President Establishes Crime Commission

18 Named To Serve On Project

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson today established a special commission to investigate causes of crime and make recommendations for federal, state and local action to reduce it.

The Chief Executive named Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach as chairman of the 18-member President's commission on law enforcement and administration of justice.

The President's action came as the FBI made public a detailed report on crime in the nation last year. It showed, among other things, that almost half the arrests for serious crime last year were among youths under 18.

The rate of serious crimes showed an 11 per cent rise last year over 1963, the FBI said. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the over-all crime rate had risen 58 per cent in the past seven years, although the number of law enforcement officers remained the same.

Johnson directed the new commission to "inquire into the causes of crime and delinquency, measures for their prevention, the adequacy of law enforcement and administration of justice and the factors encouraging respect or disrespect for law at the national, state and local levels."

In announcing creation of the commission, the White House said it would undertake the first "systematic, nationwide study ever made of the entire spectrum of crime problems, ranging from its causes at an extreme to arrests, and rehabilitation at the other."

Besides Katzenbach, those named to the commission were:

Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City; former Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers; U.S. district judges James B. Parsons of Chicago and Luther W. Youngdahl of Washington, D.C.; Otis Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times and Thomas J. Cahill, San Francisco chief of police.

Kingman Brewster Jr., president of Yale University; Leon Jaworski, Houston, Tex., attorney and former president of the American College of Trial Lawyers; California Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch; Lewis F. Powell Jr., of Richmond, Va., president of the American Bar Association; Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League; Mrs. Robert J. Stuart of Spokane, Wash., president of the League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Genevieve Blatt, former deputy atty. gen. of Pennsylvania; Judge Charles D. Breitel of the New York State Supreme Court appellate division; Garrett Byrne, district attorney of Suffolk County, Mass.

Ross L. Malone Jr. of Roswell, N.M., former U.S. deputy attorney general and former president of the American Bar Association; Robert G. Storey, Dallas, Tex., attorney and former president of the American Bar Association, and Herbert Wechsler, Columbia University law professor and director of the American Law Institute.

Private Groups Accused Of Upsetting U.S. Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Fulbright claims that timidity and lack of leadership by the State Department has permitted "irresponsible pressure" from private groups of businesses to disrupt U.S. foreign policy.

House to Study New Work Laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House today moved to clear away some of the political and technical underbrush around President Johnson's controversial proposal to repeal state "right to work" laws.

Actual debate on the administration's labor bill was not expected until Tuesday. At today's session, however, the bill faced a couple of procedural questions—one of which could provide the first test of House support for the measure.

House supporters of the bill faced a serious challenge from Republican leaders who want the ground rules for debate of the bill to be broadened so that a series of GOP amendments could be offered.

The amendments would require, as conditions of permitting union shop agreements, prohibitions against racial discrimination, use of internal discipline, and political spending by labor organizations. They also would allow religious objectors to refuse to join unions, erect safeguards against Communist domination and require federally supervised elections to certify any union that wants to bargain for a union shop.

Negroes March On Chicago City Hall

By United Press International
Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. expected a "massive outpouring" of people today for a civil rights march on Chicago's City Hall in Americus, Ga., a small band of Negroes promised to continue their street protests against the arrest of four Negro women.

The Bogalusa, La., civil rights struggle moved indoors today to a New Orleans courtroom where a federal judge was to hear charges that police officials ignored a previous order to protect demonstrators.

King appeared before 25,000 persons Sunday urging them to "present their bodies as a living witness to the truth" in today's march on city hall.

He invaded the all white North Shore suburb of Winnetka, Ill., and received a standing ovation from most of the 8,000 persons gathered there to hear his appeal.

King also made six street corner appearances saying Negroes are not free in Dixie "but we are not free in Chicago."

He said that if the department and, by implication, the Johnson administration, did not stand up to such pressures the President's policy of "building bridges" of trade to the Communist bloc nations of Eastern Europe would falter and fail.

Fulbright's specific target was the collapse recently of negotiations between Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and Communist Romania for construction of two synthetic rubber plants.

He charged that Firestone was "victimized by demagoguery" from several sources, including a principal business competitor, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. He said that Goodyear had distributed "right wing" material to its salesmen in its campaign against Firestone and the proposed Romanian deal.

Goodyear declined to comment specifically on Fulbright's charges. A spokesman pointed out that though the company was encouraged by the State Department to bid on the Romanian project it decided not to because "we did not believe such technical know-how, which we alone possess, should be sent behind the Iron Curtain where it could become available to the Communist Chinese."

"The current situation in South Viet Nam reinforces that decision in a manner that is far too convincing for all Americans," Goodyear added.

Fulbright described the failure of the Firestone-Romanian deal as "a case study in the defeat of an important and carefully considered policy of the United States government by irresponsible private interests, aided and abetted by the failure of government officials actively to support the President's policy."

Javits Wants LBJ To Seek New Viet Mandate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's increasing military commitment in Viet Nam seemed certain today to spark a new round of congressional debate, including a possible demand that President Johnson seek a new mandate for his actions.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and several other lawmakers voiced growing concern this weekend over the deepening war in Southeast Asia.

The New York Republican warned that Johnson "may find himself in grave problems with the nation" if he does not ask Congress for a new Viet Nam mandate.

Javits, who has been urging a full Senate debate on U.S. Viet Nam policy for weeks, said he had received no encouragement from the White House.

"I think that (Johnson) has got to come to the Congress again for authority, if only to impose upon us the discipline of addressing ourselves to this question and voting on it," he said.

Javits said that although he supported present administration policy "the escalation of the struggle must not be made at risk of a confrontation with the Chinese Communists on the grounds that a great nation cannot bluff."

While Javits and other lawmakers offered different assessments of U.S. policy, most agreed that the nation was already committed too deeply to risk a withdrawal.

FIRST UP, NOW DOWN — Astronaut Scott Carpenter, now working as an aquanaut, poses in front of the Sealab in Long Beach, Calif. Carpenter will be one of two men who will live for one month 200 feet below the surface of the ocean in the capsule off the Coast of La Jolla, Calif. They will be joined periodically by 20 other divers. The program is part of the Navy's second experiment in living beneath the sea.

Navy Jet May Have Been Shot Down by Red 'SAM'

SAIGON (UPI) — A U.S. Navy jet fighter-bomber shot down over North Viet Nam may have been the victim of a Russian surface-to-air (SAM) missile fired from a highly camouflaged mobile launcher.

Informed military sources raised the possibility that the well publicized Soviet missile sites around Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital may have had nothing to do with the downing of the supersonic Phantom F4C.

The plane and its two crewmen were lost Saturday 40 miles west of Hanoi during a strike against the Lang Chi explosives factory.

"Initial indications are that the plane was downed by what might have been a surface-to-air missile," an official U.S. spokesman said Sunday. "We are not saying it was a missile at this time."

If confirmed, the incident would be the first case of an American plane downed by a missile since U.S. aircraft began regular bombing runs against North Viet Nam last February.

The most striking piece of unofficial information available here is that the SAMs do not need to be fired from the sites which are under construction in the Hanoi area.

The missiles, according to this information, can be fired from mobile launchers towed into forested or other camouflaged areas. The rockets operate better from permanent sites but they are not absolutely necessary.

There has been no evidence that any missiles are yet installed in any of the five Hanoi launching sites spotted by aerial reconnaissance photos.

In fighting Sunday, U.S. Marines and Vietnamese forces killed 25 Communist guerrillas and wounded 33 others in a large-scale sweep near Chu Lai.

The action south of the Da Nang air base was described as the largest joint airborne and amphibious mission of the war.

In air action against North Viet Nam Sunday, 10 U.S. Navy Skyhawks supported by five Phantoms from the carrier Midway bombed two bridges 250 miles south of Hanoi. One of the spans was destroyed.

Two Navy A6 Intruders from the carrier Independence raided the army barracks at Dong Hoi 250 miles south of Hanoi. Two other Intruders from the Independence also hit the barracks, then bombed the Thanh Hoa bridge 80 miles south of Hanoi.

Nine Cars Derailed On Union Pacific Train

STERLING, Colo. (UPI)—The Union Pacific's "City of Denver," westbound from Chicago to Denver, struck a broken track 11 miles west of here today and nine passenger cars derailed.

Logan County Sheriff Vernon Hastings said between 30 and 45 persons were taken to hospitals in Sterling, but there appeared to be no serious injuries.

The last nine cars of the 18-car train plowed into a soft road bed, ripping out tracks for 200 feet, "like a big hand wiped them out," Hastings said.

The accident occurred at 6:30 a.m. CST, less than 12 hours after an eastbound California Zephyr passenger train struck a weakened track section and derailed near Rollinsville, Colo., 40 miles west of Denver, Sunday night.

There were no injuries to passengers in the Rollinsville derailment. Three crew members suffered minor injuries.

The injured in the Union Pacific accident appeared to be mainly suffering from abrasions and shock. There were some broken legs and the sheriff said one person suffered a broken hip.

Disarmament Conference Appears To Be Deadlocked Over Nuclear Issue

GENEVA (UPI) — The 17-nation disarmament conference appeared deadlocked today over its most important issue, non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, even before talks resumed.

The conference opens Tuesday after a 10-month recess. The resumption was made possible by a sudden Soviet change of mind.

Previously, Russia opposed any new round of talks as long as alleged American "aggressors" remained in Viet Nam. On July 13, however, Moscow surprised the West by agreeing to return to Geneva.

This aroused some cautious hopes in the West that Moscow may now be ready for serious negotiations on a nuclear non-proliferation agreement.

Such an agreement is considered by top-ranking Western officials, including American disarmament negotiator Clare Timberlake, to be the most urgent issue facing the conference.

The Soviets rejected all Western non-proliferation proposals last year, saying they would not accept unless the West scrapped all plans for any multilateral nuclear force.

Russian disarmament negotiator Semyon K. Tsarapkin said on his arrival Sunday Moscow has no intention of dropping this condition, a price the West has refused to pay.

Thus, the situation on the eve of the new session appeared to be the same deadlock as when the conference recessed last September.

22 TEXANS DIE VIOLENTLY

15 Automobile Fatalities Mar Weekend in State

By United Press International
A highway smashup that killed four persons in Central Texas combined with a triple drowning on a Dallas area lake Sunday to push Texas' weekend violent death toll sharply upward.

A United Press International survey for the period between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday showed 22 violent deaths, including 15 automobile fatalities.

The worst accident killed four members of two Air Force families and injured four other persons near Gholson, 12 miles north of Waco Sunday night.

The dead were Lt. Larry W. Wallace, 26; Lt. Terry N. Thompson, 26; Luren Rae Thompson, 8-months-old daughter of Lt. Thompson and Mrs. Gloria Wallace, 23, all of James Connally Air Force Base near Waco.

Wallace's son, 14-month-old George Wallace; Mrs. Scarlet Thompson, 23; both of Connally AFB; Mrs. Fannie Howell, 64, of Waco and Mrs. Lillian Hur-burt, 68, of Gholson were injured. A boat overturned in a violent windstorm at Garda-Little Elm reservoir north of Dallas Sunday, drowning three persons from Dallas.

They were Wilmer Wilson, 40; Eddie Ray Wilson, 6, and Jo Ann Scott, 4.

Hampton Cooper, 17, of Grandview, Tex., drowned Sunday in the Brazos River near Meridian.

Gregoria Sandoval, 8, of Laredo drowned Sunday in a lake in Garner State Park.

Florentino Gomez, 51, was killed Saturday by a truck which backed over him as he was unloading bricks in Laredo.

58TH

Dear Abby...

Have a Relaxed 'Coffee Klatch' With Hubby

DEAR ABBY: If I don't get this gripe off my chest, I'll explode. I've been married six years to a wonderful guy, until he gets to the table. I can spend a whole day preparing a delicious meal and he looks at it like it's yesterday's leftovers. He examines everything I put in front of him like it has poison in it. He never tells me what he likes, but nine out of ten things I prepare he doesn't like. He thinks meat should come without fat, and I feel guilty when he carves every little bite down to practically nothing. You can imagine the strain it puts on me at meal time. I haven't enjoyed a meal for months.

It's not that I can't cook. I can. His mother is a terrible cook, and he's been in the service, so I don't understand where he picked up these fussy eating habits. I honestly don't know what to do.

POSITIVELY STUMPED
DEAR STUMPED: Have a little chat with hubby when you are both relaxed and away from the table. Tell him how hard you try to please him, and ask for his cooperation in planning the meals. If he makes no effort to help you, you'll know that his problem is not what he's eating — but what's eating him.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 and am going with a wonderful boy who is 25. I told my parents he was only 19. I hate to lie, but in this case I had to because if they knew how old he was they would never let me go out with him. We always have to sneak around and hope we don't see anybody we know. I am not ashamed of him, Abby, and there is nothing wrong with him, but I just can't let my folks know the whole truth about him. I am getting fed up with having to sneak around like a couple of criminals. I think too much of him to break up with him. I just don't know what to do. Can you help me?

DARK EYES
DEAR DARK EYES: There is something wrong with him. He is cooperating in the deception of your parents. Tell them how old he is. If they object, accept it with grace and they might surprise you and allow you to date him.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law is 47 and has been divorced 14 years. She's lived alone in her own home all those years. She has supported herself and has always been a wonderful, uncomplaining woman. She's often "kidded" about finding a boy friend. Now it seems she's found one. Pete (not his real name, has been divorced twice. He drinks more than he should and also gambles. (He can't afford it.) He seldom takes my mother-in-law anywhere, but has been making himself more and more at home at her place. He's stayed all night and this we strongly disapprove of. We know she's lonely, but how come she never needed a man for 14 years and now all of a sudden she needs one? She says she neither intends to marry him or break off with him. All she wants is "companionship." Should we tell her that if she continues to see him we'll have nothing further to do with her?

VEXED
DEAR VEXED: If you have let her know that you disapprove of her relationship with him, you've done all you can do. Don't punish her by "having nothing further to do with her," or Pete will become her whole life. Hope that she sees the light soon.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "UPSET FATHER IN REDWOOD CITY": Let him wear his hair the way he wants to. It's only a fad and it won't last. Nothing does.

SECRET OF GOOD COMPLEXION

Five minutes a day can make your complexion feel alive and look clear. Each morning, tie back your hair. After that first cold water splash, smooth on a medicated jelly. Over this apply a cold cream and massage for two minutes. Work in a circular motion starting with the throat, up to the temple and forehead. Don't wipe this off with a tissue. Instead apply a clean washcloth that has been soaked in hot water. This is similar to a barber using a hot towel before shaving his customer and helps open the pores. Put your face dry with and paving.

More Privacy

If the end wall of your living room lies close to the property line where large windows might create a privacy problem, try placing a window at the corner of the room, designed from floor to waist height and about six feet in width.

Panel the rest of the wall in incense cedar boards installed vertically, then plan a garden of dwarf pines and low shrubs outside the peek-a-boo window. The effect can be terrific.

Two-decker

Have a daylight basement house? Why not make your outdoor living two-level, too?

Build a wood deck at the upper, living level, designing it as a sun roof for a basement level terrace and garden. Then you can have outdoor living in the sun or shade, as the mood dictates.

Put paper doilies between stacked plates and saucers of fine china to prevent scratches.

Fighting Battle Against Summer Insects

With the warmth of summer comes a horde of insects invading the home and bringing discomfort and damage to furnishings, reports the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information.

The battle against them breaks down into two areas, say the Bureau experts — first to fight to keep them out of the home, then the attempt to prevent them from breeding once they have gotten a foothold somewhere in the dwelling.

Garbage cans in the summer heat are a bug paradise. This can be dealt with by making sure lids fit airtight, and that the garbage put inside is first wrapped tightly.

The garden is another insect source. Setting up the proper birdhouses will bring charming feathered creatures that feed on bugs, such as the purple martin which lives on mosquitoes. Lady bugs feed on aphids and can be bought and turned loose. The astonishing preying mantis, a fearsome looking insect, lives on other insects, and children should be instructed not to harm them.

The same principles apply within the home. Don't accumulate old clothing in closets, rags for cleaning purposes, and bundles of newspapers or household records in cardboard cartons. These are superb dwelling places for roaches.

One of the biggest sources of man's property is the carpet beetle which loves to hide in, as well as to feed upon rugs and other fibre floor coverings. Carpet beetles once having gotten a foothold, will get to clothes closets and ruin hundreds of dollars in suits, coats and dresses. A resilient tile floor with a hard surface such as Kentile Folia in solid vinyl tile gives no hiding place to carpet beetles and offers them no nutrition.

In New Separates 14 Equals 20

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Could you pack a two-week vacation wardrobe in one suitcase with a total weight of only 19 pounds and be well-dressed for every occasion? This may sound impossible, but it isn't. A little planning and a few separates will do it.

Jean Evans, travel adviser (for Majestic) who believes that to travel right is to travel light, has put together a 14-piece separates wardrobe that can be mated, co-ordinated and separated into 20 different fashion looks that go from early morning to the wee small hours.

She had its versatility and travel aptitude tested by twin stewardesses of Eastern Airlines who wore it on a 3,000-mile tour of cities from Cleveland to Atlanta to Mexico City and from Boston to Miami to New Orleans.

Knit sharkskin and voile were selected as the basics because of their lightness and crease resistance.

Four pieces of knit sharkskin, a pleated skirt, shell jacket and pants were grouped together and translated into five different ensembles. A soft blue pleated skirt, shell and jacket became the travel costume. The skirt and shell were mated for sightseeing and the skirt and jacket became a two-piece dress costume. Pants, also in blue, worn with the shell are perfect for lounging, with the jacket for boating and with the jacket and shell as a pants suit.

Ten light and beautifully colored items in voile make up the rest of the wardrobe. These are a printed skirt, blouse, shorts and cocktail dress and a solid skirt in street and evening length. The evening-length skirt is reversible. A shift, playsuit, shirt and ruffled blouse complete the group.

When mated, co-ordinated and separated, they become 12 very distinctive and wearable looks. For instance, the evening or street-length skirt can be worn with the ruffled blouse. Wear it with a shirt, and a completely different effect is accomplished. The playsuit can be worn over a swimsuit. With shorts, it becomes a "sassy." The shorts can be worn with the shirt or ruffled blouse or with the printed blouse.

Additions, subtractions and even multiplications are the happy words in the world of separates. They give extra mileage to any wardrobe.

NOT ALL GIRL SCOUTS ARE GIRLS
NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 56,000 men are registered members of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. and hold important posts on the local and national levels. The range of volunteer jobs they do include serving as council presidents, program consultants, board and committee members and some even lead troops, the Girl Scouts report.

Turn cuffs down and brush out lint before washing.

MOOD CHANGING SEPARATES — Voile separates travel well and change their mood in seconds. The deep V-ruffled portrait collared blouse (left) has the same ruffling on the three-quarter sleeve. Clusterpleated skirt comes in street length or reversible full-length and wraps at the back. The playsuit and shorts combination (right) is all voile. The solid color knee-skimmer playsuit is slit almost to the hip to reveal the print Jamaica shorts underneath. These fashions were designed by Jeanne Essig for Majestic.

Use glass jars for freezing most fruits and vegetables, except those packed in water.

Gift Etiquette Pays Off for Teenagers

Teen-agers may well be the most surveyed part of our populace at this point. Manufacturers, especially, are jumping with all their corporate feet into studies of the youth market.

The goal: To find the right merchandise gimmick to separate young adults from their money. Invariably the surveys return full circle to the basic teen-age quandary of "how to," usually how to get along with people. Representatives of a gift wrappings company found this true in a recent series of interviews with youths in the Midwest.

It was logical for the firm (Tie-Tie) to come up with some ground advice in the etiquette of gift-giving. Money, it stresses, is not the criterion for making the greatest impression with a gift.

The point, too, needs to be made that teen-agers can learn a lot about stores' and merchandise when shopping for unusual, off-beat, inexpensive gifts. Vacation time, with constant visiting among friends and family, is a good time to start practicing the etiquette of gift-giving. Here are some suggestions which adults will find helpful, too:

—Give within your budget. It's embarrassing to receive a gift costing more than the giver can afford.

—Substitute imagination for cash. Bake cookies, brownies or a cake. Or knit a sweater for back-to-school wear.

—Don't give gifts to boys you have just met, no matter how much you like them. For good friends, pick a graduation, a birthday, beginning of vacation or camp as a logical time. Unless engaged, reserve such a gift to books or records.

—Substitute a gift for a favor you may not be able to return. For example, saying thank you to a friend who turned her baby-sitting list over to you while she vacations.

—Don't rush to return a gift without a reason and don't expect a gift in return for one you give for a special occasion.

—Make it a habit to take small gifts to mothers of friends you often visit for dinner. It may be a new bridge score pad or some flowers from your yard.

—Write thank you notes. —Wrap a small gift cleverly. It shows your creativity and flatters the receiver.

Public Litterbugs Clutter Up Country

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If American women want to lend a hand to the project in which the First Lady is most interested — recovering and preserving the beauty of America —they can do a lot of good right at home, teaching their own children not to be public litterbugs.

We are producing plenty of litterbugs today—many of them in our so-called "better" neighborhoods.

If you don't believe it, go to a shopping center—close by a neighborhood of fine homes and do a little observing. If you do, you'll see young children littering stores and sidewalks with paper wrappings; you will see teen-agers tossing cold drink bottles out of cars, and you will begin to wonder if a lot of mothers today stress neatness at home—but don't bother teaching their children not to clutter up the rest of the world.

We may succeed in America in doing something about billboards that mar our country's natural beauty and junk yards that blight the approaches to towns and cities, and we may stop pollution of our streams and rivers.

Those are big projects, but the littering of our towns and countryside will be stopped only if mothers instill in their children a feeling of pride in helping to keep our country neat and clean.

If, instead, we raise a generation of litterbugs (as we seem to be doing right now, through bad example and disinterest) our finest public buildings, our most beautiful parks and recreation centers, our highways and city streets are going to be eyesores.

If you set a good example to thing you want to get rid of out of a moving car, or say nothing when your child unwraps a candy bar and carelessly drops the wrapper—you are helping to create a generation of litterbugs, who will in turn create another generation of them.

If you set a good example to your children and insist that neatness doesn't stop at home, you will be doing your part to help make your community and your country a cleaner, neater, more beautiful place in which to live.

Gate Brace

When building a gate, give it maximum strength against sagging by installing a Z shaped brace facing the hinges.

The diagonal piece would then run from the upper corner on the latch side of the gate to the hinge side at the lower corner.

Tree House

Would you like summer living in a tree house? Then build a deck on the garage roof—if it's a flat roof. The deck can be built in squares in the basement. Squares are then easily transported to rooftop and installed in checkerboard pattern. Squares also can be lifted up at any time for maintenance required by the roof. Use Douglas fir for best performance.

Storage Space

Need storage space for lawn furniture and barbecue equipment? Build a three-foot deep storage house at one end of the deck or patio.

Use double doors, a shed style roof for rain run-off, and weather proof western wood siding. Storage house will also serve as a privacy wall and wind baffle.

Delinquency Rate Increases in 1964

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nearly half the persons arrested for serious crime in the United States last year were under the age of 18, the FBI reported today.

The FBI said in its annual crime report that 377,579, or 48.4 per cent, of those arrested for serious offenses ranged in age from 10 through 17.

The share of solved serious crimes laid to youths was smaller, 37 per cent, reflecting the fact that two or more youths are often involved in the same crime.

Arrests of youths for all criminal acts except traffic violations was up 17 per cent from the preceding year.

In the seven serious crime categories, percentages of youth arrests were: homicide 7.7, forcible rape 18.8, robbery 27.6, aggravated assault 14.8, burglary 51.4, larceny 54 and car theft 64.4.

The long FBI report was filled with statistics detailing the 11 per cent rise in the serious crime rate last year announced earlier.

Most of the increase was in property crimes — 43 per cent of which were blamed on youths — but the FBI recognized "alarming increases in the crimes of violence."

Twenty-four per cent of the serious crimes were solved. This was a 2 per cent decrease from 1963 and the FBI blamed in "at least in part of court restrictions on police prevention and enforcement practices."

These "restrictions" are controversial rulings which have expanded constitutional rights of defendants and suspects.

Such rulings, along with rapid population growths and shifts, "require a realistic re-examination of community police protection needs," the FBI said. It said police strength nationally—1.7 officers per 1,000 inhabitants — "has remained unchanged since 1958 despite a 58 per cent increase in the volume of crime."

Fire at 'Old Phillips' Causes $65,000 Damage

Damage has been estimated between $65,000 and $75,000 from a fire in the heart of downtown "Old Phillips" about mid-afternoon yesterday.

Six buildings were completely destroyed by the blaze which raged out of control for nearly two hours.

Firemen received the call shortly before 4 p.m. The fire apparently broke out from unknown causes in the Sportsman's Bar. It quickly spread to five other buildings, totally destroying all six.

The Sportsman's Bar on the inside looked much like it did during the "roaring 20s" in which industrial Phillips came to life.

Bullet holes were still visible in the bar and behind it where many a gun fight took place.

Fulbright said H. A. True Jr., president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, has questioned U.S. policy in giving Venezuelan oil a "sacrosanct" position when Venezuela would not support the U. S. policy in the Dominican Republic.

"I am more inclined to the view that the (association) is far less interested in the Dominican crisis than it is in the domestic oil market and that it is trying to use... (the incident) as a weapon to bludgeon the U.S. government into yielding to the demands of domestic oil producers."

Wills Aims For New Theft Mark

By United Press International
Maury Wills' brain is as agile as his flying feet—which is a good explanation why he is speeding toward a stolen base record that could exceed 125.
The master thief of the Los Angeles Dodgers attributes his remarkable record of 67 steals in 97 games played this season to two things:
—More extensive study of opposing pitchers, and —Freedom from injury.
The little Dodger shortstop has hit safely in his last 18 games (batting .463 in the span) and has stolen 18 bases. At that incredible pace, Wills could finish with 129 thefts this season, eclipsing by 25 his own major league mark set in 1962.
Even at his over-all pace—which is 26 games ahead of his 1962 rate—Wills would steal 110. But in August and September of his banner season, Wills pilfered almost half (49) of his 104.
Should he finish this year with the same flourish, the total would reach 120.
Steals Two Bases
Wills stole two more bases Sunday, collected two hits and scored a run as Los Angeles broke its four-game losing streak with a 3-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.
Cincinnati downed Houston 3-1. San Francisco tripped Milwaukee 2-1. Pittsburgh edged Chicago 3-2 in 13 innings then lost the second game of a doubleheader to the Cubs 5-0 and New York upset Philadelphia 8-1 before losing the nightcap to the Phils 3-1 in other National League action.
Schofield's Hit Wins
Dick Schofield, batting only .212, belted a single to drive in the winning run for the Giants and saddle the Braves with their third defeat in a row.
Don Pavletich doubled home the first Cincinnati run and Leo Cardenas provided the decisive tally with a two-run double in the ninth.

Andretti Wins Hoover Pox

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Mario Andretti passed A. J. Foyt on the last lap Sunday to win the U.S. Auto. Club's Hoosier Grand Prix for championship cars.
The lead over the two-mile course alternated throughout the race at Indianapolis Raceway Park. It was the first time in USAC history that a championship event was run over that type of track.
All of the first four finishers were rear-engine cars. Andretti's was Ford-powered.
Bobby Unser finished second. Roger McCluskey was third. And Foyt, out of gas, coasted across the finish line fourth.

Foster, Hank In Rematch

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Light heavyweights Bob Foster and Henry Hank meet in a 12 round re-match tonight which will bring one of them closer to a shot at champion Jose Torres.
Foster, a 190-pound contender, knocked out Hank when the two met previously. Hank is rated sixth.
Foster will weigh in at about 174 pounds and Hank will probably enter the ring at about 176 pounds, both well under the 178-pound weight limit agreed upon in their contract.

Casper Pops Pott For Loot

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Most golfers cringe at the slightest noise while putting, but Billy Casper couldn't help smiling at the blaring 6 o'clock whistle just before he sank a 20-foot putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff against Johnny Pott to win the $70,000 Insurance City Open golf championship.
Both had carded 274, 10 under par, for the regulation 72 holes Sunday to force a playoff, which began immediately on the 15th hole at Wethersfield Country Club.
Casper, plagued with a virus infection during the early rounds of the tournament, reached the 15th with his second shot while Pott landed on the apron of the green. Pott's putt rimmed the cup and he had to settle for a par.
This set the stage for Casper's winning 20-foot. But as the slim-downed Californian lined up the pressure putt, a local fire whistle marking 6 p.m. interrupted his concentration. The sound, however, broke the tension and a smile crossed Casper's face before he canned the big putt, which was worth $11,000 to him.
Casper and Pott both had to par the 18th to force the playoff, finishing a stroke ahead the 275s carded by Bob Goaly and Dave Marr. At 276 were Tom Weiskopf, Bob Crowley and Al Geiberger.

Player Romps Home In Big Three Golf

ROCKVILLE, Md. (UPI)—Gary Player, who up until last month was becoming the forgotten man of golfing's "big three," has proved once again he is a bona fide member of that select trio.
The diminutive South African, winner of the U.S. Open championship last month in St. Louis, made his point to the other two members of the triumvirate. Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, as he romped home a winner by 11 strokes Sunday in a special $50,000 big three challenge match at the Lakewood Country Club course.
Player completed the four day tournament with a sensational 269 total to finish ahead of Masters champion Nicklaus who carded 280. Palmer ended up three-under par at 281.
Player actually had the tournament won before the final round. After an opening day's round of 69, he came through with two fantastic rounds of 63 and 64 to lead by 16 strokes entering the final 18 holes.
With the pressure completely off, Player slumped to a two-over par 73 in Sunday's final round but had no cause for alarm—despite a fast finish by Nicklaus.
Nicklaus, who was third entering the final round, closed with his second straight 66 to edge Palmer by one stroke. Palmer bogeyed the 18th to lose out on the second place prize money and announced that after the PGA tournament at Lionier, Pa., next month he would take a month's rest.
Player, who carded 28 bridges and an eagle in the tournament, picked up $20,000 for the victory, while Nicklaus collected $17,000 for his second place finish and Palmer—$13,000 for third.
The three pros were accompanied throughout the tournament by three amateurs. Dean Beman took the honors among the amateurs with a 282.

Freddie Mills Apparently Suicide Case

LONDON (UPI)—A coroner's inquest was expected to rule today on whether former world light heavyweight champion Freddie Mills took his own life Sunday morning.
Mills, 46, was found slumped in his car behind his London night club with a 22-caliber rifle at his side. He was taken to a nearby hospital but was declared dead on arrival.
A Scotland Yard spokesman said Sunday night that early investigations indicated that no other person was involved in the death. He added that authorities were "99 per cent sure the gunshot wound was self-inflicted."
Mills won the world title with a 15 round decision over Gus Lesnevich in London on July 26, 1948. Two years earlier Mills had been knocked out in the 10th round of another world title fight with Lesnevich.
Mills retired from the ring after losing his world crown to Joey Maxim on Jan. 24, 1950. He won 73 of his 96 fights with six draws and had 52 knockouts.
Following his exit from the ring, Mills appeared in motion pictures and television, where he was a great favorite with children. He also operated the Freddie Mills Night Spot.

Kathy Cops Buckeye

CINCINNATI (UPI)—A 20-foot birdie putt on the final hole Sunday brought Kathy Whitworth top money in the $10,000 Buckeye Savings Invitational golf tournament and her third consecutive win on the pro tour.
The tall Texan from San Antonio fired a 70 Sunday for a total of 207, the lowest 54-hole total on the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) tour this year.
She picked up $1,500 in prize money to boost her winnings to $17,285 for the year.

Sonics, Spurs Split Slammer

By United Press International

Albuquerque kept its comfortable Western Division lead, despite a 10-2 loss to Tulsa.
Austin forged ahead of El Paso 10-3 in the other single game.
The Spurs whipped the Sonics 8-1 in the first game, despite a 10-hit attack by the Panhandle team.
In the nightcap, Amarillo unloaded 14 hits and whipped Dallas - Fort Worth 13-1. The Spurs got seven safeties off Sonics pitchers Don Arlich and Carroll Sembera.
The liveliest game was the Tulsa-Albuquerque affair with a total of five home runs, although all but one was with bases empty.
Tonight's schedule has Amarillo at Dallas - Fort Worth again, Austin in El Paso and Tulsa at Albuquerque.

Cookie Battles Broncos

DENVER (UPI)—Fullback Cookie Gilchrist, four days late to training, swept into Denver and notified Bronco officials he would not play for the club this season.

Denver immediately slapped the 235-pound fullback with a summons calling for $400,000 in damages and announced he would play in Denver or, not at all.

Gilchrist conferred with the entire Denver Bronco coaching staff Sunday and told them he wanted to play with Oakland, also of the American Football League.

Head Coach Mac Speedie said Gilchrist would not be traded, "even for the whole Oakland squad." Gilchrist, with summons in hand, presumably left Denver for parts unknown.

Empire Sports, Inc., owners of the Broncos, directed its attorneys to draw up a summons against the former Buffalo Bills player calling for $400,000 in damages.

The law firm of Hughes and Dorsey of Denver said they probably would file the summons within the next 10 days.

On June 23, the Broncos and Gilchrist negotiated a $35,000 a year contract for this season and the next, which made him one of the highest paid players in the AFL. The Broncos also advanced him $20,000, at his request, so he could pay off some bills. Officials said Gilchrist indicated the advance would not be returned.

Cowboys Swing Into Full Play

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys held their annual press camera day today. But from then on it's two a-day full gear practice until their annual charity game with the Los Angeles Rams Aug. 14.

The Cowboys, usually idle on Sunday, held a single drill to accommodate the veterans, who didn't have to report until last Friday.

One veteran, all-pro defensive tackle Bob Lilly, didn't report until Sunday. His wife gave birth to their third child last Wednesday and that explained his delay, Lilly said.

Oliva Puts Twins In 3 1/2-Game Lead

By United Press International
Should those Minnesota pitchers survive all the trouble they have caused the Twins recently, they can turn over their World Series checks to Tony Oliva and call it bail money.
Minnesota hurlers have been guilty of allowing 24 runs in the Twins' last four victories, but Oliva's authoritative bat has set them free each time.

The 25-year-old sophomore outfielder has slugged nine hits, driven in nine runs and scored seven times in the four wins to help keep Minnesota's American League lead at a healthy 3 1/2 games.

Baltimore had the Twins on the verge of a third straight defeat Sunday with a 5-1 lead in the eighth inning before Oliva came to the rescue with a three-run homer to cap a rally that tied the score. Zoilo Versalles tripled home the winning run and Oliva drove in another in the ninth for an 8-5 Minnesota victory.

Detroit Split

Detroit slammed Chicago 13-2 in the second of two games after losing the opener to the White Sox 10-6. New York split with Cleveland, winning 3-0 then dropping a 7-4 verdict to the Indians; Boston nipped Los Angeles 5-4 and Washington whipped Kansas City 4-3 before losing the nightcap to the Athletics 5-3.

Twelve home runs were hit in the White Sox-Tigers split—seven by Detroit including two each by Don Demeter and Norm Cash. Denny McLain won his eighth straight for Detroit in the nightcap. John Romano's grand slam won the opener for the White Sox.

Indians Shut Out
Mel Stottlemyre hurled a four-hitter and shut out Cleveland for the first time in its home park this season to win the opener. He received solo home runs from teammates Joe Pepitone and Tom Tresh. Cleveland routed Al Downing and Pedro Ramos with seven runs in the first two innings of the second game.

Earl Wilson scattered six hits before wilting in the near 100-degree heat at Boston in the eighth inning. Dick Radatz hurled the ninth to protect the Red Sox victory.

Wayne Causey drove in two runs and Ken Harrelson batted his 15th homer in the Athletics' nightcap triumph. The Senators won the opener when veteran reliever Don Mossi walked Willie Kirkland with the bases full in the ninth inning.

Casey's Brittle Bones May Undergo Surgery

NEW YORK (UPI)—Casey Stengel, who suffered a fractured hip, probably while getting out of an automobile, faces the prospect of spending his 75th birthday recuperating from surgery.

Dr. Peter Lamotte, team physician of the New York Mets, said the wire manager would undergo tests today, the results of which would determine whether Stengel would undergo surgery Tuesday or Wednesday. His birthday is Friday.

Casey was taken to Roosevelt Hospital by ambulance Sunday after complaining of severe pain in the hip. X-rays disclosed the fracture.

Mets President George M. Weiss planned to visit his ailing skipper in his hospital room today to determine Casey's choice as interim manager. Pitching coach Wes Westrum ran the team Sunday in a double-header against the Philadelphia Phillies, and observers felt that Westrum or Yogi Berra would be selected interim manager.

Stengel was taken to the hospital only hours before a birthday party for him was staged at Shea Stadium, home park of the Mets.

The party went on as scheduled, with Berra, Westrum and third-base coach Don Heffner standing in for Stengel, who watched the doubleheader and the birthday celebration on television from his hospital bed.

Saturday night Casey had attended a dinner for men who had participated in an old timers' game that afternoon. Because of the lateness of the hour when the affair broke up, Mets Comptroller Joe Degregorio invited Stengel to sleep at his home, a few minutes from the stadium, Casey accepted.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday morning Stengel called out to his host from the guest room. "Joe, I don't feel too good," the skipper said. "I got a pain in my leg. Something is wrong."

Pasarell Upsets Emerson
HAVERFORD, Pa. (UPI)—Charles Pasarell, a UCLA student from San Juan, P.R., upset favored Australian Roy Emerson in exhausting 90-degree heat Sunday to win the 66th annual Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis championship.
Pasarell, ranked twelfth nationally, set down the Australian, U.S. and Wimbledon champion, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, and 6-4.
It was the first grass court setback for the top-seeded Emerson since losing to fellow Australian Davis Cupper, Fred Stolle, at the New South Wales championship in November, 1964.
Emerson teamed up with Stolle later to take the doubles championship 6-2, 6-1, 6-1, from Vic Seixas, Villanova, Pa., and William Lenoir, Tucson, Ariz.
In the women's doubles title, Billie Jean Moffitt, Long Beach, Calif., and Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman, St. Louis, defeated Mrs. Margaret Osborne Dupont and Margaret Varner, both of Chadds Ford, Pa., 6-4, 6-1, 6-1.

The Panama Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Panama News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

More Loss Than Profit

As has been widely publicized on stage and screen, in song and story, "You can't take it with you." But, as Congressman Eugene J. Keogh of New York pointed out on the floor of the House the other day, you can't leave it either!

That is, if you have worked hard enough to own a business or otherwise achieve estate tax brackets, you can't leave any part of it to the people you would choose to have it — until Uncle has been cut in, and extravagantly!

Originally passed in 1916 as a revenue measure, the Federal estate tax levied one percent on estates of $50,000 and upward to a ceiling of ten percent. But, seized upon later as a device for redistributing private wealth, the rates have skyrocketed. With the exemption now at $60,000 the tax rate starts at three percent on the first $5,000 above the exemption and escalates to a confiscatory 77 percent on whatever estates of $10 million or more may remain.

Realistically, the present law is weak on revenue since it produces less than three percent of the total. As Mr. Keogh told his colleagues in the House "the estate tax is a bad tax and the least we can properly do under present fiscal circumstances is to reduce it." (The Keogh Bill would reduce the rates 20 percent and equalize the deduction of 25 years ago, when dollars were worth twice as much, by raising it to $120,000.)

The present "bad tax," the Congressman charges, "slows the growth of the Nation's productive power" in three ways:

1. It prevents many businessmen and investors from making fullest use of their business abilities and capital — by withdrawing some of both from effective channels into sterile arrangements to meet this often crushing obligation.

2. It tends to foster monopoly. Where, as often happens, it is necessary to sell a small business to pay the tax, the likely buyer is a large, public corporation, not another small, closely held one that faces the same problem. And, each time such a sale takes place, as Mr. Keogh says, "One more small business has disappeared."

Reform in this area, which would produce far more in wages, job security and GNP than the present ghoulish shake-down by the Federal hearse-followers collects in tax-money, is of expanding importance to a living, free-enterprise economy. And, incidentally, consideration for American citizens should come ahead of the Treasury Department's demand for even greater estate tax relief for non-resident aliens in business in this country — which is also before Congress at this moment.

Double Taxation Isn't Fair

Americans traditionally believe in fair play — in sports, in business, in government, and especially in taxation.

Here's a tax situation that's anything but fair. A corporation pays tax on its income and then the individual stockholder is also taxed on the dividends he receives from the same corporation.

This might be understandable, though not justifiable, if the victims of the double taxation in justice were few in number. But that's not the case. Over 20 million people — including a great many employees — own stock in American corporations. Every one of these people whose dividend income exceeds $100 is compelled to submit to the palpably unfair double-tax.

In view of this, the National Association of Manufacturers is campaigning to abolish double taxation. As the NAM points out, termination of the injustice can easily be accomplished by allowing the corporation to deduct from its tax base earnings which are paid out in dividends.

The Association has drawn attention to the many other benefits to the nation that the righting of this wrong would bring. Among other things, it would:

Provide relief proportionate to the burden of double taxation at different income levels.

Make American industry more competitive, tax wise, with European producers — a very important factor today because of the intense world-wide trade rivalry.

Largely eliminate the threat of penalty taxation to family-owned or other small corporations.

Remove the bias against equity capital in new corporate financing, arising from the fact that interest on borrowed money is deductible but dividends are not.

Eliminate dividend taxation as a factor in deciding whether or not a business should be incorporated.

It seems to us that all Americans who believe in fair play will want to support the drive to have Congress eliminate double taxation.

Housing and Urban Bureau

It may have slipped the attention of many persons, but President Johnson is proposing a new position be created in the cabinet — a Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The House already has approved this new HUD department, and it's now up to the Senate, which has not been averse to granting our Leader's every wish.

This proposal seems to be mild enough at the start. It theoretically would merely combine the various activities now being carried on by various other agencies of government — a sort of unification, it would seem.

It would be a sort of answer to the fact that the farmers have their own Agricultural Department, and the labor unions have their department. This would be a department for city dwellers.

But having watched other government departments grow and grow from comparatively modest beginnings, we would hope — admittedly it is a faint hope — that the senators would look askance on this new development in Washington bureaucracy. Remember, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is the newest cabinet position created. Yet it has grown faster than any other and now is one of the largest and most powerful, sending its tentacles down into every little hamlet in the nation.

If there is a Housing and Urban Development department established it "ultimately" would be responsible for all activities and problems making up the life of the city dweller, according to its sponsors. And that just about includes everything from birth to death. It certainly sounds as if it could become even more awesome in its control over individuals' lives than Mr. Celebrezze's "Healthy, Wealthy and Wise" department.

U.S. Is On Nuclear Spot Over Curbs

By RAY CROMLEY

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Any plan the United States develops to stop the spread of nuclear weapons would almost certainly involve this nation guaranteeing to come to the defense of almost any non-nuclear country attacked by atomic weapons.

Men working on programs for preventing the spreading of "nukes" think this is the price the United States would have to pay if it wanted to "sell" atomic "have not" nations on remaining that way.

This type of thinking is in the exploratory stages in the State Department, the Pentagon and the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

No one knows whether the administration or Congress would go along with such sweeping guarantees.

But defense experts say that if the United States is not willing to make such all-out promises, nations with nuclear neighbors might think they could hardly afford not to build or buy nuclear weapons of their own.

As each nation acquired "nukes," then its neighbors without them in turn would be under the gun. There would be no stopping this proliferation.

It is not enough to say that most countries don't have the economic potential or the scientific-technical know-how. In a game such as this, with so much at stake, there's growing belief here that the "have not" countries would import the technicians and the raw materials needed from countries willing to deliver.

Nasser's technically underdeveloped United Arab Republic (Egypt), for example, was successful in importing German technicians to develop military rockets, even though the U.A.R. is in such poor shape economically that Cairo receives considerable amounts of food and other economic assistance.

The United States already guarantees to come to the defense of a considerable number of countries, of course, whether they're attacked with nuclear or conventional weapons.

Moreover, in the Cuban crisis, Washington notified the Soviet Union that if Fidel Castro fired a nuclear missile at any Latin country, the United States would retaliate against Russia.

The guarantees now being discussed would apply to a much broader range of countries than present U.S. defense treaties cover.

Some of the plans are way out. One would have the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France, if possible, jointly guarantee assistance in atomic attacks on any country that agreed not to acquire atomic weapons.

This could put the United States and the West in the strange position of guaranteeing Communist countries such as Yugoslavia, Poland, East Germany, Romania and Bulgaria against nuclear attack either from the West or East.

(Experts think Cuba, North Viet Nam and North Korea would likely refuse to sign an agreement not to acquire nuclear weapons — which refusal would bar them from the defense guarantees.)

There is some precedent for this kind of sweeping guarantee. In the Monroe Doctrine, the United States offered protection to Latin-American friend and foe alike, if endangered by a nation outside the hemisphere whether that outside threat were from a United States ally or enemy.

matter of fact

The diesel engine was invented by Rudolf Diesel, a German engineer in 1897. The success of this first 25-horsepower, four-stroke, single cylinder vertical oil engine attracted great attention, but it was not the first compression-ignition engine ever to be constructed. In 1890 Akroyd Stuart had patented an oil engine which worked at low pressures.

17 Russian SAM 2 Missile Sites Spotted In North Viet Nam: 4 Underway Near Vital Bridge

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—Seventeen definitely identified deadly Russian SAM-2 ground-to-air missile sites are now either completed or under construction in North Viet Nam — most of them in the strategically crucial Hanoi-Haiphong area.

Latest sites detected by U.S. reconnaissance flights are in the vicinity of a two-mile-long rail bridge some 20 miles south of the Chinese border. Four SAM-2 sites are underway there to safeguard this vital bridge on the main rail line linking Hanoi and Nanning, a major Chinese military supply and communications center.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff rate this rail bridge a top-priority target, and have strongly recommended it be bombed.

So far, President Johnson has withheld the urgently requested authorization.

An estimated 40 per cent of Chinese military supplies to North Viet Nam pass over this bridge. The Joint Chiefs warn that unless it is destroyed in the next few weeks the Russians will have completed the four SAM-2 missile sites, and air strikes will become "prohibitively costly."

The SAM-2 is capable of firing both conventional and nuclear warheads. It has a range of some 30 miles and an altitude of 85,000 feet. It has the capability of knocking out of the air every type of U.S. combat plane being used in North Viet Nam attacks.

Although the Air Force and Navy maintain a close watch on the proliferation of missiles in North Viet Nam, no sites have been bombed.

President Johnson has flatly rejected repeated recommendations this be done.

Military authorities particularly have advocated blasting the missile sites in the Hanoi-Haiphong area — main rail, port and depot centers. Their destruction would be a crippling blow to the Communists.

But every air strike proposal has been turned down, principally on two grounds: The virtual certainty of heavy civilian casualties in the densely populated section; the similar likelihood among the considerable number of Soviet "technicians" and "specialists" building the sites, and manning the SAM-2s.

TOO LATE — Congressional leaders have been told of one instance where the President's policy on bombing important North Viet Nam targets resulted in a futile attack.

For weeks the Joint Chiefs sought permission for large scale strikes at a key military base in the Dien Bien Phu valley 185 miles northwest of Hanoi. Intelligence reports, including detailed information from a defector, indicated that the 316th Brigade, which participated in the envelopment of the French at Dien Bien Phu, was training at this base in preparation for combat operations in South Viet Nam.

Finally, on July 2, several months after the Joint Chiefs' initial recommendation the President authorized an air strike. The mission was successful — up to a point.

Reconnaissance photos showed 18 barracks and other buildings destroyed. But no Communist troops. They had left the camp several weeks earlier.

Elements of the 316th Brigade are now fighting U.S. troops guarding the big airfield at Pleiku in the central highlands of South Viet Nam. Prisoners from this Red outfit have been captured.

GLOOMY PEACE OUTLOOK

There is no likelihood the Kremlin will try to influence Hanoi to enter into negotiations until after the 23rd Soviet Communist Party Congress in late November or early December — if then!

That's what Vice President Humphrey is telling members of Congress following his flight to London last week to accompany the return of the body of Adlai Stevenson.

While in the British capital, Humphrey had a long talk with Prime Minister Wilson. The latter gave a detailed account of left-wing Laborite Harold Davies' recent unofficial "peace mission" to Hanoi. Wilson described it as "profoundly disillusioning."

"The Prime Minister told me," Humphrey recounted, "that North Vietnamese assessment of U.S. leadership and public opinion is so unreal as to defy belief. Davies reported Ho Chi Minh is convinced the U.S. will tear itself apart wrangling over the North Viet Nam conflict, and that the Viet Cong believe they can exert powerful pressure on public opinion here by taking large numbers of U.S. prisoners."

The forthcoming 23rd Soviet Party Congress will be the first since the one convened by Khrushchev in 1963. The Congress will determine the extent and control of the leadership of Premier Kosygin and party boss Brezhnev.

If they emerge dominant, they may undertake negotiation overtures. And then again: they may not. It's anyone's guess.

REPUBLICAN PARLEY

Idaho Governor Robert Smylie will be re-elected chairman of the Republican Governors' Conference meeting in Minneapolis next Monday.

That's all set. He has the votes and will not be opposed. Several months ago Smylie indicated he would not seek another term and favored Colorado Governor John Love as his successor. Friends of Love promptly got busy and lined up important support for him, notably Governors Mark Hatfield, Ore., Daniel Evans, Wash., and Tim Babcock, Mont.

But abruptly, Smylie changed his mind. The Idahoan let it be known he was an active candidate to succeed himself. To avoid a contest, Love dropped out.

GOP insiders credit Smylie's flip flop to vice presidential am-

The fellow with the idea sees a big market for the Golden State products in La Belle France. . . . Many of the JFK mementos are in every bad taste and do no credit to the memory of a great man. EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Economics, Not Bloodshed, Key to Victory in Viet Nam

By SAM CAMPBELL
Business Editor

Business Week, the McGraw-Hill publication, reports on what "seasoned observers" are saying about the effect of the Viet Nam bloodshed on President Johnson's political standing.

"Some Democratic members of Congress, for example, believe the public is in no mood to accept the rising casualty lists expected this summer. . . . This is still a minority view, however. Others argue that rising casualties, if they occur, will solidify public support behind the President." So reports Business Week.

Perspective Needed

The magazine's observations can best be appreciated if they are placed in the perspective of other published information on the total world-wide conflict between East and West.

This additional information is a study of the world food supply that was made in February 1962 by the Stanford Research Institute. It was prepared at the direction of the U.S. Office of Emergency Planning. The introductory portion was published in the Congressional Record of Oct. 10 and Oct. 14, 1960. It is titled "Economic Countermeasures: An Examination of the Role of Economic Power in World Conflict."

The study itself is much too complex to present in brief form. But the conclusion is suggested in two excerpts. The first excerpt is as follows:

"In any review of world economic relations, food necessarily occupies a central position. The role of food in an economic countermeasures system designed to support Western political and military policy is neglected and often misunderstood because this role is vexed by overhanging surpluses in a number of Western countries. The potential role of countermeasures in the food sector is of great importance, if only because North America and Australia are the only major areas of the earth in which there is a food surplus."

In other words, food is a factor in war, and our side has the food. Now comes the second excerpt from the Stanford Research study:

"This discussion has provided a brief outline of the preponderant position of the West in the food sector. United States, Australia and Canada supply all but a trivial part of the critical supply of food moving in the world market. The United States, UNILATERALLY (if it chose to exercise its power in this sector), might easily alter the political system of scores of countries. This is understood abroad, where hunger is a daily affair and governments stand on supplies of food that move into their ports from the United States; it is not understood in the United States."

In other words, the U.S. can use its immense power in the food sector, but has not yet chosen to do so. We continue to export foodstuffs. Except we feed our enemies, they cannot fight. When they can't fight, we don't have to.

So we have a situation in which the press of this country prattles about the politics of human blood, in the same breath counting torn bodies along with votes. Yet that same press fails to call attention to the fact that the shedding of blood is not necessary to the winning of the encounter in Viet Nam.

The horror of political bloodshed calls to mind lines written of 18th century England by the poet William Blake: "The chimney-sweeper's cry the blackening church appalls, and the hapless soldier's sigh runs in blood down palace walls."

Today is Monday, July 26, the 207th day of 1965 with 158 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Saturn and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Venus and Mars.

Those born today are under the sign of Leo. Irish playwright George Bernard Shaw was born on this day in 1856.

On this day in history:

In 1921, American political leader William Jennings Bryan died of a stroke near Dayton, Tenn.

In 1941 Gen. Douglas MacArthur became commander of the U.S. forces in the Philippines.

In 1952, King Farouk of Egypt boarded his royal yacht and went into exile.

In 1963, a devastating earthquake rocked Skopje, Yugoslavia, killing hundreds.

A thought for the day: Playwright George Bernard Shaw said: "The worst sin towards our fellow creatures is not to hate them, but to be indifferent to them: That's the essence of inhumanity."

BACK TO CALIFORNIA.

Unusual recurrences of events always impress me. My daily column of July 1 was about driving a 10-mile team pulling a gang plow on the historic 93,000-acre Irvine Ranch and later driving four great horses hauling olives to the electric train depot at Santa Ana several miles west.

On later trips to California I twice went back to the Irvine Headquarters and found the dining room where we were fed. The barn in which the mules were stabled was 200 yards northeast of the mansion and the olive grove about a half mile northwest of the mansion.

A large part of the ranch was sheep range. Our meat was mutton in some form three times a day. Once when we were in line waiting for the gang to sound us into the dining room, a wit from North Carolina said to a roly-poly boy from Texas: "Cowboy, if you will give me four guesses, I'll bet you two-bits I can tell you which meat we'll have for supper." Cowboy Bob said: "I'm not gonna bet you, but I wonder what you would guess." The former Tarheel sharecropper quipped, "Ham, lamb, sheep, or mutton."

Sixteen days after my column was published, I received from Wendell Niles, Jr., a close friend in Hollywood, a picture of the mansion captioned, "Firegutted Landmark."

I re-produced copies of the picture of this great house which had been built in 1886 and again came in for national repute from what was described as "the double suicide in 1958 of Myford Irvine, last of California's great land barons."

I reproduced the picture for the benefit of my grandchildren at the place where I had first worked as a homesick 16-year-old boy 2,000 miles from home.

On the basis of a meandering record so far, the Republican congressional leadership is taking the Republican party down the path toward political bankruptcy. A short journey. The party is bankrupt of hope and issues.

The brand new Republican House leadership appears to be lost in fuzzy frustration. The substitution of Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan for Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, as minority House leader was a stumbling step backward, as the record plainly shows.

Charley Halleck was nobody's sweetheart, ever, but he was what Indiana Republicans admiringly called a gut fighter. Nobody really trusted Charley very much, and never around a corner. But he could get results. Ford, no doubt, is the most honorable of men and, perhaps the least effective opposition leader of modern times.

Had Campaign Issue

He had a campaign issue fit to win elections in his vest pocket when President Johnson proposed that the treasury help pay the rent of some hundreds of thousands of American citizens under conditions which almost can be described as charitable. Ford let that one get away from him because four of his too few Republican members of the House voted for the Great Society's biggest idea yet. The big-brother - will-pay-the-rent gimmick is the No. 1 new proposition produced so far by LBJ's Great Society.

On the Senate side of the Capitol, the Republicans are led by bumbling Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, who just has permitted himself to be painted into a corner on his effort to obtain a constitutional amendment nullifying the Supreme Court's rule on legislative reapportionment. Dirksen's great and good friend in the White House is extending no favors to the Republican leader who often has been helpful to LBJ in rounding up votes needed to obtain Great Society triumphs.

The Great Society members of the House and Senate are organizing to cut down the Dirksen resolution. They are aided in this by one or more Eastern Republicans. Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York bolted Dirksen in the Senate Judiciary Committee, depriving the Republican leader of the chance of a favorable committee report for his resolution.

Point Up Problems

Javits in the Senate and Rep. John V. Lindsay in the House point up the problems of the Republican congressional leadership. Lindsay is the Republican liberal-fusion nominee for mayor of New York. Lindsay and three other New York Republicans provided the margin by which Johnson's rent subsidy plan scraped through the House this month. Javits and a handful of northeastern Republican colleagues did the same for rent subsidy in the Senate.

The disastrous 1964 Goldwater rebellion against me-too Republicans and the refusal of congressional Republicans to conduct themselves as a political opposition puts the party in a sorry mess. Lindsay, Javits & Co. blur the distinctions between the Republican and Democratic parties if, indeed, there are any distinctions. They are helping to flush the American two-party system down the drain.

Foreign News Commentary

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International
Notes from the foreign news cables:

Watch for new Soviet propaganda attacks Sunday when the Geneva disarmament conference resumes. Sources close to the 17-nation talks believe the Russians will accuse the Western allies of not being serious in wanting a nuclear non-proliferation agreement. Much of the propaganda barrage probably will be directed against West Germany, which wants to be included in any nuclear weapons pact agreed upon by NATO.

North Vietnamese officials are passing the word in diplomatic circles that the United States is "not really interested" in peace talks on Viet Nam. They say that when Washington is ready to talk, they will too. The Hanoi Reds tell diplomats in Moscow the U. S. would have to stop its air attacks against North Viet Nam and deal directly with the Viet Cong before peace talks can take place. They are convinced they're winning the war.

Signs continue to point to a growing mutual disenchantment between the Philippines and Indonesia.
