Highway Body Keeps Promise--Road Contracts Let

EXTENSION OF
BORGER ROAD
ALSO OKAYED

A modern highway from Pampa west to Stinnett and possibly to Hartley and points west became more of a reality yesterday with the letting of contracts by the state highway commission for construction of bridges and grade and drainage on Highway 209 (Oldfield Highway 41) through Carson and a portion of Hutchinson counties.

In addition, the commission approved plans for extending the thoroughfare west through Stinnett and Dumas to Hartley and from Wheeler east to the Oklahoma line. Plans have been submitted to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads for approval in the 1939 program, which begins in 1938.

The highway commission accepted the low bid of Allhands and Davis of Dallas to grade and drain 16.9 miles of the highway from the Gray county line west to Dixon Creek for $88,206. The low bid of $66,099 from the Austin Bridge company of Dallas for construction of bridges across Bear, Spring and White Deer creeks and an extension of Dixon Creek bridge was also accepted.

Pampans Present
Present at the lettings were County Judge Sherman White and Garnet Reeves, manager of the Pampa Board of City Development. The Pampans appeared before the commission Friday and asked for $6,000 additional state funds with which to speed up construction of State Highway 152 in the Laketon community. The commission promised to consider the request at its next meeting.

Members of the commission were also invited to the annual meeting of Highway 31 association to be held in Pampa at a date yet to be set.

Yesterday afternoon Judge White and Mr. Reeves were guests of Chairman R. L. Bobbitt of the commission at the Texas-Baylor football game at Waco. They will return to Pampa tomorrow.

"We were given an attentive and courteous hearing by the commission," Mr. Reeves wired President James Collins of the Board of City Development.

The move to build a highway between Pampa and Borger via Skellytown was begun in 1928 by the late F. P. Reid and other Pampans. Progress was slow but steady and portions of the road were improved each year.

Red Cross Drive For
$1,100 To Open Here
Week From Tomorrow

B. M. Behrman, chairman of Pampa's 1937 annual Red Cross roll call, announced Saturday night that the drive for membership will open Monday, Nov. 15 and run through Thanksgiving Day, or until the city's quota of $1,100 has been raised. That amount has been set by the national Red Cross headquarters as Pampa's quota for this year.

Annual roll call drive for the American Red Cross will be launched in Pampa one week from tomorrow, it was announced last night by B. M. Behrman, Pampa roll call chairman for 1937.

The city's quota for this year has been set at $1,100. Mr. Behrman stated, The chairman will call committee meetings this week and prepare for the formal opening of the drive to let Red Cross memberships.

In connection with the local drive, Mr. Behrman pointed out that the movement will go ahead simultaneously with 3,700 other roll call chairmen throughout the United States.

"We feel sure that Pampa again will do her share in this great humanitarian work," Mr. Behrman said. "Red Cross work throughout the nation depends solely on roll call support."

"We never know when our own area will be hit by disaster, and most certainly we would not wish to be without Red Cross support. Millions of people belong to the Red Cross and millions benefit from it. It is a voluntary agency of the people and it depends upon the people and serves in the name of the people. Memberships are only $1 each. Nobody is asked for more than that amount, unless they wish to give more."

As an agency of the American people, the American Red Cross last year cared for the largest number of disaster victims in the organization's peacetime history, it was revealed yesterday by Alex Schneider, chairman of the Pampa chapter.

"During the Ohio-Mississippi Valley flood last spring the Red Cross gave assistance to 322,390 families," Mr. Schneider said. "This represented 1,450,000 individuals and far exceeded the number we were forced to care for during the previous all-time high water in 1927."

To carry out this great relief task, Mr. Schneider pointed out, American people generously contributed more than $25,000,000 to be administered by the Red Cross.

The local chairman said, however, that while the Red Cross had been called upon to assist victims of 24 floods during the year, a variety of other disasters called for relief.

Anybody desiring to help this worthy cause may telephone 1466 during the day and 386 or 1371 in the evening and night, leaving their addresses to the Scouts can make collections.

"We are anxious to secure all kinds of clothes for men, women and children, particularly for children," said Joe I. Bradley, chairman of the committee in charge of collections. George Taylor has charge of publicity and Scoutmaster J. G. Sturgeon of collections.

"Several children are being kept out of school because their parents are unable to clothe them properly," he is informed, and we urge Pampans to be generous," Mr. Bradley continued.

Clothing collected will be repaired at the community sewing room, which is scheduled to open soon. The DeLuxe Cleaners and Edmondson Dry Cleaners have agreed to clean the clothes. J. O. Gurley has offered to repair shoes, donated.

Distribution will be in charge of Mrs. Willie Baines, of the Gray County Welfare association.

Death Decreed For Mrs. Hahn

CINCINNATI, Nov. 6 (AP)—Eleven women and a man decreed today that Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, 31-year-old mother, die in the electric chair for the poison murder of Jacob Wagner, 78, one of four men she allegedly killed for her money.

The jury verdict automatically condemned her to death. Mrs. Hahn heard the verdict with head slightly bowed and nervously twisting a handkerchief. She blinked and stared at Judge Charles S. Bell as he thanked the jurors for a "verdict four-square with the circumstances," then was hurried to her jail cell where, Chief Deputy Sheriff George J. Heitzler said, she threw herself on a bed and sobbed.

No date has been set for formal sentencing. Chief defense counsel Joseph H. Hoodin said he would seek a new trial. No woman has ever been electrocuted in Ohio.

Children who each morning are sent to school by determined and properly relentless parents will turn the tables on mother and daddy this week.

The kiddies have set up a persistent clamor for their parents to attend school, thereby observing American Education week in a manner which the students, school teachers and officials and the American Legion, sponsors of the week, deem appropriate.

Each room wants to be "100 percent" and the children are taking the lead in the campaign to induce every parent to visit the home room of his or her child this week. The kiddies' argument runs something like this:

"You're supposed to go to school every day, just like I'm supposed to go every day. If you don't you'll be playing hooky." Maybe I'll start playing hooky!" It's likely to work.

The whole idea is to get parents to take more than a perfunctory interest in the school. Children of most rooms in all the local schools are sending written invitations to their parents—in addition to the verbal pressure they themselves are applying.

School and room programs have been arranged. Speakers will give addresses at assembly or chapel programs.

Yesterday the American Legion announced speakers for the week which begins today. Ministers are expected to touch upon the observance.

Speakers Announced
Legionnaire speakers were announced as follows by Charlie Maisel, Earl Perkins, Frank Shotwell, Legion committee. County Judge Sherman White, high school, Frank Culbertson, Junior high; Paul Hill, Woodrow Wilson; W. V. Jarratt, Sam Houston; C. E. Cary, B. M. Baker; Ralph Thomas, Horace Mann.

Other details of the local observance will be found on the society page of this issue of the NEWS.

DUCHESS MAY TOUR RUSSIA

(By The Associated Press)

The U. S. S. R. beckoned the Duke of Windsor today.

His Royal Highness, cancelling present American tour plans because of "grave misconceptions" of his motives, remained in Paris, mulling the future.

Some said he would go to Russia instead. Having already been to Germany, the Russian trip would show he had no political motives, such as some folks in America had hinted.

Washington had no comment. London thought the Duke did the right thing.

Charles De Gaulle, inventor of a system of industry which laborites have scored as a "speed up," said in New York the Duke and his Baltimore-born Duchess might get over here around Christmas. He wasn't sure.

There was talk the Duke, in addition to his tour of Russia, would visit the Soviet Union.

22 WORKERS RELEASED
FROM PENSION BUREAU

AUSTIN, Nov. 6 (AP)—Economy in administration costs of old age pensions sprang into action today when 22 workers received letters notifying them of their release from employment.

W. A. "Jack" Little, acting director, reported the retrenchment program would cut $22,722 from administrative costs, $11,722 in November and an additional $5,000 in December and a $6,000 more in January.

He said the November economy affected mostly workers in the state headquarters and a few clerks in regional offices. By Dec. 1 some supervisory employees will feel the economy drive and on Jan. 1 the entire program will have been put in force, he said.

Little, testifying before a house investigating committee this week, said about 11,000 "borderline" pension eligibles would be cut from the rolls when a reinvestigation of eligibility, ordered by the legislature, had been completed.

John T. Miller was released on $1,000 bond yesterday afternoon, following a hearing earlier Saturday before Justice of Peace E. F. Young on a charge of driving while drunk.

Miller was arrested late Friday by Texas highway patrolman C. S. Weir, on a road one mile north of Pampa.

WPA ORDERS
LOAD TEST ON CENTER SEATS

A section of the grandstand at Recreation park collapsed about 5:30 p. m. yesterday during a load test being made by Works Progress Administration officials. A section of the stand 15 by 25 feet failed to carry the load, 99 sacks of cement weighing 44.5 tons.

The test is the third to be made since the completion of the grandstand. First the City of Pampa placed cement equal to 300 pounds on each seat. Last month WPA officials conducted a 500-pound test and Friday and yesterday the weight was "thick" to 700 pounds or seven sacks of cement where each person would be seated.

A A. Meredith, district administrator of WPA in the Panhandle, in a telephone conversation with a NEWS reporter last night, said the test was ordered out of the San Antonio office and that it was a standard test. He said that dead weight used should be about 4 to 1.

In conducting such a test, Mr. Meredith said, the actions of a crowd is taken into consideration. The sudden rising of a crowd at one time or the congregating at a given spot increases the pressure on the stands.

The cement stacked on the area crashed to the ground, the majority of the sacks bursting at the impact. "Timbers and 'bays' were torn like paper from the frame-work, leaving a gaping hole in the stand.

The break occurred immediately above the center entrance to the grand stand and between four major uprights. City Manager C. L. Stine declared the test unfair since none of the cement had been stacked over any of the supporting columns.

ITALY, GERMANY, JAPAN
SIGN ANTI-RED PACT

ROME, Nov. 6 (AP)—Fascists warned the world tonight the military forces of Italy, Germany and Japan were prepared to back the tripartite anti-Communist pact signed today.

They intimated the brief agreement, which makes Italy a charter member of the German-Japanese anti-Bolshevik front, binds the three powers to a "collaboration" which goes beyond even the fight on Communism.

Italian writers interpreted the agreement in terms of the military forces of the three powers. Virginia Gayda, leading commentator, said 2,000,000 tons of warships and 200,000,000 men are now at the disposal of the anti-Communist front.

LEFORS TROOP WINS
PUNCTURE CAMPAIGN

Nearly a ton of nails, small bolts and wood screws was removed from Gray county streets and highways by Boy Scouts of Pampa and LeFors in a campaign against puncture hazards that began Monday and ended yesterday.

Troop 19 of LeFors won the first prize in the contest, a wood-carving set, by collecting 1,117 3/4 pounds. The accumulation of puncture hazards gathered by all the troops is on display at the Pampa Hardware & Implement company, 120 North Cuyler. The total gathered amounted to 7,948 3/4 pounds.

Fire-by-friction sets are to be awarded to troops in which each scout of the troop participated to the extent of gathering at least five pounds of puncture hazards.

Amounts collected by other troops in the contest were: Troop 4, Pampa, sponsored by Christian church, 395 pounds; Troop 21, Pampa, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 215 pounds; Troop 14, Pampa, sponsored by Sam Houston school, 156 pounds; Troop 8, Pampa, sponsored by Methodist church, 65 pounds.

Agents will be among those present at the Pampa-Amarillo football game at Harvesters Park here next Thursday afternoon.

You have the word of Earl S. Carter, control board inspector stationed in Pampa.

"There'll be no drinking at next Thursday's football game if the State of Texas and the Gray county sheriff's office can prevent it." Inspector Carter said last night.

WALL STREET CRASH PROBED IN BIG HUNT

By JOHN LEAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (P)—The biggest "bear" hunt in the history of Wall Street was on tonight in an effort to learn whether the current stock market was deliberately manipulated.

It was undertaken by the Twentieth Century Fund—an independent, endowed foundation which has been critical of market practices in the past—at the request of the stock exchange.

The investigation will run most of the winter, with a corps of perhaps 30 expert auditors digging deep into the records of "short" sales and what effect these "bear" operations have on falling prices.

The results will be published, the fund promised, "no matter what they may be."

The sharpest economic brains of the country were asked to direct the inquiry, which will follow a scientific sampling process. The most active stock issues will be studied intensively. The investigators will find out who sold what, how much, when, and how much profit he made.

Any hints, dug up in this way, that bearish speculators forced the market down will be followed thru. The operation of the "bears" have never before been scrutinized on such a scale. The stock market itself does not know what effect "short selling" has.

The exchange's request for the investigation, transmitted by letter October 28, was the first such request the exchange ever made to an outside, independent agency. The request covered only "the effects of short selling." The fund's acceptance, transmitted by letter today to Charles R. Gay, president of the exchange, was on the same basis.

"Short" selling, or "bear" trading, is the practice of selling stocks before you actually own them—on the gamble that the price will fall.

"Short" sellers defend this practice on the grounds it balances the market against margin traders, speculators who buy on the gamble that prices will rise. Opponents of "short" selling blame it for deepening market slumps.

ICKES DENIES WRITING TO DUKE OF WINDSOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (P)—One crisp bit of comment from Secretary Ickes was Washington's only recognition of a complaint this capital had shown "lack of enthusiasm" over the now postponed visit of the Duke of Windsor to the United States.

Members of the duke's staff at Paris said Edward had received a "perfunctory" response from Ickes concerning a request for information on public works projects.

Ickes observed he had conducted no correspondence, "perfunctory or otherwise," with Edward. His correspondence was entirely with Charles Bedaux, American representative of the duke, he said.

The White House and state department said nothing about a belief Edward should have been given a state dinner at the executive mansion—instead of a luncheon.

Mrs. Roosevelt previously had said the demands of a lecture tour would force her to be absent when the Windsors visited here.

The state department, informed several weeks ago Edward would visit this country in an unofficial capacity, had made routine arrangements for receiving visiting royalty of this status.

Ickes submitted to Bedaux a list of American housing and reclamation projects and national parks as a suggestion for spots to be visited by the duke.

SHARP DROP IN STEEL MILL PRODUCTION SEEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (P)—Predictions of another sharp drop in steel mill production next week, combined with cloudier trade news elsewhere, put stock market leaders on the roller-coaster today for a slice of 1 to 4 points generally.

Steels were easily the leaders in the set-back, but coppers, motors, rubbers, oils, farm implements and miscellaneous issues were also prominent losers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks yielded 1.2 points at 45.5

and was just 4 of a point above the low for the year. Transfers totaled 766,390 shares compared with 713,910 last Saturday.

Wheat at Chicago was off 2 1/4 to 3 cents a bushel. Corn was down 3/8 to 7/8. Cotton retreated 20 to 35 cents a bale. Coffee futures broke to new lows.

Secondary rail bonds fell to bottom levels since 1933 and other listed loans lacked recovery vigor. The recent buoyant gold shares took a rest as financial observers continued to scout foreign rumors.

Washington might boost the price of the yellow metal. Bar gold in London and sterling in New York hit new 2-year tops as hoarding abroad showed few signs of diminishing.

NEGRO CHARGED WITH THEFT HELD IN JAIL

Charged with having possession of stolen goods, Semore Teal, negro, was still in jail yesterday, not having paid a $25 fine and costs assessed him at a hearing before Justice of the Peace E. F. Young earlier in the week.

Teal was arrested by Deputy George Inman, in connection with the removal of a box containing six pairs of hosiery from the Violet Shop.

Willie B. Teal, negro, was released on payment of a $14.15 fine and costs on a similar charge, in connection with the taking of a pair of shoes from Montgomery Ward & Co.

The man was arrested October 26, the woman a few days later, but the hearing and disposition of the cases was not made until the following week.

GALVESTON, Nov. 6 (P)—Effective Monday, the Clyde-Mallory lines will lift all embargoes with the exception of that effective at Boston. E. C. Crane, general agent of the line in Texas, announced this afternoon.

TB TESTING OF CATTLE WILL BEGIN MONDAY

Testing of Gray county cattle for tuberculosis will be started Monday, according to information received by County Agent Ralph R. Thomas in a letter from Dr. M. A. Molohon of the United States Department of Agriculture, bureau of animal husbandry.

This year's test is a follow-up of the first tuberculosis testing of Gray county cattle in February, 1935, when a group of five veterinarians worked an entire month and examined every herd of cattle in the county.

Following this test, Gray county was given a modified accredited rating. The present examination will not be as extensive as was the first, only a certain percent of the herds, both dairy and beef, being tested.

What the percentage will be was not stated in the letter to Mr. Thomas, nor was the name of the helper, who will accompany Dr. Molohon to Pampa, and assist him in the examination, mentioned. The inspector asked Mr. Thomas to have someone to act as a guide over the county.

Owners of cattle that pass the tests will be given certificates by the county agent's office, attesting to the health of the cattle. Possession of these certificates enables owners of cattle to sell their herds in other states without the necessity of additional tuberculosis examinations of the cattle, County Agent Ralph R. Thomas, said.

LUCK CHARMS FAIL TO SAVE STUDENT'S WATCH

WACO, Nov. 6 (P)—Hilton Henslee's faith in his rabbit foot and horse shoe has been shaken. The Baylor student from Emory hurried through a crowd at the airport to nab the autograph of Ted Husing, radio commentator here for the Baylor-Texas game. He got the autograph but somewhere in the crowd he was separated from his $50 watch.

Attached to the watch were Henslee's luck charms.

Not 'Farmer Roosevelt' to Boys

When President Roosevelt appeared at the polling place in Hyde Park, N. Y., to cast his vote, he gave his occupation as "farmer". But he couldn't fool the boys of the village with any such thin disguise. You can see from the way they crowd around that they recognize him as the nation's Chief Executive.

VETS OPEN DRIVE TO INDUCE PAMPANS TO RESPECT FLAG IN ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Most people don't know how to act when the U. S. flag passes by in a parade, according to John W. Crout, sergeant-at-arms of Kerley-Crossman post of the American Legion. Mr. Crout has borne the colors in many a local parade and while the Stars and Stripes floated over his head he has observed the actions of Pampans.

The posture and doing of many prominent persons in Pampa would be surprising if names were called, Mr. Crout said. Well, it's getting tired of seeing people keep their hands in their pockets, their hats on their heads when the flag passes by.

Mr. Crout today begins a one-man drive, backed by the Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars to persuade Pampans to show their proper respect for the flag on Armistice day.

"Be prepared to show your love and devotion to this great country of ours on Armistice day," said Mr. Crout. "Many citizens today do not know how to pay their respects to the flag. I believe that there is only about one per cent of the population of Pampa who knows the proper way to act when the flag passes by.

Stand at Attention.

"When you are standing on the street and a parade is coming in line of march with official color guards, a man on each side of the flag with a rifle, what should you do when it passes? You should, when you see the flag approaching, stand at attention, and that does not mean that you may lean against a car or a porch column. When the flag is about nine paces, or 20 feet from you, you should remove your hat and hold it over your heart with your right hand. The brim of the hat should extend over your left shoulder. This mark of respect applies to women and children as well as all men. At all times you band. Keep your hands out of your pockets; stand straight with both feet planted firmly on the ground. Never have a pipe, cigar or cigarette in your hand when the flag passes by. You should refrain from pleasures for at least one minute, or until the flag has traveled a distance of 40 feet.

"Now if some one should not stand at attention or salute or fail to dispose of a penny cigarette, it is your duty to make that person apologize for the insult to the flag, for it is an insult! Men have insulted the flag, not in words, but in appearance for a one-cent cigarette. Let's show the proper respect for the flag on Nov. 11."

74-YEAR OLD GROCER UNEXPECTEDLY PASSES

Newton Henry Simmons, 74 years and 9 months, died early yesterday morning at the family home 938 South Barnes street. Although in failing health for some years, Mr. Simmons' death was unexpected.

Coming to Pampa eight years ago, Mr. Simmons later opened and took active charge of the S. & S. Grocery on South Barnes-st. He was born in Tennessee.

Survivors are the widow, three daughters, Mrs. Lillie Potts, Pampa, Mrs. J. M. Goodrich, Oklahoma City, and Mrs. Fred J. Acton, Guthrie, Okla., and two sons, Clarence H. Simmons, Oklahoma City and Claude E. Simmons, Hobbs, N. M., also a sister, Mrs. Texie Davis, Paris, and two brothers, Garrett Simmons, Fort Worth, and Robert L. Simmons, Katy, Okla., and nine grandchildren including Glenn Potts, Pampa.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in First Christian church with the Rev. John Mullen, pastor, officiating. Burial will follow in Fairview cemetery under direction of Pampa Mortuary.

Members of Pampa Masonic lodge 966 will have charge of services at the grave. All members of the lodge are asked to meet at the Masonic hall at one o'clock. Mr. Simmons was a member of the Tishomingo lodge.

"I heard someone say"

Not so long ago, people depended upon tales of returned travelers for their information about distant lands. Even when true, these tales were frequently misunderstood and misquoted. Often they were tall tales to begin with . . . There was no way to check up on these stories, no agency devoted to the accurate reporting of what really happened around the world.

Today journalism of integrity is an authoritative source on which to base stories, judgments and opinions. Furthermore, the published story can be referred to and reread in its unchangeable form.

Such journalism requires great care in its compilation, for it must withstand the strong light of publication.

During a half century of development The Associated Press has adhered closely to an ideal of journalistic integrity. That is the reason why newspapers of today can bring to their readers truthful and unbiased reports of what is happening all over the world.

LARGE QUOTA SET FOR 1938 BY CHEVROLET

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Officials of the General Motors Corporation have elected to sponsor the Chevrolet Division for 1938, to give special attention to the plans and programs of the largest unit of the corporation and to aid Chevrolet in every possible way during the coming year to attain its objective of new car and truck sales. "This year's quota is the highest sales quota ever undertaken by any division of General Motors."

A. P. Sloan Jr. and W. S. Knudsen, chairman of the General Motors board, and president, respectively, have communicated with the more than 300,000 shareholders of the corporation, telling why General Motors is officially sponsoring Chevrolet for the new model year that started this week with the opening of the New York automobile show.

They complimented M. E. Coyte, Chevrolet general manager, and W. E. Holler, general sales manager, for the large growth of the company during the past four years and pointed out that Chevrolet is now a million-car-per-year company with sales of 1,015,000 for 1937 and 1,168,000 for 1936.

Both Sloan and Knudsen were enthusiastic concerning the advanced dealer-factory relationship that W. E. Holler has organized in the quality dealer program and the dealer planning committees.

"What Chevrolet does in any given year," said Sloan, "is of vital importance, not only to General Motors and the Chevrolet division, its dealers and retail customers, but to business in general, for Chevrolet's operations are so large and extensive as to have a marked influence on the welfare and the lives of millions."

Knudsen stressed service to public through the Chevrolet dealers, as he commented upon the fact that the corporation is backing Chevrolet in 1938 with its power and ability. "In its unique position as the leader in the low-priced field," he said, "I know that the Chevrolet division will accept the challenge that leadership brings, namely, maintaining its leadership in service to the public through the Chevrolet dealer organization."

MAG FEATURES NEW SERVICE

In order to aid southwestern motorists in avoiding winter automobile troubles, the Magnolia Petroleum Company has perfected a 7-point winter-proof service. This service, which will be available through several thousand Magnolia dealers, is intended to make winter starting easier, to protect gears and chassis with special winter lubricants and to prevent damage to radiators, batteries and other costly automobile parts.

An intensive advertising campaign in local newspapers, national magazines and radio began on Nov. 3. Under the supervision of Mr. W. S. Norman, district manager, group meetings are being held in Pampa to familiarize Magnolia dealers with the value of winter-proof service to their customers and to coach the dealers in the various services which should be performed for safe winter driving.

To assure the correct application of winter lubricants as recommended by automobile manufacturers, Magnolia dealers have been supplied with detailed mobilization charts which show the proper winter grades of Mobiloil, Mobil gear oils and Mobilgreases for all makes of passenger cars, trucks and tractors.

SOIL ALLOTMENT MAY BE RECEIVED BY XMAS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—Southern farmers may receive a good portion of their soil conservation allotment in time for Christmas shopping.

This was the prediction today by I. W. Duggan, acting director for the southern region of the AAA, comprising nine states—Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and South Carolina.

Duggan said the amount to be paid out before Christmas would be determined by the number of counties which complete their soil conservation programs and send all data on compliance into the various state headquarters, which will be opened and ready to receive the information Dec. 1.

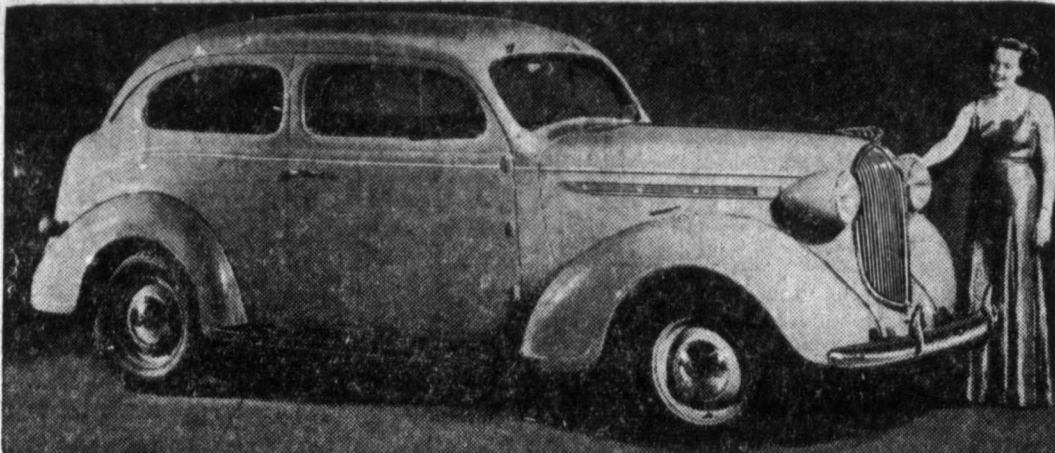

The director estimated southern farmers could easily have received at least $5,000,000 more than the $118,550,000 received last year if they had complied fully with the program by the closing date.

Co-eds Cut Living Costs to $15 Month

CANYON, Nov. 6.—Housewives troubled by the C. C. co-eds got a few ideas from the college co-eds at Mesquite and Cactus halls at West Texas State.

The recently launched cooperative homes for girls have paid all their October bills. Figures collected by Mrs. Geraldine Green, dean of women, show that expenses for room and board for each girl at Mesquites were $13.42 for the month and at Cactus were $14.62. Cactus lodge houses 23 girls and Mesquite 14, besides the matrons.

Luxury Features Mark New Plymouth

Easier steering, safer vision and a score of new luxury features for the lowest price field are introduced by Plymouth for 1938. Here's the newest Plymouth model, that marks the company's tenth anniversary "jubilee." A new hood sweeps farther forward to meet the top of the radiator grille, and deeper fenders curve around to a new steel apron across the front. This year's safety-styled instrument again offers special protection in case of sudden stops. Note the bigger windshield for safer vision. This is another standard feature throughout Plymouth's 1938 line, which includes eight "deluxe" and three "business" body types. All measure 194 inches from bumper to bumper. The new car is on display here at the show-rooms of Pampa dealers.

JILL

BY MARY RAYMOND

Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER XV

Outside the city was changing. A soft and smothering blanket of snow was overlaying familiar scenes of white.

Shining motors met the challenge of the snow with superb mechanical indifference. Moving one by one—an endless procession of them—to the storm entrance.

Just inside the great doors waited liveried servants with silver trays. Cards were an unnecessary formality in most cases as trained eyes swept the entering elite. Familiar faces to socially conscious butlers.

In the drawing room which flanked the ballroom, Jill was receiving with William Whitman, standing by her father and mother.

Barry, who had been drinking, Jill saw, came close to her. "You'll stand all of 'em on their ears. It's what you want, gorgeous gal, isn't it?"

"Please, don't be silly, Barry," Jill said. She saw his face redden angrily, as he turned away.

And now here was Milo, cold and angry looking, also: his eyes lighting up suddenly as he saw his flowers on Jill's left shoulder.

"I'm sorry I wore them," Jill thought. "It's just like Milo to think it means something."

"What dance are you saving me?" Milo asked, in a strange new intensity in his manner. An almost demanding way.

"The third and fifth, to begin with," Jill answered sweetly. Nothing could ruffle her now.

The first was Bill. The second with that new Englishman, Victor Ainsley, who was leaving the party early, and wanted to meet her, according to Elise. The third with Milo, and the fourth—the fourth! By that time, Alan would have arrived.

It was while she was dancing with the Englishman that something happened that gave Jill a queer feeling of apprehension.

Perkins was entering the ballroom, trying to look as though he were not doing something that was distinctly irregular. He was making his way to her father, Jill, dancing nearer to the group where her father was standing, saw him look up blankly as Perkins spoke. Then she was positive of it. Her father's face looked white and startled. He turned and walked from the room.

Who had summoned him? What could it mean? Jill heard her father's voice through her troubled abstraction.

"I'd much rather talk than dance," he said. "Shall we?"

Jill led the way to a secluded place. A small enclosed sunroom that led into the first room of her father's double study.

"This is jolly," Victor Ainsley was saying. "May I smoke?"

Thanks! He lit a cigarette and watched the curling smoke. I guess the real technique of the dance was not stressed enough in my education," he said. "I much prefer this to crowded floors."

"Yes, didn't you know? He has formal parties in America. English people weren't able to break away from their natural reserve. Even when they played it, it was sort of casualness of the American parties."

"There are a great many English people in town," Jill said. "I wish you weren't leaving so early. I'm expecting an English friend soon. Alan Jeffrey. You probably would not know him, though."

Alan Jeffrey! But of course I do. Grand chap, who uprooted himself and went wandering."

"You know him!" Jill's tone was incredulous.

"We were at Eaton together as small chaps. Alan was the star of the school. Headmaster's favorite and all that, which didn't interfere with his popularity with the students."

"Later he was a great outdoorsman. An all-around athlete really. Yes, he never seemed to put his heart into sports. On a day a big game was coming off, you might find him off painting a picture."

Jill scarcely breathed. "Then?" her eager voice prompted.

"Alan went the educational way. I had to drop out. Family fortunes, you know. He studied. He must have been accumulating a vast amount of knowledge, besides indulging himself in the study of art."

"Oh, tell me about that," Jill urged.

She could feel his questioning eyes.

"The Jeffrys all go in for politics," he answered. Parliament is a tradition. Lord Jeffrey—"

"Lord—?" Jill broke in faintly.

"Yes, didn't you know? He has always been a staunch conservative. But he is growing old, and he wanted the mantle to fall upon Alan. It must have been a great blow to the old man when Alan would have none of politics. They quarreled. I believe he told Alan that if he could prove he could support himself with his painting as an English gentleman should be supported, he could follow his bent. Otherwise, he must return to the fold and follow his father."

"Oh," exclaimed Jill. "Did he agree?"

"Yes. He's a family loving chap at heart. Loved the old home, an ancestral place called 'Templeogue,' which in the Gaelic means 'dear abiding place.'"

"He paused. "I believe I boring you?"

"No! Please go on."

"There's not much more to tell."

The Jeffrys have lived in their home with the fine old crested silver and beautiful hangings, service, and the hospitable motto "The ornaments of a home are the friends who have visited it." Generations of Jeffrys. It would take a terrific urge, you see, to start one of the family on a different trend. Alan evidently reverted back to some artist ancestor."

Jill sat with a lump in her throat, her eyes misted over with tears. How many humiliations must have come to Alan in the course of this period. One of them—the hardest to bear—her own careless plan to pave his rocky way with gold.

"Thank you for telling me the story," she said in a low tone.

"I'm sorry I can't wait to meet him," Ainsley said. "He is one of the finest chaps I know. But I'm taking a train out tonight, on my way south to visit friends. Hello—" he was glancing at his watch. "I'm running late. I must look up your mother and father and thank them for a delightful evening."

"Don't stop for the train," Jill said. "You might miss your train. I'll tell them for you."

After he had gone, Jill crossed to a window and stood staring out. She felt faint and confused. Lord Jeffrey—Alan was of English nobility. Some day he would be an English lord. They would live in that splendid old home and carry on its fine traditions.

She turned from the window. This must be Milo's dance. How angry he would be, having to search for her. Her gaze focused suddenly on a dim ray of light coming from under the door that opened into one of her father's study rooms.

Suddenly Jill remembered Perkins. Her father's white face. He must be in the larger study, with the door, opening it quietly. Then she stepped inside and closed it behind her.

Her father sat at a table. His face was evidently toward some visitor. Jill caught her breath. She had never seen her father with an expression like that on his face.

It was haggard, fearfully lined, gray with some inner anguish.

She could not see his visitor. But suddenly a voice she recognized grated harshly in the silence.

"You fail to understand that a man can get tired of carrying a heavy load like this, and getting not enough out of it to pay for such a risk."

"But, Montanne, you've never lost a dollar through me. You never will." The agonized note in her father's voice tore at Jill's heart.

She felt suffocated. Terrible enlightenment had come to Mr. Montanne, with the fury of a parent who had seen his son cast aside had decided to come to the party after all, and bring the gay house down in crashing desolation.

It was all clear now. There had been something of it in Milo's eyes. The whiplash look. Evidently, he had expected when their fortune was swept away that she would come crawling. But she wouldn't She despised him. She despised his father. All of their kind.

Oh, what a despicable revenge. She knew so little about business. But she knew that her father had counted upon the friendship and financial support of this man to carry the company through disastrous condition. She realized this that what she was seeing was what her father had meant when he had once said: "Our company is like the rock of Gibraltar. Oh, I guess it could be smashed. But I don't think it ever will be."

"I never dreamed that you would fail me," her father was saying slowly, heavily. "You know what it means. That the others will follow. They've always followed you, Montanne. And the moral effect will be as bad as the financial loss. It will bring every big creditor we have howling at the door. All because, for some reason I can't understand, you are refusing the matter of a comparatively small company loan. It wouldn't have been needed, if that strike we had hadn't been so prolonged."

"It would have been a risk," Montanne was answering. "And some times a risk seems not worth taking. A $2,000,000 loan isn't just pocket change, you know."

He was being deliberately ugly. Jill knew.

She moved a little, to see her father's face closer. There was nothing but despair there. He had always been so good, and noble. He'd been like the rock of Gibraltar, himself. But the rock had been struck some devastating blow, and was going down.

And then Jill knew what she must do. She reached back to the door. Opened it, closed it loudly. "Who is there?" came her father's voice.

Jill, a gay mask on her face, desolation in her heart, walked quickly into the study.

"Dad! Mr. Montanne! To think of finding you two here together. I was looking for you, dad, to tell you first. But it's wonderful to find Milo's father here too. Milo and I are going to be married."

BUICK SALES SINCE OCTOBER 1 EXCEED SAME PERIOD YEAR AGO

FLINT, Mich., Nov. 6.—The rate of Buick sales since the first of October, when 1938's were released to dealers, substantially exceeds that of the corresponding period a year ago, and is continuing at an accelerated pace, according to a statement today by W. P. Huffstader, general sales manager.

At the same time, it was disclosed that Buick production is averaging better than 1,200 cars a day with a sufficient number of orders on hand to maintain capacity operation through the first of the year.

Average retail delivery figures, covering the first ten days of the month, show that 4,740 new Buicks were delivered to customers in the United States, as compared with 917 in the first ten days of October a year ago, Mr. Huffstader said. Sales for the period, were the best since 1929, a year in which Buick announced in August and full stocks of new cars were in the hands of dealers, and exceeded any previous announcement volume in Buick's record.

Production of Buick cars for the week ending October 15, totaled 6,093 units, an average of 1,218 a day, and schedule for the current week calls for 6,100 units. Buick's production since January 1 reached 172,477 on October 15 and with heavy schedules for the remainder of the year, is expected to total between 235,000 and 240,000 by December 31.

One requisite of good health is balance, balance of the functions of internal organs. When all these synchronize a healthy body and a poised mind are developed.

Sinus infection, acutely painful, disturbs this balance. A dubious "cure" could increase it and drive it deeper. But medical or surgical measures, undertaken by your physician, can clear it and restore your health to harmony and equilibrium.

SAVAGE TEXAS TURNED BACK TWICE AT GOAL LINE

LONGHORNS TRAMPLE BAYLOR FROM UNBEATEN LIST 9-6

Pampa Daily News
PAGE SIX
SUNDAY MORNING NOVEMBER 7, 1937

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT.

WACO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Bull-shoat-tered Hugh Wolfe, University of Texas torped, kicked Baylor off the unbeaten list today with a 26-yard field goal that submerged the last of the southwest's spotless teams, 9-6.

Only four minutes remained when Wolfe gave Texas a triumph that had been denied them on five different occasions in a chilling skirmish that saw the Longhorns outplay Baylor all the way.

Out of the Southwest conference dungeon came the savage Texas team, doped to absorb the same licking Baylor had meted out to six straight foes. But Coach D. X. Bible's Texans, victor in only one game out of six played until today, owned the Baylor game from the start.

Wolfe's field goal was the clincher, but it was the nimble feet of Jud Atchison, his halfback playmate, and Wolfe's own power drives off the Baylor tackles that had Baylor on their heels constantly.

Midway of the first period Texas put across its initial touchdown, the Wolfe-Atchison combine pecked away at the Baylor tackles and moved downfield to the 18, where Atchison broke over center, cut sharply to the left and legged it across the goal line.

Wolfe missed the try for point.

Only five minutes before Texas had used the same power drives, with Wallace Lawson, fullback, teaming up with Atchison and Wolfe, to move down to the seven-yard stripe, only to be turned back there when Atchison made one of his very few mistakes and fumbled.

Bullet, Bill Patterson, Baylor's bomber, evened the score soon after the start of the second quarter. His shaft to Carl Brazell was completed on the 27 and Milton (Crazy Legs) Evans, substitute back, took a lateral and scurried to the 10. From there Patterson lofted a perfect touchdown pass to Brazell. Gray's try for point skimmed below the bar.

Repulsed at the goal line twice when passes from the 5-yard line failed, Texas drove on with ground power late in the fourth period and put Wolfe in position to do his kicking chore.

EYSTON FAILS TO BREAK SPEED RECORD

By JACK B. BEARDWOOD.

BONNEVILLE SALT PLATS, Utah, Nov. 6 (AP)—High speed race driver Eyston failed again today to break the world land speed record but had the satisfaction of traveling 310.685 miles per hour, the fastest man has ever gone in an automobile.

Immediately he began preparations to eradicate the mechanical trouble that thwarted him. He must work fast, for winter is closing in the saline racing course.

For the second time in two weeks Eyston was balked in his attempts to shatter Sir Malcolm Campbell's running mile record of 301.122 miles per hour when "Thunderbolt" left clutch disintegrated while he was returning over the 13-mile straightaway.

On his trip east over the course, Eyston hit 310.685 m.p.h. through the measured kilometer. His recorded time over the measured mile was 303.2995. The "electric eye" timing device stuck at the end of the mile, American Automobile Association official timers said, adding that the intrepid Englishman's actual speed through the mile was approximately 310 miles per hour, faster even than his 309.6 mile last week but unrecognized because, as was the case today, he hit trouble on the required return trip.

FIELD GOAL WINS
NEW ORLEANS, 6 (AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, thanks to a thrilling field goal in the waning minutes, rolled on undefeated and untied today with a 9 to 6 conquest over a scrapping Tulane Green Wave.

It was the seventh straight victory for the Red Regiment, which continued its Southeastern conference championship drive and Rose Bowl hopes before more than 31,000 spectators.

Sideline Safety Man Tackles Ball Carrier

Jack Lyon, keeping his eye peeled for The Citadel players, who hadn't the remotest chance to stop him from scoring, was rumping confidently toward a touchdown when a spectator, seen crouching on the sideline of the Columbia field, ran out, tackled cleanly and hard, and dropped him in his tracks to the utter amazement of the South Carolina captain, officials, and stands. Player hauled the irrepressible filbert from the field. Play was ruled a South Carolina touchdown. The Gamecocks won, 21-6.

Great Clovis Team Runs Over Reserves 33-0

Harvester reserves were given a chance to show their stuff Friday afternoon when they battled the huge Clovis Wildcats for nearly 60 minutes, losing 33 to 0. It took the behemoths from New Mexico 45 minutes to whittle the scrapping Harvester youngsters down to where they could crash through for a sure victory.

Coach Rock Staubus used his first team until late in the final quarter when the Wildcats had run up a sure lead. The wily Staubus wasn't taking any chances of Harvester coaches throwing in their reserves early in the final stanza in the hope of pulling the game out of the fire.

The Harvester reserves battled a team that outweighed them 26 pounds to the man. The little ball toters had to give away 27 pounds to the man. Unable to gain on the ground, the Harvesteres resorted to the air for their first four downs, one coming in each quarter. Clovis registered 19 first downs but manager for only the five touchdowns.

Hideout Successful.
Pampa's first down came on the opening play after Turner had captured the kickoff on his own 42-yard line. Kemp, little back, hid out on the west sidelines and took a pass from Dunaway good for 27 yards. It was the last threat of the quarter, the Harvesteres having possession of the ball only twice more.

Clovis scored near the end of the quarter on a 50-yard march. Lloyd went twice for a total of 25 yards and McIntyre stepped the rest of the way. The former Shamrock youth had four-man interference until well in the Harvester secondary when he took it alone, side-stepping and squirming away from three tacklers to score. McIntyre's try for extra point was blocked. Clovis 6, Pampa 0.

The chief Harvester threat of the game came early in the second quarter when Dunaway flipped a 33-yard pass to Andis who was downed on the Clovis 10-yard line. The little fellow, however, couldn't find enough power to get the ball across the goal line. McIntyre's punt out was partially blocked and covered by Pampa on the Clovis 22-yard stripe but once more the little Clovis eleven withstood an attack. Wear passed nicely over the goal line to Cox who got his fingers on the ball but couldn't hold it although in the clear.

Few Harvesters Used.
A stubborn Harvester defense held Clovis from scoring again until just at the half. It took the Wildcats 12 plays to crash to the 5-yard line. It was then that the Harvester regulars begged to be put in the game. Eight were allowed but they didn't know the Clovis style of offense and two plunges put McIntyre across. McIntyre's try for extra point was wide at the half. Clovis 12, Pampa 0.

The Harvester band strutted and the pep squad performed as Harry Kelley's tumbling team entertained. A side show on the Clovis side of the field, however, nearly stole the rest of the period. The showoff was Tuffy a Boston screwtail owned by Andy Sutter of Clovis. Wearing a blanket of Clovis school colors, Andy went through amazing stunts including, dancing, jumping through a hoop, walking between his master's legs and finally jumping on Andy's back and posing.

The Harvesters pulled their first down out of the fire early. Wear passing nine yards to Dunaway and following with a pass to Dunaway who lateraled to Turner for the yardage. Clovis tried running plays at the Harvester line but were stopped without a score the entire third quarter as the Harvesters showed their best defense of the game.

Clovis Comes Through.
Clovis went to town in the final quarter as Harvester coaches were forced to substitute for tired and injured reserves, Turner, Cox, and Acting Captain Bill Stiles all had to be removed with injuries.

The next Clovis touchdown came on a pass from McIntyre to Strickland for 10 yards and a 10-yard run. Strickland was stopped cold after taking the pass but broke loose and was allowed to make the rest of the gain. Strickland plunged for the extra point. Clovis 19, Pampa 0.

Before the tired reserves could get their breath after Dunaway's long punt, McIntyre raced 35 yards thru a broken field to cross pay. Hart crashed for the extra point. Clovis 26, Pampa 0.

Wear kicked only four yards after the kickoff and Clovis went on to score, McIntyre gaining 35 yards on a run, and then Lloyd crashed one yard for a touchdown. McIntyre kicked the extra point. Clovis 33, Pampa 0.

A completion on pass interference and a sneak by Kidwell gave the Harvesters a first down near the final gun as Coach Staubus sent his second string into the game.

Pete Dunaway, Harvester quarterback, put in a bid for punting assignment when in future games. Dunaway slipped a toe into the ball six times for an average distance of 42. He and Wear also showed up well in the passing department. The other backfield men tried hard but couldn't ram the line.

The work of Solomon, Stiles, Nichols and Turner was noticeable in the Harvester line.

Hazelwood stood head and shoulders high in the Clovis line while McIntyre was just as noticeable in the backfield.

HARDIN-SIMMONS BEATS KANSAS TEACHERS 66-6

WICHITA FALLS, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Hardin-Simmons Cowboys of Tillene scored more than a point a minute to weep their undefeated and untied record clean as they welcomed the Emporia State (Kansas) Teachers, 66 to 6, in their inter-sectional game today.

Burns McKinney, who was honored by homefolks here on his last local appearance with the Cowboys, reeled off long gains and passed the Kansas dizzies throughout the afternoon.

Raley, 165-pound powerhouse, in the Cowboy high-stepping backfield, scored four touchdowns, while Boutwell registered a pair and McKinnon, Reeves and Radoslovics accounted for one each.

WELLINGTON AND SHAMROCK TO BATTLE ARMISTICE EVE

SHAMROCK, Nov. 6—Shamrock's fightin' Irishmen are making elaborate preparations to give Wellington's high flying Skyrockets a rousing welcome when the two teams meet here on Denver Field in an Armistice Day clash. The game will be called at 7:45 p. m., thus giving people who attend the Harvester-Amazillo Saddle game in Pampa Thursday afternoon time to be on hand in time for the kick-off of this holiday classic.

The Rockets boast their strongest team in years with all but one or two of the players who started against Shamrock last year, when the Rockets won 12 to 7, back to start this contest. In addition to having a world of material back from last season the Rockets have the psychological advantage over the Irish which comes with their record of having scored 318 points.

Along with the football team and coaches Shamrock school officials and other citizens are putting forth every effort possible to have everything in shape to royally entertain cur visitors from our neighboring city.

With the exception of Sutterfield, the Irish squad which is resting this week-end, will be in A-1 condition for the contest and will be craving action when they tie into those high flying Rockets who are touted to take them by at least a couple of touchdowns.

On the other hand the Wellington squad under the direction of Coach Joe Coleman, is also, resting this against 12 for their opponents in seven games to date this season.

Coach Joe Coleman of the Wellington crew claims one of the fastest and most elusive backs in class B football circles this season in little Don "Antelope" Austin. Austin calls signals and runs wild with the ball on the offense and is safety man on the defense, often returning punts for touchdowns.

The Shamrock Irishmen, the team without a star, have not piled up such an enviable record as have the Rockets, but true to their names they never give up until the final gun sounds and its always a cinch they'll be there with plenty of fight.

M'LEAN DOWNS PIRATES 20-6

M'LEAN, Nov. 6 (Special)—McLean's Tigers still have a methemal chance of a conference title. They downed a fighting band of LeFors Pirates 20 to 6 last night under the lights at Tiger Field.

The Wellington Skyrockets are perched on top of the heap but they could be toppled by Shamrock Thursday night at 7:45 o'clock in Shamrock, which would throw the conference into a three-way tie.

Long runs featured the Tiger's victory last night. Braxton opened proceedings in the first quarter with a 45-yard dash off tackle. Not to be outdone, Watson broke straight through center for 35 yards in the second stanza. The final counter, in the third period, also went to Watson, who carried 40 yards to pay. Two extra points were added.

The lone LeFors counter came in the final play of the game week and brewing new strategy to throw at the Irish in an effort to maintain their undefeated standing which, in case they win, will leave them only one game shy of the district 3-B championship.

McLean's offense received a blow Thursday afternoon when Randy Mantooth, who was scheduled to fill the injured Hogan's place, broke a hand during practice. He will be, lost for the rest of the season. Cash played an outstanding game on defense, especially in the pass department. McLean reserves got plenty of experience at points during the game.

McLean led in first downs, 18 to 6.

It Happened on The Gridiron

Probably the oldest play in Oklahoma or Oklahoma A. & M. history occurred in the 1904 game between them. Oklahoma won, 75-0, and scored one touchdown in a creek. An Aztec punter, but wind blew the ball back into Cottonwood creek. Both teams dove in. A Sooner halfback got the ball, touched it down on the bank. It counted in those days.

"No use talking, it's gotta lotta ummph!" That's what delighted trier-outers say, vainly trying to express all the marvelous things they've felt.

Fact is—demonstration, not conversation, is the thing to describe this great new Buick. To say it's quick—nimble—agile—fast—is to do only fractional justice to its DYNAFLASH engine and what it does every time you touch off its thrifty power.

To call its TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING ride velvety is only to picture its ride. Use the words jarless, level, floating, serene—and you come a little closer.

But still you neglect entirely the directability this car gets from its new rear springing, the blessedly reduced risk of skidding, the far simpler maintenance, surer traction and longer rear tire wear that go with it.

PAMPANS WILL BE UNDERDOGS IN BIG GAME

A crowd estimated at more than 12,000 will see the Pampa Harvesters and Amarillo Sandies meet on Harvesters field Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Pampa school officials reported yesterday when the SRO sign on reserve seat tickets was hung out.

In all, 7,400 reserve seat tickets have been sold here and in Amarillo. Bleacher seats to accommodate about 4,000 are being erected in the end zones. Standing room for an additional 1,000 fans will be available if it is estimated.

The Harvesters will enter the game the underdogs despite the ballyhoo of newspapers over the state. Amarillo will enter the game with an advantage in weight and power, especially in the backfield where "Elastic" Thompson and big Martin carry the mail.

Harvester coaches and fans are wondering if J. P. Mathews, stellar guard, will be at his best by Thursday. Mathews suffered a knee injury in the Lubbock game and has not been able to practice since. Junior Williams, outstanding backfield reserve, was injured in the game and has also been on the sidelines.

Pampa reserves lost 33 to 0 to Clovis Friday in a game which saw Cox, Stiles and Harding removed with injuries. The Harvester first string was not used, but fans wondered if they could have whipped the Wildcats at Amarillo did.

Harvester coaches will spend Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday polishing up on offense and defense behind closed gates at Harvesters field. Fans are asked to stay away from the field. There will be no scrimmages, all the time being allowed for a thorough review of plays and assignments. The Harvester style of offense and defense is unknown.

lately became interested in the road. He made trips over the road and pronounced it one of the major projects in the state.

Mr. Hines and Chairman Bobbitt visited Pampa last May and drove over the road between Pampa and Amarillo. They told Pampa residents at a luncheon here that the Pampa-Borger road was the No. 1 project in the state and that it would receive early consideration. Yesterday the two commissioners, and John Wood, other member, fulfilled that promise by letting the contracts. They went further by approving continued work on other sections of the highway.

Pampa, Borger and Dumas chamber of commerce officials were generous in their praise of the interest taken by the highway commissioners in the project.

"In all, the Red Cross assisted victims of 128 disasters during the year, including 106 in continental United States," he said.

"Disasters struck 36 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia, and touched 384 counties. The American Red Cross also assisted victims in the Philippine Islands and in three foreign countries in answer to calls from Red Cross societies there for assistance."

Mr. Schneider said that while most disasters struck without warning, that the Red Cross had continued its effort to have organized preparedness committees sponsored by each of the Red Cross chapters throughout the country, all of them ready to answer calls for assistance without waste of time. He spoke especially of the committees organized in states subject to frequent tornadoes and hurricanes and said that chapters in those territories kept plans up to date for transportation from danger zones and care of refugees that could be put into action immediately.

"It would be impossible," Mr. Schneider said, "to tell by statistics what renewed hope and brightened outlooks on life were made possible by this Red Cross assistance. It is hard to visualize the plight of flood victims last spring had it not been for assistance in rebuilding and re-furnishing homes and re-establishing means of livelihood for victims."

dition to going to Russia, might drop in on Scandinavia; but everything was indefinite.

William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, said the Duke would get a "heartily welcome" if he changed his mind and came over later. Labor's criticism was against Bedaux and not the Duke, Green said.

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor decided tonight to drop his survey of world working conditions until the storm raised by American labor criticism on his trip to the United States subsided.

After a day of indecision during which Windsor considered an immediate trip to Soviet Russia to balance his tour of Nazi Germany and prove to the world he plays no politics, persons close to him said he and his Duchess would remain in Paris a week before leaving for a rest.

Friends said the Duke hoped to pave the way for his postponed study of American labor conditions with possible trips to Russia, Scandinavia and Europe's "neutral countries" after the "misconceptions" over his motives had been cleared.

Officials "Lukewarm"

Windsor felt, they said, the current controversy made present continuation of his labor studies impractical. The storm arose when the Baltimore Federation of Labor and Commerce, an American guide and friend, Charles E. Bedaux, as an "arch-enemy" of labor for his invention of the work system they call "the stretch-out."

A member of Windsor's suite said today the "lukewarm attitude" of Washington officials to his labor study contributed to the sudden decision to postpone the trip yesterday.

They said a reply from secretary of the Interior Ickes to the Duke's request for advice on his American itinerary had been regarded as "perfunctory."

In Washington Ickes said he had sent Bedaux, as an individual, a list of American housing and reclamation projects but had had no correspondence "perfunctory or otherwise" with Windsor.

When the former monarch announced last October 3 he was embarking on a study of working and housing conditions, a source close to the Duke said he received invitations to visit several countries which he may now accept.

World Tour Considered

Another possibility was a world tour aboard the German liner Bremen, the ship on which he had planned to go to the United States. The Bremen leaves New York next January 2 for a cruise including Rio De Janeiro, Buenos Aires and South Africa.

A member of the Duke's entourage said he inquired about the itinerary, indicating he may proceed to the United States in time to catch the Bremen in New York. Crowds massed along the Tuileries Gardens, had a brief glimpse of the Duke and cheered as he left his hotel by automobile for an undisclosed destination. The Duchess remained at the hotel throughout the day.

Windsor appeared nonchalant. He carried a derby jauntily in his hand. Friends made it plain, however, the Duke was deeply hurt by what he considers an unjustified "misunderstanding."

R. B. Fisher, public school superintendent, was named to take the message before every school child in the city and before members of Parent-Teacher associations.

Sid Patterson, manager of Radio Station KPND, offered station facilities each day during this week for announcements which will be directed to acquaint the public with the unemployment census program. Both newspapers also have promised cooperation in the plan.

At the meeting Saturday it was explained that the main purpose of the census is to obtain accurate statistics covering the following points: number of persons entirely unemployed, number partly employed, geographical location of unemployed, work qualifications of those unemployed, industries whose revival will contribute most to reemployment, number of dependents of the unemployed, and the income, if any, of the unemployed, as required by the act of Congress authorizing the census.

On Tuesday, Nov. 16, the Pampa post office will deliver to every home, post office box, and from the general delivery window a report card to each family to be filled out and to be returned to the local post office not later than midnight of Saturday, Nov. 20.

The unemployed and partly unemployed are the only persons to fill out the blanks. It was pointed out at yesterday's meeting that the census is no a registration for jobs, but merely a fact-finding program to determine the number of unemployed and partly unemployed in the nation.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 6 (AP)—Creation of a new organization, the Texas Recreation association, followed the close of the 13th Southwest district conference of the National Recreation association here today.

RUSSIA DEFIES FASCIST PACT

MOSCOW, Nov. 6 (AP)—The Communist International defied a triple alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan tonight on the eve of the 20th anniversary of the Bolshevik rise to power in Russia.

The Comintern, International Communist organization centering in Moscow, warned the three powers their workers, inspired by 20 years of socialism in Russia, would use the next war for a revolution against capitalism.

A defiant Comintern Manifesto was issued as an estimated 1,000,000 Russians made ready to parade through Red Square tomorrow before Joseph Stalin.

Spanish workers "inspired by the victories of toilers," in Russia, the Manifesto said, were already fighting for "a new type of Democratic republic" with the proletariat as "the driving force."

It added "the example of the great socialist revolution is reinforcing the national consciousness of the Chinese people" while "even in Germany, Italy and Japan, forces of the anti-Fascist struggle are growing incessantly."

(Italy joined the German-Japanese anti-Comintern pact today in a protocol signed by the three powers in Rome pledging to keep one another informed concerning Communist activities.)

The Soviet union's readiness for war was proclaimed anew by Marshal Klement Yershloff, war commissar, in anniversary orders to the red army.

"Hysterical fascists, without cause, often threaten Bolsheviks and Red Moscow and boast of their strength and courage. That is one of the manifestations of the raging but impotent fury of our class enemies," he said.

"We have replied and will reply again: we do not want war but we do not fear war, and are ready for war."

Official Has High Praise for Pampa

Pampa, the key city of the Top O' Texas, drew genuine and enthusiastic praise from C. C. Crutchfield of Austin, traveling representative of the Texas League of Municipalities, who saw the Gray county capital and the Top O' Texas area for the first time Thursday.

Mr. Crutchfield, accompanied by Pampa's city manager, C. L. Stine, who is president of the Texas City Managers association, made a tour of Pampa, and he was amazed at the cleanliness, modernity, commercial and industrial activity, and good management of Pampa.

Following his trip over Pampa, the league representative made a tour of the section northwest of Pampa, and accompanied by Mr. Stine, visited Borger, Dalhart, Hartley, and Dumas.

has a team that will rate with any in the state. Of course, we lost to Port Arthur, but those boys were heavier and older than ours. Considering their age, light weight, and inexperience, I think Pampa can compare with the best."

Football was almost unknown when Mr. Mobley was a schoolboy in Princeton, Indiana. He said that he had never played football, even of the sandlot variety as a boy, and there had been no games while he was in school.

Baseball was the king sport of Southern Indiana. Boys five and six-years old wearing fielder's gloves were a common sight in that section, he said. Mr. Mobley himself played baseball, and for one season was on a team in the Three-I league.

Lived In Denver

He came to Denver, but even there, near the influence of the University of Denver and the University of Colorado football games, he was not touched by the gridiron spirit.

Not until he went to work in San Angelo did he begin to notice football as a sport. However, it took a period of work at the Herling hotel garage, operated by Bob Crutchington, in Amarillo, to really start the football enthusiasm. He came to Amarillo in 1930, following a short time in San Angelo.

At the Amarillo garage, he heard so much fan talk, heard so many discussions of football, by his boss and other fans who came to the garage, that the football fever mounted.

Then in 1934, he moved to Pampa where footballitis in its strongest stage made its attack. He succumbed, and is today as keen on football as any Pampa fan; which means, to borrow from Ben Bernie, "the mosta of the besta."

Mr. Mobley is married and the father of three children, a daughter, aged 5, and two sons, one three years old, the other one. Mr. and Mrs. Mobley and family reside at 304 North Russell.

Asked if he was going to get a football for the older boy Christmas, Mr. Mobley said he expected he would.

umns. He also stated that the weight was too great for any stand to support.

To Rebuild Section

Cement used for the test was borrowed from local lumber companies. The city manager, before the test was made, told WPA officials in charge that the city would not be responsible in case the stand crashed and the cement was lost.

Last night Mr. Meredith said that the Works Progress Administration would stand the loss and would rebuild the portion of the stand to meet required tests.

George White Caldwell of San Antonio, state field engineer, Haywood Kay of Shamrock, area engineer, and Mr. Dobbins, project supervisor, were in charge of the test.

The grandstand was constructed last year by WPA and the City of Pampa. It has a seating capacity of about 4,500 persons. The city purchased more than $9,000 worth of lumber for the stands with WPA furnishing bolts, nails and cement for foundations, City Manager Stine said last night.

P-TA TO ASSIST IN OBSERVANCE OF AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

TUESDAY TO BE VISITATION DAY IN ALL SCHOOLS

A large American flag will be presented to the Parent-Teacher association unit which has the most parents visiting the class room during the American Education Week, November 7-13, the chief object of which is to direct the attention of parents, teachers, and all citizens toward the importance of education to our country.

In collaboration with this movement, school open house will be observed so that the parents may visit the schools, examine their children's work, meet the teacher, and ask pertinent questions.

Woodrow Wilson school is observing open house this week and the school invites and urges all patrons and the public to visit sometime during the week. Tuesday afternoon has been especially designated as visiting day in the ward schools.

Fred P. Florence, president of the Republic National Bank of Dallas, writing as guest editor for this month's Texas Parent-Teacher magazine says, "The many problems of properly preparing the child to meet and discharge the responsibilities of present-day living conditions have never received more thought and consideration than they are receiving today. . . . Parents should, first of all, seek to establish in the child a strong foundation for correct habits and proper attitudes. . . . Second, they should seek to direct the natural attitudes of the child. . . . To build effectively upon the foundation that has been laid in the home requires the closest possible cooperation between the parent and the teacher throughout the scholastic years. . . . A fusion by the parent and the teacher of their respective points of view is an essential basis for the finer cooperative relationship that should be established to achieve more effectively the great objectives of properly preparing the child for its present-day responsibilities."

One of the major activities of the Sam Houston school during this week is the significant program scheduled for Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium. All men are urged to attend this special men's night event of the Parent-Teachers association. Much interest is being shown in the special feature—the panel discussion to be conducted by Supt. R. B. Fisher, assisted by County Supt. W. B. Weathered, Supts. George Heath, White Deer; L. P. Mize, LeFors; C. A. Cryer, McLean; M. S. Stephens, Miami; M. D. Blankenship, Mo-bette.

Music will be furnished by the Blue and Gold chorus. Another feature during the week is the second annual dinner, honoring the members of the board of education and the superintendent of schools. This event is on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the cafeteria. Invitations have been mailed and those participating are urged to remain for the Parent-Teacher program scheduled later in the evening. The visiting superintendents who are assisting in the men's night program have been invited to this dinner.

The faculty members of Sam Houston school unanimously invite and urge parents to visit school sometime during this week. Teachers are especially anxious for you to come for a full period visit of the subject in which your child is doing his poorest work.

Junior High School Will Have Class Room Visitations

Junior high school Parent-Teacher association will have a regular meeting Monday evening at 7 o'clock for both mothers and fathers of the children in junior high.

The Lord's prayer, a song by the girl's glee club, and a talk, "The Parent's Part in Educational Guidance," by Superintendent R. B. Fisher will precede the visitations in the class rooms where a fifteen minute recitation of each class for one day will be heard. In this way it will be possible for the parents to learn what the teacher is endeavoring to accomplish in the training of the child.

A prize will be given to the room which has the largest attendance at this "parent" organization meeting.

Organ To Be Heard At Baptist Church Today

Members and friends of the First Baptist church will be privileged to hear Marvin C. Lucke at the console of the latest Hammond organ, at both the morning and evening worship, today.

The organ will be brought here by trailer and comes through the courtesy and as a compliment of the Jenkins Music company of Amarillo. This instrument known as Model B has the beautiful ensemble effect, which is rich in quality and another wonderful achievement towards making the Hammond organ the outstanding organ of the day. This particular model organ has to date not appeared in this territory and in order that churches may hear this instrument a special trailer has been constructed whereby it can be presented in recital or worship throughout this part of Texas. Deacon Chimes will also be heard as part of the organ equipment.

Mr. Luke, a minister's son, having played organs both large and small since the age of fifteen, and a member of the Organist Guild, will present several selections for the prelude and then as an offertory selection a group of old hymns featuring unusual tone and colors and expression, and will attempt to play these old hymns in all their splendor with tones such as the bassoon, harp, clarinet, flute, strings, diaphanous, and rhymes.

Many of the greatest professional organists now hail this new Hammond organ as the organ of the future. Fernando Germani, of international fame as organist, Charles Remore, Powell Weaver, and Porter Heaps, are now heard at the console of this marvelous new organ, and endorse it without reservation. Stokowski, famed conductor of the Symphony proclaims it as a "new great organ and achievement" and is now arranging a great new symphony to be presented under his direction using forty Hammond organs, this great concert to be given in New York this winter. Over 1500 churches now use this organ and even such great auditoriums as the Royal Place in London, Madison Square Gardens in New York, St. Madeline Cathedral in Salt Lake City, being among the recent installations.

Mr. Lucke's program both Sunday morning at 10:50 and evening at 7:30 will include favorite organ numbers and hymns loved by most lovers of music and he states "there is nothing to take the place of the grand old hymns played with beauty and expression in church."

First Grade at Baker School to Entertain Group

"What We do at School" will be presented by the first grade pupils of the B. M. Baker school at the regular Parent-Teacher association meeting which will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 in the school auditorium. An executive meeting at 1:45 o'clock will precede the regular meeting.

A prayer by Aaron Meek, principal of the school, will open the program. Mrs. L. H. Anderson, president of the P-T-A, will conduct the business session and the group singing is to be led by Miss Madge Sears.

"Family Share in the P-T-A Program" will be discussed by Mrs. J. M. Turner at this visitation day for both mothers and fathers of the children in junior high.

The Lord's prayer, a song by the girl's glee club, and a talk, "The Parent's Part in Educational Guidance," by Superintendent R. B. Fisher will precede the visitations in the class rooms where a fifteen minute recitation of each class for one day will be heard. After the seasonal feast of turkey, which was served at a table centered with fall flowers, was eaten, Charles Thut, master of ceremonies, started the grand march and conducted lively dancing entertainment by the group.

MIND your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. When wine is served with dinner, should the wine be poured from the right or left of the person sitting at table?

2. Should a wine glass be lifted from the table when it is being filled?

3. Is it good manners for a bridge player to snap cards against the table as he plays it?

4. Should a card player tap on the table with his cards while he considers his next play?

5. Is it thoughtful for a poor bridge player to accept a party invitation when he knows he will be forced to play with experts?

What would you do if—

You have lost steadily at bridge for a whole evening because of poor cards—

(a) Complain of your cards each time a hand is played?

(b) Explain your low score by describing the hands you held.

(c) Take your bad luck without explanations or complaint?

Glorifying Yourself

By ALICIA HART.

Gone are the days when it was an unpleasant and often unsuccessful job to find beauty and comfort in the same pair of shoes. Slender, trimly graceful pumps, were for dress-up and one didn't consider wearing them to the office or on a shopping tour. For these, and like occasions, flat-heeled, none too-attractive boots were the order of the day.

Now, however, the shoes a girl wears to the office are smart enough for tea or dinner after working hours. Only for active sports are the very sensible looking models stressed. Even these are beautiful in a rugged way.

For walking and general wear, a medium heel is best. Unless you have unusual arches, exaggerated spike heels will throw your weight forward, making back and legs tired and cramping toes. Save these for more formal hours. Before you buy an office shoe that you have a feeling won't be very comfortable, do look for the newer, smarter everyday types with highish variations of your old friend, the Cuban heel. These go with any type of day dress, silk or wool.

One who has chronic foot ailments ought to see a reputable foot doctor and follow his advice. For general foot comfort and for beauty, too, a weekly pedicure is advisable. Always cut toenails straight across, snip away the corners with sharp scissors, then smooth rough edge with the coarse side of an emery board. This, and the rest of the pedicure, should be done immediately after a leisurely warm tub bath when toenails are flexible and the cuticle around them is softened.

Push cuticle back with an orange stick which has been wrapped in cotton and dipped in cuticle remover or olive oil. Rinse in warm, soapy water and buff each nail lightly. Colored polish is optional. The majority of women put bright lacquer on toenails only during the summer months and use a buffer a little more vigorously fall, winter and spring.

Librarian Presents Classification of Books to School

Mrs. James Todd, city librarian, introduced American Education Week to the Horace Mann school by presenting a lesson on books for children and parents at the meeting of the study club Thursday afternoon in the school auditorium.

The librarian classified children through the ward schools in three groups: first, the pre-school; second, the first through the third grades; and third, the fourth through the sixth grades. Also she separated reading into four divisions, namely, reading for purpose and reading for pleasure.

"Children through the third grades are interested especially in animal stories. Books such as 'Who's Who in Mother Goose Land' and 'Fun on the Farm,' a reading, coloring, and cut out book, which may be bought at the local stores, are good. 'Snip, Snap, Snur' stories, Indian books, 'Children of Many Lands' and the like are requested from the library," Mrs. Todd said.

"The third through the sixth grades expect true stories and like travel books, jungle stories, 'Children of Other Lands,' books on industry, transportation, and especially great inventors," she pointed out.

"There should be more reading for pleasure. Adults might find 'Orchids on Your Budget' by Ellis or 'Northwest Passage' by Kenneth Roberts enjoyable. Adults reading for purpose might find 'The Mind Return to Religion' worth while, the speaker concluded.

Mrs. Todd summarized her talk with the statement that "looking in our own child's eyes we gaze on a dream for perfection. To achieve this perfection we must have harmony. To have harmony we must create a happy atmosphere."

Two Couples Wed During Past Week

In an impressive Episcopal ceremony at Ardmore, Oklahoma, Miss Kathryn White of Pampa became the bride of Alfred Einsberg Jr., a former Pampian, last Wednesday evening. The minister in charge of the Episcopal church read the ring ceremony before an altar of white and yellow chrysanthemums and tall white candelabra in the presence of a group of relatives and friends.

The bride, who entered on the arm of her father, wore a dusty pink gown with green accessories and a pink and blue corsage.

Mrs. Einsberg, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. White was graduated from Pampa high school this spring. She formerly was connected with the local radio station during the vacation months.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Einsberg of Amarillo. He was graduated from the Amarillo high school and later attended the School of Mines at El Paso. Mr. Einsberg was employed by the Pampa Finance company here for three years, is connected with the same company at Ardmore where the couple will live.

Nuptials Spoken By Miss Weldon, Erdmond Hutchins

Miss Hylce Weldon and Erdmond Hutchins were married Thursday evening in the home of the Rev. C. Gordon Bayless, pastor of the First Baptist church, who officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was attractively dressed in a grey suit with burgundy accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Arney attended the couple.

The bride, who came to Pampa two years ago from Winters, has been making her home with a sister, Mrs. James W. Hopkins, and Mr. Hopkins. Mrs. Hutchins is employed in a local store.

Mr. Hutchins, an employee of the Standind Oil company, came to Pampa from Abilene a year ago. The couple will make their home here.

ROOM AT TOP

Jobs may be short these days, in the professions as well as the trades, but there is still an unfulfilled need for men and women of outstanding ability and training. So says William R. White, New York state superintendent of banks, in an address before Bucknell College students.

This, of course, is simply another way of phrasing the old saying that "there's always room at the top"; and the old saying is just as true now as it always was. The really superior person can always make a place for himself.

But only a few of us, unfortunately, are really superior persons. It is the opening for the average person that we're interested in; and unless there is some assurance that an ordinarily intelligent and skillful youth can have an ordinarily good chance of finding a job for himself when he starts out, young collegians—and other youngsters as well—may eye the future with misgiving.

CLOSED TOGETHER

Sir Samuel Hoare, British home secretary, remarks in a public speech that the United States and Britain are "coming closer together" in international relations.

"The jaramount need of both of us is peace," said Sir Samuel. "The firmer we cling to our objective, the more closely will our common purpose bring us together."

This is all to the good, and the most ardent isolationist can hardly object to greater intimacy along those lines. The only trouble is that a common desire for peace can be used to cloak a drive for an entirely different sort of objective. Any program that is sincerely aimed at peace, Americans will support; but they are likely to shy away from it if it bears the faintest appearance of being a move to get another nation's chestnuts out of the fire.

Washington Letter

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—People who talk glibly about "broadening the tax base" could well be reminded that more than a year ago the tax base was broadened with one quick gesture to nick a billion dollars from the incomes of persons once described flippantly as "no particular importance."

It was accomplished through the social security tax. The income from that going into the old age and unemployment funds is estimated by treasury sources to be about a billion a year at its present level. If the law is not amended the one per cent levy now in effect climbs on up ultimately to three per cent.

At present the employer and the employee each pay a sum to the government equal to one per cent of the employee's salary. So in effect an item equal to two per cent of each employee's salary pours into the treasury month by month.

The top limit of the tax at present is $30 a year, or $60 a year when the employer's share is included. The reason for that is that even if you make over $3,000 a year, you can not accumulate benefits based on more than $3,000 pay.

Yet even so, this $30 a year tax is decidedly more than the average wage earner has been paying to the government through the income tax. Of course if your income is $1,200 a year the social security tax is not $30 but is $12. And if the income is 2,000 a year the tax is $20.

But we'll stick to the $3,000 a year man, for several reasons. This $3,000 a year man, however, never has paid any appreciable amount of income tax, particularly if he is married and his wife is not working. Being married, he gets an exemption of $2,500 a year outright. Then the government allows him a further deduction of 10 per cent of his net earned income, which would be $300. Added to the $2,500 exemption this leaves him subject to a tax on only $200, at the rate of four per cent. The tax is $8. If the man has a child he pay no tax at all, since a child brings $400 additional exemption.

Yet along comes social security, grants no exemptions, and takes $30. This is no argument against the social security tax, because its use for old age and unemployment protection has stood up under a heap of attack. But the taking of this $30 does figure in when the treasury or other tax-minded parties begin calculating just how much additional taxes can be extracted wisely from the "low income brackets."

Since certain administration officials are known to be thinking seriously of reducing some of the taxes in the higher brackets, both on individual and corporate incomes, the next place to look for tax revenue to replace that temporarily lost in the higher brackets is in this $2,000 to $50,000 group.

In pre-social security days, this "lower bracket" was looked upon as only partially developed as a tax mine. It had vast possibilities. But now the social security taxes have taken at least part of the good ore out of that vein. As a partial measure of the extent to which

Yesteryear In Pampa

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

A silver loving cup, the gift of local merchants and business houses, was presented to the troop of Boy Scouts at the Methodist church in appreciation of the work done during fire prevention week.

Three train loads, composed of 232 cars of oil and gasoline, were shipped from Pampa last week. The cars held 51,000 barrels, the largest shipment that had ever left Pampa.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Pampa Harvesters played one of the toughest and hardest hitting football teams of the season when they lost to the Capitol Hill Indians at Oklahoma City, 18 to 7.

social security taxes have broadened the tax base, consider that year after year the number of individuals submitting income tax returns stays at about 4,000,000. In 1928 it was 4,070,851. Of these, only 2,523,063 actually paid taxes.

On the other hand, it is estimated that as many as 26,000,000 individuals are paying social security taxes. And for all practical purposes the money is going into the same treasury pot as the regular income taxes.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—To the average New Yorker, who usually is somewhat born in Minneapolis or Fort Worth or Seattle, it is only when you go away for a time down this town of Broadway and Greenwich Village that you really realize that you are a New Yorker and become almost overwhelmingly homesick for its tall buildings, hurrying crowds and noisy streets. It needed only my recent stay of three years making pictures in Hollywood, barely a stone's throw from the house where I was born in Los Angeles, to convince me that the word "home" now means New York to me.

When you come here very young, and you grow up with New York like that, there is a strong attachment that grows between you and the city that nothing seems able to break.

Sean O'Casey, the Irish playwright, once told me that he liked New York because it was much like Ireland. Then, reconsidering, he admitted that New York hasn't the slightest resemblance to Ireland, except for its very Irish policemen, but he supposed that it was because New York had become as sentimental to him as his own home in Ireland.

I'll confess that I love the beauty and climate of my real home, California, but like almost all out-of-towners who come here the meaning of "home in the heart" comes to mean New York. From the days when I played experimental dramas in the tiny theaters of Greenwich Village to the nights I came up to Broadway to play in "Street Scene" there grew an affection in me for New York that gradually was making it really mean home.

Three years ago I left Broadway and went back to my native California, believing that there meant home to me. I stayed on and on in one picture role after the other, but always there was that definite homesickness to hear the rumble and the speed of New York. After I had finished my roles in "Black Legion" and "The Plough and the Stars," I hurried back to Broadway and was almost immediately catapulted back to Hollywood to play Nana in "The Life of Emile Zola," and after that was finished I had a quick call back to Chicago for a radio program with Rudy Vallee. Now I am again in New York to do a play.

As we sped uptown through the winding streets of Greenwich Village, I looked over to the tiny Provincetown Playhouse, where I first appeared in New York, settled back contentedly amid the noise and confusion and sighed, peacefully, "Home, again."

Today I am going to be the father of a substitute, commonly known as a "bench-warmer," on a Pampa football team. It doesn't make much difference which team—Pee-wee, Reeper, Guerilla, or Harvester. The situation could possibly be the same. Well, my boy has been going out for football for two years, and he hasn't got to play in all that time. But do you think that he complains, or grieves? Not that boy! He would pitch a hissy if he didn't get to go out every day. But my boy lives in hope that some day the coach will look his way and tell him to get into the game. You may think he has given up hope that he will ever get into the game but he hasn't. Still, he would keep on going out every day if he knew he would never get to play in a game. He acts as if it didn't make any difference, but that boy doesn't fool me—I know there's a hurt deep down in him. You can see it in his eyes too, but he brags on the other boys and says he's not good enough, and he probably isn't. When they play a game, I'm always conscious of my boy sitting on that bench. But don't get me wrong, I'm not complaining and my boy isn't. I reserve a big hand when they into a game or come out of it. I clapped louder than anybody Friday when the reserves played Clovis. So coach, sometime when you have run up a big lead or a safe score, look over my boy and tell him to warm up, and then send him in. Not long perhaps, but just for a minute.

How's Your Health?

By IAGO GALSTON, M.D.

There is much that we can do toward preventing colds and minimizing their severity and complications, even though we aren't yet able specifically to prevent colds.

At present it seems to be quite clear that the common cold is essentially due to a filterable virus—an extremely minute disease-producing agent, too small to be visible even under the most powerful microscope.

Cooperating with the filterable virus are a number of germs (visible under the microscope) which apparently are enabled to set up the inflammatory reactions associated with colds in the tissues previously weakened by the filterable virus.

A cold, therefore, may be thought of as a diseased condition produced by a mixed infection—that is, by a filterable virus and a variety of germs. Knowing this fact will help make clear why we use bacterial vaccines in the attempt to prevent colds. It should also clarify the promise that in the near future we may have a specific virus vaccine against the responsible cold virus.

Since the common cold is an infectious condition, the first item in its prevention is avoidance of contact with the responsible infectious agents. This, of course, is not easy to attain, for in our everyday activities we must come close to individuals who suffer from colds and thus handle a variety of objects that are likely to be contaminated with the cold infectious agents.

Even so, we can avoid gross contamination. For it is well established that the body can protect itself, even against highly virulent germs, provided the dose of infec-

Around Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—One of the best pictures of this year, was "Make Way for Tomorrow," a serious and artistic study of conflict between age and youth. It was, sadly, a box-office failure, though no fault of the man who made it.

Now Leo McCarey has made another equally artistic, but a comedy—and it should more than atone for losses theaters may have suffered on his serious effort. "The Awful Truth" looks sure to be one of the big cash winners of the year.

It has names (which "Make Way for Tomorrow" lacked) in Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, and it has writing, dialogue, and direction to serve as models. The story concerns a young couple who get a divorce, more through pique than anger, and their subsequent efforts to scotch the romances each turns to for consolation. In love with each other all the time, they battle subtly, broadly, fairly and unfairly through reel after delightful reel, evoking comedy situations right and left, and yet maintaining a human quality which has become rare in this era of modernized slapstick.

Miss Dunne's performance is her best, and Cary Grant, the favorite young actor, sets a new pace for himself. Ralph Bellamy as the wealthy Oklahoma, Irene's suitor, is the supporting stand-out, with Alexander D'Arcy, Cecil Cunningham, Joyce Compton, Molly Lamont and Esther Dale maintaining the generally superior standard of the whole production.

Previously speaking, this has been laugh week in Hollywood. Comedy has held the screen alone. Another sure hit is "Stand-In," the story of the banker who came to Hollywood to straighten out a movie studio.

Adapted liberally from the Clarence Buddington Kelland story, "Stand-In's" comedy springs generously from the famed foibles of Hollywood in juxtaposition to the serious, mathematical point of view of the New York banker.

Joan Blondell is the stand-in who helps with his education. With "The Perfect Specimen" fresh on her list, the girl is going to find herself up there among box-office favorites after this one. Howard forgets about Romeo and Hamlet for a perfect comedy characterization, and Humphrey Bogart is forever as the producer Quintan. Alan Mowbray's caricature of a foreign director is one of the highlights. Tay Garnett directed.

"Breakfast for Two" is funny, but not so funny as it might have been with other stars. Barbara Stanwyck and Herbert Marshall seemed miscast in this yarn about a rich western girl who tries to save an old shipping business for the never-dwell son who has let it go to the sea-dogs. She engineers this by buying the works, to share the sm into action—and coincidentally to save him (from Glenda Farrell) for herself. Eric Blore, Etienne Girardot and Donald Meek help out considerably. Al Santell directed.

tious material is not too great. The surgeon practicing careful asepsis knows what scrupulous care he must exercise in keeping himself, his instruments and the field of operation free of bacteria. The average person, however, is not likely to be fully impressed with the value of "attention to details," such: Covering his mouth and nose when he coughs and sneezes; not shaking hands with those who have colds, or with others when he himself has a cold; washing his hands before eating; keeping his hands away from his lips and his mouth; and not putting objects that don't belong there into his mouth.

Sharing the Comforts Of Life

By R. C. HOILES.

Since we have been celebrating this year the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, it is well to consider that, in reality, we had the original Constitution of the United States in control only 126 years.

In 1913, the Constitution, as originally written, was practically changed.

It was the sixteenth amendment to the Constitution that practically put an end to government under the Constitution. This amendment made it possible for the voting majority to disregard the Universal Rule in collecting taxes. It made it possible for the government to take, on an arbitrary basis, the fruits of production and give nothing in return. This principle was absolutely contrary to the original founders' ideas of the Universal Rule. The framers of the Constitution had this to say on the subject: "No capitation, or other tax, should be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration herebefore directed to be taken."

While it is true they did not collect taxes by tariff, which in a way violated this principle, until this amendment was passed they had no right to tax any individual arbitrarily for producing wealth and give nothing in return. A tax on tariffs was, in a measure, a tax in proportion to what the individual cost the state. So it was in a way following the Universal Rule. This was especially true because the tariffs were aimed to tax imports of luxuries at a higher rate than necessities.

Since we have revised this Constitution, we have had more unemployment, our population has failed to increase as rapidly as before and the physical volume of production per capita has not increased as it did before. The national wealth per capita is less than it was before this change in our Constitution went into effect.

If we really want to look for the causes of our degeneration, it might be well to study the data of our progress before and after this fundamental change in the Constitution. We, of course, should take into consideration that with the electric spark and the gas engine and modern science and invention, production in to use during the last 50 years, we should have expected the greatest growth and prosperity that any country ever could have dreamed of, had it not been for the violation of these fundamental principles necessary to create prosperity.

Book A Day

By BRUCE CATTON

They settled on a choice prairie claim one day and a speculative squatter jumped it the next. They turned up the tough range sod, cut it into long strips and built a rudimentary home. And it rained and the sod bogged down and the roof caved in and ruined everything. So they doggedly set about building anew.

Life was like that on the prairie lands of the middle-west in those incomparable decades from 1854 to 1890 and Everett Dick has caught the mighty sweep of it all in his lively chronicle, "The Sod-House Frontier" (Appleton-Century: $5). Here is a story that should go far to supplement one of the great dramatic chapters of our history.

For American histories for the most part have concerned themselves with the trends, the political maneuverings, the cause and effect of these pioneer eras; Professor Dick has gone a bit deeper and routed out the pioneers themselves.

His book is a remarkable recounting of these hardy years. Set against the background of territorial Kansas, Nebraska and the two Dakotas, "The Sod-House Frontier" is the saga of new towns and a new democracy, of how the settlers traveled and worked and amused themselves, how they banded together, laws, claim-jumpers, and horse thieves. (A horse thief was something more than an outlaw then.) Hostile Indians, droughts, blizzards, and grasshoppers, prairie fires, dust

On Capitol Hill

By HARRELL E. LEE

AUSTIN, Nov. 6 (P)—Rep Herman Jones of Decatur came into the Senate chamber after midnight the last night of the "taxless" special session. Several Senators indicated interest, suggesting they thought he might have word of a house maneuver towards breaking the deadlock on the tax bill.

"I'm just looking for my hat," he explained. "I realize that's all I'm going to be able to salvage from the session."

The session ended soon afterward without any action on the natural resources and corporation franchise tax increases he had advocated.

Legislators favoring mixed drink sales of hard liquors in counties so desiring may launch a double-barreled drive at the 1939 regular session.

Some persons believe if the next governor is sympathetic majorities in 1939, they may be able to persuade some opponents to the issue with them in submitting the issue to the people as a proposed constitutional amendment. A two-thirds vote of the membership of both houses would be required, however.

Some persons may say legalization of drink sales might hasten the return of prohibition. Regardless of whether they are legalized, many drays are of the opinion a statewide prohibition may be submitted by the legislature at the regular session of 1941.

Rep. Wilson Fox of Taylor remarked as legislators were scattering to their homes that the fruitless special session supplied as good an argument for a one-house lawmaking body as any he had advanced.

He has presented numerous arguments the last three years for submission to the people of a constitutional amendment providing for a unicameral legislature.

What happened at the recent session was that the House passed a tax bill in one form, the Senate approved it in a different form, the bill didn't get to conference committee until 12 hours before the session's end and conferees representing the two houses could not agree. If the legislature had only one chamber the bill would have gone to the governor as soon as it got through that body.

Scintillating Photoplays Booked This Week In Pampa

MANY PICTURES CHARACTERIZED BY GAY MUSIC

Full of sparkle are film programs this week in Pampa. There are pictures of the girl-gag-and-music type, some clever modern comedies, a mystery yarn, two especially fine classics, and four westerns.

Fashions, dances, song hits, beautiful girls, and a hilarious story are combined in Paramount's "Artists and Models," a film musical showing to day, tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday at the LaNora.

The cast is headed by Jack Benny, and includes Ida Lupino, Richard Arlen, Gail Patrick, Ben Blue, Judy Canova, Martha Raye, the Yacht Club boys, six great artists, and two famous orchestras.

Seemingly Backgrounds.
The United States Navy and the United States Marine Corps provide background for two pictures this week: "Hold 'Em Navy," with Lew Ayres and Mary Carlisle, showing today and tomorrow at the Rex, and "Singing Marine," featuring Dick Powell, showing Wednesday and Thursday at the State.

Bret Hart's classic story, "The Luck of Roaring Camp," a Monogram picture, with Owen Davis Jr., Joan Woodbury, and Charles Brokaw, is showing today, tomorrow, and Tuesday at the Crown. Bret Hart's writings perfectly captured the era in which he lived (1836-1902) and Monogram has produced a film that is just as colorful in its action as is the story from which it is adapted.

Selznick Makes Classic.
Another classic is "The Prisoner of Zenda," showing Friday and Saturday at the LaNora. It's an adaptation of the famous Anthony Hope novel, based on Edward Rose's dramatization, is directed by John Cromwell, and produced by David O. Selznick, who also produced

Stars of Paramount's Film Musical

Gorgeous, girl-filled, and glamorous, tuneful and tantalizing; these are only a few of the adjectives enthusiasts use in describing the Paramount picture, "Artists and Models," opening today for a four-day run at the LaNora. Heading the cast are Gail Patrick, Jack Benny, Ida Lupino, and Richard Arlen, pictured above.

"David Copperfield" and "A Star is Born."

The latter picture is being shown Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday at the Rex, and Janet Gaynor and Frederick March are starred in the photoplay.

Ronald Colman heads the cast of "The Prisoner of Zenda" with Madeleine Carroll, Mary Astor, David Niven, Raymond Massey, C. Aubrey Smith, and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Mystery Film.

Turning from the classics, we find a mystery yarn booked in "Sinner Take All," starring Bruce Cabot and Margaret Lindsay, showing Thursday at the Rex.

Hilarious Comedies.
Buffoonery is furnished in plenty by the two "clown princes," Wheeler and Woolsey in "On Again—Off Again," showing Friday at the State.

a perfect vehicle for the brilliant comedy talents of the two players. With Miss Stanwyck and Marshall, while possessing exceptional ability in dramatic roles, have attained their most noteworthy screen hits in comedy portrayal.

Based upon a "woman chases man" theme, "Breakfast for Two" has an impressive supporting cast, which includes Glenda Farrell, Eric Blore, Etienne Girardot, Frank M. Thomas, Donald Meek, and Pierre Watkin. Alfred Santell directed the production by Edward Kaufman. Thursday only.

ROMANTIC ADVENTURE.
Ronald Colman comes to the LaNora theater for two days on Friday and Saturday in David O. Selznick's production of "The Prisoner of Zenda," the famous Anthony Hope romance of love and intrigue in the royal courts of Europe.

Madeleine Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. head the imposing supporting cast, which includes Mary Astor, C. Aubrey Smith, Raymond Massey, David Niven and others.

Colman plays a dual role in this colorful tale, appearing both as the adventurous Rudolf Rassendyll and as King Rudolf V, the monarch he impersonates.

Miss Carroll appears opposite Colman as the lovely Princess Flavia, while young Fairbanks is cast as the dashing Rupert of Hentzau.

REX MYSTERY.
In "Sinner Take All," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has blended metropolitan mystery, with romance in the high spots and comedy in the newspaper world.

"Sinner Take All," showing Thursday only, presents the ace trio of Bruce Cabot, Margaret Lindsay and Joseph Calleja in topnotch dramatic roles. Cabot, as a former newspaper man turned lawyer, gives a fine performance; Miss Lindsay scores as the daughter of a millionaire publisher who is mysteriously murdered, and Calleja offers another of his excellent "menace" portrayals.

PROBLEM PLAY.
When Ben B. Lindsey as juvenile judge in Denver was trying to awaken the public to the terrible facts of juvenile delinquency he was a target for all kinds of attacks. Clergymen thundered at him; politicians threatened him; scandal mongers assailed him. "Liar, charlatan, notoriety seeker," they shouted. "It couldn't happen to MY boy or girl."

Yet Judge Lindsey was telling the truth—always. And he was helping, shielding, saving the youth of some of the very people who so bitterly attacked him. It could and it did happen to their children, and it can happen to almost any man's child unless the parents can be awakened to the danger that confronts the youth of today. "Damaged Lives" which is a very frank and straightforward presentation of the acts of juvenile delinquency and affords serious food for thought for all parents as well as containing a tremendous warning to all the younger people.

Tuesday and Wednesday.

TENSE DRAMA.
A good cast and a top-notch Zane Grey story combine in the making of "Thunder Trail," showing Friday and Saturday.

The picture features Gilbert Roland and numbers in its cast Charles Bickford, Martha Hunt, J. Carroll Nash, Mone Blue, Barlowe Borland and James Craig.

The story of "Thunder Trail" opens with the massacre of settlers in a Western wagon train, led by the father of two young boys. The boys are the only survivors of the train.

One escapes the outlaws and is found and adopted by Nash, a Mexican prospector. His brother is carried off by the outlaw leader, who brings him up as his own son.

Gilbert Roland and James Craig play the roles of the sons in the later life.

LEATHERNECK SINGER.

A leatherneck from the San Diego barracks, who has good looks and a splendid voice, and who is sent to New York by his company-mates to try out in an amateur hour contest, is the role Dick Powell plays in "The Singing Marine," Warner Brothers picture showing Wednesday and Thursday.

Doris Weston is the leading lady. Supporting cast includes Lee Dixon, Hugh Herbert, Jane Darwell, Allen Jenkins, Larry Adler, Doc Rockwell. Musical numbers by Busby Berkeley, music and lyrics by Harry Warren and Al Dubin.

W. AND W. FEUD.
The efforts of two business partners to force each other to break a silly contract, by the terms of which one must work as the other's valet for one year, form the basis for most of the hilarious action in "On Again—Off Again," RKO Radio comedy co-starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey.

Directed by Edward Cline, this Lee Marcus production has a fine cast of players appearing in support, including Marjorie Lord, Esther Muir, Russell Hicks, Paul Harvey, George Meeker and Patricia Wilder. Friday only.

WELLS-FARGO AGENT.

Buck Jones rides to new adventures in his Universal drama of the great West, "Left Handed Law."

It is a thrill-packed story that tells how Buck Jones, as undercover agent for Wells Fargo, is sent to round up a band of desperadoes known as the "Big Four."

Noel Francis has the leading feminine role.

Filmed entirely in the Sierra Nevada mountains, "Left Handed Law" brings to the screen magnificent, breath-taking photography. Saturday only.

CROWN

GOLD RUSH.

Against the picturesque background of the gold rush in California, Bret Hart's immortal "The Luck of Roaring Camp" opens today for a three-day run at the Crown.

Crammed full of adventure, romance and photographic beauty, this production has been reproduced faithfully by Monogram from the noted author's story.

There are very few periods in the history of the United States that contain such colorful material as the days of the raucous California gold rush.

Against this thrilling background, Monogram has made a picture that is not only inspiring from an educational viewpoint but from entertainment value also.

The cast, headed by three outstanding actors, Owen Davis Jr., Joan Woodbury and Charles Brokaw, is exceptional.

As Davy, young Davis brings a sincere and sympathetic character to the screen. This is by far his best role in motion pictures so far.

As Oakhurst, the flashy gambler, Brokaw turns in an excellent performance.

Miss Woodbury, heretofore a featured player, shows promise of becoming one of the film's most engaging personalities.

The story concerns a young boy named Luck, who is adopted by the miners of Roaring Camp hoping that the youngster will bring good fortune to the new impoverished city.

5 JUDGMENTS IN DIVORCES GRANTED HERE

Nine judgments, five of them on divorce cases, were filed Friday and Saturday in the 31st district court, as the September term was concluded. January 3 is the opening day of the next term.

Friday, the court's decision in the case of Associated Indemnity corporation vs. William L. Caldwell et al was that the motion of Mrs. Belle Hoskins, Mrs. Harmony L. Griswold, and Mrs. Geneva May Goldmann be sustained.

The judgment provided further that the judgment by default entered against them in favor of the corporation on September 27 be set aside, and that they be entitled to file an answer and plea in this cause at the next term of court.

Motion of the corporation to have judgment set aside as to all parties was denied. Judgment entered in favor of W. L. Caldwell on September 27 shall remain undisturbed, the court ruled.

The case of L. G. Hutson et al vs. City Drug Stores of Amarillo et al was continued to the next term without prejudice to the defendant's plea of abatement, filed Wednesday.

Judgment in favor of the plaintiff was made in the case of Mrs. Edith Delgan vs. John A. Wiseman. The case involved a suit on a note, and the court ruled that the plaintiff is to recover $3,141.35, with interest from April 6 at rate of 10 percent, and $600 with interest at 5 percent from date of judgment.

In the Sig Masur et al vs. J. H. Mann case, the verdict favored the plaintiff's recovery of $592.35.

Maritime Commission Hits Union With New Plan To Train Seamen

By RODNEY DUTCHER.
Pampa Daily News Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Exchange of fire between the Maritime Commission and the National Maritime Union, featuring Chairman Joe Kennedy's "put 'em in irons" cable to the Aigle's captain at Montevideo and union President Joe Curran's promise to "get Kennedy's scalp," is going to get hotter.

The two chief factors begging solution are a strong anti-union feeling among most members of the commission and its staff and a serious series of breaches of discipline, especially among stewards, in the American merchant marine.

Coast Guard to Train Men.
Labor leaders don't know it yet, but they'll be hearing blue murder when the commission's report on the whole merchant marine situation is sent to Congress this month. The commission has decided that the Coast Guard should be used to train seamen, that new seamen should learn discipline on Coast Guard vessels and that subsidy contracts should require ship operators to hire the graduates.

This hits the seamen's unions right between the eyes. It would strike at their union hiring halls, where men are provided for outgoing ships, and tend to weaken if not destroy the unions.

The scheme is sure to be denounced as a "union-busting" device and reports from inside the commission indicate that some members and high officials believe, with either enthusiasm or disapproval, that it is exactly that. The dominant feeling in the commission is that labor unions, at least militant unions, have no place in the merchant marine.

Cite Lax Discipline.
Although propaganda about bad discipline at sea has been coming out of the commission lately in advance of its report, everyone concerned—sympathetic to unions or not—agrees that a bad situation has existed and that something must be done to reduce the large volume of passenger complaints. If union leaders fail to enforce better discipline among crews, they need expect no great sympathy in official Washington. The Pilot, official N. M. U. organ, has had several editorials demanding better discipline and in at

In the first case, the General Electric Supply corporation has entered suit against E. L. King company, with suit on note as cause of action.
