Germans Flee Two Cities Deep In Old Poland

Enemy Forces Also Evacuating Narva In Estonia

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 3 — In a triumphant order of the day, Marshal Stalin announced today the joining of the First and Second Ukranian fronts, trapping 10 German divisions, after the German high command had acknowledged the loss of Lutsk (Luck) and Rovno in old Poland.

Stalin proclaimed the capture of Smela, rail center in the Dnieper bend, and said the two mighty Red armies of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin and Gen. Iven S. Konev had made gains of up to 45 miles in a 100-mile break-through on the German lines.

"As a result of these operations troops of the Second and First Ukranian armies joined in the area of Zvenigoradka and Shpola and thus closed a ring of encirclement around an enemy group operating north of this line, numbering nine infantry and one tank divisions," Stalin announced in his proclamation, broadcast from Moscow.

Polish Gains Not Mentioned

Stalin did not mention Lutsk, 70 miles inside the pre-war Polish frontier, or Rovno, 30 miles west of the old border. Evacuation of these places has been admitted earlier in a sweeping acknowledgement of losses by the German high command, broadcast in the daily German communique.

To the north, meanwhile, the Russians had reached the Narova river within Estonia.

In the course of the Ukraine offensive, Stalin announced, "our troops captured more than 300 populated places. These included the towns of Zvenigorodka, Shpola, Boguslav, Kanev and the large railway junctions of Dovrinskaya, Svetkova and Mornovka."

Evacuation of Smela had been admitted by the Germans last Saturday.

The Nazi withdrawal from Lutsk was surprising, since last previous reports from this sector of the eastern front had placed the fighting in the area of Rovno, 40 miles to the east, and there had been no indication that Lutsk was yet menaced.

The high command's communique, broadcast in English by DNB, said:

"Rovno and Luzk were evacuated in the course of embittered defensive fighting."

Amendment On Vote Accepted By Leaders

Ballot Would Be Used Largely By Overseas Forces

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—In a quick shift of strategy, Senate administration leaders agreed informally today to accept an amendment to pending service vote legislation which would confine use of a proposed federal war ballot largely to members of the armed forces overseas.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill) told a reporter he and others of like views would not oppose adoption of a revised amendment by Senator Danaher (R-Conn) which would make state absentee ballots available to most military personnel in this country.

The Danaher proposal would retain the federal ballot for service men and women overseas and also would make it available to members of the armed forces in this country whose states failed to provide adequate absentee voting facilities.

Additional Proviso

Lucas said the amendment would be accepted within an additional proviso that if a service man did not receive a state ballot which he had requested, he could so state in an affidavit and then could use the federal ballot.

Danaher said he planned to revise his amendment to add this provision.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), one of the leaders in the fight against the administration's federal ballot proposal, said he did not believe adoption of the Danaher amendment would change many votes on a substitute proposal which he and some southern Democrats are sponsoring.

The Senate's division on the latter proposal admittedly was so close that administration leaders talked of the possibility of attempting to get Senator Glass (D-a) to come to the chamber from a sick bed to vote. Glass has said he is for the administration bill.

Administration senators spurned as "meaningless" today a proposal by Republicans and southern Democrats to substitute state for federal ballots this November in states which get them ready for mailing to the armed forces in time.

"It would do no more for the soldiers than would the states' rights bill now pending in the House," declared Senator Lucas (D-Ill.), co-author of the Green-Lucas bill to send uniform federal absentee ballots to all men and women in uniform.

A coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats—among them many of the men who beat the

Thousands Of Japs In Islands Are Trapped

Troops Isolated By Marshalls Thrust May Be Taken At Will Or Left To Die

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The bold, massive stroke of Pacific forces into the heart of the Marshall islands apparently has isolated thousands of Japanese troops which now may be conquered at leisure or left to die of starvation.

These troops are pocketed on the chain of atolls which form the eastern limits of the Marshall group and in which the principal enemy bases are badly battered—Wotje, Jaluit and Maloelap. They are believed to be heavily garrisoned, despite losses to steady American naval and air bombardment, for it was logical that the Japanese should have expected an assault on that line.

This fact give special significance to the statement by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Pacific fleet commander, last night that the attack on Kwajalein "took the enemy completely by surprise."

Japs Off Balance

The Japanese were not only surprised but also thrown off balance. And since what is happening in the Marshalls can equally well be repeated in the Caroline islands — the next probable objective on the long road to the Philippines — it may be that their whole defense strategy in the vital central Pacific area has been disjointed.

The attack on the Marshalls is already coming to be regarded in military and naval circles here as one of the most brilliantly conceived and executed operations of the war. Judged by reports of "moderate losses" thus far, it is gaining enormously important objectives at a cost relatively much lower than that of the conquest of Tarawa, in the Gilbert islands, two months ago.

YANKS CLOSING IN ON BOMB-RAVAGED ATOLL

American fighting men, moving swiftly against the surprised Japanese defenders, closed in on bomb-ravaged Kwajalein atoll today in a successful flanking assault on the heart of the mandated Marshall islands.

Marines who captured Roi islet mopped up on enemy remnants on adjacent Namur as the mid-Pacific invasion campaign swept

Bond Sales Are Being Totaled

A definite idea as to where Lubbock county stands with regard to the Fourth War Loan drive should become possible as soon as reports to be made this afternoon can be tabulated, County Chairman Neil H. Wright said this morning.

H added, however, that a day or two may be required for the tabulation of the final reports, scheduled to be made this afternoon at drive headquarters in the chamber of commerce by the members of the big subscriptions division headed by C. E. Maedgen and the general solicitations group of which M. B. Hilburn is chairman.

Figures available Wednesday afternoon disclosed that, with the exception of Series E bonds, the drive is going over in a big way.

Total Sales $2,872,155

Total sales of all types of bonds, including Series E, were $2,872,155.74, according to reports at the close of business from the three Lubbock banks, First Federal Savings and Loan association and the postoffice. Thus, 80 per cent of the total quota of $3,597,000 was accounted for.

But reported sales of Series E bonds were only $527,518.75, or less than 45 per cent of the $1,195,000 quota.

These are the sales upon which

Allied Troops Said Pouring Into Cassino

Street Fighting Reported Going On In Stronghold

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 3. — Tanks have forced a break-through at Cassino and street fighting is going on in that German stronghold on the road to Rome, the Cairo radio said tonight.

"Allied infantry is pouring into the town," the broadcast added.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN ITALY, Feb. 3—Americans troops had battled to within 500 yards of Cassino from the north today and Allied headquarters announced that encirclement o fthe stronghold was imminent. The core of the Germans' Gustav line, is "seriously threatened," the communique said.

NEW BRITISH OFFENSIVE

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—A broadcast by the German-controlled Vichy radio said today reconnaissance showed the British Eighth army was shaping up a new offensive on the Adriatic end of the Italian battle line.

spite a hail of fire from German six-barreled Nebelwerver mortars and self-propelled guns manned by a "last ditch" garrison fighting from the ruins.

At the same time other Americans were making a direct frontal attack on the ancient city guarding the open Liri valley.

To the north, meanwhile, Allied troops enlarged their Anzio bridgehead in the face of desperate German counterattacks and engaged in hard fighting in several sectors. One of the German counterattacks thrown back was just west of Littoria.

Front Near Collapse

With their Cassino front near collapse the Germans were throwing attacks against the beachhead with increasing strength as new elements arrived in the enemy line in an effort to seal off the most serious threat to Rome.

On the comparatively quiet Eighth Army front along the Adriatic the Allies had the enemy jumpy and nervous. The Nazis were shooting off flares frequently at night, and there was much movement of enemy transport behind the lines.

(German nervousness frequently is a sign of an impending Allied offensive.)

Fighting grimly to halt Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army at Cassino, the Germans threw in counterattack after counterattack

Soviet Republics To Set Up Relationships

MOSCOW, Feb. 3 (AP)—The official Soviet press said today that the Soviet union's 16 republics will establish relationships with foreign countries and will have the power to conclude agreements with them as the result of reorganization of the foreign affairs commisariat.

Red Star, official organ of the Red Army, said the reorganization was a 'new victory for the policy of Lenin and Stalin" and declared the "national needs of the republics will be better satisfied by direct relationships with the separate countries."

This seemed to indicate that each of the 16 republics would send envoys to the nations with which Russia has diplomatic relations and that the way would be opened for each foreign country to send an envoy to each of the 16 republics.

Each republic will have its own commisariat of foreign affairs as well as its national army formations, Red Star made clear in its sweeping explanation of the law passed by the supreme Soviet.

Over 1,100 U. S. Planes Hit U-Boat Center

Opposition Light In Daylight Raid On Wilhelmshaven

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 3.—In a great American assault on Nazi targets in Germany and occupied Europe, 1,100 Fortresses and fighters struck the U-boat center of Wilhelmshaven today and twin-engined Marauders with an RAF escort bombed military installations in northern France.

Although the weather was clear and crisp when the heavy armada left British bases, the "forts" ploughed through heavy overcast at the climax of their 700-mile roundtrip and were forced to bomb through clouds.

The first crews back said they encountered few fighters and only moderate flak and that the weather became the biggest obstacle.

Heavy Smokescreen

Through breaks in the clouds the crews saw a heavy smokescreen over the target area, but it was not believed to have affected the accuracy of their bombing.

'There were quite a few Forts over today and they were circling around the target like traffic in a city square," an aerial photographer reported.

It was the sixth operation in seven days for the British-based American forces.

Wilhelmshaven was last hit by the Americans on Nov. 3 with 560 bombers, believed to have been a record force of four engined craft up to that time.

The target is one of German's major ports—capable of accommodating the largest ships.

The shattering daylight assault followed RAF mosquito attacks on targets in western Germany last night, thus keeping the greatest sustained Allied offensive of the war rolling around the clock.

The announced force of 1,100 bombers and fighters making up today's heavy striking force fell short of the record force of 1,500 American bombers and fighters which made the 1,800-ton shattering raid on Frankfurt last Saturday.

Wilhelmshaven received the first American bombs dropped on Germany during the war when the city's port installations were hit more than a year ago, on Jan. 27, 1943, by a small force of Flying Fortresses.

More Bombers Out

Hours after the American heavy bombers had left the smoke and flames of Wilhelmshaven behind them, other Allied bombers and long-range fighters kept streaming across the channel in what appeared to be one of the heaviest offensives in weeks.

One watcher said that one large group of the late returning channel raiders required three-quarters of an hour to pass the coastline.

Allied Supplies Aid Yugoslav Successes

LONDON, Feb. 3. (AP) — Yugoslav troops have smashed six German columns attempting to break through partisan defenses into liberated territory in Slovenia, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

Tito said these recent successes against the Germans had been aided materially by a substantial increase in supplies sent him by the Allies during the past month and by Allied sea and air assaults against German positions in Yugoslavia.

German attacks so far have been scattered, Tito's communique declared, but it added that grim fighting continued on the rugged and snow-covered Slovenian battlefront.

Allied air forces dealt another blow in support of Tito's partisans with a night raid on the city of Maribor in northern Slovenia, Allied headquarters in Algiers announced today.

Ex-Convict Held In Two Slayings At Brownfield

W. C. Brown, 28, Caught In Denver City After Intensive Hunt; Mrs. Cora Smith, Mrs. Quinley Dunlap Beaten To Death

(Special To The Journal)

BROWNFIELD, Feb. 3.—Dep. Sheriff Monroe Telford announced about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon that W. C. Brown, alias Dick Brown, 28-year-old former convict, had been returned in custody to Brownfield after his arrest at Denver City and that he was being held in connection with the hammer slayings in Brownfield early Wednesday night of Mrs. Cora Smith, 67, and her California step-daughter, Mrs. Quinley Dunlap, about 40.

Telford and District Attorney Rollin McCord of the 106th judicial district, who expected to file a murder complaint this afternoon, said Brown, who was sentenced two and a half years ago to spend five years in the penitentiary for armed robbery and who 10 years ago had spent a term in an asylum from Archer county, was armed with a .25 caliber "popgun" when found by Yoakum county Dep. Sheriff Ike Toler of Denver City this morning, but the weapon was not loaded.

The man offered no resistance, it was announced.

No murder weapon was found, but Telford said officials theorized from the "horribly mutilated heads that a rounded-head hammer was used."

Brown had returned from the penitentiary approximately five months ago and had been around Brownfield since.

Good Friends Of Victim

He and his parents, good friends of Mrs. Smith, their neighbor, had gone to Mrs. Smith's home late Wednesday to assist her in crating her flock of hens.

Mrs. Smith was planning to sell them and her household effects and her homestead and return to California with Mrs. Dunlap. Her husband had died two years ago and her only son just before Christmas.

Brown's parents were gone "not more than three or four minutes to get a truck, and this thing happened in that length of time and the murderer had gone without a trace when they returned," Telford said.

Concentrated Manhunt

Not since the trussed bodies of Dr. and Mrs. Roy E. Hunt were discovered in their Littlefield bedroom the morning of Oct. 26 has there been such a concentrated manhunt as that which, employing air and ground liaison force elements in radio-equipped cars and low-flying airplanes, combed the brush-thatched sandhills of southwestern Terry county Wednesday night and spread out this morning to Denver City, 41 miles to the southwest.

Hired New Driver

Deputy Toler had heard the shortwave reports on the Brownfield slayings. Knowing that a Denver City trucker had hired a new driver, he went around to investigate.

In a cafe he found the new driver, who turned out to be Brown. Brown had no registration certificate, and he had a gun. Toler arrested him.

Clapper Killed In Pacific Area

Well-Known Writer Dies In Marshalls

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Raymond Clapper, the well-known Washington columnist and political commentator, has lost his life in a plane accident while covering the invasion of the Marshalls in the Central Pacific.

CLAPPER

A brief Navy announcement here said:

"The commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet has reported that a plane in which Mr. Raymond Clapper was a passenger, engaged in covering the Marshalls invasion, collided with another plane while forming up. Mr. Clapper was in the plane with the squadron commander. Both planes crashed in the lagoon. There were no survivors.

The exact time and place of the accident were not given.

Scripps-Howard Writer

Clapper, long associated with the Scripps-Howard newspaper syndicate, left here on Dec. 28, going to Honolulu and Australia and subsequently joining the Pacific fleet.

He was 51 years old, a native of Linn county, Kansas, and attended the University of Kansas before going into newspaper work. His wife and two children live here.

Had Distinguished Career

He began his distinguished career as a reporter on the Kansas City Star in 1916, later joined the United Press in Chicago, and was associated with that organization on assignments in Milwaukee, St. Paul, New York and Washington, becoming chief political writer for United Press and manager of its Washington bureau.

Clapper subsequently became a special writer for the Washington Post and went to the Scripps-Howard newspapers in January,

Civil Appeals Court Reverses Decision

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 3 (AP) — Owners of places of amusement have a right under present Texas laws to exclude any person they wish, with or without reason, the fourth court of civil appeals ruled yesterday in reversing the decision of Judge Robert W. B. Terrell who acted for Judge John F. Onion in 73rd district court, granting an injunction to Jacob L. Rodriguez and others against the Terrell Wells swimming pool to prevent what they claimed was discrimination against Latin-Americans.

The court order granting the injunction was reversed and judgment rendered by te appellate court.

Basis of the case was a proclamation by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson and a House committee resolution of the legislature establishing the "good neighbor policy." The appellate court ruled that the resolution was not a law and that the legislature evidently did not intend for it to be one and that even in war time, the governor has not the authority by proclamation to change the laws.

SHIP PLANT DESTROYED

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 3. (AP)—Fire wiped out one of the nation's $2,000,000 key liberty ship engine manufacturing plants last night. Eleven firemen were injured slightly fighting flames that enveloped in 45 minutes four of the half-dozen buildings in the Iron Fireman Manufacturing company plant along Portland's downtown waterfront. Two of 400 workers suffered minor injuries.

Income Tax Form Flayed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (U.P.) — Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, (R., Mich.), calling for a complete rewriting of the federal tax structure in the interest of simplification, today described the present income tax form "utterly insufferable."

"When a willing taxpayer has to get an engineer and a crystal-gazer to tell him how much he owes, we've reached the point where simplification is necessary," he told the Senate.

"It's the crisis in a disease that means we're nearing the cure. It's like the story that it's always darkest before dawn."

To Study Simplification

Vandenberg spoke after Sen. Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), introduced a resolution calling for appointment of a special committee to study tax simplification.

Sen. Tom Connally, (D., Tex.), defended the Senate finance committee's efforts to keep taxes simple. He described it as "one of the most hard-ridden, flea-bitten" bodies in the Senate, and asserted that it just could not "simplify something that itself is not simple."

The debate started while the House ways and means committee prepared to take up the tax simplification problem with more optimistic members predicting a simplified bill and tax form for 1945. Nothing can be done to simplify this year's form.

Willkie's Call For More Taxes Draws Swift Retorts In GOP

BY FRANCIS M. LEMAY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Wendell L. Willkie's call for an additional multi-billion dollar wartime tax program drew swift reports from some Republicans on capitol hill today, one of whom described Willkie's revenue proposal as "even more unrealistic and unsound than the president's."

Willkie indicated in an address in New York last night he had in mind additional wartime taxes totalling around $16,000,000,000 annually.

Rep. Knutson of Minnesota, Republican leader of the tax-framing House ways and means committee, promptly challenged the program, describing it as "unrealistic and unsound," and adding:

Must Raise All Possible

"All agree we must raise every possible dollar by taxation in order to minimize borrowing against the future, but there is a limit to our ability to pay taxes even in wartime. Both branches of Congress rejected the President's $10,500,000,000 tax program because

Total Of OCS Graduates Is Reduced; Further Cut Likely

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (AP) — The Army's officer candidate schools, with a total of 240,000 graduates, have been reduced to a monthly graduation list of 2,500 to 3,000 with a further cut in prospect, Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson reported today. The schools, which gave enlisted men an opportunity to win officers' commissions, reached a peak of 23,000 graduates in December 1942.

Between June 1942 and November 1943, almost 15,000 of the graduates were enlisted men selected in the combat areas and sent home for training. In addition, three officer candidate schools were established overseas and have graduated about 2,500 men; three of these schools have been suspended, however, and the one in Australia is the only overseas OCS still operating.

Enlisted Men Commissioned

In addition to OCS graduates, theater commanders overseas have given commissions directly to about 10,000 enlisted men, warrant officers and flight officers and a number of civilians, and the Army in the United States has

Suspect Held In Murders

Lubbock, and District Attorney McCord returned the prisoner to Brownfield.

Brown had ridden into Denver City on an oil truck, officials said they learned.

Broadcast Picked Up

State radio-equipped cars operated by highway patrolmen were heard broadcasting about the time the arrest was announced by Joe Webb, Seagraves druggist, who had been asked by arresting officials en route to Brownfield to telephone Lubbock so that radio broadcasts of Lubbock police could "call off the hunt."

They were directing that a posse go to Tokio, approximately 15 miles northwest of Wellman, and turn eight miles south of there into the Brownfield ranch.

Officials who from over the South Plains spread out for the hunt had not been counted, since "some of them just heard the radio and took position wherever they could," were augmented by Brownfield firemen, who sounded the fire sirens, and by members of the Texas State guard.

W. H. Dallas, justice of peace, conducted an inquest.

About that time, it was discovered that an automobile belonging to the Rev. F. A. Walker, Presbyterian minister of Brownfield, was missing.

The car was found abandoned in the Wellman community section 18 miles southwest of Brownfield later in the night and, perhaps about 11 o'clock, J. W. Spencer, a farmer in that section, awakened when he heard his car being backed out of its garage. Spencer ran out with a gun and fired at the driver, who 'killed the engine" and leaped out and fled afoot.

County Attorney Virgil Crawford had told officials and newsmen that the suspect had taken "three or four automobiles, as well as I recall, at gunpoint after shooting Dean Harold of Terry county here about two and a half years ago."

Walked To Archer County

(The man drove one of the cars to Seagraves, abandoned it, then walked all the rest of the way to Archer county, where he was arrested, Crawford said.

(Lack of motive in the slaying of the two women Wednesday night was matched by frustrated efforts to learn what prompted the shooting of Harold, who recovered from wounds caused by three or four bullets, Crawford informed.)

A cunning streak dvised an abortive method of breaking jail after his armed robbery conviction, officials said. The man carved a pistol out of soap—— "and it was like the gun used in the Harold shooting, even to size and creases on the stock. All 'copying' had to be done from memory, because officials had the gun. His break was forestalled when another Terry county prisoner informed officials what was about to happen."

"Like Real Weapon"

The soap gun was colored "just like real weapons," from smoke from an oil stove in the jail, it was related.

The bodies of the women were found on premises of Mrs. Smith's property, near the hen coop, officials said.

They said the ex-convict had "lingered" there when his parents left.

From other sources, it was learned that the ex-convict's mother had made a plea that if her son were arrested that he not be "strung up."

There was quick reaction. Telephone calls caused county officers from all surrounding counties to drive quickly to Brownfield.

Lubbock Officers At Scene

From Lubbock, the state highway patrol captain, N. R. Smith, Sgt. John Hollyfield and Patrolman T. C. Laws were among early arrivals.

Texas rangers from the Lubbock district headquarters also were assisting.

The body of Mrs. Smith was taken to Bryan McDonald Funeral home in Lubbock, where it was said burial possibly would be at Post, where the son was buried.

Body of Mrs. Dunlap was at Brownfield Funeral home, where communication with relatives was awaited.

The firemen relented, however, when told the yowls of a tree-stranded kitty had been disturbing the sleep of war workers for several days. They trundled out a ladder truck and neighborhood quiet was restored.

COMMANDOS

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill.—Residents saw spots before their eyes on some stately elms and assorted trees, so they called in the state department of ariculture to find out.

Inspector Jack Williams inspected. He trailed the spots through the trees and onto fence posts and telephone poles.

His diagnosis: small boys playing commando.

Plane Workers Are Defended

DALLAS, Feb. 3 (AP)—Workers at the North American bomber plant here, whose zeal and patriotism were questioned by Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson in sentencing seven of the plant's former employes, were quickly defended by Factory Manager H. F. Schwedes.

Judge Davidson yesterday gave the defendants, who had pleaded guilty to conspiracy to defraud the government by falsification of time cards, sentences ranging up to six months in jail and asserted:

"If one-tenth of what we hear is to be believed, there is no more patriotism within the walls of that plant than among those who would make a Roman holiday.

Told To Slow Down

"One man, a fine machinist, whose word I would not question, told me that his foreman came to him at his machine and told him to slow down; that he didn't need to hurry. The government was paying for it all.

"If such a situation had not existed, MacArthur who has pleaded for airplanes, might have had planes long before this with which to bomb Tokyo."

U. S. District Attorney Clyde O. Eastus told the court that while some of the defendants, four of whom were women, were away from the plant on dates, one of the others would clock out their time cards at quitting time.

Government Paying

"The government," Eastus said, "was paying for the time they were away on parties."

Schwedes issued a written statement that North American Aviation had initiated the investigation which resulted in the sentences and that the guilty employes were "an infinitesimal part of the working force."

"The overwhelming majority of tens of thousands of sincere men and women" working in the concern's plants here, the statement said, "have been honest with their government, with North American aviation, and with themselves. They can look anyone in the eye and say they are proud of their part in the war effort."

Prominent Pittsburgh Doctor Fatally Shot

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 3 (AP)—Dr. Louis I. Schulman, 42, president of the Pittsburgh medical forum, was shot and killed last night as he left his office, and shortly afterward a woman walked into central police station and calmly remarked, according to acting Sgt. Leo Walsh:

"I just shot a man. Here is the gun."

Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan identified the woman as Miss Martha Ashear, a 38-year-old seamstress and a former patient of the physician.

Monaghan said she told him she fired two bullets from a .38 caliber revolver at the prominent doctor "because I blame him for my troubles."

Pneumonia Cases Are Reported Increasing

AUSTIN, Feb. 3. (UP) — With the number of new cases of pneumonia increasing, Dr. George W Cox, state health officer, today warned that failure of influenza victims to use handkerchiefs properly in coughing and sneezing is spreading the disease.

For the week which ended Jan. 29, the health department announced 842 pneumonia patients to 799 the preceding week. Influenza prevalence, however, decreased, with 5,990 new cases compared with 10,060 the previous week.

Bloodhounds On Trail Of Escaped Convicts

ANGLETON, Feb. 3 (UP) — A pack of bloodhounds, toiling through lowlands 12 miles east of here, was believed today to be on the trail of two desperadoes who escaped from the Retrieve prison farm yesterday morning.

Capt. W. D. Sloan, prison farm manager, said the posse which took up the hunt reported back that the dogs were "hot on the trail" of Ernest Herring, 29, and Robert McEachern, 23, both life-term murderers.

Sloan said it appeared that the posse was gaining on the two, who were accompanied in the break by Fred Green Rees, 29-year-old burglar.

The dogs had found only two trails, however, indicating that Rees possibly had gone a separate way shortly after the break.

Soldier Voting

administration's first war ballot proposal two months ago—came into the Senate with their substitute proposition yesterday. The plan united in one camp the opposition to the Green-Lucas proposal.

Would Retain Ballot

The substitute would retain the federal ballot but would authorize its use only where the states failed to provide for absentee voting by June. Senator Byrd (D-Va) announced the governors of 41 states said they either already had or would make adequate provision in time.

Under the compromise proposal, states could be assured use of their own ballots instead of federal ballots by having local registration, holding the weight of their ballots to 1.2 ounces or less, and having them ready for mailing 45 days before the election. No changes would be made in state poll tax laws.

Must Meet State Rules

The plan would provide that any federal ballots cast must meet state voting qualifications and would require the military voters to write in the name of their choice for president, vice president and members of Congress. Under the Green-Lucas federal ballot plan the armed forces could vote a straight ticket simply by designating the party.

The substitute, proffered by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), got a cool reception from both sides of the soldier vote controversy in the House which may vote today on a bill to leave the entire absentee voting job up to the states.

Rep. Worley (D-Tex) advocate of the administration's federal ballot plan, said the new proposal amounted to a threat to the states.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (AP) — January aircraft production ran ahead of schedule with a tremendous acceleration in urgently needed combat planes, although the total number of planes manufactured showed a slight drop from the December total, the aircraft production board reported today. The January total was 8,789 as compared with 8,892 in December.

LEAVES FOR MIAMI

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 3. (AP) — General Isaias Medina Angarita, president of Venezuela, left New Orleans by special plane today for Miami, Fla., after completing a super-schedule of activities here which included driving a torpedo, boat, a bit of golf, inspection of war production facilities and an almost endless chain of banquets and receptions.

Allies In Cassino

on the American flanks.

But the Americans and French to the north widened the breach in the Gustav line to three miles, capturing several heights near Terelle. The Americans crossed the Cassino-Terelle road and Terelle itself was almost surrounded after the capture of a series of heights on Mt. Castellone, a 2,300-foot peak where 100 prisoners were taken.

Cassino Faces Encirclement

Cassino faced encirclement if the Germans continued to fight to the last man as they gave every indication of doing. The Americans coming down from the mountains were in a position to cut highway No. 6 to Rome behind the defenders. The highway already was of little use to the Germans since it was under the command of Allied artillery on the slopes above.

But despite the threat from every side the Germans contested every inch of ground and burrowed in the ruins like the Russian defenders of Stalingrad.

They had to be cleaned out of caves and dugouts one by one in the vicinity of Mt. Manna, and out of the Monte Villa barracks to the north of the town.

From 50 to 100 bombs smashed into wireless installations at Durazzo on the Albanian coast when Liberators of Maj. Gen. Nathan F. Twining's 15th Air force set out to wreck that Nazi communication center in the Balkans.

Mitchells blocked the Appian way 11 miles south of Rome at Albano and Warhawks bombed Cisterna where American troops fought on the outskirts of that Appian way town.

Marino at the edge of the beachhead and the doors of Formia also was attacked by planes.

Shipping Is Attacked

In other operations in the Balkan theater Warhawks attacked shipping off the Yugoslav coast, Spitfires shot up trains and trucks moving along the Yugoslav coast, and night raiders hit Maribor, in Yugoslavia.

The British destroyers Tumult and Tenacious meanwhile supported the Eighth Army by shelling Porto Recanati and Pedaso just south of Ancona. Two enemy schooners were sunk near Silba island off the Yugoslav coast and an enemy patrol boat was sent to the bottom off the naval base of La Specia in other naval operations in both the Adriatic and the Ligurian seas.

In turn, the enemy sent between 20 and 30 bomb-carrying Focke-Wulf 190s to strike at Allied shipping through cloud formations, but two were destroyed.

An air force announcement said Allied planes had flown blood for transfusions to wounded men on the Anzio bridgehead and disclosed that artillery spotting planes were now operating with the Allied bridgehead troops.

Forty-One States To Have Service Ballot

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP) — Forty-one states either have or will make adequate provision for absentee balloting by service personnel, Senator Byrd (D-Va) told the Senate today.

He gave this report on the basis of a poll of governors. Three governors, Arkansas, Louisiana, Michigan, did not reply. Byrd said, however, he had placed Michigan among the 41 because Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) had informed him the state intends to act.

Byrd submitted the poll in support of his plea for state control of the soldiers' vote, charging that the Green-Lucas federal ballot measure would create "military mass voting."

The five states which Byrd did not list among those which have taken action or contemplating it in time are Alabama, New Mexico, Tennessee, Texas, and Wyoming.

Roi, Namur All But Levelled In Attack

BY ALVA DOPKING
Associated Press War Writer
(Representing The Combined American Press)

NAMUR ISLAND, Kwajalein Atoll in the Marshalls, Feb. 2—(Delayed)—United States Marines are mopping up on the last enemy resistance today on Roi and Namur islands, all but levelled by the heaviest naval bombardment in history that cleared the way for the invasion forces.

Massed graveyards of littered Japanese blown from pillboxes and heavily-reinforced concrete blockhouses told the story of the heavy, deliberate and accurate pounding from the sea.

There is plenty of evidence that the Japanese were completely surprised. They must have deluded themselves into believing that we didn't have the power or the heart to knife at the center of their Marshalls stronghold.

Japs Had Only Small Arms

Reeling Japanese who survived the inferno of shellfire had only small arms to fire at the Marines from battered blockhouses as the Leathernecks landed shortly before noon yesterday. Shore batteries had been blown sky high.

The Marines moved swiftly through the Nipponese but ran into spotty, sporadic resistance in the interior during the first day. The triple-runway Roi airstrip fell in four hours. Harrassed remnants of the Japanese troops escaped over a causeway to join their forces on adjacent Namur.

The Americans stormed nearly 200 yards across Namur on their first blow, then methodically began blasting out the enemy, pillbox by pillbox the rest of the way across the little island.

Defenses Knocked Out

I landed shortly after the assault waves yesterday noon on Namur. The Japanese defenses not only were knocked out but so were the minds of those who had miraculously managed to live through the bombing that sheared the tops off cocoanut trees.

The Japanese sniped from trees and ruins of pillboxes. The Marines picked off hundreds of them before nightfall the first day. After dark, the enemy began infiltrating, but they were systematically thwarted. The Marines took some prisoners, including crack naval guard forces.

The Japs' cockiness was gone. They looked frightened. One trembling prisoner told an American officer that he and others on the island knew that the Japanese no longer had a chance to win the war.

One Building Left

All buildings on Namur were razed except one badly battered concrete structure. Only the steel framework of hangars at Roi were left standing. Coral runways there were pocked with bomb craters as was Namur's cocoanut grove and beach area. Marines used the craters for foxholes until they had time to dig in.

I slept in a foxhole. Enemy bullets whined overhead throughout the darkness.

Our casualties appear light. I saw one pillbox where 18 Japanese including several oficers, had been exterminated by the naval bombardment. Their charred and broken bodies were buried in debris. Two prisoners were taken from the same pillbox.

The pier at Namur was left a mass of debris. A giant steel crane at its end was twisted like so much wire. Ammunition dumps were still exploding when I walked to the beach with two colonels. We dived toward a tank for protection. I fell alongside Alton Thomas, a big broad-shouldered Texan, and we were showered by rocks, concrete and wood as an ammunition dump near the middle of the island exploded.

"You know," Alton drawled, "I'd just as soon be reading about this in the morning paper."

Barracks Hard To Find

Barracks once dotted Namur and it was marked off by streets. But they're hard to find now. The maps given us to find our way around were outdated after the savage salvos from the Navy's big guns the day before the Marines landed on Roi and Namur.

We could see the mushroom of white smoke rising sometimes as high as a thousand feet as ammunition and fuel tanks were hit. Throughout the island, ammunition continued to go up, either set off by Marines or by the Japanese themselves.

Dead Japanese sent up a sickening odor and Marines began moving to foxholes farther from the bodies until they could find the time to bury them. Col. Hart sent his men today to wipe out the last Japanese resistance and before nightfall expects the enemy to be cleaned out except for scattered snipers.

The one bit of life on Namur which seemed unconcerned was a chicken. It walked around serenely calm in the murderous crossfire.

Willkie Urges Higher Taxes

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie urged today that taxes be boosted now "beyond any limit that we have hitherto imagined possible" in order to prevent a national debt which he said "would jeopardize the very things for which we fight."

"I know that in the opinion of Congress, as evidenced by the bill on which the Senate and House conference committee has agreed, the eight billion dollar treasury proposal is too high," he said in an address prepared for the first of a series of meetings arranged by the New York Times on home-front problems. "If we are to be realistic, it is far too low.

"If we are to be realistic, we should aim to raise in additional taxes more than double that proposal."

Must Minimize Taxes

When peace comes, Willkie said, taxes must be "minimized rather than maximized" in order to stimulate the flow of goods, the taking of risks and the creation of millions of jobs.

"We must solve the postwar tax problem," he said, "not by imposing the biggest possible rates on our income, but by creating the biggest possible income on which to impose relatively modest rates."

Willkie said that a realistic solution of the problem meant that "we must actually materially lower the American standard of living during the war."

He said he believed the nation would face the peace with a public debt of more than three hundred billion dollars which at 2 per cent interest meant an annual six billion dollar rservice charge.

"That is a staggering charge—only a little less than our whole federal budget as recently as 1934," he said. "And it is that contemplated debt and that charge which must determine our fiscal policy from this day forward, whether in peace or in war.

"For as we look toward the future today we face ironically this tremendous risk: That we shall lose in debt the victory we have gained in blood.

Eight States Defend Community Property Laws Before Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP) — The Supreme court has been urged by attorneys for eight states to uphold a decision by the Louisiana Supreme court declaring unconstitutional a section of the 1942 revenue act providing that, in computing the federal estate tax on property of a descedent, community property held by the surviving spouse shall be included.

The attorneys charged that Congress, in approving the 1942 legislation, had 'assumed as self-evident truth the inferiority of women and the subordinate place in the social order."

The brief was filed as a "friend of the court" in connection with oral arguments to be heard later this week on an appeal by the tax collector of Caddo parish, Louisiana, from the Louisiana Supreme court decision. The brief was filed on behalf of California, Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington and Oklahoma.

Equal Rights Cited

Explaining that community property laws "confer upon the spouses property rights of equal dignity," the brief added:

"Congress, fleeing from what it regards as a fiction—that the wife can possibly be regarded as part owner of property acquired through cooperative endeavor in which she shares burdens and sacrifices—embraces the most outmoded fiction of the common law, namely, that husband and wife are one, and that one the husband.

"It seems to us that in the best of all possible worlds, equal ownership of the spouses would be more likely to be regarded as consonant with natural justice than the concept, beloved of the common law and of Congress, that property acquired through the joint efforts of two persons must of necessity all belong to one."

Women Doing Their Share

"This case comes before this court at a time when women are doing their full share in the fields, in factories and homes, and in the auxiliary services, to keep the world a decent place for civilized men to live in."

"In such an atmosphere, a plea that Congress, invading state authority, can lawfully say that no attempt by a state to confer equal property rights on women is to be regarded as valid by the federal taxing power, seems particularly lacking in grace and timeliness."

Seafaring New Englanders were so strongly opposed to the War of 1812 that they talksd about seceding from the union.

Bidding Soars As Governor Offers To Wear Sarong

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 3 (AP)—Bidding stalled at a war bond auction as bids were being made on the services of Governor Dwight H. Green.

The governor had promised to mow a lawn for the highest purchaser of bonds and the initial bid was $100; a second bidder doubled the amount.

The state's chief executive put a rider to his services:

"I'll do it in Dorothy Lamour's sarong."

A bid of $460,000 won the services of the governor.

AMG Men Go Ashore With Assault Troops

BY LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

ABOARD JOINT EXPEDITIONARY FORCE FLAGSHIP Off Kwajalein Atoll In The Marshall Islands, Feb. 3 — United States Military government officers went ashore with assault troops in the Marshall islands invasion to establish administration over the natives in the first prewar Japanese territory to be seized from the enemy.

Military government officers, all Marines trained at Collegeville, Va., carried with them placards in English and Japanese.

Printed on placards were Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' proclamation establishing military government in the occupied territory and his orders governing the conduct of the civilian population.

Lt. Col. Albert C. Metze, Marine staff officer, explained the order contained safeguards for native property rights and provided for money exchange at the rate of one American dollar for 20 Japanese military yen. The peacetime exchange was about four yen to the dollar.

AMG men will govern civilian affairs until succeeded by naval officers assigned as military government officers with the permanent commander of the Marshalls area.

Houston Off Limits For Galveston Planes

HOUSTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Metropolitan Houston including an area extending five miles from the city limits has been declared out of bounds for all planes from the Galveston Army Air base, City Manager John N. Edy disclosed today.

Edy quoted a letter from Col. W. T. Tipton, base commandant, which said in part that "the exuberance of these youngsters sometimes gets beyond logical bounds and while we do not want to do anything to limit their aggressiveness, we do want to prevent annoyance to citizens."

Last week Edy appealed to Maj. Gen. Richard Donovan, commanding officer of the Eighth Service command, to prohibit all Army planes from flying over Houston. Two planes crashed within the city limits recently in a week.

Lt. Chamberlain Plans Singing Program For Personnel At LAAF

Lt. Richard H. Chamberlain, whose rich baritone voice has entertained many Lubbock audiences since April, 1943, will henceforth not only sing for the military personnel at LAAF but will bend his efforts toward getting them to sing for him—and for their own good. He has been appointed singing officer at the west base, an appointment that is in line with a recent decision by the Army that all personnel should be encouraged to "give out" as often as possible. Lt. Chamberlain will carry out his new duty in addition to his regular duties as assistant personnel officer.

He says that he expects the group singing to be long on quantity if not on quality and adds, "The Army doesn't care how well a man sings but it has found that nothing builds esprit de corps or has the beneficial psycological effects on a group of men that singing produces. It relieves battle strain and homesickness on the far flung battle fronts and it adds new vim and vigor to the training program back home."

Tentative plans call for more singing at the regular church services in the post chapel, singing between shows at the post theater and as the men get more enthusiastic about the program, competitive singing between the different organizations on the field. "Maybe we'll even be able to teach them the words of the 'Star Spangled Banner'," Lt. Chamberlain added.

Army's Rotation Of Troops Is Limited By Shipping Space

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP) — The Army's plan to bring soldiers home on furlough after lengthy service overseas is now in effect but the number returning is necessarily limited by available shipping facilities, War department officials said today.

The program's extension to the Pacific theater, where troops were sent almost immediately after the Dec. 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor, was reported yesterday by Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commander of the Army forces in the South Pacific.

He told a press conference that men from his command "are now being rotated on a scale commensurate with the means available." The War department said the plan would also cover the North African theater, where men with 18 months or more of combat duty will begin to be furloughed, and the Alaskan and Caribbean commands, where troops probably will get leave after two years' service.

Harmon said all of the men in the South Pacific would like to get home, but they know there's a war to be won and they "haven't let that feeling get them in the dumps."

So far, troops returned to this country have been limited to persons who have been incapacitated or to fliers who have finished their allotted number of missions. Others, however, have been rotated overseas to rest areas or areas with more favorable climates.

Advice Is Given On Mail To Prisoners

Mail addressed to American prisoners of war held in certain prison camps under German control will not be delivered to the addressee if it bears endorsements of slogans intended to promote our war effort, according to advice received here by Postmaster Amos H. Howard from the Post Office department in Washington, D. C.

Howard said that such mail will be condemned without the addressee prisoners being advised.

These endorsements include such as "V for Victory," "Win the War," and others of like character including postoffice cancellations reading "Buy U. S. Savings Bonds, Ask Your Postmaster," "Buy War Savings Stamps and Bonds," as well as postage stamps having patriotic themes as "Win the War" and "For Defense."

This is further confirmed through information sent the American Red Cross from representatives in Switzerland.

Immediate and effective attention of the entire postal personnel has been demanded, Howard said, in order that American nationals held by Germany will not be prevented, by this action, from receiving mail sent to them by their American correspondents.

Women Must Be Willing To Study Peace Ways, Agent Tells Club

"If the women of America are willing to study the problems to be solved before we can hope for lasting peace and a better world, they can do much better toward winning the peace," Miss Clara Pratt told members of the Becton Home Demonstration club Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Robert Collier.

"We must free ourselves from the belief that war can be ended by some panacea. Peace cannot be made or kept by generous emotion," she added.

Mrs. Oscar Peden talked on "The Responsibilities of Citizenship Groups" and Mrs. Collier outlined the policies of the Atlantic Charter.

The club's Feb. 16 meeting is to be with Mrs. Peden. Mrs. D. O. Johnson was received as a member; Mrs. Ed Snodgrass was a visitor.

Labor Calls For Streamlining Job On Labor Control Agencies

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE
Associated Press Staff Writers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 — Labor calls on the government now to revamp its system of dealing with labor problems by a streamlining job.

John P. Frey, president of the AFL's metal trades department, complains:

There is no central agency to which labor can go for a definite understanding on a national labor policy; about 25 federal agencies now regulate terms of employment and conditions of labor.

"Our labor relationship" he says, "is the very opposite of that existing in Great Britain where all labor questions must go through the clearing house of the minister of labor."

Five Bureaus, 24 Agencies

From the AFL and several government sources we have compiled here at least 24 government agencies, plus five bureaus, dealing with labor in one way or another. Those agencies and their functions follow:

Labor department—its conciliation service tries to settle labor disputes peacefully but intervenes only when requested by labor or management; its bureau of labor statistics investigates causes of labor disputes and compiles information on labor, wages, salaries and living costs; its children's bureau deals with child labor and care; its women's bureau is concerned with women workers; its wage and hour division sees that the provisions of the wage-hour act are observed.

National War Labor board — settles wage disputes, controls wages; uses the Labor department's conciliation service in preliminary steps; uses its own regional boards to iron out problems which can be appealed to the main board for approval or veto; tries to solve cases itself.

Solves Rail Workers' Disputes

National Mediation board—created by law long before the war to solve labor disputes involving railroad workers who are specifically exempt from jurisdiction of the War Labor board.

National Labor Relations board—independent of the other boards, its job is to work out collective bargaining arrangements.

Office of Economic stabilization—headed by Fred Vinson who was appointed to stabilize the nation's economy. He has veto power of the War Labor board in this way: He can refuse a wage increase granted by the board if he thinks it interferes with price controls too much to suit him.

Office of War mobilization — headed by James F. Byrnes who is also Vinson's boss and boss of civilian manpower and civilian economy. He may not appear in the picture with a direct order but can transmit them through Vinson or other agency heads.

WMC Controls Placements

War Manpower commission — responsible for effective use of manpower and has vast effect on workers through job placement controls.

Treasury department — like the WLB in the wage field, the treasury controls certain salaries.

Committee on Fair Employment practices — has the special job of preventing discrimination in employment of workers because of race or color.

War Production board — has a labor division which, among other things, sometimes seeks to settle labor disputes. Board-sponsored labor-management committees work to oil industrial relations.

Others Have Hand

War and Navy departments, Maritime commission and War Shipping administration — have a hand in wage controls since they award war job contracts in which wage rates are a factor.

U. S. Bureau of Mines — regulatory powers on mine working conditions.

Coal mines administration of the Interior department — Interior Secretary Ickes, also mines administrator, can call on War Manpower commission where and when needed.

U. S. Civil Service commission —controlling agency in hiring and firing government workers.

U. S. Employes Compensation commission — settles claims by federal workers for injuries.

Social Security board — social security and unemployment compensation.

Interstate Commerce commission and Office of Defense transportation — various controls over manpower in the nation's transportation systems and workers engaged in interstate commerce.

War Food administration — control over farm workers and their wages.

Selective service system — determines what workers get draft deferment because of their essentiality in a job.

State department — has a labor division but apparently intends to serve as a link between domestic and international labor conditions although its powers may later appear very broad.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Golden Gloves To Open Here Tonight

Bouts At Tech Gym Start At 8 P. M.

Battling will start tonight in the annual District Golden Gloves boxing tournament, sponsored by the Avalanche-Journal, and scheduled for three big nights at the Texas Tech gym on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The opening gong will sound at 8 o'clock with the weighin and final drawing for places to be conducted at 6 o'clock.

From the list of close to 60 boys will come the eight lads who will represent the Lubbock district in the state tournament in Fort Worth on Feb. 16 to 21. A full three nights of battling has been assured and a rather brisk advance sale of tickets has pointed to banner turnouts for this year.

Little is known of the fighters that have entered here this year for the meet, most of them are strangers on the cards, but those who have watched the workouts report that the boys have been in strict training for the big bouts and will be ready to shoot the works when the gong sounds.

Work was started Wednesday evening at the Tech gym to get it turned into a boxing arena and the ring erected for the program of 12 to 16 fights a night that will be on the program.

All fighters are urged to be on hand in time for the weighing in at 6 o'clock in order that pairings can be completed in time for the start of the fights.

Winners in each division will receive robes, trunks and boxing shoes, while runnerups will be awarded trunks and boxing shoes. Winners will also be entered in the Fort Worth tournament with all expenses paid.

Prices for the bouts will be 50 cents general admission for soldiers, or soldiers can bring their wives and dates at the same price, making a $1 charge per couple. Civilian general admission tickets are 75 cents with all ringside seats $1.10, including tax.

Bo Sexton, well known West Texas ring official, will again be the referee of the Lubbock tournament. Judges named for the three nights are Wes Youngblood, Bert Kahn and K. N. Clapp, all of Lubbock.

The fights will start at 8 o'clock on Thursday and Friday nights, but starting time for the finals Saturday night will be 8:30 p. m.

Westerners Sweep Double Cage Bill With Idalou Fives

The Lubbock Westerners overcame one of the top high school basketball teams in West Texas Wednesday night at the high school gym, staging a hard driving attack in the last half to down the Idalou Wiidcats, 48 to 27 with Bill Cope and Marion Manderson leading the way. It was the third time this season that Idalou had tasted the dregs of defeat while piling up a grand total of 17 cage victories.

The Westerner B team came behind in the closing minutes of the opener to nose out the Idalou B team 27 to 24 in a well played battle.

The scoring in the A game started slowly with the teams tied twice during the first half. The first deadlock was 6 to 6 and again at 8 to 8, but from there on the Westerners pulled into the lead and were never headed off.

The Westerners built up a 14 to 8 lead before the halftime.

In the last half Cope and Manderson began to fire points through the basket with regularity and adding to the lead. Cope set the pace in the scoring parade with seven field goals and two free pitches for 16 points. Manderson dropped in six from the playing floor and one from the foul line for 13 points as the two accounted for enough points between them for the victory.

Kelly was the high point man for Idalou with nine points.

The Idalou club played the Westerners closely in the first period, but were unable to cope with the two Westerner scoring stars in the wild last half battle.

Idalou led most of the way in the curtain raiser and held a 13 to 11 advantage at the half. The Westerner B team began to cut the lead late in the ball game and with two minutes left to play, the teams were tied 22-22 but the Westerners wormed into the lead for the first time and held the advantage until the final gun.

Becknell of Idalou was high point man for the night with seven points while Price of Lubbock was close on his heels with six.

Rice Downs Texas To Tighten Hold On First Place In SWC

(By The Associated Press)

The Rice Owls have strengthened their hold on the top position for the stretch drive in the Southwest conference basketball race.

Defeating Texas last night, 56-34, the Owls shoved the Longhorns back into third place, behind Arkansas. The Razorbacks were idle last night but move into Texas tomorrow for two games with the Baylor Bears.

Battling for fourth place, Texas Christian staged a second half comeback last night to down Southern Methodist, 47-37. SMU tackles Texas at Austin Saturday. Texas A. and M., which has no conference games this week, lost to Bergstrom Field, 48-35, at Austin last night.

In the early part of last night's game, Texas never got more than even with the Owls, who pulled away to a 26-16 margin at halftime. Bill Henry was high man as he scored 19 points for Rice.

The Mustangs led TCU at the intermission, 18-16, and the game was a see-saw affair until the fading minutes. Then the Frogs suddenly began breaking under the basket to sink four crip shots. The Frogs' long-shot artist, Zeke Chronister, got 19 points to lead the scoring.

Schedule Heavy For Lubbock Quintets

With Coach Curtis Barrett's Junior High school basketeers battling the Ropes Juniors at the Junior High gym this afternoon, the Lubbock schoolboy basketball teams will launch a busy schedule that will find four local teams in action Friday night in addition to the lone Thursday game.

Coach Barrett said Wednesday night that he would start Wayne Cobb and John Lanham at forwards, Bill Carter at center, Dick Schmidt and Joe Parham at guards against the Ropes five.

Friday night will find four Lubbock cage teams in action with the Westerner B team and the Cowhands entered the Wolfforth tournament while the Westerners and Coach Russell Wimberley's Cowboys invade New Deal for a twin bill.

Coach White indicated Wednesday night that the usual lineups would start for the Westerners and th Westerner B team.

Coach Wimberley named a starting five for the New Deal game as Bill Armstrong and D. F. Payne at forwards, Joe Adair at center, with Jack Alderson and Glen Denny manning the guard positions.

Coach Marlin Hayhurst was undecided about his starters for the Cowhands but indicated that he planned to start Verdell Turner and Bob Crawford at forwards, Gerald Davis at center, Bobby Ketron and Eddie Bledsoe at guards.

The Cowhands drew the tough assignment of meeting the Idalou Wildcats in their first game. The Westerner B team drew Cooper High for the opening assignment.

Lamesa Wins, Goes Into Tie For Title

LAMESA, Feb. 3. — The Lamesa Golden Tornados roared into a tie for the north half title in the District 3-AA basketball race with the Midland club, by defeating the Big Spring Steers here last night, 24-14.

The game was an even battle through three quarters of the game, but the Windstorms staged a wild finish to stack up the comfortable lead by holding the Steers scorless through the last period while getting 10 points on their own.

Hawkins was the star of the fourth quarter rally, scoring seven of the Lamesa points in this quarter, and was far out in front in scoring honors for the night with 11 points. Roberts of Lamesa and Baker of Big Spring were tied for second honors with six.

Lamesa built up an 8 to 4 lead in the first period, but the Steers put on the steam in the second quarter to reach a 10-10 tie at the halftime intermission. Both sides scored four points in the third quarter to enter the wild fourth frame with the score knotted, 14 to 14.

The Big Spring B team won a 14-13 thriller in the curtain raiser.

Joe Tinker Fighting For His Life Today

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 3. (U.P.)—Joe Tinker fought for his life today and relieved the great moments of his career when he was playmaker for one of baseball's most famous infields, the Chicago Cubs of 1902 to 1912.

Suffering from a complication of heart and kidney ailments, the 65-year-old player failed to recognize his wife but talked at length of his career on the diamond.

"He doesn't know me," she said with tears in her eyes. "He's playing baseball."

Tinker, who worked with Johnny Evers and Frank Chance to establish one of the most remarkable double play combinations in baseball history, suffered an attack of influenza which has left him semi-conscious since Jan. 26.

SPAAF Cagers Win Ninth Straight, Nosing Out LAAF 71-69 In Overtime Engagement

The South Plains Army Air field Winged Commandos won their ninth straight cage victory last night at the Lubbock Army Air Field gym, and the third in a row over LAAF, but not without a real battle.

The Winged Commandos nosed out a 71 to 69 victory as Leason "Pete" McCloud, former All-American from Colorado, continued to hang up scoring records. McCloud dropped in the winning field goal in the wild scoring overtime period with only six seconds remaining in the ball game.

SPAAF had to come from behind in the overtime period to win the game as Norman Volz hit the basket twice to put LAAF into the overtime lead, but McCloud, Conley and Stock came back to the score at 67-67.

Fast Scoring

Martin dropped in a two pointer for LAAF to regain the lead, then McCloud lofted a one-hander from the corner to tie it again, then McCloud fired again from near the foul line for the winner as the fading seconds ticked away.

Lubbock Army Air Field made a determined bid in their third chance against their crosstown foes, and with Reese hitting the hoop for 20 points and Prior chalking up 14 more, they made the SPAAF victory a hard fought one.

McCloud was given some great help from Kline and Conley in keeping pace with the LAAF cagers. Kline rang up 18 points and Conley 10 as the three "Big Berthas" of the Winged Commandos accounted for 59 points between them.

Many Ties

The score was tied five times in the second half as the two teams staged a wild battle down to the finish line that kept the fans in a wild uproar all the way. The teams were never more than six points apart at any time during the ball game.

LAAF started fast and grabbed an early lead, but SPAAF came back in the midway point of the first half and regained the lead with Wakeland hitting the hoop to pile up the 21-to-17 advantage at the halftime.

Have you heard about the guy who classifies himself as 4-F?

He's 4-F, plus footloose and fancy-free!

OUR good friend Bill Hooten; the able editor of the El Paso Times, was quite perturbed last time we saw him a couple of weeks ago. He had washed up and shaved in a Pullman that morning and had noticed that of nine men in sight, seven wore wedding rings.

A married man of over 20 years experience himself — therefore definitely "old school" — Bill feared that the current prevalence of ring-wearing husbands indicates that the modern male is getting soft.

"I don't know where I got the idea," Bill remarked. "Maybe, like Topsy, it just 'growed.' But in my own mind I've always thought that a married man who wore a wedding ring was at least a little henpecked."

Since Mr. Hooten writes a column in his paper similar to this one, we suggested he use that vehicle to discover the reason for the trend toward wedding rings for men and find out, from reader response based upon gentle suggestion, how the men are being brought to the practice.

Mr. Hooten did so, and his letters-from-readers column has been full of replies — some of them irate — ever since.

The war — and its resultant separating of husbands and wives — has caused most of the swing to wedding rings for husbands.

Wives insist, in most instances, that the rings mark the males as "taken;" also feel that presence of the ring on a husband's finger reminds him not only of his responsibilities as a husband, but also of his spouse who is waiting for his return.

Civilian wives, according to Mr. Hooten's research, have thought the idea a good one, too, hence have pressed many a non-uniformed husband into the practice.

Whatever the reason or reasons involved, more American males than ever before are wearing wedding bands today.

Just keep your eyes open and the percentage will surprise you.

LIKE every other state in the Union, Texas has more laws than it can enforce. Never-theless, it needs at least one more—a law which insists that the state pardon and parole board and heads of institutions of incarceration notify certain law enforcement officers whenever a criminal is turned out of his cell.

West Texas recently has seen two cases which bring out the necessity for such a law. Other examples doubtless crop up in various parts of the state every day.

One of these recent West Texas cases in point has to do with Jim Thomas, being held in Lubbock county jail on suspicion of being implicated in the murders of Dr. and Mrs. Roy Hunt in Littlefield last October 26.

Whether Thomas had a connection with the Hunt killings, or not, is not definitely known as yet. Perhaps he did not. At least, his connection — if any — has not yet been proved.

But the fact remains that Thomas was turned out of the state penitentiary, ostensibly for treatment by state doctors in Galveston for an injury to his leg, without a single law enforcement officer in Lubbock county being so advised. And Thomas has a criminal record — spotted with violence — as long as your arm and extending over years. His last release came after he served only a few months of a five year sentence, growing out of his efforts to kill Baxter Honey, veteran law-enforcement officer, right here in Lubbock county.

Yet Thomas was turned loose without the judge who presided over his trial being advised; without the prosecuting attorney, the sheriff, or anyone else's being told about it.

A YEAR or so ago a woman by the name of Guillermina Geck, employed as a nursemaid by Mrs. Katherine Louise Fox, of El Paso, murdered, in cold blood, the infant child of her employer. Testimony at the Geck woman's trial proved she was criminally insane, so she was committed to the state asylum at Big Spring.

A couple of weeks ago, Guillermina Geck strolled away from the Big Spring asylum and made a bee-line for El Paso. The superintendent of the Big Spring institution had the Big Spring police advise El Paso police by radio of the woman's escape, but the message never got through because of bad weather conditions. The Big Spring asylum superintendent, didn't think about telegraphing El Paso as a double-check. Neither did the Big Spring police.

Fortunately, Guillermina Geck was captured a few days later because she started a fight in an El Paso department store over a fancied wrong in connection with a purchase. A dangerous maniac with a record of molesting defenseless children, it's a wonder she didn't murder a couple more infants while she was roaming El Paso without the knowledge of officers, there who naturally had no reason to think she wasn't still in the asylum.

Since most escaped and paroled convicts eventually show up in cities and areas with which they are most familiar, it is only common sense to say home authorities of them all should immediately be notified when one gets loose, either legally, or illegally.

If authorities haven't sense enough to do so of their own accord — and to be sure their notifications are received — they should be forced to do so by law, and be dismissed if they violate the statute.

SINCE Lubbock is not far from Big Spring, it is interesting here to note that, in connection with the Geck woman's escape, the superintendent of the state hospital noted that the institution was not built to care for criminally insane.

"We do not have the facilities to cope with such people," said Dr. C. A. Shaw. "Our hospital was not built for maniacs."

If that is the case, and we have no reason to doubt the doctor's word, why are maniacs being lodged there? Why aren't they lodged in some institution which can hold them? And if the State of Texas has no such institution, why hasn't it? Certainly the state has its full share of maniacs and should have facilities to keep them cut off from the public.

Lodging a baby-murderer, with a long record of violence behind her, in a place not equipped to hold them certainly is d-u-m-b, DUMB.

And there's no defense for that sort of dumbness.

Blood Runs Cold

(Copyright, 1944, By The Associated Press).

YESTERDAY: Mrs. Evans tells the Sergeant about the man entering Christine's apartment the night of the murder. Christine tries to explain that the door wouldn't lock. She tries the key again and it works.

Chapter Seven
'Come Clean'

To my surprise the Sergeant didn't say anything more to me, instead he turned to Mrs. Evans and asked loudly, "Who was the man who left here mysteriously?"

"Kincaid," she said irritably, furious probably because the Sergeant let the matter of the key pass without handcuffing me immediately.

Then he asked Sarah how long Kincaid had lived in the house.

"Well, he come in about the first of October."

"And when did he leave?"

"Lemme see, about ten days ago, I'd say."

"Where did he go?"

Sarah looked at the Sergeant sullenly. The rapid fire questioning confused her. "Nobody seems to know. He moved all of a sudden like."

Mrs. Evans spoke up in an offended voice. "I did see some mail on the hall table downstairs for him," she said. "It disappeared, so somebody must have his address to send it to him."

"Who'd have done that?"

Mrs. Evans and Sarah stared at each other and shook their heads. With a sour look the Sergeant made a notation in his book and then asked Mrs. Evans to tell her story.

She settled herself more comfortably, gave me a scrutinizing look then said, "I went out last night about 7:30 or quarter to eight."

"See anyone then?"

"Joan Kent and that MacDonald boy were leaving the house just as I was."

"And you got back about midnight," the Sergeant prompted her.

She nodded. "I saw Mr. Kincaid go into Miss Howarth's room and there was a lot of noise after that. James, my dog, was restless and I knew something was wrong."

I caught a gleam in the Sergeant's eye as he turned to give the dog, now sound asleep on the couch, a long look. "Is James a good barometer?" he asked dryly.

"What say?"

The Sergeant skipped it. "Anything else?"

"Well, people seemed to be going up and down stairs all night long."

"Is that usual?"

She nodded reluctantly. "That Kent girl had company at all hours and she was forever hanging around the MacDonald boy, always running into his apartment."

"Are you out of the house all day?" the Sergeant asked.

And with that question a peculiar change came over the woman.

"Yes, I go to business." Her voice was guarded.

"What do you do?"

A spot of color crept into each cheek. "It's none of your business and it has nothing to do with this," she snapped. "And you can't make me talk any more. "I'm sick and tired of this. The murderer is right here under your nose. I told you who did it."

She rose and stalked out of the room with the dog yelping at her heels and the Sergeant made no move to stop her. He told Sarah she could go on with her work, and after she left he turned to me.

"Come clean now. Tell me what you know about this and tell quickly."

There was no denying it. The Sergeant had it firmly fixed in his head that I'd done something or other.

"I know very little to tell you, Sergeant," I said, trying to sound composed. "These people here are all strangers to me."

"Maybe you don't know anything, but that's for me to decide." He got up and walked to the window. "You'd better start with last evening."

'Very Queer'

So I started and we got along fairly well until I mentioned having seen Joan Kent at the Knife and Fork with a man. That seemed to interest the Sergeant.

"What did he look like?"

"I can't tell you very well because he had on an overcoat and muffler and he didn't take them off." I tried to think back. "His hair was light."

"He didn't take off his overcoat," the Sergeant said, looking at me as though I were half-witted.

"Not while I was there," I said impatiently, "but I left in a couple of minutes."

"Do you think the girl recognized you from seeing you in the hall?"

I shook my head.

"For some reason he didn't want to be identified," the Sergeant said with a frown. "Unless you don't want to be able to identify him."

"I told you I never saw him before. It was bitter cold last night. He probably kept his coat on until he got warm."

For that, I got a sharp look. He apparently didn't want my opinion, so I went on with the story, trying to make a workmanlike job of it. When I got to the man who came into my apartment he interrupted me.

"A friend of yours?" he asked, his eyes on the door.

"My friends," I said coldly, "aren't in the habit of running into my apartment in the middle of the night."

He considered. "You can't be certain, though, can you, since you didn't see his face? It might have been someone you know."

"Sergeant," I said, "it must have been someone who lives here. At any rate, the front door is kept locked and no one can get in without a key. I've just come back from Paris and no one in town knows where I'm living."

FRANCO LEARNING "THE HARD WAY"

Popular approval doubtless will be close to unanimous for the stiffened attitude that the American and British governments have adopted toward Spain.

There has been no pretense to deny that the Allies have tolerated a great deal at the hands of Francisco Franco, the Spanish dictator. The Allied governments have not been deceived by him. They have known that he has done everything he could in his support of the Axis—including the sending of Spanish troops to fight in Russia. They have known that a great deal of the material he has bought, ostensibly for Spain, actually has gone straight to Germany.

But it is understandable that the Allies have not wanted to force Franco into the war on the side of the Axis. There have been times when he could have done a great deal of harm as an active enemy. So they have let him act as a sort of buying agent for the Axis. That was less costly in terms of lives than to fight him.

Now his capacity for harm is at an end. He realizes that to enter the war with the Axis would be suicide. Therefore, the Allies now are putting a stop even to the little help that the Spanish runt has been giving to his fellow dictators. He is learning the hard way—and it will become infinitely harder—that the world isn't big enough for dictators.

Hold Everything

"I see Sgt. Running Mouth is home on furlough!"

The Sergeant shook his head. "It's queer, very queer, that you happened to move here just at this time. And you say you don't know these people. Well, we'll see."

I leaned back in the chair and lighted a cigarette to keep from screaming with annoyance. "Now please listen to me, Sergeant Long," I said. "I'd never have moved here if I'd known all this was going to happen. It will just hold up my work until I can pack up and move out."

The Sergeant rose abruptly. "You can't move out until I say so," he thundered. "Everyone stays put until we find out who did this, and if you make a move to go you'll be sorry. You're connected with this in some way or other and it's not going to take me long to find out how."

He opened the hall door and called for Norton, and it was the man who spoke to me on the stairway who came out of Miss Kent's apartment to answer the Sergeant!

"Almost finished in there?" the Sergeant asked.

"What did he say?"

The detective or whatever he was, lounged in the doorway, and winked at me. He had bright red hair and an impudent nose. "The doc says it's hard to tell the time she died," he said casually. "The window was open and it was cold but he puts it close to midnight. She was strangled. Suicide's out. And she was choked to death with those beads around her neck. Some kind of an instrument was used to twist them like a tourniquet. I looked the beads over pretty carefully. They are strung on fine chain, but it was very strong because it didn't break."

In A Bad Spot

"Find the instrument?" the Sergeant asked briefly.

"Nope."

"Anything else?"

"There isn't a thing in the apartment that'll help us, except that note."

"O. K. See you later."

The Sergeant turned back to me and the red-headed Mr. Norton waved cheerily from the doorway as he left.

"When you went into the girl's room this morning did you see a

Traveling the Trail of Travail

Happy-Go-Lucky Pilots Get Their Share Of Fun Out Of Life

Every Combat Unit Has Three Types Of Fliers

BY ERNIE PYLE
Journal War Correspondent

IN ITALY, Feb. 3 (By Wireless) —One night I was gossiping in a tent with a bunch of dive bomber pilots, and one of them who was sitting next to me said in a sudden offhand way:

"I wonder what those Germans in that truck are doing tonight?"

He was referring to a truck he had strafed and blown up the afternoon before. Such things sometimes sort of get under their skins. The pilots like to go on a hunt, and it's thrilling to sweep down and shoot hell out of something, the same as it is to shoot a running deer, but underneath they don't relish the idea of killing people who aren't trying to kill them.

ERNIE PYLE

The pilot said to himself, "Some of them aren't doing anything tonight," and then the subject was changed.

Uses Missing Men's Beds

Every time I go to an airdrome it seems as if I always sleep on the cot of the last pilot shot down. It's quite natural, since there are usually just enough cots set up to go around, and you sleep on whichever one is empty. I don't mind it because I'm not superstitious. But it does impress you after it has happened several times in a row.

I HAVE found that almost every combat unit has (1) one pilot so nerveless that he thinks his narrow escapes are funny, and means it; (2) a majority who truly love to fly and at times find a certain real exhilaration in combat, but who on the whole exist only for the day when they can do their flying more peacefully; and (3) one pilot who absolutely hates airplanes and keeps going, if at all, only through sheer willpower. In recent weeks I've known of two pilots who developed such neuroses against airplanes that they had to be sent to a rest spot where they wouldn't see a plane for six months.

Pilots Talk Frankly

The other night I was talking with a very swell lieutenant who said frankly that although he liked planes and liked to fly he was scared of combat. He admitted that he had balled up a good many missions, and he said he was absolutely no good as a combat pilot.

If all this gives you the impression that pilots are worried to death and go around with long faces, then I have committed a crime. The pilot I've just spoken of is one of the happy-go-lucky type. I suppose pilots as a class are the gayest people in the Army. When they come back from a mission they're usually full of high spirits. And when they sit around together of an evening nine-tenths of their conversation is exuberant and full of howling jokes. There is nothing whatever of the grimness in their conduct that you get in the infantry while it is in the line.

AS an example, one night during supper we heard some terrific shouting in the adjoining room, as though a politician were making a Fourth of July speech. Finally we moved to the door to see what it was all about, and there sat a roomful of pilots before their finished supper plates, giving rapt attention to another pilot who was on his feet delivering a burlesque harangue on the merits of snake-oil hair tonic.

This pilot was Lt. Robert J. Horrigan, Tulsa, Okla. He has an infectious grin and a perpetual sense of mimicry. It turned out that his father, now a banker in Tulsa, was for many years on the stage as a magician and his uncle was a famous juggler. The two even toured Europe with their act.

He Wants To Go Home

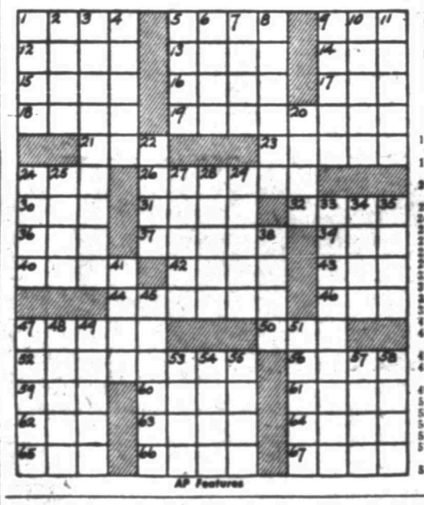

Bob Horrigan would like to go on the stage himself after the war, but he supposes he won't. His current ambition is to land an airplane on the Tulsa airport, with his family and friends all out to meet him. He wouldn't even object to a small brass band.

The nicest thing about Horrigan's impromptu acting is that he gets as tickled as his audience does. His final act is a one-hundred-per-cent sound imitation of the unconventional scene of a Messerschmitt shooting down a Spitfire. The audience of pilots yells its delight as though there wasn't a care in the world.

No fish or animal is more famous for his strength, stamina, and power than the shark. He draws his tremendous store of vitality and power from the sea in which he lives. Today, this same foodrich sea provides the animal proteins, minerals and vitamins which your poultry and livestock must have to be healthy, fast-growing and productive.

STANTON'S 18% LAYING MASH
brings these vital elements from the sea and puts them to work in your poultry yard. This fine feed, milled right here in Lubbock, contains ManAmar and B-G Plus, Blended with local-grown grains into a feed especially adapted to the needs of West Texas feeders.

B-G PLUS
is a patented vacuum concentrated extract from fish. This new and potent product, resulting from ten years of ceaseless research and experiment, supplies extra minerals and vitamins in Stanton's 18% Laying Mash.

MANAMAR
in Stanton's 18% Laying Mash supplies the hard-to-get feeding essentials — fish proteins, food minerals and vitamins, including the important Vitamin B "Complex."

ManAmar and B-G PLUS have been developed and are produced in the laboratories of Philip R. Park, famed livestock nutrition authority. These laboratories have also approved the formula for Stanton's 18% Laying Mash. Let the records of users tell the rest of the story. Get all the facts today.

Applicants 28 to 35 years of age inclusive must have minimum flight record of at least 2,000 hours of logged flying time of which at least 500 are in multi-engine aircraft of 900 horsepower or over and of which 300 hours of the multi-engine time must have been logged within the preceding 12 months.

EARLY RECOVERY FAILS

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Profit taking in the rails and selling elsewhere put a fair-sized dent in today's stock market after an early attempt at selective recovery failed to follow through.

Prices generally suffered their sharpest tumble after noon and, at the worst, declines running to a point or more were widespread. Volume picked up on the retreat. There was a slowdown in the final hour when extreme losses were trimmed here and there. There were isolated strong spots at the close. Transfers for the full proceedings were around 1,000,000 shares.

Conspicuous on the offside were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, International Harvester, Texas Co., Du Pont, Westinghouse and Sears Roebuck. A special 30,000-share offering of Youngstown Sheet was quickly oversubscribed but the stock, in regular dealings thereafter, dropped about a point. Resistant were American Distilling, Park and Tilford, Omnibus Corp., Hercules Motors and M-K-T preferred.

Services For Jake Weaver Held Today

Graveside services were conducted at Ralls cemetery this afternoon for Pfc. Jake Weaver, 35, who died from bullet wounds Sunday night in Lubbock. Military services were rendered with Rev. Hall, pastor of the First Christian church of Ralls, officiating.

Weaver is survived by his father and step-mother, his wife, a step-daughter, two step-sons, three brothers and two sisters.

Rix Funeral home of Lubbock was in charge.

Reds Trap 10 Nazi Divisions

cized form.)

The evacuation of Lutsk indicated that Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's Ukrainian army had advanced 50 miles in a few days and was in a position to turn the German lines all along the lower Dnieper river and throw the Nazis into Bessarabia, part of pre-war Rumania. Two days ago, the Germans began reporting a new offensive 50 miles east of Lutsk.

The swift advance threatened completely to nullify Marshal Mannstein's desperate stand around Vinnitsa and Uman in the western Ukraine, attacks which have been blocking the Russians from the Bessarabian border 60 to 70 miles away for several weeks. Should Vatutin sweep down the railroad from Lutsk to Lwow, the estimated 500,000 Germans in the Ukraine could be extricated only through Rumania.

From Lutsk, Vatutin also menaces Brest-Litovsk, one of the most important communication centers of pre-war Poland and key to te entire White Russian front.

New Positions Taken

An earlier announcement by the Berlin radio said:

"In the course of German movements on the eastern front Rovno and Luzk were abandoned by German troops yesterday. The German troops have taken up new positions west of the two towns."

Although the Russians themselves have not disclosed a new offensive in this region, Berlin reported last night that an intensified Soviet drive had been launched and said the Red army had crossed the middle Gorin river which runs west of Rovno.

Farther to the southeast the communique said the Russians were attacking Shepetovka. New Soviet thrusts also were reported on the Nikopol bridgehead while southwest of Dnepropetrovsk the Nazis admittedly were heavily engaged against advancing Soviet tank formations.

Control Shore Of Gulf

Capture of Kingisepp gave Govorov control of the entire southern shore of the Gulf of Finland, but there were indications that the Germans might elect to make a stand in front of Narva with reserves brought up from Reval (Tallinn), western terminus of the railway from Leningrad.

German reports of a Soviet breakthrough in the Dnieper bend far to the south and a new Red army attack upon Rovno, 30 miles inside old Poland, by Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's First Ukraine army, remained unconfirmed by Moscow.

Red army troops took a heavy toll of the retreating Germans in the Kingisepp sector. More than 1,200 Nazis were killed, the Moscow bulletin said, and Soviet artillery wrecked 60 trucks loaded with troops, nine tanks and six field batteries.

Pounding down along the Leningrad - Lika - Pskov railway, other columns of Govorov's veterans captured 30 German big guns, four self-propelled guns, 150 trucks, 15 ammunition dumps and other huge stocks of war material.

West of the Leningrad-Moscow trunk rail line, Russian mopping-up parties killed another 1,100 Germans and beat down several savage enemy counter-attacks in the Novgorod area where Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhov army was pushing west toward Lake Peipus, the Soviet communique reported. It added that the Germans had sent strong reinforcements into this area.

Further south, in the Novosokolniki area west of Velikie Lukie, Soviet troops severed an important tactical highway, wiped out a German infantry regiment and liberated several towns and villages, according to the Russian communique.

Chief interest, however, centered in Govorov's drive on Narva, key to the northern gateway to Estonia. It controls the eastern shore of Lake Peipus and is the center of a railway network serving a vast area to the south and west. One of the prime objectives of Govorov's advance apparently was the closing of the 35-mile-wide land bridge between the Gulf of Finland and Lake Peipus before German reserves reach the sector.

Reaction To Willkie

it would have wiped out the middle class and jeopardized the solvency of all business, yet Mr. Willkie would raise double the amount proposed by the administration.

"He fails to show how any such amount could be raised, in addition to the $43,000,000,000 we now pay. We all know any increase would have to come from the lower income groups, as was the case with the Treasury program."

Rep. Carlson (R-Kans), a ways and means member, said:

"My observation is that rather than increasing our tax burden we should make every effort to eliminate waste and extravagance in federal expenditures."

Officers Of Boabdil Temple Installed

Newly-elected officers of Boabdil temple 185, Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan, were installed Wednesday night in the north ballroom of Lubbock hotel.

They are:

J. D. Collier, royal vizier; Levi Duncan, grand emir; Acle Cope, shiek; J. D. Corcorran, mahedi; H. G. Brock, secretary; Estell Hendrix, treasurer; J. B. Shannon, mokanna; G. K. Taylor, saruk; W. H. Galloway, satrap; K. C. Southern, sahib, and Douglas R. Parker, master of ceremonies.

A spring ceremonial for new member induction was set tentatively for March 1. It was announced that Imperial Prince V. J. W. Scott of Charleston, W. V., would visit the temple April 17, and be honored by a luncheon and dinner program.

News Briefs

An open forum discussion on "juvenile protection" was presented before members of the Lubbock Kiwanis club today noon at the Lubbock hotel by Dr. H. I. Robinson, pastor of the First Methodist church, and three high school students, Sam Henley, Bob Hassell and Frances Groce. The youngsters propounded questions to Dr. Robinson, who in turn offered methods for solution of the problem. C. V. Bullen was program chairman. Frank Harris of Dallas and George Lider of Amarillo were out-of-town guests at the luncheon.

Two boys, who gave their ages as 17 and 18, were picked up by police at Nineteenth street and College avenue at 4:30 o'clock this morning. They are being held for a prowling investigation. The arresting officers said they found on one of the boys a purse and an "A" gas book, with no back, just the stamps. The boys said they went out there to see some girls, but did not know where the girls lived nor their names.

Marshalls Invasion

into the fourth day. Soldiers of the Seventh Army division seized at least a third of Kwajalein islet on the southern, and opposite, end of the big coral atoll.

Hundreds Of Japs Killed

Eyewitness accounts pictured Roi and Namur as littered with the twisted, smoking debris of intensely - bombarded installations, and with the bodies of hundreds of Japanese soldiers. But Roi gave the Americans a four-runway airstrip to aim new assaults on other enemy bases where the Nipponese apparently had expected the Marshalls invasion blow to fall.

Land-based Army and Navy bombers showed no letup in the systematic neutralization of the eastern Marshalls chain as ground forces fought for control of the excellent anchorage and air base at Kwajalein islet. There was no mention in yesterday's Pearl Harbor communique of any Japanese sea or air opposition.

As yet, no losses among the hundreds of ships in the U. S. invasion fleet have been reported, and Admiral Nimitz let it be known that troop casualties were light.

Attack Surprise To Enemy

"It is now apparent that the attack took the enemy completely by surprise," the Central Pacific commander said. The weak resistance at Kwajalein, aside from attesting to the effectiveness of the pre-invasion bombardment, indicated the Japanese were not prepared to make a stand on the western line of the Marshalls.

Associated Press War Correspondent Alva Dopking, who landed at Namur with the Marines, said the Japanese "must have deluded themselves into believing that we didn't have the power or the heart to knife at the center of their Marshalls stronghold."

Roi was invaded Monday, and its airstrip fell four hours later. New landings were made the following day on Namur and Kwajalein islets. The fall of Kwajalein, and with it some 30 dependent islets, appeared imminent.

A policy of troop rotation, under which men with two years or more service will get a chance to come home, was announced in Washington by Lt. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, commander of South Pacific ground troops. The program will be necessarily limited, he said, by combat requirements and transportation facilities.

New Progress In Southwest

Allied forces made new progress in the Southwest Pacific offensive against Madang, Japanese-held key to northern New Guinea. Australians in the Ramu valley were reported less than 35 miles south of the big base. On the coast, Japanese troops fled into the mountains in an attempt to escapt an Allied pincers. Many others were disclosed to have died of starvation.

Nipponese plane losses at Rabaul for January climbed to 567 destroyed or probably destroyed as 15 more planes were knocked out in two raids on the battered New Britain base at the close of last month. The latest attack cost the Allies four planes. A 5000-ton enemy freighter was sunk by Liberator bombers at Hansa bay, northeast New Guinea.

Army forces battling the Japanese on Bougainville threw tanks into the fight for the first time Monday and knocked out 19 pillboxes during an all-day assault on the east side of the Torokina river mouth. At least 80 Japanese were killed.

Levelland To Erect Church

LEVELLAND, Feb. 3 (Special)—The First Baptist church will break ground for the new proposed $65,000 church home Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, according to Rev. George A. Dale of Lubbock, who is serving as supply pastor. This building will replace the $23,000 one erected in 1939 which was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin last September.

Participating in the program for the occasion will be the charter members of the church, the board of deacons—Horace L. Blackburn, chairman; the special building committee, T. O. Petty, chairman; Ernest Stewart, sr., superintendent of the Sunday school; Bill Clark, training union director; Mrs. J. C. Strickland, W. M. U. president; Architects Haynes and Strange of Lubbock, who drew up the plans for the building; P. H. Viallie, contractor; Rev. J. Lowell Ponder, district missionary of Plainview, and all of the former pastors of the church.

Organized In 1924

The First Baptist church was organized in December of 1924 and has grown from 24 charter members to a membership of some 1,200. Six pastors have served the church during the twenty years: Rev. L. McHan, now retired, of Mineral Wells; Rev. W. H. Hughes, pastor, First Baptist church, Petersburg; Rev. Vernon Shaw, pastor, Memorial Baptist church, Temple; Rev. L. L. Trott, pastor, First Baptist church, Rotan; Rev. Alfred A. Brian, pastor, First Baptist church, Brownfield, who is serving until a regular pastor is called to the field.

The money-raising campaign launched for the new building four months ago has brought in $48,000 in cash and pledges. Plans are to pay cash for the building by the time of its completion, according to T. O. Petty, chairman of the special building committee.

Raymond Clapper

1936, as columnist and political commentator.

He was a former honorary president of Sigma Delta Chi, the national journalistic fraternity, and one-time head of the capital's Gridiron club. He was the author of the book "Racketeering in Washington."

"Assignment Is Success"

As recently as last Friday, Clapper said in his column appearing Scripps-Howard newspapers through the United Features syndicate, that he felt his Pacific assignment was a success because he had been able to obtain a jungle knife for his young son, William Raymond.

In characteristic human interest style, Clapper told in the wireless report of meeting an old United Press colleague, Hunt Clement, "somewhere in New Guinea," and said:

"Thru him a very thoughtful thing happened to me. All the way along I had been trying to get a Marine jungle knife, not for fighting but to take home as a souvenir. I once went to Hollywood and returned home without having seen Shirley Temple, and I had a hard time squaring myself with my children, who were then small. This time, I had been ordered to bring back a jungle knife for my son.

"I was having no luck at all, as everybody was fresh out of knives. But Hunt disappeared and brought back with his Lt. F. C. Robinson, Tacoma, Wash., and after we were introduced Robinson handed me a brand-new jungle knife, which makes this Pacific assignment a success as far as I am concerned."

In addition to his widow and son and daughter, William Raymond, 17, and Janet, 20, Clapper is survived by his mother, Mrs. Julia Clapper, formerly of Kansas City, now of Washington.

Outstanding Newspaperman

Announcing Clapper's death to the House, Rep. Bender (R-Ohio) described the veteran reporter as "one of the outstanding newspapermen of America and one of the fairest columnists."

Rep. Harris (D-Va), who once worked in the press gallery with Clapper, added that Clapper "represented the highest type of character and integrity in the newspaper profession" and "the press and the public will miss him."

At his press conference, Speaker Rayburn said:

"He was a very able newspaperman and a very patriotic American citizen. His death was a great loss."

Soviet Policy May Signify Expansion

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Soviet Union's startling extension of the sovereignty of its 16 component republics to include military and diplomatic affairs has left the outside world in the position of the scientist who has witnessed a phenomenon which he recognizes as having momentous potentialities but which he isn't able to explain with finality.

The reconstruction tends to create a commonwealth of such flexibility that other nations may become members irrespective of whether they are geographically contiguous to Russia. I cite merely as examples, the cases of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece, all of which have developed Communist parties. Should they adopt the Soviet form of government, there would seem to be no reason why they shouldn't become members of the Soviet Union with the same degree of sovereignty as the present members have.

This also might be true of other countries whose political complexions have become doubtful since the war.

Others Might Join

In short, the end of the European conflict might find the Soviet Union with considerably more than its present sixteen members.

Even if there are no acquisitions to the union, the present membership could create a tremendous problem in the construction of any post-war "league of nations." The point is, of course, that since each of the component states of the union is privileged to have separate relations with the outside world, Moscow would in effect—should it insist on the point—have sixteen votes in a League of Nations. All other countries would have one, excepting that the British commonwealth has six, counting its dominions and India.

Now that's one of the rocks on which President Wilson's hopes of American membership in the League of Nations crashed. The United States Senate in refusing to join the League based its action in part on the fact that the British would have six votes to our one. This might result in the United States being voted into a position which it didn't like.

Whatever may happen in the matter of multiple voting power, the autonomy of the sixteen Soviet republics will give the Union great bargaining strength.

The Soviet reorganization also would seem likely to ease the way for reincorporation of the Baltic states into the union. As sovereign nations they have a right to join the Russian commonwealth.

Russian Move Is Welcomed

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Russia's plan to let its 16 individual republics keep their own armies and assert their own foreign policies was declared welcome news today by many observers of Soviet affairs.

"I certainly do believe that this plan is designed to promote a general spirit of democracy after the war," said Dr. Henry Pratt Fairchild, professor of sociology at New York university.

"Offhand," added Dr. Fairchild, who is New York chairman of the council on American - Soviet friendship, "I believe it is meant as a model for merging smaller nations into larger ones and that it fits into a forthcoming need for large nations to protect small ones and yet preserve them by giving them a certain amount of self-government."

Believes In Democracy

Corliss Lamont, national president of the council and son of Thomas W. Lamont, banker, commented that "the Soviet union believes in international democracy in the sense of freedom and equality between all nations and races —and this new step proves again its loyalty to this ideal."

Edward C. Carter, secretary general of the Institute of Pacific relations, said the Russian decentralization plan, announced by foreign commissar Molotov, impressed him as "evidence of a growing desire for even greater unity within the Soviet union."

Sir Bernard Pares, British expert on Russia, said the plan meant "further progress by the Russians away from sheer domination (dictatorship) toward our conception of democracy.

"It is obvious," he said, "the Russians want to go on with the British commonwealth and the United States as allies in peace as well as in war."

Legion Head Urges National Service Act

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. (AP) — Warren H. Atherton, national commander of the American Legion, warned Congress today that if the nation fails to mobilize its civilian manpower for war production "the blood of the unnecessary head will cling to our hands for generations to come."

Endorrsing a national service law "as a necessary measure in the total mobilization of the nation's resources in support of our soldiers, sailors and marines, Atherton told the Senate military committee:

"It is abundantly clear that such a law would in fact shorten the war and save life."

Sponsors of the Austin-Wadsworth bill to provide for compulsory assignment of manpower when voluntary methods fail called Atherton to the witness stand in an effort to build up strength in the military committee to get the measure to the floor.

Chairman Reynolds, (D-NC), himself an opponent of the measure, said sponsors did not have sufficient votes to call for a showdown.

Slaying Principal Gets Another Term

DALLAS, Feb. 3 (AP) — Utah James Houston, 21, of Pittsburg, Texas, a principal in a slaying case in 1941 in which the body of the victim was brought from Florida to Texas, was sentenced to thirteen months at Texarkana prison for raising two postal money orders at Corsicana.

Federal Judge T. Whitfield Davidson yesterday referred to the slaying in sentencing Houston and said "I don't think you always think straight. I am going to sentence you to Texarkana, not as punishment, but with recommendation that you have some medical attention."

Houston was arrested in April, 1941, after the body of George Moje of New York was found near Daingerfield, Morris county, in the trunk of a car he had driven from Florida. Houston served two years of a ten-year sentence in connection with the crime.

note on the desk, Miss Howarth?"

I shook my head. "The room could have been full of notes. I was much too upset to notice."

"That's all I wanted to know," he snapped. "Answer yes or no after this. Do you know a man by the name of Tim Lathrop?"

I paused and then said sweetly, "Yes and no, Sergeant. Personally, no. By reputation, yes."

He seemed pleased. "So he's got a bad reputation."

"I didn't say bad. I said he had a reputation, a very good one. He writes swell mystery stories."

The Sergeant swore softly. "Have you ever seen him?" he asked presently.

"Once, at a meeting of some artists and writers, but I haven't the slightest notion what he looked like."

"Sorry to interrupt, Sergeant," Mr. Kimball said from the doorway, "but there is someone from Police Headquarters here to see you. I finally got that call through to Miss Kent's mother and brother. They are on their way to the city now. They'll be here shortly."

After the Sergeant left with Mr. Kimball I didn't stir out of the chair. My mind was as calm as a seven-day bicycle race.

"Miss Howarth," I said, "you're in a bad spot."

I took the last cigaretteo out of my case reluctantly. The blizzard of '88 had nothing on this. It was about half-past eleven; I'd had no breakfast and the Sergeant would probably never let me out of the house to get a pack of cigarettes or a sandwich.

Finally I got up and went to the window. Everything in sight was covered with snow as though it might storm again. A week ago, I thought sadly, I could have gone to Bermuda. Now I was mixed up in a murder. In fact, I was the murderer, according to the brilliant Sergeant Long. Why he was more suspicious of me than of Mrs. Evans or Sarah I couldn't imagine. Goodness knows I'm no beauty, but I'm certainly not the criminal type either. He made me feel very uneasy, and that fire escape outside my window didn't add to my peace of mind either. Joan Kent had been murdered and there wasn't any reason to worry now that it had happened, but I still hated the idea of having such an easy entrance to my apartment.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said today that the population of Manila had been reduced by 35,000 recently in line with a Japanese-sponsored "back-to-the-soil-program."

The broadcast, recorded by U. S. government monitors, said the movement to the country areas reflected the "cooperation of the citizens with the government's policy to secure self-sufficiency for the Philippines."
