How's that? Crossing

Q. Are we supposed to cross the street between the Courthouse and the annex in the middle of the street or at the corners?

A. Crossing in the middle of the street is against the law — besides it's safer to cross at the corner where there are lights, said Big Spring Police Officer Bruce Morgan.

911 emergency code a possibility

Officials ponder local system

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
A Howard County 911 emergency telephone system is possible within two years with the installation of a new Southwestern Bell phone system, an official said.

City Manager Mack Wofford said at the City Council meeting Tuesday that officials are considering such an emergency system. Assistant Police Chief Lonnie Smith is scheduled to study the matter in Houston next week, Wofford said.

Governor Bill Clements signed a bill May 28 instigating a state-wide 911 system, said Doug Vocelle, legislative assistant to State Rep. Larry Don Shaw.

Participation is optional for counties of population less than 120,000, said Bill Gilliland, area manager/community relations for the Southwestern Bell Abilene district office.

The legislation establishes a state advisory committee and regional planning commissions to work together to implement the system, he said.

A fee of not more than 50 cents per telephone line will be charged customers in communities that have the system.

Under previous rules, a county was required to have at least 75,000 population to install the system, he said.

Citizens in smaller communities must vote for the system in a county-wide election, Gilliland said, adding that not every community in a county is required to participate.

The 911 system cost $300,000 to install and $9,000 to $12,000 per month for usage in Abilene, Gilliland said. He expects the Howard County cost would be less because of the number of residents.

Under a 911 system, a citizen can dial that number during an emergency. The dispatcher then notifies the proper authority — ambulance, fire department, police or sheriff's office, and help is then sent.

A computer automatically reveals the address and phone number of the call, in case the caller is unable to tell the dispatcher where he is, Gilliland said.

That feature also helps avoid false calls, he added.

A local governing group would work with the various telephone companies in the area, handle the money involved, determine what equipment is needed and where it will be installed, he said.

Organizers say Heart of City fest a success

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Heart of the City festival organizers appear to be in agreement concerning the success of the Saturday celebration, and more than $2,000 was raised for the Christmas in June fund.

Such comments as a "real success" and a "much, much bigger success" reflect the attitudes of coordinators Teri Quinones and Elaine Oliver.

Quinones estimated that between 5,000 and 6,000 people attended the Festival Saturday, and approximately $11,000 was generated by the more than 60 booths that took part.

Elaine Oliver, who helped organize the festival and is among the event's founders, said that it was a "much, much bigger success than last year."

"It was a real success because of the street dance. Jody Nix and his band played straight through until midnight, and the weather cooperated this year," Quinones said.

She said that all money raised by the festival committee will go toward next year's event.

Oliver pointed to the Final Shoot-out, Gram Bryan's Jazz Trio, and the Muzzle Loader's demonstration as highlights of this year's event.

She thought the weather helped attendance. "People were ready to get out of the house, what with the wierd weather we've had lately," Oliver said. "The turnout this year was much better than last year."

Booth operators were also pleased with the event. Jason Campbell of Stagecoach Gifts said that the effort was worthwhile.

"Our sales weren't as good as last year, but that's only because we had a lot more competition this year," he said. "We'll do it again next year, without a

Summer creativity

Impromptu activities can be the most fun at times, as two Big Spring youths may confirm. Two golf clubs and an empty snuff container were converted to street hockey gear Tuesday when Clinton Caudill, 9, left in the top photo and Jeff Gregory, 8, amused themselves on College Avenue. Clinton is the son of Craig and Kathy Caudill; Jeff is the son of Thomas and Brenda Gregory.

Gib Lewis pushes lottery, sales tax boost

Dallas Times Herald Bureau
AUSTIN — With lawmakers returning to the Capitol in less than two weeks for a special session on the budget, House Speaker Gib Lewis said Wednesday the Legislature should reconsider adopting a lottery and expanding the sales tax to solve the state's fiscal crisis.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby endorsed the plan to revive the revenue measures that died in the House during the five-month regular session that ended last week. A spokesman for Gov. Bill Clements said the governor opposed expanding the sales tax base in the 30-day special session to begin June 22.

Clements has vowed to veto any tax measures producing more than the $2.9 billion that would be raised through an extension of the current 5 percent sales tax and 15-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax. Lewis said he believes lawmakers will have to exceed the governor's limit.

"It's going to be very difficult to stay with that bottom line," Lewis said after a meeting with the governor to discuss budget issues. "I think the cuts would be devastating ... if we stayed with that bottom line."

Lewis said adequate funds for public schools, higher education and nursing home care would require spending more on state services than Clements wants. To raise sufficient funds, Lewis said, legislators will be forced to re-examine the lottery and sales tax proposals.

"The only place you have to get the money is hopefully lottery or maybe increasing the (sales tax) rate and the base," he said.

The speaker dismissed the position of Clements and many lawmakers who contend rewriting laws to expand the sales tax base to goods and services not now taxed would be difficult for the Legislature to do in special session.

"There's nothing impossible when you get your back against the wall," Lewis said. "We've got our back against the wall at this point. We're going to have to do something. To raise the amount of money that's going to have to be raised, that's about the only place you can go."

Although a proposed constitutional amendment to permit a state lottery was defeated last month, Lewis said he believes lawmakers should reconsider the issue.

Summer projects occupy children

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Area organizations have several activities and programs planned for children this summer.

They range from day camps to summer school, and officials say there are enough activities to keep even the most energetic youngster busy.

For the working parent, the YMCA Day Camp Program is a possible alternative to babysitters. General Director Wallace Gill says that supervised activities, such as swimming, arts and crafts and field trips are planned.

The program will have a different theme every week, and Gill said that field trips are planned in conjunction with the themes.

Aside from the trips, there will be regularly scheduled events such as swimming, gymnastics, and arts and crafts. Gill added that the basketball and handball courts are also open.

The program, which is open to the public, is held from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily. It costs $40 a week for members and $45 for non-members, according to Gill.

Mike Bragg, program director for Howard County 4-H said that his organization has plenty of activities planned this summer.

The highlight, according to Bragg, will be the annual Howard County 4-H AJRA Rodeo, July 30-August 1 at the Rodeo Bowl here. Approximately 300 entries are expected, Bragg said.

Open meetings

Public business everybody's business

Editor's note: Recent local statements and developments have indicated that the Texas Open Meetings Law is not well understood — by some public officials and citizens. So the Herald is providing a two-part series on the law and recent action on it in the Legislature. This is the first of those two parts.

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

The people, in delegating authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is good for them not to know.

— Texas Open Meetings Law.

The intention of the Texas Open Meetings Code is, as stated above, to make sure that the government's business is everybody's business.

To bolster the ideal of openness in government, Texas law prescribes stiff penalties for violation of the Open Meetings Law.

Big Spring and Howard County officials say they make sure to abide by the law.

"We are very aware of all the requirements of the city under the Open Meetings Act," said Big Spring City Secretary Tom Ferguson.

The penalties for deliberate violation of the act are fines of $100 to $500 and one to six months in jail.

In addition, the law prescribes the proper and improper ways of discussing public business.

State law prohibits any gathering of a quorum — usually defined as a majority — of a governmental body to deliberate public business, unless the meeting is conducted in public and with proper notice.

The law also prohibits deliberation of public business by fewer than a quorum.

In other words, it is against the law for members of a governmental body to deliberate over the phone matters that will come before the body for a decision.

The law allows members of a governing body to meet in workshops and social gatherings, if there is no deliberation of public business.

Agencies are required to post notice of all regularly scheduled and emergency meetings, specifying the time, place and subject matter of the meeting.

Most governmental bodies must give 72 hours notice for regular meetings, and must be posted in a location accessible to the public during the entire 72 hours.

Emergency meetings may be called with two hours notice; and items may be added to the agenda with two hours notice — provided the supplemental notice tells why the added subjects are considered emergency issues.

County Judge William Kirby said the County Commissioners rarely have closed or emergency meetings. During his three years as judge, the commissioners have had two closed sessions and one emergency session, he said.

Ferguson said that the city attorney is consulted before the city calls an emergency meeting.

"We try to stay away from any emergency or specially called meetings, whatsoever," Ferguson said.

The law requires county governmental bodies to post a notice at the county courthouse; city governmental bodies must post notice at City Hall; and a school district must post notice at the OPEN MEETINGS page 2A

Fire marshal to report to new official

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Big Spring's new fire marshal, when appointed, will be reporting to Assistant City Manager Mack Wofford in an effort to improve code enforcement, city official said.

Police, fire, airport and emergency management departments now report to Boyd, and the fire marshal will join that list after a procedural change, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

Boyd also serves as manager of the Big Spring Airport and emergency management.

Wofford is renewing applications for the fire marshal position, recently vacated when Jim Boyd retired. Wofford said 11 candidates from throughout the state have applied.

The reviewing process should take "at least one month," he said.

Previously, the fire marshal reported to the public works director, Tom Decell, Wofford said.

Fire Department Capt. Alex Calvio said the fire marshal is responsible for inspecting buildings for fire safety and enforcing codes concerning weedy lots and dilapidated buildings.

Wofford said a goal of the change is to increase code enforcement. He expects 70 percent of the new fire marshal's time will be devoted to that duty.

The public has indicated it wants stricter enforcement of the weedy lots and dilapidated buildings codes, he said.

He said building inspections and zoning questions will remain under the public works department and Chief Inspector Dewey Byers.

Personnel Director Emily Bogard said applicants for the position of fire marshal are:

- Ronald Baird, 40, Big Spring, R.B. Finishing and Construction.

- Larry Beadle of Auto Sports and Promotion in Dallas.

- David Cooke, 38, butcher, 1001 Market in Ozona.

- Howard Crocker, 84, Big Spring, fire chief.

- John Dorton, 39, of Big Spring, Fire Department.

- Victoria Eddleman, 38, fire inspector in the City of Belton.

- Royce Griffin, 50, of Abilene, fire inspector.

- Kenneth Lawhon, Odessa, fire inspector.

- Clifford Powell, 38, fire safety inspector in South Padre Island.

- Bobby Williams, 33, of Wichita Falls, Odessa.

- Colton Wright, 35, Coahoma, Milliken Roustabout.

Department to raise part of highway

Herald staff report

The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation approved a contract Wednesday to raise a section of Highway 87 north of Lubbock. The project is due to recent heavy rains, said Randall Dillard of the department's Lubbock office.

The section of highway, 10 miles north of Lubbock, has been under three and a half feet of water for the past two weeks. Dillard said.

The section of highway for a two-mile section of the highway to be raised five and a half feet. Dillard said that construction started last Friday and could be completed in three months, weather permitting.

The added that officials of the department hope to have one lane of traffic open to traffic in two weeks.

Dam bridge approved

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

The Texas Highway Commission has approved construction of a $3.3 million bridge over the Concho River near the Stacy reservoir site.

Colorado River Municipal Water District General Manager Owen Ivey gave District board members the news Tuesday.

The District will pay up to $2.4 million for the bridge construction and the relocation of a road and the Texas Highway Commission will cover the remainder of the cost.

Although a costly venture, Water District officials say the structure will save motorists a 25-mile trip from one side of the river to the other.

The bridge will be located approximately a half mile west of the present low water crossing, CRMW District Secretary Joe Pickle said.

The bridge will be covered with water until the dam project is completed, he said.

Ray Stoker of the Texas Highway Commission told the commission that he approved construction of the bridge during the May 16 State Highway Board meeting in Austin.

The commission originally voted to build a road south of Farm-to-Market Road 1000 to shorten the distance to the other side of the river. Some of several proposals submitted by the CRMW.

CRMW District Secretary Joe Pickle said today he didn't expect construction of the bridge to begin for at least a year.

The bridge is expected to be completed prior to completion of Stacy Dam, Texas Highway Commission member Stoker said from Odessa.

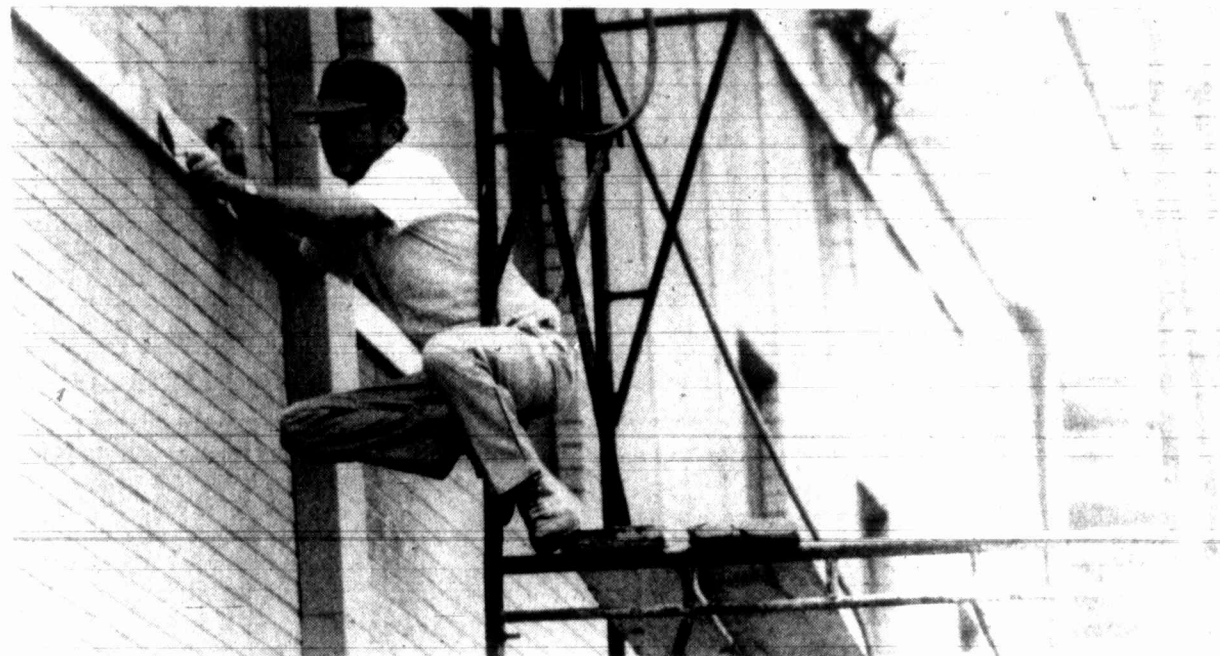

Plans and specifications are being drawn, he said.

doubt." Craig Bailey, of the Leadership Big Spring program, was also pleased with participation in the festival.

"This was our first outing at the festival, and we did real well," he said. "We started getting busy about 10 a.m., and we stayed busy all day long."

He estimated that his booth raised $800 and said

"We'll definitely be back next year."

The Chamber of Commerce sponsored a raised approximately $2,500 for the Chamber's Christmas decoration fund. Executive vice-president LeRoy Tiller said.

He said that $3,400 was raised for the Chamber. Tiller added that the Chamber was considering other possibilities, including a golf tournament, to raise additional revenue.

Big Spring Independent School District summer school classes are available to students through July 14, high school principal Murray Murphy said.

Junior high school students in grades 7-8 can retake courses in math, science or language.

Students in grades 9-12 can retake courses in math, English, government or economics.

It is still possible to register for the second session of the summer school program, June 22 through July 14, Murphy said.

Classes are offered from 7 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the high school. Murphy district's central administrative offices.

Actions taken without prior notice may be voided if challenged in court.

As with most rules, there are exceptions — in this case to allow closed meetings. These executive sessions, however, cannot occur unless the agency has first met in open session with proper prior notice.

Before meeting in secret, the agency must give its reason for doing so; and no votes or final actions may be taken in closed session.

These exceptions allow a governmental body to move into executive session:

- To consult with an attorney on contemplated or pending litigation, or on settlement offers and similar matters.

- To discuss personnel matters, in which issues concerning individual employees may be discussed. An employee, however, may demand that his hearing be public.

- To prevent interference with negotiations. Governmental bodies may close a meeting to discuss the purchase, exchange, lease or donation of property when public discussion would have a detrimental effect on the government's negotiating position.

- To discuss security devices and security personnel.

- To deliberate discipline for students. Such meetings, however, must be open upon the request of the student.

- To discuss information made confidential by a statute.

In addition, the law lists three more exceptions.

- The Open Meetings Act does not apply to agencies financed by the federal government.

- Medical boards and committees need not meet publicly. Such meetings would require disclosure of the psychiatric records of individual applying for a license to benefit from a public health system.

- School districts may meet in secret with representatives in negotiations with labor groups.

According to Dr. Eugene L. Hargrett, a professor at the University of Texas at Arlington, law enforcers are eager to use the law against local and state officials.

"In those instances in which charges have been filed, officials have interpreted the law in a way that makes it difficult for the officials guilty."

"Nevertheless, the threat of filing a complaint may bring officials into compliance with the Open Meetings Law," Shumaker said.

Plea in abatement not expected to alter suit

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

A plea in abatement granted Wednesday will not substantially change the firefighters' suit against the city, said District Judge Jim Gregg.

Gregg granted the plea in abatement in 118th District Court.

The action means the Big Spring Firefighters Retirement Board is dropped from the suit, but the suit continues as a class action, he said.

The board filed the suit in a dispute over how much the city must contribute to the firefighters' retirement fund.

Firefighters say the city is required by state law to match as much as 9 percent of salary reductions for retirement. The city matched that amount, but only after decreasing base salaries to do so.

Officials had decreed firefighters could have either a raise or an increase in retirement benefits. The salaries were cut when firefighters voted to increase the percentage, after the raise was granted.

Firefighters Nolan Beall and Gene Brown are named in the class action suit, city's attorney Drew Mouton has said. However, Gregg said, any firefighter can enter it.

Those named in a class action suit represent everyone in a similar situation, Mouton has said — if the firefighters win, all of them will benefit.

Mouton filed the plea in abatement, contending the firefighters retirement board is not the proper party to file a suit concerning firefighter salaries.

A hearing date of 9 a.m. July 21 has been set to decide the case.

The hearing is expected to be a summary judgment, which are granted when the dispute is over interpretation of the law, not a question of fact, Mouton explained.

He believes attorneys for both sides will agree on what happened, but disagree over "how the law treats what happened," he has said.

No testimony is expected at the hearing, he said. A written statement of the facts will be presented to the judge, who will rule on the law.

The judge may not rule at the hearing, but take a week or so to review the case and notify participants by telephone, he said.

Big Spring Mall to add movie theatre complex

The number of theatres in Big Spring doubled a week ago, and more are to come.

Big Spring Mall manager Bryan Touchstone announced today that Touchstone Corporation will open a "Cinema 4 Theatre" at Big Spring Mall sometime in early fall.

Touchstone said construction on the movie theatre complex will begin in July, and will take approximately 120 days.

The new theatre will be located in the southwest section of the mall, next to J.C. Penney, he said.

The former location of "The Great Shack" is scheduled to be razed. The rest of the 8,000 sq. ft. complex will be on existing vacant space.

"The theatres are a very welcome addition to our mall and the city of Big Spring. They greatly enhance the recreational possibilities for people who like to go out and see a good movie," Touchstone said.

Touchstone said he did not yet know how many employees would be hired for the complex.

Last week, the Cinema Theatre in College Park Shopping Center re-opened under new ownership. Assuming neither the Ritz Theatre nor the Cinema Theatre close, and the plans at the Big Spring Mall go as scheduled, Big Spring will have eight commercial movie screens in action next fall.

Galey appointed county sanitarian

COLORADO CITY — J.L. Galey has been appointed county sanitarian by the Mitchell County Commissioners Court.

Galey replaces Jerry Hammond, who resigned because of time constraints.

He will be in charge of permits for private sewage systems, and will be paid $8 an hour on a part-time basis.

In other business Monday, commissioners approved the purchase of a new rotary shredder for precinct 1 from Costin Implement Co., of Colorado City in the amount of $5,595. Other bidders included Godsey Equipment Co. of Abilene, $5,595, and Key Brothers of Snyder and Colorado City, $5,632.01.

Center begins pre-school program

COLORADO CITY — The Wallace Community Education Center will begin a pre-school summer program for children ages three and over beginning June 22, and continuing through July 21.

The program will be Mondays and Tuesdays from 8 a.m. to noon and is limited to 20 children.

Summer director is Debbie Goforth with MaryLou Mendez, Bobby Taylor and Mendy Conner as youth assistants.

Activities will include creative play, motor skills, recreation, getting along with other and refreshments.

Alexander named girl's coach

COLORADO CITY — Eddie Wayne Alexander of Robert Lee has been named girl's athletic coordinator by the Colorado Independent School District.

Alexander, has coached at Robert Lee the past four years, and has four years experience in Abilene. Alexander will be employed 230 days a year and will be paid $4,946 extra for his coaching duties.

Alexander holds a bachelor of science degree from McMurry College in Abilene with a major in physical education and a minor in English and history.

In board action Monday night, the resignations of long-time CISD employees, Billie Margaret Harrison and Dell Riley were accepted. Harrison, a secretary at Kelley Elementary, has been employed for 21 years. Riley, has been employed for 23 years, the last 13 as Hutchinson Elementary principal.

The board accepted the lone bid of $62,000 submitted by L.M. Dawson for the three bedroom brick house constructed by the building trades class at Colorado High School.

Supt. Charlie Uselton said the house had been appraised at $60,000 and $65,000 by two different appraisers.

The board gave permission to advertise for bids for the renovation of the high school library. Uselton said there is $12,000 in the budget for enclosing the library from the hallway.

For the record

The Herald incorrectly named the source of water for Coahoma. The city of Coahoma gets its water from the Howard County Water Control and Improvement District No. 1.

In the same story, it was incorrectly stated that the Coahoma water treatment plant had passed inspection. It should have been the waste water treatment plant.

Judges told to resign

AUSTIN — Two Texas Supreme Court justices who were officially rebuked this week should step down to renew the public's faith in the system, say Gov. Bill Clements and the state legislator who led an investigation of the court.

"I am calling for their immediate resignation to attempt to restore some confidence to the state Supreme Court," said Sen. Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio. "The two justices ... should recognize that they can no longer function effectively on the court."

If Justices C.L. Ray and William Kilgartin won't resign, impeachment proceedings should be studied, Tejeda said Wednesday.

"Should they be impeached? I would not discount that at all. And certainly, that is a question for the Legislature to determine," he told a news conference.

Clements press secretary Reggie Bashur said Wednesday that the governor, too, believes the two justices should resign.

Employee foils theft

No one likes to question the boss, but the order was a bit unusual.

Instead of fish and chips or the Captain's Seafood Platter, the caller asked for $1,400 in cash, saying he was a regional supervisor for Captain D's Seafood Restaurants, police said.

When someone arrived to pick up the money, so did police.

Bridget Wilkerson, 26, of the 2100 block of Marfa Avenue, was released from Lew Sterrett Justice Center Wednesday after being charged with the misdemeanor of attempted theft by deception. Dallas police swindle unit investigator S.M. Haines said.

The attempted theft Tuesday from the Captain D's at 2311 Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd.

was the second to be foiled at the restaurant this year.

Police say the seafood chain's Dallas outlets have been the target of five ruses this year, including two that were successful. On Feb. 25, the Captain D's at 2621 S. Westmoreland Road lost $1,170, and on May 5 the restaurant at 3606 S. Polk St. lost $900.

Clock-sign to be relit

FORT WORTH — The giant revolving clock-sign that has adorned the top of the Texas Building as a downtown landmark for 31 years will be turned on again in early July as part of a restoration of the office building.

When the Texas Building celebrated its grand opening in 1956 as the city's first skyscraper, its 30-story rooftop was adorned by a revolving cube flashing up-to-the-minute time on what was then thought to be the world's largest clock.

The massive digital clock stood 28 feet tall and 44 feet wide, gracing two faces of the cube, while the giant letters "CNB" lighted up the other two to identify the building's primary tenant, Continental National Bank.

The 77-ton clock was the postcard-picture trademark for the Fort Worth skyline throughout the 1960s.

Judge delays ruling

EL PASO — A judge refused to rule on a bond-reduction motion until a former South Texas sheriff's deputy charged with three counts of attempted murder undergoes a psychiatric exam.

"This court's major concern is ... that the defendant on this case may have exhibited homicidal or suicidal tendencies," said State District Judge Bill Moody after a bond hearing Wednesday.

Keith Allen Faires, 27, allegedly barricaded himself in his Marriott Hotel room during a Homicide Investigators of Texas convention and began shooting. A 16-year-old girl's foot was wounded during the May 28 incident.

Faires was released from El Paso County jail on $75,000 bond after his arrest that night on a charge of attempted murder.

Bishops hear Governor

DALLAS — Gov. Bill Clements says he did not give a committee investigating the athletics scandal at Southern Methodist University the names of the other SMU trustees who were aware of illegal payments to student athletes, the Dallas Morning News reported today.

Clements revealed in February that he and other unidentified members of the board were aware of the illegal payments that led to the suspension of SMU's football program for the 1987.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association handed down the most severe punishment ever after an investigation revealed that SMU had continued illegal payments to football players while on probation for earlier violations involving illegal payments.

Police officer sues city

DALLAS — A police officer fired after killing a 70-year-old woman has filed suit, demanding reinstatement and contending that officials violated city rules in dismissing him.

Mark Kraus, 34, was fired March 4, one day after grand jurors cleared him of any criminal wrongdoing in the shooting of Etta Collins. Then-acting Police Chief Harold Warren said Kraus was fired for exercising poor judgment in the shooting last October.

In the lawsuit filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, Kraus says city and police officials violated their own policies by failing to give him written notice prior to his firing and for not affording him a civil service trial.

Friends say minister takes polygraph test

DALLAS (AP) — A United Methodist minister whose wife remains in a coma after she was nearly strangled to death in April went to Salt Lake City to take a polygraph test, friends say.

The Rev. Walker Bailey has been treated at a private psychiatric facility here after taking an overdose of tranquilizers May 1 just before police planned to question him about the attack on his wife.

Margaret Bailey was attacked in the couple's home April 21 after the minister reported he had received threatening letters. Police later said they determined that the threatening letters had been written on a typewriter in an office near the minister's office at the First United Methodist Church of Dallas.

"I had heard that he was going to Salt Lake City," Ralph Shannon, a lay official at the church said.

Doing it right economically

At the start of the decade, a congressional budget expert glumly predicted that inflation would never dip below 10 percent during the 1980s. If monetary policy had been left to Congress, he undoubtedly would have been right.

But the policies that control the nation's money supply and influence our interest rates come from the quasi-independent Federal Reserve Board. Its 6-foot-7-inch chairman Paul Volcker, as imposing in his persuasive abilities as in his physical presence, refused to believe that inflation couldn't be brought under control.

A Democrat appointed by former President Jimmy Carter in 1979, the tough-minded Volcker embarked on a program that few election-conscious congressmen would have dared promote. He tightened the money supply, which sent interest rates soaring.

The economy plunged into the worst recession since the Great Depression. Unemployment soared. Constituents complained. The politicians blamed Volcker.

Soon, Volcker's policies began to work. As inflation plunged, the economy began to turn around — a recovery that continues despite huge federal budget deficits and turbulence in the nation's banking system. The Reagan administration took the credit.

Many of Volcker's congressional critics quit carping, preferring to bask in the political glow of a stable economy.

We think it's unfortunate that Volcker, who has earned the respect of the American business community and foreign investors, has decided to step down in August. He leaves at a time when the United States still needs his monetary good sense and his independence.

His skill in dealing with international finances will be especially missed. Foreign leaders whose countries are saddled with crippling debts had a high regard for Volcker.

Alan Greenspan, Volcker's successor, is a hard-working conservative economist who served as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Gerald Ford. He's known as a workaholic who favors the free market and government deregulation.

He has excellent credentials to become the next Federal Reserve chairman. But he will have to prove himself, both in this country and abroad.

The fear is that he may react ideologically or cave in to pressures from the Reagan administration to pursue politically-motivated monetary policies.

As Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Merced, noted, "Volcker didn't pay attention to Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan. He did what was economically correct."

That will be Greenspan's challenge, too.

Quotes

"Those involved, whether public official or private citizen, had no doubt they were acting on the authority of the president of the United States." — Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House investigating panel looking into the Iran-Contra affair.

"I just felt there would be a lot of damage done if a lot of top secret, sensitive classified material was exposed in public so the Soviets and everyone else could read it." — Fawn Hall, who was Lt. Col. Oliver L. North's secretary, telling of altering, destroying and smuggling out documents.

"Many deformations of country life find their source in the second-class status of the farmer, as worker and as citizen." — Pope John Paul II in Poland, calling for improved conditions for farmers.

'Self help' doesn't help

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I suppose I have bought every "self help" book on the market, telling me how to improve my life. Well, I suppose I have been helped in some ways by some of them, but frankly I know I am still the same old person and I can't seem to find any answers to my basic problems. Do you have any suggestions? — Mrs. W.F.

DEAR MRS. W.F.: Perhaps some of these books have some useful suggestions, but (as you have discovered) they fall short on one crucial point: They cannot give you the power you need to change your life. You know you ought to be a better person — but you don't have the discipline and the moral strength to become the person you know you ought to be.

That is why the Bible points us in an entirely different direction. It is not a "self help" book, because God knows we do not have the strength in ourselves to become what we ought to be. Instead, it is a "God help" book — it points us to God and the help He wants to give us. Only with His help and strength can we overcome our weaknesses and become the kind of people He wants us to be.

How can this happen? It begins when we turn to Christ for forgiveness and ask Him to come into our lives as our Lord and Savior. You don't need more advice on how to live; you need Christ. I urge you right now to get on your knees and commit your life to Him by faith. Even if you have never prayed or though very much about God, Christ loves you and He wants to come into your life.

Then each day ask God to help you live for Him. Let His Word, the Bible, be your daily guide concerning what you should believe and how you should live. "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly. ... And whatever you do, whether in word or deed, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him" (Colossians 3:16-17).

Congressional salary raise becomes legal controversy

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Congress is a notorious nest of lawyers, so it's not surprising that it is now embroiled in a legal controversy that would delight Charles Dickens, but cause most Americans' eyes to glaze over. Maybe that's the point.

The issue being thrashed out is the generous pay raise that Congress cleverly engineered for itself a few months ago by voting against a pay raise. (They're lawyers, remember?)

In case you've forgotten this little exercise in humbuggery, the Senate first voted down a pay raise by an overwhelming margin. Then the House voted down the raise, also by a substantial vote. But thanks to a tricky law that both houses had approved years earlier, the House rejection of the pay raise came one day too late to prevent the automatic enactment of the pay raise.

The hypocrisy of the whole deal didn't escape public attention, but Congress figured — perhaps correctly — that the aroma of rotting fish will have dissipated by the next election.

Unfortunately, a cantankerous group of conservative taxpayers and renegade members of Congress have challenged the sneaky pay raise in court. Fearful that these pesky critics of the go-along-get-along system may actually have a case, the Senate and House leadership have trotted out their official attorneys to oppose the heresy. The case was to be argued in the U.S. District Court in

Jack Anderson

Washington on June 8.

The involvement of the Senate and House counsels to argue against actions that both bodies technically voted in favor of has created a situation that reminded one observer of the old story about a young lawyer named Abe Lincoln.

He represented the plaintiff in a case one morning, then represented the defendant in an almost identical case that afternoon. The judge slyly asked Lincoln which side he thought was right. Honest Abe replied that in the morning he thought he was right, but in the afternoon "I am certain I am correct."

The current anomaly was not lost on Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., one of the tiny band that has challenged the pay raise in court. In a letter to Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, obtained by our associate Stewart Harris, Humphrey pointed out that 88 senators had voted against the raise.

"It is not the Senate counsel's role to contest the validity or efficacy of legislative action taken by the Senate itself," Humphrey wrote.

Byrd replied with an equally cogent legal argument, noting that the secretary of the Senate had been named a defendant in the suit filed by Humphrey et al.

"As much as you are entitled to bring these issues to court," Byrd wrote, "the secretary of the Senate, whom you name as a defendant, is entitled to a defense against your claim that he is discharging funds unlawfully."

Senate Counsel Michael Davidson, whose authority to go to court was granted by a Senate resolution, told us his briefs do not argue the merits of the pay raise. Instead, he said, they explain why the secretary acted legally in disbursing the raises.

Similarly, the House counsel got involved as defense attorney for the sergeant-at-arms, who was accused of illegally disbursing the pay raises. In addition, House Counsel Steven Ross said, the pay raise dispute was "internal" and was decided on the floor of the House. Traditionally, he said, the House has opposed any member's attempt to contest a congressional action in court.

It is this last point that bothers the plaintiffs' lawyers, William Lane and William Strauss. They argue that the right of a member of Congress to sue the federal government is at stake.

Tragedy brings opportunities

By STEVE REAGAN Staff Writer

SARAGOSA — The pinpoint accuracy of the tornado was striking. Saragosa is 10 miles north of Balmorhea, 30 miles south of Pecos, and smack in the center of nowhere. There are thousands of miles of empty, desolate Texas countryside that the tornado could have hit.

But hit here it did. In the span of about two and a half minutes — about 150 seconds — a small town that was home to about 400 mostly poor farm workers and their families was wiped off the face of the map.

Oh, sure, there have been relief efforts. The dead have been buried. Most of the rubble has been carted away. There are trailers to displace food and other emergency needs of the citizens. There is even a post office.

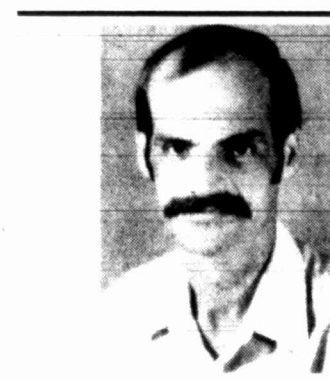

But the homes are missing. As terrible as the photos may have seemed the day after the tornado, you at least had the impression that people lived there — not anymore.

The town is gone, brother. Father Ralph Barranger, whose parish includes Saragosa, said the scene reminded him of photos of the Hiroshima aftermath. "A moonscape" is how Richard White, advertising director of the Herald, described the situation.

To me, it looked like they razed the town and replaced it with a huge, muddy parking lot.

The town is gone. Consider this: Out of a population of approximately 400, 310 were injured, 38 were hospitalized (six of whom remain in the hospital), 127 families are homeless, and worst of all, 29 were killed.

This may sound cruel, but in a way, the dead are the lucky ones. At least they don't have any more problems. The survivors, however, have a long row to hoe.

Around the rim

First and foremost of their problems is housing. Remember, these people were dirt poor before the disaster hit, and now they have even less. Even if they qualify for emergency loans — and there is no guarantee they will — how in the world are they ever going to repay them?

Big problem, right? Wrong, brother, gigantic opportunity.

Because as disastrous as the tornado was, it has presented us mere mortals with a chance that doesn't come around very often. We have a chance to make a difference and lift up our fellow man, all at the same time.

Sister Julietta Mendoza, director of Catholic Charities in the Saragosa area, along with Father Barranger and other concerned citizens have come up with a plan that, if it works, could break the awful chain of poverty that currently has the survivors of Saragosa in a vise grip.

In short, what the group intends to do is buy as much property in Saragosa as it can, make use of donated labor and materials to build new homes, and give the homes to the citizens.

Think about it. Instead of worrying about where they're going to sleep, or how they're going to repay loans with money they don't have, Saragosans will have a roof over their heads. Add to that the governmental job-training offers that are available, and you have a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

But so much is up to us. I can hear some arguments against it already. Why should we Big Springers help the people in Saragosa when we have people right here in the Jones Valley area facing the same problem?

Because, at least here we are in some position to help ourselves. We at least have our town.

But the people of Saragosa lost everything, and if we don't help, who's to say anybody else will?

I don't care whether you consider yourself a Christian or not, we are our brother's keeper. If we are to have any hope of keeping this planet in one piece, we have to take advantage of any opportunity that comes along to help our brothers.

And as opportunities go, this one is a beauty.

It's a shame that something as terrible as a tornado has to come along to open our eyes to the incredible need to help the less fortunate. That's what happened to me.

So, please help. Give your time or your money or whatever. The opportunity for us to raise ourselves a notch is there.

But if you need convincing, take a stroll on the parking lot that used to be Saragosa.

Attorney emerges in theater

By ART BUCHWALD

I met a lawyer at a party the other day who looked familiar.

"Don't I know you?" I asked him.

"Maybe you saw me on Channel 4 when I defended Alfredo Portman for inside trading on Wall Street. I had a 4.3 TV rating the day the verdict came in."

"No, I missed that one."

"I arbitrated a holy war between three fundamentalist preachers from South Carolina, Jerry Falwell and the Ayatollah Khomeini."

"Maybe I saw you then. But didn't you plead Delta Domino guilt for stuffing U.S. Air Force missiles with Rice Krispies?"

"That was me."

"What kind of law work do you do?"

"I practice legal theater."

"I didn't know there was such a thing."

"You see it all the time," he told me. "You just don't recognize it. Legal theater is what lawyers do when they stand on the steps of the courthouse and try their case for the 6 o'clock news."

"Does it help the client?"

"No, but when people see me on the steps it attracts new business to the firm. It's amazing how much demand there is for a lawyer who has been on television."

"When you stand on the court steps with your client do you allow him to speak?"

"That would be a big mistake. After all, your client isn't too bright to start with or he wouldn't be in court."

"What exactly do you say to the media?"

"If it's a criminal case I declare that the prosecutor is driven by political ambition and is vindictive beyond any normal bounds of justice. If I am handling a civil suit I charge that the other side has no case and should be fined for wasting the taxpayers' money. In legal theater it is not what you say but how long you can get on TV that really counts."

He continued, "Sometimes I don't have to do anything to get on the air. I just walk with my client to the parking lot and let the reporters throw questions at me as I am slowly moving along. A lot of the news shows prefer that long walk to any dialogue you can exchange with their correspondents."

"There seems to be a lot more to practicing law than hitting the books," I said in admiration. "How did you decide to go into legal theater?"

"I had the choice of either becoming a lawyer or playing Hamlet. Legal theater gave me a chance to do both. My dream is to sit next to a witness at the Iran-contra congressional hearings and be on camera all day long."

"That must be every lawyer's dream."

"Actually, my real dream is to make each senator and congressman apologize for how they treated my client."

"I guess that fantasy will never come true if you don't have anyone to represent in the scandal," I said.

"Rumor has it that Fawn Hall is looking for a younger lawyer," he whispered.

"You certainly would get on TV if you represented her."

"Not just any TV," he said. "I'd get on the Ted Koppel show."

"No one would ever forget you if you appeared on Ted Koppel's show with Fawn," I told him.

"The trick of legal theater is to always ask yourself before taking a case, 'Can this client cut the mustard on the 'Phil Donahue Show'?"

"What was the most touching line you ever delivered?"

He replied, "This is an outrage. We are enormously disappointed by the verdict and intend to appeal."

"Did you write that yourself?"

"No, I saw it on 'People's Court.'"

Goetz defense ends

NEW YORK — Bernhard Goetz's taped confession about shooting four men on a subway should not be believed because he was traumatized when he made it after nine days on the run, his attorney said in closing arguments.

Defense lawyer Barry Slotnick also told jurors Wednesday that his client acted without thinking when he shot the four on a subway car Dec. 22, 1984, and was fantasizing on the tape when he said shot an extra bullet into one of them.

Prosecutor Gregory Waples "came in here without a case; please let him walk out without a conviction," Slotnick said.

Waples was to give his summation today.

U.S. releases plea text

NEW YORK — Ivan F. Boesky began cooperating with the government's insider-trading investigation two months before his plea bargain was made public, according to a copy of the agreement released by prosecutors.

During the two-month period, Boesky would have been able to secretly tape record conversations with other Wall Street figures to obtain evidence incriminating them.

The U.S. attorney's agreement with Boesky, and similar agreements with Martin A. Siegel and Boyd L. Jefferies, were released Wednesday in response to a request from Dow Jones & Co., publisher of the Wall Street Journal.

Teamsters decry move

WASHINGTON — Teamsters officials and dissidents alike are lashing out at a contemplated Justice Department suit to oust the union's leadership and put the 1.7 million-member union under the control of government-appointed trustees.

"Takeovers of unions are nothing new — communists and fascists have been doing it for years," the Teamsters said in a statement from union headquarters in Washington late Wednesday.

EPA to probe tire fire

PLATTEVILLE, Colo. — Firefighters completed a dirt barricade today around a blazing heap of old tires to force the poisonous fumes high into the air and away from nearby homes.

The fire at "Tire Mountain," a privately owned salvage area housing 6 million discarded tires, was ignited by lightning Tuesday night. The salvage area is about 40 miles northeast of Denver. The fire covered at least seven acres.

Firefighters began work Wednesday on the earthen barrier, which was intended to concentrate the heat of the fire and create a column of rising smoke, said Pat Persichino, of the Weld County emergency service office.

Weld County officials, concerned over the potential of toxic fumes in surrounding communities, had asked residents to evacuate if the wind changed but that wasn't necessary, Persichino said.

Feds launch probe, Bakkers at mansion

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service and the Postal Service have launched criminal investigations of the PTL television ministry, the Rev. Jerry Falwell says.

Investigators are looking at actions taken before the Rev. Jim Bakker resigned as leader of PTL and turned control over to Falwell in March, Falwell said Wednesday night after a church service and a closed-door meeting of the PTL board.

"They have all advised us it was prior to our arrival, thank God," Falwell told reporters.

Meanwhile, Bakker, and his wife, Tammy Faye, returned to the Carolinas Wednesday night to claim belongings from the Tega Cay, S.C., mansion they left in January, saying they hope to return to television ministry soon.

"Our goal is to be on the air in 30 days," Bakker told The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer at Dallas-Fort Worth airport while awaiting a connecting flight to Charlotte with his wife and their son, Jamie.

Bakker, who has been living in Palm Springs, Calif., since resigning amid revelations he had a sexual encounter with a secretary, refused to be specific.

It was not clear whether his intentions were related to or independent of PTL, which Bakker has said he wants back. Falwell has said the Bakkers will never be permitted to return to PTL, which Bakker founded.

"I assume he is talking about somewhere else, not on PTL," Falwell spokesman Mark DeMoss said when told of Bakker's comments.

The PTL board gathered at Falwell's Old-Time Gospel Hour headquarters in Lynchburg to discuss the ministry's $70 million debt. During a break in the six-hour meeting, Falwell said that things keep looking worse for PTL.

He has said he wants to rebuild PTL and leave it by next March.

Three new directors were added to the board, raising the number of directors to eight.

They are Harry Hargrave, a PTL executive and pastor of Highland Park Presbyterian Church in Dallas; Richard Lee, pastor of Rehobeth Baptist Church in Atlanta; and Jerry Lipps of Lipps Trucking in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

"We'll be adding a couple more in the weeks and months ahead," Falwell told the congregation at his Thomas Road Baptist Church later.

Speaking with reporters earlier, Falwell said he and other board members had received a detailed report on PTL finances from the national accounting firm Arthur Anderson and Co.

"We owe 1,400 creditors $70 million," he said. "Twenty-three million is delinquent. We obviously have some problems."

Asked Wednesday night whether any of the debt involved funds that had been mispent or embezzled, Falwell said, "There's no way I can determine the genuineness of the indebtedness."

He said the federal probes were made known Tuesday to PTL attorney Roy Grutman, and it was believed to involve allegations of wire fraud and mail fraud. "It appears that funds apparently were raised under false pretense," Falwell said.

He repeated his hope that no indictments are forthcoming, saying, "I think it would be very hurtful for the overall cause of Christ for criminal charges to be filed."

Protestors beat pots

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The government on Wednesday declared a national state of emergency after a second day of street demonstrations to demand the ouster of the country's military leaders.

Thousands of demonstrators beat pots and pans, honked automobile horns and yelled "get them out" in 10 hours of demonstrations Wednesday.

In the demonstrations, police fired tear gas, tore down barricades put up by the protesters and chased them, beating them with rubber truncheons. No official figures were available on the number arrested or injured.

The demonstrations started about 11 a.m. EDT and continued after dark.

34 killed in explosions

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Suspected Tamil rebels detonated explosives under a bus in eastern Sri Lanka and a military convoy in the north today, killing 34 people, a military official said.

The blast at the village of Morawewa near the eastern port city of Trincomalee ripped through a privately owned passenger bus at about 8:45 a.m., killing 16 Sinhalese civilians, said the official, who can not be identified under military regulations.

NATO begins summit

REYKJAVIK, Iceland — NATO foreign ministers travelled to the site of the most recent superpower summit for a meeting today that was expected to produce support for drastic cuts in nuclear missile arsenals in Europe.

"It is now within reach that we get an agreement on the elimination of all or most" superpower medium- and short-range nuclear missiles, NATO Secretary General Lord Carrington said before the meeting.

He said the 16 NATO ministers, including Secretary of State George P. Shultz, would also discuss ways to safeguard navigation in the Persian Gulf.

Pope lauds Solidarity

SZCZECIN, Poland — Pope John Paul II today praised the 1980 agreements that led to the independent Solidarity labor union and said they promoted the "dignity of men."

The pontiff, on the fourth day of a pilgrimage to his Communist homeland, addressed a crowd of 300,000 people in this Baltic port city, which was a hotbed of Solidarity activism in the early 1980s.

"In the 1980s, Szczecin was the site of momentous events, and momentous accords between the state authorities and representatives of the working class," John Paul said.

Aides seek to clarify President's statements

VENICE, Italy — President Reagan said today during his news conference that the dollar could fall further "within reason," a comment that sent aides scrambling to issue a correction.

Asked about current developments in which the value of the American dollar has dropped over several months, Reagan said, "Well, frankly most of us believe the dollar should remain stable. It could be within reason that there could still be some lowering of the value in relation to other currencies."

Less than 15 minutes after Reagan ended his island news conference, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president had not meant to suggest that he wanted a further decline in the dollar.

"He wants stability in the dollar," the spokesman said.

When asked what the president had been speaking about, Fitzwater said, "he was referring to other forces."

The administration began a campaign engineered by Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III in September 1985 to push the value of the dollar lower, working in concert with the other summit countries.

This agreement, known as the Plaza Accord, has helped push the dollar down 42 percent against the Japanese yen since that time. The dollar has fallen 38 percent against the German mark and by somewhat smaller amounts against the currencies of other major trading partners.

The administration believed that a weaker dollar would help correct the country's huge trade deficits by making imports more expensive and making American goods more competitive on overseas markets.

However, the United States, under pressure primarily from the Japanese, has switched its position in recent months, contending that the dollar has now fallen enough.

A principal message from the joint economic communique issued at the end of the summit on Wednesday was that the six countries agreed that further declines in the value of the dollar "could prove counterproductive" to efforts to promote worldwide growth.

Woman celebrates 80th birthday Driver's views crash head-on with rider's

Ruby McElrath will celebrate her 80th birthday at a reception on June 14 at Garrett Hall of the First United Methodist Church, 4th and Scurry St.

Daughters of Mrs. McElrath, Doris Jean White and Mary Lou Overton are hosting the birthday celebration.

Mrs. McElrath, the former Ruby Smith, was born on June 16, 1907 in Runnels County. She married Pete McElrath on June 19, 1926 in Coleman. They lived in Dual until 1938, moved to Otis Chalk Community and then Forsan in 1958. Mrs. McElrath moved to Big Spring eight years ago to live at Canterbury Home.

Friends and relatives are invited.

RUBY MCELATH

DEAR ABBY: I was riding the local transit bus today when the bus driver (a woman) struck up a conversation with me. I was sitting near her and there was nobody else on the bus. I don't know why, but she asked me what church I went to. I told her that I was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, which is also known as the Mormon Church.

She then said that she was a Christian! I replied, "Well, so am I." Then she told me that I was not a Christian because my religion teaches that Jesus was not the son of God. I tried to keep my cool and tried to explain that I was a Christian as she was, but she insisted that I was not.

Abby, I have learned to accept this kind of ridicule from people I go to high school with, but I didn't expect this kind of talk from an adult. When I got off the bus, I was sorry I didn't just tell her I was a Catholic or something.

Dear Abby

If that bus driver was right, I must have missed something in my own religious training. Please let me know.

L.D.S. IN ASHLAND, ORE.
DEAR L.D.S.: You are correct. When that issue was raised years ago, the Prophet Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormon Church, responded: "We believe in God the eternal father, and in his son, Jesus Christ, and in the Holy Ghost." That should settle it.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, my husband removed his wedding ring from his finger, saying it could be a hazard on his job. (He works in the construction field.) Finally he stopped wearing it altogether.

Last Christmas, he came home from the company Christmas party wearing a very expensive gold initial ring, which he said was a gift from "Lyn," a young woman who works for the company. That ring has not been off his finger since the day he got it.

Yes, I asked him how come this ring isn't hazardous on his job. He said in case he ran into Lyn, he didn't want to offend her by not wearing her gift. How does this strike you, Abby?

FUMING IN FLUSHING
DEAR FUMING: The same way

it strikes you. Your husband's wedding ring may have been hazardous on his job, but this new "replacement" is definitely hazardous to his marriage. It's time for you and your construction man to assess your marriage. Methinks the foundation is crumbling.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument: What is the fairest way for our inheritance to be divided? We have two sons. Son No. 1 has two children, and Son No. 2 has three children.

J. HARRISBURG, PA.
DEAR J.: Leave the same amount to each of your children. And the same amount to each of your grandchildren.

To get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 417, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Area briefs

Day Camp registration due

Girl Scouts in the Big Spring and Forsan area are reminded to register for Day Camp at the Immaculate Heart of Mary School Cafeteria, 1009 Hearn St. August 3-7 from 1 to 5 p.m.

Activities will include earning the 75th Anniversary patch and "Just Say No" patch.

Girl Scouts who would like to attend but don't have forms can call Renae Reinert, director, 267-1550, or write to her at 2703 Lynn Dr., Big Spring Texas, 79720.

Deadline for registration is June 17.

Lakeview School to reunite

The second reunion of students and teachers at Lakeview School in Big Spring will be June 19-20 at the Howard County Park building, the old Lakeview School, 100 N.W. 4th St.

Activities will begin at 7 p.m. on June 19 with a program, refreshments and visiting.

Dock Voorhies, member of the school board, will present the keynote address.

On June 20, activities planned include a continental breakfast at the school at 9 a.m. A luncheon barbecue and all the trimmings will be conducted from 1 to 3 p.m. A dance will begin at 8 p.m.

Registration fee is $35 per family for those registering at the door on June 19.

A $25 pre-registration is being accepted by the reunion committee's chairperson, Cynether (Sam) Woodruff. Pre-registration fees should be mailed to her at 615 N.E. 10th St.

For additional information, call Woodruff, 263-6647; Jean Rutledge, 263-4625; Barbara Davis, 263-4707; or Kay Connor, 263-8553.

Singles group hosts dance

The Snyder Singles Organization will host a dance June 16 at the American Legion, 1800 Ave. R. from 7:30 to 10 p.m. The group will have its own room and dance floor.

A donation of $2 is requested to help cover the cost of the juke box.

Bride-elect honored at bridal showers

Carleen Everett, bride-elect of Bee Haley, was honored at a come and go bridal shower June 7 at the home of Dene Sheppard, 1411 E. 18th St.

Hostesses Dene Sheppard, Teresa Sheppard and Shelley Choate presented the bride-elect with desk accessories.

The table, draped with a peach cloth and white lace overlay, featured a cake with joining hearts, baked and decorated by Teresa Sheppard.

The bride-elect and hostesses wore peach silk flower corsages. Special guest was Beth Everett of Lubbock, cousin of the bride-elect, who is a bridesmaid.

Miss Everett was also honored with a bridal shower luncheon in March, hosted by Gail Meeter of Fullerton, matron of honor.

Approximately 50 guests attended the shower. Special guest was Mrs. Irene Everett, mother of the bride, of Artesia, Calif.

The couple will unite in marriage on June 27 at an afternoon ceremony in Los Angeles, Calif.

The New Testament in its English Translation plainly teaches that Jesus Christ is part of the Godhead, possessing the same nature and attributes as God the Father. But an interesting rule of Greek (the original language of the New Testament) grammar brings out the same truth. The rule is as follows: "When two nouns in the same text are connected by the Greek word 'and', and the second noun is not preceded by the article, the second noun refers to the same person or thing to which the first noun refers and is a further description of it." One scripture where that is found to be true is Titus 2:13 "The great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ." Using the rule of Greek grammar you have plainly stated and taught, "Jesus Christ is the great God." It could be translated: "The great God, even our Saviour Jesus Christ." Jesus is Jehovah God - so teaches the rule of Greek grammar. Other passages teaching the same thing are 1 Peter 1:1 and 2:20 which say He is "the Lord (Jehovah - as correctly translated in the Old Testament) and Saviour Jesus Christ." The Lord (Jehovah) and Saviour are the same person. Three make up the Eternal Godhead.

Organisms create sweet smell of spring

From SUCCESSFUL FARMING

A Meredith Magazine
Spring air, it's got to be the smell of fresh-plowed soil. The scent, however, isn't actually the soil itself. It's caused by micro-organisms that teem throughout the world below ground.

Hans Jenny, one of the world's leading soils experts, has spent a lifetime pointing out that soil is full of life and beauty we rarely notice.

Besides the millions of molds and bacteria, he tells Successful Farming magazine, soils contain more than a thousand different species of lower animals - earth worms, pill bugs, nematodes, millipedes, termites, ants, springtails and amoebas.

Jenny says that when he adds up the live weights of all the living matter below ground, excluding roots, there's more biomass below ground than above. Below ground, he says, there is an amount of life equivalent to 12 horses per acre.

"If all the elephants in Africa were shot we would barely notice it, but if the nitrogen-fixing bacteria in the soil, or the nitrifiers, were eliminated, most of us would not survive for long because the soil could no longer support us," Jenny says.

Earthquake

Strong temblor rattles 16 states, damage minor

Illinois' strongest earthquake in 19 years shook residents of 16 states from Kansas to South Carolina and parts of Canada, breaking windows, tumbling chimneys and forcing hundreds to flee swaying buildings up to 700 miles away.

Wednesday's temblor, registering 5.0 on the Richter scale, triggered an alarm at a Minnesota nuclear plant and cut telephone service in three Illinois counties, but only minor damage and one minor injury were reported.

"It felt like somebody with big shoes was walking overhead, but nobody lives overhead — we're on the fourth floor," said Richard Horwitz of Chicago. "Our parakeet was chattering away, and it just stopped."

The quake, at 6:49 p.m. CDT, was centered near Lawrenceville, Ill., 55 miles north of Evansville, Ind., the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said. Shaking was felt from 10 seconds to nearly a minute.

Hundreds of students ran screaming from a building at a vocational college in Indianapolis, and about 70 people were evacuated from a swaying, 12-story apartment house in Columbia, S.C., 700 miles from the quake center.

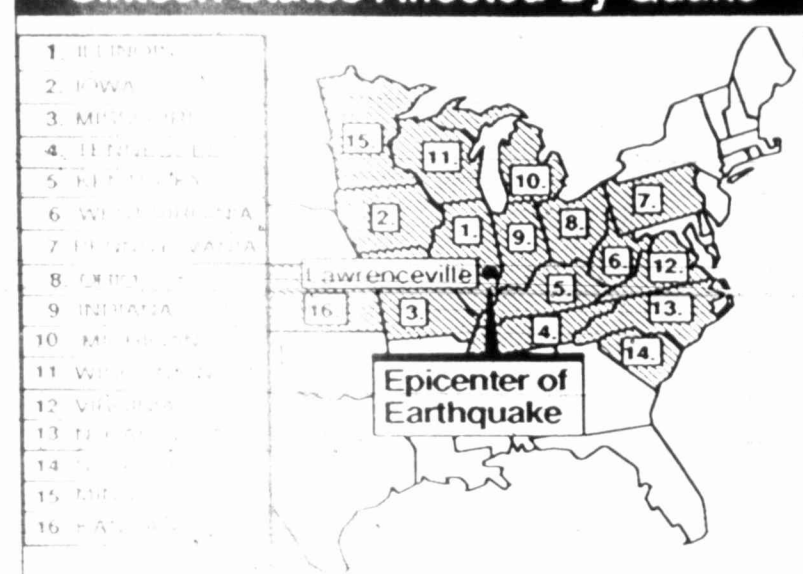

John Larson, a Lawrence County, Ill., sheriff's dispatcher, said there were several reports of broken windows and other minor damage. An 18-month-old girl received stitches after the quake forced a bunk bed to fall on her head.

Police dispatcher David Hoffee in Olney, Ill., said there were reports of broken windows, fallen chimneys and a roof collapse at a funeral home.

At the Prairie Island nuclear plant near Red Wing, Minn., the quake triggered a seismic alarm, but no damage was immediately detected, said Sam Macalus, spokesman for Northern States Power Co.

"We've gotten calls from listeners about broken glasses, refrigerators shaking, pictures

Sixteen States Affected By Quake

telling me what was going on," said Dave McElroy, a WTTN-TV news anchor in Madison, Wis., who called and said the quake was so bad because he was in bed and he was Missouri, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania, the Carolinas, and several cities in Ontario.

"I was lying on the sofa and all of a sudden it started shaking," said Mrs. Sam May of Lebanon, Ky. "I thought I must have a ghost in the house."

The quake was the strongest in that area since a magnitude 5.3 tremor near Norris City, on Nov. 9, 1968, said Don Finley, public affairs officer for the U.S. Geological Survey in Washington, D.C.

"I think this will serve as a reminder that we do live in an area that can have earthquakes," said Gregg Durham of the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency. "A lot of people had their wits scared out of them."

"A 5 in the East is substantial. A 5 out West is nothing," said Charles J. Ritter, a geology professor at the University of Dayton, Ohio. "The shock waves will travel through the uniform rock, like we have in the East, much farther."

Russ Needham, a geophysicist in Golden, said scientists had not pinned down the source of the tremor, but it was north of the New Madrid fault, the site of an 1811 quake so powerful it changed the flow of the Mississippi River.

Near Erie, Pa., Catherine Shaw, 76, and her husband, John, said they were watching television when the quake hit, and their chairs started rocking. "We don't have rocking chairs," Mrs. Shaw said.

At St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center in Minnesota, a patient in traction saw apparatus on his bed shaking, said nursing assistant Anita Sauerwein. "He said he thought it must be the drugs and he rolled over and went back to sleep."

Detroit rock station WRIF FM was playing "Shakedown" by Bob Seger when the quake hit. "I felt my chair kind of shaking and the microphone was sort of wobbling," said disc jockey Steve Kostan. "I said, 'Can this song really be that good?'"

It also shook the rooftop press box at Detroit's Tiger Stadium for nearly a minute during the first inning of the game between the Tigers and Kansas City Royals, but players said they didn't feel it.

Small town epicenter of temblor

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Walls shook, windows rattled and the ground trembled, and within seconds officials were deluged with calls from worried residents who learned their rural town was the center of a major earthquake.

"I was on the phone talking to my sister. I thought a truck hit the side of the building," said Mary Lou Forbes. "We just sat here and talked and sat it out."

No serious injuries or damage were reported from the quake, which struck at 6:49 p.m. Wednesday and rattled 16 states and Ontario.

"I was watching a movie, it started off real slow, then it got real shaky and it felt like the house was going to fall down," said teenager Jeremy Hankins. "Then it just slowed down; then it quit."

"This is my first one. It was kind of cool," he said.

"A few things shook in the house. Dishes rattled — a quiver and a shake," said Jim Phillips. "It didn't last long to scare anybody."

The National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said this southern Illinois community of 5,860 was at the center of the quake, which measured 5.0 on the Richter scale.

An 18-month-old girl was treated for a cut on the head at Lawrence County Memorial Hospital, said a spokesman. The quake forced a bunk bed to fall on the girl, authorities said.

Local authorities said they received several reports of minor damage, including broken windows and fallen chimneys. A 68-year-old funeral home in nearby Olney, about 20 miles west of here, had heavy roof damage.

"I realized it was an earthquake," said Wayne Zirkle of Zirkle Funeral Home. "I could feel it shaking — all this tremendous rumbling. You have hundreds of pieces of tile falling."

"I swear that the floor was jumping up and down. You get quite a rush," he said. "My 6-year-old says, 'My heart's beating!'"

Zirkle, his wife and three children were inside the funeral home when the earthquake struck, but he said they were not near the area where the roof collapsed.

Sox 10-4 after sweeping Astros

The Big Spring Red Sox, a local semi-pro baseball team, ran their record to 10-4 by sweeping a double-header from the San Angelo Astros Sunday at Roy Anderson Complex.

Trailing 7-1 in the fourth inning of the first game, the Sox rallied to take a 16-7 victory. Milo Solis (3-1) got the win in relief. Mechie Sarmiento hit two homers, including a grand slam. Lupe Ontiveros and Ernie Garcia also homered in the contest.

Solis again picked up the win in relief in the second game as the Sox rallied to take a 12-11 win. Ontiveros homered in the seventh inning to tie the game 11-11. The winning run scored in the eighth stanza when Ramon Ontiveros' sacrifice fly scored James Walker. Adam Yanez and Fernie Paradez homered for the Sox in the second game.

The Red Sox's next game will be June 21 in Ozona.

The Stanton Country Club will host a two man golf partnership tournament June 20-21.

Entry fee is $100 per team. For more information call 756-2556.

Local boxer Jamie Baldwin will be one of nine boxers from the West Texas region competing in the 1987 Western Olympic Festival Trails, this week at the U.S. Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Baldwin will box in the 139-pound weight class.

Champions from this competition advance to the 1987 U.S. Olympic Festival in Raleigh, N.C. July 13-26. The boxing tournament at the Olympic Festival is serving as the Pan American Trials. Those titlists from the Olympic Festival will advance to the Pan American Box-off, July 31 through August 1 in Colorado Springs.

The Colorado City Business and Professional Women's Club will sponsor an American Junior Rodeo Association at the Colorado City Rodeo grounds July 8-11.

Performances will be 7:30 p.m. each night. Rodeo events include barrel racing, poles, breakaway roping, ribbon roping, team roping, steer or bull riding, tie-down roping, junior bull riding and bareback riding.

The Bowlers Victory League of America recently donated $1,000 to the local VA Medical Center. The funds are to be used for patient's recreation programs. The BVL is a national organization dedicated to supporting recreation programs in VA medical centers across the nation. Money is raised by the bowlers of America.

The president of the men's Big Spring Bowling Association is John Calvio. June White is president of the women's association.

Sandhills State Park will be the site of the Monahans Freedom Fun Run July 4.

There will be a one-mile and six-mile runs with divisions for all ages. Entry fee is $6 per entry and the first 75 to enter will receive T-shirts.

For more information call the Monahans Chamber of Commerce at 943-2187.

Rains somewhat reduced the volume of fishing at Lake Spence during the past weekend, nevertheless there were several large catches in catfish and striped bass.

Dee and Lil Anderson of Ackerly caught a 42-pound, three ounce yellow catfish.

Meanwhile, visitation at lake Thomas boomed over the weekend in wake of the new inflow pushing the lake to its highest level in 20 years.

While on the subject of fishing, Senate Bill 13 was passed by the 70th Legislature and signed by the governor in April.

The law changes fishing license requirements so that a fishing license is no longer required of Texas residents under 17 years or 65 years and older. This law exempts non-residents from states which offer similar exceptions to Texas residents.

Local entries in the 54th Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo can register at Driver Insurance Agency at 215 Runnels Street.

Cowboys and cowgirls can register on Friday and Monday between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Figure 7 Tennis Center is sponsoring a tennis day camp June 15-19 at the Figure 7 tennis courts. Hours of the camp will be 9 a.m. until noon and 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. There is limited enrollment.

For more information call Charleen Sparling at 267-7777.

Highland Lanes will be the site of the Classic Doubles Tournament Saturday and Sunday. Entry fee is $40 per team. Action begins at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The Big Spring Tennis Association will meet Sunday at 2 p.m. at Figure 7 Tennis Center. This is the first meeting of the summer and all interested people are encouraged to attend.

The Chicano Golf Association, in conjunction with ALSA Car Club and Cosden Credit Union, will sponsor a A-B-C-D golf tourney Sunday at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three finishers. There will also be other awards like closest to the pin and longest drives. Anyone is eligible to enter and entry fee is $15.

For more information call Felix Martinez at 263-4559. All proceeds go to the Saragosa Relief Fund.

'Great' Gretzky wins MVP

TORONTO (AP) — It seems apparent there's only one man who can break Wayne Gretzky's string of most valuable player awards in the National Hockey League. And that man is Wayne Gretzky.

After capturing his eighth consecutive Hart Trophy on Wednesday — one for every year he's been in the NHL — Gretzky hinted that he may soon call it quits.

Quitting may be the only way Gretzky will stop winning the Hart, although the NHL engraver could be excused for putting his name on the trophy out of habit even after No. 99 retires. The amazing streak has made Bryan Trottier the answer to a tough hockey trivia question: who was the last player to be named MVP before Wayne Gretzky joined the NHL?

The Edmonton Oilers center may be only 26, but the best-known hockey player in the world admits playing the game is not getting any easier.

Speaking to reporters after the annual NHL awards ceremony, Gretzky said he will decide within the next few months if he will play in the Canada Cup tournament next September. At the same time, he'll be thinking about how much longer he'll play, period.

"I don't know what my future holds for me right now," he said. "I was probably more drained at the end of this season than I have ever been."

A few minutes later, speaking as a player who has never had a serious injury, Gretzky added: "I love the game and everything about it, but... I want to be able to walk away from the game also."

Gretzky, who has won the Art Ross Trophy as the league's top goal scorer and the Lester B. Pearson Award as the top player voted by the NHL Players' Association, could have taken home even more hardware.

He was a finalist for the Lady Byng Trophy, but Joe Mullen of Calgary was the easy winner of the award that goes to league's most gentlemanly player.

Gretzky may have been the star of the ceremony at Toronto's Convention Centre, but he was the only member of the Stanley Cup champion Oilers to take home another trophy.

Edmonton Oilers center Wayne Gretzky celebrates with five NHL trophies after the league awards presentation in Toronto Wednesday. Gretzky won his eighth straight MVP trophy.

The Philadelphia Flyers, who lost the NHL final to Edmonton in seven games, were well represented.

Ron Hextall was named winner of the Vezina Trophy as the top goaltender — he edged Hartford's Mike Liut by the equivalent of one first-place tally in voting by the league's 21 general managers — and Dave Poulin took the Selke Trophy for the league's best defensive forward.

Hextall, who last month was named the most valuable player in the playoffs, was a finalist for the Calder Trophy as the top rookie, but he lost out to left-winger Luc Robitaille of the Los Angeles Kings — the top rookie scorer with 45 goals and 39 points.

Ray Bourque of the Boston

Bruins was the Norris Trophy winner as the best defenseman and Detroit's Jacques Demers took the Coach of the Year award.

"After 15 years in hockey, this is the icing on the cake," said Demers, runner-up for the Adams Trophy last year when he was with the St. Louis Blues. After jumping teams, Demers turned the Red Wings from last place in 1986 to a berth in the semifinals in 1987.

Bears want Bosworth in supplemental draft

CHICAGO (AP) — Brian Bosworth may not want the Chicago Bears, but the NFL club wants him and would select the colorful linebacker if they get the chance in the supplemental draft.

"He's a valuable, good player," Bill Tobin, Chicago's player personnel director, said. "If we (win) the lottery, we will take him and then work something out that will benefit the Bears."

Bosworth, whose career at Oklahoma ended with his exclusion from the Sugar Bowl for using steroids, has informed the Bears and 22 other NFL teams that he will not play for them if they draft him Friday.

Bosworth prefers the New York Jets or Giants, the Philadelphia Eagles and the Los Angeles Raiders or Rams. The Raiders, however, have traded their first choice in the supplemental draft to the Houston Oilers.

Despite Bosworth's wishes, Tobin said: "He doesn't control the league and neither does his agent. That's not the way the system works."

The draft works this way: the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who had the worst record last season, will have their name put into a drum 28 times. The Bears, who made the playoffs last season, will have their name in three times, and the Super Bowl champion Giants have only one chance.

Four-hundred six names of teams will be in the drum. The team whose name is selected gets the first pick, most likely Bosworth.

Before the regular NFL draft in April, Bears Coach Mike McMahon said he didn't want Bosworth because "there wouldn't be enough sunglasses to go around."

That was a reference to quarterback Jim McMahon, who often wears sunglasses and whose anti-authority image has been compared with Bosworth's.

Former University of Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth will be one of the top picks in Friday's supplemental draft.

Celtics have backs against wall

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics must do what's never been done if they are to keep their NBA title. And they must do it against the league's best team.

No club has overcome a 3-1 deficit in the championship series. The Los Angeles Lakers hold that advantage over the Celtics and would claim the crown by winning tonight's fifth game of the best-of-seven series.

Channel 7

8 p.m.

"There's no question it's hard as the devil," Boston guard Dennis Johnson said. "Seeing as how we're playing L.A., it's probably three or four times as hard."

The Celtics must beat Los Angeles three straight times, twice on the Lakers' home floor at the Inglewood Forum, to become the first repeat champion since Boston in 1968-69.

The Lakers never lost three straight games in compiling a 65-17 record this season or two in a row at home. They are 46-4 there, including a 9-0 playoff mark, and romped over the Celtics in the first two playoff games at the Forum.

Boston is 4-16 in its last 20 road games.

"Sure, it could be done," Los Angeles forward James Worthy said about Boston winning three consecutive games, "but I think we'll have a lot to do with that."

"I think it's possible," Lakers forward Mychal Thompson said, "if we get above ourselves and think we're better than we are and think we have it all wrapped up."

How can they avoid that trap? "We just have to think how sweet it's going to be" to win their second championship in three years, Thompson said.

Boston knows the feeling, having won a league-high 16 titles. But things turned sour for the Celtics Tuesday night when they blew an eight-point lead in the final 3:20 and lost 107-106 on Magic Johnson's hook shot with two seconds left.

"If we could have won Game 4, it would have been very special because the Lakers have been the best team in the league all year and we would have been tied with Game 5 at home," Boston forward Larry Bird said.

"From past experience, when we've been up 3-1, I've always thought we had it won," he added.

The Lakers may not be voicing that opinion, but they are confident, knowing they have three chances to win one game. The Celtics have no room for error.

"It's just a little bit more relaxing," Magic Johnson said.

Worthy said Tuesday night's victory "was the most emotional game I've played in."

"It takes a lot out of a losing team and adds adrenaline to the winning team. Last night we were able to rest peacefully and I'm sure it was a tough night for the Celtics," he said. "We still have pressure to win, but the basket's not going to get any tighter for us. We don't have pressure to do anything. We just have to play our game."

The Lakers resumed doing that Tuesday night. They had an effective fast break, outrebounded the Celtics for the first time since Game 1 and used an aggressive trapping defense to cut a 16-point Boston lead to seven in the final five minutes of the third quarter.

But Los Angeles did shoot poorly in the first half and trailed for most of the game.

"We can't be pleased with our overall performance," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "We're pleased with the win. But we'll do some fine tuning, make some adjustments."

One thing Boston seems to have on its side tonight is the homecourt advantage. It is 103-6 at Boston Garden since the 1985 playoffs began. But during that span, the Lakers have done better than the Celtics there, winning four of the seven meetings.

"There are other places I'd prefer to play, but it happens to be the only game in town," Riley said. "We've lost enough in here, but I think after we beat them here in 1985 (to win the title) the mystery, the mystique is out the window."

In 1981, Boston did come back from a 3-1 deficit to beat Philadelphia in the Eastern Conference finals and go on to the NBA title.

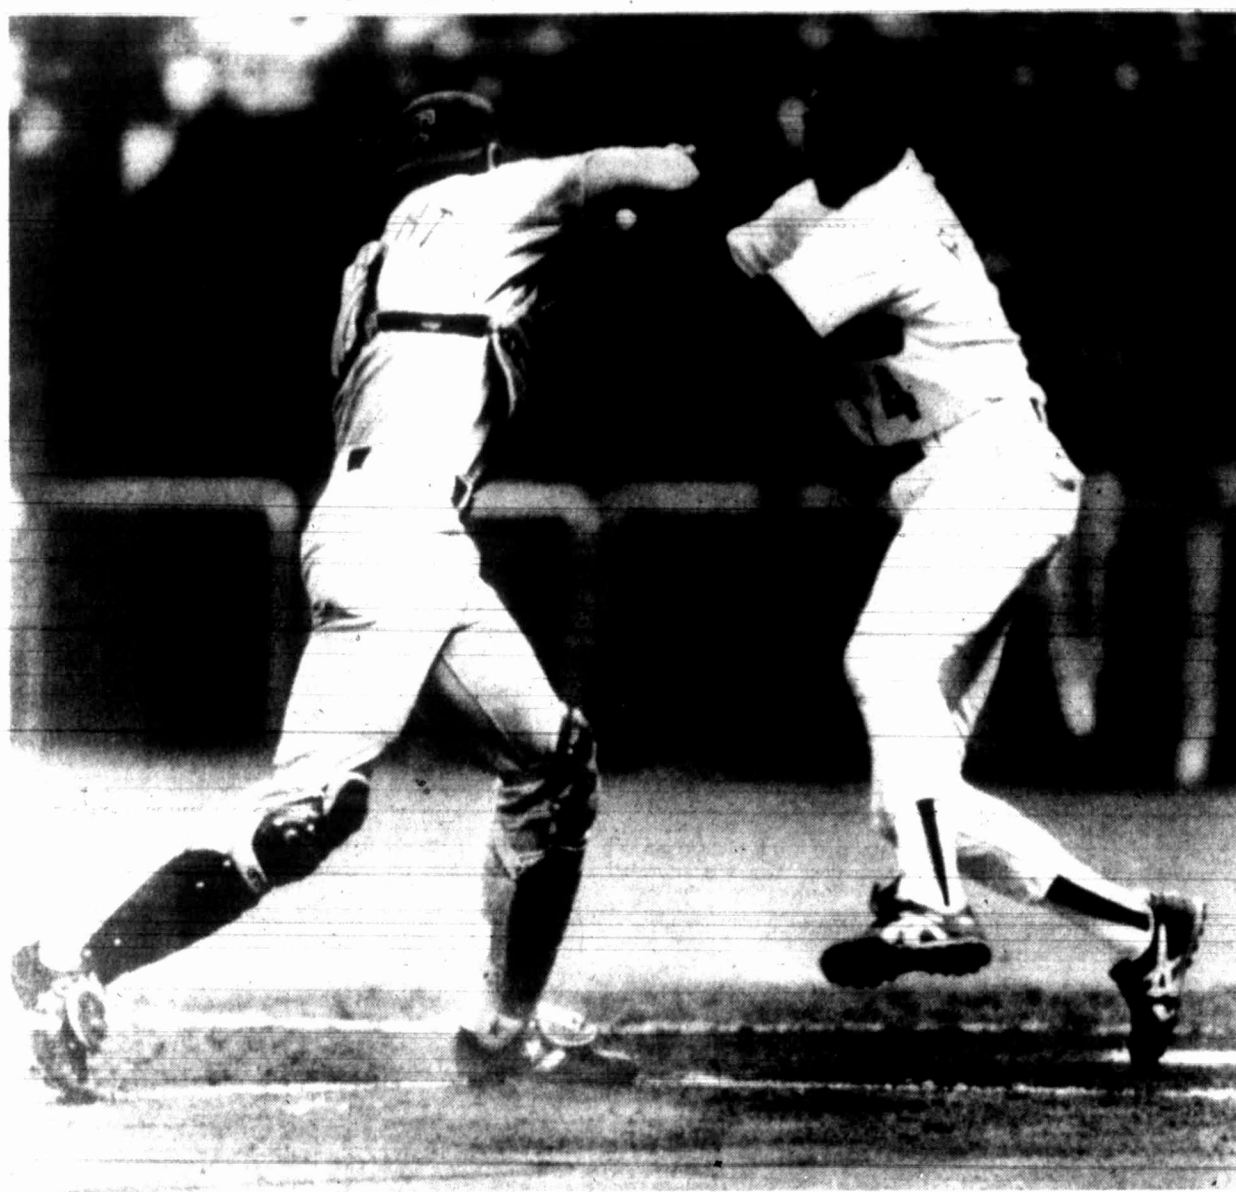

"It hasn't been done very often in history," Celtics guard Danny Ainge said. "It has been done and this team has done it before."

But Bird, forward Kevin McHale and center Robert Parish are the only current Celtics who were on that team.

"We're not in 1981 right now," Dennis Johnson said. "We're in 1987."

With a comfortable 3-1 cushion, Riley is hoping complacency doesn't set in, since the Lakers can afford to lose tonight and still be favored heavily to win the championship.

"We have to fight that feeling of security and fight it hard," he said.

During eighth inning action of the game between the Seattle Mariners and Texas Rangers, Harold Reynolds of the Mariners tried to score from third on a sacrifice fly to right field. Rangers catcher Don Slaught made the tag.

Twins leading AL West

By The Associated Press

Two weeks ago they were five games out. But the Minnesota Twins, one of the preseason favorites, have climbed back on top.

The Twins seem to cover their mistakes well. Bert Blyleven has given up a homer in 20 straight games, and his 24 homers is well ahead of last year's pace when he allowed a record 50.

He gave up another Wednesday night to Bo Jackson in the sixth inning, which gave Kansas City a 3-0 lead. But Steve Balboni committed a three-run error in the eighth and Gene Larkin hit a one-out, RBI single in the 10th, enabling Minnesota to win its fifth straight game 4-3 and take the American League West lead by one game over the Royals.

Gagne started the 10th-inning rally with a single and stole second. He raced around third on Larkin's single and his slide just beat Jackson's throw from left field.

Charlie Leibrandt had a two-hit shutout entering the eighth, but Mark Davidson singled and Dan Gladden and Tim Laudner drew two-out walks. Dan Quisenberry got Kirby Puckett to ground to first, but the ball bounced off Balboni into right field, allowing all three runners to score.

Jorge Orta's two-out double in the first and a wild pickoff throw by Blyleven in the third spotted Kansas City a 2-0 lead.

Jeff Reardon pitched two shutout innings for the victory.

Brewers 8, Tigers 5

B.J. Surhoff hit a three-run homer in the 10th inning, snapping Detroit's four-game winning streak.

Rob Deer walked and Greg Brock singled off Eric King, 3-5, in the 10th. After Paul Molitor struck out, Mark Thurmond relieved King and Surhoff hit the second pitch to center for his third homer. Dan Plesac, 2-0, pitched the last three innings for the victory.

Red Sox 15, Orioles 4

Rookie Ellis Burks and Marty Barrett both hit grand slams and Jim Rice had three RBI as part of an 18-hit attack for Boston, who won its fourth in a row and gave Baltimore its seventh straight loss.

Burks also hit a two-run homer and drove in seven runs and Barrett went 4-for-5. Al Nipper, 5-5, pitched a seven-hitter.

Burks and Barrett were part of record-setting night in the American League. With Tony Bernazard's grand slam for Cleveland Wednesday night, the three tied an AL record for most grand slams in one day, which had occurred 13 times before, the last on Aug. 10, 1986.

Alan Ashby of the Houston Astros also hit a grand slam, tying a major league record of four set nine times before, including last Aug. 10.

Blue Jays 4, Yankees 1

George Bell hit his 21st home run, best in the majors, and Jimmy Key and Tom Henke combined on a seven-hitter as Toronto closed within one win of a club-record nine straight victories.

Bell hit a three-run homer in the third inning, giving him an AL-leading 54 RBI. Bell went 7-for-13 with three homers, two doubles and eight RBI in the three-game series. Key, 8-3, gave up one run on five hits in 7 2-3 innings. Henke finished for his 10th save.

Angels 10, Indians 7

Devon White's seventh-inning two-run homer snapped a 7-7 tie and Greg Minton pitched four shutout innings to win his first AL game.

Minton, 1-0, who was signed as a free agent on June 2, replaced starter John Candelaria to start the sixth inning. He allowed two hits, struck out four and walked one. White's 11th homer came with one out off Scott Bailes, 2-1, the fourth Cleveland pitcher.

Athletics 5, White Sox 2

Dennis Eckersley pitched a two-hitter over five innings and Stan Javier, Mike Gallego and Luis Polonia had RBI hits in a three-run second to give Oakland its 10th victory in its last 14 games.

Eckersley, 5-4, relieved Joaquin Andujar, who suffered a pulled hamstring with two outs in the second. The right-hander struck out six and walked two.

Rangers 9, Mariners 5

Darrell Porter hit his third pinch-hit homer of the season, a three-run shot, to cap a five-run eighth as Texas beat Seattle. Trailing 5-2, the Rangers loaded the bases with one out in the eighth on three consecutive singles off Bill Wilkinson, 0-2. Oddibe McDowell hit a two-run double and Steve Shields gave up Porter's homer to left field.

Mitch Williams, 4-3, pitched the seventh inning for the victory. Dale Mohoric pitched the final two innings for his sixth save.

Braves bash Dodgers

By The Associated Press

Doyle Alexander was one of those free agents who couldn't find a home during the off-season. If he keeps finding home plate with regularity, he'll make the Atlanta Braves glad they welcomed him back.

Alexander held the Dodgers to four hits and Dale Murphy hit a two-run homer as the Braves beat Los Angeles 7-1 Wednesday night.

Alexander finished the 1986 season with the Braves, but became a free agent and found little interest in a 36-year-old pitcher who had been with seven different major league teams. He didn't resign with the Braves until after the May 1 embargo on free agents negotiating with their former teams. He made his first start on May 26 and his victory against the Dodgers gave the 17-year veteran a 2-1 record.

At Houston, Alan Ashby drove in five runs with a grand slam and an RBI single. Denny Walling started the fourth inning with a single. Glenn Davis was hit by a Storm Davis pitch and Jose Cruz walked to load the bases.

Ashby hit a 3-2 pitch over the center field barrier for the third grand slam of his 12-year major league career. It was Ashby's fourth home run of the season.

Mike Scott, 7-3, gave up one run on three hits in seven innings, and struck out seven to move past teammate Nolan Ryan into the National League strikeout lead with 102.

Mets 13, Cubs 2

The Mets snapped out of a three-game funk as Dwight Gooden won his second straight start since returning from drug rehabilitation. Gooden went eight innings, giving up eight hits and two runs, striking out 10 and walking none.

He was supported by two home runs from Keith Hernandez and one each by Gary Carter and Tim Lincecum in a season-high 19-hit attack.

The visiting Mets jumped to an 8-0 lead in the first three innings, with Carter homering in a three-run second, and Hernandez and Teufel connecting in a five-run third. Teufel's was a three-run shot.

Carter also had a double and a pair of singles and scored three times. Kevin McReynolds had four hits, including a pair of doubles, and Rafael Santana drove in three runs with a double and single.

Giants 9, Reds 4

At Cincinnati, Candy Maldonado hit three doubles and the Giants scored all their runs in the last five innings, including six runs in the last two. San Francisco climbed within a game of first-place Cincinnati in the NL West and won two of the three games in the series.

Trailing 4-3 entering the eighth, the Giants rallied for four runs. Eddie Milner and Chris Speier singled to start the inning. Jeffrey Leonard's pinch-hit sacrifice fly tied the game 4-4 before Maldonado doubled to right, driving home Speier with the go-ahead run. Harry Spilman's sacrifice fly and Ivan DeJesus' RBI single capped the rally.

Kal Daniels hit a pair of solo home runs and Dave Parker also homered for the Reds. Will Clark and Bob Melvin hit solo shots for the Giants.

"A lot of people thought we were down and out, but this club doesn't quit," Giants Manager Roger Craig said.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 1

At Philadelphia, Vince Coleman had two hits and three stolen bases for St. Louis.

Greg Mathews, 4-4, allowed six hits in 7 1-3 innings for the Cardinals, striking out seven and walking three. Mathews was relieved by Todd Worrell after Juan Samuel hit his 10th homer with one out in the eighth. Worrell got his 14th save.

The Cardinals took a 2-0 lead in the third against Kevin Gross, 4-5. Gross hit John Morris with a pitch to start the inning and Morris went to third on Steve Lake's single. Mathews hit into a double play, as Morris scored. Coleman beat out a bunt single, went to second on a balk and scored on Ozzie Smith's single.

Mavericks assistant will stay

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mavericks assistant coach Richie Adubato says he will remain with the team, which is also considering hiring another assistant.

Adubato, the only assistant last season under Dick Motta, had hinted he would look for another job after John MacLeod was hired as head coach last week.

MacLeod said he will make a decision on another assistant after the June 22 NBA draft. But on Wednesday, Adubato said he will remain in Dallas, regardless of his responsibilities next season.

"I think I kind of fell in love with the place," said Adubato. "It's going to be a lot of fun with John. And the team has great potential."

Adubato said he now has a good feeling about his job, even though he has not met with MacLeod to discuss his role with the team next season.

"I think everything's going to be fine," said Adubato. "It's just a matter of sitting down and discussing the situation. Everything's still up in the air."

Adubato worked with the Mavericks' defense under Motta. He said he would like to do that again but also said he will work with the offense if MacLeod asks.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Look into new ways to accomplish and achieve your aims. If you get into practical and worldly aspects from a new angle, you will be able to organize your mundane interests.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study the ideas that will help you in the future. Get the aid of an influential person who supports you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can delight the one you love now. Be off to new sites where you can expand and get ahead faster.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) See what it is that a long-time partner expects from you and please this person. Show more affection at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You can do some interesting work today. Try to surround yourself with experts who can be of help.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy and do what is expected of you by your mate. Make the needed changes in business matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to improve the conditions at home. Invite pals over that your mate will also enjoy. Show your fine hospitality.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try a new angle at correspondence. Do whatever will cheer your family up and be happier together.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to inflate your bank account. Later get your budget organized. Tonight is best for seeing friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make a list of your private needs in case you should forget. Enjoy family and friends tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your private aims seriously and know how best to gain them before you get into outside activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Today is best for contacting long-time and trusted friends. Make time for the one you love so much.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care of an outside obligation to its fullest advantage. A prominent older person gives you needed backing.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he, or she, will be one of those delightful young people who will be rather slow during the early life but thorough in learning. The adult years will be very successful and happy due to the ability to retain knowledge better than most. Sports are a must here.

Tribal court to hear adoption case

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — A 10-year-old Navajo boy, the subject of a legal battle between his Navajo mother and a white Utah couple who adopted him seven years ago, will be allowed to stay with his adoptive parents until a trial in 60 days, a tribal judge ruled Wednesday.

Michael said in an interview Tuesday night with KPNX-TV of Phoenix that he wanted to stay with Pat and Dan Carter.

"I know my people," he said. The Spanish Fork couple adopted the boy in 1980, but Cecilia Saunders has been trying since 1982 to get him back. She has said that she was 18, unmarried and unemployed when she had Michael, who was born as Jeremiah Holloway.

The Carters claim that when they took custody of Michael, he was suffering from an acne-like skin disease, had dental problems and scars on his ankles that looked like cigarette burns.

"Whenever we lifted our arms he would flinch as if we were going to hit him," Carter said in a recent interview.

A series of courtroom battles over custody of the boy began five years ago when the Carters were told by Navajo officials that the tribe did not recognize the adoption.

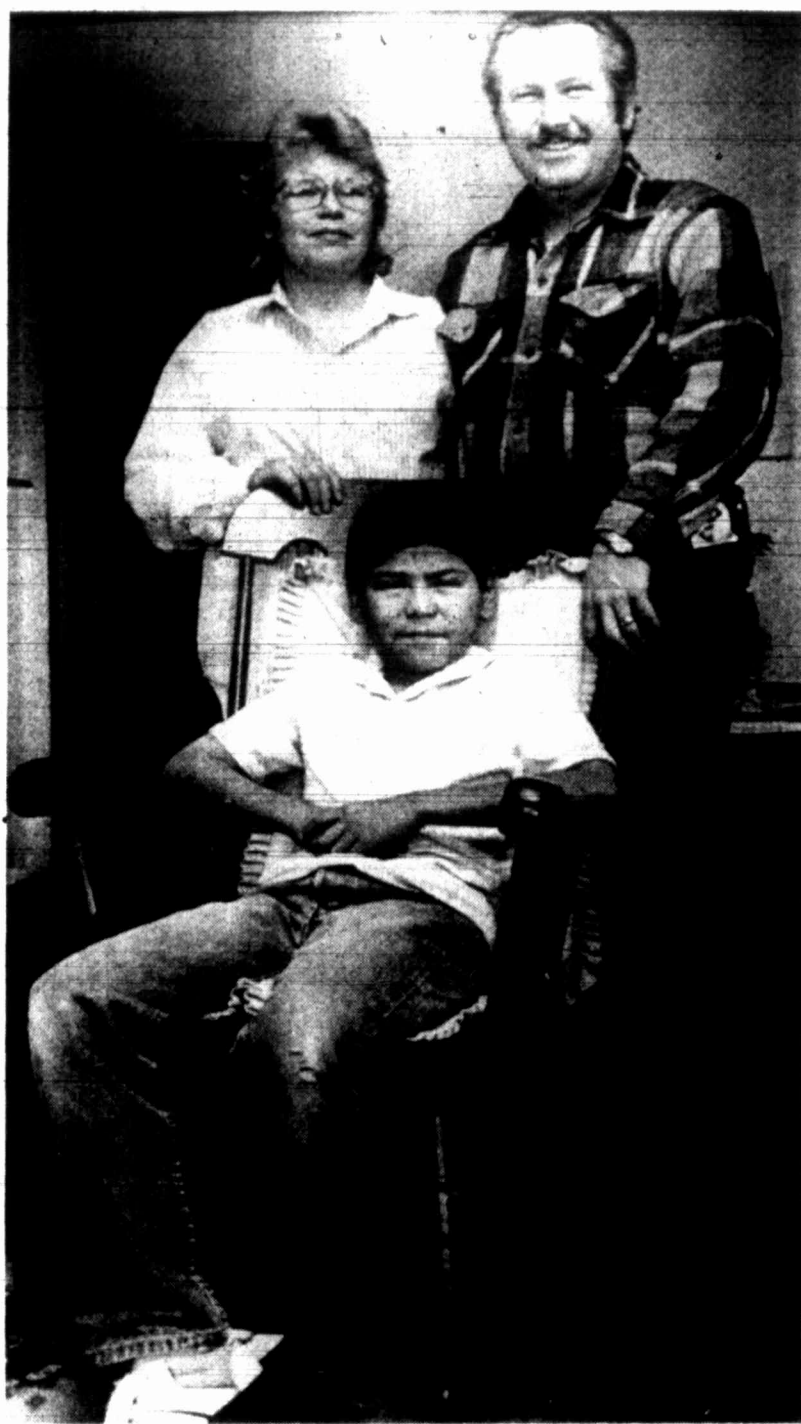

The couple obtained a restraining order in state district court in Provo, Utah. In October 1984, a district judge ruled the adoption was legal.

The tribe, however, appealed to the Utah Supreme Court which, in December 1986, decided to send the case to tribal court.

Brit Clapham, a tribal attorney, said last week the Carters will get a fair hearing, adding that it is not unusual for the tribal court to grant adoptions of Navajo children by non-Indians.

The Carters say they are running out of money, mortgaging their house to raise $25,000 in legal fees.

"Financially, we can't do anything if the tribal court rules against us," Mrs. Carter said. "We really don't know what we'll do. We don't have the money anymore."

Pat and Dan Carter, standing, are trying to retain custody of their adopted Navajo son, Michael, shown sitting. Michael has been living with the Carters for seven years, but the Navajo Indian Nation has appealed the adoption. The Carters face a Wednesday hearing in tribal court that may determine Michael's fate.

ADL: Crackdown on far right paying off

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal crackdown on the Ku Klux Klan and other far-right groups has made deep inroads into their membership and influence, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith reported Wednesday.

"The hate movement is weaker today than in many years," the ADL said in a 22-page report on such groups as the Klan, the Order, Posse Comitatus, the Aryan Nations and various neo-Nazi organizations.

The league gave credit to "the superb job done by the Justice Department and law enforcement agencies in reacting to the criminal violence of the hate groups," as well as to the "good sense and decency" of most Americans.

The ADL also said the Reagan administration's conservative social and political values have "tended to undermine whatever base of popular support the far right had begun to acquire."

The report, "The Hate Movement Today: A Chronicle of Violence and Disarray," draws a picture of a splintered and desperate far-right movement, many of whose leaders are aging or imprisoned.

The report said extremist groups have been energized by recent events in Forsyth County, Ga., where demonstrations by civil rights groups brought forth an outpouring of resentment from local whites, and in the Howard Beach section of Queens, where a black man was struck and killed by a car after he and his companions were set upon by a white gang.

However, the ADL said these incidents "have provided only brief periods of enthusiasm for activists rather than any lasting build-up in the ranks of the Klan and neo-Nazi groups involved."

The report said the Ku Klux

Klan, which has splintered into three major factions, has been reduced to a nationwide membership of between 4,500 and 5,500, a decline of as much as 25 percent in the past 2½ years and the lowest total in 14 years.

The neo-Nazi movement, which has become divided since the heyday of the American Nazi Party under George Lincoln Rockwell, can claim only about 400 to 450 members, a drop of 10 percent to 20 percent in the past 2½ years, according to the ADL.

It offered no comparative figures for the various "Christian Identity" groups that have captured headlines in the past few years: the Order, Posse Comitatus, the Arizona Patriots and the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord. However, it indicated that these groups, too, are in decline.

Couple buys country club land

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Becky and Jake Eckert went to a sheriff's tax sale looking for a parcel of land where they could park an old trailer and raise their six children. They wound up at the landscaped entrance to a country club, in full view of annoyed members.

"They stare at you like you're from another planet or something," said Mrs. Eckert, who works at a scrap metal company. But she added that some members of the Lakewood Country Club honk and wave.

The Eckerts bid on the 4.6 acres sight unseen. They knew from the legal description it was just north of town. It had a small pond, a lot of trees and sounded like just the place to park their older model mobile home and plant a garden to help feed the family.

Then they learned that their land was right next to the entrance drive to Lakewood. Besides the scenic trees and the pond stocked with largemouth bass, the land bears flower beds and a manicured lawn around the club's entrance sign.

Nearby landowners and officials at the club have been cool toward the idea of the Eckerts parking an ordinary house trailer at the edge of an upscale recreational and 522-lot residential community.

"It's just a nuisance," said Elton Parsons, Lakewood's manager. "It's an annoyance and a nuisance. It's something we're trying to work out with the owner. I really don't have a lot to say."

The country club had quit paying property taxes on the parcel; club officials said they thought it was just a worthless utility easement.

After several notices to the country club and other required legal steps over a period of several years, the Reno County treasurer's office ordered the land sold earlier this year to satisfy at least part of the $1,000 tax bill.

So far, the Eckerts haven't been able to get the required clearances to move their trailer from another rural property where they are paying rent.

But members driving to the 18-hole golf course and the clubhouse have to pass right by the spot where Eckert, an unemployed mechanic, parks his pickup when he takes friends out for a picnic or for fishing.

Windsurfer begins solo sea voyage

NEW YORK (AP) — A dashing French windsurfing champion with a flair for showmanship embarked Wednesday on an attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean alone.

"I'm ready to go sailing!" proclaimed a smiling Stephane Peyron, 26.

After pasting an anti-seasickness drug patch behind his ear, Peyron gallantly kissed the hand of a tearful girlfriend. Then he shoved off from an East River dock, waving broadly and executing a couple of skillful, dance-style spins atop his specially designed, 24½-foot sailboard.

He hopes to cover 3,300 nautical miles and reach La Baule, France, his hometown, in 45 to 50 days.

The white, red and blue sailboard, which Peyron designed with French architect Guy Saillard, resembles a flattened, elongated kayak.

Peyron will stand on top of the board for 8 to 12 hours a day to propel it. He wraps a harness around his waist and hips and attaches it to the mast; when he leans back, his weight pulls the sail upright.

The board has a 2½-foot-high crawlspace beneath a watertight hatch where he will sleep, escape from storms, and stow food and water.
