Bloodless Coup In Bolivia...

Army Assumes Control

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian army's commander and chief of staff were arrested Saturday after a brief, bloodless coup against President Luis Garcia Meza.

Meza himself had seized power in this revolt-prone nation, where the average government lasts little more than 10 months, less than one year ago.

"It (the coup) failed because of the treason of some and the bribery of others," chief of staff Gen. Lucio Anez Rivera told The Associated Press by telephone from army headquarters.

He said he and Gen. Humberto Cayoja, the army's national commander, were under detention on the orders of Garcia Meza, who rallied the support of several armored units in La Paz to crush the coup.

The government press cy office issued a brief statement later, saying: "Those responsible for the act of insubordination, which had a minimum of backing from a small segment of the Tarataca Regiment, have been relieved of their commands and will be judged in a military court of law."

The statement said Garcia Meza remained president, "has the full backing of the armed forces and the general consensus of the populace."

Anez Rivera claimed disaffected officers outside La Paz were carrying on the revolt, which started here at dawn when tanks and troops began massing in the capital, sealing off the roads and surrounding the presidential palace. A military communications transmission announced Garcia Meza had been "relieved" of the presiden-

Despite the announcement, there were indications the rebellion was stumbling when commanders of the army, navy and air force closeted themselves at the army headquarters in an apparent effort to reach a consensus.

Anez Rivera did not elaborate on why the revolt crumbled. He told the AP he and Cayoja were taken into detention, apparently a kind of house arrest, 20 minutes before he was reached by the AP.

There were no reports of bloodshed in La Paz,

Weekend update

Launch Date A-OK

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Despite concern over possible problems with shock waves created by the space shuttle's solid rockets during ignition, space agency officials say the Sept. 30 launch date for the second mission of the Columbia looks good.

"We are still looking hard at the ignition overpressure of the solid-rocket boosters during the first launch," said Dr. Robert Gray, director of the Space Shuttle Projects Office at the Kennedy Space Center.

Investigators Recalled

ATLANTA (AP) — Three investigators are being pulled off the special police task force probing the slayings of 28 young blacks now that a suspect has been arrested in one of the killings, authorities say.

The officers withdrawn from the task force earlier this week were on loan from neighboring police jurisdictions.

Fulton County Police Chief Clinton Chafin said Friday he withdrew his two investigators from the unit because he needs them to work on the four task force slayings that occurred in his jurisdiction, which covers the unincorporated parts of the county.

Booby Trap Set

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A booby-trapped tape recorder exploded in a Tehran mosque today, wounding Hojatoleslam Ali Khameini, a senior Iranian clergyman who has sharply criticized fugitive ex-President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Tehran radio said.

The state radio said Khameini suffered "slight injuries to the lungs and windpipe," in the assassination attempt but he was in satisfactory condition in the Tehran heart hospital and there was "no cause for concern."

Ask Us

Q.—Who are the hospital board members, how long do they serve and who is responsible for their selection?

A.—The current members are Rex Robinson, Roy Kidd, Leon Autry, Sam Cross, John Jarrell and A. Z. Glover. The county judge (Preston Wilson) also serves as an ex-officio member. Board members serve "staggered" two-year terms, which means three are appointed each year. They are appointed by the county commissioners court.

Seven Candidates In July 4th Queen Race

Seven candidates are in the race for July 4th Queen, the Snyder Chamber of Commerce has announced.

The contestants, whose sponsors will be selling tickets to back their respective entries, range in age from three months to 72 years.

The line-up, with sponsors, includes Jacie Chere LaRoux, 8, Business and Professional Women's Club; Sally Hatter, 3, American Associatior of University Women; Margarita Martinez, 18, K-Bob's Steak House; Queenie Martin, 72, American Legion Auxiliary Mandy Hess 5½ months, Amitie Study Club; Diane Sentell, 18, Snyder Rotary Club; Marsha Burrus, 18, Gay 20 Club and Jaycees.

The winner will be determined on the basis of tickets sold on her behalf. The queen contest tickets are priced at $1 each. The proceeds from the ticket sales will be used to defray expenses for the Independence Day celebration.

The queen will be crowned Saturday at about 8 p. m., prior to the fireworks display in Towle Memorial Park.

Meanwhile, plans for various July 4th events had been virtually completed by the end of the week. The carnival is scheduled to set up in the park Monday and remain there through Saturday night.

Several major events will begin Friday evening. These include the arts and crafts show in the National Guard Armory, the tractor pull at the rodeo grounds, and the tennis tournament.

Festivities in the park on the morning of July 4th will be launched with opening ceremonies, which will include a flag raising by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Activities in the park will continue through the fireworks display at about 9:15 p. m.

LITTLEST CANDIDATE—Mandy Hess, 5½ months old, is the youngest candidate for July 4th Queen. She is sponored by the Amitie Study Club.

The SDN Column

Not everything going on in Washington is bad. A story out of the capitol the other day told of a proposal to extend Daylight Saving time for a longer period each year. Sen. George J. Mitchell of Maine is the sponsor. He would extend DST by moving up the starting date to March and extending its life through the first week in November.

At present, DST begins the last Sunday in April and ends the last Sunday in October.

This proposal could revive the "Year-Round DST Club," which has been dormant the past few years. It is (or was) composed of persons who favored DST for the entire year, the reasoning being that changing times twice each year causes confusion and that some experts figured out that energy could be saved by keeping the nation on DST. The club members also appreciated the extra daylight toward the end of the day.

There was a brief period of triumph in 1974 when the first thrust of an energy crisis began to sink in. But it was short-lived, and following vigorous arguments in 1975, it was apparent that the late-sleepers held an edge. So, when Congress finally set the pace at six months on and six months off, Year-Round DST Clubbers felt that they had won a moral victory.

Some estimates were that a couple of months of extra DST in 1975 saved as much as 100,000 barrels of oil. This was a good argument at a time when many Americans were in a state of shock after suddenly being informed that Uncle Sam's inexhaustable supply of oil and gas was failing. But it didn't take long for the element of surprise to erode, and there was a clamor for Standard Time again.

Saving oil still is considered a good arugment, but Sen. Mitchell has added another objective which might appeal to parents of small children. He said the purpose of extending DST into the first week of November is to provide more daylight for Halloween.

The opposition is formidable, as always, but it is encouraging to club members to know that a 12-month DST season is not a dead subject in Washington.

Snyderite Likes To Compete In Numerous Motorcycle Rallies

By LOIS GLEASON

Most people in Snyder agree: Nick Spells' motorcycle is the biggest and the best here. Apparently, they aren't the only ones. Spells has won "Best in Show" at motorcycle rallies in Texas and Oklahoma this year.

Probably no one enjoys motorcycles as much as he does either. "It's like riding in a convertible with the top down. Just going and getting on the motorcycle is exciting to me," he said.

He said he likes motorcycles because they're cheap on gas, but when pressed, admitted he just liked to ride — corners and curves are his favorites.

Spells is the black president of the otherwise all-white Snyder Road Riders Club, a club with 39 members and in its first year. He and two other bike enthusiasts set up a rally just for Snyderites last year, trying to develop local interest in the sport. There were 65 cycles at the rally and 60 people attended the organizational meeting. Thirty-two signed up that day.

For Spells, clubs and rallies give him an excuse to get on his cycle and a place to ride it. His is a dresser style, a touring bike, and he puts about 15,000 miles on it a year — and only 2,000 on his car.

He got started 15 years ago in Fort Worth when he joined the "African Bandits," a club that endorses chopper type bikes. Spells didn't go for those so he got a dresser bike. "They didn't like that," he grinned. "They threw me right out of the club."

Spells went to a biker's Ruidoso convention once and saw a custom painted bike. "I saw a brown one and I just fell in love with it. I decided tha. some day I was going to have one just like it."

He got that opportunity, but not in the way he expected it. He wrecked his bike at 32nd and Ave. G last year. As a result, he spent three days in the hospital and ten weeks in a cast. His wrist was broken in three places and he said he made a mistake — he wasn't wearing a helmet. Asked if he does now, he replied "You bet I do!"

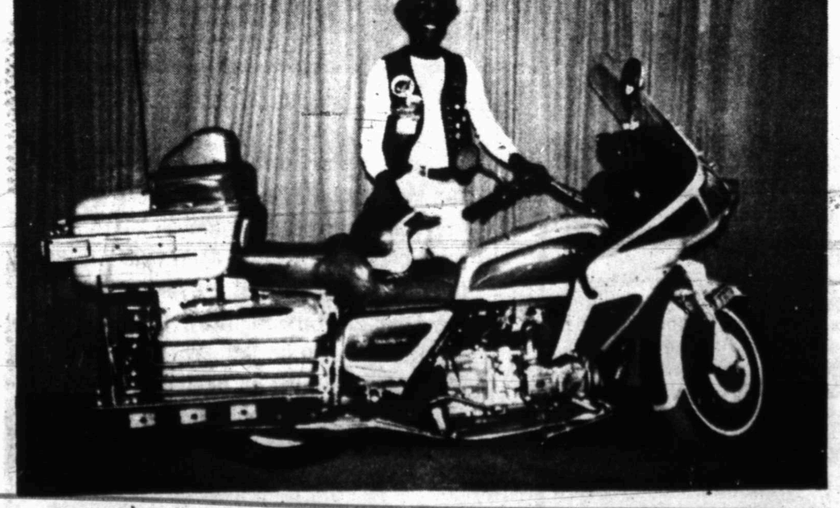

But the insurance paid for a new bike, so he went ahead and had it custom painted — two-tone brown. It's the only one in Snyder.

Spells had one other wreck before that. "A lady pulled out in front of me in Waco and I had to dump it (the motorcycle) right in the middle of I-35," remembered Spells. In that incident he also broke his wrist — and his foot. "I was skinned up like nobody's business."

Because of the wrecks, Spells doesn't usually ride anyone on the back of his bike. He explained that if there was a wreck, nobody else would be hurt, just him.

His son, Sylvester, does ride with him on occasional trips. They made a 25,000 mile round-trip to San Francisco in 1978 when his son was 12. It took 26 hours, including a stop at Disneyland in Anaheim and a drive along the coast. Spells recalls it as a great trip, one that BIKER—Nick Spells is pictured with his custom painted motorcycle, a possession he is very proud of. An accomplished biker, after 15 years experience, Spells likes to compete in rallies, the latest of which will be the Abilene Road Riders Rally in Buffalo Gap this weekend.

Given By AMA...

Jail Receives Accreditation

The American Medical Association has awarded the Scurry County Jail a two-year accreditation for its successful efforts in upgrading health care in the facility.

A representative from the Texas Medical Association will present the award certificate to Sheriff Keith Collier at the jail Wednesday. The presentation ceremony has been set for 11 a. m.

Representing the Colorado Basin Counties Medical Society will be Dr. Wilton N. Jones, the Snyder physician who inspected the jail's facilities.

The AMA project is part of a voluntary program to improve medical care and health services to inmates of the nation's jails. The two-year accredition certifies that the Scurry County Jail meets at least 85 percent of the AMA's standards for proper jail health care. These standards include providing adequate emergency care, physical examinations for contagious disease, drug and alcohol withdrawal assistance and other medical help.

The Texas Medical Association provided technical assistance for the Scurry County Jail when it expressed interest in improving its health care to meet the AMA standards.

Alfred Gilchrist, TMA field representative, praised local officials for their cooperation and work in raising the jail's standards.

"Sheriff Keith Collier and his staff have given their extra time and attention to this voluntary project. They are to be complimented on their outstanding work in achieving accreditation. They deserve all the credit we can give," said Gilchrist.

Scurry County officially entered the program in 1979, and it joins Orange and Harris Counties, who have previously received AMA accreditation.

Converted Bus Catches Fire

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Ten people on a 35-year-old converted bus carrying seven families to a Fourth of July reunion were killed Friday when the vehicle burst into flames. Seventeen others were injured, officials said.

The bus began smoking and burst into flames as the driver pulled onto the shoulder of Interstate 15 in the Cajon Pass, the California Highway Patrol reported. The bus, built in 1946 and later converted into a motor home, began rolling backward downhill and crashed into a flatbed truck as screaming passengers kicked out windows and tried to jump to safety.

Trooper William Snell said the bus originally had a rear emergency exit, but it had been barricaded when the vehicle was modified.

"Apparently those who remained behind and were trapped in the bus were throwing children and women out of the windows," Snell said at a news conference.

"I was sitting in the back of the bus listening to music, when all of the sudden there was a loud noise," said one of the passengers, Kimberly Garret, 16, of Riverside. "I turned around and there was fire everywhere except in the back of the bus.

Two Meetings

Snyder School Trustees have two special meetings scheduled this week.

Drilling Mud By Additives

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Some $320,000 was saved in drilling eight oil wells here by utilizing mud additives. Wells averaged 8,000 feet deep.

Drilling mud lubricates and cools drill bits, cakes up and prevents well walls from caving in. It also carries rock fragments to the surface.

The time required to drill each well was reduced by four days. "At $10,000 per day, total rig time saved for the eight wells amounted to roughly $320,000," said Robert F. Wally, service engineer of Drilling Specialities.

TAX RETURN PREPARERS

Have you ever wondered why the person preparing your tax return is not more cooperative in helping you "beat the government?" On some occasions you may even think the accountant is working for the government.

There is specific legislation which governs certain activities of individuals who prepare tax returns for compensation. A preparer is subject to dollar penalties as follows: $25 for each tax return on which he fails to furnish his identifying number; $50 for failing to retain a copy of each tax return he prepares or a list of taxpayers for whom he prepared returns; and $100 for the failure to maintain and make available to the IRS, upon request, a list of preparers in his employ. A preparer is also subject to a $500 penalty for negotiating his client's refund checks.

If, due to negligence, the preparer has caused your tax liability to be understated, he is subject to a $100 penalty. If the understatement of taxes is due to "willful" acts by the preparer, he is subject to a $500 penalty.

The tax regulations require that tax preparers make "appropriate inquiries for specific documentation" for certain types of claimed deductions.

Compliance with the various regulations contributes to the time and cost of preparing your tax return. Such compliance may also lead you to think that the accountant is working for the government.

To preserve the confidentiality of the information you provide to your accountant, there is a criminal penalty for the use of such information for any purpose other than preparation of your return.

Most accountants represent several hundred taxpayers. By complying with the preparer regulations, they not only reduce the possibilities of penaties but establish credibility with the Internal Revenue Service and therefore provide a better service to their clientele as a whole.

Appelate Court Decision...

Department Of Corrections Granted Reprieve

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections has been given a temporary reprieve from implementing massive reforms in the state's prison system after an appelate court stayed a lower court mandating the changes.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday set no date for full arguments on the appeal after it handed down a 3-0 decision that halted prison reforms ordered last January.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice ordered sweeping changes in the Texas prison system after David R. Ruiz and other inmates filed suit against against the Texas Department of Corrections. The U.S. Justice Department later joined in the suit.

Ruiz, who recently was granted a parole, and the other plantiffs in the suit charged TDC facilities were unconstitutional because they were, among other things, overcrowded, lacked adequate rehabilitation and medical facilities and adequate supervision.

Justice ordered that only one inmate could be put in each cell, and he told state official they would have to build more prisons to house the state's 35,000 inmates.

But state officials appealed the ruling, claiming that the steps they already taken to improve the conditions would be sufficient.

The Legislature has appropriated $35 million for the construction of new prison facilities, ordered the work-furlough program to be expanded so inmates could be released earlier and approved additional parole officers.

Attorney General Mark White said in Austin, "I am hopeful that after the court reviews the facts, they will reverse the lower court's decision, and I intend to exert every effort in preparing our case for out appeal before the Fifth Circuit."

Gov. Bill Clements said he was "delighted with the judicious, thorough and timely consideration" by the appellate court in granting the stay.

"As I have stated repeatedly," he said, "William Wayne Justice overstepped his powers and incorrectly assessed the facts presented him in the Ruiz case. I am grateful to the U.S. Department of Justice for its assistance in critical areas of the motion for a stay."

The 5th Circuit temporarily delayed the following changes ordered in Justice's ruling:

—Placement of some inmates in single cells beginning Aug. 1, 1982, with extension of the program to all inmates by Aug. 1, 1982.

In staying this section of Justice's order, the 5th Circuit referred to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling on June 15 that keeping two prisoners in a cell designed for one inmate is not unconstitutional.

—Rotation every 10 days of all prisoners held in cells containing three inmates. The appeals court was not asked to stay a part of the order forbidding the so-called triple-celling of inmates after Aug. 1, 1981.

—Release of a specified number of inmates on work furlough and temporary furlough by certain deadlines beginning Nov. 1, 1981. At least 2,500 inmates would be released on work furlough and at least 1,000 others on temporary furlough by Nov. 1, 1982.

—A TDC review by Nov. 1, 1981, of the record of every inmate who has not received credit for so-called "good time" while in prison and consideration whether such inmates should receive retroactive credit.

—A Nov. 1, 1981, deadline for the TDC to give Judge Justice a plan for establishing more minimum security prisons, honor farms, halfway houses and other such institutions.

The appeals court said Justice should not have required such a plan.

"No matter how desirable community corrections may be, their use is a policy matter for the people of the state to decide — acting through their legislative representatives," the 5th Circuit said.

—A moratorium on selecting sites for any new prison or for housing any inmates until TDC proves to the district court that certain conditions are met.

—A report by Aug. 1, 1981, that certain conditions are complied with in construction of the Beto prison unit and the proposed Grimes County prison unit.

—A moratorium on starting construction of any new facilities or cell blocks at existing prisons until the district court is assured that certain conditions are met.

—A requirement that TDC must be reorganized into units and sub-units housing no more than 500 inmates.

—Approval by a court-appointed special master before any departures from a courtapproved minimum security staffing plan that was to take effect by Nov. 1, 1982.

—Reassignment every 30 days of inmates assigned to building jobs. The appeals court said this portion of Justice's order probably would be scrapped on appeal since administrators maintain it "would constitute an administrative nightmare" and demoralize inmates.

The 5th Circuit refused to stay all other aspects of Justice's order, but did not specify what they were.

And, in the mandated downgrading of Huntsville Unit Hospital to an infirmary by Nov. 1, 1981, it said Texas was free to file new, more complete stay motions with Justice before pursing that matter further with the appeals court.

In a preface to its 44-page decision, the appeals court tried to define the responsibilities of the state and federal courts in prison administration.

"It will never be the responsibility of this or any other federal court to decide what a good prison should be or how it ought to be operated. That is for the corrections experts and the policy-making offices of the State," said the opinion.

"The federal courts may interfere only to protect prisoners against cruel and unusual treatment, because that is prohibited by the Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution."

Pennsylvania's Presque Isle, which in French means "almost an island," was so named by French explorers in 1740 because Lake Erie storms regularly threatened to wash away the narrow back linking the sandy peninsula to the mainland.

Outhouse Pushing Contest Slated

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP) — If the two greatest feats of engineering are, as the old joke goes, Wheeling, W.Va., and Flushing, N.Y., just how great a feat is wheeling an outhouse?

Ask the competitors in the first Pacific Northwest Outhouse Race, in which teams of five will attempt to push, shove, kick or otherwise motivate outhouses toward a finish line. The crews are to consist of one "sitter" and four others who push — all aged 21 or older.

Organizer Walt Geisler said television cews will help judge Sunday's race, sponsored by the Longview Eagles men's club.

"I like to do things for people, I like to see people happy," Geisler said. Proceeds from the $25-per-outhouse entry fees go to the Cowlitz County Special Olympics.

Outhouses entered in the double-elimination event must measure 4 feet by 4 feet and stand 5 feet high. Wheels can be no larger than 8 inches in circumference.

"So far we have 17 confirmed entrants," Geisler said.

Trophies will be awarded for the first three finishers in the race and for the most original costume and outhouse.

A case of toilet paper goes to the fourth-place team.

Titanic Searchers Set To Begin Quest Sunday

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A team of scientists, filmmakers and adventurers is set to return to the North Atlantic on Sunday in a second attempt to locate the wreckage of the Titanic.

The 174-foot research vessel Gyre, equipped with sonar, metal-detectors and television cameras with strobe lights, was to set out from Woods Hole Oceanographic Laboratory. The crew will try to determine if one of 14 sonar photos made last summer near the spot the ocean liner went down is of the Titanic.

The Titanic hit an iceberg on her maiden voyage from Europe to the United States and sank April 14, 1912 in 12,000 feet of water, 380 miles southeast of Newfoundland. An estimated 1,500 people perished. The ship contained a fortune in valuables. The safe is said to contain diamonds that now are valued at nearly $300 million.

Jack Grimm, an oilman from Abilene, Texas, is financing the multimillion-dollar search, and he has laid claim to whatever valuables are recovered, including the ship's log and bell.

Grimm has backed expeditions seeking Noah's Ark and the Loch Ness monster. He said he expects to get his investment back through a book and a film about the search.

Of Nuclear Free Zone...

Scandanavian Officials Cautious

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Scandinavian governments, seeing a possible opening in Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's proposal Friday of a nuclear-free zone, cautiously waited to hear more.

The general proposal is not new. Nikolai Bulganin, then Soviet premier, referred to a nuclear-free Scandinavia in 1958.

But Brezhnev's hint that it might be possible to discuss the Soviet missiles aimed at Scandinavia, not just the Scandinavian nations' declaration of a nuclear-free zone, was a first.

"Did he say, 'Okay, I'll take all my bloody guns out of the Kola Peninsula'? That's the crux of the matter," said an official in the Danish Foreign Ministry, who asked not to be identified.

Western analysts say the Kola, Soviet territory that borders Finland and Norway, bristles with SS-20 missiles that easily could hit any Scandinavian nation.

Brezhnev's comments were replies to prepared questions from the Finnish newspaper Suomen Sosiali Demokratti, which printed them Friday. The Soviet news agency Tass later carried them.

Danish Foreign Minister Kjeld Olesen said it was necessary to have a "clear declaration" that any arrangement includes placing some Soviet territory in a nuclear-free zone ... I would very much like to see something positive in President Brezhnev's statements concerning the Soviet areas," Olesen said in a statement that noted the massive Soviet arsenal next door.

Norwegian Foreign Minister Knut Frydenlund said the Soviets have been interested in a nuclear-free Scandinavia for years and the possible new development is the statement's indications that weapons on Soviet territory might also be involved. In Stockholm, Swedish Prime Minister Thorbjorn Falldin said he is studying the issue.

Hospitalization Order Is Extended By Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge who ordered accused presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. committed to an institution for mental tests extended the commitment period Friday to Aug. 2.

Chief Judge William Bryant of U.S. District Court here originally ordered Hinckley committed for a maximum 90 days, expire June 2. Bryant said he decided on the one-month extension after receiving a letter from the warden at the federal correctional institution at Butner, N.C., requesting the extension.

"The letter indicates that the Butner medical staff will be able to complete its examination by Aug. 1, 1981, if the 30-day extension is approved," Bryant said. A grand jury is meeting to decide whether to indict Hinckley in the shooting of President Reagan.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have recently become involved with a man whom I love very much. He is an ideal person in every way except one: He has a very irritating habit of cracking his knuckles. This would be bad enough, but he cracks his knuckles on his jaw! (He actually places his knuckles on the side of his jaw and pushes as hard as he can until they crack!)

As we have become close, he has started to ask me to let him crack his knuckles on my jaw. I have let him do it several times, but I feel somewhat uneasy about it and would like him to stop. The problem is that I am afraid he will discontinue our relationship if I am unwilling to satisfy this desire. I love him very much and don't want to lose him. Abby, what should I do?

NANCY IN SEATTLE

DEAR NANCY: Tell him firmly but lovingly that you no longer want him to crack his knuckles on your jaw, and if you lose him because of this, you are well rid of him, by cracky!

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I met Jim. I was a 25-year-old virgin and Jim was 35, handsome and new in town. We dated for a few months and he asked me to marry him. We became sexually involved, but no marriage took place. Soon after, Jim told me that he had done some professional killings for the underworld and he might have to go to prison for tax evasion. I was shocked! I couldn't believe Jim was that kind of person. As a result, our relationship went down the drain. I had been in poor health and didn't realize I was pregnant until I was five months along. Jim said, "Get an abortion," but no doctor would touch me because I was too far along.

Jim disappeared, so I told my family I had been raped. I had a baby boy who is the picture of Jim; but I stuck with my rape story and didn't list Jim's name on any of the documents.

Jim has come back to town and now he's telling people my baby is his. I don't care what people think. My only concern is whether Jim has any legal claim to my child. He never supported me in any way. He has money for lawyers, but I don't. Can you help me?

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: Your local Legal Aid Society exists to help people who need a lawyer and have no money. It is listed in your telephone book. Please call and make an appointment immediately. Write again and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend is a girl. I'm a guy. We have been good friends for four years now, ever since high school. She's pretty, intelligent, vivacious and a quality person.

Our relationship has always been platonic. She always said that one day the right man would come along, and until then she didn't want to fool around. I told her I respected her for that.

My problem, Dear Abby, is that my emotions don't always agree with my intellect, and now I find myself falling for her after we agreed to be just friends. This is causing me a great deal of unrest and it's putting a strain on our friendship. What should I do?

DISTRACTED

DEAR DISTRACTED: Lay it on the line. Tell her that your "just friends" agreement doesn't seem to be working, that your head understands it but your heart has a mind of its own. Then sit back and observe her reaction and you'll have your answer.

Several Executed...

Iranians Persecute Bahai Leaders, Followers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — When the United States erupted with joy and relief over the release of its 52 hostages from Iran, one family in Alabama felt instead a tightening vise of fear.

Instead of ending, the ordeal of waiting grew worse for the family of Habib Kayfan, a family with loved ones still in Iran.

Now the nightmare the American hostages escaped — trials on trumped-up charges and firing squad executions — has become real.

"We got the call about 10 at night," Kayfan said. "They said he was killed, our time, about 4 in the afternoon the day before."

The executioners' victim was Dr. Firoz Nai'mi, a medical doctor who for years had run a small clinic in Hamadan and taught at a university. He was married. He was 45. And he was a member of the Bahai religious faith.

His sister here in Montgomery, Mahfarid Nai'mi Kayfan, says he was executed for being a Bahai leader, one of seven such men shot in Hamadan on June 14.

The Kayfans say Nai'mi is one of scores of Bahais executed in what they view as a spreading program of terrorism against the estimated 500,000 Bahais in Iran and the systematic seizure and destruction of Bahai holy centers.

The Bahai National Assembly, in an appeal sent Thursday to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, says many Bahais have been routed from their jobs, had savings confiscated, had homes looted or burned, seen cemeteries desecrated, been denied basic rights, been imprisoned without recourse to a lawyer and executed — all because of their religion.

It is, said Kayfan, "a little holocaust."

The Kayfans were granted political asylum in America in 1980 when Kayfan, a 42-year-old Iranian air force colonel training at the Air War College at Maxwell Air Force Base here, was "retired" and ordered back home.

They ignored the order and stayed. They bought a small grocery store with a short-order grill and three tables in a rundown neighborhood on the outskirts of the city. It provides a living.

The Kayfans have two daughters and two sons. The youngest is in third grade. The oldest is doing a pre-med course at the local branch of Auburn University.

But their faith is their life. As Mrs. Kayfan talks about her slain brother, she speaks calmly of a martyr. She pulls out telegrams they've received from friends. They say much the same thing: "Congratulations on martyrdom of our beloved Firoz."

They remember the last time they saw Nai'mi. He and his wife, Akhtar, visited here at Christmas 1979. They remember the concern all felt over events unfolding in their homeland, including the taking of the American hostages the month before. But it was a joyous reunion.

"We went to Florida to see Disney World," Mrs. Kayfan said. "It was a good time."

"We knew there would be a change of government," said Kayfan, "but we didn't think they would do anything against the Bahais."

Nai'mi and his wife returned to Iran. "There was no reason for them not to go back," Kayfan said.

But within a year, he said, Nai'mi and six other members of the local Bahai spiritual assembly in Hamadan — five of them doctors — had been thrown into solitary confinement.

Kayfan said Nai'mi's clinic and home were confiscated. Nai'mi's wife, who had worked for an airline for 22 years, was "retired" and denied any retirement benefits. She moved in with Nai'mi's mother, now 82.

Eventually relatives were allowed to visit Nai'mi in prison, twice a week for 30 minutes. But soon he was returned to solitary. No visits. No word. The trial had begun.

It was a closed trial and Nai'mi was allowed no lawyer. Kayfan said the seven Bahais were charged with "being surrogates for Zionism or imperialism." In effect, he said, they were "charged" with being Bahais, which is viewed as being a "political enemy" of the Islamic republic.

The non-Moslem Bahai faith, which preaches universal brotherhood, was founded in Iran in 1863. The religion has come under fire from the Iranian government apparently because its funds are routed through the Bahai world center in Israel. Iran has charged many of those executed with being Israeli agents.

The family here learned about Nai'mi's conviction and execution only "when they (officials) called and told them (family members) to come get the bodies," Kayfan said.

Mrs. Kayfan said her brother's wife is strong. When the Kayfans reacted to news of the executions, Mrs. Nai'mi told them, "Why are you crying? We lost seven sons to the cause of God. I am proud that I had such a husband."

Kayfan said it's hard for him to believe that in the modern world "something would happen from out of 2,000 years ago.... I think it has all gone back to the old ages, the stone ages, people persecuted for their faith."

Sitting at a table in the grocery store, the Kayfans and Pat Alston, a Bahai and a friend of the family, voice apprehension for the Bahais in Iran.

"We are hoping the Iranian government will change this," Ms. Alston said. "The Bahais there are native to the land. They have no other home to go to."

Table Turned On Officer

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — Stephen J. Moore sensed a bit of injustice in the fact that he was being ticketed by a Mesquite police officer whose patrol car had only one headlight.

So Moore, who was stopped for an expired vehicle inspection sticker, filed a complaint that resulted in a conviction and a $28.50 suspended fine levied Tuesday against officer Ronald Robinson.

Robinson, who could not be reached for comment, is appealing the conviction.

Moore said he was driving home the night of April 25 after retrieving his van from the auto dealership where he had paid $1,100 for repairs "so it would be safe to operate on public streets."

When Robinson stopped him, "he didn't seem too sympathetic about my plight," Moore said.

Moore said that when he pointed out the single headlight on Robinson's patrol car, "he told me he'd been instructed to drive it or he'd be walking."

After arriving home, Moore began calling Robinson's superiors to complain about the missing headlight.

"Although they were very courteous, they all seemed to take the attitude that it couldn't be helped, that I ought to understand and that police were above the law," he said.

Moore finally filed a complaint with the city attorney's office June 9.

"I have to operate a vehicle to maintain a living," said Moore, a sales representative for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. "I'm expected to keep it in safe operating condition. I really felt the law was not being upheld here."

Mesquite Municipal Judge J.C. Austin found Robinson guilty, but suspended the fine for 30 days. The fine will be dropped if Robinson is not ticketed in Mesquite within the next 30 days.

In Monroe County, Fla., the water supply for years was rain water (½ parts per million hardness), then was changed to deep well water (200 ppm hardness). Within four years, deaths from cardiovascular diseases were 60% fewer. This indicates that hard water (containing calcium, magnesium, iron) is healthier for heart and blood vessels than soft or distilled water. Wealth, Poverty Co-Exist...

McAllen, Texas Is Land Of Stark Contrasts

By SUSAN STOLER Associated Press Writer

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Welcome to the poorest metropolitan area in America, a way station on the road from Mexican poverty to the good life in the United States.

It is a land of stark contrasts: wealthy Mexicans arriving by plane to spend their pesos in fancy shops, while poor countrymen sneak across the Rio Grande to seek jobs and a new life; affluent neighborhoods for a fast-growing professional and management pool and impoverished colonias of immigrants; long lines of food stamp recipients in Texas' most bountiful agricultural county.

On some days, a visitor driving south of the city can, with a sharp eye, detect "los indocumentados" wading the Rio Grande from Mexico or just waiting on the river's southern banks for the U.S. Border Patrol to look the wrong way.

Some of these illegal visitors are caught but more probably escape to start American life on the bottom rung of the socio-economic ladder.

"We're the entry point, as are all the border cities, for the migrants from Mexico, illegal or legal," Mayor Othal Brand said.

"There are two kinds, the doctors and the lawyers, and then the extremely poverty stricken from rural areas of Mexico who are willing to live in what we would consider unsuitable conditions but in reality are an improvement for them."

Almost one in four of McAllen's 67,000 residents is a permanent alien, a Mexican citizen who resides legally in the United States. Mexican-Americans make up 80 percent of the populace, with some families tracing their ancestry to the days when Spain controlled Mexico and Texas and granted colonists large tracts of land.

Poor immigrants — and descendants of poor immigrants — are the reason the U.S. Commerce Department ranks the 283,229 population McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg area last among 273 standard metropolitan statistical areas with 1979 per capita income of $5,024, 43 percent below the national average.

By way of comparison, the wealthiest SMSA that year — the latest for which figures are available — was Reno, Nev., with income of $12,713 per person.

Harsh statistics tell the story of the poverty.

One in 10 babies here is delivered at home by a midwife. Many more women, unable to afford hospital rooms, give birth at physician-staffed clinics — and go home the same day.

Pan American University, a public four-year liberal arts school, is in Edinburg. The most recent figures show the average adult education level in Hidalgo County at 7.4 years compared to the national average of 12.1 and the Texas average of 11.6.

Yet despite its financial rank, McAllen is boom town. It ranked among the top 25 SMSA's in population growth between 1970 and 1980, with a 56 percent gain. Businesses are moving in. And retail trade is doing well.

The overall cost of living, according to an American Chamber of Commerce survey, is close to the national average. Using 100 for the average, McAllen ranks 100.6, compared with Houston at 106.6 or New York City at 129.

A 10-minute drive south of town offers visitors a look at the contrasts.

Driving down South Tenth Street, one passes the airport where wealthy Mexican citizens from Monterrey land to spend pesos in local shops that transact business in Spanish as often as English.

One-third of the city's retail sales are to tourists from Mexico. Located about 70 miles inland from the Gulf of Mexico, the McAllen SMSA is the biggest metropolitan area within hundreds of miles of northeastern Mexico communities.

Next a motorist heads across the Rio Grande into bustling Reynosa, Mexico, with its huge refinery and regional headquarters for the Mexican oil monopoly, Pemex.

As Mexico industrializes and capitalizes on its petroleum deposits, U.S. businesses are taking note and moving to the border for a piece of the action. Several businesses have plants on both sides of the border, to take advantage of Mexico's cheap labor supply and the U.S. foreign trade zone.

The zone is a duty-free port where foreign and domestic merchandise may be stored, assembled, manufactturered and re-exported free of custom duties. In the last fiscal year, $547 million worth of goods were received in the zone, mostly electronic components, television parts and oilfield equipment.

But in another irony, unemployment here is about 13 percent compared with 4.2 percent for Texas overall. Across the border in Mexico, unemployment runs 30 percent and higher in rural areas during poor harvests and dry seasons.

The McAllen area SMSA takes in Hidalgo County in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, a semi-tropical area with an average annual temperature of 74 degrees. The rich soil of the Rio Grande delta produces abundant citrus, cotton, grain and numerous vegetables.

Hidalgo County is the state's top county for farm marketing revenue yet in another of the contrasts food prices rank slightly above the national average. One in four county residents lives in a household that receives food stamps.

Low incomes are a serious problems here, Mayor Brand and other officials say, but they point to mitigating factors.

Many migrant farm-worker families make the Rio Grande Valley their home. Their income earned during the four to six months spent working in other states is not counted in determining local income averages, said Alden Schiller, executive vice president of the McAllen Chamber of Commerce.

Welfare, unemployment and other "transfer payments" are not included in income figures, and the "underground" economy of unreported but legitimate income also probably lowers the average figures, he added.

Brand says that industry and new jobs are the way for the McAllen area to end its poverty, but affluence is a long way off.

"There's no really effective means of stemming the flow from Mexico," the mayor said. "As long as we have people seeking a better life for themselves, it (low incomes and migration) will continue."

Snyder Police Arrest Shoplifter

A 39-year-old woman was arrested by Snyder police Friday afternoon on a shoplifting complaint at TG&Y in the Varsity Square Shopping center.

Lt. Steve Warren, who made the arrest at 1:42 p. m., said the woman was accused of taking dishwashing liquid and fabric softener valued at $2.73.

Several calls concerning fireworks and three minor traffic accidents also were handled by police.

Complainis of fireworks being discharged in the city were received at 10:15 a. m., 9:06 p. m. and 11:13 p. m. Friday, and at 2:32 a. m. Saturday. Also, a report of a possible gunshot in the southwest part of town at 4:45 a. m. Saturday was believed to be a firecracker.

A call reporting a purse-snatching was received Friday afternoon, but neither the complanant nor a supsect could be located and it went into the books as a probable hoax.

Robert Graves reported that a watch belonging to his son, Steve, had been stolen at the Farm League baseball field. It was valued at $25.

A minor accident involving a 1979 Oldsmobile driven by Janeen Patterson, 2807 34th St., and a 1973 Ford truck driven Billy Etheredge of Roby was reported at 3:25 p. m. in the 1300 block of Ave. T. At 5:43 p. m., a 1979 Datsun driven by Brenda Cumba of Abilene and a 1975 Plymouth driven by Kay Vansickle, 312 26h Place, were involved in an accident at 35th St. and Ave. D. There were no injuries. Officer Don Whittenburg took the report.

Henry Garza reported that his car had been hit by a vehicle which left the scene at Rip's Truck Stop. Sgt. Norris investigated.

J. D. Smiths To Give Recital

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith will present a musical program for senior citizens in the Senior Center dining room at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday.

A nutritious meal is served at noon in the center each weekday, and county residents 60 years of age and older are invited to join the group in the dining room at about 11:30 a. m. each morning for special programs.

In addition to activities in the center itself, there are programs outside the center for senior citizens. These include swimming in the indoor pool at Western Texas College from 1:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. on Tuesday afternoons, miniature golf at 9 a. m. on Thursdays, square dancing and bowling on Wednesday mornings. Senior citizens also may swim at WTC on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons by showing their identification cards when they register. Identification cards may be obtained in the Senior Center.

The regular first Thursday covered dish supper will be cancelled for July, since an all-day fishing trip is planned on that day. Senior citizens interested in the fishing trip must contact Jean Smith, activities director, to make reservatons.

The center will be closed all day Friday for the Independence Day holidays.

The first men to discover the New World or Western Hemisphere are believed to have walked across a "land bridge" from Siberia to Alaska, an isthmus since broken by the Bering Strait. From Alaska, these ancestors of the Indians spread through North, Central and South America.

Other causes of hot flashes

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a hysterectomy at 40. I experienced some hot flashes in the month after my surgery. Again, at 48, I had several months of excessive heat and a light sweat — a typical pattern that most women experience.

Now at 54 I am experiencing sweats 12 to 15 times a day. My hair becomes soaked along the neck and two or three inches above my bra and underarm area. My clothes are clammy, and I feel the need to rebathe.

My ovaries were healthy and not disturbed at the time of surgery. Is this a return of the menopausal symptoms with an increase in sweating, or something else?

DEAR READER — First, remember that hot flashes and sweats can occur from other things besides the menopause. Chills and fevers during a kidney infection is a good example.

Your story is important because it points out that you can have a hysterectomy leaving the ovaries in place and not undergo a menopause. Your initial hot flashes may have been a temporary hormone imbalance but were more likely a complication of recent surgery.

Eight years later your ovaries may have begun to fail. Certainly at this age they should. I think you should have an evaluation by your physician. If you have no lumps in your breasts and your problem is related to decreased female hormones, your physician may wish to provide some to help control your symptoms.

To give you more information on how the decrease of female hormones can affect you, I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY — 10019.

It is important for a woman to know if her ovaries were left in or not if she had a hysterectomy. I don't wish to imply that you have cancer of the ovaries but that is one possibility in any woman who still has ovaries. The danger is that a woman will think she has nothing to worry about because she has had a hysterectomy and will neglect medical checkups. Ovarian cancer may have already reached an advanced stage when it produces symptoms.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A recent test showed my white blood count was low, only 3,200. A second test was only 3,000. My doctor suggests that I have a third test in two months as I am feeling fine otherwise. He sees no need for me to see a specialist as yet. I had a reading of 4,000 in 1977.

What causes this condition? Is it serious? He told me to be careful of colds and viruses and not to use alcohol. Why?

DEAR READER — The probabilities are that it is not indicative of a serious problem since you feel fine and the rest of your examination was normal. The number of white cells in your blood is really only a fraction of the total white cells in your body, so the test often is not a good indicator. Many white cells stick to the sides of the capillaries and are not in the blood that is withdrawn. Other large numbers are in your tissues, not your circulation.

You would require further testing to determine your true white cell count for your body as a whole. And your doctor is wisely trying to protect you from infections. If you have a significantly low white cell population, your defenses against infections might not be adequate.

Police Search For A Suspect

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Police have issued a capital murder warrant in the slaying of a 10-year-old girl for a 32-year-old man who had lived at the home of the dead girl.

Criminal District Attorney John Montford said at a news conference Friday that Jodie Mack Oliver had moved out of the house about a week before Dawn Michell Stanley was reported missing Monday.

Oliver was once convicted of raping his stepmother, Montford said.

The girl's body, which police said had apparently been strangled, was found Wednesday morning wrapped in quilt under the house. Her mother, Rose Anne Dobbins, discovered the body after she noticed a foul odor coming from a crawl space in the closet.

Montford said the capital murder charge, which carries the death penalty, applies because Oliver killed the girl during a robbery.

Oliver was said to be 5 foot 9, 220 pounds, and have blond hair and blue eyes. He has tatooes of a cat on his chest, a cobra on his right shoulder and "MACK" on his chest and both arms.

Oliver was a witness in two murder trials of Fort Worth millionaire industrialist Cullen Davis.

Police said the girl's diary provided them with clues to the killing. The last entry was not signed, as the other entries were, police said, "as if she didn't finish."

The diary had comments about her mother's friends she didn't like, including Oliver.

No Baseball This Weekend...

Strike Dragging On; No Settlement In Sight

NEW YORK (AP) - There again will be no major league baseball this summer weekend, and when - or if - the season will resume is anybody's guess.

As the players' strike entered its third week Friday, the latest round of negotiations collapsed in an atmosphere of pessimism.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, who earlier in the week averted a threatened strike by air traffic controllers but is having noticeably more difficulty trying to resolve this dispute, felt no further talks would be scheduled for at least several days.

Meanwhile, the players accused the owners of having some sort of timetable that forestalled an immediate settlement and charged them with avoiding the key issue of compensating teams which lose premium free agents in the annual reentry draft.

The mood was perhaps best expressed by Kurt Bevacqua of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who sat in on the talks for the first time.

Describing himself as "an average major league player, a utility man," the 34-year-old seven-year veteran said:

"I sat there and listened and I didn't see any sign of any type of settlement whatsoever. The only thing I saw was adamancy. I'm ready to sit out all season if I have to, and when the strike started that was the last thing I wanted to do. We're no closer to a settlement than we were a year ago."

The collapse of the negotiations came just one day after Ray Grebey, the owners' chief negotiator, said he was "encouraged."

An obviously weary Moffett described the stalemate by saying, "Both sides are locked in." He said the talks collapsed "probably because both sides ran out of ideas for as finding a way to resolve the issue at this time. We've been over and around and addressed the compensation issue just about every way it can be addressed. The problem, of course, is the way it's going to be resolved."

The players have suggested a pool of players from which teams losing free agents could draw while the owners want compensation in the form of a professional player directly from a team signing a free agent. Present compensation is an amateur draft choice.

The talks broke down shortly after a U.S. District Court in Philadelphia threw out a lawsuit brought by the Major League Umpires Association that sought to block payment of up to $50 million in strike insurance to the owners.

At the same time, the National Labor Relations Board postponed a scheduled hearing from next Monday until July 6 on a charge by the players that the owners have engaged in unfair labor practices. The players are seeking to force the owners to open their books, claiming management has cited financial hardship as a reason for wanting to change the method of free agent compensation.

"Whenever we broach the major issue, we get nowhere," said Rusty Staub of the New York Mets. "We've exhausted just about everything we can to try to solve this thing. It's becoming more and more obvious to us that they must have some kind of timetable they're working on and it's obvious their timetable isn't ready to solve this.

"It's hard to believe on the 15th day of a strike, but every time we try to address ourselves directly to the issues we get off on tangents that are very easily solvable like what statistics should be used to determine 'ranking' free agents. This is such an easy thing to solve. It's not an issue. We can find those top players."

Owners Can Collect From Policy...

Judge Nixes Umps' Injunction

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Major league baseball umpires will have to watch from the sidelines while team owners and players try to settle the current strike, a federal judge has ruled in dismissing a temporary injunction that had prevented owners from collecting on a $50 million strike insurance policy.

The Major League Umpires Association, represented by attorney Richie Phillips, had filed suit against the owners, saying they weren't in any hurry to settle the strike because of the insurance policy that pays $100,000 a game for each game not played.

But U.S. District Court Judge Donald Van Artsdalen on Friday threw out the temporary restraining order issued earlier in the week by Philadelphia Common Pleas Judge Stanley Greenberg.

"I can see no legal basis, either under federal or state law, to issue an injunction in this matter," Van Artsdalen ruled.

Van Artsdalen acted after the case was shifted from Greenberg's courtroom to federal jurisdiction under a motion by attorney Michael Gallagher, representing Lloyd's of London, the insurance firm that is the principal underwriter of the policy. The policy went into effect after the first 153 canceled games, which occurred on Wednesday.

"What legal theory do you have to bring this lawsuit?" Van Artsdalen asked Phillips.

"By paying on that policy they are encouraging continuance of this strike, and interfering with my clients' contractural rights with baseball," Phillips answered.

"You're seeking to aid one side of the strike? Or are you trying to hurt one side?" the judge asked.

"We don't care who wins or loses in this dispute (over free agent compensation). We want to keep the scales on equal balance and not let the owners get this large amount of money which gives them a great advantage and an incentive not to settle quickly."

Van Artsdalen had another view.

"We all know when there is a major strike, like those affecting utilities, public employees, and even baseball players, that there are some people who are going to get hurt," said the judge.

"The umpires are being paid, and will be paid at least for the next 15 days and are incurring no damages, whatever, except that they are on a forced paid vacation. So at present there is no irreparable harm."

Strike May Aid Injured Players

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The strike by major league baseball players just might be the best thing that could have happened for two key injured St. Louis Cardinals.

While the major leaguers continue to sit out the season, pitcher Andy Rincon is well on the way to coming back from a broken pitching arm.

"I'm at 75 percent of my velocity," said Rincon, scheduled to pitch today for the Springfield Redbirds, the St. Louis Triple-A affiliate.

"I'm just building up strength in my arm," added Rincon. "I'll be ready when the strike ends."

Meanwhile, catcher Darrell Porter has been given added time to rest his shoulder. The free agent receiver had missed most of the season with a torn rotator cuff.

"He doesn't have any pain," said team surgeon Stan London. "But we can't tell until Porter tries to throw with some steam."

And utility infielder Mike Ramsey, who broke a hand June 4 while filling in for shortstop Garry Templeton, is expected to begin throwing soon after one more round of X-rays.

Top Seeds Steady Now In Wimbledon Tourney

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - It has all been so easy for Bjorn Borg, John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors.

Borg, bidding for a sixth straight Wimbledon title, has not dropped a set in reaching the fourth round of this year's All-England championship. Connors is in the same position.

McEnroe did drop one set to Raul Ramirez of Mexico in the second round, but he was back in top gear Friday.

Borg defeated Rolf Gehring of West Germany 6-4, 7-5, 6-0 Friday and then admitted he would like a tough match at some stage.

"I feel ready for a long hard match," said the 25-year-old Swede, who was to face his friend and practice partner Vitas Gerulaitis Saturday.

Connors defeated fellow American Tony Giammalva 6-4, 6-4, 6-0, while McEnroe blitzed compatriot Bob Lutz 6-4, 6-2, 6-0.

Eight Americans in the 16-player field were joined by four unseeded Australians, a South African, a Pole, an Indian and the inevitable Borg.

Paul Kronk, a 26-year-old Australian who is troubled by a back injury, staged the biggest upset of the day, ousting ninthseeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina 2-6, 6-4, 6-1, 7-6.

Only six of the 16 men's seeds have survived, while 11 of the women - including all of the top eight - made the fourth round.

Two-time Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova, who defeated American Sharon Walsh 6-1, 2-6, 6-0, thought she had an explanation for the disparity.

"There is more depth in men's tennis, but also the men were seeded a lot on their clay court performances. The women do not vary so much on different surfaces, so the seedings tend to hold up a lot better," said Martina.

Navratilova feels there is more depth in women's tennis each year.

"The way I see it, any of five players (herself, Czechoslovakian Hana Mandlikova and Americans Chris Evert Lloyd, Tracy Austin and Andrea Jaeger) could win the women's title," she said.

"I'd be surprised if Andrea won, but she is a definite threat. Five players makes it a lot more potential winners than there have been in past years."

Austin, 18, was given a scare by Australian Susan Leo and had to save three set points in the second set before winning 6-2, 7-6. But Lloyd, Mandlikova and Jaeger all had relatively easy victories.

Lloyd ousted Lele Forood of the United States 6-2, 7-6; Mandlikova downed American Andrea Buchanan 6-3, 6-0 and Jaeger crushed Leslie Allen of the United States 6-1, 6-2.

Three-Way Tie Blocks Road To Memphis Title

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - The three men sharing the halfway lead in the $300,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic had decidedly different outlooks for the final 36 holes.

"The way I'm playing, I'm not at all optimistic," said former U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate.

Curtis Strange, however, was confident despite what he called "a couple of stupid mistakes. What I like about my play is that I'm putting better and better every day. I feel real good about it."

And Jeff Mitchell is just trying to figure out a way to get the ball in the fairway.

Despite his troubles off the tee, he managed to birdie two of the last three holes Friday for a 68 that tied him with Pate and Strange at 139, 5 under par for two trips over the 7,249-yard Colonial Country Club course.

Strange and Pate, a former U.S. Open champ who hasn't won in almost three years, each had a 70 in the warm, breezy weather.

A single shot back at 140 at the tournament's midway point were David Thore, Jerry Heard, Scott Simpson and first round leader Tom Kite, who slipped to a 73 that he called "a very poor round of golf, one of the worst I've played in a long time."

Thore, who needs to win $1,931 in this tournament to retain his PGA Tour playing rights, one-putted 11 times on the way to a 68. Heard's 66, the best round of the tournament, was highlighted by two chip-in birdies. Simpson shot 71.

Lee Trevino, the defending titleholder and a three-time winner of this title, had to rally from a watery double bogey for a 71 that put him at 141, only two shots back. Trevino birdied the last two holes after his tee shot on the par-3 12th hit a gallery-rope stake and bounced back into a pond in front of the green.

Bruce Lietzke was another stroke away at 142 after a 71.

George Burns and Bill Rogers, who tied for second in last week's U.S. Open, both failed to make the cut for the final two rounds here. Burns shot 75-149 and Rogers was 75-150.

McEnroe Not Leading Brat At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Volatile American Fritz Buehning has eclipsed even John McEnroe for bad behavior at Wimbledon.

Buehning, the 6-foot-5, 21-year-old serve-and-volleyer from Short Hills, N.J., lost to Sandy Mayer in the third round at the All-England club Friday after being fined in both his previous matches.

Buehning was fined $1,150 for mocking an official and making obscene gestures in his firstround match against Richard Lewis of Britain and $400 for making obscene gestures in his second-round match against Australian Mark Edmondson.

Buehning's accumulated fines total $1,550 dollars, $50 more than McEnroe was fined after his outburst against fellow American Tom Gullikson on Monday.

Other notables from Wimbledon:

--Rolf Gehring of West Germany, Bjorn Borg's latest victim on the Wimbledon center court, remarked wryly: "I'd rather play someone else out on court 10."

Asked if he thought Borg could be beaten, the towering German replied: "Yes - by a lot of netcords, aces and line balls."

--Chris Evert Lloyd, described by one-time fiance Jimmy Connors as a grunter, said: "I don't grunt like he does. It is natural for me. I am not trying to distract my opponent."

--Four Australians are still gunning for the Wimbledon men's title after a lean, nineyear spell in which only one Australian has played in the final - Ken Rosewall in 1974. Up to 1971, Australians were in the final 15 times in 16 years.

The four 1981 contenders are Peter McNamara, Paul Kronk, Rod Frawley and John Fitzgerald.

--Enid Stopka has been on the staff of the All-England club for more than 30 years and supervises a mail ballot for center and No.1 court seats. Hundreds of thousands apply but only one in six is lucky.

This month she won a lottery organized by a local church. The prize - a day at Wimbledon with a center court seat.

--Jeff Borowiak, one of America's surviving Wimbledon hopes, pedals to the tennis grounds every day on a 40-year-old bicycle.

He is staying five minutes' cycling time away.

"A neighbor lent it to me," Borowiak said. "I know free transportation is provided for all the players, but sometimes you have to wait for a car. On a bicycle I can get through the traffic jams."

British Games Results

OSLO, Norway (AP) - Tom Byers handed British 1,500-meter world record holder Steve Ovett only the third defeat of his career at that distance, winning the event in the Bislett Games.

Byers finished two meters ahead of Ovett in a time of 3 minutes 39.01 seconds. Ovett was clocked in 3:39.53. American Steve Scott was third in 3:39.58.

Meanwhile, America's Ben Plucknett threw the discus 225 feet, 11 inches. James King won the 40-meter hurdles in 50.04 seconds.

Melton Fighting Pain, Sarah Coventry Field

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - Nancy Lopez-Melton has spectators at the $125,000 Sarah Coventry wondering what she could do in perfect health.

While dealing for the second day with a stomach disorder, she conquered the Locust Hill Country Club's 6,155-yard course Friday with a remarkable charge - four birdies in the first six holes - on the way to a 4-under-par 69 and a 143-stroke total for a share of the lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I didn't feel well when I came out this morning," she said. "I was just thinking about playing the best I could, and I definitely did not want to withdraw."

Pat Bradley and Jan Stephenson, the only two of five first-round leaders who survived the second round blahs, fired rounds of 73 and 74, respectively. Bradley was tied with Lopez-Melton at 143, and Stephenson was third at 144.

Catherine Duggan fired a 3-under 70 - second-best round of the day - and moved into the chase just two strokes off the pace at 145.

Mardell Wilkins and Kathy Martin, a co-leader Thursday with a 70, were at even-par 146, while six golfers were bunched at 147. H.B. Duntz, with 70-79 and Lenore Muraoka, 70-82, fell out of contention.

Seventy-four of the 76 golfers who entered - including all 72 remaining pros - made the cut at 17-over-par 163. Amateur Carol Lynn Donald missed the cut after matching rounds of 83-83.

Lopez-Melton has reason not to exit from a tournament at Locust Hill. In two tries here, she has won twice.

Civil Rights Violations Charged In Drownings

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, suggested Friday that state civil rights laws were violated in the June 19 drowning of three black teen-agers in Lake Mexia and asked Attorney General Mark White to investigate.

A court of inquiry into the drownings ended Thursday, and State District Judge P.K. Reiter said he would present a written summary of the testimony to the Limestone County grand jury.

Wilson said he was not satisfied with the investigation of the drownings. The three youths drowned when the boat in which they were being transported across Lake Mexia capsized about 40 yards from shore. Two deputy sheriffs and a probation officer swam to safety. The young men were under arrest for alleged drug violations during an Emancipation Day celebration at the lake.

"Limestone County is not one of the most progressive areas of the state. ... Quite frankly, I don't trust the people of Limestone County to conduct an inhouse investigation," the black legislator told a news conference. He also said he suspected a "cover-up" concerning whether the youths were handcuffed.

"This merits consideration by the attorney general. I request that he go down there, today if necessary, to see if the lives of these young men were not wasted in vain," Wilson said.

While Special Prosecutor Larry Baraka of Dallas said there was evidence to support negligent homicide charges, Wilson said the state's 1979 civil rights law provides stiffer penalties.

At the turn of the century, the demand for ostrich plumes for women's hats and fans drove up the price of the bird's feathers to $300 a pound.

Supreme Court Decisions 'Tragic' For Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, delivering two major setbacks on successive days to the women's rights movement, made the week a "tragic" one for women, says the National Organization for Women's chief lawyer.

The court ruled Friday that divorced women are not entitled to share their former husbands' military retirement pay. On Thursday, it upheld Congress' right to exclude women from the draft.

"The current law simply does not recognize women as persons within marriage or within society as a whole," said Phyllis Segal, NOW's chief attorney. "It's been a tragic week for women."

But Phyllis Schlafly, the outspoken opponent of the Equal Rights Amendment, said: "The court recognized that the American people simply will not tolerate the drafting of their daughters."

Judith Lichtman, director of the Women's Legal Defense Fund in Washington, said Friday's decision is "another illustration of the court's refusal to recognize the worth of women in this society."

In the draft decision, Ms. Lichtman said, the court was "telling us we are incapable of defending our country and in effect that we are too important to the family to be spared for our nation's defense."

In the pay ruling, she said, "the court tells us that if we conform to this traditional role and accept our singular responsibility as homemakers, that work in the home counts for nothing in economic terms."

Justice Harry A. Blackmun, who spoke for the court in the retirement pay decision, noted both it and the draft ruling were based on the extraordinary deference the court gives Congress in military matters.

"We very recently (in Thursday's draft decision) have reemphasized that in no area has the court accorded Congress greater deference than in the conduct and control of military affairs," Blackmun said.

The justices, by a 6-3 vote, said a state's community property law — requiring divorcing spouses to share equally whatever assets they acquire during their marriage — must bow to Congress' intent to let the retired military member have exclusive control over the pay.

The ruling means Patricia McCarty cannot share her husband's $1,507 monthly military retirement check. She and Army cardiologist Dr. Richard McCarty divorced five years ago after 19 years of marriage.

Both the Civil Service and Foreign Service retirement laws have recently been changed to allow sharing of pensions in event of a divorce, and Congress is now considering legislation that would extend that practice to the military. But until enacted, the court said, a military pension is the property of the spouse who earned it.

In other decisions Friday, the court:

—Limited the amount of money cities and towns can be forced to pay when their officials violate someone's civil rights. Justices split 6-3 in stating in a Rhode Island case that individuals cannot collect "punitive" damages; only compensation for the actual harm done.

—Ruled by a 5-4 vote that federal workers who sue for alleged on-the-job age discrimination are not entitled to a jury trial.

Spells is on the road a good part of the time, taking weekend trips to rallies and just finding places to ride to. He attended 20 rallies last year and he's been to seven this year. He figures he'll make it to at least eight more.

One of those eight will be this weekend when Spells will attend the Abilene Road Riders Rally in Buffalo Gap. People that know him expect to see him return with some kind of trophy.

although movement was strictly controlled and travel by automobile prohibited. Anez Rivera's claims of support in the provincial military districts could not be verified.

The overthrow of Garcia Meza would have installed Bolivia's 191st government since Simon Bolivar's independence fighters ousted the Spanish colonialists in 1825, or 156 years ago.

The 52-year-old president acknowledged the steady erosion of his authority last month when, after two revolts in two weeks by district military commanders, he said he would step down as the army's commander and resign the presidency Aug. 6.

Garcia Meza named the 47-year-old Cayoja to succeed him as army commander and army representative on the threeman governing junta May 26. Three days later, Garcia Meza replaced the navy's commander and junta representative, leaving only the air force command and junta seat, held by Gen. Waldo Bernal, intact.

Franks, Nunley Wed In Afternoon Ceremony

Carla D'Ann Franks became the bride of Rollen Brooks Nunley in a double ring ceremony June 6 at 2 p.m. in the home of the groom's parents. Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of the Colonial Hill Baptist Church, officiated.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Haskell Franks of 3214 Avenue U and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Nunley of 2700 32nd.

Vows were exchanged before a fireplace flanked with greenery by candle trees decorated with greenery and baby's breath.

The bride was attired in a formal length gown of ivory qiana. Her sleeveless bodice featured a jewel neckline with an English net yoke. Clusters of Venise lace and seed pearls embossed the bodice. The full A-line skirt, bordered in lace, flowed into a chapel length train.

In keeping with tradition, for something old carried a handkerchief belonging to her great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Avis Woods. Something new was her wedding gown. The bride wore a pearl necklace borrowed from her sister, Mrs. Neale Kessler of Midland and something blue was a garter given to her by her cousin, Carrie Ainsworth.

The groom wore a coffee brown tuxedo with a matching bow tie and cummerbund and an ivory shirt. His boutonniere was a mauve silk rose.

Musical selections wee presented by Lori McCormick, pianist. She accompanied Mrs. Scott Clark as she sang "Theme from Ice Castles" and "The Wedding Song."

Mrs. Neale Kessler sister of the bride was matron of honor. She was attired in a mauve qiana floor length dress. The gown bodice was covered with a sheer organza top adorned with matching lace around the high neckline and cap sleeves. She carried a nosegay matching the bride's bouquet.

Chuck Bane served as best man. He wore a tuxedo identical to the groom's with a vest and bow tie. His boutonniere was also a mauve rose.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the dining room of the groom's parents' home.

The bride's table held a two tiered cake decorated with rose colored flowers topped with wedding bells, a centerpiece of matching silk flowers, punch, mints and nuts. The groom's cake was served from a buffet table covered with an ecru lace runner. Silver and crystal appointments were used on the tables. Serving were Mrs. Keith Carmichael, the groom's sister, Mrs. Scott Clark, Lori McCormick and Carrie Ainsworth, the bride's cousin.

Following the wedding trip, the couple are at home in Snyder where the bridegroom is an employee of Halliburton Services and the bride is a student at Western Texas College.

Prior to the wedding, the bride was honored at a bridal luncheon in the home of Mrs. Mark Duke. Other hostesses included Mrs. Kessler and Mrs. Carmichael. Also a lingerie shower honoring the bride was held in the home of Mrs. Vickie Bell. Hostesses were Mrs. Scott Clark, Valerie Wilson and Lori McCormick.

A rehersal dinner was held at The Shack hosted by the groom's parents.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Hall of Brownfield, formerly of Fluvanna, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Lynan, to Richard D. Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.G. Cox of Midland. The wedding will take place on July 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Fluvanna Baptist Church.

Graduate To Be Honored

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP) — The town of Mount Vernon is planning to honor one of the more illustrious graduates of Mount Vernon Township High School July 11: United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, class of 1944.

Rotary clubs in Mount Vernon, Mrs. Kirkpatrick's hometown, and Centralia originally planned a luncheon to honor Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Centralia native James Brady. But the plans were changed after the White House press secretary was wounded in an assassination attempt against President Reagan in March.

Tradition Is Popular Again For Most Couples

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Not many brides and grooms are writing their own wedding service these days. Rustic weddings on mountaintops or meadows with both bride and groom sporting the same long hairdo, popular in the 1970s, are also out of favor.

Being outrageous during and after the ceremony is out of fashion, according to a sampling of expert opinion. Instead, tradition is back where weddings are concerned.

It is reflected in the fact that marriages are steadily increasing and are expected to continue to rise through at least 1983. It is also seen in a rise in the number of formal weddings, say caterers and others who serve the bridal market.

Couples are going traditional when it comes to choosing some of their home furnishings, as well. Although not always recognized as such, the bridal market IS a home furnishings market.

Of the estimated $12.5 billion in sales that weddings are said to generate each year, more than half (51.5 percent) goes for home furnishings and household equipment, says Barbara Tober, editor of Bride's Magazine.

According to a home furnishings trade publication, the bridal market accounts for 50 percent of dinnerware sales, 48 percent of sterling sales and 40 percent of glassware sales.

Ms. Tober and others report a growing interest in bridal registries at gift and department stores, after a decline during the 1970s.

These registers enable a couple to record their choices for china, silver flatware and crystal and other household needs and to avoid duplication in gifts.

"Just about every major store in the country has one or is trying to figure out how to implement a bridal registry," said E. T. Catlett, Jr., president of Royal Doulton of America. Some stores that did not have bridal registers have added them, and others that did have them have improved and expanded them, he explained.

The register formerly concentrated mainly on the couple's choice of luxury tableware. Today, items such as sheets and towels, blankets, pots and pans, small electric appliances and other household necessities and luxuries are equally prominent on register lists. Brides and grooms (or more traditionally brides and their mothers) tend to have longer lists today after meeting with the store's bridal consultant, added Catlett.

The tabletop industry keeps close tabs on style preferences of brides, since a goodly portion of luxury items for the table are sold to this market.

Sara Jordan Marries Ricky Fritz In Midland

Sara Ruth Jordan and Ricky Dale Fritz were united in marriage on June 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Episcopal Church of Holy Trinity in Midland. The Rev. Derrill B. Manley officiated the double ring ceremony and Larry Blankenship assisted as acolyte.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William L. Jordan, Jr. of Midland and the late Mr. Jordan, former residents of Andrews. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fritz of Snyder. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Reeves of Hermleigh and of Mr. and Mrs. C.O. Barrett of Albany.

Arrangements of white gladiolii, yellow fujii mums and baby's breath in brass urns were placed on either side of the altar. Branched candelabra with cathedral tapers and decorated with woodwardia fern at the base lighted the steps to the altar. The aisles were marked with arrangements of white pom pom mums and baby's breath with yellow satin ribbon. The bridal couple knelt for the nuptial prayer on a white laced prie-dieu.

Robert Poer provided wedding music and accompanied Miss Kathy Brozowski of Lubbock as she sang "Evergreen" as the guests were gathering. Mrs. Lesa Wood of Lubbock sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, James E. Jordan of Hondo, wore a traditional white gown covered with Schiffle Embroidery. The molded bodice covered with scattered seed pearls featured a Queen Anne neckline and cap sleeves framed with silk Venise lace edges. A band of the lace also covered the waistline. The A-line skirt was covered with Schiffle Embroidery and swept to a chapel length train edged with lace. A lace-covered Camelot cap with seed pearls held a three tiered and lace edged full-length veil.

The bride carried a traditional cascade of stephanotis, yellow roses, and baby's breath centered with white phaelanopsis orchids. The orchids were grown especially for the bouquet by Lee N. Perry of Andrews.

Miss Laura Jean Jordan of Lubbock, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Leela Jordan Patterson of Graham, also a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridal attendans were Mrs. Ruth Arledge Dalrymple of San Marcos, cousin of the bride; Miss Kimberly Ann Fritz of Snyder, sister of the groom, and Miss Lela Anne Williams of Vernon, sorority sister of the bride. The attendants' floor-length yellow gowns featured a fitted bodice covered with a chiffon cape that tied at the shoulders and a pleated skirt. They carried crescent bouquets of yellow glamellias highighted with osage orange kalanchoes and baby's breath.

Miss Amy Jordan McKnight of Dallas was the flower girl. She wore a yellow floor length gown similarly fashioned to the those of the bridal attendants and yellow silk flowers, baby's breath and yellow ribbons in her hair. She carried a cascading bouquet of yellow daisies, osage orange kalanchoes and baby's breath in a white basket.

Billy Smith of Lubbock served as bst man. Groomsmen were brothers of the groom, Kerry Fritz of Snyder, Kevin Fritz of Wichita Falls, Tod Fritz of Snyder and Larry Huddleston of Snyder. Stephen M. Patterson of Graham, brother-in-law of the bride, Kenny Harbin of Snyder, John Hall and Russell Sutton, both of Lubbock, served as ushers.

The bride's mother wore an A-line blue chiffon gown and the bridegroom's mother wore a gown of seafoam chiffon. Both wore white phaelonopsis orchids and stephanotis corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Ranchland Hills Country Club. The bride's table was covered with white satin and centered with an arrangement of yellow gladiolii, fujii mums, baby's breath and Connecticut king lilies in an ornate silver candelabra holding cathedral length tapers. Nosegays of matching flowers were pinned at intervals around the edge of the table. The bride's table held a four-tiered white wedding cake assembled with lace-covered columns, yellow rose buds and topped with wedding bells. Punch, yellow and green mints and finger sandwiches were served from silver appointments. The room's table was covered with a white cloth and held an arrangement in a brass bucket of Red Rover mums. Coffee and chocolate cake were served.

Miss Ellen C. Arledge of El Campo, cousin of the bride, sat at the guest register. The table was covered with a white cloth and held a crescent shaped arrangement of yellow glamellias. Other members of the house party were Mrs. Rebecca Jordan Denton of Dallas, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Sharon Fritz of Snyder, Mrs. Cindy Fritz of Wichita Falls, sister-in-laws of the groom, Mrs. Catherine Tausch Braasch of Dallas, Miss DeAnna Hayworth of Odessa, Miss Terri Watkins of Austin and Donna Springer of Abilene. Miss Michelle Balliew and Miss Tammy Blliew, cousins of the groom, passed yellow rice roses to the wedding guests.

After a wedding trip to Horseshoe Bay, the couple will reside in Lubbock.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Andrews High School and now attends Texas Tech University. She is member of Delta Gamma sorority and is employed by Bolton Oil Company in Lubbock.

The groom is a 1977 graduate of Snyder High School. He is attending Texas Tech University and is employed by the Racquet Club of Lubbock. Mr. Fritz was a member of the Texas Tech cheerleading squad.

A rehersal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents on Friday night, June 5, at the Holiday Country Villa. Forty guests attended.

A bridesmaid's luncheon was held at the Ranchland Hills Country Club on the wedding day honoring the bride. Hostesses were Mrs. James E. Jordan of Hondo, Mrs. John W. Diamond M To Show Films

The Diamond M Museum is continuing its series of "Museum Sundays" this weekend with films about artists from the southwest. "Maria of the Pueblos" and "Peter Hurd" will be the featured films.

"Maria of the Pueblos" traces the career of Maria Martinez, world famous Indian artist, and shows how she and her family produce their iridescent black pottery. The film also explains Maria's impact in helping her people rise from poverty and gives an understanding of the cultures, philosophy, art and economic condition of the Pueblos Indians of San Ildefonso, New Mexico.

"Peter Hurd" features the artist Peter Hurd at his ranch home in San Patricio, New Mexico. Hurd tells why he paints, how he conceives a painting, what things motivate him, how he uses light and color and his approach to portrait painting.

Showtime is at 2 p.m., Sunday, June 28, and as with all the museum's functions, there is no admission charge. The Diamond M invites the public to the museum for an entertaining and informative Sunday afternoon.

Becky Wafer became the bride of Brent Hardegree on May 22 in the Colorado and Jackson Street Church of Christ in San Angelo. Rev. Eddie Howard performed the double ring rights.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Wafer of Albany and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Hardegree of Colorado City.

The musical program was provided by Gwen Parsons of San Angelo, Terri Rosson of Lamesa, Keith Wallace of Irving and Steve Albritten of Amarillo. During the ceremony the singers sang "Faithful and True" and the traditional wedding march by Wagner was performed.

The bride entered with her father wearing a white dacron organza dress with net yoke and full sleeves. Silk Venice lace trimmed the yoke, sleeves, cuffs, skirt and chapel train. The three-layer veil of bridal illusion was attached to a silk cap trimmed in Venice lace. She carried a spring bouquet of silk flowers on a white Bible that was given to her at age five by her parents.

Her something borrowed was a ring from Carolyn Russell of Snyder. Something old was a lace handkerchief belonging to her late great-grandmother, Nancy Barton. Something blue was her garter and something new was her dress.

Doctors Honored At Cogdell On June 8

A coffee was given on June 8 in the Cogdell Memorial Hospital for three doctors who joined the staff here in June of various years. The doctors honored were Dr. Nelson Brice, Dr. W.B. McSpadden and Dr. T. David Wiman. Each was presented with an engraved pen by Carl Burleson, hospital activity director, who told the doctors of the appreciation that the hospital staff and community has for them.

Dr. Nelson Brice received his Master's degree in Biology and Chemistry in 1960 and his M.D. and surgeon degree in May of 1968. He was an emergency room surgeon at the Concepion University Hospital in Chile. Dr. Nelson also taught anatomy there.

He and his family moved to the United States in April of 1975. He did his postgraduate work at the Lubbock Medical School and the French Hospital in New York. He has practiced in Snyder since 1976.

Dr. Brice and his wife, Nancy, have two boys, Alex and Alfred. He deals mainly in family practice here in Snyder.

Dr. W.B. McSpadden did his undergraduate work at McMurray University in Abilene and his graduate work at the University of Texas in Austin. He received his M.D. from the University of Texas Southwestern. Besides his medical degrees, Dr. McSpadden also has his Master's degree in education from the University of Texas. He did his internship at Saint Paul's Hospital in Dallas.

Dr. McSpadden practiced in Muleshoe and Morton, TX, before coming to Snyder in 1968. A native of Rotan, he enjoys living near his birthplace. He and his wife, Vera, have three children, Brad, Joy and Loy. He is also in family practice.

Dr. T. David Wiman is a doctor of Osteopathic Medicine. He did his undergraduate work at Harding-Simmons University in Abilene and his graduate work at the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine. Dr. Wiman's internship was done at East Town Osteopathic Hospital in Dallas.

Dr. Wiman is married to the former Frances Morton and both are originally from Snyder. They have four children, David, Chris, Shanda and Jerry in their home.

The couple repeated their vows before an archway covered with greenery and white daisies and yellow bows with tiers of candles on either side of the arch decorated identically.

The musical program was presented by Mrs. D'Ann Preston, organist, and Ross Preston, brother of the bride, D'Ann Preston, sister-in-law of the bride, and Troy Lilly, singers. They performed "The Wedding Song", "Time In A Bottle" and "Till The Rivers Run Dry."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. she wore a white brocaded satin lined taffeta gown with a delicate lace yolk and high stand up collar of lace. Also featured were a blouson waist line with a satin self tie bow in front. The gathered waist exteded to form a chapel length train in white brocaded satin. Her hat had matching lace with a finger tip veil.

Best man was Mike Blissard of Stanton. Groomsmen were Brian Bowlin of Stanton, Gary Allen of Longview and Paul Sparks of Odessa. Koy Blocker and Kevin Newman, both of Stanton, and Kevin Bowlin of Odessa were ushers.

The ring bearer was Cole Sterling of Ira. He wore a pale green suit.

The reception was also held in the home of the groom immediately following the ceremony.

The bride's table was draped with a yellow lace tablecloth with a centerpiece of candles and daisies. The three tiered wedding cake was made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Roy Reeder. Mrs. D'Ann Preston and Mrs. Martha Ratliff resided over the table.

The groom's table was covered with a tan lace tablecloth and held a brass bud vase of yellow flowers and a German Chocolate cake in the shape of a horse shoe. Presiding over the table were Miss Mary Sanford and Mrs. Mike Blissard. Lesa Sterling registered guests in the bride's book.

Wild Rice Is Different Dish

MY WILD RICE

Inspired by Japanese cuisine.

8 medium to large (about ½ pound) mushrooms
2 tablespoons bottled teriyaki sauce
12 medium scallions, roots and any frayed tops trimmed
1 medium green pepper
Hot cooked wild rice

Separate mushroom caps from stems. Finely knife-chop or in a food processor coarsely grate the stems; mix with 1 tablespoon of the teriyake sauce; stuff caps with stem mixture. Arrange in 2 rows on a capacious sheet of heavy foil. Slice scallions, including green tops, fairly thin. Halve pepper and discard seeds; quarter each half lengthwise; slice crosswise fairly thin. Around the mushroom caps scatter the scallions and green pepper and sprinkle them with the remaining teriyaki sauce. Bring two opposite edges of the foil together and make a drugstore fold; fold over the ends several times to make a leakproof package. Place on the center rack of a preheated 350-degree oven and bake for 30 minutes. Top the mushrooms with a little of the scallion-pepper mixture and sprinkle the rest on the rice. Place the mushrooms on the rice. Makes 4 servings.

expendable regulations

Americans who have become increasingly aware that they were being over-regulated by a burgeoning bureaucracy in Washington should be happy to learn that something is finally being done about it.

During its first six months in office, the Reagan administration has demonstrated its commitment to deregulation by reviewing, modifying or postponing 181 new federal rules. The one-time saving may amount to $18 billion, and the annual saving will be near $6 billion. That is just fine, for a starter.

President Reagan set out to liberate the country from its burdensome regulations as soon as he could after Inauguration Day. In late January, he created a Task Force on Regulatory Relief, headed by Vice President George Bush. Subsequently he required all federal departments to submit proposed and existing regulations to a cost-benefit test by the Office of Management and Budget. However, the Supreme Court has hobbled this program with its ruling that cost efficiency tests cannot apply to workplace safety standards.

The savings from the Reagan administration's first flurry of deregulation prove that freeing business and industry from costly, stifling federal rules could be as important in stimulating the nation's economy as balancing the federal budget. Mr. Reagan made this point himself by including regulatory relief in his four-point national economic recovery program along with cutting federal spending, reforming the tax structure and deflationary monetary policy.

Dramatic results became clear at once when the regulatory task force changed proposed Department of Transportation regulations that would otherwise have cost the automobile industry $1.4 billion. This will mean consumer savings of $9.3 billion in the next five years. Gone with the auto industry restraints are less costly but equally expendable rules governing dress codes for school children, bilingual education standards and household appliance standards. The number of new regulations proposed by federal agencies has been cut in half since January.

Now that the presidential task force has curbed the bureaucracy's appetite for rule-making, it can start on the accumulated mountain of existing regulations. This could produce savings that would really stimulate the economy.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Where there is an open mind, there will always be a frontier."

At Lions Club a couple of weeks back, a representative from Southwestern Bell presented a program on some of the new technological advances in communications.

The advances are remarkable, and he envisions the time when a vast majority of American homes will be run by personal computers.

For example, the working wife might turn on dinner by calling her home telephone number from the office. The family away on vacation might turn on the air conditioner from Abilene just by calling the home telephone which is tied into the computer.

One of the items that intrigued us most was a small device soon to be marketed in the Houston area. It is a portable telephone about the size of a television remote control.

The device enables the businessman to take a call anywhere within a 12-mile radius of the telephone. It's all accomplished without mobile operators and the cost is expected to be about $12 per month.

Following the program a group talked with the SW Bell man about the possibility of using the telephone as part of the city's emergency warning system.

Snyder presently relies on two systems. One is the recently installed sirens in various parts of the community. Although the system is the best on the market, it is not without flaw and some folks maintain they have difficulity hearing the siren during high winds and thunder.

Because Snyder has such a high concentration of cable TV subscribers, another vehicle for warning residents is the radio over the cable. Sometimes loss of power makes this system ineffective. Also there is a chance that a storm might approach in the middle of the night when few televisions are turned on.

The telephone man was asked if the local phone system could also be used in our warning system. Say a threatening storm was approaching Snyder at 3 a.m. and officials felt a warning was necessary. The civil defense center could activite a device what would ring every telephone in the city. When answered, the resident would hear the appropriate recording that a toronado had been sighted and is approaching the city.

City Manager John Gayle was in on the discussion, and it will be interesting to get more detailed information on the system for Snyder.

hidden taxes

Some years ago I sought to backtrack on the production of a single loaf of bread to determine how much of the purchase price was "taxes."

My search led all the way back to the tires on the farmer's tractor and the sales tax on his seed. I noted that the truck which delivered the wheat to market paid an assortment of taxes -- as did the miller and marketer.

With my search probably incomplete, I found that on one loaf of bread there are four hundred separate taxes!

Recently you and I were pinched to pay federal and state income taxes. Enormous as those levies have become, however, most of us are paying out even more in "hidden taxes."

Sam Smith for Chicago's Tribune computes that in his city an average family of four with an income of $20,000 pays 24 percent of that income in federal taxes, another 6.65 percent in Social Security taxes and 2.5 percent in Illinois state tax.

But that's not all...

On your $50,000 suburban house you are paying an annual property tax of $1,633.

When the lights and appliances are operating in your house you are running up a utility bill PLUS state and local taxes totaling an extra 6.5 percent.

For the heat you use in your house you must pay the state an extra 2 percent and the city an additional 5.5 percent.

Use your telephone and the state adds its 2 percent, the city adds its 6.5 percent and the federal government wants another 2 percent.

Your phone bill is 10.5 percent taxes!

And these are Chicago figures which are LESS than New York, Philadelphia, Milwaukee or Los Angeles.

In Chicago the sales tax is 4 percent on food and drugs, 6 percent on anything else.

At the ball park you pay a 4 percent amusement tax plus a 30 percent parking tax.

Of the price of each gallon of gasoline in your car 23 cents is tax.

And that windshield sticker represents a $40 tax.

Smoke or drink and the tax man really socks it to you.

On every gallon of alcohol $13 is tax.

On every pack of cigarettes there's a 5 cent city tax, a 5 cent county tax, a 12 cent state tax plus a 30 cent federal tax.

During the past 10 years taxes, federal, state and local, have increased 155 percent -- almost twice as fast as consumer prices.

The Tax Foundation, Inc., calculates that your taxes now amount to more than 30 percent of your earnings. That means that three hours of every workday you are "working for the government."

And history says that when people are taxed more than one-third of their income, incentive is destroyed and the national economy stagnates and declines.

What President Reagan is trying to do -- relieve the federal overload -- is not enough -- but it is a necessary beginning.

woman's world

by rusty brown

The trend-watchers tell us that youth these days is less rebellious, more traditional, conservative and willing to join the "system." Youth, they say, is done with drifting from school to school, from one unskilled job to another.

Instead of protest marches, the young are joining management-training programs. They are cutting their hair, putting on suits and lipstick and buying Betamax instead of backpacks.

I sigh when I read what the pulse-takers write. The young people in our family are as anti-establishment as ever. We long ago accepted their rejection of our values, our expectations for them. We honor their vows of poverty, their reluctance to eat meat, their preference for sesame-sunflower bread, their interest in yoga and meditation.

We wrung our hands at first but have become accustomed to their distrust of affluence and materialism. Their hatred for nukes and President Reagan's budget cuts.

We live with their disdain for the corporate world. We listen when they say they feel control of their time and quality of life are more important than the security of a regular paycheck. They see what job pressures and years of 10-hour work days have done to us and they say, "No way." They have a point.

All this we try to understand, though we puzzle about it.

But at last I have found a link between our disparate views. It is a love the handmade. The young expressed it first in the earthenware pots they bought. Lately, their admiration for the handmade has gone a step further to an appreciation for the old as well — especially if it has been in the family.

In this we are alike.

I cherish the family homespun blanket that has been handed down through the years and is kept in a 100-year-old humpback trunk in the bedroom. The year 1841 is woven into one corner.

I carefully oil the soft pine cutlery box made by the "hired man" on my great-grandfather's farm and wrap my dust cloth around the hand-turned spools on the Jenny Lind bed. Grandmother's old muslin pillowcases wore out long ago, but I salvage the lace trim she tatted and sew it onto today's perma-press.

One treasure lay folded in the linen closet for years and in my mother's closet for 25 years before that. It is the top for a quilt — never finished — made by my Aunt Mollie when she was a child. Born in 1897, she must have been about 12, when she sewed together the white and turkey-red geometric patches.

On larger squares she emboridered the children and animals of nursery rhymes and below some of them stitched titles: Teddy Bear's Tuesday, Sly Fox, Milkmad (she forgot the "i"). The only adult rewarded with a profile by Mollie was William Howard Taft, elected president in 1908.

One can picture her, in pinafore, black stockings and buckled shoes, carefully outlining each ear of the teddy bear with her thread and industrious needle.

A year ago, our young people, who had been living together, decided to marry. The evening they came to tell us, we brought out Aunt Mollie's unfinished quilt cover. They were enchanted, and the bride's fingers lovingly traced the tiny stitches.

"Would you like it?" we asked. "Shall we have it quilted for you?" Their eyes gave the answer.

It was not easy to get the work done. Quilters are rare nowadays and even when we finally found women able to do it, it was three months in the making.

We carried the quilt east with us on a recent visit, bearing it to the young with as much pride as if it were gold, or frankincense and myrrh. They unfolded it with reverence.

"Perfect for a child's room," we said.

"Yes," they agreed, "and we have news about that."

And so, for all the gaps between us and the deep differences, a love of heritage and handwork brings us close.

The baby-to-come will be cradled in a quilt that lay in wait through four generations for this birth. Aunt Mollie's gift will link yesterday, today and tomorrow.

"Blest be the tie that binds our hearts..."

To The Daily News:

Regarding our grandson, William Wayne "Skeeter" Overman, killed in an oilfield accident on June 12 of this year, for my own peace of mind, I feel that something should be added to his obituary. In our state of shock, we failed to mention his church affiliation and Christian service. Skeeter accepted Christ as his savior at a very early age and joined a Baptist church. He attended and participated in worship services wherever he happened to be living or visiting, including his four years during high school at Second Baptist Church in Andrews, Tex., where he was song leader and very active in youth work. He was also youth and music director at a small church near Bryan during his freshman year at A&M. He also had charge of midweek services at Louise, Tex., numerous times while living with an uncle and working days and attending night classes at Wharton Junior College.

We that were close to him feel that he would want the world to know he was a Christian.

In its report Wednesday, SAPA quoted the prospector, Boet Sonnenberg, as saying the flawless diamond is worth about $450,000. There was no independent confirmation of that figure.

Offshore Work Is Tough Career

ABOARD THE PLATFORM GI-43AA, Gulf of Mexico (AP) — John Fisher works half a year but earns more money than most who work the year around.

His salary affords him the extra comforts of life. But to earn it, he must live with more danger than most encounter in a lifetime.

Fisher is not a skydiver or a high wire walker or a lion tamer. He is a roustabout who toils 200 feet above the shark-infested Gulf waters on this platform 20 miles off the Louisiana shore.

He swings from ropes, rides for hours aboard a rickety work boat on choppy seas, lives with 70 others in cramped quarters aboard this winding labyrinth of metal and climbs around repairing awkward-looking machinery Conoco Inc. uses to separate crude oil and natural gas pumped from 10,000 feet below the earth's surface.

The work is dangerous and often lonely, but Fisher says the money is simply too good to pass up. He works 26 weeks — taking every other week off — and makes about $26,000 a year, not counting overtime.

"That's the reason I came out here, and I enjoy having seven straight days off," said the tall, lanky and soft-spoken Fisher.

He and his wife live in northern Louisiana, where they own two cars and a home and are in the process of building a second house.

But Fisher — like many of his co-workers from Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Florida — endures a seven-hour drive to Grand Isle, south of New Orleans, where he catches a boat that shuttles him to work.

"That's the sacrifice we have to make," he said. "I wouldn't want to have to move, and working offshore allows me and my wife to have the kind of lifestyle we're accustomed to."

The price they pay for these comforts takes its toll in other ways as well.

The Tulane School of Public Health, in a recent study of deaths of Louisiana's oil field workers from 1973 to 1978, rated the danger of offshore work 20 times greater than jobs of the average American and four times as hazardous as high-risk construction jobs.

Beyond the physical dangers, the crew aboard 43AA say there are emotional hazards for the men and women who abandon land to live and work offshore in an isolated community. Here, leaving strained or broken relations with those on shore is commonplace.

"If a guy or a girl comes out here, leaving a husband or wife by themselves to tend to the house, chances are pretty high that it won't last long," said Bill Cotie, a maintenance foreman who was divorced after taking the job and has since remarried.

"After a guy has worked offshore for a week, about the only thing he wants to do when he goes home is stay home. But it's just the opposite for the wife, who's been cooped up all week," Cotie said.

Cotie and the others aboard the 43AA knew what they were getting into when they signed on. Each was required to pass tests compiled by the American Petroleum Institute to measure his ability to interpret mechanical skills and concepts "so the company won't be peeling them off the side of a mountain in Denver, Colo.," said Drew Williams, field production foreman.

Safety rules in this often hostile environment are stringent, and the use of alcohol and illegal drugs forbidden.

The 43AA crew has racked up more than 2 million work hours since 1969 without a "lost-time" accident, Williams said, while supplying customers with more than 225 million barrels of oil and 850 million cubic feet of natural gas over the past decade.

Each day begins before dawn when the overnight crewman flips on the room light and hollers, "It's five o'clock."

After a hearty breakfast of grits, eggs, bacon, sausage and muffins, half the crew is shipped out to work the 12-hour shift on one of more than two dozen satellite platforms planted around the 43AA field while the others remain on the mother rig checking pressure charts, changing valves and performing other miscellaneous chores.

Meanwhile, the galley hands pick up baskets of laundry that line the halls outside the living quarters, make up the beds and prepare a light lunch and dinner of seafood, steaks or barbecue.

But while life aboard an offshore platform may seem pampered to the casual observer, Cheryl Cunningham, one of three women who work on 43AA, insists sharing a 104-foot-by-65-foot area with as many as 80 others is not luxury.

"Everybody is always saying what great conditions we live in, how easy we have it," said the 27-year-old Ms. Cunningham. "Sure, we eat well and are paid well. We also have a bed but it's not a Posturepedic."

Barring the unexpected, the shift ends before dusk, and the crews spend the remainder of the day relaxing.

But relaxing is not easy.

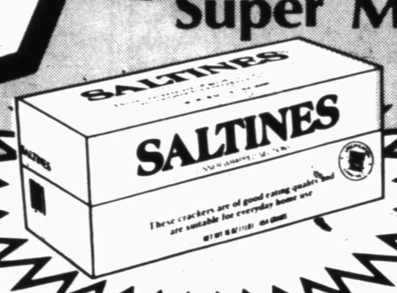

"The whole day is so controlled that you'd just like to unwind when you finish. But that's the problem — there's no place to go to unwind," Ms. Cunningham said.

"There aren't any places to go, so you don't need any money unless you're brave enough to gamble in one of the 'booray' games," she said, referring to a match-the-pot card game combining some of the rules of bridge with some of the rules of poker.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Your Birthday

Bernice Bede Osol

June 28, 1981

Your family and relatives could come to your aid financially if you are saddled with extra domestic responsibilities in the year ahead. This is especially true if they are Leos or Librans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be in for a pleasant surprise today when a situation you had small hopes for turns into something beneficial. Luck will play a big part. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others may think in small terms today, but it's not likely you will. You know how to make big ideas work and bring what you hope for into being.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something advantageous could develop today, something helpful careerwise and financially, through an influential contact. Maintain friendly terms with big wheels.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Solutions are likely to be found today for something for which, till now, you had no answers. Your ideas will be good ones. Be prepared to act.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Joint ventures hold more promise than usual for you today. There's a chance you could luck into something that another already had going successfully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) One reason your friends will find you a desirable companion today is that you'll make a sincere effort to understand their points of view.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a good achiever today. Whatever you set your hand or mind to, you will do well. Realistic pride won't let you settle for second best.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to participate in activities today that permit you to move around both mentally and physically. A challenging social sport could be just what the doctor ordered.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Stay atop situations today that you feel could be of personal benefit as well as helpful to people about whom you're concerned. They should turn out to be fortunate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Involve yourself in diversionary activities today rather than things of a commercial nature. Business dealings could prove unfruitful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Seek companions today who are doing things you feel to be productive and rewarding. You're lucky in areas where you use your industriousness.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a chance you could get started on the wrong foot today, but don't despair. Everything should brighten by afternoon. Make your plans accordingly.

June 29, 1981

Individuals you have personally helped in the past will make sincere efforts this coming year to return favors. In some instances, more may be done for you than you did for them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In dealing with those less fortunate than yourself today, give way to your compassionate instincts. Be helpful, but don't broadcast your good deeds. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be a bit more assertive today if there is someone you are interested in romantically, but haven't yet gotten to first base with. Tides are changing.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're quite competitive today, but others won't be offended by your tactics. In fact, they'll admire your methods and try to imitate them later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The types of people with whom you associate today will have a great influence on your creativity. Select companions who are imaginative. They'll stimulate your thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Things look good today regarding a business venture in which you're involved. Continue to use good judgment and sound methods to assure lasting success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your mate could have some very good ideas today regarding that in which you're both involved. Listen carefully to the suggestions he or she offers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is one of those days where being of service could bring unexpected rewards. Your purpose in helping won't be profit-motivated, but gains could result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You should be rather lucky today, especially where you are dealing with members of the opposite sex. They'll find your charm difficult to resist.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It may take you a trifle longer than usual to accomplish what you set out to do today, but through persistence you will achieve the types of end results you desire.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Sometimes we can plan too extensively and block our own progress. This could be true of you today. That which you do spontaneously has the best chance for success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be on your toes today. Something may suddenly develop which could spell personal gain for you. A member of the opposite sex may help bring it about.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have lots of initiative today and you are likely to find several promising situations where you can put your enterprise and drive to good uses.

Man With A Golden Pen

Americans Are Ready To Kick OPEC Habit

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — William C. Douce says American people are ready to kick the OPEC habit if current signs are any indication.

The president and chief executive officer of Phillips Petroleum Co. says a fundamental shift is occuring in the energy use patterns of consuming nations, particularly in the United States.

"The full impact of this shift on world oil economics has not yet been fully realized, although the OPEC ministers meeting in Geneva last month began to come to grips with this new reality," he said.

Douce said U.S. imports of crude oil and refined oil products in April fell to their lowest level since 1973.

The nation imported 5.4 million barrels of oil a day in April, a decline of more than 22 percen from April last year.

"This is a continuation of a trend which began to take hold last year when our country experienced the largest year-to-year decline in oil use in history," Douce said.

"As a result, we were able to cut our oil imports by nearly 20 percent compared to 1979."

Douce said the reduced consumption stems from several factors:

- A steady switch from oil to coal in electrical generation.
- More efficient use of energy in both the industrial and public sectors.
- Reduced driving and the increased use of smaller cars in the United States, with domestid gasoline consumption in March declining to 6 million barrels daily, the lowest point since 1971.
- Generally depressed economic conditions which have limited energy use.

Douce said that although some of the factors such as sluggish economic conditions, may be viewed as short term, there is evidence the general trend toward reduced energy consumpion will become more pronounced in the years ahead.

He said Phillips, in 1980, cut its energy usage by the equivalent of 1.6 million barrels of oil.

"New energy conserving capital projects costing $19 million were approved last year, bringing our total investment in energy conservation to more than $200 million," he said.

The American Petroleum Institute reported this month that the refining sector of the industry achieved energy savings of 19.4 percent in 1980 compared with a 1972 base period. It said its survey required by the Department of Energy involved energy utilization by 61 companies that account for 93 percent of the operable refining capacity in the United States and Puerto Rico.

Douce said there is no question that reducing the present level of petroleum consumption is in the nation's best interests.
