Nixon Fears Fund Cut

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON AP — President Nixon is trying to choke off the momentum gathering behind end-the-war proposals in Congress by asserting that passage would jeopardize his ability to carry out U.S. foreign policy.

There was no immediate indication that Nixon's appeal, carried in letters to congressional leaders, had caused any wavering among anti-war senators or congressman.

The Senate, for example, approved by voice vote Friday a ban on the use of fire storms and rain making as weapons of war in Indochina or elsewhere and prepared for a new vote next week on cutting off funds for American involvement in the fighting.

Republican leaders were said to be fearful that a fund cutoff would gain majority support, and the Washington Post reported. and were preparing a weakened version in an effort to lure senators who hesitate to cut off funds but nevertheless favor some sort of antiwar legislation.

Antiwar amendments in the Senate and House have been tacked on to larger bills covering military funding or foreign aid.

In his letter, Nixon said the various amendments "threaten foreign aid and defense procurement and ... thus jeopardize the whole conduct of foreign policy."

But he stopped short of threatening to veto the bills if the end-the-war amendments survive.

The letter was released Friday by House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford. Democratic leaders also received copies.

Though acknowledging there is serious disagreement over how to end the fighting, Nixon said, "the responsibility for doing so is above all mine, and I intend to carry out this obligation in a responsible way."

In the Senate, a proposal to cut off Indochina war funds will come up Wednesday attached to a $20.5 billion weapons authorization bill.

The House of Foreign Affairs Committee has approved an amendment ordering withdrawal of U.S. forces from Indochina by Oct. 1 in return for release of American prisoners. Tacked on to a $2.1 billion foreign aid bill, it probably will be voted on by the full House late next week.

Today In History

Today is Sunday, July 30, the 212th day of 1972. There are 154 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1619, the first legislative assembly to convene in America met at Jamestown, Va.

On this date:

In 1718, the founder of Pennsylvania, William Penn, died in England.

In 1863, the American auto pioneer, Henry Ford, was born in Greenfield, Mich.

In 1909, the U.S. bought its first airplane, a Wright biplane, for $31,000.

In 1916, before the U.S. entered World War I, German saboteurs blew up a munitions plant on Black Tom island near Jersey City, N.J.

In 1918, in World War I, the American poet who wrote "Trees," Sgt. Joyce Kilmer, was killed in action in France.

In 1953, race riots broke out in Chicago's Trumbull Park housing project after a black family moved into the previously all-white community.

Ten years ago: Thee was fighting in Helsinki, Finland, between police and demonstrattors protesting against the holding of a Communitst-sponsored world youth festival in the city.

Five years ago: Caracas, Venezuela was rocked by a series of earthquakes.

One year ago: Apollo 15 astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin landed on the moon.

S-Viet Soldiers Killed In US Mistaken Bombings

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Forty-nine soldiers in a South Vietnamese infantry company were either killed or wounded in a heavy North Vietnamese attack and a mistaken U.S. bombing that hit the government lines instead of the enemy near Hue, the allied commands announced today.

The U.S. command said two Navy A4 jets accidentally dropped 500-pound bombs into the South Vietnamese positions during the close-quarter fighting Friday, killing eight government troops and wounding 25.

The Saigon command said another South Vietnamese soldier was killed and 15 were wounded when the company was hit with 1,000 North Vietnamese mortar rounds and attacked on the ground.

Eight North Vietnamese soldiers were killed, the Saigon command said.

The battle was less than two miles northeast of Fire Base Bastogne, which was abandoned Wednesday night under a heavy North Vietnamese artillery attack. This would put it about eight miles southwest of Hue.

It was the fifth mistaken American bombing attack on the northern front since July 4 with a total of 19 South Vietnamese soldiers killed and 76 wounded.

The U.S. military command said all five incidents are still under investigation.

In the past, field officers have blamed close quarter fighting and often confused maneuvering of South Vietnamese units while there are scores of U.S. planes in the air and almost all ground units calling for support.

About 1,000 South Vietnamese soldiers retook the district town of Hoai An with "very light resistance" Friday, ending a three-month occupation by the enemy, field informants reported.

It was the third district town on the central coast recaptured by Saigon troops in the last 10 days. Bong Son and Tam Quan were the others.

Meanwhile, North Vietnamese troops who moved out of the area Thursday night encountered a South Vietnamese unit on the outskirts of Bong Son and house-to-house fighting erupted.

At last report the Saigon troops were said to be "holding their own," and Bong Son appeared in no danger of falling into enemy hands again.

Calley Witness Is Accused Of Perjury

Details of the arrest were not immediately available.

The perjury charge was filed Friday at Pryor, Okla. in connection with Gruver's testimony when he was charged with second-degree burglary June 19. He subsequently was cleared on the burglary charge.

Mayes County Sheriff Doyle Foreman had asked Missouri authorities for help in tracing Gruver, whose home is at Stotesbury, Mo.

On Tuesday, attorneys in Washington filed a petition for a new trial for Calley, convicted of killing civilians at My Lai. The petition was based partially on statements made earlier this month by the 27-year-old Gruver, who was in Calley's company at the time of the My Lai incident.

The perjury charge accuses Gruver of falsely testifying during his arraignment that he had not been convicted of a felony or any other charge.

Gruver's mother said Friday night she had last seen her son Tuesday night when he left for Oklahoma. Sheriff Foreman says the last lead he has indicated Gruver was in Springfield, Mo.

Calley's lawyers contend that Gruver is the only person prepared to testify that Capt. Ernest Medina relayed a command from company headquarters to kill every living thing in My Lai.

The Army said during Calley's trial it could not call Gruver as the defense requested because he could not be found. However, Gruver has said the Army was in touch with him about the case during the trial.

Midwest Electric To Get REA Loan

A $250,000 REA loan has been approved for the Midwest Electric CoOp at Roby. The Snyder Daily News was notified of the loan by Congressman Omar Burleson, Senator John Tower, and Congressman George Mahon.

The purpose of the loan is to finance 52 miles of distribution line to serve 205 consumers and also for system improvement. Midwest Electric serves Scurry, Garza, Borden, Fisher, Jones, Mitchell, Nolan, Kent and Stonewall Counties.

Five Killed In Algiers Blast

ALGIERS (AP) — A gas explosion next door to Algiers' largest department store today killed five persons and injured 30, the Interior Ministry reported.

The blast was believed to have been caused by a gas leak. The building where the explosion occurred was destroyed, the ministry said.

The blast shook a building adjoining Les Galeries Algeriennes at 9 a.m., just as employes were arriving for work. Most of the injured, struck by flying glass, wood and metal, were in the department store.

Soldiers joined firemen with bulldozers attempting to clear the wreckage in a search for bodies. Part of the building where the explosion was reported to have occurred fell in and storefronts in the area were shattered by the force of the blast.

McGovern Still Backs Eagleton

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sen . Thomas F. Eagleton said today he talked with George McGovern and McGovern told him "he still backs Eagleton 1,000 per cent" as the Democratic vice-presidential nominee.

Responding to reports that McGovern was ready to dump him, Eagleton told a news conference in his hotel lobby that he's still firm in his intention to remain on the ticket, but that he will meet with McGovern sometime Monday evening in Washington to discuss the situation.

"It's still categorically my intention to remain on the ticket," Eagleton said.

But he would not rule out the possibility that he would be leaving, noting that he could not predict what would happen. "I could be dead Monday night," he said.

Eagleton said he had initiated the telephone call to McGovern and that the Democratic presidential nominee told him he's been under some pressure to dump the Missouri senator because of Eagleton's past psychiatric treatment and his failure to tell McGovern about it until after he'd been nominated for vice president.

Eagleton spoke with newsmen before heading for Jefferson City, Mo., where he planned to attend a birthday celebration for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, a former backer of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for president.

Eagleton's staff assistant Gene Godley reiterated after McGovern's comments that Eagleton had not decided to withdraw.

Eagleton had retired for the night and Secret Service agents refused to let newsmen approach his hotel room in San Francisco.

Godley said Eagleton had not spoken to McGovern since noon Friday.

About 60 per cent of those responding to a random telephone poll taken this week by Sindlinger Research indicated sympathy for Eagleton but think he would hurt the ticket, the syndicated public opinion research firm said Friday.

Eagleton said Wednesday he would quit the ticket on his own if he felt voters were nervous or edgy about him. But Friday he said he's changed his mind because voters gave him a positive response while he campaigned in Honolulu, San Francisco and on an airliner in between the two cities.

"People are basically decent," he said. "I have been graciously received and people are for me."

As a result, he said, there's "no possibility whatsoever" he'll quit the ticket unless asked to do so by McGovern.

Furthermore, Eagleton said, "I'm confident that George McGovern is not going to ask me to withdraw."

Eagleton told newsmen that in a telephone talk with McGovern Friday, McGovern had told him, "I'm still with you 100 per cent."

The Missouri senator told a news conference he feels vindicated on Jack Anderson's drunken-driving allegation because the columnist hasn't been able to produce documents to back it up.

Fischer Threatens Boycott

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer, leading 5-3 in the world chess championship, has threatened not to show up for the ninth game Sunday, claiming he had been deceived about the filming of the last game for television, the president of the Icelandic Chess Federation said today.

Gudmunder Thorarinssen reported he had been told this by Fred Cramer, the American challenger's representative.

Informants said Fischer had asked referee Lothar Schmid of West Germany to apologize for allowing cameramen to film the eighth game which Fischer won easily on Thursday from titleholder Boris Spassky of Russia. But the sources added that Schmid refused, saying the cameras were permitted in the hall under an agreement signed between Fischer's lawyer, Paul Marshall, and representatives of Chester Fox, who had bought exclusive film rights.

The American Broadcasting Co. said in New York it had given in to Fischer's demands and is stopping filming of the games.

Fischer said he did not know he was being filmed. He heard the news over Icelandic radio while dining with his sister Joan.

Ransom Paid For Socialite

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The ransom money for the release of Virginia Piper was paid Friday night and she was to be released by her abductors this morning, a family member said.

The Minneapolis socialite, wife of millionaire Harry C. Piper Jr., was abducted from her home Thursday.

John Morrison, Piper's brother-in-law, reported today the ransom had been paid. He said he was speaking for Piper.

"The ransom money was paid exactly as specified and Mrs. Piper was to be released this morning, but we have not heard from her," Morrison said.

Morrison asked that anyone seeing a "drugged or dazed woman answering Mrs. Piper's description" contact the nearest FBI office or police department.

Morrison also said there was the possibility Mrs. Piper may be tied or drugged and may be in a hotel room or a parked car.

The FBI would say nothing about the ransom being paid. The Minneapolis office said "no comment" when it was asked about the matter.

Mrs. Piper, 49, was kidnaped from her home in the suburb of Orono.

While the FBI threw a blanket of silence over the investigation, one agent said a ransom note had demanded "about $1 million." A Hennepin County official also said the demand was "close to $1 million."

Piper had been broadcasting appeals to the kidnapers, asking them to contact him.

US Reports Minor Damage To Dikes

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. intelligence report says bombs have hit 12 places in North Vietnam's widespread dike network, but "the damage is minor."

The State Department released the eight-page intelligence finding Friday in a follow-up to President Nixon's denial of Hanoi's charges that the United States is deliberately trying to knock out the vital water control system in the Red River delta.

But the department continued to keep secret the July 10-11 U.S. aerial photos said to support the finding. State Department officials said release of the pictures would do no good in the Washington-Hanoi exchange of allegations about the bombing, because they expect North Vietnam would only respond with more photos alleging dike damage.

The intelligence document, which State Department officials said was based on complete photo coverage of the entire Red River delta area in northern North Vietnam, maintained:

"Photographic evidence shows conclusively that there has been no intentional bombing of the dikes. A few dikes have been hit by stray bombs directed at military-associated targets nearby.

"The damage is minor and no major dike has been breached.

"The damage can be easily repaired—in a matter of a few days—and has not been sufficient to cause any flooding.

"No damage has been observed in the Hanoi area or against the primary dike system protecting that city."

State Department officials said the U.S. Intelligence conclusions and pictures were shown to United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim Monday by Ambassador George Bush when the U.S. envoy sought to refute Waldheim's criticism of the U.S. air attacks on North Vietnam.

WTC Employs Piano Instructor

Mrs. Ruth Griffith has been employed as a part-time piano instructor at Western Texas College according to Dr. Marvin Genuchi, professor and chairman of the Music Department.

Mrs. Griffith will teach Freshman Theory, Sophomore Theory, Class Piano and Private Piano; these classes will be conducted on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Mrs. Griffith received an A.A. degree from Texarkana College in 1960. She was awarded a B.A. degree from North Texas State University in 1962 with a major in music and a minor in French, and a M.M. degree from the same university in 1964 where she majored in piano and minored in music theory and music literature. Post graduate study has been done at North Texas State University and Texas Tech. She has just completed authoring a piano course manuscript to be tape recorded and published by the Institute of Music and Motivation.

During the past year Mrs. Griffith has been a part-time piano instructor at Texas Tech, having taught both class and private piano. Other teaching experience includes Atkins Junior High School, Lubbock, where she taught choral and general music; Abilene Christian College where she taught piano, music literature, trumpet, and theory; North Texas State University where she taught piano and music theory.

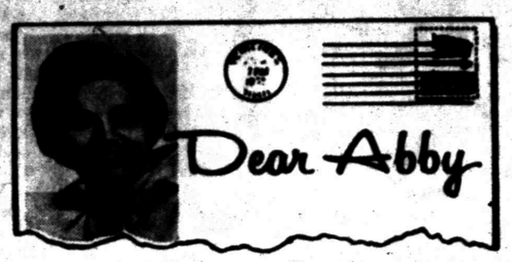

Mrs. Griffith is a member of Pi Kappa Lambda, Mu Phi Epsilon, Pi Delta Phi (honorary French society), Phi Theta Kappa, Music Teachers National Association, Lubbock Music Teachers Association, Texas Music Teachers Association, and Texas Music Educators Association.

She has studied piano under Stephan Bardas, Larry Walz, and Louis Catuogno; and voice under Frank McKinley; and trumpet under John Haynie. She has also studied electronic piano and comprehensive musicianship at a workshop conducted at North Texas State University in 1971.

Married to Captain Wayne E. Griffith, a USAF pilot stationed in Thailand, Mrs. Griffith presently resides at 1606 Bangor in Lubbock. She will commute from Lubbock.

Change the wedding, but keep the courtesy

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I realize that many young people have gone in for far out weddings, which is all right with me. But when they depart from the conventional "thank you" note for their wedding gifts, I think they are going too far.

Today I received what was supposed to be a "thank you" note for a wedding gift I sent to a young couple. [The bride was the daughter of dear friends, so I sent a very expensive silver coffee service.]

The acknowledgment was a folded piece of paper. On the front was "THANK YOU" commercially printed in gold letters. When I opened it there was a photographer's picture of the couple on one side, and a short poem on the other with the couple's names printed below. Abby, that was it! The bride did address the envelope by hand, which was the only personal touch.

I was appalled. I wouldn't have the nerve to say anything to the couple or to their parents, but thru you, Abby, I have been able to fume accordingly. Any comment? No name, please.

APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: Glad you didn't have the nerve to say anything to the parents. After the kids say their "I do's" their parents are not responsible for their actions. I agree, the customs do change, good manners do not. The appropriate expression of gratitude is a personally written note—The exception being when the number runs into the high hundreds or into the thousands.

[P. S. That couple at least sent a card. I was advised that a young couple was sent a check for their wedding gift, and the only acknowledgement ever received was a "thank you" written on the back of the cancelled check!]

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old girl and I have been taking guitar lessons for some time now. I recently switched to a new teacher who is very attractive. [He's about 20.] He has complimented me on my clothes, my hair, and once he even said he thought I was "cute." He has casually put his arm around me, touched my hand and nudged my foot. From these actions I take it he has an eye for me.

Well, I want him to know that I have an eye for him, too, but in these situations I tend to turn red and clam up.

I am hoping he will ask me out, but I am getting a little tired of waiting. Should I make some sort of move toward him? Or should I let him make the first move?

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: Don't make any sort of "move" toward him, but if something comes along that requires an escort, ask him. If he doesn't jump at the chance, quit waiting. He probably has a girl friend.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor lady who leaves her pet [a dog of questionable pedigree] tied up in her backyard from 7:30 a. m. until 5 p. m.—five days a week, while she works.

The poor dog's leash is about 10 feet long, but it invariably gets tangled up in some bushes and the porch bannister, preventing him from reaching the pan of water she has set out for him.

Also, there is no shelter whatsoever to protect this dog from the sun's rays, which are very punishing these days.

I've heard some pathetic cries for help when this dog is in trouble, and on these occasions I've gone out and freed him from his entanglement. But what will happen when I go on my vacation?

I once told the woman that if she couldn't provide better care for the animal she ought not have one, and she said, "I need him for 'protection' at night, and mind your own business!"

Now what?

LOVES ANIMALS

DEAR LOVES: Report her to your local Humane Society. If the animal is providing her with protection at night, the least she can do is to provide him with a decent and comfortable shelter.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

SHADOW FUN—"I have a shadow that goes in and out with me and what can be the use of him is more than I can see," wrote Robert Louis Stevenson. Black Legislator To Sue Club

HOUSTON (AP) — A black woman state legislator-to-be said Friday night she is going to sue a private club in the Rice Hotel after it refused to serve her Thursday night.

Mrs. Senfronia Thompson, who won the Democratic nomination to the Texas Legislature from Dist. 89 here, said she was refused service at the Old Capitol Club after being invited to join a group of state legislators.

The club, long a favorite for politicians and lawyers in Houston, rents its quarters from Rice University, the owner of the Rice Hotel.

Mrs. Thompson said she and her escort, Johnny Henderson a black staff member of the AFL-CIO, were invited to join a group of Texas Legislators in the club prior to attending a dinner for former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough.

"We were about to join these persons and place our order when the manager came forward and stated very bluntly that he could not serve us," Mrs. Thompson said.

One of the legislators at the table was State Sen. Charles Wilson. Contacted at his home Friday night in Diboll, Tex., Wilson, who is the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Congress from Dist. 2, confirmed Mrs. Thompson's story.

He said when she approached the table an employe of the club said, "I can't serve them. I'm not kidding. I can't serve them."

Wilson said nobody argued. "The whole table just got up and left. I had heard that this situation existed in there before," referring to the club. "But that was the first time anything like that happened to me. It shocked me."

Gordon Jones, manager of the private club, declined to talk about the incident. "I don't know anything about it," he said.

Also at the table were State Rep. Joe Allen of Baytown and former state representative John Hannah of Lufkin, who is the Democratic nominee for district attorney in Angelina County.

Student Killed

Herbert M. Hinckley III, 19, of Littlefield, was killed in a one-car mishap on Highway 84 at Inadale Friday morning. He was a student at a Dallas junior college.

4-H Horse Show Planned

The Scurry County 4-H Horse Show will be held in Snyder August 5 beginning at 9 a.m. at the Rodeo Arena on West 30th Street. Mr. J.R. Hudspeth, Midland, Texas will be the judge.

The high point county will receive a silver tray and the champion mare and champion gelding will also be awarded trays. Belt buckles will be awarded to first place in each event and ribbons thru 6th place.

Age groups will be 8 years and under, 9-12 years, 13-15 years, and 16-19 years of age as of January 1, 1972.

Classes will be offered in Halter, Showmanship, Western Pleasure, Reining, Pole Bending, Barrel Racing and Flags. Entries will be accepted until 8:30 a.m. August 5, 1972, and entry blanks will be available at the show.

Police Investigate Reports Of Thefts

Snyder police are investigating several reports of minor theft in the city over the weekend.

Derral Hard, 1918 Coleman reported Friday the theft of eight stereo tapes and a tape case from his car while it was parked in the garage behind Hard's residence.

Glynn Prescott, 1717 Ave. U. reported that someone had stolen a ten speed bicycle from the yard of his house while he and his family were out of town.

Police are also investigating the reported theft of $52.00 from the billfold of Ronnie Lewis, 509 25th. Lewis reported that the money was taken while he was stopped at a service station.

Stack Blasts TV Censorship

MADISON, Maine (AP) — Actor Robert Stack, who portrayed Elliott Ness on the "Untouchables" television series, says televison censorship of violence is "insane" and dangerous.

"The only way to show evil was to show what they (the criminals) did," Stack said of the "Untouchables."

Hebert Says Navy Obsolete

DALLAS (AP) — Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., said Friday night the U.S. Navy has been "obsolete for years," and told a Military Order of World Wars meeting here there is "polarization in this country which I describe as a cancer."

Hebert said he would not talk of "partisan politics," and then went on to endorse President Nixon's reelection.

In calling for an upgrading of U.S. defense, the New Orleans congressman said "Our Navy is obsolete, and it has been obsolete for years." He said the Trident submarine that is desperately needed can't come into use until 1978 or 1979.

Hebert also made a call for "what's best for America and to hell with the rest of the world.

"America is standing at the crossroads. She has three turns: She can take the conservative turn with belief in the Constitution and belief in this country. She can take the turn to the extremist right which leads to a dictatorship, or she can take the turn to the extremist left which leads to complete chaos.

"I make no apology for the bombing of dikes in North Vietnam if they're in the way," he told the 500 members of the war-time officers' association. "I make no apology for the bombing of civilians if they're in the way. We're in there to win."

At the same time Hebert condemned the American strategy in Southeast Asia.

"I voted for the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution because I thought it was a declaration of war against the enemy. When I found out it wasn't, I wanted to get out and get out quick."

Cool Front Hits State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A summer cool front moved across Texas early Saturday, reaching a Paris-Abilene-Midland line by dawn and keeping temperatures 10 degrees below those ahead of the line.

Most of the state had clear to partly cloudy skies as the sun rose, although scattered thundershowers were in progress over Northeast Texas.

Temperature readings near dawn ranged from 62 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 83 at Galveston on the coast. South of the front, temperatures were in the uppers 70s to the lower 80s, while north of the front readings were generally in the upper 60s.

Friday, blistering heat continued to plague the state, while scattered showers did little to bring relief. The only rain of consequence was at Beaumont-Port Arthur, where just .10 of an inch fell in a 24-hour period.

Other rain was widely scattered as a merciless sun beat down on most of Texas. Mineral Wells had the day's highest maximum reading of 102 degrees, followed closely by 101 at Fort Worth and 100 at El Paso, San Angelo and Wichita Falls. Readings in the high 90s were common.

Saturday's outlook called for thundershowers to continue across North Central and Northeast Texas as the cool front moves a little farther southward into the northern and western portions of the state. Otherwise, Texas was expected to have continued partly cloudy and warm weather, although milder temperatures were seen for the Panhandle.

One of the highest automobile roads in the United States winds around Mt. Evans, west of Denver in the Rockies. Mt. Evans is 14,264 feet high.

Dockers Ponder 'Sick-Out'

HOUSTON (AP) — Longshoremen who work for the Port of Houston, unhappy over the port's decision to hold up retroactive pay other longshoremen will be getting, may stage a "sick-out" Monday a leader said Friday.

E. L. King, president of Clerks and Checkers Local 1351 of the International Longshoreman's Association, said he wouldn't be surprised if the 2,500 employes at the port represented by his local call in sick Monday in epidemic proportions.

Their unhappiness is caused, King said, over the decision of the port not to join private contractors in paying retroactive pay Aug. 15 to ILA members.

Since the port is a public agency it does not have a contract with the ILA members who work for it. But it traditionally has paid the same wages and benefits which the ILA got from private firms.

Aug. 15 private firms will pay some $1.5 million in retroactive pay back to last November as the result of a new contract signed earlier this year and approved by the federal Pay Board.

However, George Altvater, executive director of the port, the nation's third largest, has said that the port cannot pay such raises and retroactive pay unless it gets specific approval from the Pay Board.

Altvater said he has received an undated letter from John K. Anderson of the Pay Board saying it was okay for the Port of Houston to go ahead and pay the 55 cent an hourly boost to its workers.

But port officials say they don't consider the letter sufficient evidence of permission. "We don't even know who Anderson is," one official said.

Altvater said the port has put more than $500,000 aside to cover raises and retroactive pay and will put it in the pockets of ILA members as soon as it receives official Pay Board notification. J. H. Raspberry, chief ILA negotiator for the West Gulf, claimed that Altvater is just stalling.

Miss Dyer, David Vaughn Wed In Garden Ceremony

Before a garden setting on the lawn of the First Baptist Church of Gatesville, Deborah Jean Dyer and David Henry Vaughn pledged double-ring wedding vows. The evening ceremony, performed by the Rev. Kenneth Patrick of Big Spring, was June 10.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dyers Jr., of Gatesville and Mrs. Luther Vaughn of Dublin and the late Mr. Vaughn.

Garlands of lily-of-the-valley honored the aisle and were entwined on a white arched trellis, forming a background for the wedding party.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of imported white embroidered lace with a Victorian neckline, empire bodice, scalloped sleeves and scalloped hemline. Her gown was completed by her cathedral-length English illusion veil with matching embroidered lace headpiece. For something old, the bride wore a gold locket which had been presented to her maternal grandmother by her maternal grandfather before their marriage. For something blue, she wore a blue garter and something borrowed were three pennies in her shoe and a dime that her cousin, Mrs. Bob Coward, had in her shoe during her wedding. The bride's diamond earrings were a gift from the bridegroom.

The bride carried a bridal bouquet atop a Bible which was brought from the Holy Land as a gift to the bride by the bridegroom's mother. The cascade bouquet consisted of pompom mums in the bride's chosen colors and baby's breath, with a shower of ribbons. The six chosen colors of the bride were orange, fuchsia, purple, yellow, turquoise and green.

Miss Suzanne Dyer of Gatesville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmatrons were Mrs. Judy Wicker Aauschenberg of Gatesville, Mrs. Jimmy Castle of Shreveport, La., and Mrs. Keith Graham of Arlington and bridesmaid was Miss Delena of Axel, one of the bride's former roommates at Tarleton State College.

The bridal attendants wore floor-length gowns of voile featuring a white background printed with green vertical vines and bordered near the hemline and on the sleeves with flowers carrying out the bride's chosen colors. Between the molded semi-empire bodice and the softly gathered skirt was a band of orange ribbon overlaid with yellow ribbon and again overlaid with white embroidered lace. The Victorian neckline was trimmed with matching ribbons and lace. They wore picture hats of white accented with colored bands of orange and yellow and carried small white wicker gaskets filled with pompom mums of the spring colors, intermingled with baby's breath.

Trudie Hathaway of Snyder, a cousin of the bridegroom, served as flower girl. She was dressed in yellow voile and carried a white wicker basket filled with white flower petals. Trey Dyers of Gatesville, brother of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Steve Mitchell of Coleman served as best man. Groomsmen were Jerry Martin of Silverton, Dean Taylor and Lee Preston of Stephenville, and Glenn Williams of Gatesville, Ushering were Jesse Joe Rollins and Eddie Glen Rollins of Snyder, cousins of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride was dressed in a floor length gown of blue and white cotton check, overlaid with cotton embroidered lace, and belted with white grosgrain. The bridegroom's mother wore a pastel pink with a collar of seed pearls. Each wore an orchid corsage.

Wedding music was presented by Miss Orpa Mayo of Gatesville, pianist. Roger Williams of Waco, uncle of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer."

A reception followed the wedding in the church parlor. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and appointments were of silver. The table was decorated with a candelabra containing small lime green hurricane lamps surrounded with orange pompom mums. A three-tiered white wedding cake, decorated with spring colored flowers and punch were served. The bridegroom's table held a large lime green candle encircled by pompom mums in the bride's chosen colors and baby's breath. Guests were served coffee and chocolate cake. On the registration table was a lime green candle encircled by colorful pompom mums and baby's breath. Arrangements of orange gladioli, vibrant colored pompom mums, roses and baby's breath were placed at vantage points in the parlor.

Serving in the houseparty were Mmes. Bob Coward, Jack Wicker, Dennis Ashley, David Griffin, Mike Williamson and Ricky Beck of Gatesville and Fred Commings of Stephenville, and Misses JoAnn Winslar of Gatesville, Sue Cox of Comanche, Mary Wilson of Dublin, Pam Kyle of Rockdale and Lindsel Geisler of Dallas.

For traveling, the bride chose a green and white checked jumper over a white crepe long sleeved blouse. The jumper belted with green suede, was complemented with green suede sandals. She wore a lime green Cymbidian orchid corsage trimmed in moss green.

Mrs. Vaughn, a graduate of Gatesville High, attends Tarleton State College in Stephenville. Vaughn, a senior at Tarleton State, is engaged in extensive ranching operations near Dublin and Hamilton.

Following the short wedding trip to South Texas, the couple is at home in Dublin.

Educational TV Is Great Help

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — "I was so proud of it that I framed it," Cari Bell Edwards said as she displayed her General Educational Development certificate, the equivalent of a high school diploma. "It ended 10 years of wishing and hoping and depression," she said.

Miss Edwards, 27, says, "I was tired of cafeteria and laundry work—that's about all I could get without a diploma—when I heard about the television series and decided to try it."

The series, aired by the Kentucky Educational Television Network, has earned GED certificates for at least 82 people and is in the process of being revised so that total can be multiplied many times over.

Under a $127,000 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission, KET is streamlining its series to cover the five general subject areas included in the GED test.

"But the overriding purpose of what we design must be to develop reading comprehension, test-taking and mathematical skills," project director Ken Warren said.

Miss Edwards was in the 11th grade when her mother died, leaving three younger children at home without enough money to hire a baby sitter for them.

"I dropped out of school and took care of the kids while my father worked. Then, when he remarried about 18 months later, I went into factory work.

"I really didn't do too badly then, but the cost of living wasn't what it is today. And, after a while, I understood that jobs for me were really limited.

"I applied for different kinds of jobs, but they all gave tests and I couldn't pass them. But I can now," she said with a smile.

Like Miss Edwards, Janet Locke heard about the ETV series from workers in the work incentive program administered by the state's Department of Economic Security to help get jobs for women on welfare.

"I used to ask myself why am I on welfare," Mrs. Locke, a 24-year-old divorcee who left school after the 10th grade, said.

"I felt I had the ability to do something with my life. I figured if I could get my GED certificate I could get a better job than what I had," she said.

Mrs. Locke, who once held two jobs as a maid, working 12 hours a day and more for very little pay, since has entered a pre-nursing course at the University of Kentucky.

Like Miss Edwards, Mrs. Lock is on her way to a better life.

Until KET produces its own high school television series next year, it will continue to use 39-program courses supplied by the national network.

"While it has proved successful, we hope to integrate our course to include all of the things needed to pass the GED test," Bill Wilson, coordinator of the high school series, said.

Presidents Have Praise For UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Every U.S. president, from the time of Harry S. Truman, has expressed confidence in the future of the United Nations.

Addressing the 10th anniversary meeting in 1955, after he returned to private life, Truman said: "The United Nations is the best hope for mankind for deliverance from mutual destruction. It is even more important in this respect than it was 10 years ago."

In 1960, President Dwight D. Eisenhower told the General Assembly: "The United Nations ... has accomplished what no nation singly, or any limited group of nations, could have accomplished. It has become the forum of all peoples, and the structure about which they can center their joint endeavors to create a better future for our world."

A year later President John F. Kennedy said "the United Nations has become both the measure and the vehicle of man's most generous impulses."

In 1963 President Johnson called the organization "the best instrument yet devised to promote the peace of the world and the well-being of mankind."

President Nixon said in 1970: "In the spirit of this 25th anniversary, the United States will go the extra mile in doing our part toward making the U.N. succeed. We look forward to working together with all nations represented here in going beyond the mere containment of crises to building a structure of peace that promotes justice as well as assuring stability, and that will last because we have a stake in its lasting."

British Wives Stock Up

LONDON (AP) — Britain's housewives went on a food buying spree today, stocking up to cushion the effects of the national dock strike that has paralyzed the country's ports.

Thousands of families ignored government assurances that adequate food supplies will be available for the foreseeable future.

The rush on food followed the strike by 42,000 longshoremen Friday, in support of demands for more job security and higher severance pay. A long strike would quickly hit food imports as well as other essential maritime freight movements.

The stoppage has brought about 70 per cent of Britain's import-export traffic to a standstill and idled some 500 ships.

With emergency talks on the crisis set for Monday between maritime employers and union representatives, the government was quietly making plans to introduce a state of emergency to cope with a protracted stoppage.

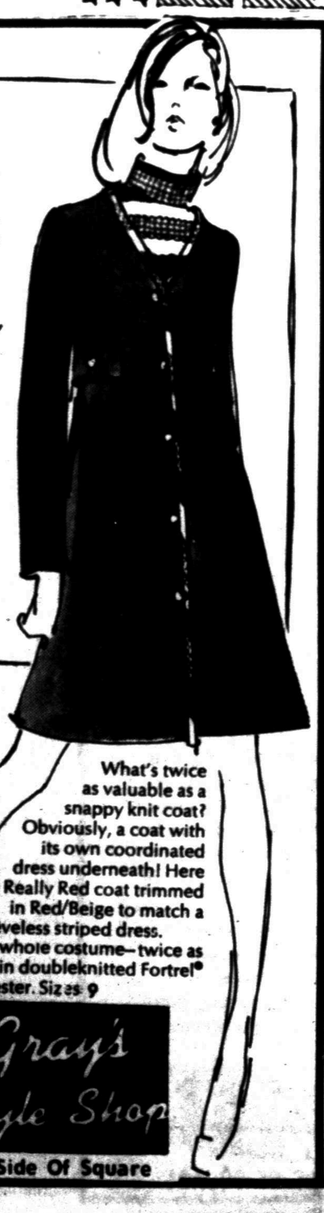

The longshoremen's militancy has focused on the government's controversial new anti-strike act which resulted in five stevedores being jailed for five days last week.

San Marcos Scene Of Meyer, Clayton Vows

Miss Barabara Anne Meyer became the bride of Robert Franklin Clayton Saturday, June 15, at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, San Marcos. The double-ring ceremony was officiated by Dr. Ralph Holland, pastor of Trinity U.C.C., Niederwald. At the close of the ceremony, Dr. Holland read a prayer from a small Protestant prayer book that had belonged to the bride's maternal great-grandmother.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Erwin H. Meyer of Kyle, and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Clayton of Snyder.

The church was decorated with a large floral arrangement centering the altar. The arrangement featured white gladioli, majestic daisies, stock and greenery. Two smaller arrangements flanked the larger arrangement.

Lighting the ceremony were two candelabra stands before the altar railing. Family pews were designated by lighted candles tied with white bows and accented with greenery.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a traditional gown of ivory silk organza and venice lace made along empire lines. The lace-trimmed bodice of the gown featured a deep scooped neckline with narrow lace choker. Sleeves of the gown were "leg o' mutton" style with lace and ribbon accents. The full skirt was ornamented by medallions and lace with ribbon. The detachable train, also ornamented with medallion trim, was bordered by lace. Her ivory camelot headpiece of peau de soie and lace had a pouf veil of silk illusion.

For something old, the bride carried a handmade heirloom lace handkerchief that had been carried by her mother and great-grandmother in their weddings. Her bouquet was a cascade of white daisies, purple statice, pink carnations and baby's breath.

As the bride neared the altar, she stopped to present her mother with a single red rose and a kiss. As the couple began the recessional, she stopped to present the same tokens of affection to the groom's mother.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Marilyn Cochran, cousin of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Patti Wilburn of Wharton. and Miss Marilyn Clayton of Snyder, sister of the groom. Bridesmatrons were Mrs. LeeEtta Sloan and Mrs. Peggy Mikulenka of Houston, cousins of the bride. The attendents wore long empire style dresses of lilac chiffon trimmed with lace and ribbon featuring "leg o' mutton" sleeves. They wore lilac picture hats of swiss braid and maline and carried white baskets of white daisy mums and baby's breath, tied with streamers.

MRS. ROBERT FRANKLIN CLAYTON

Flower girl was Miss Janice Lynn Haywood of Snyder, niece of the groom. She wore a full-length gown of lilac fashioned along the lines of the bridal attendents. She carried a basket of white daisies.

Ringbearer was Michael Cochran, who wore a dark tuxedo with a lilac shirt, like those of the men in the wedding party.

Don Marwitz served as best man. Groomsmen were the groom's father, Franklin E. Clayton, John Thomas Clayton, brother of the groom, Leonard James Meyer, brother of the bride and Clarke Bostick. Ushers were Gary Don Patrick, Gerald Cochran, Mark Wilburn and Kelly Wilburn.

A musical program was presented by Miss Jane Meier of San Antonio, organist, and Ralph McFarland, organist.

A reception was held in the reception hall of the church. Members of the houseparty were Mmes. Karry Kay Matson, Iva Grace Gaywood, Donna Connally, Elaine Taylor, Dale Heinsohn, and Misses Marita Hildebrandt, Kim Purcell, Kathy Wilburn, Judy Shull, Sherry Ridge and Diane and Sue Baker.

The bride's table was covered with a white cloth overlaid with net and trimmed around the edge with lilac and purple satin rosettes. Centerpiece and candelabra were surrounded by the bridesmaid's baskets and the bridal bouquet.

The four-tiered wedding cake was trimmed with lilac rose petals. Tiny bridesmaid dolls dressed in lilac standing on a miniature stairway descending from the top of the cake, where a bridal couple stood before a heart-shaped silk screen outlined with white beading.

A gold cloth covered the groom's table. The centerpiece was a twin hurricane lamp with yellow candles and a flower arrangement of yellow and rust mums. German chocolate cake topped with green grapes an coffee were served at the table.

The couple chose Mexico and points of interest along the Texas coast for their wedding trip. The bride's travel costume was a yellow and white street-length dress with black accessories. She wore a white orchid with yellow throat to compliment her ensemble.

The couple are both seniors at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos and reside there.

Out-of-town guests to the wedding came from Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Austin, Lockhart, Columbus, New Braunfels, Wharton, Snyder, Baytown, Smithville, El Campo, Seguin and Valdosta, Georgia.

The rehersal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Holiday Inn in San Marcos Friday evening, July 14.

The bride was recently honored at a miscellaneous shower given by friends in the Niederwald Sunday School building. On Saturday, June 17, Mrs. F. D. Glass III was hostess at a luncheon in her home in Kyle, Texas. That same evening, Mrs. Karry Kay Matson of Fort Worth, assisted by her sisters, Mrs. Judy Powell and Mrs. Connie Armbruster, was hostess at a bridal tea in the home of her mother, Mrs. Gypsie Thompson, near Buda, Texas. Saturday, July 8, Mrs. Patty Soule complimented the bride-elect with a luncheon in her home in Austin.

Women's Attitudes Changed

NEW YORK (AP) — A new youth poll claims there has been a significant increase in the past two years in the number of young women who have come to reject the traditional marital role of homemaker.

Dr. Hal Edrich, director of the research division of the Institute of Life Insurance, said the results may provide the first statistical measure of the influence of the women's movement among young women.

The survey was conducted for the institute by Gilbert Youth Research Inc., which interviewed 2,500 men and women, ages 14 to 25, in neighborhoods, high schools and colleges. It was a followup study.

The poll said that 51 per cent of the women interviewed said they disagreed with the traditional notion of the woman's place, compared with 42 per cent two years ago.

And while 35 per cent preferred the domestic role in 1972, compared with 42 per cent two years ago, 31 per cent now said they would choose the life of the successful executive or professional, compared with 26 per cent in 1970.

When it came to projecting their roles 15 years hence, however, 53 per cent of the female interviewees said they expected to be average housewives, raising children.

As for men, the poll claimed they appeared to have modified their view of the woman's place very little in the past two years. It said 41 per cent of the men polled objected to the traditional woman's role, compared with 39 per cent in 1970.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP News Features

A do-it-yourself chore once requiring at least some measure of skill, painting a room in your house can now be accomplished in a fairly professional manner once you have recovered from put-it-off-itis.

Modern paints go on easier, hide better, last longer and are more washable. And the use of a roller in conjunction with a brush enables you to do the job in half the time.

You are most of the way to a good result if you will spend just a little extra time preparing the surface before applying the paint. This means freeing the wall of loose dirt, peeling paint, oil and grease. Loose paint should be scraped away, dirt taken off with a dry mop or a vacuum cleaner attachment, oil and grease removed with an odorless paint thinner or a detergent, and cracks and holes filled with spackling compound or some other type of patching plaster.

Where gloss or semi-gloss enamels have been used in kitchens and bathrooms, any remaining gloss should be dulled with sandpaper or with a special compound you can buy from your paint dealer. This is necessary because paint will not adhere well to slick surfaces.

Also before starting, remove switch plates and outlet covers; then when you paint the exposed areas and replace the plates and covers, you'll have a neat result. It also eliminates the problem of removing bits of paint that cling to the plates and covers when you attempt to paint around them. Should you wish to paint the plates and covers, remember what was said about paint not sticking well to shiny surfaces. A little steel wooling will accomplish the required dulling.

If the ceiling is to be painted along with the walls, do it first. Use a roller with an extension handle and paint across the width of the ceiling rather than the length. This will prevent lap marks even though many of today's paints, especially the latexes, minimize this possibility.

Although you probably will use a roller for the walls, use a paint brush with a small amount of paint on the tips of the bristles only. Angle the brush into the corner of the wall and ceiling to make light, horizontal strokes so the bristles ride naturally in the upper corner. Proceed immediately by painting a small wall area to keep the edges of the line wet. Then use smooth, vertical strokes in rolling the paint on the remainder of the wall.

You may think you can be careful enough not to splatter paint on the furniture or drapes. Don't try it. Remove as much furniture as possible toward the center of the room. Take off drapes and curtains, cover everything possible and get out of the room valuable pieces that might be knocked over.

(Caulking, faucet leaks and toilet tank repairs are among the 35 subjects in Andy Lang's helpful handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper in care of Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

MR. AND MRS. STEVEN GRIFFIN
(Photo by Craft)

Repeat Wedding Vows Saturday

Colonial Hill Baptist Church was the scene of the marriage of Miss Brenda Walker to Steven Griffin. The afternoon ceremony was performed July 22 by the Rev. Miller Robinson.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Horn and Griffin is the son of H.J. Griffin.

Mrs. Laura Lowery served as matron of honor and other attendents were Miss Debe Longbotham of Snyder, Miss Barbara Griffin of San Antonio, Toby Hinshaw of Snyder, H.J. Griffin of San Antonio and John Walker of Snyder.

The groom's father served as his best man and Grant Hook ushered.

A reception was held at the church.

The couple is at home at 4819 Pecan Grove, San Antonio.

Bra-Burning Women Hurt Cause

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Helen Delich Bentley, the first woman to serve as chairman of the Federal Maritime Commission, says bra-burning feminists are harming the women's rights movement and alienating those who support it.

"We can compete without being hostile, ladies," Mrs. Bentley told delegates at the convention Thursday of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

"The way I see it, women's male-directed hostility, where it does exist, is a sign of insecurity in such females, and an immature attitude employed to cover up and disguise their real feelings," Mrs. Bentley said.

Paris Fashion Show Concluded

By ALISON LERRICK
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The Paris collections have ended and one thing is clear: Any woman who wants to look like a girl will have a good headstart on her fall wardrobe.

Funny fashion is now demode. The designers have learned, by bad experience, that no one wants to invest $1,000 on next season's joke.

So it's time to start demothballing those tweed skirts and sweaters.

After a period of mixing, the new thing is to match. The little suit is Paris' latest discovery. When it's not in schoolgirl gray flannel it's in tweed.

The skirt—at the knee—may be pleated or A-line, but the fashion avant-garde will be wearing it straight. With it, a long belted jersey sweater at Givenchy or a body-jacket. It has natural shoulders, normal-looking revers and skims the torso as far as the hipbone.

Dior and Patou hold the record on gray flannel. Dior's suits have flaming colors inside, on the rounded lapels and the brim of the gray flannel hat. Chanel, naturally, has more tweed suits than any other house.

Otherwise, it's camels hair, Donegal tweed, clan plaids, checks and black. The accents save the clothes from tedium: fuchsia, turquoise, royal blue, red and Kelly green.

If you really have something wrong with your legs, there still are pants, very wide, cuffed and pleated at the waist.

Ungaro's easy coats in pastel cashmere and Givenchy's loose coats with cap shoulders over a suit with contrasting sleeves are the ones the private clients won't be able to live without.

Everywhere else, there's just a lot of coats with deep armholes or raglan sleeves, especially bathrobes and enormous coats in tartan plaids. For evening, Lanvin has the biggest coat in Paris. It's a floor-length kimono edged in a contrasting flaming color, and whoever wears it won't have to worry about dieting.

What goes under a coat? A dress. Ungaro's printed wool voiles have gathered waists, but they're less dressy as a short-belted tunic over a pleated skirt. Dior's crepe dresses are in bright squares on a dark background.

The newcomer this season is the sheath. It's straight enough to send everyone girdle-hunting. It has a round neck, buttons from top to bottom, and often is belted at the waist.

With the ladylike look go dark sheer stockings, except at Givenchy, where the textured leg has again gained a foothold in fashion. Whether spectators, plain old pumps or suede oxfords, the shoes are definitely made for walking. The oxfords that are different are from Patou, with a stacked foam heel.

Apples Used For Dolls' Faces

WINNIPEG (AP) — Jean Lambert refuses to eat apples because she says it's "cannibalistic." But the suburban St. Vital housewife has for the last 10 years made them into little dolls. Mrs Lambert says the apples dry naturally over a period of three to four weeks after being peeled and are formed into faces by gently applying pressure daily over the drying period.

Unusual Table Covers Are The "In" Things

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Both indoor and outdoor picnic tablecloths are the "in" thing with hostesses these days, With entertaining emphasis on low-cost picnic foods served on an unusual table cover.

For that matter, some people are serving hot dogs and beans indoors on heirloom china and some are taking the easy-does-it-route with paper service all the way, but, no matter, the table cloth is the eye catcher.

One young woman uses inexpensive paisley bed throws. Another uses handmade quilt of her grandmother's which she protects with placemats. And in some circles, animal themes are the going thing—zebra or tiger-marked fabrics stitched on the sewing machine. Even bedsheets are being used with a dual purpose—on the table in summer and in the linen closet next fall. Fishnet over a solid-colored cloth has made a comeback, and there are deep-colored throw-away cloths that are heavy enough to stay on the table with high winds blowing.

Vinyl, a good weatherproof cover, may be enhanced with appliques, using a method of bonding the fabric without stitching. Other cloths may be used in this manner, but vinyl or oilcloth provide easy-care convenience.

One woman uses a pale yellow vinyl with cloth backing on a rectangular picnic table. The border of the cloth is appliqued with fruit designs—apples, watermelons, grapes—in red, hot pink, and purple colored vinyls bought in small quantities. A child's coloring book provided the fruit patterns.

Using stylized motifs provides amateurs with a lot of leeway in achieving design goals. Other party motifs might include a border of red apples on a white cloth or big colored balloons on a pink cloth.

Ideas for seasonal cloths might include these:

Winter—Snowmen, snowballs, Christmas trees (green on red).

Spring—Birds or trees or seashells.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—In stories about basement flooding, I often see the term "water table." I can't find it in my dictionary. Exactly what does it mean?

A.—It's the highest point at which there is water in the ground. If you had a to dig 20 feet into the soil to reach water, that would be the water table. It is not constant, since it depends on the kind of soil, the season of the year and the amount of recent rainfall. Some areas of the country have higher average water tables than others. When the level of the water rises higher than the low point of the basement foundation of a house, the pressure might eventually cause leaks in the basement floor and walls. In areas where this is a possibility, well-constructed houses have drainage tiles around the perimeter of the foundation to carry the rain water away.

Q.—How can I tell a termite from a flying ant?

A.—If that means you have found one or more around your house, better have it checked by a professional exterminator or a county or state entomologist. But if you want to try to make an identification by yourself, the termite's body is of the same thickness all the way. The ant's body is shaped like an hourglass. The termite has four wings of the same length. The ant has two short wings and two long wings. The termite's wings are opaque, the ant's transparent.

Q.—There's a wide crack in our old stucco house on one of the outside walls. I've never patched stucco, but have fixed cracks in plaster walls. Is the procedure the same?

A.—Yes. Undercut the crack so that it is wider at the bottom than the top. You'll need a hammer and a cold chisel for this. Remove all loose and crumbling material. Soak the exposed area with water. Apply the mortar into the opening, packing it as tightly as possible. If the crack is so deep that the underneath lath is exposed, apply one coat of mortar fairly close to the surface, allow it to harden, then apply a second coat. Smooth with a trowel. You can buy a factory-mixed stucco mortar to which only water need be added.

Q.—I intend to make wood window awnings from slats 2 inches wide. How long should the slats be?

A.—It depends on how far down you want the awning to hang. In other words, how much of the window do you want to keep shaded? Generally, awnings of that type are about half the length of the window frame.

Bottled Message Gets New Twist

WILTON, Conn. (AP) — Still tossing message-filled bottles into the sea? No longer. A group of Girl Scouts recently tried a modern twist. At the end of their International Jubilee Rally, held in June this year in Redding, Conn. the troop launched 127 helium-filled balloons. Each one carried a postcard with an individual girl's name, age and return address.

Since the launching, several post cards have been returned, indicating the balloons went north before turning east out to sea. On June 8, Sarah Kozma received her card from Capt. J. Meyer, where he had rescued it from the middle of Long Island Sound.

Twenty days later, Brownie Scout, Debbie Connell, and Junior Scout, Leslie Hawley, received a postcard from Luxembourg, dated June 18, 1972. The translated message reads: "Dear Leslie and Debbie: Today I was walking on Liberty Avenue — what a surprise when I saw a balloon alight in front of me. I opened the small package and found these postcards. When it came down the balloon was very tired, but do not worry because I gave it fresh air — it is resting — already it seems to look bigger. These postcards were sent a long distance — I congratulate you. Au revoir. Signed Joe Viamonte."

Last Replacements Go With Many Emotions

EDITOR'S NOTE — The war in Vietnam is coming to an end. President Nixon says it'll be pretty soon. A Democratic presidential hopeful says he'd do it immediately. Either way, the troops that are going now are among the last to go . . . perhaps among the last to die. Interviewed at their jumping off point Travis Air Force Base, here is how they felt about it.

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The war protests go on. Troop withdrawals are announced periodically on prime time. A presidential candidate runs on a "Peace Now" plank. And at Travis Air Force Base, the dispatcher announces Flight 281 will board from Gate Two. Final destination: Saigon.

The replacement troops and advisers pull themselves up from the floors of the big barn-like terminal where some have been trying to sleep on duffle bags for hours. From the chairs, from the big cafeteria, from the little television sets you can watch for quarters, the young dogfaces and the beribboned brass head for the chartered commercial airliner that will take them into a country whose very name evokes a strong reaction from most Americans.

Seven hundred to 800 men leave from this air base north of San Francisco each week, some professional soldiers going back to Vietnam for their second or third tour of duty, some teenagers on their way to get a first-hand look at a war they remember reading about practically all their lives.

They go with many emotions. Adventure. Patriotism. The dream of saving a spot in the world threatened by Communism. Bitterness at being among the last to go, perhaps the last to die.

"What difference does it make how I feel about going?" asked an Army major. "I don't know why anyone should be interested in how we feel. We're going. That's it."

A 20-year-man, Army Lt. Col. Robert Garman, says he looks forward to getting back into the field again. He served his first tour during the 1966-67 buildup.

"It's the only fight we have right now," says Garman. "It's where the action is. The pay is better, but the risk is greater. But that's our business, I'm a professional soldier."

Garman, who has a short crew cut, says he has no political feelings about the rightness or the wrongness of the war.

"Politics is not our line of business. A soldier is a soldier. We've started something and I think we have to give the Vietnamese a chance. If it goes Communist, we can only say we've tried."

The thoughts of the young men are far more volatile than those of the professional soldiers. There's a young man calling for the use of atomic weapons, another with a peace symbol tatooed on his arm, some who have signed peace petitions.

But even among the professionals, the thoughts about being among the last to go vary. An Air Force technical sergeant, going for his third tour of duty, says "Why should I go over now? It's just a political thing. The first time I went, I thought I was going for a cause. If I could just feel I was doing some good, it would be different. If these people cared or wanted us in there . . ."

The non-com, with 20 years in and eight months away from retirement, declined to give his name. "Career men won't say how they really feel for the record. They know they'll get hung."

His specialty will keep him in the field pretty much, and this time around, he says he's scared.

"I've run for bunkers before, but we had protection then. Now I'd rather have my 7 and 10-year-old sons out there than the South Vietnamese troops. They're undependable. I can see why they get the nickname 'Zipperhead.'

"I do feel bitter this time. Nixon might want to save his honor, but I don't want him to do it with my life."

The career men generally looked upon their tour in Vietnam as just another job, a year-long transfer from corporate headquarters to an outlying branch office.

Three Army majors, who just finished 18 weeks of school together at the State Department in Washington, D.C., were reunited at the base, waiting for their flight to be called. All had served earlier tours.

"I'm not overjoyed about going, but that's my job," said one, Maj. Waldo Freeman. "I'm a professional soldier."

His buddy, Maj. John A. Noble, added: "We still have a job to do over there. We want to see it finished honorably. Too many Americans have died. I love this country and want to help save it."

Majors Freeman, Noble and John Koisch will be district senior advisers, but don't feel they will be in as much danger this time as in their earlier tours of duty.

"I'll see the same thing as I did last time, but not as close," said Freeman, who was last in Vietnam in 1967-68. "The last time I did some grenade throwing myself."

None of the three were in fear of being the last to die.

"We'll be home before Christmas," said Freeman. "It is the success of Vietnamization, not the failure, that caused the recent new offensive. The 1968 Tet offensive was the beginning of the end of the VC."

The end of the war was discussed by some with bitterness.

Air Force Technical Sergeant Cecil T. Crim, going back for the second time in an 18-year career, predicts Nixon will pull everybody out by September.

"It's pathetic. After all this we're going to compromise just like we did in Korea without gaining a foot," says Crim. He spent only 21 days with his bride before he had to leave and he says the war is just a political expedient at this point.

"The young men who ask 'why am I here' have got the wrong question," says Crim. "The question is why am I here at this particular time. Why wasn't this war over six or seven years ago? That's the real question."

As he heads for the plane that will take him to what could be the final battles, Crim isn't happy about the new military, the cut-down discipline and permissiveness.

"There's no discipline left," says the 38-year-old Crim. "Curtis LeMay was right when he said that if you're not going to train the military you might as well put civilians in there."

Dying and killing as the world calls for peace—a peace that could be a week or a lifetime away.

The vets don't talk much about either. The recruits express the same feelings of all young men going to wars new or old—the fear for their lives and the spectre of killing another human being.

A 26-year-old Air Force captain, who declined to give his name is assigned to be the co-pilot on a gunship.

"I'll be pulling the triggers and I don't like it very much. You can justify it in many ways and I guess I have because I haven't told them I wouldn't do it. I rationalize by realizing you're always helping somebody, even up there.

"I didn't want to go. I don't think we're doing any good over there, anyway. And I know killing somebody is going to change me, making me different somehow. I don't know how, yet."

Air Force Staff Sergeant Mark Boettner, 23, is a bomb loader. "I don't feel personally responsible for what the bombs might do. I'm just following orders."

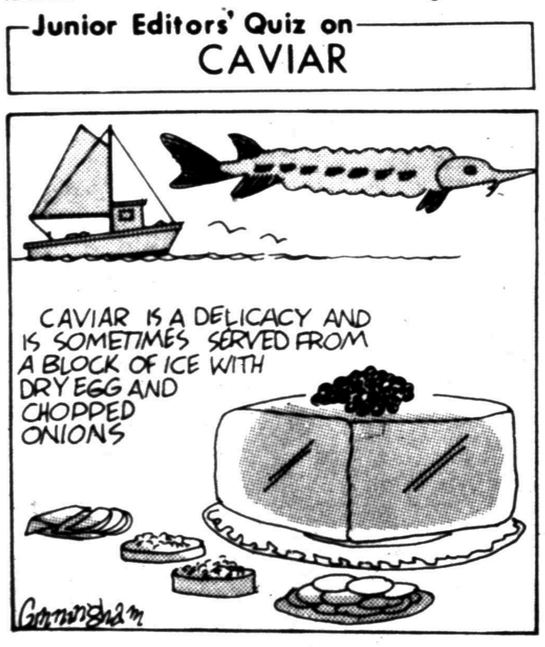

For Steve Blum, 18, it's survival. Blum, kicked out of school in Sherman, N.Y., joined the Navy four months ago. He will be aboard the Defiance, an amphibious landing craft and will carry a pistol and a rifle.

"It might be exciting. I'll be up where the fire is. I figure it'll be them or me, and I'll be pulling the triggers first."

Blum, a lanky blond, looking younger than his 18 years, talked about farming, about the Appaloosa mare he owns, about an old barn he would like to repair. "The thought of a beam falling down on a horse's or cow's back worries me," he said.

Blum, a "boot" was traveling with Navy E-3 Gary Owens, 21. Owens was returning to Vietnam after a leave.

Junior Editors' Quiz on CAVIAR

QUESTION: What is caviar?

* * *

ANSWER: Caviar is a delicacy prepared from the roe of various species of sturgeon. This large fish is of ancient lineage and has a primitive structure with a bony plate or skeletal frame on the outside of its body. It has been prized for its flesh which is smoked and for the roe or eggs of the female. The largest variety of sturgeon is found in the area of Russia in the Caspian and Black Seas. Sturgeon is also found in American waters along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and the Great Lakes.

Caviar has been popular in Russia for hundreds of years. It was considered a rare food which only the rich could afford. Since the 1800s, caviar reached the masses through the use of sturgeon found in American waters. However, the demand for caviar and smoked sturgeon became so great that American waters were overfished, and sturgeon which was a common fish, has been nearly exterminated. For this reason, the roe of other fish has been used to make caviar. In preparing caviar for the market, the eggs are rubbed through a screen to free them from membrane or connective tissue. Then they are washed, rubbed with salt and drained, dried and packed.

College Student Wants To Quit

Career Corner
by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: I have finished my junior year in college, and have done satisfactory work, but I am not really interested in completing my education. I read your column regularly and have noticed that you have various job lists – have you one for someone with my background? I have never had a class in typing so I would be ill equipped for office work. Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated. – L.S., Seattle

Running out of motivation on the way to the mortarboard is so common that it merits some thoughts on decision-making, values and alternatives. I, too, felt after my sophomore year as you do after your junior year. My liberal arts courses held little luster, and the dilemma came to a head when I was offered "a wonderful job" as a basement copywriter for a department store. Mentally, I counted the money that was sure to roll in, and daydreamed about instant independence and creative opportunity. Wow! Writing ads that would actually appear in newspapers sure beat writing all those dumb term papers, I thought.

JUST AT THE CRITICAL POINT of decision, a wiser person convinced me that I owed it to myself to weigh ALL my alternatives, and to put my values and goals under the microscope of future reality.

It was one sweaty task, I assure you. I didn't know anything about decision-making on a systematic basis. At last, however, I concluded that, for me, switching to business administration and continuing my education was the most favorable alternative. I have never been sorry.

But you are not me, I am not you, and this is not a pitch to stay in school for your degree. On the contrary, if you haven't the interest, then you don't belong in college. Vacate your slot for a student who is motivated. Later on, you may change your mind and return, as do many college leavers.

THIS IS A PITCH for personal decision-making on a systematic basis. Start with your cherished values because these are the foundation for the entire decision-making process as it relates to your future. Because different people don't consider the same things important, they come to different decisions with the same information – or make the same choice for different reasons.

A FEW TYPICAL VALUES ARE: Independence. Money. Responsibility. Prestige and Recognition. Help people. Creativity. Security. Immediate pleasure. What additional or different values do you hold? Make a list of the 5 values most important to you, then list your actions in the past month which validate the 5 values you listed. If you can't find concrete expressions of those values, re-think; we don't always want to admit our true values.

Next, translate those values into clear goals – both vocational and personal. If, for example, prestige and recognition are important to you, then what types of positions meet that requirement in your mind (such as business executive, physician, professor, actress)?

NOW, LIST ALL ALTERNATIVES OPEN to you presently – considering your personal values, goals, and the risks and rewards involved in each alternative. You are looking for the most likely favorable outcome from your list of alternatives. To illustrate, some of your alternatives are: take any available job while you consider your long-term course of action; get married and don't work; try to find the right job immediately; join the military services; get a part-time job and continue in school.

Obviously, you can't effectively handle your decision-making in the abstract. A list of jobs which may help you focus is contained in a U.S. Department of Labor chart which matches 25 personal values (including education needed), with characteristics of 268 jobs. For a free copy, send a postcard to me at this newspaper. Ask for "PERSONAL-JOB MATCH REPRINT." Print clearly and include zip code.

Remember, as someone said, "Not to decide is to decide."

VICTIM REMOVED FROM SCENE—Workers remove the body of one of the eight victims killed in an 2-car, pick-up truck accident near this east Texas town of Athens, Texas, Friday afternoon. 5 others were hospitalized. (AP Wirephoto)

Eight Killed In Smashup

ATHENS, Tex. (AP) — A group outing to pick peas resulted in tragedy Friday as eight persons were killed and six others injured in a three-vehicle smashup near this East Texas town.

Investigators said a car apparently crossed a median strip, crashing head-on with a pickup truck carrying 13 persons.

Peace Justice Bill Richards identified the dead as Don Cofer, about 18; Jack Cofer, about 50; Mrs. Jack Cofer, about 48; Darlene Allen, 17; Ruby Frater, 48; John Franklin Frater, 45, all of Larue; Richard Williams, 11, of Athens and Frank Edwards, 51, of Dallas.

All but Edwards were in the other car which collided with the truck, investigators said. A second car behind the truck hit the wreckage but the driver was reportedly not injured.

The impact of the crash severed the cab of the truck from the bed.

The accident happened about 1:30 p.m. on U.S. 175.

The first plywood, as we know it today, was 3-ply, made of Douglas-fir, and was manufactured in St. Johns, Oregon in 1905.

VA Teachers In Workshop

Billy Bob McMullan and Floyd Collins, vocational agriculture teachers in the Snyder Public Schools, will attend the Annual Conference and In-Service Education Workshop in Fort Worth, Aug. 1-4. It is sponsored by the Agriculture Eduction Department, Texas Education Agency.

Keynote speaker for the conference will be Herb True, PhD., president of Educational Motivators, South Bend, Indiana. He will address the group on "Psychodynamic Motivation and How to Use it". Also appearing on the program will be Mr. John R. Guemple, Associate Commissioner for Occupational Education and Technology and Mr. Vernon Baird, member of the State Board of Education from Fort Worth, who will greet the group.

The teachers will take part in area meetings and will attend workshops on Wednesday and Thursday. Also on Wednesday, the association will sponsor its annual awards breakfast.

Approximately 1500 vocational agriculture teachers and friends are expected to attend the meeting.

Steel Outlook Is Brighter

By JOHN DORFMAN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — While most industries have been displaying glowing earnings reports in the past two weeks, returns from the steel companies have been coming in grey as a girder.

Appearances may be deceiving, however. Steel's profits are being compared with 1971 first-half figures that were artificially swollen by mass buying in fear of a steel strike.

No strike ever came. But buyers had stocked up so much inventory by August that demand for steel fell to a trickle.

"It took virtually all of 1971 to work off this inventory," one analyst said. "So profits in the second half of 1972 are going to be up very substantially."

The outlook for steel is boosted by the latest returns from the auto makers, who in good times are hungry consumers of steel. General Motors announced Friday its June quarter was its best ever, with profits up $723 million, up from $567 million last year.

Ford's first-half profits jumped from $367 million to $535 million, on record worldwide sales. Chrysler and American Motors also reported healthy increases in earnings.

On paper, the steel earnings don't look so good, and most steel stocks were down a point or two following release of corporate reports this week. But one Wall Street expert discounted the trend.

"The investing public is making a mistake, looking at these earnings in a very superficial way," he said. "If investors continue to look at this on a surface basis, the third quarter is going to excite the hell out of them."

Foreign imports—an increasingly annoying thorn in the pocketbook of domestic producers, are expected to drop this year to 17 million tons or less, after peaking at 18.32 million tons last year to capture 16 per cent of the U.S. market.

Chief cause for the change is a series of "voluntary agreements" negotiated by the U.S. Treasury Department with European and Japanese producers.

The Smokey Bear program of forest fire prevention was started in 1945. In Mexico, Smokey's counterpart is Simon El Oso (Simon the Bear)

Light Shed On Aspirin

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Isolation of a group of hormones called prostaglandins is throwing light on the persistent medical mystery of how aspirin works, a British researcher says.

Dr. John R. Vane, professor of experimental phamacology at the University of London, told the Fifth International Congress of Pharmacology in its final session Friday that aspirin and its close chemical relatives inhibit the body's production of the prostaglandin hormones.

Vane said the work of many laboratories around the world has resulted in the isolation of 14 prostaglandins and the production of artificial chemical duplicates.

Three prostaglandins are found in every cell in the human body, he said, and their function appears to be to mobilize the body to cope with problems by stimulating inflammation, fever and pain.

The mystery about aspirin has been how it counteracts these three phenomena, Vane said, and research shows that aspirin and related compounds appear to curb prostaglandin output by 25 to 100 per cent, resulting in less inflammation, fever and pain.

Good Times Predicted

BOKOSHE, Okla. (AP) — A Highway Patrolman was predicting good times in this eastern Oklahoma community Friday night after a trailer full of beer and soft drinks overturned.

Trooper Roy Leming said that by the time he arrived at the accident, some 200 area residents had gathered at the scene and were hauling away about half of the 200 cases of refreshments.

Leming said he was unable to stop the looting.

Evonne, Chris In Net Rematch

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Evonne Goolagong and Chris Evert kept everyone thinking of their rematch today by scoring convincing, straight-set victories to open the Bonne Bell Cup competition here Friday.

Miss Goolagong started slowly against Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Calif., before romping to a 6-4, 6-0 triumph to open the best-of-seven series between the Australian and United States' women's teams.

Miss Evert then trimmed Margaret Court, the former queen of the net world, 6-3, 6-3, before a crowd of 5,000 at Harold T. Clark stadium in suburban Cleveland Heights.

Wendy Overton of Chevy Chase, Md., will meet Kerry Melville of Australia to open today's second round play, followed by a doubles match. Makeup of the doubles teams will not be announced until an hour before the match.

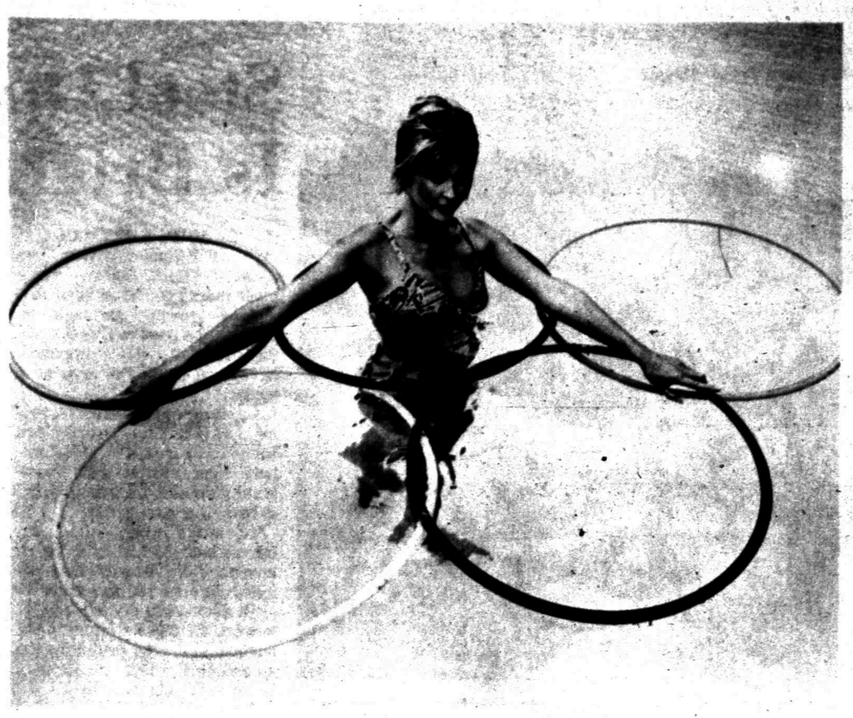

Miss Goolagong, 20, who defeated 17-year-old Miss Evert 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 in their only other meeting this summer in the semifinals at Wimbledon, is to meet the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., high school senior in the next to last match today.

Miss Evert skyrocketed into the international limelight last year when she led the U.S. to a startling upset over England for the Wightman Cup.

While Miss Goolagong's victory over Miss Ziegenfuss was expected, there were doubts whether Miss Evert could handle Mrs. Court, who dominated the women's tennis world in the 1960's with 27 major titles.

Mrs. Court, trying a comeback after a year off the tour to have a baby, was kept away from the nets by Miss Evert's lob shots and pin-point backhand placements.

Miss Evert took a 3-1 lead in the first set but fell behind 2-0 before rallying to win three straight games and take command of the second set.

RINGS AND THINGS—Getting into the Olympic swim of things, San Francisco's Elaine Beckett displays the Olympic symbol, rings linked together to denote the sporting friendship of the peoples of the earth. The sharp-eyed sports fan will note that Elaine's bikini is made of Bank of America Travelers Checks, which is the bank's pleasant way of pointing out it has donated over $130,000 to the United States Olympic Committee. Every time somebody buys a B of A Travelers Check, the bank turns over a portion of its commissions to help the USOC meet its $10 million budget. The summer Olympics will be held in Munich from August 26 through September 10.

Hunt Is Honored For Contributions

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — "No person has contributed more to rewriting sports history in our time," New England Patriots President Bill Sullivan Jr. said of Lamar Hunt.

Sullivan praised the founder of the American Football League Friday night at the Pro Football Hall of Fame enshrinees dinner.

Hunt and his fellow 1972 hall of famers, Gino Marchetti, Ollie Matson and Clarence "Ace" Parker, saved their thanks until Sat. for the induction ceremonies before a pre-season game between the Kansas City Chiefs and New York Giants.

Sullivan, who presented Hunt for induction Sat., saluted the Chiefs' owner for his contributions to the game.

"He suggested names on the uniforms, the name for the Super Bowl and the name for the trophy that goes with it, the Vince Lombardi Trophy," the Patriots president said.

Sullivan, a two-time president of the AFL, recalled Hunt's contributions to the old league.

"He didn't move his team from Dallas to Kansas City because he thought it was a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow," Sullivan said.

"He did it for the good of the league."

The other presenters talked just as glowingly of their enshrinees.

Los Angeles Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom said of Marchetti, "He was the greatest defensive end ever to put on pads."

Joe Kuharich, who coached Matson in college and pro ranks, said, "The things this man has done are absolutely unbelieveable. He never once criticized a teammate or a coach. He had no peer."

Jack White, the general manager of the San Francisco 49ers, presented Parker, a triple-threat star in the late 1930s with the old Brooklyn Dodgers.

Dick Gallagher, director of the Hall of Fame, presented Fred Gehrke the first Dan Reeves Memorial Award.

Gehrke, now assistant general manager of the Denver Broncos, was the first to brighten helmets while playing with the Rams in 1948. He painted the drab brown headgear a bright blue with reddish rams horns.

Chuck Medlar is in his 10th season as Penn State baseball coach.

San Diego Has Team

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Professional basketball, in the form of a franchise and an owner, is back in San Diego. Now all it needs is players, a coach, general manager, staff and a place to play.

The American Basketball Association announced Friday it was relocating one of its two bankrupt franchises in San Diego, giving sole ownership to a 38-year-old dentist, Dr. Leonard Bloom.

ABA Commissioner Bob Carlson, appearing with Bloom at a news conference here, said San Diego will play this winter in the Western Division.

San Diego formerly was the home of the NBA's Rockets, but that franchise was sold to a group in Houston in June 1971.

Bloom said he will be a busy man in the next few weeks trying to staff the team in time for an Aug. 10 expansion draft. The commissioner said each of the established nine teams will be able to protect six players, with San Diego drawing two from each club.

Fish Abundant At E.V. Spence

Fishermen were in somewhat short supply last week at Lake E.V. Spence, but not the fish.

Jerry Hammond, Colorado City, landed a pair of black bass weighing 2½ pounds each. Bob Rankin, Nolan, came in with 12 white bass weighing two pounds on the average.

F.D. Christiansen, Big Spring, caught 20 channel cat up to 2½ pounds. Dale Byrd, Big Spring, had five black bass going up to 2¾ pounds, while Hawley West, Big Spring latched on to two black bass at 2½ pounds each. Tom Guin, Big Spring, found catching sunfish was a lot of fun and hooked upwards of 150 of these.

J.W. Stewart, Odessa, came in with a string of 45 channel cat weighing up to 2½ pounds.

Patrolmen said that the lake was clear and waters smooth during the past week.

Hall Of Fame Given Money

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The National Association of Basketball Coaches has voted to contribute $12,500 to the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame, here to cover the basketball shrine's mortgage for fiscal year 1973.

The decision was announced Wednesday by Hall of Fame Executive Director Lee Williams, following the coaches recent meeting in Aspen, Colo.

Coaching School Record Expected

HOUSTON (AP) — The mammoth 40th Texas High School Coaches' Association Coaching School, largest of its kind, expects a record attendance of more than 6,000 Texas schoolboy coaches at the annual gathering Sunday through Thursday.

Registration begins today with Nebraska head football coach Bob Devaney, who coached the College All-Stars against the Dallas Cowboys Friday night, the featured lecturer on the first day.

Devaney, who is aiming at a third consecutive national championship with the Cornhuskers in 1972, will lecture on physical fitness.

Other major lecturers during the five-day convention are Bill Battle, head coach at the University of Tennessee; University of Colorado head coach Eddie Crowder, Texas Tech head coach Jim Carlen and Purdue's defensive interior coach Tony Mason.

Texas Tech head coach Gerald Myers and Guy Lewis of the University of Houston will lecture on basketball. Ken Kelley of Texas A&I and Hollis Gainey of Lubbock Coronado will speak on track.

Highlights of the coaching school, which is held on alternate years in Dallas, Fort Worth, and Houston, will be the North-South all-star basketball and football games. The basketball game is scheduled Wednesday night in Hofheinz Pavilion on the University of Houston campus, and the football game will climax the school Thursday night in the Astrodome.

Jack Hayes and his staff at West Columbia High School will coach the South All-Stars, who shattered the North 65-0 in last year's game at Fort Worth. Hayes' assistants are Charles Forehand, Charles Brand and Ed Derrich.

The North, which leads the over-all series 23-13-3, will be directed by Andrews High head coach Tommy Watkins. His assistants are Jerry McWilliams, David Baugh and Bobby Hayworth.

The North basketball all-stars will be coached by Ronnie Truitt of Cypress-Fairbanks and his assistant, Charles M. Goodson. Bill Phillips, head coach at Plainview, will head the South cagers with the help of his assistant, Rollie Rinker.

The South football team will field a rugged backfield that will include blue chip quarterback Marty Akins of Gregory-Portland, and running backs Joe Washington Jr. of Port Arthur Lincoln, Carl Roahces of Houston Smiley, Ernest Bean of Kirbyville and Keith Thomas of Tomball.

Standout linemen include centers Henry Tracy of Houston High and Billy Gordon of Port Arthur Jefferson, guard Ed Franklin of Lamar Consolidated, and tackles Robert Johnson of Austin McCallum and Edgar Bell of Aldine Carver.

An interesting battle may develop for starting quarterback duties for the North all-stars between Scott Hill of Hurst Bell and Wichita Falls' fabulous Ronnie Littleton.

Other North stars include running back Pat Hudgins of White Deer, centers Rick Fenlaw of Amarillo and Rick Burleson of Fort Worth Richland, and tackle Dennis Smelser of Odessa Permian.

Texas Open Will Return This Fall

By RICHARD BEENE
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — When the Texas Open is revived this fall, it will pit the granddaddy of golf tournaments against King Football, a pro basketball game, and even the presidential campaign.

But the head of the sponsoring San Antonio Golf Association says these are assets rather than liabilities.

And besides, says association president Vernon Willoughby, "We don't think we could have picked a better time weatherwise."

Now officially called the San Antonio Texas Open, the $125,000 tournament will be played Nov. 2-5 with a $5,000 pro-am on Nov. 1.

It was the oldest continuing event on the PGA tour until it was dropped after the 1970 tournament when an agreement on 1971 dates could not be reached with the Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers' Association. In recent years, it had suffered considerable financial trouble.

Among dates proposed by the TPD for 1971 were September, October, November and over the New Year's holiday. One local association official said at the time that it would be "financial suicide" to try to promote a golf tournament in Texas during the football season.

This year the tournament will face a sports-filled weekend. On Nov. 4, a Saturday, four Southwest Conference football games will be played, including Southern Methodist University against the University of Texas, in nearby Austin.

That night, the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association will meet the Detroit Pistols in San Antonio.

On Sunday, Nov. 5, the Dallas Cowboys and the Houston Oilers will be playing afternoon games at San Diego and Cleveland, respectively. Officials at two San Antonio television stations said both will be shown here.

High school football, traditionally one of the most popular sports in Texas, will be another conflict. At least a dozen schoolboy games will be played here Friday night, Nov. 3, second day of the Texas Open. Willoughby things many sports fans will attend both the tournament and the high school games.

Politics will be in the air, with the general election on Nov. 7, two days after the tournament ends.

But Willoughby envisions the Open as offering a "real nice sporting weekend."

He said a bus tour may be organized for Saturday so University of Texas fans could see a half day of the tournament, then make it to Austin in time for the SMU game, and return to San Antonio to "finish up with a big day on Sunday."

Golf fans from the Dallas-Fort Worth area to far South Texas have expressed an interest in organizing trips to the tournament, Willoughby said.

As for the election campaigns, he figures: "By that time of the year people will be so tired of politics, they'll be ready to get back outside and enjoy some golf."

"A lot of things may look like disadvantages, but when you look at them closer, they're real pluses," he said.

One big plus will be Lee Trevino, who told an interviewer recently that he's definitely going to enter the Texas Open. "I'm the biggest draw in San Antonio," Trevino said. "Those are my people down there."

The tournament also will be bolstered by the TPD itself, which will underwrite part of it, reportedly contributing as much as $100,000. Willoughby declined to reveal the sum.

In another unusual development, a charity will benefit, with profits going to the local chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Local sponsors are obviously hoping the November dates will offer better weather than the 1970 tournament—which was pestered with four days of cold, wet weather.

Periodically over the years since the tournament began in 1922, virtually every kind of bad weather has struck—ranging from rain to snow to hail, particularly when it was on the winter tour.

The 1972 version will be played at the new Woodlake Country club, which features a 7,011-yard par 72 course.

Memphis State Captures Title

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Missouri Valley Conference all-sports title for 1971-72 went to Memphis State University. The school won the football crown, shared the basketball title with Louisville and was second in the tennis runnerup spot with West Texas State. MSU was third in cross country and baseball.

BIG CATCH—Larmer Griffin, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Griffin, Route 3, in Snyder, hauled in this nice eight pound catfish while fishing at Lake Coleman, Coleman, Texas. His fishing exploits did not stop with this beauty. On the same day he pulled a three pounder, a two pounder, and 20 large croppie. The same afternoon he landed a 7½ lb. cat, and before leaving, he brought in cats of seven and two pounds.

District II Crown Won By Snyder

The Snyder Teenage League representatives marched to their second straight victory Friday night behind the hurling of relief man Gary Greenlee and the powerful hitting of David Mays to capture the Texas Teenage District II crown and earn a trip to the state tournament in Brownwood next week. They beat Colorado City for the second time, 13-6, to take the title.

Greenlee, who also hurled Thursday night for the first round victory, was called on in the fourth inning to relieve Mays, the starting pitcher, and then went the remainder of the game virtually unscratched, shutting the door on Colorado City with five strikeouts, allowing no hits, and no runs. Mays had his second straight four hit night, picking up a single, two doubles and a triple.

The game was a must for the Colorado City crew. They had suffered one loss already, Thursday's drumming by Snyder, but had remained alive by beating Kermit in the second round. Had C. City won Friday night the double elimination tournament would have been extended through Saturday night for a playoff.

Colorado City opened the game with three runs in the top of the first. Mays hit leadoff batter Danny Molina with a misguided missile and came back with a strikeout to the second batter. Molina stole second and then scored on an outfield error on Gene Banks' ball. Randy Erwin then tagged Mays for a triple and scored on a ground ball.

In the bottom of the inning the Snyderites scored four runs on four consecutive hits and sent the Colorado City starter Larry Johnson in search of relief. Mike Clifton opened with a single and Randy Gresset advanced him with a double. Mays picked up his first hit with an RBI double and then Sid Perry rapped a long triple to centerfield, scoring on Simons' grounder to short stop.

Mays came back strong in the second inning with three straight strikeouts on 14 pitches. Snyder's offense was still on the move, scoring three runs on the hits of Gresset and Mays. Colorado City pulled within one in the third inning when Mays temporarily lost control, putting three straight men on with free tickets and being tagged for a single by Molina. He was strong enough to finish the inning with three strikeouts though, the last two coming on called pitches.

After a fruitless third inning it was enter Greenlee, exit Colorado City. C. City was scoreless, but the Snyder offense got its second wind and begin to roll again. An outfield error in the bottom of the fifth put Greenlee on base and Roy Villanueva scored him with a triple. After two more runners reached base Mays climaxed his evening with a two RBI triple to right field and scored on Sid Perry's sacrifice to center. Simons walked and Barry Blalock singled to score Perry, putting the icing on the victory cake. All the Snyder teens had to do now was blow out the candles and Greenlee doused the flames with three sixth inning fans and looked to his infield in the seventh to retire the Colorado City team.

Mays allowed six runs on two hits during his tour of duty. He struckout eight and walked three. He also kept his tournament batting average in tact, boosting his hit mark to eight in as many appearances for a pace of 1.000.

Colorado City tried almost everybody in the lineup on the mound. Johnson was relieved by Alfred Sierra who was in turn relieved by Hobby Lee.

Snyder will now travel to Brownwood for the state tournament where they meet the champs of District I Wednesday morning, August 2, at 9:30.

Aluminum first was isolated by the Danish chemist Hans Christian Oerstedt in 1825.

Softball Season Winding Down

Regular season play has come to a close for many of the teams in Miss Softball America, in fact only two games remain after the twin bill that was played Friday night. The minor league Yankees have clinched the title, but still the young ladies of that division continue to play as if each pitch, or hit, or run could be the factor on which the entire season rests.

Friday night the Dodgers held off the Cardinals to win 10-6 and the Rangers bounced back from a Tuesday night loss to make niblets of the Giants, storming the Valley with a 16-0 victory.

The Cardinals took the early lead in the first game when Sharon Halford and Patricia Rogers singled to score two runs, but the Dodgers evened things up in the second on Rhonda Jones' triple and Mary Simmons' double. Both teams scored twice in the third, but the Dodgers went ahead to stay in the fourth outscoring the Cards 3-2 to make the score 7-6. The rest of the Dodger runs came in the fifth inning.

Debra Littlepage was the starting pitcher for the Dodgers, and was relieved by Susan Minor. Between the two girls only six hits were given to the Cards. Debra also had two hits of her own for the Dodger offense. Robbie Lamb and Rhonda Elliott also had two hits for the winners.

The Rangers scored four runs in the first inning and then waited until the fourth to unload the other 12 scores in their twilight victory.

Shari Tyson and Charlotte Pierce led the Ranger shootin' attack with three hits apiece. Shari had three singles and Charlotte had a first inning home run, a double and a single. Charlotte also shared pitching duties with Suzanne Fisher, and they held the Giants to only four hits enroute to the shutout.

Softball fans are reminded that next week August 4-5, the Major League All Stars will travel to Big Spring for the Miss Softball America state tournament.

Texas Tech Inks Agreement

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Dr. David E. Herrick, assistant director of the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station, has signed a cooperative agreement which launches Texas Tech's research participation in the Eisenhower Consortium for Research on Forest and Related Land.

The project will analyze management problems and opportunities in eastern New Mexico and west Texas and be primarily concerned with natural resources, recreational opportunities and environmental management.

"In the West the problems of man and his interactions with the environment are most urgent in the southern Rocky Mountains and the adjacent high plains," he said.

TCU Has The Most Experience

DALLAS (AP) — It'll be two weeks before the Southwest Conference football squads began putting on the pads but Texas Christian has at least one crown to its credit already.

The Horned Frogs are a slim winner over Rice in the experience-formula chart, scoring 40 points to 36 for the Owls.

Here's how the experience factor compares among the eight schools playing for the championship: 1, TCU, 40 points; 2, Rice, 36 points; 3, Texas, 28 points; 4, Arkansas, 27 points; 5, Texas A&M, 17 points; 6, SMU, 13 points; 7, Baylor, 8 points; 8, Texas Tech 6 points.

The SWC formula allots one point for each returning letterman, another point if he's a returning starter, and a third point if he's a senior. Then you subtract a point for each letterman lost, plus an additional point for each starter lost.

Quarterback Joe Ferguson of Arkansas is worth three points because he's a senior, a letterman and a returning starter. Jim Bertelsen costs Texas two points since he's a departed letterman and starter.

In 1971, Texas A&M had a whopping 75 points, yet the Aggies finished fourth, showing the experience formula doesn't always pan out.

Underwater Living Studied

DALLAS (AP) — Can the underwater continental shelf be made habitable by man?

A University of Texas at Dallas scientist is currently making three dives a day in a "Deep Diver" submarine to probe this possibility.

Asst. Prof. James B. Urban is serving as chief scientist in the mission at East and West Flower Gardens Coral reef on the continental shelf in the Gulf of Mexico 110 miles southsoutheast of Galveston.

Urban is one of a four-man crew on the mission to select possible sites for an open ocean campus and the United States' first continental shelf laboratory.

High Wire Artist Falls To Death

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)—Richard Guzman, a member of the famed "Flying Wallendas" high wire troupe, fell to his death before an opening night circus crowd here Friday night.

Guzman, 29, a son-in-law of the troupe's founder Karl Wallenda, apparently contacted a live electrical wire while climbing a pole during the family's act and fell 60 feet to the ground, police said.

It was the second time Wallenda had watched a member of his family die in the aerial act. Two members of the troupe, including Wallenda's nephew Dieter Schepp, were killed in Detroit in 1962 when their seven-man pyramid collapsed. Mario Wallenda, Karl's adopted son was permanently paralyzed in that accident.

Wallenda, 67, was walking a wire across the Wheeling Island Stadium when the accident took place Friday and had to continue his walk after seeing his son-in-law fall.

A reserve policeman, Harry Croft, rushed to break Guzman's fall and was slightly injured when Guzman fell on him, police said.

Guzman, who was married to Karl's daughter Carla, was not breathing and had no heartbeat when officials reached him. His breathing was restored by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation administered by a registered nurse who was in the audience, but Guzman died a few hours later at a Wheeling hospital.

Officials said the cause of death was tenatively listed as head injuries.

The family was performing in the Osiris Shrine Circus here.

The circus was scheduled for three performances in Wheeling.

In the Detroit accident, Schepp, 23, and Richard Faughnan, 29, were killed, and Karl's brother Herman, then 60, suffered minor injuries.

The elder Wallenda had talked often of retirement, but kept on performing. In 1970, when he was 65, he inched his way across an 1,100-foot cable some 700 feet above the floor of Tallulah Gorge at Tallulah Falls, Ga., in a walk that he called the highlight of his 50-year career.

The Detroit accident on Jan. 30 came as 6,000 specators in the Michigan State Coliseum watched the Wallendas form their famous pyramid—four men on the wire, two on poles supported by the bottom men and a girl in a chair balanced by the middle men.

Schepp, 23, making his first appearance with the group, made a misstep and cried out "I can't hold out any longer."

Shepp and Faughnan, 29, fell to the floor and were killed. The girl, Schepp's 17-year-old sister Christina, was caught and held by her hair by Karl Wallenda, who hung by his legs from the wire.

In Sarasota, Fla., Gunther Wallenda, 44, a former member of the act and now a junior high school social studies teacher, said Guzman had worked with the original Wallenda act for about six years and that he and his wife toured on their own for a while after the act split into several segments.

Gunther said a third member of the family, who performed under the name Yetta Wallenda, was killed in 1963 in Omaha while performing with her husband Arthur Grotefent, a half-brother of Karl.

The Circus Hall of Fame in Sarasota said Karl Wallenda started on the high wire about 1926, working in Breslau, Germany, as an apprentice.

In the summer of 1927 in Cuba, John Ringling spotted him and booked him for the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus. The hall of fame spokesman said their 1928 opening in New York stopped the show for 15 minutes of applause. He said the Wallendas were a headline act for 17 years after that.

HE'S IN LOVE, AND DESPERATE—David Schwartz, 20, former University of Michigan student of Bloomfield, Mich., has spent his entire college savings of $1600 for 50 advertising placards on Los Angeles buses in an effort to find a girl who picked him up while he was hitchhiking in Santa Monida, Cal. He fell in love with her but neglected to find out who she was. All he knows is that she's from Albuquerque, N.M. and lives in Los Angeles. The posters will remain on the buses for a month. Houston Girl Wins Contest

NEW YORK (AP) — Cynthia Lewis, a 15-year-old high school sophomore from Houston, Tex., who wins awards at speech tournaments and wants to be a lawyer, has been named Miss Black Teenage America.

Tears of happiness streamed down her face Friday night as she was declared the winner before more than 1,000 persons in Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum.

"I'm very, very happy and will try to live up to the title," she said as the field of 34 other contestants from as many states showered their congratulations on her.

Sheila E. Davis, 16, of Miami, was first runnerup in the contest.

Miss Lewis, an honor student at Lamar-Fleming High School, performed a monologue as Joan of Arc in the talent contest of the beauty pageant.

She was crowned by June Kelly, who won the first Miss Black Teenage America contest a year ago, also as Miss Texas.

When the contest sponsor, radio-television personality Hal Jackson asked Miss Lewis what was one gift she would want to give the world, she answered, "peace and love."

She has won awards in three speech tournaments and took first place in a citywide speech contest. Her mother is an elementary school teacher.

Miss Lewis received a trophy, $1,500 in cash, a trip to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands and other prizes. Miss Davis won a trophy and $750 cash. Other finalists were Regina Battle, 15, of California, Loranda Breckenridge, 16, of Kansas, and Carla McClinton, 14, of West Virginia.

Majority Sympathetic To Eagleton

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sindlinger Research, a syndicated public opinion research firm, says about 60 per cent of those answering a telephone poll are sympathetic to Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Thomas Eagleton but think the Democratic ticket will be hurt because of his medical history.

In a report to be released today on the poll, Sindlinger said the 60 per cent figure was arrived at through comments accompanying regular poll questions asked of the random sampling.

Albert E. Sindlinger also said the reaction to the statement by columnist Jack Anderson saying Sen. Eagleton had twice been arrested for drunk driving was very negative.

Questions And Answers On Monetary Crisis

By LAURANCE STUNTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For a decade the world has been dealing with a monetary crisis that has hit—directly or indirectly—at the pocketbooks of people in all nations.

Successive international conferences have failed to solve the situation.

Following is a q. and a. primer which outlines the background of the crisis, some of the steps taken to deal with it, and its impact on the average American:

Q—It seems to me that I've been reading about the "money crisis" for a couple of years and it's all one big blur. What's it all about?

A—Well, the trouble has been building up for about 10 years, since the United States started spending more abroad than it earned.

Q—But the United States only sells foreigners about 4 per cent of its total output of goods. What would any of this mean to me?

A—It already has mattered to you. You're paying more for Volkswagens and Japanese cameras and TV sets. Even the oil to heat your house costs more. And if you take a European vacation, it costs you more than it did a couple of years ago.

Q—You said all this started about 10 years ago. What happened to make it a crisis all at once?

A—The current crisis started in May of 1971. Importers of German beer, for instance, found early in the year that their dollars were buying fewer marks. A Volkswagen importer whose wholesale price from the German factory was $2,000 had to start buying almost 6,000 marks instead of 5,500 marks to pay for each car.

Q- But what made the price of the mark go up? Who decides these things?

A—Supply and demand decided the mark price, within limits. The United States was buying so many Volkswagens, for instance, that there was a shortage of marks to pay for them. When things are scarce, they cost more. Because marks were scarce, they went up. This rise was reflected in the price the big banks were charging for marks sold to American importers. These prices are published every day in the foreign exchange tables.

Q—You said the mark rose "within limits". What does that mean?

A—The rise was limited by an international rule. All the big countries had agreed that they would keep a fixed rate of exchange for their money with the dollar. For instance, the German government had agreed to maintain a rate of about 27.5 cents per mark. So when the price rose, they had to keep down the mark price by increasing the supply. The way to do this was to sell marks and buy dollars with them. Germany didn't want to do too much of that.

Q—Why?

A—Because the marks they sold went into circulation in Germany and caused inflation. Finally Germany was having to sell so many marks, and buy so many dollars, that she had to stop selling marks in order to halt inflation. In other words, she let her currency "float," which means it could move up and down according to the law of supply and demand.

Q—That seems logical.

A—Yes, but the mark was so high, and still going up, that people who had dollars in Europe decided to speculate. They sold their dollars and bought marks, just the way you would buy a stock—if you thought it was going up. Other people who had dollars didn't aim at making a profit, but they sold their dollars because their value was going down.

Q—But the result was that a lot of dollars were being offered for sale, wasn't it?

A—Yes, and the more dollars that were offered, the lower the price got. At the same time, the more marks that were bought, the higher the price went because of the demand.

Q—Let's go back for a minute. Why was the value of the mark going up in the first place?

A—Because Germany was selling us (and other countries) much more than she was buying. For instance, in 1971, Germany sold $3.4 billion worth of goods to the United States. But she bought only $2.7 billion worth of American goods. That left $700 million the Americans had to pay the Germans in cash.

Q—What do you mean, cash?

A—Well, it could mean gold or it could mean dollars. Not greenbacks, you understand, but checks for dollars. Then these dollar checks were exchanged for marks. But since our importers had to buy more marks than our exporters had to sell, there was a mark shortage. So the price went up.

Q—All right, we got to where the Germans floated the mark. What happened then?

A—Nothing, right away. In the United States the price of German goods went up, things like cars and beer and imported steel. And U.S. tourists in Germany got fewer marks for their dollars.

Q—Wasn't that good?—if German goods cost more, didn't our people buy less of them?

A—Yes, they did buy fewer German imports. But a lot of smart cookies here and in Europe saw the value of the dollar was falling and the value of the mark was rising. That made the mark look like a good investment, so they started selling more dollars and buying more marks. These were in addition to the dollars sold to pay for goods imported into the United States.

Q—Whom did these people sell to?

A—Mostly to the German banks. In turn, the banks sold them to their central government bank, which had agreed to buy all dollars offered, to keep up the dollar price. These dollar-sellers bought the marks from German banks, but they kept them on deposit with the banks. That meant those banks could lend out marks to other Germans, causing inflation.

Burundi Confirms 80,000 Deaths

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Burundi government has acknowledged to a U.N. mission that 80,000 persons have died and 40,000 have fled the East African country in disturbances that started last spring.

Reports from the area said more than 100,000 of Burundi's 3½ million population have been slain this year. Most of the reports said the killings were reprisals by the ruling Tutsi tribe against an unsuccessful coup by the Hutu tribesmen who make up the majority of the country's population.

The government has denied this, however, and said the Hutu were aiming to exterminate the Tutsi.

Profits, Deficit Highlights News

By LINDA RUBEY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bigger corporate profits and a record national trade deficit were among business highlights of the past week.

New York's First National City Bank, in one of the first surveys of second-quarter profits, said a check of 748 corporations showed net income up 16 per cent above levels of the 1971 second quarter.

Auto producers were among the big gainers.

General Motors reported record quarterly profits of $723 million, up from $567 million. Ford said its profits totaled a record $283 million, up from $198 million, and Chrysler and American Motors both said their net income more than doubled.

But while automakers were making money from strong first-half sales, steel producers said their profits were down from last year, when customers were buying heavily to stockpile against a possible strike.

U.S. Steel Corp., the biggest producer, said profits plunged 37.5 per cent for the quarter and sales were off 12 per cent. Bethlehem Steel, second-ranked, reported a 23 per cent drop in profits and a 20 per cent decline in sales.

The government reported the nation's trade deficit climbed to a record $3.3 billion in the first half of 1972 and was showing no signs of easing. The Commerce Department said the value of goods shipped into the country exceeded the value of exports in June alone by $590.3 million, slightly more than May's $552.4 million.

The deficit, which reflects on American competitiveness in the world market and can cut into American jobs, has already passed the 1971 mark of $2 billion. Last year's deficit was the country's first in this century.

The Nixon administration announced it was exempting 10 million more workers from government wage controls by increasing to $2.75 an hour the wage level below which workers are not subject to the Pay Board's jurisdiction.

The Cost of Living Council, which originally set the cutoff point at $1.90 an hour, said taking into account earlier exemptions, 56 per cent of the nation's 58 million nongovernment and nonfarm employes would be eligible for pay raises in excess of the board's 5.5 per cent guideline.

Big Mac To Be Auctioned

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The 1,210 pound steer that became the scandal of the 1972 National Western Stock Show here will go on the auction block.

Judge George M. McNamara declared Friday that Big Mac is of unknown ownership, clearing the way for the Colorado Brand Commission to sell the animal.

Big Mac was entered in the Denver show as an Angus. But, after winning grand champion ribbons, Big Mac's glossy black coat faded to white.

Questions about Big Mac's lineage arose. Charges that Big Mac was a white Charolais with a black dye job were leveled.

MacDonald's Hamburger Systems, which paid a record $11.40 a pound, or $14,250, for Big Mac, received a refund on orders of Judge McNamara. The court had held the money pending investigaion.

Rex Miller, 16, of Alta, Iowa, has since disclaimed ownership of the animal, saying the steer MacDonald's has doesn't resemble the one he entered in the National Western.

AIRMAN GRADUATES—William L. Rasco of Snyder has completed the U.S. Air Force Inventory Management course at Lowry Air Force Base. He is being assigned to Altus AFB, Okla., where he will serve with a unit of the Military Airlift Command which provides global airlift for U.S. military forces.

Plants Can Help Pollution

According to Von Kleibrink, District Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, pollution control starts at home, especially in our landscaping. Plants can help it and they can also be hurt by it.

"Plants were the original anti-air pollution devices stated Kleibrink." Plants are a crucial part in the oxygen-carbon dioxide exchange cycles. Kleibrink further stated that without plants, we would soon be breathing unfavorably high quantities of carbon dioxide. Green plants take in carbon dioxide from the air, and release oxygen and water into the air. This is important because nearly 20 percent of the air we breath is oxygen. Plants are the main source of new oxygen. A fifty by fifty foot lawn releases enough oxygen to meet the needs of four people. While artificial shrubs, lawns, football fields are attractive, they do little for improving the environment.

Kleibrink also stated that plants were invaluable in removing particles of grit, cinders, dust, and other similar pollutants out of the air. You can observe this by noticing how fresh and green all plants look after a rain washes them clean.

Kleibrink further remarked that proper landscaping with plants such as threes, shrubs and grass reduces the deposit of sediment on lake and stream beds.

Plants can reduce noise pollution by 50 percent according to Kleibrink. Thick hedges are great sound absorbers.

Plants can also be hurt by pollution. mog has killed or damaged millions of trees in the United States.

ABC Gives In To Fischer

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co. says it has given in to demands by Bobby Fischer, the American challenger, and stopped its filming of the world championship chess match in Iceland.

ABC said it would continue to carry reports of the match on its "Wide World of Sports" program on Saturdays.

Texas Building Up 26%

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Permits for new construction in Texas rose 26 per cent during the first six months of 1972, the Bureau of Business Research reported Saturday.

Nonresidential construction permits rose 29 per cent above the level during the first half of 1971, while residential permits were up 24 per cent.

Permits issued during the first half of 1972 totalled $1.7 billion, compared to $1.35 billion in the comparable period last year.

Taking into account inflation, which the Bureau of of Business Research says was approximately 10 per cent for building costs over the last year, the 1972 first half figures represent a 16 per cent real increase.

During June, new construction increased 17 per cent over the May level. A 48 per cent rise in nonresidential permits offset a three per cent decrease in residential permits.

Largest gainers in the first half nonresidential category were stores and mercantile buildings, up $92 million, schools, up $35 million, and utilities, up $24 million. The largest nonresidential decline was registered by office and bank buildings, which dropped $14 million.

Gains in five Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas accounted for 78 per cent of the residential permit increases. Dallas permits were up $40 million, Fort Worth up $20 million, Houston up $11 million, Austin up $10 million, and Corpus Christi up $5 million.

The Bureau of Business Research warned that its figures may be far blow actual construction levels in some areas, since construction outside of cities which report on the permits they issue is not included. The bureau estimates that its figures for Houston may represent only half of the actual construction activity in the area.
