GAME PLANS — Coach Dennis Tomlin huddles with the Tigers Friday on the sideline during the Pecos game here. The Tigers lost 14-7 after leading the game 7-0 through most of play. Snyder scored on the game's opening kickoff with an 88 yard return. Vyron Clay scored after Michael Riggins had passed it to Tracy Odom, who handed off to Clay. The Tiger lead was cutoff, however, as Bobby Ray Smith directed Pecos on a 79-yard scoring drive midway through the fourth quarter for the Eagle's final score. The District 2-4A loss makes Snyder 0-4 on the year. (SDN Staff Photo)

Ask Us

Q. — Is it possible that the whooping cranes now flying from Canada will pass over Scurry County?

A. — It's possible, although the county is several hundred miles to the west of the crane's direct flight path. They fly from Wood Buffalo National Park in far northern Canada to the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge near Port Aransas. The direct path across Texas enters the state around Wichita Falls, then travels southeastward to Port Aransas near Corpus Christi.

Building phase set by Olney Savings

Construction of a new office building for Olney Savings Association is to begin here within the next few weeks at the site purchased more than five years ago by Olney's predecessor, First Federal Savings and Loan.

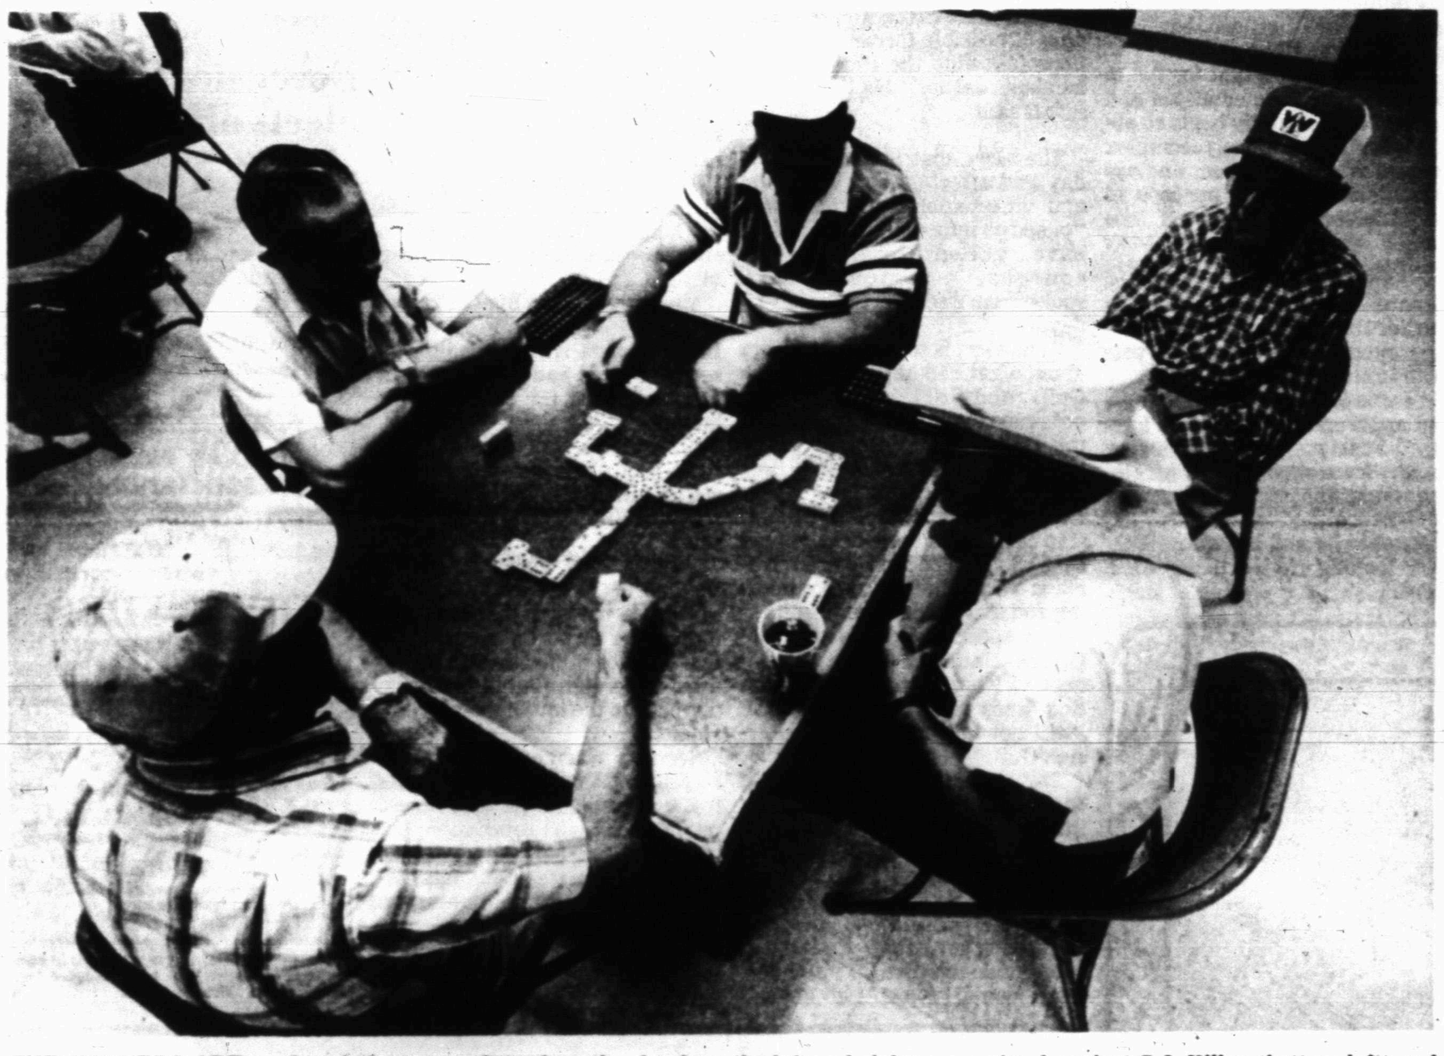

The new headquarters for Olney Savings will be a one-block area located between 30th and 31st St. at College Ave. The site was once the location for Snyder's oldest home, the Cornelius-Dodson House now located on the grounds of the Scurry County Coliseum.

The purchase of the land by First Federal eventually prompted the moving of the structure, the only documented residence built here prior to 1900.

The change will see Olney Savings move from their smaller quarters on the west side of the downtown square. The new building will also see the financial institution add four drive-in windows to serve its customers. Plans call also for an 18-space parking area.

Olney Savings representatives are expected to apply for a building permit for the structure

Parents invited Monday

Elementaries set fall open house

Snyder's six elementary campuses will stage the annual fall open house for parents Monday.

Individual programs and events are slated at each. The open house will begin on most campuses at 7:30 p.m. this year, 30 minutes later than normal. The change will allow teachers participating in an instructor workshop to complete their studies.

Parents are invited to meet with their child's teacher, instructional support staff and principal during the evening.

Snyder ISD officials note also that all residents of the district are invited, regardless if they have a child currently in school.

The following schedule has been announced at individual campuses Monday.

At 6:45 p.m., there will be a meeting of the Parent-Teacher organization for the election of new officers.

At 7:15 p.m., a music program by the fifth grade will be

Project at Central has 'leader'

Elida Garza of Snyder is the new Community Project Leader at Central Elementary. The recent Texas Tech graduate assumed her new duties on Sept. 8.

She has been chosen to head a program being implemented at Central for the first time this school year. Its goal is to generate greater parent and community involvement at Central.

This year, Central was identified by the Texas Education Agency as a target school for instructional improvement because it demonstrated TEAMS scores in the lower 25 percent of Texas public schools.

Garza said the school cannot achieve its goal without the efforts of a successful parent-community partnership.

A major objective of the program will be to involve the school, community and parents in making decisions which will positively affect both students and parents.

The program will literally bring parents on campus to teach them how to help their child.

Parents will be taught how to tutor their children and assist them with home study skills, Garza said.

Garza is in the process of preparing a handbook for parents. In addition, she is also working on a survey of parental need. She stressed that everything will be voluntary and that the main goal of the school is

Just Say 'NO'

Q. — What other ways are recommended to prevent teens from using drugs or alcohol?

A. — Parents should set a "no use" rule with clearly defined limits. They should also talk to their child about drugs or alcohol and, in addition to talking, they should listen to what their child has to say about this shared problem.

Vote could authorize state bond obligation

Proposition 7 on the Nov. 3 ballot would allow the legislature to issue up to $400 million in general obligation bonds to help local governments build or repair public buildings and facilities.

As part of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's $1.3-billion "Build Texas" program, the proposed amendment would make money available to build jails, hospitals, libraries, airports, ports, parks and convention centers.

"Texas cannot afford to ignore its long-term development just because of its current fiscal problems," a spokesman said. "The state can easily afford to take on additional debt because Texas ranks only 46th among the 50 states in the amount of per capita long-term debt."

Vote

Opponents say, however, that the number and dollar amount of bond issues by state agencies has increased substantially in recent years.

A dangerous trend would be perpetuated with this and other bond proposals," an opposition spokesman said. "It is time for

Joe Bob had gotten into the business of predicting the finish of the SWC race. Blakely particularly wanted us to see what had been said about Baylor and its head coach, Snyder native Grant Teaff.

Wrote Briggs, "You only need to know one thing. Grant Teaff, the coach that was offered half a mill to go to USC last year, lives in Waco BY CHOICE. Predicted finish: 6th."

In general, here's what Joe Bob had to say about the SWC: "Due to a depressed economy, all the Southwest Conference football scholarships this year will be economy-to mid-size only--there will be absolutely no Camaros or Firebirds, unless they're at least three model years old or approved by a state legislator..."

About SMU, he wrote, "The NC double-A passed a law that Ess Emm You must be nuked by Sept. 15 and rebuilt within 28 years. Any players still attempting to complete their degrees after 28 seasons will remain eligible. This year's top prospects is 128-pound violin student Phil (Phillip) Poindexter. Easy confirmation...

Texan is FBI chief

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — U.S. District Judge William Sessions says he figured his nomination as FBI director would win Senate confirmation, but he wasn't expecting the vote of confidence to be so great.

The U.S. Senate voted 90-0 Friday to confirm President Reagan's nominee to replace William Webster to head the national law enforcement agency. Webster is now CIA chief.

"I'm amazed and very pleased that the Senate should confirm me in the fashion they did," Sessions told a news conference Friday. "I had no expectation that could possibly happen and I am very gratified."

Reaction from Capitol Hill to San Antonio was extremely positive for the federal judge, whose tough-but-fair stance earned him the respect of congressmen.

"He's a stickler for abiding by the law," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who helped lead the glowing congressional plaudits. "There will be no celebrations in organized crime circles tonight now that Bill Sessions has been confirmed."

Sessions, 57, said he will continue his tough stance at the FBI, saying the agency's tough anti-terrorist campaign will continue during his 10-year FBI tenure.

A new U.S. law allows the FBI to arrest people accused of terrorist activities of which Americans are victims and bring them to trial in the United States.

Sessions credited Webster for initiating the tough anti-terrorism campaign.

"I think everybody in the United States has applauded that because we have seen a great decrease in terroristic acts in the United States, and I think that's significant for all of us and I intend to continue that," he said.

Sessions — who has climbed Mount Everest twice, canoed through the Boquillas Canyon on the Rio Grande and volunteered to be a space shuttle passenger — has said repeatedly he hated to leave the judgeship, but was excited about the prospect of heading the FBI.

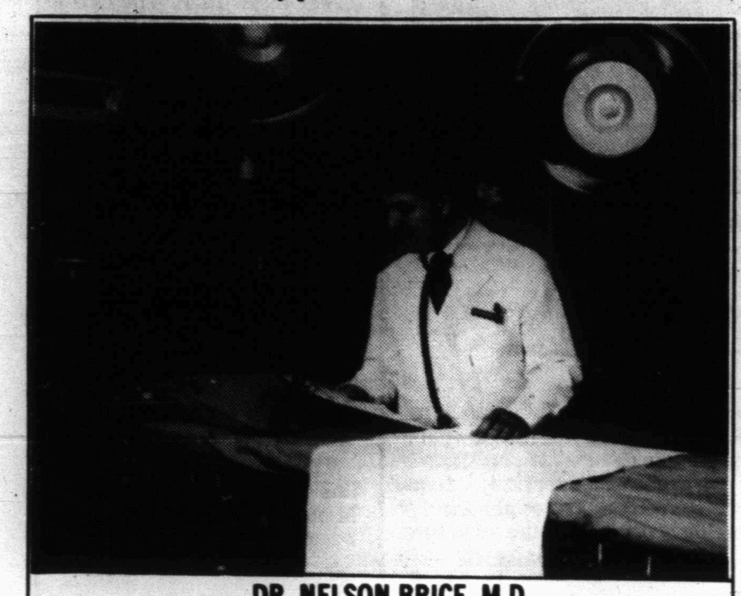

He said he had no definite plans for the agency, but would assume his duties within two weeks and would visit FBI offices that have critical crime-fighting roles.

"It's very important for me to be able to become educated and to be able to actually begin to absorb the tremendously complex operation of the bureau, and my agenda is set for that purpose, to help me familiarize myself," he said.

Sessions breezed through the Senate confirmation hearings earlier this month and the Senate approved him with a 90-0 vote with 10 senators absent.

"I was looking for the other 10, but apparently I just couldn't get it," Sessions said, drawing laughs from other federal judges, marshals and staff at the news conference.

He said he and his wife, Alice, are looking forward to their move.

Airline put on security alert

DALLAS (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration issued a security alert to U.S airlines warning of possible terrorist retaliations following the Persian Gulf incident earlier this week, officials said.

The alert, distributed Wednesday and affecting both domestic and international flights, was "based on information our people have gotten from several sources," regional FAA spokesman Fred Ferrar said Friday.

"The alert is to remind airlines about what had happened (in the Gulf) and to inform them of possible retaliation," Ferrar told the Dallas Times Herald. "The alert was to warn them that they might be the target."

Earlier this week, an Iranian ship carrying mines was crippled by U.S. helicopters. Three Iranians were killed, two were missing and 26 were detained.

In a speech Wednesday at the United Nations, Iranian President Ali Khamenei vowed retaliation and said Iran's response "will not be limited to the Persian Gulf."

The warning to U.S. airlines came from the civil aviation, or intelligence division, of the FAA. It applies to U.S airlines and to all flights by U.S. carriers, domestic and international routes, Ferrar said.

Asked if an actual threat had been made against U.S. airlines, Ferrar said: "I can't go beyond what I've said."

One industry source who received the FAA alert told the Times Herald the warning "sort of tells you the lack of specificity. If they're able to focus on a certain target, the FAA will let you know where it is. This warning is rather general."

The source said the alert to airlines reflects "a sort of heads-up kind of thing. It means to sharpen attention, to be more vigilant."

Meanwhile, Tom Shehan, chief of police for Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, said his security force had issued its own alert following the Persian Gulf incident.

"It's the kind of warning that says, 'Let's be aware it's a crazy world and let's just remember it's not a time to be lax,'" Shehan said.

Shehan said airports around the world have their own intelligence network that had prompted the airport's security office to place a "heightened alertness on foreign flights and keep our nose to the intelligence grindstone."

Security warnings are not uncommon for airlines and airports following incidents that could provoke terrorist retaliation, but generally warnings are not so broad as to cover both international and domestic flights and airports.

Airline officials were reluctant to discuss the FAA's security alert.

To raise test scores...

Parents could help

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas parents looking for a quick way to increase college entrance exam scores must spend time as well as money to boost their children's chances, the state education commissioner says.

Billions of dollars for school reform have yet to do the job, according to recent test results, but Commissioner W.N. Kirby said it is too soon to expect significantly higher test scores.

"Not only in high school, but in pre-kindergarten through 12th grade, the thing we can do the fastest is the thing we can do cheapest: Get parents to accept responsibility for the education of their children," Kirby said.

"The most dramatic way we can turn around scores right now is for every parent to say every day to their child how important a good education is," he added.

College entrance scores released Tuesday showed Texas results virtually unchanged from the previous year. On the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the mean score on the verbal section was 416 for students who took the test in the spring, down three points from the 1986 results. The mean on the math section was 459, up a point from 1986.

The highest possible score on each section of the SAT is 800. This year's national mean on the math section was 476, and the mean on the verbal part was 430.

On the American College Testing exam, graded on a scale of one to 32, the Texas average increased to 17.3 this year from 17.1 last year. The national ACT mean was 18.7.

Jan Gams of New York, assistant director of public affairs for the College Board that sponsors the SAT, said no state has ever shown a quick, dramatic increase in its scores. It is impossible to link the added money Texas is spending with the kind of results Texans should expect, she said.

"That requires an evaluation of what they are spending the money on," Ms. Gams said. "And what really improves education?"

Kirby noted what could be a telling link between test scores and course load. Texas high school students who had taken 20 or more credits in academic subjects scored slightly above the national average. But only 18 percent of Texas students take 20 academic credits or more.

The state requires 21 credits, but that includes physical education and electives. The State Board of Education is looking at increasing the required course load, Kirby said.

The commissioner was pleased that the scores remained constant although about 42,000 additional students took the test this year.

He cautioned against using the SAT and ACT scores as a measure of the success of the education reforms, highlighted by the 1984 legislative bill that included a new high school exit test, literacy tests for teachers and no pass, no play for extracurricular activities.

Kirby noted that many of the more important changes — such as smaller classes — were made in elementary grades, and that eventually will have an effect on test scores, he said. Scores on basic skills tests given in several grades are increasing.

"When those kids get up there to take these tests, you are going to see some significant improvement," Kirby said of the college entrance exams.

Some are hoping the improvement shows up sooner.

"Within four or five years we ought to really see some changes," said Sandy Kibby, legislative chairman for the Texas Parent-Teachers Association. "I'll really be concerned if we don't."

But some are wondering if the reforms approved by various states are making any significant difference.

"It makes me wonder about the real impact of the national reform movement. I'm not sure that improved learning is taking place," Donald Stewart, president of the College Board, said when he released the nationwide scores that showed no improvement.

Ms. Kibby said the 1987 SAT and ACT scores should spark concern among Texas parents.

"I hope they will look at that and say, 'What can we do to help?'" Ms. Kibby said.

If they ask Commissioner Kirby, they will get a long list of specific recommendations.

"If all parents will stress the importance of education for their children; insist and expect them to achieve in school; see that children attend regularly and behave and apply themselves to learning; and set aside quiet study time in the home each day with television sets turned off, then together, parents and educators will turn these test scores around almost overnight," he said.

At the PTA, Ms. Kibby said the parental involvement battle is an ongoing one.

"It's a very difficult thing to do. We are trying all different approaches," she said. "We're trying. We all think it's a real big factor. How to do it is the key. We aren't sure how."

Registration for TEAMS set

Registration for the TEAMS exit level test for all out-of-school examinees must be completed by Oct. 2.

Beginning in October and during subsequent exit level test administrations, individuals who have not previously passed both sections of the TEAMS test but have met all other graduation requirements may retake the section or sections not passed.

The mathematics test will be given on Tuesday, Oct. 27, and the English language arts will be given on Wednesday, Oct. 28.

Pops concert set Tuesday

A fall pops concert is scheduled by the Western Texas College music department for Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Fine Arts Theatre.

There is no charge for admission to the program and the public is invited to attend. Music to be performed will range from the 40s to the present.

Performing during the program will be the WTC Vocal Ensemble directed by Brent Hardegree and the WTC Ladies Group directed by Jane Womack. Members of the ensemble will also be performing solos, duets and trios.

Making up the vocal ensemble this semester are Carmen Timora, Stacey Hillis, Sheila Martin, Debbie Nichols, Jeana Fox, Marvin Morrell and Jon Traylor of Snyder; Shannon Strickland, Nannette Montez, Jimmy Henderson and Amy Warren of Sweetwater; Mary Lee Hicks of Roby and Jim Rainbolt of Post.

Members of the Ladies Group are Joann Snider, Carmen Timora, Fran Bowden, Sherry Jenkins, Sue Lyon, Judy McLarty, Linda Robbins, Sue Sewell, Linda Roemisch, Kim Fritz and Rebecca Thornton of Snyder and Mary Lynn Hackleman of Colorado City.

Miami vice-squad not impressed

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami vice squad isn't particularly impressed with "Miami Vice," the glamour-packed and gunshot-riddled detective show that is beginning its fourth season on NBC-TV.

"The show to us is really farfetched, and we don't really pay a lot of attention to it," said Miami vice detective Eladio Paez, whose squad is officially known as the Miami Narcotics Detail of the Special Investigations Section.

"It did a lot of good to the image of Miami with the scenery and fashions. Other than that, it hasn't done much," he said, adding that he wouldn't tune in for the show's season opener Friday.

Miami police Sgt. Noel Rojas said while the show is mainly Hollywood hype, he is grateful to it for getting the agency's vice squad into the pages of Life magazine in 1985.

"We've gotten a lot of national exposure because of the show," he said.

"Miami Vice" publicist Deborah Kelman said from Los Angeles, "I have no interest in commenting on this."

Says Reagan...

War acts bill due veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is accusing the Senate of undercutting his policy of protecting Persian Gulf shipping lanes, and says he will veto any bill limiting military options.

"Now is the time to show steadfastness in our commitment, not vacillation and timidity," Reagan said Friday, taking the unusual step of speaking out forcefully against legislation which has been only contemplated, but not passed, by either chamber of Congress.

"I will veto this legislation should it reach my desk," Reagan said, adding that "we will not abandon our strategic interests or our friends in the Persian Gulf."

The Senate, which was meeting today in an unusual weekend session, plans to vote next Tuesday on several amendments to its defense spending bill, possibly including one aimed at affecting Persian Gulf policy.

The proposal would require House and Senate approval for the Navy to continue protecting Kuwaiti tankers with U.S. flags and Navy convoys in the war-torn waterway.

The Senate's version of the Pentagon budget bill will have to be reconciled in conference committee with the measure approved last May by the House before it goes to Reagan.

Meanwhile, the Iranian ship attacked and captured earlier this week was scuttled in international waters Friday by the U.S. Navy, said Col. Marvin Braman, a Pentagon spokesman.

He said U.S. officials decided to destroy the ship "to preclude it from being used again for illegal purposes." The Navy attacked and captured the ship on Monday, killing five Iranian crew members. Twenty-six captured crewmen were being returned to Iran today.

Reagan's chief spokesman also criticized the proposal by Senate Democrats to rein in U.S. involvement in the Persian Gulf, saying, "Iran must be overjoyed at the prospects for passage, as our friends around the world are dismayed."

During his daily briefing, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said that if the proposal is enacted, it would have the effect of "forcing the United States entirely out of the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman, places our Navy has sailed freely for 40 years."

Deputy Press Secretary Dan Howard, asked late Friday about the strong Reagan statement, said, "Our strategy is to stop it (the legislative move) and make it very clear where we stand."

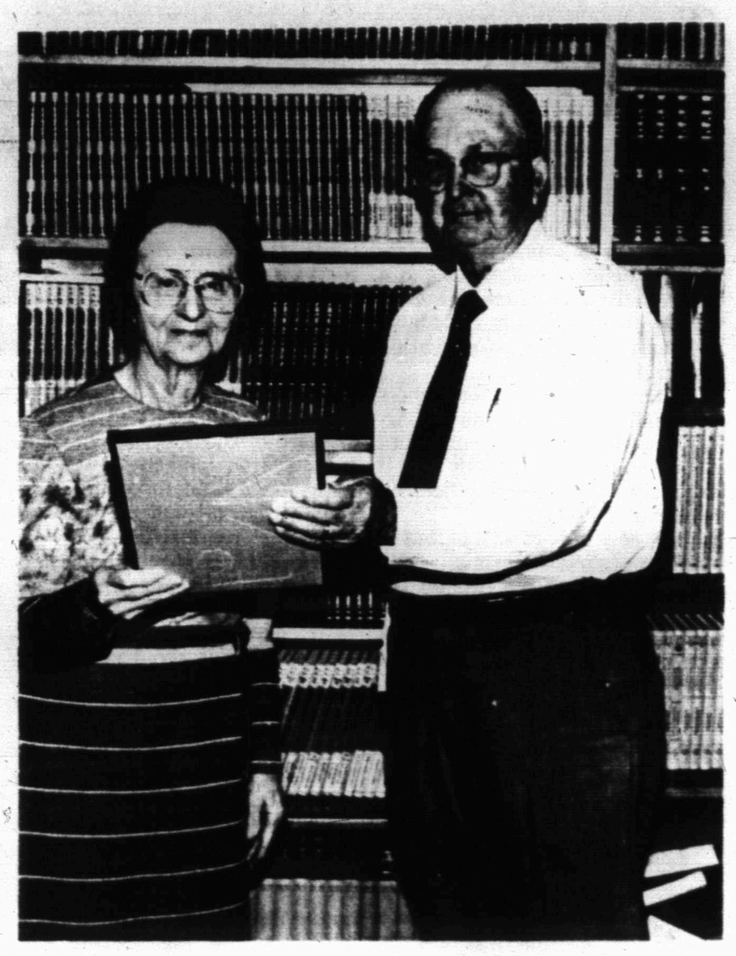

"We don't think the Congress should do this. We think it's a mistake," Howard said.

Reagan called the legislation ill-conceived and said it "could have disastrous effects for the U.S. commitment to the Persian Gulf and to our strategic interests in keeping those waters safe for navigation."

The president said, "The Senate is considering legislation that would force a retreat from the Persian Gulf by the United States. Ultimately, it could provide a means for Iran to achieve what cannot be achieved by any other means, namely, our complete withdrawal from the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman."

The Democratic-backed proposal is similar to the War Powers Act, the 1973 law requiring congressional approval for U.S. troops to remain in situations of "imminent" danger for more than 60 days. Reagan contends that the law doesn't apply to the situation in the gulf.

The Senate amendment would require a report from Reagan within 30 days after the law takes effect, justifying his policy. Within 60 days after that, the reflagging and convoys would have to halt unless both the House and Senate vote in favor of their continued presence.

Delta advertising given green light

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has refused to block a new Delta Air Lines advertising campaign that lawyers complained might prejudice potential jurors in a multimillion-dollar suit over the crash of Flight 191.

After an hour-long hearing Friday, U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr. denied a motion to temporarily stop the campaign in the Fort Worth-Dallas area but gave lawyers permission to probe the strategy behind the ads.

The injunction was sought by Windle Turley, the lead attorney for a group representing about 40 families suing Delta over the Aug. 2, 1985, jetliner crash at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport that killed 137 people.

Delta opened its "We love to fly and it shows" campaign Monday with prime-time commercials on three major television networks and advertisements in newspapers across the country.

Turley questioned the timing of the Delta campaign so close to the start of the trial, which had been set to begin Oct. 5 but was delayed until Nov. 16.

"We believe this is not an ordinary casual campaign, but perhaps the largest in Delta history," Turley said. "It is intended by design, we believe, to influence some of the very people who will serve on the jury in this case."

Delta attorney Arthur K. Smith III countered that the campaign was timed to coincide with the start of the fall television season, which he called "one of the highest television viewing weeks in the country and thus appropriate to launch the campaign."

Belew said plaintiffs' lawyers did not show that the advertisements would prejudice potential jurors. The attorneys did not call any witnesses or present any evidence at the hearing.

The request sought to halt the advertising campaign immediately in the local area.

Free Washington, D.C. Trip is Grand Prize in "Health-Smart" Drug Awareness Contest

Snyder HealthMart Drug wants the children of Snyder to get involved in a nationwide campaign against drug abuse, and win valuable prizes in the process. How? Snyder Drug, local HealthMart Drugstore is sponsoring "HealthMart-HealthSmart," a drug awareness contest for school-age children. Participants are invited to submit drawings, posters, essays or short stories on the topic of drug abuse. Entries will be judged by a panel of prominent Snyder citizens who will award a total of nine prizes to the local winners. The first place winners in each of three age groups will also be eligible to compete in the national contest for color TV's, Epson personal computers and a Grand Prize trip to Washington, D.C.

"The purpose of the HealthSmart contest is to get our young people thinking about the ways they can be an influence for the responsible use of drugs," said Robert Patterson, owner of Snyder HealthMart Drug. "We want them to know there is something positive they can do in the campaign against drug abuse."

First, second and third place prizes will be awarded in three age group categories. The youngest group, in grades first through third, may enter by submitting drawings that artistically represent a responsible approach to drugs. Children in grades fourth through sixth are invited to create posters dealing with the dangers or improper use of drugs. Students in Junior High and High School, through the tenth grade, will compete by writing essays or short stories expressing the ways they can personally act as an influence against drug abuse.

"Our hope is that the contest will involve not only the children but the parents, friends, and community leaders in discussions of this important issue," added Snyder HealthMart co-owner Maria Patterson. "To our knowledge, this is the first time a retail pharmacy has conducted a drug awareness campaign of this scope."

First, second and third national prizes to be awarded in each category include 19" color TVs (third place), personal computer systems (second place) and three Grand Prize trips to the nation's capital for each winner, a sibling or friend and his or her parents or guardians. As part of their Washington, D.C. visit, the winners will be invited to meet and talk directly with many of the nation's top leaders in the war on drugs.

Local prizes will be awarded.

A copy of the contest rules may be obtained at Snyder HealthMart Drug at 3609 College Ave. (573-9333), and local prizes are on display there, also. Entries must be submitted to the local HealthMart Drugstore no later than October 16, 1987 and winners will be announced shortly thereafter.

"We hope parents will encourage their youngsters to enter the contest, and will use the opportunity to initiate frank discussions with their children about drugs," noted Patterson. "National, state and local programs are very important, but when it comes down to the wire, the war against drugs will be won on a personal one-to-one basis."

We would like to make drugs a household word, no matter which house you're in.

In the most famous household in the land, drugs are a hot topic. And in every household in the land, they should be. And with every member.

Obviously, the parents' informed contribution to the family drug discussion is vital. But what about the kids? They are vulnerable, but they're also aware, and have something to say about drugs.

Your HealthMart pharmacist wants to give them a way to say it. And even a place to say it: Washington D.C. HealthMart is having 3 contests: one each for coloring (grades 1-3); poster-art (grades 4-6); and essay-writing (grades 7-10). We'll ask that each entry express that young person's views on drugs, and the entry judged to be the best in each grade group will win a trip to Washington D.C. for four days and three nights! Second and third place prizes of personal computers and color TV's will also be awarded in each group, as well as local prizes.

Your participating HealthMart pharmacist has details, entry applications and materials. It's all part of "HealthMart HealthSmart," our nationwide campaign to help our communities help fight drug abuse. But hurry, entry deadline is October 16, 1987.

A trip to your local HealthMart could mean a trip to your nation's capital. And that's somewhere that drugs are definitely a household word.

HealthMart. HealthSmart.

Gloomy trade picture

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new report released Saturday concludes that the United States will continue losing ground in global high-tech markets unless actions are taken beyond devaluing the dollar.

The report, prepared by the Joint Economic Committee and released by Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, notes increased exports during the first quarter of 1987, but determined those exports were low-tech items requiring little skill to manufacture.

"As you break it down — to see how it has affected different segments of our economy — you would find that the increases in exports were in low-tech items, things like chemicals and paper," said Bentsen, a Democrat who chairs the Finance Committee.

"But in the high-tech items where you have the high paying jobs, we just didn't have that kind of a penetration of the world market, didn't have that kind of an increase in sales."

The report pointed to three factors for the stagnation of U.S. computer and other capital good markets: stiff foreign trade barriers, lagging U.S. technology and sluggish demand overseas.

In particular, trade-rich West Germany and Japan have closed their markets to U.S. high-tech goods, with U.S. capital goods exports to Germany falling 15 percent this year and 11 percent to Japan, according to the report.

Second life term

ANGLETON (AP) — A Texas prison inmate, suspected of being a founder of a prison gang, was sentenced to a second life term for an aggravated assault on another convict.

Juan Farias, 46, already serving 25 years for a 1978 Bexar County burglary and a life sentence for a 1980 aggravated sexual assault on another convict, was sentenced to life in prison for stabbing an inmate 30 times in 1984.

A jury in visiting State District Judge Allen Stilley's court deliberated about 18 minutes Thursday to return Farias' guilty verdict and another 45 minutes to sentence him.

Stilley ordered that Farias begin serving his new term after completing his existing sentences.

Farias was tried for the Nov. 8, 1984, stabbing of Joe Garcia Benavidez, 33, serving life for a Deaf Smith County aggravated robbery and escape.

Benavidez was stabbed in the face and chest with a sharpened rod at the Texas Department of Corrections Ramsey II Unit's high-security recreation yard. He survived the attack.

Controlled burning resumes

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Weather permitting, the U.S. Forest Service will resume burning hundreds of acres of insect-ravaged national woodlands in Southeast Texas this weekend.

"We did a soil moisture test and we're going to resume the prescribed burning at the Sam Houston National Forest Saturday," said Hal Glassman, forest service spokesman.

Unlike previous prescribed burns, Saturday's will be done by hand instead of helicopter, Glassman said. Because the forest fires in California and Oregon are not under control, Texas forest firefighters are still on call, thus the slower hand-burning process, he said.

About 800 acres of 2,500 acres of the Four Notch Area south of Huntsville were set afire by helicopter in late August. The burning was suspended Sept. 4 because of rain and because forest firefighters went to help battle the western fires.

The hand-burning project will take two to four weeks, Glassman said.

The operation is being conducted where southern pine beetles caused heavy damage earlier this decade.

Falwell sets departure date

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell said Friday that he hoped to step aside as head of the PTL board of directors Jan. 1.

Appearing in Chicago to speak to a business organization, Falwell also said Jessica Hahn, whose allegations of sexual indiscretion led to his takeover of the PTL organization, damaged her credibility with revealing photographs and an interview published this week.

"What she has done is very, very sad," Falwell said. "Her appearing in Playboy topless is the result of what was done to her in that ... hotel room seven years ago."

Falwell told the news conference he intended to step aside from the PTL organization Jan. 1, but said later that this was a target date. He stressed that all along, he had intended to run the PTL ministry, which he took over after evangelist Jim Bakker resigned in March, for a year at the most.

Actress is dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Astor, who survived a steamy Hollywood scandal and went on to play the treacherous temptress Brigid O'Shaughnessy in "The Maltese Falcon" and star in dozens of other films, died Friday. She was 81.

She died of respiratory failure due to pulmonary emphysema, said Motion Picture and Television Country House and Hospital spokeswoman Jean Ferris. The actress had been a longtime resident of the actors' retirement complex.

Miss Astor made her screen debut in the silent era at age 14, and was almost a casualty of the transition to talkies. She also fell victim to drink and drugs. But both times she found the strength to make a new start.

Reagan predicts Bork's confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying "reason will prevail over politics," predicted Friday the Senate will confirm his nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, meanwhile, resumed its hearings with testimony from American Bar Association leaders who said Bork's brand of judicial restraint is an attempt to "disregard two centuries of American history."

The panel is concluding its second week of hearings with at least one more week planned. The Supreme Court, with a vacancy since the June retirement of Justice Lewis F. Powell, will begin its new term Oct. 5 with eight members.

Reagan told a women's group that supports Bork, "Now, I don't usually make predictions ... but in this case, I feel confident that reason will prevail over politics. Not only that Judge Bork will be confirmed, but that he'll go down in history as one of the finest Supreme Court justices our nation has ever had."

The president accused Bork's attackers of being on the political fringes, and he defended the nominee, a federal appeals court judge, as dedicated to interpreting the Constitution rather than imposing his own ideology on the nation.

Reagan said Bork's critics "are themselves ideologically inspired. And the criticism of him as outside the mainstream can only be held by those who themselves are so far outside the mainstream ... they've long ago lost sight of the moderate center."

The president spoke in Crystal City, Va., to a convention of more than 1,500 members of Concerned Women for America, which has collected more than 72,000 signatures in support of Bork.

He said that Bork's nationally televised testimony last week gave Americans a picture of "a brilliant legal mind at work."

However, public opinion polls this week showed the number of Americans with an unfavorable opinion of Bork has risen at least slightly since his appearance.

At the Judiciary Committee hearings on Friday, two past presidents of the American Bar Association and a president of the association's New York City chapter urged defeat of the nominee.

Former ABA president Robert Meserve of Boston said the senators should judge Bork by his career-long writings and lectures, not just by his more moderate testimony last week or his past five years on the federal bench.

The national ABA's review of Bork's nomination has been controversial. A special ABA panel voted 10-5 in finding Bork well qualified for the high court.

Sweetwater stakes claim to title with big victory

Sweetwater staked its claim to the District 2-4A title Friday night with a bruising 39-18 win over defending champion Big Spring, but Fort Stockton reupped its bid as well.

The Panthers edged Andrews 24-21 to go 2-0 in district play and 4-0 for the season. The only other unbeaten team in the district is Monahans, which crushed hapless Crane 42-0 in a non-loop outing.

The losses to Big Spring and Andrews put both of those teams at 1-1 in district competition. Lake View and Pecos joined their ranks as the Chiefs nailed Lamesa 32-7 and the Eagles topped Snyder 14-0.

In games next Friday, Lake View buses to meet Fort Stockton while Sweetwater picks on Lamesa in Lamesa, Snyder tries Monahans at Monahans and Andrews is at Pecos. Big Spring will try to heal its wounds with an open date.

2-4A glance

Friday's Results: Pecos 14, Snyder 7; Lake View 42, Lamesa 7; Sweetwater 39, Big Spring 18; Fort Stockton 24, Andrews 21; Monahans 42, Crane 0 (non-district).

Next Friday's Games: Snyder at Monahans, Andrews at Pecos, Sweetwater at Lamesa, Lake View at Fort Stockton, Big Spring open.

Players may break lines if strike not settled soon

IRVING, Texas (AP) - As the NFL walkout wears on, some of the striking Dallas Cowboys "may be ready to cross the picket line," player representative Doug Cosbie said on Friday.

"There's no use being naive about it," Cosbie said. "The longer the strike goes, some guys are going to go in."

Only 15 of the 43 striking Cowboys could make it to the picket line Friday morning in what Cosbie had hoped would be a massive show of force to "deliver a message" to the substitute players.

"I guess it was too early for some of the guys," Cosbie said.

The strikers had half-heartedly tossed three eggs at the bus Thursday afternoon. One struck the bus only a glancing blow.

Cosbie stopped the busload of substitute players Friday for about a minute as he held up a picket sign over the front windshield.

Later, the strikers gave the bus driver a doughnut as he drove back through the line.

"I just make $6 an hour," the driver said. "I have to work. Thanks for the breakfast."

Cosbie said management's view that the strike might last six to eight weeks "could be optimistic. We will not budge on certain issues. Everything is negotiable but we want something we can live with."

He said it didn't bother him that some strikers might drift into management's camp.

"It takes more than a few guys to play NFL grade football," Cosbie said. "The fans aren't going to be fooled. The guys you see out here on the picket line this morning are committed."

Only veteran tackles Randy White and Don Smerek have crossed the picket lines. Injured reserve players Johnny Lam Jones and Chris Duliban also have reported.

Words have already flown between the strikers and picket crossers.

Running back Tony Dorsett called White "Captain Scab" and White volunteered to resign as captain of the defense if the team wanted it.

"There's no ill feeling between Randy and me," Dorsett said on Friday. "I was shocked he crossed the picket line. I remember wearing 'Where's 54?' on my jersey when White held out all of (1986) training camp in a contract dispute. I backed him then.

Eagles quarterback the difference...

Pecos outlasts Ragin' Tigers, 14-7

By BILL McCLELLAN

Bobby Ray Smith directed Pecos on a 79-yard scoring drive midway through the fourth quarter here Friday night to lift the Eagles past Snyder in a District 2-4A football game, 14-7.

Snyder Coach Dennis Tomlin had said going into the game the Tigers would have to stop the junior quarterback from Pecos but it was easier said than done. To the Tigers' credit, they defensed the young quarterback well, but his quick feet and fluid moves continually made for missed tackles.

"He's good, he made the difference," said Tomlin. "He made all the big plays for them. You have to give him credit. I thought our kids executed their game plan well and did all they could do. Of course you always see four or five things that you could have done that might have made a difference, but for the most part, we played pretty well."

Smith rushed for 137 yards of Pecos' 277 on the ground.

Snyder lit the scoreboard first in electrifying fashion as Vyron Clay returned the opening kickoff 88 yards for a touchdown. Clay actually took less than 80 steps with the ball, which was booted to Michael Riggins. Riggins bobbled it momentarily, then handed it to Tracy Odom, who gave it to Clay.

The junior speedster turned up the right sideline and outraced everyone to the end zone, crossing over just 12 seconds into the game. Tony Anderson kicked the conversion through the uprights to give Snyder a 7-0 advantage.

The score stayed that way until early in the fourth quarter, though both teams pushed the ball inside their opponent's territory more than once.

Late in the third period, Pecos began its first scoring drive. The Eagles took over on their own 35-yard line after forcing Snyder to punt for the third time in the half.

The drive was aided by a 15-yard penalty marched off against the Tigers, which when combined with Oscar Solis-runs of 4 and 7 yards - the penalty came on the latter - gave Pecos possession at the Snyder 39. From there, Smith ran for 13 yards and Rene Salinas picked up 12 to the 14-yard line. Two plays later, Salinas carried to the 3. Danny Gonzales was stopped at the 1-yard line on Pecos' next attempt, but he crossed over on the ensuing effort just 48 seconds into the fourth quarter.

Frank Orosco stepped up to try the point-after kick but the ball was bobbled by holder Robbie Paz, and he was hit by Pete Madrid as he tried to pass.

Snyder retained a slim, 7-6 lead.

After holding the Tigers to another punting situation, the Eagles began their go-ahead scoring march. In fairness to the Tigers, they were without three defensive starters at the time. Clay, a defensive back, had been ejected from the game along with Pecos' Lee Payan after they got into an altercation midway through the second quarter. Two linemen were also out for Snyder. David Martinez was on the sidelines with an apparent inner ear infection and Benny Miller was nursing a collarbone injury.

Pecos took over with 9:54 to play and drove the ball the distance in an 11-play drive that took more than five minutes off the clock. Key plays were runs of 18 and 28 yards by Smith. The 28-yarder took the ball to the Snyder 2-yard line before Michael Riggins rode the quarterback out of bounds. Solis crashed over with a touchdown on the next play.

The Eagles then scored a two-point conversion on a pass from Smith to Solis with 4:37 remaining.

Snyder did its best to retaliate. The Tigers took over at their own 23 and pushed the ball to the Pecos 33-yard line before the drive went awry. From there, Riggins was stopped for a four-yard loss to the 37. Quarterback Lee Fletcher tried to find Odom on second down, but strong safety Gonzales was able to break up the pass. On third down, a screen pass to Riggins went for minus yards when Rafael Natividad broke through a block and snared the tailback. Then on fourth down, Mario Carrasco got a piece of Fletcher's arm on a pass play and Lucius Flores came up with the ball.

"We played hard for four quarters," mused Coach Tomlin afterward. "You can't fault the kids for the effort they gave."

The game was filled with fine defensive effort on the part of both teams. Randy Morris made a touchdown-saving tackle on Martinez early in the first half at the Tiger 10-yard line. Snyder thwarted the touchdown attempt with help from a holding penalty and a sack. On a fourth down and 15 play from the 28-yard line, Madrid made an open field tackle on Salinas to give Snyder the ball.

Pecos' next possession was stopped at the Tiger 8-yard line as Morris intercepted a Smith pass. Morris would have scored on the play had not Smith been alert and given chase. The fleet Pecos quarterback caught Morris at the Eagles 39-yard line.

Snyder moved from there to the 27, but was unable to score.

The Tigers' deepest penetration during the rest of the game was to the 22-yard line of the Eagles. The drive started at the Snyder 13 and went for nine plays before Salinas stopped Scott Lanier for a one-yard loss on a fourth-and-one effort.

Tragedy befelled Snyder along the way. Clay broke free for a 16-yard run on the opening play of the drive. He and Payan exchanged blows afterwards, however, and both were ejected.

Snyder made another good defensive stand just before halftime. Pecos had taken over at its 23 and marched to the Tiger 21. Three straight passes fell incomplete from there, though, and Snyder held.

Smith's 137 yards led all rushers. Martinez picked up 72. For Snyder, Riggins had 51, Fletcher 45 and Isrrael Hinojos 44.

Neither team had success passing the ball. Pecos was 4 of 18 for 59 yards. Snyder was just 2 of 12 for 3 yards.

The loss knocked Snyder to 0-4 for the season and 0-2 in district play. The Tigers square off against undefeated Monahans in Monahans next week. Pecos, 1-3 and 1-1, hosts Andrews.

Strike talks broken off

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The two teams involved in the NFL labor talks have retreated to their respective huddles in an attempt to come up with a new game plan.

Negotiations designed to end the current players strike broke off Friday after management and the union agreed that they agree on virtually nothing. No new talks are scheduled.

"We have to reevaluate our positions," NFL Management Council executive director Jack Donlan said after 17½ hours of talks over three days. "What we've been doing here isn't working."

With this week's games canceled, owners were preparing for play on Oct. 4 with replacement teams made of free agents, castoffs and others.

Those games could become a reality because management and the union are no closer to settling the strike than when they began the latest round of negotiations Wednesday afternoon.

The battle over free agency remained the single biggest obstacle to ending the league's second walkout in six years.

HIGHLAND -- They are celebrating in Hermleigh this weekend as the Cardinals broke a multi-season winning drought with a 29-14 victory over Highland here Friday night.

"We're not sure when the last win was, but Rodney Foster is a senior and this is the first win for Hermleigh since he's been playing varsity ball," said Coach Doug Cook.

The string, which was into its fifth year, is somewhat misleading since Hermleigh didn't play three years ago and fielded a junior varsity squad the following season.

"The difference was we went out and really hit them," said Coach Cook. "The kids have been working hard. We've made a lot of mistakes but we finally overcame our mistakes with good defense and won the game. We're proud of that, but we still have a long way to go."

Hermleigh stunned Highland by posting a 21-0 halftime advantage. Quarterback Eddie Whitehead helped engineer the victory. He took part in all five touchdowns, including the first, which came on a 30-yard run. The points-after try failed.

Minutes later, the Cardinals got a safety when Bobby Brown tackled Highland's Gary Fullwood in the Hornet end zone for two points.

Hermleigh went airborne in the second quarter. Whitehead connected up with Rodney Foster on a 25-yard scoring toss, hit Andrews Sanchez on a one-point conversion, then found Foster again on a 30-yard TD strike for a 21-0 halftime advantage.

From then on, it was hold on.

"We've just got eight kids right now and we got pretty tired," said Cook, who has two players sidelined with injury. "I think we had six people catch the ball. We had everybody doing everything. It was definitely a team effort and a team victory."

Highland tallied in the third period when Fullwood scored on a 13-yard run. The PAT failed.

Hermleigh took a deep breath and answered the challenge. It was Whitehead teaming with Sanchez on a 55-yard TD pass. Then, the talented Whitehead drop-kicked the two-point conversion.

"Hey, we pulled out all the stops," laughed Coach Cook. "Nothing is sacred or safe with us."

Highland closed out the scoring, too little-too late, on a 15-yard fourth quarter run by Jimmy Johns. Fullwood kicked the conversion.

Hermleigh passed for a whopping 211 yards in the game as Whitehead and Foster combined for a 10-of-20 effort. Whitehead also ran for 126 yards on 14 carries and Mac Castillo managed 56 steps on 11 tries.

Foster picked off one Hornet pass and Brown, Whitehead and Sanchez all recovered a fumble. Sanchez, in fact, had two.

"We want to enjoy the win but not too much," cautioned Coach Cook. "We host Ira for our homecoming here next Saturday (Oct. 3) and they'll be tough. We'd like to invite everyone to the homecoming, by the way."

Game time for the contest will be 2 p.m.

Halldorson cops 2-stroke lead at Southwest event in Abilene

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - After back-to-back 6-under-par 66s, softspoken Canadian Dan Halldorson took a 2-shot lead into the third round Saturday of the $400,000 Southwest Golf Classic.

His 12-under-par 132 staked him to a narrow edge over Frank Conner and Bob Eastwood in the chase for the $72,000 top prize and his first official victory since the 1980 Pensacola Open.

With the legendary West Texas winds relatively mild, Halldorson said he's found the soft greens to his liking and has been attacking the Fairway Oaks course with something of a vengeance.

"With no hard wind, you can go for the flag," he said. "These guys are going to shoot some low scores if the weather holds."

Bob Eastwood, the first-round leader, followed his opening 65 with a 69 on Friday, collecting birdies on the closing three holes to overtake Conner and remain within easy striking distance of the lead.

Five players were tied at 136, 8 under par and four shots back, including Paul Azinger, the current No. 2 money winner who is bidding to become the first four-time winner on the tour this season.

Curtis Strange, the leading money winner, and 11 other of the top American players were competing this week in the Ryder Cup matches at Muirfield Village in Dublin, Ohio.

Azinger carded a 5-under-par 67 Friday to move back into contention and shared fourth place with Bill Kratzert, Gil Morgan, Don Shirey and Dan Forsman.

Eighty-one players made the cut at 1-under-par 143, including Gary Hallberg, the recent Milwaukee Open champion, whose second straight 69 left him 6 strokes back at 138.

The most notable casualties were Bob Tway, the 1986 PGA player of the year, and Bob Lunn, trying for a storybook return to the tour. Both missed the cut by a stroke, Lunn after jabbing and missing a 6-inch putt.

Coyotes cornered

KLONDIKE -- Borden County's Coyotes gave up 24 first-quarter points and couldn't recover as they fell to Klondike here in a District 4-1A West Zone ballgame Friday night, 32-8.

Klondike quarterback Kirk Tidwell led the hosts by hitting Wesley O'Brian for first-quarter touchdowns of 24 and 13 yards.

Later in the game, Steve Cope broke loose on a 41 yard scoring jaunt.

Borden hosts Sands next Friday, Oct. 2, at 7:30 p.m.

COWBOYS

Where's he now?"

Dorsett said "anybody who crosses the picket line is letting us down. I'm not striking against Tex Schramm or Tom Landry. The Cowboys have been good to me. But I'm striking for a cause and we need to do it as a team."

The picket line produced its humorous moments on Friday.

Dorsett showed up without his picket sign.

"Where is it?" Cosbie asked.

"I took the wrong car, man," Dorsett replied.

Dorsett said if something isn't resolved in the next two or three weeks, the owners are going to lose a lot of money.

"I don't see the fans going out and watching scab football," Dorsett said.

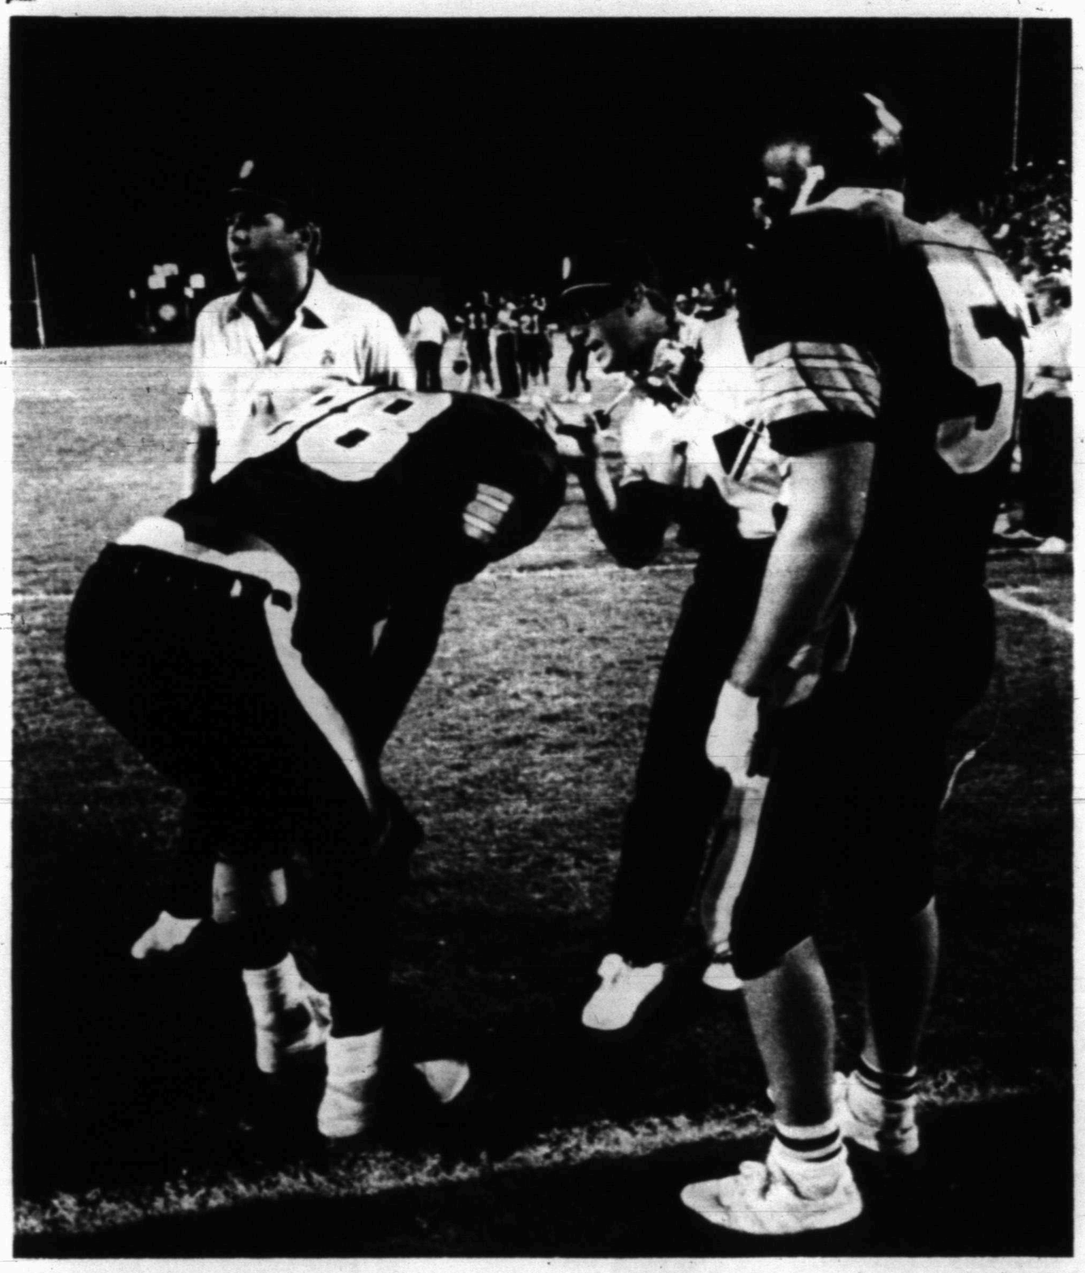

The Cowboys were proceeding like Oct. 4 was going to be the opening of another season.

They had a team picture scheduled for Saturday morning in Texas Stadium.

Coach Tom Landry said he's looking forward to molding the substitute team.

"It should be interesting because all the players are so gung-ho," Landry said. "I'm glad to see them get a shot at it (NFL). Everybody might be surprised at the quality of play."

Landry said practice "will turn serious next week. These games count toward the Super Bowl, you know."

Europeans top U.S. in early Ryder Cup

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - The Europeans, building on a great comeback by the team of Nick Faldo and Ian Woosnam, shut out the Americans Friday afternoon and took a four-point lead after the opening Ryder Cup matches.

The Europeans, who broke a 28-year victory drought in winning the Ryder Cup in 1985, won all four of the afternoon four-ball matches to establish a 6-2 advantage in the biennial golf matches that, for decades, were dominated by Americans.

It appeared that the American domination would be resumed when the matches began on a bright, crisp Friday morning.

The home forces led handily when three of the four morning foursomes matches - in which a two-man team plays alternate shots on the same ball - reached the turn.

But Faldo, the British Open champion from England, and Woosnam, from Wales, came from four down with nine holes to play, winning six of the last nine holes to stun Lanny Wadkins and Larry Mize 2-up.

"We just clawed our way back," Faldo said.

It helped salvage a 2-2 split in the morning matches and swung the momentum to the European side. They made the most of it, winning all the afternoon matches.

It was a rout, and it left the stunned Americans facing an uphill battle in the 20 remaining matches.

In the afternoon fourballs, in which scoring is based on the best ball of each two-man team, the eight American players completed 42 holes before scoring their first birdie, a two-putt 4 by Mark Calcavecchia.

That slow start put them at a disadvantage they were unable to overcome.

our position on free agency, and we feel we've already compromised on that," Donlan said. "I think we have a lot of tough issues but obviously the major hurdle is free agency."

Union head Gene Upshaw remained adamant on the issue. The NFLPA wants unrestricted free agency for players with more than four years experience. Owners have offered only to reduce the compensation to teams losing a player through free agency.

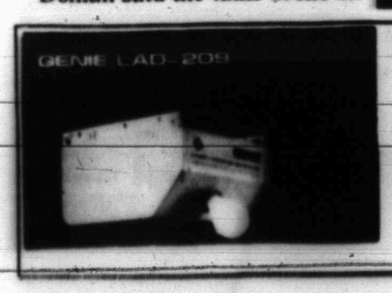

"We're etched in our position, whether it's in stone or butter or whatever," Upshaw said after Friday's three-hour meeting. "We told them what our position is and we intend to stay in our position."

Donlan said the talks broke off after the sides covered all the issues.

"It seems to me to go back to the top of the page and go back down again accomplishes nothing," he said. "It may in fact hurt because each side becomes further entrenched in their position. What we should be doing is reevaluating our position."

Upshaw said management talked but did not bargain during the session.

Tigers get spark from substitute

by The Associated Press

So far, Tony Fernandez's loss is hurting the Detroit Tigers more than the Toronto Blue Jays in their American League East duel.

Manny Lee, making his first start in place of the injured Fernandez, hit a two-run triple in the ninth inning and then scored on second baseman Lou Whitaker's throwing error as the Blue Jays rallied past Detroit 3-2.

Toronto won its sixth straight game and increased its division lead to 2½ games over the second-place Tigers.

Lee was forced into the starting lineup when Fernandez, Toronto's All-Star shortstop, fractured his right elbow and was lost for the season after a hard slide by Detroit's Bill Madlock on Thursday night. Lee replaced Fernandez in that game, which Toronto won 4-3 with the help of his leaping catch that saved a run.

On Friday night, before a crowd of 46,233, the third-largest ever at Exhibition Stadium, Lee helped the Blue Jays.

"Things happen strange sometimes," Toronto's Jesse Barfield said. "Don't get me wrong. We miss Tony. But Manny Lee is a good player."

In other AL games, Kansas City beat Minnesota 6-4. The Twins' magic number for clinching the West is three. Chicago defeated Oakland 2-1 in 10 innings, Cleveland downed California 7-5, New York bopped Baltimore 8-4, Boston routed Milwaukee 9-2 and Seattle crushed Texas 12-3.

Royals 6, Twins 4

George Brett, Danny Tartabull and Jamie Quirk homered in a five-run fifth inning that ended the Twins' six-game winning streak.

Quirk, in a 3-for-36 slump, opened the fifth with a home run off Les Straker. Brett's two-run homer, his 22nd, came against Dan Schatzeder, 3-1, and put the Royals ahead 5-4. Tartabull followed with his 30th homer.

McEnroe appeal denied

NEW YORK (AP) - John McEnroe's appeal of a two-month suspension has been denied and the 28-year-old tennis bad boy will have to pay an automatic $10,000 fine as well.

Marshall Happer, administrator of the Men's International Professional Tennis Council, said Friday the appeal filed by McEnroe was rejected and that the suspension will begin Monday and end Nov. 27. It will apply to all Nabisco Grand Prix tournaments and others events sanctioned by the MIPTC.

The suspension and fine resulted from McEnroe's accumulation of fines exceeding $7,500 for the second time this year after he was levied a total of $7,850 in fines for four violations at the U.S. Open championships.

The longtime tennis star was hit with the suspension and fines totaling $7,500 after three separate warnings Sept. 5 for cursing during a third-round match against Slobodan Zivojinovic of Yugoslovia in the Open. Earlier in the tournament, he received a $350 fine.

NOTICE

SALES TAX ON SANITATION CHARGES
EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 1, 1987

The Tax Bill passed during the Second Called Session, extended the sales tax to all "garbage or other solid waste collection or removal," including municipal garbage collection and removal.

In this case, the city (as seller of the service) must collect both state and local tax effective October 1, 1987. The state sales tax rate will be six percent; the city tax rate will be one percent, and effective January 1, 1988, the county tax rate will be one-half a percent. Beginning in October seven percent sales tax will be added to the sanitation charges; seven and one-half percent sales tax will be added to sanitation charges beginning in January, 1988.

Any sanitation user that is Tax Exempt, will need to come to the Utility Office at City Hall and fill out a form, providing their tax exempt number, prior to September 28, 1987.

As service for rural sanitation originates within the city limits, the sales tax will apply to those users also.

For further information you may contact: Carolyn House, 573-4960, City Hall.

Financial dealings...

Questions grow about Wright

DALLAS (AP) — Under pressure from growing questions about his personal finances, House Speaker Jim Wright is reportedly considering placing his holdings in a blind trust.

Marshall Lynam, Wright's administrative assistant, told the Dallas Morning News Friday that the Fort Worth Democrat had considered setting up a blind trust for some time, but that the idea was now under "active" consideration.

"A blind trust might get rid of some of these distractions," Lynam said of news reports about Wright's finances. "He is wholly immersed in his work in Congress and he doesn't need these distractions that rear up from time to time."

Wright has been the focus of recent stories about his business partnership with Fort Worth developer George Mallick in the investment firm Mallightco. Wright and his wife, Betty, formed the company with Mallick and his wife in 1979.

The advantage of placing his holdings in a blind trust, one Wright adviser said, is that it would remove the appearance of any conflict of interest and relieve the speaker of having to deal with his financial affairs while representing the public.

The Wrights and the Mallicks each invested about $60,000 in Mallightco, which had assets of more than $220,000 by the end of 1985. On his latest financial disclosure statement, Wright reported receiving more than $30,000 in dividends and loans in 1986.

Mallick until recently was involved in efforts to redevelop the Fort Worth Stockyards, for which Wright has written $30 million into federal appropriations bills in the last two years.

Mallick and others planned to borrow nearly $12 million of that to help finance the redevelopment plan, but Mallick dropped out of the project when he couldn't find investors to put up an additional $100 million in private funds.

Wright has not disclosed details of Mallightco's holdings, though House rules require disclosure of investments in privately held companies. But his office announced Friday that he would file an amended financial disclosure form to include more information about Mallightco.

According to Wright aides, the amended form will indicate that the company's investments include the following: precious and semi-precious stones, $50,000 to $100,000; stocks and bonds and real estate near Orlando, Fla., $15,000 to $50,000; and fixed assets, $5,000 to $15,000.

Wright's holdings in Mallightco are worth between $85,000 and $215,000. By law, members of Congress do not have to list specific values of their holdings but can report them in broad ranges.

One close Wright associate told the News said he had not heard of specific plans for a blind trust but said he would recommend it.

"I think he should," said the associate, who requested anonymity. "Anybody in significant public office should have his holdings in a blind trust. And if he is truly not trying to make a lot of money, then he should do it to avoid any whisper of suspicion."

Both Wright associates emphasized that the key to making a blind trust work would be to appoint a trustee with a solid reputation.

"I don't think it ends the scrutiny whatsoever, but it turns the scrutiny on the trustee," one Wright adviser said. "The trustee is then the guy under the gun, and hopefully he's sensitive enough to political realities that he would not put him (Wright) in a position to be hurt."

A spokesman for the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct said that if Wright set up a blind trust, it would have to be approved by the committee and he would have to report the assets that were included.

Thereafter, he would have to report only the total value of the trust, and then only within the broad ranges permitted by the financial disclosure law.

Takeover attempt...

Newmont decision due

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A messy takeover battle between Newmont Mining Corp. and oilman T. Boone Pickens has been stalled by a Delaware judge, who will decide by Monday whether a British company friendly to Newmont management is rightfully entitled to keep stock that Pickens will need to succeed.

In a crowded hearing held Friday at Pickens' request, Chancery Court Vice Chancellor Jack B. Jacobs said he would consider the matter over the weekend.

Lawyers for Newmont and its British ally, Consolidated Gold Fields PLC, told Jacobs that frenzied stock purchases of nearly 16 million Newmont shares made Monday and Tuesday by Consolidated were done legally and properly.

Consolidated attorney Lewis Kaplan said that an order rescinding those purchases, which gave Consolidated 49.7 percent of Newmont's total shares, would create unprecendented havoc in the market and would be like "using a nuclear weapon to kill a flea."

Attorneys for Ivanhoe Partners, the Pickens-led investor group that has been trying to buy 51 percent of Newmont's stock, asked Jacobs to order Consolidated to undo the purchases.

They contend an agreement under which Newmont allowed Consolidated to buy up to 49.9 percent of its stock amounted to an illegal scheme that would hurt Newmont shareholders by preventing Ivanhoe's $72-a-share takeover offer from proceeding.

Both sides said they would not oppose a temporary solution under which Consolidated's Newmont shares are held in escrow until the matter is resolved. Adding weight to the Newmont-Consolidated position was an affidavit filed by the New York Stock Exchange and National Securities Clearing Corp. seeking to block the Pickens effort to undo Consolidated's purchases of Newmont stock.

The NYSE said that if Jacobs stopped the transactions in midstream he would cause a chain of defaults that would seriously disrupt exchange operations. Many of the parties that sold Newmont shares to Consolidated already have used the anticipated proceeds to buy other stocks.

"Basically what we're saying is that it would undermine the integrity of the marketplace," said NYSE spokeswoman Sharon Gamson. "Our basic premise is that a trade is a trade."

The judge granted a Pickens request Wednesday to halt Consolidated from purchasing any more Newmont shares. By that time, however, the company already had bought enough to make Pickens' takeover attempt virtually impossible.

Newmont, based in New York but incorporated in Delaware, is one of the wealthiest mining companies with extensive gold reserves. It has been fiercely fighting Pickens since he undertook the tender offer early this month.

Prior to the Friday hearing, analysts familiar with the struggle had speculated it was unlikely Jacobs would order Consolidated to rescind or divest the Newmont shares it scooped up in a so-called market sweep.

Pickens fared better at a separate legal proceeding Friday in Reno, Nev., where Newmont has extensive mining operations. U.S. District Judge Bruce Thompson denied a request by the company to halt the Pickens tender offer.

ID photos set next week

Photographs for senior citizens identification cards will be made in the Senior Center Wednesday and Thursday. The cards are issued to senior citizens free of charge and contain important personal information about the card holder. They can also be presented as identification to the local merchants who give special discounts to senior citizens.

The Family of Melba Morgan wish to take this means of expressing our appreciation to our friends and neighbors for their sympathy, kindness and the many cards and memorials sent at the death of our Daughter and Sister.

Rosa Kennedy
Howard and Jo Sterling

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a funeral spray,
If so we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words,
as any friend could say.
Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day.
Whatever you did say to console our hearts,
We Thank You so much, whatever the part.

We want to express our deepest gratitude for the love & kindness shown. For all the flowers, food, calls, prayers, money and especially the visits.

Thank You from all of us

Perot urges for appointed board

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas can't tolerate State Board of Education members who think "the world is flat," Dallas businessman H. Ross Perot said in advocating approval of a state ballot proposal to keep the board appointed.

An appointed board is needed to preserve Texas education reforms, Perot said Friday.

"To keep the reforms and bring the benefits to our children that we all want them to have ... we're going to have to have good management at the top," he told about 250 business and civic leaders attending the annual Texas Lyceum Conference.

"We need to keep a high-quality appointed state board," Perot said. "I urge you to vote for it, I urge you to get your friends and associates to vote for it."

Texas voters will decide Nov. 3 whether the State Board of Education should be appointed or elected. Although the current 15-member board was appointed, the state had an elected board until the 1984 education reforms.

One provision in the reform law calls for elections of board members to resume next year. Perot lobbied the legislature this year to keep the appointed board, and lawmakers decided to put the issue to a state vote.

Perot, who led the school reform movement in 1984, said the old, elected board was a "sad spectacle" that embarrassed Texas. Some members sought to restrict the teaching of evolution and water down the quality of school textbooks, he said.

"We had people on the board who honestly thought the world is flat," he said. "We have some of the finest people in Texas" on the board now. "We need strong leadership and we've got it in our state board."

The decision to switch to an appointed board was "one of the most crucial reforms" of the 1984 package, he said.

Most public education groups are pressing for a return to an elected board next year.

"It would be hard for me to see how the people could be convinced to give up their right to vote for these very important elected officials," said John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers. "These positions are too important to make them a political payoff for somebody down the line."

Last two survivors of World War I detachment share ceremonial drink

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Seventy years after they were shipped off to France, the last two survivors of a World War I U.S. Army detachment plan to uncork a bottle of champagne next week at what probably will be their final reunion.

McHenry Tichenor Sr., 89, of Harlingen, says he hopes he and 94-year-old Roy Baker of Oklahoma City find a lot to laugh about.

"Two sitting there moaning is not good," Tichenor says. "There's no time on earth for people to moan. You've got to make something out of nothing."

The two were among the 186 men in Company F of the 111th Ammunition Train, 36th Division, when they went off to the Great War.

Because some died in the war, the group already had diminished in size when it returned after the armistice in 1918. Tichenor says about 65 were left when the group held its first reunion about 25 years ago.

By 1981, when Tichenor's brother — Clay, a captain in the group — came up with the idea that they would buy a bottle of Moet champagne for the last surviving man to drink.

Clay Tichenor died two years ago and left the bottle to McHenry, who decided it would be a lonely exercise for just one man. So he decided to get together with Baker and drink in company.

He says he doesn't know what the two will talk about when they meet Thursday in Oklahoma City.

"You don't want to sit there and discuss the past. When you get there, it'll take care of itself," says Tichenor, who usually wears a bow tie when he drives himself to work every day as the owner of nine radio stations in six cities.

The tradition of setting aside a bottle for the last man dates back to the Civil War, says Tichenor, who remembers "last man" clubs as a boy in Kentucky. But the bottles there held bourbon instead of champagne.

"They were in every town," Tichenor says. "We appreciated them."

Company F consisted mainly of men from Oklahoma and North Texas, says Tichenor, who was recruited by his brother and met up with the group at Camp Bowie in Fort Worth.

"You see, the overriding thought with all of us kids was not whether we would get in. It was getting in and getting it over," he says. "The press built it up to the point where even our mothers were eager for us to go over there. It appeared that Germany was going to take over the world."

Obituaries

Rev. Strickland

ROTAN–Services were held in San Diego for the Rev. George Strickland, 69, who died Sept. 15 at a Loma Linda, Calif. hospital.

A native of Rotan, he was former pastor of the Ave. D Baptist Church in Snyder. He had also served as pastor of churches in Rotan and Longworth.

He was a graduate of Rotan High School, Hardin-Simmons Universty and Southwestern Theological Seminary. He moved to California 32 years ago as a member of the Executive Board of the California Southern Baptist Convention.

At the time of his death he was pastor emeritus of East Clairemont Southern Baptist Church. He retired in 1981.

Survivors include his wife, Mamie Gene Deel Strickland of San Diego; two daughters, Reva Reece of Oceanside, Calif., and Gay Strickland of Encinitas, Calif.; a son, Joe Strickland of Plano; two sisters, Leota Edwards of Rotan and Gladys Noles of Marble Falls; one brother, Truett Strickland of Rotan.

Eddie Smith

HASKELL–Graveside services were held at 11 a.m. Saturday in Willow Cemetery for Mrs. George (Eddie) Smith, 82, who died Friday in a Haskell hospital.

She was the aunt of Dorothy Taggart of Snyder.

Born in Oklahoma, she was a long-time resident of Haskell. She was a homemaker and a member of the Christian Church. She was married to George Thomas Smith who preceded her in death.

Traffic circle wreck reported

Police reported no injuries in a 5:30 p.m. Friday collision at the East Highway traffic circle.

A 1979 Chevrolet pickup driven by Curtis Wayne Tate of 113 Peach St. was in collision with a 1983 Chevrolet two-door driven by Christina Lee Thorpe of Grapevine.

Schools set open house

presented, under the direction of Paula Howard.

At 7:40 p.m., teachers and staff will be introduced and, from 7:40 until 8:30 p.m., classroom visits are encouraged.

Stanfield Elementary

Beginning at 7:30 p.m., a short business meeting of the Stanfield Parent Council is planned. Marcie Dennis will preside.

Principal Bob Travis will then offer a welcome and introduce the faculty, followed by classroom visits.

East Elementary

Open house activities are slated from 7:30 until 8:30 p.m. beginning with an assembly in the auditorium. Students in grades five and six will offer a brief musical program directed by Donna Smith.

Student textbooks, classroom work and projects will then be on display for parents, relatives and friends.

West Elementary

Classroom visits will be encouraged first at West, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Student work will include dinosaur booklets, puppets, original stories, art projects, a colonial village, class constitutions, solar system models and look-alike paper dolls.

At 8:05 until 8:30 p.m., there will be an assembly in the auditorium. Music from sixth graders will be presented under the direction of Mary Lou Scott. Also, Kenneth Parker and kindergarten students will be demonstrating PE skills.

Northeast Elementary

At 7:30 p.m., parents will gather in the auditorium and, at 7:45 p.m., classroom visits will begin.

At 8:30 p.m., the Parent Club will meet in the auditorium.

Central Elementary

Open house at Central will include prizes for the class with the best attendance of parents. First place will be a $15 prize, second, $10; and third, $5.

The evening will begin with an assembly at 7:30 p.m. during which teachers and aides will be introduced. Also planned is a patriotic program by the fifth and sixth grade music classes.

Parents will then be invited to the classrooms. Special student displays will be in the cafeteria, hallways and classrooms.

Central gains project leader

to help both the parents and the students.

The instruction for parents will be done by offering night classes, originally envisioned as Monday through Thursday for two hours nightly.

The parents, with Garza's help, will be trained in such areas as basic math, problem solving, math enrichment, adult arithmetic skills, audio reading, basic reading, reading for comprehension, adult reading skills, fundamentals of English, adult language skills, English as second language, survival skills, exploring careers and the GED curriculum.

The basic educational tool will be Central's computer equipment. The parents will be using personal computers with programs that "teach" the user at their own pace. As one aspect is learned, the computer program advances the student to the next level.

In addition to this educational help for parents, the broader goal is to have the project leader work toward establishing a school-parent council whose membership would be drawn from the parents of children attending Central.

On a still larger scale, the plan is to establish a "partnership-advisory board." This group would be drawn from the entire community to include members of the parent council and community representatives from professional and business areas, civic clubs, public agencies, churches and the retirement community.

The basic goal would again be to assist the special needs of Central Elementary. As envisioned, the parent council would submit a prioritized list of Central's goals.

To help achieve these goals, the partnership-advisory board's help would be sought.

Funding for the new program for the first year was obtained through a competition-type grant awarded by the Texas Education Agency.

Snyder ISD submitted plans for the proposal and the project was chosen as one of six selected statewide.

Garza has a elementary education degree from Texas Tech with a bilingual specialization. She is married to Rudy Garza who works for TU Electric.

Olney to build new this week. Preliminary dirt work on the 5,000 sq. ft., $300,000 building should start in early October, a company spokesman said.

Olney Savings officially took over the operations of First Federal Savings and Loan based in Big Spring on May 27, 1986. First Federal began operations in Snyder in 1977.

"We're so excited to finally be underway," Fran Farmer, branch manager for Olney Savings here, said Friday.

The announcement came from Executive Vice President Jeff McClatchy of Olney, where the savings and loan chain is based.

He commented the firm is well pleased with its beginning here. Snyder was added to the 40 offices it has around the state. These range from Wichita Falls on the north and Brownwood on the south to Azle on the east and Snyder on the west.

"We have done well (in Snyder)," McClatchy said. "With the business we have and the potential Snyder has, we just need a better place to do business."

The company plans to use local sub-contractors as extensively as possible on the project, he said.

Electra Construction Co. of Electra has built the last 10 Olney Savings buildings and will be the general contractor here.

the voters to stop this explosion of debt and return to the time-honored 'pay-as-you-go'' system."

Probation given

A 28-year-old Snyder man has pleaded guilty to a subsequent DWI offense and has been given a two-year probated sentence.

Brent Allen Hinshaw of 4100 Brick Plant Rd. entered the plea before District Judge Gene Dulaney. He was arrested May 24 on the charge.

Prepares to sink minelayer

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — U.S. sailors Friday placed explosives aboard an Iranian ship caught laying mines in the Persian Gulf. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the Navy would blow it up and would tolerate no more mining.

"We're very hopeful that this one episode will be a sufficient warning so that they will stop it, but we are not going to go on the basis of hopes," Weinberger said during a tour of U.S. warships in the gulf.

Asked whether Iranian officials were advised that the 180-foot, 1,662-ton Iran Ajr was being destroyed, he said, "They'll see it when she goes up, or down, I should say ... It certainly will not be handed back so that it can engage in further activities."

Sexual assault charges filed

A Snyder man was arrested early Saturday on a sexual assault charge related to alleged assaults on a 16-year-old girl.

Jessie M. Salazar, 37, of 1711 13th St. was taken into custody at 5:03 a.m. after the girl came to the police station at 11:12 p.m. Friday to sign a complaint.

She said she was assaulted on Sept. 11 and 23 at a residence located in northeast Snyder.

In other police arrests, a 24-year-old man was arrested for DWI and driving with his license suspended at 3:02 a.m. Saturday in the 3700 Block of Dalton.

In addition, a 17-year-old youth was arrested for public intoxication at 10:07 p.m. Friday at Tiger Stadium.

Man said cut in lake fight

A 22-year-old Andrews man was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Saturday morning for a cut suffered in a reported fight earlier at Lake J.B. Thomas.

Sheriff's deputies were questioning a 25-year-old Lubbock man at mid-morning in connection with the incident, but they said no one would be charged until possibly next week.

They said Glenn Jeter was slashed across the chest during a fight that took place about 4:30 a.m. on the south side of the lake near the boat ramp, where a dispute between two groups of men and women apparently led to the fight.

The deputies said the two groups had been fishing prior to the dispute.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

To Rusty Radican of Snyder, Tae Kwon Do, Korean martial arts, is a way of life.

His success in the sport recently earned the Western Texas College sophomore an invitation to teach and to be a student at a week-long National Junior Olympic Tae Kwon Do Camp in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The camp was conducted Aug. 23-30 by members of the 1988 U.S. Olympic Tae Kwon Do team.

Radican served as a group captain and was responsible for 42 of the 150 people attending the camp. The camp was for juniors aged 10 years through 19 years.

Radican calls the intensive, seven to eight hour daily workouts "hard work but lots of fun." His group was the largest at the camp.

In addition, Radican was also one of five captains who got to work out with the U.S. Olympic team. The grueling session lasted some 45 minutes and comprised some 3,600 kicks.

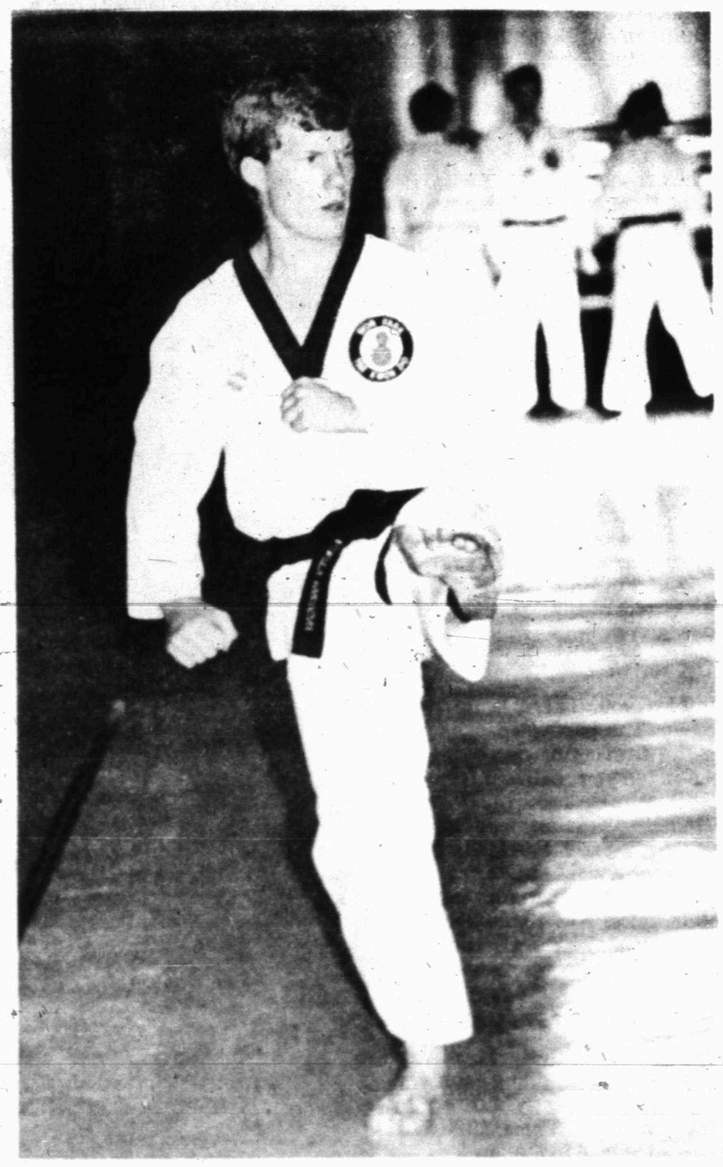

"Everyone in my group was really good," Radican said. "During the workouts we learned the international techniques of free sparring."

Training focused on speed and strength since Radican said the objective in Tae Kwon Do is to be "fast and make your kicks as strong as you can."

Camp participants were taught not only to avoid another's kicks but also to counter with something else, Radican explained.

He said the main goal of the camp was to begin training potential people for the 1992 Olympics. He said they all learned different applications.

"...try to make your mind like a sponge and absorb all you can."

Radican told the 42 people in his group to "try and make your mind like a sponge and absorb everything you can."

"All I can ask of myself is to be the best I can be."

"When we started the camp it was like we were all white belts or beginners. I told my people that we were there to learn from the best," he said.

He said Tae Kwon Do is a demonstration sport, but this is only a small part of the total picture. It is multifaceted and he said it is important to always remember that Tae Kwon Do is a martial art.

One aspect of Tae Kwon Do is self defense. "You learn more about the world and yourself," Radican said. "Tae Kwon Do teaches you respect for yourself and for others."

"Overall, it has given me self-confidence. I tried to convey my feeling to the group. I emphasized to them the importance of maintaining Tae Kwon Do as a martial art and not just as a demonstration sport," Radican explained.

Radican said he has very "strong feelings" against using Tae Kwon Do only as a sport because "you will never learn all the aspects of it that way."

Radican has been studying Tae Kwon Do since the eighth grade. The interest of older brothers in Tae Kwon Do influenced him into also taking up the martial arts lessons.

Presently, he holds a first dan black belt. On Oct. 3, he will test for second dan black belt at the Grand Master Park Studio in Fort Worth.

Since the test will be conducted in Korean, Radican's knowledge of the spoken Korean language will also be tested along with his skill in Tae Kwon Do.

He said that eighth dan is the highest rank that can be achieved in Tae Kwon Do, but that takes years of practice.

"It is very important to me to keep the traditional ways of Tae Kwon Do."

Radican said he would like to compete both nationally and internationally, but noted this can be expensive. Besides being a student at WTC, Radican also works full time at The Shack.

Long range goals include graduating from college in 1989 and perhaps going on to chiropractic school. Between now and then, he said, he would like to be able to compete nationally since "you get to be the best by beating the best." That is also how you get noticed, he said.

He would also like to be selected as a permanent resident in the Tae Kwon Do camp conducted in Colorado Springs. If that should occur, he said it might prove a springboard for landing a berth on the 1992 Olympic team, another long range goal.

Sidney Lazard's play of today's deal deserves a brilliancy prize. In the late stages of a Grand National Team competition, Lazard (South) played against two world-renowned experts. In the modern style, West traded on favorable vulnerability to pre-empt on trash. North doubled for takeout, hoping to find his partner with some major-suit length. I find East's redouble inexplicable, but Lazard's jump to six clubs was quite in keeping with his proven ability to step up to the plate to back his judgment. As to West's double of six clubs — that's an episode from the twilight zone.

Lazard won his heart ace, and trusting his opponent's double, led the nine of clubs and passed it. Then a club to dummy's ace and a diamond back to his ace were followed by two more rounds of clubs, two low spades being pitched from dummy. The king of hearts was cashed and a heart played to dummy, West following. When the last heart was played from dummy, Lazard shed his low diamond, and East had to suffer. He had come down to K-J-9 of spades and K-J of diamonds, but what could he now discard? If he threw a diamond, declarer would ruff a diamond and lead a spade to the 10, endplaying East. If he threw a spade, declarer would play ace and a spade, and the king would pop up.

Lazard could never have played the hand this way without the poorly conceived double by West, but he still deserves the nomination for a brilliancy prize. On the other hand, the East-West bidding might win a booby prize for presenting declarer with a blueprint for the play.

Radican: Tae Kwon Do is way of life

"All I can ask of myself is to be best I can be," he said. "I'll be happy if I can achieve that, because only the very best should represent the United States."

The camp at Colorado Springs has a full time Tae Kwon Do coach who selects the "permanent residents." Usually about 15 are housed at any one time.

Radican works out twice a week at the Boys Club. Besides practicing his own Tae Kwon Do, he also teaches the sport.

"Tae Kwon Do is ageless," Radican said. "It offers so much to the community. It is inside you all the time, you don't leave it on the field like you do with other sports. You take it with you wherever you go.

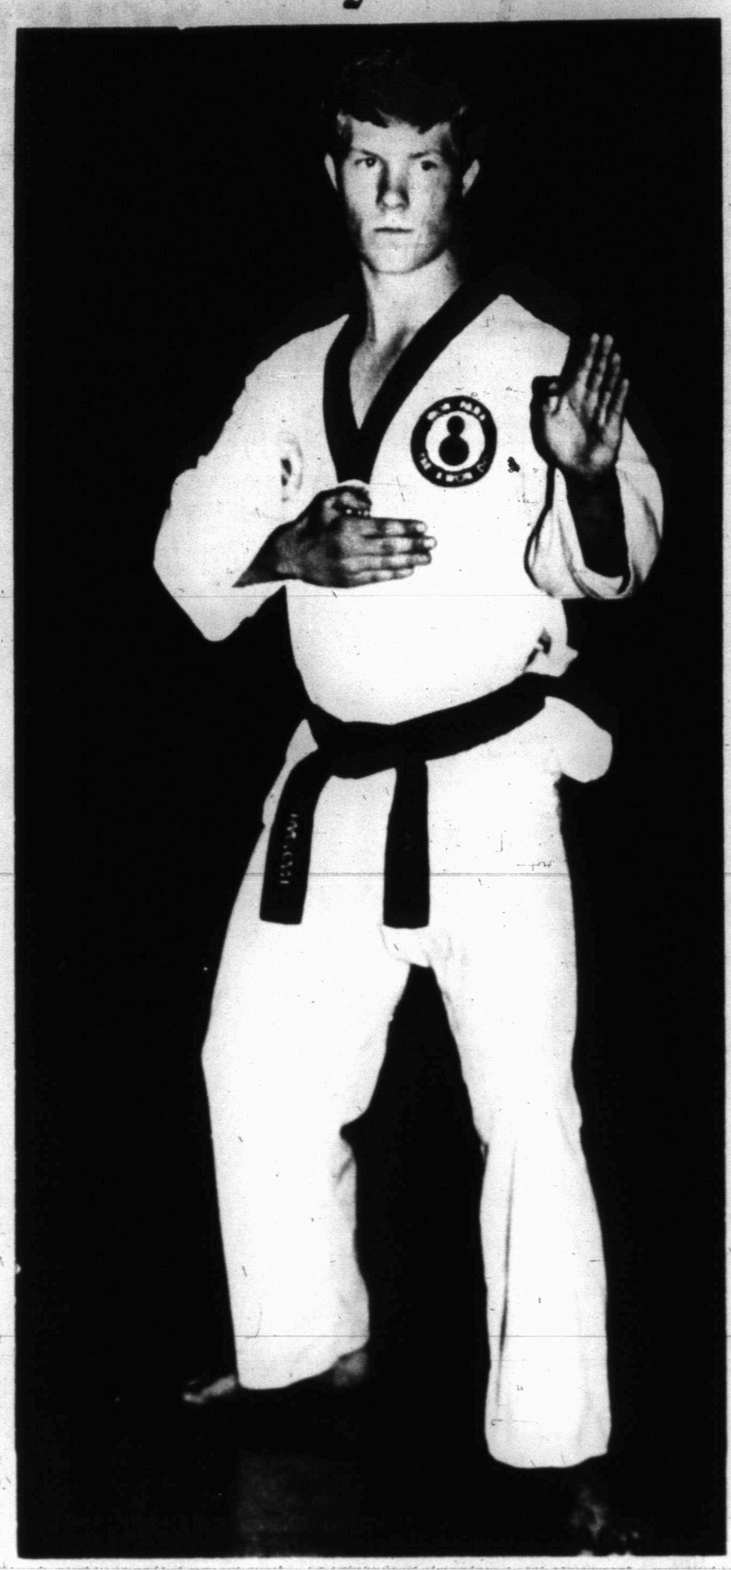

Radican won state two years in a row while in high school. He also competed in the National Junior Tae Kwon Do championship in Chicago in 1985, winning second place. That same year, he placed second in the National Junior Olympics held in Iowa City, Iowa.

Last year, he competed in the National Collegiate Championships in Berkley, Calif. and even though he did not win he said he gained a lot of experience.

"It is very important to me to keep the traditional ways of Tae Kwon Do," he explained. "It humbles you. There is no room for ego. The hardest part is taking the first step. But once you get started you realize it is no big deal."

Radican invites anyone interested in Tae Kwon Do to come and watch a work out.

"There are so many excuses not to take Tae Kwon Do, but most of them aren't valid," he said.

Early dental visits urged for kids

CHICAGO (AP) — The ideal time to take a child for the first dental visit is when the child is an infant, reports a study on the Infant Oral Health Program at the University of Iowa, which was started in 1984.

The study, published in the Journal of Pediatric Dentistry, strongly supports the recommendations from the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry that the child should see a dentist by the age of 1 and that even children as young as 6 months can benefit from dental care.

A major finding of the program, directed by pediatric dentist Dr. Stephen J. Goepferd, was that about half of the children seen were at risk for developing nursing bottle caries caused by using bottles filled with milk, juice or soda as pacifiers or for bedtime or naptime. Decay of the primary teeth can lead to problems in permanent teeth, the report notes.

That's a lot of wood

FORT BRAGG, Calif. (AP) — Redwood forests along the West Coast produce enough net annual growth to build more than two Washington Monuments of solid wood, according to Georgia-Pacific Corp.

Among the world's tallest living trees, redwoods often grow 200 to 275 feet high and are unequaled in their capacity to produce wood volume. They are America's fastest-growing conebearing trees.

Afternoon vows join couple

Stephanie Elaine Stephens of Austin was united with Daniel Jon Radin of Austin at 3 p.m. Sept. 5 in the First Baptist Church Chapel. Rev. Ken Branam, pastor of the church, officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. Stephens of Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Radin of Cincinnati, Ohio.

An archway of greenery entwined with tiny white flowers graced the altar. Spiral candelabra holding seven lights flanked the arch and were trimmed in greenery and white flowers. Two large white baskets tied with lilac bows held bouquets of gladioli.

Hurrican lamps holding lilac candles accented the piano and organ. The white memory candle was in an arrangement of lilac and white flowers. Parents' and grandparents' pews were marked with large lilac satin and lavender tulle bows with streamers holding hearts.

Candlelighters were Randy Still of Midland, brother-in-law of the bride, and Jay Melzer of Edgewood, Ky., brother-in-law of the groom.

Jane Womack provided organ accompaniment with Jamie Cofer of Snyder, Gary Gibbs of Austin, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Jay Melzer of Edgewood, Ky., sister of the groom, providing vocal music.

Selections chosen were "Nadia's Theme," "Sound of Music," "You Needed Me," "Truly," "Wedding Song," "The Lord's Prayer" and traditional marches for the processional and recessional.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown with a princess-style bodice. The scoop neckline was bridal satin overlaid in re-embroidered Alencon lace and edged with double border fringed lace. Iridescent sequins and seed pearls embellished the bodice.

Three-quarter length leg-o-mutton sleeves were capped with satin shoulder bows. Each held a mirror image lace motif dotted with iridescents and pearls which tapered to a satin buttoned point.

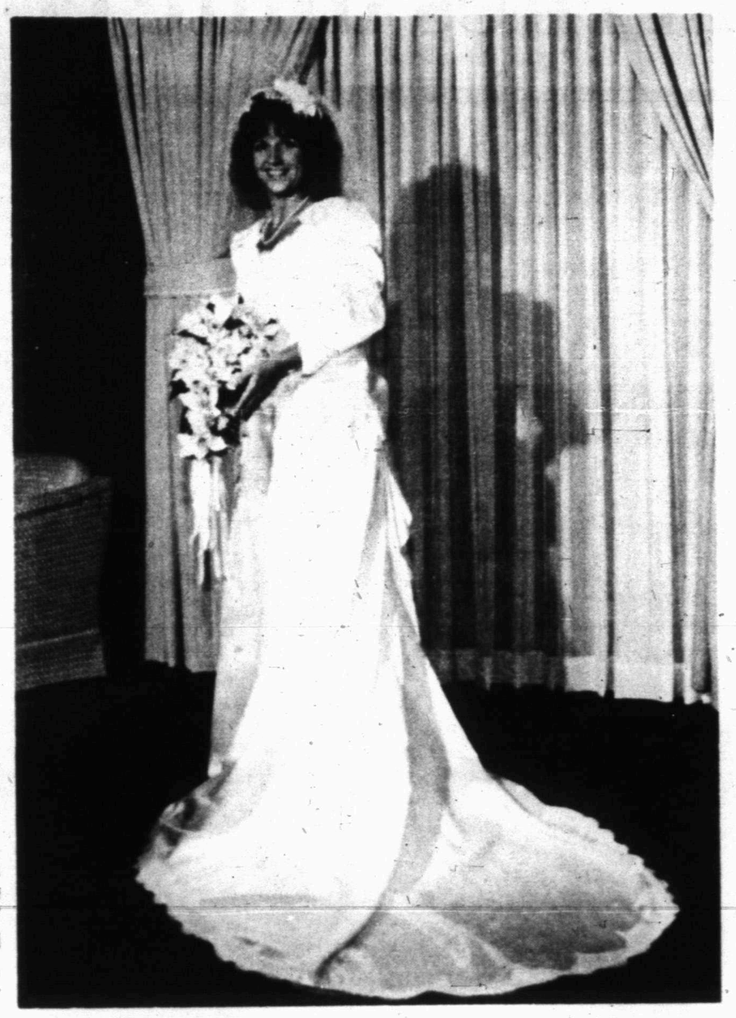

A Basque waistline fastened to a full front-pleated satin skirt which swept to a chapel length train. A back bow and draped cascade fell below satin buttons at the bodice back. Eight mirror-image lace motifs dotted with iridescents and pearls accented the front of the skirt. Fringed galloon lace edged the skirt and train.

Mid-heel white brocade satin shoes to match the gown accented the bridal attire which was designed and created by Mrs. Bill Galloway.

The fingertip veil of silk French illusion fell from a wreath of silk flowers forming a cascade of seed pearl and iridescent sequin sprays on one side of the bride's face. The veil was created by the bride's mother.

Keeping tradition, something old was a white handkerchief carried by the bride's mother at her own wedding. The gown and veil were new and a garter was blue. Something borrowed was a pearl necklace and earrings belonging to Debbie Still, the bride's sister.

The bride carried a bouquet of white silk orchids, lilac rosebuds, stephanotis, gypsophilia and polished trailing petit-point ivy in a cascade arrangement of white lace. Baby's breath was sprinkled throughout the bouquet and streamers of white and lilac picot tied in love knots were attached to ribbon carried through the bouquet.

MRS. DANIEL JON RADIN
(Harley Bynum Photography)

Mrs. Randy Still of Midland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Mrs. Jay Melzer of Edgewood, Ky., sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Each attendant was attired in a tea-length gown of lilac sheermist. The princess-style bodice with Basque waistline came to a point in the front and back and featured a sweetheart neckline. A full gathered skirt of lavender overlay was accented with a large self-made rose at the waist.

A matching headpiece of silk flowers in lavender tipped with lilac was accented with pearls. Shoes died to match completed the attire.

The attendants carried white fans with cascade arrangements of silk lilac rosebuds and white carnations, baby's breath and ivy tipped in glitter. Streamers of lilac ribbon attached to lilac loveknots came out of the center of the bouquets.

Mechille Gibbs of Abilene, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. Her dress matched those of the attendants. She carried a white lace basket decorated with matching ribbon, silk flowers, pearls and sequins filled with lilac and lavender loveknots.

Ryan Gibbs of Abilene, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer. He wore a navy tuxedo and carried a white satin pillow decorated with roses, baby's breath and glitter with lilac streamers and loveknots matching the fans of the attendants. His boutonniere was a miniature lilac rosebud.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo, white shoes and a boutonniere of a white rose and lilac rosebud tipped with glitter.

Best man was Larry Radin of Burbank, Calif., brother of the groom. Gary Armstrong of Austin served as groomsman. The candlelighters also served as ushers.

The male attendants were attired in navy tuxedos with lilac rosebud boutonnieres.

Deanna Myers of Snyder registered the guests. The registry table was covered in white satin embroidered eyelet decorated with lavender and lilac ribbbon and flowers around the ruffle. A white bud vase containing lilac and white silk flowers and a picture of the bride and groom decorated the table.

A reception was held in the church Garden Room following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered in lilac with an overlay of white lace. Three lilac bows accented the table with hearts hanging from the streamers. A silver candelabrum holding five lilac candles centered the table in an arrangement of greenery with lilac carnations, white baby's breath and purple status tied with lilac ribbon.

A crystal punch bowl, a gift from the bride's late grandmother, was matched with appointments of silver and crystal. Individual tables were laid with white cloths and held bouquets of lilac and white silk flowers in bud vases.

The three-tiered white wedding cake was decorated with tiny lilac rosebuds and large roses around the edges. Wedding bells and hearts centered two layers of the cake with a gazebo sheltering a bride and groom finishing the top layer.

Servers were Mrs. Roger Gibbs of Abilene, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Kyle Rosson of Lubbock.

A round table covered to match the bride's table held a silver candelabrum of five lilac candles decorated with white and lavender flowers and lavender ribbon. A large fruit arrangement placed on a silver tray served as the centerpiece. Coffee was served from a silver service with sand tarts and sausage balls.

Servers at the buffet were Mrs. Ronnie Erekson of Rock Springs and Mrs. Thomas McDorman of Snyder.

Following a honeymoon trip to Hawaii, the couple is at home in Austin.

The bride is a Snyder High School graduate and attended Western Texas College. She received her bachelor of science degree in telecommunications from Texas Tech University.

The groom received his bachelor of arts degree in math from the University of Cincinnati and his master's degree in computer science from the University of Texas. He is presently employed as a senior scientist by the Radian Corp. in Austin.

Medium to large worms continue to cycle through some area cotton fields. Low egg lays continue but economic numbers of worms are not developing in the majority of fields. Worm treatment thresholds should be raised for this time of year. Cotton with high numbers of small squares could have an economic number of worms. If you do not have an economic number of worms now, it is doubtful that one will develop.

High numbers of boll weevils continue to be caught in weevil traps. Adult weevils in fields now are weevils which will go into overwintering to emerge and lay eggs next summer.

WINTER HERBICIDES
FOR CROPLAND

Farmers can get the jump on winter and early spring weeds by spraying a herbicide on prepared cropland this fall.

Such a herbicide application can take the place of winter and early spring cultivation to control henbit, seedling dock, annual thistle and other weeds. It can take the worry out of weed control during times when wet fields prevent cultivation, such as was the case last winter in many locations.

Several herbicides are labeled for control of winter weeds. These include atrazine (Aatrex 80W, 4L or Nine-0) on land to be planted to grain or forage sorghum; Bladez (80W or 4L) for grain sorghum land; and Igran for sorghum land. All should be applied with a surfactant or emulsifiable oil to increase their effectiveness if weeds have emerged.

Herbicides applied this winter are a good investment. For example, a pound of atrazine can be applied for less than $3 an acre. One tillage operation will cost about that much, and using a herbicide can offer peace of mind when wet weather sets in.

You can prepare this main dish one night and serve it the next. As soon as the pork chops are done, transfer the meat and vegetables to a 12-by 2½-by 2-inch baking dish and cool. Cover and chill up to 48 hours. To reheat, bake, covered, in a 350-degree oven for 70 minutes or until heated through.

PORK CHOP AND VEGETABLE SKILLET

4 pork chops, cut ½-inch thick (about 1¼ pounds total)
1 tablespoon cooking oil
2 medium onions, thinly sliced and separated into rings
7½-ounce can tomatoes, cut up
¾ cup water
2 teaspoons paprika
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon caraway seed
3 medium potatoes, sliced
1 small green pepper, cut into strips

Trim fat from pork chops. In a 12-inch skillet cook chops over medium-high heat in hot oil 4 to 5 minutes per side or until brown. Remove from skillet. Add onions; cook 3 to 5 minutes or until tender. Drain off fat, if necessary. Add undrained tomatoes, water, paprika, garlic salt and caraway seed. Return chops to skillet. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover; simmer 10 minutes. Add potatoes and green pepper. Cover; simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until pork and potatoes are tender and no pink remains in pork. Makes 4 servings.

Woodard, Spradlin...

Nuptial rites unite couple

Tammy Clarice Woodard and Jason Scott Spradlin were joined in matrimony at 7 p.m. Sept. 5 in Calvary Baptist Church. Rev. Larry McAden, pastor of the church, and Rev. Carl Watson, pastor of Primitive Baptist Church, performed the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Wayne and Betty Woodard of Snyder and Bob and Oneida Spradlin of Ira.

Vows were repeated before a brass arch centered on the altar. Cascading grapevine and yellow and blue silk roses accented the arch. Fifteen-tier spiral brass candelabra flanked the arch. Altar planters were filled with yellow mums, yellow and baby blue roses and white sweet William. Pews were marked with light blue satin bows.

Chris Woodard, brother of the bride, and Justin Spradlin of Ira, brother of the groom, lit the candles.

Musical selections chosen for the ceremony included "Theme from Ice Castles," "Wedding Prayer," "We've Only Just Begun," "You Are So Beautiful," "The Bridal Chorus," "Wedding March," "You Needed Me," "There Is Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Debbie Smith of Ira was pianist with Janelle McAden and Thomas and Vina Strayhorn providing vocal numbers.

Promises chosen for the occasion were the same ones exchanged by the groom's mother and father at their own wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was adorned in a floor-length bridal gown of white acetate satin featuring a shaped bodice with sweetheart neckline. Puff sleeves and V back completed the bodice.

A full skirt was trimmed around the bottom with a wide ruffle ending in an over-sized bow in the back. An underskirt swept into a chapel-length ruffled train.

The finger-tip veil and blusher of bridal illusion were accented with a wreath of silk flowers and pearls.

In keeping with tradition, something old was the bride's mother's first wedding band. Something borrowed were two handkerchiefs belonging to the bride's great-grandmother and grandmother. Her gown was new and a garter was blue. Birthdate pennies were worn in the bride's and groom's shoes.

MRS. JASON SCOTT SPRADLIN

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of bright yellow silk roses, white Frenched silk carnations and light blue forget-me-nots with accents of silk needlepoint ivy and matching streamers of lace and picot satin.

The gown and veil were designed and created by Dorothy Tate of Hermleigh.

Matron of honor was Dodie Zant. She was attired in a tea-length gown of smooth crepe satin in bright yellow. Simply styled with a dropped waist, the bodice was completed by elbow-length puff sleeves and a V back accented by an oversized bow. She carried three long-stemmed light blue roses with cascading ribbons of satin.

Ellen Strayhorn served as senior flower girl and wore a tea-length gown of smooth crepe satin in light blue. The fitted bodice with slightly raised waist was attached to a flared skirt with ruffled lace trim accented with an over-sized bow in the back.

Carol Strayhorn, junior flower girl, wore an identical dress in bright yellow. Each carried a white basket trimmed with satin picot ribbon. Head wreaths of white satin sweetheart roses accented with baby's breath and ribbon in the color of their gowns completed their ensembles.

Max Zant served as best man. The candlelighters served as ushers, also.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo, white ruffled shirt and white cummerbund and bow tie. His boutonniere was a light blue rose.

The best man and ushers wore light blue tuxedos with white shirts and blue cummerbunds and bow ties. Their boutonnieres were blue Frenched carnations.

Craig Row of Snyder registered the guests. A scoll design cloth in blue covered the table. Fresh daisy mums were held in a silver bud vase and a portrait of the bride and groom in a silver frame accented the table.

A reception followed the ceremony. The fellowship hall was decorated with bright yellow and light blue wedding bells and streamers. A bulletin board covered in blue foil and trimmed in yellow displayed pictures of the bride and groom from birth through their courtship.

The bride's table was covered in lace with a light blue underlay. Punch was served from a sterling silver bowl belonging to Janelle McAden of Snyder. The bridal bouquet was set in a crystal bud vase to accent the table. Bright yellow mints were served from a crystal bowl.

The three-tiered wedding cake rested on 14-inch pillars. Each layer was separated by five-inch Grecian pillars. The cakes were decorated in a lace and lattice design. Sweet peas and roses in the bride's chosen colors of blue and yellow accented the cakes. Below the cake, a sweetheart with lace bells was entwined with roses and rosebuds accented with greenery.

Between each cake layer, bells and sweethearts also were decorated with roses. The top layer featured a porcelain bride and groom. The background for the figurine was satin roses surrunded by pearls.

Servers were Brenda Row and Debbie Vaughan assisted by Amy and Angela Vaughan.

The groom's table held a German chocolate cake frosted with mocha icing. Made in the shape of the General Motors symbol, a rope design was used to frost the cake. Bordered in shades of blue and yellow, the names of the bride and groom were written on the cake.

The centerpiece for the table was a wicker basket of silk ivy highlighted with yellow and blue. A pewter coffee service belonging to Brenda Row accented the table with a porcelain bride and groom.

The table was covered with a scroll-design lace cloth trimmed in blue. Servers were Carolyn Labus of Ft. Worth, aunt of the groom and Bonnie Ogden of Lewisville, also an aunt of the groom.

Following a honeymoon trip, the couple will be at home in Ft. Worth.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and Western Texas College.

The groom is an Ira High School graduate and is presently attending Brookhaven College in Dallas and is employed with Bailey Pontiac in Ft. Worth.

Sharon Nachlinger of Snyder and John Paul Rogers of Midland photographed the occasion with Gayland Vaughan filming a video.

Bamboo is grass but grows tall as trees

NEW YORK (AP) — Although bamboo belongs to the grass family, it is not unusual for its woody stems to grow as tall as trees.

Occasional specimens have measured 120 feet in height and three feet in circumference. There are more than 200 bamboo species that can be found from sea level to altitudes exceeding 10,500 feet.

The grass family is very diverse. It counts among its many members grass that covers suburbia's lawn; grains such as wheat, rice and corn; pasture plants such as sorghum and timothy, and even sugar cane.

MILK PRODUCTS

Milk is high in protein, calcium, phosphorous, niacin, riboflavin and vitamins A and D.

Milk products containing only 0-1% milk fat include skim milk or fluid nonfat milk; low-fat milk; nonfat or low-fat dry milk; evaporated skim milk; buttermilk made from skim or low-fat milk; skim or low-fat yogurt; drinks made with skim or low-fat milk and cocoa or other low-fat drink powders; ice milk, sherbet, frozen low-fat yogurt.

Low-fat cheeses are dry-curd or low-fat cottage cheese; low-fat natural cheeses or processed special cheeses labeled as containing no more than two grams of fat per ounce.

Begin trying lower-in-fat milk products. Whole milk is 4% fat. If you use whole milk now, first try 2% fat milk, then move along to 1% fat milk. Soon, you will enjoy the taste of skim milk.

Look for milk products labeled "fortified with vitamins A and D." Adults and young children need two servings daily. Older children, teenagers and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding need three to four servings.

One serving equals eight ounces low-fat or skim milk or yogurt, two ounces low-fat cheese, or ½ cup low-fat cottage cheese.

Foods to avoid are milk products containing more than 1% milk fat. These include low-fat milk with 1½-2% milk fat; whole milk; dried whole milk; buttermilk or yogurt made from whole milk; drinks made from whole milk; condensed milk; evaporated milk and ice cream.

Also to avoid are cream of all kinds including half and half, light, heavy, whipping or sour cream; nondairy cream substitutes such as coffee creamers, sour cream substitutes and palm oil which are high in saturated fat. Look for special ones labeled "made from polyunsaturated fat."

All cheese containing more than 2 grams of fat per ounce should be avoided including cream cheese, creamed cottage cheese and most other natural and processed cheeses such as American, Swiss, mozzarella and bleu.

Diner long-time fixture of little town

WELLSBORO, Pa. (AP) — It's 6 a.m. and another misty morning as Dorathy Cummings unlocks the doors to the Wellsboro Diner.

After 28 years at the restaurant, Dorathy, who is now the proprietor along with her husband, Roy, is as much a fixture in this northeast Pennsylvania town as "The Diner" itself.

As the breakfast regulars file into the clean cream-colored porcelain "train car," Dorathy warmly greets them with a smile and freshly brewed coffee — the same brand of coffee that's been served since the diner opened on April 1, 1939.

Some of the patrons head for booths, while others prefer to perch on the counter stools.

Toward the end of the morning rush hour, eight elderly gentlemen huddled in two booths begin their morning ritual of tossing quarters in the air. The purpose: to figure out who gets stuck with the bill, and who walks away with the kitty of quarters.

Just as people identify Wellsboro with the Pennsylvania Grand Canyon and the gas lamps which line the boulevards, the same type of recognition is given to the quaint little town's diner.

Dorathy and Roy, the diner's third owners, have run the restaurant with good-natured hospitality the past 15 years.

Town officials may invite Gorbachev

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas politicians in Washington are thinking about inviting Mikhail Gorbachev to the Lone Star State if the Soviet chief takes up President Reagan's offer for a summit meeting in the United States later this fall.

"I'd like to see how he looks in a Stetson," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, told The Houston Post in a story published today.

Bentsen told the Post Washington bureau Gorbachev would be overwhelmed with Texas hospitality and be provided with a better understanding of Americans' bedrock values.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, thinks the Soviet leader should be taken to a high school football game in some medium-size Texas community.

"It would give him a real perspective on how competitive Americans are — and on the strength of America," Gramm said.

And Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, who met Gorbachev last spring during a visit to the Soviet Union, said Gorbachev should visit Houston.

"He needs to see the Johnson Space Center, and our medical center would be a marvel to him," Leland said.

Soviet expert Jim Hackett of the Heritage Foundation said a visit to NASA might not be so wise during a time when the nation's space program is trying to get back on its feet.

"He'll snicker and say, 'We have a bigger and better program,'" Hackett said.

Abused Women, Abusive Men Could Be Anyone You Know

DEAR READERS: Every day more than 2 million women in this country are abused physically and emotionally in their homes by someone they live with. Domestic abuse is the most common violent crime in this country.

Every 18 seconds a woman is battered.

Any woman can be a victim of abuse: any age, race, culture, sexual preference or class. It can be your mother, sister, daughter or friend. It can be you.

Abuse takes many forms. It ranges from insults, put-downs and threats, to slaps, punches, choking, rape, stabbing and, all too often, death.

Why does a woman stay in an abusive situation? Because of ...

FEAR: If she leaves he will find her and kill her.

GUILT: Somehow the abuse was her fault; she asked for it or deserved it.

SHAME, EMBARRASSMENT: She doesn't want friends or family to know, can't admit that the marriage/relationship isn't working.

LOW SELF-ESTEEM, HELPLESSNESS: She feels she can't make it on her own, can't support her children, will never find someone else to "love" her.

She may have no money, no place to go, no help or support from friends or family. She may be physically ill. She might still be hoping he will change and wishing for a "happily ever after" that doesn't exist.

Any or all of these factors make it difficult for a battered woman to escape the violence that rules her life.

Men who abuse come from every class, race, culture, age and occupation. They can be poor and unemployed or rich and powerful. Many were abused as children or witnessed abuse. Their anger, insecurity and low self-esteem are expressed through violence and abuse.

Domestic violence exists in every culture and society all over the world. It is a shameful part of our history hidden and ignored until the 1970s. It exists because of centuries of sexist attitudes and beliefs that condone and excuse the abuse of women by husbands, lovers, fathers, all men.

SOME FACTS

— Over 50 percent of sexual assaults take place in a residence of some kind.

— 50 to 60 percent are "acquaintance rapes" — the assailants know or are "friends" or relatives of the victims.

— 71 percent of all types of sexual assaults are planned.

— The FBI estimates that only one out of 10 sexual assaults are reported.

— In 93 percent of sexual assaults, the victim and assailant are of the same race and socioeconomic class.

— Victims range in age from infancy to their 90s, and every race, class and culture.

Any time a woman is coerced or forced into sexual relations against her will and without complete and voluntary consent, she has been sexually assaulted.

No woman asks to be raped. No woman deserves to be sexually assaulted.

What to do if you are sexually assaulted:

— Call the police. They will take you for medical treatment if you need or want it. They will ask for a description of the assailant and the attack. (You do not have to report the assault or press charges, but I recommend it.)

— Get medical treatment immediately at an emergency room, clinic or from your personal physician. You may have received internal injuries or been exposed to venereal disease, and there is the possibility of pregnancy.

Remember: Do not bathe or shower. Valuable evidence will be destroyed.

Save the clothes you were wearing at the time of the assault.

As soon as you are able, write down as many of the details of the attack as you can remember.

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)

DEAR ABBY: I recently went back to my small hometown for a class reunion. While dining out with my wife and in-laws, I saw an old girlfriend sitting at a nearby table with friends. Abby, I was so turned on just seeing her, I had to go over to her table to say hello. In the few minutes I spoke with her, I learned that she is a successful businesswoman — still unmarried at 38! She gave me her business card and home phone number.

I am the vice president of a large corporation and have been happily married for 20 years. I still have feelings for this former girlfriend and would like to start seeing her again. I look at that card constantly and want to call her. Should I? Answer ASAP.

LOOKIN' GOOD AT 42

DEAR LOOKIN' GOOD: Quit looking, and throw away that old friend's card ASAP. The best way to resist temptation is to remove it. All major messes of this kind begin with one telephone call. Trust me.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, at a family get-together at my home, a photo album was passed around for family members to enjoy. This album contained many pictures from as far back as the early '40s. One "in-law" was seen looking at two particular pictures for a very long time. The pictures were of her husband and his first wife. (Their marriage ended in divorce.)

After everyone left, I noticed that those two pictures had been removed from the album! This in-law and her husband do not live in the same town with us. I am sure Wife No. 2 removed those pictures from the album. (They are probably shredded by now.)

What do you think of this? And how would you handle this the next time we have a family get-together, which is only once a year?

STEAMED IN GEORGIA

DEAR STEAMED: You are probably correct in assuming that the photos were lifted by the light-fingered, heavy-handed in-law. There is nothing to "handle." The deed is done. In the future, either stand guard while the album is being "enjoyed" or lock it up.

DEAR ABBY: We have been seeing references to "the late" Franklin Delano Roosevelt since we were kids in the '50s. The most recent one was in June of this year.

Could you please ask your experts and let us know just how many years must go by before one is just plain dead rather than "late"?

LINDA AND DAVID S.
IN BAKERSFIELD

DEAR LINDA AND DAVID: According to my expert, Letitia Baldrige (author of "The Complete Guide to Executive Manners"): "When referring to someone who was famous and is now dead, one need not say 'the late.' (Franklin Delano Roosevelt would qualify.) But in referring to a person who was not well-known, 'the late Mrs. John Jones' would indicate that she is no longer living."

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are in our 40s. Friends, also in their 40s, have invited us to their wedding (his fourth, her third).

My wife thinks we should send them a wedding gift. I say they have already received enough wedding gifts as they both own homes and don't need any items to start a household. The fact that we will be attending their wedding indicates our best wishes, and that should be enough.

If my wife insists, I say we should give them a toaster. Who's right?

GIFT GIVER

DEAR GIVER: Your wife is. Some kind of gift is in order. Forget the toaster; make it something the couple doesn't have — "his and her" stationery, or monogrammed towels bearing their new initials.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

How much money should be withheld?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wednesday is the deadline for filing a federal tax-withholding form, and several million employees are in danger of being scofflaws.

The new form was ordered by Congress last year when it enacted a sweeping overhaul of the income tax. The Internal Revenue Service estimates that something like 18 million workers have yet to file.

You won't go to jail for not filing. But there's a good chance your withholding and actual tax liability will not be matched unless you change your withholding to reflect the new law. That could cost you.

Here are some questions and answers about the W-4 and its simpler version, the W-4A:

Q. I hear horror stories about how difficult they are.

A. To complete W-4A, the majority of workers — non-itemizing singles and married workers without a working spouse — need know little more than their Social Security number and how many dependents they have.

Q. And if I don't fit that category?

A. If you itemize deductions on your tax return, you will have to estimate your 1987 income and deductions and do a few simple calculations at the top of Page 2 of the form. If you have two jobs or a working spouse, you also should go through the 11 lines in the center of Page 2.

Q. Then why all the fuss?

A. The original four-page W-4 released earlier this year looked menacing and confusing, so the IRS responded by offering a simpler — but less precise — W-4A. The IRS says taxpayers who have lots of non-wage income may need to use the longer form. Any taxpayer may use either.

Q. My husband and I earn about $40,000 and have two kids, a big mortgage and the usual bills. We don't know exactly how the new tax law affects us so how can we figure out how much tax to have withheld?

A. You have to estimate, and the new law probably will have a greater impact than you imagined. On the plus side, it cuts your tax rate significantly and almost doubles the personal exemption.

On the other hand, you lose the special two-earner-couple deduction, the deduction for sales taxes and part of the writeoff for consumer interest, uninsured medical expenses and such miscellaneous items as union dues. You may lose part of the Individual Retirement Account deduction.

Q. Somebody said I could be penalized if, after filling out a new W-4, I get a refund next year. Can that be right?

Dole is to announce candidacy on Nov. 9

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., will formally announce his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination on Nov. 9 in his hometown of Russell, Kan.

The Dole campaign also plans to make follow-up appearances the same day in Iowa and New Hampshire although the details have not been decided, Tim Archie, a spokesman for Dole's presidential exploratory committee, said today.

A campaign swing through the South is planned on the heels of Dole's official entry into the race.

Bill Lacy, the campaign director, said Dole has a campaign organization in 37 states and so far has collected a little more than $7 million.

Vice President George Bush is expected to make his formal declaration on Oct. 12, nine days after he returns from a trip to Europe.

Your Birthday

Sunday, Sept. 27, 1987

In the year ahead, a successful, well-established friend may involve you in a venture that is already reckoned as a success. It could be the opportunity of a lifetime.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be a daydreamer today when you are moving about. If your attention starts wandering, you might bump into a closed door. Major changes are ahead for Libras in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Unless they are bona fide financial experts, don't let anyone advise you on investments or how to utilize your resources today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, it's best not to get involved socially with a group that has members who make you feel uncomfortable. Instead, go where you're warmly received.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Any actions you take out of anger or spite today are apt to boomerang. In order to have a pleasant day, be forgiving and turn the other cheek.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be realistic regarding your worldly aspirations today. Things may not develop as quickly as you like, nor be as rewarding as you hope.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Mistakes you make early in the day can be rectified, so don't toss in the towel. Instead, when things go wrong, dedicate yourself to righting them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Early in the day your judgment may be questionable. If you have an important decision to make, try to put it off until evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, be neither a borrower nor a lender. The former could weaken your image, and the latter could invite an unretrievable loss.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your opinions may not reflect the views of the majority today. You'll discover this for yourself if you try to impose them on people.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A breakdown in production is likely today if your methods are shoddy, especially if you attempt a task with which you are unfamiliar.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Stick to the modest and prudent line today where your finances are concerned. If you do otherwise, you'll have spender's remorse tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you have an important matter to attend to today, try to do it unencumbered by inept assistants. Helpers can be a hindrance.

Your Birthday

Monday, Sept. 28, 1987

In the year ahead, don't make changes just for change's sake. The aspects indicate that what you have going at present is better than you may think. Give everything time to develop.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be very explicit in your instructions today when handing out assignments to others. The results will be undesirable if people don't understand what you expect from them. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 911428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you are a pragmatic and realistic person, but today these splendid qualities could desert you. You might forego good judgment for wishful thinking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep a close eye on your possessions today if you have to operate in an unfamiliar environment. When leaving your car, be sure the doors and trunk are locked.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An important objective can only be achieved today if you have the will and determination to do so. Don't let self-doubts dictate your modus operandi.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone might come to you today with a rather sad tale, and you'll feel inclined to help this person materially. Before opening your purse, check the story out further.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's best not to take anything for granted in your business dealings today, even if you are involved with a friend. Putting terms in writing will avoid misunderstandings.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, don't become involved with someone you know might leave you holding the bag if what you're doing goes wrong.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Owing to changing circumstance, someone from whom you're expecting a favor today might not be able to comply. It's best you start scouting around for a backup.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone you know socially who likes to manipulate people to her advantage will be up to her old tricks again today. Be careful you're not this person's puppet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) For expeditious reasons, an associate may say "yes" today to something for which you'll ask. Unfortunately, this individual is not apt to follow through.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) All is not as it appears to be in your workplace today. A conniver might try to stir something up. Beware of plots that have political overtones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Before making a major decision today, be sure you fully appreciate what it means to you in dollars and cents. Get out your pad and pencil, and recheck all your numbers.

AIDS brochures are printed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is disregarding a congressional admonition to mail AIDS information to every American household and instead will distribute as many as 45 million copies of a brochure through private and public outlets.

Word that the eight-page pamphlet will be distributed next week surfaced late Thursday on the heels of criticism in Congress that the administration had failed to prepare a national mailer along the lines of what has been done in Britain.

"This doesn't fit the bill of making sure every household gets information, which I think is the goal we need to work toward," said Ann E. McFarren, executive director of the private AIDS Action Council.

"I don't believe Congress is going to be pleased with this at all," added McFarren, whose group lobbies on behalf of some 300 other AIDS organizations and treatment providers.

Campbell Gardett, a spokesman for the Department of Health and Human Services, said 25 million copies of the brochure will be available for distribution Sept. 30 in conjunction with AIDS Awareness and Prevention Month in October.

Plans are to funnel the pamphlet through state and local health departments, community-based organizations and large employers, Gardett said.

The booklet was prepared initially by the federal Centers for Disease Control for possible distribution by mail, and Gardett said the parent HHS department has not ruled out mail distribution of the pamphlet or some other leaflet.

But he said department officials have "questions whether mailing to every address in the country is an appropriate or effective way" to communicate government recommendations on AIDS.

Advance copies of the pamphlet were not available. It was unclear how explicit it would be on following the recommendations of Surgeon General C. Everett Koop's longer booklet which says condoms should be used by people who do not heed his advice that sexual abstinence or monogamous relationships with uninfected partners are the surest ways to avoid infection from the deadly disease.

Gardett said an additional 2 million copies of the brochure will be available for Defense Department personnel in the United States and abroad.

The remainder, he said, will be available as printing schedules allow.

Earlier Thursday, Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore, had said the White House was responsibile for delays in a mass mailing.

But Gary Bauer, President Reagan's assistant for domestic policy, said, "The bottleneck is not here. If Congress has passed money for a mailing, they (the Department of Health and Human Services) ought to do a mailing."

In a Sept. 22 letter to Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., HHS Secretary Otis R. Bowen said his department planned a national mailing but it would not be ready by October "because the time required to develop the materials and to arrange logistical support was not adequate."

Fight results in black eye

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Justice of the Peace J.P. "Jimmie" Gutierrez found little peace at his office when a quarrel with his wife led to her fainting and fisticuffs that left the judge with a black eye.

Two of his wife's sisters were taken into custody briefly after Gutierrez said they attacked him Thursday. But, after an hour, Gutierrez dropped assault charges and they were released.

Rosa Limon, 24, and Consuelo Limon, 31, were arrested briefly as a result of the 2:15 p.m. incident.

Gutierrez, 78, said the fracas began about 2:30 p.m. when his 35-year-old wife, Mary, became upset at seeing a woman return his car.

"My wife is jealous," he said. "I can't do anything. She thought I had gone to lunch with a woman here, but I had just loaned her my car.

"I was sitting right here when she got here. I got up to go marry a couple and she went to (Constable Charlie) Campos' office. She must have called her sisters and then fainted."

He said that when his wife's sisters — Rosa Limon and Consuelo Limon — arrived and saw Mrs. Gutierrez had fainted, they attacked him.

"Rosa slapped the hell out of me and knocked off my glasses," Gutierrez said. "She caught me off guard and knocked me to the ground."

Guiterrez said he then asked Sgt. C.R. Rodriguez, a deputy constable, to put the women in jail.

About an hour after the incident, Guiterrez's phone rang in his office. After hanging up the phone, Guiterrez said, "that was my wife. She wanted me to release them."

Children need parental guidance, Bennett says

DALLAS (AP) — Society must focus on the family instead of social welfare programs if the problems of drug abuse, suicide and abortion are to be solved, U.S. Education Secretary William Bennett says.

"The well-being of our children has less to do with programs than it has to do with the responsibilty of adults and parents," Bennett said Thursday night at the Texas Coalition For Life and Greater Dallas Right To Life annual banquet in Dallas.

Bennett told the crowd of 800 that in 1980, $245 billion was spent on 260 social welfare programs, much of which was directed toward children.

Yet although $206 billion more was spent on social services in 1980 than in 1960, the number of children using drugs grew from 37 to 107 out of 1,000 young people; the suicide rate increased from 3.6 to 9.1; and abortion rates rose from 260 per 1,000 white women to 444.

Bennett blamed the increases on the weakening of the nation's family network. He said parents are responsible for the protection and welfare of their children and they must face that responsibilty.

The world's well-being hinges on society's realization that today's children, will one day shape the world.

"This world is reborn through its children," he said. "The presence of babies, the presence of children places responsibilties on each generation of adults," the secretary said. "What do we do for them? How do we raise and nuture them?"

Editorials-Columns-Cartoons-Kid Stuff-Look Back-Letters

The old rule of thumb is you should never buy groceries when you're hungry.

To this we might add, it doesn't improve the quality of column writing either.

To explain about grocery buying, hunger pangs have a tendency to make you stray too far from your meat and potato list.

While running up and down the aisles looking for the basic food groups, it's easy for your hunger to distract you toward Pringle's sour cream and onion potato chips, "Little Dolly" apple-cinnamon-raisin cakes, marshmallow-centered Twinkies and Eagle honey-roasted cashews.

A lady once commented to us, "I just spent $50 on groceries and I didn't even get anything FUN."

To this, we'd note that buying groceries while your belly growls will add substantial "fun" items, but will also likely swell that $50 cash register tape to a figure more commonly associated with the life expectancy of a Russian barbell lifter.

As for column writing, the basic premise of same is to concentrate on some high-blown "concept"--hopefully one elevated above stomach grumbles--then to mentally flail away at it until it assumes a readable shape.

(It is that simple and we recommend everyone should try it at least once.)

When you're hungry, however, your mind keeps drifting back to a beef taco and how the darker flavor of the meat is perfectly balanced by a tart tomato wedge and the satisfying crunch of the corn shell self-destructing in your mouth.

And speaking of crunch, what about an M&M Blizzard--that flavorful mix of soft cream and refrigerated cold chocolate which packs the calorie wallop of a six-pack of brewskie?

The different textures of the mushy ice cream and the hard chocolate seem to alternate waking up your tastebuds, bouncing waves of cold pleasure from your tongue to your nose.

We're also a sucker for Dixie Dogs, which are a richer variation on their corn-based cousin, the Corny Dog.

While Corny Dogs have the dry, shuck flavor of corn, Dixie Dogs have some smoother, secret ingredient in their batter.

In fact, it is a protected recipe which can only be purchased from dealers. The result creates a batter which we've always associated with the Biblical bread "manna."

It seems made from some kind of cosmic soup, liquified in a thick batter that fries to a crust just greasy enough to make the flavor linger on the roof of your mouth.

So, on this particular day, every time we try to concentrate on serious stuff, we wind up with images like fried pork chops and cream gravy served with cheese grits and blackeyed peas.

Or, as the early fall weather turns chilly, a bubbling pot of stew flavored with corn, carrots, potatoes and hamburger meatballs spiced with cut onion greens, lemon pepper and garlic salt.

Or, for a Saturday afternoon football game by the tube, two-alarm chili with its red pepper sizzle neutralized by thick cheese sandwiches, toasted and hot.

Good god-all-mighty, ya'll. It must be time to go to the house 'cause we folks is gettin' hongry.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

A good friend of mine just sent her baby off to school for the first time and she's not handling it very well. The mother, I mean. Another friend's son just turned 13. ("He's a walking hormone," she reports.) My son turned 10 the day after Labor Day, and for the first time today, I noticed almost imperceptible little bumps underneath the surface of his soft cheek skin. Precursor of the adolescent curse, no doubt.

These developments tend to make a parent pensive, especially when you have the wonderful privilege of raising your children with your friends' children, and watching them grow up together. I can remember when my friend Carol, who does the delightful cartoon beside my column on this page, and I would strap our sons into their infant seats and turn them to face each other while we doled out teething crackers and talked. When they were toddlers, they were each other's only friends. (There was no Mother's Day Out back then.) We'd put them on the floor together and stay close by so that we could pull baby-fine hair out of little fingers if it was required, or remove potentially lethal weapons from sweaty little fists. Carol and I lived many country miles apart, but we'd get together whenever we could and, like fuel in an automobile, would keep each other going.

By the time the boys were preschool age, we had infant daughters, and would sit together and feed the babies while the boys disassembled a room down the hall. As the girls grew, they became fast friends, and Carol and I would sit and marvel at our offspring as they entertained themselves, at long last, leaving us alone to visit.

I have other friends whose children have shared childhoods with mine. Some of them are entering junior high now, and I know it will be no time until they leave for college.

"So," said a friend of mine who is studying to be an accountant, "you have a child who's in the double-digit years now!" A group of us had gathered together for grilled hamburgers and visiting. The school year was barely one week old, and the air carried the softest suggestion of fall on its shoulders. Trees heavy with glossy green leaves, not yet ready to turn, nodded and whispered together in the breeze. The shouts and squeals of playing children drifted to us like memories along with the pungent scent of cooking hamburgers.

We were sitting apart from the group, on the porch steps, and we could hear soft laughter from the adults gathered at the lawn chairs. My friend took a long drag on her cigarette, and I leaned my head back, gazing into a sky bright with the promise of a full moon. Her remark had disturbed me somehow, like a painting hung crooked in an orderly room. I wanted to set it straight, and yet I could see that it was level. She was right.

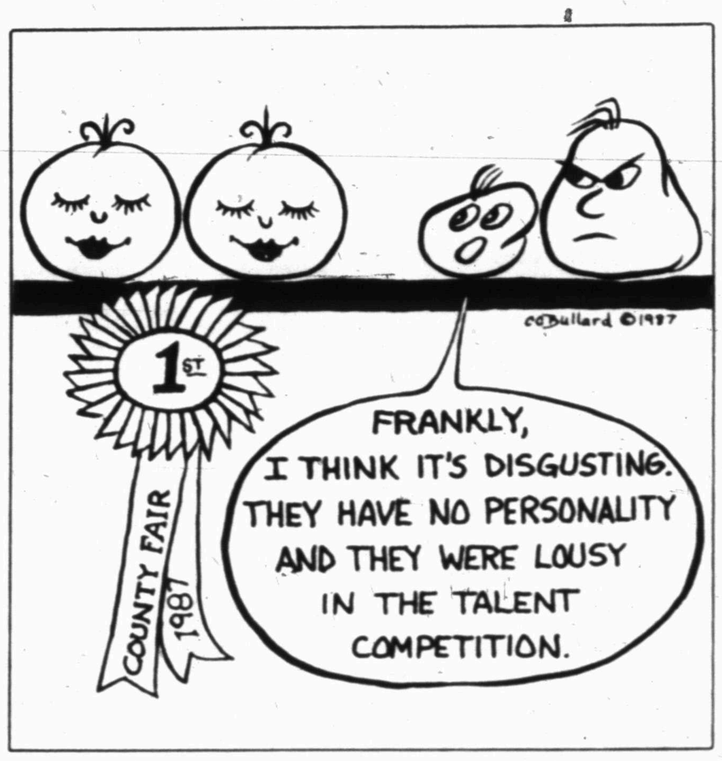

Like all mothers everywhere, I wanted to wrap my children in my arms and protect them, forever and forever, from all the hurts of the world. Yet, as the sounds of their shrieks and challenges came to me over the evening calm, I knew that true love of life comes only from confronting the destiny intended for each of us. My children deserved that chance just as much as I did.

I smiled at my friend as our sons came into view, roughhousing and horseplaying in the grass, their faces alit with mischief and fun, like boys everywhere. Our daughters, also of similar age and temperament, flitted from shadow to shadow, sharing secrets that have kept little girls alive with curiosity since the beginning of time.

I longed to capture the moment like a firefly in a jar, treasure it, take it out and hold it close on the bad days. Maybe I will. But, like a true lover of a good story, I couldn't help but think, "Gosh, I can't wait to see how it all turns out."

Not all stories have happy endings, to be sure, but the true joy comes, I think, from the reading.

FAIR IS FAIR

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
September 20

Efforts to complete the bid document for a 2,250-man maximum security prison unit, a project which supporters say could guarantee the long term economic security of Scurry County, were described in Sunday's SDN.

By Monday, 16 copies of the document were expected to be in the hands of Texas Department of Correction officials in Huntsville prior to the 3 p.m. deadline.

Regarding the effort, project coordinator Roy Baze said, "I don't think anyone will offer a more complete or professional report."

The newly formed Council for Educational Excellence, a self-described "academic booster club" for Snyder ISD, is preparing to launch its first membership drive.

The first visible effort will be a booth at the Scurry County Fair this week, where workers will be explaining the goals of the group and encouraging persons to contribute $10 to join as new members.

MONDAY

A head-on collision caused extensive damage to the affected vehicles early Monday and a girl passenger was later transferred to Lubbock Methodist Hospital with head injuries.

The wreck occurred around 7:55 a.m. at the intersection of U.S. Hwy. 180 and FM 1611 west of the city.

Investigating Department of Public Safety officers say it occurred as Stephanie Jinkins, of Rt. 1, headed west on U.S. 180, attempted to make a left turn in front of an eastbound late model Monte Carlo driven by Kathy Brooks, who also listed a local route address. The injured passenger was Stacie Cline.

TUESDAY
September 22

Scurry County's competition for a 2,250-bed maximum security regional prison has come down to statewide communities proposing 35 sites, a Texas Department of Corrections spokesman said Tuesday morning.

The deadline for these bids passed Monday.

This coming Oct. 15, TDC officials are expected to select the sites for three proposed prisons. Monday, TDC officials in Huntsville received proposals from 33 Texas communities hoping to be chosen for one or all three.

WEDNESDAY
September 23

The previously untaxed service of municipal garbage collection is about to come under the state sales tax, and Snyder residents will see a change on their monthly bills effective Oct. 1, it was reported Wednesday.

The state sales tax will be 6 percent and will be added to the city sales tax of 1 percent. In addition, effective Jan. 1, the county sales tax, approved Aug. 8 by county voters, will add another ½ percent to this.

THURSDAY
September 24

The 22nd annual Scurry County Fair was off and running after opening to the public at noon Thursday.

The opening day attractions--in addition to such items as carnival rides, the kiddie barnyard, a children's "treasure hunt" and helicopter rides from the fair grounds--included the "Fly or Fry" chicken flying contest at 7 p.m.

Also starting Thursday was the domino tournament in Room A of the coliseum.

An election to name one expiring term on the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors is slated Oct. 8, it was reported Thursday.

The expiring term on the board is for Zone 3 and is currently held by Charlie Henderson. Zone 3 is all of Scurry County to the north of U.S. Hwy. 180 and northeast of U.S. Hwy. 84.

Two Snyder men were arrested early Thursday in connection with the theft of two money bags from a convenience store clerk's car late Wednesday.

Raymond Allen, 19, of 2607 Ave. Y and Ray Reyes, 22, who listed a Lamesa Highway address, were arrested at 4:25 a.m. at 3001 ½ Ave. M. Police say the money bags and cash were recovered with the arrests.

Money was taken from outside the C&W Food Basket at 1100 College Ave.

A new program at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, the "Senior Class" plan designed to aid elderly patients; and the ongoing problem of cutbacks in Medicare assistance at the facility were topics of discussion Thursday during the regular September meeting of the hospital board.

Board members were told Cogdell is moving quickly with its new "Senior Class" program, having signed up 200 older Scurry County citizens in the past month, hospital board members were told Thursday night.

Also, Administrator Cy Miller said the hospital had to charge off or lose about $50,000 of a recent $60,000 account because the patient, who eventually died, was covered for only about $10,000 of the bill under Medicare.

FRIDAY
September 25

The Scurry County sheriff's office is investigating a "scam" involving three men posing as insurance salesmen who reportedly attempted to bilk $25,000 from a 90-year-old Snyder man, it was reported Friday.

Deputies say the victim thought he was giving them a check for $35.

Chief Deputy R.T. "Andy" Anderson Friday urged anyone who has been approached by the men, who were saying they represented a Christian fraternal organization through which insurance policies could be obtained, to contact him.

To the editor,

On Sept. 8, my husband was in an accident here at our home. I want to compliment our police, fire department and ambulance service. I made one phone call to the police and within minutes all three departments were here. At this time, I cannot remember the chaplain's name from the fire department, but he was God-sent. He stayed at the hospital with us, informed us on Leon's condition and helped us through a difficult time. He took our daughter Jaclyn out to the helicopter and assured her that her dad would be safe. He even showed her the procedure that could be used in the air ambulance if needed and introduced her to the pilot of the helicopter.

I know the emergency room personnel along with Dr. McSpadden did their very best. They allowed me to stay in the trauma room. I know that Leon was in the very best of hands.

I would like to correct the story of the write-up of the accident, however. The paper stated the car was on jacks, when it was actually on ramps. What happened was, Leon had put the car on ramps and was putting a new starter on it. He had the starter on when a wire from it touched metal and started the car.

The ignition key was off but the

Alcohol test is accurate

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What medicines and/or foods may cause a false reading on a Breathalyzer test?

DEAR READER — Tests that analyze the amount of alcohol in the breath are quite reliable. In fact, they're so reliable that they will measure alcohol in the mouth, as well as alcohol that is exhaled from the lungs.

Specifically, a person who has just taken alcohol-based liquid cough medicine or has just used an inhaler for asthma (if the propellant contains alcohol) will show up positive on a breath analysis test.

According to Dr. Charles Reading of the Connecticut State Department of Health, most police officers will wait about 15 minutes before administering a breath test. This allows the officer to observe the suspect for visible signs of intoxication. It also permits the dissipation of medicinal alcohol compounds that otherwise would cause false positive readings. In Reading's opinion, false negatives do not occur; an improperly functioning machine is designed to shut itself off.

DEAR DR. GOTT — How toxic is newsprint? I had a habit of rubbing my eyes in the morning while reading the newspaper. My hands would get covered with ink and my vision started to fail. Now I'm very careful and my eyes have improved.

DEAR READER — Newsprint is not toxic. Casual contact by newspaper readers is ordinarily harmless. However, some people appear to be allergic to the dyes used in ink. If the material gets into the eyes, redness, itching and swelling can occur. If your vision seems to have improved since you changed your reading habits, you may have a low-grade allergy to ink. You need do nothing more than be careful not to get it near your eyes.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently, I married after living a widow's life. I love my second husband very much, but after several years of loneliness and lack of sexual conditioning, I now find it very painful to have intercourse with this caring and loving man. I don't want to disappoint him and hope you can offer some help.

DEAR READER — You should see a gynecologist. As women age, their reproductive tracts become drier and more sensitive. This is especially true for women who have abstained from intercourse for extended periods. A gynecologist can help you to regain your normal state by offering you concrete suggestions, and, possibly, by prescribing estrogen cream to be used externally.

Your problem is a common one; fortunately, you can be aided in your return to a normal and satisfying sex life.

Answers raise more questions

Lewis Thomas, M.D., an author and remarkably perceptive humanist, has written: "The only solid piece of scientific truth about which I feel totally confident is that we are profoundly ignorant about nature." Because human biology and physiology are part of nature, and medicine is concerned with the human body, one can — by extension — state that doctors are profoundly ignorant of medical matters.

And such, indeed, is the case. Oh, we have come a long way, it's true — but the most peculiar characteristic of science is: The more that is learned, the more there is to be learned. Discoveries lead to discoveries. However, nature always stays two steps — two quantum leaps — ahead of us.

Take neuroanatomy, for example.

This branch of medicine attempts to delineate the geography of the nervous system: what part of the brain controls your little finger, how do we taste, by what means do we perceive pain, and so forth. Medical-school neuroanatomy professors make it sound easy and organized. If we are to believe them, we can look at the nervous system as an enormously complicated miniaturized switchboard, chock-full of microchips, relays, switches and wires of different sizes and function — and, as one wag has remarked, splendidly inexpensive to mass-produce. Like a computer engineer or power company lineman, we can tap into the switchboard and tamper with individual circuits.

This theory, popular in medical schools, is tempting — but, to a large extent, untrue. I once knew a renowned professor of neurology who used to advise students, while they were struggling to identify the source of neurological disease: "We're lucky if we know it's in the brain!" Nature has designed parts of our nervous systems like switchboards, but much of our brain functioning eludes even the most brilliant investigators.

For instance, Western neurologists still do not understand how acupuncture works. Traditional neuroanatomical concepts simply do not explain the altered nerve pathways that must be present for stimulation in one part of the body to affect pain at a remote site. How can a doctor perform major surgery in the chest while relying on anesthesia produced by a single acupuncture needle implanted at the base of the thumb? It seems that we have much to learn from the "non-scientific" approach of ancient Far Eastern practitioners.

There is another neurological phenomenon that defies traditional neuroanatomy. This particular problem has the tongue-twisting German name of Mitempfindungen. In English, it is unceremoniously called "referred itch." A person who suffers from this condition can scratch a certain part of his body and simultaneously experience pain or itching in another part. You scratch a mosquito bite on your foot and feel pain in your chin. The pattern follows no recognizable nerve pathways. The pain usually lasts only a few seconds; the palms, soles, face and scalp appear to contain no "stimulus sites." The reaction is typically more severe if the original scratching site is mildly inflamed. Mitempfindungen was first reported in 1884; we know little more about it now than we did 103 years ago.

Researchers are hard at work attempting to discover how we work. Fascinating studies are underway in many areas, including biochemistry, immunology and neurology. It's an arduous process. Scientific studies may, in the long run, lead primarily to further discoveries that produce additional questions, rather than answers.

This is the way science progresses. In our country, there is a current political effort to reduce public funding for basic science research. The money for this enterprise is drying up because, in part, the funds are being allocated for weapons and defense, for projects such as guarding Kuwaiti oil tankers in the Persian Gulf and other "vital" tasks. In our protectionist enthusiasm to balance budgets and to correct trade imbalances, we must not forget that basic medical research, although facing hard times, still offers us the most tantalizing promise of conquering disease — if research programs are allowed to thrive. Those of us engaged in non-scientific pursuits should be kind to medical scientists. They are searching. They need our understanding and support. Bear with them.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Klan rally plans are taxing town officials

RUMFORD, Maine (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan is coming to this scenic, papermaking town in western Maine, and officials and normally taciturn townfolk just wish the whole thing would go away.

"I haven't had any time to do any town manager work for a couple of weeks now," said Rumford Manager John E. Madigan Jr., who has been preparing the town for anti-rally crowds and trying to defuse potential trouble.

The Maine State Police, Justice Department and FBI have been notified of the rally, Madigan said Thursday, but, "we don't expect even a handful of Klan people" to show up.

The KKK is not welcome, Madigan said, asking protesters to stay away from the rally site on a farm outside of town, and instead write letters to the town office to vent their anger.

A counter-rally described by organizers as non-confrontational is planned for noon Saturday, two hours before the KKK gathers, about 15 miles away, at Rumford High School.

Rumford, which sits on the Androscoggin River, is home to about 9,000 people, most of whom earn a living farming or working at the vast Boise Cascade Corp. paper mill.

Dozens of people have written to Rumford Town Hall, some applauding Madigan's suggestions that protesters keep away and one bitterly chastising officials for allowing the rally.

James W. Farrands, the imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the KKK, said white-robed Klansmen will be at the rally, which he said will include a picnic, antique sale, speeches and a cross-burning.

"No matter what you've heard, we are not a bunch of armed vigilantes or mercenaries," Farrands said in a telephone interview from his Shelton, Conn., home.

Man hopes for government appeal after winning case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Japanese-American who won a federal appeals court ruling in his World War II internment and curfew case says he hopes prosecutors appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court so he can be fully vindicated.

Thursday's ruling by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in the case of Gordon Hirabayashi upheld similar decisions by lower federal courts based on the disclosure of suppressed evidence that internment was done for racial, not military, reasons.

"The Constitution has guaranteed my protection regardless of race, sex religion and so on, but it doesn't guarantee that it's going to be applied," said Hirabayashi, a 23-year-old student at the time of his arrest in 1942, and now a 69-year-old retired sociology professor in Edmonton, Canada.

Hirabayashi called Thursday's ruling "very good news," but said the legal vindication he wants is a Supreme Court ruling.

Noting that the Reagan administration has opposed his position at every step, he said, "It would be disappointing to me if they suddenly lost their incentive" and decided not to appeal.

His case is an "attempt to prevent this sort of thing from happening again," Hirabayashi added.

Hirabayashi, living in Seattle, was arrested in May 1942 after refusing to abide by an 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew or report to a civilian control center, the first step toward placement in an internment camp.

He was convicted of both charges and sentenced to three months in jail, and spent another nine months behind bars while the case was pending because he refused to be placed in a camp.

After his release, he worked for a job development program, then was imprisoned again for refusing to report for the draft after receiving a military questionnaire he considered discriminatory. That conviction was set aside in a 1947 amnesty by President Harry Truman, he said.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell declined comment on the ruling and said a decision on an appeal to the Supreme Court is weeks away.

The department had been willing to set aside both convictions without a ruling, but Hirabayashi and his lawyers refused, saying they wanted courts to declare that the government had suppressed evidence.

battery cable was hooked up. It was just like hot-wiring a car. When this happened, the car went over the ramps.

I would like to tell everyone to please unhook the battery whenever you are working on a car.

I would also like to thank each one personally for doing their best. May God bless.

To the editor,

Everyone who lives in Snyder and Scurry County should be, by now, aware of our efforts to obtain a prison and the economic benefit that will be realized if our efforts are successful.

But, I wonder if everyone realizes the unbelievably large amount of hard work that went into the actual preparation and ultimate delivery of Snyder's proposal.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of those people (much too numerous to list in this letter) who helped in any way with the preparation and formation of our proposal to the Texas Department of Corrections. There is no doubt in my mind that, no matter what the final outcome is, ours will be the most thorough and professional proposal submitted.

I would like to give special thanks and recognition to Roy Baze, who coordinated the project and was the principal reason why ours will be the most professional submitted.

We are, I believe, extremely fortunate to have someone with Roy Baze's capabilities living in our community. Roy not only has the expertise to undertake and direct a project of this importance and magnitude, but he obviously has a strong enough desire to better our community to have devoted countless hours to this project during the past month.

Whether or not the prison is awarded to Snyder, it is comforting to know that there are so many capable, concerned and unselfish people living in our community.

PANCREATIC CANCER

Moderate to high consumption of raw fruits and vegetables (high fibre and rich in Vitamins A,C and E) appears to reduce the risk of pancreatic cancer, report scientists from John Hopkins Univ. Conversely, the risk was apparently increased by consumption of white bread, perhaps because of low fiber and the removal of trace elements, zinc and copper in the milling process.

Shuttle computer software safety checks overlooked

HOUSTON (AP) — Two women have filed a $5.2 million lawsuit claiming they were harassed and forced out of their jobs for insisting on safety checks of computer work done for the space shuttle while working for a NASA subcontractor.

Named as defendants in the federal lawsuit filed Thursday are the subcontractor, Unisys Corp., four Unisys employees and the prime contractor, Rockwell Shuttle Operations Co.

The lawsuit claims Unisys overcharged Rockwell and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and that Unisys listed a fictitious person as an employee, violated security regulations in handling classified flight software, failed to check the safety of flight software and violated the Equal Pay Act.

Sylvia C. Robins, a former Unisys section supervisor who now works at Rockwell, said she began questioning safety and management of the company's work on the shuttle program after she joined Unisys in February 1986.

"At every step of the way, my management pressed me to drop my concerns," Ms. Robins said a news conference. She said she was demoted unfairly at Unisys and went to work for Rockwell.

The other plaintiff, Ria Solomon, contends she also was demoted unfairly and later fired unjustly from her job as a data clerk for Unisys because she refused to help management "frame" Ms. Robins by falsifying time sheets to show Ms. Robins forced workers to do unapproved overtime.

She also contended the company had a fictitious employee on the payroll.

The two women's claims involve work done after the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger, which killed seven astronauts.

Unisys, formerly System Development Corp., is the subcontractor to Rockwell Shuttle Operations, responsible for developing and distributing flight software, including verifying safety for the space shuttle.

Rockwell Shuttle, a subsidiary of Rockwell International, is the prime contractor to NASA and is responsible for providing flight hardware, flight software and overall operations and services to NASA for the space shuttle contract.

In the suit, Ms. Robins said she identified safety problems, management deficiencies, management abuses, security breaches and potential illegalities at Unisys. She claims she was harassed at Rockwell about her concerns, but the suit does not accuse Rockwell of safety and security violations.

Ms. Robins said the problems by Unisys occurred at the Rockwell facility in Houston, adding that she thought they could pose serious "hazards to the safety of the (shuttle) crew."

But she would not elaborate on what hazards a flight crew could face.

Allan Eldridge, a former Rockwell employee, and James Carter, a former Unisys employee, joined the two women at the news conference to voice similar complaints.
