Jury Recommends Life For Alexander

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A state district court jury today recommended that Billy Wayne Alexander Jr. be sentenced to life in prison for the fatal shooting of a state trooper.

Jurors deliberated almost two hours today and six hours Wednesday before recommending that Alexander be sentenced to life imprisonment rather than death by injection, the only two penalties provided under state law for people convicted of capital murder.

Alexander, 21, smiled when District Judge Bob Wright announced the jury's recommendation at 10:15 a.m. Wright said he did not set a formal sentencing date because under law, Alexander has 10 days during which his attorneys may file motions or appeals.

"I feel good," Alexander said as he was led to jail in manacles and chains. He was convicted of capital murder last week in the Oct. 5 slaying of 25-year-old Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Jerry Don Davis.

Joyce Davis, mother of the slain trooper, buried her head in her hands and sobbed when the sentence was read, then hugged prosecutors.

Asked if she was disappointed in the sentence, Mrs. Davis said she was not.

"We feel that based on the evidence, it was a proper verdict," said defense attorney Dick Alexander, who is no relation to the defendant.

"The jury has acted. It's the system," said Maj. C.W. Bell, regional DPS commissioner.

Prosecutor John T. Montford said jurors "worked very hard. I'm not in the habit of quarreling with jury verdicts. It was out of our hands."

Jurors reported late Wednesday that they were deadlocked 10-2 in favor of the death penalty. Today, they said they voted 10-2 in favor of the life sentence.

Wednesday, jurors interrupted their deliberations to ask Wright if Alexander would be eligible for parole if sentenced to life imprisonment.

Wright told jurors that, under Texas law, he could not legally answer their query.

"You are not to consider any action by the board of pardons and paroles or the governor or how long the defendant would be required to serve on a sentence of life imprisonment," said Wright.

Earlier Wednesday, defense attorney Floyd Holder had objected to a similar instruction, and Wright deleted it from the list of formal directives given jurors when they began deliberations.

Holder objected again when the jury queried the judge about parole but was overruled.

Davis was shot to death after he stopped Alexander for speeding near Slaton in the Texas South Plains. The trial was moved here from Lubbock on a change of venue.

CELEBRATION - The safe return of the 52 American hostages prompted a celebration here on the courthouse square as a part of a larger National Day of Thanksgiving observance proclaimed by President Ronald Reagan. Yellow ribbons were tied to trees and coat lapels, patriotic songs were sung, and prayers said. (SDN Staff Photo)

NEWBURYS GET OFFICIAL WELCOME—Mayor Milton Ham, right, was among those on hand this morning to greet Dr. Don Newbury, new president of Western Texas College, and his family at an informal coffee at the Chamber of Commerce building. With Dr. Newbury are his wife, Brenda, and daughters, Julie 10, Jana 7, and Jeanie 5. Dr. Newbury, who will officially begin his duties at WTC on April 1, is spending some time each week on the campus here. He will be leaving the position of communications director for the Tarrant County Junior College District to move to Snyder. (SDN Staff Photo)

Training More Anti-Terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Training and planning for U.S. anti-terrorist troops who might be used to back up President Reagan's pledge of quick retaliation in future hostage crises has intensified under a program revamped after last year's disastrous Iran rescue mission, defense officials say.

Frequent exercises have been held in strict secrecy, and defense officials refuse to provide any specifics, except to say anti-terrorist units are drawn from all U.S. military services.

Bell May Sue For More

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Consumer groups are praising the Public Utility Commission for holding Southwestern Bell to a nickel-a-month increase for most residential customers. Bell officials, however, say they might sue.

PUC's Wednesday order gives Bell a $114 million increase. The company wanted $326 million, including a $1.25 monthly increase for most household customers.

'Copter Smuggling Hearing Set

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal magistrate has scheduled a Friday hearing in the case of six men, including two high-ranking Nicaraguan Air Force officers, accused of attempting to smuggle two military-type helicopters out of the country.

A newspaper reported Wednesday that U.S. Customs agents were investigating reports the government of Nicaragua, established after the overthrow of former President Anastacio Somoza, may be using smuggled American helicopters against opposition forces in Nicaragua and in behalf of leftists during the strife in El Salvador.

The San Antonio Express quoted its federal sources as saying Customs agents received information that at least three, and possibly as many as 12, helicopters were bought in California and Utah and flown from there via Mexico to Nicaragua in recent months.

The investigation was prompted by the Jan. 18 arrest of the six men, held in Bexar County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond each pending the hearing. The court session was delayed two days at the request of local attorney Sam Bayless, who said he was retained by the Nicaraguan government to represent the six.

Release Celebrated By Hundreds Here

Several hundred people assembled on the north side of the Scurry County Courthouse this morning to participate in a "National Day of Thanksgiving" ceremony which stemmed from the release of American hostages from Iran.

The special day was set aside by President Ronald Reagan so that all Americans could join in one big day devoted to expressing thanks for the return of the Americans from 442 days of captivity.

The celebration here, which was sponsored by the management and guests of Leisure Lodge, was reported to be the biggest event of its kind in this area of Texas.

Mayor Milton Ham spoke, and the Snyder High School Band and Choir were on hand to perform in a setting that emphasized the yellow ribbons as symbols of welcoming the hostages to their homeland.

At least one area television station had a crew here to record the event. Randy Smith of KRBC (Channel 9) in Abilene, who filmed the celebration for his station, said, "As far as I know, this is the biggest thing going on in the area." He said the segment he filmed would be shown this evening on the station's newscast at either 6 p. m. or 10 p. m.

Q.—Is it against the law to put signs on utility poles to advertise garage sales?

A.—Yes. A city ordinance says, "It shall be unlawful for any person to tack, post, paste or nail circulars on any building, or fence, or any place, premises or locality, except on billboards and public posting places and other premises and localities specifically mentioned by law."

Transfer Of Iran's Funds Challenged

DALLAS (AP) — Dresser Industries, Inc., an equipment and oil industry service company, is challenging Jimmy Carter's authority while president to order banks to return nearly $12 billion to the Iranian government in exchange for the 52 American hostages.

The company filed suit Wednesday in U.S. district court against six Texas banks in an effort to freeze Iranian funds held in Texas. Dresser wants to recover $17.3 million it says it is owed by Iran.

The suit contends Carter improperly seized powers constitutionally delegated to the judicial branch of government and asks U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders to issue a writ of garnishment against two Dallas banks and four Houston banks.

Dresser wants any Iranian funds remaining in the banks to be paid against claims it has filed against the government of Iran and the National Iranian Oil Co.

Last week, another Dallas company — Electronic Data Systems, Inc. — sued the government in attempt to recover $19 million it says Iran owes it.

Dresser filed suit against Iran and its oil company in November, claiming the Iranians had broken contracts worth $6.9 million.

Cuts Proposed In Foreign Aid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Foreign aid cutbacks totaling $2.9 billion by 1985 and a pullout from UNESCO were proposed by President Reagan's budget director to help trim the federal budget and to concentrate aid on a few "key" countries, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

"The primary impact of this proposal would be to eliminate or reduce U.S. participation in a range of multilateral organizations which are not responsive to U.S. foreign policy concerns and which in many cases may be ineffective in producing sound economic development," said the plan reportedly circulated by David A. Stockman.

School Election Set For April 4

Snyder School Trustees officially set the annual school election for Saturday, April 4, at a special meeting Wednesday.

Voters in the school district will elect two board members in the election. The terms of Bill Eiland, Place 6, and Ted Crenwelge, Place 7, expire this spring.

Crenwelge, now serving as president of the board, indicated that he would not seek re-election. Eiland was out of town.

Candidates may file beginning Feb. 3 with the board secretary in the school business office, and the filing deadline is Wednesday, March 4. A candidate must file for a specific place on the board.

The election will be held at the Snyder City Hall, and W. T. Falls will be the election judge.

Absentee voting will begin Monday, March 16 and continue through Tuesday, March 31, during regular business hours. The office is open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., Monday through Friday, except for Thursday and Friday, March 19-20 Mrs. Dora White will serve as the absentee voting clerk, and deputies will be Mrs. Ann Walton, Mrs. Frances Stevenson and Mrs. Janet Davis.

Girl Remains Gravely Sick

Heather Lane, the 4-year-old girl who became critically ill Tuesday and had to be flown by air ambulance to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, remains gravely ill, friends of the family report.

The youngster was placed in Cogdell Memorial Hospital about two weeks ago suffering from a virus, but her condition worsened until it became necessary for her to be sent to a larger, better-equipped hospital.

A fund has been started for her at West Texas State Bank.

The family resides at 2507 Ave. X.

How much is too much?

That question is being asked around the country as the media continue to follow every move of the returned hostages. There have been complaints loged with the radio and television networks, the news wire services and local stations and print media outlets to the effect that coverage has been over-done.

Particularly sensitive to the situation are some combat veterans of major wars. They remember that they did not get comparable attention when they came home, not from mere confinement and harrassing in a foreign country, but from combat, and not for only 444 days, but for two or three years.

They have a point, of course.

It is possible, of course, to flick a switch, or turn a page if a person doesn't want to see or read any more about the ex-hostages. Based on the amount of coverage we have seen, our greatest concern involved the massive efforts by hundreds of news teams and crews that kept circling the field hunting for an opening while the ex-hostages were being re-united with their families at West Point. In our opinion, it was poor taste to try to infringe upon the privacy which this event deserved.

However, we must remember that television did not exist in the eras of the two World Wars and was only in its infancy during the Korean conflict and not nearly so versatile during the Vietnam War as it is today. And other elements of the media operate with considerably more sophistication than they did a few years ago. We suspect that if TV had been available, the returnees of those wars would have been dogged by the cameras for several days.

But in those days, they had to be content with dockside celebrations and tickertape parades covered by newsmen armed with still cameras and the Movietone News crews.

Technology has been expanding so rapidly that it is difficult to make a comparison. And no matter how far-fetched it may seem, most people today will "buy" nearly anything. Like the guy who phoned his wife from the office. She finally answered the phone and when he identified himself, she said, "Oh, you rang just as I stepped out of the tub. Give me a moment to dry off and call back."

Sensing an unusual opportunity for mischief, the husband handed his phone to a colleague and quickly gave him some instructions. The colleague dialed the husband's home phone and when the wife answered, he asked, "Is George there?" And then before the woman could answer, he said, "Oh, I'm so sorry. You're all wet and I should give you time to dry off." There was a piercing scream just as the line went dead with a loud click.

Phonevision, or whatever they choose to call it, is not in general use yet, but they say it is coming, and nobody should be surprised if an episode such as this happens someday soon.

Reagan Regretfully Asks New National Debt Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bowing under the same economic pressure that helped bring down Jimmy Carter, the Reagan administration is asking Congress "with great regret" to raise the national debt limit close to the $1 trillion mark.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Wednesday the national debt probably will surpass the legal limit of $935.1 billion by mid-February and it "has become imperative" that the ceiling be raised to $985 billion.

As of last Monday, the national debt stood at $931.8 billion.

Conservative Republicans in Congress, including Reagan administration Budget Director David Stockman, a former representative from Michigan, were highly critical of the Carter administration's periodic requests for increases in the debt ceiling.

But in a statement distributed to reporters, Regan said, "Conditions of the economy and government commitments that we have inherited leave us no choice in this matter."

Since Congress approved the present limit last year, high inflation, high interest rates and various other economic conditions "have touched off a virtual explosion in federal borrowing," Regan said.

In other economic news Wednesday:

—The Commerce Department reported that a big increase in oil imports led to a $1.3 billion worsening in the nation's merchandise foreign trade deficit in December. The deficit for all of 1980, however, was down almost $5 billion from the $37.2 billion of 1979.

—President Reagan lifted remaining price controls on U.S.-produced crude oil, a move that is sure to raise gasoline and heating oil prices to consumers but which also may cut oil imports and help the nation's trade balance.

—Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis said the administration intends to go along with $400 million in new federal loan guarantees to keep the ailing Chrysler Corp. afloat. And he said he will lead a task force trying to find ways to help the rest of the troubled U.S. auto industry as well.

—The nation's 12th-largest bank, Marine Midland Bank in New York, lowered its prime lending rate — that charged its best customers — to 19.5 percent. Other banks held steady at 20 percent.

Regan said the outgoing Carter administration's own figures indicated the national debt would reach $987.3 billion by Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year.

From California, the land of loony ideas, comes the latest in a long line of weird laws.

The Public Utilities Commission said Wednesday that the state's telephone companies must take bids to furnish deaf customers with special devices, estimated at $375 to $600 each, so they can use their telephones more easily.

Who will pay for them? All customers, through higher telephone bills.

That's fine for the deaf customers.

But let's look down the line. Won't gadgets then be demanded for blind customers, for the arthritic, for those paralyzed, and to aid persons with any and all kinds of handicaps? Past experience with government programs indicates precisely those expansions.

Let's hope the California program doesn't spread eastward to Texas and-or Washington, D.C. We don't wish hardships to the deaf, but long have decried the taking of money from one pocket by someone (such as the California Public Utilities Commission) to place in a different person's pocket.

In case you're wondering, the telephone gadgets envisioned by the PUC "must include a keyboard, visual electronic screen, equipment for a hard copy printout of material, must be portable and weigh no more than 12 pounds, and be adaptable to electricity or a battery pack," says Associated Press.

Who says we Americans murder the king's English?

A professor at Lancaster University in England has put a computer to work comparing the way the Americans and the British use the English language. The study analyzed one million words of text from newspapers, novels, official documents and other published material from each side of the Atlantic.

The verdict: The Americans are more mindful of the rules of grammar and proper usage than their English cousins.

It turns out we have been taken in by the British all these years. They dazzle us with their broad vowels and prissy pronunciation and make us think we're a bunch of clods. Sir Laurence Olivier can make an audience melt just by asking for the time of day, but has anyone parsed his sentences lately? He's probably slipping in plural verbs with singular subjects, and getting away with it.

Professor Geoffry Leech, who conducted the study, is scolding his compatriots for not taking better care of "the last great cultural heritage of the British empire" — their language. He says the British have been taking it for granted that they speak English better than anyone else when actually they don't.

my turn

by john long

With every new year comes the old ritual of figuring out one's income tax returns, a complicated process that has so far eluded me. I don't mean to sound dense about these things, but I have never completely understood the computations involved.

Admittedly, math never was my strong point. Still I am a college graduate, I studied the intricacies of Latin when I was younger, and I have read many, many books. But those income tax returns are Greek to me.

Once, several years ago, I interviewed a man who did not fill out his returns. He loudly proclaimed the income tax was illegal, immoral, and unconstitutional. He was a member of a right-wing organization that said it was all right to simply fill in the answers to the questions that did not intrude on on an individual's privacy. He claimed no harm would come to the man who stood up for his rights and bucked the government. He said such highly-principled men founded this country, and that the government was powerless to enforce an unjust law like the income tax.

I only nodded my head and smiled. He moved away from here not long after that interview, but I got to see him briefly last year, when he came back for a visit. Conversationally, I asked him if he still refused to pay his income tax. His eyes glazed and then grew misty as he said, "They (the IRS) really racked me up good."

So much for men of principle.

I think the safest course is to go ahead and fill out one's returns. It may cost something in pride, but it beats the alternative.

Do you remember the "plain English" reforms pushed so much in insurance policies? I believe something like that is needed in income tax returns.

The "plain English" reforms asked that insurance forms, and other papers as well, be written in simple, everyday English so the layman could understand them.

If that could be done in insurance policies, why not in income tax returns, too?

Surely they could be made simpler than they are now.

new remedies

As recently as 10 years ago "old age" was considered an incurable ill.

Arteries were pronounced "hardening," whether they were or not, and the disoriented patient was doped up like a zombie and allowed to sit out his years in a "warehouse" for old people.

There are exciting new remedies for old age.

There is no more inexact science than psychiatry. This has made psychiatrists a choice target for inevitable jealousies within the medical profession.

However....

With increasing respect for "holistic medicine" new breed psychiatrists are earning new respect.

No longer do the shrinks just stretch you out on a couch for an extensive, expensive series of interviews about your parents, your fantasies and your sex life.

Now, with a new spectrum of psychotropic drugs, emotional instability is being stabilized.

Of three million aged Americans who show symptoms of brain failure -- individuals heretofore considered "senile" and left in nursing homes and mental hospitals untreated -- at least 20 percent are now responding to treatment and resuming normal lives.

Far and away the greatest single cause of false senility is drug intoxication. Somebody prescribed the wrong drug or the wrong dosage. The most misused prescription drug is the tranquilizer Valium.

Dr. Robert Butler, director of the National Institute of Aging, confirms that "there are indeed irreversible causes of chronic brain syndrome -- dementia -- such as repeated blood vessel blockages and various brain and nerve diseases." But, he says, "doctors should spend more time examining and testing confused, disoriented or depressed patients for some reversible cause."

He estimates that 10 to 20 percent of supposed senility is not that at all; has a cause that can be remedied.

At Fair Oaks Hospital, Summit, N.J., where they are using the new biochemical approach to diagnosis and treatment, they find at least 7 percent of mental patients have been misdiagnosed -- and subjected to treatment which worsened their condition.

The American Schizophrenia Assn. reports much success in treating schizophrenia with large doses of vitamins, especially niacin.

Dr. Linus Pauling believes we could add 25 years of healthy living to our normal life span with proper ingestion of supplemental vitamins and minerals.

Forty percent of the average physician's office time is now devoted to geriatric patients. Many doctors have tended to accept deterioration fatalistically, assuming there's nothing they can do about it. Very often they can now.

promises, promises

NEW YORK (AP) — Politicians' vows to balance the federal budget are usually taken these days the same way a creditor responds to assurances that "the check is in the mail" — with a large dose of skepticism.

The promise has been made repeatedly in the past decade, by various presidents, but to date it hasn't been kept.

As President Reagan begins his tenure in office, many people in the financial world aren't yet fully persuaded that this time things might be different.

At least that's what Richard B. Hoey, a Wall Street economist, found when he conducted his latest periodic "decision-makers poll" of a broad sample of financial executives.

Surveyed in December, these portfolio managers, corporate financial officers, economists and industry analysts foresaw, on average, a 38 percent chance that the government would achieve a balanced budget sometime in the next five years.

That's hardly a sign of runaway optimism — although it is a considerable increase from the 23.3 percent reading Hoey got last October, before the election.

Hoey, who works at the brokerage firm of Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc., also found some hopes that the Reagan administration will be able to reduce the role of federal spending in the economy.

In the latter half of the 1970s, he notes, federal spending averaged about 22 percent of the gross national product, a measure of the nation's total output of goods and services.

The consensus of the executives responding to the survey was that the federal spending share of GNP would drop by the mid-1980s to 20.9 percent.

On the subject of the investment outlook, Hoey's group had some positive thoughts about the stock market.

Asked to rate the prospects of several different kinds of investments for providing a return greater than the rise of consumer prices, the respondents gave U.S. stocks a 67.1 percent chance of beating inflation.

Spot crude oil came next at 65.4 percent, followed by single-family homes, 58.1 percent; commercial real estate, 58.2 percent; gold, 53 percent, and a diversified portfolio of foreign stocks, 52.8 percent. Bonds brought up the rear, at 41.8 percent.

Hoey pointed out that the survey respondents' conclusions about the future bore a close resemblance to the pattern of the recent past.

There is another group of forecasters known for projecting past trends into the future — investment advisory services. Because that kind of thinking fails to take unexpected changes into account, the services have a reputation for being wrong much of the time in their consensus views.

If they're gloomy, the theory goes, it's probably good news. If they're optimistic, watch out.

Phineas Taylor Barnum and his circus began their first tour in 1835. Barnum gained fame in 1842 with his American Museum in New York which was publicized by extravagant advertising and exhibits such as a bearded lady. His famous circus, the Greatest Show on Earth, opened in 1871.

robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Even in years when there is no presidential transition, too much emphasis is placed upon the federal budget proposed by the White House for the next fiscal year.

That's because the president's suggestions invariably are drastically reshaped by the scores of committees and subcommittes of the House and Senate constitutionally empowered to actually authorize and appropriate the funds.

In an inauguration year such as this one, there usually is even less justification for paying much attention to the outgoing president's unveiling of an elaborately detailed budget less than a week before his successor is to be sworn into office.

But former President Carter's budget is a particularly useful document because it illustrates the difficulty of implementing one of the most loudly proclaimed campaign pledges made by both him and President Reagan during their respective successful bids for the White House.

In the 1976 campaign, it was Carter who declared: "Our government in Washington now is a horrible bureaucratic mess. It is disorganized, wasteful (and) has no purpose.... We must give top priority to a drastic and thorough revision of the federal bureaucracy and its budgeting system."

During the 1980 campaign, it was Reagan who proclaimed: "Waste, extravagance, abuse and outright fraud in federal agencies and programs must be stopped. Billions of taxpayers' dollars are wasted every year throughout hundreds of federal programs."

But after that fiery rhetoric fades, what can be done to cut the federal government down to size? Carter's budget offers a partial answer to that question because it stands as a reminder both of his limited success and of the political, economic and programmatic challenges faced by Reagan.

Consider, for example, the Coast Guard Reserve, an organization of barely marginal utility targeted for extinction by former President Nixon in one of his early budget proposals about a decade ago.

A determined lobbying campaign rescued the reserve from oblivion, and Carter has proposed an appropriation of more than $51 million — money that could be far more usefully spent on the active Coast Guard.

Similarly, Carter has proposed spending $175 million to finance the National Endowment for the Arts and almost $169.5 million to support the National Endowment for the Humanities, two organizations whose work represents a questionable expenditure of federal funds.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability was supposed to lead the battle against inflation, but it did little more than consume tax dollars. Its work now is being scaled down, but almost $3 million is proposed to support it in the fiscal year beginning this autumn.

No government undertaking has been more universally criticized than the "impact aid" program of providing funds to school districts whose enrollment is affected by nearby federal installations. Carter has proposed to slash drastically the $790 million being spent on that program during the current fiscal year — but his budget still included a recommendation for $401 million next year.

The even more notorious Beekeeper Indemnity Program would be phased out next year under Carter's budget, but its supporters presumably will be lobbying for the $1.5 million they recieved this year if not the $3.2 million they got from the taxpayers last year.

There are scores of similar items buried in Carter's budget. In some instances, he called for the reduction or elimination of unnecessary services, but in other cases her perpetuated a pattern of unwarrated spending.

If Reagan can make the necessary cuts, he surely will be performing a public service — but there is no reason to believe he will be any more successful than his predecessors.

Dear Abby

Physician, Heal Thyself!

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I took my 16-year-old daughter, whom I'll call Sally, for her first visit to a gynecologist, and I am still in shock at what happened in his office.

Sally had a very painful lump in her abdomen, and it took me three days to convince her that doctors were nice guys, concerned with helping people feel better, and that she must trust me and get help.

Well, the nurse led Sally into the examining room to prepare her for the examination. Sally was scared to death and had big tears in her eyes when she went in. The doctor came in, looked Sally in the eye, registered disgust and impatience, then he turned around and walked out. He then came to the front office and told the receptionist within my hearing to cancel the appointment! Hearing this, I approached him and asked for an explanation. The doctor replied, "I am not about to see a grown girl who is crying!"

I couldn't believe my ears. The doctor stalked out and I asked the receptionist if I had heard right. She said, "Yes, he is the boss and can do anything he wants." I stood there, stunned. The doctor then returned and told me to get another doctor for "the child," then abruptly walked away.

This same doctor is supposed to perform surgery on me in the near future for a female problem. I had met him only once before, but was not aware that he is a man of so little patience and compassion. He has been practicing for many years, and certainly should have had experience with frightened young girls. Now Sally is more afraid than ever to trust doctors, or my word, and I am equally afraid to have this doctor treat me. Suppose a tear or two should stain my face? Will he also walk out on me?

UPSET IN WATERBURY

DEAR UPSET: Don't speculate. Walk out on him and find another doctor. And report his unprofessional conduct to your county medical association — in writing!

DEAR ABBY: When a woman goes out with a man to a restaurant, should she order whatever she wants regardless of price, or should she pay attention to the prices on the menu and order something that isn't too expensive?

CLARKSVILLE

DEAR CLARKSVILLE: A considerate woman considers a man's wallet. So if you're considering seeing him again, be considerate.

DEAR ABBY: Just another example of how the man always gets the dirty end of the stick:

When I ask a woman what she would do if she caught her husband in bed with another woman, she invariably replies, "I'd kill him."

When I ask a man what he would do if he caught his wife in bed with another man, he invariably says, "I'd kill him."

Abby, why does the guy always get the blame when it takes two to tango?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Because it is usually assumed that the guy asked the lady to tango, which is no longer a fair assumption.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HATES DIRT IN MODESTO: Perhaps the one who always notices the dirt should have his glasses cleaned.

East had no problems in the bidding except a feeling of extreme nervousness when his partner bid two diamonds.

For all he knew the axe might fall right then, but there was no axe and when his opponents bid on to four hearts, East knew they were going to score game and rubber. But there was nothing he could do about it so why should he worry.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. He then led the 10 of diamonds. East discarded the three of spades as dummy ruffed with the ace of trumps.

Now declarer drew trumps, cashed dummy's spades to discard his last diamond and the jack of clubs and conceded a trick to the ace of clubs.

"I ought to quit bridge," complained East. "One bad hand after another."

"Maybe you should take up the game and quit playing nullo," said West. "If you just kept yourself awake you would have beaten this game."

West was right. East had no reason not to trump his partner's ace at trick two so as to lead a club and set the hand.

Gloria Myers was presented an award recognizing her as the Most surprised guest.

Attending the event were Mickey and Jerry Baird, Carolyn and Larry House, Judy and Ray Max Grimmett, Bette and Joe League, Mary Lou and Troy Scott, Wanda and Bill Early, Carolyn and Keith Glaze, Sue and Morris Sewell, Dena and Harold Ellis, Judy and Mike Smith, Gloria Myers, Susan Chesser and Paula Middleton.

Pumpkin soup

This delicious soup is warm and richly satisfying on a cold night but won't ruin your diet. Cook one ounce minced scallions and one ounce minced onions in a nonstick saucepan until soft. Add 6 ounces canned pumpkin and three-fourths cup chicken bouillion. Cook over low heat, stirring until smooth. Slowly stir in one cup evaporated skim milk and heat to scalding (don't boil). Serve with a sprinkling of nutmeg. Makes two portions, 139 calories each.

Mulberry Trees Planted At Northeast Elementary School

The fathers in the Parent Club of Northeast Elementary planted 10 fruitless mulberry trees on the playground Jan. 24 which had been donated by the Parent Club.

The decision to plant was made during a meeting Jan. 20 at which Charles Lamb, president of the club presided.

The Helping Hands posters are ready to be placed in the homes of Northeast children as a signal of a place to stop in case of trouble either going to or coming home from school.

Parents need to volunteer to place these posters in their windows if they are willing to help.

Fabulous Fridays will begin on March 6. This is the time when parents offer to share their interests with fourth, fifth and sixth grade children at Northeast for one to one and a half hours on four Fridays in March.

A lot of parent help is needed in order for this project to succeed. Mrs. Connie Miller and Mrs. Nell Price are co-chairmen for Fabulous Fridays.

Parent tutors are desparately needed. Listen to children read, do math and help cut materials for learning centers are examples of things parents can do to help.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Witte and Mrs. Briggs, teachers at Northeast, presented the program, "How to Help Your Child Achieve in School."

The major points are summarized below.

1. Educate your child in the first five years of their life as well as possible.

2. Be a team with your child's teacher.

3. Give your child all the experiences possible. (shopping, museum, library) Then talk with them about these experiences.

4. Develop a vocabulary with your child.

5. Teach your child to speak in complete sentences.

6. Read to your child. Make reading important. Listen to them read.

7. Categorize and classify items at home.

8. Help children to follow more than one direction at once.

9. Use comic strips and any other pictures to teach the logical sequence of things.

10. What you are today, is mainly what your parents taught you to be.

11. Motivate first on the concrete level (treat, money) and eventually move to the level when just a word of praise is enough. Then the child will do a chore because he just wants to do a good job.

12. Build a good self image in the child.

13. Use a positive approach about yourselves, the school and the child.

14. Listen to the child individually at least five minutes per day.

15. Try not to compare the child to brothers or sisters.

16. Give the child responsibilities and see that they carry them through.

17. Get children to read about their interests, not watch so much TV.

18. Too much television takes away from other things children can be doing.

19. Help children memorize addition, subtraction, multiplication and division facts.

20. Look over children's homework before they take it back to school.

21. Talk to the child's teacher if there seem to be problems at school.

The February Parent Club program will be the fifth grade presenting a play.

Senate To Vote Today...

House OKs 5.1% Hike For State Employees

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House has passed a 5.1 percent emergency pay raise bill, with a minimum salary boost of $75 a month to help state employees catch up with inflation.

Senators expected to vote today on whether to accept the House bill or insist on negotiations toward a compromise with the 6.8 percent pay raise bill they passed Monday.

The House passed its version on Wednesday, 128-9.

"We're getting pretty close. I'm glad the House was able to overcome the threat of a veto by the governor and the persistent opposition of Republicans and come out with a bill that is closer to where we ought to be," said Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Clements recommended a 3.4 percent pay raise with a $50-a-month minimum and said he would veto a 6.9 percent bill. He indicated to House leaders he would accept a 5.1 percent bill with a $50 floor, and that is what came out of the House Appropriations Commitatee.

But a 73-69 vote replaced the $50 minimum with $75, running the risk of a veto.

The governor's bill would add $54 million to this year's state expenditures, the Senate's $110 million and the House's $93.2 million.

Clements' chief legislative liason, Jim Kaster, said he could not predict how the governor would react to the higher floor set by the House bill.

"I don't know what he will do," Kaster said.

Government workers got a 5.1 percent increase on Sept. 1 and will receive another raise on Sept. 1, 1981.

Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, chairman of the appropriations committee, repeatedly warned the House that any raise above 5.1 percent with a $50 minimum would risk a veto.

He said a pay raise bill must be passed by the legislature and signed by Clements no later than midnight Saturday if state employees are to get their raises in February.

A veto could throw off that timetable and delay the raise until March, Presnal warned.

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, said the financial situation of many state employees was critical.

"This is an emergency because we have state employees who literally can't feed their families without some consideration on an emergency basis by this body," she told the House.

An effort to restore the 6.8 percent pay hike approved by the Senate failed, 63-75.

Walking Club Organized

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP) — Stay on your feet — if you want to stay healthy.

To keep pace with this theory, Porter Shimer, executive editor of Executive Fitness Newsletter, has organized a national "Walk-To-Work-Club." It costs nothing to join. To become a member you walk 30 hours, log the time and mail it to Shimer. After 100 hours you earn a certificate and with 200 hours you receive an "I-WalkTo-Work" patch. For 300 hours you win a lapel or dress pin.

"You walk to work, from work or at work," says Shimer. "If you use public transportation, get off a few blocks before your regular stop. If you drive, park a half-mile from the company lot and walk. If nothing else, leave your car at the other end of your lot and walk back."

Officials Find Jail Of Future Headache Of Present

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The $48 million Shelby County Criminal Justice Complex, dubbed the "Glamor Slammer," is called a jail of the future. To county officials, however, it's a headache of the present.

"We've built a Cadillac when we should have a Mazda, and we don't even have enough space for the Saturday night drunks," said Bill Reid, former county chief administrative officer.

"We built for 20 years hence," said Arnold Shappley, senior architect and president of the firm that designed the 830,000-square-foot complex, which includes six miles of hallways and takes 4 to 5 hours to tour.

When it opens in September, the 12-story facility will contain the city and county jails, the police and sheriff's departments, city and county courts and adjunct legal administrative offices.

Unquestionably, the complex lives up to projected needs of the year 2000. But county officials are suffering budget pangs in 1981.

Estimates of operating the center its first year range up to $15 million. That could boost by $44 the taxes paid on a $40,000 home.

County officials expect taxpayers to balk at having to pay $24,000 for special soft-soled shoes for inmates — to protect the jail's terrazzo floors — and $65,000 for clothing color-coded to the floor on which an inmate is confined.

Opponents say there are glaring deficiencies, such as inadequate space to handle arrests for weekend drunkenness, in the four-story jail with 1.23 acres on each floor.

Sheriff Gene Barksdale, a defender of the facility, says he's willing to work with the County Commission to cut costs.

Sheriff's department officials say the complex was built to specifications contained in an order issued by U.S. District Judge Robert McRae Jr. about 13 years ago. County officials argue the complex goes far beyond anything McRae ordered.

"I've read that court order and re-read it and it speaks of such things as square footage that a person in jail must be allocated ... it talks about treating people humanely and providing them with medical care and basic necessities," said Reid. "It doesn't say anything about building them a mini-hospital."

The jail's hospital includes an operating room, dental facilities and beds for 12. The equipment cost more than $100,000.

Reid says planning for the complex got out of hand because it was turned over to committees "whose membership changed every year."

"Each new member incorporated into the planning every fine new idea on prison care that ever existed," Reid said. "There's no doubt that it will be nicer than many of the homes from which its inmates come....In winter, the place will have a waiting list, I predict."

Aikido Class Kicks Off On Monday Night

Aikido, a martial art stressing passive self-defense, will be taught in a continuing education course starting Monday at Western Texas College.

Dr. Shelby Hillis and Ken Grimm will be instructors for the classes meeting from 6:30-8:30 p. m. on Mondays through May 11. Fees will be $30 per person.

Aikida may not have the dramatic impact of some other martial arts, but it has tremendous value for its students, Hillis said. First, there is the development of rhythmic movement and physical fitness, both integral parts of self-defense training. Second, it encourages discipline and non-violent attitude toward opponent. Third, it teaches the effective twisting, bending and stretching of the joints and limbs. Lastly, it increases the student's awareness of posture and good body alignment and improves reactions, perception and coordination.

Students in the aikido class are to enroll between 6:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. Monday in room 101 of the health-physical education building on the east end of the campus. The first class meeting will follow. Students are asked to pre-register by calling the continuing education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Oil Price Decontrol Means More Money For Texas

By The Associated Press

President Ronald Reagan's early decontrol of crude oil prices will mean about $150 million more this year for the state's coffers and trigger a 3- to 10-cent boost in gasoline prices, experts say.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Wednesday that the decontrol of crude oil means the state's 4.6 percent tax on the market value of oil will produce about $3.1 billion over a two-year period starting this September.

William R. Edwards, president of Edwards Energy Consultants, said the move will push gasoline prices at the pump up from 5 to 10 cents by the peak spring-summer driving season.

"If phased decontrol had continued as planned," he said, "we would have had about half of that by that time anyway."

But William Johnson, Tenneco Inc. economist and former advisor to former Secretary of Energy Secretary William Simon, said he didn't think prices would rise by that much.

"There will be a fairly sizable increase," he said, "but not that great."

Reaction from energy officials in the state to Reagan's announcement was generally positive, with many executives saying the move was long overdue.

"This nation will never adequately develop its domestic energy resources until it has free competition among all fuels, based on price, and decontrol of crude oil and product prices is the first constructive step toward this goal," said J. Hugh Liedtke, Pennzoil Co. chairman.

A Gulf Oil spokesman said moving the decontrol timetable ahead gives the United States valuable time and momentum in the effort to reduce dependence on foreign oil.

But not all oil company executives were pleased about the stepped-up decontrol timetable.

"Those of us who are in a small refiner classification are vitally concerned and in hopes something will be worked out," said Joe Moss, American Petrofina vice president in Dallas.

He said the end of the federal allocation program originally aimed at keeping an equitable share of crude distributed among all refiners will create a supply problem.

Howard McClung, a Howell Hydrocarbons vice president in San Antonio, said he preferred the original phased decontrol plan instituted by former President Jimmy Carter.

He said crude oil price hikes will hit the small refiners hardest because they will have to compete with major refiners while absorbing a 25 percent cost increast.

"There are a lot of small ones (refiners) that will go out of business," he said. "We just don't have the buying power."

Reagan's announcement was greeted with enthusiasm by the heads of the two largest oil trade groups in Texas.

Edwin L. Cox, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, said the action will bolster the nation's free enterprise system.

"The revival of price controls, which have existed 9 years, will permit the petroleum industry in this country to operate in the same manner as other U.S. businesses," Cox said.

L. Frank Pitts, president of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association, based in Dallas, said the move was best for the nation's oil users.

"In my judgement, a total free market is best of the consumers of the country, the total economic situtation and the national security," Pitts said, adding that industry groups had been "pushing hard for decontrol of oil for years."

Michael T. Halbouty, a Houston independent oilman who heads Reagan's 17-member energy transition task force, said via telephone from Hawaii Wednesday that the move showed Reagan planned to keep his campaign promises.

"This early action shows the determination of President Reagan to fufill his promise to the people to eliminate those controls and regulations which have choked the industrial complex, stymied the economy and retarded the progress of the nation," he said.

The order was seen as a "full speed ahead" order for the oil business, according to George Mitchell, chairman of one of the nation's largest independent oil companies.

"Every oilman in the country now has added incentive to explore for and produce more oil and gas," he said.

Iran Not To Get Military Goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, still suspicious of Iran, will not deliver more than $450 million in U.S. military equipment purchased by the government of the late shah, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig says Although Iran's revolutionary government has not requested delivery of the equipment, Haig made it clear Wednesday that the United States had no intention of honoring that purchase agreement even if Iran asks for the goods and will not enter into any future contracts for military equipment with Iran.

"Let me state categorically today there will be no military equipment provided to the government of Iran, either under earlier obligations and contractual arrangements, or as yet unstated requests," he said.

Haig said the United States might try to sell the military equipment — mostly spare parts for U.S.-built jet fighters, tanks, helicopters and other weapons — elsewhere and reimburse Iran for the cash value of the parts.

In a telephone interview Wednesday night with ABC News, former Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh called the U.S. posture "a very wrong and unwise decision at this time because ... there are some forces trying to change the entire weaponry system of Iran."

A State Department official said the issue of military equipment, for which Iran paid $457 million, was not raised during the final negotiations that led to release of the 52 American hostages.

"There is no obligation stated in the (hostage) agreement at any place to return specific military equipment," Acting Assistant Secretary Peter Constable told reporters Wednesday after a closed-door briefing for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the hostage deal.

In 1851, Maine became the first U.S. state to introduce prohibition.

Unlikely ulcer treatment

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 67-year-old woman. I have had stomach ulcers for years and about 10 years ago I had surgery and have felt fine until the last two years. I had an X-ray and my doctor said they are showing again. A friend of mine my age takes two teaspoons of Vaseline a day and now he can eat anything. At first he took it with juice but now he takes it without anything. My wonder is if it will do any harm to take it — or any good. I have taken Tagamet but the doctor will only let me take it for six weeks. Tagamet helps but when I'm off it I feel terrible.

DEAR READER — Ugh! I don't think swallowing Vaseline is going to be a very popular treatment for ulcers or acidity. There is certainly no reason to think it will do any good. It might slow down the emptying of the stomach as fat does. And it should act somewhat the same as mineral oil does to soften the stool. Perhaps your friend's complaints were not caused by an ulcer but a colon problem. And perhaps he would have gotten better at that time regardless of what he took.

Ulcers are not constant things. They tend to get better, sometimes in spite of what we do for them rather than because of what we do. There are more attacks in the fall and spring than the rest of the year — no one knows why.

Tagamet has proved useful for the short term treatment of ulcers in many patients. Data for long term treatment is not plentiful yet and that is why your doctor doesn't want you to take it a long time.

Even intractable ulcers can be helped a great deal with proper management. Their management is discussed in more detail in The Health Letter number 15-10, Understanding Ulcers and Acidity, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. That management includes your life style. Your habits, alcohol, coffee, cigarettes and the amount of stress in your life are all important factors that affect ulcers.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife recently has had spells of gasping for breath. These seem to come on after resting and one would think there is constriction of the muscles involved. She is 77 and in fairly good health for her age. She takes blood pressure medicine and Lanoxin. She sees her doctor more or less at regular times for blood tests and medicine. Is there something that might be done for her while she is gasping for breath? I feel so helpless when it happens.

DEAR READER — She should return to her doctor right away. Your brief description needs more elaboration but it sounds like you are describing cardiac asthma, a condition caused by the sudden accumulation of fluid in the lungs. The fluid accumulates when the person is resting, rather than the shortness of breath we often see with heart failure that develops with exertion. It does appear like an asthmatic attack and such attacks are particularly apt to occur in people who have high blood pressure and heart failure.

Her doctor is giving her Lanoxin to strengthen her heart but he may want to adjust things or cut down or eliminate her salt.

When she has one of these attacks be sure she sits up; she will be able to breathe better in that position. But you should seek medical attention.

Fighting Terrorism Top Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig, sounding a hard line in his public debut as a diplomat, says combating international terrorism rather than promoting human rights will be the top foreign policy concern of the Reagan administration.

Interwoven with that declaration Wednesday was a charge that the Soviet Union's policies "foster, support and expand" international terrorism and a warning that the United States will take that into account in its overall dealings with the Soviets.

"International terrorism will take the place of human rights in our concern because it is the ultimate abuse of human rights," Haig said. "It's time that it be addressed with better clarity and greater effectiveness by western nations and the United States as well."

In his first news conference as secretary of state, the former four-star general put the Soviet Union clearly on notice that any progress toward arms limitation agreements will be firmly linked to all Soviet activity throughout the world.

He said terrorism is "hemorrhaging around the world" and the Soviets have been little help in dealing with it.

"I think it is clear that we have an unprecedented, at least in character and scope, risk-taking mode on the part of the Soviet Union, not just in this hemisphere but in Africa as well," he said. "It is a subject which will be high on the priority of our national security and foreign policy agenda.

"An additional subject related intimately to this in the conduct of Soviet activity — in terms of training, funding and equipping — is international terrorism."

Haig noted that President Reagan has stated repeatedly the United States will not contemplate ratification of arms control agreements "exclusive of consideration of the conduct and activities of the Soviet Union outside the sphere of arms control."

"That's the shorthand for linkage," Haig said.

At the same time, Haig said the Reagan administration has not scrapped the Carter administration's quiet policy of abiding by the terms of SALT II even though the arms agreement was not ratified.

He said the new administration is reviewing the question, adding: "I would hope that in the meantime the Soviets would do nothing to exacerbate the kind of mutual restraint that both sides should pursue."

Haig expressed "utmost concern" over continued "exploitation of the Cuban proxy" to achieve Soviet objectives in the third world and said the recent incursion of Libyan troops into Chad is a "grave turn of events."

China Painting To Be Taught At WTC

The art of China painting will be studied in evening classes meeting Feb. 2-March 13 at Western Texas College.

Virginia Lowrence, who has taught china painting for several years, will be the instructor for the 18-hour course.

She has just returned from market and will be showing students several new products along with basic design, preparation of the china, and setting up the palette

China painting is a form of art that can be enjoyed alone or with a group, and one which can be done by the unskilled as well as those trained in other art skills, Mrs. Lowrence said.

Mrs. Lowrence and her husband, Pete, moved to Snyder last summer from Pecos. He operates White's Auto on the east side of the square.

Students in the china painting class will pay fees of $20 and ill be required to purchase or provide their own supplies. The instructor will have available kits costing about $40 and containing recommended materials.

Minimum enrollment for the course is 10 and enrollment will be limited to 12. Persons interested are to pre-register by calling the continuing education office at 573-8511, extension 240. Students will register between 6:15-6:30 p. m. Monday in the lobby of the Learning Resource Center at WTC.

Western Welcomes SPC In WJCAC Cage Action

Western Texas College's Westerners entertain the South Plains Texans in a key Western Athletic Conference battle at Scurry County Coliseum tonight.

A women's game, featuring the WTC Dusters against South Plains' Texanettes opens the show at 6. The men's game tips off at 8.

Tonight's game is especially important for the Westerners and Texans, who are fighting each other, Clarendon and New Mexico Junior College for a berth into March's Region V Tournament.

Western Texas is 13-7 on the season and 4-5 in conference action. SPC is 12-9 and 5-4 and enters tonight's contest after an upset victory over No. 8 ranked Frank Phillips, 69-67.

"It's a home game against one of those teams we've got to knock out if we want to get in a playoff spot," confirms Westerner Coach Larry Dunaway. "We're playing short handed, with our backs to the wall and we're going to have to play our best basketball to win it. But that's what makes athletics so good, the challenges that are put to you."

The Westerners will be without leading scorer Chuck North once again. North, a 6-4 sophomore, has missed the last two games with an ankle injury.

"South Plains has the kind of big, strong physical team that has been giving us problems all year because we don't have any big people," the coach noted. "Our success will be in how well we press them, how well we get the ball off the press and how well we fast break them. I don't think if we get in a half-court game with them we're going to be in that good a shape. We're going to have to get the lead and keep the lead to prevent them holding the ball on us."

The Texans are led offensively by Scott Ferrell and Brad Blastick, who both average over 13 points a game. B.J. Jones averages another 12 and 6.7 rebounds, and Glen Faunce pulls down about 6 rebounds a game.

Western Texas is led offensively by Caesar Scott, 16.5 points, 6.1 rebounds, Keith Denis, 16.3 points, and Darren Lee, 12 points. WTC leads the conference in field goal percentage (.551) and freethrow accuracy (.708). South Plains' figures are .507 FG and .647 FT.

"I think if we can play as well as we did against Frank Phillips we can win without Chuck, but we're going to have to shoot the ball better. We hit only 32 percent against Midland the other night. Of course there were some complications in that ballgame but it was by leaps and bounds our poorest shooting night."

Once again, Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters will be heavily favored over their opponent this evening. The Dusters, 18-5 on the season and 4-2 in conference play, are soon to begin a stretch which includes Howard College, Odessa College and Amarillo College.

South Plains comes into the game off of a big conference win over Frank Phillips, putting them at 7-11 for the season and 1-4 in loop play. Lynette Joiner paces the Texanettes' attack with 17.4 points and 8.9 rebounds. Two other players, Regenia Melton and Diane Hochstein, average in double figures as well.

Linda Holubec, Shari Teal and Valerie Wells all hit in the double figures for Western Texas. Cindy Maddox averages in the 9s.

Tickets for the doubleheader are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Children under age 16 are admitted free with an adult.

Kankakee Still On Top; Midland Slips To No. 6

HUTCHINSON, Kan. -- Kankakee Community College of Kankakee, Ill. remains as the No. 1 junior college basketball team in the country, according to this week's NJCAA Men's Poll.

Kankakee, 20-0, received 176 points and nine first place votes.

Rounding out the top five, Three Rivers of Poplar Bluff, Mo. moved into second place. Three Rivers boasts the best record in the poll at 21-0. Tyler Junior College, of Tyler, Tex. is third. Tyler, 19-0, also boasts the No. 10 team in the women's poll this week. Fourth is 17-1 Allegheny of Pittsburgh and fifth is 21-3 Jackson Community College.

Midland College, ranked No. 1 for several weeks, slipped to second last week and is at No. 6 today after back-to-back conference losses. One other Texas team, Frank Phillips, stayed at No. 8.

Below is the current NJCAA Men's Basketball Poll with teams, followed by record and points. First place votes are in parantheses. Records are correct only through Monday of this week.

1. Kankakee, IL (9)	20-0	176
2. Three Rivers, MO (5)	21-0	169
3. Tyler, TX (1)	19-0	112

Dusters Dropped From JC Rankings

HUTCHINSON, Kan. -- Northern Oklahoma College of Tonkawa, Okla., kept atop the latest NJCAA Women's Basketball Poll, released today. NOC is 18-2 on the season.

The second through sixth place teams also kept in pace. They are No. 2 Northwest Mississippi, 12-0; No. 3 Mesa Community College, Ariz., 18-2; No. 4 Linn-Benton Community College of Albany, Ore., 15-0; No. 5 Bergen Community College of Paramus, N.J., 19-0; and No. 6 Panola Junior College of Carthage, Tex., 13-1.

Several other teams dropped in the poll, including Western Texas College. WTC's Dusters, ranked 15th in the first poll, slipped entirely off the charts after a loss to Amarillo.

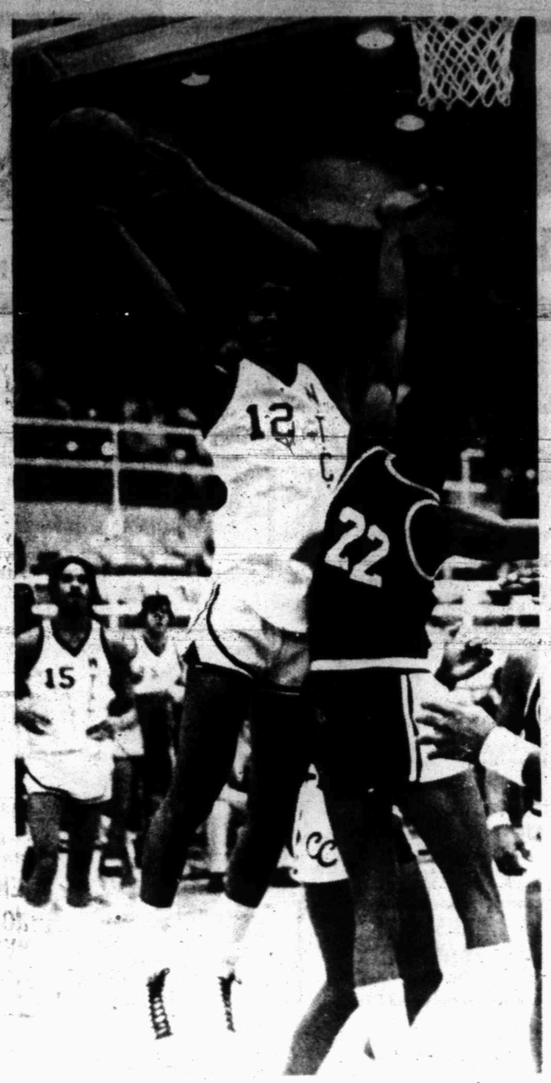

Four Texas teams remain in the poll, including No. 6 Panola, No. 10 Tyler and No. 11 Howard County College (Big Spring).

Tyler, 17-2 in women's action, also has the nation's No. 3 men's team.

1. No. Oklahoma	18-2
2. NW Mississippi	15-0
3. Mesa, Ariz.	18-2

Bowling Meet

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — Marshall Holman finished with 5 straight strikes Wednesday night to take a 11-pin lead over Mark Roth after the second round of a $125,000 professional bowling tournament.

PLAY TONIGHT -- Western Texas College hosts Frank Phillips at 6 and 8 here tonight in some key WJCAC battles. Both WTC and SPC men are fighting for a chance to get in the Region V Tournament, while the Dusters are making their challenge for the conference championship. Snyder Faces Ector Friday

Snyder High School picks up District 2-AAAA roundball action again Friday night, challenging the Eagles of Ector both here and in Odessa.

Coach George Byerly's Tigers, who finished the first half of loop play in a tie with the Eagles, play the host role at 8 in Scurry County Coliseum. Thursday's games open Round Two in boys' play. A sophomore game, Snyder versus Odessa High, will open the tri-header at 4:15, followed by a junior varsity tilt at 6:15.

In Odessa, Coach Ken Housden's Felines meet the downfallen Eaglettes at 8. A junior varsity contest opens that two-game agenda at 6:15.

Odessa, 15-8, stands as the only team to have beaten Snyder boys in district play this season. That 55-54 victory came on Dec. 19 in Odessa. Since that loss, which left the Tigers at 3-12, Snyder has won nine straight, good enough for a 12-12 record and a share of the first-round district crown.

Other boys games Tuesday, with season and first-round district records, include 8-15 and 2-6 Fort Stockton at 7-11, 2-6 Lake View; 3-16, 1-7 Monahans at 16-6, 6-2 Lamesa; and 12-8, 1-7 Pecos at 12-13, 4-4 Sweetwater. Andrews, 19-4 and 6-2, is idle.

Ector's girls will be trying to break a five-game losing string which has left them 7-14 on the season. The Eaglettes are 0-3 in girl's second round play. Snyder is 12-9 and 1-2.

Jenkins Could Go Unattached

Dale Jenkins, state-champion pole vaulter who was found ineligible for competition earlier this week, can participate in track meets on an unattached basis, Snyder High School athletic director John Gary relayed today.

Whether Jenkins, a three-time all-state vaulter, would agree to participate in the meets was not learned. At last word, Don Jenkins, his father, was contemplating legal action and talking with the UIL.

Jenkins and tennis player Jeff Wesson were found ineligible when it was discovered they had not taken three UIL approved courses last semester. Both boys had signed up for three, but dropped one to take continuing education program courses at Western Texas College. The UIL does not recognize college courses as credit.

In view of the information, the school will not ask the district (2-AAAA) committee to allow Jenkins to participate on the junior varsity in an upcoming meeting.

In competing unattached, Jenkins would not be eligible for honors. He could also compete in collegiate meets, but, warned Gary, it might effect college eligibility. Officials were to check on that possibility, and whether Jenkins could work out with the Tiger track team and travel with them.

James Wesson, father of the tennis player, has been contacted by various media.

"I'd rather not discuss the situation. I think it's gotten too much publicity. It's unfortunate that it happened," he said. We are looking into it (legal aspects of the situation), but it doesn't appear there is anything we can do. But yes, we are looking into it. It was an unfortunate mistake and right now I'd rather just drop it."

Rice Rips UT; Bears Fall

by The Associated Press

It was another topsy turvy night in Southwest Conference basketball as Texas Christian and Rice pulled off the latest upsets in a season filled with surprises.

Texas Christian beat Baylor, 58-50, and Rice upset Texas, 46-40, in overtime in the topsy turvy games. In games with more routine outcomes, Houston beat Texas A&M, 76-71, and Arkansas trounced Texas Tech, 60-35.

Baylor grabbed a 27-21 halftime lead over Texas Christian, but in the second half, TCU's Darrell Browder got hot and Baylor's Terry Teagle got cold.

The loss to the Horned Frogs was the third in a row for Baylor, a team that was atop the SWC roundball standings a week ago with an undefeated record. The Bears are now in a three-way tie with Arkansas and Rice for second place.

Browder had 20 points for TCU and Teagle had 18 for Baylor.

Baylor coach Jim Haller had a simple explanation for the loss. "They just whipped us, that's all I can say," he said.

Teagle started off the game in a normal fashion, hitting 7 of 10 shots, but he couldn't hit a single field goal in the second half. He made 2 of 4 free throw attempts in the final half before fouling out with 13 seconds remaining.

If there ever was a year for Rice to break a 24-year jinx against the Texas Longhorns it would have to be this year and it happened.

The Owls had not won at Austin since 1957 and had lost 20 straight games to Texas during the past decade. But that all came to an end as Kenny Austin hit two key field goals in overtime to give the Owls a 46-40 victory.

Rob Williams had 33 points as the Houston Cougars tightened their grasp on first place with a 76-71 victory over Texas A&M.

Freshman Reggie Roberts had 14 points for the slumping Aggies.

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers missed the final 1:24 of the game as Arkansas destroyed the Red Raiders, 60-35.

Myers was ejected by drawing three technical fouls in rapid succession. The first came when he stormed onto the court when he thought that U.S. Reed fouled Tech's Bubba Jennings on a steal.

Tiger Turned Raider Doing Well For Tech

By BILL MCCLELLAN

Thanks, Snyder! Last week's Westerner-Frank Phillips game brought in from 500-600 fans and Tuesday's key Snyder-Andrews tilt was attended by an estimated 1,250 - by far the largest basketball crowds at Scurry County Coliseum this season.

No preaching this week - we've got Tommy Lynn on tap - but it wouldn't hurt to remind the fans that South Plains College tries WTC in the coliseum at 6 and 8 Thursday and Odessa Ector comes in at 8 Friday against the Tigers. Two big games in the respective conference and district races, and believe me, your support will be greatly appreciated.

Got a letter from Thomas Lynn (Slick) Selmon yesterday. Tommy was one of Snyder's high-flying trio of Selmon, Brad Richardson and Dale Jenkins that went to state in the long jump, high jump and pole vault two years ago.

THOMAS SELMON

You remember. Selmon also earned honors as a defensive back for Snyder High, and was on two district championship basketball teams. Went to the Junior Olympics two straight years - menial things like that.

'Course Thomas is at Texas Tech now, on a track scholarship, and flying high for the Red Raiders. He's started off in super fashion.

"I guess I did pretty well," he writes, "since this was my very first collegiate track meet (West Texas State Indoor Invitational at Canyon) and it was a very exciting experience. I came out as being the high-point man of the meet with 26 points, and it feels as if I'm starting over from where I left off last summer."

The former Tiger won the long jump with a 23' 7½" leap, the triple jump with a 46' 4" effort, and took third in the 60-yard dash with a time of 6.3 seconds.

Tech will split its troop this weekend and Selmon will be at the Dallas Invitational. Several other teammembers will compete in the LCC Indoor Meet.

I always knew Tommy was a good one because I swear I saw Snyder coaches Mike Jenkins, Winfred Shipp and George Byerly passing the hankerchief on graduation day. Talent like that is hard to come by. It also gets lonesome...

"If you want to...put my address in the paper...because I'd like to hear from some of the people from my hometown sometimes," he asked. "Tell everyone at home hello for me."

Consider yourselves officially "hied" Snyderites. Now for that address:

Nuclear Wastes Controls Sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — East Texas lawmakers, backed by constituents opposed to nuclear waste storage in their counties, want the State Health Department to stop issuing permits until the Legislature looks at bills to tighten state control.

Television personality John Henry Faulk of Madisonville, "moderator" for the Wednesday news conference, said companies that "obviously don't have the foggiest idea of what the devil to do with" radioactive wastes are seeking permits for dumps.

Faulk said his top concern is the groundwater East Texans depend on for farming and household use. Leon County residents are trying to prevent a company from storing nuclear waste on a 400-acre tract it recently purchased.

"We must at all costs protect this precious natural resource that is threatened on all levels," said Faulk.

Rick Lowerre, Sierra Club lobbyist, said Nuclear Sources and Services, which bought the land, has mishandled radioactive waste at other sites.

"You can't trust these birds that are asking for these permits," Faulk said.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, is carrying legislation that would give the state more control of nuclear waste sites and where they are placed. Present law, said Caperton, is "inadequate at best."

"One extremely important new part of the law allows for citizen input in the process. Current law does not require any kind of public hearings to be held," Caperton said at the news conference.

"We are not trying to hinder the necessary and beneficial use of radioactive materials, but the health, safety and protection of citizens from the potential long-term hazards of nuclear materials must go hand in hand with its use," he said.

Vickie Daniel's Trial Not Likely Before May

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — The Liberty County district attorney's office says the murder trial of Vickie Daniel, the widow of slain former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., probably won't be held until May or June.

A county grand jury indicted the attractive blonde widow on a charge of murder Wednesday night, after hearing a marathon nine hours of secret testimony.

"The grand jury indicted Vickie Daniel for first-degree murder," district attorney Carroll Wilborn told newsmen minutes after jurors filed from their private chambers.

"I would anticipate the earliest possible trial date as May or June," he said.

He said the penalty upon conviction could range from five years to life imprisonment, and that she could get probation.

"There is some indication there was some premeditation or motive," Willborn said, without elaboration.

The 12-member panel heard 19 witnesses, including Vickie Daniel's 11-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, and rendered its decision shortly before 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Daniel, 33, charged last Friday with the Jan. 19 slaying, declined an invitation to appear before the grand jury — not uncommon for the accused.

She is free on $50,000 bond.

Authorities maintained the one-time waitress killed the socially and politically prominent Daniel with a single .22-calber shot fired from rifle at close range.

Daniel, 39, son and namesake of a former Texas governor, died on the floor of his stylish Liberty ranch home, half an hour's drive from Houston.

Included among the 19 witnesses were investigators, hospital and ambulance personnel, a newsman, an accountant-attorney and family members of both the deceased and the accused.

The latter included Daniel's brother, Houston; his wife, Charlotte; and a cousin.

Larry Moore, Vickie Daniel's ex-husband, appeared before the panel for 25 minutes and was followed by his young daughter, Kimberly.

Both state and defense sources said Kimberly witnessed a quarrel, or perhaps an altercation, prior to the shooting.

But they differed sharply in what the child may or may not have seen and heard.

The district attorney said in response to a question that he expected Kimberly to be called a witness.

"I think she would be called as a defense witness," he disclosed.

He said she did not witness the shooting, but he told reporters that the slaying apparently followed an argument between Daniel and his wife.

"I wasn't surprised by the indictment," he added.

Earlier in the day, the panel first heard from Liberty County Sheriff C.L. Eckols, who led the investigation.

Andrew J. Lannie of Baytown, Mrs. Daniel's lawyer, said Mrs. Daniel is still under a physician's care, is taking medication and still suffers from severe shock.

The decision not to appear before the grand jury, he said, was a medical decision, not a legal one.

Mrs. Daniel was not charged until Saturday, five days after the evening killing. She was hospitalized after the shooting and released Friday. Her doctors said she suffered from shock and hysteria.

Daniel died from internal bleeding after the bullet struck his aorta, a major artery, an autopsy showed.

Eckols said Lannie told him a warning shot was fired. The bullet was never found but the sheriff said it went through the ceiling and out the roof.

In Indonesian Ship Tragedy...

Surviving Children Saw Their Parents Drowning

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — "The waves were very high. We saw our father and mother popping up once in a while in the waves. We called and screamed at the top of our voices and then we saw them no more," the 9-year-old girl said.

Juanita Armesetiawati and her 6-year-old brother Mewotan were among the 762 survivors pulled from the heaving Java Sea after the passenger ship Tampomas 2 burned and sank Tuesday in Indonesia's worst sea disaster.

The boy and girl were brought to the South Sulawesi port of Ujung Pandang today as rescue ships and planes continued searching for the 374 dead and missing, including the children's parents, some 220 miles offshore.

The fire broke on the ship broke out Sunday night, and Juanita said, "I was awakened by a lot of noise. We were all disturbed by the confusion."

She said her father, a plantation worker, told them, "The ship will never make it," but put a life vest on, "and we followed our father's action."

She said her family and hundreds of other passengers jumped overboard Monday to save themselves from the flames, and that her parents disappeared beneath the waves.

Both Juanita and her brother were found floating unconscious when a rescue ship picked them up.

Some of the survivors were taken to the East Java capital of Surabaya, and dozens of them had broken arms and legs and were carried down the gangplank on stretchers.

One woman, five months pregnant, was in critical condition.

A man said he lost his wife and two children in the disaster.

"I don't know what sins I committed to deserve such a punishment," he said.

Another, Andi Syamsuddin, 42, said, "When the ship was in a raging fire, everyone had to make a decision, jump into the turbulent waters or be burned alive."

He jumped, but he said many passengers "seemed too shocked to do anything."

Shipping sources speculated the fire began in one of the 166 cars being transported on the Tampomas 2, which left Jakarta Saturday bound for Ujung Pandang 1,000 miles to the east.

Leo Tocoalu, one of the 82 crew members, told reporters: "All I know is that the fire started in the bottom of the ship and all the passengers were told to go up. Only God knows how terrible it was."

Andi Mursalim, one of the passengers, was heading to his hometown in Ujung Pandang with his wife and mother.

"When the fire became very big, I knew we did not stand a chance. So my wife, my mother and I jumped into the waters," he said. He said he saw his mother rescued but his wife disappeared "in the mountains of waves."

Racquetball Instruction Available

Dalton Walton and Dr. Duane Hood will be serving as instructors for two classes in racquetball to be held at Western Texas College each Saturday during the spring semester.

A men's class is scheduled from 9-10 a.m., with a women's class from 10-11 a.m. Total cost will be $42 per person. The course will end on May 16.

Students may register by calling Dr. Hood's office at 573-8511, extension 204, or by calling his residence at 573-8208 after 5 p.m.

The first class session will be held on Feb. 7.

"We are looking for players of limited experience who would like to receive instruction and find new playing partners of the same ability level," Dr. Hood said.

Enrollment will be limited. Facets to be covered will include court safety, serves, basic shot making, and court position.
