Soderman Gets Five Years

"IT'S NOT RIGHT" SAYS SLAYER IN THANKING JURY

"Nor Is It Fair," His Wife Adds in Courtroom

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, May 26.—D. S. Soderman was found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the killing of Jay Clay Powers, prominent hotel owner, actor and playwright, by a jury in criminal district court here tonight and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The jury rendered its verdict at 10:30 o'clock after having been out 4 hours and 45 minutes.

Six ballots were taken in all, according to E. B. Williams, foreman. The sentence was the maximum under the law.

Judge C. A. Pilpen complimented the jury "for its courage in rendering its verdict."

"It is a great day in our courts when men have the courage and fearlessness to make such a verdict," the judge said briefly.

The jury retired at 5:45 o'clock this evening, taking with it the judge's written instructions. It did not go to dinner until 8 o'clock. Near 10 o'clock it asked for the written confession alleged to have been made to Soderman by Mrs Soderman of improper conduct with Powers.

With the word to the judge that the jury was ready to report its verdict, Soderman was summoned.

He entered and kissed his wife, who was sitting in the courtroom for the first time except when she was on the stand.

To Soderman's right was his brother, Arthur Soderman of Los Angeles, Cal.

"It's not right, but I thank you," called Soderman to the jury with the reading of the verdict.

"It's not fair," Mrs. Soderman sobbed.

The courtroom was practically empty for the first time since the trial opened Monday. The crowd gradually dwindled earlier in the evening when it appeared that the jury would not reach a verdict tonight.

Mrs. Powers, the widow, and Lucile, 10 years, old, her daughter, were not present.

W. W. Nelms, defense attorney, said the defense would appeal the case to the court of criminal appeals at Austin.

Soderman shot Powers twice in the lobby of the Waldorf hotel here April 18. Powers died at a hospital shortly afterward.

Mainly About People

They Roast Harding— But He Comes Back— He Likes His Job—

By H. N. F.

BANKER W. P. G. HARDING IS president of the federal reserve board. He is a democrat and was appointed by Woodrow Wilson when the latter was president of the United States. His term expires next month. He was a noted banker of his own state before he was called to his present position in the early days of the Wilson administration.

A bi-partisan affair is the federal reserve board. There are four democrats and three republicans who are members of the board. Congress has enacted a law adding another member to the board to represent the agriculture of the country.

This over the protest of the president of the United States who remarked that he believed in equal justice for all the people but not in laws which created or made classes or divisions of the people.

GOVERNOR HARDING IS AN applicant for re-appointment but he has been under a withering fire for a long time. Singular to say his most caustic critics are southern democrats. There is a powerful organization known as the congressional bloc. It is strong in the senate and seems to be all-powerful in the house. This bloc has no use for Governor Harding.

Senator Thomas E. Watson of Georgia is a most malevolent opponent of Governor Harding. John Skelton Williams, the firey hotspur of Virginia, is one of his most implacable foes. He has them everywhere throughout the south. All hold him responsible for the deflation policy inaugurated by the federal reserve bank less than two years ago.

THEY SAY THAT THIS POLICY cost the farmers and farm industries of the country billions of dollars and that Wall street and the financiers of Wall street reaped a golden harvest at the expense of the wealth producers of the Republic. Governor Harding has many bitter critics under the skies of Texas. They are found in the ranks of the organization known as the Southern Tariff congress. They are found in the membership of the Texas Retail Merchants association. They are found among the cattle men of the state and those who are engaged in the sheep and goat industry.

All those who were compelled to take losses are damning W. P. G. Harding. No, the democrats of Texas who are compelled to take losses are damning the head of the federal reserve board. He hasn't a friend among the senatorial contenders.

THOSE IN TEXAS WOULD displace him or they are telling the people that they would displace him.

Moreover, these gentlemen who are chasing a senatorial toga are clamoring for a dirt farmer on the board and the loaning of easy money for a long period at a low rate of interest. President Harding has proven himself a courageous man.

He told the rail chiefs that there must be a sweeping cut in freight rates. He told the steel kings that they must abolish the twelve hour work day in their plants. He told the people of this nation not long ago that the time flame of religious bigotry was an insult to American institutions, the traditions of the republic and the proud civilization which is ours.

NOW HE IS FACE TO FACE with another knotty problem.

He is asked to throw into the discard the head of the federal reserve board to appease the wrath of those who do not seem to understand that the federal reserve act and the federal reserve banking system saved the day for the allies in the greatest war the world has ever known, saved the American people from a disaster that would have crushed the country for years to come and is recognized by the foremost financiers of the world as one of the greatest governmental measures ever enacted by a legislative body in the interest of all the people and for the protection of the many and not the few. The man from Alabama is on the rack. His most merciless foemen are southern democrats.

Will he be compelled to walk the gang plank, branded as false to the great mass of his countrymen, or will he be re-appointed and vindicated by the successor of Woodrow Wilson? If he is guilty of all the charges made against him by his infuriated critics Governor Harding deserves the most ignominious of all punishments; if he is innocent he deserves the praise and the confidence of his countrymen. Is he guilty? He has one vote. He is one man. He isn't the board. He isn't the twelve banks. He isn't the treasury department. He isn't the federal reserve act. He isn't a dictator. He is neither a Lenine or a Hugo Stinness. Now just what is all the row about? Is it a political tempest is a tea pot?

FIREMEN OKEH ALLIANCE WITH MINE WORKERS

They'll Aid Them Morally and Financially

By Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, May 26.—The alliance between the United Mine Workers of America and other labor organizations outlined by President John L. Lewis of the mine workers and representatives of other unions at Chicago last February was formally approved late today by the convention of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The convention approved the entire recommendation of a special committee which considered the compact.

The committee report stated that "the result of the present coal strike will largely determine the progression or retrogression of her own organization; the miners' fight is our fight."

The recommendation of the committee included rendering assistance to the miners out on strike in West Virginia "morally, financially or otherwise."

The compact is an agreement to coordinate and act together to protect the interests of organized labor when "the associated industries are compelled to bear the brunt of unwarranted attacks upon their integrity and unjust and inequitable changes in their wage schedules and conditions of employment."

GOLDING WILL BATTLE DEXTER

Wichita Golfer Gets In Finals

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, May 26.—Charlie Dexter, present state golf champion, will defend his title in the 36-hole finals if the 16th annual tournament of the Texas Golf association at Rivercrest club Saturday, the title holder winning his way into the finals through a nineteenth-hole victory over Cam Buxton, also of Dallas, one up. His opponent will be Dudley Golding of Wichita Falls, who beat Ossie Carlton Jr., of Houston.

Dexter reached the finals by qualifying with a 77, winning his first match from Joe Reynolds 7 and 6; his second from Johnny Jester 2 and 1; his third from J. S. Andrews, 2 up in 18 holes, and his semi-final victory over Buxton.

Golding went to the finals with a qualifying score of 83, his first match victory over Guth Bryant 2 and 1; his second win over Sid Hurst 6 and 5; his third victory over Happy Massingill, 4 and 3 and his semi-final triumph in the match with Carlton.

Yeah! Golfers Sing 'Tis Funny Song

It's a funny game. Down at Rivercrest where they are holding the tournament which will crown the next state golfing champion, Champion Charlie Dexter of Dallas brought high money in the auction of the Calcutta club. That's all right, for the $1,025 was pretty well invested. But next came Louis Jacoby, veteran golfer and former champion at $825, and Tommy Cochran of Wichita Falls, one of the best golfers in the state and nearly always a survivor to well toward the finish, at $600. Young Dudley Golding of Wichita Falls, a rank outsider, went for a song.

And now the rank outsider is by virtue of good fortune and some darn good shooting a finalist, and maybe next champion, while Cochran and Jacoby, through some more luck and slips on the course, were both eliminated the first day.

Bradstreet Sees Improved Trade

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Bradstreets tomorrow will say:

Improvement is the keyword of the reports received this week by Bradstreet regarding trade, industry and crops. This improvement is by no means uniform, being affected by and dependent upon varying conditions of weather, the progress of planting and of crop development, and the slow but apparently steady gain in activity in most, but not all industries toward better conditions. Final distributive trade, that is, retail buying and jobbing distribution, are both better with much progress, as for some time past, shown in the western surplus grain producing areas.

Congressmen Go to Harding With Petition

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The treasury remained intact tonight after a day of explosions in connection with the removal of A. D. Sumner of Iowa, former deputy commissioner and Major C. C. Childs, of Ohio, former supervisor of collectors.

Both were appointees of Assistant Secretary Dover and were removed by Revenue Commissioner Blair, acting with the approval of Secretary Mellon and on the recommendation of the simplification board for the consolidation of the accounts unit with the supervisor of collectors office.

Ask Child Be Placed

Carrying the signature of more than a dozen Ohio congressmen, a petition addressed to President Harding was presented at the White House today by Representative Foster, Ohio, regretting the dismissal of Major Childs, and asking that his abilities be utilized somewhere in the government service.

Almost coincidentally Mr. Blair announced the suspension of Samuel G. Patchell, chief payroll examiner of the accounts unit, and Frederick Geilinger, a clerk, pending investigation into the affairs of the unit. Investigation is being made, it was explained, into the removal of papers from the office of Mr. Sumner after his dismissal which Mr. Sumner says are personal.

Expect Further Suspension

At the same time it devolped that Joseph H. Sawhan, former assistant to Major Childs, had been transferred to Atlanta, and E. P. Smith, another assistant had been transferred to Boston.

Although bureau officials were noncommital as to the progress of the investigation, it was indicated at the treasury that further suspension were possible before the incident of the removal of the papers would be regarded as closed by the bureau.

FATHER OF GIRL SHOOTS NEGRO ON RECOGNITION

Mob of 6,000 Storm Undertaker and Kidnap Body

By Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, May 26—A 23-year old negro man was killed here at 5:30 this afternoon by the father of Mrs. Margaret Hayes, victim of an assault on Thursday night, when she identified the negro as the one who attacked her.

Seven shots were fired into the negro at the home of the girl's father, and the head was then beaten in by clubs.

The negro was apprehended on the public square this afternoon by E. L. McClure, a telegraph operator, who with his wife took the negro to the home of the girl.

When the negro entered the room, the girl threw up her hands and screamed that it was the negro who had attacked her.

The father then grabbed a pistol, shot at the negro once in the room where the girl lay, thrice in the hall, and several more times out in the back yard.

A crowd estimated at 6,000 mobbed the undertaking parlor where the body was taken, dragged behind a truck through the streets, and burned on the public square.

After the body had burned to a crisp, it was again tied with a rope to a truck and dragged through the negro sections of the city, followed by a raving mob.

Crowd is Wild

Wild scenes marked the killing of the negro and the subsequent cremation. As soon as the report spread that he had been killed, more than a thousand automobiles sped to the south part of town where the victim lived.

The body was hastened to an undertaking establishment where pursued by the crowds.

The undertaker angered that a negro had been sent to his place of business, ordered the doors opened and the mob streamed in.

The negro was dragged feet first to the square where the funeral pyre had been prepared from a load of cord wood, drawn up to the square earlier during the day.

Just before the body was taken on its final trip over the city, there was a general rush of the frenzied crowd to obtain fingers, or other pieces of the charred skeleton as souvenirs.

County Attorney Frank B. Tirey said tonight he had no statement to make as to whether charges against Sam Harris, who killed Thomas, will be filed.

Other county officials, however, said they did not believe any charges would be filed.

You Open Your Place of Business Every Morning

for what reason—to do business of course. But wouldn't you "open up" every morning with more ginger and expectations if you knew you had a good, strong ad in that morning's newspaper? You certainly would.

"Waiting" for business to come is hazardous, because, so frequently it doesn't come in such volume that makes business life interesting. Going after it by inviting it, to come to your store through newspaper advertising is the surer way—and your banker is better pleased when he sees you are making a proper effort to do business.

Blonde and Brunette's Battle by Rounds

Scenes that would have put Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier to shame were vividly depicted on Indiana avenue Friday morning.

And even a battle royal would have looked small in comparison with the melee of arms, fists, feet, hair and umbrellas that played a conspicuous part in a three-round, no decision combat that occurred between a blonde and a brunette—both of the feminine sex—on the "main stem" near a well-known dry goods store, with a certain well-known referee, assisted by three seconds, officiating.

The battle might have been a draw had it not been for the fact that one of the women departed hurriedly after the third round, with blood streaming down her face from the attacks of her adversary, who used an umbrella to great advantage. According to the referee, the umbershoot was used in violation of the Marquis of Queensbury rules that Jack and Georges adhered to.

The fight by rounds follows:

ROUND ONE: The crowd gathered closer. Silence. They did not shake hands. The blonde led with a straight left. The brunette staggered, and everybody imagined she saw a complete display of Tiffany's New York diamond window.

ROUND TWO: They clinched. The unofficial referee busied himself in a vain effort to part the sluggers. His head collided with an umbrella and he retreated. The brunette landed a neat clip on the jaw with her umbershoot.

The blonde went to the ropes, but recovered, and landed a succession of left and right jabs to the face. The brunette: "(censored)," and the blonde replied in similar fashion. They clinched and broke hitting. The brunette's hiar was down in her eyes, but she was holding her own. They were sparring at the gong.

ROUND THREE: They disregarded the gong and continued. The blonde rushed madly at her opponent, and nearly floored her for a count. However, the latter retaliated with a series of kicks, scratches and umbrella jabs that forced the blonde back. They discarded boxing regulations and entered a jui-jitsi contest.

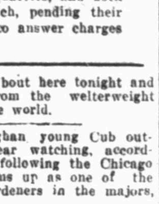

One of the seconds rushed into the Central drug store a few seconds later and demanded:

"Haff you gott any vitch-hassle?"

"Yes, how much do you want?"

"Vell—how much you gott?"

And then he explained that he wanted enough to doctor the wounds of one of the participants.

Only a few scattered hairpins marked the battle grounds on the sidewalk 30 minutes later, and the conflict—another great epoch in outdoor sports—had been marked down in history. It had also been marked down on the police blotter at headquarters, and both principals had been released on bond of $20 each, pending their appearance in the corporate court this morning to answer charges of disturbing the peace by fighting.

"Resurection" Is Topic of Sermon

Dr. C. L. Powers will preach Sunday morning on the subject, "If There be no Resurrection." This is a subject on which a lot of Bible truth is based, and which many people seemed to misunderstand. Every minister finds knowledge wanting in regard to the question, if there be no resurrection, what?

The morning congregations are growing continually in spite of the summer weather approaching. They are keeping pace with the growing Sunday School whose average attendance is more than 1,000.

Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, I shall preach on the subject, "Misfits, Here and Hereafter," or "Misfits, Now and Then."

Special music for the day includes an anthem, "Calvary" by the choir, and vocal solo by Mr. Vaughn Ray, for the morning service. In the evening, Miss Gertrude Ray will sing a special solo.

M'Parland Leading In Printers' Election

POLICE COURT DWINDLES TO 30 MINUTES

Less than a dozen cases held the attention of the corporate court Friday morning. Officials declared the session to have been the shortest on record, court being held only 30 minutes.

Peculiarly different from the usual routine of the court, those arraigned before Judge Townsend, Friday, were charged as a rule with traffic law violations.

No vagrancy, no fighting, no gambling, no kissing cases, nor any of the usual petty thievery cases that are heard in police court and which have held the attention of the police department here for the past several weeks were on the docket for trial. Officials of the department intimated during the closing minutes of the court that "they are staying out of court now more than they used to."

Embezzlement Case Dropped

Charges of embezzlement brought against J. B. Green, and whose case was brought to trial Friday in the 30th district court before Judge P. A. Martin, were dismissed by the court on the recommendation of County Attorney E. L. Fulton.

Whatever the defendant has done "anything," Judge Martin said in dismissing the charges against Green, "I don't think he's done anything that would constitute a penitentiary offense. Therefore, gentlemen, you are instructed to return a verdict of not guilty."

The county attorney had previously addressed the court, saying that "after having heard the evidence from both sides, your honor, I don't think the state has sufficient evidence to convict, and I certainly would not willingly attempt to convict a man when it is indicated that he is not guilty. I rather think this is a matter for civil, and not for criminal action."

Green had been charged with the embezzlement of $176.12, which the state alleged he had collected from the North Texas Supply company on account of the Haupt-Boyd company. The state further alleged that he appropriated this money to his own use.

The defendant testified that he had collected the money and had deposited it in the Sunset bank, with orders to the officials of the bank to hold it. The defendant also stated that he had told the bank officers that the Haupt-Boyd company was indebted to the United Mutual Insurance company, and that the $176.12 was to be held subject to the payment of this account.

MILLERS BEAT OILERS

The Wichita Mill and Elevator baseball crew swamped the Texhoma Oilers yesterday afternoon, 14 to 3, in a contest featured by hard hitting and frequent bobbling of the ball. Ivey, on the mound for the winners, had the Oilers at his mercy throughout the game, while neither Peary nor Bass could offer any resistance to the slugging flour makers.

Lewis of the Millers poled a homer with the bases drunk in the fourth canto. W. Belcher, his teammate, repeated the trick the following inning with a couple parked on the sacks. When one of the Millers swatted one, a base was an easy matter from the way that the Oilers booted and heaved the pill at random.

Nine Oilers had too much grease on their bats as they breezed at Ivey's offernigs. Only two were passed to the first base by him. Peary had the Millers going his way for the first few frames, but blew up when his team errored too frequently behind him.

The score:

Mill & Elev.	000 554—14	8	3
Texhoma	100 011— 3	4	5

A Demonstration of

Real Service

At 2 o'clock Friday morning the entire building which we occupied at 811 Indiana was reduced by fire to a charred and blackened mass of debris. While the flames still raged and the firemen fought throughout the early morning hours to keep the deadly fire within bounds, the individual who controlled the leasing of the American National Bank quarters located on Indiana and Eighth street was gotten over the telephone and arrangements made whereby we could move into the bank headquarters.

While our safe and filing cabinets were still too hot to handle, through the means of wire ropes we pulled them from the wreckage and installed them in our new quarters. Fortunately not a single record of importance was lost. Our meter readings and ledgers were saved intact and we are this morning ready to conduct our business as usual.

The point we want to make is simply this—that this institution stands ready at all times to give its customers the ultimate in service. No obstacle will block our path which can be surmounted. We wanted you to know that we were at your service at all times.

FINDS NUMBER WEIGHTS SHORT

This City No Worse Than Others, Says

Weighing apparatus and measurements that short-change customers are not all limited to Wichita Falls.

If there be any consolation in knowing that other communities have men within them that believe in "short-potting" their trade, then Cam H. Murray asserts that the towns that surround this city are "just as bad in that line."

Twenty-nine gasoline station of 34 inspected at Burkburnet by the inspector from the state department of weights and measures were found defective and immediately closed down, he asserted Friday.

"All the stations closed," he said, "were found 'short-potting' the public from one pint to two gallons on the five-gallon sale. In other words, if a man bought five gallons of gasoline, he paid for that amount, but he usually got about three gallons."

Inspections conducted at Henrietta resulted in the discovery of only one gasoline station that had to be closed. Word of Mr. Murray's work had preceded him to the town, he said, and when he began his investigation there recently he found the majority of ten stations inspected to be giving the customers more than they paid for.

"It is not usual to find a filling station that is giving the public more than it pays for." Mr. Murray averred, "but it is better to find them doing that than to have to close them down because they are stealing."

Mr. Murray says it isn't the purpose of the weights and measures department to close down scales and weights and measures, but to see that they are operated properly.

PAULEY JAILED

Curley Pauley, said by officers to have been the partner of William O'Quinn, who died Wednesday at Call Field hospital, as the result of gunshot wounds received near Burkburnett, was placed under arrest by county authorities Friday on a charge of theft.

Pauley was released on bond of $2-500.

C. F. Anderson is charged with the shooting of Quinn, and has been released on bond of $1,500.

NAPIER LEAVES FOR SANTONE; IS CONFIDENT

Judge Ed. Napier left Friday afternoon for San Antonio and other South Texas points in the interest of his campaign for governor. He has previously visited Dallas, Galveston and other larger cities of the state, and reports encouraging offers of support from many influential people in all professions.

The people of the state as a whole are not satisfied with the present condition of affairs, he said, and expressed the belief that they would welcome a change to a well defined, definte program such as he expected to outline in his campaign.

Sweet Refrain From Ever Living Old Song Comes From Charred And Twisted Remains of Phonograph

On the sidewalk in front of The Phonograph shop on Indiana street the charred remains of an Edison reposed on a box.

Crowds of persons gathered around the machine.

Strains of "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," wafted on the breeze in a faint echo, as if a call from the past was beckoning to the future.

Big men, small men, young men, old men, tall men, fat men—all congregated there, listening intently. As silent were they as a Methodist church audience might have been while the minister knelt in prayer.

Everyone was charmed by the sweet refrains of a song that has never grown old with the years that it has lived, but has rather grown more refreshing. And the tones of the machine which had been a victim of the $200,000 conflagration early Friday morning, seemed sweeter because of the injury to the once beautiful phonograph.

"The Soul of a Phonograph From the Phonograph With a Soul," read the placard that hung in front of the machine.

It was a novel idea, and it expressed more to the passerby who ordinarily would hardly stop in front of a phonograph shop, than the remnants of any fire could have.

"I Want To Be a Bishop" Rhymes Knickerbocker For Conference At Hot Springs To Delight Of 1,600

"I am just back from my pilgrimage to Arkansas," said Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the First Methodist Church, South, corner Tenth and Lamar, "and while I had various adventures and preached in several great churches while there, I saw nothing to tempt me away from Texas and Wichita Falls. Perhaps the most sensational of my experiences was the composing of a poem, or rhyme rather, 'I Want to be a Bishop.' This I delivered before an audience of 1,600 at Hot Springs, the seat of the general conference, greatly to their delight, if their applause and laughter was an indication thereof. I will give this poem as a little prelude to my night service.

"Sunday night I am going to tell the startling, thrilling story of thirty-two lovely, lost girls—how they were lost, why they were lost and who found them. This discourse will be illustrated with pictures, original letters and bona fide interviews with the girls, whom I myself personally met. Some of the saddest notes ever struck on the chords of a human heart will be given and some of the gladdestt, also. The text will be 'She Loved Much.'

"At 10:50 a. m. sharp, the morning service begins. Bishop Charles B. Galloway, the prince of all pulpit orators, that the Southern Methodist church has ever produced, will deliver his greatest sermon (by proxy). Of course, that means that I will deliver the sermon from the manuscript notes which he gave me permission to use thus. It will be a 'Knickerbockerized' edition, and whether improved or not by this 'Knickerbockerization' the audience may themselves judge. I treasure this sermon of the now ascended bishop as one of my chief souvenirs of greatness. The subject of the sermon is 'The Touch of the Crystal Scepter.' There will be special music at both services, and we are looking for a great day.

"A piece of special good news that I have for my audience is this, that perhaps the best lesson I learned in my recent absence was the lesson I learned in sitting in the pew. At least once, I was both tired and hungry at the morning service and was greatly delighted when the preacher closed the service at 12 o'clock sharp. I made a vow then and there that hereafter I was going to be equally merciful to my congregation, so that hereafter 'sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish' my morning service will close at 12 o'clock sharp and my night service at 9:15. If you don't believe it, come and see.

"I wish to add a word of exhortation to the Wichita Falls folks about our great Sunday School contest. We have been handicapped by three bad Sundays during the last two months in which the contest was running. El Paso, which has sunshine 365 days in the year, is therefore, 328 ahead of us. We have got to have about 1,500 next Sunday to stand a chance of beating them. It is visitors' day, so we urge, beg, entreat, plead and persuade Wichita Falls folks to come out in great numbers and help us save the good name of our fair city. Don't let's let that flea bitten, sand infestted, cactus ridden border town put it over a real metropolis like ours.'

CITY FOLLOWS UP ON APPEALS

15 Cases Go Up From City Court

Fifteen cases which have been appealed from the corporate court to the county court were being certified into that court Friday by the city clerk.

It is understood that Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law will give these cases first place on his docket for the next term of court.

The trials to be held in the higher court will not be minus the evidence which usually falls into the hands of the city court. This was indicated yesterday, when Police Commissioner J. B. Fitts announced that he has directed E. H. Gipson, city prosecutor, to appear in all the cases as an assistant prosecutor for the county.

Every effort to expedite those cases which have been transferred to the county will be made by the department, Commissioner Fitts asserted.

EDWARD Woodall is the new president of the Texas division of the Southern Tariff association launched in the city of Fort Worth. A report on the finances of the association showed that during the last two years approximately $75,286 had been collected and that all but $1,500 of this money had been expended. President Woodall sent a wire to Senator F. R. Gooding of Idaho assuring him of the support of the association and informing the Idaho senator that one million names indorsing the senate tariff bloc will be forthcoming. President Woodall is reminded that there are 1700 protectionists in the Thirteenth Congressional district, according to the official returns of the recent special election. This will help him some in procuring the one million names he has promised the Idaho senator.

VOICE FROM THE TOMB.

In the [illegible] past General Winfield S. Hancock was a presidential nominee of the democratic party. He declared in his letter of acceptance that the tariff was a local issue and then most of his countrymen laughed. The late Grover Cleveland, the New York Sun printed the [illegible] in reviewing the Hancock letter of acceptance, "General Hancock is a great man. He weighs 260 pounds." That killed Hancock. It is the viewpoint of the Southern Tariff association that the tariff is a non-partisan, not a political issue. Maybe [illegible] right.

WHO GETS THE VELVET?

While [illegible] in the city of Fort Worth the Southern Tariff congress [illegible] appeal to the West Texas [illegible] Congress to demand a tariff [illegible] Hides, livestock, wool and [illegible] products. Why was Mexico made omitted? Isn't petroleum a Texas "farm and ranch" product? It is, we should think, to be protected from the cheap labor of Mexico and South American countries. There isn't a tanner in Texas. There isn't a shoe manufacturing concern in Texas. Texas is a large producer of hides. Now who gets the velvet?

And now the House farm bloc has been [illegible] for eight months, [illegible] members of the federal reserve board [illegible] the president [illegible] et farm [illegible] on the board. Gone are "the good old days" when [illegible] Why not give the farmers representation on the board. Why not give [illegible] representation?

INDIANS—THEY'RE WEALTHY

HOW would you like to be an Osage Indian? There are 2200 of the Osages on the richest oil rolls of the tribe. They are the richest Indians in the world. Their land leases will be sold at public auction at Pawhuska, Oklahoma, June 28. Now the total amount paid in bonus money exceeds the high mark of $7,200,000 which was paid during the sale in December last.

Oil men of the United States are expected to bid higher than ever for these leases which are within or near the famous Hickman or Western Osage pool now producing over 66,000 barrels daily.

There were million dollar leases taken in December and March and it is estimated that five million dollars in bonus money and perhaps more will be the offerings for poor Lo in June. All the money received in bonus paid by oil men for leases and also in royalties goes into the United States treasury for the Osages and is paid to them every three months at an average of about $1,000 per capita.

When the allotment of lands were made in the long ago the Osages were given the scrubby sections by the philanthropic white man. Years rolled on, oil was discovered and now the Osage is the richest Indian under the shining sun. For once the philanthropic white man overlooked a bet. For once the Indian got the turkey and not the feathers.

Russia may have wasted her substance in riotous living but she has on hand enough fatted calves to assure a welcome back into the family.

DR. CRANE'S EDITORIAL

WELLS AND GEORGE.

THE two most significant things in Great Britain today are H. G. Wells and Lloyd George. For that matter the greatest factors in any nation are always human factors.

When I speak of greatness I do not refer to actual or potential greatness for that is something that God alone knows; but I refer to factual greatness, that is, greatness measured by results. Lloyd George is the greatest practical man in Great Britain, and H. G. Wells is the greatest impractical man. Wells is exceptionally endowed with creative intelligence. His vision is remarkable, almost uncanny.

I do not speak of all of his work, but of a certain part of it. What first attracted me to him was his stories involving the possibilities of mechanical invention, which showed a mind of singular fertility. I never cared for his novels and the sociology that underlay them, for the reason, I suppose, that they uncomfortably disturbed the graveyards of my subconscious prejudices. But his book "The Undying Fire" was a great spiritual document. Indeed, all of his efforts to clarify and make usable our idea of God have been very helpful.

I have particularly liked his book "The Salvage of Civilization" and his letters that he wrote on the Washington conference, because he was about the only writer enjoying a fashionable vogue who grasped clearly the ultimate solution of politics which is that the life of the world is retarded because we cannot outgrow the nation myth. We must somehow or other put the police of the world under the direction of the common council of the world, for the simple reason that there is no other way. I have never heard of any other solution that is intellectually respectable.

But Mr. Wells could not govern for the same reason that President Wilson was not able to govern. His vision is too absorbing. He is too impatient of his materials. Pure idealists have not the knack of nursing mankind along and getting things done by fumbling.

Mr. Lloyd George has that knack more than any other living man. He is the tiptest worker in the world. He knows how to handle his material. He can deal with men. He is master of the art of getting along. He is an inimitable son of Martha.

He does not always do what is right, but he does what the world perhaps needs more than absolute right; he does the thing that is as near right as people will agree to.

We may need martyrs, but we need even more, not those who are ready to die for their ideas but those who are able to trim down their ideas to where we can understand them and use them.

We do need vision in the world, but also with this we need achievement. And Mr. Lloyd George is the worshipful master in the order of achievement.

It is a great credit to any race that can produce these two kinds of men, side by side, one to leaven the lump of public opinion, and the other to grasp the reins of actual politics and drive the coach of progress a little way along the road without dumping us in the ditch.

Senator Watson of Indiana sounded the keynote for his party. Vox Populi sounded the death knell for the bosses of Watson's party in Indiana and Pennsylvania. There are a few democratic bosses in northern cities who should have their death knell sounded. They are dead but they don't know it.

And the dirt farmers won. President Harding must name one on the Federal Reserve Board. What is the matter with Cyclone Davis? He is a pecan farmer and a populist financier. He would make a howling wilderness of Wall street and keep the presses printing money the year round. He is both prayerful and prolific and knows more about finance than Tom Watson.

"No feminine wardrobe is complete without a few things that may be slipped on hurriedly." Well, well; banana skins are cheap.

One should call a spade a spade, but under stress the garden may be permitted to add a few qualifying adjectives.

Great men always seem very mortal when, at the request of some magazine, they take pen in hand to explain what made them great.

Texas has a National Guard. Our citizens soldiers should be the pride of the state. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce gave its indorsement and moral support to the guard and urged the legislature to make adequate appropriations for its support. This should be done.

A LITTLE DOSE OF OUR OWN MEDICINE

The Once Over

BRANDING AUTOMOBILES

"Lost: Pierce town car, seven- passenger; pale blue with black trimmings; has large triangle and crossed-bars branded on left flank, any person seeing the machine will kindly rope it at once and hold until cowboys can be sent for it. Double X Ranch, 354 Main street."

o o o

"Found: Strayed onto my property, one sorrel flivver, about four hands high, slightly lame forward and with cast in left lamp; bears the brand DXV 1457; owner may have same by paying expenses. J. B. Jenkins, P. O. Box 236."

o o o

Branding of automobiles to simplify the identification of stolen machines and curb motor thieves is being proposed at Washington. They branded cattle in frontier days to prevent cattle stealing; why not brand automobiles? is the argument.

o o o

Bring on the hot irons!

o o o

An automobile won't mind it half as much as the cattle did. The scar will be just as permanent, but after a machine has made a few trips around town through modern traffic jams one scar more or less won't be noticeable. The chief difficulty will be to determine which marks are the owners and which the ones made by passing fire autos, moving vans and taxicabs.

o o o

The motorist who has just bought a new car will suffer most. Imagine accosting him, as he polishes the glistening surface of the motorized tea wagon, and telling him that as a federal agent you must request him to stand back while you take a hot iron and burn a large circle and an "XXD" on each side of the body. Or a half-moon and Maltese cross on the radiator!

o o o

Just try to do it. Not a chance! Hold!" the new auto owner will cry. "Put your brand on my bared chest if you will, but harm not a hair of yonder glistening chariot!"

o o o

Put a brand on a new auto while the owner knows it? Why, he wouldn't even let you make a thumbprint on it!

o o o

Of course the governments' idea in suggesting branding is governed somewhat by a desire for increased revenue. The branding will be done at $2 per brand. This will mean $26,000,000 revenue the first year. Every time the municipal, state or federal authorities want more money they think up a new automobile tax. It is almost impossible for a car owner to drive around the block without picking up a tax.

o o o

Taxes to the right of him, taxes to the left of him, into the alley of debts rides the poor dumb-bell!

He piles the family into the 'bus, drives out into the country with 10 shoe boxes full of sandwiches and tells 'em (the folks, not the sandwiches) to go play while he sits under a tree and figures up how many days' trip it is to the bankruptcy court.

o o o

Look at gasoline! The oil companies have boosted the price per gallon twice since the weather cleared up enough for auto to take their cars out of winter storage. Not so many years ago it was 10 cents a gallon. When it went to 30 cents it was blamed on the war. The war has been over nearly four years, but the price still hangs around 30 cents.

o o o

Evidently the war was fought to make the world safe for Red Pump refilling stations.

o o o

According to government bureau figures the price of gas has been raised in the face of the largest surplus in years. Congress is to investigate. This should send the price up at least three more cents.

DOGHILL PARAGRAFS

By GEORGE BINGHAM

Raz Barlow tipped his derby hat at a young lady at Bounding Billows yesterday, but it did not take effect.

The unknown person who broke in the Calf Ribs store Tuesday night had a narrow escape from being captured by the Deputy Constable, and probably would by now be in the toils, had not the man had presence of mind enough to cover up his tracks as fast as he made them.

MYSTERIOUS RUSSIA

In Russian men are starving, and starving are their wives; there are no roasts for carving when dinner time arrives. The kids in vain are calling for liverwurst and pie; the vultures see them falling, and tear them when they die. These facts I gain by reading a book just from the press; I see poor Russia bleeding, and weep in my distress. But here's a volume printed a few brief days ago; and in this book it's hinted that Russia has no woe. The people, fat and hearty, have cake and pie and bread, and laugh at any smarty who says they are not fed. The yarn that Russia suffers, is reckless and unkind; it's spread abroad by duffers who have an ax to grind. They have it in for Trotski, and Lenin's name they hate, and they are writing rotski at quite a vicious gait. I read one book and mutter, in sympathetic tones "Poor creatures in the gutter! I'll send them fifty bones!" And then I read another, and say, "I'll keep my mon; the Russian man and brother is having lots of fun." Alas for human vision! Two people look at things; one says they are elysian, and one the hammer swings.—(Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams.)

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Theriere was upon her, and then, quickly, he mastered himself, for he recalled his cooly though-out plan based on what Divine had told him of that clause in the will of the girl's departed grandparent which stipulated that the man who shared the bequest with her must be the choice of both herself and her father. He could afford to bide his time, and play the chivalrous protector before he essayed the role of lover.

Barbara had turned a half-frightened look toward him as he advanced—in doubt as to his intentions.

"Pardon me, Miss Harding," he said; "the door is bolted—let me unlatch it for you," and very gallantly he did so, swinging the portal wide that she might pass out. "I feared interruption," he said, in explanation of the bolt.

In silence they returned to the upper deck. The intoxication of sudden passion now under control, Theriere was again master of himself and ready to play the cold, calculating, waiting game that he had determined upon. Part of his plan was to see just enough of Miss Harding to insure a place in her mind at all times; but not enough to suggest that he was forcing himself upon her. Rightly, he assumed that she would appreciate thoughtful deference to her comfort and safety under the harrowing conditions of her present existence more than a forced companionship that might entail too open devotion on his part. And so he raised his cap and left her, only urging her to call upon him at any time that he might be of service to her.

Left alone the girl became lost in unhappy reflections, and in the harrowing ordeal of attempting to readjust herself to the knowledge that Larry Divine, her lifelong friend, was the instigator of the atrocious villainy that had been perpetrated against her and her father. She found it almost equally difficult to believe that Mr. Theriere was so much more sinned against than sinning as he would have had her believe. And yet, did his story not sound even more plausible than that of Divine which she had accepted before Theriere had made it possible for her to know the truth? Why, then, was it so difficult for her to believe the Frenchman? She could not say, but in the inmost recesses of her heart she knew that she mistrusted and feared the man.

As he stood leaning against the rail, buried deep in thought, Billy Byrne passed close behind her. At sight of her a sneer curled his lip. How he hated her! Not that she ever had done aught to harm him, but rather because she represented to him in concrete form all that he had learned to hate and loathe since early childhood.

Her soft, white skin; her shapely hands and well-cared-for nails; her trim figure and perfectly fitting suit all taunted him with their superiority over him and his kind. He knew that she looked down upon him as an inferior being. She was of the class that addressed those in his walk of life as, "my man." Lord, how he hated that appelation!

The intentness of his gaze upon her back, had the effect so often noted by the observant, and suddenly aroused from the lethargy of her misery the girl swung around to meet the man's eyes squarely upon her. Instantly she recognized him as the brute who had killed Billy Mallory. If there had been hate in the mucker's eyes as he looked at the girl, it was as nothing by comparison with the loathing and disgust which sprang to hers as they rested upon his sullen face.

So deep was her feeling of contempt for this man, that the sudden appearance of him before her startled a single exclamation from her.

"Coward!" came the one word, involuntarily, from her lips.

The man's scowl deepened menacingly. He took a threatening step toward her.

"Wot's dat?" he growled. "Don't get gay wit me, or I'll black dem lamps fer yeh," and he raised a heavy fist as though to strike her.

The mucker had looked to see the girl cower before his threatened blow—that would have been ample atonement for her insult, and would have appealed greatly to his Kelly-gang sense of humor. Many a time had he threatened women thus, for the keen enjoyment of hearing their screams of fright and seeing them turn and flee in terror. When they had held their ground and opposed him, as some upon the west side had, felt sufficiently muscular to do, the mucker had not hesitated to 'hand them one.' Thus only might a man uphold his reputation for bravery in the vicinage of Grand avenue.

He first looked to see this girl of the effete and effeminate upper class swoon with terror before him; but to his intense astonishment she but stood erect and brave before him, her head high held, her eyes cold and level and unafraid. And then she spoke again.

"Coward!" she said.

Billy almost struck her; but something held his hand. What, he could not understand. Could it be that he feared this slender girl? And at this juncture, when the threat of his attitude was the most apparent, Second Officer Theriere came upon the scene. At a glance he took in the situation, and with a bound had sprung between Billy Byrne and Barbara Harding.

CHAPTER VI

The Mucker at Bay

"What has this man said to you, Miss Harding?" cried Theriere. "Has he offered you harm?"

"I do not think that he would have dared strike me," replied the girl, "though he threatened to do so. He is the coward who murdered poor Mallory upon the Lotus. He might stoop to anything after that."

Theriere turned angrily upon Byrne.

"Go below!" he shouted. "I'll attend to you later. If Miss Harding were not here I'd thrash you within an inch of your life now. And if I ever hear of your speaking to her again, or offering her the slightest indignity I'll put a bullet through you so quick you won't know what has struck you."

"Tell yeh will?" sneered Billy Byrne. "I got your number, yeh big stiff; an' yeh better not get gay wit me. Dey ain't no guy on board dis man's ship dat can hand Billy Byrne dat kin' o' guff an' get away with it—see?" and before Theriere knew what had happened a heavy fist had caught him upon the point of the chin and lifted him clear off the deck to drop him unconscious at Miss Harding's feet.

"Yeh see wot happens to guys dat get gay wit me?" said the mucker to the girl, and then stooping over the prostrate form of the mate Billy Byrne withdrew a huge revolver from Theriere's hip pocket.

"I guess I'll need dis gat in my business purty soon," he remarked.

Then he planted a vicious kick in the face of the unconscious man and went his way to the forecastle.

"Now maybe she'll tink Billy Byrne's a coward," he thought, as he disappeared below.

Barbara Harding stood speechless with shock at the brutality and ferocity of the unexpected attack upon Theriere. Never in all her life had she dreamed that there could exist upon the face of the earth a thing in human form so devoid of honor, and chivalry, and fair play as the creature that she had just witnessed threatening a defenseless woman, and kicking an unconscious man in the face; but then Barbara Harding had never lived between Grand Avenue and Lake Street, and Halsted and Robey where standards of masculine bravery are strange and fearful.

When she had recovered her equanimity she hastened to the head of the cabin companionway and called aloud for help. Instantly Skipper Simms and First Officer Ward rushed on deck, each carrying a revolver in readiness for the conflict with their crew that these two worthies were always expecting.

Barbara pointed out the still form of Theriere, quickly explaining what had occurred.

"It was the fellow Byrne who did it," she said. "He has gone into the forecastle now, and he has a revolver that he took from Mr. Theriere after he had fallen."

Several of the crew had now congregated about the prostrate officer.

"Here you," cried Skipper Simms to a couple of them; "you take Mr. Theriere below to his cabin, an' throw cold water in his face. Mr. Ward, get some brandy from my locker, an' try an' bring him to. The rest of you arm yourselves with crowbars and axes, an' see that son of a sea cock don't get out on deck again alive. Hold him there 'til I get a couple of guns. Then we'll get him, damn him!"

Skipper Simms hastened below while two of the men were carrying Theriere to his cabin and Mr. Ward was fetching the brandy. A moment later Barbara Harding saw the skipper return to the upper deck with a rifle and two revolvers. The sailors whom he had detailed to keep Bryne below were gathered about the hatchway leading to the forecastle. Some of them were exchanging profane and pleasant badinage with the prisoner.

"Leh better come up an' get killed easy-like," one called down to the mucker. "We're apt to muss yeh all up down there in the dark with these here axes and crowbars, an' then wen we send yeh home yer pore maw won't know her little boy at all."

"Yeh come on down here, an' try mussin' me up," yelled back Billy Byrne. "I can lick de whole gang wit one han' tied behin' me—see?"

"De skipper's gorn to get his barkers, Billy," cried Bony Sawyer. "Yeh better come up an' stan' trial if he gives yeh the chanct."

"Stan' nothin'," sneered Billy. "Swell chanct I'd have wit him an' Squint Eye holdin' court over me. Not on yer life, Bony. I'm here, an' here I stays till I croaks, but yeh better believe me, I'm goin' to croak a few before I goes, so if any of you ginks are me frien's yeh better keep outen here so's yeh won't get hurted. An' anudder ting I'm goin' to do afore I cashes in—I'm goin' to put a few of dem ginks in de cabin wise to where dey stands wit one anudder. If I don't start something before I goes out me name's not Billy Byrne."

At this juncture Skipper Simms appeared with the three weapons he had gone to his cabin to fetch. He handed one to Bony Sawyer, another to Red Sanders, and a third to a man by the name of Wilson.

"Now, my men," said Skipper Simms, "we will go below and bring Byrne up. Bring him alive if you can—but bring him."

No one made a move to enter the forecastle.

"Go on now, move quickly," commanded Skipper Simms sharply.

"Thought he said 'we'," remarked one of the sailors.

Skipper Simms, livid with rage, turned to search out the offender from the several men behind him.

"Who was that?" he roared. "Show me the blitherin' swab. Jes' show him to me, I tell you an' I'll learn him. Now you," he yelled at the top of his voice, turning again to the men he had ordered into the forecastle after Billi Byrne, "you cowardly landlubbers you, get below there quick afore I kick you below."

Still no one moved to obey him. From white he went to red, and then back to white again. He fairly frother at the mouth as he jumped up and down, cursing the men, and threatening. But all to no avail. They would not go.

"Why, skipper," spoke up Bony Sawyer, "it's sure death for any man as goes below there. It's easier, an' safer, to starve him out."

"Starve nothin'," shrieked Skipper Simms. "Do you reckon I'm a-goin' to sit quiet here for a week an' let any blanked wharf rat own that there fo'c'sle just because I got a lot o' white-livered cowards aboard? No sir! You're a-goin' down after that would-be bad man an' fetch him up dead or alive," and with that he started menacingly toward the three who stood near the hatch, holding their fire-arms safely out of range of Billy Byrne below.

What would have happened had Skipper Simms completed the threatening maneuver he had undertaken can never be known, for at this moment Theriere pushed his way through the circle of men who were interested spectators of the impending tragedy.

"What's up, sir?" beasked of Simms. "Anything that I can help you with?"

"Oh!" exclaimed the skipper; "so you ain't dead after all, eh? Well that don't change the looks of things a mite. We gotta get that man outa there an' these flea-bitten imitations of men ain't got the guts to go in after him."

"He's got your gun, sir," spoke up Wison, "an' Gawd knows he be the one as'ud on'y be too glad for the chanct to use it."

"Let me see if I can't handle him, sir," said Theriere to Skipper Simms. "We don't want to lose any men if we can help it."

BEAUTY SPOTS

No. Eight in a Series

Bellevue park, the playground for Wichita Falls' "kiddies" and grownups has undergone a renovation this spring and is still the constant care of several workers every day.

The trees which had been planted several years and had seemed to do no good, were taken up and replaced with large full grown ones.

The entire plot of ground which comprises a block, has been laid off in feautiful gravel walks and flower beds. On the plots of grass swings of every variety and sliding boards furnish fun for the children, hundreds spending their afternoons and evenings in the out of doors.

A double tennis court furnishes a popular rendezvous for enthusiastic fans, and white clippered players may be seen tossing the ball most any time of the day.

A band stand where public concerts are given in the evenings throughout the summer months is also a feature attraction of this "beauty spot."

Around the entire park shade trees, interspersed with shrubbery is planted. Roses are the favored flowers, the beds presenting a brilliant color and fragrance during their blooming season.

TODAY'S POEM

HYMN OF THE EARTH

My highway is unfeatured air,
My consorts are the sleeping stars,
And men my giant arms upbear—
My arms unstained and free from stars.

I rest forever on my way,
Rolling around the happy sun;
My children love the sunny day,
But noon and night to me are one.

My heart has pulses like their own,
I am their mother, and my veins,
Though built of the enduring stone,
Thrill as do their's with godlike pains.

The forests and the mountains high,
The foaming ocean and the springs,
The plains—O pleasant company,
My voice through all your anthem rings!

Ye are so cheerful in your minds,
Content to smile, content to share;
My being in your chorus finds
The echo of the spheral air.

No leaf may fall, no pebble roll,
No drop of water lose the road;
The issues of the general soul
Are mirrored in its round abode.
—William Ellery Channing, in Indianapolis News.

FASHIONS

Brilliant Embroidery Trims. This Peasant Blouse of White Crepe.

The blouse shown in the sketch, of the peasant type, is made of fine, sheer white cotton crepe and trimmed in heavy wool embroidery in many vivid colors. The blouse is a slip-over, with long front and black panels and short sides, and features the quaint low shoulder. Blouses of this general type are decidedly popular this season. Some are straight and smock-like, others belted in as the one shown, while others are belted and low-waisted after the Balkan blouse style. Sheer cotton crepe with brilliant embroidery as the trimming makes a blouse that may serve equally well as a suit model or for wear with a separate skirt of cotton or silk.

Some of the newest dark colored crepe de chine blouses are stencilled in contrasting color, and pongee sports blouses trimmed in bright checked gingham are also interesting novelties.

Another new fancy is to have handkerchief and blouse matching. These sets are available in the shops but at rather high prices, as they are hand made and of fine, sheer linen or cotton fabrics. The woman who likes to do "fancy work" may utilize this suggestion to good advantage and have a 'kerchief exactly matching her blouse peep from the pocket of her smart cotton or linen skirt. In a line of these blouse and handkerchief sets recently seen fine white batiste was the fabric used, with insets of colored linen or self fabric, trimmed with motif of hand embroidery. These motifs appeared as round, square, or oblong blocks of the colored fabric set in the front of the blouse, on collar and cuffs, and also in one or more corners of the handkerchief.

Among the newest sports blouses are models cut much on the lines of a man's shirt and quite long, the claim being made for them that this extra length keeps them more firmly anchored inside the skirt and prevents any lumpiness or bulging around the hips. For the girl who wears no corset or merely a little elastic girdle, a sports blouse cut in this fashion, has much to commend it. Those seen slip over the head, opening from the neck to about the bust line only.

Little Mites Greatest adventure 14

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright by J. G. Lloyd)

Blacky the Crow and his equally black relatives were having a perfectly glorious time in Farmer Brown's cornfield. You know there is nothing that Blacky likes more than he does newly sprouted corn. He always has a glad feeling when in the early spring he sees Farmer Brown ploughing up the brown earth of the cornfield, because he knows that in a few weeks he is going to have a feast. Farmer Brown knows it, too, and so does Farmer Brown's boy. They have sat up nights trying to think of some way to prevent Blacky from having that feast. They have tried all sorts of plans for frightening Blacky away from the cornfield, but he is so smart that he soon sees through their plans and just laughs at them. He never yet has failed to have at least one good feast when Farmer Brown's corn was young and tender.

That was what he was doing now and all the time he was eating he was making fun of the scarecrow that Farmer Brown's boy had taken such pains to make look like a man with a gun. Blacky had been quite sure from the beginning that it was perfectly harmless, but it is not Blacky's way to take any chances and so he had waited to be positive about it. It was little Mite, the lost baby of Danny Meadow Mouse, who had made Blacky positive that that scarecrow was harmless. Mite had made a bed for himself in a pocket of the old coat which the scarecrow wore and Blacky had seen him running in and out of it. He had known right away then that this was only a make-believe man and at once he had called all his relatives to the feast.

Little Mite never had heard such a noisy crew and as he timidly peeped out at the big black birds having such a good time he had a queer feeling that something was going to happen. All of a sudden Blacky, who was sitting on a fence post taking his turn at keeping watch, shouted "Caw, caw, caw!" There was a great flapping of wings and all talking at once and laughing, and having a great time Blacky and all his relatives flew away. Mite didn't know just what to make of it. He crept out of his hiding place and watched them settle down over on the Green Meadows still talking and laughing as if they thought it all a great joke. He wondered why they had left when they were having such a feast and good time. He was so busy watching them that he didn't notice anything else. Without any warning a great voice cried, "Ha!"

Little Mite looked up to see a great giant on two legs close beside the scarecrow. Without waiting for a second to look he scrambled into the pocket of the old coat and burrowed down under the straw and cotton padding of which he had made his bed, his little heart thumping with fright so that it almost hurt. He hoped with all his might that he hadn't been seen and he held his breath as he waited for what would happen next. He didn't have long to wait. The pocket was opened and a great hand slipped in and lifted him out, bed and all.

Mite was too frightened to more. He just sat perfectly still except that he trembled all over. He couldn't help that, you know. What possible chance had a wee, frightened Meadow Mouse with such a huge creature as now held him? He was perfectly helpless, and he knew it. He just shut his eyes and waited for something terrible to happen. But nothing terrible did happen. Instead he felt something stroking him, very gently. By and by he ventured to open his eyes. A freckled face was bending over him and somehow it didn't look fierce or cruel at all.

"You little rascal!" exclaimed a great voice. That is, it seemed a great voice to Little Mite. "You little rascal! You knew a good thing when you saw it, didn't you? I don't believe any of your enemies would ever think of looking for you in a scarecrow's pocket. I believe I will take you home with me."

Then Mite and his bed were put into another pocket just like the one he had been taken from, only this one was the pocket of Farmer Brown's boy. He didn't know where he was going or what was going to happen, but somehow he didn't feel so much afraid. It was his greatest adventure, but somehow he felt that it was going to come out all right.

UNWRITTEN LAW DEFENSE

Mrs. Catherine Rosier and her baby in court; insert, Mildred G. Reckitt, for whose murder Mrs. Rosier is on trial.

(By Central Press)

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—Does the overworked and widely advertised "unwritten law" apply to wives?

Is a wife justified in killing an unfaithful husband?

The "unwritten law" has given freedom to many a male slayer in the last few years and now Mrs. Catherine Rosier is depending upon it to acquit her of the charge of murdering her husband and the woman with whom, she charges, he had been unfaithful.

Mrs. Rosier is twenty-one. Her husband was forty. Mildred G. Reckitt, the alleged seducer and victim of the irate wife's unerring aim, was about the same age as Mrs. Rosier.

Mrs. Rosier found her husband, Oscar Rosier, wealthy advertising man, and Miss Reckitt together. She surprised them and the fatal stream of bullets followed.

Bears Bow to Wheeler's Work and Spuds Take Third

FRED AND AL POLE HOMERS IN LONG PARK

Drive Toward Top Resumed Today In Beaumont

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 26.—Wheeler had too much stuff on the ball for San Antonio today and the Spudders took the final and deciding game of the series 7 to 2.

Wheeler was in excellent form. A triple and single in the first inning after two were down counted the first run for the Bears, but their chances were limited from then on. Wheeler's curve was breaking well and nine Bruins whiffed the air or stood and were counted out at the plate.

The Spudders took the lead in the second inning when Al White poled the ball far over the long right field fence with Beck on base. From that time on the visitors were never halted.

Cheney started on the mound for the Bears, but gave way to McQuaid in the third. The two runs collected off Cheney were well earned and as Wheeler continued his battering at the San Antonio batting order, it seemed that the two were an abundance.

Just to add good measure, Fred Beck, leading homer clouter of the league, walloped one over the palings in right, bringing his season's total to eight.

The Spudders turned in another errorless game to their credit. [illegible] fielding marked the play.

TENDLER HAS GOOD RIGHT TOO

Lew Tendler's left is supposed to be his best hand—and the one his friends say can beat Benny Leonard if they ever meet. Then how come that Lew licked Johnny Dundee the other night with his right? Must be a little something in his right shoulder and arm. He used the right effectively at long range and in the clinches surprising Dundee and a majority of the fans around the ring. His left hand had an idle evening.

Benny Leonard witnessed the bout and it is a good bet he noticed the exercise that right was given. There may have been method in Lew's madness. Maybe he didn't want Benny to see the left in action.

WHERE HE GOT IT

Gerald—I always put on a good front.

Geraldine—Yes, you are a credit to your laundry.

JUST LIKE A MAN

Hewitt—Woman is now man's equal.

Jewett—Yes, ever since my wife voted she has been in the habit of asking me to make a "gentleman's agreement" about something with her.

BAMBINO FINED $200 FOR HIS DIRT TOSSING

But Babe Will Be Eligible to Play

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Babe Ruth was fined $200 and removed from the captaincy of the New York American club by Ban Johnson, president of the American league this afternoon.

President Johnson gave his ruling after considering the reports of the umpires officiating in yesterday's game at New York, when Ruth disputed a decision of Umpire Hildebrand and later climbed into the stand after a fan who had made a remark to which he took exception.

President Johnson's finding automatically removes the ruling that Ruth was ineligible to play, which was promulgated by the American league head pending an investigation.

SULLIVAN PLANS ANOTHER BIG TOUR

Ted Sullivan is planning a world tour of big league teams at the close of the present baseball season, according to reports. The veteran baseball promoter would collect two representative teams and pit them against each other in the principal cities of Europe and the orient.

If he goes through with his plans it will be the fourth trip across made by major league stars.

A. G. Spalding conducted the first real world tour, leading two teams, the Chicagoans and an all-star outfit, through half a dozen countries in the winter of 1888. The Athletics and Boston teams, though had ventured as far as England in 1874. The world jaunt made by Sullivan and Clark Griffith in the winter of 1913 was the most successful one.

TENDLER WANTS CASH OR CROWN

This Lew Tendler is a wise little bird. You know, he's been howling for a chance at Benny Leonard for lo, these many months. And now that promoters seem inclined to consider one more matching the two Tendler has staggered them all with his demands. He'll be content with the gold reserve in the U. S. mint if they throw in a few more thousand than is ordinarily on hand there.

He has good reasons for demanding a neat sum.

He is really desirous of copping the title Leonard holds. But he feels that there is little chance of loosening the crown. Consequently he wants to make a cleanup while he can.

COCHRAN DENIES DEMPSEY PROMOTION

Charles B. Cochran, mentioned as the promoter of a Dempsey-Carpentier fight in London, has written to a friend in this country denying that he has any idea of staging such an affair. The one time promoter ridicules the idea of a return match between the two. He says that Dempsey could beat Carpentier, Beckett and Wells all in one ring on the same night and not work up a perspiration. Cochran regards a Dempsey-Wills match more seriously, but even that could not induce him to get back into the fight promoting game. He says there is no chance of making the match anyway, as Dempsey could not be dragged into the ring with the husky negro.

Conductor—How old are you, my little lady?

Little Girl—If you don't mind I'd rather pay full fare and not tell you my age.

WHITE WANTS CASH TO FIGHT

Charley White sticks to his refusal to meet Benny Leonard in anything but a decision bout, despite the juicy offers filtering the Chicagoan's way these days. And White has just cause for his decision, he says.

"Two years ago I met Leonard in a no-decision contest and knocked him out," explains Charlie. "The referee saved him, though, by refusing to count him out. If I were to meet him again in a no-decision bout I'd have to knock him senseless for at least an hour.

"Leonard and Rocky Kansas drew close to $130,000 when they met in Newark and now the promoters want me to accept $6,500 to help Leonard draw another $130,000 house.

"I want to box Leonard, but I want to box him where it will mean something if I win and where I will have a chance to win the title."

MILLERS SETTING GREAT RECORD

On September 17, 1920, the Minneapolis American association team was whitewashed 13 to 0 by Ben Tincup, Indian hurler then with Louisville. Not much was made of the shutout at the time. But it marked a run-making spurt of the Millers that has continued ever since. For up to a recent date at least the Millers had not suffered another shutout. They scored at least a run in the six games played after that Louisville game in 1920 and scored in every one of 165 games played last year. This spring they continued to cross the plate every game.

WHAT ABOUT M'GRAW'S PETS?

Wonder if John McGraw thinks his strategy in offering Phil Douglas and Jess Barnes to the highest bidder last winter when they showed a hesitancy about accepting the salaries offered them is responsible for the brilliant showing of these two gentlemen? If they failed to get the salary increases sought, has John's heart softened any since? Who can tell?

TWO TOWNS WANT IN COAST LEAGUE

Two Pacific coast league towns are desirous of breaking into the Pacific coast league schedule by the time next spring rolls around. Both are angling for the franchise now held by Salt Lake City.

For some time there has been very much agitation against the Utah city. Players and managers complain that the cold weather in that burg early in the spring hurts their players and forces them to play at a financial loss, the fans refusing to sit out in the frigid air. Attempts to arrange the league schedule so that the Salt Lake team plays on the road until warmer weather have met with failure.

Fresno and San Diego fans are boosting their cities as the logical place for the franchise now held by the Utah magnates. The boosters point out that the weather in the early spring is warm and bright and that the towns will support a fast minor league club as well as Salt Lake does.

"NO, HARDLY, HI."

WHEAT MAKES NEW DECLINES

Market Closes at Two Cents Lower

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Big receipts here and heavy deliveries on contracts led to fresh declines today in the price of May wheat, but failed to keep down values for later months. The market closed unsettled at 2 cents net lower to 1 cent advance, with May 1.26 1-2 to 1.26 3-4 and July 1.22 1-2 to 1.22 5-7. Corn finished unchanged to 1-8 higher, oats up 1-8 to 1-4 and provisions varying from 7 cents off to a rise of 75 cents.

Rapidly accumulating stocks of old wheat in Chicago with demand for the grain seeming to have lost all the urgency which prevailed earlier in the week was generally accepted by wheat traders today as sufficient reasons for new setbacks which took place in the price of May wheat. Bulls, however, successfully contended that the new crop months, July and September were at too great a discoount already to be responsive to such apparently transient conditions.

General lessening of selling pressure in the wheat market became evident near the end of the day. Deliveries on May contracts today totaled 891,000 bushels from fresh arrivals of wheat here totaled 488 carloads.

Rain likely to hamper field work gave comparative firmness to prices of corn and oats.

Provisions averaged higher in line with hog values.

IN A LOUISIANA HOME "TO STAY"

Thedford's Black-Draught Medicine Praised by the Head of a Lake Charles Family

LAKE CHARLES, La.—"I don't know what we would have done had we not had Black-Draught. It sure is one of the best medicines made, and am sure the best liver medicine," said Mr. Henry Garrett, of this city.

"My whole family uses it," continued Mr. Garrett. "My wife says she believes she kept off the "flu" by taking doses of Black-Draught regularly.

"I, myself, use Black-Draught for indigestion, and it is fine.

"We used pills and tablets and other laxatives, but they never seemed to do us good, but the Black-Draught sure has, and it has come to our house to stay. We give it to our daughter for headache and torpid liver.

"I am glad to recommend anything that has been the help to my family that Black-Draught has.

"My present health is good. Have two boxes of Black-Draught in the house now."

If your liver gets out of fix, take Black-Draught. It will help to drive the bile poisons and other unhealthful matters out of your system.

Thedford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and acts in a safe and wholesome manner as a result of the natural medicinal action of the roots and herbs of which it is composed.

Your druggist can supply you, today.—Adv.

OILS GO AHEAD ON HIGH PRICES

California and Mex Petroleum Gain

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26—Recent conflicting and uncertain movements in the stock market were resumed today. The trend among leaders and investment shares was mainly upward however, on large dealings, to which the shorts made enforced contributions.

Prospective freight rate reductions and lower prices quoted for some essential commodities seemed to exercise less adverse influence and efforts to bear cliques to depress quoted values on the utterances of the British prime minister met with indifferent success.

Further lack of public interest was manifested in steels, equipments, coppers and kindred issues, but the strength of United States steel was associated with the address of Elbert H. Gary before the members of the American Iron and Steel institute.

Secondary or low priced rails again led the transportation list to materially higher levels. Striking feaures of that group comprised Lake Erie and Western common and preferred, St. Paul, Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred and New Haven, coalers, notably Reading, again moving upward.

Oils made substantial headway on the higher prices quoted for the crude product, Mexican and pan-American petroleums scoring the largest advance with California petroleum.

Other individual features of strength included Studebaker, Baldwin, United Retail stores, tobacco products and numerous unclassified specialties. Foremost among these was Coca Cola which retained the better part of its extreme gain of 3 5-8 points. Sales amounted to 1,250,000 shares.

Call money opened and renewed into next week at 3 1-2, rising to 4 per cent at midday and five per cent in the last half hour, the advance being attributed to calling of loans by local banks. Time rates were unchanged.

Brokers reported moderately heavy sales of bills on London for speculative account following the receipt of cables outlining Lloyd George's speech on events at Genoa. Demand sterling reacted to 4.44 1-2 but rallied a fraction and a llthe continetal remittances eased slightly, Denmark and Switzerland proving the only noteworthy exceptions.

Weakness again featured the Austrian rate on delay in the consummation of a loan to that government.

BUSINESS NEWS

NEW YORK, May 26.—Directors of the Remington Typewriter company today elected B. B. Winchell, formerly president of the Rock Island and St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad company, as president.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 26.—Added significance to the rumored merger of the Chicago and Alton road with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas and railroad is laid here to the fact that the latter's accountants began a check up of the former's rolling stock, buildings and other property yesterday. Officials here, however, do not wish to commit themselves in the matter.

JULY STRENGTH FEATURES MART

Closes 39 Points Over October

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The feature in the cotton market today was the strength of July contracts which sold up to 20.87 or 52 points net higher and closed at 20.83 or at a premium of 39 points over October compared with 27 points at the close yesterday. This advance was attributed to an urgent demand from shorts and the strength of the near position helped the tone of later months. October sold up from 20.00 to 20.49 and closed at 20.44 with the general market closing strong at a net advance of 32 to 48 points.

The market opened steady to a decline of 4 to 7 points in response to relatively easy cables and reports of a less active demand for cotton goods at Manchester. Offerings were quickly absorbed however, with July shorts active. Buyers and prices soon rallied. At times trading became comparatively quiet and there were slight setbacks under realizing but generally speaking offerings were light and whenever buyers appeared around the ring prices worked easily higher.

Prospects for unsettled weather in Texas and Oklahoma over the week end prompted commission house buying of new crop months which helped to absorb selling against purchases of July and the demand was more general in the late trading when it looked as though long lines recently liquidated were being replaced.

Prices reached the highest levels of the day just before the close, with December selling at 20.30 and with general list showing net advances of 35 to 52 points. Last prices were within a few points of the best.

Exports today 11,107, making 5,144,419 so far this season. Port receipts 14,744. United States port stocks 849,760.

COYOTES CLOSE GREAT SEASON

New Captain Chosen During Banquet

By "HANK" HAYES

After an enjoyable banquet at the Kemp hotel last night, the baseball squad of the Wichita Falls high school, met in a body for the last time this season. In spite of the absence of a few of the members, including Coach Henderson, the celebration was very lively.

Hershel Roberts, third sacker and a two-year letter-man on the team, was chosen to pilot the destinies of the team of '23.

Roberts has proven himself a valuable man on the team, by his fast playing during the last two seasons. He was always in the game full of pep, likewise accounting for himself when at the bat.

Capt. Hood Kizziar, who held the honor this season and by his hard efforts paved the way for the successful season that the nine has slugged its way through, presided as toastmaster. His opening address was praise for the coach and other school officials that made this season possible.

Principal Rider gave the warriors a splendid address on their accomplishments this year and expressed himself to the effect that in future years the lads would not have to play under the difficulties that they have faced during this and past years. He assured the boys, that connected with the new high school now planned, a park would be part of the equipment, and it would be accessible to all the scholastics, thereby bringing the athletes and student body in closer relation with each other.

Letters Awarded

After an enjoyable four-course luncheon, letters were presented to the men of the team. Those who became the proud possessors of the coveted "W" were: Haney, outfielder and four-year letter man; Kizziar, three-year shortstop; Bashara, Roberts and Kenley, who have won their second tokens as infielders; Bourland and Ross, constituting the so-called "brainless battery;" Clark and Baldwin, two-year outfielder; Glidwell and Harris, extra hurlers; Carrington and Neal, utility outfielders.

The Coyotes have made an enviable record on the diamond this season. Eight high school teams of this section have succumbed to the Red and Black nine's attack, with only one defeat chalked against them. Among the strong crews that they decisively eliminated this year are Vernon, Seymour, Quanah and Amarillo.

The prospects for a winner next season still looks favorable. Haney and Clark are lost to the team by graduation. Kizziar and Kenley stated that they would probably be absent from the lineup next year as they are planning to graduate at midterm of '23. However, among the many candidates that will still be present next season and some likely material entering from Junior Hi, plus some eight of this season's nine, a formidable team should be moulded.

PRISONER RETURNED

Will ("Bill") Bryan, deputy sheriff of Wichita county, returned here Wednesday night with C. H. Johnson in his custody to answer charges of having jumped a federal bond.

Johnson was arrested by the Chattanooga, Tenn., chief of police and held for the Wichita county officer.

Johnson, it is said, was charged by the government with having used the mails to defraud, his bond having been fixed two years ago at $1,000. He had not been seen since that time until he was placed under arrest in Tennessee.

The Chattanooga officials refused to take action on their prisoner until Bryan paid them a $25 reward which had been offered for his arrest.

Johnson was surrendered to his bondsmen upon his arrival here, who in turn surrendered him to the federal authorities. As a result, the prisoner was remanded to prison Thursday and has not yet made bond.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE
The State of Texas, County of Wichita:
Whereas, by virtue of authority vested in me as trustee, named and appointed in a certain Deed of Trust recorded in Volume 30 on Pages 359 and 360, Deed of Trust Records of Wichita county, Texas, executed and delivered to me on the 28th day of September, A. D., 1920, by Mrs. C. E. Steward and her husband, C. E. Steward, for better securing the payment of one certain promissory note for the sum of Twenty Thousand ($20,000) dollars, dated Sept. 28, 1920, due one year after date, bearing 10 per cent interest from date until paid, and providing for 10 per cent attorneys' fees, more fully described in said Deed of Trust, executed by the said Mrs. C. E. Steward and her husband, C. E. Steward, payable to the order of Charles R. Daniel, at Wichita Falls, Texas, due on the 28th day of September, A. D., 1921, bearing 10 per cent interest, per annum, from date until paid, interest due and payable annually as it accrues. Said Deed of Trust providing that the failure to keep the buildings and improvements on the hereinafter described premises insured against loss by fire in some solvent insurance company to the extent insurance can be obtained, with loss payable to W. R. Ferguson, trustee, and failure to keep all taxes promptly paid, shall at the option of the holder of said note, mature same, and in such event the owner hereof may proceed to collect the same in the same manner as if the full time provided in said note had expired, and also providing for the payment of 10 per cent additional on the amount of principal and interest then due, as attorneys' fees, if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection.

And whereas, the said Charles R. Daniel is the holder and owner of said note, and the said Mrs. C. E. Steward and C. E. Steward, have each made default in the payment of said $20,000 note above described by the failure to keep said building and improvements insured as provided in said Deed of Trust, and have failed and refused to pay the taxes on said property which have become delinquent, and the same is now past due and unpaid, principal, interest and attorneys' fees, by reason thereof and as provided for in said note, and in said Deed of Trust, the said Charles R. Daniel has declared same due and mature, and has heretofore so notified the said Mrs. C. E. Steward, and her husband, C. E. Steward, in writing, and whereas said note is now past due and unpaid, now aggregating principal, interest and attorneys' fees the sum of $26,015.

And, whereas, I have been requested by the said Charles R. Daniel to enforce said trust, I will offer for sale between the legal hours thereof, to-wit: Between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. at public auction to the highest bidder on the first Tuesday in June, A. POEM PLEA FOR CHURCH-GOERS

More Attend Sunday School Here

If I knew you and you knew me,
How little trouble there would be.
We pass each other on the street,
But just come out and let us meet
At church next Sunday.

Each one intends to do what's fair
And treat his neighbor on the square
But he may not quite understand
Why you don't take him by the hand
At church next Sunday.

This world is sure a busy place,
And we must hustle in the race
For social hours some are not free
The six week days, but all should be
At church next Sunday.

We have an interest in our town,
The dear old place must not go down;
We want to push good things along;
And we can help some if we're strong
At church next Sunday.

Don't knock and kick and slam and slap
At everybody on the map.
But push and pull and boost and hoe
And use up all the standing room
At church next Sunday.

Dear Mr. Editor:—
The above suggestive poem is from The Gideon. Your correspondent strongly believes everyone should make an earnest effort to attend upon the preaching services somewhere in this splendid city every Lord's day. Hear at least one sermon, but better be a doer, as our English cousins express it. More persons attend Sunday school than the public worship. All should regularly be present at both. And all the family will find welcome at both and be blessed.

Eagle Pass Is Meeting Place for Retail Merchants

South Texas was all to the good at the Retail Merchants state convention, and Eagle Pass won the 1923 meeting over Wichita Falls, Galveston and several other competing places. Galveston ran second. The Port Arthur district voted solidly for Eagle Pass, which also got the border town's support. Fort Worth, which had made a bid as the permanent convention city, was not mentioned in the voting.

FAIR WORKERS MAKE REPORTS

Total Secured Now Over $83,000

Additional subscriptions which brought the totals for the Texas-Oklahoma fair association to $83,000 have been obtained, it became known through partial reports of fair workers rendered at the Friday luncheon of the business council. Another report will be made Monday, and it is expected that the entire amount needed to tie up the grounds and to put them in order for the holding of the first fair this year will be obtained before the end of the week.

Difficulty through the unavoidable absence from the city of many workers, as well as many of those who are expected to become subscribers, were experienced last week. Fair workers believe that they are in sight of their goal, however, and that the amount will be obtained without difficulty.

This amount was obtained entirely through Wichita Falls solicitation and does not represent subscriptions by surrounding communities which Wichita Falls people hope to secure as partners in the enterprise. This feature was brought out by Frank Kell, who briefly discussed the value of the fair and the stock campaign at the meeting.

W. D. Cline and G. Clint Wood reported the largest subscription for a single team, reporting more than $6,000 actually obtained.

Wichita County Court House Now Place of Mystery Where Men Vanish From Sight Without Leaving Trace

Spooks have possessed the courthouse!

The place has evidently become a place of mystery, and is liable to become the "House of Vanishment."

At any rate that is the opinion of some who have watched the place for years, and who were astounded Friday with the report that the second man within seven days to be brought into the building in the custody of the "law" had disappeared.

City police had carried four persons—two girls and two boys—to the county building to docket charges of theft in connection with the recent looting of R. B. Parker's home on Grace street. One of the boys, J. C. Hunter, asked to be carried into the basement of the building.

While the officer and Hunter were in the basement, the latter disappeared via the new vanishing method, and has not been seen since.

The first to disappear during the week was a young boy whom Probation Officer Yates was planning to take to the state reform school at Gatesville.

GET CHARTER FOR PETROLIA SUPPLY

Incorporation of the Petrolia Supply Co. of this city has been effected, according to a message received in Wichita Falls from Austin, Friday. The incorporators are A. A. Kuehn, J. I. Staley and R. E. Shepherd. The principal place of business of the company is at Burkburnett.

BEGIN CHECK ON SERVICE CARS

Police Put Ban on Wild Parties

Checking of jitneurs operating vehicles into and out of Wichita Falls began Friday, when officials of the police department instituted an investigation into the kinds of trips the drivers are making.

Police officials declared Friday morning that a close check will be kept on the jitney drivers henceforward. Those found to be driving "wild parties," drunks, etc., and those found to be hauling immoral characters in and about Wichita Falls "for the purpose of plying their trades," according to Police Commissioner J. B. Fitts, will be dealt with severely in the corporate court, or carried into the higher courts if their cases merit such punishment.

Although it is not know whether any jitney driver in this city is violating city, county and state laws, the police department is conducting this work as a part of their program to decrease lawlessness in Wichita Falls and Wichita county.

Jitneurs who are found driving without licenses will also be brought within the scope of the law, it was asserted.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ASSOCIATION TAKES OUT INCORPORATION

Charter of the local Christian Scientist association has been granted by the secretary of state at Austin, according to word received in Wichita Falls. C. E. Watson, F. E. Van Wormer and Melville E. Peters are the incorporators.
