests this is a new problem...," Jaffe said, and the CDC will check other groups as well as homosexual men.

Both diseases previously have been linked to people with severe immune deficiencies.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, September 4, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actress Mitzi Gaynor and Senator Thomas Eagleton of Missouri share this birthday with you. Those born on this date are warm-hearted, analytical and outspoken. Learn to be more diplomatic when offering your opinions. In your eagerness to get at the heart of the matter, you sometimes alienate those very people whose cooperation is essential to the success of your plans. New career, business opportunities will lead to greater financial security. Family members continue to play an important, and generally positive, role in the decisions you make. Actions speak louder than words where romance is concerned.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stay alert! New business opportunities could arise. Your former experiences and past training will be useful. You receive help from unexpected quarters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your career, reputation and prestige are in the spotlight. An invitation to join a civic or professional group will put you in touch with important people.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Financial goals are uppermost in your thoughts now. Joint monetary projects play a key role in your success. Deal with any personnel problems calmly and quietly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Let your head rule your emotions today. Be alert and protect yourself in the clinches! Use your imagination. Refine production techniques to increase profits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Extra income is available through regular channels. Your dealings with an older person require special handling. Listen carefully before offering any opinions. Romance is appealing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Financial ventures with friends may strain your relationship. Mate or partner will be more sympathetic to your plans. Too much good food could lead to a waistline problem; practice more restraint!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A good day for experimenting with new techniques and procedures. Be ready to take on heavier responsibilities and you will reap considerable benefits in the near future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not rely on your friends to bail you out of a difficult situation. Work on your own as much as possible. Social outings will be enjoyable if you limit your spending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cooperation, teamwork are essential today. Stretch your imagination. Influential people will be obliging. Emphasize your self-reliant attitude and be discreet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep an eye on your spending, and check bank statement before splurging. Use tact when handling problems involving relatives. You will get the right answers if you confide in influential person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Correspondence is important now. Fire off letters to overseas contacts. You and mate or partner are on the same wavelength. Past misunderstandings can be forgotten.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day to get in touch with influential people. Develop more confidence in yourself. A short trip can lead to a quick profit. Friends will be helpful if you ask them for favors.

"Your hands are all very pretty and point up a lesson, but they never crop up in play," writes a disgusted reader. Not so. They crop up all too often. The pity is that they are not always recognized for what they are. To prove our point, here's an example from the recent Swiss Team event at the Summer North American Championships held in Boston at the end of July.

South had no really good way to describe his hand at his second turn. The choice lay between a slight underbid of two clubs and a stretch to three clubs. We would have chosen the former, but at the table South opted for the slight overbid. As a result, the best contract of three no trump was carefully avoided when North correctly raised clubs.

West attacked with the ten of spades. It was more than likely that the lead was a singleton, so declarer rose with dummy's ace. Obviously, the problem was to keep East off lead, for a lead through the king of hearts was likely to prove fatal.

Declarer crossed to his hand with the king of clubs and was delighted when both defenders followed suit. He cashed the ace and king of diamonds, in case the queen would drop. When her highness failed to appear, declarer led a club to the ace, drawing the last trump in the process, and led the jack of diamonds. When East followed with a low diamond, declarer sluffed the jack of spades instead of ruffing.

That was a classic avoidance play. Even if West held another spade, the contract was now secure, for West was end played. A diamond would allow declarer to ruff in dummy while sluffing a heart from his hand; a heart would be up to the king; and a spade would allow declarer to set up a spade trick in dummy and then get there with the ten of trumps to take a heart discard.

Not only is this a perfect lesson hand, but "Avoidance" is right up front in the Bridge Encyclopedia. You don't have to have read very far into it to find plays of this type.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Salvadoran stowaway reaches United States

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It took two tries, but an 11-year-old orphan boy with a will to leave his war-torn homeland made his way alone from El Salvador to the United States.

The boy said he left El Salvador in search of a new family after a bomb blast killed his own family in June. After two trips as a stowaway on jetliners, he arrived in Los Angeles, where he was turned over to juvenile authorities.

He wound up with a Hollywood couple who met him at a county home for boys and now want to adopt him.

"The little boy's a genius," said a TACA Airlines official at Miami International Airport, where the boy arrived in mid-July on his first trip to the United States. "He got past everybody — customs, immigration, us. He just said he was going to be adopted here."

The boy, whose name was withheld at the request of the Los Angeles Juvenile Court, was found out and deported when he arrived in Miami. Five days later, however, he was back at the airport in San Salvador.

The boy said that at a young age he was sent to be an apprentice to a bus mechanic. Then, like many children, he shined shoes.

He said he was at a nearby pharmacy when his parents and brother were killed in a bombing that destroyed the family's house.

"Later my neighbors told me the National Guard had set the bomb," the boy said through an interpreter.

Homeless and hungry, he said he decided to come to the United States after he went to a church and "God thought my idea was good."

In his first attempt, he said, he successfully pretended to be one of several Salvadoran children at the airport with some American couples, and he boarded the plane. Once in Miami, however, he gave himself up to someone who turned him over to authorities.

On his second try, he said, he loitered at the gate at the San Salvador airport, waiting for a flight to Los Angeles.

"I waited until a fat man went through customs and I walked behind him, very slow. Then, when we got into the tunnel where you go on the plane, I asked a man with two suitcases if I could carry one for him. I think the stewardess thought I was a passenger's son," the boy said.

After he was found wandering in Los Angeles that night, the boy ended up in a county home. His foster parents found him through a refugee aid center and have a court date later this month to begin lengthy adoption procedures.

Vietnamese shrimpers running risks

SHALIMAR, Fla. (AP) — Vietnamese shrimpers who have raised the ire of their American competitors say they're using Yankee ingenuity to succeed in this land of immigrants.

"We work hard," said Bui Van Nguyen of Panama City on Wednesday. "We work many hours."

Like good capitalists, the Vietnamese have pooled their money to take risks by buying shrimp boats, nets and fuel.

But American shrimpers who operate out of Florida Panhandle ports aren't impressed. They contend Vietnamese refugees are threatening their livelihood.

Tensions between the two factions have been so volatile that Okaloosa County Judge Keith Brace arranged a gripe session in a courtroom here on Wednesday afternoon.

About 150 people attended a meeting that was marked by hostile shouts from the audience at some points. Most of those present were American fishermen who had traveled from North Florida coastal towns.

The meeting was moderated by Ernest Jones of the U.S. Justice Department office in Atlanta. A panel included representatives from the Florida Marine Patrol, the U.S. Coast Guard and the U.S. Catholic Conference, an agency that sponsored many Vietnamese refugees.

Vietnamese fishermen from Pensacola and Panama City also attended.

Despite the heated discussion, differences apparently were not resolved. Several American shrimpers walked out in disgust, claiming that no progress was made.

Government officials said they'd try to schedule another session later this month.

American shrimpers have been complaining that their Vietnamese counterparts use improper methods, receivce government subsidies and take too many young shrimp from shallow waters.

"It's gotten to the point where it's completely impossible to make a living," said veteran shrimper Clifford Broxson of Fort Walton Beach, a spokesman for the Americans.

Many of the native shrimpers are miffed because the Vietnaese operate in a different style.

The Viets send "spotter boats" to several bays along the Florida Panhandle and call other boats by radio when shrimp are plentiful. It's common for dozens of Vietnamese-operated boats to travel together, the Americans say.

An estimated 3,000 Vietnamese have settled in the Panhandle between Tallahassee and Pensacola. Many of them have turned to the sea for a living.

Kevin York of the U.S. Catholic Conference said the immigrants are not heavily supported by the U.S. government. When they arrived, the Vietnamese received $500 each for basic needs, he said.

Large, extended families of Vietnamese pooled their incomes to buy shrimp boats, the refugees say. In the beginning, they bought lower priced, outdated vessels and fixed them up.

"It's a difference of lifestyle," York said. "The Vietnamese run their boats as a family operation, and that creates an economic edge."

Continuation of labor camp suggested

HOPE, Ark. (AP) — A Washington office of the federal Labor Department has recommended that the Migrant Farm Labor Center at Hope be continued for another year.

Peg Crosby, chief of administration design for the department's Migrant and Seasonal Farm Workers Program, said Wednesday she doesn't know if the recommendation will be accepted.

The office hasn't received its appropriation for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 and Miss Crosby said she didn't know if Assistant Labor Secretary Albert Angrisani would approve the request.

More than 35,000 migrant farm workers stop at the center each year as they make their way from the Rio Grande Valley in Texas to farms in the Midwest and North for seasonal employment. The center is the only one in the country.

U.S. Navy ship picks up 33 Haitians refugees

HOUSTON (AP) — A Navy ship picked up 33 Haitian refugees in the southern Gulf of Mexico where they were crowded onto a 30-foot sail boat stocked only with rice, fruit and seasickness medicine, officials said.

The Haitians were being held in a Houston detention center Wednesday, said a Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman.

Completion of training, new assignments noted

Richard L. Barton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil H. Barton of 2301 Seaboard, Midland, recently completed a U.S. Air Force ROTC field training encampment at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the encampment, cadets receive survival and small arms training and aircraft and airerew indoctrination. They also have the opportunity to observe careers in which they might wish to serve as Air Force officers.

The cadet is a student at Texas A&M University, College Station.

Tech. Sgt. Alfred E. Arnold, son of Inez Arnold of 200 Spraberry Drive, Midland, has arrived for duty at Rhein-Main Air Base, West Germany.

Arnold, a ground radio communications technician with the 1945th communications Group, was previously assigned at Luke Air Force Base.

He is a 1959 graduate of Midland High School.

Navy Interior Communications Electrician 3rd Class George B. Pickens, son of George L. Barr and stepson of Pat Barr, both of 3801 Fannin, Midland, has been promoted to his present rank while serving aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Peleliu, homeported in Long Beach, Calif.

A 1978 graduate of Robert E. Lee High School, he joined the Navy in October 1979.

Daniel R. Killins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Killins of 2805 Maxwell, Midland, recently completed submarine indoctrination at the Navy Submarine Support Facility, San Diego.

A midshipman at the University of Oklahoma, Norman, Okla., the indoctrination included a tour of a submarine rescue unit, operational experience in a ship control and damage control trainer, and briefings concerning the purpose and operation of the submarine force. The midshipmen also received an extensive tour of an operational nuclear-powered submarine.

Killins is a 1979 graduate of Robert E. Lee High School.

Highway bids sought

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation will take bids Sept. 15 for construction of a general maintenance building and outside utilities and ground improvements on U.S. Highway 67 near Big Lake.

The project would be located half a mile west of Big Lake. Estimated cost of the project is $136,000 and completion time is set at 100 working days.

Bids will be received at the highway department headquarters in Austin until 2:30 p.m. Sept. 15.

Ryan's saloon owner refuses to budge

By WAYNE SLATER
Associated Press Writer

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The friends of Matthew Ryan affectionately describe his timeworn working-class Irish saloon as a "swill bucket cafe."

Don't ask what his enemies call it.

Standing all alone — leaning, really — in the heart of Peoria's downtown urban renwal, it is surrounded by a leveled acre of progress-in-waiting, the last bit of faded red brick on a block earmarked for mirrored glass and steel.

Civic boosters want to oust him. A millionaire builder has tried to buy him. The mayor is threatening to condemn him.

But Ryan's saloon will not be moved.

"We've been badgered and bulldozed," he says. "The city is harassing us. The power brokers are trying to squeeze us out."

No wonder. Ryan's old tavern has become Peoria's prized piece of real estate.

It stands in the shadow of City Hall, within a beer can's throw of the nearly completed $60 million civic center, a brief walk from a planned urban shopping mall and on a block otherwise owned by a high-powered local developer who wants to erect 30-story twin towers.

The city is boasting about almost $300 million in planned new development downtown, and a saloon is definitely not in the plans. Moreover, it is threatening everything else.

"I think the greater city good would be in seeing the twin towers built," said Rodney Haynes, interim community development director. "But the guy who owns the land controls the punch."

The standoff between the 55-year-old saloonkeeper and Raymond G. Becker, the city's most successful developer, delights the impish Ryan.

Ryan is willing to sell, he says, but not "be bulldozed" by the city's boosters, builders and bankers — all of whom stand to gain.

Says Ryan, "I don't suggest I'm a candidate to be canonized, but I do believe in fair play. If he thinks I've been baby-sitting this place for four years to sell it at a loss, he's mistaken."

Says Becker, "He's a pain ..."

Clearly, the two have not yet come to terms.

A Becker associate says Ryan was offered $410,000, roughly twice the purchase price for other buildings on the block he owns. Ryan denies that, but says it would take more than that anyway.

How much more? The selling price is still anybody's guess.

The two unlikely combatants are as different as the buildings where they do business.

Becker, 49, wears fitted three-piece suits and built the city's swankiest hotel, where last Election Eve he personally greeted Ronald Reagan, Gerald Ford and George Bush, all of them winding up their campaign stumping, and comedian Bob Hope.

Ryan, stoop-shouldered and forever rumpled, holds court in the half-When the GOP stars came to town last November, Ryan, a l down. When the GOP stars came to town last November, Ryan, a Democrat watched from a rooftop, sitting on a bar chair. He didn't laugh at Bob Hope's jokes once.

He and partner Russell McKinnie acquired Gorman's Tap in 1977, anticipating business from construction workers at the civic center project across the street. Once the center opened, there would be conventioneers and sports fans.

But Becker began buying up the block — the old barber shop, the shoeshine stands, even the Palace Theater, the fabled vaudeville house where the phrase "Will it play in Peoria?" was born.

One by one, all were vacated and leveled until by this summer only one thing stood in the way of Becker's $40 million twin-tower hotel-condominium project — Ryan.

The block is idle now, all except for Ryan's place, which is doing a brisk business. The mischievous saloonkeeper recently changed the name out front to "Gorman's Twin Towers Tap" just to pique the stalled builder.

Becker, for his part, says his project is on hold because interest rates are too high, not because Ryan has beaten him.

The next step may be up to the city. Ryan alleges he is being harassed, that cops have been overly vigilant in an effort to catch him serving minors.

Further, Mayor Richard Carver, who said before his re-election last year that condemnation is unlikely, now says condemnation may be the only answer.

Ryan says he's not worried. "The establishment won't be sitting on the jury," he proclaimed and, lighthearted with confidence, broke into song:

"You can get here by auto, you can get here by bus.

"You can walk, trot, run if you must.

"But you're welcome, you're always welcome

"To Gorman's swill bucket cafe."

An amused patron explains that Ryan is just one of those rare, little people in life who has found himself "about to make the great American killing to which he is entitled."

Biting, hitting and spitting pose health, social problems

The Washington Post

A neighbor's child came home from nursery school his first day and became instant legend in our community. "What did you learn," the 3-year-old's mother asked? "I learned the rules," he said, "no hitting, spitting or bitting. ..."

Nobody doubts the social worth of such a rule in any setting, but some of the health ramifications may bear repeating.

Especially to "hitting" and "bitting" there may be more than meets the, well, fist or, perhaps, tooth. (And neither punch-out nor bite is limited to nursery school ... even if the latter is later more accurately pronounced.)

HITTING:

According to a group of southern orthodonists, a child's jaw can be permanently thrown out of sync as the result of the fracture of small bones where the jaw joins the skull.

What can happen, the dentists warn, is that one side of the lower jaw grows more than the other, giving a lopsided appearance.

They recommend that any child who has pain or soreness or stiffness in cheeks or jaws after "a fall, bike wreck or fist fight" see a dental specialist. The tiny bones are fragile and can break with only moderate pain, but the long term consequences may be more serious.

BIT(T)ING:

—Human. Folk wisdom has always held that a people bite is worse than a dog bite. This is not strictly true, but doctors do know that human saliva contains bacteria which can cause serious bone and tendon infections. The wound may not look serious enough to bother with, but the infection, harmless in the saliva, can, for example, cause loss of the use of a hand. Any human bite should be seen by a doctor.

—Dogs. Dog bites are bad enough. The teeth may not be as sharp as those of say, a tiger, but the jaws can exert enough pressure to pierce sheet metal, according to a report from the University of California Medical School in San Francisco. Dog bites, perhaps a million a year, account for 1 percent of all hospital emergency room visits, the report said.

Rabies, of course, is the paramount concern with dog bites, although a new treatment available in this country since last summer carries with it much less trauma than the series of shots that used to be required. However, contrary to conventional wisdom, dogs do not have clean mouths and dog bites can very easily become infected.

—Raccoons and other animals. Rabid raccoons have been found this summer in Virginia and West Virginia, the Center for Disease Control has warned. Four diseased animals were captured near Front Royal in the Shenandoah National Park.

Bentsen renews call for meat inspection

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The revelation that at least one Australian meat packing plant has shipped horse meat labeled as beef to the United States has prompted Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to renew his cry for tougher inspection of imported meat.

New laws are needed, he said, to prevent the possibility of Australian kangaroos or horses ending up as "beef" on U.S. grocery shelves, said Bentsen, who said Wednesday he plans to introduce a bill "within the next few weeks" requiring labeling and tougher inspections of imported meat.

All Australian beef now in this country has been impounded pending further testing. In the meantime, Australian inspectors report finding kangaroo meat at the same plant that shipped horse meat to the United States.

"Secretary of Agriculture John Block is to be commended for his decision to impound and test all Australian meat in this country and to halt all imports from this one plant," Bentsen said.

"The incident makes clear, though, the need for legislation to fully protect the U.S. consumer from unknowingly being sold meat that is not up to the high quality standards that we demand and expect to get in this country."

In addition to tightening up inspection procedures, his bill also will require that all imported meat products be labeled as such all the way to the ultimate consumer, Bentsene said.

Beef produced in the United States is subject to rigorous inspections.

Even state-inspected meat packing plants are subject to unannounced federal inspections and are shut down if they don't measure up, Bentsen said. Even so, the state-inspected plants, mostly small, family-owned businesses, are forbidden from shipping their product in interstate commerce.

"By contrast, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has only 17 inspectors to supervise some 1,159 foreign meat plants that are certified to export to the United States," said Bentsen. Some of the plants are inspected only once every two years, he complained.

"The meat produced in these foreign plants, which amounts to about 7 percent of our total domestic consumption, is merely sampled when it enters this country and is then permitted to move freely in interstate commerce," Bentsen said.

The only label the imported beef carries, the Texas Democrat pointed out, is "USDA inspected," the same label carried by American beef processed in federally inspected plants.

Bentsen introduced similar legislation in the past that failed to win approval in the Senate.

"We have had a dramatic focusing of public attention on the problems of our meat import inspection system, and I would hope that those who have in the past dismissed these problems will take a second look."

Error contributes to medfly outbreak

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — As efforts to combat new finds of both fruit flies and larvae increase, officials acknowledge that another technical error may have contributed to the resurgence of the medfly.

One dye used to distinguish a sterile from a fertile Mediterranean fruit fly was hard to detect and may have led laboratory workers examining traps to overlook fertile medflies, Charlie Poucher of the medfly technical advisory team said Wednesday.

"They went through the lab as being dyed flies, and they weren't," said Poucher, a Florida entomologist.

By examining trapped flies, project workers are able to determine how far they have spread and the strength of the infestation. These examinations help medfly fighters determine how to deploy their forces. But some of the billions of sterile flies released in an effort to interfere with the fly's breeding cycle are also trapped, and they must be distinguished from fertile, or wild, flies.

Despite the discovery Wednesday of three maggots in Pleasonton, near Livermore, and 20 adult flies in Baldwin Park, 400 miles south, project officials were not extremely concerned.

"The finds in Pleasonton were adjacent to the existing area," said Irv Pass, an eradication project spokesman. "The ones in Los Angeles were in the core area. There hasn't been any major alarm."

A 16-square-mile area around the find was added to the existing spray zone east of Oakland and will be sprayed today, Pass said.

Aerial spraying and stripping of fruit on trees will continue in a 9-square-mile area surrounding the first find in southern California, but the area will not be expanded, officials said.

The spray zone now totals 1,265 square miles in seven counties, all of which are under partial or total quarantine to prevent possibly infested fruit from being shipped without treatment.

"These new finds are not really a setback," Paul Engler, Los Angeles County commissioner of agriculture, said Wednesday. "Because of the breeding population there is still going to be an emergence of new flies. We just have to make sure we spray enough malathion so we can knock them down."

Project officials decided to aerially spray the fly with malathion in July after ground efforts failed to eradicate the pest.

Brown blames party in part for medfly

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown has charged that President Reagan and other Californians in his administration must take some of the blame if the Mediterranean fruit fly spreads to other states.

Brown complained Wednesday about the U.S. Department of Agriculture's refusal to require fumigation of fruit and vegetables being shipped out of the medfly-infested areas of California.

"Somewhere there's a fly in the ointment," Brown said at a joint news conference with Florida Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner.

Asked what that fly was, he said: "Mr. Reagan is from California."

Brown said Reagan has appointed Californians to top positions in the USDA and elsewhere in his administration. They have have sided with California agricultural interests that have opposed fumigation, he said.

"We believe that his administation's integrity is at stake," Brown said. He was in Tallahassee as the featured speaker at the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' annual business conference.

Texas has so far succeeded in keeping the medfly out, but Florida officials have found five medflies in three places near Tampa. No new flies have been trapped there in the last 19 days, Conner said.

"We are optimistic, it looks good at this point," Conner said, but he added, "We have the threat of a new infestation as long as it's in the continental United States."

Conner said he is pushing for federal legislation to set up a panel of state agriculture officials that could force states and the USDA to take action to eradicate pests such as the medfly.

Federal courts have blocked moves by Florida, Texas and other states to quarantine the importation of produce from California.

Farm income more likely to decline despite predictions

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regardless of the method used to compute it, farm income this year may be only a shade higher than its depressed level in 1980 and — using one system of accounting — probably will decline from last year.

The ominous signs were included Wednesday in a new analysis by the Agriculture Department. Last fall it seemed to many economists that farmers would see a much better financial year in 1981, perhaps matching the near-record income level of 1979.

But the situation has changed dramatically since then, and economists are having to rework their estimates each month to keep up.

"Large prospective U.S. crops, slow economic growth here and abroad, high interest rates and the strong dollar continue to pressure farm prices," the department's Economic Research Service said.

The preliminary report said farmers' income now is expected to range between $20 billion and $24 billion in calendar 1981, compared with $19.9 billion in 1980.

But those figures, the report noted, allow for changes in inventories of crops and livestock held by farmers during the year. This year, farmers' inventories are up, compared with a $2 billion decline in 1980 when heat and drought reduced production.

For example, if a farmer had 1,000 bushels of wheat worth $2.50 a bushel in 1980 and added 1,000 bushels to it this year, his inventory — assuming the price was the same — increased by $2,500.

When income is measured before adjustments for inventories, the figures reflect what farmers actually have left over after paying expenses. This sometimes is called "realized" net income.

On that basis, net farm income this year is expected to be $18 billion to $22 billion, according to Gary Lucier, one of the report's authors, compared with $21.9 billion — using the same method — in 1980.

Prices of the major crops such as corn, wheat, cotton and soybeans are expected to average lower in the 1981-82 year than in the current season.

Hog prices have improved from low marks early this year as producers reduced their herds and will average about 15 percentk higher than in 1980.

Agriculture secretary invited to Argentina

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block is considering a visit to Argentina at the invitation of government representatives there.

The invitation was extended Wednesday at a meeting in Block's office with Minister of Foreign Affairs Oscar Camilion and other officials, according to an aide, John Ochs.

Described as a courtesy call, the meeting did not involve any major issues, Ochs said.

No decision was made on whether Block would accept the invitation to visit Argentina but he "indicated an interest," Ochs said.

A checking account at other banks is a lot like a checking account at First National.

Last Year.

Last year, First National offered Midland's only "No Service Charge Checking" account. As a matter of fact, last year, we offered our customers so much more for their money, that three times more Midlanders opened accounts with us than anywhere else in town!

This year, we have gone one-step further. We will pay you to keep your checking account at First National. That's right, with the Checking-Plus-Interest account, we will pay you 5 1/4% annual interest on your checking account balance, every month! There is no minimum balance or service charge. NO strings attached — 5 1/4% interest and you still get "No Service Charge Checking".

The Andrea Doria expedition: Was it the 'Height of Hype?'

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Gimbel's expedition to the Andrea Doria has ended with a final public relations flourish that attempted to grab headlines and air time with a mixture of spirits, sunken treasure and man-eating sharks.

The safe that Gimbel and his divers lifted from the wreck of the sunken Italian liner was trucked to a Coney Island aquarium Wednesday for storage in a salt water tank containing 28 sharks, some large enough to endanger humans.

But Gimbel said the safe's contents will remain a mystery until his documentary on the diving expedition is broadcast on national television sometime around Christmas. Whoever buys the rights to the film also gets to televise the opening of the safe at its conclusion.

Gimbel said that instead of setting a price for his film, he would "see what we're bid."

In interviews at Montauk following the expedition's return from its month-long mission, Gimbel spoke of sensing the Doria's "almost malevolent spirit" during his dives. He held a news conference from a diving bell where he was completing decompression, speaking to reporters by telephone.

His wife said the spirit tried to stop the removal of the Bank of Rome safe. Elga Andersen said divers told her "the current picked up" as the safe was moved. "It was as if the wreck was saying 'Not my safe!'"

Gimbel denied that he was a publicity-seeker.

"People don't put themselves through what we did for a publicity stunt," Gimbel insisted. "You don't have to go through what we've gone through to get publicity."

But Gimbel demonstrated promotional savvy from the start.

By announcing plans for his expedition in late July, Gimbel got a jump on a group of New Jersey divers planning a similar mission. There also was a spate of stories marking the 25th anniversary on July 26 of the Andrea Doria's sinking.

For the next month Lillian Pickard of the New York public relations firm of Solters Roskin Friedman kept reporters posted on the progress of the mission. Once the divers reached the wreck, a series of newsworthy items were brought to the surface, including dinner plates, silver, doors and finally the safe.

Gimbel announced near the end of the voyage the discovery of a hole near the Doria's generating room so large that it made moot what Gimbel said was a long-standing question: whether the ship sank as quickly as it did because of the absence of one crucial watertight door.

But William Hoffer, who wrote a book on the sinking that was published in 1978, said Gimbel had in effect created his own "mysteries" so he would have something to investigate.

Peter Thieriot, publisher of the Bloomington (Ill,) Daily Pantagraph, and a survivor of the Doria's last voyage, said he had mixed feelings about Gimbel's promotional techniques.

"Sure, there's some hype to this thing, but some of the information (Gimbel and his divers) gathered is going to be more significant to marine engineers and insurance men" than the public, he said. "And the watertight door was a legitimate question."

The expedition to the Andrea Doria was the second highly publicized attempt to explore a sunken liner recently.

Martin grand jury may indict 1

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A felony indictment against one person may result from a grand jury probe into the shotgun shooting of State Rep. Mike Martin, authorities say.

The Travis County grand jury was scheduled to meet today.

Austin police Lt. Pete Neal said he doesn't believe Martin's cousin, Charles Goff, who has admitted shooting the Longview lawmaker, will face charges in Travis County. But Neal did not say who would be named in the indictment.

Martin was wounded in the elbow by shotgun fire during the early morning hours of July 31. At first he said he did not know who shot him near his recreation vehicle. Later he claimed a gunman from a satanic cult was out to get him.

Now Martin says the shooting was plotted by his Gregg County political enemies.

However, Neal said the grand jury has heard no evidence to contradict the story offered by Goff. The cousin said he shot Martin in a political stunt aimed at garnering publicity for the Republican legislator.

Martin ignored one subpoena and eluded another before agreeing to testify before the grand jury last week.

Neal, who was at each grand jury session, said Tuesday there has been no testimony or evidence to show that Goff had not told the truth.

Neal said the grand jury "probably" would return a felony indictment against one person.

Assistant District Attorney Allen Hill would not say who would be indicted.

Meanwhile, Martin ran into difficulties of another sort in Longview where two former supporters are studying the possibility of evicting the legislator from his office space in their building.

Ford Johnson and Mark Johnson said they have asked their attorney for advice on how to evict Martin.

Jury ruling implies L.A. police responsible for athlete's death

By BRIAN R. BLAND
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A coroner's jury ruling that a college football star found hanged in his jail cell was slain implies police were responsible for the death, a county coroner says.

Dozens of relatives and friends of Ron Settles, who was a promising California State University-Long Beach running back, cheered Wednesday as the 5-4 verdict was read, ending the 10-day inquest.

Police in the Los Angeles suburb of Signal Hill claimed Settles, 21, had pulled a knife when stopped by traffic officers June 2, had cocaine in his car, and scuffled with officers. Two hours later, they said, he hanged himself with a mattress cover. Six Signal Hill officers refused to testify at the inquest.

Settles' family claimed he had "everything to live for," and that their only son was abused and killed by police.

The verdict, though not legally binding, opened the door for civil and criminal actions.

County Coroner Thomas Noguchi, who could have overruled the jury and proclaimed Settles' death a suicide, adopted the jury's finding as the official cause of death. The coroner originally had listed Settles' death a suicide.

"The finding connotes not an accident and not suicide," Noguchi said at a news conference. "That would mean homicide. It (the jury finding) is considerably different from the original report we received."

When asked if that meant the police were responsible for Settles' death, Noguchi replied: "It implies that."

Noguchi did not accuse police of a coverup, but said: "I have some doubts — the information given us may not have been all we needed. I regret that police officers of Signal Hill didn't testify."

George Franscell, attorney for the six Signal Hill officers, left the courtoom after the verdict and was unavailable to reporters.

"This renews my faith in humanity," said Settles' mother, Helen, as she walked from the courtroom hugging her husband, Donnell.

"We still have a large and fantastic fight...we still have a long way to go," Settles said. "We are fighting for other kids so this won't happen again."

Their lawyer, Johnnie Cochran, said a $10 million wrongful death claim would be filed against the city of Signal Hill.

District attorney's spokesman Al Albergate said a decision on whether to seek criminal charges is expected in about 30 days.

Coroner's pathologists testified at the inquest that bruises on Settlestress ccould have been caused either from being hanged by a mattress cover or from a police choke hold, but Noguchi said the marks were inconsistent with those left by a choke hold.

Toxicological tests suggested by Signal Hill police officers observing the autopsy found no drugs or alcohol in Settles' body.

Signal Hill Police Chief Gaylord Wert initially claimed his officers had hit Settles in the legs because he was kicking at officers.

Storm may get worse

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Emily, carrying top winds of about 55 mph, became better organized during the night and could show some strengthening today, forecasters said.

But even if strengthening did occur, "it wouldn't be anything spectacular," said forecaster Gil Clark at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

He said that although Emily has taken on tropical characteristics, the storm did not develop in the tropics. "It's the ones that are born in the tropics and then move up into the higher latitudes that can cause trouble," Clark said.

Emily, the fifth tropical storm of the 1981 season, began forming from a low pressure system in the western Atlantic Saturday and slowly strengthened over the weekend.

The storm brought thundershowers, rough seas and squalls to Bermuda Wednesday, but then began moving away from the island, into the North Atlantic, forecasters said. It was drifting slowly northward and imposed no threat to land today.

Clark said the storm probably would remain in the same general area for a day or two, because it was being blocked by a high-pressure system to the north.

At 6 a.m. EDT today, Emily's center was located about 275 miles north-northeast of Bermuda.

Auxiliary urges wearing of safety belts this weekend

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Midland County Medical Society and the National Safety Council through its Women's Division are asking the public to make a special effort to wear safety belts over the Labor Day weekend.

"Make It Click — Buckle Up" is the theme for the national campaign to ask people to use their safety belts.

Last year during the Labor Day weekend, 21,300 injuries were reported along with 710 deaths.

By getting people to use their safety belts over this holiday, the Medical Auxiliary hopes that people will realize that safety belts are easy to use — they take just six seconds to click on. Safety belts also are effective — they could save 12,000 lives each year.

To obtain further information on safety belts and child safety seats, contact Edna Brown Hibbits, 683-3947.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

You can grow a salt garden

DEAR HELOISE:

Years ago, when my boys were small, a recipe for growing a salt garden appeared in the column. They enjoyed it, and now they are grown, but I would love to fix one for their children. After all these years, I can remember the ingredients used — salt, a sponge, bluing, ammonia — but not the quantities.

So, if you still have this in your files, please be a grandma's friend and print it again. — Sue Rhoads

+ + +

Somehow, the fascination with these salt gardens never ends as each generation discovers the fun of watching these "castles" take shape (many times with the help of a loving grandmother).

We've printed the directions several times since they were published originally, but the requests for "one more time" keep coming in. So, as long as you keep asking, I'm very happy to oblige.

You're right about the ingredients used, luv... however, if you don't have a sponge, use porous rocks, broken bits of brick, clay pots, or a combination of these — anything which readily absorbs moisture.

Soak these pieces in plain water until thoroughly wet. (If using a sponge, wring out excess water.)

Arrange them to suit your fancy, placing some on top of the others. Use a glass or ceramic shallow dish, but not a metal one, as it might be ruined.

Mix four tablespoons each of water, old-fashioned liquid laundry bluing, and plain household ammonia.

Pour this solution over the wet rocks until evenly dampened. A drop or two of food coloring may be dropped onto the rocks for added color.

Now, sprinkle four tablespoons salt over the chunks of sponge (or whatever), again covering them evenly. If you are making a large garden, or several small ones, you will need to double or triple all of the above ingredients. The idea is to cover all of the garden, but don't overdo it and have liquid standing in the dish.

Within a matter of a few hours, your garden will begin to grow, and will eventually be completely covered with crystallites.

After about two days, mix two tablespoons water and two tablespoons ammonia and pour into the dish, being careful to avoid disturbing any of the existing growth.

If the castle gets accidentally knocked down, just add some of the orginal formula to the rocks. The crystallites will re-form and take on new beauty.

Don't let any of the crystals grow beyond the edge of the bowl. Keep them wiped off as they might damage the furniture, especially if it's marble.

One of the key ingredients in the solution for the salt garden is the old-fashioned liquid bluing. Nothing I know of can be substituted. If your grocer doesn't stock it, ask him to please order some for you.

It is available from a manufacturer who has been concocting the "blue magic" since great-grandmother's day, perhaps even longer.

Anyway, if you can lay your hands on a bottle of bluing, it will be hard to say who's going to have the most fun — the kids, or Grandma, but there is enough in one bottle to make several castles, so everyone can have a try at it.

Keep the hands of very small children away from the garden and out of their reach when unsupervised.

But, there is one thing I think I can say for sure... those sweethearts are going to think Grandma is pretty special for getting the project started for them.

And so do I, for your taking the time to write! — Hugs, Heloise

Craig to head fund raising campaign for Permian Basin Planned Parenthood

Permian Basin Planned Parenthood has announced Earle M. Craig Jr. will be Midland fund raising chairman during this year's campaign.

Planned Parenthood's annual fund raising drive for 1981 will begin Sept. 9 with a projected goal of $75,000.

Craig, an independent oil and gas producer, moved to Midland in 1950 from Sewickley, Pa. He is a graduate of The Lawrenceville School in Lawrenceville, N.J. and a graduate of Yale University with a bachelor of science degree in applied economics. Craig and his wife, Dorothy, have four children.

Donations will enable Planned Parenthood to reach greater self-sufficiency in providing health care in the Permian Basin. This comes at an appropriate time, the agency feels, because President Reagan has recently stressed the importance of decreased dependence on government support for health and social services.

Many low-income women receive no medical care except for the services Planned Parenthood provides. A sliding fee scale allows many of these women to receive free services. A severe shortage of physicians in the Permian Basin has also led greater numbers of fee-paying patients to Planned Parenthood recently. Waiting periods for appointments are not long and complete family planning services are provided at Planned Parenthood.

Services include physical examinations, birth control education and provision, cancer screening, pregnancy testing, veneral disease screening, counseling on all areas of family planning and educational materials and programs. Women also receive information on nutrition and referrals to other service agencies in the local area. Local doctors and nurse practitioners perform the physical examinations.

Permian Basin Planned Parenthood has clinics in Odessa, Midland, Big Spring, Andrews, Monahans, Fort Stockton, Lamesa, Pecos and Seminole, with an education center in McCamey. A 17-county area is served.

In 1980, the agency served almost 12,000 patients. Most patients are married and between the ages of 20 and 44.

Easiest-ever pocket bread

(EDITOR'S NOTE: On the following page are directins for making pocket sandwiches. Below are the directions for making your own pocket bread speedily and easily.)

1. Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Grease 2 cookie sheets. Separate 2 (10 oz.) cans of refrigerated flaky biscuits into 20 biscuits. On waxed paper, press out biscuit with palm of hand to form a 5-inch circle (saucer-sized.)

2. Place 5 circles on each cookie sheet. Moisten outer edge of circles with water. Top with remaining circles.

3. With fork, seal edges firmly. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 8 to 10 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from cookie sheet. Let cool 5 minutes. With knife, cut along edge, about 1/3 of the way around, to form a pocket. Fill pockets as desired.

TIP: Pocket breads can be wrapped in aluminum foil and stored for later use. Reheat in foil at 350 degrees F. for 5 minutes or until warm.

Horchata good accompaniment to margarita, Mexican dinner

By BARBARA HANSEN
The Los Angeles Times

A margarita makes a cold and frosty start to a Mexican dinner, but as an accompaniment try horchata.

For the margarita, here is a recipe from the Senor Pico and Mama Gruber Restaurant in Los Angeles. The horchata recipe, requested by Troop Petrone of Altadena, Calif. who enjoyed the drink in Mexico City, requires short-grain rice. The rice is cooked with sugar, cinnamon and water, then ground, making a thick base that is diluted with water and milk for each serving.

SENOR PICO MARGARITA

1 ounce tequila
1-2 ounce triple sec
Juice of 1-2 lime

Combine tequila, triple sec and lime juice with ice cubes in cocktail shaker, Shake thoroughly. Strain into chilled saucer champagne glass rimmed with coarse salt. Makes 1 serving.

HORCHATA DE ARROZ

1 cup blue rose rice
1 cup sugar
3 cinnamon sticks
Water
Canned evaporated milk

Combine rice, sugar, cinnamon sticks and 3 cups water. Bring to boil, cover and simmer 1 hour, or until rice is very soft. Remove cinnamon sticks. Grind rice in blender in two or three stages, adding water as needed to facilitate blending, about 3-4 cup evaporated milk and mix well. Or combine in blender and blend until smooth. Serve over ice. Makes 1 quart basic mixture, or enough for 8 large drinks.

"I have been trying to find a recipe for green corn tamales. The best ones I have ever tasted came from El Cholo Restaurant," writes Bertha Huertero of Lemon grove. Calif.

EL CHOLO GREEN CORN TAMALES

12 ears corn
1 cup cornmeal
1-4 cup shortening
1 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons salt
16 canned green chiles
1 pound Cheddar cheese, cut into 16 pieces
Relleno Sauce

Save large outer husks of corn for wrapping tamales. Cut kernels off ears. Grind kernels with cornmeal. Mix shortening, sugar and salt, Add corn mixture and mix well. Overlap 2 corn husks. Place some of corn mixture on top of husks. Add 1 chile and 1 piece of cheese. Cover with more corn mixture. Bring edges of corn husks up over filling, then place another husk on top to cover completely. Place on square of parchment paper. Fold ends of corn husks, then fold sides of parchment over tamale and fold up ends as if wrapping a gift. T8e securely with string. Continue until all tamales are prepared. Place on rack in Kettle over boiling water. Cover and steam 1 hour. Serve with Relleno sauce, if desired. Makes 16 tamales.

RELLENO SAUCE

1 cup chopped onion
1-2 cup chopped green pepper
Dash minced garlic
2 tablespoons oil
2 (1-pound) cans whole tomatoes
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 t3aspoon black pepper
1-4 teaspoon oregano

Saute o,ion, green pepper and garlic in oil until onion is tender. Add tomatoes, salt, pepper and oregano. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Makes 1 quart.

Names likes four-letter words

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is treating three-letter surnames like four-letter words.

When the USDA's new phone books arrived, employee Edgar A. Poe checked to see if his number was listed correctly.

It wasn't listed at all.

In fact, no one whose name has three letters was listed.

"I thought they were trying to give me a message," Poe said Tuesday. "But I checked with a friend, Ovid Bay, and he wasn't in it, either."

Poe said he was told that an error in computer programming dropped all three-letter names from the directory.

Cigar star

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Lillian Russell was reliably reported to have smoked 500 cigars a month, preferring a small three-inch corona shape.

DEEP DISH PEACH PIE

Fresh fruit and rich pastry make this worth looking forward to.

Rich pastry for a 9-inch pie shell
8 medium-size (2½ pounds scant) peaches
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
Milk
Vanilla ice cream

Make up pastry and roll out to an 8 by 8-inch square; chill. Peel, pit and slice peaches to make 6 cups. Stir together sugar and flour and mix with peaches. Turn into an 8 by 8 by 2-inch baking dish; dot with the butter. Place pastry over fruit; with fork tines, press pastry against the sides of the dish. Cut equidistant 2-inch slits in pastry. Brush with a little milk. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden — about 30 minutes. Serve hot with the ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

For easy entertaining, serve homemade pocket bread with a variety of fillings, and let guests make up their own combinations.

Make-Ahead Food That's Fun to Serve

Friends are back after summer vacations, and fall activities are starting up. Everyone is eager to get together to catch up on the news, and you have offered to provide the place and the food. Now you need an idea for hassle-free food that will let you enjoy the time together as much as your guests.

You'll come off with flying colors if you base your menu on one great idea—like homemade pocket bread plus a variety of easy fillings that will satisfy everyone from vegetarians to the heartiest eaters.

Pocket bread is a cinch to make this speedy new way using refrigerated flaky biscuits. Follow the directions below for tender, good tasting breads that will have a pocket every time. You can bake them a day ahead and reheat just before serving, or they can be frozen.

Include one out-of-the-ordinary sandwich filling along with familiar favorites like ham, cheese and egg salad. Mediterranean Vegetables is a spicy mixture of garden-fresh zucchini, tomatoes and onions, served warm. If you chop the vegetables and measure the seasonings early in the day, it will take only five or six minutes to heat before serving.

The rest of the fillings need little, if any, preparation. They can even be arranged in serving dishes early in the day, covered with plastic wrap and refrigerated.

Quantities for fillings for 10 good-sized pocket breads allow your guests to be as creative as they like in assembling their own sandwiches.

MAKE-YOUR-OWN POCKET SANDWICHES

- 10 pocket breads (see recipe below)
- Margarine, mayonnaise or mustard
- Shredded lettuce
- 1 lb. cheese slices
- 1 lb. ham slices
- 4 cups egg salad
- 2 medium tomatoes, sliced
- 3 cups Mediterranean Vegetables*
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 cup sliced olives

Spread pocket bread with margarine, mayonnaise or mustard. Fill bottom of pocket bread with shredded lettuce. Fill as desired. 10 sandwiches.

*Mediterranean Vegetables

- 1 1/2 cups (1 large) sliced zucchini
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 3 tablespoons chopped green chilies or green pepper
- 1 1/2 cups (1 large) chopped tomato
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

In medium size skillet, saute zucchini and onion in margarine for 3 to 5 minutes or until zucchini is crisp-tender. Remove from heat. Add green chilies, tomatoes and spices; mix lightly. 3 cups.

Red bell peppers not to be ignored

By CLARE BARRETT
Copley News Service

With sweet peppers plump for harvest in backyard gardens and at seasonally low prices in markets right now, this is an excellent time to bone up on their merits. These colorful vegetables are, in the botanical sense, fruits.

The common green pepper is actually a red pepper that hasn't fully matured yet. If you've shied away from the red ones, expecting them to be hot like their smaller cousins, you've been missing a delectable treat. Red sweet peppers are indeed almost sweet, with an even richer flavor than the young green ones.

Although taste makes the red ones worth their extra cost at the checkout stand, they're also higher in certain nutrients: a whopping 4,450 International Units of vitamin A, for example, in 100 grams edible portion (that's about three ounces), as compared with 420 International Units, still an appreciable amount, in green peppers.

While 100 grams of whole orange or orange juice nets about 50 milligrams of vitamin C, the same amount of green pepper has 128 milligrams, and the red variety 204 milligrams. This is all for the puny calorie count of 22 for the green sort, 31 for red.

The versatile bell pepper is nutritionally at its best raw since vitamin C flees when subjected to high temperatures. It's a tangy addition chopped into salads but can also be sliced to team with a spicy sour cream or onion dip. Quartered peppers can be spread with peanut butter or cream cheese as part of an hors d'oeuvres or snack tray.

Alternatively, they may be halved and overstuffed with cottage cheese or mashed tofu, fancied with paprika, parsley or chives, and seasoned with garlic and onion powder and salt to taste.

Served on lettuce leaves with other raw vegies and whole-grain crackers, this makes a high-protein, low-fat, calorie-skimping luncheon that's pretty and appetizing besides.

As a family-pleaser, though, peppers are best hot from the oven and piled with a hearty filling, options for which are endless. An average serving is one whole small to medium pepper stuffed (the top of the stem end may be replaced as a little "hat") or half of a large pepper, topped with a tomato slice or melted cheese. Either way a spicy tomato sauce or creamy mushroom gravy is a welcome addition.

It might take a few tries to discover the perfect timing for a pepper that's tender but not so soft that it falls apart. In the recipes that follow, either stuff the peppers raw and bake one hour at 375 degrees or, after removing top and seeds (which may be fed to caged or outdoor birds), steam the peppers five minutes. This cuts baking time down to 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven. All recipes fill six average peppers.

RICE STUFFING

3 cups cooked brown rice
1 cup diced celery
One-fourth cup minced onion
One-half cup sliced mushrooms OR chopped nuts
3 tbsps. vegetable oil
One-half tsp. salt
One-half tsp. ground sage

Optional: seasoned bread crumbs OR 2 tbsps. peanut butter

Optional: One-fourth cup vegetable broth

Saute onion and celery in oil until tender. Add mushrooms (or nuts) and seasonings. Simmer three minutes. Combine with rice and mix well. If rice is very dry, add one-fourth cup vegetable broth. If too wet, add crumbs or peanut butter. Allow to cool and fill peppers. Garnish with paprika and bake. This recipe may also be used for stuffed eggplant, cabbage or baked as a loaf in oiled bread pan.

VEGETABLE STUFFING

2 cups cooked corn OR lentils
1 cup whole-wheat bread crumbs
One-half cup green pepper
2 stalks celery
One-half medium onion

1 to one and one-half tbsps. soy sauce

Finely chop pepper, celery and onion. Mix with corn (or lentils) and bread crumbs, seasoning to taste. Fill peppers and bake.

CHESTNUT STUFFING

2 cups steamed chopped chestnuts
2 cups steamed millet OR barley (both at health food stores)
One-fourth cup chopped sauteed onion
One-fourth cup peanut butter
2 tbsps. oil
One-half tbsp. salt
One-haf tsp. onion
One-half tsp. sage
Bread crumbs, soft

For dry stuffing, add little or no liqud. For moist stuffing, mix in lightly with fork just enough water to wet the dry crumbs. Mix well together befoe spooning into peppers. This can also stuff mushroom caps or acorn squash.

Pudding cake no big bother

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Asociated Press Food Editor

Should this recipe for an old-fashioned pudding-cake made with fresh prune plums appeal to you, I suggest you plan to serve it soon after it comes out of the oven. In my opinion, it is at its best when it is fresh and hot. However, my sister — who snagged a couple of pieces to take home — insists it's also delicious reheated.

It's no great task to make this dessert at the last minute for brunch or afternoon or evening refreshment for family and guests. You can easily assemble the ingredients ahead and the pudding-cake part takes only four minutes of mixing with an electric beater.

PRUNE-PLUM PUDDING CAKE

Streusel, recipe follows:
1 cup all-purpose flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
⅓ cup butter, soft
½ cup milk
1 large egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
10 (about 1 pound) medim-size purple prunes
5 plums, halved and pitted

Make the Streusel and reserve. Grease and flour a 9 by 9 by 1¾-inch cake pan. In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add the butter, milk, egg and vanilla; beat at medium speed for 4 minutes — batter will be smooth. Pour into the prepared pan. Dip the cut sides of the plums in a little extra all-purpoe flour and arrange in rows, cut side down, over the batter. Sprinkle the Streusel around the fruit. Bake on the rack below the center in a preheated 350-degree oven until browned.

Streusel: Stir together ⅓ cup all-porpose flour and ¼ cup firmly packed light brown sugar; with a fork or your fingers, work in ¼ cup butter (½ of a ¼-pound stick) until crumbly; stir in ¼ cup finely chopped walnuts.

Italian cuisine with added southern accent

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

Rome and its people were high-points of a two-week tour thanks, in large part, to Angelo and Jo Bettoja, heads of a family with a century of innkeeping heritage in Rome and owners of five hotels in the heart of the city.

They epitomize the warmth, hospitality and style of Rome.

Jo Bettoja came to Rome 30 years ago, with two college classmates on a "grand tour" of Europe. The three young American women met Roman men and later married them.

Though she has lived in Rome nearly all of the past 30 years, Jo has retained her Georgian accent, at least when she speaks English, and it's rather startling coming from a thoroughly Roman matron whose three children could have been models for some of the marble busts in the lobby of the Mediterraneo, one of the family hotels.

That, combined with deep roots in Southern hospitality, has created an appealing duality. One finds her conversing in rapid-fire Italian with her cooking school partner, Anna Maria Cornetto, then inviting the students to cocktails with a "What time ya'll coming to my house?"

The school, called Lo Scaldavivande, "was the first cooking school in Rome," Jo said.

"Our caponata recipe is such a good one and is so easy to do and it keeps up to 10 days, so what you do is make a large recipe," Jo said. "Simply put it in a bowl and cover it and put it in the refrigeator until you're ready to use it. It doesn't pay you to make a small amount because it keeps so well. Take it out and let it come to room temperature before you serve it.

"It's very good to use in the summertime because you don't heat it (each time it's served). It's also good as an antipasto, as a vegetable with cold meats and as a first course.

CAPONATA

Two and one-half pounds eggplant
4 green peppers (see notes)
4 med. zucchini
4 small white onions
2 tomatoes
2 tbsps. oil
One-half cup wine vinegar
1 tsp. sugar
1 handful capers, rinsed
1 or 2 bay leaves
Salt, pepper
6 tbsps. (about) olive oil

Peel the eggplant and cut it into pieces about 1.5 inches square. Sprinkle them with salt and let them stand about 30 minutes in a colander, weighted down with a heavy plate.

Rinse and pat dry the eggplant. Cut the peppers and zucchini into pieces the same size as the eggplant. Slice the onions. Puree the tomatoes, then cook them with about two tablespoons oil for 15 minutes. Dissolve the sugar into the heated vinegar.

Mix all the ingredients together, adding oil to taste, and place them in a roasting pan. Cook the caponata for one and a half to two hours at 350 degrees. Mix the vegetables every 30 minutes.

Notes: The dish is prettier if yellow, red and green (bell) peppers are combined, but it tastes equally delicious with the green peppers.

Black olives may be added for extra color and flavor.

"This is from my husband's family," Jo Bettoja said. "It's very easy to prepare for guests and it looks pretty."

The result is a creamy casserole rich with cheese. It can be prepared ahead of time, then the egg whites are beaten and folded in at the last and the casserole is baked.

For color and additional flavor, consider adding chopped fresh vegetables such as asparagus tips or broccoli, or stir in some green peas.

SOUFFLEE di PASTA

One-half lb. fettucine
One and two-thirds cups boiling milk (approximately)
One-fourth lb. plus 1 tbsp. butter
One-fourth lb. freshly grated Parmesan cheese
Four and one-half ozs. freshly grated Gruyere
One-fourth lb. boiled ham, finely chopped
Salt and pepper
6 large eggs, separated

Cook the fettucine in boiling, salted water. Drain the fettucine while it is still "al dente," and resists the bite. Mix it with boiling milk, the butter cut into pieces, the cheeses, the ham, salt and pepper to taste.

Let the mixture cool completely and then add the egg yolks, mixing them thoroughly.

Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold them into the fettucine mixture and bake the souffle in a preheated 350-degree oven for about 40 minutes. Ten minutes before removing the souffle, turn the oven up to 450.

This dish is served as a first course in Italy but can also be served with a salad as a main course. Makes six to eight servings.

This cake is crumbly and rich, a perfect match with ice cream, or sweet white wine.

It's addicitve, and deceptively simple to prepare.

TORTA FREGOLOTTI

Two and two-thirds all-purpose flour
One and one-fourth cups ground almonds
Pinch of salt
1 cup less 1 tbsp. sugar
1 cup plus 2 tbsps. butter
Juice of one-half lemon
Zest (colored part of peel) on 1 lemon

Mix all the ingredients together. The mixture will be coarsely crumbly and rather dry. Press it into a buttered and floured 12-inch pie tin with low sides (or a 10-inch drop-bottom flan ring). The mixture can be slightly evened with a spatula.

Bake it in a preheated 350-degree oven for about an hour. Serve the torta with ice cream, broken into pieces, or by itself. It is better the day after it is cooked. This is a traditional ice cream cake in Italy.

Cheese will do

"Cheese Can Do," a leaflet just off the press, shows a variety of cheese uses with foods ranging from apples to zucchini.

Cheddar cheese goes into Apple Snacks, Potted Cheese 'n' Peanuts or Golden Cheese Chowder. There's Swiss Onion Soup, Turkey Cheese Sandwiches or Broiled Onion-Cheese Hearties.

You can also find recipes for Cheesey Onion Loaf, Broiled Fish with Deviled Cheese or Zucchini with Pasta plus several others.

For your copy, send a stamped, self-addressed long envelope (no. 10) to Cheese Can Do, c/o United Dairy Industry Association, 6300 N. River Rd., Rosemont, Ill. 60018.

Seafood concentrate flavorful

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

On the worldwide scale of seafood consumers, America ranks near the bottom. But that may change.

For example, there is a small seafood cannery, which for four decades was little known outside the Connecticut village where it operates. Today the plant is doing business nationwide.

When the late Ernest Abbott ran this plant in Noank, Conn., his additive-free chowders and chopped clams had an enthusiastic audience in Connecticut and Rhode Island. But that was about it.

Then, in November 1979, John Laundon mortgaged his house to raise a down payment on the cannery and began looking for clients outside Abbott's area. Armed with a vacuum bottle full of clam fritter batter or seafood chowder, he soon won attention by showing among other things that clam hors d'oeuvres could be made in minutes at a cost of about 5 cents per fritter.

Today Laundon's fritter mix, chowders, bisques, seafood sauces and other concentrates are selling to restaurants, race tracks, schools, hotels and other institutions on a wide scale. Customers are attracted, he believes, by the time-saving factor and the fact that his products contain no artificial flavors or preservatives.

Laundon, who is 40, has surrounded himself with a youthful team of helpers. One of the most enthusiastic is 24-year-old Nick Greenfield, director of marketing, who believes there is "an incredible growth potential" for seafood.

"In the 1940s," he points out, Americans averaged only 3 to 4 pounds of chicken a year. Today the average domestic consumption is 48 pounds per person.

People on-the-go can enjoy substantial breakfasts when they make breakfast sandwiches, like this Peanutty Breakfast Pocket and Orange Peanutwich.

Sunrise Sandwiches for breakfast

September, Better Breakfast Month, is a good time to remind yourself that there's no need to leave the house without breakfast. Easy-to-make "sunrise sandwiches" featuring breakfast ingredients are perfect for people on the go, and a great way to greet the sunrise each morning.

Studies have shown that people who take the time to eat a light, well-balanced breakfast have more energy during the morning hours and tend to be more productive. The advantage of a "sunrise sandwich" is that it's quick to fix, can include nutritious ingredients like peanut butter, fruit and bread, and can be tucked inside a briefcase of lunchbox for early morning enjoyment and energy.

If you are one of those people who are always on the go, treat yourself to one of the following "sunrise sandwich" ideas. Peanutty Breakfast Pockets, for example, feature pita bread stuffed with a mixture of apples, yogurt, raisins and peanuts, while Orange Peanutwich calls for an English muffin spred with peanut butter and topped with an orange slice and a drizzle of honey. Peanuts and peanut butter in the sandwiches provide the extra boost of energy that gets the day off to the right start.

ORANGE PEANUTWICH

1 orange
3 English muffins
¾ cup crunchy peanut butter
3 tblsp. honey
½ teasp. grated orange rind

Cut peel and all white membrane from orange. Slice orange into 6 slices. Toast English muffins. Spread peanut butter on each English muffin half. Top with an orange slice. In a small saucepan, heat honey and orange rind. Drizzle over orange slices on muffins.

Makes 6 servings.

PEANUTTY BREAKFAST POCKETS

1 cup chopped apple
½ cup coarsely chopped peanuts
1 small banana, aliced
⅓ cup raisins
½ cup plain yogurt
1 tblsp. honey
¼ teasp. cinnamon
4 small sandwich pockets

In a medium bowl, stir together apple, peanuts, banana and raisins. Stir in yogurt, honey and cinnamon. Slice open sandwich pockets at one end.* Spoon in apple-yogurt mixture.

Makes 4 servings.

* Sandwich pockets may be warmed before filling, if desired.

Elegant pear dessert

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Years ago when I first met Jim Beard (the well-known cookbook author and teacher) and went to a supper party at his house, he served one of the best of fruit desserts — poached pears with a custard sauce and a topping of praline.

POACHED PEARS WITH ALMOND CUSTARD

4 medium ripe but firm Bartlett pears (1½ pounds, scant)
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
⅓ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅔ cup water
One 2-inch stick cinnamon
Almond Custard Sauce, recipe follows

Peel pears and remove cores from blossom end, leaving stems attached. In a 2-quart saucepan, stir together the sugar, orange rind and juice, lemon juice, water and cinnamon. Bring to a boil, stirring until sugar dissolves. Add pears and boil gently, uncovered, turning with 2 spoons and basting often until pears are tender — 8 to 10 minutes. With a slotted spoon remove the pears to individual serving dishes. Boil the syrup, uncovered, until reduced to ¼ cup — 7 to 9 minutes. Spoon a tablespoon of the syrup over each pear. Chill. At serving time spoon the Almond Custard sauce around the pears. Makes 4 servings.

Almond Custard Sauce: In a 1 or 1½-quart saucepan, stir together 2½ tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon cornstarch and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Gradually stir in 1 cup milk, keeping smooth; cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens slightly — 8 or 9 minutes. Slightly whisk 2 egg yolks; gradually whisk the hot milk mixture into them. Return to saucepan and, stirring constantly, cook over low heat without boiling 2 to 3 minutes longer. Off heat, stir in ½ teaspoon vanilla and ⅛ teaspoon almond extract. Chill. Makes about 1 cup.

Why is baking soda added to peanut brittle?

By MINNIE BERNARDINO
(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times

Q: Why is baking soda added to peanut brittle or other candy recipes? I am trying to avoid salt and wondering whether I could omit soda in my peanut brittle recipe. The recipe calls for sugar, corn syrup, peanuts butter (I'm using unsalted butter and peanuts), vanilla and 1 teaspoon baking soda for 1 pound brittle.

A: Since the sugar mixture is heated extensively (up to about 300 degrees) when cooking brittle, it becomes a dark brown syrup causing some bitter flavor and some undesriable acid substances to develop. Soda (sodium bicarbonate) is usually added to counteract the bitter taste, neutralize acidity and, through its reaction with the acid substances, it forms a gas, which gives the brittle its porous texture.

I have used peanut brittle recipes without adding the soda called for at the end of cooking and they've turned out well. However, instead of the opaque porous candy, you'll get a slightly translucent caramel-like brittle that is thinner than usual and hard, yet crunchy or brittle. The taste is similar to that of bittersweet caramelized syrup. To avoid bitterness when not using soda, be careful not to get the caramel too dark by proper stirring and by using a heavy-weight pan without hot spots.

If you are not on a heavily restricted salt regimen, the soda also could be cut down from a teaspoon to 1-8 teaspoon. Incidentally, 1 teaspoon soda contains 821 mg sodium.

Q: What causes pickles to be soft and have hollow centers? I pickled some cucumbers recently using a vinegar-salt brine solution and fermented them for about three weeks in a large crock. Then I packed the pickles in clean glass jars and processed them in boiling water bath for five minutes. Although the jars had good seals I am not certain whether the pickles are safe to eat because they are soft and hollow.

A: Hollow pickles are caused by using cucumbers that were not properly developed on the vine (these usually float when washed) and overripe cucumbers or those that have stood more than 24 hours after being gathered. Use firm pickling cucumbers, the variety with black prickles on the skin. The slicing cucumbers or wax-coated ones are not good for pickling. Refrigerate the cucumbers if you are not ready for pickling. Hollow and soft pickles, pickled in strong brine solution and processed in boiling water bath canner with good seals should be safe to eat. If they are slippery, however, they may be spoiled.

There are a number of reasons for obtaining soft pickles. Probably the most common is the use of hard water. Hard water contains a great amount of mineral salts that counteract some of the acid necessary to destroy microorganisms in pickling. Other reasons for getting soft pickles according to the "Ball Blue Book on Home Canning" are:

1. The brine or vinegar used was too weak — use pure refined salt and 5 percent vinegar.
2. The pickles were not kept covered with the liquid — place a weighted plate over the mixture to keep the cucumbers submerged in the brine at all times.
3. The scum was not removed from the top of the brine — to prevent the growth of yeast and molds, remove the scum daily during the brining process.

Cooking corner: Down-home Louisiana recipes

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

There's no place like home, and when home is Louisiana there's nothing like home cooking.

For Sam Verdin, home was Lafitte, La., named for the famed pirate, where the cooking is Creole, and plenty of it.

"On Sunday, it's nothing to have several entrees," Verdin said. "At babecues, we'd have half a pig, a calf, plus gumbos. Cajuns are hospitable and always have food for guests."

Chicken fricassee is an example of Verdin's cooking style.

Roux is the foundation of fricassee. Start with about four tablespoons flour and one-fourth cup of oil. Mix them together in a heavy-bottomed pot and cook them very slowly, about one hour, until the color is deep chocolate brown. The oil will separate a little and any excess should be poured off.

Add a sliced onion to the roux, brown it, then add a cut-up chicken (a stewing hen would be perfect, if you can find one). Brown the chicken a little, then pour in stock or water to cover, and a coarsely chopped green pepper.

Simmer it slowly until the chicken is tender and refrigerate overnight. "They need to sleep together," Verdin said, to have the best flavor. Seasoning is simply salt and pepper to taste. Serve the fricassee over rice.

We'll start with bread pudding, a classic Creole dessert. Verdin's mother and grandmother always added canned fruit cocktail and so does he, but it could be omitted, or other canned fruit could be substituted to taste.

BRANDY BREAD PUDDING

3 cups cubed bread
One-half cup raisins
One-half cup canned fruit cocktail
4 eggs
One and one-half cups sugar
2 tbsps. vanilla
5 cups milk
1 tbsp. butter

SAUCE

2 cups hot milk
2 eggs
Three-fourths cup sugar
6 tbsps. cornstarch
2 tsps. butter
2 tsps. vanilla
One-half cup brandy or whiskey (optional)

Combine the bread, raisins and fruit in buttered baking dish. Combine the eggs, sugar and vanilla in a mixing bowl. Bring the milk to a boil. Quickly pour it into the egg mixture, beating it thoroughly.

Pour the milk mixture over the contents of the baking dish and dot the top with butter. Bake the pudding at 300 degrees until it is brown on top and firm in texture, at least 45 minutes.

Sam Verdin removes a pan of crusty bread from the oven. The pudding will be cut into squares and served with a brandy-flavored sauce.

The Sauce: Bring the milk to a boil. Combine the eggs, sugar, cornstarch (yes, six tablespoons) and butter in the top pan of a double boiler. Pour the milk over them, stirring the mixture briskly.

Cook the sauce over hot, not boiling, water, stirring it often until thickened. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in the vanilla ad brandy. Serve the sauce over squares of bread pudding. Serves six to eight.

Half world's raisins from California

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

Nearly half of th world's raisn supply is produced in California's fertile San Joaquin Valley and local growers say the first American crop came through a quirk of nature, and not man's ingenuity.

Long before the "Forty-Niners" set out from Sn Francisco in search of mineral wealth, Spanish missionaries had estabished a string of vineyards along the California coast to make sacramental wines.

Soon former prospectors and local farmers were growing grapes and selling the harvests for fruit and wine. Then, before the harvest of September 1873, a severe heat wave struck the San Joaquin Valley and shriveled most of the grapes on the vine before they could be harvested.

One farmer recalled that grapes had been dried and sold as raisins in Europe since the days of ancient Rome, when physicians recommended them as a cure for just about everything from mushroom poisoning to old age.

The farmer took his accidental raisin crop to San Francisco, where an enterprising grocer agreed to sell them. Thir popularity soon spread and raisin growing was developed in California into a scientific process that now yields some of the world's fnest raisins.

Today, some 6,000 California growers produce an annual crop of about 200,00 tons that are shipped all over the world.

About 90 percent of Califonia's raisins are made from a seedless thin-skinned grape brought to this country many years ago by a Englishman named William Thompson.

Raisins are a key ingredient in a number of desserts, including such yuletide favrites as fruit cake, plum pudding and mince pie. They are a valuable addition to many baked goods, helping to keep them fresh and moist.

Couple's collections become dream museum

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

MENDOTA, Ill. (AP) — Ken and Doris Butler, chronic collectors for nearly half a century, became so overrun by things that they built a museum for them.

Through the years they spent weekends and vacations searching out antique shops, flea markets and garage sales throughout the country. Anything catching their eye, they bought. Even wooden potato mashers, 419 of them.

Ken, 78, took a fancy to old horsedrawn sleighs and bobsleds and stored them in a rented garage. He picked up hundreds of unique toys of every conceiveable kind, like Andy Gump's "348" car and a Toonerville Trolley of yesteryear's cartoon fame.

Doris, 72, liked dolls. She now has 300.

"We were getting so many things that we rented 10 alley garages around town, and attics and basements to store them. We even had things stuffed in closets and under beds," said Mrs. Butler.

"Some people think of having a dream house. We thought big — a dream museum. We opened it a dozen years ago and named it Time Was."

More than 18,000 items are displayed in nine buildings on 12 acres at the side of a north-central Illinois highway. There are more than 25,000 visitors during the six months the museum is open through October. Admission is $3 for adults and $1.50 for youngsters.

In the late 1920s, Butler began a newspaper and printing career as editor of a southern Michigan weekly. In a dusty corner of the printshop was an old press. He sold it to Henry Ford for his museum.

The Butlers were awed with Ford's collection during a 1931 visit and on the way home they bought a spinning wheel from an antique shop.

"This led to churns, ships in bottles, rocking horses, old furniture — whatever our passion at the moment," said Mrs. Butler.

In 1953, Butler restored a 1914 Ford for Mendota's centennial parade. That led to his founding of the Mendota Antique Car Club and a private collection of priceless classics.

He has 25 cars in mint condition on display. Among them: a 1910 Stanley Steamer; 1912 four-cylinder Buick touring car; elegant 1928 Rolls-Royce Landaulet; 1930 Packard dual-cowl Phaeton; 1932 Custom Imperial Chrysler with a LeBaron body; 1934 Graham convertible coupe; and a 1906 tulip-body, one-cylinder Cadillac.

A man's name says a lot in Iran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The long, complicated names of Iranian religious leaders that tangle Western tongues often contain a wealth of information about the men's achievements, genealogy and ethnic origins.

A good example is Hojatoleslam Seyyed Mortaza Ayatollahi Tabatabai Yazdi, the Sabbath prayer leader at Tehran's Kharaki Mosque who was shot to death in front of his house Monday by motorcycle-borne assassins.

Two Iranians living in Beirut who had never heard of the man looked at his name and immediately deduced that he was a clergyman, both his mother and his father were descended from the prophet Mohammed, and his family once lived in the central Iranian city of Yazd.

The dead man's name breaks down this way:

"Hojatoleslam" identified him as a clergyman. The word is used in both Arabic, the language of Islam's holy Koran, and in Farsi, the principal language of Iran. It means literally "authority on Islamic theology."

"Seyyed" meant he was descended on his father's side from the prophet Mohammed, who wrote the Koran in the 7th century, marking the beginning of a religion whose followers today number more than 800 million.

"Mortaza Ayatollahi" was the core of the man's name. The Tehran newspaper Jomhuri Eslami (Islamic Republic) used the headline "Mortaza Ayatollahi is Dead" over its story on his assassination. "Mortaza" means "satisfaction," and "ayatollahi" is an adjective form of "ayatollah," a word meaning "image of God" and used as the title for Iran's leading clergymen. The inclusion of "Ayatollahi" in his name did not make the dead man one of Iran's handful of ayatollahs, however.

"Tabatabai" meant both his mother and his father were descended from Mohammed. But not everyone in Iran with the name Tabatabai is necessarily descended from the prophet. Iranians living in Beirut say there is one prominent Tabatabai family in Iran who are not descendants of the prophet but somehow acquired the name years ago.

When it comes to longevity women are superior to men

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have no doubt that doctors would like to prolong life and are interested in finding ways of doing so. However, I don't understand how they conduct their research. It seems to me that all they would have to study in this regard is the superiority of women over men. It's a well-know fact that women live longer than men; all the scientists would have to do is find out why, and they'd have it made. Hasn't anyone ever thought of this? — Trudy, Macon, GA

Dear Trudy: As you note, it is a fact of life that when it comes to longevity women are superior to men. In fact, it has been estimated that women outlive men by an average of eight years. Moreover, their greater life span is evident not only in most countries of the world, but in more than 100 animal species as well. The subject is currently receiving a substantial amount of attention.

One of the scientists who has been studying this phenomenon is Dr. Estelle R. Ramey, professor of physiology and biophysics at the Georgetown University School of Medicine in Washington, D.C. She attributed women's lower mortality in the leading causes of death to a sex-linked resistance to disease. Why this is so, however, is not know.

Additional research may eventually reveal why women are not only equal to men but, in regard to longevity, superior.

Dear Dr. Solomon: One night my 2-year-old son had a seizure. When my doctor saw him, he said it happened because of a fever, and that my son did not need any medicine. I don't want to neglect my child, and I'd like to know if you think he should get medicine. — Mrs. B.L., Los Angeles, CA

Dear Mrs. L.: Obviously, I can't evaluate a patient from a distance, and I'm not going to prescribe for a patient I've never seen. I don't know how high your son's fever was, how long the seizure lasted, or whether this was even the first such episode.

Moreover, there is no firm agreement among physicians on when febrile seizures (those caused by fever) should be treated and, if so, which treatment is best. In fact a panel from the National Institutes of Health that studied the subject refused to make a definite recommendation.

What I can say is that many physicians would have handled the situation the way your own doctor apparently did — that is, without prescribing medication. If you have confidence in him, you should feel he is doing the right thing; if you don't have confidence in him you can always see another doctor.

Dear Dr. Solomon: It seems to me I've been reading and hearing about an artificial heart for years. Has one actually been used yet? — Henry, Easton, PA

Dear Henry: Permission to use an artificial heart in a person who would otherwise die of heart disease is being awaited from the Food and Drug Administration. So far, the artificial heart has been tested only on animals.

City street crews repair a chuckhole at the intersection of Alpine Street and Kansas Avenue Wednesday. The repair job, which took most of the day, involved raising a low spot where water had collected and obscured the 6-to-8 inch hole. In the past, the city attempted makeshift repairs by dumping buckets of asphalt into the hole.

UTPB schedules oil and gas school

ODESSA — A school designed for accounting and financial personnel involved with oil and gas companies who have had little on-the-job experience is scheduled for Oct. 12-23 at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin here.

The nationally recognized school is sponsored by the Professional Development Institute from North Texas State University and co-hosted by thePermian Basin Chapter of the Council of Petroleum Accounting Society and the UTPB Accounting Faculty.

According to Kathy Belcher, representative of the Professional Development Institute, the training school is in its third year and has represented a proven effort in the industry to cut training costs and at the same time provide a sound basis for employee performance and advancement.

"There is first a thorough examination of the functional activities of an oil company, such as exploration, leasing, drilling, development and production, along with the examination of basic contracts and their impact on accounting," Belcher said.

Then the general concepts of financial accounting and reporting for these activities are carefully studied, using the various systems used in accounting.

"In these sessions the instructors will give special attention to joint operations, carried interests and similar arrangements," she said.

Linda Felts, UTPB assistant professor of accountancy, said the enrollment fee of $1,150 includes all instructional costs, materials and refreshments. She said the school will run for two weeks, 8 a.m to 5 p.m. each day with a one hour lunch break.

"Although the school is open to the public, only the first 44 applicants will be accepted, and the enrollment fee must be received to ensure a spot in the class," Belcher said.

The enrollment fee may be sent to Linda Felts, UTPB, Odessa, 79762.

The program has been prepared to comply with the Statement on Standards for Group and Formal Self-Study Programs adopted by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

For more information, contact Linda Felts at 367-2182 or Mary Williamson at 368-9772.

Charles Manson disciple marries

FRONTERA, Calif. (AP) — Charles Manson disciple Susan Atkins, serving a life sentence for her role in a grisly string of murders in 1969, has married a self-proclaimed Texas millionaire who says their minds "flow back and forth with ESP."

"It's just a love story...and I'm going to be with her to the end of time," said the groom, 52-year-old Donald Lee Laisure of Greenville, Texas, who wore an orange leisure suit during Wednesday's ceremony in the administrative offices of the California Institute for Women.

"Only God could possess the creativity to produce the beauty that is the ultra-beautiful, incomparable Susan 'Honeybear' Atkins," he said. He gave his 33-year-old bride what he said was a 3.9-carat diamond. He said his ring was 12 carats.

Laisure said he was able to hold hands with his bride during the private ceremony. It lasted about an hour, said Sylvia Johnson, superintendent at this prison 55 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Laisure calls himself an "unemployed millionaire" but has declined to say where he got his money or how much he has.

Ever since he and Ms. Atkins met at the side of a Southern California freeway in 1965, Laisure said they have corresponded — sometimes by ESP.

"Our minds flow back and forth with ESP," he said. "She reads me out good, too. That's how we've managed through these years."

Ms. Atkins had applied for a 72-hour conjugal visit, he added.

Along with Manson and two other women, Ms. Atkins was convicted in the stabbing deaths of actress Sharon Tate and four others, as well as the slayings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca. She and Manson also were convicted in the torture-murder of musician Gary Hinman.

Chopin Express carries Poles to new life

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Each night, as the dozen olive-green cars of the Chopin Express roll out of Warsaw's Gdansk Station, old women's tears flow.

Handkerchiefs flutter in farewell to the departing Poles, bound for Vienna and perhaps a new life.

The nightly train south, named for the composer who himself emigrated to find fame in the West, has become an escape route for tens of thousands of Poles. Few of them are eager to give their destination or say how long they will be gone. But dozens of cardboard boxes, clinging embraces and shouts of "Write a letter" and "Don't forget us" indicate the young couples straining for a last look out the windows are leaving for good.

With the rise of the independent labor federation Solidarity, the past year has brought reforms and freedoms known nowhere else in the Soviet Bloc. But for many it has been a year of longer food lines, disruptions at work, the threat of Soviet intervention and a questionable future for their children.

"I'm going because not even Solidarity can promise me that the next five years will be any better than it is now," said one 27-year-old woman married to an American.

"My wife was crying all the time," said a one father who is taking his family to Western Europe. "She said she stood in line all day to find fruit juice or milk for our baby. One day she just told me, 'I can't raise my baby here.'"

"I can't find any diapers, and we've been searching for two months," said an expectant father. "I'm thinking of tearing up my cotton shirts."

The government reports more than 226,000 passports were issued in the first quarter of 1981, nearly twice the number in the same period last year. About 2,000 applications pour in daily. One newspaper said more than a million of the 36 million Poles are expected to travel to "capitalist nations" this year.

Not all leave for good. Many go to scour the foreign stores for food, clothing and appliances that cannot be found at home. But the Roman Catholic newspaper Slowo Powszechne reported that 70,000 Poles emigrated last year, and the number is expected to jump to 100,000 this year.

A year ago, the government often would let only one member of a family leave the country to prevent defections. Western diplomats say the crushing problems of unemployment, food and housing shortages and general economic upheaval apparently moved officials to ease restrictions.

The result has been a brain drain of talented professionals and skilled workers, the people needed most to help pull the country out of its economic morass.

"Usually they are professionals like engineers and doctors," said PAP, the official news agency.

"Refusal to come back occurs most frequently after trips to the United States," it reported. "And more and more are deciding to emigrate to Australia."

Night after night, clusters of people huddle under the chestnut trees along Piekna Street outside the U.S. Embassy. As morning comes, hundreds fall into line, waiting for the visa office to open.

Virginia Mayo is being given the eye by actor Ronald Reagan, now president of the United States, in this file photograph from the 1952 Warner Brothers musical "She's Working Her Way Through College." Miss Mayo, currently starring at the Country Squire, said in a recent interview that of the movies she made this was her favorite because "I got to wear pretty clothes; I got to dance; and I had a good part." In the film, Miss Mayo played a burlesque queen pursuing a higher education. Reagan was her English teacher.

Virginia Mayo talks about her men

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Staff Writer

A common childhood dream is to be an actor or actress — to be famous, admired, catered to and loved by the masses of humanity. Of those who try, few make this dream their life's reality.

Virginia Mayo is one of those few. Her life has been, for her, all she dreamed it could be and more.

"I enjoyed every minute I spent," Miss Mayo said, referring to her movie-making years with Samuel Goldwyn and Warner Brothers.

Miss Mayo, currently starring through Sunday in the Country Squire Dinner Theatre's production of Carolyn Green's "Janus," has played opposite many of the screen's legendary male leads — Bob Hope, Gregory Peck, James Cagney, Alan Ladd, Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster and Rex Harrison. She has also co-starred with such notables as President Ronald Reagan, Gene Nelson, Danny Kaye and Dana Andrews.

She spoke of the leading men in her life in a recent interview.

Her first starring role was in "Princess and the Pirate" opposite Bob Hope who was "so kind, so sweet, full of good humor and a wonderful person."

She left Goldwyn shortly after making the fourth of a series of pictures with Danny Kaye who was "a very talented person. We had a lot of fun together making pictures." The pictures — "Wonder Man, "Kid from Brooklyn," "Secret Life of Walter Mitty" and "A Song is Born."

"It was like a stock company," Miss Mayo said of the cast.

WHEN SHE LEFT Goldwyn after five years, not because of any difficulty between them, but because he told her, "'I'm not going to make any more pictures that you're right for so I'm going to let you go.'"

So she left the employment of the man who had discovered her and was signed immediately by Warner Brothers to become, in the early '50s, a Top Ten box office attraction for three successive years.

During this time Miss Mayo starred in "The Girl From Jones Beach." The leading man was Ronald Reagan, now president of the United States, then an actor.

"It was a very cute picture that made a lot of money," Miss Mayo said. "It was fun working with Ronald Reagan. He was a very charming man, very handsome. He had a good sense of humor.

"He had just been divorced and he had a couple of girls on the set (watching the filming)."

In "Colorado Territory" Miss Mayo starred with one of her favorite leading men — Joel McCrea.

"He was just a symphony on a horse. To watch him ride was really something. He was a very handsome, tall, rugged individual with so much charm." Laughing, she said, "He could charm the pants right off you. I never met a man with so much charm."

Although he's "tight with a dollar," Miss Mayo said, "I like Joel very much." The two are neighbors in Thousand Oaks, Calif., and check on each other from time to time.

Another of Miss Mayo's favorites was Alan Ladd who had "a beautiful, expressive face." The film they made was "The Iron Mistress."

OF LADD, Miss Mayo said, "He had a conception of himself as being inadequate. Mike (O'Shea, Miss Mayo's husband) used to say to him, 'Ignore what the critics say. Laugh all the way to the bank.' But, he had no self confidence and it eventually destroyed him. He spent his last years drinking and taking pills."

Ladd's wife, Sue, was his agent, Miss Mayo said. "She used to push him." One of Ladd's fears was, Miss Mayo said, "without her (Sue) he was not able to make it."

Working with Edmond O'Brian, who was a "super actor," in "The Big Land," Miss Mayo "learned a lot about acting. He said, 'Most actors don't breathe during a scene.' He taught me how to breath."

In "Captain Horatio Hornblower," Miss Mayo starred opposite Gregory Peck who was yet another of her favorites.

"He was super sensitive. His acting was just perfect. He studied constantly on his roles," working with drama coach Elsa Schriver daily on the set, Miss Mayo said.

"Some leading men are not very good in love scenes — they're rough. He (Peck) was so sensitive," as opposed to Burt Lancaster who "grabbed me so hard, my arms were black and blue. He (Lancaster) couldn't hold, he was so wild. That's not to my liking, but he was that type of person.

"He (Lancaster) was good to work with because he was all business," Miss Mayo said, adding, "He was a very kind person."

In the movie "Flame and the Arrow," which they made together, Lancaster played a rebel.

"IT WAS PRACTICALLY his own philosophy of life — do in the establishment. Burt was a beautiful person with a beautiful body, but he had an excitable side to him. He would get mad sometimes and blow his top." Otherwise he was a very quiet person, Miss Mayo said.

When asked if there was anyone she really did not like, Miss Mayo had to think about it because "most people I enjoyed working with; I'm an easy going person."

Then she remembered.

"Oh Yes, Jack Palance. Weird. Weird. Weird. It was a drag. He has a weird way of working that offended everyone. I don't hate him now. He's changed. He's mellowed. But he was very difficult."

Of the actors she worked with Rex Harrison "stole all the reviews. He was a really magnetic actor.

"We had a good rapport," she said. Harrison was "a perfectionist" who was "very interested in rehearsing. I used to get tired of it (rehearsing all the time)."

But for Miss Mayo, the leading man who stole all her reviews was Michael O'Shea. The two were married for 26 years until his death in 1973.

"He used to always make me laugh. Humor is a good part of marriage; it's what holds a marriage together.

"He had such a wit; he used to have people in stitches. He was a colorful personality — never boring. Even when he was quiet he was interesting.

"He had the most unusual voice. I think a man's voice is important. His was very powerful. He had no need for microphones. He was so good on the stage."

Miss Mayo recounted an incident that happened following a performance at Drury Lane in Chicago, Ill. A fan waited outside and when Miss Mayo and O'Shea left, he came up and said, "'Oh, Mr. O'Shea, you're a whole show unto yourself.'"

Kristy McNichol growing up off screen

By DAVE SMITH
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — OK, you were kind of grossed-out at "Lolita" in 1962, but since then you've seen Jodie Foster in "Taxi Driver" and Brooke Shields in "Pretty Baby" and "Blue Lagoon" and "Endless Love" and her Calvins and nothing else, and on the covers of everything but Field and tream and the Encyclopedia Britannica.

And you've heard — or was it a dream? — that Dolly Parton is out as Miss Mona the madam in the upcoming film of "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" and there's a nationwide talent hunt for a 9-year-old to replace her. Then there's the rumor — or was it a dream? — of the doll for the Christmas market that cries and wets and sings "Nobody Does It Better" and decides whether to get an abortion ... Oh, help.

Sadly you've come to believe that pre-pubescence is where it's at among the Hollywood nubility, and that adolescence, that bittersweet rite of passage of yesteryear, has become a heaving, sweating, wide-screen laying-on of glands.

Where, you wonder, will it all end?

With Kristy McNichol is where, Buster.

The erstwhile tomboy of television's "Family", is doing older roles these days, and any minute now, sure as God made Naugahy-e, some fanzine will scoop the world with the headline "KRISTY McNICHOL GROWS UP!"

Yeah, well sure, who doesn't, but not all at once, and not all right there onscreen, not this kid.

"I'm just not the type and I wouldn't want to be the type, because that's just not me," said the actress at her home one day recently. "I mean, if I've got an image, and I guess I have, it's as your basic good, healthy, all-American kid. And I don't want to get typed even as that for the rest of my life, even though I really am more that than anything else. But I'd like to expand myself, become a character actress. Those are the good parts, the ones that keep you working all your life.

"And what I'd really like to do most of all is, I'd love to play a rock star. And I'd love to do plays someday, musicals, where I could get to dance and sing. And I'd love to do 'Peter Pan,' except I heard they're going to do it with a boy playing Peter. After all these years of women doing 'Peter Pan,' and finally I come along just dying to do it and they decide to switch to a boy. But I'd sure love to do that one — with George Lucas and Steven pielberg, say ...."

Her voice trails off in reverie for a moment, then gets back to reality: "But for now, here I have this healthy, all-American image, and I've got to grow past that."

CBS reports on teen-age murderers

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight's CBS Reports, "Murder Teen-age Style," is not one of those dismaying documentaries that can be watched in a detached manner and virtually ignored by much of the television audience because the events are only happening elsewhere.

The show's message is clear: Indiscriminate killing with guns is increasing, and the criminals are getting younger. It's warning is clear, too. "We know there are guns in the suburbs," said Irina Posner, the program's producer. "It's too late for gun control; we seem to have lost ethical control."

Two armed youths enter a market in broad daylight, demanding cash. Sound and pictures are captured by the store's security system. The man behind the counter quickly complies, but shots are fired anyway. The cry of "Oh, God," and the muffled pop-pop-pop of gunfire are gut-wrenching. The cashier lies dead.

"The indiscriminate murder of the cashier, even as he handed over the money, is brutal evidence of a trend," says Ed Bradley, the show's correspondent. He says there were about 2,300 murders in Los Angeles in 1980, and 25 percent of the killers were teen-agers.

They're doing it with easily accesible guns. "Kids, the one segment of the population that is gun controlled, are now using guns at will," said Bradley.

A young girl, seemingly too wise beyond her years, says: "Well most of my friends they got nine millimeters, baby 12 gauges and silver .38s." Asked how they got them, the girl answers: "I don't think they quite buy them."

Half the households in the United States own one or more guns, and more than a quarter million of them were stolen just last year, said Bradley. "Up to 80 percent of all guns used in crimes are stolen."

A woman at a firing range says she's protecting herself against any would-be assailant: "If a kid kills me, I'm still dead."

Scenes of violence, their aftermath, and murder statistics are shocking, but so is the callousness of some of the young criminals.

"I was just kinda high right then but I don't know if it was for fun or what, but we just decided to do it," said one boy who couldn't explain why he killed somebody he didn't know. "I just pointed the gun out of the car and shot him underneath the ear."

Another youth tried to hide a big smile by covering his mouth: "I shot this dude in the head for no reason you know."

Dr. Saul Niedorf, director of mental health for Los Angeles' juvenile halls, says youthful criminals may commit violent crimes because they were abused or abandoned, felt they had no stake in society or were outraged by the unattainable wealth and fame they see depicted in the mass media.

He also doesn't discount the sheer impact of violence on TV. "By 16 years of age, a kid would have witnessed 18,000 murders on television."

The latest TV generation grew up on killing, seeing it as commonplace, bordering on the acceptable. "They think they can do anything they want," Ms. Posner said.

One boy from a middle-class family said he carried a gun and robbed because he wanted a motorcycle and didn't want to ask his mother for money. "So I was going to get my own money... I went out and started robbing people."

"Does it seem strange to you that that surprises me so much?" asked Ms. Posner.

"Yeah, 'cause it happens every day. People get shot every day, people get robbed every day."

Says another boy: "It's not that hard to kill somebody."

Chicago jazz festival prepares for windup

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — It's a celebration for a count and a duke. And a reunion for a captain. But it's not a royal or military gathering — just some world-renowned musicians getting together in a park — to play jazz.

The occasion is the third annual Chicago Jazz Festival, a seven-day series of free, moonlight concerts at Grant Park bound to satiate any jazz aficionado born in the last 50 years.

The festival — which winds up next Monday — features some up-and coming crooners and musicians as well as some international jazz legends — Count Basie and his orchestra, Ella Fitzgerald, Herbie Hancock and Carmen McRae.

And there is a tribute to a duke, too — the late Duke Ellington.

Organizers for the show — billed as the world's largest free jazz festival — assembled 245 musicians and some of their performances will be broadcast live on National Public Radio.

During the week, there will be duets and big bands, the hot pulsating tempo of Latin jazz and the strains of Chicago blues. And there will be the traditional foot-stamping New Orleans jazz as well as the avant-garde Sun Ra and his Arkestra — decked out in capes and space helmets.

And because it is a Chicago festival, the city will have a chance to showcase some of its talent.

"Ninety-five percent of the musicians here have either been born or raised in Chicago or either have some roots in Chicago music," said Penny Tyler, chairman of festival committee at the Jazz Institute of Chicago, which assembles the programs.

For some, Mrs. Tyler said, that Chicago link is tenuous, such as in the case of Adolphus "Doc" Cheatham, who was stranded in the city in 1926 and became Louis Armstrong's replacement at a local theater.

But for others, the Chicago roots are deeper, such as Hancock, who played Mozart with the Chicago Symphony at the age of 11.

That Chicago flavor will probably be captured best on the tribute night to the late Captain Walter Dyett — a band master and music teacher at Du Sable High School for 25 years — whose students included Nat "King" Cole, Lou Rawls, and Dinah Washington.

On Thursday night, a band of Du Sable alumni — led by Dyett pupil Jimmy Ellis — will pay homage to their mentor — who died in 1969.

Two other nights have been set aside for tributes. On Friday, Ellington will be honored and on Sunday, Count Basie.

The tributes and the program schedules, Mrs. Tyler said, are planned "very methodically. If we are going to have any theme night ... the style of that person's movement usually determines the other styles (in the program).

"In the case of both Count Basie and Duke Ellington, you know what songs they wrote and what they played ... and we like to have those people who play their music a little differently," she added.

Mrs. Tyler said planning for the festival — which drew 250,000 people last year — began in December with the first calls made to the headliners who had to be booked long in advance.

Mrs. Tyler said she anticipates a large crowd this year — and began receiving calls in January and February from jazz enthusiasts elsewhere in the country.

National Public Radio's "Jazz Alive" will carry live broadcasts of the festival Friday through Sunday.

'Talk Back to Showtime' to air viewers' opinions

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The commercial TV networks rarely leave questions of taste to the audience. Once a show is on the schedule, viewers are asked, indeed implored, only to watch.

Showtime takes at least a small step toward involving the audience in the production process when it asks viewers Tuesday evening if they think "Bizarre," the pay-cable network's comedy series, contains too much nudity and rough language.

It's one of three questions Showtime will pose for viewers though the evening in a unique experiment in instantaneous response, with AT&T, called "Talk Back to Showtime."

The technique has been used at least twice before, by ABC News, in an effort to determine the winner of a debate last fall between then-President Carter and his Republican opponent, Ronald Reagan, and more recently by Cable News Network.

THE ABC POLL was criticized at the time as an uncontrolled, and therefore unscientific, survey.

CNN, on Aug. 24, used the system to survey viewers on whether television evangelists should be required by law to disclose their finances. Viewers in that case were asked to call one number of a "Yes" vote, a second to vote "No."

The Showtime poll is aimed more at involving the audience in an evening of comedy programming, a tactic that is, at the least, innovative.

"One of the things cable was supposed to bring was interaction with the viewer in what has been a generally passive medium," says Rick Howe, Showtime's vice president for marketing strategy, who is coordinating the "Talk Back" project.

"WE THINK there is an advantage in the viewer being more active, more in control of the medium," Howe says. "Once the method for doing that became available, it was only a matter of choosing the right time to do it."

Mike Weinblatt, Showtime's president and a former NBC executive, has suggested in the past that survival in the pay-cable market is dependent on active support from thousands of subscribers, called on regularly to decide whether to pay for another month of service.

The network — No. 2 to Home Box Office in audience — initiated a regular "Letters to Showtime" feature in the spring, at least partly in effort to encourage viewer feedback.

Tuesday is comedy night on Showtime, and all three questions during "Talk Back" will deal with scheduled programs — "Bizarre," "Laff-a-Thon" and "The Wacky World of Jonathan Winters."

SUBSCRIBERS, in each instance, will be given three numbers to call, each corresponding with a specific question: Does "Bizarre" have too much nudity and rough language, should it have more, or should the show be left the way it is."

Later, they will be asked which of three comics on the "Laff-a-Thon" program they have just seen — Mike Preminger, Julie Deef or Steve Bluestein — should be designated "Comic of the Month."

And then, after Jonathan Winters' show, subscribers will decide which parts of the program they liked best — the guest stars, Winters' improvisational skits, or the characters he portrays, like Maude Frickett.

The calls will be tabulated by computer, and the results announced to the audience at once.

"We're not quite sure what we can look for," says Howe, and that means there's no way to tell right now how Showtime will use the results. "Certainly," he says, "the process has several possibilities from a programming standpoint, and at the least, it will make it more fun to tune in to Showtime."

HOWE SAYS he plans to cut into every 10th call or so, to speak with the viewer in more subjective terms.

"It will be a unique opportunity for me to talk with subscribers who were motivated to call us," he says. "You don't get that many chances to just chat with viewers."

CBS holds No. 1 slot

NEW YORK (AP) — With the start of the 1981-82 prime-time season still at least a month away, CBS continues to hold fast to the No. 1 position in the three-way competition, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

ABC's "World News Tonight," meanwhile, finished ahead of CBS' "Evening News" for only the second time. The triumph for ABC in the week through Aug. 30 came with Leslie Stahl pinch-hitting for Dan Rather as CBS anchor.

A measure of CBS' strength in prime-time is in a half-dozen consistently successful programs, including "M-A-S-H" — No. 1 for the latest week surveyed — "The Jeffersons," "Dukes of Hazzard" and "House Calls."

CBS' first-place finish was the network's 15th

Groups fighting appointment

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A coalition of conservative Christian groups will continue its battle against the expected confirmation of Sandra Day O'Connor's U.S. Supreme Court nomination with a series of rallies, the group's leader said.

Organizers predicted today's "Rally for Life," the first in the series of anti-abortion gatherings, would draw about 10,000 people to the Dallas Convention Center.

Religious Roundtable president Ed McAteer said four more pro-life rallies are planned later this year in Washington, Los Angeles, Memphis and Atlanta.

"If this thing goes as we think it will, she will be appointed to the Supreme Court," McAteer, organizer of the Dallas Convention Center rally, said. "But we will continue to inform people more and more about abortion and her record."

Coinciding with the Dallas rally will be a nationwide vigil and silent prayer for "victims of abortion" in state capitals and major cities at 3 p.m. EDT.

McAteer said state representatives of the Religious Roundtable will hold the vigils from steps of federal courthouses in each state capital.

He said the "catalyst" for the rallies was President Reagan's support of Mrs. O'Connor.

A rally spokesman said several of the 31 speakers scheduled for the Dallas rally will discuss O'Connor's nomination. They include Peter B. Gemma Jr., executive director of the National Pro-Life Political Action Committee.

But McAteer said there is little chance Mrs. O'Connor's confirmation can be stopped.

"Before the rally occurred, if our concerns had been allayed by statements from her, it would have turned out to be a joyous celebration for us," McAteer said. "But we have already won the debate about the O'Connor nomination. No one is making comments whether she in fact is pro-abortion, but rather if she has really changed her position since the time that she voted in the legislature."

He said his organization's evidence that O'Connor supported abortion bills "on at least two occasions" while a member of the Arizona Legislature is more devastating than that against previous Supreme Court appointees, including Harold Carswell.

"She is just as much an abortionist as these people were in what they were criticized for," McAteer said. "In fact, she is even more so."

Speakers will include the Rev. Jerry Falwell of Moral Majority, former National Right to Life Committee president Dr. Carolyn Gerster, evangelist James Robison and Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis' wife, Karen.

Organizations cooperating in the rally include the Moral Majority, Right to Life, March for Life, National Pro-Life Political Action Committee and Concerned Women of America.

Confirmation of Koop sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aided by a law change, the Reagan administration is preparing to ask the Senate to confirm Dr. C. Everett Koop, an opponent of abortion, as the new U.S. Surgeon General.

Laura Genero, a spokesman for the Department of Health and Human Services, said Wednesday that the nomination would be sent to the Senate "within the next couple of weeks."

The way was cleared recently when Congress repealed the law requiring that a surgeon general be younger than 64 when starting the job. Koop, a children's doctor from Philadelphia, turned 64 last year.

The nomination is expected to touch off criticism from pro-abortion groups. Koop is also opposed the American Public Health Association, which says he has no training in public health and preventive medicine.

Koop, who has been serving as deputy assistant secretary of health and human services, opposes legalized abortion because he says it could eventually lead to the killing of defective babies and sick elderly people.

"He's well qualified for the job," Ms. Genero said, "and we hope we won't have too much trouble getting him confirmed."

The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee is expected to begin confirmation hearings later this month.

Auto insurance rates to be increased

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Insurance Board has ordered a 16.3 percent average auto rate increase that will cost Texans an estimated $221 million a year.

New rates, the first in two years, will take effect with policies written or renewed on Nov. 1.

Typical premiums will rise in 39 of the 40 rating territories by amounts ranging from $6 in the Lower Rio Grande Valley to $78 in Rockwall County. Only Tom Green County gets a decrease — a $1 reduction for the average driver.

Drivers' premiums will vary widely, depending on where they live, their age and sex, the kind of cars they drive and the use they make of their autos.

Many companies offer rates lower than those set by the board.

Board chairman Bill Daves said the average increase would have been 21.9 percent if the board had not, for the first time in an auto rate case, directly recognized the income insurance companies earn on their investments.

Companies requested a 23.7 percent increase, which would have raised total premiums by $331 million.

Last year, the board refused to increase rates, citing the insurers' record investment profits.

Daves said the companies earned $11.9 billion last year but a rate increase is proper.

"Even though the overall net income figures for the industry look good, I am concerned that sustained high levels of long-term interest rates may subject the investment portfolio of companies to instability in the coming years," he said.

The board is about to start a $200,000, two-year study of investment income, and Daves called Wednesday's action "an interim step in the treatment of investment income in ratemaking."

Rates for all categories of auto coverage except bodily injury liability, which dropped 0.3 percent, were increased.

Average increases, by category, are:

— Property damage liability, 16.3 percent.
— "No-fault" personal injury protection, 12.7 percent.
— Medical payments, 23.3 percent.
— Uninsured motorist, 3.7 percent.
— Fire, theft and miscellaneous, 25.9 percent.
— Full coverage comprehensive, 13.2 percent.
— $50-deductible comprehensive, 24.3 percent.
— $100-deductible comprehensive, 26.8 percent.
— $50-deductible collision, 11.7 percent.
— $100-deductible collision, 19.3 percent.
— $200-deductible collision, 16.6 percent.
— $250-deductible collision, 36.8 percent.

The rate order contains bad news for young men under 21 who own automobiles or are the principal drivers of cars belonging to others. The "differential" between their rate and that of a driver over 25 will increase in all parts of the state. Age differentials for men between 21 and 25 will drop for liability insurance but rise for collision coverage.

Midland residents will pay more

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland area residents can expect to pay more for their car insurance because the State Board of Insurance Wednesday approved a statewide average increase of 16.3 percent in automobile insurance rates.

The board voted to approve a staff recommendation for the increase, which includes an average increase of 10 percent in liability categories and an average increase of 21.9 percent in physical damage categories.

For Midland area residents, the board's action will result in the following changes in rates for private passenger vehicle coverage:

—Bodily injury, down 9.9 percent.
—Property damage, up 18.6 percent.
—And $50 deductible comprehensive, up 20.4 percent.

Statewide averages in those categories include bodily injury, down 0.3 percent; property damage, up 16.3 percent; and $50 deductible comprehensive, up 24.3 percent.

The new rates become effective Nov. 1.

Avenging Rebels launch season against Killeen

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

KILLEEN — With all the waiting and wondering finally over, the Midland Lee Rebels will get down to the brass tacks of the 1981 football season here Friday night when they take on the Killeen Kangaroos in an 8 p.m. non-conference battle.

There should be plenty of incentive for the Rebels in their opener since Killeen slipped by Lee last year by a narrow 13-7 margin to ruin the coaching home debut of Spike Dykes. Lee would like to answer that insult by beating the Kangaroos in their own roost this time around.

And the game has all the makings of a great one, considering the fact that Lee will unfold its vaunted "Thunder Attack" against the slashing speed merchants of Killeen, a team always known better for its times in the 100-meter dash than its exploits on the gridiron. Two different styles, both of which have had success in the past.

LEE FANS will certianly have its eyes on the "Thunder Plus One" offensive show of the Rebels. Of course Calvin "Thunder" Riggs, who finished second in the District 5-5A rushing competition last year with 954 yards, returns at fullback, but Lee has doubled the "Headache Express" this year by adding 220-pound tailback Terry Thompson to the attack. This will mark the debut of Thompson at running back although Lee fans well remember his defensive exploits of a year ago when he proved to be one of the most feared head-busting linebackers in the league. The best part is that Thompson is back on defense also.

The game may be heard locally on KBAT-FM, 93.3 on the radio dial, and there will probably be a great number of listners due to the fact that this is Lee's longest road trip of the year.

Killeen, who returns only four starters — two on offense and two on defense, will throw a Double Wing attack at the Rebels, which is led by returning halfback Mike Emanuel, a player who impresses Dykes and has speed to burn.

John Adicks, a 225-pound senior, returns at tackle for Killeen and he is a masher. Defensive end David Caster and cornerback Ronnie Graham are the only returning starters to the Kangaroo defense.

"Killeen has super speed, tremendous tradition, excellent coaching and a partisan crowd. Other than that, they don't have much, but what else do you need," Dykes said of the Kangaroos. "Emanuel is a super athlete with good speed and lots of experience. He can really hurt you. They are well-balanced offensively and offer a lot of problems.

"The first thing we have to do is not beat ourselves and we must have patience because they can cause a lot of bad plays with their stunting defense. Our kids have to keep their cool."

LEE, FOR the most part returns a veteran unit with only two juniors listed in the starting lineup — cornerback Kevin Taylor and offensive guard Eric Cooper.

Senior Bart Ryan will be under the gun for the first time at quarterback, but if he can find Riggs and Thompson, he should have time to gain confidence quickly.

It was the offensive and defensive lines where Lee was hurt most by graduation, but defensive tackles Tim Woodlee and Tim Murray have been impressive. Van Gravitt returns at center to anchor the offensive line, which has shown great improvement in the last few weeks with Felix Hall and Alan Kyle at the tackle slots and Cooper and Jim Walley at the guard posts.

"I was impressed with Lee in the spring and they just have to have a good team with 24 players back from last year," says Killeen coach Rex Turner "I think Lee is further along offensively and especially defensively than at this time last year, and we could only get 13 points against them then.

"We have a very inexperienced team with only six players returning from last year's team. We also have two defensive starters out with bad ankles with tackle Anthony Craig and linebacker Kerry Bowman. Our quarterback is a good athlete, but he has never taken a snap from center in a real game. We know we are in for a real battle."

Lee's returning cornerback Jesse Fennell, who missed the Andrews scrimmage with a injured thigh, will be back in the lineup as will Lane Marks and Kyle Cox, who also missed the scrimmage. Joe Williamson is the only member of the Rebels who is still out. Joe is recovering from knee surgery, but may be back on the team by the first district game.

Big Eight shifts focus to SEC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Following a surprise move by the Big Eight, the focus of the struggle between the NCAA and the College Football Association shifts to the Southeastern Conference.

The Big Eight adjourned a five-hour meeting Wednesday in Kansas City by urging the NCAA to call a special convention by Nov. 15 to reorganize its top division.

At the same time, Big Eight presidents withheld endorsement of either the CFA or NCAA television packages "until the NCAA has addressed the fundamental questions of reorganization."

CFA schools are nearing their Sept. 10 deadline for reconsideration of a vote that ratified a four-year television agreement with NBC and set up a confrontation between the CFA and NCAA.

At a special meeting in Atlanta Aug. 21, the CFA voted 33-20 to adopt its NBC plan. Five CFA schools abstained and three could not vote because of improper credentials.

The NCAA, which has reached agreement with ABC and CBS for the same period, 1982-85, has said CFA schools opting for the NBC package would be subject to severe disciplinary action and possible expulsion.

The Big Eight voted 6-2 in Atlanta in favor of the CFA package, but the Southeastern Conference was reported split almost 50-50. On that basis, many observers believe the SEC might announce today an action similar to that taken by the Big Eight.

If a large enough number of CFA schools attempt to go with their own television deal, there is a good possibility they would have to pull out of the NCAA and set up a national organization of their own.

The five-year-old CFA is made up of 61 major and would-be major football schools, including titans such as Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas as well as nationally insignificant programs such as Rice, Vanderbilt and Virginia Tech. The Big Ten and Pac-10 are not CFA members.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, appeared before the Big Eight meeting in Kansas City Wednesday and briefed the conference officers on a plan to reorganize NCAA Division I-A. The plan, first reported Wednesday in the Daily Oklahoman, would attempt to divide the 137-member division into separate divisions, segregating the major schools from the lesser programs.

"We want to avoid a breakdown that could lead to a breakup of collegiate athletics," Robert Parks, president of Iowa State University, said following the Big Eight meeting. "Mr. Byers has a big organization and he has a lot of people to deal with."

The Big Eight issued this statement:

"The Big Eight Conference chief executive officers agree that no further action should be taken on either the CFA or NCAA football television package until the NCAA has addressed the fundamental questions of reorganization. We strongly urge that the NCAA move to convene a special meeting by Nov. 15 for resolution of these critical matters. As members of the NCAA, we respectfully request an official response from the NCAA leadership prior to Sept. 9."

The reorganization plan has been outlined to the "Special Committee on NCAA Governance, Organization and Services."

It would do away with a criterion of sponsoring 12 sports for Division I-A membership.

To qualify for I-A membership, schools would have to average 17,000 attendance for each home game. There would be two exceptions.

Lee JV's host Lakeview tonight

The junior varsity and sophomore football seasons at Midland Lee High School get underway today while Midland High School has an extra week to prepare for its first JV game. MHS will not have a sophomore schedule.

The JV Rebels will kickoff against San Angelo Lakeview at 7 p.m. Thursday at Memorial Stadium. The sophomores travel to Big Spring to take on the Steers at 4:30.

Rutherford shows little hint of cruel trade

Los Angeles Times

Johnny Rutherford's face gives no hint of his cruel trade. You look at him and you figure he makes his living in front of still cameras in a studio huckstering cigarettes or modeling jockey shorts. You have to look close before you see the duelling scars, the telltale ribbons of grafted flesh that tell you he's one of the company of men who has been pulled from a burning vehicle in his time.

The collar-ad good looks may be why it took Johnny Rutherford so long to get famous, why they took him so un-seriously when he first showed up around a racetrack. There's a fraternity in racing of young men who just like to look good in flameproof suits and who climb into race cars just so they can walk around the pits in racing gear and helmets under their arms and look the part, like guys who hang around the ski slopes in casts but never get on the expert runs.

John Sherman Rutherford III never wanted to be anything but a race driver. But he had been to college, he drank beer from a glass, he wore ties that didn't have pictures of Niagara Falls on them, and, though he came from Texas, you could understand every word he said. The race crowd didn't trust him.

THEY PUT Johnny in cars at the Indianapolis Speedway that would get ticketed in the fast lane. He had several same-day finishes, but that was all -- 29th, 27th, 31st, 25th, and 29th.

Rutherford ran in the dirt at county fairs, in the sprints on the hell circuits of Ohio and Pennsylvania, under the uncertain lights of ovals with names like "Satan's Spill," and in cars that were on a track when they should have been in a bag. He broke both arms on a hick track in Ohio, he caught fire in Phoenix. Johnny wasn't reckless, but he had contempt for the wall, impatience with the corners, and he drove as if the last thing in the world he wanted to be was an old man. "The guys used to wish me 'Merry Christmas' in July, because they said they didn't think I'd be around in December," he recalls today.

Pretty soon, guys who sponsor racing began to notice an odd thing: Cars which really didn't belong on the race track with their competition began to qualify up front with Rutherford piloting them. His finish might be 31st, but his start would be 11th. "Rutherford seemed to get two miles an hour more out of a car than they had in them," Colin Chapman once observed.

Aches 'n Pains are behind area teams

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Now's the time that off-season conditioning, toiling under a hot West Texas sun, the aches and pains of two-a-day drills and scrimmages come together. It's time for the 1981 football season to get underway!

In 1980, Midland's area schools represented themselves well in district races. Rankin was the top dog — capturing the District 6A crown and undefeated until a missed kick spelled doom in the Class A state championship game.

Andrews and McCamey nabbed district titles. Andrews was District 2-AAAA kingpin, going undefeated before dropping a bi-district clash to Lubbock Estacado, 14-7.

The Badgers of McCamey (8-3) rolled undefeated through District 6-AA, before falling to Plains in bi-district.

STANTON HAD perhaps the best and worst of seasons in 1980. The Buffs went 9-0-1 last year but the 0-0 tie with Plains cost Stanton a district title. Plains won the game with one more first down.

Greenwood's Rangers, in their first year of UIL competition, displayed a tough squad that finished 6-4. Only twice, against Iraan and Rankin, did the Rangers get blown away.

Bringing up the bottom of the area schools were Lamesa, Reagan County and Crane. The three schools combined for a 6-23-1 season mark.

Lamesa, playing in the rugged District 2-AAAA, finished the year with a 3-6-1 mark. While Crane won its opener then struggled through nine losing contests. Reagan County managed only two victories in 10 tries in 1980.

That's all in the past! Starting this weekend no one has lost a game, all the coaches are optimistic, and fans are looking for playoff contenders.

Coach Jim Warren and his Lamesa squad get an early jump on the rest of the area schools. The Golden Tornadoes open the season tonight at 7:30 in Lubbock against the Lubbock High Westerners.

Warren said, "We are looking forward to the season with excitement and optimism. They (Lubbock High) went 1-9 last year but we can't take them lightly." Warren added, "We have a better football team this year then we did at the same time last year."

About 40 miles south, Stanton is getting ready for its opening clash Friday with Tahoka. The highly rated Bulldogs from District 4-AAA would like to gain a little revenge over the Buffs.

Last year, Stanton scored two late touchdowns to eke out a 12-7 win over the Dogs and set the tone for the Buffs memorable season.

Steve Park, starting his third at the Buff helm, wouldn't mind having an extra week before kicking off the regular season so a couple of key players could mend. Starting tailback Kevin Newman and quarterback Wally Hazelwood have been held out of contact this week due to minor injuries and are doubtful for Friday's game.

STANTON'S depth was hampered in its first scrimmage when sophomore quarterback Ricky Barnes was felled by a broken collarbone. Barnes, who is expected to be out of action for 4-6 weeks, has been replaced at quarterback by his twin brother, Rocky.

In Friday's other opening games, McCamey travels to District 6-A Iraan, District 3-A Sterling City is at Greenwood, Rankin faces District 9-AA Eldorado on the road, Andrews plays at District 6-AAA Seminole and Crane hosts Reagan County.

First-year coach Joe Longley hopes Greenwood can adapt to his style and overcome a lack of speed and depth in the offensive line to defeat the Eagles. Greenwood is regarded by most as a darkhorse in District 6-A.

Coach Jim Nabors of McCamey says, "We're 100 percent for Friday night." Nabors added, "Iraan is a natural foe for us. Last year we were lucky to win (21-19). They have some good talent coming back and Steve Maurer (in his first year) is doing a fine job down there."

RANKIN coach Dwayne Turner lost heavily in the line areas, but with a backfield filled with the likes of fullback Dennis Black, tailback Terry Turner, wingback Ronald Plegens, and quarterback Bo Rose, the Red Devils shouldn't be pushovers for anyone.

Turner feels the winning attitude the Devils developed in 1980 plus the added experience of four playoff games will help Rankin in the early going. What Turner is counting on is his younger players, most of them linemen, maturing in the game against Seminole and two other games before the district hitting starts.

Bill Shipman lost a ton of talent at Andrews, but with all-district quarterback Keith Brooks and proven talent like Brent Petross, Jaime Gonzales, Adam Smith and Jeff Ashabranner returning, the Mustangs will be tough to tame. Seminole gets the first crack at the Mustangs Friday at 8 p.m. on the Indians' field.

Perhaps the key contest of the first weekend will be the Crane — Reagan County clash at Crane. Both clubs, former powerhouses, have fallen on hard times and need an early win to boost the morale of the team and the fans.

Owl head coach Richard Davis feels, "We are ready. It is a big game for us. We need to get started off right."

Both clubs are expected to be in good health for the 8 p.m. kickoff Friday. Crane is nursing the most serious injury, an early two-a-day drill knee injury suffered by returing starter Johnny Fox. Fox is expected to return at midseason. Outside of Fox, the coaches report that they are ready to get the season started.

Davis said, "We are basically a running team. Tailback Greg Fisher and fullback Torin Burleson are the bulk of our attack."

RICKY WHITE, in his first year at Crane, feels that the Golden Cranes will have a more diversified attack this year. White feels that senior Tommy Bishop provides the the running power from his fullback slot while the passing duties are still being contested. Senior Pedro Rosales and junior Jeff Pinkston are staging a heated battle to determine who will take the first snap of the year.

White stated, "I won't predict how many games we will win. But we will play hard every down of every game. We will be competive."

Vance Tabb (senior tackle), Bucky Watson (junior guard), Tommy Harris (senior center), Brad Bolen (senior guard) and Luis Montoya (senior tackle) form a solid, experienced line for McCamey's inexperienced backfield to work behind.

Chris Evert Lloyd enjoys role as Open's top tennis dog

NEW YORK (AP) — Being No. 1 can be a lot of trouble. It means news conferences, lots of public appearances and smiling and waving like a princess on a float.

Life cuts a little more slack for tennis players who are No. 3 or 4 or lower. There are still the demands of the public, but not so many players gunning for you.

Chris Evert Lloyd has had it both ways.

"I'd rather be No. 1 and take what goes along with it," she said. She was No. 1 for a long time, fell off the float and has climbed back on.

In fact, her footing there is stronger than it has been in years. Wednesday night she appeared ever so briefly (47 minutes) on center court at the U.S. Open to defeat Kathrin Keil 6-1, 6-1.

Lloyd's stature is one aspect of the top women's seedings here that isn't in dispute. Most of the top players agree that Hana Mandlikova is seeded too low at No. 5. Mandlikova, the aggressive young Czechoslovak who finished second to Lloyd both at Wimbledon this year and the U.S. Open last year, has openly expressed her anger.

She has strong agreement from Lloyd. The problem is the U.S. Tennis Association, which makes the seedings.

Also winning Wednesday, were second-seeded Bjorn Borg. He took 1 hour and 15 minutes to beat Marcus Gunthardt of Switzerland 6-2, 6-2, 6-0. Borg, who has won Wimbledon five times, is still trying for his first victory here.

No. 2 Andrea Jaeger, whose entry here was highly questionable after she injured a rotator cuff in her shoulder 10 days ago, won easily Wednesday. After a full week without any tennis, she defeated Marie Christiane Calleja of France 6-1, 6-0.

No. 4 Martina Navratilova beat Nerida Gregory of Australia 6-0, 6-1; No. 6 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany defeated Australian Brenda Remilton 6-2, 6-2; No. 8 Pam Shriver downed Dana Gilbert 6-1, 6-0; No. 9 Virginia Ruzici of Romania beat Wendy White 6-2, 6-1; No. 15 Sue Barker of Great Britain defeated Laura DuPont 6-4, 4-6, 6-3; and unseeded Virginia Wade got by Pam Teeguarden 6-3, 6-7, 6-2.

No. 6 Guillermo Vila of Argentina got past Drew Gitlin 6-3, 6-7, 6-0, 6-4; No. 7 Gene Mayer beat John Hayes 6-4, 6-2, 6-2; No. 9 Roscoe Tanner defeated Craig Edwards 6-3, 6-3, 6-4; No. 15 Vitas Gerulaitis struggled past Terry Moor, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 3-6, 6-2.

In today's matches, defending champion John McEnroe faces a second-round battle against Tom Gullikson; third-seeded Ivan Lendl will play his second match, against Jeff Borowiak; and 13th-seeded Yannick Noah makes his first appearance, against Andy Andrews.

Mandlikova's ranking on the Women's Tennis Association computer is only No.5. And U.S. Open officials, complying with the the WTA's long-stated wishes, seeded her that way. Wimbledon, on the other hand, ignored her seeding and made her No.2.

The WTA is looking for a new computer system.

Lloyd seems very sure. She is moving very well, perhaps a result of intensive practice, two against one, with her husband and fellow pro, John Lloyd (who lost to Jimmy Connors Tuesday,) and former pro player Dennis Ralston.

Jaeger removed a cloud of doubt with her first-round victory. She played a full range of shots against Calleja, perhaps avoiding a great number of overheads. But that is not a shot she uses a lot anyway.

Austin, who took three months off this year with a painful nerve weakness in her back, was excited and competent in her first-round victory Tuesday.

And Navratilova, who used to be No. 1, seemed agreeable to, if not content with her No. 4 standing now.

"Physically I'm better than anyone out there. I'm faster and stronger. It's just mental," said the former Wimbledon champion. "The mental part is the big points, not to make unforced errors, silly mistakes."

She has come a long way emotionally since the time six years ago when she defected from Czechoslovakia. Only recently she became a U.S. citizen, and victory in her new country's championship would be especially sweet.

Mandlikova has been hopping mad about her seeding for weeks. And she has vowed to prove the officials wrong.

Her position places her in the path of Lloyd, a little earlier perhaps than either would have liked. They could meet in the quarters.

Lloyd, in fact, may have a very difficult draw. Her next two opponents are apt to be over-matched, but in the round of 16, if the seedings stand up, she could face tough Bettina Bunge. Mandlikova and Ruzici are the other seeds in her quarter.

Jim Hall races with time to build new race car

MILWAUKEE — The race on the track at the Wisconsin State Fairgrounds will be nearly an anticlimax to the race in the shop to complete construction of a new Pennzoil Chaparral for Johnny Rutherford to drive Saturday.

Rutherford sits on the pole for the A.B. Dick Tony Bettenhausen 200-miler with a record average speed of 133.89 mph, but he will have to drive a newly built car in replacement of the two that were badly damaged in separate crashes last weekend at Riverside, Calif.

Rutherford was not injured in either accident, but the cars were too badly bent to be rebuilt this week according to Midland's Jim Hall, Chaparral owner.

"We're starting from scratch," Hall said. "But we'll be there in time for practice Saturday morning."

The first No. 1 Pennzoil Chaparral was crashed during a practice last Friday at the second of nine turns on the 3.5-mile road course at Riverside. The other car was badly damaged when it was struck during the race by Jerry Karl as Rutherford was attempting to lap Karl near the eighth turn.

Crewmen were flown home to Midland Sunday afternoon and the damaged cars arrived on the Pennzoil Chaparral team transporter Monday night. By the time the truck was unloaded, a round-the-clock construction operation had already been under way for 24 hours.

Rules governing backup cars have temporarily been suspended for the Milwaukee race, according to a CART bulletin to competitors, or Rutherford might have had to start the race at the rear of the field.

Unusual circumstances, including a rainout last Aug. 2 and the number of crashes at Riverside, caused a temporary change in the backup car rule.

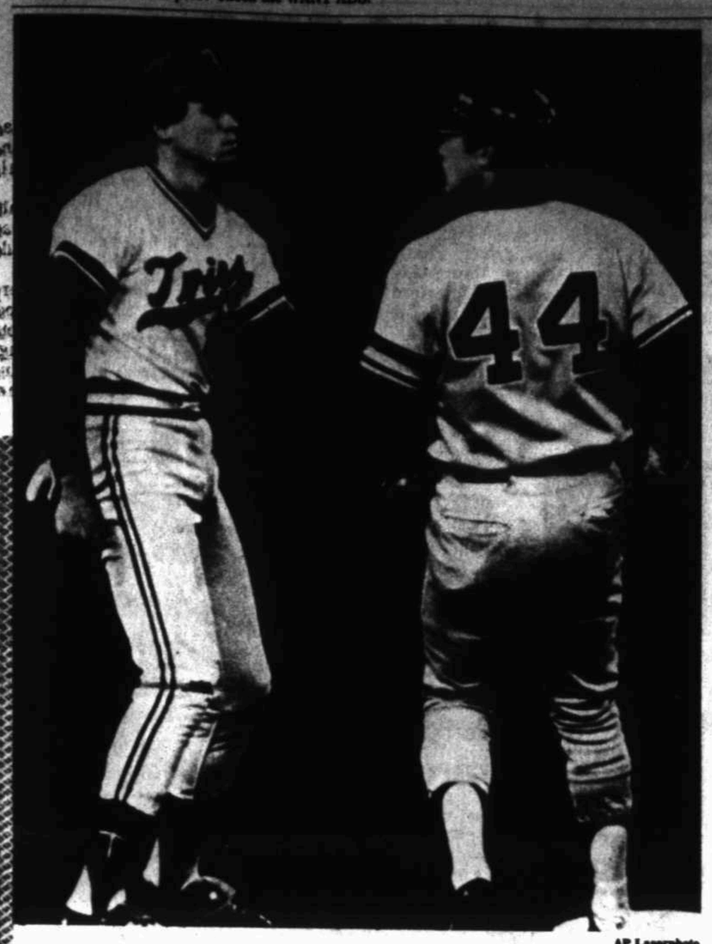
Eddie Miller's fleet feet bring Braves 3-2 victory



AP Laserphoto

Minnesota shortstop Lenny Faedo, left, puts a simple tag on New York Yankee Reggie Jackson in the sixth inning Wednesday as Jackson headed for second apparently thing teammate Craig Nettles had taken a ball four. Minnesota went on to win, 4-3.

By The Associated Press

Eddie Miller singled home the tying run, stole second and third base and scored the winning run on Jerry Royster's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Atlanta Braves a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night.

Glenn Hubbard started the winning rally with a triple off Warren Brusstar, 0-1, and he came home on Miller's single to center one out later, tying the score 2-2. Miller stole second base before Luis Gomez walked, then swiped third after Tug McGraw replaced Brusstar.

Then Royster lofted a fly to right field that was foul, but right fielder George Vuckovich caught the ball and threw home too late to get Miller.

Philadelphia had taken a 2-1 lead in the ninth when Pete Rose's third straight single scored pinch-runner Ryne Sandberg.

Elsewhere in the National League, Keith Hernandez knocked in two runs and Bruce Sutter picked up his 18th save in relief of Lary Sorensen as the St. Louis Cardinals broke the San Francisco Giants' five-game winning streak with a 5-2 victory in an afternoon game.

Bob Knepper tossed a three-hitter and Alan Ashby knocked in three runs with four hits, including a two-run homer, to lead the Houston Astros to their seventh straight victory, an 8-0 decision over the New York Mets.

Tom Seaver pitched a two-hitter for eight innings and George Foster's towering home run ignited the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

In the American League, John Denny pitched a four-hitter for his second consecutive shutout and Jerry Dybzinski cracked a bases-loaded single to give the Cleveland Indians a 2-0 victory over the Oakland A's in the first game of a doubleheader. Cleveland also won the second game 10-4 as Mike Hargrove hit a two-run homer after driving in two other runs with a bases-loaded single during the Indians' seven-run seventh-inning.

Dave Stapleton hit a two-run homer after Carney Lansford was hit by a pitch in the fourth inning and the Boston Red Sox went on to a 3-1 victory over the California Angels. Rookie Bob Ojeda, 4-1, and relief ace Mark Clear combined on a six-hitter for Boston.

Eddie Murray's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 11th inning gave Baltimore a 3-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners. The Orioles, aided by two errors by Seattle shortstop Jim Anderson, scored two runs in the 11th to tie and win the game.

Left-hander Rick Honeycutt pitched a six-hitter and Billy Sample drove in three runs as the Texas Rangers snapped a three-game losing streak with a 4-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Rob Wilfong's suicide squeeze bunt scored Mickey Hatcher from third and lifted Minnesota to a 4-3 triumph over the New York Yankees. Hatcher had tripled home the tying run earlier in the eighth inning and hit a two-run homer in the sixth.

George Brett's bases-loaded ground ball with two out in the ninth inning scored U.L. Washington from third and lifted the Kansas City Royals to a 5-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Pinch-hitter Ron Jackson singled home Kirk Gibson in the 10th inning to lift the Detroit Tigers to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

In late NL games on the West Coast, Pedro Guerrero tripled home two runs to highlight a three-run fifth inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh 6-2, handing the Pirates' their ninth loss in 10 games.

Terry Kennedy stroked a single off the glove of second baseman Mike Tyson to score Tim Flannery from second base in the 10th inning to give the San Diego Padres a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Fin & Feather

Hunting seasons are right here upon us. It's been a long time coming, but finally dove season began Tuesday followed by early teal, then big game seasons. As you all know, there's nothing quite like sitting under a tree near a farm pound and awaiting the evening flight of mourning doves.

However, hunting season poses some problems. It can be dangerous to some extent. It shouldn't be, but dozens of fatalities occur each season, mostly due to hunter carelessness.

Let's take a good look at why accidents happen while in the field hunting. Maybe examining these situations, we as Texas hunters, can cure the problems and allow hunting to be a safe and sound outdoor sport.

A recent hunter survey report from a major hunting state reveals that over 40 percent of the state's hunting accidents occured as a direct result of violations of firearms safety rules.

Almost half the accidents resulted when a hunter was removing or storing a firearm in a a vehicle — or riding in a vehicle with a loaded gun. These statistics underline the importance of always checking to make sure your gun is unloaded before you put it in your car or truck; and, of course, when you're hunting, there's just no good reason to travel with a loaded gun in your vehicle. Load your rifle or shotgun only when you're in the field and hunting.

NEXT IN frequency in this category whre accidents that occurred when there was horseplay with a firearm or when a hunter improperly crossed an obstacle with his firearm.

Even if you're as sure-footed as a mountain goat, an occasional slip or loss of balance is inevitable. It's just plain unsafe to cross any obstacle — whether fence, stone wall, ditch or stream — with a loaded gun. You should also unload when climbing up to a tree stand or traversing steep or difficult terrain.

The last category in the report involving a violation of safety rules included firearms that fell from an insecure rest. Again, the lesson is simple: When you stop for a coffee break or lunch in the field, be sure the first thing you do is to unload and leave the action of your gun open.

A CONSISTENT safety rule is common to all of these hunting accidents. In each case, whether it involved a firearm in a vehicle, the crossing of an obstacle with a gun or a firearm falling from an insecure rest, the accident would not have happened if the hunter had taken the basic precaution of unloading his firearm. This fundamental rule of safe firearms handling cannot be emphasized enough.

It is interesting to note that, in this hunter accident report, only one hunter victim, was a graduate of the state's hunter education program.

Whether you get bored reading a column of this nature is irrelevent. I get bored writing columns about guns and safety. But it's a must from time to time. If just one person reads the entire column and applies safety techniques or follows this bit of information, we may be saving his life or saving him from a serious injury.

GUNS ARE dangerous if handled improperly. And each year there are thousands of hunters that venture afield with guns. Just one hunter out of all those thousands can cause havoc, harm and injury.

Hunting out-of-doors is a great way to live. It's the American way. Being careless out-of-doors is a poor way to live. Let's all have the best hunting season ever, but remember those basic, and we mean basic, easy-to-follow safety rules.

Johnny arrived for good in 1970

Still, the owners tended to stick with Texans who sounded like Lloyd Ruby, drivers who didn't win, but looked good losing. Until 1970, that is. Then, Rutherford took a better car than he had been used to and just missed -- by one-hundredths of a second, the closest qualifying finish ever, computed out to two feet in 10 miles -- winning the pole. Johnny Rutherford had arrived. In the years since, he has Indianapolis three times, he has been on the pole three times and today he is part of the triumvirate that rules racing -- Unser, Foyt, Rutherford. In nine years, only one driver (Rick Mears) with a different surname has won the 500.

WHERE IS RACING going? Are these the last American heroes? Will the sound of an Offy winding up in the backstretch be as long gone in America as the sound of buffalo hooves pounding across the Great Plains! What's next for the asphalt jungle? Missile cars from Japan or from aeronautical laboratories where you push a transistor chip and it goes 500 miles through traffic, past walls, monitoring fuel, and programming pit stops till it wins the 500 on automatic pilot in two hours flat?

"Racing has always been tied to the American adventure," said Rutherford, who is in Southern California to drive in the Times California 500 at Riverside this weekend. "They (races) were geared to thrill and inspire the people with the family flivvers which would boil over, get flats, and misfire. The family sedan was our pride and joy. Now, what do we have? Cars that concentrate on economy, small, little engines, practical -- everything but what would lend itself to racing.

"The sport is at a crossroads," Rutherford admits. "Boring with itself. ... We had to get down in the dirt, get in the sprints, to make a name for ourselves in the '60s. We became good, the way the Green Bay Packers, the New York Yankees became good. Now, it's like a guy can buy his way into the Yankee outfield or Packer backfield. We have to keep our cars competitive so we can keep our drivers competitive. The public wants to see a contest of athletes, not instruments.

"But, you know, it takes a long time to make a great race driver. That's partly why those who get there, stay there." In other words, Rutherford feels, you can buy your way into the Yankees, but that doesn't make you a Yankee, that doesn't help you hit the curved ball -- or the groove at Indy.

Will racing survive its challenges? "You know, as soon as they made the second car, you had racing," Rutherford points out. "So, as long as you have two cars, you'll have racing." And, he feels, with 20 million cars, people will still come out to see which of the top 33 of them is the world's best.

Dodgers defeat Cubs, 4-3, in season's finale

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio's Dodgers picked up momentum heading into its Texas League West playoff series with Amarillo by defeating Midland 4-3 here Wednesday night in the season's final regular season game to take the series three games to two.

The Dodgers pushed over the winning run in the last of the seventh when Lemmie Miller walked, took second on a wild pitch and raced home on Gregg Schultz' double to short left.

Midland had tied the score in the top of the seventh when Mike Diaz walked, Dave Owen singled to right, Dave Pagel walked to load the bases and Mel Hall lifted a sacrifice fly to right field. Butch Wickensheimer then wild pitched the tying run home.

Jon Perlman started and left after facing one batter in the seventh. Lefthander Phil Nastu took over and wound up with the loss. Larry Wheeler was the winner in relief.

Fired Frey feels sting of criticism

(Compiled from R-T wire services)

Now that he has been replaced by Dick Howser, former Kansas City manager Jim Frey can hear the wolves baying. "I keep reading about what a bad guy I am and I feel awful about that. When I came here, I felt I had an understanding about some specific situations on the ballclub. Later, there were discussions about the way I was doing things and people said it was the right thing to do. It's a bad situation. I feel terrible. Along the line you lose a little faith. My concern was for the long-range plans of the organization. I thought all of us understood the problems. Now I read the problem is Jim Frey. I didn't create all of the problems, but I thought there was an understanding of how to go about working them out. Now all of a sudden, I'm the No. 1 public enemy."...

Former Midland Cub pitcher Donnie Moore was sold by St. Louis to Milwaukee after compiling an 8-6 record at AAA Springfield this season...Philadelphia slugger Mike Schmidt was named as National League Player of the Month while Atlanta's Rick Camp and San Francisco's Ed Whitson were named pitchers of the month. Schmidt hit .380 with an .817 slugging percentage...Yankee shortstop Bucky Dent will miss three to five weeks with a broken hand. Andre Robertson has been called up from Columbus, International, to replace him...The Texas Rangers extended manager Don Zimmer's contract two years while vice president Eddie Robinson's contract has been extended through 1984...

Wilfred Benitez' Saturday defense of his WBC title at Las Vegas was postponed when challenger Carlos Santos injured the index finger on his left hand... Roberto Duran faces Luigi Minchillo, European junior middleweight champ, Sept. 26 at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas in a 10-rounder... Former Notre Dame All-America John Shumate has returned to South Bend as a volunteer assistant to Coach Digger Phelps. The 7-year NBA vet also will serve as an assistant to the Notre Dame placement director for minority recruitment...

Terry Whitfield's 2-run homer, his 20th, led the Seibu Lions over the Hanku Braves, 12-6, in Japanese baseball.. World mile record holder Sebastian Coe still hopes for a showdown against Steve Ovett. Asked if he felt Ovett was trying to avoid a meeting, Coe said, "That's not for me to say."... Doctors gave East Carolina place-kicker Chuck Bushbeck, a senior transfer from Villanova, the okay to play this season after it was recently discovered he had Hodgkin's Disease, cancer of the lymph nodes...

New kid arrives on Tall City block

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Don't look now Tall City football fans, but there is a new kid on the block playing with the old pigskin.

The Midland Christian School Mustangs will unveil its very own varsity football team against Three-Way High School of Maple Friday. The kickoff is set for 4 p.m. at Simon Field at Hogan Park in the first of an 8-game schedule for the Mustangs.

It should be an interesting contest. For starters, it is six-man football. That's right six-man. Lining up for the Mustangs in their first-ever varsity clash will be sophomore Dan Carter (152, center); sophomore Byron Myers (155, left end); junior Sheldon Ball (155, right end); senior Scott Ward (191, runningback); sophomore Johnny Belcher (155, running back) and senior Kirk Hobbs (160, quarterback).

SECONDLY, the Mustangs have nothing in the way of experience. Gordon Awtry, coach of the Mustangs, said, "Nobody has any experience in six-man football. All of the kids played in our junior high program." Midland Christian has had a junior high football program for three years.

Awtry, who graduated from Abilene Christian College where he played baseball, has been with the school for 10 years. He started and has been the only head coach of the school's junior high football program. Assisting Awtry is Eddie Lee.

The Mustangs will play this year as an independent but want to get into a district next year. Awtry stated, "We will be playing all of our home games at Simon Field (two games). Next year we will play our home games on campus where we will have stands and a scoreboard."

Midland Christian can't be accused of taking it easy in scheduling its contests. Three Way is rated as the fifth best team in District 1 and the Mustang's third oppenent is Whitharral junior varsity. There is no disgrace is playing Whitharral jv — the varsity is the preseson choice to win state.

OTHER TEAMS on the schedule are Southland, Bethel Christian of Carisbad, Paint Creek, Brooksmith and Grady. Each of the oppenents has played six-man football for a few years and each is considered a contender for the title in its district.

Awtry stated, "We wanted to get a team last year but didn't have enough money." He added, "Since we had only a junior high program, our seniors — Buddy Ritchie, Hobbs and Ward have missed two years of football and our juniors — Ball and Robbie Powell have been out of football for one year."

The Mustangs played a scrimmage against Grady last year and were defeated 2-0. Awtry said, "We ran 40 offensive plays and only had 10 busted plays. We had it inside the 5-yard line once where we had a fourth and inches for a touchdown but one of our backs ran the wrong way. We should have scored."

"We are eager an ready to go," added Awtry.

Defensively the Mustangs are expected to start Ward at nose guard; Hobbs and Ball at ends; Ritchie and Powell at halfbacks and Belcher at safety.

Other members on the Mustangs' first varsity team are sophomres Joe Gould and Robert Madrid along with freshmen Robert Torres, Jim Crawford and Cary Brown.

Henderson promises return to NFL despite fractured neck

MIAMI (AP) — Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson will probably be in a cast for four to six weeks after fracturing his neck in the Dolphins final exhibition game, the National Football League team's doctor says.

But the effervescent linebacker, hospitalized in traction here, promised Wednesday that he'll be back playing next year.

The 28-year-old Henderson earned a job with the Dolphins this year after being dropped by the Dallas Cowboys, San Francisco 49ers and Houston Oilers in the last two years. He had also kicked a $1,200-a-day cocaine habit that hampered his attempts to bounce back after Cowboy Coach Tom Landry fired him because of his clowning for television cameras during a Cowboy loss.

Friday, he snapped the first cervical vertebra in his neck while tackling Kansas City running back Joe Delaney.

"I'm sure he'll be out for the year," Coach Don Shula said. "It's too bad it had to happen because he has worked hard to re-establish himself."

But Henderson's taking the incident in stride.

"Football's a game where injury's a part of it," said Henderson, who is having to endure his fractured neck without painkillers. Doctors refuse to provide him with pain pills because of his recently kicked drug habit.

"I'm not disappointed beecause I worked so hard. I'm not depressed, because I gave it everything I had to come back and I think the comeback was successful..." he said.

"But I'll be back. I owe 'em a year now. I'm going to play again."

Jog-n-Grog set for Septemberfest

The first annual Septemberfest Jog-n-Grog Road Race will be held Sept. 12 at 8 a.m.

Two-mile and 10 kilometer races are scheduled, each starting and finishing at the J.E. Borron Clothing, 103 North Colorado Street.

The Midland Jaycees, Miller Lite, and Borron Clothing are sponsors of the event with proceeds going to assist the Jaycees in civic projects conducted during the year.

Entry fee for each race is $7.50. Registrations will be accepted the day of the race from 6:30 to 7:30 a.m. Forms may be picked up at any Midland YMCA or at Borron Clothing. For information contact race director James Borron (684 5523).

Y Flag football slated

The Midland YMCAs will conduct a Flag Football program for first through third grade boys and girls. Registrations are being taken until Sept. 12 at the Alamo, Park Center and Washington Y's.

The fee is $10 for Y members and $20 for limited members. Scholarships are available for those who cannot afford to pay. A team T-shirt is included in the fee.

A coaches meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Sept. 15 at the Alamo Y. Volunteers are needed to officiate and coach, contact any of the Ys.

The program is designed to let everyone play and to have fun and learn fair play and fundamentals.

Buchanan heads Bowl-a-thon

A.C. Buchanan has been named chairman of the Lone Star Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation Bowl-A-Thon. Bowlers desiring to compete in the fund-raiser to suport CF research, education and patient care programs may pick up a sponsor form at Dellwood Lanes.

Koontz named president

Fred Koontz was elected president of the Midland Men's Flag Football League while Jerry Weant was named vice-president; Greg Gaertner, secretary-treasurer; and Dan Morris and Mike Longwell head officials.

Rules and roster forms are available at the Parks & Recreation office and deadline for paying the $300 entry fee is at the next meeting 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the P&R gym. The season will open Sept. 14.

City elects Flag officers

Officers for the City Boys Flag Football League, boys 7-11 as of Sept. 1., elected were Joe Mesquite, president; Ashley Chandler, first vice-president; Pat Henderson, second vice-president; and Doris Balton, secretary.

The next meeting is Sept. 14 at which time coaches will be assigned. Applications may be picked up at the Parks & Recreation office from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Games will be played at 9:30 a.m. Saturdays at Jane Long School. The first game is scheduled for Sept. 19 and new players will not be accepted after the second game. Parents who can help coach and officiate may contact the P&R office.

Tom Brookshier, Pat Summerall split in daring CBS move

An AP Sports Analysis
By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It's sort of like seeing a theatre marquee listing the comedy team of Dean Martin and Lou Costello. Or maybe the dancing team of Ginger Rogers and Gene Kelly.

Somehow, it just ain't right.

CBS has gone and broken up its best football broadcasting team, Tom Brookshier and Pat Summerall. Put each of 'em with a new partner.

Outrageous.

Brookshier, the ex-Philadelphia Eagles defensive back, switches from color commentary (and there haven't been many guys in front of a microphone more colorful than Tom) to play-by-play this season. He'll be boothed on Sunday with Johnny Morris, the former Bears flanker, in Chicago.

"I think I may hit him with a forearm across the chops once in a while," said the irrepressible Brookshier. "Just a reflexive action, you understand."

Summerall, the more low-key member of the former duo, will spend the first two Sundays of the season at the U.S. Open tennis championships, then will hook up first with Hank Stram, the dapper ex-coach, and then with John Madden, the not-so-dapper ex-coach.

There's no doubting that Brookshier and Summerall are going to miss each other as much as we're going to miss them. And it's equally clear that neither is happy with this corporate decision.

"The Sundays are going to be OK," Brookshier said with a cackle, "but the Saturday nights are going to be pretty dull."

"I don't think that's true at all, and I don't think Tom really feels that way," Summerall responded. "I don't think the Sundays are going to be all that OK."

Brookshier believes Terry O'Neil, executive director of CBS Sports, "is sort of going to move people around for a while, maybe three or four weeks at a time, until he settles on teams.

"Pat and I were talking about this (the split) the other day. We didn't have any choice. I just thought, 'Well, I've been the former player long enough. Maybe it's time for me to move over and become the stabilizing guy in the booth, doing the play-by-play.' I'm just going to have to do things like watch the clock more, things I used to take for granted."

Whether the rambunctious Brookshier can work as well with Morris ("He's kind of quiet compared to me," Tom said, ignoring the fact that most of the world is quiet compared to him) remains to be seen. But it's for sure we won't be hearing the free-association Brookshier-Summerall dialogue which, on plenty of occasions, drifted far and wide of the action on the field before them.

"We'd gotten to know each other so well (they were a team for 5½ seasons) that we never had a problem over who was going to say what. And to find that mix is very difficult," Brookshier said. "The great thing for me, going into play-by-play now, is that I've worked with the best play-by-play people in the business — Lindsey Nelson, Ray Scott and, of course, Pat's the best — and I figure if I haven't learned something from them by now I probably should drop back 15 and punt."

What CBS is trying to do, of course, is make two good teams out of one. What they just might end up with is none.

"Yeah, that's the way we feel," Brookshier said, "but once the decision was made, we figured we might as well go ahead and make the best of it."

The word that drifted down to CBS' dynamic duo was that "we had become too comfortable with one another," Brookshier said. "You'd think that would be perfect, but people who know a lot more about our business than we do said different."

Eldorado, Clovis pace NM rankings

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — The Eldorado Eagles and Clovis Wildcats have yet to play a football game in 1981, but they already find themselves in the same spot where they left off last year — battling for the No. 1 spot in the rankings.

The preseason Associated Press high school poll turned into a battle between the two teams that dominated the rankings a year ago and eventually met for the state championship last December.

Eldorado, which went on to take the state title with a 14-11 win over Clovis, edged out the Wildcats in the preseason balloting done by the state's sports writers and sportscasters.

There were a total of 12 votes cast and Eldorado got four of them and a total of 106 points. Clovis received five first place votes but fell one point short of the No. 1 spot. Ironically, in the final 1980 AAAA poll, Eldorado edged out Clovis by the same one vote margin.

Eldorado, 13-0 last season, will open the season this Saturday against Santa Fe while Clovis opens against Amarillo Palo Duro.

Carlsbad, which initiated the 1981 season with a 61-0 romp over Silver City, picked up one first place vote and was ranked third with 79 points.

Albuquerque Highland received the other two first place votes and was ranked fourth with Gallup, one of the preseason favorites in District 1AAAA, ranked fifth.

The rest of the top 10 included Santa Fe, Albuquerque Del Norte, Farmington, Alamogordo and Hobbs.

Defending champion Artesia was the overwhelming choice in AAA. The Bulldogs captured all 11 first place votes cast to easily get the No. 1 ranking with 110 points.

Bloomfield, the state runnerup a year ago, was ranked No. 2 in the preseason poll with 73 points. Socorro and Robertson, the favorites in Districts 5AAA and 2AAA tied for third place in the first poll of the year with 58 points each.

The rest of the top 10 in AAA includes St. Pius, Silver City, Ruidoso, Academy and Aztec.

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — The 1981 preseason Associated Press high school football rankings in Class AAAA and AAA as voted by sports writers and sportscasters with 1980 overall records and first place votes in parenthesis.

Class AAAA

1. Eldorado 13-0 (4)	106
2. Clovis 11-2 (5)	105
3. Carlsbad 3-8 (1)	79
4. Highland 8-3-1 (2)	76
5. Gallup 7-4	51
6. Santa Fe 9-4	38
7. Del Norte 8-2	34
8. Farmington 6-5	30
9. Alamogordo 7-3	29
10. Hobbs 5-6	19

Other teams receiving votes: Los Alamos 18, Manzano 18, Sandia 18, Mayfield 9, Las Cruces 9, Cibola 8, Goddard 5, Roswell 3.

Class AAA

1. Artesia 13-1 (11)	110
2. Bloomfield 11-2	73
3. Socorro 8-4	58
(tie) Robertson 7-3-1	58
5. Portales 7-4	54
6. St. Pius 7-3	43
7. Silver City 9-3	41
8. Ruidoso 7-3	40
9. Academy 4-6	33
10. Aztec 2-7-1	26

Other teams receiving votes: St. Michael's 22, Tularosa 10, Lovington 9, NMMI 6, Kirtland Central 4, Raton 3, Deming 3, Taos 3, Truth or Consequences 2.

Americans face chore

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — A lifetime of taking insults and abuse from Canadian hockey fans is considered a motivator for the United States team in the Canada Cup competition — and that abuse could be seeing its last days.

"The game will be a personal thing for a lot of the U.S. players," Canadian goaltender Mike Liut said Wednesday, on the eve of the Canada Cup confrontation between the North American neighbors. "They grew up facing a lot of prejudice and discrimination from Canadians."

Liut, the outstanding goaltender in the National Hockey League last season with the St. Louis Blues, feels tonight's game will be the first real chance for many of the American players to retaliate and prove themselves against Canadian talent.

In opening games Tuesday, Canada whipped Finland 9-0, the United States beat Sweden 3-1 and the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia played to a 1-1 tie.

John McEnroe's Open run is haunted by Wimby antics

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe's defense of his U.S. Open crown is still being haunted by his antics at Wimbledon two months ago.

McEnroe, seeking his third successive Open title this week, was to have learned today of any sanctions placed against him by the Men's International Professional Tennis Council for his behavior at Wimbledon last July.

Hall of Famer Jack Kramer, a member of the nine-man council, said the Council had reviewed tapes of McEnroe's matches at Wimbledon when they met Wednesday but they did not reach a decision and the meeting was to resume today.

McEnroe's father, John Sr., who is an attorney, and two other lawyers attended Wednesday's Council session, Kramer said.

Kramer said he believed the Council might withhold any announcement until after the completion of the Open.

"It would appear to me that if it was to go against John and say they wanted to levy a pretty good fine or whatever the rules allow ... it can go up year's suspension which is, of course unthinkable ... anything that might be detrimental to John's ability to play his best in defending his (U.S.) championship, I'm sure would be taken into consideration."

However, Phillippe Chatrier, also a member of the men's tour's governing body, said a communique concerning any action against McEnroe could be expected sometime today.

The New York Times reported in its Thursday editions that an official source of the ITA said McEnroe had been fined $5,000.

The fine, according to the Times' story, was recommended by Marshall Happer, Council administrator, after he had received testimony from all parties concerned. Wimbledon officials had asked for a $10,000 fine to be levied.

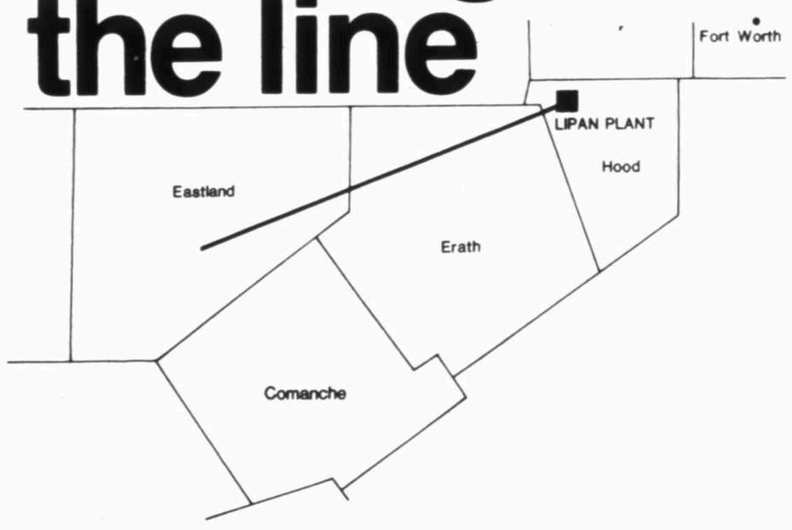
If you've got the gas... We've got the line



Northern Gas Products Company is constructing a low pressure gathering system and 50-mile pipeline to transport gas from a large portion of north central Texas to its processing plant in Hood County. The new pipeline, which originates in southern Eastland County, will be in service by early fall.

Northern Gas Products Company also provides a full range of gas liquids services from transportation to marketing. We can handle all of your gas processing needs.

We're a part of InterNorth, Inc., a $3 billion, energy-based company involved in natural gas, liquid fuels, petrochemicals, oil and gas exploration and coal. We've been in the gas processing business for over 20 years and we operate six gas processing plants in Texas alone.

Call us collect to find out more about what we can do for you. Our Regional Manager is John Hon and he can be reached at 713-940-5264. Or, call Larry Eledge, Director of Gas Liquids Acquisitions, at 713-940-5356.

Six wildcats planned in New Mexico

Oilmen have scheduled six wildcats in the New Mexico counties of Lea, Eddy and Roosevelt. Also, discoveries have been completed in Eddy and Lea counties.

LEA WILDCATS

Kimbark Oil & Gas Co., Denver, will drill the No. 1 New Mexico "1-4" State, a 13,500-foot wildcat in Lea County, N.M., 11 miles northeast of Buckeye.

Location is 3,350 feet from the south, and 2,310 feet from the west line of section 14, township 16 south, range 35 east.

****

Inexco Oil Co., Midland, plans to drill a 12,350-foot new field wildcat test in Lea County, five miles west of Knowles.

The deep test is the No. 1 Lottie York, located 990 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the east line of section 14, township 17 south, range 37 east.

It is 1 1/2 miles southeast of Atoka and Strawn oil production in the Humble City field, and three miles southeast of Devonian production in the Midway field.

LEA DISCOVERY

HNG Oil Co., Midland, has completed an undesignated Morrow gas well in Lea County, 11 miles north of Buckeye in Lea County.

The No. 1 Henson "6" Communitized flowed 1,204,000 cubic feet of gas per day through an unreported size choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,245 pound per square inch.

The well is producing from perforations between 13,020 and 13,070 feet.

Location is in section 6, township 16 south, range 35 east.

LEA RE-ENTRIES

Layton Enterprises has scheduled two re-entry projects in Lea County, approximately 18 1/2 miles northeast of Caprock.

The No. 3 Pyron, scheduled to be plugged back to 5,000 feet, is located 660 feet from the south, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 10, township 9 south, range 34 east.

It was originally BTA Oil Producers No. 1 Odell 682 Ltd., abandoned March 13, 1968 at 9,778 feet.

The location is 1 7/8 miles southeast of BTA Oil Producers No. 1 Sun, abandoned April 1, 1963 at 4,720 feet.

The No. 1 Pyron, one mile east of the scheduled No. 3 Pyron, is located 660 feet from the north and 1,830 feet from the west line of section 14, township 9 south, range 34 east.

The site is the Tenneco Oil Co. No. 1 Pyron State Communitized, a 9,850-foot project, completed March 23, 1969, through Bough "C" perforations between 9,777 to 9,787 feet. No other production of similar depth is in the vicinity.

EDDY VENTURE

Damco Energy Inc. has scheduled an 8,000-foot wildcat in Eddy County, 14 miles south of Malaga.

The No. 1 Mobil Federal is located 1,880 from the north, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 25, township 26 south, range 28 east.

It is 3,000 feet northeast of the 2,867-foot Blackwell No. 1 Barnett abandoned Sept. 15, 1949. There production of similar depth within the vicinity of the No. 1 Mobil Federal.

EDDY FIND

L. Ray Dunwoody, Houston, has completed its No. 1 Internorth State as an Abo gas discovery, 20 miles west of Lakewood in Eddy County.

The well flowed 554,000 cubic feet of gas per day through 5/32 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 688 pounds per square inch.

Production was through perforations between 4,437 to 4,474 feet.

Calculated absolute open flow was 871,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with shut in well head pressure of 905 pounds per square inch.

Total depth is 7,750 feet with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 5,885 feet.

Wellsite is in section 32, township 18 south, range 23 east and is three miles north of 4,646-foot Abo gas production in the Runyan Ranch field.

ROOSEVELT SEARCHER

Energy Reserves Group Inc., Midland, has staked location for an 8,600-foot new field wildcat in Roosevelt County, three miles west-northwest of Dora.

The wildcat is the No. 1 Fleming, located 660 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 20, township 4 south, range 34 east.

The site is 8 1/2 miles northeast of 7,880-foot Fusselman production in the Peterson, South field. Elevation at the location is 4,307 feet ground level.

Five ventures scheduled in West Texas counties

Five ventures have been planned by Permian Basin operators in West Texas. Two discoveres have been announced in Tom Green and Coke counties.

GARZA WILDCAT

Convest Energy Corp., Houston, will sink the 9,500-foot wildcat No. 1-C Wayne Williams Estate 3 miles west of Polar.

It's staked 2,200 feet from the south, and 2,420 feet from the east line of section 67, block 5, H&GN survey.

The drillsite is 3/5 of a mile south-southwest of the Associated Oil and Gas No. 1 williams, a dry one abandoned February 14, 1956 at 7,650 feet.

KENT PROSPECT

Energy Reserves Group, Midland, plans a 4,975-foot wildcat, the No. 1-A Sweet, for a site 3 miles west of Girard.

This may be a replacement well. The drillsite is 4/5 of a mile southeast of the Fletcher No. 1 Jones, abandoned March 27, 1958 at 6,831 feet.

The location is 467 feet from the south, and 617 feet from the east line of section 91, block 1 H&GN survey.

TERRY VENTURE

American Quasar Petroleum, Midland, will drill the No. 2-71 Mitchell Flache, to 12,000 feet, 6 miles southeast of Brownfield. They're calling it a wildcat to 10,600 feet. The drillsite is 1 1/4 miles southeast of the Pan American No. 2 McGowan-Shreckengost Unit, abandoned April 3, 1951 at 10,590 feet.

The stake is driven 467 feet from the south, and 1,383 feet froml the west line of section 71, block T, D&WRR survey.

STONEWALL WILDCAT

Newhall Land & Farming Co., Midland, has scheduled a 6,300-foot wildcat in Stonewall County, five miles northeast of Aspermont.

The No. 1 Boyd is located 1,980 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the east line of section 48, block D, H&TC survey.

It is 2,000 feet north, slightly east of the 6,515 Rutherford No. 1-A Baldwin, abandoned Aug. 19, 1951.

FISHER VENTURE

Fisher-Webb Inc., Abilene will drill the No. 1 Ferguson "A", as a 5,000-foot wildcat, four miles northwest of Hamlin in Fisher County.

Location is 1,787 feet from the north, and 1,980 feet from the west line of the W. Kirkpatrick survey.

The site is 1,000 feet east slightly north of the 6,012-foot Alsabrook No. 1 Cassie, abandoned July 9, 1975, and the same distance west and slightly north of the 3,175-foot Sojourner No. 1 Kirkpatrick, abandoned Aug. 3, 1937.

TOM GREEN FIND

Morrow Resources Inc., Odessa, has completed a Tom Green County Canyon sand gas discovery, three miles south of Carlsbad.

The No. 1 Brown was finaled for a calculated absolute open flow of 2,617,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations between 5,585 and 5,615 feet, which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons and 30,000 gallons and 50,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 6,910 feet, 4 1/2 inch casing was set at 6,682 feet and plugged back to 6,607 feet.

Location is 4,184 feet from the south, and 641 feet from the west line of section 1138, TCRR survey.

COKE DISCOVERY

Vista Petroleum Co., Cross Plains, has completed as an Odom lime discovery its No. 1 Allar, 4 1/2 miles northeast of Bronte in Coke County.

The re-entry project was finaled to flow 81.7 barrels of 42 gravity oil plus seven barrels of load water.

Production was through a 20/64 inch choke, and perforations between 5,356 and 5,386 feet, which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons, and fractured with 15,000 gallons and 20,000 pounds of sand.

It was drilled to 5,404 feet, with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 5,391 feet, and plugged back to 5,390 feet.

The operator has suggested the following field designations: Buzz, Nightmare and Allar.

Location is 467 feet from the north and 1,105 feet from the east line of the L.N. Taylor No. 5 survey.

Watt may OK mining near Utah national park

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James Watt is considering allowing strip mining near Bryce Canyon National Park in Utah, an Interior Department official said today.

However, spokesman Harmon Kallman stressed that Watt had made no decision on such a move, which is opposed by environmentalists who contend that air pollution from the mining operation could spoil the view from the nearby national park.

Former Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, Watt's predecessor, had banned mining on 9,000 acres of the Alton coal field in response to petitions from the environmentalists. It was the first such decision banning mining near parkland under the Strip Mining Act of 1977.

Kallman said Watt is studying recommendations from some department officials who want the secretary to ask a U.S. District Court in Utah to return consideration of the ban to the department.

The court is hearing suits by the mining industry to overturn the ban and by environmental groups to maintain it.

Kallman noted the department is divided over the mining ban, with those responsible for energy development favoring asking the court to return the case for consideration of new information by the department.

Coal from the Alton field was intended to supply two proposed coal-fired power plants that would provide power to Utah, Nevada and California. The future of the two plants is in doubt because two California utilities have pulled out of the project.

Watt has until Sept. 21 to make a decision. That is the date the Justice Department is supposed to file a brief in the court case, and if Watt does not act, it will be up to the Justice Department to defend Andrus's ban.

Bradley wants to be thought of as general's wife

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Kitty Bradley, widow of General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, says she would rather be remembered for the 15 years she spent as the general's wife than for her own career as a writer — but she is going back to work.

"I would like to be remembered as my husband's wife," she said, calling her own accomplishments as a screenwriter "silly compared to what my husband did."

Mrs. Bradley said she is returning to California to work on a book for Simon and Schuster and a three-hour CBS television special about her husband, who died April 8.

She said she also is "blueprinting" a play, noting that actor Karl Malden, who portrayed Bradley in the movie "Patton," has expressed interest in a one-man Broadway play about the nation's last five-star general.

Before marrying the widowed Bradley in 1966, Kitty Buhler wrote scripts for John Wayne movies and for television episodes of "Dragnet," "The Untouchables," and "My Three Sons."

LAFAYETTE, Colo. (AP) — Former astronaut Jack Swigert Jr. says he may re-enter politics and run either for the U.S. House of Representatives or governor of Colorado.

Swigert, 50, a Republican, was a member of the ill-fated Apollo 13 crew whose moon mission was aborted in space and forced to Earth because of an equipment breakdown.

He ran for the U.S. Senate in 1978 from Colorado, but lost in the GOP primary to eventual winner Bill Armstrong.

"It's time we took a lesson from Apollo and began to look toward the future," Swigert told the political action committee of VFW Post 1771 on Tuesday. "It is the philosophy of government to build a risk-free society, and in doing that they paralyze the spirit of adventurism."

●

BOSTON (AP) — A new play starring Ernest Borgnine will play one-night stands in Worcester and Springfield this month before heading for Broadway in April.

Borgnine, who won an Academy Award in 1954 for "Marty," will portray three generations of an Italian family in the one-man show, "An Offer You Can't Refuse," according to a spokesman for Bill Hanney Productions.

The play, described as a satirical comedy-drama, was written for Borgnine by Samuel Gallu, author of the one-man show about President Harry S. Truman titled, "Give 'Em Hell, Harry."

●

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Veteran actors Burt Lancasterand Kirk Douglas are together in a rare stage appearance, drawn by the opportunity to explore the dimensions of friendship — in this case, that of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn.

The movie stars, who last worked together in 1964 in "Seven Days in May," open here today in a four-week run of Bernard Sabath's two-man drama, "The Boys in Autumn," the story of Mark Twain's famous characters grown old.

"Burt and I both found the play intriguing in its exploration of how people change and how those changes affect friendship," Douglas said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO has invited Polish union leader Lech Walesa to appear at the group's next constitutional convention, according to a federation spokesman.

Saul Miller said U.S. labor officials did not know whether Walesa would be able to attend the November meeting in New York. The visit may hinge on whether the Solidarity leader can get an exit visa, Miller said Wednesday.

"The invitation was hand-delivered by an AFL-CIO official to Walesa during the International Labor Organization's conference" in Geneva, Switzerland, Miller said.

There's 'nothing magic' about Rorschach ink blots

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this age of sophisticated psychological techniques, the old ink blot tests still are valued windows for peering into personalities, experts say.

The famous Rorschach tests, taken by millions over the last 60 years, are hardly out of date and still are challenging experts trying to interpret them, scientists said Wednesday.

Dr. John E. Exner, a clinical psychologist at Long Island University, said the 10 standard ink blots have not changed in decades, but what experts learn from them continues to grow.

"We are still trying to understand more about how people frame their responses," Exner said in an interview. "Even after all these years, there's still much to learn."

Exner said scientists recently discovered that when a person sees a blot, he registers the first impression in his mind in less than one second. But most people take about five seconds to respond.

"We are trying to find out what happens in those other four seconds," he said. "People apparently rank many interpretations and give the one they think is acceptable.

"We'd like to know how many responses there are and how they are ranked," he continued. "As I said, there's still a lot to learn."

Exner is the chairman of the International Rorschach Society's tenth worldwide congress on the tests, a meeting held every three years. The session begun Wednesday at the Capitol Hilton Hotel marks the first time the meeting has taken place in the United States.

The 300 psychologists, psychiatrists and other experts are to attend workshops and hear 119 papers on the technique pioneered by Swiss psychiatrist Hermann Rorschach in 1921.

The parlor game rage in Europe at the time was a game called "Blotto." People made ink blots on paper and tried to find familiar figures in them, much as they do when watching clouds in the sky.

Rorschach thought that how people interpreted the blots told something about their personalities, and he developed a system using standard blots.

Exner estimated that at least 40,000 Americans took the test each year. But the Rorschach test doesn't mean much in itself unless the results are combined with those of other tests, he added.

"There's nothing magic about it," Exner said, "It is not thorough, it is not complete, it is not an X-ray of the mind. After all, they are just ink blots."

Exner said there are no "right" answers to the blots and people see all kinds of things in them. But an expert can interpret what people perceive and how they do it to get clues about personality.

"The process of looking at ink blots calls into action the intellectual processes of interpretation that we can look at," Exner said.

The experts look for such things as whether a person sees things as a whole or in parts, whether he sees more living things than inanimate objects, whether things appear stationary or mobile, and so on.

Autistic twins repel one another

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Keith and Kenneth Fleming, 11-year-old identical twins who suffer from autism, used to hug and kiss each other — "they were so close you couldn't separate them," says their saddened mother.

Then, 10 months ago, Keith and Kenneth suddenly started avoiding each other as much as possible. The trait of treating a loved one like a stranger is a textbook example of autism, physicians say.

The twins are the youngest of Ermine Miller's 10 children. She has raised them by herself since their father died in 1973.

The twins also are the subjects of study at the Registry for the Genetic Study of Autism, a research center at UCLA. The Registry is investigating children like the Flemings to see if there are any links between heredity and autism.

Identical twins have identical genes — the building blocks of heredity — so a study of twins would be extremely helpful in determing if autism is hereditary.

Dr. Edward R. Ritvo, the project director, said that when the center was started several years ago "we expected to find 40 to 50 families" where more than one person was autistic.

"We've gotten back over 230 familes so far," Ritvo said of the study, which reaches as far as Africa. The autistic children in the same families include 25 sets of identical twins and 18 sets of fraternal twins — twins not from the same egg.

Whether the autism of Keith and Kenneth stems from genetic factors is unknown.

"What seems very likely now is there's a subgroup of autistic families in which there's a genetic loading...a genetic influence," Dr. Ritvo said.

Autistic children like the Flemings have an intense desire to be alone. Many autistic children engage in pointless movement such as flapping their arms in front of their faces or rocking back and forth endlessly.

When they were toddlers, "Keith would look after Kenneth. If there was anything Kenneth wanted, Keith would do it for him," Mrs. Miller said in a quavering voice as she described the emotional changes in the twins.

"Their behavior problems were terrible. They couldn't express themselves, that was what would make it so hard for them. If you gave Keith something and he didn't want it, he'd slap if off the table, go to his room, scream and shout."

The most recent emotional change in Kenneth and Keith began in November, their mother said. The boys came home from school and Keith went to their joint bedroom while Kenneth began slicing a peach at the dining room table.

"Can Keith eat with you?" she asked Kenneth. He did not answer or look at her.

"Can Keith sit at the table with you?" she asked.

"Nope," Kenneth murmered.

"Why not?" she asked.

No answer.

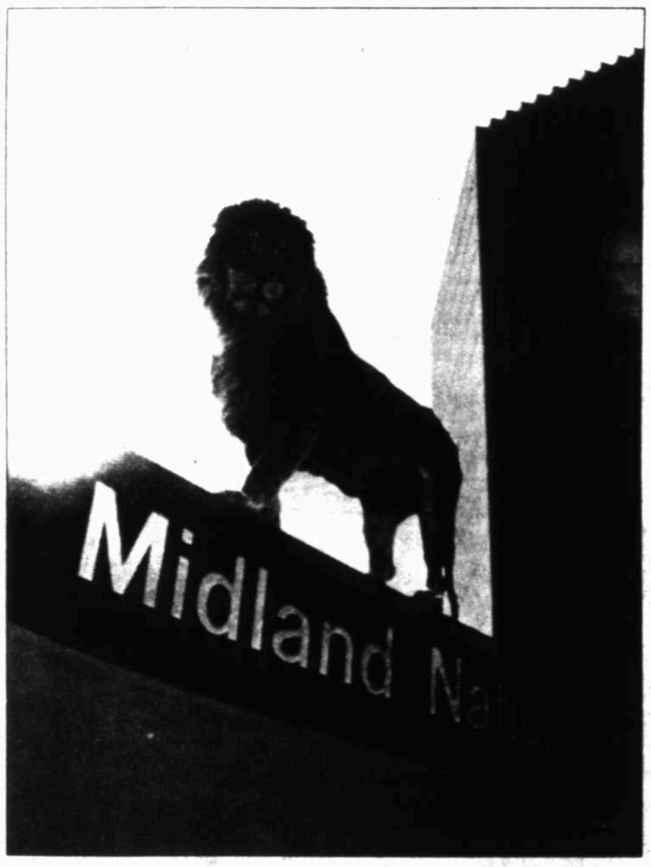
Taking a strong financial stand in Midland.



On July 3rd, 1903, Midland National opened its doors in the old Llano Hotel, on the northwest corner of Wall and Main.

We were just starting out, but we already had an unwavering commitment to sound, healthy growth. And we were eager to lead the way, searching for new territory to explore.

For thirty years, we kept pace with Midland's ranching, agricultural and mercantile interests; as they grew, so did we.

With the discovery of oil here, our pace quickened. We took strides to introduce new banking services. We were the first bank in the Permian Basin to add a petroleum engineer to our staff.

Today, our Oil and Gas Division is staffed entirely by petroleum bankers who are also petroleum engineers; bankers who personally analyze collateral, using our in-house computer and the latest petroleum evaluation techniques.

Our Commercial Loan Officers are highly trained professionals who can give quick answers on short-term working capital loans, lines of credit or term loans for a growing business.

Our Trust Department specializes in personal trusts and estate planning, and also in setting up corporate profit sharing and pension plans.

Today, Midland has come of age, and so have we. We have $11 billion in assets behind us. And ahead of us is a future dedicated to helping Midland reach her full potential.

Seven die in latest Revolutionary Guard leftists battle

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Revolutionary Guards fought an eight-hour battle in Tehran today with leftist opponents of the Islamic fundamentalist government, Tehran Radio said.

The state radio claimed seven leftists, members of the Mujahedeen Khalq guerrilla organization, were killed and three wounded. It gave no account of casualties among the guardsmen.

The state radio said the guardsmen raided a guerrilla hideout in Tehran and seized a large cache of arms and partially burned maps of the prime ministry.

Today's announcement appeared to signal that the government was preparing to blame the Islamic Marxist organization for the massive bomb blast Sunday at the prime minister's office that killed Prime Minister Mohammad Bahonar and President Mohammed Ali Rajai.

Earlier, Iranian television reported that the fudamentalist regime, struggling to recover from Sunday's assassinations, had executed 101 "counter-revolutionaries" this week.

Meanwhile, Iran's Parliament today overwhelmingly endorsed a 22-man Cabinet under newly-appointed Prime Minister Ayatollah Mohammad Reza Mahdavi Kani, a Parliament spokesman said.

Reached by telephone by The Associated Press from Beirut, the spokesman, who declined to be named, said Kani's Cabinet was approved by a vote of 170 to 4. Four other deputies abstained and nine did not cast votes, he said.

Kani was elected Wednesday by Parliament to replace Bahonar.

The 50-year-old Kani retained all 20 of Bahonar's ministers and expanded the Cabinet to 22.

A spokesman at the public relations office of the Majlis, Iran's Parliament, said the two newcomers were former Tehran Mayor Kamaleddin Nik-Ravesh, who was named interior minister, and Mohammad Hadi-Nejad, named minister of roads and construction.

Under Iran's constitution, the new Cabinet will now have 50 days to arrange for elections to replace the slain president.

The state television said Wednesday night that 46 leftist opponents of Khomeini's fundamentalist Moslem regime were executed by firing squads earlier in the day. It said 37 "counter-revolutionaries" were executed at Tehran's Evin Prison and nine in the Caspian Sea towns of Rasht and Sari.

The station said 55 were executed in 10 other Iranian cities on Monday and Tuesday. It described most of the 101 executed persons as members of the Mujahedeen Khalq underground. There was no indication that any of them were implicated in the Sunday bombing.

The Mujahedeen Khalq is an Islamic-Marxist organization that has led the urban guerrilla war against the Khomeini regime since President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was ousted June 22.

Before the Majlis convened, Kani pledged the new government would give top priority to improving security to prevent more assassinations of top government leaders, Tehran Radio reported.

"There is no cause for alarm. The problem will soon be solved," said Kani, who served as interior minister under both Rajai and Bahonar since February 1980.

He said an investigation of the bombing had reached "useful conclusions, so that I can now say that foreign agents had a hand in this incident."

Resistance groups may force Vietnamese

By WILLIAM BRANIGIN
The Washington Post

SINGAPORE — Former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk said early Thursday that he was ready to join without preconditions a united front of resistance groups opposing the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia and he held out the possibility that this could lead to a "compromise" with Hanoi.

Sihanouk made the statements to reporters after arriving here late Wednesday from Paris to join two other Cambodian resistance leaders in unprecedented talks on the possibility of forming such a united front. Although Sihanouk, his former Prime Minister Son Sann and Khmer Rouge President Khieu Samphan have met bilaterally before, the Singapore gathering marks the first time they all have come together to thrash out a common position.

A union of the three groups has been promoted by Vietnam's non-communist neighbors as well as China and the United States as a way to increase pressure on Hanoi to withdraw from Cambodia.

Sihanouk, apparently dropping an earlier demand that he be named president and prime minister of any coalition government with the Khmer Rouge, said "there is no condition from Sihanouk" on joining a front. He also said he was "ready to support any agreement accepted by both the Khmer Rouge and Son Sann," who heads the non-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front.

Sihanouk said, however, that he doubted that Khieu Samphan and Son Sann could reach agreement on the terms for forming some kind of union. Both men arrived earlier Wednesday from Bangkok.

A further aim of a united front would be to improve the international standing of the Khmer Rouge government that was ousted by Vietnamese invasion troops in January 1979 but which still holds Cambodia's seat at the United Nations.

The U.N. General Assembly is due to vote later this month on the credentials of the Khmer Rouge, which has been blamed for the deaths of more than 1 million Cambodians during its destructive four-year rule.

Speaking to reporters after arriving at his hotel here, Sihanouk said that although Cambodians still in the country "don't like the Vietnamese and feel humiliated" by losing their independence, "they would prefer the status quo" to the return of the Khmer Rouge to power.

"I am in a terrible dilemma because I know my people in Cambodia don't want me to participate in a united front with the Khmer Rouge," Sihanouk said. But at the same time, he added, Cambodians in exile were urging him to fight the Vietnamese occupation.

"To obey my people inside Cambodia or outside Cambodia, that is the question," he said. "It is very Shakespearean."

Sihanouk justified his decision to join a united front with the Khmer Rouge and Son Sann on the grounds that "I know the Vietnamese will never l3t the Khmer Rouge take power again as in 1975."

The Vietnamese, he said, were "the guarantee to prevent the Khmer Rouge from being the masters of the Cambodian people."

Thus, he told reporters, "we could at maximum have a compromise with Vietnam."

In a written statement issued before he left Paris, however, the 59-year-old prince expressed pessimism about the prospect of forcing the Vietnamese to withdraw from Cambodia.

He said a solution did not seem possible unless Vietnam were defeated militarily and no other country appeared willing to battle Hanoi on behalf of the people of occupied Cambodia.

Nevertheless, Sihanouk said, he was willing to join a united front to try to "find a way out of this apparently irreversible situation."

In a separate statement, Son Sann repeated several tough conditions for joining a coalition with the Khmer Rouge.

The 70-year-old leader demanded foreign aid to allow him to increase his forces by "30,000 armed men" to put them on a par with the Khmer Rouge troops.

He also insisted that his group take over the leadership of any coalition and hold most of its ministerial portfolios, and that "certain most compromised leaders" of the Khmer Rouge go into exile. He named former Premier Pol Pot, who still heads the military and the Communist Party, Foreign Minister Ieng Sary, Defense Minister Son Sen and Army commander Ta Mok.

Sihanouk said he doubted the Khmer Rouge would accept such conditions.

Six countries oppose recognition of guerrillas

By CHRISTOPHER DICKEY
The Washington Post

MEXICO CITY — At least six Latin American countries have signed a letter condemning Friday's Mexican-French recognition of leftist guerrillas fighting to overthrow the U.S.-backed regime in El Salvador, according to Argentine Foreign Ministry sources.

The letter was reportedly initiated by Venezuela — which after the United States is the Salvadoran government's sstrongest international supporter — and signed by Chile, Uruguay, Colombia and Peru as well as Argentina. These sources said Paraguay may also be a signatory of the letter, which was expected to be released Wednesday night or Thursday.

The final text is not available, but a draft accuses "two friendly governments" of deciding to "interfere in the internal affairs of El Salvador" by issuing a declaration "tending to favor one of the subversive extremes that operate" in El Salvador "in its armed struggle for the conquest of the government."

The joint Mexican-French statement released Friday recognized the guerrillas and their political allies as a "representative political force" which should be included in a negotiated solution of the bloody Salvadoran civil war, and called on other nations to support such a settlement.

"Far from contributing to solving the problem, in trying to internationalize it (the Mex8can-French declaration) contributes to its aggravation," says Venezuela's draft response.

Meanwhile, Norway, Nicaragua and Cuba reportedly have hailed the Mexican-French initiative as a proper move toward peace in the region.

El Salvador's Foreign Ministry has issued notes of protest to both France and Mexico, while Venezuela has recalled its ambassadors from those countries for "consultations."

Ever since El Salvador's social and political unrest began to escalate toward full-sclae civil war more than a year ago, the diplomatic front has been almost as important to both sides of the conflict as the actual fighting.

The United States has tried to portray the Salvadoran war as a proxy confrontation between Washington and the Soviet Union, which the Reagan administration says supports the guerrillas with advice and arms. But the diplomatic battle lines now emerging are much more complex than that.

The United States and to a lesser extent Venezu3la have consistently backed El Salvador's coalition government of military officers and Christian Democratic politicians. At the same time, however, El Salvador's social democrats and the leftist faction of the Christian Democratic Party itself allied themselves with the Marxist-led insurgents through the Revolutionary Democratic Front. The Front's leader is social democrat Guillermo Ungo.

While the government's civilian representatives, including now-president Jose Napoleon Duarte, tried to shore up support among Christian Democratic leaders in other countries, the Front's social democrats traveled throughout Latin America and to Europe where the various parties affiliated with the Socialist International are particularly strong and gave them a favorable, if non-committal hearing. The socialist victory in France gave the Front a tremendous European impetus, culminating in Friday's declaration.

CONTINENTAL ANNOUNCES THE ARMADILLO FARE.
$19.99

STAND BY FOR THE LOWEST FARE IN TEXAS.

You're gonna see a lot fewer armadillos out on the highways. Because Continental just made flying around Texas affordable for anyone who's not in a hurry.

Our new Armadillo Fare is good on nonstop flights from Midland/Odessa to Austin, El Paso and Houston. From there, you can armadillo to another Texas city for another twenty bucks.

Just show up at the airport and stand by for an unfilled Coach seat. Chances are good you'll get on the flight you want. You can check luggage. But only one carry-on, please.

While you wait for your plane, be careful not to sit on what appears to be an unaccompanied leather carry-on. You wouldn't want to offend an armadillo, would you?

Good ol' Continental sure wouldn't.

To Austin: 8:50am, 3:05pm
To El Paso: 7:35am, 12:20pm
To Houston: 3:56pm

FBI to continue Mexia investigation

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The mothers of three black teen-agers who drowned in the custody of Limestone County authorities received a promise from a U.S. attorney that a Federal investigation into the deaths would continue.

U.S. Attorney Ed Prado said Wednesday he assured mothers Virgnia Nelson of Dallas and Evelyn Jean Baker and Nell Freeman of Mexia that when the FBI inquiry is completed his office will make a recommendation to the Justice Department on whether to purse federal civil rights charges.

Prado met for two hours Wednesday with the mothers and members of the "Comanche Three Committee," a group of National Association for the Advancement of Colored People representatives pressing for a federal investigation of the June 19 drownings.

Wood grand jury questions key witness

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Federal grand jurors have questioned a federal inmate about his association with two men government agents have identified as key suspects in the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Court-appointed attorney Roy Barrera said that Calvin Wright, 32, was asked about telephone conversations he had with Charles V. Harrelson, a convicted hired killer, both before and after Wood was gunned down outside his San Antonio apartment on May 29, 1979.

Wright, serving sentences totalling 15 years for bank robbery and flying a stolen airplane across state lines in 1979, also was asked during a 2½-hour appearance Wednesday about conversations he had at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth with Jimmy Chagra.

Government attorneys have revealed through their questioning of witnesses they suspect that Chagra, serving a 30-year prison term, hired Harrelson to shoot Wood. Chagra was scheduled to be tried before Wood on a narcotics-related continuing criminal enterprise charge at the time the judge was slain.

Also testifying during a four-hour grand jury session Wednesday were Ray Moore, a "card player" from Las Vegas, Nev., and Donald Dudley, whom his attorney described as an acquintance of the family of Jimmy Chagra in El Paso.

Dudley was represented by attorney Richard Esper, a former law partner and inlaw of the late El Paso attorney Lee Chagra.

Wright had testified previously in October 1979, Barrera said.

He was subpoeaned again on Aug. 19, but refused to answer questions without immunity from prosecution. Barrera said immunity was granted before his appearance Wednesday.

"They (grand jurors) didn't come up with anything, apparently, that they weren't aware of before," Barrera said.

Barrera said Wright testified that three telephone conversations he had with Harrelson in 1979 were unrelated to the Wood investigation and that his conversations with Chagra also were unrelated to the judge's slaying.

Barrera said he did not know whether Wright knew Jerry Ray James, a former Leavenworth inmate who allowed his conversations with Chagra to be electronically recorded by government agents. James was released from prison in exchange for his testimony in the investigation.

Wright once was represented by El Paso attorney Joe Chagra, brother of Jimmy Chagra, and "considers Joe Chagra as his attorney," Barrera said. Joe Chagra also has been listed as a "target" of the grand jury investigation, along with Jimmy Chagra's wife, Elizabeth.

Harrelson, 42, has been jailed at Houston since September 1980 on state firearms, narcotics and gambling paraphernalia charges unrelated to the Wood investigation.

His step-daughter, Teresa Starr Jasper, 24, has been jailed for contempt of court since she refused to answer grand jury questions on March 27.

The newspaper said the sources would not elaborate on where or when the weapon was found.

Inmates kill prisoner, burn buildings

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP) — Rampaging inmates, roaming the Iowa State Penitentiary while authorities negotiated for the freedom of 15 hostages, stabbed one prisoner to death and burned two buildings, state officials say.

The insurrection began Wednesday morning when five inmates with sawed-off shotguns and homemade knives seized Security Chief James Menke and three of his assistants in the cafeteria. It ended 11 hours later after inmates were allowed to hold a news conference to air their complaints about the 142-year-old prison.

The number of hostages jumped when eight guard trainees, who locked themselves in a room in the administration building when the incident began, were taken captive by a second group of inmates, said John McCarroll, a spokesman for Gov. Robert Ray. Two nurses and another woman corrections employee were also held hostage.

While prison officials negotiated by telephone for the freedom of the hostages, 100 of the institution's 660 inmates roamed the prison grounds unchecked. Inmates threatened to kill the hostages if the roaming prisoners were forced to return to their cells, McCarroll said. An estimated 140 state troopers surrounded the prison and National Guard units were placed on standby, but firefighters did not enter the prison until the hostages were freed and order was restored.

When prison officials regained control, they found the dead inmate in the kitchen of the cafeteria building and extensive fire damage in the administration building and a cellhouse.

No damage estimate was available, but Michael Reagan, commissioner of the Iowa Department of Social Services, said the cellhouse had to be evacuated. He said the uprising "appears to have been fairly spontaneous."

The dead inmate, who had his throat slit, was identified as 31-year-old Gary Eugene Tyson. He had been in the prison since 1968 on an aggravated robbery conviction.

Though the body was found in the building where the first hostages were held, authorities did not know if he took part in the uprising.

McCarroll said he did not know how the inmates got their weapons.

The first hostage was released at 2 p.m. and the three women and one man were released two hours later.

Two more hostages were released in connection with the news conference at 7 p.m., where three inmates complained to reporters about prison conditions.

"There are a lot of people in there who are crazy," said Martin Sheridan of KBKB radio in Fort Madison, who attended the news conference.

Balloonist Vicki Harrison rests her elbows on the basket of one of her balloons.

Ms. Harrison reaches to adjust the valve on her hot air balloon.

Ms. Harrison gathers the hot air bag of one of her balloons after a flight near her home in Ringoes, N.J. She became interested in the sport only eight years ago when a balloon landed on her 11-acre farm.

Balloonist's home is in the air

By ULA ILNYTZKY
Associated Press Writer

RINGOES, N.J. (AP) — Vicki Harrison's housekeeping is nothing like yours or mine. Her "home" is a hot-air balloon where she spends more time than she does in her 1840s farmhouse here in rural New Jersey.

Operating out of a barn transformed into hangar, the 36-year-old Mrs. Harrison is up in a balloon almost every day. She pilots corporate balloons for advertising and operates pleasure flights from $60 per person to $220 for a first-class champagne flight for two. These days she flies a balloon touting a new yogurt, in addition to four of her own.

Mrs. Harrison's enthusiasm is not dampened by the day-in-day-out aspects of her hobby-turned-profession. "The instant you lift off, it's quiet. You're just off and gone, like a bubble!" she exclaimed.

As the balloon rises higher and higher — she can take it up to 13,500 feet — Mrs. Harrison begins her housekeeping, as she calls tidying up the inside of the wicker basket.

"I do my housekeeping as soon as we lift off. I have to organize my ropes on the floor, get everything stacked neatly and check all my fuel tanks and lines," she said.

Mrs. Harrison grew up around airplanes and airstrips. Her father operated a small airport not far from Ringoes. She began flying when the boy-next-door, a pilot, took an interest in her and offered to teach her. She was 17 when she became a licensed commercial airplane pilot.

"One thing led to the next," she said, "and before you knew it I got married" — to that boy-next-door, Terry Harrison, now a pilot for Eastern Airlines.

"We've been flying ever since," she added.

But ballooning entered their lives only eight years ago, when a balloon plunked itself down on their 11-acre farm.

She recalled: "We have horses and other animals and I was doing the horses early one morning when I heard this little voice behind the barn, 'Can we land, can we land?' It turned out it was one fellow in a balloon and I blurted out, 'Of course,' and boom, there he was."

She said she watched as "this guy with a big balloon wrestled this thing around, and then the crew came and it really looked like they were having a lot of fun."

"Terry also thought it just looked like a heck of a lot of fun," and before two weeks were out, he'd bought a balloon of their own.

Since that day in 1973, Mrs. Harrison has created a business around ballooning, sometimes enlisting the help of her 14-year-old daughter, Cindy. Mrs. Harrison's mother mends tattered balloons.

Mrs. Harrison is just 5 feet tall and weighs only 98 pounds, but she is confidently in command as she and her all-male crew rig the balloon and basket in a 20-minute process that's almost as pretty to watch as a balloon in flight.

The flat uninflated envelope is filled with air from a large household fan. As it begins to take shape, the multi-colored nylon fluttering in the breeze, Mrs. Harrison steps into the balloon's throat to check that everything is OK.

When it's still on its side but almost full, the balloon gets a blast from the fuel jets located above the basket. Once the air inside the balloon is about 100 degrees hotter than the outside air, the balloon rights itself. The tethers are dropped and it lifts softly from the ground.

"Getting away from it all" is one reason Mrs. Harrison took up ballooning. Meeting people is another. Because balloons can't be easily maneuvered, they must be brought down in open fields, and that often means instant visitors "in someone's cow pasture or backyard."

This "handicap helps you meet some of the nicest people," Mrs. Harrison said. To help break the ice, she said, she always carries a bottle of champagne — a tradition started by French balloonists centuries ago — to share with her "hosts" and others who turn up to gawk at her rainbow-hued balloon.

Bringing the balloon down to just barely above ground, she chatted for several minutes with excited shoppers and, after "asking someone to get me a loaf of bread," she lifted the balloon into the sky, loaf in hand.

ADIOS APT. LIFE!!!
I'm setting myself free of foolish rent payments and itelligently investing in my very own home. Of course I can't afford a mansion yet, so that's why I'm going to purchase this 3 bdrm., 2 bth., home that's just right. It has a fireplace, 19'x16' living area, 10'x8' dining room, 10'x9' kitchen, plus a 12'x16' master suite and best of all no one living above me! It's priced just right at $66,400 and that means I can afford it. I'm so proud I finally decided to quit paying rent. In fact, I'm going to pick up the nearest phone and call Marcus Strother right now at 563-4480 oir eves. 684-6710 and tell him right now!! (M5802)
