A.J. McCright, adjutant of American Legion Post 19, talks about Memorial Day and the need to remember the sacrifices of America's war dead. The Legion placed flags on all veterans' graves in area cemeteries today and planned a memorial service at Fairview Cemetery at 6:30 p.m.

Local veteran sees to it that dead veterans not forgotten

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

For most of the year the graves of America's war veterans lie unattended and forgotten.

Some of the more recently deceased veterans still have families to remember them, but most of the 1.2 million Americans who have died in wars since 1775 are no longer remembered as individuals. The specific circumstances that led them to their common fate have been lost, for the most part. All that's left are their names and the fact that they died for their country.

But once a year, on Memorial Day, they are remembered, at least in a collective sense, and honored for the sacrifice they made.

"On Memorial Day, we honor the people who wore these uniforms," said A.J. McCright, adjutant of American Legion Post 19. "They made their contribution to keeping this country safe for us, for our children and their descendants."

Reagan ready to send missiles to Saudi Arabia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is ready to send 400 Stinger antiaircraft missiles to Saudi Arabia and is considering U.S. refueling of Saudi jet fighters to help defend oil tankers and installations in the Persian Gulf, according to U.S. officials.

Only a final decision by President Reagan is required to begin immediate delivery of 200 launchers equipped with the Stingers as well as another 200 replacement missiles, the officials said Sunday.

They told The Associated Press the hand-held missiles could be deployed at Ras Tanura, the main Saudi oil depot; aboard tankers, which have been under fire in the Gulf, and at the royal palaces.

"Military force — ground troops — are not called for here," an official said. "But we have to provide the stability for a diplomatic solution."

The imminent move aroused the Israeli government. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told his Cabinet Sunday he feared Stingers could fall into the hands of terrorists or they could be used against Israel, a senior official said in Jerusalem.

The Stingers are designed to be effective at distances up to three miles and could bolster Saudi defenses against low-flying attack planes. The Saudis are already armed with 62 U.S.-built F-15 jet fighters, but the need for time to scramble diminishes their interception capability.

The jets were sold to the Saudis without bomb racks and with small fuel tanks to lessen any potential threat to Israel, whose supporters nearly blocked the sale during the Carter administration.

Now, the officials said, U.S. and Saudi military delegations are discussing here and in Riyadh how to make the jets more potent in the event they are needed in a widened Persian Gulf war. Maj. Gen. Edward L. Tixier, the Pentagon's top Middle East expert, is in charge of deliberations in the Saudi capital.

"The idea is to provide an air cap to get folks talking again," said a Pentagon official here. He said Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and the joint chiefs of staff had urged Reagan to avoid, if at all possible, use of American forces in the Gulf region.

One option is to have American pilots fly KC-135 tankers, ensuring that the United States maintains a tight rein on operations. Another is to put the tankers under the temporary control of the Saudis.

A second official, who declined to be identified, said the Saudis had submitted a "mile-long shopping list" and that their needs were being assessed carefully.

Congress normally has the power to block any substantial U.S. arms sale. But Reagan would provide the 400 Stingers on an emergency basis, thereby skirting what could be a nasty dispute with Israel's supporters and others who are concerned about American arms possibly falling into the possession of terrorists.

It was not immediately clear whether the 400 Stingers would be sold to the Saudis or leased to them. Officials said another 600 to 800 would be sold to the Saudis, but only if Congress approved.

Jackson heads for Mexico

The Associated Press

The Rev. Jesse Jackson is heading to Mexico today to talk about the fighting in Central America and the international debt crisis as the Democratic presidential front-runner, Walter F. Mondale, delays a California trip to spend Memorial Day in New Jersey.

Approaching the final week of primary season campaigning, Mondale demonstrated the importance of New Jersey's June 5 Democratic presidential primary by canceling a day of California events to spend the extra time in New Jersey.

Gary Hart ended a California visit Sunday evening and was in West Virginia today before reaching New Jersey.

All three candidates are looking to the final and climactic round of voting on June 5, when primaries in California, New Jersey, West Virginia, New Mexico and South Dakota decide 468 delegates.

Jackson, however, was venturing out to Mexico City on a foreign a trip that was but a foreshortened version of his earlier planned visit to Nicaragua.

Jackson strongly condemned President Reagan's Central America policies before leaving, saying they present a "frightening vision" that will lead to a "worsening war."

Delegates GOP faithful

DALLAS (AP) — The 81 delegates selected to attend the Republican National Convention in August consist mostly of longtime suppporters of President Reagan and grassroots party faithful, GOP officials say.

The 81 delegates and 81 alternates, about half of whom are women, are the "nuts and bolts of the grass roots of the Republican Party of Texas," said Martha Weisend, co-chair of the Texas Reagan-Bush committee.

'Unique' star spews out beams of gas

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have found evidence that the most powerful star in the Milky Way is emitting two narrow beams of gas at incredible speeds, a discovery that could provide clues to understanding quasars and black holes, an astronomer says.

The star, known only as SS-433, is "completely unique in a galaxy of 100 billion stars," said Bruce Margon of the University of Washington. "It is perhaps the most unusual object in the Milky Way."

The star was discovered, catalogued and forgotten 15 years ago. Then, in 1978, Margon and other astronomers found it was one of the few stars in the earth's own galaxy — the Milky Way — to emit radio waves and X-rays.

Since then, astronomers have made one bizarre observation after another, and Margon said that studying this enigmatic star has grown into a cottage industry for scientists around the world.

Recently, they used radio astronomy to add convincing evidence to the leading theory about what SS-433 looks like.

They now believe the star is a flat, rotating disc that shoots out two needle-thin beams of gas. Close up, it might look something like a glowing dinner plate with a fire hose nozzle on both sides, each spewing out highly pressurized streams of hydrogen and helium.

The gas in these beams moves incredibly fast — about a quarter of the speed of light. The amount of kinetic, or moving, energy in these beams is over 1 million times greater than the entire light output of the sun. This vast energy makes it the most powerful star in the Milky Way.

Margon described the latest findings about SS-433 on Sunday at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Where does the star get all this energy? No one knows, but Margon says it may be powered by the same forces that govern radio galaxies and quasars, strange sources of intense energy on the far edges of the universe.

"It might be a miniature quasar in that it might share the same broad physical qualities with them," Margon said.

Receding water exposes cars that were swept from a bridge in northeast Tulsa on Sunday. Officials said at least 10 people died in floods caused by a foot of rain in seven hours.

Flood crashes through Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — With hundreds of people left homeless and 11 people drowned or missing after a record rainfall sent 6-foot walls of water crashing through city streets, residents were warned to be alert today for more flash flooding.

"We don't need people dying in their cars again," said Yvonne Rehg, a spokeswoman at the city's emergency center.

The flooding early Sunday claimed at least 10 lives and other bodies may be found as streams recede, Deputy Chief Herb Hartz said Sunday. The American Red Cross reported five people hospitalized and 78 others treated for injuries.

The flood came exactly one month after a spate of tornadoes killed nine people outside this eastern Oklahoma city.

Witnesses said the flood came in waves as high as 10 feet. Most of the victims died when their cars or mobile homes were swept into creeks or drainage ditches, and a 57-year-old woman who lived in a trailer park remained unaccounted for Sunday night, Hartz said.

Eight bridges and numerous streets remained closed by high water late Sunday, and an aerial survey revealed "six or seven major pockets" of flood damage, said Mayor Terry Young, a former television weatherman.

Emergency workers and the National Guard reported evacuating 2,100 families, but Young said that was "a very conservative figure." The estimate of 200 mobile homes destroyed "likely will go up as well," he said.

Gov. George Nigh asked President Reagan for $3.7 million in federal disaster aid for Tulsa and Rogers counties, but that too was an estimate, said John Reid, Nigh's press aide. The total damage will probably amount to "many millions" of dollars, Reid said.

Floodwaters had receded from many streets by Sunday evening, but the National Weather Service warned that several streams and rivers throughout eastern Oklahoma continued to overflow.

Young cautioned residents of low-lying areas to "be prepared to move to a place of safety." Residents also were advised to stay off city streets because of the threat of more floods from late storms that had moved out of Tulsa by early today.

The weather service said up to 13 inches of rain had fallen in and around the city since Saturday night to set a new 24-hour rainfall record. The previous 24-hour record of 7.54 inches in Tulsa was set July 27, 1963.

Young, who declared a state of emergency at 2:45 a.m. Sunday, called the deluge "probably a 200-year rainfall," meaning rain that heavy could be expected only once every two centuries.

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for Tuesday for the eastern part of the nation and Washington state.

Midland's holiday weekend may end in thunderstorms

The holiday weekend started off hot but cooled off by Memorial Day, and the cooler temperatures will continue tonight and Tuesday.

Skies will remain cloudy tonight, with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms, winds from the east at 10-20 mph and a low in the upper 50s. Tuesday will be sunny but not much warmer, with a high in the low 80s and winds again from the east at 10-20 mph.

Sunday's high of 98 was just a few degrees below the record of 101 set in 1945, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. The overnight low of 66 was far above the record low of 50, set in 1973.

STATE

Heavy thunderstorms were reported across Texas early today ahead of a cold front that was moving slowly into the northwest sections of the state.

Hail as large as golf balls accompanied some of the storms that began Sunday night, and several towns reported wind damage.

Power outages were reported at the Collin County communities of Parker and Allen, north of Dallas, from high winds. Trees and power lines were down near Sulphur Springs in Hopkins County, where winds reached 60 to 65 mph.

High winds from the same system caused structural damage to a wall in nearby Rockwall.

North to northeast winds were blowing behind the front, which was located from east of Wichita Falls to just north of Midland this morning. Wind speeds were averaging 15 to 25 miles an hour. Elsewhere over the state, winds were southerly at 5 to 15.

Temperatures this morning were in the 60s and 70s across Texas, ranging from 61 at Amarillo to 76 at Del Rio.

The National Weather Service predicted sunny and cooler weather for the state Tuesday, with highs mostly in the 80s.

NATION

Severe thunderstorms departed Oklahoma today and rumbled into northern Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama after a weekend that saw at least 10 people killed by flash floods in Tulsa.

The showers and thunderstorms also extended over much of the Ohio Valley into the middle Mississippi Valley.

Numerous tornadoes accompanied the latest sweep of thunderstorms across Oklahoma on Sunday afternoon evening and two others touched down in Washington, N.C., and near Roseboro, N.C.

Nearly 2 inches of rain had fallen at Dothan, Ala., in the six hours ending at 1 a.m. EDT today. Other heavy amounts across the South included 1.3 inches at Muscle Shoals, Ala., more than three-fourths of an inch at Greensboro and Hickory, N.C., and half an inch or more at Tupelo, Miss., Crossville, Tenn., McAlester, Okla., and London, Ky.

Parades to mark Memorial Day

The Associated Press

Thousands of veterans and tourists paid hushed respects to the Unknown Soldier of Vietnam, while a son of the Union joined a tribute to Confederate soldiers in Boston by urging that the old disagreement "be forgotten" as the nation observed Memorial Day.

For millions of Americans, the long weekend meant the unofficial start of summer — which was in the air Sunday in California, where 100-degree-plus temperatures jammed fun-seekers on the beaches "wall-to-wall."

Coloradans could ski at three areas still open today. And in Nebraska, not even rain and a chill wind that was "blowing horribly" could dampen spirits at several state parks which officials reported to be surprisingly full over the weekend.

By 4 a.m. today, 209 deaths were reported in accidents on the nation's highways. The National Safety Council has estimated that 400 to 500 people could die in traffic over the three-day holiday.

Dozens of parades were planned nationwide today, although the march in Rochester, N.Y., was to go on without several veterans' groups that pulled out after a women's peace group was barred.

In the midst of the revelry, New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean issued a reminder to citizens that Memorial Day meant more than going "to a park for a picnic or taking advantage of a department store sale."

"The millions of men and women...who answered the call to defend freedom — yours and mine — have made this holiday both possible and enjoyable," said Kean. "It is to them and the memory of those who laid down their lives that this day is dedicated."

In Washington, the silver casket of the Unknown Soldier of Vietnam lay in the Capitol Rotunda, atop a bier hastily built after President Abraham Lincoln's assassination in 1865. The casket was to be taken by horse-drawn caisson this afternoon to Arlington National Cemetery, to be buried in the Tomb of the Unknowns.

"I'm glad he finally came home," said John Hammett, a Vietnam veteran and former Army infantryman from New Castle, Pa. "It may have been someone I served with, or under."

For the 10th year, a little-known New England chapter of the Sons of Confederate Veterans laid flowers at a granite monument honoring 13 Civil War prisoners from the South who died on George's Island in Boston Harbor. Joining them was Union-capped Eugene Russell, 78, a member of the Sons of Union Veterans.

"We've had very close cooperation with the Sons of the Confederacy," Russell said Saturday.

VETERANS

Memorial Day honors all veterans who have died, not just those who fell on the battlefield, but the emphasis is on honoring the nation's war dead, said McCright, a veteran of World War II.

"They made the ultimate sacrifice," he said.

Memorial Day originated during the Civil War, when Southern women began putting flowers on the graves of both Confederate and Union dead. After the war, the custom was adopted by the Grand Army of the Republic, an organization of Union veterans.

"John Alexander Logan, the commander-in-chief of the GAR, pushed to make it a national holiday," said McCright. In the 1920s, the American Legion took over the GAR's role as chief custodian of the holiday, though the Veterans of Foreign Wars and other organizations also play a role.

"This year, services will be at Fairview Cemetery" at 6:30 this evening, said McCright. In addition to the American Legion and the VFW, the services will be attended by the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, the Fraternal Order of Eagles and other patriotic and fraternal organizations.

McCright expects a crowd of only 200 to 250 for the ceremony, "out of a town of 75,000-85,000. It's a shame, but the longer you go between wars, the less people remember veterans. The public has a tendency to forget what people did when they were needed.

"You always have to be ready to defend your country," said McCright. By observing Memorial Day, we help ensure that "what these people have done will not be in vain."

Committee to discuss troop deployment

The Associated Press

A peace committee representing several Moslem countries will meet in June to consider deploying neutral Islamic troops along the Iran-Iraq border to help bring peace between the two warring nations, Malaysia's foreign minister said today.

Ghazali Shafie said the June 9-10 meeting would be held in the Saudi Arabian city of Jidda.

The committee, established by the 45-nation Islamic Conference, will discuss proposals for the withdrawal of Iranian and Iraqi troops from the war front and deployment of troops from neutral Islamic nations on both sides of the border to end the 44-month-old war, he said.

An Arab diplomat in Bahrain said the proposed peacekeeping force was one component in a peace plan that "stands a handsome chance of gaining success."

An Islamic Conference official, who like the diplomat spoke on condition he not be identified, said the peace committee "will address its new peace bid in the name of about 1 billion Moslems around the world. Iraq has accepted all previous (Islamic Conference) peace initiatives and, this time, we expect Iran to respond favorably."

The committee includes the heads of state of Turkey, Gambia, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Malaysia, Senegal, Guinea; Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat, and Islamic Conference secretary general Habib Chatti.

On Sunday, Caltex Petroleum Corp. barred its oil tankers from the northern Persian Gulf because of recent attacks on shipping by Iran and Iraq, a company official said. Caltex is based in Irving, Texas, and controlled by Texaco and Standard Oil Co. of California.

The company ordered its vessels not to take on crude oil or refined petroleum products from Kuwait, the Ras al-Khafji port in the common zone between Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, and Iran's Kharg Island, said Rafael Xuadaro, office manager in Manama, Bahrain, for the company's Australian shipping division.

Xuadaro said Caltex ships would continue to use Saudi Arabia's southern ports. Caltex did not say how many of its ships were in the gulf area.

The English-language Gulf Daily News said the 37-man, all-Australian crew of one Caltex tanker, the 90,000-ton William Dampier, asked union officials to negotiate a new deal with the company because the ship was to enter a "war zone." Pressure from the crew reportedly led to the company's decision.

Attacks by Iran and Iraq on shipping in the gulf have escalated since April 25, prompting fears that the war would involve other gulf nations and endanger the supply of oil from the gulf which other nations use.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said Sunday that Iraqi attacks on vessels in the gulf have not delayed the loading of crude oil at Kharg Island, Iran's main oil terminal.

A U.S. official in Washington said the Reagan administration was ready to send 400 U.S. anti-aircraft Stinger missiles to Saudi Arabia to protect its tankers in the gulf. The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said only a final decision was needed from President Reagan for the immediate delivery of 200 launchers and missiles plus 200 replacement missiles to Saudi Arabia.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told his Cabinet on Sunday that he feared if the United States sends the missiles to Saudi Arabia, they could fall into the hands of terrorists or be used against Israel, a senior Israeli official said.

"I oppose it because it is fraught with disaster: it is leading us to military intervention in Central America, which will waste lives and resources for no good end," Jackson said at a rally in New Mexico Sunday night.

"We are desperately in need of help if we do not want to send more children to die in Central America, if we do not want to be responsible for the blood of thousands of more people in El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua."

Jackson was planning to meet with Mexican Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda and other Mexican leaders.

"We must broaden the dialogue about Central America to more churches, more students, and to more American voters," Jackson said in an interview Sunday night. "There must be a greater sense of participation and a greater sense of responsibility by the American people.

"The American people got involved almost too late in setting our Vietnam options. By the time most Americans woke up, there were more than 40,000 dead."

Mondale, within 300 delegates of the number he needs to secure the nomination, said Sunday that he opposes President Reagan's proposed sale of Stinger anti-aircraft weapons to Saudi Arabia. He pointed to the risk that the devices might fall into the hands of terrorists who could use them against commericial airliners.

Mondale answered questions phoned in to a public television station Sunday night. He criticized Hart's positions on the proposed nuclear weapons freeze and his failure to appear for the final Senate vote on creation of the federal "superfund" to finance cleaning up toxic waste dumps.

Asked about the presence of Soviet submarines armed with nuclear missiles off the U.S. coast, Mondale replied: "The other night Reagan laughed about it. I don't think it's funny."

DELEGATES

Three delegates from each of the state's 27 congressional districts were selected Saturday by panels appointed earlier by state officials of the Reagan-Bush re-election committee.

Mrs. Weisand said the selection committees believed that naming delegates other than elected officials was a way to "say thanks to all the other people for all the hard work they have done."

The 28 at-large members of the 109-member Texas delegation will be selected June 10 by a committee made up of Mrs. Weisend; Sen. John Tower, co-chairman of the Texas Reagan-Bush committee; Texas GOP Chairman George Strake; Texas GOP Vice Chairman Diana Denman; and the two Republican National Committee members from Texas, Ernest Angelo and Fran Chiles.

Mrs. Weisend said she expects the six members of the committee to be named as at-large delegates, in addition to former Gov. Bill Clements and Dallas County Republican Chairman Fred Meyer.

She also said she expects some of the six Republican congressmen from Texas and other elected officials to be picked for at-large spots.

The delegate-selection committees did name several former party officials as delegates, including former Texas GOP Chairman Chet Upham and former Vice Chair Dorothy Doenne.

Many officials of the 1984 Reagan re-election committee and members of the State Republican Executive Committee also earned delegate slots. T. Boone Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co. in Amarillo and a major party fundraiser, was one of the more prominent names on the delegate list.

STAR

Some astronomers believe that at the center of the quasars are black holes, collapsed pinpoints of matter so dense that their gravity does not allow even light to escape. Margon said a black hole may also be at the core of SS-433.

If all this is true, it's good news for astronomers. Quasars are so far away that it's hard to find out much about them. But SS-433 is, in the realm of the spheres, practically in the Earth's backyard.

"It is a stupendous piece of luck that we have stumbled onto it now," Margon said. "It should tell us a lot about extragalactic events."

SS-433 is about halfway between Earth and center of the galaxy, or 14,000 light years away. A light year is 5.9 trillion miles.

Another puzzle is where the SS-433 gets all the raw material it blasts off into space. One theory is that it circles another, ordinary star once every 13 days. It sucks in matter from its companion, but not all of it can be absorbed, so it's churned off in the twin beams.

Astronomers have searched for other things like SS-433 in the Milky Way and nearby galaxies, Margon said, but so far "there is no trace of any similar object."

FLOOD

A second wave of thunderstorms, this one bearing numerous tornadoes, hit eastern Oklahoma later Sunday.

A tornado siren — which proved to be unneeded — struck fear in residents of Mannford, just west of Tulsa, where residents huddled in a cell at the jail and prayed against a repeat of the April 29 twister that killed one man and injured dozens.

Mannford is still cleaning up from the April twister, which struck two days after a tornado killed nine people in nearby Morris.

In Tulsa, many evacuees were taken by boat to a half-dozen emergency shelters at the state fairgrounds and elsewhere, and at midmorning Sunday authorities appealed for more flat-bottomed boats to help.

At least 2,100 houses were flooded in low-lying areas around Mingo Creek, Joe Creek and Dirty Butter Creek in east and north Tulsa, said Bob Patton, Tulsa City-County Civil Defense spokesman. Flooding also dislodged mobile homes and washed out bridges in west Tulsa.

"We have one mobile home park that has been, well, probably totally demolished," Patton said. "It tore trailers from their footings, turned them over, washed them downstream and that sort of thing."

Several hundred cars were abandoned across the city and many were washed off bridges, Paatton said. Cars were overturned by the force of the water and several were stacked together where roads washed away.

"People not knowing the rapid pace of the water attempted to drive through low areas," he said. "The cars became flooded. They abandoned them, then the cars became washed downstream."

Janey Freeman said she and nine others, including four children, escaped from their mobile home by tying sheets together and using them to make their way to a large tree about 3 a.m.

The 10 people clung to the tree until firefighters arrived with a boat and rescued them a short time later, she said.

"We were lucky to get out alive. We won't be going back," said Ms. Freeman, adding that her trailer was full of mud and most of her belongings were destroyed.

Absentee voting for runoff ends Tuesday

Absentee voting for Saturday's runoff between Democrats Lloyd Doggett and Kent Hance ends Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Voting is being handled by the Elections Adminstrations Office, 709 W. Washington Ave.

Doggett and Hance are seeking the Democratic nomination in the U.S. Senate race. Persons who voted in the Democratic primary or who did not vote at all may vote in this runoff. Persons who voted in the May 5 Republican primary are exempt from this runoff.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

Uncle Sam wants to get rid of horses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam, saddled with 2,000 unwanted wild horses that are practically eating him out of house and home, is cutting their price and may let you have one for $25.

There's a catch: The horses will be old and probably hard to break.

About 6,000 wild horses and burros are rounded up in 10 Western states every year by the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management to preserve the open range for cattle grazing.

Since 1978, it has been offering the animals for adoption, and some 48,000 have found new homies that way.

But the bureau found that when it raised the horse adoption fee from $25 to $200 two years ago, the less desirable horses were passed over. A $50 increase in the $25 fee for burros did not hurt the demand for that animal.

The horse fee was lowered to $125 a year ago, but the inventory of unsold horses kept growing.

'Very good break' leads to arrest of bank robbery suspects

STATE

FORT WORTH (AP) — Authorities say it was a "very good break" that led to the arrest of a modern-day "Bonnie and Clyde" team suspected of robbing 14 banks in small Texas towns since 1970.

Lawrence Edward Byrom, 55, and his wife, Alice Elizabeth Byrom, 35, were arrested in the robberies Friday night at the couple's Haltom City home.

Authorities said they began to suspect the couple's involvement in the holdups about a month ago, when a Texas Department of Public Safety investigator spotted a truck that fit the description of a getaway vehicle used in a March 1983 bank heist.

It was not until 1980 that investigators linked a series of eight robberies in small towns that began in 1970, and the Byroms did not become suspects until the DPS officer discovered the truck, said Jim Adams, a senior FBI agent.

The bank robbery suspects had managed to elude police so long because they robbed banks in rural areas of north central Texas, had good escape routes and kept quiet, Adams said.

At a bond hearing Saturday, a federal magistrate in Fort Worth charged the two with conspiring to commit bank robbery, which carries a maximum prison sentence of five years.

While their three teen-age sons watched from the back of the courtroom, Byrom blurted out that the $250,000 bail recommended for him by prosecutors was not "too harsh" but that $100,000 bond on his wife would be too much.

"...She don't have any (criminal) record, and I was the one who ramrodded this whole thing," Byrom told Magistrate Alex McGlinchey, who warned the defendant not to comment on the allegations.

Byrom was in jail Sunday in lieu of $250,000 bond, while his wife was being held in lieu of $50,000 bond.

McGlinchey agreed to appoint separate attorneys for the pair on Monday after Byrom said he had only $20 in his pocket and $200 in a bank account.

Authorities said $572,592 was stolen in the 14 heists, but the Byroms could be charged in only seven cases because the five-year statute of limitations had expired on the others.

Assistant U.S. Attorney R.H. Wallace said he was "fairly certain" a number of state charges would be filed.

Prosecutors said Byrom spent 14 years in the Texas prison system after a 1950 conviction for armed robbery. Authorities said they believed Mrs. Byrom had no criminal record.

Kennedy PAC gives $5,000 to Doggett

FORT WORTH (AP) — U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy has not publicly endorsed U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett, but Doggett's campaign manager says Kennedy's political action committee has made a $5,000 contribution to the Austin senator's campaign.

Doggett, stumping Sunday at predominantly black churches in Fort Worth, said he knew nothing of any contribution from the Massachusetts Democrat's PAC, the Fund for a Democratic Majority.

But James Carville, Doggett's campaign manager, confirmed for the Fort Worth Star Telegram that Kennedy's PAC had given the $5,000 contribution, the maximum allowable under federal law.

Doggett, who has strong liberal backing, is in Saturday's runoff election against conservative U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock for the Senate seat being vacated by Republican John Tower. The winner will face Republican nominee Phil Gramm in the Nov. 6 general election.

Hance, meanwhile, campaigned Sunday in Dallas. He also used black pulpits to ask for votes as the two candidates kicked off this final week of campaigning.

Carville said a Kennedy aide, Bill Carrick, telephoned him recently to tell him of the PAC donation. But Carville said he doesn't know of any formal public endorsement from Kennedy.

Hance's campaign manager, David Doak, accused the Doggett campaign of trying to keep Kennedy's support secret.

"If Doggett is going to take endorsements from out of state, he shouldn't try to keep them secret," Doak said.

Doak theorized that the Doggett campaign had tried to keep Kennedy's PAC support secret because of the Massachusetts senator's limited popularity in Texas.

The Star-Telegram and the Associated Press were unable to reach Kennedy or any members of his staff for comment Sunday.

After his fifth appearance of the day, Hance said Doggett has "sunk to a new low" in political campaigning by running a television ad that calls Hance a liar and by "misstating" Hance's record on Social Security.

Doggett has accused Hance of voting on several occasions to cut Social Security benefits.

Doggett spent Sunday morning campaigning in predominantly black Baptist churches in southeast Fort Worth. Doggett struck a strongly populist theme, accusing the Reagan administration of being unfair to low and middle-income people while catering to the wealthy.

"It seems to me everytime they've talked about cutting (the federal budget) in recent years...they've talked about cutting those who don't have a lobbyist, who don't have a political action committee," Doggett said.

"They want to take from the needy and give to the greedy," he said. "That's what this election is all about."

Hance was generally well received in his church appearances Sunday, even though most analysts give him little chance of winning a majority of the black vote.

Boy believed drowned in river

EL PASO (AP) — A boy who was believed to have been a Mexican national was missing and believed to have drowned in the Rio Grande at a port of entry just east of El Paso, border officials said.

A witness reported seeing two children playing near the river about 5 p.m., just before they ran into the river to retrieve a ball that got away from them, authorities said.

The river was flowing rapidly because of runoff from snow melt in New Mexico, and the children went to the head gates near the Zaragosa port of entry bridge, officials added. One child reportedly became trapped beneath the gates, while the other was reported to have swam to shore.

U.S. immigration officials, Border Patrol, El Paso police and sheriff's deputies, and firemen from El Paso and Juarez searched the area until 8 p.m. before calling off the search for the day.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, May 29, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: American Revolution leader Patrick Henry and President John F. Kennedy were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Bob Hope, actor Tony Geary, Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, auto racing's Al Unser and baseball's Blue Moon Odom. Work hard in the months ahead and you will win the attention of those who can help your career and finances. You find solutions for long-standing problems. Do not neglect family life while pursuing your goals. Long-distance communications are favored in November. Travel brings new opportunities for romance. Keep your standards high. A change of environment will have many benefits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An employment situation will become more difficult if you let domestic problems interfere with your work. Continue to keep a tight rein on personal spending. Entertain at home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good financial luck is yours if you and your associates pool ideas. A family matter claims your attention. Be patient with a teen-ager who has some odd ideas. Your understanding works wonders.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Distant contacts play a major role in a business or financial success. A temporary cash shortage could curtail your social life. Work behind the scenes to advance your career aims.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The domestic scene could become tense if you insist on forcing your ideas on mate. An intelligent compromise brings immediate relief. At work, stick to projects already under way.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Consult the experts if faced with a tricky problem. Legal advice will help you avoid lawsuits. Distant affairs enjoy highly favorable influences. A May-December relationship begins to wear thin.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Domestic spats could spoil an opportunity to make extra money. Seek your associates' cooperation in putting over a lucrative deal. A relative reveals something that leads you to review a relationship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romance is a source of happiness. Put more money in savings. An excellent time to do research and perfect your skills. Postpone asking influential person for a special favor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Continue to give a wide berth to your friend's financial schemes. Business travel is best postponed. A sound suggestion could win you a bonus. Romantic partner keeps you guessing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A very productive day for those who work at home. Stick to your priorities or money could become a problem. Loved ones offer sensible suggestions. Put your creative ideas into action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent day for dealing with large corporations. Your sense of timing is perfect. Try to make amends to mate if your social plans go awry. Romance is happier than you dreamed possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A prominent person offers to back a pet project. If there are strings attached, hold out for a better offer. A book or TV program gives you a marvelous idea.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your career is progressing nicely. Seize a golden opportunity to operate behind the scenes. Passing an examination will help you get a better paying position.

Australian film well received

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What a difference between the American reception of Australia producer Henry Crawford's latest production and the time he tried to sell his first down-under miniseries.

"Eureka Stockade," a two-part, four-hour movie based on a miners' revolt in the 1860s, will be telecast in 80 percent of this country.

"This little Australian production is going to get more exposure here than any other Australian product before," said Crawford, who still has the rugged, squint-eyed look of a stockman from his childhood on a cattle station in the Outback.

"There's been a tremendous shift in attitudes toward Australia... When I first came here trying to sell 'A Town Like Alice,' people just weren't interested in Australia. I think we're now gradually forging forward in establishing a market."

Crawford has been almost alone in establishing a market here for Australian television, but the booming Australian movie industry has found a ready reception. Such movies as "The Road Warrior," "Gallipoli," "Breaker Morant," and "The Man From Snowy River" have contributed to the popularity of Australian productions.

"Eureka Stockade" is based on real characters and a real situation in which miners revolted against corrupt police in the 1860s.

The film was made on location in the state of Victoria, near Eureka Station, but it didn't go smoothly.

"We had the worst brush fires in Australian history, and we had to evacuate the outdoor sets and couldn't get back for a week," he said. "Fortunately, our sets weren't burned. The temperature was over 110 degrees and we had the worst dust storms because of a three-year drought."

Besides "Eureka Stockade," which is being syndicated, Crawford is producing the "Five Mile Creek" series for the Disney Channel.

"I'm looking for a product that has relevance both to Australia and America," he said. "I thought a series about two women running a stagecoach station would work and went into partnership with American producer Doug Netter. It's really an Australian Western. At first Disney wanted to play down the Australia aspect, now they want to play it up."

"We in Australia are re-examining our past to see what we are."

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠A83 ♡AJ985 ◇AQ6 ♣85
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—With three prime controls, we think you are a bit too strong simply to raise to four spades. We prefer a strength-showing, waiting bid of three diamonds, to see what action partner can take. You can complete the description of your strong hand by bidding four spades at your next turn.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ1087 ♡Q3 ◇AK95 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Any bid in spades by you will not do full justice to your hand, and also runs the risk of missing your best contract. Double. That not only shows your strength, but gives partner the opportunity to convert to penalties in the event that he has some length in the enemy suit. Don't worry about partner retreating to clubs — your strong spade suit is a convenient safety valve.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠98742 ♡Q3 ◇AKJ6 ♣93
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	1 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner should have a good suit for his vulnerable overcall, so your doubleton queen is adequate support. Raise to two hearts. Indeed, with a third trump, you should strongly consider a jump raise of partner's overcall.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J764 ♡10983 ◇K64 ♣A8
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♡	Dble	?

What do you bid now?

A.—This is not the hand for any kind of waiting action, even though you don't have quite enough for a redouble. Make the bid you would have made had there been no takeout double by East — respond two hearts.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J654 ♡109532 ◇J62 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	1 ◇
2 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Once you have limited your hand, any action you take thereafter must be construed within the limits you have already set. By passing partner's one club opening bid, you have announced that you might be completely bust. Nevertheless, partner has cue-bid the enemy suit in the hope of finding something of value in your hand. Since you have a guaranteed fit for partner's major and a singleton in his first-bid suit, your hand should prove a welcome surprise to him. However, you don't have enough information to place the contract. Announce your aspirations by making a return cue-bid of three diamonds. Armed with the knowldge that you have support for both majors, partner can choose both the suit and the level of the final contract.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK ♡Q982 ◇AKJ63 ♣A5
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 NT	Pass	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—It is highly doubtful that the opponents can make one no trump. However, that does not mean that you should double. It is all too likely that partner won't be able to stand the double and will pull to two of his long suit, or that you will chase the opponents into a better contract. Your best bet for a profit is to pass and collect 100s for each undertrick.

Liberty's price

Despite what many Americans may have mistakenly assumed for a lot of years, Memorial Day, which is being observed in Midland and throughout the nation today, is not a glorification of war. It is a glorification of commitment.

Since the moment the idea for this nation dawned in the minds of our forefathers it has required commitment for sustenance. Thomas Jefferson said it this way: "The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure."

Americans are, as a people, peace-loving and peace-seeking. We do not fight without provocation or cause. But neither do we run from confrontation that threatens our precious way of life. Americans are willing to fight for liberty and to die for liberty.

Not gladly. No, there has been enough of killing on the battlefields and Americans, recognizing that fact, avoid war and the deaths of their countrymen vigorously.

But ...

Liberty demands a high price. When that bill comes due, Americans pay it without regret. Today all Midlanders and other Americans pay homage to those who gave up their lives without regret that this way of life will continue.

We celebrate lest we forget those who paid the ultimate price — for us.

'Iffy' questions

Etymologists, those who study the history of language development, probably would not agree on when or where the word "iffy" first appeared in the American dictionary. It is not in all of them now, but everyone would agree that it was President Franklin D. Roosevelt who made it a household term. He frequently told reporters that their questions were too hypothetical or "iffy."

Well, the "iffy factor" has returned, as was made manifest by the conduct of the press at President Reagan's last news conference. No less than 10 questions included "if," one of them twice. One questioner put an if in his first query, then proceded with this:

"... if I may follow up with this, if El Salvador clearly were going to fall to the Communists, would you feel it's in the U.S. interests to send our troops there and stop them, or would you allow the country to go Communist?"

Replied Mr. Reagan: "... you're making me a hypothetical question, and which I think would be very foolish to try and answer."

Mr. Roosevelt would have been pleased with that response.

Later in the conference, after mention of some Dutch resistance to accepting NATO missiles, a reporter asked:

"But if the Dutch government reverses and changes their mind are you fearful that'll set off a chain reaction among the other allies where the situation is, it's that tenuous?"

Despite the "iffiness" of this question, Mr. Reagan rose above it and answered, "No. I doubt that they would." And so it went, as if the president could wrestle with unlimited hypothetical questions.

If FDR were alive today, he would be annoyed at the persistence of the "iffy" factor at presidential press conferences. If he were not, we would be surprised.

Another View:

Up front with media

For two centuries, American journalists were on hand to report U.S. military actions wherever they occurred, a tradition established not by statute but by the sensitive and sensible understanding that evolved between government and the media. The people's right to be informed was always balanced by the need to keep certain military operations secret, and with precious few exceptions both sides stuck to the unwritten ground rules. Until, that is, last autumn's invasion of the Caribbean island of Grenada by U.S. forces. Not a single journalist was allowed to accompany American troops, no reporters were permitted on the island until the third day, and then only under military escort.

This action was an unprecedented departure from the norm, one that must not happen again if the openness that Americans take for granted is to continue. Toward that end, a report submitted to the Pentagon a few days ago by a panel consisting of both military and media representatives comes down strongly in favor of government cooperation, not obstruction, in facilitating news coverage of military activities. As one passage in the still-unpublished report puts it, "The appropriate media role in relation to the military has been summarized aptly as being neither that of a lap dog nor an attack dog, but, rather, a watchdog."

Last year's unprecedented decision to exclude the press — a decision taken deliberately on the flimsy pretext of keeping reporters out of danger and to ensure secrecy — made it clear where the sympathies of Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger lie with respect to news coverage of military operations. And it is to Weinberger that the commission's 17-page report has been addressed; the burden rests with him to restore a practice that was briefly but dangerously abandoned in the case of Grenada. Weinberger would be wise to endorse the panel's conclusions and to make it unmistakably clear that its recommendations will be followed in the future.

A natural and healthy mutual wariness between government and the media has always existed, but in recent years it has developed into distrust bordering on hostility. The only way to restore this relationship to health is a mutual commitment to accept the ground rules that worked for so long, and can again.

CHARLEY REESE

Let's swap Davis for Yuri Orlov

Angela Davis, the U.S. Communist Party candidate for vice president, has built a career out of defaming the country of her birth.

Charley Reese

Far from suffering from it, she has become a celebrity. So gutless are many American journalists that they don't even identify her as a Communist when writing about her, even though her membership is open, and she has long held high office in the CPUSA.

She is a frequent lecturer on the university circuit and was on the faculty of a major university in what wonderland called California.

I am not hinting even that she be treated otherwise for if a free society cannot handle professional liars and revolutionaries in open debate then it has no business claiming the mantle of freedom.

It is interesting to note, however, the fate of Yuri Orlov, a human rights advocate, in Ms. Davis' favorite country, the Soviet Union.

Like Davis, Orlov holds a Ph.D. Unlike Davis, Orlov is a brilliant scientist. In the spring of 1976, Orlov helped form the Helsinki Monitoring Group, a pitifully small group of Russian intellectuals who tried to urge the Soviet Union to live up to the human rights accord it had just signed.

Soviet citizens, however, are no smarter than Americans if they expect the Soviet Union, which has broken over 900 treaties, to care a whit about what it puts its name to for propaganda purposes.

Orlov lasted less than a year. Constantly harrassed, he was finally arrested on Feb. 10, 1977, and kept in total isolation for 15 months before he even saw the inside of a kangaroo court.

Justice, of course, is as worthless a concept in the Soviet Union as its word on a treaty. Orlov was convicted of a strange crime known as undermining the Soviet regime. Apparently to ask the Soviet regime to live up to its word on an international treaty is to undermine it.

Orlov was sentenced to seven years of hard labor and in the Soviet Union, they don't kid like we do about hard labor. After that, he was given five years of internal exile in Siberia.

The point is that neither Davis's situation in the United States nor Orlov's situation in the Soviet Union is an exception. On the contrary, they are typical.

These two people and their respective fates symbolize perfectly the crucial difference between the United States and the Soviet Union, between a free society and a totalitarian society. There is no freedom in the Soviet Union except the freedom to obey the Communist Party. No one for any reason may challenge the government's authority.

In our society, not only may people challenge and even defame and libel the government and its policies, the government itself will protect their right to do so.

It is dismaying to run into Americans who are so grossly ignorant that they claim there is no difference between their own country and the Soviet Union, but you find them. Some of them don't even have the excuse of being young.

In the end, our free system may defeat itself. Freedom is always riskier than totalitarianism. The lousy public education system doesn't help because kids who are not taught much about their country's virtues are easy marks for propagandists.

But I would rather fall with a free society than rule with a totalitarian one. What have the members of the Politbureau gained with all their decades of murder, treachery, and oppression? their dream of a socialist economy is gone because there is no such thing and never has been. There is no equality in the Soviet Union. The Party has replaced the aristocracy and lives above and at the expense of the people. Without its black market economy and the corruption that goes with it, the society would collapse.

And for all their raw power, the old men in the Kremlin live with fear. They are afraid of each other. They are afraid of the people. They are afraid of the West. If they didn't have their malice and hate, they wouldn't have anything to live for.

Too bad we can't swap Davis for Orlov.

JACK ANDERSON

Japan a 'sieve' for tech leaks

WASHINGTON — In most respects, Japan and West Germany are among our staunchest allies in the global conflict with the Soviet bloc. But they head the dishonor roll of nations that allow greedy businessmen to sell the Soviets high technology that can be converted to military use.

Jack Anderson

In congressional testimony earlier this year, a high-level Pentagon official said Japan was the worst offender in the high-stakes, high-tech transfer to the communists. Another military source conceded, though, that Japan's dubious distinction may only be due to the fact that U.S. intelligence is better in Japan than in West Germany.

My associates Dale Van Atta and Michael Binstein investigated the situation. Here's what they learned from knowledgeable intelligence sources in both Tokyo and Washington:

The KGB considers Japan an "easy collection target" — a veritable sieve for technology secrets. In fact, some of the biggest, most respected industrial combines in Japan have been involved in questionable transfers of technology to the Soviets, according to the intelligence sources.

The transfer of high-tech items to the Soviets and their Eastern European satellites may be accomplished through subsidiaries of the Japanese corporate giants. The most popular location for subsidiaries at this point is Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaysia, with nearby Singapore in second place. Mexico is becoming increasingly popular as a transfer point.

The sources emphasized that the CIA doesn't know of any exclusively military technology the Soviets are getting from the Japanese. But the KGB has gone after micro-electronic equipment, machine tools, computers, telecommunications, automation devices and specialty steel — much of which can be incorporated into Soviet weapons systems.

The Russians get a lot of their high tech from Japan by legal means, but lately the Japanese are becoming more careful. Soviet representatives were barred, for example, from a recent Japanese conference on "composites," new super-strong, light materials made with special alloys and processes.

One almost ludicrous example of the Soviets' hunger for modern technology was their purchase of a Japanese toy robot called "Taro." It has a sensitive heat-identifying device that makes it avoid people. The Soviets adapted the toy for use in surface-to-air missiles.

One problem is that, however willing the Japanese government may be to keep embargoed technology from the Russians, Japanese law enforcement agencies have little legal authority to crack down on export-control violations or related industrial espionage committed by foreigners. The best they can do is try to bring informal pressure on firms looking for lucrative contracts with the Soviets — and this has proven to be inadequate.

There are several tricks Japanese companies can use to make sales, which are technically legal, to the Soviets. One is to set up dummy corporations to act as intermediaries in their Soviet-bloc trade. The dummy firms are expendable and allow the parent firms to avoid responsibility for financial losses or illegal activities of the surrogate corporations.

Another standard device is simply to transship the high-tech items through several companies in different countries. This makes it difficult to trace a single embargoed item through less than perfect corporate records, especially when the particular piece of equipment is obligingly installed in low-grade machinery and provided with false documentation to avoid customs scrutiny.

Belatedly, Japanese officials have promised they will try to plug the leaks of technology in line with U.S. policy.

FRUSTRATION IN FOGGY BOTTOM: The State Department's P.R. experts keep close watch on the opinions of the American public — or at least that part of the public that feels strongly enough about administration policies to write letters or send telegrams. And to the obvious annoyance of the Foggy Bottom bureaucrats, the letter-writing public often disagrees vehemently with the policies the department is obliged to defend.

An internal memorandum covering one recent two-week period — and some 11,700 messages — noted that response to the TV show about nuclear war, "The Day After," gave relatively short shrift to Secretary of State George Shultz's remarks following the program. "More people noted Dr. Carl Sagan's post-program comments than the secretary's," the memo observed a bit peevishly.

The mail brought much criticism of the administration's Central American policy, the memo noted, "with most (writers) emphasizing that U.S. military aid should be halted or reduced ...."

O'Neill cooling run-in with Ron

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill's fear that President Reagan would again make him look weak explains his unannounced intention to postpone House action on moving the U.S. Embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The speaker has passed the word quietly to sponsors of the embassy relocation bill to "cool it" at least through the summer. O'Neill fears that Reagan could sustain a veto of any bill ordering the embassy to be moved in accordance with Israel's long-standing desires and the insistence of pro-Israeli leaders in Congress, including California Democrat Rep. Thomas Lantos.

Reagan made O'Neill eat crow last week when the House voted to give the MX missile new financing. O'Neill had publicly predicted the Democratic-controlled House would kill the missile for good. That's enough political punishment for one old Irishman from another and the speaker wants no more humiliation.

STOCKMAN VS. WHITE HOUSE

The White House apology to budget director David Stockman for public criticism of him by Larry Speakes came after an outraged Stockman burst into the West Wing and demanded satisfaction from chief of staff James Baker III.

Stockman had leaked stories that the White House was going to take a softer line against Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker after Baker and his lieutenant, Richard Darman, lunched with the budget director. Baker and Darman put out word to Speakes, the White House spokesman, to knock down the stories.

But Speakes went too far. He told reporters that Stockman was the source of the leak. That was too much for Stockman, who lost his cool and demanded an apology. Rather than risk another public airing of an internal White House feud, Speakes was ordered to apologize and indicate he did not really know the source of the leak.

DEMOCRATIC DEBATE POLITICS

Behind Walter F. Mondale's demand for a special New Jersey debate before the June 5 primary lies full awareness by his campaign staff that Sen. Gary Hart's strategists want to limit face-to-face confrontations.

Ever since Mondale slaughtered Hart in the New York primary debate in March, their marathon race for the nomination has featured a cat-and-mouse game over debates. Hart aides feel their man won Ohio on May 8, and thereby kept his candidacy alive, because they were able to duck a debate there.

Naturally, the Hart camp also wants to avoid a New Jersey debate and would even like to get out of the nationally-televised debate scheduled for June 2. Privately, Hart backers say Mondale's pugnacity intimidates the senator in one-on-one confrontations.

REAGAN'S HOME STATE TROUBLE

National Republican operatives could not believe their eyes last week when they saw how poorly President Reagan was rated by voters in Illinois, the state of his birth, in secret GOP polls.

The sluggish drop in state unemployment and the stagnant rural economy in normally Republican downstate areas help explain a lower rating for Reagan in Illinois than elsewhere in the Midwest. Oddly, Reagan looks much stronger in Democratic-dominated Michigan and even a little better in Fritz Mondale's Minnesota than in his native state.

A footnote: The poor Republican climate in Illinois, rather than personal political problems, may be the major cause of re-election trouble for Sen. Charles H. Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Percy is increasingly viewed as vulnerable to an upset by Democratic Rep. Paul Simon.

A NEW MONDALE WATCHER

California political operative Ken Kachigian has quietly taken over in the Reagan re-election campaign the same job he performed well for Richard Nixon's re-election effort in 1972: hard research on the enemy.

Kachigian was deputy to Nixon aide Pat Buchanan (now a syndicated columnist) in researching the vulnerable flanks of Democratic nominee George McGovern. While commuting between Washington and his California home, he has taken over the same chore for Reagan: probing for weaknesses of probable Democratic nominee Walter F. Mondale.

Kachigian replaces Dr. Richard Wirthlin, the president's pollster. Some campaign aides say Wirthlin was long on raw material about Mondale but a bit short on analysis.

Computer-controlled ride breaks down, injures at least 33 people

ATLANTA (AP) — At least 33 people were hurt when a computer-controlled amusement park ride broke down, sending miniature airplanes crashing into one another and stranding riders aloft for up to four hours, authorities said.

The Great Airplane Race ride at Six Flags Over Georgia will be closed while engineers determine what set off an emergency system that halted the planes' spin, park spokesman John Millsaps said.

Millsaps said 65 people were on the ride when it stopped Sunday afternoon, sending some of the planes crashing into one another.

Firefighters used ladder trucks to free the riders, some of whom were stranded up to 100 feet in the air, after park personnel were unable to lower the planes to the ground manually.

About 25 people were brought to Parkway Regional Hospital in Lithia Springs to be treated for injuries that were "all very minor, just routine," spokeswoman Charlene Johnson said.

Eight others were released from Cobb General Hospital after being treated for bruises and minor sprains, assistant administrator Tom Hill said.

Witnesses said the planes appeared to increase in speed before coming to a stop.

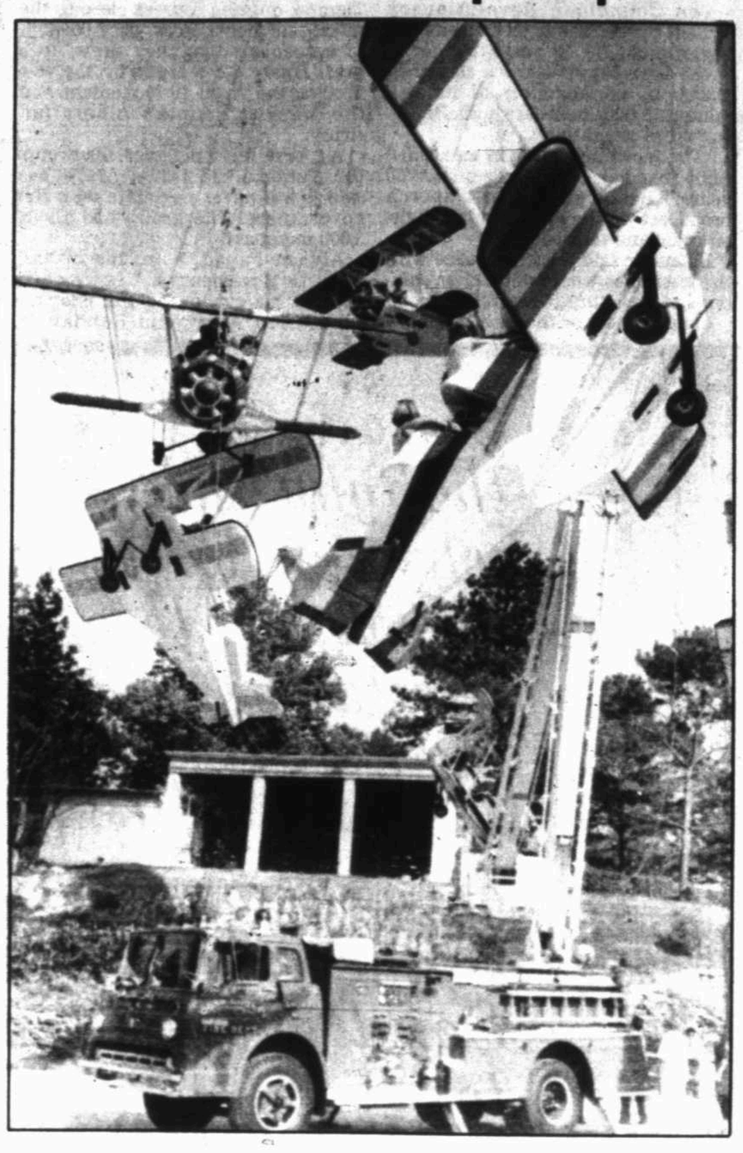

"All of a sudden, everything broke loose and a plane hit us from the rear end," said Patrick Rollins, 17, who was on the ride Sunday when it malfunctioned. "We were doing a nose-dive."

Millsaps said the accident occurred at 4:10 p.m., with the last rider removed at about 7:50 p.m. Park personnel asked the riders to go to the hospital for evaluation, but some declined, he said.

The Great Airplane Race opened May 11 and was made by the Swiss firm of Intamin, maker of other attractions at the park, according to Millsaps. He said it was the only such ride operating in the United States, although a similar one is planned for a park in Texas.

The ride consists of miniature planes that swing from cables attached to a tower, he said. The planes rotate at up to 40 mph and go up and down, reaching a maximum height of 100 feet. Riders are secured by lap bars.

"The ride undergoes two independent inspections daily and has to have a certified log check or maintenance report before it can operate each day, and that was done today," he said.

Bomb explosion remains unsolved as strike continues

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A bomb explosion that damaged nine vehicles at the Tropicana Hotel remained unsolved as a bitter hotel strike entered its ninth week today, authorities said.

"There are no suspects," Metro Police Lt. Barbara Connett said of the blast early Sunday in the parking lot of the struck hotel.

Arrests of pickets continued Sunday, with 17 taken into custody at several hotels, she said today. Late Saturday 19 people were arrested, mostly for blocking traffic.

The bomb exploded in the Tropicana parking lot at 3:10 a.m. PDT near a marquee, said police spokesman Frank Gerst.

Evidence indicated fiberglass and sheet metal were used in the device, he said, but no other details were available.

Gerst said there was no indication of whether the bomb was connected to the strike, which has involved culinary workers, bartenders, stagehands and musicians.

"If I were a tourist, I'd be scared...," said Dennis Kist, president of the stagehands union. "The unions don't endorse that kind of activity, but I can sure understand how some people can resort to that kind of thing."

The strike began April 2 and initially involved 17,000 workers. Several thousand have returned to work as their unions settled.

On Thursday, a bomb found under an employee's car at the MGM Grand Hotel was safely disarmed, bomb squad spokesman Steve Hampton said. That bomb was capable of damaging the vehicle or killing someone.

Early Friday, a smaller device, described as having the explosive force of ... a dozen firecrackers, was found on a sidewalk near the MGM Grand.

Smoke bombs and stink bombs were set off at four of 17 struck hotels Friday night as strikers promised to make Memorial Day weekend visitors aware of the bitter labor dispute. The devices were non-toxic and not dangerous, officials said.

Kist, president of stagehands Local 720, said "slight progress" was made in Saturday's negotiations.

Five killed in collision on Florida bridge

MARATHON, Fla. (AP) — A converted school bus and two other vehicles collided Sunday on a bridge connecting the Florida Keys, killing five people and forcing the closing of the span, the Florida Highway Patrol said.

The bus had been converted into a camper, but details of the occupants of the bus, van and station wagon in the crash were not released as rescue personnel rushed to site, dispatcher Joan Dennhardt said.

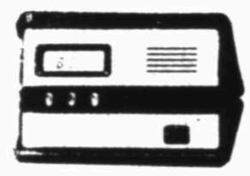

Thirteen people were taken to Fishermen's Hospital in Marathon, said spokesman Harley Ulbrich.

The cause of the accident on Seven Mile Bridge was under investigation, said Mike Puto, chief of Marathon Fire-Rescue and a civil defense coordinator in Monroe County.

Venezuelan president's party leads municipal elections by 2-1 margin

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — President Jaime Lusinchi's Democratic Action Party won decisively in Venezuela's municipal elections, outpolling its closest rivals by a margin of more than 2-1, early returns showed.

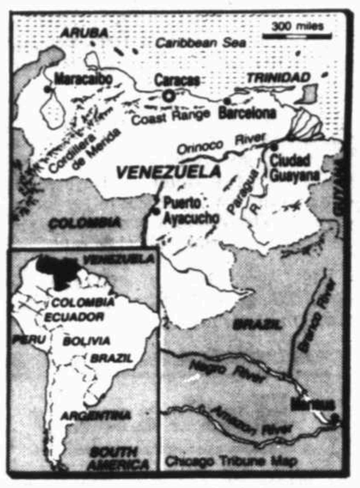

The first unofficial results on the Sunday balloting from the Supreme Electoral Council gave the governing party 46.3 percent of the overall vote. The opposition Christian Democratic Party was in second place with 20.61 percent.

The leftist Movement Towards Socialism party was third with 7.33 percent, and the remainder was divided among smaller parties.

Democratic Action's own tallies gave Lusinchi's party an even higher margin of 65 percent to 23 percent for the Christian Democrats, with 11 percent for the Movement Towards Socialism. The sample was based on 261,610 votes.

The opposition had tried to make the elections a referendum on economic programs that Lusinchi has enacted since taking office Feb. 2, including austerity measures aimed at helping reduce Venezuela's large foreign debt.

Eight million people — almost half of the population — were eligible to vote. The independent television station RCTV estimated that voter turnout would be about 60 percent.

At stake were 1,592 municipal offices in 202 districts around the nation. A total of 124 political organizations fielded candidates.

Morning rains in Caracas, where almost a quarter of the nation's people live, helped keep voter turnout low. However, interviews with voters indicated pessimism about the country's deteriorating economy also was a factor.

The Democratic Action victory came only six months after the presidential elections, which Lusinchi won by a landslide.

Lusinchi, who turned 60 Sunday, said after casting his vote that he thought the rain had contributed to keeping many voters from casting ballots. "But I think also that the parties did not devote much attention to the campaign," he said.

Venezuela, suffering its worst economic crisis in half a century, enjoyed a windfall of oil production income in the late 1970's. However, the international recession and the lowered price of petroleum eroded the economy, prompting past governments to borrow abroad. Venezuela's foreign debt now is $35 billion, the fourth largest in Latin America.

Lusinchi imposed a series of austerity measures, including a 10 percent reduction in government spending and a devaluation of the country's currency, the bolivar, to 7.5 per dollar from the previous 4.3 rate at which it had remained for two decades.

He relaxed price controls on some consumer goods, including milk and gasoline.

A television advertisement for the Movement Toward Socialism party showed a gasoline pump with skyrocketing prices and portrayed housewives shocked at the price of goods in stores.

Lusinchi's programs burdened poorer people the most.

Yearlong truce begins between Colombian government, guerrillas

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A yearlong truce begins today between the government and Colombia's largest leftist guerrilla force, and President Belisario Betancur says prospects are bright for similar pacts with two other rebel groups.

In all, the three groups command an estimated 26,000 members.

The Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces has been battling the government for 35 years, but today is the first day of a truce signed in March by commanders of its estimated 15,000 members and Betancur's representatives.

"The truce is starting in an absurd fight that has been going on for 30 years," Betancur said in a speech broadcast nationwide Sunday night on radio and television.

Betancur said a lasting peace with the guerrillas would depend on solutions to social injustices in Colombia.

Commanders of the Revolutionary Armed Forces, known as the FARC, say that if the government makes satisfactory progress in helping the nation's poor, they would consider extending the truce.

Truce negotiations with two other guerrilla groups "are going forward, with excellent prospects," Betancur said.

On Sunday, the newspaper El Tiempo, quoting sources close to the talks, said negotiators were so near to agreement that they drew up a draft treaty for a truce by the two groups, the April 19 Movement and the Marxist People's Liberation Army.

A fourth left-wing guerrilla group, the National Liberation Army, has said it will never negotiate with the government. The group has about 3,000 members.

Alvaro Fayad, a leader of the April 19 Movement, said representatives of his group and the People's Liberation Army met Sunday in Bogota with members of a peace commission named by Betancur.

Fayad told reporters the rebels "agreed to continue the sincere negotiations with the government toward reaching a definitive peace treaty with social substance."

"After years of guerrilla warfare, something should be gained for the people," Fayad said.

The April 19 Movement, known as M-19, and People's Liberation Army insist upon public talks between the guerrillas and Colombia's political and business leaders, Fayad said.

M-19 became a significant force after its members tunneled into an army arsenal in 1979 and escaped with 5,000 weapons.

In 1980, M-19 guerrillas stormed a reception at the Dominican Republic Embassy in Bogota and held U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and 17 other diplomats hostage for two months.

Police beatings spark four days of 'people's revolt' in Haitian town

GONAIVES, Haiti (AP) — Beatings by police and anti-government sentiment set off four days of rioting last week, residents say, describing a rare outbreak of violence against the Duvalier regime that rules this impoverished Caribbean nation.

Soldiers armed with submachine guns enforced calm on Sunday.

"There were no leaders. It was a people's revolt. Food prices go up every day and their tiny income remains the same," said a lawyer who would not give his name. Haiti is the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere.

Dozens of people were injured as police and soldiers, dispatched from the capital, Port-au-Prince, arrived Thursday and quelled the riots which began three days earlier, on May 21, in this northwestern city of 40,000.

"No one knows how many have been arrested. They beat them, then send them home," said a schoolteacher, who wanted to be identified only as "Jean."

Residents said the riots were sparked by the police beating, on the weekend on May 19-20, of a pregnant woman who later died of her injuries. Residents said the beating was the latest in a series of such assaults.

The rioting was possibly the largest public disturbance in the 13-year rule of Jean-Claude Duvalier, who succeeded his late father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier as president-for-life in 1971.

Residents said people began "spontaneously" assembling May 21 to march on police headquarters. Witnesses said a handful of people who crossed barricades around the building were clubbed with rifle butts.

Supervisors at the hospital here refused to say anything about people admitted for injuries suffered in the riot.

The schoolteacher, Jean, said most of the injured, fearing they would be handed over to police, did not seek treatment.

According to accounts, three government officials came early Thursday from the capital, 100 miles south of here, and spoke to the crowd.

"They said, in baby-talk Creole (the French-African dialect spoken by most Haitians) that 'Your friend Jean-Claude is going to send you food' and similar nonsense.

Dutch air force plane drops fuel tank on house

LINZ, West Germany (AP) — A fuel tank from a Dutch air force F-16 fighter dropped onto a house in this Rhine River town, setting the building ablaze, and the plane apparently crashed nearby, police reported.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Firefighters from the town near Bonn rushed to the scene to fight the blaze, donning masks against fumes, police said. The site was close to a hospital.

A helicopter sighted wreckage from the plane, but the fate of the crew wasn't immediately known, police said.

Pope prays for Sakharov

VITERBO, Italy (AP) — Pope John Paul II says he is praying "with all my heart" for Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov and Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner.

Speaking Sunday to a crowd outside the 13th-century Papal Palace in this central Italian city, the pope also expressed concern that the Iran-Iraq war could trigger "perhaps uncontrollable repercusssions."

The pontiff received Sakharov's stepdaughter, Tatiana Yankelevich, at the Vatican on Wednesday. He said she asked him to pray for Sakharov and Mrs. Bonner, her mother.

Sakharov, 63, reportedly began a hunger strike May 2 to win permission for his wife to leave the Soviet Union for medical treatment.

Rick Mears celebrates his second Indianapolis 500 victory.

Mears sets record in second Indy win

By JOHN FEINSTEIN
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

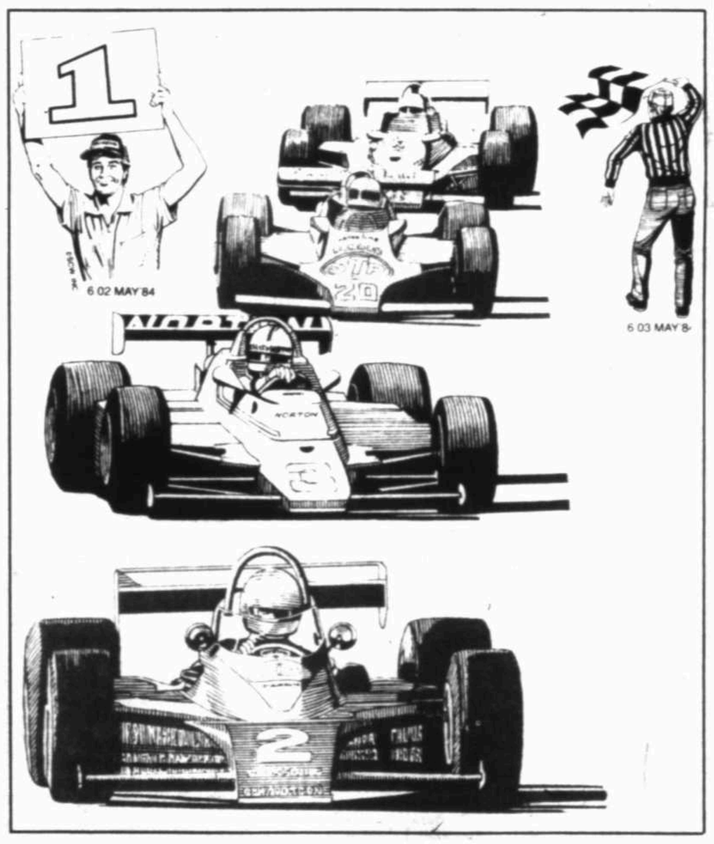

INDIANAPOLIS — Rick Mears had figured all along that he and Tom Sneva would decide Sunday's Indianapolis 500 during the last few laps of the race. He had pushed his car past pole-sitter Sneva at the start and then played cat-and-mouse with him for nearly 400 miles.

But as Mears accelerated back to full speed after the fifth and final caution flag of the day, he heard team owner Roger Penske's voice crackling through his radio. "Sneva's out," Penske said.

"What a relief," Mears replied. Thirty-two laps later, he took the checkered flag to win his second Indy 500 in seven tries, his margin of victory being two full laps of the 2.5-mile Indianapolis Speedway oval.

Mears' running time of 3 hours 3 minutes 21 seconds was a track record, his average speed of 163.612 miles per hour breaking the late Mark Donahue's record of 162.962, established in 1972.

Roberto Guerrero of Colombia, racing here for the first time, was unofficially listed as the second-place finisher, although there was some question as to whether he finished ahead of Al Unser Sr., who was unofficially listed third, pending the official results that were released this morning. Rookies Al Holbert and Michael Andretti finished fourth and fifth, respectively, with A.J Foyt sixth.

BEFORE MEARS took command of the race, there were several accidents, the most serious of which involved Patrick Bedard, a 42-year-old auto writer turned racer. He lost control of his car coming out of turn three and smashed into the inside retaining wall. The car spun crazily and cartwheeled three times before coming to a stop, upside down, on the infield.

Bedard had to be pried from the wreckage. Late Sunday, he was listed in fair condition at Indianapolis Methodist Hospital with a severe concussion and a broken jaw.

The only man who might have caught Mears' March-Cosworth was Sneva. But suspension problems killed Sneva's chance to become the first man to win consecutive titles here in 13 years.

"We had trouble with the car all day, but we had adjusted the wings and changed tires," Sneva said after leaving the race on the 168th lap. "For the first time all day, the car felt good.

"But during the yellow (caused by Scott Brayton's car stopping on the track), I felt something in the rear end let go. If it hadn't happened under the yellow, I might have lost the car. That was it, though. Just before then, I was thinking I might run him down at the end."

Jabbar's first half sets pace for Laker victory

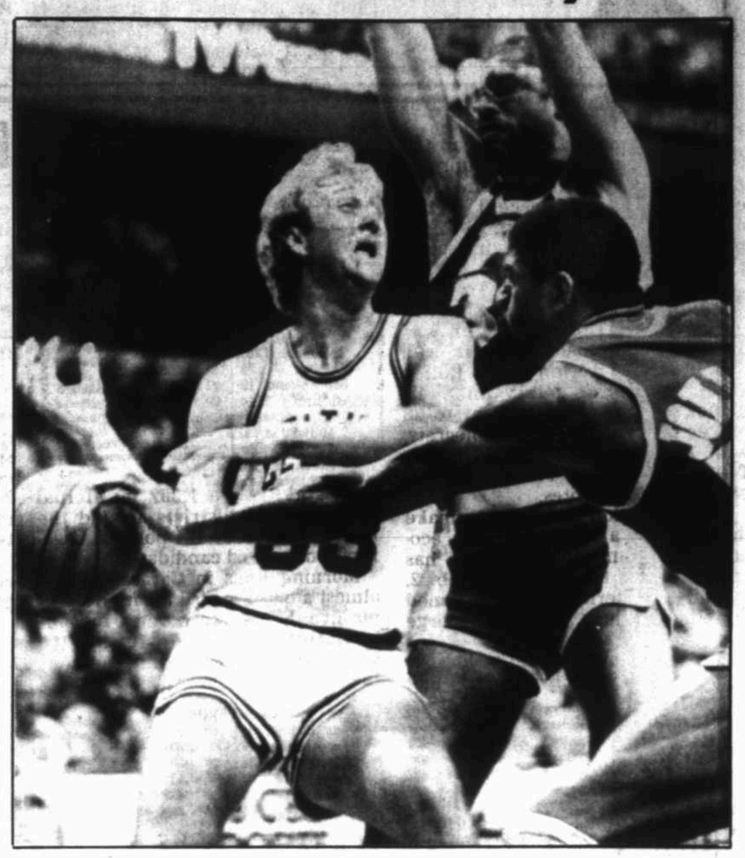

BOSTON (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 23 of his 32 points in the first half as the Los Angeles Lakers handed the Boston Celtics their first home loss in 10 playoff games with a 115-109 decision Sunday in the opener of the National Basketball Association Championship Series.

Abdul-Jabbar, 37, the center who is the all-time leading NBA scorer, hit 12 of 17 field goals. His 13 points in the first quarter helped Los Angeles build an 18-point lead eight minutes into the game.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series will be held Thursday night at Boston Garden.

The Celtics, who are seeking an unprecedented 15th NBA title, had won their first nine postseason games at home, including the last seven by an average margin of nearly 17 points. But the Celtics never got closer than four points after the initial Los Angeles spurt, disappointing a sellout crowd of 14,890.

Larry Bird, averaging 27.5 in the playoffs, and Boston's leading scorer in each of the last 11 games, had only two field goals and 12 points midway through the third period, with Los Angeles ahead 83-64. But with Abdul-Jabbar and Earvin "Magic" Johnson on the bench with four fouls apiece, Bird led a 24-9 run with eight points in the final 1:22 of the quarter, including a three-pointer that made it 92-88 at the buzzer.

Los Angeles' Magic Johnson knocks the ball from Boston's Larry Bird during Sunday's first game in the NBA Championship best-of-seven series while Laker Kareem Abdul-Jabbar guards from above.

THE GAME was close throughout the fourth period but the Celtics never were able to catch up.

James Worthy added 20 points and Johnson 18 for the Lakers, while Kevin McHale led the Celtics with 25, Bird had 24 and Dennis Johnson 23.

The Lakers, ignoring the effects of a Friday night game and a five-hour plane flight Saturday, outscored the Celtics 25-6 in a seven-minute span to take a 28-10 lead with 3:59 left in the first quarter.

Boston cut the 18-point deficit to 34-22 at the end of the first period as McHale hit eight points in the final 2:58.

Overall, the Celtics are 14-1 in Championship Series appearances, while the Lakers are 8-10 in the finals, including 5-1 when the franchise was in Minneapolis from 1947-59.

Horns gain College World Series

AUSTIN (AP) — Bill Bates slid under a tag at home plate to break a 5-5 tie in the 10th inning and send the University of Texas to the College World Series with a 6-5 victory over Lamar Sunday night.

The NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament victory gives the defending series champion Longhorns their fourth straight regional title.

It also means the Longhorns will make their 24th trip to the annual tournament in Omaha, a national record.

"After a finish like this, I'm a little speechless," said Texas coach Cliff Gustafson.

He was almost the goat of the game, too, when he decided to leave tired starting pitcher Eric Beaudreaux in the ninth inning.

Beaudreaux stayed in one batter too long. Lamar center fielder Jay Burton tied the score in the top of the ninth with a pressure-packed, two-out RBI single.

Steve Labay relieved Beaudreaux and struck out Neal Reynolds to end the inning.

Labay retired Lamar in order in the 10th.

Bates led off the 10th with a single off Lamar reliever David Poss. He moved to second on Rusty Richards' sacrifice bunt, held at third after Darren Loy's single, then tagged third on tournament MVP Dennis Cook's long fly and raced home with the winning run.

Lamar earned a spot in the championship game by eliminating Nevada-Las Vegas 10-5 in Sunday afternoon's game.

The Cardinals, surprisingly fresh after their three hour and 20 minute game in 94-degree heat, jumped on Beaudreaux for a 2-0 lead in the first. David Hearne knocked in both runs on a two-out single.

Judson's Pryor will attend Tech despite grades

LUBBOCK (AP) — Chris Pryor, considered by many to be Texas' No. 1 high school football player last season, has indicated he plans to enroll at Texas Tech this fall even though he will be unable to play for the Red Raiders because of grade problems, Tech head coach Jerry Moore said.

The 5-8, 185-pound runningback set an all-time rushing record for Class 5A with 2,800 yards last year in leading San Antonio Judson to the state championship, beating Midland Lee in the finals.

But Frank Arnold, athletic director at Judson, said Saturday that the 17-year-old Pryor didn't graduate Friday because he had failed an English final exam. That voided a four-year athletic scholarship Pryor had signed with Texas Tech.

Without the English course, Pryor's grades would have been high enough to carry him to Texas Tech, Arnold said.

Jays run streak to seven; Tigers lose third straight

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers are no longer baseball's hottest team.

That honor belongs to the Toronto Blue Jays, who ran their winning streak to a club record seven games by sweeping Sunday's double-header from the Cleveland Indians 6-1 and 6-5.

The Tigers, who had two nine-game streaks and two seven-gamers while winning 35 of their first 40 games, lost to the Seattle Mariners 6-1 and have a three-game losing streak for the first time this season. In addition, their lead over Toronto in the American League East is down to five games, the smallest since May 6.

"I told you it (a losing streak) was going to come," said Manager Sparky Anderson. "I wish it wouldn't have, but I told you it would. We got beat 7-3, 6-1 and 9-5. I would classify it as playing badly for three days."

Ken Phelps belted two solo homers off Detroit reliever Aurelio Lopez to help Seattle complete a three-game sweep. It was the third consecutive road loss for the Tigers, who tied a major-league record last week with their 17th consecutive victory away from home.

American League

The Mariners tagged Dan Petry for four runs and nine hits in four innings. They went in front to stay 2-1 in the second inning when Dave Henderson singled, Barry Bonnell tripled and Darnell Coles singled and made it 4-1 in the fourth on a walk, Bob Kearney's RBI double and Spike Owen's triple.Winner Matt Young scattered six hits over the first five innings.

"It's big news that we've lost three in a row," said Detroit first baseman Darrell Evans. "It's probably going to happen again. It's the first time we haven't hit. I don't know how many we left on, but it's probably more than any other series this season. We made some mistakes and they capitalized on them."

Blue Jays 6-6, Indians 1-5

Meanwhile, Toronto completed a four-game sweep of Cleveland. The Blue Jays took the opener as Luis Leal pitched a four-hitter, Willie Aikens drove in three runs with a double and George Bell hit a two-run homer in a five-run fifth inning. In the nightcap, Tony Fernandez's sacrifice fly capped a two-run rally in the bottom of the ninth after Cleveland scored three times in the eighth for a 5-4 lead.

"It's almost impossible to not think about Detroit, because that's all you get asked," said Dave Collins, whose pinch-hit double drove in the tying run. "But the Tigers are going to come back to us. Usually the team that plays the best that last month of the season is going to win the pennant, and I still think that holds true this year."

Lloyd Moseby, who hit a two-run homer in the second game, said the Blue Jays must avoid looking ahead to a four-game series in Detroit next week.

"If all we do is look ahead at Detroit, we're going to get in trouble," he said. "I mean, if you start putting yourself on a pedestal, people are going to start gunning for you. I think right now, they're gunning for Detroit."

Orioles 8, Angels 0

Baltimore is 11½ games behind Detroit after Wayne Gross' grand slam homer capped a six-run fourth inning and Scott McGregor, Tom Underwood and Bill Swaggerty combined on a four-hitter. McGregor, who allowed two hits in six innings, improved his career record against the Angels to 15-4 with his ninth straight victory in Anaheim Stadium.

The Orioles broke the game open in the fourth inning against Mike Witt. The first two runs crossed on Al Bumbry's single and Cal Ripken Jr.'s grounder. After an intentional walk to Eddie Murray loaded the bases, Gross slammed Witt's first pitch for his second career grand slam and eighth homer of the season. He drove in another run with a bases-loaded walk in the eighth.

Brewers 5, Twins 4

Jim Gantner and Ted Simmons homered for Milwaukee and Chuck Porter, who allowed two runs in 6 2-3 innings, won his fifth straight start since joining the rotation April 28. Simmons' two-run homer snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning and loser Mike Smithson escaped serious injury later in the inning when Gantner's line drive struck him on the back of the neck. Smithson lay unconscious on the mound for five minutes but eventually walked off the field under his own power.

Athletics 7, Yankees 1

Rickey Henderson had three singles, scored three runs and stole three bases to back the seven-hit pitching of Ray Burris, who lowered his earned run average to 1.84. Henderson also drove in Oakland's first two runs with singles in the second and fourth innings off loser Jose Rijo.The A's wrapped it up with three runs in the sixth, two on Carney Lansford's bases-loaded single, the only hit of the inning.

Rangers 11, White Sox 3

Dave Hostetler hit a two-run homer and Larry Parrish ripped a three-run shot to power Texas.Winner Danny Darwin allowed eight hits in seven innings, including a solo homer by Vance Law. Loser Floyd Bannister allowed four runs in four innings and is 3-10 lifetime against the Rangers. Hostetler homered in the third inning to give Texas a 3-0 lead and Parrish connected off Salome Barojas to highlight a four-run sixth.

Red Sox 6, Royals 0

Dwight Evans, Tony Armas and newly acquired Bill Buckner homered and Bruce Hurst scattered nine hits. It was the first nine-inning shutout by a Boston left-hander at Fenway Park since May 21, 1981. Evans and Armas homered in the first inning and Buckner connected in the fourth. All the homers came off Joe Beckwith, who was making his first AL start.

INDY

ONCE SNEVA was gone, Mears, 32, the winner here in 1979, had only to worry about his car holding together. He pushed it as fast as 206 miles per hour one lap, before slowing in the final laps under orders from his crew.

"He kept asking me on the radio, 'Are you sure I'm a lap ahead?' " Penske said. "He just wouldn't believe everything was okay."

"I started listening to the car, talking to it," Mears said, sipping from a giant bottle of beer in celebration. "Every time the car made a different noise, I got worried. I told myself not to change my style, not to get worried.

"Coming out of the last turn, I knew I had it won because I figured if the wheels came off I could slide the damn thing home from there."

BEDARD'S ACCIDENT occurred on the 56th lap. On Gordon Johncock's 104th lap, with the leaders on the 107th, Johncock, a two-time winner here who had been in and out of the pits all day, hit the outside wall coming out of turn four. His car spun all the way across the track, hit the inside pit wall head on and skidded across the pits to hit the outside wall.

Miraculously, everyone in the pits managed to dodge the spinning car. Johncock, who still has pins in his right leg from an accident last summer, suffered a broken left ankle.

It was during the yellow light brought on by Johncock's accident that Mears took control of the race for good after the lead had shifted among five drivers during the first 250 miles.

That early racing had taken place under gradually darkening skies, the wind kicking up as the race wore on.

THE DAY had started cool and bright. The usual Indy crowd of close to 400,000 started invading the speedway grounds as soon as the gates opened at 5 a.m. By race time, clouds were moving in, but even though the sky turned gray before the race ended, rain was never a factor.

Mears, starting on the outside of the first row, beat Sneva to the green flag and led the first 24 laps. When Mears made his first pit stop, Mario Andretti took the lead, only to later fall back into the pack, finally dropping out of the race on lap 153 after a mild collision with Josele Garza.

Until Johncock's injury, the leaders had changed position several times. After Bedard's accident, Italian Teo Fabi, the pole winner last year, and Danny Ongais each led briefly before Sneva took the lead on the 80th lap. Sneva was still leading when Johncock's accident occurred.

"When Gordy spun, I thought about diving into the pits right away, but I was afraid Sneva might lap me," Mears said. "But they told me to come in the next lap. When I headed out again, I saw Tom and I didn't know if I waa getting out almost a lap down or in the lead."

He was in the lead, thanks to his pit crew, which had gotten him out in 16 seconds, compared with Sneva's 19. When the green flag came out again on lap 115, Mears was still ahead. Except for two laps right after a pit stop, he was never out of the lead again.

"The hardest thing after I heard Tom was out was calming myself down," he said. "When you're prepared for a shootout the last few laps and all of a sudden you realize there isn't going to be one, you have to adjust. Both of us had run smart races and I knew he had a fast car (Sneva had been slowly closing a nine-second Mears lead when he had to leave the race), but I was ready, I think."

Mears tossed his long brown hair, running his hands through it and said: "Probably saved me some gray hairs."

MEARS' CAR, bought for him by Penske only 11 days before practice began here, ran well all day, needing only a minor wing adjustment about halfway through the race. But there were frustrations for many other drivers.

Al Unser Jr., after maneuvering his car from 15th place to second, running between Mears and Sneva, had his water pump fail on the 127th lap and was forced out. Howdy Holmes, the No. 2 qualifier, had electrical problems early and, although he was still running at the finish (one of 15 cars), he ended up 13th.

Mario Andretti was forced out on lap 153. "Garza just pulled in front of me," said the 1969 winner of this race. "He just changed lanes. I couldn't stop." Andretti's car had already been slowed by a broken exhaust pipe.

Fabi, after leading, had a fuel system problem on lap 104 and retired. Three-time champion Johnny Rutherford's engine failed on lap 116. And two-time world driving champion Emerson Fittipaldi's engine failed on the 39th lap.

Those dropouts allowed rookies like Guerrero, Holbert and Michael Andretti into the top five. They also allowed Chris Kneifel, who got into the field as the No. 33 qualifier after an injury to Jacques Villeneuve, to finish 15th.

Nicklaus wins in sudden death

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus says the two titles he has won in his own Memorial Tournament are more cherished than his unprecedented 17 major professional golf championships.

"Winning the Memorial means more in many ways," he said Sunday after his three-hole playoff victory over Andy Bean that made him the first to win the 9-year-old Muirfield Village event twice.

"What the tournament means, to win on this course, what everybody has put into it makes it harder for me to win than any major," said Nicklaus after his 70th triumph, but first in more than two years.

With his drought, the 44-year-old Nicklaus had wondered about his future. But now he said, "I just happen to think I want to win some more majors."

BEAN MISSED two short putts, one from four feet at 18 that cost him a regulation victory and a second, from three feet at 17, the third extra hole.

"I thought it (the putt at 17) was going straight. It didn't. It went left. I misread the putt at 18, too. It was the same, exact putt as 17. Both stayed on the left edge of the cup," he said.

Bean closed with 67 to match Nicklaus' total of 280, eight strokes below par. Nicklaus, despite knocking his tee shot out of bounds at the 71st hole, shot a closing 70.

Chip Beck, the third-round leader by one shot over Nicklaus, slipped to 74. He tied for third place with Roger Maltbie and Payne Stewart at 283. Maltbie had 67 and Stewart 69.

Nicklaus collected $90,000 from the total purse of $572,000, extending his career record past $4.4 million. Bean won $54,000. Beck, Maltbie and Stewart earned $26,000 apiece.

NICKLAUS APPEARED out of it when he lashed his driver 100 yards to the left, out of bounds on a wooden deck of a house next to the 17th fairway. After a two-stroke penalty, he came back to salvage a bogey 5 with a second drive, a seven iron approach and a 25-foot putt.

"Those were a very, very important three shots in my career," he said. "It may have prolonged my agony, but it was pure pleasure today."

At 18, he scrambled to a par 4, his drive settling in a mound in the middle of a fairway bunker and his second shot hitting short of the green in high rough.

Nicklaus sank a 5-foot putt to salavge par. Bean then missed for the victory, prompting a roar from the crowd of 40,000 surrounding the hole.

Bean took his second playoff defeat of 1984 philosophically. "Jack has been a champion as long as I am old. I'll be back next year. Maybe the Golden Bear will be a little older," he said.

Hicks, Huckabee win at RHCC

From Staff Reports

D.R. Hicks and Dub Huckabee won the championship crown in the annual Ranchland Hills Country Club Stampede golf tournament Sunday, but not without some last minute heroics by Hicks.

Hicks dropped a 35-foot birdie putt on the final hole of the tournament to give his team a three-day total of 206, one shot better than the team of Jamie Winkel and Mike Walling.

Huckabee and Hicks produced three straight rounds of 68 to pull out the victory, showing that consistency pays off in golf. Winkel and Walling also had a final round 68, but went into the last round down by one stroke, the same as they finished.

Third place went to Bodley Thornton and Bill Thornton with a final round 67 for a total of 211.

Dan Bailey and Mike Locker produced a 213 to win the first flight while Jack Hunnicutt and Bill Russell took the second flight with a playoff victory over Arlen Dickson and Terry Lowry.

Fritz Brandes and Buddy Redden won the third flight with a 219 while the fourth went to Ralph Viney and Bill Gilluly with a 223. Fifth flight honors went to Gene Howard and Jim Underwood with a 230.

Bill Beard and Bill Ed Beard took the sixth flight with a 231 while Beck Adkins and Davey Cruzan won the seventh flight with a 224. Glen Harbert and Ken Heathman won the eighth with a 243 and the team of Don Robinson and Jack McIntosh took the ninth flight with a 244.

Cougars attack, win NCAA golf title

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Cougar golf team was cruising along three strokes behind defending champion Oklahoma State in the final round of the NCAA Division I Golf Championships when Houston Coach Dave Williams made his move on the sixth hole.

"Coach came up to us and said to put it in another gear, that it was time to attack and it paid off," Houston golf Billy Ray Brown said.

The payoff was a one-stroke victory over Oklahoma State for the Cougars' 15th national championship under Williams, who ended retirement rumors by announcing he'd stick around for "sweet sixteen."

Houston's title surge was a four-day struggle after the Cougars finished the first round in 19th place. They improved their position to second place, three strokes behind front-running Oklahoma State, going into the final round on Saturday.

Houston caught the Cowboys on the 10th hole, surged to a three-shot lead going into 18, but had to sweat out a two-foot putt by Steve Elkington to clinch the one-stroke victory.

"I could stand it," Williams said. "It was a four-hour sweat out there."

Oklahoma State's Scott Verplank and Andy Dillard each birdied the final hole to cut Houston's lead to one shot before Tommy Moore missed a 10-foot birdie putt that would have tied the score and Elkington sank the winning putt.

John Inman of North Carolina didn't have to worry about sudden death finishes to win the individual crown. He riddled the Bear Creek Golf World's Masters Course with a final round 67 for a NCAA record 17-under par 271. Elkington was second at 275, 13 under par.

Moore and Oklahoma's Andrew Magee tied for third with 278 totals following final rounds of 67 by Moore and 69 by Magee.

Oklahoma's Jim Begwin also entered the record books with an NCAA tournament record final round 63, nine shots under par. The final round allowed Begwin to finish at two under par 286.

Oklahoma State Coach Mike Holder praised Houston's rally.

"It is tough to lose such a close tournament, but you've got to hand it to Houston. they got it done," Holder said.

Begwin's 63 broke the NCAA tournament record of 65 held by eight golfers.

Reds win fight with Cubs

By The Associated Press

National League

Cincinnati pitcher Mario Soto is considered one of baseball's most flamboyant players — the kind sometimes referred to as a "hot dog."

So it's appropriate that a catcher named Brad Gulden may have helped save Soto's career.

In the second inning of the Reds' 4-3 victory over Chicago Sunday, Ron Cey of the Cubs drilled a pitch from Soto down the line in left that third-base umpire Steve Rippley ruled fair for a three-run homer.

Soto, who's been on a roll this season with a 7-1 record, was boiling. He led a team charge toward Rippley and was quickly ejected for bumping Rippley.

After Soto was tossed out, Rippley asked plate umpire Paul Runge for help.

Explained crew chief Bob Engel: "Cey hit the ball down the line and Rippley called it fair. After the Reds charged, he said, 'maybe I missed it. What do you think, Paul?' Runge said it was foul and I interjected and said it was foul."

That prompted a vehement argument from the Cubs and Manager Jim Frey, who was ejected for throwing his jacket. And at that point, the action was just heating up.

"It took a long time to get the solution figured out and I prepared my team the best way I could," said Cincinnati Manager Vern Rapp. "Then I signaled for (pitcher Bob) Owchinko to get ready and Soto, being the competitor he is, reacted."

Which is to say he went wild, dashing out of the dugout toward the umpires. That's when Gulden, not exactly relishing the situation, mustered up the strength to intercept and tackle Soto.

"I didn't want to see him thrown out of baseball for the rest of his life," Gulden said. "The way he was going, he might have killed the man. I felt like a middle linebacker for the Minnesota Vikings."

Soto's sprint also prompted both benches to empty and scattered fights broke out all over the infield. In one melee, Gulden found himself on the bottom of the pile, wrestling with Soto and Cubs coach Don Zimmer.

When order was finally restored, about a half-hour after the incident started, both teams announced they were playing under protest. The Reds protested because their pitcher was thrown out over a call that was reversed; the Cubs complained because the call was changed.

The final say on the whole matter will belong the National League President Chub Feeney.

Gulden, as it turned out, later keyed the Reds to victory. Gulden, who tripled home a run earlier, led off the ninth inning of a 3-3 game with a double and Wayne Krenchicki followed with an RBI single.

Cardinals 12, Braves 9

St. Louis blasted off for seven runs in the first inning, three of them scoring on the first of Oz-zie Smith's three doubles.

The visiting Cardinals rocked Atlanta starter Craig McMurtry, 3-6, who was kayoed by Smith's blow. Lonnie Smith and Tom Herr each singled twice during the first-inning explosion.

Padres 4, Phillies 0

Tim Lollar allowed two hits during the first six innings and Craig Lefferts gave up two more the rest of the way for San Diego's combined shutout.

Jerry Koosman had held the visiting Padres to one hit through four innings before Kevin McReynolds led off the fifth with his fifth triple of the season. Carmelo Martinez then swatted an 0-1 pitch over the left-field wall for his fifth home run of the season.

Dodgers 3, Mets 2

Rick Monday belted a two-run double in the first inning and starter-turned-reliever Burt Hooton protected a late lead in New York.

Bob Welch, 4-5, got the victory before being relieved by Pat Zachry, who left for Carlos Diaz. Hooton came on with one out in the eighth inning and earned his second save for Los Angeles, which had lost 10 of its last 14.

Expos 6, Giants 2

Charlie Lea continued his success in the month of May with an eight-hitter.

Lea, 8-2 this season, has won 12 of 15 career decisions in May, including a 4-1 mark this month.

Rookie Mike Stenhouse and veteran Gary Carter keyed the Expo attack in Montreal. Stenhouse scored twice and drove in another while Carter doubled and singled home runs, giving him a league-leading 41 RBI.

Pirates 2, Astros 1

Pittsburgh right-hander Rick Rhoden scattered eight hits through seven innings and the Pirates took advantage of a Houston error to defeat the Astros 2-1.

Rhoden, 4-3, stranded eight Astro runners before Rod Scurry took over in the eighth for his first save. Joe Niekro, 2-7, went 5⅔ innings and took the loss.

TEXAS—

Texas got back in the fourth with three fluky runs.

Loy took first after starting pitcher John Sene's pitch hit him on the ankle, then scored on Cook's double.

Poss came on in relief after Sene walked Labay, but he fared even worse. Labay scored from third on a wild pitch and Jamie Doughty came home on a balk, a call that was hotly disputed by Poss and Lamar coach Jim Gilligan.

Lamar pulled to within one run in the eighth on Jerald Clark's sacrifice fly that scored Burton from third. Beaudreaux gave up a hit and a walk before nipping the Cardinal rally.

He forced the final two batters to fly out, stranding two Lamar baserunners.

Mortgage rates going up fast

By the Associated Press

Don't look for any relief soon from rising mortgage rates. In fact, you can expect them to go up in the next six months — not down.

There's better news when it comes to house prices, however. They're not coming down either — but at least they're not going up as fast as they did.

That's the word from Mike Wilson, an economist with the Chicago office of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, whose members grant many of the home loans issued in this country.

Wilson said in a telephone interview that he doesn't expect a 20-percent prime rate again, "not this year." But he does expect short term interest rates, like the prime, to go to 12 percent or 13 percent, up from a current level of 10½ percent, with the rise beginning in late summer and continuing through fall and winter.

Long-term mortgage rates, the traditional loan with a fixed rate, will probably increase to 15 percent, up from 14 percent right now, and adjustable rate mortgages, with rates that fluctuate according to a pre-selected index within fixed limits, will rise from 12½ percent, up from about 11½ percent.

"We look for a rise of about one percentage point in mortgage rates," Wilson said.

At 12½ percent, most people feel they can afford to buy. At 15 percent, they can't. Wilson said there is also a psychological factor. "They're turned off at that level," he said.

That's why the adjustable-rate mortages are making up a greater part of the market, despite the uncertainty for buyers. Wilson said they now make up 60 percent to 70 percent of the market. Fixed-rate mortgages will still be available, at least for the next year or so, Wilson said, but at a "heavy premium" of two to three percentage points.

Wilson said there won't be the "price appreciation" in home prices that there were during the 1970s, when two-earner families bought houses for the interest and property tax deductions on their federal income taxes and everyone looked to houses as a hedge against inflation.

Today, the top tax bracket has dropped from 70 percent to 50 percent and inflation has eased. That makes houses less profitable as an investment.

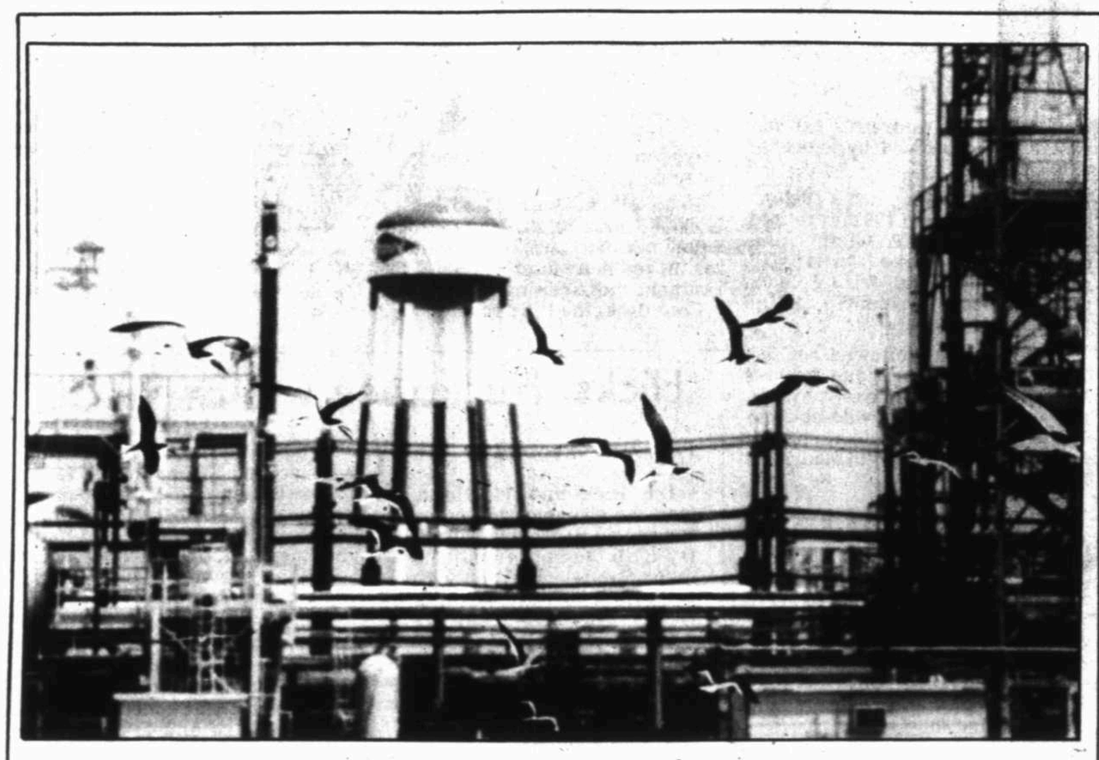

Wilson said, however, all he sees are housing prices "moderating," and that means you'll have to spend about $75,000 for a new home in one of the more fashionable suburbs.

Builders seem to be cutting the house rather than the price. They are building smaller homes. They are building smaller homes, fewer bathrooms, fewer extras. They also are taking advantage of more lenient zoing regulations, using new techniques like modular units and cluster design.

The new methods have helped lessen the "affordability gap" — the difference between what a median-income family can afford and what the median house costs. (The median is that level exactly in the middle; half of all people have more, half have less.) Today, Wilson said, the gap is about $6,000, about one-third of the $16,000 it was only a few years ago.

Wilson cautioned that his interest rate forecast is contingent on the federal deficit. If the budget is cut substantially for 1985, rates "won't pop up that high," although they will still increase.

Black skimmers in flight are a common sight above the huge complex of the huge complex of the Texas operations of Dow Chemical U.S.A. at Freeport, Texas. A colony of skimmers has been making its home at the plant since 1968.

Birds at home in chemical plant

'Dow' colony comes home again

A colony of Black Skimmers has again set up housekeeping in the middle of the Texas Operations production complex of Dow Chemical U.S.A. The birds have been returning to their private lot in Dow's Plant A every years since 1968, with a single exception in 1980.

Black Skimmers are coastal, fish-eating birds that winter along the southern coasts of the Gulf of Mexico. The "Dow" colony usually begins to arrive for the summer nesting season about mid-April and stays until the end of August. They occupy what once was a parking lot near the center of Plant A, a lot now reserved exclusively for their use.

The birds build nests called "scrapes" on the hard oyster shell surface of the lot and appear to regulate temperature of their eggs by deepening or filling the scrapes as temperature changes. They use no nesting materials and will not nest in areas where grass or other ground cover exists.

In 1980 when the birds did not return for the first time since 1968, the reasons for their absence from the Dow complex became almost as big a topic as the production of chemicals. Theories abounded, but it was finally decided that grass and weeds were the culprits. The skimmers like hard, shell-covered ground. They do not like vegetation, and without cars using the old parking lot, weeds and grass had begun to grow. A plan was developed to recondition the lot and try to bring back the birds.

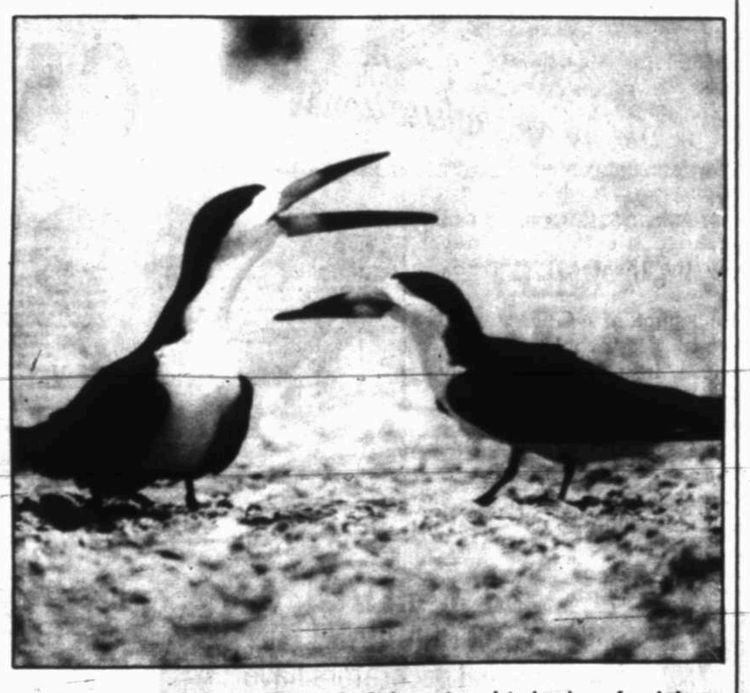

The lot was cleared of vegetation and resurfaced with six inches of oyster shell, rolled hard. And because skimmers are social birds (that is, they like company), several decoys were fashioned and placed on the lot. It was hoped the decoys would convince the scouts the colony sends ahead that the summer home was ready.

The decoys proved successful, and the Black Skimmers once again returned to the parking lot in Plant A, as they have each year since.

The skimmers seem perfectly at home in the midst of the chemical complex. They ignore passing cars, trucks locomotives pulling strings of tank cars and the roar of nearby chemical plants. Workers in the plant have taken a very proprietary attitude toward the birds and watch over them during the summer months to see that they are not unnecessarily disturbed.

Black Skimmers are not hospitable birds and they get along with almost no other members of their species. They will drive away other birds that come too close and woe be unto the unfortunate seagull that drops onto the lot for a rest. The exception seems to be a small member of the tern family called the Least Tern. These birds, apparently as tough as the skimmers but tiny in size, hold their own in territorial battles.

The birds arrived on schedule this spring and the several thousand "owners" of the skimmer colony, the workers in Dow's Plant A, have high hopes for another good year for "their" birds. Several hundred birds are on the lot so far and the population will be increasing in the coming weeks. It looks like it is going to be another successful season for Dow's Black Skimmers.

Black skimmers are costal, fish-eating birds that feed by "skimming" fish from the water while in flight.

Mideast war lowering gas prices

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline prices usually rise with the arrival of warm weather, but this year they are dropping instead as the Iran-Iraq war encourages overproduction by other oil nations, an oil industry analyst says.

"Oil-producing nations around the world have shown the symptoms of being ready, willing and able to start to overproduce to protect their own rear ends," analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday.

Lundberg said oil-producing nations are hoping to take advantage of reduced output from Iran and Iraq to help offset the lower revenues the oil producers have suffered since they agreed to production limits in March 1983.

"At any moment, the world is going to start to see increased production and further declines in spot market prices for crude oil and finished products such as gasoline," he said. "The Persian Gulf conflict has turned the oil production world upside down."

But because excessive overproduction would cause a "free fall" in world oil prices and result in worldwide economic damage, oil-producers are likely to show restraint in overproduction, Lundberg added.

In the United States, the average price for all grades of gasoline dropped more than 0.1 cent to about $1.21 a gallon in the two weeks ending May 25, according to Lundberg's latest survey of nearly 18,000 gas stations nationwide.

Even more significantly, wholesale gas prices have dropped nearly 0.6 cent in the same two-week period, Lundberg said, adding that retail prices have dropped less sharply because retailers want to make up for some previously lost profit.

The U.S. trend, which is exactly the opposite of the usual second-quarter price increase, also suggests gasoline prices "are weakening elsewhere in the world," Lundberg said.

As the Iraq-Iran conflict intensified and raised fears of shortages, spot prices for crude oil rose in April, Lundberg said. But in early May, spot prices fell as oil-producing nations realized they had an opportunity to break voluntary production quotas to make up for a possible loss of the 2.3 million barrels per day produced by Iran and Iraq, he added.

Lundberg said his latest survey showed the following prices for self-service gasoline for the two-week period ending May 25: Regular leaded, nearly $1.101 per gallon, down about 0.2 cent; regular unleaded, $1.175, down 0.17 cent, and premium unleaded, nearly $1.297, down about 0.1 cent.

The survey showed full-service prices were: regular leaded, $1.30 per gallon, no change; regular unleaded, almost $1.361, down 0.04 cent, and premium unleaded, $1.439, down nearly 0.1 cent.

Dollar rallies; Gold steady

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rallied against other major currencies early today as fears over the stability of the American banking system subsided. Gold prices edged higher.

With markets closed for holidays today in London and New York, trading was quiet.

Dealers said that the currency markets' jitters last week — prompted by rumors about the health of two top U.S. banks — were easing. As a results, they said, the dollar was rising.

In Tokyo, where trading ends as Europe's business day is beginning, the dollar gained to close at 231.80 yen, compared with Friday's 231.00.

Yuv R. Mehra

TSPE names 1984 young engineer

Yuv R. Mehra will be honored as the Young Engineer of the Year at the May meeting of the Permian Basin Chapter of Professional Engineers.

Mehra is the technical director of El Paso Hydrocarbons Co. in Odessa, and is responsible for all technical and environmental activities of new projects as well as six existing plants and three pipeline systems.

Mehra holds two U.S. patents for hydrocarbon processing and has had several magazine articles published on hydrocarbon refrigeration systems. He received his master's degree in chemical engineering from UCLA in 1973, and while attending that school received a merit scholarship and a certificate of merit.

He is a registered professional engineer in the states of Texas and California, and is currently a subcommittee chairman for the Refrigeration Section of the Gas Processors Association. The engineer is past secretary-treasurer of the Permian Basin Chapter of TSPE and was recently elected a director of that organization. Mehra, his wife Diane, and two children reside in Odessa.

TSPE will hold its May meeting, May 31, at the Odessa Petroleum Club. Reservations may be had by calling Bob Grace at 699-3210 in Midland, Gordon Mayer at 337-7381 in Odessa, and Richard Dormier at 263-1096 in Big Springs.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Program launched to educate builders

DALLAS — The Building Advisory Council of Texas has initiated a fulltime educational program to stress the importance of non-combustible building materials, especially in low-rise, multi-family housing.

"One reason Texas is being referred to as belonging to the 'burn belt,'" according to H.V. "Corky" Moss, president of the Building Advisory Council of Texas, "is the continued use of combustible building materials in roofs, walls and floors."

"Rising developmental and building costs," adds Moss, "are creating concentrated, high-density areas of multi-family housing throughout the state. Using non-combustible construction materials in the walls, floors and roofs of low-rise, multi-family busldings will create an environment which can contain a fire."

Fire officials refer to this type of fire as a "contained burnout." This means the fire will not escape and spread to other units in the building because non-combustible walls, floors and roofing "lock it in."

There has been a strong trend in other sections of the country over the last 10 or 12 years either to change to non-combustible construction or mix it with conventional "stick-built" methods.

One of the benefits of non-combustible construction is the fast "re-occupancy" when a fire does occur. In such buildings, it is not unusual to have the burned out apartment completely remodeled and occupied within 30 to 40 days.

Judge rules proxy material not false

DENVER — Minerals Engineering Co. has announced that Judge Carrigan of the Colorado Federal District Court ruled that John S. Wold's 1983 proxy material relating to a proxy contest in respect of MECO's board of directors was not materially false and misleading, and directed that the proxies obtained by Wold and MECO be counted by a special master.

Based on a count submitted by the special master to the court, it appeaars that Wold's nominee slate will become MECO's board of directors, subject to possible appeal by MECo of the ruling.

A.G. Foust, president of MECO since 1976, has submitted his resignation effective immediately, stating that he hoped his resignation would bring an end to the turmoil that has crippled MECO during the last year. Foust and the other remaining officers of MECO stated that if a new board is elected, they will endeavor to ensure a smooth transition so as to preserve the assets of MECO for the benefit of all MECO shareholders.

Colorado school to use TI computer

DALLAS — Texas Instruments Inc., has announced that its TI Professional Computer has been selected by the Colorado School of Mines in Golden, Colo., for its campus microcomputer program.

"The program represents a highly innovative and long-term commitment to campus-wide academic computing by a nationally known school," said Ralph Iliva, manager of Educational Computer Marketing for Texas Instruments.

CMS's program calls for the potential delivery of more then 3,350 TI Professional Computers over the next four years. Texas Instruments will begin delivery of the units this summer.

Firm to be representative of Crane Plastics

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The appointment of Andy & Associates as sales representative for Crane Plastics in Texas was announced by R.L. "Dick" McGowan, vice president of Andy & Associates.

The new Crane representative is located at 2716 West Mockingbird Lane, Dallas, Tex., 75235. Telephone (214) 357-3978.

Crane Plastics, headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, is the leading U.S. manufacturer of custom profile extrusions for residential and commercial building products and for general original-equipment applicatons in many other industries.

Amoco Foundation announces capital grant

CHICAGO — A $50,000 capital grant for Wilberforce University was announced by Amoco Foundation, Inc.

The foundation said the grant will be made in five annual installments, beginning this year. The minority liberal arts school in Wilberforce, Ohio, is planning to build a new administration building and multi-purpose complex, and renovate some of its existing facilities.

In addition to the capital grant, Amoco Foundation has supported Wilberforce with operating funds since 1973, including $10,000 budgeted for 1984.

Amoco Foundation is the philanthropic arm of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana).

Avis car rental will go on selling block

NEW YORK (AP) — The expected new owner of Avis Inc. likely will say arrivederci to the car-rental concern, according to several industry observers.

Avis currently is owned by Esmark Inc. But this past week Esmark agreed to be acquired by Beatrice Foods Co., and followers of the companies say Beatrice probably will put Avis on the selling block in short order.

The analysts note, however, that the same scenario was forecast when Esmark acquired Avis as part its buyout of Norton Simon Inc. last summer. And Esmark still owns Avis.

Regardless, Beatrice has made it no secret that the main prizes of Esmark are its Swift-Hunt-Wesson food unit and its International Playtex consumer-products subsidiary.

Beatrice Chairman James L. Dutt also has said that once the merger is completed, his company will "embark on an aggressive divestiture program of those companies that do not fit our strategic objectives."

Avis spokesman Harry Savage says the company's future "is up to Beatrice," and Beatrice spokeswoman Pat Brozowski says "we're not saying which of the companies we'll be divesting."

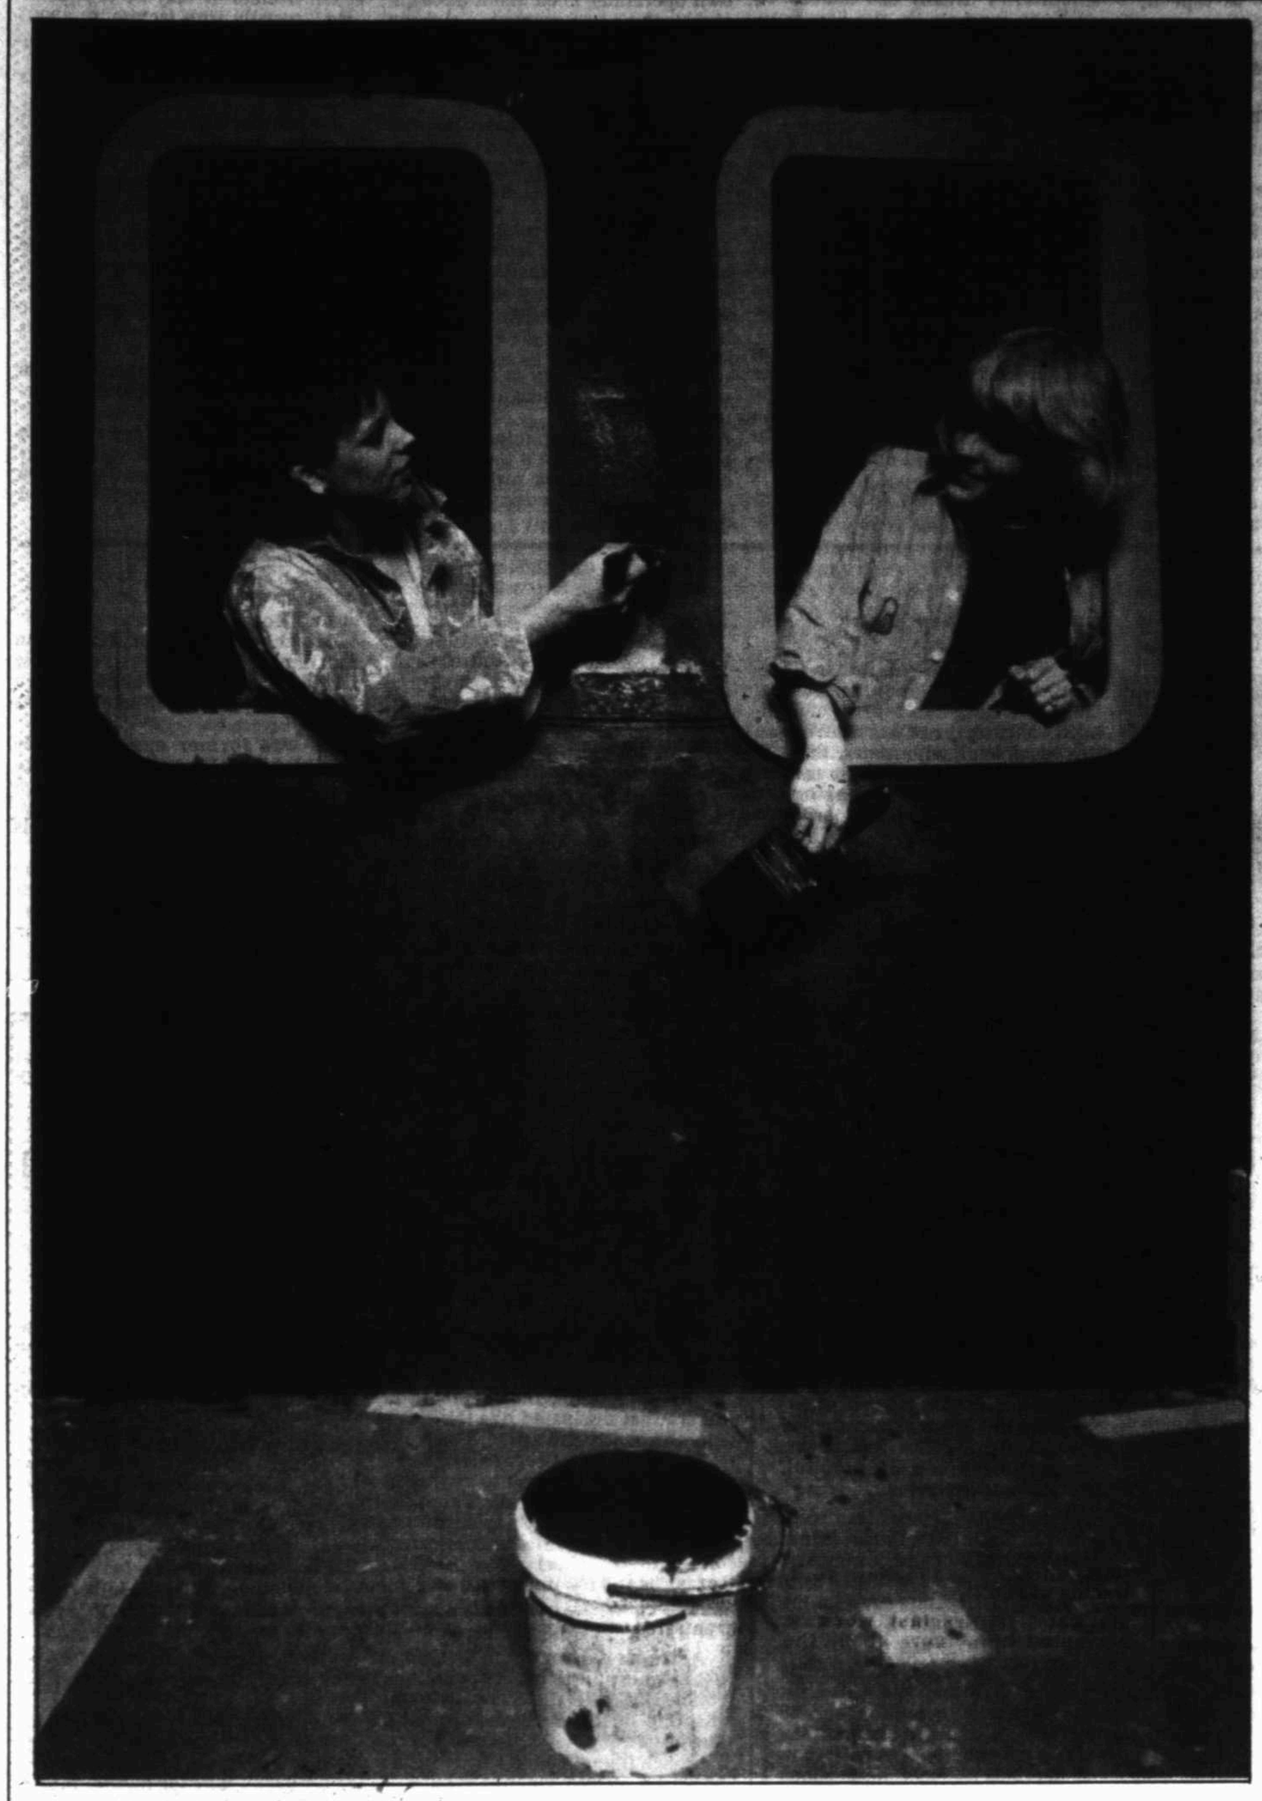

In any case, Beatrice "wants to concentrate on foods and the consumer products areas," says John P. Larson of the investment firm Blunt Ellis & Loewi in Milwaukee. "They don't have particular expertise in the rental-car business."

More importantly, Beatrice's balance sheet will take a sharp hit as it borrows heavily to finance the $2.7 billion Esmark purchase, and it will be anxious to sell those units it does not want to keep its debt to a minimum, says David F. Bartlett of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. in New York.

"Beatrice is going to have to shore up its balance sheet fast, and Avis is just sitting there," he says.

Adds Edward Froelich of Pershing & Co. in New York, "Beatrice is not taking over Esmark for Avis, they're taking it over for Smith-Hunt-Wesson."

"If they didn't have to borrow $2.7 billion, maybe they'd stay with it," Froelich says of Avis.

Debby Gilliam, left, and Martha Manulik paint part of a set for "Bells Are Ringing."

While the area where MCT's sets are constructed and painted is not nearly as familiar to the public as the stage, it is just as busy.

Setting the stage

For every performer on stage, at least five people are working behind the scenes. In Midland, those five are unpaid volunteers, according to Ted Strickland, assistant director of the Midland Community Theatre.

"It takes a lot of people really," said Dottie Fox, MCT volunteer coordinator.

"I don't think many people realize how many it takes. It's a community theater and without volunteers it wouldn't happen," she said.

Without MCT's volunteers, "It simply wouldn't exist," said Strickland.

By the time the curtain rose for the first performance of "Bells Are Ringing," the combined efforts of 317 volunteers had gone into the production, he said.

The musical, with a cast of 44, is being presented by MCT and ACT IX, its women's auxiliary, as a special fund-raiser. Money raised by the production will be used to help support MCT's educational programs such as Theatre School, the Pickwick Players, adult dance, acting and production classes.

The ACT IX auxiliary has traditionally been more involved in fund raising, ticket sales, mass mailings and other administrative "front of house" activities to support the theater, rather than backstage work, said Beth Keith, ACT IX publicity chairman.

For "Bells Are Ringing," however, ACT IX volunteers have made their first entrance on the backstage.

ACT IX members made up half or more of the various backstage crews, including painting, construction, prop running and costuming, Strickland said.

"I think the girls now realize that it all doesn't just spring up," said Mrs. Fox.

While there has never been any friction between ACT IX and the regular backstage crews, Strickland said, "There's been a lack of knowledge — and hence a lack of appreciation — for what each group does.

"It's beneficial that they've learned how much effort goes into it all."

"I think it's given us all an opportunity to learn more about the theater," said ACT IX member Jane Leslie.

Strickland said he hopes the volunteers return next year.

"We never have enough," he said. "There's always work that needs to be done.

"A sizable number of people want to act and there is a lesser number who want to work backstage. Unfortunately, it takes more behind the scenes."

Despite the lack of glamour — and pay — those who volunteer for backstage work have reasons for enjoying it.

"One, because of (their) appreciation and enjoyment of theater," Stickland said. "Then, it's an extremely social environment — you get to meet an enormous cross-section of the community. Finally, there's the reward — the satisfaction of the audience at the show."

He said that he has heard a volunteer seated in the audience during a play say excitedly, "I did that. I painted that," when a piece of scenery she had worked on made its debut.

Theater volunteers work "because it's fun and they enjoy the theater," Mrs. Fox said.

Backstage at MCT is a good place to meet people, she said, because "it's a nice, safe family place." One of her daughters met and married the theater's technical director there, she noted.

"You see, anything can happen in the theater," she said.

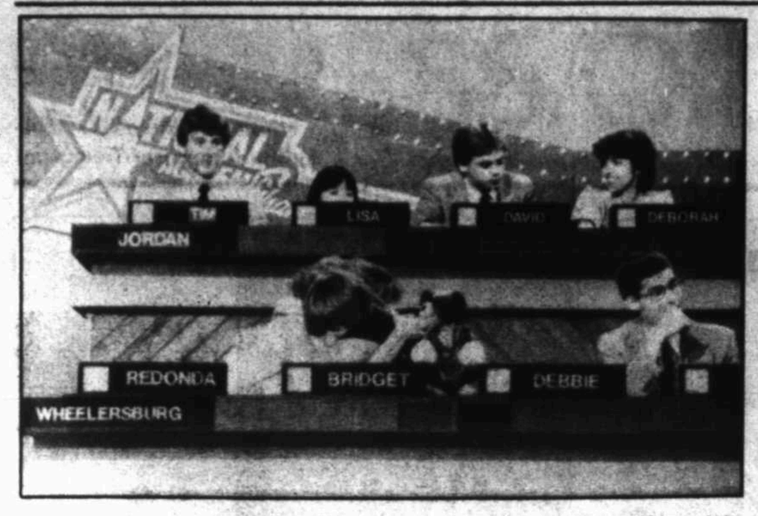

Dottie Fox is the MCT volunteer coordinator.

Texas Hill Country mecca for speed labs

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Some isolated parts of the Texas Hill Country have become a mecca for the illicit manufacture of methamphetamine, known on the streets as "speed," narcotics officers say.

"The area is so wide, so sparsely populated. It lends to the type of operations these people run," said Sgt. George Ellington, a narcotics agent working out of the San Antonio offices of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

At issue is the off-white crystalline powder that either sends the "speed freaks" into a nervous frenzy or on a nosedive toward poisoning, narcotics officers say. The substance now ranks just behind marijuana as the second most preferred drug among Texas' young, white urban dwellers.

Local law enforcement officials concede they are finding only a very small percentage of the speed factories, which produce one of the most popular illegal street drugs — known on the street as "speed," "crank," "meth" or "crystal."

Although its abuse is not limited to those categories, local authorities see it most frequently within the youthful circles in San Antonio, Austin and Houston.

To satisfy the demand, secret laboratories usually are established near the markets. In the San Antonio and Austin area, finding a site for a lab may be as easy as locating an abandoned, secluded barn. There are dozens in the Hill Country, Ellington said.

"It's always been an area where there's been a lot of clandestine manufacture of methamphetamine," Ellington told the San Antonio Light.

Isolation is the key to a successful illicit speed-making operations because certain distillation recipes produce tell-tale odors that can be picked up by distant neighbors.

Although increased emphasis on drug enforcement has led to a series of successful raids and arrests in the area in recent months, Ellington said trying to stop the production and distribution of methamphetamine is frustrating.

"We probably only get a small percentage," Ellington said of the clandestine labs. "There's still a lot of meth on the streets."

Chemists — commonly known as "cooks" — who want to start their own operations need about $2,000 in chemicals and equipment — a cheap investment, Ellington says, compared with the cost of importing marijuana or manufacturing psychedelic drugs.

"Speed has always been popular and, from all indications, it will continue to remain popular," said DEA supervisory special agent Drew Moren.

A specialist in investigating methamphetamine labs, Moren says he has seen dozens of facilities — from sophisticated laboratories processing the purest speed to tiny operations producing "bathtub crank" with kitchen utensils.

The latter usually is full of poisonous byproducts that are never filtered, Moren said.

Joe Toft, the special agent in charge of the DEA's San Antonio office, said the cook may even dye the yellowish powder to a more desirable white.

"It depends who you're selling it to," he said.

High-grade methamphetamine sells for about $1,800 an ounce to street dealers. It may be diluted or "cut," usually with lactose, to about 25-percent purity before it is sold to individual users.

Once on the street, "speed" costs about $25 per quarter gram.

Methamphetamine is not difficult to make, but its three-step process sometimes produces a dirty product unfit for sale, authorities said.

Other than the chemicals, a cook can go into business with a few hundred dollars worth of beakers and an isolated location, preferably with running water. Electricity makes the process easier although some cooks use portable stoves, officers say.

On the average, it takes between 18 and 24 hours to complete the process, Moren said.

The final process of crystalization is the most dangerous, with ether and other volatile chemicals used to turn the liquid into powder, Moren said.

Ohio students out-buzz academic competition

DALLAS (AP) — Four Ohio students have out-buzzed the competition in the National Academic Championships, solving such bafflers as the geological classification of slate and the name of the English Navy's commander in 1588.

The Wheelersburg High School team managed to out-think teenagers from 51 schools around the nation to win the championship.

Dallas Baptist College was the financial sponsor for the week-long brain power test, and WFAA-TV in Dallas broadcast the final heat Sunday.

"I had no idea we'd do it," glowed Bridgit Boggs, a 17-year-old from Wheelersburg who earlier identified the reason for the characters' flight in Boccaccio's Decameron.

Miss Boggs burst into tears when the final buzzer sounded and gave the team's mascot — a stuffed dog named Lively — a real bear hug.

The students might be an intimidating group if they weren't so modest.

"We pick up a lot of this stuff at school," allowed Deborah Mauskopf, a member of the second-place Charles E. Jordan High School team from Durham, N.C.

Miss Mauskopf, who correctly quoted an 18th-century speech from memory, said she practiced with trivia books and questions at school.

"I find it really challenging," 16-year-old Mike Flynn told the Dallas Morning News.

Flynn, a member of the third-place team from Quincy High School in Quincy, Ill., added that "you learn a lot during the preparation."

The final competition was spirited but friendly.

Man reports items worth $5,177 taken in burglary

From Staff Reports

In theft and burglary reports filed with city police over the weekend, Robin Scott Allen of the Quinten Walk Apts., 3100 Caldera, said clothing, a television set, stereo equipment and assorted jewelry worth a total of $5,177 were among the items taken in a burglary of his apartment late Sunday night or early this morning. There was no sign of forced entry, according to police.

O.D. White of 3201 W. Michigan Ave. reported that a TV set, jewelry and camera equipment valued at a total of $2,622 were taken in a theft at his home early Sunday night. No other details were available.

In sketchy reports, a juvenile was taken into custody about 10:50 p.m. Sunday after he was found hiding in a closet at O'Neal Leasing Ltd., 410 W. Ohio Ave. Police responding to a burglar alarm discovered the youth after a search of the building by canine officers. A rear door of the building had been pried open to gain entry.

A 19-year-old suspect was in the county jail this morning, charged with aggravated assault on a peace officer.

The man was arrested after sheriff's deputy Paul Reed attempted to break up a fight at Hogan Park about 11:30 p.m. Sunday. Reed said the man fired two shots and tried to flee the scene. He was stopped by city police after Reed radioed for help.

Formal charges are expected to be filed today. The suspect was also arrested for unlawfully carrying a weapon.

Fire in Waxahachie mall destroys 15 businesses

WAXAHACHIE (AP) — A fire in a major shopping center that raged for nearly four hours destroyed 15 businessess, including the city's only bakery and two major restaurants, and caused up to $5 million in damages, fire officials said.

The fire at the Northgate Center, which started just before midnight Saturday, was put out at 3:30 a.m. Sunday by 66 firefighters from Waxahachie and five other fire departments from nearby cities.

No injuries were reported.

Gone with the blaze were the bookkeeping department of the First National Bank, including all records of deposits made last Thursday and Friday, the town's largest paint store, a drug store, an art shop, a printing press, five clothing stores and offices of the Ellis County Committee on Aging.

The cause of the fire was under investigation by the Waxahachie fire marshal's office and agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Waxahachie firefighters were aided by units from Dallas, Ennis, Midlothian, Palmer and Italy, firefighter Dwaine Williams said. About 80 firefighters were on the scene at the height of the blaze, said Williams.

Wendell Presley, Waxahachie fire marshall and fire chief, set damages at $3.5 million and $5 million. He said the cause of the blaze, or exactly where it had started had not been determined late Sunday.

'Daylight' rolls into station in Dallas on way to fair

DALLAS (AP) — The Daylight dawns, almost, when it shushes into a station amid its shrouds of steam.

The crowds are seldom far away, busily applauding the memento of an era that dissipated like the steam more than 30 years ago.

The train left Oregon May 5, en route to New Orleans to represent Portland at the World's Fair. The Pacific Northwest Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society is sponsoring the trip.

Seeing the old train in its renovated glory is fun for old-timers. The sleek 1930s-vintage locomotive sparks memories of the old runs and the old days.

But it's fun for new-timers, too.

"In San Antonio, as in a lot of places, people applauded when we arrived," said Oregon train buff Irv Ewen. "She's quite a sight to see when she's under way.

Police quiz woman in man's death

A 62-year-old southside woman is being questioned by city police in connection with the Saturday night shooting death of 52-year-old Mack McCree Young, 407 S. Benton St.

Police found Young's body in the backyard of his residence about 9:30 p.m. He had been shot once in the abdomen with a small caliber weapon. The woman and a .22-caliber handgun were found at the scene.

No apparent charges were filed, but detectives this morning said the case probably would be turned over to the grand jury for further investigation. No other details were available.

Man stands behind wife despite alleged murder plot

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Bernard "Ben" Freudenmann, whose wife stands accused of plotting his murder and that of another man, says the couple will fight the charges together.

"She's one helluva woman," Freudenmann said of his wife, Kathleen. "This thing has gotten completely out of control. The only thing we can do now is combat it to the best of our ability."

Mrs. Freudenmann is free on two $100,000 bonds — one on the charge in March of trying to have her husband killed and one on an indictment returned last week alleging she tried to have San Antonio lawyer Barry Snell killed.

"I know Kathleen like no one else does," he told the San Antonio Light in a telephone interview from his wife's old family home in Bay City. "If I thought for one minute she was acting maliciously, I'd be the first person to say so."

Freudenmann said he doubts she masterminded an alleged murder-for-hire scheme designed to eliminate him.

Karen Amos, the Bexar County assistant district attorney who will prosecute Mrs. Freudenmann, said Freudenmann's statement that he will stand beside his wife doesn't affect her plans to press for a conviction.

"It might look odd to them (the jury)," Ms. Amos said. "But it comes down to her intentions at the time."

Despite years of business failures, divorce proceedings and numerous stories of mysterious plotting and counter-plotting, the ailing 59-year-old former used car dealer and his 58-year-old wife say they are back together.

"I don't think if you love a person that you ever stop loving them," Mrs. Freudenmann said, although she conceded the couple's marriage — her third — "was rocky from day one."

"We are both people with strong and dominant personalities. My husband has a brilliant mind. Once you really love a person, you love them until both of you are gone," she said.

Her first marriage in the 1950s to an automobile salesman ended in divorce. She nursed her second husband through a heart attack and stroke before he died in 1976. The following year, she married Freudenmann, whom she met in Houston while answering a want-ad for a used Lincoln Continental.

Mrs. Freudenmann describes herself as "basically a rice farmer" who gave up an opera career in New York to take over her prominent family's businesses.

Midland man killed in mishap

From Staff Reports

A Midland man died and a woman passenger was injured when a pickup truck overturned on Loop 250 near North Big Spring Street early Sunday morning.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine was 22-year-old Robert Dennis Beaird, no street address available, of Midland.

Taken to Midland Memorial Hospital, where she was released following treatment for cuts and abrasions, was 24-year-old Linda Ellison of Route 10, Midland.

According to city police, both victims were thrown from the 1983 pickup driven by Beaird when it went out of control, left the road, rolled over and came to rest in a drainage ditch.

Clement Conger: Collection reflects Americana

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Lifestyle Writer

The task of furnishing Washington D.C.'s federal buildings hasn't always been easy for Clement Conger, curator of the White House and State Department diplomatic reception rooms.

Jacqueline Kennedy's redecoration of the White House was overpublicized in the 1960s, he said for example.

And the White House was in a sad state of disrepair following Lyndon Johnson's administration because "Johnson didn't want to change anything for fear of adversely affecting his candidacy."

Tensions also arose around circulating rumors that First Lady Nancy Reagan might replace Conger when she hired her Los Angeles decorator Ted Graeber to remodel the White House family rooms.

But Conger insists the rumors are false.

He said with delight, "I only know that Mrs. Reagan recently said to someone, 'Clem Conger will be here forever.'"

Conger, 71, has established a reputation for excellence in Washington D.C. by converting the eighth floor of the State Department into handsomely decorated reception rooms in which the president, vice president, secretary of state and other cabinet members officially entertain world figures.

He initiated the project to collect and furnish the rooms with 18th-century American antiques in 1961 at the request of Mary Caroline Herter, wife of Secretary of State Christian Archibald Herter.

Mrs. Herter was examining the rooms prior to a state dinner she was planning for Queen Frederika of Greece and she burst into tears, particularly when she saw the ladies' lounge, he told members of the Midland Country Club Ladies Association at a recent luncheon.

"The room had two floor-to-ceiling glass window walls, a low ceiling, wall-to-wall carpeting over cement floors and furniture in electric colors," he said.

The lounge, renamed the Martha Washington Ladies Lounge after being redesigned for $200,000, is furnished in traditional Queen Anne style typifying early 18th-century Newport, R.I.

Conger travels nationwide locating treasures to furnish many rooms of the State Department specializing in Queen Anne, Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Sheraton. He also spends much of his time wooing would-be donors to add to the collection because government funds are unavailable to purchase the furnishings.

To date, he has raised more than $26 million in gifts and donations. And still one-third of the collection is on loan, he said. It is acknowledged to be the finest in the Washington area, the fifth largest in the nation.

One prized contribution is a matching pair of Chippendale chests handcrafted in 1765 by Samuel Gray of Massachussetts. The chests — the only pair of its kind in the world — were constructed from the same piece of wood, Conger said. He acquired one for $10,000 and purchased its mate eight years ago for a reported $40,000.

Conger noted, "If you like a piece of furniture to add to a collection, grab it. If you don't, you'll probably never see it again. If you do see it or something like it, it will have doubled, tripled or even quadrupled in price."

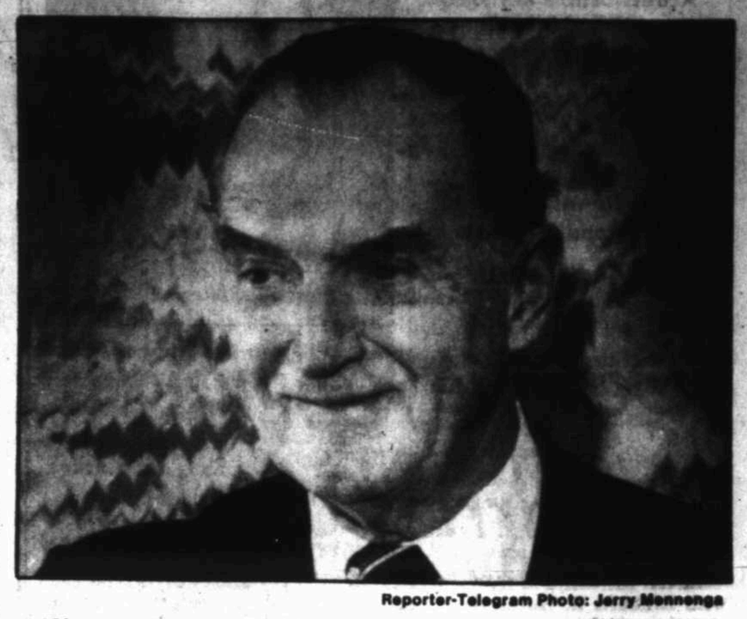

Conger works half a day at the State Department and the other half as White House curator and currently is supervising the $2 million reconstruction of the Benjamin Franklin State Dining Room.

When complete, the room will be furnished with eight three-tiered 18th-century-style English chandeliers, four new rugs and $200,000 in draperies in addition to completely redesigning the room's interior.

Conger also is responsible for refurbishing four entertaining rooms at the State Department and continues to work on the renovation of Blair House to house visiting foreign dignitaries.

Another project under way is the reconstruction of Secretary of State George Shultz's office scheduled for completion by the end of the year. It is expected to cost $1.1 million.

"We wouldn't be able to start what we started 25 years ago because you can't find the pieces and the prices are astounding," he said.

DEAR ABBY

Lupus victim seeks support she didn't get from doctors

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old mother of two who was recently diagnosed as having a disease I had never heard of before. It's called lupus. When I look back, I realize I've had it since I was 14. That summer, while vacationing at the beach, a rash broke out on my face, covering my nose and surrounding my eyes. When I got home, I was so exhausted I couldn't even get dressed for dinner.

A local doctor treated me for poison ivy and said the exhaustion was from sunstroke. After that, whenever I went out in the sun that same rash appeared, so I knew it couldn't be poison ivy.

Meanwhile my joints ached, and I got these terrible attacks of nausea, dizziness and pains in my lungs, stomach and chest. I went to numerous doctors who sent me to numerous specialists who took numerous tests, but no one could tell me what was wrong with me. One doctor said I was anemic and would "grow out of it"; another said I had syphilis; another said it was arthritis; another said I had emotional problems and sent me to a psychiatrist.

Finally, an internist told me I had lupus. At least now my family knows I wasn't faking. Although there is no cure for it, I'm taking medication, which helps when I get these episodes.

What I need most is someone to talk to. Is there a support group for lupus? If not, I'd like to start one. — LUPUS VICTIM IN SEATTLE

DEAR LUPUS VICTIM: Contact the Lupus Foundation of America. Through its literature I have learned that there are about 500,000 known lupus victims in the United States, and probably twice that number who don't even know they have it. Most victims are women in their 20s and 30s.

Lupus affects more people than does muscular dystrophy, cystic fibrosis, rheumatic fever or leukemia, but it has been misdiagnosed, misunderstood and ignored for years.

It's enormously comforting to know that you are not alone. I urge you, and other interested parties — including doctors and others in the health care field — to write to the Lupus Foundation of America, 11921 A Olive Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63141.

You will be sent up-to-date information on the foundation's treatment and research findings, as well as a list of nearly 200 support groups throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. This is a non-profit health organization, so please enclose a dollar for its material and a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope.

Eldery residents prefer neighborhood age limits

The Associated Press

The majority of elderly residents in so-called retirement communities are against having children as neighbors regardless of the circumstances. But 28 percent of those responding to a recent column on the subject are against age limits in any neighborhood.

Sixty-four percent of the seniors who originally chose an area because of its minimum age limit do not want exceptions made even when, they say, they sympathize with the dilemma of certain neighbors. These figures resulted from an article about controversies involving retirement community residents who have taken custody of one or more grandchildren for various family reasons.

About 8 percent of the letter writers gave interesting reasons why they do or do not favor age limits, but they were not counted in the percentages because they were younger than the 55 years specified. People often have different views about such matters when they are 70 than when they were 45.

Here are excerpts from some of the responders:

"The whole idea of excluding kids, especially teen-agers, is to get away from noise, motorcycles, hot rods, noisy mufflers and such things. I am looking for peace."

"We moved to a retirement community where it is peaceful. Please respect our choice to be in an over-50 situation."

"We bought here because of the adults-only regulation. Everybody understands the rules when they move in."

"Personal problems are exactly that and should be solved by the people involved, not by disrupting the lives of people around them who invest in a way of life they choose."

"I have four grown children, eight grandchildren and two great grandchildren. I love them all and appreciate their visits. But my neighbors and I have earned and deserve some peace and tranquility. Anybody who thinks the rules about age limits are unjust has the privilege of going elsewhere before signing up."

On the other side of the coin:

"I am 62. I would not prefer to live in a retirement community where there is an age limit."

"It boils down to whether you want to be surrounded by people of your own age or older every day of the week.

CHECK•UP ADULT TOOTH PASTE

All of the most popular toothpastes today are designed to fight cavities. By the age of 28, however, cavity prone years are past. From that point forward, plaque and resultant problems with gum disease are the concern.
Now the first adult toothpaste, CHECK•UP, offers the most advanced plaque removal system available. It safely removes plaque before it calcifies and cleans to a sparkling shine.
Like all ordinary toothpastes, CHECK•UP, also offers full fluoride protection.
CHECK•UP actually reduces plaque build-up. Helps gums stay strong and healthy. CHECK•UP is designed to fight the adult problems of plaque, yet it is safe for everyday use by children too.

Actress Debbie Reynolds poses with her husband, real estate developer Richard Hamlett, after they were married in a private ceremony in Miami Beach Friday evening. It was the third marriage for Ms. Reynolds and the second for Hamlett.

Debbie Reynolds marries again

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Actress Debbie Reynolds has tied the knot with Richard R. Hamlett, a Virginia real estate developer whom she met six months ago while doing a benefit show in Reno, Nev., an aide said.

"He asked her to dance and they've been dancing ever since," Cynthia Cutler, a spokeswoman for Miss Reynolds, said Sunday in announcing the actress's third marriage.

The wedding was held Friday night at the home of a friend of Miss Reynolds, who was performing Saturday on the SS Norway, the world's largest cruise liner. The ship had been docked at the Port of Miami.

Ms. Reynolds, 52, whose film credits include "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and "Singing in the Rain," wore a short, pale green chiffon dress for the ceremony and was given away by her son, Todd, Ms. Cutler said.

The couple will live in Roanoke, Va., as well as Los Angeles and Las Vegas, Nev., according to Ms. Cutler. It was Hamlett's second marriage, she said.

Dolly Parton

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Dolly Parton's famous wigs and the guitar on which she wrote many of her hit songs will be featured in a yearlong exhibit saluting her at the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum.

The exhibit, which opens June 1, marks the first biographical salute to a single country music star in the museum's 17-year history.

The 38-year-old singer, born in the Smoky Mountain town of Sevierville, Tenn., chose the items for the exhibit with help from associates and the Country Music Foundation, which runs the museum.

"She has been extremely excited about this whole concept," said Bill Ivey, foundation director. "Her enthusiasm has been overwhelming."

The exhibit traces Miss Parton's life and career through her latest movie, "Rhinestone," which co-stars Sylvester Stallone. It will also include her favorite banjo and scripts from her first two movies, "9 to 5" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

Also featured is a re-creation, sewn by Miss Parton's mother, of the coat that inspired her to write the hit song "Coat of Many Colors." The fourth of 12 children in a poor family, the singer wore such a garment while growing up.

Miss Parton won Grammy awards in 1982 for "9 to 5" and in 1979 for "Here You Come Again."

NEW YORK (AP) — Police and private investigators hired by the company that markets Michael Jackson memorabilia raided a Manhattan store and confiscated 452 counterfeit T-shirts bearing the superstar singer's likeness, authorities said.

The raid, executed Sunday with a federal warrant, also netted five heat-transfer machines used to make the T-shirts, said Bud Mills, a spokesman for AZ Investigating Services.

No arrests were made, but the raiding party encountered five men who had locked themselves inside the building, Mills said.

"There was a natural reluctance on their part to give up any merchandise," he added.

Mills' agency was hired by Entertainers Merchandise Management Corp., legal distributors of Michael Jackson items.

"We're trying to go after individuals at the source" of the counterfeit trade, Mills said. "We've been into this case for over a month."

CHELTENHAM, England (AP) — Eric Morecambe, one of Britain's most popular comedians, died early today after suffering a heart attack at a theater, hospital officials said. He was 58.

Morecambe, who teamed with Ernie Wise in a television comedy act, collapsed Sunday night minutes after walking off a stage at a theater in Tewkesbury.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Irving Pincus, who created and produced "The Real McCoys" television series, died May 14 at age 70, his wife said Sunday.

"The Real McCoys," which ran on ABC from 1957 to 1962 and on CBS during 1962-63, starred Walter Brennan as a West Virginia mountain man who moved his family to a California ranch.

Pincus also produced some of "The Adventures of Ellery Queen" and "Mr. I Magination," an award-winning television show that aired from 1949 to 1952.

Horse helps accident victim toward recovery

PLANTATION, Fla. (AP) — At an age when most horses are long put out to pasture, a 26-year-old arthritic palomino has given new life to an 11-year-old boy whose skull was shattered in a fall four years ago.

"The horse has made all the difference in the world to Jason," said his father, Chuck Winn.

"I'm never gonna give up Yeller," Jason agreed.

Jason was at a friend's house in June 1980, when he tried to slide down a staircase bannister and fell 14 feet onto a marble floor.

Doctors at Plantation General Hospital operated for seven hours and gave him only a 50-50 chance of survival. He spent seven weeks in a coma.

"Jason had a compound depressed skull fracture," said Dr. Gary Gieske, the neurosurgeon who performed the emergency operation. "We were fortunate to save him."

Once out of his coma, Jason still couldn't talk or walk. The fall left him with a tremor on one side of his body that doctors say will be with him the rest of his life. His vision was sometimes blurred.

After months of physical therapy, Jason — walking haltingly and wearing a rubber helmet — entered third grade at the Blake School, a private academy in Plantation. He was a year behind his age group.

"He came on a part-time basis," teacher Alene Padgett told the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel in a story published Sunday. "All his skills were gone. He couldn't read. Everything had to be re-taught. We started over."

Jason's lack of coordination and motor skills meant he couldn't play with the other children.

"I couldn't have a lot of fun," Jason said.

Seeking a way to build Jason's self-confidence, Winn remembered how much his daughter had enjoyed riding horses as a child. He thought the same sport might give Jason a chance to excel at something and raise his self-esteem.

A friend of the Winns who owned an old horse that had been turned out to pasture agreed to let Jason ride him, provided the Winns paid the upkeep.

Yeller was once a striking palomino used as a lead pony at Aqueduct Raceway, but now his chest sags and he is lame on days when his arthritis flares up. But he is even-tempered and has an easy gait.

Jason progressed, and when another family friend recommended he take professional lessons with Yeller, the Winns agreed.

At Saddle Up stables in Davie, trainers Dave and Kim Moore started teaching Jason the basics of grooming, washing and saddling a horse.

Slowly, Mrs. Moore started giving Jason riding lessons, first teaching him how to sit in the saddle Western-style, then walk, then trot the old horse.

As the family and Jason's trainers had hoped, the boy's confidence and self-esteem grew.

Last fall, Jason began to make progress as a fifth-grader at Blake.

"There's been a great deal of progress," said Ms. Padgett. "Much improvement."

Actress Debbie Reynolds poses with her husband, real estate developer Richard Hamlett, after they were married in a private ceremony in Miami Beach Friday evening. It was the third marriage for Ms. Reynolds and the second for Hamlett.

Debbie Reynolds marries again

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Actress Debbie Reynolds has tied the knot with Richard R. Hamlett, a Virginia real estate developer whom she met six months ago while doing a benefit show in Reno, Nev., an aide said.

"He asked her to dance and they've been dancing ever since," Cynthia Cutler, a spokeswoman for Miss Reynolds, said Sunday in announcing the actress's third marriage.

The wedding was held Friday night at the home of a friend of Miss Reynolds, who was performing Saturday on the SS Norway, the world's largest cruise liner. The ship had been docked at the Port of Miami.

Ms. Reynolds, 52, whose film credits include "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and "Singing in the Rain," wore a short, pale green chiffon dress for the ceremony and was given away by her son, Todd, Ms. Cutler said.

The couple will live in Roanoke, Va., as well as Los Angeles and Las Vegas, Nev., according to Ms. Cutler. It was Hamlett's second marriage, she said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Dolly Parton's famous wigs and the guitar on which she wrote many of her hit songs will be featured in a yearlong exhibit saluting her at the Country Music Hall of Fame and Museum.

Dolly Parton

The exhibit, which opens June 1, marks the first biographical salute to a single country music star in the museum's 17-year history.

The 38-year-old singer, born in the Smoky Mountain town of Sevierville, Tenn., chose the items for the exhibit with help from associates and the Country Music Foundation, which runs the museum.

"She has been extremely excited about this whole concept," said Bill Ivey, foundation director. "Her enthusiasm has been overwhelming."

The exhibit traces Miss Parton's life and career through her latest movie, "Rhinestone," which co-stars Sylvester Stallone. It will also include her favorite banjo and scripts from her first two movies, "9 to 5" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

Also featured is a re-creation, sewn by Miss Parton's mother, of the coat that inspired her to write the hit song "Coat of Many Colors." The fourth of 12 children in a poor family, the singer wore such a garment while growing up.

Miss Parton won Grammy awards in 1982 for "9 to 5" and in 1979 for "Here You Come Again."

NEW YORK (AP) — Police and private investigators hired by the company that markets Michael Jackson memorabilia raided a Manhattan store and confiscated 452 counterfeit T-shirts bearing the superstar singer's likeness, authorities said.

The raid, executed Sunday with a federal warrant, also netted five heat-transfer machines used to make the T-shirts, said Bud Mills, a spokesman for AZ Investigating Services.

No arrests were made, but the raiding party encountered five men who had locked themselves inside the building, Mills said.

"There was a natural reluctance on their part to give up any merchandise," he added.

Mills' agency was hired by Entertainers Merchandise Management Corp., legal distributors of Michael Jackson items.

"We're trying to go after individuals at the source" of the counterfeit trade, Mills said. "We've been into this case for over a month."

CHELTENHAM, England (AP) — Eric Morecambe, one of Britain's most popular comedians, died early today after suffering a heart attack at a theater, hospital officials said. He was 58.

Morecambe, who teamed with Ernie Wise in a television comedy act, collapsed Sunday night minutes after walking off a stage at a theater in Tewkesbury.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Irving Pincus, who created and produced "The Real McCoys" television series, died May 14 at age 70, his wife said Sunday.

"The Real McCoys," which ran on ABC from 1957 to 1962 and on CBS during 1962-63, starred Walter Brennan as a West Virginia mountain man who moved his family to a California ranch.

Pincus also produced some of "The Adventures of Ellery Queen" and "Mr. I Magination," an award-winning television show that aired from 1949 to 1952.

Horse helps accident victim toward recovery

PLANTATION, Fla. (AP) — At an age when most horses are long put out to pasture, a 26-year-old arthritic palomino has given new life to an 11-year-old boy whose skull was shattered in a fall four years ago.

"The horse has made all the difference in the world to Jason," said his father, Chuck Winn.

"I'm never gonna give up Yeller," Jason agreed.

Jason was at a friend's house in June 1980, when he tried to slide down a staircase bannister and fell 14 feet onto a marble floor.

Doctors at Plantation General Hospital operated for seven hours and gave him only a 50-50 chance of survival. He spent seven weeks in a coma.

"Jason had a compound depressed skull fracture," said Dr. Gary Gieske, the neurosurgeon who performed the emergency operation. "We were fortunate to save him."

Once out of his coma, Jason still couldn't talk or walk. The fall left him with a tremor on one side of his body that doctors say will be with him the rest of his life. His vision was sometimes blurred.

After months of physical therapy, Jason — walking haltingly and wearing a rubber helmet — entered third grade at the Blake School, a private academy in Plantation. He was a year behind his age group.

"He came on a part-time basis," teacher Alene Padgett told the Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel in a story published Sunday. "All his skills were gone. He couldn't read. Everything had to be re-taught. We started over."

Jason's lack of coordination and motor skills meant he couldn't play with the other children.

"I couldn't have a lot of fun," Jason said.

Seeking a way to build Jason's self-confidence, Winn remembered how much his daughter had enjoyed riding horses as a child. He thought the same sport might give Jason a chance to excel at something and raise his self-esteem.

A friend of the Winns who owned an old horse that had been turned out to pasture agreed to let Jason ride him, provided the Winns paid the upkeep.

Yeller was once a striking palomino used as a lead pony at Aqueduct Raceway, but now his chest sags and he is lame on days when his arthritis flares up. But he is even-tempered and has an easy gait.

Jason progressed, and when another family friend recommended he take professional lessons with Yeller, the Winns agreed.

At Saddle Up stables in Davie, trainers Dave and Kim Moore started teaching Jason the basics of grooming, washing and saddling a horse.

Slowly, Mrs. Moore started giving Jason riding lessons, first teaching him how to sit in the saddle Western-style, then walk, then trot the old horse.

As the family and Jason's trainers had hoped, the boy's confidence and self-esteem grew.

Last fall, Jason began to make progress as a fifth-grader at Blake.

"There's been a great deal of progress," said Ms. Padgett. "Much improvement."

Practicality makes perfect.

Practically speaking, the new Honda Civic DX Hatchback is a perfectionist's dream. Because its modest price is perfectly balanced by loads of helpful features.

Its rear seats not only fold down to expand the rear cargo space, but do so independently of each other. The steering column adjusts obligingly. There's also a 5-speed manual transmission, power-assisted ventilated front disc brakes, remote hatch release, rear wiper/washer and remote-control outside rearview mirror. And automatic transmission with lock-up torque converter is available.

Its best feature, though, is the engineering quality that makes Honda the highest in owner loyalty of all leading import cars.*

Come see the 1984 Honda Civic DX Hatchback. Your next step will become perfectly clear.
