Six Nazi Sub Crews Mutiny, Refuse to Go out on Raids

Officers, Men Imprisoned In Norway

STOCKHOLM, June 26 (AP)—Six German submarine crews in Norway have mutinied and refused to embark in the undersea boats, it was reported in Norwegian circles here today.

Usually reliable sources were said to have relayed rumors that officers and men alike had jointly decided to mutiny, and that all were sent to a military prison in Oslo. The sources cannot be identified by name.

The report, capping a series of stories of discontent and weakening morale among German forces in Norway, recalled the mutiny of sailors of the German High Sea Fleet in October, 1918, in one of the major steps of the German collapse in World War One.

A considerable number of men and officers from submarines have been sent to Akerhus prison in Oslo, now employed by the Germans as a military prison, the reports from Norway said.

The base where the reported defection occurred was not disclosed, but Norwegian circles said it might be Trondheim, or in the Trondheim area, where the Nazis had based much of their fleet this spring to prey upon convoys moving to Soviet Russia.

It was at Trondheim that Admiral Otto Ciliax, commander in chief of German naval forces in Norway, was reported to have warned 2,000 Nazi marines that Norway would be invaded "within a short time."

Norwegian sources with reliable connections with the efficient underground in their home country said that "recent reports from northern Norway say that remarkably many German warships are always lying in harbors for repairs or other small damage which they sustained only a short time after they put to sea. People (Norwegians) cannot help thinking that most of these damages were intentional to enable the marines to come ashore as soon as possible."

There have been many reports of poor morale and arrests among German army troops in Norway, and reports of desertions.

Senate Rejects Food Subsidy

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The senate joined the house today in repudiating OPA's food subsidy roll-back, and voted besides the future subsidy operations from the Office of Price Administration to the War Food Administrator, Chester C. Davis.

Thus, the administration suffered its second major setback in two days, the anti-subsidy action following congress' overriding of President Roosevelt's veto of the anti-subsidy bill.

In no mood for extended debate, the senate voted 46 to 29 to kill the rollback, which Price Administrator Prentiss Brown has said is essential to hold the line against inflation. It then swiftly adopted, without a record vote, an amendment by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) transferring subsidy authority to the food administrator.

The actions brought OPA operations to a fresh crisis. Brown has put the subsidy into effect on meat and butter and declared it necessary "to roll back the cost of living to the level to which we are committed (Sept. 15, 1942) and to hold it there." OPA also faces a financial crisis, the house having slashed 26 per cent from the $177,000,000 recommended for the agency's operations in the next fiscal year. Brown said this week that price control will be "crippled into uselessness" if the senate agrees with the house on the money issue.

One of the graduating cadets at graduation ceremonies at Pampa Field Saturday morning, wearing the silver wings of the post's commanding officer, Colonel Daniel S. Campbell. But it was only for a short time, for the colonel is the only pilot at the field qualified to wear the wings surmounted by a silver star. Upon learning during the course of the ceremonies that the supply of wings purchased for the new pilots was depleted, and there were no wings for one of the graduates, Colonel Campbell graciously doffed his own and loaned them for the occasion. They were returned following the ceremonies.

General Smith Lauds New Pilots, Challenges Them to 'Deliver'

Another group of aviation cadets, class 43-F, became second lieutenants in the air forces yesterday in graduation ceremonies at Pampa Army Air Field, at which Brig. Gen. Luther S. Smith, Waco, commanding general of the 33rd flying training wing, was the principal speaker.

General Smith issued a ringing challenge to the new flying officers, saying: "When you go up in combat, remember that into you has been built the hopes, ideals and prayers of all those you leave behind—the officers and enlisted men who trained you, and the parents, wives and sweethearts who stood behind you."

Introduced to the graduating cadets and their special guests who packed the post theatre by Col. Daniel S. Campbell, commanding officer of Pampa Field, General Smith praised the new officers for their ability to absorb the teachings of the air forces in such a manner that they were able to complete the rugged course of training and win the coveted rating of "pilot." He dwelt at length on the native ability of American youth which enables them to become finished pilots in seven or eight months, something which used to take a year or more to do.

Fighter Pilot Back From Africa Pins Wings On Brother Here

Home on a 30-day furlough from the fighting fronts of North Africa, First Lt. Edwin R. Crane received what he termed "the biggest thrill of the war" when he pinned silver pilot's wings on the chest of his younger brother, newly-commissioned Lt. Larry Crane at graduation exercises at Pampa Field yesterday.

The veteran flyer, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with 10 clusters, each awarded in lieu of another medal, flew down from his Wichita Kan., home Friday night to attend the graduation. The brothers are sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Crane, 839 Wiley Avenue, Wichita.

The newly commissioned lieutenant, his face wreathed in a big smile, strode across the stage at the wing-presentation at the post theatre, came to a halt and "popped" a snappy salute to his older brother. The latter returned the salute, then pinned on the hard-earned wings. They shook hands, grinned at each other, and the younger lad returned to his seat, amid thunderous applause from the audience.

Later, they posed for pictures in front of an advanced training plane near the theatre.

The much-decorated elder Crane, a P-38 pilot, was a guest at the officers' tag party in honor of the graduation day speaker, Brig. Gen. Luther S. Smith, at the officers' club Friday evening. Modest and unassuming, he was reticent to talk about his feats in the air above North Africa and the Mediterranean, but he did speak briefly on combat flying and answered questions put to him by officers present at the gathering.

He was graduated a second lieutenant in the air corps from Victorville, Calif., and assigned to active P-38 Lightning patrol duty on the West Coast. He was transferred to the African front shortly after the American invasion there, and was assigned to the 94th, "Hat-in-Ring" squadron, made famous during the last war through the exploits of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

The 94th operated at first from the African desert, said Lieutenant Crane, "but soon we were moved up nearer the front and operated from the foothills of the Atlas mountains. We escorted Flying Fortresses while they wrecked German landing fields, and then later went on missions alone to knock down German transport Junkers. It was through these combined operations that we gained air superiority and managed to soften up the Axis for the big kill."

Monday Will Provide Test Of Labor Act

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Congressional enactment of the war labor disputes bill over President Roosevelt's veto brought bitter words from labor spokesmen today—but also a renewal of the "no strike" pledge by heads of the AFL and CIO.

The threat of a confusion, too, to the affected government agencies which were not ready, pending further study of the measure, to say what steps they would have to take in shaping their organizations to administer it.

The threat of an immediate crisis for the War Labor Board through resignation of its labor members vanished. While the possibility had been suggested, prior to enactment of the bill, the labor members said individually today that they intended to stick by the board.

A question to be resolved, however, is the extent of the restrictions placed on them by the act's prohibition against a WLB member's taking part in consideration of a case in which he has an interest. It must be decided, for instance, whether this means an AFL member may not consider any AFL case or may consider an AFL case if it does not affect his particular union.

In the forefront of speculation was whether the act might be applied in the coal controversy if any considerable number of miners continues the work stoppage next week.

The act forbids anyone from aiding or promoting a strike in a war plant or mine which has been taken over by the government, though it contains no barrier against an individual's stoppage work of his own accord.

Thus it might be invoked against pickets in the coal fields or against anyone who publicly urged continuance of the work stoppages.

Some picketing was reported to have broken out in Pennsylvania. Throughout the coal producing area, however, the situation appeared to be little changed from Friday with about half the 521,000 miners working.

Monday morning was expected to provide the best test of whether normal operations could be restored.

Under the act, enforcement of the ban against aiding or promoting a strike falls on the justice department. Violations are subject to fines of up to $5,000 or imprisonment of up to one year.

Gasoline Forms Received Here

Nearly a month ago the Lubbock OPA office received the Gray county rationing board not to distribute application blanks for renewal of A gasoline mileage books before June 22.

The board didn't for it was not until yesterday that the application blanks were received. These blanks can be obtained by filling station owners from the board's office, located on the second floor of the court house.

July 21 is the day the new A books go into effect.

George W. Briggs, secretary of the gasoline mileage panel of the board, warned motorists that they should be careful to fill out each of the two parts of the application form, one marked A, the other B, and reiterated his instructions that the old tire inspection record and back cover of the expiring A book, with signature and correct mailing address must be turned in as a prerequisite to obtaining a new A book.

Citizenship For Indians Asked

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 26 (AP)—New Mexico Legionnaires in state convention voted a resolution today calling on congress to give full citizenship and property rights to Indians, and indicated the resolution would be presented to the National American Legion meeting in Omaha, Neb., in September.

Also adopted by the department convention was a resolution condemning the threat of military service to force strikers to work. President Roosevelt's request to raise the draft age to 65 in order that striking coal miners could be drafted, the Legion said, would "put the army in the class of penal groups."

Army Police Check East Texas Drivers

LONGVIEW, June 26 (AP)—Bob Bryant, in charge of 24 office of price administration investigators questioning motorists on two main highways in this area today concerning use of gasoline rationing coupons, said late this afternoon that the drive, planned for two days, would be called off tonight.

Bryant told Louis Hart, Longview newspaper man, that more than 200,000 coupon-miles of gasoline ration coupons had been confiscated during the investigation begun this morning.

This was less than half the total OPA officials said were confiscated in a two-day investigation in the Paris area last week end.

Bryant told Hart that the Longview investigation was terminated because most of the traffic was what he called local people.

"We found we were stopping many of them three and four times," he said.

State highway police and sheriff's officers were unable to appear as aides to the OPA investigation. Hart said, leaving four state liquor control agents and seven Harmon hospital military police to assist the OPA representatives' questioning.

Col. G. V. Emerson, commanding officer at the hospital withdrew the military police shortly after noon.

He said the withdrawal was made when he found there were no other uniformed officers engaged in the enterprise.

Investigators and their assistants were stationed on U. S. highway 80 on each side of Longview and a mile out of town on the Kilgore highway state 26.

Bryant told Hart that his OPA representatives stopped no cars. That liquor board men stopped the cars.

Allies Raid Continent Without Stop

LONDON, Sunday, June 27 (AP)—A large force of American heavy bombers attacked air fields and industrial targets in France by daylight yesterday, winding up the heaviest week yet seen in the nightly Allied aerial offensive which has devastated the German war cradle in the Ruhr Valley and woven a pattern of destruction along Hitler's coastal wall.

A communique (issued jointly by the U. S. Army's European theatre headquarters and the British air ministry) said supporting Thunderbolts destroyed three enemy fighters and that some unescorted bombers shot down a "considerable number."

Five bombers and seven fighters were lost in the daylight assault, which were accompanied by British fighter sweeps over the continent and followed last night's RAF attack on the heart of the Ruhr coal and steel belt.

Many squadrons of RAF, Dominion and Allied fighters took part in the daylight operations.

The precise objectives of the American heavyweights were not announced in the communique, which described the sky fleet as a "large formation" and said it included some light bombers of the RAF.

One returning flyer said however that "we really snacked those factories. I could see the bombs dropped by the formations behind us still exploding all over the target area."

The communique said "adverse weather conditions were encountered by some of the heavy bombers and those which were unable to identify clearly their targets dropped no bombs."

Most of the heavy bombers, including Flying Fortresses, flew unescorted and engaged in numerous combats with enemy fighters.

An earlier air ministry communique had told of the raid on Berny airfield, 40 miles south of Le Havre.

Bursts were seen on buildings, hangars and dispersal pens," the air ministry said.

One bomb fell squarely on a large concentration of parked aircraft. Others burst near twin-engine planes, it was said, and the raiders returned safely despite anti-aircraft fire which wounded one pilot described as "considerable."

Other typhoons scored hits on the station and freight yard near Le Havre.

Red Planes Raid Nazi Airfields

LONDON, SUNDAY, June 27 (AP)—Russian bombers pounded rear German airfields and rail installations at Bryansk Friday night, and other Red army fliers dealt new blows to the enemy's sea and air units yesterday, but the Soviet midnight communique reported little ground action along the sprawling Russian front.

A Moscow broadcast, recorded early today by the Soviet Monitor in advance of the midnight communique, said Russian bombers started large fires at the station and rail junction of Bryansk, behind the Orel front. Several German planes were destroyed in the attacks on enemy airfields, the announcement said, and the Russians lost two planes. The midnight war bulletin said Soviet airmen sank an enemy patrol ship and damaged a minesweeper in attacks yesterday in the Gulf of Finland.

Aerial combats developed in the Belgorod area, the communique said. In these, five German planes were said to have been downed without the loss of a single Russian craft. The principal ground activity was on a sector of the Central front west of Moscow where Russian scouts were said to have broken through barbed wire defenses into German trenches, killing a number of the enemy and taking some prisoners.

Oil Price Hike Is Preferred To U. S. Subsidy

PITTSBURGH, June 26 (AP)—An increase in price rather than the wildcatting subsidy proposed by price administrator Prentiss Brown is needed to produce new oil, declared Col. Ernest Thompson, member of the Texas railroad commission.

Addressing the Pennsylvania grade crude oil association, which ends its 20th annual meeting here today, Thompson, a member of the oil industry, declared the OPA to sanction an increase of 50 to 75 cents a barrel in the price of crude oil.

"I hope the powers that be will come to realize shortly that profit is a motive," he said. "Just turn this price incentive loose a little and all the Texas oil men who sold out their holdings and bought cattle farms will come back a-running."

Thompson asserted it would require discovery each week of one major oil field—capable of producing 20,000,000 barrels a 63-4—to "keep us going."

Rep. Leon H. Gavin of Oil City, Pa., told the delegates immediate steps must be taken to prevent a shortage in high-grade lubricating oils. He declared:

"It will be a terrible catastrophe and a responsibility I would not care to be charged with if within a few months from now, by reason of the shortsighted policy of the OPA, we find ourselves without sufficient oil to fully man the machines of war."

Governor Andrew Schoepel of Kansas, is chairman of the Interstate oil compact commission, described the interstate compact as a "harmonious working agreement" among the men who produce 80 per cent of the oil in the United States. He said it is a democratic institution, neither regulatory nor restrictive.

Small U. S. Sub Is Lost In Training

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Recent loss of the small submarine R-12 and part of her crew during training operations has been announced by the navy. The announcement, which was made in a statement, attributed the loss "probably" to accident and not to enemy action.

How many of the normal complement of 28 were lost, the navy did not say, but it attributed the indications of accident to "survivors."

The scene of the sinking was not given beyond the statement that it was off the east coast, nor was the date given.

"A number of officers and men were unable to escape from the vessel before it sank," the navy said. "The depth of water makes it impossible to salvage the submarine and hope has been abandoned for recovery of the bodies of the missing personnel."

The R-12 had a displacement of 530 tons of the surface and 680 submerged. Commissioned in 1919, the R-12 was the ninth American submarine announced as lost since Pearl Harbor.

Officer, Five Others Indicted By Government

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Attorney General Biddle announced today that a federal grand jury at Indianapolis had indicted five men, including a lieutenant colonel in the engineering corps, on charges of conspiring to overcharge the government $180,000 on rental of equipment used in building the Hoosier ordnance plant near Charlestown, Ind.

The attorney general said that the charge involved collection by the defendants of $335,000 in rentals and recapture charges compared with approximately $145,000 which the government had offered the contractors been dealt with, but that information obtained by the FBI indicated total overcharges of around $600,000 as a result of the alleged conspiracy.

He named these defendants: Lt. Col. Wayne C. Hauck, assistant constructing quartermaster at the Hoosier plant, Charles N. (Slim) Burcham, after 18 months in various combat zones of the Pacific area, says putting your feet under the family table with a platter full of fried chicken staring you in the face is a privilege folks at home don't appreciate as much as they should.

Attached to an anti-craft outfit which has been establishing beach-heads and installations in preparation for the landing of army troops, Sergeant Burcham contracted malaria, a swelling of the arms and legs caused by mosquito bites, and was hospitalized on a Pacific island, later being sent to San Diego where, after he recuperated, he was given a 30-day furlough.

Burcham spent a year on duty at Samoa and has seen duty at New Hebrides, Guadalcanal, Russell and New Zealand.

He ran across J. B. Zeigler and Bill Teague of Shamrock at New Hebrides.

Faking advanced training at Ellington Field, Houston, is Av-c William G. Port of Canadian, a younger brother of Victor Port, missing in action in a bombing raid over Germany on June 13.

Cadet William W. Seitz, son of J. E. Seitz, Box 24, Pampa, completed his basic flying training course and graduated June 24 from the Marine Army Air Field, Tucson, Ariz. He will be sent to an advanced flying school to complete the last phase of his cadet training, after which he will be awarded his silver wings as a pilot in the army air corps.

Lieut. Henry Shelton, above, arrived here in Miami Tuesday from New York, to visit his mother, Mrs. Henry Shelton. It was his first time home in three years. The Shelton home is 12 miles east of Miami.

Pvt. John Bernhardt Zuerker Jr., of 311 N. Wynne, Box 657, Pampa, was among a contingent of recruits arriving at Ft. Knox, Ky., last week for three months of rigorous basic training in the armored force replacement training center.

Topping off 13 weeks of orientation, specialized study and physical hardening will be a full week of the battle training course, where the men undergo maneuvers with live ammunition. Bullets whizzing 30 inches above the ground, exploding land mines and hand-to-hand combat are among features of the course.

First six weeks are devoted to organization of the army and the armored force, insignia of rank, military courtesy and discipline, care of clothing and equipment, and other fundamental subjects.

During this period the men are classified according to their knowledge and ability, so that in the second half of their basic training course they are assigned to specialize in light tanks, medium tanks, scouting and patrolling, mortars, anti-tank guns, machine guns, assault guns, reconnaissance or other phases of armored force fighting.

Oil Firm Acquitted Of 'Hot Oil' Charge

DALLAS, June 26 (AP)—A federal court jury Friday exonerated the Cosden Petroleum Corporation, its president and pipeline superintendent of conspiracy to violate the Connally Hot Oil Act.

The verdict of innocent came shortly after noon for President Raymond L. Tollett, Superintendent R. Weldon Thompson, and M. M. Hines, an employee.

The jury took the case Thursday morning, after hearing testimony on the alleged movement of "hot oil" in interstate commerce. Hot oil is oil produced in excess of Texas Railroad Commission quotas.

Hines was cleared of the charges in a directed verdict Thursday.

The indictment charged the company and the other defendants with conspiring to move oil produced in violation of state allowances between April 1, 1940 and Nov. 1, 1941.

Tire Man Sees No Rubber Shortage

HOUSTON, June 26 (AP)—Although the OPA has slowed down the distribution of passenger car tires, there has never been a shortage of rubber in the United States, William O'Neill, president of the General Tire & Rubber company, said here.

"Passenger car tires, made from reclaimed rubber and good for 7,500 to 10,000 miles, in quantities which can meet civilian demands can be released today," the executive said last night.

"The rubber industry has twice as much reclaimed rubber as can be reclaimed in any one year."

O'Neill and other rubber officials will attend the formal opening of the General Tire & Rubber company's synthetic rubber plant at Baytown Monday.

O'Neill said Germany was not ahead of the United States in the making of synthetic rubber.

Discussing the postwar prospects of synthetic rubber plants in Texas, O'Neill said these plants together with natural rubber would continue to exist after the war.

Washington, June 26.—(AP)—Despite public and congressional pressure, don't expect the official cards to be laid on the table any time soon as far as drafting the nation's pre-Pearl Harbor fathers is concerned.

That was the comment today of D. C. Speaker, unofficial but well informed capital news source, who noted the demand of the house military committee that the country's dads be relieved of their uncertainty.

"Of course, I'm no official," said D. C. mythical district of Columbia observer who represents authentic but unquotable sources, "and personally, I stay by my prediction last week that, barring a major military upset, the general drafting of fathers will be postponed again and again—and perhaps indefinitely."

Speaker explained, "most of the demands have been aimed at selective service Director Hershey, and despite his authoritative position, his hands are tied."

He stressed that Hershey is answerable to the army and navy, and that their attitude on the subject is one of traditional reticence. "Much as Hershey might like to relieve the minds of the dads as to their status, he can't speak out of turn. If the quotas are to be lowered, as reported, that's up to the army and navy to say, not him."

"The military leaders hesitate to announce any plan for lowered quotas or indefinite delays in father-drafting for fear a wave of optimism might sweep the country," Speaker continued. "They also are afraid pressure blocs might seek to prevent continued drafting of new 18-year-olds, who they consider much better fighters than the fathers—and all of whom probably will be needed for replacements."

"In addition, the truth, of course, is that even the military men can't be sure present plans will work out. A drastic setback on any front—ours or our Allies'—might bring a wave of casualties and call for increased draft quotas, and general induction of fathers."

"So," concluded Speaker, "much as they might like to tell the whole story and set the dads' minds at ease—for many reasons—don't look for any flat and definite official assurances now on what's in store for fathers."

The Story Of Radar

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Copyright 1943, by the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The tests begun aboard the battleship New York, in 1938 were crucial in the history of U. S. naval radar.

The reaction of practical, hard-headed line officers to the way the equipment performed appeared likely to determine its fate for some years to come.

If results were poor, the scientists knew, then the navy's fighting men probably would not be interested in radar for a long time to come. To win acceptance, it had to be good.

Page headed the operating crew which went out on the New York, taking with him Robert C. Guthrie, M. E. Reppert and A. A. Varla. They hardly had cleared the Virginia capes out of Norfolk, when the fun began.

A destroyer squadron had been assigned to make a torpedo attack on the battleship under cover of dark-ness. Page recalls now that the night was very black indeed. From about sunset on, he and his men stood by their radar waiting to pick up the destroyers. They did not know from what direction the attack was com- ing and Page recalls now that the night was very black. From about sunset on, they had to keep a 360-degree lookout.

Several hours after they went on the alert, the Atlantic squadron com- mander, vice admiral Alfred W. Johnson, showed up in the control room. He watched the radar indi- cator. For a time which to Page seemed endless, nothing happened. Finally the admiral lost patience. He knew the time of attack and he evi- dently decided the destroyers were closing in through the darkness without being discovered. He turned to go, then decided to wait a few minutes longer to see what would happen.

Just about that time the first signal came in. "There it is," exclaimed the admiral, pointing to the indi- cator. The destroyers still were eight miles away. The effect on the admiral was electric. From that moment on he was a radar enthusiast.

Captain (now rear admiral) Robert M. Griffin, skipper of the battleship, was similarly im- pressed.

"After that," Page says, "any- thing we wanted them to do on the New York, they would do it if it was possible." The ship never encountered fog but it often ran through rain. Radar picked up everything which was within range, including on one occasion, the mountain peaks of a distant shoreline.

When the cruise ended, admiral Johnson made a report: "The equipment is one of the most important radio develop- ments since the advent of radio itself."

Back in the navy's bureau of engineering the scientists, rear admiral Harold G. Bowen and other navy authorities decided the time had come to develop ad- ditional radar sets, but with the understanding that the branching out into quantity would not in any way interfere with further progress in the improvement of quality.

Two of the major electronics laboratories of the country—those operated by Bell Telephone and Radio Corporation of America—had by then been interested in radio detection work, and this meant the way was clear for com- mercial manufacture.

On a bid basis, the first con- tracts were let to RCA in Octo- ber 1939—a month after the out- break of war in Europe. "We sent the XAF up to their place," Dr. Taylor says. "And we told them that we wanted six Chinese cop- ies—not a thing changed. They did a fine job."

From that time on, the bureau of engineering, under Admiral Robinson, who was aided by Cap- tain A. J. Spriggs and such en- thusiasts as commander Sam Tuc- ker, devoted considerable effort to ward increasing production.

The Bureau of Ships, formed in 1940 by consolidation of the bu- reau of engineering and bureau of construction and repair, and headed by Admirals S. M. Robin- son and A. H. Van Keuren, con- tinued this work, as did Captain J. E. Dow who succeeded in charge of the bureau's radio unit.

Later the radar business of the navy as well as that of the army became so great that the navy's own office of production and ma- terial, and later the war produc- tion board, took over coordination of orders and output.

It was about this time, too, that into another phase of radar work. committee through its laborator- ies was asked to make and did de- liver to the navy certain impor- tant contributions to radio de- tection.

Shortly after the first RCA con- tract for the original six commer- cially-made radar sets, 14 more were ordered. These first 20 went on battleship aircraft carriers and cruisers as rapidly as they were produced. Bowen, who had most to do with interesting the private companies in radar re- search and production, is espe- cially proud of their work.

"That's the best way to do it," he said recently. "Develop the idea and produce a prototype in the laboratory and then let the other fellows make it. The private com- panies could not have done the radar research through all those years. Some of their men told me their dictators just wouldn't stand for the expense on a project which initially held so little chance of commercial develop- ment."

Both Bowen and Taylor say that the first radar sets sent out to the fleet were short of ideal, but they agreed that with the increas- ing possibility of American in- volvement in this war, they had to do the best they could with what they had.

"We knew that some of the stuff would have to be junked as soon as it could be replaced," Bowen says. "But we wanted to get it in- stalled before it might be needed."

The longest chance we took was with the navy men. If a new gad- get doesn't work well, they may lose confidence in it and not use it. Naturally we did not want that to happen with radar."

History proves he need not have worried about the navy's recep- tion of its new "eyes."

One of those who made many of the installations was Guthrie. He started the work in December, 1940—a year before Pearl Harbor—and spent the next six months with the Pacific fleet, equipping ships and showing officers and men how to operate the sets at sea.

"The response we got at first was rather interesting," Guthrie recalls. "Some ship's companies were very enthusiastic about ra- dar, and some were rather cool toward it."

One of the vessels Guthrie served on was the Battleship Cal- ifornia. He boarded her at Puget Sound to go down to Mare Island where she was to join the fleet. Just out of the Sound she ran in- to a thick fog. It seemed that the arrival at Mare Island would be greatly delayed, since the captain was not disposed to risk harming his ship or turning down some- body else. He would have to proceed at greatly reduced speed.

However, the radar was work- ing and the captain was greatly relieved in it. Soon he noticed that every little fishing boat for miles around showed up on the indicator. That convinced him of what radar could do for naviga- tion in a fog. He ordered "full steam ahead" and arrived at Mare Island on time.

Another ship on which radar was installed early was the air- craft carrier Yorktown. An RCA man handled that job and re- turned on the carrier to Long Beach. While they were still sev- eral hundred miles at sea, all sorts of weird wave-pattern distur- bances began to show up on the indicator. Neither the RCA men nor the Yorktown officers could explain—until finally they re- alized that radar was "showing" them the California coastal moun- tains.

"Mr. Guthrie did an especially splendid job in getting these ear- ly installations in the fleet and seeing that somebody knew how to operate them," Taylor said one day in Guthrie's presence.

Guthrie looked thoughtful for a moment, then grinned.

"I had trouble on one occasion," he said. "We had put radar on a cruiser, and the executive officer didn't think much of it. About the first day out he came to the con- trol room to see what it could do. We picked up a flight of planes all right and then we got some- thing else. He went outside to look off in the direction from which the signal came and there wasn't anything there but a cloud."

"You must have picked up the cloud," the exec said.

"No," I said. "This thing looks right through clouds."

So he waited and waited for something to come out of the cloud but nothing did. Then he asked me to try to pick up several other clouds on the radizon. I tried, but got no signals, and I couldn't ex- plain then what had happened. I'm afraid he had little faith in radar for a while after that.

"Now, of course, we know that the cloud was ionized (subcharged with electricity). We were getting reflections like those from the ionosphere in the old days."

Pampa Soldiers Will Be 'Going To Town'

Soldiers stationed at Pampa Field will be "Going To Town" Thursday night—at least, that's the name of the latest USO-Camp Shows enter- tainment to be presented at the air- base at that time.

Billed as one of Broadway's new- est and best musical revues, Thurs- day night's show will be headlined by the famous movie comic, Sammy Cohen. Long a favorite comedian of the variety stage where he appears between pictures, Cohen has brought laughter and enjoyment to millions of movie-goers in such popular old- timers as "What Price Glory?" "Plastered in Paris," "The Fighting Sixth-Ninth," "Forty-five Fathers," and "The Battle of Broadway."

Eight other popular Broadway and Hollywood entertainers join with Cohen, who acts as master of cere- monies, to make "Going To Town" one of the brightest spots on the USO-Camp Shows circuit.

Record Spring Pig Crop Is Forecast

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—The agriculture department estimated today the 1943 spring pig crop totaled 74,050,000 head, or 15 per cent more than the record crop of 1931 and 22 per cent more than last year.

The department said also that reports from farmers on farrowing plans indicated a 1943 fall pig crop of about 53,000,000 head, or an increase of about 9,000,000 or 21 per cent over the 1942 fall crop.

If borne out, the combined spring and fall crops would give a total 1943 production of about 127,000,000 head compared with 105,000,000 last year and a 10-year average of 73,148,000.

The prospective fall crop is considerably larger than War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis had recommended. Because of dwindling livestock feed supplies, particularly corn, Davis had asked that the fall crop be increased not more than 10 per cent.

Sox Hurler Hangs Up Ninth Win

BOSTON, June 26 (AP)—Cecil (Tex) Hughson, the New York Yankees No. 1 Jinx, beat the American League champions for his third straight time this year and his eighth in a row over two seasons today as the Boston Red Sox took a 4 to 1 decision.

In hanging up his ninth victory of 1943 as compared to three setbacks, the Sox ace right-hander tossed a seven hitter and fanned six to bring his total strikeouts for the season to 62. When he whiffed Joe Gordon in the ninth inning it marked the 44th time that the Yankee second baseman had struck out in 56 games.

Nick Etten drove in the Yankees only run with a single, on top of a pass to Charley Keller and a single by Johnny Lindell, in the first inning. That gave the champs a lead they held until the fifth when Bill Conroy walked, moved up on a sacrifice, and came home on Pete Fox's double.

The Sox went ahead in the sixth when Bobby Doerr tripled and Babe Berman walked and second baseman walk by Atley Donald allowed Doerr to score and Eddie Lake's double accounted for Barna. Successive singles by Fox, Lupien and Tabor in the eighth gave the Sox their final run.

WHITE SOX 3, INDIANS 2

CLEVELAND, June 26 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox beat the Cleveland Indians 3 to 2, whipling the series at a game apiece. Rookie Guy Curtright hit safely in his 22nd consecutive game to drive in the tying run, and Chubby Dean walked in the winning tally.

BROWNS 6, TIGERS 3

The fast-stepping Pampa Army Air Field Flyers clash this afternoon with what amounts to their most bitter rivals—the Borger Hubbers—in a baseball game to be played at the air base diamond.

Sgt. W. R. McInturf, player-manager of the Flyers, indicated last night that he would probably start his ace hurler, Sams, against the Hubbers, who noosed out the local soldier nine, 6 to 5, at Borger earlier in the season.

The game will start at 3 p. m., and visitors are welcome to attend.

Sports Roundup

By Walloping Cardinals 5-2

CHICAGO, June 26 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs, self-designated stumbling blocks in the St. Louis Cardinals' plans for a repeat title, humbled the world champions for the third straight time within a week and reduced the Redbirds' league lead to a half-game as they converted Paul Derringer's six-hit pitching into a 5 to 2 victory today.

A three-run sixth inning into which they clustered three of their eight hits off Howie Pollet and in which Lou Novikoff poked the key double to break his four-game slump gave the Cubs their seventh victory over the Redbirds in 12 meetings this year.

Derringer, turning in his third straight winning start in 10 days for his season's fifth victory, finished with a flourish, retiring the last 13 batters in succession after Stan Musial was nipped by Catcher Clyde McCullough trying to steal third base for the second out in the fifth inning.

Light Exercise. Ozzie Bluege claims he didn't call Umpire George Piggar any names when he was tossed out of a ball game recently. What he said was: "You know what Stanley Harris called you last summer? Well, that goes for me, too."

LOCAL COLOR

After watching a style show staged by Clark Shaughnessy, a committee decided that the football team next fall will be decked out in red and white uniforms instead of the traditional blue and gold. The combination is supposed to make the Athletics look bigger—which may be a good idea when you consider 1943 grid material—but Charlie Landolf of the New Castle, Pa., News suggests they omitted the blue on the theory that the Panthers will acquire that color on the field.

SERVICE DEPT.

Pvt. Bill Korns, former Utah state golf champ, had to use borrowed clubs to reach the semi-finals of a tournament at Camp Roberts, Calif. Then his dad heard about it and rushed his own clubs by air from Salt Lake City. Bill then went out and walloped the defending champ, 14 and 12, in the finals.

How Tax Plan Affects All In Service

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

WASHINGTON, June 26 (P)—For the man or woman going into the armed services, the new pay-as-you-go income tax law carries enough forgiveness to provide for funds of taxes already paid in many cases.

Those entering the services this year—or who did so last year—get these special benefits:

1. Their 1942 taxes on all earned income up to $14,000 are canceled.

2. In figuring whether they owe any 1943 taxes, they get an extra exemption of all service pay up to $1500 if single, $1200 for a married couple, plus $350 for each dependent.

What this means, in effect, is this: If a serviceman's income last year was all earned income, he won't owe any tax—and will be entitled to refund of tax payments made this year—unless he has 1943 civilian income of more than the regular exemptions (after the usual deductions).

If he does owe a 1943 tax, it may increase by up to 25 per cent—so the government tax experts have finally decided—as a quirk of the cancellation provisions of the new law.

The civilian gets a cancellation of 75 per cent (or $50, whichever is greater) of the lower 1942 or 1943 taxes. The uncanceled portion is stated by the law as an increase in 1943 tax.

So that while the average serviceman gets cancellation of the higher year's tax (assuming he made more in 1942), he must pay the lower 1943 tax (if any), plus this increase in his 1943 tax:

1. An additional 25 per cent if the tax is more than $66.67.

2. If the tax is between $50 and $66.67, the addition is the difference between the amount of the tax and $50.

(If the tax is $50 or less, there won't be any increase.)

For instance: If his 1943 tax on civilian income figured to $65, he would owe $80—$65 plus the difference between $65 and $50, or $15.

If his 1943 tax came to $80, he would owe an additional 25 per cent—making it $100 altogether.

But in general, this would mean simply a reduction in the amount of refund—and not more tax payments.

Here's how it would work out: Suppose a man owed a tax of $400 on his 1942 salary, and paid $200 of it in March and June installments of $100 each. He goes into the army as a private about July 1.

Now, suppose that the tax on his civilian income during 1943 up to the time he goes into the army figures out to $100.

His 1942 tax is wiped out. His 1943 tax will be increased by 25 per cent, so that his final 1943 tax obligation will be $125.

But he already has paid $200—in his March and June installments. So he'll have overpaid by $75, and can apply for a refund next March.

Or, take the case of a man making a salary of anywhere up to $14,000 in 1942 who entered the army as, say, a private about Jan. 1, 1943. His 1943 army pay won't be taxed. His 1942 tax will be canceled. He'll be entitled to a refund of payments on his 1942 tax made in March and June of this year.

The new law also cancels any taxes owed by a person who dies while in active service. This provision goes back to Dec. 7, 1941, and calls for refund of such taxes to heirs who paid them.

State Loses Another Round In Fight For Long Padre Island

SAN ANTONIO, June 26 (P)—Affirmation of the decision of the trial court handed down in Nueces county in March, 1941, was given this week in the "State vs. Albert Balli et al." by the fourth court of civil appeals following arguments in the case. This made the loss of the second round to the state of Texas in its battle to obtain possession of Padre Island.

Some 200 south Texas citizens who claim title to some part of the island, off Corpus Christi, may who claim title to some part of the island.

The decision, written by associate Justice James R. Norvell, upholds a title granted in 1829 by the state of Tamaulipas to Nicolas and Juan Jose Balli, Mexico citizens.

Padre Island has changed hands more than 20 times in the last century, it was said. The decision described the island as a "sand bar" or island 110 miles long, extending along Nueces, Kleburg, Kennedy, Willacy and Cameron counties, bounded on the west by Laguna Madre, on the north by Corpus Christi Pass and on the south by Port Isabel.

Since discovery of oil on the Texas coast, operators have at times placed value of the island at millions of dollars.

The court stated "no findings of facts or conclusions of law appears in the record, hence all facts and issues having support in the evidence are presumed to have been found in support of the judgment."

The court pointed out that the burden developed upon the appellees to establish that the state had relinquished its title. The appellees exhibited a chain of title from the original grantees who got theirs from the state of Tamaulipas.

Clare Booth, Texan Engage In Dispute

WASHINGTON, June 26 (P)—In one of the most spirited exchanges of the 78th congress, white-haired Rep. Luther Johnson (D-Tex.) of Corsicana defended President Roosevelt's foreign policy against a bitter attack by Clare Booth Luce, blonde Republican congresswoman from Connecticut.

Mrs. Luce called Johnson no better than a renegade interventionist Thursday and the Texan retorted that she was an illogical and unqualified critic. Johnson, veteran member of the House Foreign Affairs committee, said Mrs. Luce was unfair in her criticism, and declared she never would have made her charges had she been a member of the house during the critical years before the war. Mrs. Luce declared that the administration's foreign policy had first been isolation and later merely adoption—in default of a foreign policy of its own—of the war policies undertaken by England.

The Texan declared it is easy for one who has not been a member of the house, who has not voted on any of the measures leading up to the critical period, one who has no record, to criticize.

He termed her criticism leveled at President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull rather unfair and said that it "manifested a spirit of extreme partisanship."

TO: Every American on a Payroll FROM: The Secretary of the Treasury

SUBJECT: The New Pay-As-You-Go Method of Collecting Your Income Tax

Starting July 1st, both your Income and Victory Tax will be collected by an entirely new and more convenient method.

Under the old system, you were obliged every March 15th to pay either the full tax for the previous year, or a quarter of that amount. Under the new system, you will keep paid up from month to month.

After July 1st, your employer is obliged by the new law to withhold every month a part of your wages and turn the money into the United States Treasury as payment on your Income and Victory Tax.

Of course, the amount that your employer withholds will depend upon your pay and your exemptions. But this is the important point: For most of us, the amount withheld over a year's period will add up to the same that we're paying now—plus or minus a few dollars.

At the end of the year, we may owe the Government a few dollars or the Government may owe us. (See the tables below.)

You may have heard 20% mentioned as the proportion of your wages that will be withheld. Actually, this is incorrect. To figure the amount that will be withheld, take your total wages and subtract your allowance for exemptions and allowance for dependents; 20% of this lesser amount is the total that will be withheld.

Now please remember this: You must claim those exemptions to take advantage of them. Before July 1st, you must file with your employer an Exemption Certificate. If you do not do this, your employer will have no choice but to deduct 20% of your full pay check.

Here is how the new tax collection method will work: Let's say you are a working man earning $3,000 a year; that you are married, and have two children.

First of all, as a married man you are allowed a personal withholding exemption of $1,248, plus an exemption of $312 for each dependent (other than your wife). This makes a total exemption of $1,872 ($1,248 for yourself and wife, plus $624 for your two dependents), which is deducted from the $3,000 you earn before your tax is computed. You are thus paying tax on $1,128, of which your employer will withhold 20%, or $225.60 for the year. Therefore, in your pay envelope, after July 1, you will receive about $4.40 less each week.

In March, 1944, when you ordinarily would be faced with paying taxes on your 1943 income, you will file a return showing how much you have already paid, and how much your total tax actually amounted to. If, by that time, you have already paid more than your actual tax due, you will be given credit for the difference. If you owe more than you have paid, you will pay the difference.

Since this plan starts July 1, many wonder what happens to the tax payments they will already have made by that time—on March 15 and June 15.

For a great majority of people, here is what happens. . . . Your 1942 income tax is "forgiven" (either all, or most of it). The March and June installments which you originally paid on that 1942 income tax are credited, instead, as payments on your 1943 tax. With the result that on July 1st, with the year half gone, you have already paid tax on that half-year's income. In short, you are "paying as you go."

There is one thing more. Since this pay-as-you-go method leaves you just as much of your net income as you had before, you will probably find it possible to at least maintain your present rate of buying War Bonds. Do this by all means!

Taxes alone will not bring to the Treasury nearly enough money to finance the great invasion war that lies ahead. The war needs every cent of your money that does not go for the necessities of life.

cars and the OPA investigators performed their interviews.

"We found no liquor," he said. J. N. Saye, Longview attorney, said today he had telegraphed the eighth service command headquarters in Dallas to inquire by what authority military police were used in enforcing OPA gasoline rationing regulations in the Longview area.

Saye said he sent the telegram as a private citizen after he had been stopped on highway No. 80 just outside Longview. He reported that military police looked at his ration book and inquired where he was going and why.

Coming back into the city, Saye declared, he was stopped again "and I just told them to go to hell." Asked what the military police did then, Saye said "they just looked at me and I drove on." At Dallas District OPA Enforcement Officer W. A. Griffin, Jr., said that OPA representatives in the Longview area were "simply questioning motorists who are driving cars stopped by the state and local officials for the purpose of enforcing state and local laws."

After Saye telegraphed the Eighth Service Command headquarters in Military Police engaged in the Dallas, asking by what authority questioning, the public relations office of the command issued a statement that the MP's had been placed in the area at request of OPA officials to check only military personnel.

GENERAL

outing from Kelly Field, Texas. General Smith was at that time operations officer at Wheeler.

Colonel Campbell, prior to introducing the main speaker, paid tribute to the parents, wives and sweethearts of the graduates, as well as the citizens of Pampa for the splendid treatment given to visitors and permanent personnel of the field.

With Capt. Paul Daugherty, school secretary, presiding, the 43-F graduation ceremonies opened with the invocation by the Rev. Edgar W. Hendshaw of the Pampa Episcopal church. The cadets then took the oath of office as second lieutenants, after which Colonel Campbell introduced General Smith.

Following the general's address, Colonel Campbell awarded wings to the cadet wing commander, now Lt. Charles C. Donham, and the honor ground school student, now Lt. John J. Cook, Jr., who made the excellent average of 95.2 in his academic work as a cadet.

The members of 43-F were then marched to the stage and presented individually, with their wings, with Major Jack F. Marx presenting each man his pilot's emblem and congratulations.

Highlighting the program was the presentation of wings by one of America's heroes, First Lt. Edwin Crane, of Wichita, Kans., to his brother, now Lt. Larry Crane. A veteran of numerous combat missions in North Africa, where he shot down at least three German planes. Lt. Ed Crane has been decorated for bravery 12 times. He recently remarked, while in Wichita on leave, that the biggest thrill of his life would come when he pinned pilot's wings on his "kid brother" Larry. He got that thrill yesterday.

The program concluded with the singing of the air corps song by the new lieutenants, and the playing of the National Anthem by the post band.

Immediately following the conclusion of the exercises, the new graduates and their special guests swarmed outside for the traditional "wing-pinning-on" ceremonies.

Orders and station assignments were received at about noon, and the gala week-end graduation festivities closed last night at the graduation dance in the post recreation hall.

Jap-American Wives Arrive

Some Highlights Of Graduation Exercises Here

Packed into red, white and blue busses, parents, wives and sweethearts shuffled out to Pampa Field yesterday to see members of the graduating class of 43-F receive their silver wings.

A gigantic flag was waving in honor of the newly-commissioned pilots and on each side of the theatre building, where the exercises were held two AT-19-A's crouched, like faithful bulldogs guarding the ceremonies honoring their erstwhile master.

As in all other ceremonies where man honors his fellow man, the spirit of comradeship bathed the scene with the light of fellowship and good will. Time and again as the ritual dear to the hearts of airmen progressed, one was conscious of a stirring, an expectant rustle of movement as a proud father or mother leaned forward when their son received his reward.

A four-year-old tousled-headed boy squirmed in his seat trying to attract the attention of his brother as the lad's hero received his wings from the hands of Major Jack F. Marx.

Two brothers of Gloversville, N. Y., Lts. Arthur and Eugene Gossett, received their wings together. Colonel Campbell personally presented wings to the wing commander, Lt. Charles C. Donham, Jr., of Houston, Texas, and honor student, Lt. John J. Cook, Jr., of Buffalo, N. Y.

Conscious of the new responsibility given to their loved ones quietly proud parents and starry-eyed wives and sweethearts rose in a body and joined the graduates in the stirring strains of the National Anthem, which was played by T/Sgt. Albert Fish and his post orchestra.

As the strains of the National Anthem died away, the new lieutenants shouted and whooped in unrestrained glee at finally winning their wings and completing their aviation cadet training. At the height of the noise, their white gloves were tossed high in the air, raining down on the audience and bringing to a close the graduation ceremonies.

Outside of the theatre, many of the new pilots had to take out their frustration to wipe off lipstick traces, planted on their cheeks by happy wives and mothers as they filed out after receiving their hard-earned wings. For the folks back home, many of the new lieutenants posed with their families while post cameramen snapped the traditional wing-pinning ceremonies close to one of the training planes parked near the scene of the commencement.

Later in the day, members of 43-F returned to the theatre to receive their orders and new assignments. Last night, at the post gymnasium, they bade farewell to their personal chums at the graduation dance, prior to leaving for their various new posts.

FIGHTER

Lieutenant Crane, in 200 hours flying, shot down three Messerschmitts, destroying three others on the ground, and probably destroyed three more in combat. For these, and other achievements, he was awarded the army medal with 10 clusters, each cluster awarded in lieu of another medal.

Although his air medals, if he wore them, would cover his chest, leaving little room for his five service ribbons, Lieutenant Crane unwittingly garnered for himself an even greater glory during a flying mission early last month. The course of the mission is best explained in the words of Lt.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, head of the Allied air forces in Northwest Africa, who pinned the Distinguished Flying Cross on Lieutenant Crane, May 9. The citation, as it was read during the presentation of the DFC, follows:

"For extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flights in North Africa from 14 January 1943, to 8 May 1943. Not only has Lieutenant Crane consistently demonstrated his skill and courage as a combat pilot but has displayed unusual ability as a flight leader. While leading an element on 13 April 1943, on a dive bombing mission over Sicily, both his flight leader and his squadron leader were forced to turn back because of mechanical difficulties. As a result, many new pilots of limited combat experience were left without an experienced leader. Recognizing the situation, Lieutenant Crane took charge, and in face of adverse weather conditions, with visibility always less than a mile and with a ceiling of less than 5,000 feet over mountainous territory, he led the squadron safely back to its base without the loss of a single aircraft. By his quick thinking, initiative and skill, Lieutenant Crane has distinguished himself on this and many other occasions. His courage and coolness under fire have reflected great credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

As surely as you are reading these lines, a better day is coming. A day when blackouts cease, when the lights come on all over the world, when the clouds of war part and dissolve in the sun of world peace. And that will be the day that our boys return home. How will they find these homes? To be more specific, how will your boy find your home? Will it be as attractive as it was the day he said goodbye? Will it even be more attractive? Let's make that last come true. Let's get these homes of ours in readiness for the Great Return!

The members of the Holy Souls Altar Society have quilted and tackled six quilts for the Red Cross. Mrs. Earl O'Brien, sewing chairman, reports that the quilts are very pretty.

Many convalescent robes and hospital pajamas are ready to be sewed; although these garments are badly needed now, it is not essential that one be finished within a day or two. If Pampa women will come in, get one of them, and return it within two weeks, it will help greatly, Mrs. O'Brien declares.

High school girls are joining the ranks of those making surgical dressings, and they are warmly welcomed by the chairman, Mrs. C. P. Buckler. It is hoped that many more of these girls will take an interest in the work, as their young fingers readily adapt themselves to the art of making dressings.

The surgical dressings room is open every day except Saturday from 9 to 11 a. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m.; this room is on the main floor of the City Hall. Tuesday morning of each week is reserved for army wives, but on all other occasions anyone may work. There are only three requirements: that workers must observe, wear a clean wash dress, have the hair completely covered, and omit nail polish. Since the emphasis is on quality rather than quantity, patience is needed to acquire skill in making the dressings, but the instructors are eager to show everyone just how they should be made. Monitors examine the dressings to insure that all are as well made as possible.

Mrs. Arthur Arndt, who began making surgical dressings in February, has averaged fifty hours a month, and at the end of this week has completed a total of more than two hundred hours. The instructors say that she not only makes the dressings rapidly, but that every one is beautifully made.

Dick Duncan, instructor of the course in Life Saving and Water Safety at the Pampa Municipal Swimming pool, reports that he has three pupils in the senior course and seven in the junior. The others have been passed in the intermediate and one in the beginner class.

Miss Clara Brown, nutrition chairman, reminds all those interested in preserving foods from their Victory gardens that on Monday evening, June 28, at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Julia Kelly and Mrs. Leslie Hart will hold a demonstration on canning, brining, pickling, drying and storing of fruits and vegetables. The demonstration will be given at the Sam Houston school.

Mrs. W. G. Kinzer, knitting chairman, reports that there is a great amount of knitting on hand. She urges knitters not to let down just because of the hot weather, and has words of praise for the knitting that is coming in at this time.

This description of the new surgical dressing hairdress is contributed by the Los Gatos Chapter, Los Gatos, California:

No pearls or curls.
We're in the army now:

Don't mind our looks,
It's in the books
To bind up every brow:

To lose our beauty
While on duty
Isn't hardship, we'll allow.

Is now our "boss".
And to its rules we bow.

Citizens of Gray county who are college graduates between the ages of 22 and 40 and acceptable for admission to accredited schools of social work, may apply for one of 15 American National Red Cross scholarships, available July 1. Mrs. M. F. Roche, chairman of the Pampa Red Cross Home Service committee announced today.

"Scholarships provide for full tuition and an allowance of $65 a month toward maintenance for one academic year," she said, "and after completing the training, students will be assigned to Red Cross home service positions as executive secretaries, supervisors of case workers."

The scholarship plan is expected to help relieve a shortage of trained personnel required by the Red Cross in fulfilling its rapidly increasing obligations to servicemen and their families, Mrs. Roche explained.

The chairman said the number of home service requests have increased from 500 daily before Pearl Harbor to more than 4,000 a day.

HENSHAW

the reply that "The Fighting French is not a movement. The Fighting French is France itself. We are the residents of France, de Gaulle said. He stated further that 'In no place in this world can I yield a single French right, though I am perfectly willing to sit with Winston Churchill and Franklin Roosevelt and consider ways and means by which French rights and French territories can be momentarily and temporarily used in order to help drive the Germans and the collaborators from the control of France.'

Perhaps the most outstanding sociological problem in the Middle East was the entire lack of sanitation. In the capital city of Iran, the city's water supply runs through open gutters along the sides of the streets. People wash themselves and their clothes in it, pump it up into their apartments, drink it, cook in it. These practices lead to dysentery, cholera, malaria and a dozen other water-carried diseases.

Only one out of every five children born there lives to the age of six. Since we have sent our ideas and our ideals, our motion pictures and our radio programs, our engineers and our businessmen into the Middle East, we cannot now escape the result. The people there are unsatisfied and unhappy, and we must assume a certain amount of responsibility. We must give them leadership, but allow self-government.

In his talk with newspapermen and soldiers throughout the Middle East, it all added up to the conviction that these newly awakened people were followers of some extremist leader in this generation if their new hunger for education and opportunity is not by their own rulers and their foreign overlords. As long as these maladjustments remain, there will continue to be wars. Politics must go out, and statesmanship must rule," Mr. Henshaw said.

"His visit to Turkey brought about the thought that the Turkish people were celebrating their twentieth anniversary as a republic. During the last war, they were with Germany. During this war they are observing in a very strict manner the neutral laws. The Turks are in a very precarious position. They are juggling the neutrality laws, trying to keep a balance between two powers. They believe, however, that America will win the war, and are concerned with the part which Russia will play after the war.

His visit to Turkey offered a possible prototype for what was happening to the rest of that area, and he believes that Turkey will be one of the nations that will help to build our One World.

In Russia Willkie met no opposition. The Soviet government gave him every chance to find out what he wanted to learn. There he met several generals, one among whom was Lt. Gen. Dmitri D. Lelchubenko. While having dinner with him Willkie asked what part of the Russian 2,000-mile battlefield was he defending. The general looked at him as if offended and said, 'Sir, I am not defending. I am attacking.'

During the course of the evening Mr. Willkie asked what they thought of German prisoners, but his question was ignored. The third time he asked the question, one of the officers finally said: Mr. Willkie, it is quite obvious that you do not understand. Since we have driven Germany back, and have seen the murderous things that German soldiers have done, no decent newspaperman in Russia would speak to him, even though he were a prisoner.

The next day, Mr. Willkie spent the entire day at the Russian airport, and there the government gave him every opportunity of seeing what they were doing.

One word that Mr. Willkie bumped into a great deal, and one which he was not particularly fond, was the word "liquidate." When he asked Stalin what happened when a Russian did not make good at his job, Stalin smiled slowly and said, 'They are simply liquidated.' It was obvious that there was some mystery about the interpretation of the word "liquidate."

A few days later at a dinner that Stalin and Willkie gave to the American and to Russian. Stalin feels that both countries must work together, and that there should be no mistrust or fear toward the Soviet Republic.

During a conversation with a Russian officer Mr. Willkie was told that before 1917 only two per cent of all the people of Russia were literate; ninety-eight per cent could not read nor write. Now the figures are exactly reversed.

Moreover, the officer said smiling, I have received an order from Moscow to "liquidate" the two per cent illiteracy before the end of the year. The thing that Mr. Willkie wishes to impress upon our mind is that he believes it is possible for Russia and America to work together for the economic welfare and the peace after the war. He said that he believed that in the fundamental rightness of our free economic and political institutions that Russia and America will survive anything—if they work together.

In China Mr. Willkie saw a spirit which was unbroken. He said it is unfortunate that so many Americans still think of China in terms of great inert masses and not in terms of people. The thing that impresses him most, was the great development of the military leadership of China. For five years they have fought against the strong army of Japan, sometimes without any sort of equipment.

The six days Willkie spent with Generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek were filled with talk. Willkie feels that the general is greatly under-rated by world powers of today, and he believes that he will be a world factor, and that Mme. Chiang will be a tremendous factor in world peace. He believes that she is the outstanding woman of our times.

One of the important things that Willkie found in China was that their faith in American promises was getting thin. They think that it is time that America stopped promising and started acting. The equipment we have sent to them is shameful. He said that we have given more armament to Japan than we have to China.

Mr. Willkie said that unless we know definitely what we are fighting for we are going to lose the war. The success of the American Revolution was due to the fact that they knew what they were fighting for, and won what they were fighting for. Unless we know that now, we can win a war and lose a world. Willkie pleads with Americans to give the best they have to China because China is our friend, she is our first ally. Race and color have nothing to do with the side we shall fight on.

In conclusion Willkie stated that there was not a world so small that we cannot all live together in it. He said, to win this peace three things seem to me necessary—first, we must plan now for peace on a world basis; second, the world must be free, politically and economically, for nations and for men, that peace may exist in it; third, America must play an active constructive part in freeing it and keeping its peace.

Cotton Fashions For The American Way

The advent of the thirteenth annual Cotton Week puts the spotlight on cottons once more. This year, because it's wartime, they are more important than ever—and no wonder, because through economy, practicality, and endurance, cottons are the most important of all.

They are economical not only in purchase price, which is lower than that of other fabrics, but also in upkeep because they can be laundered at home at no cost. So organdies and batistes wear much better than equally sheer fabrics of other fibers makes them literally "durable fabrics." They're practical because they don't have to be pampered—most of them can be tossed into the family washing machine with the minimum of effort and require almost no pressing. They have been styled to offer charm and style for the price, year-round types that will be in good taste long after the armistice and double-duty styles that serve more than one purpose and thus cut down the size and cost of a wardrobe.

For these reasons cottons are ideally suited to the American way of life. Virginia Jewel, fashion director of the Cotton-Textile Institute and the National Cotton Council, "and the American public has confirmed this fact by using twelve billion yards of cotton this past year—fifty per cent more than in 'normal' times."

Let's look at this season's fashions. In coats there are lovely and wide-waist plushes in styles, such as the very popular Chesterfield, that do duty round the clock and practically round the calendar.

America's favorite casuals and piece playsuits with detachable skirts in seersucker, percale, poplin, broadcloth, and glazed chintz, which are ideal for play, tennis, shopping; slacks suits of denim, gabardine, covert, corduroy, and seersucker for country, campus, air-raid duty, war work, gardening and housework; one-and-two-piece beach coats that can alternate as housecoats, of glazed chintz, seersucker, percale, and poplin; casuals and pinafores of chambray, chintz, cerotome, ticking, shirting, longcloth, seersucker, and other washable cottons.

Cotton lingerie, such as batiste, lawn, and muslin negligees, gowns slips, panties, an abras are ideal for hot weather because they are absorbent and therefore are as cool and comfortable as they are fresh and clean looking.

Cotton accessories have taken on new importance as the result of this year's shortage of leather. Playshoes of canvas, knitteds, and other fabrics are being rushed because of shoe rationing. Gloves of plaid gingham, striped ticking, white plique, glazed chintz, and seersucker designed by such a prominent designer as Merry Hull are worn by everybody who can get them. Hats of the same fabrics designed by Helene Garnell, Lily Dache, Saly Victor, Helen Liebert, and other prominent designers are being seen at the smartest places. Handbags and gilets, frequently matched to gloves, hats, or shoes, are other accessories that lend themselves to cotton fabrics.

Everybody's wearing cottons this year—and loving them.

Shortages of food are relieving shortages of textiles, for restaurateurs have reported a decrease of "from 20 to 50 per cent in the frequency of stains from fruits and juices since these foods appear less often upon the tables."

By RUTH MILLETT

We've been sold on the idea that the service man needs some recreation for the good of his morale. Now what about Mama? She is going to need something for a change of pace for this summer.

Added to the job of keeping a house, bringing up a family and doing volunteer war work, Mama will be taking on the extra work of a Victory Garden and canning what comes out of it.

That is no easy assignment. Mama won't squawk. She never does when it becomes necessary for her to do extra work. But she is bound to find the going hard during the hot summer months.

Can't husbands make a real effort to see that Mama's morale is boosted by some social life?

Maybe it will be enough if the man of the house takes Mama out to dinner occasionally.

Or it may be necessary for him to stay at home with the children while she goes to a movie without him.

It may even mean that Papa won't be able to count on his day off as a day of rest, but will have to spend it helping Mama with the canning or with the heavy housecleaning, so that they both can enjoy a few hours of leisure.

But no matter what he has to do to give her a little time for herself Papa ought to see that Mama does get a little time off.

MAMA CARRIES THE LOAD
The burden of rationing, of the "no household help" situation, and of shortages falls most heavily on Mama.

If the family isn't to suffer, she has to work long, tiring hours. So somebody ought to see that she gets a chance to take it easy once in a while. Nobody is going to—unless it's Papa.

That is why Mama's morale is his problem. And if he wants a happy home he had better work it out.

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Make no mistake about it, from here on out it will pay to know how to look your best, feel most capable, and to take the time necessary for it, whatever your schedule. Home-maker, war-worker, or business girl, you'll do your job better if you know you are attractively turned-out, carefully groomed. These things are bound to keep your spirits higher. If you doubt it, just recall how defective you are when you allow a gloomy day to tempt you to don your least becoming, oldest dress, and be careless with your makeup and hairdo.

You'll be doing more for looks with less. That's the war's meaning at your dressing table. If you're wise.

You won't bother with elaborate hairdos, but neither will you be satisfied for a moment with a coiffure which does not flatter you. It should suit your particular head of lustrous, shining, healthy hair. You'll brush your locks briskly and shampoo frequently.

Probably you'll find extreme manures impractical, but you'll take time to shape your nails properly, soften and push back the cuticle, buff the nail surfaces, and clean and soften the skin with mild soap and protecting lotion.

Panhandle Wheat Farms Eligible For Big Loans

Texas wheat farmers will receive higher loan rates under this year's loan program than they did during 1942, Fred Rennels, assistant administrative officer of the state AAA, has announced at College Station.

The terminal loan value, Caves-ton, for this year will be $1.43 for no. 2 hard winter wheat compared to $1.34 under the 1942 program, he said and added that loans will vary from the terminal rate because of location, grade and quality.

Discussing eligibility that requires wheat producers to be eligible for loans regardless of the acreage planted. He added that producers in the 19 counties of the wind erosion area of the Panhandle are eligible for loans on their entire production provided they meet 90 per cent of their wheat warping goals, which consist largely of pasture and hay acreage.

The latter provision is designed to prevent the plowing up of land in the Panhandle which may be hazardous to the control of erosion, Rennels said.

Either farm storage or approved warehouse loans may be made on this year's crop. Farm storage loans will be made on a note and chattel mortgage basis while warehouse loans will be made under a note and loan agreement.

For farm stored wheat, seven cents per bushel storage allowance will be advanced at the time the loan is made. Farm stored loans will mature on demand but not later than April 30, 1945, while warehouse stored loans will mature on demand but not later than April 30, 1944.

Made through Commodity Credit Corporation, loans will be administered in Texas by county AAA committee under general supervision of the state AAA committee, Rennels said.

Memorial Rites For White Deer Soldier To Be Held Sunday

(Special To The News) WHITE DEER, June 26—Memorial services for Pfc. John W. Moore, 26, killed in action in the North American area on May 29, will be held here at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the First Baptist church.

Rev. J. W. Hardin, pastor, will be in charge of the service; Rev. D. R. Davidson, pastor of the Methodist church, will read the Scripture; and Rev. E. Douglas Carver, pastor of the First Baptist church, Pampa, will give the memorial tribute.

Rev. Carver was pastor of the church here at the time Pfc. Moore, as a young boy, made a profession of faith, but did not unite with the church.

Pfc. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moore, was born in White Deer, April 11, 1917, and was graduated from high school here in 1936. Inducted into the army on Dec. 8, 1941, he was stationed in Fort Ord, Calif., until the latter part of April, 1943, when he was sent to the North American area.

His brother, Cpl. Sam Moore of Camp Young, Indio, Calif., is at home now on furlough, but his other brother, Pvt. Howard Moore, who is in the hospital at Palm Springs, Calif., for minor illness, may not be able to attend the services.

Moves Underway To Keep Davis

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP)—Don't count Chester C. Davis out as War Food Administrator unless and until you hear that he has actually turned in his resignation to President Roosevelt.

That's the reply of D. C. Speaker, unofficial but informed capital news source, to reports that Davis has told the White House he will quit unless given more power over food policies.

Familiar with authority rows in both peace and war, Speaker said he'd wager that the White House is trying now to work out a satisfactory agreement with Davis—because of Davis' general knowledge of food and farm problems and the support he has among farmers and the food industry.

The principal demand voiced by Davis is for greater control over farm and food price policies, said Speaker, the mythical District of Columbia observer who represents authentic but unquoted sources.

"However," he added, "literally speaking, Davis has made no threats to quit. He doesn't operate that way. He's the type who uses the gun only once."

What he has done is this: He has outlined to the White House the powers he thinks his agency must have if it is to do the job under his leadership. It is up to the White House to decide what will be done about it.

Speaker said it was a pretty good bet that the situation would be worked out so that Davis could continue as food chief. Failing that, D. C. conceded Davis could be expected to pack up and return to his old post as president of the Federal Reserve Bank at St. Louis. Davis took a leave of absence from the banking job when he was drafted by President Roosevelt last March to head the War Food Administration.

'Crash Dive' Accolade To U. S. Sub Service

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

While serving in the U. S. Marine corps, versatile Tyrone Power manages to appear on two Pampa screens at the same time this week via the magic of the motion pictures.

Tri-role Tyrone is teamed with Anne Baxter in 20th Century-Fox's Technicolor picture, "Crash Dive," accolade to the men of Uncle Sam's pig boats. The picture opens a four-day run today at the LaNora.

Skipping back a century or two, Power appears in the leading role in a swashbuckling pirate yarn of Rafael Sabatini's, "The Black Swan," also a 20th Century-Fox Technicolor picture, opening a three-day run today at the State.

Without the benefit of any super-super trappings, a good story is interesting told in Warners' "The Hard Way," featuring Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, and Joan Leslie.

The picture tells the story of Lupino as Helen Cheren, a relentless and frustrated woman, so determined to get money and all it brings that she breaks all the rules of human decency to attain it. It's on the Crown screen today, tomorrow and Tuesday.

Veronica Lake and Fredric March are teamed in first Artists Rene Clair comedy-romance in which Veronica, first seen as a smoky spirit traveling in space with her sorcerer-father, gets a body in order to perform some nasty witchcraft aimed against Hero March, and intended to keep him from becoming governor of the state, and from marrying his sweetheart, Susan Hayward.

It's opening a three-day run today at the Rex.

"CRASH DIVE!" As the imperiled submarine plummets to the bottom of the sea, the crew hangs on in silence, hoping and praying for the best. This is one of the tense scenes from the thrilling new Technicolor adventure film, "Crash Dive," which stars Tyrone Power, Current at the La Nora. The first wartime film of Uncle Sam's battling submariners, it has been hailed as the top action picture of the year.

Fredric March's apparent fright is caused by Veronica Lake's amusing antics in this scene from "I Married a Witch," comedy current at the Rex.

Fierce Italian Raids Forecast

BOSTON, June 25 (AP)—A prediction that American and British airmen will give Italy a "hammering" such as no country has ever received before came today from Edward Kennedy, veteran associated press foreign correspondent, after a tour of war coverage unparalleled in the middle eastern and North African theaters.

Kennedy holds a record as the only newspaperman who covered the middle eastern and north African wars from the time the first shot was fired by Italy in 1940 until the last German surrendered after Tunis and Bizerte fell. He gave his views after returning on his first vacation since before the war.

"Conditions are perfect for giving the Italians a terrific pasting from the air," he said. "The skies are so blue, with few clouds and no fog, that the amazing American bomb-sight is operating with uncanny accuracy. Distances are short, enemy resistance is light and allied casualties are comparatively few. The United States air forces have done a job of bombing that has been unequalled in this war."

"In my opinion, the African campaign was not a second front. It was a first front, for it kept the Mediterranean open, exposed the Axis' Achilles heel—Italy—to attack, and established a shelf of aggression 2,500 miles long from which a death blow can be launched at the Axis. A large well-trained force is ready and they have terrific supplies."

Alimony Payers Are Put On Compulsory Money Saving Basis

(AP)—Congressional tax authorities discovered today the pay-as-you-go income tax law has put the nation's alimony payers on a compulsory savings plan.

The law makes no provision for an adjustment of the 20 per cent withholding levy, on account of alimony payments although the alimony is deductible in computing actual income tax at the year end.

As an illustration, a married man making $100 weekly, but paying a former wife $50 weekly, would have approximately $750 deducted from his pay check annually through the 20 per cent withholding, but the following March 15 when he made out his final return on the previous year's income, the government would owe him around $325 on account of the withholdings against the $260 he had paid in alimony.

The ex-wife would be liable for the income tax on the $2, 600 he had paid in alimony.

Texas Has Had Radar School For Past Year

CORPUS CHRISTI, June 26 (AP)—The navy disclosed today that more than 10,000 officers and men have completed courses in operation and maintenance of radar at a huge school near here whose function has been kept strictly secret for a year.

Radar is the new radio beam reflection device officials report has been used successfully in locating enemy submarines, ships and planes.

The school is the naval technical training center at Ward Island, adjacent to the huge Corpus Christi naval air training center. It was built in just seven weeks on the sandy wastes of the island and was commissioned July 1, 1942 last September and since then more than 2,500 navy and marine enlisted men and 250 officers have been sent to the fleet for active duty in addition to some 7,000 others who have been assigned to operational bases and naval shore stations, navy officials said.

The navy also revealed that fliers from other allied nations have been attending the school here. They include officers and men from the British Royal Air Force, the Royal Canadian Air Force, the Royal Navy, Union of South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and Royal Netherlands air force.

The technical training center trains men to install, maintain and operate all types of aviation radar equipment, the navy said. Courses include those for enlisted men and officers as well as operating instructions for pilots, familiarization courses for navy officers and aviation cadets.

Students report for training from the fleet, from training stations and from civilian life. First preliminary instruction at one of the seven primary schools established at colleges in all sections of the country.

Commander G. K. Stoddard, USN (RET), has been commanding officer of NATTC since its commissioning.

Stoddard was in charge of a group of American officers and men which attended the Clinton, Ontario, school of the Canadian Royal Air Force in 1941. Navy officials here said that was the first radar school.

Nine Jap Subs Reported Sunk
LOS ANGELES, June 26 (AP)—The concerted action of alert coast guard cutters and army and navy planes blasted at least nine and possibly 11 Jap submarines to the bottom off the Pacific Coast shortly after Pearl Harbor.

The Los Angeles Times said today a tabulation of the sub sinkings, although not officially confirmed by the navy, was based upon substantial data. The Los Angeles Examiner said Japan's plans for snapping United States supply lines for Hawaii and Australia were smashed almost within sight of the California and Oregon coasts. Most of the action, the newspapers said, occurred not far off Los Angeles harbor.

De Valera Loses Support In Eire

DUBLIN, June 26 (AP)—Shorn of a clear majority in the Dail (parliament), Eamon De Valera's chances for extending his 11-year span as Eire's prime minister hinged today on the possibility of his reaching an agreement with one or more of the lesser parties.

Farewell to "The Rock" and Bataan

Chapter 24

FROM about the middle of February we had begun to discuss plans for leaving the Philippines. I had made my arrangements with Lieut. Buckley while Jacoby was keeping in touch with the Army officers operating the small ships running to the southern islands and coming back with supplies.

We had two motives for wanting to leave. None of us wanted to fall into Japanese hands there or anywhere else. We had heard that Don Bell, the American radio announcer, had been tortured and killed after failing to escape from the capital. We had strong reasons to suspect that we would face the same fate.

Our second reason was less selfish. By mid-February we had learned that there was very little likelihood of reinforcements being sent to Bataan. We began to suspect that Bataan was becoming an embarrassment to the military leaders in Washington; the longer it held the louder the American people were clamoring that help be sent. And the government had no intention of taking the risks involved in a major relief expedition. MacArthur's messages, which they were assured, informed him of that fact.

We believed that if we could escape from the Philippines and get to Australia and then fly to the United States, we might be able to persuade the authorities that the battle was not yet lost. We might be able to convince them that MacArthur's Army had become a veteran, tough outfit, full of fight and confidence; and tell them that a few airplanes could make all the difference in the world, and that given a few encouragements the people of the Philippines would fight with us to the death.

We wanted to convince them that, unless we proved to the native population of the Orient that the United States was not buying time at their expense, there was grave danger that those populations would turn against us and join the Japanese.

On the morning of February 22, Jacoby met me at the mouth of Malinta tunnel. "Annie and I are going out tonight," he said. "You'd better come along."

"I'm supposed to go with Bulkeley," I reminded him. "Yes," he said, "but you better check up on it. I hear there is a possibility his trip will be called off."

I WENT over to the Navy tunnel and found Captain Ray, the chief of staff. "Lieutenant Bulkeley has told me I could go along with him on his trip to China. Now there is a chance for me to leave by another way. What is your advice?"

"You better go the other way," Captain Ray said. "Bulkeley's orders may be changed, or the boats may be sunk or break down, or they may be required for some other purpose."

I thanked him and found Jacoby, and together we made arrangements to see MacArthur after noon. He received us at his desk in the USAFFE tunnel. "Do you want to go?" the general asked.

We told him that it depended on whether we could do more good by staying than by going. The general refused to make our decision for us, but as a result of what he said we decided to take a chance on getting through.

MacArthur talked to us for more than an hour, as eloquently and stirring as ever. He discussed not only his own desperate situation but the entire world picture. His heart was in the Philippines, but his brilliant mind grasped the whole strategy of the world struggle. He felt that there was not sufficient understanding in Allied councils of the time element in the Pacific or of the fact that we did not have unlimited time to defeat Japan.

He pointed out the futility of trying to defeat Japan by "blockade" and "attrition" now that Singapore had fallen and Java was about to go. With the capture of those places Japan would have all the raw materials and the bases needed for a war of blockade and attrition against us. He was disturbed but he was not bitter. He was ready to face his fate like a soldier; but, like an American soldier, he wanted to win—not to lose.

"GO ARMED while you are in the Philippines," the general advised. "When you board a ship to leave the islands, if you are fortunate enough to make connections, throw away your khaki, your guns, passports, and all diaries and identification papers. When you get to Cebu look up the names of some businessmen and learn enough about them so as to enable you to assume their identity, if you are captured."

When he shook hands with us he said, "I hope you'll make it. Say good-bye to Annie for me." MacArthur gave us special credentials.

We spent the afternoon making final preparations. I wrote some last dispatches and arranged for Deschender to be relieved from his duties in the Quartermaster Corps and to act as our correspondent, which he did magnificently until his exciting escape by airplane some six weeks later.

Germans Strafe Liferaft After Mitchell Downed

AN ADVANCED AMERICAN BASE IN NORTH AFRICA, June 23 (Delayed) (AP)—First Lieut. Sam C. Schlitzkus of Dallas, Tex., is an extremely angry bomber pilot, the victim of what he declares was dirty fighting.

The bronzed 23-year-old pilot, who had flown 19 missions over enemy territory, lost his Mitchell to a score of Messerschmitts in a recent engagement between Pantelleria Island and Tunisia.

His bombardier was killed and three other crewmen wounded when the Germans shot his plane into the sea and then strafed the rubber liferaft in which they were trying to make land. Only Schlitzkus came through unhurt.

"The Messerschmitt-108s jumped us as we finished dropping bombs on Pantelleria a day or so before the island surrendered," Schlitzkus related. "We fought them off as best we could until we were about 10 miles out to sea."

"Then they dived in from both sides, firing from as close as 50 yards. The fight engine was hit twice and caught fire, the hydraulic system went out and the wheels dropped down. The copilot started to walk back to pump the wheels up by hand, but he was wounded in the back."

"Then the enemy almost chewed off my right wing and set both gas tanks afire. Other shots hit the controls and knocked out all my instruments. Finally they got a shot in my left engine, but both engines continued to pull, so we kept on."

"Next the escape hatch and the top of the plane over my head was blown away by a burst of 20 millimeter shells. The copilot's throat was cut and he was thrown away by my own wrist watch and headphones were neatly picked off. Then the instrument panel went and we decided to crash land in the water."

"While we were going down the turret gunner's ammunition gave out and as he climbed down three Messerschmitts dived from above. They blew off both sides of the turret and wounded him. In short, we were shot all to hell."

"The wheels and the lower turret were down when the plane smashed the water. We just had time to climb out and get the raft clear when she sank."

"Then we found they were coming at us again. We couldn't get under water because of our life vests, so we just had to duck our heads and let them strafe us. After a while they punctured the radio operator's lifebelt. He could at least bleed under water. Then they seemed satisfied and quit."

Hours later an RAF Walrus amphibious sea rescue plane sighted Schlitzkus and his three companions, but the waves were too high to permit it to come down and it summoned a minesweeper, which picked up the flyers and kept them aboard overnight. They were landed at a Tunisian port the next day.

During all this time, Schlitzkus said, his three wounded companions did not "whimper." The radio operator's legs were pierced by 20-millimeter cannon shells. The turret gunner had been sprayed by splinters from a shell which exploded inside the plane. He was bleeding all over.

"I'll be getting a new Mitchell in a few days," Schlitzkus promised. "and something is going to happen. I don't mean I'll start strafing liferafts, but I'll get even. You can count on that."
