Southwest Is In Full Grip Of Cold Wave

Motor Traffic Is Suspended In Some Areas While Fear Is Being Felt For Safety Of Big Bend Hunters

Rain Is Forecast

Snow Is Of Unusual Depth In All Sections; Cattle Said To Be Suffering; Moisture To Relieve Drouth

(By The Associated Press)

SOUTHWEST TEXAS was in the grip of a blinding snowstorm today. Full force of the drive struck the Big Bend and Davis mountain regions, deeply blanketing the ranges and mountains. Other parts of the state were drenched by steady, pouring rains.

Motor traffic on the highways was blocked at many points. Slippery roads caused dozens of cars to run into ditches deeply drifted with snow. Railroad officials reported seeing motorists who had abandoned their cars, walking to towns. Rescue parties were being sent out from Alpine and other points to prevent casualties.

Fear For Safety

Concern was expressed for the safety of deer hunting parties and cowboys riding the ranges. It was feared that many of them had been caught in the open and might suffer from exposure before they could reach shelter. Cattle and sheep men considered it possible that their stock had suffered.

Reports indicated that the snow was of unusual depth, possibly heavier than at any time in recent years. Alpine, Pecos, Big Lake, Odessa, Midland, Sweetwater, El Paso, Marfa, Big Spring and other towns reported snow at depths ranging from four to eight inches in the open and several feet in the drifts.

Force Is Renewed

Snow fell all of last night and then descended with renewed vigor for hours today. At Odessa it was driven with such force that oil operators had to suspend work.

Cattlemen and farmers, however, regarded the statewide precipitation as relief from a drouth of several months duration. In the Big Bend country there had been no rain for nearly six months. Stockmen had been forced to either move their herds to other ranges or buy winter feed.

Rainfall was heavy in east, central, west and north Texas, precipitating over an inch at most points. The fall was slow at times, but continued steadily.

Colder Is Forecast

Near-freezing temperatures accompanied the storm in the southwest region. Other parts of the

Temporary Order Given By Atwell

WICHITA FALLS, Dec. 1. (AP) — A temporary injunction to prevent the city of Seymour from enforcing an electric power rate ordinance was granted the Texas Electric Service company in federal court today by Judge William Hawley Atwell.

The complainants alleged in their petition that the city of Seymour had passed an ordinance setting a minimum rate for electricity which was higher than the rate being charged by the Texas Electric Service company and setting a penalty of $100 a day for violation of the edict.

Compliance with this ordinance would cause many of the company's customers to change to the municipal plant and would amount to confiscation of property, the petition set out.

Mother Love Keynote For Walker Plea

Impassioned Appeal For Justice Made By New Yorker

(By The Associated Press)

STATE BUILDING, SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—The Mooney pardon hearing before Gov. James Rolph, jr., was concluded at 3:35 this afternoon with summarization of the record of Aaron Sapiro, associate counsel.

Governor Rolph referred questioners who asked when his decison might be expected to his counsel, Matt I. Sullivan.

Sullivan said it would require some time as every scrap of evidence and the entire record of the case would have to be reviewed.

Stirring Appeal

He declined to approximate a time, countering, "well it's a most voluminous record—I haven't the slightest idea how long it will take.

A stirring appeal for a pardon for Mooney was made by Mayor James J. Walker of New York before Governor Rolph today on the ground Mooney was convicted on perjured testimony and that the trial judge, jury, and prosecutor now favor executive clemency.

The mayor, stressing the fact he was making his plea "as an attorney from another state," told the governor, at times under evident emotional stress, that he believed Mooney to be an innocent man.

Begs For Justice

His voice broke as he held out his hands toward the supreme court bench where sat the governor of California and begged that Rolph "do justice where justice has been denied."

Walker began his speech at noon and spoke 40 minutes before the luncheon recess. He closed in another 30 minutes after the intermission.

Although he was troubled by a severe cold the visiting mayor did not falter as he pictured at the close the yearning of "Mother" Mooney for her son.

May Son Be There

"Some day the sun will go down in sunny California," he said, "and that dear old soul will not be here. When that night comes may her son be there."

He submitted that "this is a case

Jimmie Wedell Shatters Mark For Hop As Frank Hawks Is Forced Down In California By Dizziness Attack

(By The Associated Press)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 1. — Boosted along by a tail wind which frustrated Captain Frank Hawks, bound on the same errand but going in the opposite direction, Jimmie Wedell, New Orleans aviator, set a new three-flag, Mexico-Canada flight record today.

Wedell's speedy plane surpassed his expectations so much that he kept going for 100 miles after he reached here and although he trimmed more than an hour off the previous record for the Agua Caliente-Vancouver, B. C., flight, he could have cut two hours off the record if he had landed the first time he hove into sight.

Hawks Is Down

Wedell left Agua Caliente, Mexico, at 6:17 a. m., and set his wheels down on the Sea Island airport here at 12:57 p. m., flying approximately 1400 miles in 6 hours, 40 minutes, or better than 200 miles an hour. He passed over the airport at 11:53 a. m.

Meanwhile Capt. Frank Hawks, who holds many speed records, was down at Granada in northern California. He landed there safely when dizziness overcame him. Hawks left Vancouver at 9 a. m. in attempt to beat the record set by Hall last summer.

Santa May Forget But Lubbock Lions Are To See That Poor Tots Get Toys

TOYS to gladden the hearts of youngsters whom Santa Claus may not have on his list this Christmas will be gathered by Boy Scouts, repaired by members of the Lubbock fire department and distributed by the Lions club at their annual party for children.

A committee from the Lions club Tuesday night accepted the offer of the toys made by the scouts and the fire department, Chairman of the Lions committee is C. Fred Litton and other members are E. H. McKinney, Paul Sherrod, H. W. Moore, C. C. Lindsey and J. B. Morriset.

Lubbock children who have toys they have discarded can bring cheer to other children by donating the playthings. These toys will be collected Saturday by the Boy Scouts. All those who have toys to give are urged to telephone the scout office, 695, before Saturday morning.

Fire Chief W. E. Twitty and Mayor J. J. Clements Tuesday told Scout Executive D. T. Jennings the fire department would repair and refinish the toys.

Date of the Christmas party, at the Lindsey theater where the toys will be distributed, has not been set, Litton said Tuesday.

"We'll Turn Back Some Of The Money," Ely Declares

Texas Commission Refuses Any Change In Specifications Of Lubbock County Road

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Dec. 1.—No change will be made in the specifications for material for highway seven from Lubbock, northwest, the Texas highway commission told a Lubbock county delegation today. Commissioners J. T. Pinkston and L. C. Denton complained that when the campaign for the bond issue in Lubbock county was being waged voters were told the highway would be constructed of concrete and that several protests had been registered against the plan of the highway commission to substitute caliche and asphalt.

W. R. Ely, commission chairman, told the delegation that construction as planned by the state would give Lubbock county a much better road at considerable less expense and leave the county with sufficient funds to materially improve other roads. Ely said the wealth of local material would reduce maintenance on highway seven to a minimum and that the asphalt and caliche would be in good condition for several years where concrete paving would deteriorate rapidly.

Turn Back Money

"Let the highway department build this road like it wants to and we will turn back some of the money to the county for use in paying off the bonds or additional improvements," Ely stated.

Protest of a Travis county delegation against the proposed change in the route of the Austin-Houston highway between Manor and Elgin was heard but the commission looked with disfavor on rebuilding the highway on its present location. The new route will reduce the distance between Elgin and Manor four miles.

The present route was termed one of the worst pieces of road in the state, the commission expressing a strong desire to proceed with the improvement possible.

Award Contracts

The commission today awarded road and bridge construction contracts, aggregating $736,024, bringing the total for the two-day session to $1,781,378.

Bids have been asked by the commission on additional projects estimated to cost $1,400,000. These bids will be opened December 12.

Contracts awarded today called for improvement of 95.4 miles, construction of ten bridges and one railroad grade elimination. Of the total to be improved, 58.2 miles will be grading and drainage structures; nine miles of concrete paving and 28.3 miles of other types of hard surface.

Invitation To Plains Cities Will Be Given

Committee Members Today Are To Visit Several Towns To Ask Citizens To Be Guests Here On Dec. 11

Invitations to attend a Christmas pageant and parade here Friday, Dec. 11, will be extended to seven or more South Plains towns Wednesday by members of the chamber of commerce public relations committee and virtually all South Plains communities will be visited before the day of the event here.

DISMISS SCHOOLS

Lubbock public school children will be released from their classes Friday morning, Dec. 11, to view the mammoth Santa Claus parade here at 11 o'clock, it was announced Tuesday by members of the school board. The question of dismissal for the event had been referred to the board by Supt. M. H. Duncan. The parade, approximately a mile and a half long and depicting the birth of the Christ, the visit of the three wise men, the adoration of the shepherds and the quaint customs of foreign countries, will be the feature of the Christmas pageant.

About 15 committeemen attended a meeting of the public relations group at chamber of commerce offices Tuesday morning and arranged for trips Wednesday. Charles A. Guy, Truman C. Meinecke, Bert Pinson and possibly others will go to Abernathy, Hale Center, Plainview and possibly other towns north of here telling city officials of the pageant and inviting townspeople.

Capacity Sale Of Tickets Is Expected Here

Two Thousand Ducats Are Sent To Amarillo While Sales In City Total 1,300 Just Seven Hours After Start

Seven hours after tickets for the Amarillo-Lubbock football clash here Thursday at Tech field went on sale at Bowen's Hilton pharmacy Tuesday, 1,300 had been sold. Seating capacity at the field cannot exceed 7,500 and possibly will be less, school officials said Tuesday night.

Two thousand tickets for reserved seats on the west side grandstand were mailed to Amarillo Tuesday afternoon and will go on sale there today, E. J. Lowrey, business manager, said. It was learned here last night that approximately 1,500 Golden Sandstorm fans would come to Lubbock Thursday on two or three special trains over the Santa Fe.

The specials will arrive about noon Thursday, it was learned at the local Santa Fe office, and will depart for Amarillo about 7:30 o'clock.

Approximately 900 more reserved seat tickets for the west side grandstand have not been sold, it was said at the drug store.

May Add Seats

"We may add a few more box seats and in that way increase the capacity by about 300, but we will not have time to build any more stands," said Lowrey.

About 600 Lubbock courtesy cars will be needed to carry members of the Amarillo delegation to the game, M. H. Duncan, superintendent of schools, said Tuesday. The cars are to begin arriving at the Hilton hotel at 1 o'clock. Lubbock people who have cars they can use are urged to telephone Mr. Duncan. SAN ANGELO, Dec. 1. — A coroner's inquest this afternoon failed to throw further light on the mysterious affray which last night resulted in the killing of Tom McAfee, 44, fireman, by Terry B. Sterrett, local druggist.

Sterrett, whose wife was shot in the back, says he was attacked as he drove into his garage. Sterrett said he fired at the man and that another began beating him in the face. He does not remember much else that happened except that he heard his wife scream and then another shot. When it was over he found she had been wounded, he said. Sherrett was badly beaten.

Neighbors report they saw two men running from the garage shortly after the shots were fired. Mrs. Sterrett, whose condition is critical, says she was shot by a small man and believes she could identify him. McAfee was a large man.

Payment Of Poll Taxes Increasing

Payments of poll taxes, entitling the holders to votes in the 1932 elections from city to the presidential election to date are heavier than last year, it was said Tuesday at the office of the county tax collector.

Approximately 530 persons paid poll taxes or claimed exemptions during October and November. Of that number 32 were exemptions. The voting tax must be paid before Feb. 1.

Persons who were not 21 years of age January 1, 1931, but who will be 21 prior to the elections are entitled to vote, but, in cities of 10,000 or more population, must secure the exemptions. Residents of rural sections and smaller cities, who can claim exemptions, are not required to secure them to vote. Persons older than 60 years last January also are entitled to exemptions. Approximately 3,500 poll taxes were paid in Lubbock county in 1930, as compared with 6,500 paid in 1929 for the privilege of voting in the 1930 state elections.

Chaplin Has Disagreeable London Role

Famous Comedian Is Very Grave As He Faces Charge

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Charlie Chaplin played a courtroom role today, and didn't like it very well.

CHARLES CHAPLIN

The comedian, looking the part of complete gravity, gave a performance that failed to impress Judge Tobin. The judge, in fact, was pretty free with his criticism.

The upshot of the proceedings was that Chaplin paid 100 lb. Sterling and costs to Miss May Shepherd, who claimed back pay for publicity and secretarial services in connection with his visit to England. He dropped his defense of the suit, he explained, because the names of prominent persons had been brought into it.

Ducks Engagement

Yesterday Miss Shepherd's testimony that Chaplin ducked out of a dinner engagement with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and she had to write his letter of apology provoked the judge to remark, "this is going to do us a lot of good in foreign countries. Fancy how foreigners will laugh at us, and quite rightly, too."

When court opened this morning Chaplin, who wasn't present yesterday, showed up with his lawyers, who announced a settlement had been reached subject to the court's permitting Chaplin to make a statement under oath.

Goes Into Box

"Why should I hear Mr. Chaplin on oath except at the proper time?" asked the judge. The comedian took the witness box. Chaplin, dapper in a blue suit but looking worried, barely started to answer the first question asked him when the

Sheriff Captures Man After Long Watch Through Glass From Lofty Perch In Room Of Amarillo Hotel

(By The Associated Press)

AMARILLO, Dec. 1.—Binoculars, which Sheriff Charles R. Byrne is accustomed to use in lonely Arizona man-hunts, today had brought about the capture of Bob White, 23, tonight left here with the officer for Globe, Ariz., where burglary charges await him.

For four days the sheriff sat in his room high in an Amarillo hotel sighting through the glasses at a small house across town. By night local officers kept a secret vigil. Today, White entered the home of his parents. Byrne saw. The arrest quickly followed.

White and another man are charged with looting the home of a mining official near Globe on Sept. 22. Officers said the pair waited until the wife and her aged mother came home, threw blankets over their heads and tied them. The older woman nearly suffocated before help arrived. Meanwhile, the intruders filled the family sedan with loot and escaped. The car was later recovered at Clovis, N. M., and some household goods were found on a New Mexico ranch.

Program Of Settlement Agreed On By 12 Neutral Powers At Paris; Success Of Issue Is Left Up To Japan

(By The Associated Press)

MANCHURIAN warfare flared up anew today in a battle between Japanese troops and a Chinese cavalry detachment of General Mah Chan-Shan's forces southwest of Hailun, Shanghai was informed from Harbin.

Japan stood firm for the "right" to chase bandits in Manchuria, which is one of the obstacles in the way of the League of Nations' peace efforts at Paris.

General Mah was reported to be intent upon recapturing Tsitsihar, capital of Heilungkiang province, from which as governor he was driven out by Japanese two weeks ago.

Agree On Program

Renewal of hostilities came just as peace in Manchuria appeared to be within striking distance.

The twelve neutral members of the League of Nations council agreed on a program of settlement which already has been approved in principle by China and the United States. This left the issue up to Japan.

The council's program calls for an international commission of inquiry. It effects compromise by failing to recognize Japan's "right" to take military action against Manchurian bandits and by omitting any stipulation that Japan withdraw from Manchuria within a specified time limit, as originally demanded by China.

At the scene of the conflict interest shifted to Tsitsihar. A "dangerous situation" existed there, it was said at Japanese army headquarters at Mukden.

Many unfilled calls for clothing already have been made to the association, Miss Evelyn Richter, the secretary, told committee members. Much suffering from cold will be alleviated this winter among transients and some needy local people if sufficient cast-off clothing is donated, she said.

Backers of the drive Tuesday urged every Lubbock resident to gather all his old clothing before Saturday and on Saturday morning, Dec. 12, to place it at the front door. Cars donated for the purpose will carry two Boy Scouts each and make calls

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

COMIC strips and motion pictures would have us believe that college students spend their time doing pranks or enjoying in unconventional things. College isn't like that, after all, but occassionally there are bright spots. Unless I am mistaken students of Texas Technological college are going to remember an incident of last Saturday.

• • •

In the late afternoon when streets were filled with vehicles and predestrians, in a fog and through the mud, four young men and two young women drove down Broadway on a large flat wagon drawn by two mules. The two girls and two of the men were seated in these stiff folding chairs. The other two men were standing. All were perfectly at ease and they even assumed a dignified air as on that old wagon—and they were having the time of their lives.

• • •

Aside from the education involved everyone should get to be a college student for awhile just for the carefree existence it affords. The rest of us may laugh at conventions but the world may not laugh entirely with us.

THE ANCIENT CITY

THESE stories about the hardships of the Zuni Indians out in western New Mexico are holding an unusual lot of interest for me this winter. During the summer, we visited their village about 40 miles south of Gallup and it is as primitive as the stories would have us believe.

• • •

This village, the last of the seven mythical cities, is without known age. When Coronado was there in the Sixteenth Century it was a thriving city and its age was unknown then. A guide from the lookout post, in showing us through the village, called our attention to the mound upon which the Pueblos had built and said that it was believed this mound had been built through the centuries as old houses fell in and new ones were built on top. It sounded plausible to us as we could see no other explanation for the sandy mound.

THE ARTIST SUGGESTS

THIS year has taught us a lot of things. Occasionally some one insists that we return to the old method of living by trading—swapping what he have for what we need without using the medium, money. Others are taking up the suggestion of Frau Annot Jacobi, noted Berlin painter, is appealing to the public to join the movement.

• • •

The cultural classes of our country upon whom artists are dependent for support no longer are able to buy works of art. But perhaps they will have some old clothes or furniture which they would be willing to exchange for an oil painting or "marble bust," she suggests, adding, "I am sure there are many an own and old piano, a typewriter, even a baby carriage which they would ordinarily sell for practically nothing but for which many an artist would be grateful to give one of his works of art in exchange."

• • •

This sounds like a good idea but did you ever try to trade off some of the family white elephants to some one else? The thing you would give the artist is probably something for which he has no use either.

• • •

Speaking attended a school where the annual white elephant sale was one of the passions of the Y. W. C. A. My interest in such things waned several years ago. Some how I had a feeling that most of us would discover, about the time the bid for the piece of art was taking place, that our old shoes didn't fit any member of the artist's family that he didn't need the baby carriage we had on our hands or that he couldn't play the old piano any better than we.

A BUSY DAY

FASHION has a new whim, we are reminded, and if you would be style it must not be overlooked. It is lipstick to match the mood of the occasion. There is one called "hot", a brilliant scarlet to be worn with a gay mood and a scarlet rock. There is "printemps," a more delicate hue for evening wear with pastel-colored dresses. "Vicissitude" is a seductive, deep red, which looks best with a black dress and "Coquette" is for the one who wishes to appear dashing. "Viola" is for the blue mood and the blue dress with "naturelle" is intended to disguise the fact that the wearer is using make-up.

• • •

Each should contribute to an interesting day. For think of the hours that one might have to kill between 8 in the morning and 2 in the afternoon. There could be a chariot" to apply in the morning when one arose feeling all set to conquer the world. But a quick change to "viola" might have to be made after the boss came storming in. Even "Naturelle" might be cast forth to meet his mood. Some days of the day might make it necessary to rub off the former tint in order that "coquette" might be hastily applied.

• • •

Changing moods with lipstick might become such a vocation that a job would have to be relegated to the avocation class.

Final Meeting For Year Held

Council Members Make Final Plans For Month; Members Of Shakespeare Club Are To Attend Plays

Meetings of two study clubs and the final meeting of the City Parent-Teacher Association council for the year held interest with a number of Lubbock women Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. T. A. White gave a report of the annual convention of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers associations, which she attended in San Antonio the week of November 8, at the council meeting in the music auditorium of the Senior High school.

Mrs. White outlined several talks which were delivered at the convention and reviewed addresses made by Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, who was principal speaker at the assembly.

Mrs. Godeke Presides

The meeting was opened with a Christmas poem read by Mrs. H. F. Godeke, president. Mrs. Godeke presided for a business session and routine reports were given.

Suggestions were made for the seven local Parent-Teacher associations to unite in a mother-daughter luncheon to be given sometime during January, 1932.

Mrs. E. B. Wheelock sang "The Tree of the P.-T. A." This is a national song of the organization.

There were fourteen present.

Study Early Music

"The Development of Instrumental Music and Early Oratorio" was the theme of a lesson studied at the Daleth Delphian meeting.

Mrs. W. C. Wood was in charge of the program. She was assisted in the presentation by Mesdames R. I. Tubbs, C. E. Maedgen, C. M. Chandler, C. G. Stinson and J. C. Reynolds.

There was a good attendance at the meeting.

The final act of "Twelfth Night" was studied by members of the Shakespeare club Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. E. L. Banks, president, presided for a business session.

A round table discussion was held on important decisions in life determined by character.

Mrs. Charles Whitacre played a piano solo.

City Of Lubbock Restrained By Court Order From Interfering With Auction

THE City of Lubbock Tuesday was restrained by Judge Clark M. Mullican of 99th district court from interfering with an auction sale conducted by Steagall Bros, jewelers, here.

The order, temporarily restraining city officials from prosecuting members of the firm for violation of the city's ordinance regulating auctions, was issued Tuesday afternoon following a hearing Monday.

Hearing to determine whether Judge Mullican will make the injunction permanent is set for Dec. 10. The plaintiffs made $1,000 bond ordered by Judge Mullican. The Steagalls, in their petition, attacked the city's ordinance regulating auctions, except sections 11, 12 and 13. The petition sets out that the firm had not complied with the ordinance, which requires 30 days notice of an auction and an itemized list of articles to be sold, with cost price. These requirements were attacked as being unfair to those conducting the auction, charging their business competitors would be given an advantage.

The petition sets out that Chief of Police John Lemond has arrested P. E. Steagall and P. L. Wilson, the latter an employe of the firm. The defendants, all city officials including Mayor J. J. Clements, the commissioners, the police chief and Manager W. H. Rodgers, were served with the restraining order late Tuesday.

The name of a North Carolina State college musical organization is "Imperial Order of Yellow Dogs."

Hale Center Farmer Tells Of Progress And Profits With Poultry; Averages $2.50 To Each Of His Birds

(By Staff Correspondent)

HALE CENTER, Dec. 1. — "For the past three years my hens have averaged in net profits more than $2.50 per bird each year," A. R. Rowland, one of the Hale county poultry demonstrators, said here during a talk on his poultry work. Mr. Rowland resides near Hale Center and makes his monthly reports on his flock to Roy B. Davis, county agent, at Plainview.

"Last year," Mr. Rowland continued, "I had between 85 and 90 hens. They made me an average of $2.62 per hen. I got more out of the poultry than out of the entire farm.

"This year I cleared about $442 from my flock. There were from 110 to 115 hens in the flock. We have a quarter section of wheat land and after I had paid off everything, harvesting, etc, I had just about $100 left. So you see I made about three and a half times as much money with my flock of hens as I did with the wheat."

Mr. Rowland has been a poultry demonstrator for the past three years. He is going ahead with his next year's records, believing that the best way to determine if one is actually making money is to keep a record of all receipts and expenditures.

English White Leghorn hens, of pure strain and registered, are the flock birds of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland. They have developed a good strain of laying birds and also use them for show purposes.

"I think I will enter a pen in the Panhandle-Plains poultry show at Slaton," Mr. Rowland said. "I have some good birds and believe that I can make a showing."

War On Vagrants Made In Lamesa

LAMESA, Dec. 1. (Special) — War is being made on vagrants in Lamesa, according to the city officials here who are prosecuting such cases. Mayor J. R. Lowrie, in commenting, following a recent trial of vagrants, stated, "We have too many people who are maliciously idle, and who are gold-bricking for charity. We expect to investigate and question every suspicious case in our city, and if possible rid this place of every maliciously idle person."

There is no employment in Lamesa or Dawson county to invite additional labor, according to survey here. The U. S. Employment Labor Bureau service has been busy the last few weeks routing hundreds of cotton pickers and maize headers out of the territory, it being clear that there is too much labor here. It is pointed out that there is no reason for anyone to be misled in coming to this territory seeking labor. Many who have come here recently have stated that they had been told there was plenty of work here and when they came, had spent all of their means, and upon arriving found no labor and were objects of charity.

Authorities making reports and investigations request that before labor comes into this territory, should get in touch with reliable sources to ascertain true conditions before making the trip.

As Crowds Greet Santa Claus And His Expedition In Other Cities Of U. S.

The views above give an idea of the huge throngs Santa Claus and his expedition are attracting on his pre-Christmas visits to other cities of the United States. Similar scenes will be enacted when he pays Lubbock a visit on December 11.

Santa's Expedition Said To Be Receiving Wonderful Reception In Other Cities Of United States; Snow And Ice Add To Spirit Of Season; Delegation Of Visitors From Northland Due In Lubbock On Friday, December 11; Plans Made

OLD SANTA CLAUS is in the United States now and word has been received from his expedition that he is being recorded wonderful receptions in his visits to other cities. Snow and ice are adding to the spirit of the season and his reindeer are prancing along their way toward Lubbock where they will be seen in a gigantic parade and Christmas spectacle on December 11. The spectacle is being sponsored by the Avalanche-Journal.

Preparations for the event are going forward here with committees busy at work on arrangements for Santa's reception and the big parade. Plans for the gigantic parade call for a march of more than a mile and a half long and every organization in the city represented with a float or decorated car of some sort.

The city is to be decorated in all its splendor along with the show windows of the various business houses.

Christmas decorations are beginning to make their appearance in many parts of the country and this recalls the origin of the Christmas tree.

Origin of Christmas Tree

Long before we had Christmas in the world people were without churches or temples in which to worship so they laid their altars in woods and groves.

Love for trees in the groves where people worshipped grew steadily until they called them "Sacred Groves."

Perhaps the oldest of all Christmas customs is that of decorating houses, churches and streets with evergreens. At the very beginning of history the worship of trees began, hence the groves were made man's first temples. All our instincts of love for nature are forest memories, because forest worship was once universal among our forefathers.

Through time, each tree was dedicated to some God. Apollo had the laurel; Jupiter, the oak and the Greeks for ages had their grover.

Worshipers Offer Sacrifices

To worship is to give and boughs and garlands are the oldest gifts of man as the forest worshipers would bring the flowers and green of spring and the fruits of autumn to the forest and hang them on the boughs of the sacred trees. These gifts were sacrifices, not, as with us, decorations.

The Romans, with a deep love for beauty, used to garland their temples, homes, meeting places and their Coliseum with boughs of greens and strands of flowers. This peculiar custom was accepted by the Christians with keen approval, recalling, as it did, the fact that our Lord entered Jerusalem amid the strewn branches of the multitude.

Mistletoe Once Held Sacred

For ages mistletoe was regarded as sacred by the old British pagans —the Druids—and was surrounded by great mystery and sentiment. It was supposed to possess healing powers as well as to ward off evil spirits. Once a year the Druids High Priest would cut the mistletoe with a golden sickle, bless it and distribute the sprays among the people.

"Tree of Light" Contributes

From such customs our Christmas trees of today originated. They came from the northland forests. They are either White Pine, Scotch Pine, Balsam, Cedar, Hemlock or Norway Spruce. What would the Yule-tide season be without the "Tree of Light?" Christmas trees blossom at night and the flowers are jewels of red, blue, green and gold lights. A Christmas tree has the magical power of arousing a feeling of peace and good-will within all who look upon it.

A very old legend makes Saint Winfred the inventor of the Christmas tree. Winfred was one of the early missionaries to Norway who helped to advance the ancient Scandinavians out of their pagan practices and beliefs. He did not sanction their priests', the Druids, custom of teaching the worshiping of trees as if they were living gods and on a Christmas Eve, before a great crowd of men, women and children he hewed down a mighty oak to demonstrate that it was not an idol to worship but merely a tree.

Saint Winfred's "Miracle"

An ancient historian describes the demonstration as follows: "As the blade circled around Winfred's head, and the flakes of wood flew from the deepening gash in the body of the tree, a whirling wind passed over the forest. It gripped the oak from its foundations. Backward it fell like a tower, groaning as it split in four pieces. But just behind it and unharmed by the ruin, stood a young fir tree pointing a green spire toward the skies.

"Winfred let the axe drop and turned to talk to the people.

"This little tree, a young child of the forest, shall be your holy tree tonight. It is the woo of peace, for your houses are built of fir. It is a sign of endless life for its leaves are ever green. See how it points to Heaven. Let this be called the tree of the Christ—gather about it, not in the wildwood, but in your own homes; there it will shelter no deeds of blood, but loving gifts and rites of kindness."

The people looked upon Winfred's act as a miracle and from thence he won more converts to his Christian beliefs.

Football Business Declines Ten Per Cent In 1931; Gate Receipts Lower

But They Still Pay To See Winners Say Figures

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (AP)—College football attendance, on the basis of nation-wide reports to the Associated Press today, declined generally about 10 per cent for the 1931 season, as compared with last year, despite evidence of its continued great popularity.

The falling off was widespread and accompanied by an even sharper decline in gate receipts, where reduction of admission prices also was a factor, but plenty of testimony is at hand that the sporting public still loves a winner and will pay to see one.

Championship teams such as Tulane and the University of Utah showed substantial increases in drawing power over 1930, the former drawing 146,000 at home for a jump of 15 per cent. Tennessee reported a 20 per cent increase in attendance. Harvard and Ohio State showed slight gains.

California Increases

The University of California, definitely on the upgrade, showed an increase of 36,000 in cash customers, although the total of 305,493 for 1931 included one more game than the year before at Berkeley.

Southern California probably will show a substantial increase when its long season is completed. The Trojans, for six home games so far, are within 90,000 of their total of 354,443 for eight games in 1930.

N. Y. U. Leads Increase

New York University reported the largest increase in attendance of any major college or university in the country, a gain of approximately 72,000 customers or 32 per cent, based upon total attendance figures of 307,740 this year and 234,914 in 1930.

Declines in attendance and gate receipts in many cases appeared closely related to poor competitive seasons, as well as to general business conditions. A contrast was furnished last Saturday. Despite a snowstorm 81,000 people jammed the Yankee Stadium for the Army-Notre Dame game whereas barely 38,000 shivered in the Yale Bowl to see the Elis hand Princeton's luckless Tigers their seventh straight defeat.

Georgia Tech, in something of an off-year, experienced a 40 per cent falling of at the gate. As a whole the Big Ten fell off about 15 per cent in attendance.

On the coast, Washington and Stanford indicated approximate 10 per cent declines. The total attendance for Northwest members of the Pacific Coast Conference, 231,250, was reported as "considerably less" than 1930.

Colleges which declined to give either their figures on attendance or receipts included Columbia, Dartmouth, Georgia and Rice.

Dick Metz Wins First Annual Southwest Pro-Amateur Crown

Former San Angelo Pro Shoots Card Of 297 For 72 Holes To Take Top Money; Butler Finishes Second

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONGVIEW, Dec. 1. — A water soaked course, biting, cold wind and a constant, slow rain could not wash away or freeze out the golf shots of Dick Metz here today who came from behind to win the first annual Southwest Professional Golf organization pro-amateur tournament with a 72-hole card of 297. After scoring a 67-75—142 yesterday, Metz came back today with a 70-75—145. He started the final 36 holes today one stroke behind Toney Butler, Corpus Christi professional, but Butler slipped and Metz picked up five strokes on the first eighteen today and from that time on he was shooting straight and putting deadly for first prize money.

Metz is current Texas Professional Golf association state champion. His scoring today, along with that of Butler who finished with 292, was remarkable considering the condition of the course. The putting cups were filled with water throughout the day and the sand greens were spotted with water.

Jimmy McGonagill, Dallas amateur, tied Ray Garrett, Tyler professional, for third place with cards of 144-155 and 151-148 for respective 299. McGonagill received a handsome trophy while Garrett was awarded third place money.

Ted Longworth, Fort Worth professional, who held third place at the conclusion of yesterday's play, found the going tough today and allowed William Robinson slipped fourth place with 301. Robinson is a Fort Worth professional and finished one stroke in front of Longworth, Bert Hatizenbuehler, Dallas professional, Hugh Carpenter, Dallas professional and Oren Williams, Longview professional.

Floyd Boone of Corsicana, Clarence Hubby of Waco, Bud Clark, Levi Lynch, and Lefty Stackhouse all of Dallas, were other professionals to finish high enough to share in the six hundred dollars prize money.

Mustangs Off For St. Mary's Clash On Pacific Coast

DALLAS, Dec. 1. (AP)—The Southern Methodist University Mustangs left here today for San Francisco, Calif., where on Saturday they play the St. Mary's college Gaels.

Head Coach Ray Morrison said his men were in fairly good condition and expressed belief they would conquer the charges of Coach Slip Madigan.

Marion Hammon, tackle, did not make the trip. He suffered a fractured ankle bone in the Navy game, won by the Methodists.

Weather permitting, they will be put through their paces Wednesday afternoon on the University of Arizona gridiron at Tucson. Another still workout will be held Thursday in Los Angeles, and a light one, possibly, at San Francisco.

Albie Booth Goes To Sanitorium To 'Rest' For Month

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1. (AP)—His undergraduate athletic career definitely ended, Albie Booth, Yale's three sport star, was taken to a tuberculosis sanitorium at Wallingford today for treatment during the winter.

Although physicians emphasized the diminutive football and basketball captain does not have tuberculosis, they said a prolonged rest was imperative. Booth has been ill with pleurisy for the last week.

He will not be permitted to study at the sanitorium, where he will remain until warm weather. His graduation will be delayed at least until February, 1932, but it freely was predicted if he returns to school next fall, he will assist in coaching the Eli football squard.

Weakening of his system was attributed by his father to participation in all forms of athletics and by his efforts to earn his way through preparatory school and college.

"Albie overdid it," he said.

Panic Is On For Baseball Minor Moguls

Minor Leaguers Call Meeting From Which Presidents Are Barred; Some Prexys Said To Be On Ragged Edge

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

WEST BADEN, Ind., Dec. 1. — The panic was on tonight for many of the staunch standard bearers for minor league baseball.

Harrassed by financial troubles and faced with the necessity of acting quickly to give the baseball shows a bigger and newer appeal, the minor leaguers suddenly called a meeting and asked their respective league presidents to stay out. The action, unprecedented in the history of the minors, was regarded as an indication that many of the leagues were about to clean house.

Several of the minor league presidents were reported to be on the ragged edge of re-election and one of them was Dale Gear, head of the Western League. One reliable report was that the office had been offered to Edward Cochrane, sports editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, and that Cochrane was in a receptive mood. Mike Exton, head of the National Minor League association, for 22 years, also was slated for a hard battle for re-election.

White Sox Buy Player

The minors came out to steal the show today from their big brothers in the major leagues, who spent the day sparring for trades with no announcements except by the White Sox who purchased Harold Anderson, star Saint Paul outfielder, for cash and two players to be named later, and the Cubs, who selected Johnny "Red" Corriden as coach to succeed Ray Schalk. All their respective managers have been chosen for the 1932 campaign and each appeared to be waiting for the other to talk trades or sales.

Some of the important minor league developments of the day were ratification by the Southern League of the purchase of the Mobile club by Bob Allen and its transfer to Knoxville, Tenn.; the appointment of "Reb" Russell, old White Sox pitching star, as umpire in the Western League, and the final plans of the New York Yankees to get their purchase of the Newark club of the International League ratified tomorrow. The managerial jobs at both the Newark and Knoxville clubs were reported open with Al Mamaux leading five candidates at Newark and Mike Kelley, former White Sox coach, a possibility at Knoxville.

The American Association considered proposals to move the Toledo franchise to Chicago's south side or to Dayton, Ohio, with the latter city the more probable selection because of certain objection from the two Chicago major league clubs.

Johnny Butler To Coach For Chicago White Sox In 1932

WEST BADEN, Ind., Dec. 1. (AP) Johnny Butler, former major league infielder, and 1931 manager of the Denver baseball club of the Western League, tonight was appointed coach for the Chicago White Sox.

TRUCKER ROBBED

DALLAS, Dec. 1. (AP)—G. R. Terry, bakery truck driver, was robbed of $8.60 this afternoon by two men who crowded him to a stop at the curb with the automobile in which they were riding. One of the men covered Terry with a pistol while the other rifled his pockets.

Here Tomorrow

Here is a likeness of Les Cazzell, captain of the Amarillo Golden Sandies who come here tomorrow to do battle in a big way with the Lubbock High Westerners. The game will decide the championship of District 1.

Lamesa Eleven Off Tomorrow For Clarendon

Golden Tornadoes Fear Heavy Outfit Of District 1 Will Be Favorites; Teams Meet In Bi-District Clash

LAMESA, Dec. 1. (Special)—The Golden Tornadoes, with Coaches McCollum, Gregg, and Bryant, will leave here Thursday for Clarendon, where they will meet the high school Broncs of that city for the bi-district title Friday. McCollum states his team will be in good condition, but will be lighter than the Broncs by fifteen pounds to the man. The heavy Broncs are conceded to have the edge by some two to three touchdowns, but McCollum states he has one of the most aggressive teams he has ever coached, and he hopes to hold the Broncs to as low a score as possible.

Reid and Nichols are the threats for the Broncs, while Treadway and Marr loom out for the locals. Nichols, 190-pounder, is matched against Treadway, 128-pounder, but Treadway will make up for a lot of this weight loss in his crafty and cunning speed with the ball.

The Broncs are well-grounded in the fundamentals of the game with Stockins, coach, and his excellent assistants. The superintendent of the Clarendon schools, it is understood, was at one time coach of the Clarendon college. Lamesa also has an excellent coaching staff. McCollum, former star at Baylor university, has been on the job in Lamesa for the past seven years. This is the second time he has turned out a district winner in the past three years. Coaches Bryant and Gregg have been with McCollum the past one and two years respectively.

McCollum has taken one year men and developed the team he has this year, there being only three old letter men back.

Starting Team Named

McCollum will start Lourimore and Koger ends; Addison and Conklin, tackles; Boswell and Jorden, guards; Womack center; Marr quarterback; Moore and Cox, half backs; and Treadway fullback—in the game Friday; and a probable line up for the Broncs will be T. Watson and Benson, ends; Martin and Behrens, tackles; Easterly and Morris, guards; Captain Nichols, full; E. Watson and Reid, halves; Andis, quarter; and McMahan, center.

The local team will travel by car by way of Amarillo, where McCollum states it will get a light work out late Thursday afternoon, and thence to Carendon where it will work out again Friday morning.

Play by play broadcast will be heard in Lamesa by all who cannot make the trip if present plans materialize, it is reported.

Matadors Clash With Mustangs In Dallas Next Fall; One Man To Be Lost From Varsity Team

Special Honorary Letter Goes To Bill Teal; Schedule For 1932 Includes Trio Southwest Conference Teams

Hardly had the dust settled at the official close of the 1931 season, climaxed by a brilliant display of football ability that brought them a victory over the Simmons University Cowboys, when important announcements concerning the 1932 gridiron season for the Texas Tech Matadors were made by coaches and college officials.

The Tech athletic council passed upon the 1931 lettermen selections of Coaches Pete Cawthon and Dutchey Smith and announced a schedule for the coming season this week. The announcements were made yesterday. Nineteen members of the Matador squad are to be honored with letter sweaters for their work during the late lamented season. Six others of the varsity squad will receive reserve letters. One honorary leter will be awarded.

With the exception of one player, Captain Jack Durham, the entire squad which has won seven games for Tech this season is eligible to return next fall and help Tech through the toughest schedule ever arranged for a Matador team.

Carrying out his pledge to offer Lubbock and the South Plains grid fans better football games in the future. Head Coach Pete Cawthon announced yesterday that he had signed a three-year contract with Southern Methodist University for games in 1932, 1933 and 1934. The first of these games will be played at Dallas on October 1, 1932.

One of the S. M. U. games will be played in Lubbock, though the date has not been definitely settled.

Baylor Comes Here

Two other Southwest Conference teams appear on Tech's schedule next season. The Matadors meet the Texas A. & M. gridsters at Amarillo on September 24. Baylor University sends its Bears here for the Armistice Day game next fall.

In addition to the Southwest Conference teams, Tech will meet the Notre Dame "B" team here on October 28. The University of Arizona, Louisiana Tech, Austin college or Trinity university, the Colorado School of Mines, University of New Mexico, and Simmons University will send teams against Texas Tech next fall. There is a tentative arrangement with the Texas College of Mines.

Contrary to previous announcements, Lawrence "Shorty" France will be eligible for another year of football competition at Tech. The flashy halfback needs another year in which to complete work toward a degree and the records show that another year of football is open to him. Captain Jack Durham is the only retiring member of the team. Durham has served the last two years as captain.

Bill Teal, Enoch, stellar end who sustained a broken leg in the game with the Haskell Indians at Dallas, is to receive a special honorary letter for his work in nine quarters of participation this fall.

Reserve letters will be awarded to Harland Howell, of Brownfield, end; Whacker Barton, of Lubbock, center; George Cowan of Seymour, end; Carl McAdams of Sherman, quarterback; Merrill Kayser of Weatherford, guard and Lefty Sollis of Sherman, halfback.

Regular letters were awarded to Lester Tribble, center, Sherman; Milton Moffett, quarter, Stanton; Yancy Price, end, Lubbock; Lawrence France, halfback, Levelland; Bennie McWilliams, tackle, San Benito; Harold Crites, fullback, Lubbock; Edgar Close, halfback, Shamrock; Murray Nichols, fullback, DeLeon; Ross Ayers, guard, Wheelock; George Langford, tackle, Frankell; Matt Hitchcock, end, Cameron; Walter Fulks, end, Moody; Truett Owen, guard Sherman; Jack Durham, guard, Hamilton; Eli Harris, tackle, Ralls; Clarence Young, tackle, Ralls; Toby Greer, guard, Comanche; Elva Baker, tackle, Abilene and Lacey Turner, guard, Claude.

The boys will be presented certificates entitling them to letter sweaters and gold football awards in a convocation of the students at 11 o'clock this morning. The gold footballs will be presents of Lubbock fans in appreciation of the victory over Simmons.

The Santa Claus Pageant

THE person who has not looked carefully into the Santa Claus parade and Pageant of Christmas, coming to Lubbock December 11, has no conception of its magnitude. But Lubbock is rapidly being filled with people who have looked carefully into the feature and, to a man, the investigator is struck with the size and excellence of the event.

The Morning Avalanche is ready and willing to make a prediction and will, upon request, acknowledge error in the prediction the day after the spectacle. The prediction is that the parade and pageant, if favored by weather conditions, will fill Lubbock's downtown area with more people than it has ever been thronged with before.

Crowds which gather for conventions—including the West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting—will pale before the crowd which will be here to greet old Santa, his 12 live reindeer, four live camels and scores of beautiful floats. The largest crowd which has ever been in the downtown section before will look like a mere handful to the thousands which will be here on December 11.

The parade and pageant will be educational—not only to children, but to grownups, as well. And on top of that, the mile-and-a-half march will be packed with thrills for everyone who sees it.

If you're skeptical about this event, investigate.

Either The Morning Avalanche or the Chamber of Commerce will direct those who would investigate to a score of cities where the feature has been produced.

Don't get the idea it's any ordinary Santa parade or Christmas feature.

It's the biggest thing that ever has been seen in this country.

SLATON'S BIG SHOW

In just another week the hospital doors of Slaton will be thrown open to poultry fanciers and breeders, farmers and other citizens interested in the annual Panhandle-Plains Poultry show. The dates are December 9 to December 11.

Last year the Slaton show bounced into the select list of big poultry events of the Southwest with more than 900 birds on display. This year will likely see even more fowls in the pens for there is every reason to believe that more interest will be shown than ever before.

Lubbock, which stood shoulder-to-shoulder with Slaton in seeking to make the railroad city the permanent home of the show, should and will take an active interest in it.

Our neighboring city deserves our support, together with that of all its neighbors in the territory.

JUST WILL NOT BURN

The department of commerce reports the invention by a Norwegian engineer of a process for impregnating wood with a substance that renders it absolutely fireproof.

To test its efficiency, according to the report, a building composed of timbers of impregnated wood was erected near Oslo, the Norwegian capital, and the best efforts of the experts and volunteer incendiaries to set afire failed.

From the point of view both of safety in home construction and the reduction in insurance rates the value of such fireproofed wood for building purposes, provided the cost of the process is not prohibitive, is obvious.

Whether it will make a satisfactory substitute for the wood traditionally used in the manufacture of Scandinavian matches is another matter.

Franklin D. Roosevelt and Newton D. Baker seem to have the inside track as Democratic presidential possibilities. But "Alfalfa Bill" Murray still has a show.

Men are lucky. None of them can understand women.

Sinks are basins in which dirty dishes are left until morning.

Practical Health Problems

RINGWORM

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

APPARENTLY one of the factors in the dissemination of ringworm infection has been the fact that the organism grows, or at least is able to exist, in clothing.

This is particularly the case so far as concerns hoist, athletic clothing left hanging in gymnasium lockers. In order to make certain of this fact, investigators at Cornell University carried out some studies with the organism called trichophyton interdigitale, which is the cause of ringworm of the feet. It grows luxuriantly in laboratories under suitable conditions, and has been shown to live for three hundred days on scrapings removed from the toes kept under laboratory conditions. It grows best in the presence of moisture and at body temperature.

In their experiment, the Cornell University investigators took a white, woolen athletic jersey from the locker room of the gymnasium. The jersey was stained with perspiration. It was cut into pieces of one square inch and on each square was placed a small piece of the trichophyton culture. It was found by the investigators that the organism was still alive at the end of two months. It did not grow readily on the clothing, but it did live and was capable of developing promptly on human contact.

HENCE THOSE who wish to prevent the development of ringworm, after the condition has once been acquired, must make certain that any clothing once in contact with the ringworm shall have been thoroughly disinfected. This can, of course, be accomplished by boiling or by dry cleaning under proper conditions.

Arrangements should be made for the thorough washing and cleansing of all athletic clothing worn around gymnasiums where infestation is common. Unfortunately the available information indicates that ringworm is present in practically every gymnasium, locker room, athletic club and swimming pool in the United States.

New Names Mentioned

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Except as to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's prospects, which have remained so-so right along, chameleons have nothing, in the matter of changeability, on the Democratic presidential situation.

ALBERT C. RITCHIE

The chameleon of classic lore, it will be recalled, killed himself striving to adapt his system to a plaid effect.

Governor Roosevelt's strength, underlying the mixture, is predominant enough, to be sure. Plenty of plaidness is woven into it, nevertheless. Economic issues, wet-and-dry prejudices, the question whether or not the governor and Al Smith really are at outs, the Democratic two-thirds rule (the governor undoubtedly will enter the Jeffersonian convention with a majority of the delegates in his favor, but will he ever get the two-thirds majority necessary to nominate him?)—all these considerations make the pattern pretty plaid.

* * *

FROM the very start it has been recognized that Governor Roosevelt was the best single bet for the Democratic presidential nomination next year—this recognition being based on the supposition that Al Smith was not to be regarded as a contender. When it became evident that Smith actually was not, the governor promptly was accepted as the outstanding candidate against the field.

But of course the favorite does not always win; the field, too, must be reckoned with.

The Democratic presidential field has been large and varying.

* * *

EARLY last spring most politicians viewed Owen D. Young of the General Electric as a Jeffersonian presidential likelihood to be counted next after Governor Roosevelt himself.

Yet the thing that made him strong also made him weak. While highly acceptable to big business and finance, the bosses presently realized that his nomination would be too obvious a bid for Wall Street's support. Consequently his boom petered out. There is occasional talk of an effort to reinflate it, but it plainly will be hard work.

From Young the conservatives turned tentatively to President Melvin A. Traylor of the Chicago First National bank. He has a charming personality and scored a bull's-eye with a speech he made at a commercial gathering in Washington last May, but his business is against him for political purposes and presidential mention of him failed to "take" well.

* * *

SENATOR JOSEPH T. ROBINSON of Arkansas made a first-class get-away in the early running, as a dry hope, only to discover that his party has turned wetter than he thought, whereupon his aspirations blew up.

Still underestimating wet sentiment's growth, certain leaders next launched a movement for Governor George White of Ohio, "a dry," as politicians say, "whom the wets understand." However, even he turned out to be insufficiently humid, though he looked formidable for awhile.

In the meantime wets had been overdoing matters in their own particular direction by attempting to boom another Ohioan, Senator Robert J. Bulkley, whose political reputation is wet and nothing else. It was not much of a boom.

* * *

JAMES M. COX, who ran for president on the Democratic ticket in 1920, is a third Ohioan.

Now, Jim Cox might be figuring importantly in the present picture had he chosen to do so. The part he played and the advice he gave at last March's Washington meeting of the Jeffersonian national committee brought him into a prominence there is no knowing how effectively he could have capitalized to his individual advantage, but he preferred to throw his influence, instead, to still another Ohioan—former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

Ex-Secretary Baker then was, at best, fourth on the list of Democratic presidential possibilities—Governor Roosevelt, Owen D. Young and Senator Robinson certainly, and Governor White perhaps, outrating him. Partly by virtue of the Cox indorsement, partly by reason of the Young, Robinson and White booms' collapse, he speedily improved this position to second place—right after Governor Roosevelt's.

And there Newton D. Baker has stuck until very lately; today it is about nip-and-tuck between him and Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

* * *

GOVERNOR RITCHIE apparently has been holding himself in reserve hitherto, but at last he has started, and when he starts the Marylander is not a campaigner to be despised.

Moreover, he is a conservative—assuredly more conservative than Governor Roosevelt, and enormously more so than was ex-Secretary Baker in his youth, for he was an advanced radical then, whatever he may be now.

It is conceivable that the interests which originally favored Owen D. Young, but mayhap have given up hoping for his nomination, would be about as well suited with Governor Ritchie. Anyhow, current gossip is that he is the leader of a "stop Roosevelt" movement.

* * *

BUT THAT is not all.

Ritchie's activity has given life to yet another boom—for ex-Governor Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. If there is to be a southern candidate at all (meaning Ritchie) the old dominion state, according to Senator Carter Glass, proclaiming Byrd's ambitions, wants to be heard from.

Ex-Senator James A. Reed's candidacy may not prove to be negligible, either. As he says, there is nothing against him except that he is rather old, and Missouri will support him, notwithstanding.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray likewise will attend the convention backed by Oklahoma's delegation and perhaps an additional state's or two.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois (himself more or less suggested) continues to emphasize the claims of Governor-elect A. Harry Moore of New Jersey.

William G. McAdoo has a folowing again in California.

Texas is beginning to speak of Representative John N. Garner.

* * *

AND THIS does not include half a score or so of favorite sons, with no real idea of being chosen for first or even second place on the Democratic ticket, but who do want their names placed in nomination.

A plaid pattern fit to make the liveliest chameleon jump sideways?

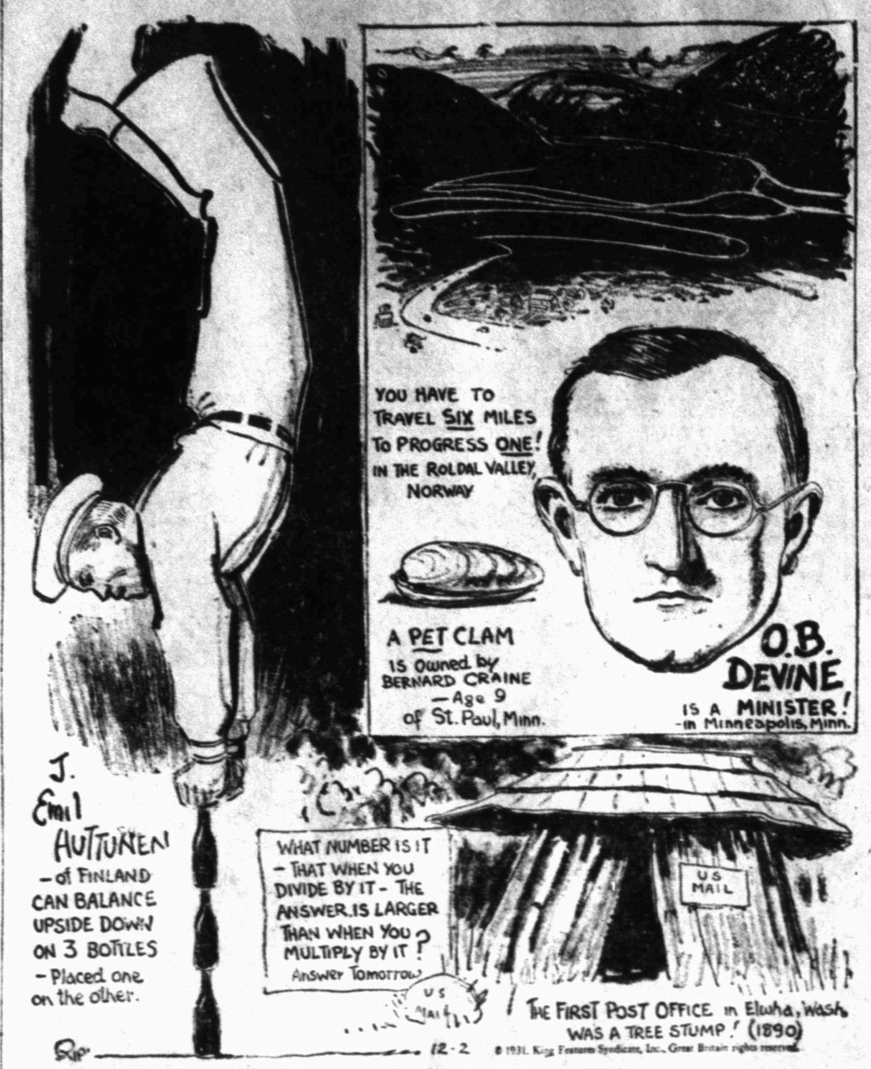

Why, enough to drive him distracted!

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Rich old MRS. JUPITER is robbed and murdered during the engagement party she gave for her secretary, MARY HARKNESS. The thief fails to get the famous Jupiter necklace. Suspicion points to Mary's brother, EDDIE, who is killed by a car as he goes to meet her. Police drop the case, believing Eddie guilty. BOWEN, police reporter for the Star, conducts a private investigation. He discovers a race-track crook called THE FLY to whom Eddie owed money. Eddie coat, found in the house, is recognized by the butler as one worn by a "gate-crasher," he ejected the night of the murder.

Mary's finance, DIRK RUYTHER, believe Eddie guilty and forbids her to see Bowen, fearing further notoriety. They quarrel but make up and plan to mary at once. Mary meets Bowen in a speakeasy where The Fly is said to be hiding. Dirk comes to take her home. He is on his way to lock up the Jupiter necklace in his office safe. Dirk proves The Fly is not there. Mary clasps the necklace about her throat just as three strangers enter.

They leave, followed by Bowen, who fears an attempt on the necklace. Dirk does not. The two men quarrel. Just as Dirk locks up the necklace there is a crash in the street outside.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

"What is it? What is it?" Mary whispered, trying vainly to see into the street from the other side of the window. Her view was cut off by a cornice. Dirk was leaning far out to get a clear view of what happened. He waved one hand as a signal to keen quiet. To the waiting girl the suspence was agonizing. Angry voices floated up and various bumps and thuds, as of a weary car settling to rest.

He pulled his head in and shut the window quietly before speaking.

"Just that blamed idiot, Bowen, and his rattletrap,' he said disgustedly. "Somebody's smacked into him. Looks as if he'd tried to turn around, and they rammed into him amidships." He shook his head wonderingly. "Of all the prize boobs! Come on, let's go down and look at the wreckage."

He looked about the room, tried the lock on the safe-door to make sure it was fastened, turned off the light, locked the door, and they trotted downstairs.

Mary was worried. "Do you suppose he's hurt?"

"Couldn't see," Dirk said. "Hope they didn't hurt our car. Guess not. It's further up the street."

As they came out into the street there was the sound of footsteps running, drawn by the magnet of an accident. A policeman was visible, pounding along at the lower end of the block, his night-stick slapping against his leg as he ran. Bowen was no where to be seen, but the street was completely blocked at the upper end by his car, up-ended and lying on its side. Jammed into it on the other side, like a locomotive whose cow-catcher has scooped up a mass of debris, was a black limousine with platinum trimmings.

As Mary and Dirk started forward, the limousine's engine roared in reverse, freed itself from the quivering mess of metal which was Bowen's machine and shot backward out of Nassau street, stopped, shot ahead toward Broadway and was gone. Not even the enraged policeman's command to stop had any effect. He pulled his gun, but forebore shooting, apparently because of the people who came running from all directions.

Mary stooped stock still under the shock of the railization that came to her.

"Dirk! Dirk!" she screamed suddenly. "That was the car that killed Eddie.

Dirk stopped running a second, long enough to stare at her dumbfounded, then raced on. A weaving, unsteady figure was crawling into view from under the tangle of leatherette and canvas that was the top of his car. He had just gained his feet and was looking in the direction taken by the departed limousine when Dirk reached him.

Mary saw him wringing one hand and cursing whole-heartedly. Between curses he struck the injured finger in his mouth and sucked it. Apparently it was the only injury he had suffered.

"What the—holy—jumping—" He broke off as he saw Mary's white anxious face at his elbow. "Hello, Ruyther. I'm all right. Let's get out of here—leave this wreck where it is. She'll never travel again."

* * *

But there were explanations to be given the big, breathless policeman first.

"What were you tryin' to do, turn around in the middle of the block?" he accused, after inspecting the position of the wrecked car. Bowen took his abuse without a word of self-defense. Mary burned with in-

Terry County Voters Urged To Consider Highway Bond Issue

Issue Of $300,000 Advocated For County; Newspaper Gets In Behind Movement As Talk Becomes Extensive

BROWNFIELD, Dec. 1. (Special) Terry county voters are being urged to give serious consideration to the voting of bonds for the construction of all weather highways in the county and a bond issue of $300,000 for the paving of 110 miles of state highway is suggested.

A. J. "Jack" Stricklin, editor of the Terry County Herald, who heretofore has been opposed to a bond issue for roads, in a front page lead article came out squarely for the issue.

"As most of the readers know, the Herald has always opposed a big bond issue in Terry county for the construction of roads and especially as they were figured to cost us in the neighborhood of a million dollars," he said. "But since both the state and federal governments have begun to look more favorably on the cheaper costing road, and one which can be constructed with materials found on the grounds, we have come to look more favorably on the proposition."

Mr. Stricklin pointed out that there is a strong probability of a state-wide bond issue being passed by the legislature and that it will include the redemption of present county bond issues. Should Terry county have a bond issue voted, this money would be refunded.

At the present time the county has slightly over 45 miles of state designated highways. 15.15 miles of No. 137 between the Hockley county line and Brownfield and 30.25 miles of No. 84 from the Lynn county line on the west through Brownfield to the Yoakum county line. Besides this there is a mile of street through the town that is not included as the county takes care of the expense of paving streets.

No. 137 between Brownfield and the Gaines county line, four miles from Seminole, has not been designated in this county. The state is soon to let a contract to pave between Seagraves and Seminole and this will bring state designation nearer.

In speaking of state aid for these paving jobs, Mr. Stricklin said: "But if we did not get a penny for either of these roads, an outlay of $300,000 would put every artery in the county in fine shape, and all the money allowed the commissioners could then be spent on the upkeep of our neighborhood roads."

"Our good clay roads have about served their day for they are not all-weather roads and the first thing we know, other counties will build all-weather roads around us, and leave us sitting high and dry."

State designated highways in Terry county include the following: No. 137, Hockley county line to Brownfield, 15.15 miles No. 84; Lynn county line to Brownfield, 11.75 miles; through Brownfield one mile; Brownfield to Yoakum county line, 18.50 miles total 46.75 miles of state designated road. An additional 20 miles is to be added with the designation from Brownfield to the Gaines county line. It is now a county road.

Improvements Recommended For Schools At Seagraves

SEAGRAVES, Dec. 1. (Special) — Recommendations to the trustees of Seagraves Independent School district for improvements have been given by H. O. Smith, state school inspector, folowing his visit to the local school.

Mr. Smith made the following suggestions: 1—that state adopted textbooks be kept covered; 2—that at least one standard microscope be added; 3—that running water and a sink be installed in the science laboratory as teachers there are handicapped by lack of a sink; 4—that the girls' shower room be equipped with hot and cold water the same as the boys' room; 5—that a hectograph costing $15, science equipment costing $28 and a library budget of $75 to $100 be authorized.

Seminole is working on a consolidation program and Mr. Smith spoke highly of the plan. He complimented Superintendent Rober and school officials on the conditions here.

ignation but Bowen only listened ith what she could have sworn as a self-satisfied smile on his ace.

"Yep, you're right, officer. All my ault," he kept repeating.

"Anybody see the number o' that ar?" the policeman asked loudly. he curious crowd began to babble ll together, but nobody could give a onnected story. "It was 3N and omething—" "Naw, it was 3Y."—he policeman closed his book in isgust. "On yer way, all of ye!" He wung his stick menacingly.

When they had scattered, he came p to Dirk.

"Did you see it?" he asked.

"No. We just came up. That's my ar down there," Dirk answered egligently.

"Tell him," Mary whispered. "Tell im about the car—you know—" er eyes were black with fear and er teeth chattering.

Before another word could be said owen jostled between them, giv- Mary an unmistakable jab in he ribs with his elbow. The jab inded her, and the surprise took he words out of her open month.

He took the officer aside and they eld brief confab. Bowen's policeard helped to smoth matters over. Dirk's quick "Sch!" kept Mary from making any further attempt to peak of the other car. Puzzled but uiescent, she let him lead her back o the coupe. His animosity toward owen seemed to have melted abruptly .Presently Bowen and the oliceman parted, and Bowen came traight to their car.

"Where do you want to go?" Climb in," Dirk invited.

"No, I can get a cab," Bowen's oice sounded shy.

"Get in!" Dirk commanded. Mary moved closer to Dirk and Bowen obediently climbed in on the other ide. "Let's get away from here," e said.

Uptown they sped for some time without a word spoken. Dirk was irst to break the silence.

"So you're the kind of a driver who turns around in the middle of the block, in a street that's too narrow to turn around in," he said.

Mary bit her lip, vexed that he could continue quarreling after what had happened.

But Bowen laughed. "Yep, that's me," he said.

"I owe you something for that," Dirk said. "What'll it be, a new car?"

"Forget it," Bowen scoffed. He seemed vastly pleased with himself.

"But you could have got yourself killed, you fool!" Dirk protested.

"Yes, I lost a good fingernail saving your worthless hide," Bowen agreed amiably, squinting at the injured digit by the aid of a street light.

Mary was almost bursting with bewilderment, and growing more curious every minute. "What is it all about?" she wailed. "You've shushed me long enough. Tell me or I'll scream!"

"You're a bright girl, you ought to know," Dirk said. "Bowen stopped that other car from coming down Nassau street, all right, didn't he? Do you know any other way he could have done it? Your little friends from the speakeasy were trailing us apparently. Well, they didn't get near enough to see which door we were parked before. I guess that ends it, for tonight anyway. I might have given that cop a tip-off to keep an eye on the place though. Wish I had."

"Then it was the Fly!" Mary cried.

"The Fly? Don't be silly." There was something about the pleasant voice in which Dirk spoke, whether he was saying something agreeable or disagreeable that was maddening. A trick learned in the courtroom no doubt. Whatever it was, it made one want to strike him, dent that implacable politeness somehow.

• • •

Mary drew away and looked at him through narrowed eyes, feeling the rising of a temper she had never known she had.

"Why not?"

"Is he the only thug who knows a valuable necklace when he sees it? Any crook in Christendom would have taken out after anybody with no more sense than to display a thing like that in a speakeasy! Might have been that Lon Chaney waiter, for all we know."

"But Dirk," Mary said, with ominous calm, "that car was the same car that killed Eddie. I told you that."

Dirk smiled wryly down at her.

"Now don't start that all over again," he said lightly. "You could not recognize a particular car of standard make, like that, in that light, at that distance. I wouldn't put you on the stand myself with such a statement. Opposing counsel would make monkeys out of us. You saw it under similar circumstances, hitting someone, and you were already wrought up and ready to believe it was the same. Consequently you think so. That's all."

"Oh, don't be so—so legal," Mary hurled at him furiously, for lack of a more opprobrious epithet. "I don't care what you say, it was the same car. I'd swear to it!" She appealed to Bowen. "Tell him!" she demanded. "Tell him it was the same car!"

But Bowen merely answered "Whats the use?"

Unexpectedly even to herself, Mary began to cry. Helpless tears rained down her cheeks, and she covered her face with her hands and wept.

Bowen looked straight ahead and said nothing. Dirk patted her knee awkwardly. "Don't, sweetheart!" he begged. "You've got to see this thing straight sometime. It might as well be now."

Dirk went on, gently. "The trouble is, Mary, you're taking the whole thing too hard. You—oughtn't to blame Eddie so much. A young kid like that—you can't know what he was up against. No woman could. He—

"I understand that he didn't do it. Do you?" Mary asked, with terrible calm. She was looking at him as at a stranger.

"Perhaps, not," Dirk replied after a moment's hesitation. He flushed brick-red as he tried to meet her eyes. Unconsciously he had fallen into the habit of thinking of Eddie as a weak, tormented boy driven to stealing, and a murderer by accident. He accepted the murder as a fact, but saw extenuating circumstances.

"You think him guilty and you don't blame him," Mary said. "Well, I think him innocent of everything except the gambling charge, but I blame him just the same. He put himself in a position where anything—even this—could be said of him, and now he can never explain himself—he's dead. What if no one ever knows — the papers, I mean? The police? Do you suppose it means nothing to me that YOU think it—that your father and mother think it? Do you suppose it won't make a difference between us, always? It would be like living with a ghost. Some day I'd hate you—"

• • •

She huddled between them, dabbing her eyes with a small ball of handkerchief. If she had looked at Dirk, the hurt look that came into his eyes at her last words might have changed her, made her weaken again. But she did not look up.

Another traffic stop, and the three people sat uncomfortably silent.

While they were waiting, Dirk reached into the pocket of his topcoat, lying on the shelf back of them, and brought out the gun Bowen had given him. He balanced it on his hand in the glow of the dashlight.

"Nice little gun, he said judicially. "Got a permit to carry it?"

Mary, pressed against the two men by the narrowness of the car seat, distinctly felt Bowen start. She looked up and caught a look of embarrassment on his face.

"No—o", he admitted. "It's not mine, exactly. I——"

Dirk squinted at it critically. ".38 calibre Colt, isn't it? An old-timer, but it's in good condition. Where'd you pick it up?" He darted a look at Bowen, who changed color, opened his mouth to speak, gulped, and was silent.

Dirk nodded. "I thought so," he said. Bowen burst out:

"What was the use letting the kid take the rap for Sullivan law violation? If he'd lived I was going to give it back to him. It slipped out of his pocket when he fell, and I palmed it. It wasn't his, though."

Dirk put it in his pocket thoughtfully. "You can have it back tomorrow. I want to look it over."

Bowen said "There aren't any fingerprints on it. I got all the good ones."

"Harkness', of course."

"Sure. He was carrying it. But there were others."

"Whose?"

"I'll tell you when we get back to Shay's'.

Dirk said, "We're not going back to Shay's, now or any other time. You can, if you like, but Mary's going home and going to bed. You might have picked another night for all this romping around, you two. Have you forgotten what day tomorrow is?" he asked, looking at Mary, half-chiding, half-serious. To Bowen he added: "Mind if I put you down somewhere?"

"Right here," Bowen said The car swerved to the curb, and he got out.

Mary moved over into the space he had vacated, then, obeying a powerful impulse, climbed out after him. She stood beside him, a small mutinous figure with hard accusing eyes. To Dirk's amazed entreaty, she shook her head.

"I'm getting out here, too," she said.

Cotton Cotton Market Closing Steady — Livestock Cattle Receipts Strong Tuesday — Grain Wheat Market Whirls Upward

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1. (AP)—The cotton market showed only moderate activity today. Prices after dropping half a dollar a bale during the morning recovered all the loss and more around noon. The early drop had been due to opening weakness in stocks and the later rally was due to an advance in grain and a recovery in stocks. Although cables were better than due the market opened little changed. The close was steady showing net declines for the day of 2 to 8 points.

Liverpool is due tomorrow 3 penny points down on New Orleans.

Liverpool cables came in 13 penny points better than due and bar silver in London advanced to 19 1-4D up 7-16D. Private cables stated that there was local and foreign buying on weakness in sterling. Manchester cabled that there was a fair cloth trade from India and South America.

January closed at 6.07; down 3 points net for the day and March at 6.33 down 4 points net.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (AP)—Recoveries from an early decline in cotton today were attributed to trade buying and covering, but prices weakened again in the late trading under southern and local selling. January contracts, after selling up from 6.00@6.15, closed at 6.01, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 7 to 12 points.

The opening was barely steady 1 to 4 points lower under liquidation combined with selling for Liverpool and continental account, while there was also some selling through brokers with Japanese connections. December eased off to 5.96 and May to 6.34, making net losses of about 10 to 13 points on the active months, but at these prices, the market met an increased demand from the trade.

Financial Markets Are Unsettled At Beginning Of The Year's Last Month

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (AP) — The financial markets were unsettled at the beginning of the year's last month today.

Stocks broke sharply in the first hour, then rallied as wheat overcame early sogginess and as a rumor concerning possible reduction of Canadian railway wages circulated through the financial district. The firmer tone, however, was most apparent in the rail group, for the best that industrials and utilities could do was to reduce their extreme losses of 1 to 5 points and the general market average closed about a point lower on a turnover of 2,839,339 shares.

Wall street could not ignore the break in sterling, which dropped to another new low for the past decade, but at the same time refused to become alarmed over the drop.

No Gun Found

No gun was found on McAfee and the only weapon found was that belonging to Sterrett. It had been fired twice. Wayne Cruzan, city officer, called to the scene of the shooting, said he found a hat belonging to McAfee in the car. It was crammed down between the seats which were smeared with blood. McAfee's overcoat was found hanging on a radio aerial brace outside the garage.

Sterrett said it was possible that his wife was shot when the gun went off in the struggle, the man aiming at her while it was still in his hands.

May Have Taken Gun

"Again the man may have got the gun out of my hands and shot her," he said. "I know one of them was waiting at the door and the other on the other side of the garage," he said.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1. (AP)—Suddenly taking fire from bullish reports about the United States winter crop outlook, wheat whirled upward almost 4 cents from early low prices today. Rumors which were afterward denied that Russia was buying wheat from Australia to meet internal needs acted also as a decided stimulus. An outstanding feature of domestic crop summaries was a statement by a leading authority after a 2,000-mile trip through five southwestern states, including Kansas, that conditions suggested a wheat yield of only 10,000,000 bushels more than was harvested this year by Kansas alone.

Wheat closed unsettled 7-8 to 1 3-8 above yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 1-4 lower, oats 1-8 to 1-4 off to 1-8 up, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents down.

War Romance Is Forgotten

Former American Girl Now Is Restored To Citizenship By Naturalization; Had Married German Diplomat

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. (AP)—Mrs. Virginia Grace MacKay-Smith Boy-Ed whose wartime romance revolved around a German officer suspected of spying and sabotage, was today—a widow—restored to American citizenship.

slim, patrician figure, blonde blue-eyed, in a handsome black Mrs. Boy-Ed listened interestedly through a long session in naturalization court before her name was called.

She rose with the last group and took citizenship in company with a Turk, a Greek, a Scotch lass, and a Germanborn woman.

In a clear voice she answered the customary questions, testified to residing in Germany from the time of her marriage in 1921 until after her husband's death in 1930 and renounced allegiance to Germany.

Mrs. Boy-Ed is a daughter of Mrs. Alexander MacKay-Smith, widow of the late Bishop MacKay-Smith, of Pennsylvania.

Her romance with Captain Karl Boy-Ed began before the United States entered the world war, while her father was pastor of a fashionable church here and Captain Boy-Ed was connected with the Germany embassy.

The captain was recalled in December, 1915, at the request of the state department and their marriage was once postponed by the interception of a message from Germany by the American secret service, which had thought the communication to be in code. It was, in reality, permission for the German captain to marry the American girl, signed by his chief-Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz.

Dr. S. J. Underwood Of Hale Center Is Leading Breeder

HALE CENTER, Dec. 1.—When it comes to garnering in ribbons for prize winning dairy stock, Dr. S. J. Underwood, pioneer physician here and one of the leading breeders and fanciers of the Panhandle-Plains country, comes into the forefront.

In the office of Dr. Underwood may be seen 60 ribbons, won by his animals in dairy shows of this section. He has competed in the Panhandle-Plains dairy show at Plainview every year since it was started, back in 1928. He also entered animals in the Hale County fair, its predecessor. The Tri-State fair at Amarillo is another place where the doctor's animals have won honors. Likewise, the South Plains fair at Lubbock.

"I have two others or rather I had them, but somebody got hold of them some way," Dr. Underwood said.

His prizes include: five grand championships; 15 firsts; 11 seconds; six thirds; nine fourths; ten fifths; two sevenths and one eighth.

Pender Speaks On Sino-Jap Problem

Citing the Manchurian situation one of the most serious international complications since the World War and declaring that in its settlement rested the future of the League of Nations, Prof. H. C. Pender of the Texas Tech department of government, spoke before members of the Lubbock Lions club at the Hilton hotel Tuesday noon. T. S. S. McKay was in charge of the program.

"Manchuria is the sore spot of the world today," Prof. Pender said as he reviewed the situation in his talk. "It is owned technically by China and coveted by both Japan and Russia with the United States being intensely interested in the entanglement due to its foreign policy since the Spanish-American war. The nation has departed from its isolated foreign policy and has shown some cooperation with the League in the earlier stages of the controversy but a recent withdrawal of the U. S. from the league sessions has weakened the efforts of the league."

He said Russia was in no position to fight should there be war as it would mean the sacrificing of their five-year plan.

Prior to Prof. Pender's talk, H. W. Moore gave two vocal selections. He was accompanied by Mrs. Moore.

The club voted to cooperate with the Avalanche-Journal in the Christmas pageant after E. H. McKinney and J. H. Brock had explained it and President E. L. Pitts named a committee to decide on a float for the parade.
