Old Settlers Paid Tribute By Hightower

"A BEAUTIFUL LAND filled with beautiful people, that is what this country means to me," said Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon, speaker at the memorial services held Thursday at the Motley-Dickens Counties Pioneer Pavilion. Senator Hightower had been introduced by Sam Ross of Flomot, President of the two-county pioneer organization.

Previously Rev. Victor Crabtree of Dickens had paid eloquent tribute to the deceased pioneers of the two counties. "The pioneers," he declared, "lived, loved and suffered in this land . . . they carried great faith and great fears in their hearts . . . I want to pay tribute to a man who never lived in Motley or Dickens Counties, but whose heart was in this country . . . I want to pay tribute to a man whom I knew only as Cotton John (the late Garland Smith, Farm Editor of KGNC, Amarillo).

Senator Hightower said, "Time has a way of rolling along, and suddenly we are the old timers . . . it is difficult to realize that so many of the old settlers have become deceased in the past year . . ."

The large Pioneer Pavilion was crowded with pioneers of the two counties, grey heads at attention to every word the dynamic young Senator said.

"We have heard so much about urban renewal," the Senator declared, "but I would like to hear something about rural renewal . . . a renewal of this great and wonderful land . . . we must keep it with the same traditions, the same faith and the same courage . . . we have that obligation to our children . . . I want to salute each of you old timers and your descendants . . . this country is great because you made it great . . . because of you it is ours to cherish . . ."

Folder Released On Plains Trail

AUSTIN — A region of Texas that once was trackless grassland is featured in the newest Texas Travel Trail folder released today by the Texas Highway Department.

The 739-mile Texas Plains Trail is one of 10 trails designated by the Governor's Travel Trails Committee. The trails program is designed to focus attention on the diverse regions of Texas and to lure travelers onto less-traveled routes. Distinctive markers for each trail were purchased by the counties along the trail and erected by the Highway Department.

The Plains Trail reaches from Dumas on the High Plains to Gail, county seat of Borden County, and from Muleshoe and Morton on the west to Roaring Springs, Matador and Turkey on the east. Included on the trail route are the cities of Amarillo and Lubbock, and spectacular Palo Duro Canyon State Park.

The descriptive Plains Trail folder which interprets the entire route is available at chambers of commerce along the way, at Texas Highway Department Tourist Bureaus, and by mail from the Texas Highway Department, Travel and Information Division, P. O. Box 5064, Austin, Texas 78703.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM YOUR STATE CAPITAL

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — Traditionally Austin has been the headquarters site for Texas campaigns of presidential candidates. But George Wallace's official campaign headquarters (American Independent Party) now is located 49 miles to the south, in New Braunfels.

It was moved from the capital city to within 30 minutes' drive of the office of the party's state chairman, Bard Logan of San Antonio. This move is significant—especially to those 600,000 Texans who are expected to vote for Wallace in November.

When the state executive committee of the American Party decided to replace Miss Jane Sumner of Austin with Jack Zengler of New Braunfels, named Sam Rains of Austin as treasurer, replacing Mrs. Margaret Bacon of Austin; and removed Mrs. Jewell Lemons of San Antonio from the committee, charges of "Birch-ism" were hurled. Miss Sumner ran for Congress on the Republican ticket in 1966 and Mrs. Bacon had served as secretary to Liberal Democrat Franklin Spears of San Antonio during Spears' 1966 bid for State Attorney General.

"It's not the Birch people that are causing the trouble," Chairman Logan says. "It's the anti-Birch people. They were all looking for Birchers when they were getting signatures to get Wallace on the ballot. Now that the job has been done, they seem to want to fight."

Logan said he didn't think the internecine battle would harm Wallace's Texas campaign, and Mrs. Bacon said she still intends to work for votes for Alabama's former governor.

Wallace will be in the state Sept. 16 to speak at a $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner in Dallas on the eve of the American party's Sept. 17 state convention there. He's also scheduled to speak to the convention.

CAMPAIGNS HEAT UP—Lt. Gov. Preston Smith's announcement that he would not go to the National Democratic Convention in Chicago because he would rather use that time to get better acquainted with delegates to the State Democratic Convention, to be held in Austin Sept. 17, came as something of a surprise.

But it's not the first time Smith instinctively has steered clear of battles within the party—as the Chicago scene was sure to be. He has gained some widespread and rather unexpected support from liberal Texas Democrats because he refused to go with Gov. John Connally, then Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr and Speaker Ben Barnes to head off a migrant workers' march to Austin two years ago.

Smith, however, says he is serious about wanting to meet and talk to state convention delegates because he wants to command the convention. The September state convention is known as the "governor's convention." It will be interesting to see who wins control—the man who is governor now or the man who is the Democratic nominee.

There's no doubt among Republicans that the star of their state convention in Fort Worth on September 17 will be GOP gubernatorial candidate Paul Eggers. Eggers is running a hard race against Smith.

CONSTITUTIONAL REVISION RECOMMENDATIONS — While Texas Democrats are taking a stormy role in nominating a presidential candidate in Chicago, a potentially historic event will be unfolding on the home front.

In a three-day Austin meeting this week, State Constitutional Revision Commission is wrapping up its final recommendations for a new Texas constitution.

Sub-committees completed their year-long studies last month.

Fireworks were anticipated on these proposals:

Four year terms for governors and all other statewide officials who now have two year terms (Recommendation would prohibit direct succession to a second term by the governor).

Constitutional change that would also give the governor power to remove and replace appointees to boards and commissions.

A requirement that state senate closed-door sessions on appointments by the governor be abolished.

Authority for the legislature to instruct courts as to how they will handle appeals from state administrative agency actions.

Provisions for county home rule and optional plans for consolidation of political subdivisions and functions within a county.

Appointment of Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals judges by the governor from a nominating commission slate of three.

Easier access to courts for taxpayers protesting assessments.

Recommendations agreed on by the revision commission must go to the legislature next year. Legislature then can submit all or any part of the recommendations to the voters—or reject them entirely.

Aside from its recommendations of minor controversial nature, commission has made a good-faith effort to tighten and streamline the constitution and chop out long-recognized dead wood.

WILDLIFE PLANS — Parks and Wildlife Commission adopted a $17.5 million operating budget for the next fiscal year.

Commission will ask the 1969 Legislature to appropriate money to reopen the fish and water-exchange pass between Corpus Christi Bay and the Gulf across Mustang Island.

Commission also set Texas Duck season for December 14-January 1. Daily bag limit was set at four and possession limit at eight. Goose season will be October 20-January 12, with daily bag and possession limit of five.

Studies of the ecology of prairie chickens and ways to increase their population — perhaps enough to hunt them someday—have been authorized by the Commission for the year beginning Sept. 1.

CITY WATER PRICES VARY — "Water Service in Texas Cities," new publication by the Texas Municipal League, indicates a wide spread in water prices throughout Texas.

Lowest city rate is Uvalde's $2.50 per 10,000 gallons; highest is Terrell's $10.25. League said average water prices charged by 61 cities of populations between 10,000 and 25,000 is $6.00 per 10,000 gallons.

TIDELANDS Arguments Again — U.S. Supreme Court has granted Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin an Oct. 14 requested hearing on location of Texas shoreline or the point from which Texas measures its submerged land boundaries.

Last December a decision granting Texas ownership of tidelands to 10.3 miles into Gulf of Mexico held that where shoreline has receded, Texas cannot claim the 1845 historic boundary (which would give Texas more acreage). Federal government also would deny Texas its 10.3-mile area where the shore has built out into the Gulf.

At stake is about 36,000 acres. Since 1950 the undisputed acreage has yielded more than $100 million in oil-gas leasing for permanent school fund.

Attorney General Martin has been in Washington studying how Texas can administer its portion of more than $100 million appropriated by Congress for crime fighting in 1968.

In spite of increased income taxes and inflation, retail sales in Texas made a three per cent gain in July over June sales, reports UT's Bureau of Business Research.

Texas Adjutant General Thomas S. Bishop says the U.S. Defense Department's decision to close Nike-Hercules missile sites in Denton, Duncanville and Terrell will mean a $1.4 million annual loss to Texas' economy.

Fair Will Show New 1969 Cars

Here's a show you auto see at the 1968 State Fair of Texas.

Under the giant roof of the Automobile Building, the nation's largest annual exposition will present for the first time virtually all of the 1969 model automobiles—the American symbol of status, personal freedom and mobility.

Overall dates of the 1968 State Fair in Dallas are Oct. 5-20.

Each year for more than half a century, the Automobile Show has displayed nearly every aspect of the carmakers' art for the collective viewing of fairgoers.

Now, in the 52nd year of the showings, the major automobile corporations will present their 1969 models and various other attractions, including futuristic cars, camping equipment and cut-away models of cars and engines.

Representatives of the corporations are now designing and assembling exhibits and planning special entertainment for visitors to the Automobile Building, from "Chevy Junior" prizes to pretty girls delivering their spiels from turntable platforms.

But the main attraction, of course, will be simply the presence of all those new cars in one showing.

Under one roof, car owners and prospective buyers can prowl, inspect, compare and inhale that delightful new-car smell to their hearts' content.

And maybe, very discreetly, kick the tires?

Ronald Vandiver Is Certified as Rifle Instructor

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special)

Ronald Vandiver, Matador, Texas has been appointed a certified rifle and pistol instructor, and also as a Home Firearms Safety Instructor by the National Rifle Association of America.

Vandiver joins the ranks of selected volunteer instructors throughout the country who donate many hours in the NRA small arms education program. The program has been in operation since 1876. Since that time many millions of people have been taught to handle and enjoy firearms safely and effectively.

The NRA sponsors a course designed to help reduce shooting accidents in the home and to promote safety among those who normally do not use firearms for recreation or hunting, but are exposed to guns in their home. It emphasizes the recognition of unsafe practices and hazardous conditions in the home and demonstrates how to correct individual situations.

Vandiver was awarded an NRA instructor's certificate following successful completion of a written examination, and is qualified to conduct the course on a local level.

Letter to the Editor

(Editor's Note: The following letter is written by a former resident and close friend of the Tribune publishers. For obvious reasons names are omitted. However, because of the fine tribute to the early settlers and pioneers, we thought it would be of interest to our readers.)

I haven't the vaguest notion why I'm writing this to you. I just am!

Not long ago I was helping the daughter of my next-door neighbor write his obituary; he was a good, kind man whom I will miss; but I couldn't feel too sad about his death. His had been a long, full, satisfying life. I had noted in the obituary that he had been a farmer for many years . . . and his daughter said, "Oh, don't say that . . . say he was head of his department in a local store before his retirement . . . I don't want him remembered as a dirty old farmer!"

I have thought and thought about this; that anyone in the world would prefer to be remembered as a clerk rather than a farmer . . . at least anyone in Texas . . . and I don't mean to be belittling the clerk.

I can't feel much warmth any more toward the daughter, though she is a good person, but somehow my respect for her has to be limited by her respect for the heritage that made West Texas. It never before crossed my mind that anything or anyone was more worthy of respect than the farmers and ranchers of West Texas.

Reading the Tribune this morning brought this all to mind . . . about Jim Cooper and Clayton Bridge . . . about the Old Settlers Reunion coming up . . . about the cowboys making cups from tomato cans.

I can not begin to thank God enough that their heritage was mine . . . what greater one could anyone ask!

Once-Mighty Matadors Eye Return As Class B King

By Butch Waybourn

(Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff in Lubbock Avalanche)

The names on the bulletin board in the athletic fieldhouse were faded, almost beyond recognition.

But, there they were—Campbell, Green, Campbell, Green. The last of the mighty Matadors. Once the giant of class B football, Matador is struggling to make a comeback and coach Max Kennedy is there to aid it.

More pessimistic than most grid coaches, Kennedy says it's going to be a long, cold year. "Our size is average," Kennedy said. "But we're not as quick as we should be."

The first six teams on Matador's 1968 schedule are a bunch of toughies. So are the last four but they'll count the most being district foes.

Using a slot 1 formation most of the time, Kennedy plans to stay close to the ground as possible.

"Our quarterback (Ronnie Welling) is real good. He throws well and meets all the requirements but we'll throw only when we're forced to," Kennedy said.

"And then," he continued, "the passes will only be sprint out passes because we can usually get three quick receivers out. If we have to use it."

Kennedy plans to use the monster defense using either Glen Moss, Darrell Cruse or Pat Nichols as the monster. "We're going to have to depend a lot on our defense," he said.

Ten Lettermen

Kennedy has ten lettermen returning after losing six to graduation.

On the line will likely be Leslie Jameson, Darrell Marshall, Aaron Timmons, Stanley Martin and Don Pitts.

Both Pitts and Nichols are out with injuries but Kennedy expects to have them ready when the first contest rolls around.

In the backfield, where Kennedy says they need more depth, will be Mark Hill, Welling, Kenneth Marshall and Nichols if he's able.

Also trying hard for backfield positions are freshmen Stanley and Johnny Thompson.

The man most likely to take the ball from Welling is Don Cox, if not, he'll probably start at center.

"We hope to use our ground game to the greatest advantage," Kennedy said.

"There is still room for a lot of changes," Kennedy said. "We have some freshmen and sophomores that are looking good now but we'll have to wait and see what everybody can do before we start making any big decisions. But we do know that we're building around a ground game."

"The boys are working hard and are shaping up but it's still too early to tell—right now though it doesn't look too good."

COUNTY AGENT PALLMEYER SAYS:

Ten scholarships of $500 each are still available to 1968 high school graduates planning to major in range management at any one of five Texas schools, according to an announcement from Texas A&M University.

B. J. Ragsdale, Extension Service range specialist at A&M, is urging high school graduates interested in a range management career to fill out an application and send it to him as soon as possible.

Five colleges are participating in the program, he said. They are Texas A&M, Texas Technological College, Sul Ross State College, Abilene Christian College and Southwest Texas State College.

Applications are available from the participating schools and from county agricultural agents.

Funds for the scholarships are provided by the Moody Foundation of Galveston. The sponsor is the Texas Section of the American Society of Range Management.

Screwworm fly cases have taken a sharp rise this year, and producers are being asked to remain on the alert for infestations in their herds.

Stotts declared this one of the best turn-outs for both the parade and rodeo, in a number of years, and expressed his appreciation to everyone who helped in any capacity.

Many factors have added to the increase in activity of the pest in Texas, but only by good management can the fly be brought under control again. Some ranchers have had a tendency to become lax in their efforts to keep the pest from their herds. Treating all dehorned, sheared or castrated animals with approved screwworm "dope," coupled with close observation of livestock can once again rid the state of the profit-robbing.

Now is the time to inspect all livestock for open wounds and possible infestation by screwworms, especially those in the southeast part of the county.

Ten specimens should be taken from an infested wound and sent to the Mission laboratory for identification so that control measures can be initiated in the area if the sample is positive. For those who don't have mailing kits, I still have a supply on hand.

Leo Purvis Takes Tarleton Position

Dr. Leo C. Purvis, former school superintendent at Petersburg and Roaring Springs, will become head of the education department at Tarleton State College, Stephenville, September 1. Purvis was superintendent at Roaring Springs from 1948 until 1952. He then moved to Petersburg where he headed the school system 10 years. He moved to the Fort Worth area in 1962 after he received his doctorate at Texas Tech a year earlier.

He moved to Tarleton as an associate professor of education in 1967 after teaching at Stephen F. Austin College in Nacogdoches. After assuming a full professorship this fall, Purvis' duties will include direction of the teacher education program at TSC.

During his 28 years in teaching, Purvis has directed most of his family into the teaching profession. His wife, Louise is presently serving on the Tarleton College Library staff. His son, Clois, is a mathematics teacher at Cisco Junior College, and his daughter, Sherry, is a junior high school English teacher in the Lubbock school system. His younger son, Kenneth, is a sophomore at Stephenville High School.

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

Now that we're all paying more for mail service, and the mailman is better paid, will the mail-carrying service improve? Probably not, although many businessmen complain that service has declined steadily as rates have gone up in recent years.

Perhaps Congress provided a ready alibi for the Post Office when it passed a combination of the postal pay-and-pay increase which will guarantee continuation of the postal deficit. To its critics, the Post Office can say, "Sorry, but we can't provide more service—we're operating at a loss now."

The postal deficit has become a fixture of the Federal economy, continuing even when rates are boosted with the idea of balancing the postal budget.

The deficit has mushroomed since the 80-year-old "penny postcard" passed from the American scene in 1952, to be replaced now by a 5-cent card; since the first-class letter went from 3 to 6 cents and since the air mail from 5 to 10 cents. Talk about inflation!

Congress could have eliminated the deficit recently when it increased rates and thus boosted post office income by about $900 million a year. But it gave most of this to the postal workers in pay increases, so continues a postal deficit of about half a billion dollars a year continues not counting a big deficit due to government mail costs.

© National Federation of Independent Business

What is irritating too, is the likelihood that third-class bulk mail, "junk mail," which has been a losing proposition to the post office for years, will continue to be subsidized.

The third-class rate was increased but probably not enough to make it pay its own way. Nor enough to keep it from glutting post offices and mail boxes.

From 1947 to 1966, the junk mail volume increased more than 250 per cent, while all other classes increased just 50 per cent. Despite the public's spathy toward junk mail, advertisers have considered it a great bargain. And no wonder, with taxpayers footing part of its cost.

When the recent legislation was under debate, Congressman Ken Hechler of West Virginia gathered comments from postmasters to show how they feel about junk mail. Nearly all said it is disagreeable and bothersome to handle and often interferes with other mail.

One postmaster wrote: "Some patrons request us to do what we cannot do: throw it in the wastebasket and not deliver it. Those who get mail through boxes stand in the lobby and sort out the circulars and throw them in the wastebasket. This is another time we handle it . . . at the incinerator."

Another postmaster said that carriers deliver circulars to rural boxes one day, and then see the advertisements littering the highway the next.

Congress might have taken care of the postal deficit and contributed to the "Keep America Beautiful" campaign at the same time.

COUNTY AGENT PALLMEYER SAYS:

Thousands of 4-H Club members specializing in electric projects are putting finishing touches on their work as the 4-H year draws to a close. Then finished products, demonstrations, exhibits and like are judged for awards—usually at 4-H Round-up, County Fair or Achievement day. The wide range of projects undertaken by both boys and girls reflect home needs or special interests.

On farms, maintaining electric powered equipment is an important and money saving endeavor. In the home are numerous electric appliances for study and service. All 4-Hers learn the fundamentals of electrical energy and their application. Safety is another important factor.

Younger 4-Hers learn to repair electric cords and check outlets and wiring for signs of wear. They soon are able to re-wire old lamps and make new test lamps and simple reading lamps.

Some older teenagers work on complicated electronic devices, including sound systems, radio and television. Scores of electric projects are available to 4-H youths.

The Westinghouse Electric Corporation is the first and only sponsor of the electric awards since the program was introduced in 1936 by the Extension Service. Currently about 160,000 members are participating.

Those between 14 and 19 years of age can compete for state and national awards which consist of educational trips to the National 4-H Congress held in Chicago, and six $600 educational scholarships. An estimated 6,000 boys and girls from coast-to-coast this year will claim a county electric medal.

All Motley County 4-H members are eligible to enter lamps in the Floyd County Fair at Lockney, September 19-21. Those who indicated they planned to enter were given entry blanks, and for others, these forms are available at my office.

Any grade or high school student who would like to join 4-H and start an electric project should contact another 4-H member, a local club leader, or the county extension office.

Recently I attended our State County Agents meeting in Abilene. Some wonder why people attend meetings of this type and once you attend the answer is evident.

New information, new practices, and results of successful programs are always discussed, thereby giving the individual a chance to bring something home that can be used in the local county. The same is true with any meetings that you attend, as there is always some information that can be picked up that you don't already know.

Fellowship with other people also establishes contacts that can prove valuable in the future. For those who have never attended a meeting of this type or of an organization they belong to—try it—and see if you are not pleased with the results.

There are also impromptu performances by the Rainbo Puppet Theatre, dances by Spanish Flamenco dancers and the music of Mexican mariachis on a floating bandstand on the lagoon.

All of this is in addition to the regularly scheduled free entertainment such as the popular Flying Indians at the Frito-Lay/Pepsi-Cola Pavilion, the fabulous marionettes at the Coca Cola Exhibit, water ski shows, and numerous bands and choirs scheduled daily at the various open air theatres around the grounds.
