BLOOD AND SAND FROM EL TORO

Phew! That's over—or at least that part of it. All "a-settin' pretty in a pretty little college down in Lubbock town" and just rarin' for the fun to begin.

Just like coming back to your old home town, it was, when the corridors, and halls, and rooms filling this morning with students and teachers, and others. Mostly others.

Just like our luck. Instead of staying in line with that little song we used to sing when we got religious, we had to go and take a detour, so that "when that roll was called up yonder, we weren't there." That is, the honor roll. Understand that quite a number of students got their name in the paper. Huh! If that's all it takes, just watch us. Even though if we don't get by with that, chances are that we'll write an ad, just to get to sign our picture to it!

Personally, we wouldn't mind if they did get up a good hand of pitch-7-up or down, or even poker. We surely do hold a full hand of clubs. There's the concert band Monday night, the sock and buskin Tuesday night, press club Wednesday night, Southerners club Thursday night, something else Friday night, and—well, Saturday night was made for just one thing!

Anyway, sock and buskin club has a very important session tonight, 7:15. No play, but a real program at that. Musical, mostly, but our director general has threatened us with a couple of readings, so best be there. And then when that's over with we'll be in a shape to elect new officers for the term.

Sock and buskin club is due for some advertising real soon—maybe. Sure enough, though, something real fine is liable to be done by several members of the outfit. Rumor has it, and won't deny it, that one of the plays presented during the past term in recent years is to be taken abroad. Clear down to Spur—that's off the main line, you see!

"There's a long, long line awaiting" really and truly when all the kiddos were trying to get their grade books from the postoffice, during the Christmas rush.

Little dogs are just going to be exercised two days a week during this term, it is reported. Oh! you know that army that Lt. raised from a pup! Maybe they've got a bone of contention for them on the times for drills. Hevvin' know they should be contented.

ENROLLMENT IN LUBBOCK SCHOOLS MAKES BIG INCREASE DURING MONDAY; STEADY GROWTH FOR INSTITUTION IN PROSPECT

Enrollment in all of the schools of Lubbock made big increases when the doors were thrown open to students yesterday morning, after two weeks vacation period through the holidays.

The enrollment in the five big schools of Lubbock, including the high school, Junior High, George M. Hunt, K. Carter and central ward, showed an increase of 192 when the books were closed yesterday, while seven additional students were enrolled in the Mexican school and 15 in the negro school, bringing the total increased enrollment in the schools of the city to 214.

Conservative estimates on the increased enrollment of four schools in the outlying sections of the Lubbock independent school district bring the total increase in enrollment to not less than 230.

The pre-holiday enrollment was 3,800 students, with Monday's increased enrollment bringing the enrollment to a grand total of 3,839 students.

Conservative estimates based on the increase that has been made since the beginning of the present term are to the effect that there will be more than 4,000 students ready for enrollment.

HEREFORD CITIZENS CELEBRATE OPENING $125,000 HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING MONDAY; DR. HILL OF CANYON PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

Special to Avalanche. HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—The formal opening of Hereford's magnificent new $125,000 high school building was held Monday morning January 4, and practically all of Hereford turned out for the occasion.

Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the West Texas Teachers' College, of Canyon, delivered the principal address.

E. S. Ireland, president of the local school board; E. B. Black, president of the local Chamber of Commerce; Travis Dameron, principal of the local high school and Miss Gewendolyn Spradley, president of the senior class, made short talks.

Ralph Smith's High School orchestra gave several fitting musical numbers.

Superintendent C. H. Dillehay, president. Most of the local business houses closed for the program.

Doctor Hill called it a milestone in Hereford's development and said that it symbolized the interest of local people in the younger generation. "It is typical of educational progress over the entire nation," he declared. He urged the young people to learn how to use their surplus time profitably and said that our success in life would depend on the development of our spiritual and mental possibilities of life.

Doctor Hill gave a brief history of the educational development of the country and said that the Pathhandle of Texas ranks high in the educational scale. Travis Dameron likened the institution to a factory, not the kind that turns out brick or steel but the kind of factory which shapes and molds the lives of young people of the age.

President Ireland thanked Hereford folks for their wonderful cooperation in the erection of the new building. He said that its completion was a red letter day in the development of Hereford's educational system. He announced his retirement from the local school board and said that other duties forced him to retire. He is also mayor of

Quick Way to Stop Night Coughing

New Method is Remarkably Effective

No need to put up with that distressing, weakening, sleep-robbing night cough another night. For there is a simple but very effective treatment which, usually with a single dose, stops all irritation and lets you sleep soundly the whole night through.

This treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful at night before retiring and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly removes the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of night coughing. So the coughing stops quickly and you sleep all night undisturbed.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

BETTER THAN WHISKEY FOR COLDS AND FLU

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspirinal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspirinal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children for Aspirinal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night. (Adv)

POLAR OF THE CIRCUS

"What are you laughing at, Gypsy?" demanded Polar Bear, and puffed impatiently at the bars of his cage.

"At you, Polar!" came the answer, quick as wink.

"At me? For what?" Now, Polar did want to get a good look at a bear who could find anything funny about being shut up.

"At me? For what?" How Polar did want to get a good look through the bars and only got pinched for his pains.

"Ouch!" squealed he, and then never thought another thing about his hurt. Black Bear was speaking.

"Save your sympathy, Cousin, for some one who really needs it. I am not a bit sorry for myself. I like it here," said that strange fellow.

"You do! How can you?" Polar Bear's eyes were popping with surprise.

"Well, to begin with, I came here of my own accord." Black Bear chuckled again. "It is all very well for those who like it to spend their days by themselves. As for me, give me company. I love folks—plenty of them and all kinds. I like fun, too. And what fun is there in being alone? I am a tramp, and, like all tramps, I'm happy."

"But you can't wander now. You are shut up!" growled Polar Bear, who could not make out what it was all about.

"Yes, for a while, that's true," admitted Gypsy, the Black Bear. "But what a beautiful horse is mine. 'Tis green as grass, with gold stripes that run up and down. Look across the way at the Lion's cage and you will see the marvels of which I speak. His house and ours are as alike as three peas. There was a time when I was hungry when my tummy cried for food and I could find none. Does that ever happen now. Never! Twice a day does a Kind Two-Legs come and with his own hands give me all I can eat and drink. Here I am never too cold nor too warm nor too lonely. As for the smell you think is so disagreeable, you'll like it, mark my words! 'Tis such a friendly smell. Every breath you draw will tell you that now you need no longer hunt and fish and fight alone for your life in the frozen North, but that you are safe among friends. You are Polar of the Circus."

ENGLISHMAN FINDS MAJORITY IN AMERICA IN FAVOR OF PROHIBITION

Hon. Arthur Henderson, M. P., on his return to England after a recent visit to America, gave it as his observation that "so far as one could see, there is a remarkable absence of cases of drunkenness in the streets and public places." He also said that during his trip he had been frequently told that if the question of prohibition were submitted to the people again a majority would, beyond doubt, favor it.

"With regard to Prohibition it was not possible to form any final opinion, as reliable data was not too plentiful, and opinion as to the value of the change from the standpoint of moral reform was divided.

"General agreement does exist that the saloon is so discredited and its abolition so beneficial to the community that no one seriously advocates its return. Abuse of the Prohibition law is admitted, but the extent of the violations, the amount of liquor involved, and whether the abuse is likely to become a permanent feature are matters on which views conflict.

"Some of the methods of evasion resorted to are so discreditable as to have their reactions with some of the more thoughtful who are not altogether favorable to Prohibition. But Prohibition is the law, and outside Governments might do more than they are doing to prevent their own nationals from contravening it and creating many of the difficulties with which those responsible for administering and enforcing the Act are faced.

"Among two sections of the public, it is generally claimed, opinion in favor of the law is very strong—large employers and the wives of former frequenters of the saloon. My own inquiries fully satisfied me on this point. And, so far as one could see, there is a remarkable absence of cases of drunkenness in the streets and public places.

"I was frequently told, and not always by persons who entirely approve of the Prohibition law themselves, that if the matter had again to be submitted to popular vote, there is no doubt that Prohibition would be adhered to by the majority of the people."

THE ANTI-PROHIBITION FIGHT.

The anti-prohibitionists have been building a long string of propaganda that is being used to influence congress in making laws modifying the Volstead act, etc., and that this has had its effect cannot be successfully denied and many people have weakened on the proposition not that they want wines or beer themselves but they see the wholesale violation of the law and the numerous ways by which the laws have been evaded, but even with these facts in view, we cannot agree that any compromise will better the situation one bit, but will on the other hand make it harder to enforce the law and give those supporting the laws much trouble in enforcing them. The trouble as we see it is at the seat of the government. The government of the United States is too big, and too mighty for the people to have to say that it "cannot" enforce the prohibition law. This law can be enforced and to the letter of the law. Proper men can be secured to head the departments to banish it from the United States.

We saw in a report recently given shows how beneficial prohibition has been and how men have straightened up and made money since prohibition has been in effect. The statement follows:

"The most convincing evidence I have had during the past year that prohibition is proving more and more beneficial to working men was afforded me the other day when I visited the Union City Mission, in Minnesota, and talked with Mr. Paul, the superintendent, who took me into the club rooms, where some four or five hundred men were seated about the tables.

"These men are merely casual workers, who habitually make Minneapolis their winter headquarters. Mr. Paul stated he did not think a single one of them was under the influence of liquor, a marked contrast from former days. He told me, furthermore, that a year ago ten to twelve men under the influence of liquor would come into the mission daily while this year he sees probably one a day. This is certainly proof that working men are among the greatest benefactors of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The transfer of capital from industries manufacturing liquor to legitimate lines had even given employment then to three or four times as many working men as were formerly employed in the liquor industry.

"My territory for the Department of Labor embraces seven west central states. I have made it a point to ascertain what becomes of the buildings formerly housing breweries when I visit the forty odd cities in this district. Without exception the buildings now house industries which employ from three to four times as many wage-earners, at better wages, than previously.

"A million dollars invested in iron and steel employs nearly 500 people; leather products 450, printing about the same, while the same amount invested in liquor employed only seventy-seven.

"There is a building in Joplin, Missouri, formerly used as a brewery. At the time twelve wage-earners were employed. Today the same building houses a wholesale grocery establishment employing eighty people. This is not an isolated case. Instances of this kind can be cited in practically every city in the country.

"Labor is more stabilized in America than ever before, due to the fact that prohibition has brought working men to their senses. Employers throughout the middle west say labor turn-over is smaller than ever before, and ascribe this to prohibition more than to any other factor."

"We believe that our congressmen and senators should have the strong support of the people at home and it would be a very good thing if the people would say to these congressmen in no uncertain terms that a repeal or modification of the present prohibition laws are not wanted but if any changes are to be made, it should be to tighten the lid and make it more drastic than ever.

Sheep growers and silk manufacturers have something to worry about over artificial wool and silk. The new silk is already on the market in great quantities, and the chemical wool, made from wood fibre in the same manner that artificial silk is produced, will soon be found in abundance. It is said to have the same soft warm feel of lamb's wool. The Department of Commerce says this new wool will sell for from fifty cents to one dollar per pound as compared to two dollars for real wool. Restrictive legislation will not aid the wool grower to any great extent if the new fabric meets public approval, but it may help in adopting Senator Capper's truth-in-fabrics bill which has been pending in Congress these many years.

Although an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission indicates that the practices of the Aluminum Company of America are not consistent with the law, the Department of Justice has, for some reason, failed to act on the information. This corporation exercises a practical monopoly in the manufacture and sale of aluminum products in the United States, and though its profits under the tariff of 1913 were enormous, they were doubled under the tariff of 1922. Representatives Oldfield's resolution for a Congressional investigation may result in removing this particular concern from the "infant industry" class.

A Chicago attorney told the Illinois Bar Association that while ignorance of law is not acceptable as an excuse for its violation, if everyone were to know the law they would have to read continuously six hundred years and then remember all they have read. The greatest evil seems to be that too many laws are created to meet some specific case and is then lost until some explorer unearths it. Nearly all laws are passed by one class of people to govern the other class—and when law-breaking bodies change, the shoe on the other foot, as it were, we are deluged with another contradictory code.

Less than a year ago railroad information bureaus in this country were painting doleful pictures of the failure of the Canadian National railway system. It was finally shown that these railroads under private ownership, were all bankrupt, and the government had to take them over to preserve some sort of a transportation system. A statement just issued shows that for the past 11 months of this year as compared with $14,483,000 in 1925, and $16,723,000 in 1923.

Aristocratic England has been shocked to such an extent that its favorite sport, fox hunting, may have to be abandoned. The cause of all this trouble is a "workingman's hunting club" which not only chases foxes with all kinds of dogs and uses rifles to kill, but hold hunt breakfasts of bread, pickles, cheese and beer. The other day a party of "orthodox" hunters met the workingmen's party and hostilities were narrowly averted. This old world seems to be going to the demnation how-ows in more ways than one.

Wishes are fine things as far as they go, but they must be coupled with driving power. Good wishes are a drug on the market—but a worthwhile worker will always get there.

During 1926 at least one of every hundred employees will be promoted—some of them made executives. Have you fitted yourself to fill one of these better positions?

Less than ten years ago the membership of farmers co-operative organizations was less than 650,000. Today the membership exceeds 2,000,000. Over 306,000 cotton growers are members of "co-ops". Dairy products list nearly 500,000; fruit growers are members of "co-ops"; rddtao fruit growers have 250,000 members; live stock, tobacco and poultry list nearly 600,000. The total value of business handled was over $2,500,000,000—one-fifth of the total production.

Before the war discussion was rife as to the minimum wage—we wanted to determine how little a human being could live on and still exist. Since the war, however, wages have advanced, but not out of proportion with other things. Is it not peculiar that increased wages should be constantly challenged while unearned incomes, however huge, cause neither inquiry nor rebuke?

SO THINK WE

We think that many of the State this year will possibly candidates for office throughout need vindication and votes both to put them over at the polls.

We think scientists are fast making people safe from everything, except people. You cannot tell what folks are going to do. Especially at the steering wheel of an automobile.

We think this may sound just a bit queer, but just think a little about the philosophy of the statement "Many people climb to considerable height, by remaining on the level."

We think that this talk of extravagance of dress has almost gone too far in some respects. It has almost eliminated everything, in some instances.

We think that a good time of credit has caused a lot of folks to live beyond their income and their credit has been a curse rather than a blessing to them. If you do not have sense enough to use your credit, it might be best to pay as you go and pay cash.

We think some men seem to think all that is necessary to content the cook is an attractive kitchen, but we find that the best of cooks cannot get up much of a meal on looks alone. It takes a lot of good substantial food to make a real attractive meal.

We think if the public did not demand so much of the class of news that a lot of folks call scandal, there would not be so much of it printed.

We think there never was a better time than now, for the men of this city to realize that their life is being watched by some boy of this community. You are some boy's model by which he is fashioning his life so what are you making of him—a fine citizen, a poker-player, a street loafing cigarette smoker, or what? It's time for men to think!

We think there is a lot in how people feel as to how conditions are, but there is one thing our young married people cannot feel rich and start out in life to live in high style on an income of $50 per week and spend more than they make and get by with any degree of success.

We think from some of the letters we have received recently that some of the stenographers do not have much more sense than their bosses, from the number of wrongly spelled words and other evidences of lack of good style. The young ladies possibly had bobbed hair, rolled stockings and a number of other late "fads" on her mind and was probably a bit "over-taxed."

We think that the churches of this community have a great opportunity of making some real social life in this city for the young people. We have heard it said repeatedly by young people who have come here to make this their home that this is a very hard place for young people to get started into social activities. This should not be the case, and we hope some of the churches will see to it that this complaint is no longer justified, and that the young people will be furnished with wholesome pleasures, and made to enjoy themselves as soon as they arrive in the city.

We think there is great need for municipal playgrounds in Lubbock or at least some place where the children can go and be entertained under proper supervision, so that they will be off the streets.

We think that the traffic laws certainly should be enforced, especially around the school building and grounds. It is wonders that a dozen school children have not been killed before this time by people speeding past the school grounds. It is dangerous, and there should be an immediate stop put to it.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that the Tech campus is swarming with students getting ready for business in the winter term.

It is reported that there is still quite a bit of cotton to gather yet and the fine weather of the past few days is bringing it to the gins more rapidly.

It is reported that many people will devote more of their attention to poultry this year than ever before. Old biddy is a good advertiser and will help keep the bank account on the right side of the ledger.

It is reported that one or more oil rigs will be erected in the vicinity of Lubbock soon. That sounds like real business.

It is reported that many folks have not yet paid their auto tax or their poll tax. You will regret it if you fail to pay either on time.

It is reported that a lot of folks are still paying fines for parking on the hour zone and for speeding. Fast life is expensive even in an automobile.

It is reported that the reason women cannot serve on juries in Illinois, is because they argue too long. Wonder if the women are any worse at that in Illinois than in some of the other states?

It is reported that one of the collectors of a Lubbock concern said a few days ago that some of the folks around here must have received their fashion for paying their debts from Paris, they are so slow about making their payments.

It is reported that the 1925 cotton crop is still coming in.

THE BEST ADVICE

The Rule of Ancestors
It is true enough that EXPERIENCE is the mother of wisdom. It ought always to be added, however, that THOUGHT is the obstetrician of the midwife.

In general, of course, the old have more experience than the young. But it isn't true that older individuals always are wiser than younger ones. Some persons never learn their lessons, and others acquire them easily, while they're young.

A long time ago Syney Smith, wisest man of his time in England, observed that of INDIVIDUALS living at the same period, the oldest has, of course, the greatest experience, but among GENERATIONS of men the reverse of this is true.

Those who come first—our ANCESTORS—are the young people an dhave the least experience. We of today have added to their experience the lessons of many centuries; and, therefore, as far as experience goes, may be considered wiser.

Smith did not dispute our ancestors the palm of talent, in which they may or may not be our superiors, but the palm of experience in which it is impossible they can be our superiors.

Con such young, ignorant, inexperienced persons as our ancestors necessarily were, he expected to have understood a subject as well as those who have seen so much more, lived so much longer, and enjoyed the experience of so many more centuries?

Obviously, it cannot be maintained that our more recent ancestors, say those five thousand years back,

They told me, Heraclitus, they told me you're dead. They brought me bitter news to hear and bitter tears to shed. I wept as I remember'd how often you and I Had tired the sun with talking and sent him down the sky. And now that you are lying my dear old Carian guest, A handful of gray ashes, long ago at rest, Still are thy pleasant voices, they nightingales, awake; For Death, he taketh all away, but them he cannot take.

HUGE NEW STADIUM PLANNED BY N. DAK.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Jan. 4.—Paul L. Samuelson, alumnus, is chairman of a drive to raise funds for a new $500,000 Memorial stadium, gymnasium and field at the University of North Dakota. The new stadium, which will be patterned after that at the University of Illinois will be the finest in the Northwest except the one at the University of Minnesota.

DINNER STORIES

A couple of old grouches at a club were one night speaking of an old friend who, upon his marriage, took up his residence in another city. One of the grouches had recently visited the old friend, and, naturally, the other grouch wanted news of the benedict.

"Is it true that he is benedicted?" asked the seconds grouch. "I wouldn't say just that," grimly responded the first grouch, "but I'll tell you of a little incident in their household that same within my observation. The very first friend answered the letter carrier's whistle. As he returned to us, in the breakfast room, he carried a letter in his hand. Turning to his wife, he said:

"A letter for me, dear, May I open it?"

Once upon a time there was an Indian named Big Smoke employed as a missionary to his fellow Smokes.

A white man encountering Big Smoke, asked him what he did for a living.

"Umph!" said Big Smoke, "me preach."

"That so?" What do you get for preaching?"

"Me get ten dollars a year."

"Well," said the white man, that's damn poor pay."

"Umph!" said Big Smoke, "me damn poor preacher."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE SALESMAN COURAGEOUS

He came in as a salesman, head erect he said to me: "I'm selling here a product which I think you'd like to see. It's a handy thing for men folk, it's a useful thing for wives, it's a clever new invention made for sharpening carving knives." And I paid to him a dollar without giving it much thought. But I've learned some things about him since that article I bought.

He sold me on the merits of the thing he had to sell. Never let me guess that morning what a story he could tell. I thought him somewhat better than the common run of men. But the burden of his sorrow wasn't even hinted then. We were just two busy mortals working out our little lives, I a writer, he a salesman, of a thing for sharpening knives.

TEACHERS CAGERS OPEN PRACTICE WITH PEP

With the opening of the winter quarter at the West Texas State Teachers College, basketball practice opened with a bang. There are five letter men reporting regularly for practice and a host of last year's "yearlings" together with the best array of freshmen ever to report for basketball at the Teachers College.

The letter men are Captain Alex Hale who is playing his second year with the Buffaloes and who is regarded as one of the best floor men in the state. Cleatice Crump, of Ralls, is Hale's running mate at forward and is also playing his second year. Otella Herm, of Snyder, is playing his first year with the Herd and is rated high in basketball circles of the state. Hill who lives in Canyon is Herm's running mate at guard and is also an outstanding man of this section of the country. Ray Bivens the other letter man is one of the best utility men ever developed at the College. He has not played as long as Hill or Herm, but will be lost to the teams after this year, by graduation.

The four regulars from last year's team, Hill, Herm, Hale and Crump were recognized by basketball experts throughout the state as the cage game's best men. Practically every coach that saw Herm work last year named him as the outstanding guard of the T. I. A. A. He was almost unanimously chosen for all the T. I. A. A. selections. Hill was chosen as the other guard position by many coaches and officials and in one or two instances was rated ahead of Herm. For the forward selections Crump was probably the favorite of the coaches of the T. I. A. A. He scored more points than any other man in the conference and was also a splendid man for team work. Hale his running mate received honor in some instances he was placed on the all star cast. He was probably the best floor man the Buffaloes had last year and was popular with the men because of the fact that he would rather see a bad score than to score himself.

Of the reserves from last year Bill Anderson, Finis Vaughn and Oscar Gamel seem to be the best prospects just at this time. Anderson and Vaughn are guards, while Gamel played forward last year. It is rumored that Coach Burton is planning to make a running guard of Gamel. Gamel is getting a slow start this year however owing to the fact that an old football injury he received in the Texas Tech game is still bothering him very slowly. He is one of the fastest men in school when at himself. Fuller who played regular center last season was unable to return to school this year on account of sickness in the family. For this position Coach Burton has a wealth of material. They are all working hard trying to land the place. The outstanding men for this place are "Red" Keith of Ralls, Ben Pearson of Tullis, Delbert Lowes of Canyon and Joe Nipper of Hedley. All four of these men are showing the fight and in all probability the one of them that fits best into the team play with the four regulars from last year will be the choice of the "Big" Coach when the time comes.

Of the new men reporting it is difficult just now to tell who the leaders are, but some of them who are showing good ability are besides the four candidates mentioned for center, Leon Reeves, Bill Stouley and Ansil-Adamson, of Headly; Milton Sanders and Jas. Oden of Canyon; Harry Kelley of Miami; Willie Bennett of Amarillo; Rhodes of Midland and Mason Anderson of Canyon. Besides these there are a number of others that will doubtless show more and more ability as the season grows older.

The team will play one of the stiffest schedules ever arranged for a cage team of the College. However there will be more games played at home than the past four years. This is because of the fact that the new gymnasium is ready for use and that there will be seating room for as many fans as will want to attend the games. Coach Burton has made a wonderful record with his cage teams since coming to the College. In the past four years he has played a total of 77 games and has won 45 of them. All but one of these games has been lost away from home on long road trips. Only one game being dropped on the home court in the past four years. Starting the season last year with only one regular from the '24 team and with not an abundance of new material, Burton succeeded in whipping a team into the field that was successful in winning twenty of the twenty-three games played. Seventeen of these games were played away from home and the long road trips were largely responsible for these three defeats last season. Five of the twelve games lost in the past four years were lost by one point. Two of these games were lost at Oklahoma A. & M. College at Stillwater the year they won the championship of the Southwestern conference.

Prospects were never brighter for a winning team than they are at this time. But Coach Burton will not let the men get too optimistic about the outlook. He is taking no chances, but is going about the work systematically building from the ground, dealing with fundamentals and seeing that everything is carried out in a systematic way and that the situations most likely to occur in basketball games are taken care of long before the game is played. In all there are about forty men working each afternoon and many times when a casual visitor comes in to look things over asks which is the first team as the playing is on such an even basis that it is difficult at times to tell which team is the best.

Slaton Tigers And Westerners Play Tonight

Tonight the Lubbock high school Westerners will go into the new year with an engagement with the Slaton high school Tigers at the high school gymnasium at 7:30.

This game promises to be one of interest as the two clubs are about equally matched and about the same material and old men back for the 1925 season. Miller, the Tiger coach, put out a good club in 1925 and has practically the same club back in action for this year.

Coach Niles' team is in good condition and are going into the year with the hopes of producing one of the best cage clubs that the high school history has had in the past.

The probable line up for the Westerners: Hays, an Adkinson, forward; Ing and Allen, guards; Reed, center.

Cycling Becomes Popular Sport At Hereford

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Cycling is becoming a popular form of recreation for the boys of Hereford, especially those who belong to the local Boy Scout Council. Last year William (Bill) Parker, and Paul Wright Barnett were awarded merit badges in cycling, after making the trip to Amarillo, a distance of 32 miles in six hours with a stop of thirty minutes in Canyon for lunch, on their bicycles. These lads received certificates from Scout Headquarters through F. H. Nelson, Scout Executive, for the Panhandle Area. The boys have merit badges already in the following: swimming, automobile, personal health, camping, electricity, pathfinding, cooking, life saving and firemanship. Bill Parker and Barnett hold merit badges in Cycling Certificates from the National Red Cross and are star scouts in the local council.

Hereford Aggie Students Busy During Holidays

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Aggie students of the Hereford High School have been busy during the holidays, helping to install the equipment in the new $125,000 high school building, and these lads feel proud that they have had a hand in the completion of the new seat of learning. Prof. C. W. Humble and his vocational students helped to install the steel lockers in the corridors of the new building, and made such a record with their work that contractors retained them to rearrange the lockers and class room chairs, and to help move the equipment from the old building into the new high school.

The boys received from thirty to fifty cents per hour for their work. The money that was made during class periods will go towards buying equipment for the agriculture department, but the money made during the holidays will be used by the boys for their own individual needs. Contractors claim that the Aggie students were more dependable and learned more quickly than available labor picked up here and there.

Prof. Humble and his class have been selected to do the landscape gardening for the campus grounds, and the are all busy studying information from various high schools on degrees in different sections that pertain to the work. With the abundance of pure water that can be obtained in the famous Hereford shallow water belt, the class can put out just as many trees and much grass as will be needed to make the campus one of the most beautiful in the state.

Hereford Girls Basketball Team Loom as Winners

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Hereford high school should have the best girls' basketball team during the coming season, that has ever upheld the honors of the local school. With the indoor basketball court in the gymnasium of the new $125,000 high school building, the girls can train during the most severe weather.

More than twenty aspirants have been coming out regularly for practice and more are expected out before the season gets far advanced. Blanche McDonald, an experienced goal taker has been selected to lead the local sextette during the 1926 season, and her experience and scoring ability will be an added asset to the team.

Miss Fern Axtell, high school instructor is scheduled to coach the girls. She is very optimistic over bright prospects for the coming season. Early training shows that every position will be hotly contested, and those who make the team will have to hustle. A strong schedule is being arranged for the girls.

BIG ATTENDANCE AT FORMAL OPENING OF WHOLESALE BAKERY PLANT IS INDICATIVE OF THE POPULARITY ENJOYED BY MARTIN

R. H. Martin, owner of Martin's bakery, was host to all Lubbock at the formal opening of his new plant on East Broadway last night, every arrangement for the entertainment of the visitors having been made. The two mammoth ovens, having a total capacity of 700 loaves of bread, were inspected by the visitors along with all other features of the big plant, who took special interest in the immense oil burners which furnish heat for the ovens.

A unique demonstration was conducted as a part of the formal opening program and the spectators were given an opportunity to see the bread making process, the raw flour and other ingredients first being shown, then the mixing process was carried out, through the raising troughs then kneaded, made into rolls and placed on the large capacity racks to rise before being placed in the ovens. Many of the visitors were surprised at the large number of huge racks provided for storage of the finished product, but when Mr. Martin explained that the bakery has an average production capacity of 700 loaves of bread to order, the large quantities of pies, cakes, cookies and rolls, they could readily see the necessity of this equipment.

The interior of the big bakery was especially attractive, being finished in white throughout, and received much favorable comment from the visitors. Souvenirs were given all visitors, and beautiful calendars were given for each family represented at the opening.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Texas Tech orchestra, the well selected numbers blending well with the artistic settings arranged especially for the formal opening.

The people of Lubbock have seen Martin's Bakery grow from an obscure little shop to one of the big wholesale and retail institutions of the Plains, involving an investment larger perhaps than is devoted to a like enterprise anywhere in West Texas.

SALE OF HIGH BRED CATTLE IN APRIL

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Hereford breeders from all sections of the country are expected to flock to this city in early April to attend the big sale of high bred cattle which E. B. Black, local breeder, expects to stage. Black is now conditioning sixty head of intensely bred Anxiety 4th Herefords. Twenty of these are bulls between the ages of twelve and eighteen months. Twenty cows with calves at side make up the other forty head. This is probably the biggest individual Hereford sale that has ever been planned for Deaf Smith County, and is one of the biggest that has ever been held in Texas.

The animals that are consigned to the sale are from four outstanding herds, three of which are still in use on the E. B. Black farm. Modest Mischief by Superior Mischief, Mischief 5th by Superior Mischief, and Donald Starway by Bright Starway are Black's three herd bulls. Several animals sired by Superior Mischief will also be in the sale. Black has been breeding Anxiety 4th Herefords for the past seven years, an enduring that time has been keeping plus choice cows and heifers for breeding purposes. He now has three hundred head of intensely bred Anxiety 4th stuff. Black will put only the best of his herd in the sale as he is out to build up a reputation in his first sale. He operates a fifteen hundred acre farm in connection with his Hereford business, and the huge grain crop of the past year will enable him to condition his animals almost entirely from home grown products. His farm is located near Black in Farmer county on the main line of the Santa Fe railroad, some fifteen miles southwest of Hereford.

Exercise of two kinds is necessary to enable one to reduce: exercise of the body and exercise of the will. It takes a good deal of the latter to curb the appetite.

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Ralph Barnett, local insurance man, and boy scout worker, is doing a lot towards training the young boys of Hereford. He is Scout Commissioner for the city and takes much interest in the activities of the boys. The local council was organized last spring and has sixty-five members already. Fifty-three merit badges have been awarded and five of the local scouts have already become Star Scouts.

Paving Bond Issue At Hereford Called For February

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Mayor E. S. Ireland has just ordered a bond election for February 2, at which time the citizens of Hereford will vote on the question of issuing $67,000 worth of paving bonds, and on the question of the issuance of bonds for waterworks extension in the sum of $7,500 on the same date. A petition signed by a representative number of the tax paying voters of Hereford, was presented to the city commission several days ago asking for the bond election. The city commission deemed it advisable to extend the water mains and the sewerage facilities before the paving was laid in certain parts of the city.

If the bond issue carries, between forty and fifty blocks in the residence section of Hereford will be paved during the spring months, and each church and school building in the city will be placed on pavement, according to plans. It is believed here that the bond issue will carry by a large majority, as most of Hereford people seem to be in favor of more pavement for the city.

The Smith home, Lawson is serving a sentence for robbery in Osage county.

Strangely enough, men who are acquainted with the alleged outrages against the Indians and who can relate stories of cruelty more blood-curdling than those of the old frontier days, declare that Birkhart, the husband of Mrs. Smith's sister, Little is known of the history of Bloyd except that he was a deputy sheriff at the time Lawson was in the Osage county jail.

Monday's developments have brought interest to a fever pitch here, and it is freely predicted that the true story of an amazing "murder ring" will yet be revealed in all its sinister aspects.

It is said that about twenty wealthy Osage Indians were killed off by the plotters within a period of three years, extending from 1921 to 1924. At the time little publicity was given to a series of unnatural deaths among the Osage, despite the whispered rumors that the violent deaths were the result of organized malicious intent.

The work was planned for the year, in a more systematic way than in the past, we hope to accomplish much good, through the co-operative service of the workers. The good to be derived from the work of our Laymen can not be estimated. Christ is depending on you, as one of His ambassadors, can you be depended on to carry His message to a lost world. You have a talent, what have you done with it? We need you, and earnestly ask your help and prayers in this, the Masters work. The following officers were elected:

G. A. Gunn, President. Prof. M. H. Duncan, Vice-Pres. L. M. Brooks, Music Director. Mrs. L. M. Brooks, Pianist. Mrs. T. J. Moore, Secretary.

Watson's proposition is doubtless one which will be materialized and the fact that he and his associates are actually moving drilling equipment toward Lubbock may be taken as an indication of their faith in the reports of the geologists whom they have employed.

The receipt of the telegram at the office of Mr. Watson here yesterday enabled him to permit the Morning Avalanche to publish the first definite news account of possible drilling activities here, and absolutely confirm the report that was given in this paper some weeks ago about the possibility of drilling activities on the Watson farm.

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Ralph Barnett, local insurance man, and boy scout worker, is doing a lot towards training the young boys of Hereford. He is Scout Commissioner for the city and takes much interest in the activities of the boys. The local council was organized last spring and has sixty-five members already. Fifty-three merit badges have been awarded and five of the local scouts have already become Star Scouts.

Class of 1926 Hereford School Is Very Busy

HEREFORD, Jan. 4.—Seniors of the Hereford High School are very busy this year, and are doing much towards the development of student life in addition to keeping up with their regular school studies. The class is putting out a high school annual, is editing the "Senior Power", a quarterly publication of the school activities, and weekly editions in the Hereford Brand. In addition to this every one of the seniors are taking active part in literary and athletic organizations.

There are thirty-five in the graduating class at present. This is one of the largest in the history of the local high school, and more will probably start at the opening of the second semester. This will be the first graduating class in Hereford's new $125,000 high school building which has just been completed.

Brandon had arranged with her for the visit, that day, to Eggleston at his home on the Avenue. They planned for Joanna to pick Brandon up at his office in a downtown skyscraper, and drive him, in her new smart cabriolet, to the Eggleston mansion. This appointment had been for one o'clock, as they were to lunch with the banker. The cabriolet, with his chauffeur in gray that matched the silken loveliness within, drew up in front of Yvonne's shortly after eleven. Joanna, soft and graceful and elegant in beautiful fox-trimmed mink, a little black hat pulled down over her eyes, and carrying a plant swigger stick in her hand, tripped lightly down the steps and into her car. Martha had turned her out quickly to make it possible for her to meet her car so soon after eleven. Yet there was nothing of drowsiness in her face or her eyes. She was alert, vibrant, and confident of the supreme perfections of her appearance.

She made her driver put his head inside the door while she gave him instructions—orders that seemed explanation and repetition.

The car did not go down the Avenue in the swiftly moving panorama of other smart cabriolets, toward the office building where Brandon, later would be waiting for her. Instead it turned into one of the drab streets also avenues but only in name, and moved swiftly between the pillars of the elevated railroad into neighborhood most visited by delivery and freight vans. It came at last to a cross street which pierced a district of tenements of the better grade—old dwellings made into furnished rooms and cramped housekeeping flats; much the kind of homes as that which had been Joanna's, at Mrs. Adams'.

The chauffeur scanned the house numbers, many of which were hidden. Joanna gave him more directions through her speaking tube. He stopped just beyond a corner and opened the cabriolet door.

"It is the fourth house from here, on this side," Joanna explained. "You will recognize it by the sign at the side of the door. It reads, 'John Wilmore, architect.' There'll be an old woman with a rag tied around her head come to the door—if any of the children answer you tell them to get the old woman, she's the landlady. She's all right, if she doesn't think you're an officer come to take her in for having a flower pot or something on the fire escape. If she does she'll slam the door in your face, so you'd better stick this bill in her hands as soon as she sees you. The name of the man, Mr. Wilmore is in. If he is five her another bill and tell her to keep her mouth shut about the inquiry. If he isn't tell her that I'm coming in to talk to her."

Chapter XIX

A Visit to John's Quarters
From her silken cushions in the cabriolet Joanna waited impatiently until her chauffeur, after a brief parley at the door of the house to which she had sent him returned.

The man said: "The woman came. She says Mr. Wilmore is not at home."

"Then you may wait for me here."

A half score of street urchins already had gathered about the smartly shining cabriolet, its dull gray shades carried from its dusty fittings to the satin sheen of its expensive hood. Such an imposing car seldom invaded that neighborhood and its placid company of ghosts of the days when the streets of the great metropolis were streets of home and not mere sleeping quarters.

The slim, elegant figure that few patrons of a silk counter would have recognized, smiled at the urchins, pushed through them, and entered, flaxing, into the depths of the house where John had found for himself a tiny sleeping room and another, a larger one, with the precious north light, which he could turn into his own workroom.

During the days John served at his apprenticeship with the firm of architects who provided him his necessary training. His talents were recognized. A bright future was predicted for him. But, so far, John's returns had been indeed meager—as is the usual condition of a student of a difficult profession.

If at times, Foreman, Van Brent & Craig were dubious of their young John Wilmore, it was because he was inclined to be a dreamer. That is, they, his tutors and employers, were of the mind that was much too eager to skip such fundamentals as the proper angle of a drain pipe and contemplate monumental harmonies.

Perhaps John would have agreed with the wiser heads that guided him through his student possibilities. Perhaps that was why he confined his dreaming, as far as possible, to his one large room, and worked there, over his drawing board, with his blue prints and tracings by the north light in the early mornings, and the incandescent light through the evenings that had not been Joanna's.

The "old woman" who faced the girl with the swigger stick inside the drab hallway, might have been, were she not so frankly frowny, a replica of Mrs. Adams. She once had been on the stage. The flood gates of her wondrous memories were ever at the point of lifting. Between her and "John's girl" barriers had been broken down forever when Joanna, who on more than one occasion sat through an evening with John in his work-room, trying as best she could to fathom the things he talked about, made her come up and recount the triumphs of old with its certain calls and its jealousies and marvelous romances. Joanna admitted to John, at that time, that she would much rather hear his landlady's monologues than listen to him rave about gargoyles and such musty things.

The landlady was convincingly dramatic when she identified "John's girl" in the radiant vision which smiled so sweetly at her. There was, even, thrilling drama in her elaborate service to the code that "asks no questions and gets no snubbing." She measured Joanna from smart little hat to smart, sapphire-buttoned suedes, and reached her own conclusions over the swigger stick, but she said, only:

"Of course you can, Miss. You can go right in. Mr. John's been gone since breakfast. He isn't been doing much work of late, it seems, because he's seemed kind of restless like."

For some mysterious reason the landlady's gaze rested on the sapphire slipper buckles, as if the depths of them contained the explanation of her lodger's sudden idleness.

"I know that Mr. John will have nothing to say about the likes of you paying his rooms a visit whenever you want."

"But that is what you must help me about," Joanna announced. "I don't want him to know that I have been here. You must make a little plot with me not to tell him. If you say that you won't, I know I may trust you."

As to this the landlady was not at all sure. Her watery, shrewd eyes narrowed a little and appraised the face of the girl who, plainly, wasn't "John's girl" any more.

"Well, now, she temporized, "as to that, Miss, I'll have to think a

"As your banker," Eggleston returned, "you must give me my instructions."

A man's house is his castle, like I used to say in the old days when I was ingenuo for Raymond Hitecock who, I must say, had his pick of ingenues and knew how to do the picking. Of course that was only in comic opera and it was a sad, even Hickey couldn't put over if I wasn't there to see him right, but still that's the way it is, you know."

Joanna had listened patiently. "But it will be all right," she protested. "John and I haven't any secrets—you see, I'm still 'John's girl,' and always will be, no matter what happens, although he has another notion just now. This must be a secret from him, your secret and mine, and it's just something I want that he must not know about for a little while." She gave the landlady the full benefit of a smile and a pleading from deep brown eyes that were irresistible. Grudgingly the woman gave, shrugged her angular shoulders and agreed that if "that's the way it is, I guess I'll be all right. I don't think I'll find any love letters from other girls, Mr. John's not that way with girls."

Joanna opened her handbag, and added, to the bills which already crumpled in the landlady's hand, left there by the chauffeur, a much larger one. Then she tripped up the stairs to the door through which John had delighted in the past, occasionally to usher her.

When she crossed the threshold she faltered. For an instant Joanna Manners, girl of mystery and money, was "Miss Twenty-seven" again, violating all the conventions of a more particular age, and stealing in with John to cuddle up on his Troysed sofa and listen while he built wonderful structures that reached to the sky as surely as ever did a castle that grew up in Spain. O'nmot of those nights she would have preferred to be out dancing. They were, in a way, her sacrifices. She'd told him, once, that if he'd put his drawing board away and use the big room to practice up on his fox trot he'd make a bigger hit with her.

Joanna brushed this reminiscence away with the back of her hand, passing it petulantly across her forehead. She crossed the room to a huge chest of drawers in which John kept his papers, great sheets of blue print, plans, and tracings.

As if she well knew the contents of those drawers Joanna plunged her gray gloved fingers directly in among a sheaf of papers in a middle drawer. When she brought them out they brought also a big blue square on which there were lines and diagrams in a confusion that many times had wearied here eyes. There were other sheets that were similarly marked, as if they were duplicates on which infinitesimal alterations had been made. Joanna had chosen one of them, seemingly at random, and appeared to be satisfied.

Ruthlessly, careless of her deadly glare to the smoothness of an architect's drawing, she folded the blue print into a minute square and thrust it, crumpled, into her bag. Then she turned back to the door.

Just for a moment she stopped and dropped into a corner of the sofa. She pulled her legs under her and curled up. She patted a place in a cushion and rested her elbow in it and propped her head on her hand. And as if she were talking to someone who sat or stood in front of the drawing board over by the window she murmured, softly:

"John dear, you're such a tiresome old thing! I can't get all that stuff straight in my head at all. Why don't you come over and tell me how much you love me?"

When she had said this out into the empty room she got up from the sofa and went swiftly out, closing the door behind her, softly.

The landlady hovered about in the hall, Joanna nodder to her and said, "I found what I wanted. It'll be all right—some days. Remember your promise—it's to be a secret between us—that I was here. John will never miss what I took."

When her car drew up at the skyscraper Brandon was waiting. He climbed in beside her, paid his compliments, and the cabriolet sped off toward the Avenue. Brandon caught one of her hands and gave it a gentle pressure.

"Do you know," he said "you were very nice to me, last night. I was beginning to be afraid that you would never decide to accept me as one of your necessary evils."

"And you think I have made up my mind that you are not to be offended," she challenged him. "Perhaps I have. At any rate, I'm not going to be afraid of you, but that doesn't mean that I don't know that I ought to be. But just now I'm not thinking of you, but of Mr. Eggleston. I want him to like me, and I wonder why he has asked me to see him." She was not watching him but she sensed a quick glance that took her in from head to foot.

"I rather imagine," he said, "that most anyone you want to admire you, will. It may be that even your banker will see his heart to you. Have you decided, too, upon that?"

"No," she said, very seriously, as if she were considering the matter deeply; "I would never, and as for a man to lose his heart to me, I'm the kind who do are always silly and wicked. And Mr. Eggleston isn't that sort. I'm dreadfully frightened of him, of the thing he knows, who gave me the money and why, but when I sit before him I feel as if there was something between us, something that isn't money. I don't know how to describe it, but it's something that makes me want to be liked by him, and trusted. He doesn't seem like a banker at all. I think all the things people have always said about him, his being so hard and cruel and merciless, are unjust."

"Yet I have known him to send a man to suicide by refusing his plea for a few paltry dollars to save him from bankruptcy. And I've seen him torture a woman who came to him to ask condescension from the bank that would have saved her from the contempt of her husband. I've known great institutions to fall overnight because he wouldn't lift his hand to save them."

"Yes," Joanna agreed. "He would do that. Just as Mr. Good Morning, the buyer in the store, sent a pretty girl to prison for stealing a pair of baby's silk socks. We girls at the counter took up a collection to pay her fine, when we heard there was really a baby the socks were intended for, but when we told Mr. Good Morning about it he snapped our heads off and threatened to fire every one of us if we dared such a thing. But just the same her fine was paid and she got off, and I almost gave him a date when I found out that he paid out of his own pocket what he wouldn't let us pay, and charged himself with three pairs of baby's socks and a baby's silk dress besides. Some men are that way, you know."

Brandon laughed, a short, insolent laugh that made Joanna hate him anew. "I would advise," he said, "that you never let your banker catch you in a hole that you need a gettime out of. You would do better to depend upon—shall I say the obvious thing?—me?"

She turned and looked at him deliberately. "If there was a hole for me to stumble into," she said, "you'd be the very one to push me in. And you would do the pushing with a kiss!" Then she smiled, brightly, at him. "Still, I'm going to be very nice to you, you know!"

MARKETS

New York Finance
By TODD W. WRIGHT
United States Financial Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Aside from an enthusiastic forward movement in the stock market in which numerous highs were established, the most important development in the financial world Monday was an easement in the call money rate to five per cent from the six per cent rate that has ruled for the past several weeks.

While this reduction has been expected with the turn of the year, some apprehension was felt over the $12,000,000 deficit in surplus reserves revealed in the Saturday bank statement, and Wall Street feared that the easier rates for demand funds would be postponed for several days.

However, following a calling of loans this morning to correct the bank's position, the money rate was lowered to 5 1-2 per cent and later in the day to 5 per cent with the resumption of business were predicting a return of 4 per cent money before the end of the week.

With such cheerful conditions prevailing in the money market, it was only natural that the feeling found reflection in the stock market and the upward climb was aided by the bright outlook in industrial circles.

The approaching New York automobile show is expected to reveal several important developments in the automobile industry, an auto motor stocks began Monday to discount this factor which undoubtedly will stimulate further buying.

While the most impressive gains were scored by the automobile stocks the general advance was under the leadership of U. S. steel, which shot up to within a fraction of its record high and carried other steel issues along with it.

The railroad and petroleum shares responded to record earning reports and impending consolidations. Carrier systems in the proposed merger of roads operating in the southwest were in particular edmand and were bid up to high levels.

Fire Discovered in Bush Building at Noon Yesterday

Occupants of the Bush Building were excited for a time on Monday when at 12:15 o'clock fire was discovered in a sack of cotton samples in the office of T. H. Bleecher & Company, cotton brokers.

This is the second fire of the season to be discovered in samples in this office, however, no damage was done as occupants of the office smothered the flames before any headway was made.

Members of the Lubbock fire department were called to the scene and were ready to use chemicals in fighting the flames but this was not advisable as was readily seen by Chief Twitty.

NEW LOCAL AID IS ATTRACTING MUCH ATTENTION HERE

James E. Watson, secretary of the Peoples Mutual Insurance Association, a local mutual aid association which the officers claim has been organized for the purpose of placing cheap beneficial insurance before the people of this section, declared yesterday that it will not be many days before the association will sell a new automobile to some policy holder for one dollar.

He declared that interest in the association is much better than was anticipated, and that the car is being given away in a campaign that has been launched in order to fill two series, which include 2500 policies, in the least time possible. Agents have been sent throughout this territory and indications are that the proposition offered by the new association is one that is meeting with the hearty approval of the people.

Walter Royalty to Be Among Dealers At Detroit Meet

Walter Royalty, of the Royalty Motor Company, local Dodge Brothers dealers, left yesterday for Chicago, New York and Detroit.

He will attend the Automobile Show at Chicago, going from there to New York thence to Detroit, where he will attend a mammoth sales meeting of Dodge Brothers representatives.

Mr. Royalty will be gone several days.

All Lyric Theatre Employees Retained By Management

G. T. Scales, manager of the Lyric theater, announced yesterday that no change in the personnel of the organization which had been perfected by F. McElroy, former owner of the theater, will be made.

A. E. Steel, chief projectionist, who has had charge of this department for the past five years, and who is well known to theater operators throughout west Texas, is among those assured permanent employment on the force.

Drink pasteurized milk. Purity guaranteed. Pasteurizing Milk Company. Phone 483.

Rev. Lynn Will Go To Wichita For Newspaper Work

Rev. C. E. Lynn, who for several years has been a resident of Lubbock and who has just recently returned to his home here after attending funeral services of his youngest brother at Wichita Falls, announced yesterday his intentions of going to that city soon to be employed in the circulation department of the Wichita Falls Time-Herald, one of the leading newspapers of West Texas.

Rev. Lynn has had a great deal of newspaper experience and will prove valuable to any publisher with whom he might be associated.

He will be accompanied to Wichita Falls by his son, Winford, while other members of the family will remain here until the close of the present term of school.

Rev. Lynn is one of the most valuable citizens of Lubbock county, having been active in the upbuilding of the churches here and throughout the county, and his plans to leave the city are regretted by numerous friends.

A. G. ROSS PROVES THERE'S PROFIT IN POULTRY

A. G. Ross, whose farm and poultry ranch is near Idalou, was in Lubbock yesterday looking after business.

Mr. Ross stated that the 465 white leghorn hens on his place have for this season averaged producing 147 eggs daily, and most of his time is devoted to looking after the flock.

While many other farmers of the county were worrying about the methods to employ in caking their way during the next month, Mr. Ross marketed from his flock $260 worth of eggs. Of course this was not net profit by a great deal as the hens are given the very best poultry feeds available, a great deal of which was raised on the Ross farm.

Needless to say the merchants of Lubbock paid Mr. Ross a great deal more for the products from his poultry ranch while he was here yesterday than he paid for the commodities which he purchased from the business men.

More such poultry flocks as the one from which Mr. Ross is gathering big dividends are needed on every farm in Lubbock county, County Agent David F. Eaton said yesterday.

Jack W. Williams, district representative for a large automobile finance company at Galveston, accompanied by Jim T. Douglas, who for the past several months has been looking after collections for the company in this territory, left Sunday for Galveston in answer to a call from the management of the company where they will make plans for the handling of the business in this territory during the new year. Mr. Williams stated before leaving Lubbock yesterday that the business of the company in this territory is in good shape, and in all probability the collections at Galveston will result in a great deal more money being loaned in this territory by the company in the future.

Mr. Douglas has been working out of Lubbock for the past several weeks, having charge of collections in nine counties adjacent to Lubbock.

Jennings Attends Board Meeting At Amarillo

Rev. Walter P. Jennings, pastor of the local First Christian church, went to Amarillo yesterday to attend a board meeting of the Panhandle District Christian Ministers, at which plans for the work throughout 1926 were made.

Rev. Jennings is a member of the board and is among the leading men in that church in West Texas.

Some of the plans of the meeting will be related to his congregation here Sunday by Rev. Jennings.

CORSICANA MAN GIVES PLACE WITH WILSON ABSTRACT COMPANY

W. B. Waddell, formerly of the Corsicana Abstract Company, at Corsicana, Texas, has just accepted a position with the Wilson Abstract Company here and is now engaged in that office.

Mr. Waddell has been in the abstract business during the past eight years and is capable of taking full charge of the office here during absence of Manager Wilson.

His family will move to Lubbock soon. Mr. Waddell said he is highly pleased with the city and is pleased with the opportunity to make his home here.
