Losers Furnish Eats For The Winners

The golf tournament sponsored by the local golf club among its members was concluded Wednesday evening with a barbecue furnished by the losing side. W. DuBois was the leader on the winning side and Bill Thate and his players furnished the "eats" which consisted of barbecued goat, pickles, bread, onions and lemonade. Bill Ragsdale had a lot of bread that he wasn't willing to eat himself and furnished it to the club free.

Only two lady members of the club were present that had played in the tournament. Mrs. R. R. Lovelady and Mrs. W. I. Mitchell and reported that they were only able to get one small piece of barbecue on account of Lemman Brown keeping them crowded off just like a big hog fighting off two small pigs until they became disgusted with him and left the table. When Lemman was accused of eating an unusual amount of onions he replied that they didn't have any onions but that he did eat a few "ingens". He again displayed his consistency by "cussing" squash and then eating cucumbers by the dozens. Bill Ragsdale was almost expelled from membership in the club when it was brought out that he had been guilty of placing rocks on balls being played by some on the opposing side.

However, after making satisfactory explanation as to where he was at the time of the earthquake shock Sunday morning, and the way in which it affected him, he was retained as a member. Lemman Brown lost his match and was reported as having been seen on the course this morning gathering up the "Hoover" tees which he had been forced to abandon during the tournament. Jack Woodward won his match with "Red" Hosh by having a rest in the shade of the trees while "Red" was saluting his ball each time they "Teed" off.

Prof. William V. Wheeler, in training for work in the public schools, was living up to the preciseness of one of his professions was so careful in smoothing down the greens, that after he had employed the use of the rake practically all of his clubs and then his hands, he used a razor hone to put the finishing touches on with. William DuBois, Senior, heard John Williamson's false teeth popping and crashing through the barbecue and onions so that he mistook it for the clicking of a telegraph instrument and rushed away from the table to answer the call. When the call was given for supper Ed Purdy was lost as usual and a committee sent out to get Continued on Last Page

Local Howitzer Co. Returned Saturday

Best Camp They Have Attended Reported

The Howitzer Co. of the Texas National Guard, returned Saturday 15th from not one of the best but the best camp they have ever been through it is reported.

There was better discipline better trained men as a whole and better morale.

The outstanding officers congratulated Captain Collier on the splendid way the Howitzer Co. put over their part of the camp program.

The weather was ideal which was a great help to the men while on the drill field. The amusements were of the best quality, boxing and wrestling matches between some of the best professional and amateur sportsmen to be found, this is a great benefit to a body of men of this sort, giving them clean, wholesome and entertaining sport without their having to leave the camp grounds.

Probably the only worry among the boys while there was the lack of an abundance of grasshoppers for Lieutenant Mobley's pet mocking bird and because the Co. was not one of the units to be called to the East Texas Oil fields.

The Howitzer Co. expresses their appreciation and gratitude to the town and community for their support and wish for the same attitude through the coming year.

Everyone Asked To Help Clean Up Cemetery

The Cemetery Association is making an appeal to all the citizens of Santa Anna and surrounding country to help finish cleaning up the Cemetery. Our money is all gone. We hesitate to ask for more, at this time. The cemetery is in better condition than ever before. Wont you come early Tuesday August 25 bringing hoes and rakes and give a few hours work?

Ladies are asked to bring lunch. The Cemetery Board will furnish barbecue.

Local Club Features In International Lion Program

In a letter just received from Melvin Jones, Founder and Secretary General of Lions International, the local Lions Club was commended on the work which they accomplished during the past year. Mr. Jones states that, in his annual report to the International Convention of Lions Clubs, which was held in Toronto Canada last month, he was happy to include and give recognition to the part the local Lions Club played in the Association's program of Service.

The record of their service, as taken directly from Mr. Jones report to the convention, is as follows:

Santa Anna—Assisted in locating glass factory in Santa Anna. Secured odd jobs for school children. Supplied all unfortunate children of city with toys, food, fuel and clothing at Christmas time.—Joined with other organizations in sponsoring Christmas tree party. Sponsored an International Short Course. Dispersed local charity. Provided employment for persons in need. Secured homes for underprivileged children of school age. Ten membership reports received.

An accurate record of activities is maintained at International Headquarters which shows that, during the past year, 16,625 activities have been reported by the 2,500 clubs in the Association. These activities have for the most part fallen under the following general classifications: Blind work, Boy's work, Child Welfare, Citizenship, Civic Improvement, Co-operation with other agencies; Education; Farm Work; Public Welfare and Safety.

Presumably because of the increasing need for service work today, 3,108 more activities were reported for the past year than have ever been reported before.

Reduction In The Price of Ginning

The News published an article in last weeks paper that we feel was a bit misleading in that it quoted the price of ginning as being from $7.50 to $9.00 per bale, this was not intended as applying to our immediate section but was taken from a general survey of the cotton territory through out the state.

The ginner of Santa Anna only charged $7.25 last year for ginning and we understand that the price will be reduced to some extent this year. The ginner of this section have always been in line in price with those elsewhere if not a little under them and we are certain that the farmers will get their cotton ginned at the very lowest possible figure. If it seems a little high then remember that although cotton is down that the price of gin machinery, insurance and the general depreciation and upkeep of a gin is about what it was last year and the year before.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray, Governor of Oklahoma, jumps to fame by shutting down oil wells to prevent overproduction and making interstate toll bridges free.

Oil Well Shut Down Completed

Kilgore, Tex., Aug. 19.—The far flung East Texas oil field was shut down tight today. Oil production in the entire 600 mile area of operations was shut down by Texas militiamen under martial law.

At brigade headquarters the general staff awaited reports of 400 cavalrymen riding in details of four outlying sections, seeking any wells remaining on production in the violation of the martial law shutdown order issued by Brigadier General Jacob F. Walters, Headquarters officers believed only a handful of recalcitrants would be found.

Rain fell over the entire section and the militiamen's mounts plodded over hills made slippery and valleys standing in water.

Two airplanes piloted by Captains W. K. Ennis and J. F. Aldridge with Lieutenant Colonel Walter P. Pyron and Major C. E. Parker as observers, landed at Tyler today from Houston. They will be used to make an aerial survey of the area. The unfavorable weather was believed to have interfered with General Walters plan to have them scout for wells hidden by rough terrain which were still producing but were inaccessible to the cavalrymen.

Gov. Long Offers Solution To The Cotton Problem

Gossip over the cotton situation and the problems of the farmers have been prevalent and rather conspicuous, at least, more than common since the announcement by the Government estimating board, issued Saturday August 8, when a crop of fifteen and one-half million bales of cotton was the estimated crop for 1931.

Governor Bilbo of Mississippi, in cooperation with the Federal Farm Board, offered as their solution, the plowing up and destroying of one-third of the present crop, while others offer a more sensible and sane solution. The most common sense solution we have read, up-to-date, (Monday) was offered by Governor Huey P. Long of the state of Louisiana, who offers the following solution.

New Orleans, Aug. 16.—As a solution to the cotton production problem, Gov. Huey P. Long tonight telegraphed all governors, United States senators, congressmen and lieutenant governors of the cotton growing states, asking them to meet here next Friday to lay plans for enacting state legislation prohibiting "the raising of a single bale of cotton in all cotton growing states during the year 1932."

The telegram predicted a return of prosperity to the south within two weeks if such action is taken immediately, and added: "The farmers will get more money for this year crop alone than they will get for this and the next two cotton crops they raise."

He advises those to whom he addressed the telegram to "issue notice to your farmers to gather their cotton and sell none of it until the results of this meeting is accomplished, because we want the benefit to go to the farmer."

Some may claim the above to be absurd and out of the question, but lets just take a peep and see?

The present carry over of more than Ten million bales of cotton added to the fifteen and one-half million bales of the 1931 crop, gives us a total of about twenty-five million bales of cotton, and the consumption is less than twelve million bales per year, or more than enough cotton on hand to supply the country's needs for a period of two years. Then, in that event, if some arrangements could be made for a "none cotton growing year" the farmers would receive twice as much money for the 1931 crop as they could sell the 1931 and the 1932 crops for. Then why is Governor Long's solution not a good one? The writer is trying to operate a 200 acre farm, and we will join in the move if other cotton farmers in the south will join and make it united proposition.—J. J. Gregg.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

August 23

A GOSPEL FOR ALL MEN

Here is a lesson with an unusual amount of action. The Bible is far from being a dull book. To test this read from Acts 10:1 to 11:25 for the entire setting narrative. You will need your map in following the travelers as they journey between Caesarea, Joppa and Jerusalem.

Cornelius is a Roman centurion who has found the emptiness of the Roman mythology for purpose of religion and had developed faith in—Jehovah as the only God. He was making practical use of his religion through prayer and practise. The knowledge that he gained made him eager for a fuller understanding of spiritual truths. In the midst of a certain prayer season he was directed to send messengers to Joppa and get Peter as a teacher of still larger spiritual conceptions.

Now Peter was a devout Hebrew as well as a growing Christian. National customs were part of his very life. He was strict in maintaining kosher diet. While awaiting summons for dinner he had a vision of various animals let down from Heaven in a sheet, and was told to kill and eat. At once his Hebrew training asserted itself and he declared that some of the animals were unclean and the teaching of the vision was applied to those who at that very time were knocking at the gate. The messengers from Cornelius were admitted and next day Peter went to the home of a Gentile that he might preach there and have full fellowship with them.

When Peter preached the full gospel as it is in Jesus Christ there was a renewal of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, as on the day of Pentecost. The same spiritual forces were released and without hesitation the evangelist proceeded to baptize the many believers.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Vanderford, of Ft. Worth, were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. V. D. B. and Mrs. M. W. B. of Dallas, Wednesday.

This is the Way to WASHINGTON
BY RADFORD MOSELEY

Government energies are now being bent toward a solution of the unemployment situation that is expected to confront the country next winter. The President's advisers have been working with him ever since spring, trying to devise ways to meet this condition.

Beyond question the Administration realizes that conditions for the men out of work are going to be much harder this winter than at any time since the stock market crash two years ago. The big industrial concerns, in most instances, are faced with heavily depleted reserves, and the savings of most workers have been dissipated in supplying the family larder. As result there is less money being held in reserve right now than at any time since the depression started.

President Hoover has held many consultations with John Barton Payne, head of the Red Cross, Secretary of Labor Doak, Arthur Woods, chairman of the Committee on Employment, and other authorities for the purpose of finding out what palliatives the Government has with which to meet the coming condition.

In addition Mr. Hoover has spurred on those having public works in charge in an endeavor to create jobs. He has been keeping closely in touch with plans being carried out by the various states on new public works and arranging federal plans to fit in with their projects in order that the greatest number of workers will be benefited at the least possible cost to the taxpayers.

The President has expressed gratification at the action of the United States Steel Company in cutting dividends and letting the stock stand. His friends hope that the action made to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., owned owner of a majority interest in the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company will bear similar fruit. There is no question that big business capital is taking a different stand during this depression than it ever took in any previous panic. Previously, the first thought has always been to cut down wages. Now, the big interests have come to realize that a cut in the buying power of the worker means lessened dividends and lower returns from capital.

One hears from all sources that the shelves of the merchants are practically cleared, and that many of them are living from hand to mouth, as far as stocks are concerned. Some industries have already gone back on full time production and it is expected the rest of the mills and factories will follow suit in a few months. Naturally this cannot be accomplished as quickly as mills can be shut down and it is this in-between period that the Government seeks to bridge over with temporary jobs on needed public works like post offices, roads, levees and similar undertakings.

Another problem that is harrying the President is the question as to whether Congress will be able to pass the enabling legislation to permit the President's debt holiday to become effective. Under the Young Plan, Germany is due to make a heavy payment on December 15 and Congress, which was relied upon by Mr. Hoover to sanction the postponement of the debt, will not meet until December 7.

The whole crux of the situation lies in the fact that, for the first time in many years, the two major parties are almost tied in their number of Representatives. It is problematical yet as to whether the Republicans or the Democrats will control and elect the speaker. Even if the Republicans are shown to be in control they will still have the difficult job of conciliating the Progressives so they will vote with the Regulars.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut is the logical choice of the Regulars for Speaker, with Representative Luce of Massachusetts a close second. Luce is considered the best thinker in the House. It is certain that the insurgents will demand that a Western man be chosen and a tie-drawn out fight may result. The Democrats are but little better off if they gain control, as Garner of Texas, the man nearest in line for Speaker, is not liked by Tammany, which has a powerful bloc in the Lower House. That would leave Representative Crisp of Georgia as the second choice. Crisp is the son of the Speaker in Cleveland's last term and the House as a whole admits his ability, the general consensus being that he has the clearest brain in the entire membership and is by far the best parliamentarian.

In other words, political observers here predict that the House will be unable to organize in time to pass the legislation required to make the debt holiday effective. It has been suggested to the President that he convene the House in November in order to give it time to settle the long fight and its elective officers and be ready to pass the legislation desired by Mr. Hoover. The only alternative, if Congress fails to organize, is for the President to assume authority and arbitrarily extend the time for the German payments, an exercise of power that would unquestionably bring down on his head the ringing condemnation of his political opponents. For this reason there is a growing feeling that an extra session of Congress will be called in a few weeks.

PUTNAM FARMER HAS INEXPENSIVE WAY TO RID FIELD OF PESTS

PUTNAM, Texas., July 27—A new method of poisoning grasshoppers is being advocated here by Robert McKinney, a cotton farmer, who says his method is not only more effective than any other he had tried, but less expensive.

McKinney's formula is to mix one gallon of water with three tablespoonfuls of calcium arsenate, and mix thoroughly with it enough blackstrap molasses to sweeten. Afterwards he catches a few of the hoppers, kills them and saturates the carcasses in the solution, then drops them on the ground at the edges of the fields. Hoppers immediately swarm to the dead ones to feed, taking in the poison. McKinney says that by using this formula he has not lost as much as a row of cotton, while others in the vicinity have lost entire fields.

This recipe is too late to be of benefit this year, but can be used next year.

ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE AUTHOR

by ETHEL HUTTON

Rackruff Motors hire Rowena to accompany Peter on a nation wide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to act as chaperon.

A few miles out Bobby becomes tearful at being parted from her sweetheart and Rowena insists on taking her place in the rumble so that she can ride with Peter and have him to talk to about Carter. Rowena gets Peter to consent to divide the expense money each week as soon as it arrives, and astonishes Peter by eating too economically.

The three tourists reach Denver, after passing through Buffalo, Chicago and St. Louis. Peter and Rowena have many tiffs on the way while Carter keeps wiring Bobby to return to New York. The morning after they reach Denver, Peter and Rowena discover Bobby has deserted them and returned to New York by train. They are faced with the impossible condition of continuing their trip without a chaperon.

Rowena suggests to Peter that they make a "companionate" marriage. They are married and go to Cheyenne, where their actions when they ask for rooms on separate floors arouses the suspicions of the hotel clerk. They finally succeed in getting rooms, but not without exciting the laughter of the hotel youngsters.

They wire the company they are married.

They resume the trip next day and are overwhelmed by a cloud-burst in an arroyo and are thrown out of the car. A party of tourist campers gives them dry clothes and food. Spokane is finally reached and the hotel clerk smiles when they register. They find Rackruff Motors have arranged a public reception and dance for them. They are deluged with presents.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

When Peter went out for a look around town she hurried away with her share of the wedding presents in search of a pawn shop, where she left them securely locked away from the danger of theft or loss, and stopped for an express money order on her way home.

There wasn't enough money for the suit but she bought a new frilly collar and cuff set to brighten up the old one which she extravagantly sent down to the hotel cleaners for pressing. She had a small electric iron and a folding board in her big suit case, but she felt some hesitancy about resorting to such an economy with Peter in the sitting-room.

The reception was a huge success. The best people in their best clothes were properly impressed. Peter and Rowena in a mound of flowers were photographed in the Rackruff roadster for the local papers, interviewed by representatives of the press, and congratulated on every hand. Peter was given a pearl studded cigarette lighter, which worked successfully, and Rowena a wrist-watch with the same design in chip diamonds. She accepted it with a glowing smile and an inner regret that she had not had it earlier in the day to provide the coveted suit.

Mr. Meeker told her confidentially that the only reason he had not told her about the wrist watch was because they had evidently planned it as an afterthought and he hadn't heard of it.

When the reception was over they were driven triumphantly back to the hotel in a procession of Rackruff roadsters, so that a considerable crowd gathered in the streets to cheer them on.

"Peter, don't you love it?" demanded Rowena when they were alone in the bridal suite—alone but with the door noticeably ajar. "Don't you adore being a husband? Aren't you glad we got married? Why, if I had known it was such fun I'd have been married dozens of times before this."

Peter waited in the lobby down stairs while she dressed for the big affair of the day, and when she was ready he took possession of the bed-room and bath while she sat in the flower-filled sitting-room—the door into the corridor wide open, you may be sure—and wrote a long gay letter to Budd, enclosing the money order. At seven o'clock Mr. Meeker called to escort them down in person. He brought a huge corsage of orchids and orange blossoms for Rowena and a gardenia for Peter's button-hole.

"Guess we had better let her stick it in for you," said Mr. Meeker. "Seems like it gives more of a bridal touch to things." Rowena rose to the occasion. She kissed the gardenia prettily and then flicked it coquettishly on Peter's chin before she tucked it carefully into the lapel of his coat—all this to the beaming delight of Mr. Meeker and the confusion of Peter.

Flushing with rosy pride, Mr. Meeker led them down to the reception room and introduced them once more to all the Rackruff dealers and their wives, and then to the gentlemen of the press—and editors and publishers among them too, as well as mere reporters. The orchestra struck up the wedding march and Peter and Rowena, flanked by Mr. Meeker on one side and the head waiter on the other, led the procession into the ball-room for dinner. The seats designed for them were raised above the others in a royal mound of white roses. This, Mr. Meeker explained in loud whispers, represented the solitaire diamond of an engagement ring, which was typified by the rest of the tables ranging the full extent of the hall in a great circle.

Never had Rowena been so beautiful. Her eyes—the blue of a summer sky—sparkled with pleased excitement. Her lovely lips quivered sensitively. Under the table she felt about with the toe of her slipper until she found Peter's foot to press when she wished to call his attention to anything particularly priceless that caught her eye.

Peter stared and stared at her. Everyone else did too, if it comes to that, but no one of all those present was so amazed and so bewildered by her beauty as Peter himself. Over and over again he had to remind himself that this radiant, exquisite creature, the cynosure of all eyes, whose sheer beauty fairly took away one's breath, was the very same crisp and curt Rowena who kept such a stubborn finger on the steering wheel of their trip.

When dinner was over and he danced with her for the first time he was startled and stirred to discover that she was a feather in his arms; that her gleaming hair was fragrant as flowers; her skin velvet to his touch—and that she seemed to melt into the music like music itself.

"Rowena," he whispered, "it's great isn't it?—Really, it's just corking!"

"It's gorgeous, Peter, it's glorious! And, oh, darling, think how they're going to feel in a couple of months when they read in the paper about the annulment and know it was all a farce! Won't they go down—plop!—like a flat tire?"

"I suppose so," he assented soberly. "Looking at it that way, it seems rather a low trick to play on them. They mean so well."

"But it was Rackruff got us into it—it isn't our fault," she protested.

The danced through the ball with a display of domestic devotion that was thoroughly convincing. At two o'clock when it was over they went, laughing, up-stairs to the bridal suite and while he changed quickly from formal to street dress, she lounged in full display in the sitting-room before the chaparrone of an open door.

When he went in to say good night, he sat down on the arm of her big chair and cuddled her bright head roughly in his arm.

"Why put me out, Rowena?" he began in a wheedlesome voice. "After all, we are married. And I imagine we're going to have the devil's own time convincing any sane judge that there was nothing to it but ceremony."

"My judge will believe it."

"If he does," said Peter moodily, "he's going to think what a danfool I am.—Anyhow, it's been a nice night and there's more of it. We've had a lot of fun and a little more wouldn't do us any harm." he argued persuasively.

She laughed good naturedly. "I've had all the fun I can stand for one night. Run along, darling, and be sure to get a receipt that will confound the skeptics."

When Peter had gone she sat on the edge of the bed and thought it all over. In a way, she decided it was rather an awful thing to have done. But it had been so tremendously important for both of them—the trip had—the pictures and the stories. And the money—the money most of all! But it was too bad this sort of thing had to happen—and to a sweet thing like Peter who really rather deserved a better break—he was so old fashioned at heart.

Rowena stood up and yawned and got into bed. She would do her level best to insure the annulment, in common fairness to Peter. Certainly it was for her to make sure of it. He was too careless, too sensitive to public opinion. He might get that receipt for his night's residence and he might not. She would make sure. She lifted the receiver of her telephone and asked them to send up the housekeeper.

When she came in, an efficient Scotch woman, Rowena looked a little limp and wan.

"I don't feel so very well," she said childishly. "I wonder if you could get me something hot to drink? I don't want to be sick."

The housekeeper was surprised. It was three o'clock in the morning and the bridal suite well lighted, showed itself guiltless of groom. His pillow had not been touched. But hated housekeepers are schooled to surprises. She brought Rowena some hot strong tea with a little rum in it and gave her an aspirin tablet.

"If you don't feel better pretty soon have your husband call me—w-when he comes in," she said.

Rowena's smile was a little forced. "I will," she promised.

At five o'clock she asked for her again.

"I feel worse," she said. But she did not want a doctor. "I'm just nervous," she explained. "Would—would it be asking too much—for you just to sit with me a few minutes? I-I sure it's only excitement after the ball."

The housekeeper sat down beside the bed. Rowena looked very young, very flushed, altogether adorable in her soft night things. In the dim light the housekeeper could not see how old they were, and worn. The housekeeper had her own opinion about men anyhow, and her face grew grimmer and grimmer. The night housekeeper in a big hotel sees much.

When Rowena seemed to have dozed off to sleep, she leaned over her, compassionately. "Poor child," she muttered, "a pretty young thing like that—thin out all night and them just married!—Thank God I found men out in time!"

Rowena smiled comfortably to her self when the housekeeper had turned out the light and tip-toed softly from the room. She had a witness to the virginal privacy of her night in the bridal suite.

She drifted lazily in Peter's arms. Rowena was about half thru breakfast the next morning when Peter came in. He sat down opposite her and the waitress almost ran up to get the order. But Peter said he had already breakfasted, would take only coffee, very hot, please.

"She's entirely too good for him, the brute," said the waitress to the pastry cook. "She never said a word but 'Good morning'. Didn't even ask where he'd been all night."

Peter was a little self-conscious about it all and to the critical maids his constraint seemed that of a guilty conscience. Rowena was sweetly gentle, even friendly.

"I only wish the hotel had given them a pearl necklace instead of that cocktail shaker," said Mr. Meeker regretfully. "She'd get to wear the pearl necklace if he didn't pawn it, and it's plain to see who'll use the cocktail shaker."

Peter had a receipt for his night's lodging and Rowena folded it away triumphantly in the pocket of her portfolio, along with the other proofs of their complete segregation en route.

She was full of enthusiasm, entirely satisfied with their future prospects, as she was packing her bag before the witness of an open door.

"It's a great little burg," she said warmly. "When I'm a thorough old maid I shall buy me a dog or something and come and live here. It's just the sort of a town I like. And if I am rich and famous I will rent the bridal suite by the year and you can give me an autographed picture of the Rackruff to adorn my walls. And I'll invite Mr. Meeker to tea every Sunday and we'll discuss our past glories and remember when."

"Don't you care, darling. Next time we come here, you shall have the bridal suite and their

OIL WELLS SHUT IN EAST TEXAS FIELD

and efforts to reach him by telephone proved unavailing for several hours. The scene here was reminiscent of war time days. Army trucks lurched about on muddy roads leading to general headquarters, a mile and a half from town. Staff cars carried bedraggled majors. Enlisted men were bringing water supplies by trucks. The whole area still was quiet.

Drilling operations continued apace and new drilling permits were being issued steadily. Operators looked for an early increase in crude oil prices as a result of the shut down. They expressed hope that martial law invoked to halt waste, would be remembered after the new state conservation act becomes effective late this month and serve to prevent a recurrence of the tremendous overproduction which plunged the national oil market into almost unprecedented depth.

The planes at Tyler were part of the 11th observation squadron, Texas National Guard. Headquarters here reported that precautions to prevent sickness among the guardsmen thus far had been successful, as not one of the more than 1,200 soldiers in the entire military area has been reported ill.

Kilgore, Tex., Aug. 19.—Intent on closing down the last of a handful of wells still flowing in lonely sections of the East Texas field in violation of martial law orders, National Guardsmen continued their patrol today. General Jacob F. Wolters, commander of the army of occupation, who announced yesterday the shut down was practically 100 per cent effective, hoped to be able to report today that the valve on every one of the 160 producing wells in the field had been turned.

The complete shutdown in the East Texas field, together with the complete stoppage of crude oil production in Oklahoma by Governor William Murray's martial law order, had resulted today in cutting off two-fifths of the entire output in the country. Production in East Texas alone before the shut down averaged approximately 750,000 barrels daily. Recent production in Oklahoma boosted the entire oil curtailment of the nation to about 1,000,000 barrels daily.

Mid-Continent operators were closely watching the effects of the sharp cut in production to see if it would bring relief to the depressed petroleum industry. The first move along this line came yesterday from the Morgan Petroleum Company in Oklahoma. The company increased its offer for Oklahoma oil to 77 cents, a boost of 25 cents.

Indications that General Wolters was preparing for a long campaign came with the permanency of construction of the mess halls in the East Texas military zone.

Governor Sterling has made it clear he will be guided by the speed with which the Railroad Commission can promulgate its orders under the new conservation law passed at the recent special session of the Legislature. Governor Murray on the other hand, has declared his martial law will remain in effect until the refiners hike their price to $1 a barrel.

General Wolters extended leniency last night to the first man arrested in the military zone for disobedience of the shut down order when he became convinced the offender had no knowledge of the proclamation. The man, Ed Mayer, pumper on an outlying lease, was held several hours for questioning before being released.

Meantime, prices for East Texas crude seemed to be taking a hurried upward trend. A contract between a Houston independent and an Oklahoma refiner for 200,000 barrels of crude at 53 cents was reported.

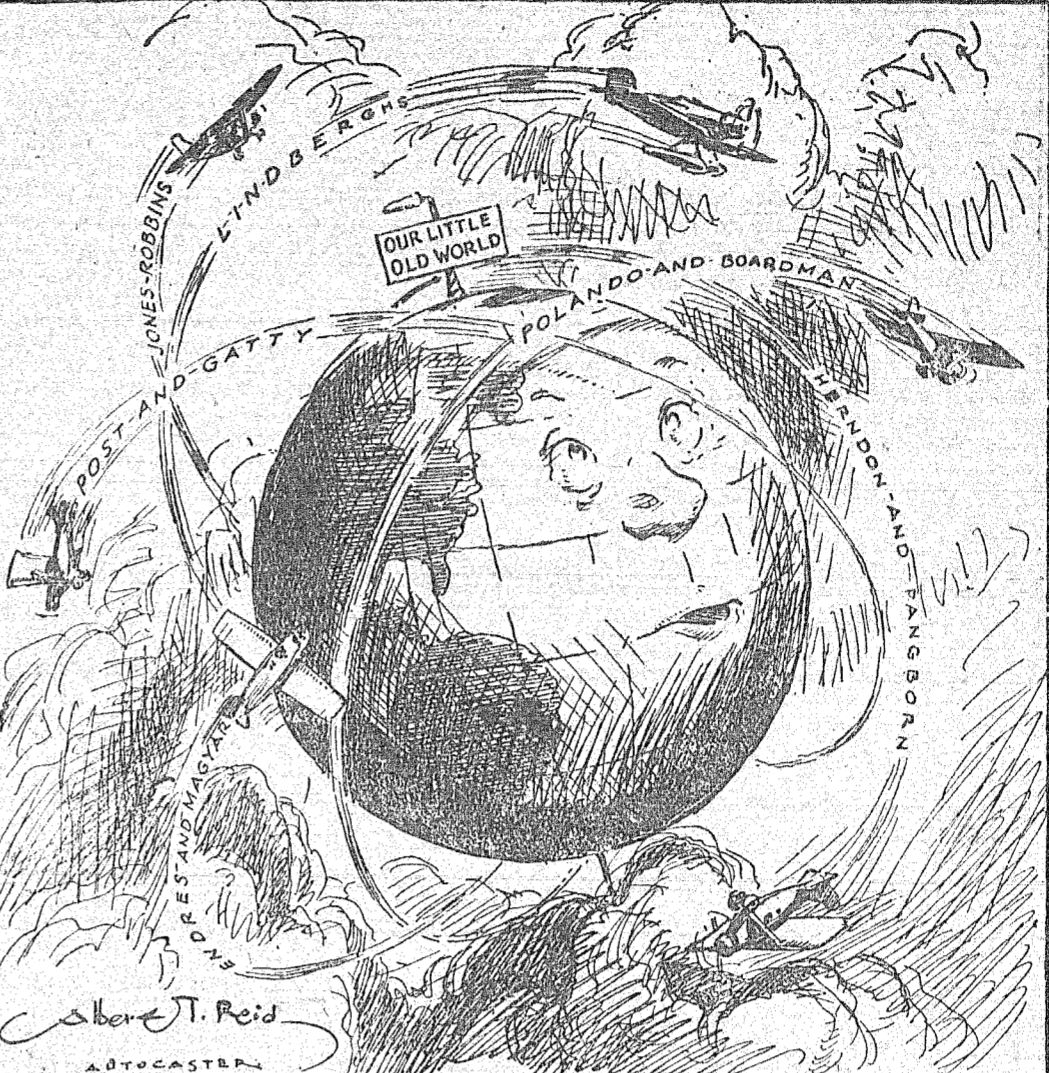

In addition, reports from the field last night were that Kilgore storage was being held at prices ranging from 60 to 65 cents. A large amount of oil previously moved at 7 1-2 and 10 cents.

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

"I WAS WRONG"

Like many other business men, I subscribe to a confidential bulletin issued by a private news agency in Washington.

It contains interesting comment on affairs both here and abroad, gathered from official sources and from important visitors to the Capital. No one is quoted by name and hence the writers of the bulletin can exercise considerable freedom. Sometimes their information is useful.

In a recent number they answered certain questions as to how they get their news. I quote the following paragraph:

"For example, take the Washington predictions as to when business will recover. There have been two kinds. First, the formal publishable statements of officials, which the newspapers have carried. Second, the unofficial, private, more sincere views which the Washington correspondents have known but were under obligations not to print. We have sent you the latter. Our advices have been less wrong than most, but not particularly good at that, and this is one example of why you should not trust our letters 100 per cent.

That made a great hit with me. The writers had said: "We misled you a little about the time of the business recovery, still our competitors were much worse."

The King Is Ill

The suggestion of the Georgia congressman that the cotton farmer destroy every third member of the farm board is about as sensible as most of the plans and theories that have been advanced to take up the slack in the cotton market.

We have had suggestions ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous, mostly the latter, about what to do to save the cotton farmer from himself.

Persons who never saw a lock of growing cotton including a majority of the farm board, no doubt are perfectly willing to give the farmer a lesson on how to run his business.

It is, after all, largely an individual problem. The farmer who did not plant any cotton this year, but concentrated on crops that he could eat or feed out or sell at a profit, can laugh up his sleeve at the antics of the self-appointed saviors of the

if they had written any sort of alibi at all, every word would have lessened my confidence.

But when they came out frankly and said: "We were wrong, and you should never depend on us 100 per cent.," then I begin to think they must be pretty smart men.

I have never forgotten an experience with one of my first employers, a man who is now at the very top of his profession:

In those days I was getting $40 a week, and he was earning $40,000 a year. He lived in a fine apartment on Park Avenue, and I lived in one room in the YMCA.

One morning early I was called out of bed to answer the telephone. It was my employer. He said:

"After you left the office last night I hunted up some additional information on the subject we had been discussing. I tried to reach you during the evening, but you were out. I am calling you now to let you know that you were right, and I was wrong."

You can imagine what that did to me! I would have jumped off the roof for that boss, and I never meet him even now without an impulse to raise my hat.

Little fellows feel that they must be infallible in order to maintain the world's respect. It is a badge of bigness to be able to say frankly, "I was wrong."

cotton grower. It is no laughing matter for the cotton grower goodness knows. In all too many instances it is stark tragedy. Many of them plant cotton under compulsion of the landlord or money lender. Such a farmer is caught in a net which his struggles only enmesh him the tighter. His problem is a state and national one, and his rescue depends on outside assistance.

In one day alone—the day the government announced the crop estimate—the value of the farmer's potential cotton crop was reduced $75,000,000. It is small wonder that almost everybody in the South is interested in the progress of the battle to save the cotton farmer from economic ruin. Cotton is King, and when the king falls ill, everybody is sick.—Abilene Morning Reporter.

A Knox county farmer harvested nine thousand bushels of wheat on three hundred acres this season.

SUMMER FIRST AID

The day's outing for Mamma and the kiddies... Over on the creek four miles west, Red Cross Day too—for Mamma. She should be prepared, wisely.

For there's Bob, he just will drive and he's on the sunny side of the Ford; gets sunburn on the left ear, till it looks like a wheat cake right off the griddle.

Then Junior, always an explorer, picks up a locust thorn in his most prominent muscle—it penetrates half an inch.

And Clarice, fond of butterflies, gets stung on the upper lip by a new species that she finds buzzing over the horsemint bloom.

Little Mary insists on carrying the lunch basket many times too heavy for her—trips over a bump—takes off a section of epidermis from one fat knee.

Tom, the profound, none too energetic and peppy—picks up at least a pint of chiggers—and they ALL depend on MAMMA for first aid. All run to Mamma when in distress.

On that day's outing, take along a kit containing, (1) scissors; (2) a roll of clean adhesive plaster; (3) a bottle of mercurochrome; (4) clean muslin or gauze for bandages; (5) a splinter forcep; (6) a bottle of carbolated vaseline; (7) a can of antiseptic dusting powder. Don't rely on liquid vegetable antiseptics,—most of them are power less for killing germs. If a finger is cut, let it bleed awhile; then pour mercurochrome into the cut and around it. Dry quickly and apply adhesive plaster to close the wound. Treat "skinned" abrasions much the same, except carbolated vaseline on gauze next the wound.

For the thorn in Junior's flesh bump—takes off a section of epidermis from one fat knee.

—pull it out with splinter forcep; soak the puncture with mercurochrome; cover with adhesive. Treat the chiggers and sunburn at home. Carbolic soap and cold cream applied freely.

TEXAS LEAGUE UMPES SOLD

Wichita Falls, Texas, Aug. 19.—The second promotion within a week of a Texas League umpire was announced by President J. Alvin Gardner today in the sale of George Barr to the National League. Barr's sale follows close upon that of Harry Kane, 12 year veteran of the staff, to the Pacific Coast League a few days ago.

Barr is to remain in the Texas League until August 28 when he represents the National League in the American Legion junior series at Houston. Following this series he will report to the major league circuit to finish the season.

Gardner and Harvey had watched his work at Ardmore and their recommendation that he be purchased was carried out the following season by the late J. Doak Roberts. Barr had served the league continuously since the start of the 1926 season.

INTERNATIONAL CANNING CONTEST

A BALANCED MEAL IN GLASS

The International Canning Contest is offering splendid prizes for the best entry in the Balanced Meal Class. There are to be other prizes, too, for entries in the fruit, vegetable, meat, pickle, unusual packs, and jams and jellies classes. Over 1,400 prizes with almost $5,000.00 in cash will be awarded. The contest is open to any woman or girl. Full particulars for entering the contest may be had by writing to Mrs. Grace Viell Gray, Leveson, Aurora, Illinois.

Imagine having a whole dinner ready in jars to be brought out whenever you need it. That is what many of our housewives can plan today. It takes all the worry out of serving unexpected guests. Then too, it lets the housewife prepare her meal on the day when she has more time so that when she is rushed she has only to take her meal from glass jars. Our meal may not include the nuts but it does include soup. And there are so many delicious soups which may include any number of kinds. Any favorite soup may be canned. Chicken broth or gumbo or the more hearty fish chowder as well as beef bouillon may all find their way into glass jars. Soups are processed for 3 1-2 hours in boiling water, or for 50 minutes to an hour at 15 pounds pressure in a steam pressure cooker.

After soup comes the main part of the meal which may include any meat you may wish. If you have never tasted home canned meats you've no idea how good they are! Just every kind of meat may be canned: Beef stew, hamburger, roast or boiled steak. There may be chops, spare ribs or roast. Veal and lamb are great favorites. When the flock of chickens are culled they may all be canned at once. They may be prepared as stew, roast or fried. Accompanying the meat may be one of a dozen or more vegetables: tomatoes, okra, corn, peas, lima or string beans, asparagus, beets, spinach, kraut, squash or sweet potatoes. One of these vegetables may be made into a crisp, delicious salad, serving with a favorite dressing. With this meal we may add some lovely pickles. There are so many to choose from, for the housewife likes to keep a variety on her cellar shelf.

The meal will include a jam or jelly. What a splendid variety there is to choose from: strawberry jam, plum butter, raspberry or blackberry jam, orange marmalade or what have you.

For dessert there are the home canned fruits. She will choose the kind which is most suitable to follow the main part of her meal. These may be served either plain, with simple cookies or cake, or made into a pudding, cobbler or pie.

One little widowed mother, who teaches during the year, tells how she meets the demands on her time and money by raising a garden in the summer and then canning these vegetables and fruits for winter use. "I could never manage with my three children, who are in school if these foods were not all ready for us to use when we get home for our meals. I know, too, that they are good for the children." A balanced meal in glass is a great convenience.

Only a Crisis Brings Tax Relief

A stir of concern in governmental circles in Washington, has occurred over the suggestion that a logical way to reduce the cost of government is to cut the federal, state, county and municipal salaries 10 to 20 per cent. Over five million persons are shown in a partial list of public employes. All are citizens and voters. It is not at all probable that any reduction in numbers or salaries will result except by the ultimate action of the people. Once boards, commissions and public payrolls are established, little help can be secured from public officials, who depend on votes to hold their positions, to reduce official overhead.

An army of public employes is one of the greatest dangers that follow paternalism in government—tax consumers can then control elections and in a large measure determined the income they shall receive from the taxpayers. Only when a crisis develops and the common citizen revolts against confiscatory taxation, is any relief secure.

Visiting Here From Dallas

J. J. Gregg and family have as their guest this week, one J. D. Owens, a nephew, who has not been in their home since 1912. Mr. Owens' home is in Dallas, where he has lived since departing from the Gregg home some nineteen years. His main business is playing golf, while he draws pay each month from the Dallas Street Railway Company, and is listed as being one of the Claim agents and adjusters. In other words, when a "shee-nigger" or some other animal, such as they have running at large there in Dallas, gets frightened at one of those street car conductors and jumps out the window of a street car sideways, endways or some other ways, and sues the company for any sum not less than fifty thousand plunks, J. D.'s duties are to go out and look up said nigger, or whatever it be, offer a settlement composed of medium grade molasses, rayon hosiery, Levi Garret's mouth satisfaction or some other commodity, in any sum not to exceed fifteen dollars, gross, except in particular instances, a few complimentary passes on the street car, to and from such places such niggers or other such like, if any, usually go and come. At any rate, J. D. is promised a good time fishing on the Colorado River a couple of nights during the week, provided, however, he sleeps with his feet exposed as a preventative for mosquitoes for the remainder of the party.

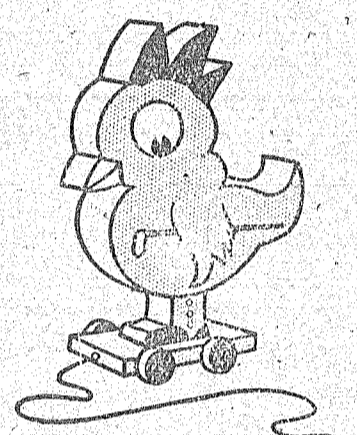

Jim Brown and family, of Silver Valley, were shopping in Santa Anna, last Friday.

J. O. Martin, of Abilene was in our town on Friday of last week.

SOUR STOMACH
 JUST a tasteless dose of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali, effective yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for 50 years. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It's the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill all the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Be sure to get the genuine. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's a way—Castoria! Harmless as the ripple on the water, mild and bland as tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine. That's the beauty of this specific children's remedy! It may be given to the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

POISON in Your bowels!

Poisons absorbed into the system from soiling waste in the bowels cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; cost the sufferer foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied constipation for over forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drugstore sell.

BULL WHIP USED TO FORCE CONFESSION

The Indians who roamed the vast plains and hills of the far west before the coming of the white settlers had many legends which were virtually laws for them. Among these many legends was one which said that when two people were accused of a crime that they would be put into a locked room with only one weapon. The survivor of the battle would be declared innocent.

In the "The Cheyenne Kid", now playing at the Queen for two days, this legend was fully shown with the astounding result of doing just as the Indians had wanted it to do. The innocent party survived the conflict. Instead of guns or knives or similar weapons, a bull whip was the weapon chosen. Gorman and Buck Allen are put in the cell and with the aid of the bull whip, Allen forces a confession from Gorman that eventually ## leads to his downfall.

Buffalo Bill Jr. is ably supported by such stars as Yakima Canutt, Joan Jaccard, Jack Mower, Frank Ellis and Tom Foreman.

Many children have been named after an older person, but ZaSu Pitts was named after two. Her two aunts were named respectively Eliza and Susan, so the parents of the new baby, wishing to honor both relatives, combined the two last letters of "Eliza" and the two first letters of "Susan" into the entirely unique name of "ZaSu."

The moral of this little tale seems to be, "Don't interview motion picture stars on the subject of romance" (or else—well—).

Twelve years ago Ruth Helms interviewed Conrad Nagel for Photoplay Magazine, and the actor promptly decided to marry her—which he did! (Perhaps, on second thought, this will probably cause innumerable young ladies to decide to become magazine inter-viewers.) Nagel's latest screen appearance is in the leading male role of "Bad Sister" which opens an engagement at the Queen Theatre on the first of next week.

him found him wandering about on the mountain wondering where he was. After drinking the first gallon of lemonade he was told that it had been spiked and he was dizzy and trying to make the speeches for everybody in a few minutes time.

Dr. Lovelady was reported to have won his match with Bill Thate and the doctor said Bill didn't hit but one ball and one of them went in the wrong direction. Bill Mitchell says he will never play another match game unless he can have a big gallery to watch the performance and "Red" Hosh is desirous of having fifteen or twenty good looking young ladies to witness his graceful salutes when enters the next tournament.

The only time Oscar Cheaney was ever known to try to sing was after he had stuffed himself with barbecued goat and then he opened up just like a mocking bird. Seventy-five pounds of chevon was used and several invited guests were present and everybody reports a good time at the expense of the losers.

One other very prominent citizen of Santa Anna, and would-be golfer was present but on account of not having but one quart of homebrew his starter wouldn't turn his motor over so he was so tame we won't mention his name. It is said that the city commission had been asked to extend a small line to the golf course but had declined, but after he had been filled with goat and lemonade, Water Commissioner J. Ed. Bartlett offered to lay a six inch main and put in a fire hydrant.

Emmett Day, another would-be golfer, might in time learn something about the game, tho he would never give a real golfer much trouble. If he did not spend so much of his time trying to sell stock in his "Pepstone Company." By seeing him now you can get in on the ground floor and get a limited amount of the stock at par value. This And That

By Jimmy

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray, Oklahoma's moustached, tobacco chewing governor, continues his march to a new publicity record for governors. To date Governor Murray has received more columns of newspaper publicity for such a short time in office than any other governor in a decade or more.

He may not be so hot as an oil price-fixer, but at least he's persistent—and he may win yet. We didn't take him seriously in Texas until he engaged Governor Sterling in that little bridge game, where Mr. Murray played the hand and Mr. Sterling played the dummy. Since then—well, he's more than an ordinary attraction, he's in demand. In Weatherford, Texas, last week people came for miles around to see and hear what this governor who has a way of his own had to say. People are funny that way.

But even the governor of Oklahoma had to take a back seat when Mr. Legs Diamond, the well known New York gangster, hoodlum or what have you, made a bid for page one.

Mr. Diamond is going to move to Atlanta for a few years, upon invitation of the warden of the federal penitentiary of that city, to "Come on down and be one of us."

JOE GISH OIL
ABOUT THE ONLY THING THAT IS EASY TO COLLECT THESE PAYS IS A CROWD

Mr. Diamond has—of had—been playing the little game of "Pleased or Displeased?" with Uncle Sam, and Uncle Sam said he was displeased and ordered Mr. Diamond to Atlanta. Mr. Diamond, being an obliging sort of fellow, will play the game. Everybody will appreciate the kindness of this gangster—they can't be too good to the government.

With "Legs" Diamond apparently satisfied, the government now wants to embrace the cotton growers and shower them with bureaucratic affection. The Federal Farm Board wants cotton growers to plow under every third row of cotton—in an effort to save the farmer. The farm board has relieved the farmer of everything but a few acres of land and plenty of mortgages and hopes that the farmer will relieve them of surplus cotton by plowing theirs (the farmers) under.
