OVER THE COUNTRY.

HARBIN.

Regular Correspondence.

April 28th.—We are glad to note that Clarkson has once more "awoke the echoes of (New) Albion's hill" by her return to the pages of the Progress. Clarkson is an excellent community and we like to read little items of interest from her.

John Steel and wife were visitors in Ft. Worth and Dallas during the re-union.

We hear that Mr. Walker has two brothers visiting him since the re-union.

Lee Carlisle and Eugene Norman were in town Tuesday in search of water in which to fish. We suppose they found plenty as none has run off since August.

We have not had any hard rains, but we are glad because we have not had the hail that has usually been attendant with the heavy rains this year. We are needing rain again on our crops and sorely in need of stock water.

Our band instructor J. C. Robins was in Dallas and heard Paderewski perform. He was very much delighted in the personal appearance of the man as well as with his excellent playing.

A number of Harbin young men attended a birthday celebration at Sem Richard's at Cottonwood, given in honor of Miss Mamie Richards last Saturday night.

Recently Mr. Bain fell and hurt himself and is reported to be in a very dangerous condition.

Marvin Raney and Miss Allie Garrett and Forney McCleskey and Miss Lillie Hickey went to Stephenville last Wednesday to learn about the commencement of John Tarleton College.

STEPHENVILLE.

Culled from the Empire.

April 24th.—The county prohibition matter is awaiting the action of the district court and can be heard next Monday or at any time thereafter that a special judge can be agreed upon as Judge Oxford is recused in this case. If an agreement cannot be had on a special judge next week then it will await the coming of the special judge who presides the week after.

The public school at Smith Springs, taught by Profs. Fleming and Jay and Miss Addie Oxford, closed last Friday with a picnic and appropriate exercises.

The little six months old daughter of Ed Collier, who resides near Selden, was severely burned about the face one day last week by falling out of a chair into the fire. It's recovery is reported as certain however.

Will Young this week closed a deal for the Keyser pasture, two miles from Alexander and which comprises four thousand acres. The consideration was $22,000 and the deal was brought about through W. R. McClellan, real estate agent.

J. S. Washam, who formerly resided near Duffau, is here this week from his home near Portales, New Mexico, on a visit to his son.

Otho S. Houston this week closed a deal for the three story brick building opposite the Worth hotel in Ft. Worth, known as the Victoria building. The property is bringing a monthly rental of $250 and is only one of many such properties that Mr. Houston has acquired lately, partly paying for them with wild lands in Burleson and other Texas counties.

POINT LOOKOUT.

Regular Correspondence.

April 27th.—We are needing rain. The constant high winds have dried the land so the corn and cotton is suffering for rain.

Ye scribe made a trip to Wilson last week and stopped over night with my old friend T. J. Box near Wilson. I took a look over his crop and he has a good farm, a fine stand of corn, wheat and oats and a variety of garden truck all of which was in good condition but needing rain. We also noticed that the farms in that section as a general rule were looking nice.

Miss Bertha Love was quite sick the past week.

Mrs. Johnson is up again.

Farmers are all up on farm work.

Stops the cough and works off the cold. Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets cure a cold in one day. No cure, no pay. Price 25 cents.

PALUXY.

Regular Correspondence.

April 29th.—Yesterday evening about 6 o'clock there formed a cloud about five miles southwest of this place and traveled east. The first damage done was at John Underwood's; unroofed a part of his barn and the farther it travelled the worse it got, blowing most of the out houses and trees down at "Uncle" Jake Underwood's. Ely Ables residence and out houses were swept off, the family being in the storm house no one was hurt. Then from there the storm swept down the Paluxy valley blowing down timber and every house in its path and wounding several persons until it reached Glen Rose, where it done its worst, killing six persons and mangling and wounding over forty persons, two of which can not live longer than noon today. Have not learned anything in regard to the storm after it passed Glen Rose.

Mrs. Sherman Kelsoe is very sick, also Olie Cimmell has been very sick but thought to be a little better.

We have not received any rain since our last correspondence, but we need rain very much as wheat will not be worth harvesting if we don't get rain in a day or two.

G. S. Clarke has bought up a nice bunch of cattle for his brother, Charley Clarke of Whitesboro.

There was a couple of Mormon elders in Wilson the first of the week distributing their literature.

TOLAR.

Regular Correspondence.

April 30th.—A good rain fell here Monday evening and with it hail stones as big as goose eggs. One measured on the street here in the presence of several witnesses was nine and one-fourth inches in circumference. Glen Rose was visited with a cyclone from the same cloud. Seven of her citizens were killed out-right and forty-four wounded, four or five have died since. We were unable to obtain names except that of Rev. W. B. Ford, former pastor and personal friend of the writer. He was milking his cow in a lot some distance from his residence when the wind caught him. He was struck on the side of the head by the end of a piece of timber that was flying through the air, which pierced the skull, besides having both legs broken and a chest wound. He lived about fifteen minutes. Rev. Ford was well known in parts of Hamilton, Erath and Eastland counties, having been stationed at Carbon in 1900 and Carlton in 1901. Our information is from reliable persons who visited the scene of the catastrophe yesterday.

Messrs. Duncan, McCarley, J. T. Eaves, J. J. Hogue, John Fletcher and Dr. Dunn went to Glen Rose yesterday morning to tender their services to the victims of Monday's cyclone.

CARLTON.

Regular Correspondence.

April 29th.—Sad news was received here today in consequence of the cyclone at Glen Rose yesterday evening. Bro. Floyd, the Methodist pastor of this place last year, was among the number who were killed and his many friends here are grief stricken on account of the sad affair.

Among the number who went to the Dallas re-union from here were: J. A. Rowland, J. T. Lancaster, J. W. Porter, C. C. Eoff, ——Holly, E. D. Floyd and R. E. Pickens.

The question of prohibition is receiving a great deal of attention here now on account of an election to be held in an adjoining precinct in which Hico is situated.

Messrs. S. L. Smelly, J. M. Adams, R. B. Havenhill and A. G. Thornton went to Hamilton last Saturday to attend the Odd Fellows picnic on account of the eighty-third anniversary. They report an extra good time.

Mr. Mason, the young man who taught the Graham Chapel school which has just closed, was among his friends here Saturday. The patrons were well pleased with him.

We had a light rain here last Friday, but at Lamkin and adjoining country a tremendous rain and hail storm fell. It is too wet in places down there to plow yet.

Quite a number of Hazel Dell people attended the exhibition at Wilson Monday night.

Special Correspondence.

April 29th.—This community was blessed with a good rain last Friday and the farmers are happy over the crop prospects.

Wheat in this section will be almost a failure. We hear of a number of farmers who intend to plow up their wheat and plant the land in cotton.

Dr. Applewhite returned a few days ago from the re-union at Dallas. The doctor was sick nearly all the time he was gone.

George Albin was here a few days ago buying cattle. We understand he bought quite a lot but the price paid was not altogether satisfactory.

G. W. Conaway has thirty acres sowed in wheat which he will plow up and plant in cotton.

Grass in this country is getting good and stock of all kinds are looking well.

Candidates are on the alert in the vicinity of Hazel Dell and are very anxious for the people to "remember them" in the near future. One night recently a stranger called at our neighbor's gate and his little boy asked: "Father, who is that travels the road so late?" "Hush! my child, 'tis the candidate!" replied the father. They are that numerous.

The average barefoot boy can now be seen almost every day armed with rod and line and a cup of angle worms on his way to the Leon river, there to deal out death and destruction to the finny tribe.

Farmers are planting more feed stuff this year than ever before. They realize the neccessity of planting more feed and less cotton.

ST. GEORGE.

GET IN THE SUNSHINE.

Do you think that this beautiful world's going wrong?
Get out in the sunshine!
Are you sighing in grief when the air's full of song?
Get out in the sunshine!
Just miss for a minute the thunder's rude roll;
Drown sorrow, or slip from her leaden control;
Let the light of the heavens flow in on your soul—
Get out in the sunshine!

Do you know that the great sun that beams from the blue
(Get out in the sunshine!)
Is the light that God dreamed of—His message to you?
Get out in the sunshine!
Get out where the daisies are nodding in white
In the meadows that dreamed of the dawn through night;
Throw wide the soul-windows and let in the light—
Get out in the sunshine!

—Frank L. Stanton.

CYCLONIC WRATH.

One-Third of Glen Rose is Wiped Out of Existence.

FIVE PERSONS WERE KILLED,

The Death List May be Greater—Forty or More People Sustained Injuries, Some of Serious Nature.

Telephone Station, One Mile South of Glen Rose, April 29 (via Walnut Springs).—The town of Glen Rose was almost wiped out of existence Monday evening about 6 o'clock by a cyclone. Five people are known to be dead, and two others are reported, and it is believed no fewer than forty were injured, some of them so seriously that death is probable.

The track of the storm has been followed three miles east and west of the town. Everywhere there is destruction.

It cannot be said that the storm came without warning. For hours before it broke the clouds began to embank to the southwestward, marshaled by a breeze that was almost a gale. Lower and lower they came, obscuring the sun and throwing the darkness of twilight over the earth. The people became thoroughly frightened. Many abandoned their homes, but had no better places of shelter, for there are no storm cellars there. The wind grew steadily stronger. Trees were bent almost to the ground and branches and loose planks were flying through the air. The people were panic stricken and ran through the streets wildly crying for shelter, of which there were none. There were a few splashes of rain, and hailstones that came almost with the force of bullets. Then there was a terrific crash of thunder and lightning, apparently the signal, for that moment the storm's furies were loosed, and within less than the telling of it takes, the town was transformed into piles of debris.

Five Killed.

Morgan, Tex.: Information has just been received here from Glen Rose that five people were killed and forty injured in a cyclone which struck that village between 5 and 6 o'clock Monday evening. The names of the dead are as follows:

Mrs. Carl Milan.

Two-year-old daughter of J. R. Milan.

Rev. Ford, pastor of the Methodist church.

Miss Mae Connell.

Boy by the name of Musgrove.

One-third of the business houses were demolished

Outlet for Reading.

New York: Under the personal direction of General Superintendent Garrett of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad and District Superintendent McCosland, a trolley railroad has been built for three blocks along Ocean street, a principal thoroughfare.

The building of the road completes the Reading route from Camden to Cape May Point, which has been desired since last May. It also completes route from New York to Baltimore.

Sol Smith, Russell, the noted comedian, is dead.

Four Injured.

Dallas: Four people were more or less badly injured in a runaway Monday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 5. They include Mrs. R. Asher and her daughter, Miss Asher, of Yazoo City, Miss., and Mrs. Lee Cohen and her son, A. Cohen, of this city. They were driving on the Oak Cliff pike near the Marsalis residence when their horses became frightened and headed at a breakneck speed for Zang's boulevard.

Senate Yielded.

Washington: After a brief discussion Monday the senate agreed to the house amendments to the oleomargarine bill as passed by the senate. The measures now goes to President Roosevelt for his signature.

Mr. Simmons of North Carolina addressed the senate in opposition to the Philippine government bill. He urged that the Philippines ought to be turned over to the inhabitants of the islands.

Dry Goods.

New York: Sellers in the dry goods market are looking for an improvement in the demand this week, basing their expectation on improvement in the weather conditions and an increased interest in the export division. There has, however, been little of a tangible character to encourage this view so far as the home trade is concerned, the demand coming forward from it during the last week having been of a conservative character.

SMITH'S ORDERS.

Maj. Waller Gives Testimony as to Instructions He Received.

Manila, April 29.—The trial by court-martial of Gen. Jacob H. Smith on the charge of conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline was resumed here Monday.

Maj. Littleton T. Waller of the marine corps testified to receiving from Gen. Smith the orders to "kill and burn," and render Samar "a howling wilderness," previously referred to in these dispatches. The natives of Samar, said Maj. Waller, were more treacherous and implacable than the tribesmen of the Soudan. Without Gen. Smith's drastic measures the war there would not have been neded yet. Gen. Smith never intended killing women and children.

Corporal Pritchard of the Ninth infantry, who took part in the fight at Gandara, testified that he saw boys 12 years of age fighting and slashing with bolos.

Sergt. Bonicastle of the Ninth infantry, an Apache, testified regarding Capt. P. K. Schofield's fight in Dapdap province, Samar, against Dios Dios fanatics. He saw a soldier attacked by two boys under 15, one armed with a dagger and the other with a bolo.

Private Nicklo of the Ninth infantry explained the dangers and difficulties of service in the Island of Samar.

Private Najot of the Tenth cavalry told how Americanists (natives friendly to the Americans) were butchered there in cold blood.

Private Bunbley of the Ninth infantry, a survivor of the Balangiga massacre, described that disaster, including the mutilation of the American dead by the Samar natives.

Due to Jealousy.

Paris, Tex: Saturday night while Jerry Gibson, colored, was going with a young negro woman to a dance, between Petty and Noble, in the west end of the county, some person ran up from behind and shot him in the back. The bullet came out below the heart, and Golson fell on his face, dead. After the shooting the person firing the shot ran down the road ahead and in a few seconds another shot was heard. Sunday morning at 8 o'clock the dead body of Bud Hodges, colored, was found lying in a field. He had been shot in the leg and bled to death from a severed artery. He was tracked from the road out into the field by the trial of blood left behind. The double killing is said to have been prompted by jealousy. A warrant is out for the arrest of Tom Ceauchamp, colored, about 18 years old, charged with both killings.

Wreck in Arkansas.

Eureka Springs, Ark.: The most serious wreck in the history of the St. Louis and North Arkansas railroad occurred near the east entrance of the tunnel six miles east of here at 8 o'clock Monday morning. Of ten passengers and employes riding in a freight caboose, which overturned, nine were more or less hurt and Hon. J. N. Pittman, probate judge of this county, residing at Berryville, was seriously injured.

MORTON NO MORE.

The Former Secretary of Agriculture Breathes His Last

AT THE RESIDENCE OF HIS SON

In the City of Chicago, Where He Had Gone From His Home in Nebraska in an Effort to Regain Health.

Chicago, Ill., April 28.—Hon. J. Sterling Morton, former secretary of agriculture, died Sunday afternoon, in Lake Forest, at the home of his son, Mark Morton.

For several weeks Mr. Morton had been growing gradually worse. The nature of his sickness had not been determined and a week ago he was brought from his home at Nebraska City, Neb., to Lake Forest for medical attendance. The change brought no relief, and he failed gradually until death.

Death was due to cerebral thrombus. Mr. Morton began ailing several months ago, and in hopes a change of climate would restore his health he went to the City of Mexico, accompanied by his son, Paul Morton, vice president of the Santa Fe railroad. Mr. Morton continued to grow worse in the southern country, however, and six weeks ago he returned to his old home in Nebraska. He then came to Chicago, where it was believed he would have better medical attention.

After he arrived here he improved somewhat and it was believed for a time that he would entirely recover from his ailment. Week before last he suffered a stroke of apoplexy, from which he never recovered. He suffered a second stroke, and as he had become so weak from his long sickness, it proved fatal.

HUNDREDS ATTENDED.

An Immense Concourse at the Funeral of the Late Philip Sanger.

Dallas: Dallas mourned Sunday for one of her citizens who had been foremost among the builders of the city, and one whose strength and purity of character had only been equaled by his business sagacity and broad philanthropy.

Demonstrations of sorrow were made upon the death of Philip Sanger by every class and creed. Those who had builded the city with him and grown wealthy in this world's goods sorrowed as did the poorest in purse. Both had known of his great heart and both had profited by his example of patient and honest toil for better things.

At 3:30 o'clock the body was borne to Temple Emanu-El, passing between the lines drawn up in front of the residence, composed of the members of Travelers' Protective association, 125 in number. Here also the floral offerings were beautiful, chief of which were five large offerings of lilies, roses, carnations and ferns, ranged about the pulpit, each bearing the dove of the soul. Rev. Dr. Greenburg officiated.

The casket was preceded by Camp Sterling Price, headed by Gen. W. L. Cabell.

Interment was in the Jewish cemetery.

Schleys at Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn.: Rear Admiral W. S. Schley and wife arrived in Memphis over the Southern railway at 8:10 o'clock Sunday eveening and were at once driven to their rooms in the Gayoso hotel. A reception committee met the distinguished visitors at Grand Junction and escorted them to the city.

It was generally understood that it was the wish of Admiral and Mrs. Schley that no demonstration in their honor should occur upon their arrival.

Wrecked by Wind.

Vinita, I. T.: A severe wind storm passed south of this place Sunday and struck Wagoner, blowing down a great many frame houses and barns and unroofing as many more. Several people were injured, but none are reported killed. A heavy rain fell here all day and the heavy hail did much damage. The creeks are all swollen out of their banks, and the drouth which has prevailed for some time is broken to the satisfaction of farmers.

Educators Conclude.

Athens, Ga.: The fifth annual conference for education in the south, which began here Thursday, was closed on Sunday afternoon at a mass-meeting, at which addresses were made by several members of Mr. Ogden's party. The services in the various churches were conducted by the several distinguished clergymen who are making a tour with the eastern party, Bishop McVickar of Rhode Island speaking

United Confederate Vet[erans] Adjourned Friday.

S OF VETERANS COMPLI[MENT]

Labors Same Day—Rev. Mr. B[uckner] of Arkansas Chosen Commander Trans-Mississippi Department.

[illegible], Tex., April 26.—Friday's [session] of the U. C. V. was strictly [business]. The few resolutions adopted [were] of a purely routine nature, [relating] to the calling to order [and] ization those present organized [an] impromptu meeting and comrades [went] to the stage to deliver re[marks] addresses.

In the absence of the chaplain, [Rev.] Dr. Hall invoked the blessing [of] Almighty on all assembled in a [most] manner.

The first order came resolutions of thanks to Gen. George Moorman, the [adjutant] general and the hard[working] staff of the members of the associat[ion]. Next came a resolution thanking Gordon for his services, and [the] manner in which it was ad[min]istrated the affection in which [he was] held by the old soldiers.

The response made by Gen. G[ordon] touched the hearts of all. In [his] brief address he said that [all] he asked was that [a monu]ment erected to him should [be] inscribed: "Here lies a Confederate." Gen. S. D. Lee introduced a resolution asking members to support [newspa]pers which printed literature [vin]dicating the true history of the Confederacy and it was adopted. Votes of thanks were next in order, the resolutions passed were [secre]tary to Dallas. The citizens [were] thanked for the entertainment of the [occa]sion.

Rev. Mr. Buckner Chosen.

When the United Sons of Confederate Veterans adjourned Thursday the question as to who had been elected commander of the Trans-Mississippi department had not been decided, there being a misunderstanding as to the vote. The friends of Gen. J. H. Buckner of Pine Bluff, Ark., claimed that the vote showed that he had received a majority. The friends of N. R. Tisdal of the Indian Territory were of the opinion that the vote of Louisiana was included in Buckner's, and that as the vote of the Louisiana state was not announced [and] delegates not having been present at the time that division was called for it should not have been included in the count. The tellers reported that they were authorized by Mr. Saunders to say that he seconded the nomination of Buckner, to include the vote of Louisiana in the Buckner column; but there was objection and an understanding could not be reached until [after] the meeting, when Mr. Tisdal withdrew in favor of Buckner's favor.

A committee, consisting of the commander-in-chief, the adjutant general, the quartermaster general, was appointed to investigate with a view to establishing publication in the interest of the organization.

EL PASO TRAGEDY.

One Man Killed and a Special Officer Seriously Wounded.

El Paso, Tex., April 26.—A pistol duel in the Wigwam gambling hall at 6:30 o'clock Friday morning resulted in the death of Morris J. Rosenfield and the severe wounding of Special Policeman Clarence Wolfington. Rosenfield's death was almost instantaneous. A bullet passed through his body and heart and he staggered out of the rear door, falling face downward. Wolfington surrendered to the police and acknowledged that he had done the shooting, and claimed self-defense. He was shot through the left hand and a second bullet grazed his stomach. Both were of 38-caliber. The pistol used by the officer was a 41-caliber Colts six-shooter. Wolfington was formerly a Colorado City, officer and claims to have had trouble five years ago with Rosenfield, whom he accuses of threatening his life. The men met Friday morning at daylight, Rosenfield having just come to town from Bisbee, and the shooting resulted. Eight shots were fired, six by the officer and two by the deceased.

The Rosenfield brothers, both of whom were in the city, were born at LaGrange, Tex. Their father is said to have formerly belonged to the firm of Essen & Rosenfield of Houston.

War Reminder.

The Southern Pacific-Sunset route and Houston and Texas Central railways distributed at the Dallas reunion a facsimile page of the Vicksburg (Miss.) Citizen of July 4, 1863. The edition, which was printed on wall paper, the only available kind, and on which this issue was gotten out, has President Davis' proclamation setting apart Aug. 21 as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer. The latest telegraph news is dated June 21, 2:30 a. m., and is headed: "Yankee News From All Points."

The following, under the head of "Note," is of interest: "Two days bring about many changes. Gen. Grant did eat his dinner in Vicksburg and he did bring his dinner with him. He caught the rabbit. The Citizen lives to see it, and for the last time appears on wall paper. No more will it urge the brave southern soldiers to deeds of heroism while they dined off horseflesh and fricaseed kitten. This is just as it was found in type, except this note, and will probably be valued as a curiosity in years to come." The paper's sub-head bears date of July 2.

Narrowly Escaped.

Dallas: Friday evening as a crowd was passing near the Presbyterian church in Exposition Park, four young ladies, including the sponsor for Kentucky and her maids of honor, had sought shelter on the front porch of a family who were not at home, and were struck by lightning and badly stunned, but not otherwise hurt. The parties who saw it said that a flash of fire ran among the young ladies, and that they thought that they were on fire.

Adventists.

Topeka, Kan.: The general conference of the Seventh Day Adventists elected the following officers for the central conference: President, G. C. Ruppert, Oklahoma City; C. N. Woodward, secretary and treasurer, Dallas, Tex.; members of the advisory board, the president, W. A. McCutcheon of Keene, Tex.

Will Restore.

Cleburne, Tex.: S. D. Mobley is back from the reunion at Dallas and states that E. B. Mobley from York, S. C., found a man from Arkansas ho said he could restore the swords of Capt. Mike Brice and Capt. Cureton of the Sixth South Carolina regiment. Mr. Mobley said he had forgotten the gentleman's name, but that he said he had moved to Maryland and then to Arkansas and would restore the swords to those who wanted them as valuable relics.

Finished Business.

Dallas: The Sotuhern Confederated Memorial association completed its work and adjourned to meet a year hence at New Orleans.

A resolution was adopted thanking Col. William Knause, a G. A. R. veteran, for his kindness in spending time and money in caring for the graves of 2200 Confederate soldiers.

Whitecapping Charged.

Paris, Tex.: Four young men had an examining trial yesterday at Pattonville, in the southeast part of the county, on the charge of whitecapping and were placed under bond of $500 each to await the action of the grand jury. The arrests resulted from an attack made a few nights ago on a cabin in Pattonville occupied by Ellen Elliott, colored, and her 14-year-old son. About thirty shots were fired into the house and the door and windows chopped with axes.

VETERANS PARADE

Thousands of ex-Confederates Pass Over Dallas Streets

WITH SHOT-TORN FLAGS FLYING.

Men Who Courageously Battled for the Cause of the Southern Confederacy Step to the Strains of "Dixie."

Dallas, Tex., April 25.—The Confederate procession formed under the direction of Maj. Gen. M. K. Van Zandt, grand marshal, with the head resting on Main and Lamar streets. The line of the march was east on Main street to Harwood, north on Harwood to Elm, west on Elm to Jefferson, and on Jefferson into Main, where the parade was abandoned.

The column moved at 10:30 o'clock, headed by Chief of Police Winfrey and a squadron of mounted police. Next came the Gaston Trumpet corps of Dallas, First Texas regiment, T. V. G., immediately followed by the famous Grand Army band of Canton, O., headed by Drum Major Bour, a giant in stature and of splendid military bearing. This band played alternately "Suwanee River," "Bonnie Blue Flag," "Dixie" and "Maryland, My Maryland," and the climax of enthusiasm was reached when all four tunes were carried on at once in perfect harmony by different portions of the band. The music had been arranged specially for the occasion, and it was one of the best features of the magnificent parade.

Then came Gen. Van Zandt, grand marshal of the parade, and his staff, all splendidly mounted, ackowledging at every few steeps the cheeers and salutes which greeted them.

In the first carriage rode Miss Kate Daffan, sponsor for the Texas division, and her maids of honor. Immediately behind came Gen. Gordon, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and his staff, receiving a continuous ovation.

In the second carriage were four old men that the south delights to honor—Hon. John H. Reagan, postmaster general of the Confederacy; Hon. Frank R. Lubbock, war governor of Texas and an aid on the staff of President Davis; Dr. S. H. Stout, who was medical director of the Army of Tennessee, Confederate States army, and Gen. T. N. Waul of Greenville, Tex., who was a brigadier general in the Confederate army.

In the next carriage, as guests of honor, were Gov. Joseph D. Sayers of Texas, Gov. Heard of Louisiana, Lieut. Gov. Estopinal of Louisiana and Mayor Capdevielle of New Orleans. Members of Gov. Sayers' staff followed in another carriage, and in still another Miss Lucy Lee Hill, sponsor for the south and her maids rode.

Next came the Army of Northern Virginia department, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Irvine C. Walker, with his staff, followed by Carrico's band. The Virginia division followed, carrying many camp flags and battleflags of the Army of Northern Virginia, with the sponsor and maid of honor for that division accompanying. Next were the South Carolina and Maryland divisions, and then the "Tar Heels" of the North Carolina division with their hornets' nests. "We came by it honest," declared one old veteran as he tramped along.

"Dixie" camp of Lancaster, S. C., halted several times to salute pictures of Gen. Hampton, and their action was much cheered. This division carried a Confederate flag upon which the picture of Gen. Hampton appeared, and they also bore the scarred colors of the TTwelfth South Carolina regiment.

The Harris Juvenile band of Dallas had the next place in line, preceding Lieut. Gen. Stephen D. Lee, commanding Army of Tennessee department U. C. V., and staff. Then came a carriage containing Miss Haldeman, sponsor for the department, and her maids of honor, Misses Megibben and Schneider.

The Georgia division had a fine representation in the parade. Among the trophies carried was the Third Georgia battle flag, inscribed, "From Malvern Hill to Appomattox," the Fifth Georgia battle flag, of which but a remnant is left, the flag of the Forty-second Georgia, adorned with a bunch of "goobers," and the flag of the Stonewall brigade, Thirty-third Virginia regiment. A feature of this part of the parade was the uniformed Daughters of Camp W. H. T. Walker of Georgia. They were mounted on fine horses and received much applause.

Next in line was the Alabama division, which had quite a number of carriages, in which the commanders and sponsors and their maids rode. There was also a goodly number on foot, carrying many camp banners.

The Tennessee division provoked quite a demonstration. At the head rode Maj. Gen. Walker and staff, followed by sponsors and maids of honor in carriages and the Confederate Veterans' Young Men's Uniformed band of Memphis. Then came several companies of old veterans in the gray jeans uniforms that they wore in '60s, the same caps, the same guns, keeping step to the beat of the drum.

Gen. Tyree H. Bell, commanding the Forrest cavalry corps, rode in a carriage with Miss Donelson, sponsor, and Miss Bell, chief maid of honor for general headquarters. Behind them were men who had followed that intrepid cavalry leader, Forrest. The battle flag of the Sixteenth Confederate cavalry was carried by S. C. Buck of Stephenville, Tex., who was attired in his old war uniform. This flag, it is believed, was in the last battle of the Civil war east of the Mississippi river, at Whistler, near Mobile.

The band of the Fourth Texas cavalry, Ennis, Tex., preceded the Mississi division. One of the veterans stepped out of the ranks to explain that Mississippi would have had a better showing in the parade, but so many had found friends in Texas and had broken ranks to meet them.

The Louisiana division had an innovation, in that two of the members of Gen. Jastremski's staff were of the gentler sex. These young ladies rode with Gen. Jastremski at the head of the division. They are Miss Lucille B. Hyams of Nachitoches parish and Miss Eliza B. Skipworth of Concordia parish, and have the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Next in line were the Florida and Kentucky divisions, then the Fourth Texas infantry band of Blooming Grove and the St. Matthew's Grammar School cadets of Dallas.

Gen. W. L. Cabell, commanding the Trans-Mississippi department, and his staff, rode at the head of that department, followed by a carriage containing Miss Gaston, sponsor, and Miss Edwards, chief maid of honor. The first division in line in the department was Missouri. With it marched Col. H. C. Thurston of Mount Pleasant, who is familiarly known as "the Texas Giant," and who measures more than seven feet in height.

The Arkansas division had a large representation. One of the features of it was a banner inscribed, "We are from Arkansas; now laugh, darn you." This announcement and defi, oft repeated by the old veterans, caused much merriment. With this division was the Commercial band of Fayetteville, Ark.

Next in line was the Indian Territory division, in which several Indians who served the Confederacy marched. One Choctaw veteran carried the flag of his tribe. Following was the Oklahoma division, which had a fairly good representation.

Hella Temple band of Dallas headed the Texas division. This division was cammnnded by Brig. Gen. C. C. Beavens of of Houston, while J. J. Smith of Gen. Beavens' staff, commanded the First Texas brigade. John H. Reagan camp of Palestine was first in line, and it was followed by a fine representation from many camps throughout the state.

Company B, Dallas Signal corps, followed the Texas division, headed by Gen. A. P. Wozencraft of the Texas Volunteer guard and staff.

Then came the United Sons of Confederates with Commander-in-Chief R. B. Houghton and staff leading. The various departments and divisions of this organization had a goodly representation. The young men wore handsome uniforms and most of them were mounted on fine horses. Camp W. L. Cabell, U. S. C. V. of Dallas, brought up the rear of the procession.

Senator in a Fight.

Washington: Senator Money of Mississippi had an altercation with a conductor on a streetcar on Thursday morning, which resulted in the senator receiving two severe blows from the conductor and the conductor being cut quite freely in the right hand with a knife.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of Conductor Shaner on the charge of assault. It was sworn out by Senator Money.

Grand Army at Beaumont.

Beaumont, Tex.: The first session of the Grand Army reunion of the Department of Texas was held in the Kyle theater. The theater was well filled when City Attorney Sonnenfield was called upon to make an address of welcome in the absence of Mayor T. H. Langram.

Department Commander P. B. Hunt of Dallas made the reply. In his speech he made many happy references to prosperous Beaumont.

TEXAN CHOSEN.

Thomas B. Stone of Waco Elected Commander of the Sons.

Dallas, Tex., April 25.—A Texan was chosen commander-in-chief of the Sons of Confederate Veterans. The honor fell to Hon. Thomas B. Stone of Waco, the commander of the Texas division. It was an uncertain proposition up to the time the balloting commenced, and the Texan and the Pelican state aspirants ran along together for the first fifteen or twenty camps, and when twenty-five camps had been heard from they were nip and tuck, but R. E. Lee camp of Fort Worth came in with its 105 votes, the largest vote cast by any on ecamp in the organization, and when Louisiana was reached Mr. Fayssoux of that state, who was Mr. Stone's opponent, arose and said that he had always stood for the best interests of the organization, and as it was patent that the association desired the Texan as its commander-in-chief that he would cast the entire vote of the Louisiana division for him and would ask that his nomination be made by acclamation. The motion prevailed, and there were cheers for Fayssoux. The vote when he cast the strength of Louisiana to Stone was 333 for the Texan and 1/2 for the Louisianian.

After being selected commander-in-chief by acclamation there were calls for Stone. He spoke briefly, saying that he was rather a worker than speaker and that he hoped to do all within his power to strengthen the organization, and called upon all the members present to help him in the effort. He paid the Confederate soldier and the women of the Confederacy high tributes and resumed his seat amid applause.

Mr. Fayssoux was called for and as he ascended the platform he was given hearty applause. He delivered a magnanimous speech, which elicited rounds of applause, and at the conclusion of which he was congratulated by many on the platform.

The last survivor of President Jefferson Davis' cabinet was present and the convention arose as one individual and cheered for fully five minutes as he was observed entering the hall. The old Roman bowed his grateful acknowledgment and he was accorded a wonderful ovation. The young men of the Confederacy crowded around him on the platform and paid him a reverence and love which was indeed striking. Judge Reagan's speech was not long, and it dealt mainly with the causes which led up to the war.

The speaker was escorted to the platform by Mayor Ben E. Cabell and Commanders Kirk of Texas, Cox of Virginia, Collier of Tennessee and Buckner of Arkansas.

The amended constitution provides for a uniform adopted by the United Confederate Veterans' association.

The commanders and chief who have served the full term and who do not continue the office are to have the title of past commander-in-chief.

A periodical of some kind, as suggested by the commander-in-chief in his report, was also acted on favorably.

A neat, small inexpensive button was recommended for adoption by the organization.

Jesse N. Gathright of Louisiana was elected commander of the Department of the Army of North Virginia over W. H. Kearfoot of West Virginia.

N. B. Forrest of Memphis, Tenn., grandson of the cavalry leader, was chosen commander of the Army of Tennessee over R. E. L. Bynum of Jackson, Tenn., by a vote of 272 to 169.

The conference was invited to the state by the state legislature and Hon. Clark Howell of the senate. Mr. Ogden delivered an address.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

The largest sum ever paid for a prescription changed hands in San Francisco, August 30th, 1901. The transfer involved in coin and stock $112,500.00 and was paid by a party of business men for a specific for Bright's Disease and Diabetes, hitherto incurable diseases.

They commenced the serious investigation of the specific Nov. 15th, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians to name chronic, incurable cases, and administered it with the physicians for judges. Up to Aug. 25, eighty-seven per cent of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably.

There being but thirteen per cent of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction. The proceedings of the investigating committee and the clinical reports of the test cases were published and will be mailed free on application. Address JOHN J. DUFFAU.

Regular Correspondence.

April 29th.—It has been trying very hard for several days to rain here but has failed so far.

News reached here this morning that Glen Rose was torn to pieces by a tornado Monday evening, seven people losing their lives and numbers being wounded.

There was a hail storm passed between Duffau and Hico this morning but the hail was small and did no damage.

A. M. Wilson, who has been very sick for some time, is improving.

Capt. Wilkerson is having his house re-roofed that was torn up by the hail last week.

William Taylor of Limestone county, who has been visiting relatives at this place, returned home Monday accompanied by his sister, Miss Belle Taylor.

The crops in this country that suffered from the hailstorm is growing nicely. Some few had to plant their cotton over.

The old soldiers have all returned home and report a good time at Dallas.

World Wide Reputation.

White's Cream Vermifuge has achieved a world wide reputation as being the best of all worm destroyers, and for its tonic influence on weak and unthrifty children, as it naturalizes the acidity or sourness of the stomach, improves their digestion and assimilation of food, strengthen their nervous system and restores them to the health, vigor and elasticity of spirits natural to childhood. 25c at Overton Drug Co.

CLAIRETTE.

Regular Correspondence.

April 30th.—As your scribe attended the re-union at Dallas last week there was no communication from this point but we wish to be in time this week with all the news.

W. C. Blackmond is papering and painting his house, which was formerly used as a barber shop, and preparing it for Prof. McClanahan, who will use it for his Commercial school.

W. J. Stephens is improving his resident property by the addition of a gal-lery and a barn.

Prof. Paine is getting the brick on the ground to build a chimney to his residence.

"Uncle" Frank Cock is here from Desdemona visiting.

We are having some warm weather for this time of the year.

Wheat and oats are needing rain bad in this section.

Rev. R. H. Gipson of Bosque county preached at the residence of "Old Father" Weeks' Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Hardin, who has been sick for sometime, is improving.

The good people of this community will meet at the Clairette cemetery Saturday, May 3rd, for the purpose of cleaning up the yard and decorating the graves. Let all who can come as it speaks volumns for a community when they care for the cemetery.

Prof. McClanahan will begin a commercial school at this place Monday, May 5th, and we feel confident that the school will be a success. If there is any one who wants to take a course, now is the time, as the professar insures his students a position after they have completed.

Mr. Mayfield and wife, W. H. Chaney, H. H. Matthews and W. J. Stephens attended the re-union at Dallas from this place. We notice some are reporting the re-union as being tough and giving it a bad name. We were there three days and have never fared better at any re-union than at Dallas. I fear those who are kicking went with the expectation of finding everything free and of course that man was mistaken. Dallas did a good part by those we attended and it speaks well for Texas.

You Can Lead a Horse to water but you can't make him drink.

You can't make him eat either. You can stuff food into a thin man's stomach but that doesn't make him use it.

Scott's Emulsion can make him use it. How? By making him hungry, of course. Scott's Emulsion makes a thin body hungry all over. Thought a thin body was naturally hungry didn't you? Well it isn't. A thin body is asleep—not working—gone on a strike. It doesn't try to use it's food.

Scott's Emulsion wakes it up—puts it to work again making new flesh. That's the way to get fat.

Cures When Doctors Fail.

Mrs. Frank Chiasson, Patterson, La., writes June 8th, 1901: "I had malaria fever in very bad form, was under treatment by doctors, but as soon as I stopped taking their medicine the fever would return. I used a sample of Herbine, found it helped me. Then bought two bottles, which completely cured me. I feel grateful to you for furnishing such a splended medicine and can honestly recommend it to those suffering from malaria, as it will surely cure them." Herbine 50c a bottle at Overton Drug Co.

Noah Kuykendall will move into his new house at this place soon.

Dallas did herself and Texas proud in the manner of her entertainment of the re-union of old Confederates and the visitors incident to the occasion. No doubt there were in the city during that time more people than ever visited any other point within the state in the same length of time and notwithstanding this there was accomodation for all if they would go about seeking it in the proper manner and the prices for anything was not exhorbitant. True, here and there, one could find an exception to this rule, as no one would expect otherwise, and possibly some items of arrangement might have been better, but if they could they never have been in Texas, a state noted for not doing things by halves and anyone who might be dissatisfied should reccollect that it is much easier to see what should be done after it is done than it is before and if there are any who are inclined to criticise they should ask themselves if most of their failures to get what they thought they should have out of the re-union was not traceable to their own fault, instead of to Dallas and her excellent re-union committee. The writer has heard universal praise from those who attended, except from a very few old soldiers who were desirous of seeing some of their old comrades in arms, who, instead of going to their state headquarters and remaining there, simply stopped and not readily recognizing some of their comrades, walked out on the streets to see what was going on and seek their friends where it would have been next to impossible to find them even if they could recognize them at sight. Such failures as this should not be chargeable to the management of the Dallas committee, who in every respect exercised good judgement in arrangement and the utmost civility and industry in giving information and making the visitors feel that it was good to be there. The good results of the re-union will be felt in all manner of ways for years to come, not only by Dallas, but by the entire state and the good will of all are due to Dallas for the glad hand they extended to all.

For those Who Live on Farms.

Dr. Bergin, Pana, Ilis., writes: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment; always recommend it to my friends, as I am confident there is no better made. It is a dandy for burns." Those who live on farms are especially liable to many accidental cuts, burns and bruises, which heal rapidly when Ballard's Snow Liniment is applied. It should always be kept in the house for cases of emergency. 25c, 50c and $1 at Overton Drug Co.

A seven pound baby boy was born to Mr. Scott and lady of third ward last Sunday.

Miss Lota Gordon of Bluff Dale and Mr. W. M. Fleetwood of Rome, Ga., were married at the former place last week.

Mac Blair has this week purchased the Fred Robinson place near the new college at a consideration of $450 and moved to the property yesterday.

F. Cain and lady of Santa Sa, California, came in last Tuesday to spend a week or more. Mr. Cain is the owner of considerable valuable property near Dublin, including Franklin Park and he is here looking afer his interests.

T. L. Adcock, who resides about four miles north of Comanche, was here Monday with a broad smile on his face on account of the fine rain that fell at his place and over a large scope of territory around him last Friday. He says the crops were not particularly needing the rain except for the future, but that stock water was scarce and most of the tanks, especially those south from Comanche, are now full to overflowing.

AN HONEST FRIEND.

Cleared Away the Family Troubles.

There is not one thing on earth that could enter a family and do as much honest good and bring about as much happiness as in certain cases where coffee drinking is left off and Postum Food Coffee used in its place.

A family in Iowa Park, Texas, furnishes a good illustration. The mother says, "I want to tell you what happened in our family when we left off coffee and took up Postum. About eight months ago we made the change. I had been for quite a while troubled with rheumatism in my right hip and shoulder, swimming of the head and fluttering of the heart so I thought I had heart trouble.

"Sometimes in walking my head would swim so that I would be obliged to sit down. I had other disagreeable feelings I cannot describe but they will be readily understood by coffee drinkers if they will confess it.

"My family were also more or less ill and were all coffee drinkers. Well, we gave up the coffee and started in on Postum Food Coffee; husband, myself and four children. Even the two year old baby (she had been puny since having the grip) had her coffee along with the rest of the family. When we made the change to Postum she began to fatten and now is perfectly healthy and fat as a pig.

"My boys, ten and twelve years of age, are so stout and muscular that people remark about them and ask what makes them so. I do not have any more trouble with rheumatism or my head, neither does my husband who was troubled in the same way. We are all in better health every way than we have been before in years and we are always glad of an opportunity to reccommend Postum. I hope what I have said will lead others to make the change." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The Glen Rose Disaster.

Since the report of the terrible storm at Glen Rose Monday was printed on the second page of this issue we have obtained the following information from that point:

LIST OF KILLED.

Mrs. C. A. Milam.
Baby girl of J. R. Milam.
Miss Mary Connell.
Rev. W. B. Ford, Methodist pastor.
Eight year old son of Sam Musgrove.
Mrs. Fagg.
Mrs. T. M. Allen.
Three year old son of Frank Cox.
Unknown lady.

A Mrs. Lee is not expected to recover and as far as we are able to learn twenty-nine other persons are more or less seriously hurt but not fatally.

The storm came in from the southwest down the Paluxy creek and went until it got to about the center of the business part of town, or just at the court house, and then turned southeast, crossed the creek and went in the direction of the Brazos river.

The first houses blown down west from Glen Rose, where the storm started, were Eli Able's house and barn, a complete wreck. None of his family were hurt as they were all in a storm house. This house was twelve miles from Glen Rose.

Odin Tidwell's house and gin house were destroyed; he and four of his family were wounded, he and his wife seriously.

Mr. Kirk's house and barn completely demolished. Family safe.

Sarah Kindrick's house blown away; no one hurt.

John Southland's house blown away; all safe.

Farr school house, completely wrecked.

This brings us to the city and the first house destroyed here was Hudy Tidwell's. It and all the balance of the houses mentioned below are complete wrecks and some of them scattered over the country. These mentioned below have lost all they had in the way of a home:

Hudy Tidwell, wife and two children; he and wife badly bruised, but think may get well.

Sam Musgrove, boy killed, he and all of his family of four wounded.

B. F. Cox, wife and two children, all wounded, but none fatally.

Mrs. D. O. Connell, one daughter killed and Mrs. Connell wounded.

Judge Adams and family, all slightly wounded.

Jeff Walker lost four houses; family safe except his wife's mother, Mrs. Guess, who was badly hurt.

Mr. Blakney, wife and one child hurt badly, one child slightly.

Mr. Gage and wife, wife badly bruised.

Mr. Bashaw, wife and son—wife and son badly wounded.

Aaron Nantooth and family—all safe in stormhouse.

Charley Irwin and family—all safe.

Carl Milam, wife and wife's mother—wife killed and wife's mother badly wounded.

Jess Milam and family—one child killed.

H. W. Brown, Herald printing office, complete wreck. Brown escaped by a miracle.

Mrs. Fagg killed, house and all gone, left two children.

Lawinducki—shop blown away.

James Downey—store and contents, blown to atoms.

South of Glen Rose the courthouse was damaged some and the tin roof blown off the jail. Only one man in it, in a steel cage, says he felt perfectly safe.

A local committee, of which J. L. Lilly is chairman, has been named to receive and distribute relief supplies that may be sent and the Dallas News, Houston Post, Ft. Worth Register and First National Bank of Glen Rose have been authorized to draw drafts and receive donations from citizens and towns throughout the country. The utmost destitution prevails in the stricken district.

Resolution of Respect

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren of Lingleville Lodge No. 752, A. F. and A. M.

It has pleased Divine Wisdom to call from our midst Bro. A. B. Carr.

February 25th, 1902, Bro. Carr, one of our most faithful members, ceased his labors.

He was born December 31st, 1879 and united in marriage to Miss Mattie Roberson August 8th, 1900. He was graduated from the Ft. Worth Medical College. After graduating he came to Lingleville, his old home, and soon won a reputation as an able and efficient physician.

Be it resolved, that in the death of Bro. Carr, Lingleville lodge has lost one of its most useful members, and the county a much needed votary.

Whooping Cough.

A woman who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: "Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between the whoops. Jessie Pinkey Hall, Springville, Ala. This remedy is for sale by Overton Drug Co.

Holds up a Congressman,

Over worked, run-down men and weak, sickly women gain splendid health and vitality from Electric Bitters. Try them; only 50c guaranteed by Overton Drug Co.

"THE LONG TRAIL" OF THE CATTLE RANGE

has given prominence in history to the now world famous Texas Pan-handle. But a few years ago the wonderful possibilities of this region as a wheat country became known, and great things were prophesied for "The Granary of the South," which subsequent harvest justified. Comparatively recent is the demand of good livers for "Vernon Cantaloupes," but it's come to stay. Those acquainted with this section and its wealth as a producer of feedstuffs, corn and cotton have long believed in it, nor have they been moving away. When Northwest Texas remained conspicuous for its excellence in the face of almost universally discouraging crop conditions, people began to see reasons for the faith of those inviting them to enter and possess the land; and now, with farms and ranches being bought daily by new settlers coming in by wagon and by rail, three new railroads now building and four more projected, seeking a share of the general prosperity, good reason is evident for the favor with which the territory along "THE DENVER ROAD" is regarded by prospectors.

In a signed article in the Fort Worth Register of last Monday, in which the writer sets forth the advantage of the Polytechnic college to that place, the following is said of Rev. H. A. Boaz of Dublin:—"The trustees and faculty believe that in Rev. H. A. Boaz, the newly elected president, they have just the man adapted to the position to the coveted success. The people here know him and know how to estimate him. He comes to give the strength of his years and manly spirit to build up the college in a way that will be a pride and honor to Ft. Worth. He is now giving his personal effort, with characteristic energy and earnestness, to soliciting for the building.

J. N. Graves, who has for several years been manager of the Dublin Ice & Storage Co's. business at this point, left last Sunday for Shreveport, La., at which place he will take the position of general manager of the Shreveport Ice & Refrigerating Co. The loss of Mr. Graves from our citizenship will be felt seriously because of the fact that he has always been a live and progressive man and his council and co-operation in all matters of interest to the town has been most valuable. Mrs. Graves will in a short time leave to join her husband in their new home.

The following item from the head of the editorial column in Printers Ink of April 23rd is good populist doctrine: Government ought to own and control the railroads. They are the legs and the arms of the people.....Government should become the universal saving bank and life insurance company and sell annuities. The business is as legitimate as selling bonds or paying pensions.....Employes of the government are the servants of the people. The citizens who enter the public service should be disfranchised while in that employment.

George Garner, the man who was killed near Alexander recently by a Central engine, was not buried at Walnut at the expense of the company, as was stated at the time. We are indebted to Esquire G. H. Mayes of Alexander for the information that he was buried at Alexander, the railroad company paying the expense of burial above the $11.25 which was found on the person of the dead man.

W. H. McMillan of the Texas Central road was here Saturday on business for his line and gave the Progress a pleasant call. PUZZLED.

Hard Work Sometimes to Raise Children.

Children's taste is oft times more accurate in selecting the right kind of food to fit the body than that of adults. Nature works more accurately through the children.

A Brooklyn lady says, "Our little boy has long been troubled with weak digestion. We could never persuade him to take more than one taste of any kind of cereal food. He was a weak little chap and we were puzzled to know what to feed him on. One lucky day we tried Grape-Nuts and you never saw a child eat with such a relish, and it did me good to see him. From that day on it seemed as though we could almost see him grow. He would eat Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper and I think he would have liked the food for dinner.

"The difference in his appearance is something wonderful.

"My husband has never been known to fancy cereal foods of any kind, but he became very fond of Grape-Nuts and has been much improved in health since using it.

"A friend has two children who were formerly afflicted with the rickets. I was satisfied that the disease was caused by lack of proper nourishment. They showed it. So I urged her to use Grape-Nuts as an experiment and the result was almost magical. They continued the food and today both children are well and strong as any children in this city, and of course my friend is a firm believer in the right kind of food, for she has the evidence before her eyes every day.

"When I have some task to perform about the house and don't feel very strong, a saucer of Grape-Nuts and cream stimulates me and I am able to do the task at hand with ease.

"We are now a healthy family and naturally believe in Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

AN OLD SORE

Will sour the sweetest disposition and transform the most even tempered, lovable nature into a cross-grained and irritable individual.

If impatience or fault-finding are ever excusable it is when the body is tortured by an eating and painful sore. It is truly discouraging to find after months of diligent and faithful use of external remedies that the place remains as defiant, angry and offensive as ever. Every chronic sore, no matter on what part of the body it comes, is an evidence of some previous constitutional or organic trouble, and that the dregs of these diseases remain in the system; or, it may be that some long hidden poison—perhaps Cancer—has come to the surface and begun its destructive work.

The blood must be purified before the sore will fill up with healthy flesh and the skin regains its natural color. It is through the circulation that the acrid, corroding fluids are carried to the sore or ulcer and keep it irritated and inflamed. S. S. S. will purify and invigorate the stagnant blood when all sediment or other hurtful materials are washed out, fresh rich blood is carried to the diseased parts, new tissues form, and the decaying flesh begins to have a healthy and natural look; the discharge ceases and the sore heals.

Spring Ailments.

There is an aching and tired feeling; the liver, bowels and kidneys become sluggish and inactive, the digestion impaired, with little or no appetite, no ambition for anything and a feeling that the whole body and mind needs toning up. The trouble is, that during winter, there has been an accumulation of waste matter in the system. Herbine will remove it, secure to the secretions an exit, and by its tonic effects, fully restore the wasted tissues and give strength in place of weakness. 50c at Overton Drug Co.

The ODD CORNER

Hail, Folly!

On a day I met with Folly,
  Knowing not a flirt was she;
She was piquant, she was jolly,
And she thrust out melancholy
  With a smile of witchery.
I, supine, could not disarm her,
  Though I guessed in some degree
There was mischief in my charmer,
  So it came about, you see,
  Folly made a fool of me!

Folly tired of her adorer
  When her slave I came to be,
Scoffing at the love I bore her,
Vexed because I boldly wore her
  Too familiar livery.
Petulent, she scourged and left me
  Shorn of all my panoply,
So it was when she bereft me
  Of her smile, she set me free—
  Folly made a man of me!

—Smart Set.

The Silk Cotton Tree.

Although the silk cotton tree is a native of South America, there is one specimen of it in Nassau, Bahama Islands, that has flourished wonderfully, and is one of the greatest curiosities on the island. It is just now in bloom and at the height of its beauty. It was planted more than two hundred years ago by John Miller.

The roots seem to be unable to find their way down after the manner of ordinary roots, and so swell up like great buttresses radiating round the trunk of the tree, rising from the ground to a height of from six to twelve feet. They reach out to irregular distances, gnarled and twisted in the most curious fashion. They turn and bend and double a point in all sorts of unexpected ways and make dark hollows and ravines, where the darkies believe the elves and gnomes make their home.

The great seed pods are filled with a fine soft fleece of silk, which the natives use for filling their pillows and mattresses. There are several specimens of the tree on the island of New Providence but this one is monarch of them all.

A Scotch Sahara.

The fact is not generally known that there is in the north of Scotland a miniature Sahara some twenty square miles in extent. From Nairn to the river Findhorn there is a great expanse of shifting sandhills, known as the Culbin Sands, which show all the great peculiarities of a great desert, and which successfully resist all attempts at cultivation. Three centuries ago the place was a smiling garden with several farms and a village, all of which were overwhelmed in a single night by a great storm of sand. The remains of the buildings can still occasionally be seen when the sand shifts, and many old domestic articles have been picked up. Some tragic stories are still current in the locality of the wonderful escape of the inhabitants from the blinding sand-drift on that terrible night.

Monster Fog Horn.

A large fog horn is to be placed in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The horn is four feet in diameter at the outer end and twelve feet long, and the sound is produced by driving compressed air through a double set of valves carrying revolving disks with holes cut in them. One set of disks produces a deep roar and the other a shrill shriek. The valves are controlled by clock work, and every two minutes a roar is emitted, followed ten seconds later by a shriek. To operate the horn there are three air tanks, each six feet in diameter and twelve feet long, and three oil engines run three compressors to fill the tanks. On a favorable day this horn can be heard a distance of twelve to fifteen miles. The plant is automatic.

Food from Trees.

Chestnut groves, with full-grown trees, produce six times as much food per acre as any cereals, and Humboldt estimates that a banana orchard will feed twenty-five human beings, where a potato field of the same size would support two and a wheat farm only one. A time may come when the staples of human food will be chiefly derived from trees, thus increasing the life-sustaining capacity of our planet more than five-fold, not to mention the savng in drudgery, nor the beneficial climatic influences of tree plantations. No plowing, hoeing and mowing, no worrying about winter food for hungry cattle, no deserts overspreading vast areas of tree-deprived territories.

Strange Funeral.

An unusual sight was witnessed at a funeral at Horsell, England, the body being drawn to the churchyard in a four-wheeled farm wagon painted red and blue, and attached to which were a couple of farm horses. The funeral was that of Richard Brettell, solicitor, of Chertsey, and it was his last request that he should be conveyed in this manner to his grave. The journey from Chertsey to Horsell occupied two and a half hours, and six farm laborers walked by the wagon the whole distance, in addition to which they bore the coffin from the vehicle into the church.

Double Flower Pot.

Hugo Lonitz of Neuhaldensleben, Germany, claims that his new flower pot, which is made of two separate parts, is the best flower pot now on the market. The inventor, who is a well-known florist, says that on account of the air being able to circulate around the earth in the inner pot the plant develops not only much better than in the ordinary pot, but also grows quicker, and larger, and keeps better. The pots are both made of clay, and the outer pot has several nose-shaped holes, through which the air is admitted into similar holes of the inner pot. The latter can be turned in such a way that its holes are closed by the outer pot.

Bird Changed Plumage.

A cockatoo in the Central Park of New York has exhibited a remarkable change of color in its plumage. Originally of red and gold, the bird was one of the most conspicuous inmates of the birdhouse at the Zoo, and so remained until a macaw was introduced, which at once began fighting the other birds. When the cockatoo's turn came it was knocked down from the perch to the floor, and was insensible for a short time. Then it went into a corner where it remained the rest of the day, and on the following morning, when the attendant went to the birdhouse, he was surprised to see that the gorgeous plumage had turned quite white.

House Deep Under the Earth.

An interesting discovery has been made on the estate of the Marquis of Zetland in Orkney.

Workmen came across a subterranean house about thirty-six feet long, and further exploration brought to light several signs of habitation, including the remains of the ruined walls, the bones of sheep, oxen, boars, fish and whales, deer horns, stone trestles, pottery and charcoal, together with some implements fashioned from bones.

The most remarkable feature in the building is that the roofing is supported by four massive pillars, each consisting of a water-worn stone placed on end.

Curious Thimble Case.

Very curious is a thimble case bought about forty-five years ago at a small exhibition held in the Crystal Palace in New York. It is made from the nut of a palm tree which grows in Peru.

The kernel of this nut, when unripe, is soft and it is then that the nut is picked, so that its kernel can be easily cut into small articles. This thimble case, made from one of these kernels, is about the size and shape of an egg. It is hollowed out and divided into two parts, which screw together.

The kernel has been carved in such a way that an openwork of leaves and stems is all that is left of the nut.

Birch and Pine.

There is a curious growth of trees at Tilden's Point, Me. Three yellow birch trees are growing on a pine stump. The tree, which was about two and a half feet in diameter, is thought to have been cut down some fifty years ago, leaving a stump three and a half feet high. The seeds of the birch must have lodged on this stump and as they grew they sent their roots down its sides to reach the ground. The three trees are, respectively, five, six and seven inches in diameter.

Encroaching on the Sea.

The growth seaward of Dungeness Point in England, caused by the eastward drift of shingle, has caused the erection of a new lighthouse there to become necessary, and the contract has been placed with a Deal firm to carry out the work for $30,000. This will be the third lighthouse erected upon Dungeness Point. The first, built about sixty years ago, is now a mile inland, and the lighthouse which superseded that one is now about half a mile from the seashore.

Snowshoes for Soldiers.

Up to some time ago the Norwegian army was perhaps the only one in Europe in which snowshoes were used to any extent. After several years of extensive trials, however, the Austrian minister of war has now equipped several battalions of the Imperial Austrian army with snowshoes. During the maneuvers carried on this year in the Austrian Alps the shoes proved to be of immense advantage to the troops equipped with them.

Notifying the God.

One of the odd things the visitor to Burmah will notice is the large number of bells about the pagodas. These bells are usually hung on sacred posts a few feet above the ground.

They are sweet-toned, as all Burmese bells are, but they are not furnished with tongues. The worshiper who comes to pray before the pagoda strikes one of these bells with a wooden mallet. This is to attract the attention of the god.

Squirrels' Nests in Chimney.

Sexton Davis of the Congregationalist church at Winter Park, Fla., met with an unexpected difficulty when he made the first fire of the season in the church a few days ago. The chimney would not "draw," and the cause was found to be a large squirrel's nest, or a series of nests, in the top of the structure. The opening was found completely closed with squirrel-nest material to the depth of four feet from the top.

Ancient Manuscripts.

It is a curious fact that, while many ancient manuscripts are almost illegible from the ink fading, manuscripts of the fifth and of the twelfth centuries have so far shown hardly any trace of fading.

THE MAKING OF A BILLIARD BALL.

Care and Time Required to Produce the White Spheres.

It takes more than a year to make a billiard ball! Few devotees of the game probably are aware of the infinite pains that have to be expended on this important part of the equipment that contributes to their entertainment.

Billiard balls are made from elephants' tusks, and only the small tusks, from four to six inches in diameter, will do, for these furnish the best ivory. The price of this ivory has greatly increased of late, and the demand is far in excess of the supply. This stringency in the market has induced a prominent billiard company to offer $10,000 for a perfect substitute for ivory.

The elephants' tusks come to the factories cut up in sections, each having been cut just large enough to allow of the turning of a single ball. Only skilled labor is employed to work upon it. The exact center of the piece must first be discovered by measurement. It is then placed in a socket, and one-half of the ball is turned by a sharp-edged steel instrument. The ivory is then hung up in a net for a time. Later the second half is turned, and the ball again hung up as before, in a room where the temperature is from 60 to 70 degrees.

The ball must be kept thus suspended for about a year, when it is rubbed and polished so as to near a certain weight as possible, and to a diameter of two and three-eighths inches. Even with the greatest care it is impossible to make two balls of exactly the same weight.

The life of a billiard ball after it is placed in use is an uncertain quantity. If the room in which it is kept is too hot the pores of the ivory may close, and a crack ensues. Then it has to be returned to the factory, where it is shaved off and consequently reduced in size. A second-rate billiard room gets it next. By and by it develops another crack, and again goes back to the factory, where this time it is probably fixed up for a cue ball in pool. When it has reached its last limit of usefulness as a ball it is bought by dealers in bone and ivory and turned into buttons.

PING-PONG PREVENTS THE PRAYER.

Invocation for Soldiers Postponed for the New Amusement.

Ping-pong has now become a factor in ecclesiastical polity. It has secured for itself the denunciation of the Bishop of Manchester, and has deprived the British army now fighting in South Africa of a weekly modicum of prayer. In an Essex village a custom has been in existence for over a year of holding a special service every Wednesday afternoon, at which supplications were earnestly offered for our soldiers. This week a young lady who has been a regular attendant at these meetings went to the church at the usual hour and was surprised to find the portals closed. She asked the caretaker, whom she met not far off, why this was so, and the old dame replied in astonishment: "Oh, we ain't got no prayers this afternoon, Miss. Why, don't you know this is the opening day of the Ping-pong club?"

Sure enough, the rector and his wife and the usual Wednesday worshipers had forsaken their orisons to play the fashionable game, which has invaded country villages with unprecedented fury. It is announced, however, that at the club ping-pong playing will be suspended during Holy Week.

Gaelic Language in Canada.

The Hon. John C. Linehan, insurance commissioner of New Hampshire, and one of the prominent members of the pension committee of the Grand Army of the Republic, is one of the most accomplished Gaelic scholars in this country, and received a degree from Dartmouth college for marked proficiency in the ancient language. The other evening he remarked to the writer: "Up in Canada, not far from old Arcadia, there is a large territory, composed of nineteen counties where English is never heard. Gaelic only is spoken, and it is taught in the schools and preached in the churches. The people are largely Catholic and Presbyterian, and the old tongue keeps them on excellent terms. It is a country where vice and crime are unknown, and where bolts and bars are never considered necessary."

Mr. Linehan's brother is pastor of one of the Portland (Me.) churches, and on one occasion recently an old lady from that particular country—and who was born and raised there—went to confession, and it was found that she had no word but Gaelic. Luckily the good father was versed in the language and was equal to the emergency.—New Century.

Operated a Passport Factory.

A curious business has just been discovered by the Russian police. For some time it has been known that a large number of political prisoners and exiles succeed in escaping across the frontier when once they are out of the clutches of the police, but their method of doing so has been a mystery. By an accident, however, a secret factory for forged passports has been discovered at Odessa. The factory was admirably organized and did a vast and lucrative business. A big staff of printers and engravers was employed, as well as a secretary, who possessed the peculiar qualification of being able to forge the signature of any police official in Russia. The owner also obtained genuine passports from poor citizens in his employ, who had, of course, no difficulty in getting them from the police, and from these the original names were erased by chemical means.

New Story of Grant

How the Great Commander Nullified a Harsh Order That He Had Given

Col. George Inman, a civil engineer, who was an engineer in the Union army with Grant in front of Petersburg in 1864-1865, as colonel of engineers, now engaged on some public work near Richmond, told this story of U. S. Grant to a group of Confederate veterans, ex-officers, there recently.

In the winter of 1864 a Capt. Hamilton of the Confederate army was captured within the Federal lines, and there were found on his person papers which clearly indicated that he had penetrated the lines for the purpose of gaining information for Gen. Lee. He was court-martialed and was at once condemned to be hanged at sunrise the next day. Col. Hamilton, who was in command of a cavalry regiment under Gen. Grant, was charged with the duty of furnishing the detail which was to execute the sentence of the court.

The night of the day on which the court pronounced the sentence on Capt. Hamilton Col. Inman went to Gen. Grant's tent to see him on a matter connected with the operations against the Confederates. He had been in the tent for some time when the orderly announced, "Col. Hamilton." A soldierly appearing officer entered and saluted. Before Gen. Grant had time to speak the colonel said in hard tones: "General, I cannot obey the order to execute that spy to-morrow morning."

Gen. Grant started as if shot.

"Why not?" he said in sharp tones.

The colonel was silent. He stood with bared head dropped on his bosom. Gen. Grant again asked him why he refused to obey his order, and this time there was a sharpness in his tone which was not there before. Col. Hamilton raised his head and looked the commander-in-chief full in the face.

"General, that man is my only son."

Gen. Grant looked his officer in the face for a moment. Then he turned his back. The colonel remained standing and silent, uncovered and his head bowed. Then Gen. Grant wheeled around and said in a harsh voice:

"Col. Hamilton, you will obey your orders."

The colonel saluted and left the tent.

Col. Inman remembered that the next morning the detail charged with the duty of hanging the spy went to the tent, and when the sentry entered it was found that there was nobody inside.

About ten years afterward Col. Inman was in San Francisco on business connected with his profession. While there he chanced to meet a Mr. Hamilton, with whom he became well acquainted. Hamilton one day mentioned that he was in the Confederate army and the relation of war experiences began. It came out that the Mr. Hamilton was the Capt. Hamilton whom Col. Hamilton had been ordered to hang. There were questions from Col. Inman, of course, and the story of the escape of the young soldier was brought out.

On the night before the day on which he was to be executed, he said, after midnight, he was lying on the blanket in his tent half asleep, for the circumstances did not warrant heavy sleep. He was aroused by the entrance of some one into the tent. A candle was burning dimly and he saw before him a heavily built man with short stubby whiskers, wearing a blue uniform without any insignia of rank on his shoulders a black slouch hat pulled down over his eyes. He recognized Gen. Grant.

The story does not go into details as to the conversation which ensued. The result was that the condemned spy, after there has been exacted a promise that he would never again assume the part which had so nearly cost him his life, was given the countersign which would enable him to pass the sentries. Then the man in the slouch hat went away.

And the man who was to have hanged him at sunrise did the same thing, and before the sun was set was within the Confederate lines.—New York Journal.

The Vanity of Negroes

Colored Woman Willing to Suffer Pain for the Sake of Possessing a Gold Tooth

"Negroes are fooling about gold teeth," said a citizen who lives in the old French Quarter, "and recently I have had this fact rather forcibly impressed on my mind. Some time ago I had a negro woman working for me, and one day she was telling me about a negro who had a gold tooth, and remarked that she had tried to get him to give it to her. It sounded so ridiculous that I laughed. 'Why, boss,' she said, 'that nigger's teeth is better'n mine. He jes had do gold slipped on the outside, for he done took it off and showed it to me.' And it was a fact, too. It was just a thin and shiny covering for the outer part of one of his front teeth, and he used it because he believed it added to the sweetness of his smile.

"We have a new servant at our house, a negro woman, and she is afflicted with the same mad idea that there is nothing to equal a gold tooth when it comes to winning favors among the members of her race. A few days ago she brought a handbill home which she had picked up somewhere in the street. It had been scattered broadcast by a local dentist, who advertised the fact that he was giving to every patient who called at his office one gold tooth. This caught Lucindy's eye.

"I happened to be passing the kitchen window and I saw Lucindy before a mirror, with her mouth wide open, and she was making a close inspection of every tooth in her head. My wife had said something about the pretty, even teeth the negro had, but I thought probably she had the toothache. 'Toothache, Lucindy?' I asked. 'No, boss,' she replied, 'never has had toothache. Jes tryin' to see which one o' dese teeth I'm gwinter have pulled, so I can git one of dese gold teeth,' and she showed me the circular which she had picked up in the street. I told her she ought not to do it, and she seemed to be very much put out about it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Crow Indians Wealthy

Tribe in Montana Owns Three Million Acres of Land and an Irrigation System

"The Crow Indians," said J. E. Edwards, who is government agent for that tribe, in talking with a Washington Times reporter at the Ebbitt, "have a magnificent reservation of over 3,000,000 acres of land in Montana. I think it is about the best reservation in the United States. They want to sell 1,150,000 acres, and there is a prospect of such legislation being enacted by the present congress.

"There are about 2,000 of the Crows. They came nearer maintaining the purity of their Indian blood than any other tribe. At the same time their numbers are decreasing. Consumption has done its fell work among them, and its ravages continue. It seems strange that they should be such easy victims to this disease, considering the robust original stock and their active outdoor life. But it is true that there is no community, nor race, in the world where the mortality is so great from tuberculosis as among these full-blood Crows. It is largely due, many think, to their imprudence in personal exposure and neglect of simple rules of health.

"They have about $700,000 invested in irrigation facilities, and are about the most industrious Indians in the country, raising large crops of wheat and hay. The older ones retain many of the primitive ways of the aborigines, but the rising generation is copying the civilization of the whites."

A Gladstone Escapade.

It is very hard for any of us to realize that the world's great men were once boys, and often mischievous and fun-loving boys at that. Children are always delighted to hear of some frolic indulged in by some great man when he was a boy, and so they will surely appreciate the following:

Next door to Mr. Gladstone's home when he was a little boy lived a lady who gave large evening receptions, and during the evening there would be many coachmen and footmen waiting outside. Gladstone and his brother would go on the top floor of their house, armed with squirt guns, with which they squirted the coachmen and footmen waiting in the street below. Henry Chaplin said the way in which the venerable statesman chuckled at the recollection of these youthful escapades was most amusing. He said that Mr. Gladstone became quite convulsed when he proceeded to tell him how delightful he and his brother were to hear the servants expressing their wonder as to where the rain came from.

Marriages of Convicts.

Marriages between convicts continue to be permitted in the Andaman Islands. Last year the superintendent received sixty-eight applications for such unions. Of these, four free and thirty-two convicts were sanctioned and the balance (thirty-two) were refused.

COTTON SEED MEN.

Large Attendance of These Progressive Leading Industry.

Dallas, Tex., April 29.—The state Cotton Seed Crushers' association convened in their sixth session at Phoenix hall Monday morning. About 150 delegates were present.

Most of those present were from the Mississippi valley and eastern portion of the south, the Texas delegates being slow in coming in. The delegates comprise a fine looking body of men and represent interests amounting over $150,000,000.

William I. Yopp of Dallas called the convention to order, and after a brief outline of the work before the convention and presentation of several papers, resigned in favor of President E. Thornton of Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Cabell was introduced and extended a hearty welcome on behalf of the city. He stated that the association had done, in his estimation, done more by its energy, pluck, sagacity and means for the development of the south than any other body of men he knew of.

President Charles Steinman followed on behalf of the Commercial club.

E. T. George of New Orleans made response to these addresses. He said that New Orleans had been waked up with something akin to surprise at the manner in which Dallas was getting all the big conventions, and, taking the hustle and energy displayed as a pattern, was doing likewise. The members of the association had been before coming of the royal manner in which Dallas treats her guests, and from what he had seen was prepared to believe the half had not been told.

The afternoon session was devoted principally to the reading of papers and a discussion of the question of arbitration through the medium of the Memphis Board of Trade.

G. N. Henson of Chattanooga, Tenn., delivered an address on "Our Association—Its Needs and Requirements to Make It of More Value to the Oil Crushing Industry." It was well received.

The addres of Louis K. Bell of New York on "Incidents of Progress in the Cottonseed Industry" held the close attention of the convention.

Russian Capitalists.

Dallas: A party of Russian capitalists from Tashkent, province of Daria, Central Asia, consisting of P. Polevoy, V. M. Pinsasky and Tichenor are in the city attending the meeting of the Interstate Cotton Crushers' association and studying American methods of handling cotton and cotton seed products. They have a template establishing a cotton seed crushing plant at Tashkent, and if it proves profitable will extend it.

Death Penalty.

Corpus Christi, Tex.: After being out fifteen minutes the jury in the case of Andres Olivarez, charged with the murder of Mrs. James Hatch, on Monday rendered a verdict of guilty and assessed his punishment at death. After examining a number of witnesses the defendant's confession was introduced as evidence and the case given to the jury without argument. The defendant had confessed to committing the deed.

Admiral Schley and wife were ovated at Memphis Monday.

Congressman Sibley denounced sharply Gen. Smith.

Representative Curtis of Kansas eulogized Funston.

Beaumont, Tex: Drillers and property owners are watching the progress being made on a well which is being drilled by McGilvey & Lacy for Col. Sims of Waco. The well did not come in satisfactorily when the sand was reached, and the drillers resolved to go through the oil sand into the solid rock. At forty-five feet water was lost and the drilling has gone 104 feet through the sand at that depth, a cavern was found.

Not Valid.

San Antonio, Tex.: In a habeas corpus hearing before Judge Green in the county court on Monday, Al Allen, a ticket broker, who was fined in the corporation court for following the business of a ticket broker in violation of an ordinance passed by the city council, was discharged, the court holding that the ordinance was invalid, the city council having no power to enforce such an ordinance as was passed by that body.

Many Attend.

Hillsboro, Tex.: Rev. George Stuart began a series of services here Sunday, preaching at the Methodist church in the forenoon and at the cottonseed hull house west of the city on the road in the afternoon and night. He will hold the remainder of the services in the hull house. Many are attending. The house has a capacity of seating 5000, and every seat was occupied Sunday night. Many business houses closed Monday from 10 to 11.

Without adopting the whole program of vegetarianism there is little doubt that the bulk of the people consume more meat, especially in sedentary positions, than there is any need of. As to Supply and Demand.

When the government becomes a bond purchaser the price of bonds goes up. When the government bids for steel, for stone, for machinery or for ships the price goes up. The price of silver is the only thing that does not respond to increased demand, according to the advocates of gold monometallism. The law of supply and demand has been repealed in so far as it refers to silver by the dictum of the gold gamblers, and there are thousands of farmers and wage-workers who believe it to be all right.

Popular Election of Senators.

The opponents of the direct election of senators argue that the senate was intended to prevent sudden and inconsiderate changes in the laws, but that is secured by the six years' term and by the fact that a third go out every two years. The present method was agreed upon as a compromise to conciliate those who, like Hamilton, favored independence, but distrusted the people. No one can oppose the popular election of senators without questioning the intelligence and integrity of the voters.

Senators Shirk Question.

The legislature of Nebraska—a Republican legislature at that—passed a resolution in the spring of 1899 demanding the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and yet the senators from Nebraska are non-committal on the subject. As they have plenty of opportunity to look after railroad interests in other matters, they ought to avoid following the dictation of the railroads where the people have spoken as plainly as they have on this question.

The Public Will Have No Benefit.

The payment of subsidies to vessels, whether they carry cargoes or not, is a gratuity of no use to the public. The payment of subsidies will not have the effect of reducing freight rates a particle. The Frye bill allows subsidies to vessels regardless of their ages. An old, obsolete type steamer may get a subsidy. If the senate thinks this kind of business is popular it is likely to discover that it is possible for its judgment to make a mis calculation.

No Chance for a Reform.

Congressman Babcock is disposed to retire from the chairmanship of the Republican congressional committee because he feels that his views on tariff reduction are not in accord with those of the majority of his party in or out of congress. The interests of the American consumer are no longer considered in congress and the majority there does not believe, with Mr. McKinley, that we cannot always go on selling without buying something.

Their Sins Haunt Them.

When the Republicans in power at Washington first connived at restricting the independence which the nation had promised in full to Cuba the acquisition of the island was their aim. Now it is said that the annexation of Cuba would be fiercely opposed by many of the party leaders. The question of granting a small measure of reciprocity alone has been sufficient to cause a bitter division. The sins of the party are reacting upon it.

Let Congress Understand.

It may be dangerous to assume that there is no chance of passing the ship subsidy bill through the house or to infer from the present apparent indifference to the scheme that there is no disposition to push it. Both these conclusions may be right, and we trust they are. At the same time the safer plan is to keep up the fire on the bill, and to make congressmen understand that the people are against it.—Indianapolis News.

The Era of High Prices.

This is certainly an era of high prices in this country, the necessaries of life costing more than at any period in recent times. It is to be sincerely hoped that the United States may continue to enjoy its present prosperity, although prices of the necessaries of life as well as the luxuries are greatly inflated by the gigantic trusts, and the protected monopolies, not the people, are fast growing rich.—Syracuse Telegram.

Where the Tax Shoe Pinches.

The abolition of war taxes to the extent of $70,000,000 will not bring perceptible relief to the masses. Most of the taxes wiped out were trifles which the country hardly felt. Meanwhile the taxes on trust-made goods, which cost the people dollars where the war taxes cost them cents, remain to remind the country that small details are being attended to by congress.

The Only Hope of Relief.

The only hope that the spoliated consumers of this country have for a revision of the Dingley tariff lies in the committal of the government to the Democratic party. The only hope the people have that government of the trusts, by the trusts and for the trusts may perish from the republic

Apaches in Captivity

How Geronimo's Followers Endured Their First Experience With Civilization

The request of Geronimo, the captive chief of the Apaches, to be released from Fort Sill, recalls the circumstances of the arrival of his tribe at Fort Marion, St. Augustine, fourteen years ago. Geronimo was not allowed to be with his people, because he had broken his word to the United States government, and after surrender, had again gone on the warpath. His squaw and papoose were with them, though, and the puny infant hanging on its mother's back did not look as though it would ever be a formidable enemy of our soldiers.

The squaws had the reputation of having tortured those of our men who were not killed outright by the Indians. Nana became chief in the absence of Geronimo and disproved all we have been taught by tradition to believe concerning the cruelty of the Indians to their women, for Nana submitted to be pulled by the hair until he gave in or was rescued by an officer from his irate spouse. Nana and the rest of the men had to be coerced into wearing the garments of civilization.

They came into captivity blanket Indians and did not like the confinement of their limbs that the wearing of trousers necessitated. They effected a sort of compromise by wearing the shirt picturesquely hanging outside the trousers, sometimes wearing two shirts at one time of different lengths. They were treated very kindly at Fort Marion and were provided with a physician by the government.

The Indians were suspicious of him, however, and when one day he administered a dose of castor oil to a sick man of the tribe and came after a while to see his patient he found that he had been spirited away. He was kept hidden in some one of the numerous tents that were pitched upon the ramparts of the fort, nor did he appear again for many days, not until his entire recovery removed the suspicion from the mind of the savages that the government intended to poison them one by one in retaliation for their crimes against it.

They were sometimes allowed to go into the city, a few at a time, under guard, much to the discomfiture of the shopkeepers, whose goods they would handle with great curiosity, leaving them after close inspection somewhat the worse for wear. When any one in the street cried out jocosely: "Make way for the native Americans," the shopkeepers ran hastily to cover up from view the daintiest of their wares for fear of the appreciative attentions of the interested visitors.

Some Boston women, wishing to improve the opportunity of enlightening these savages got permission from the officers to open a kindergarten in the fort. The men as well as the women and children took kindly to the plan as a relief from absolute idleness. The young bucks tried to play the kindergarten plays and sing the songs, but one who knew said that in the privacy of the tent they called the good women a name which translated means "Crazy Squaws."

When the government issued a quantity of red flannel in the fall it put an end to school, for the women received it most eagerly and the embroidery put upon the garments they made of it was wonderful to see.

Her Idea of a Bargain...

Sold Husband's Coat for 45 Cents, While His $30 Harness Was Stolen

It was a Detroit lawyer who hired a trampish looking man to do some work about his house the other day, and as he was a bit suspicious of him, and as there were a lot of things around he could easily pick up, it was suggested to the wife that she keep an eye on the fellow. This she agreed to do and the lawyer departed for his office. After a couple of hours he telephoned and she answered that everything was all right. He telephoned again as he went to lunch and got the same report. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the wife telephoned that the man had suddenly disappeared, and that she thought a harness from the barn had gone with him. The lawyer started for home at once and within five minutes of getting there he had found that a $30 harness was missing.

"I thought you agreed to watch him?" he said to his wife in indignant tones.

"Yes, I did," she replied, "and I had my eye on him most all the time. A fire engine went by and I never went to the door. The ambulance came clanging along and I never looked out. As many as three different peddlers called, but I would not bother with them. I think a street car struck a wagon on the block above and hurt a man, but I wouldn't go out and see."

"Then you must have fallen asleep?"

"No, I didn't. It was just this way. An old-clo' man came along."

"And what of it?"

"I knew you had an old overcoat hanging upstairs and it was such a good chance to get rid of it."

"And so you quit watching the tramp to dicker with the old-clo' man?"

"That was it, but it was the first old coat I ever sold, you know, and I was so anxious to make a good bargain."

"Well, your dicker over the old coat has cost me a $30 harness," said the husband.

"Oh, but it hasn't," she smiling replied, according to the Detroit Free Press. "I made such a bargain selling that coat."

"How much did you get for it?"

"Forty-five cents, and I don't believe it was worth over thirty. We can afford to have a harness stolen every week if we can get such a big price for our old clothes."

Wholesale Duck Killing

Three Sportsmen Make a Record Bag in the Swampy Hunting Grounds of Louisiana

Probably the record for the greatest number of ducks bagged by three men on one short hunt, certainly the highest record capable of proof by affidavit, belongs to Banks Murff, now a merchant at Houghton, La. Napoleon Murff, an official of Shreveport, and William McCormick of Bassier City, La. The record was made on Lake Bistineau, and 48 hours were required in which to make it.

The party drove to the shores of Bistineau from Houghton, 16 miles, and went into camp. They began shooting at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and with a lay-off of one hour for dinner, shot until dark.

They shot all Thursday with the exception of time taken for breakfast and noon dinner. They shot from daylight on Friday morning until 10 a. m. Then they hired an extra wagon and took their game home.

The scores were: Banks Murff, 422; Napoleon Murff, 452; McCormick, 493; total, 1,367.

Part of the killing was done from boats, part from natural blinds and part over sloughs running from the woods down to the lake.

The scores given stand only for bagged ducks. How many were winged and got away or how many fell dead out of sight is not known and never will be.

The bag included specimens of every variety of duck which visits that part of the south. There were no canvasbacks or redheads among them. In the main they were mallards, reinforced by widgeons, gadwalls, pintails, spoonbills, wood ducks, dusky ducks, teal, etc.

It should be understood that in making this score the men shot at single passing flocks, bringing down three or four, sometimes a half dozen, with the two barrels.

The battue is interesting also as an illustration of endurance. The gunners are big strong men and used to field work. On the afternoon of Thursday all of them were sick.

They suffered from intense headaches and occasional spells of weak eyes. The gun shoulder of each man and the right arm half way to the elbow were black with bruises. The last morning's shoot was entirely perfunctory.—New York Sun.

Oldest American Gold Mine.

The oldest American gold mine is said to be the Calhoun mine in Lumpkin county, Georgia. It was discovered by whites in 1828. The Indians had known of it before that time. Senator John C. Calhoun once owned and operated it and it received its name from him. It subsequently passed out of his hands and was donated to an agricultural college. From that time until recently it was worked in a desultory way. Lately it came into the possession of a Pacific coast miner, who has pushed the work and the placer deposit is returning him a clear profit ranging from $200 to $300 per month as the result of the labor of six men. A recent clean-up of thirty-five days' run produced $966.93 in fine gold and $56 worth of nuggets, all of which cost $376 for labor, leaving a net profit of $646.93.

Our doctrine will not disturb the enemy until it crystallizes into deeds.

THE PHALANX.

Its Formation In the Military Methods of Ancient Greece.

A phalanx in the military affairs of Greece was a square battalion or body of soldiers formed in ranks and files compact and deep with their shields joined and pikes crossing each other so as to render it almost impossible to break it. At first the phalanx consisted of 4,000 men, but this number was afterward doubled by Philip of Macedon, and the double phalanx is hence often called the Macedonian phalanx. Polybius describes it thus:

"It was a square of pikemen, consisting of 16 in flank and 500 in front. The soldiers stood so close together that the pikes of the fifth rank extended three feet beyond the front. The rest, whose pikes were not serviceable owing to their distance from the front, couched them upon the shoulders of those who stood before them and, so locking them together in file, pressed forward to support and push on the former rank, by which means the assault was rendered more violent and irresistible." The spears of those behind also stopped the missiles of the enemy. Each man's pike was twenty-three feet long. The word phalanx is also used for any combination of people distinguished for solidity and firmness. A grand phalanx consisted of 16,384 men.

What Hit Him.

Some years ago, while a gentleman was walking from St. James' park to Pall Mall on a bright afternoon in summer, he suddenly received a blow on the shoulder which caused him to stumble, and at the same time he heard a loud, crackling noise. On recovering he looked around for his assailant, but there was nobody visible except a policeman, who was many yards away.

When the gentleman reached home, his shoulder was examined, but no injury could be found to account for the pain in it. Soon afterward the servant, who had taken away his master's outdoor coat to brush it, brought back the garment and pointed out that the nap on the shoulder was pressed flat as if a hot wire had been drawn across it. Everything, in fact, pointed to the probability that the wearer had been struck by a meteor.

The incident might well be used as a blackboard lesson for children—aye, and for some grownup children, too—who imagine that "shooting stars" only shoot in the dark.—Chambers' Journal.

Naming the Child.

Now, necessarily when the new girl baby arrived there was much discussion among the members of the family as to what her name should be.

"We will call her Geraldina," said the fond mother.

"Why not call her Esmeralda?" said the first grandmother. "I saw that name in a story once and always wanted to try it on a baby."

"Oh, murmured the second grandmother, "that would never do. Let us call her Fanchon."

"But don't you think Eltessa is a pretty name, and so odd, too?" put in one of the aunts.

"Excuse me, ladies," ventured the poor father, who sat near by, "but you seem to forget that we are trying to find a name for a human being and not for a five cent cigar."—Baltimore American.

Feminine Financiering.

He—You owe me ten kisses! Pay up!

She—Explain, sir!

He—I won them! You know very well I wagered a dozen gloves against ten kisses and won! I—

She—Oh, but kisses, you know—

He (firmly)—Kisses should be paid just as religiously as any other debt.

She (thoughtfully)—Just the same as a note?

"Yes."

"Or a check?"

"Yes."

"Or—or a draft?"

"Certainly!"

"Then, you poor fellow, I'll give you a draft on mamma!"—Stray Stories.

HOUSEWORK

Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI

is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cured Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendeane, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901.

I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed last week and was not one bit tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting fleshier than I ever was before, and sleep good and eat hearty. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day, but now I do not think of lying down through the day. MRS. RICHARD JONES.

THE PLANET MARS.

Science Cannot Say Whether There Be Men There or Not.

To the popular mind all astronomical research ought of necessity to be concerned with the important questions whether there are men in the moon and inhabitants in Mars. To the first of these astronomy returns a decided negative. There is no life on the moon, and probably no life, either vegetable or animal, existed at any period of human history. To the second the answer is: We cannot tell. There may be men in Mars and there may not. The conditions of life there do not preclude the existence of human beings. We have in Mars rain and snow, sunshine and gloom, summer and winter, as on our earth.

Perhaps the closing years of the twentieth century will see astronomers armed with a telescope powerful enough to reveal towns and cities in Mars. Should ever such a discovery be made I could conceive of none greater in the whole range of time, none more upsetting or disconcerting. To the ordinary astronomer untroubled by such hopes the future lines of astronomical progress is simply and clearly defined, and that progress is simply to answer the old lines:

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
How I wonder what you are.

This was the problem before our friend who wrote on astronomy a hundred years ago; this will be the problem before astronomers a hundred years hence.—Chambers' Journal.

Wisdom In City Directories.

The New York city directory for the early years of the nineteenth century contained an almanac and other features now considered to be extraneous to directories. The compilation was largely done by Abraham Shoemaker. Mr. Shoemaker had a habit of ornamenting the margins of the pages with quaint old "saws" of this character:

A traveler should have a hog's nose, a deer's legs and an ass' back.

A little house well filled; a little field well tilled and a little wife well drilled are great riches.

A poor man must walk to get meat for his stomach, the rich man to get a stomach for his meat.

Tell a miser he's rich and a woman she's old, you'll get no money of the one nor kindness from t'other.

Love, cough and smoke can't well be hid.

Some Famous Dunces.

Literary history is crowded with instances of torpid and uninteresting boyhood. Gibbon was pronounced "dreadfully dull," and the utmost that was predicted of Hume in his youth was that "he might possibly become a steady merchant." Adam Clarke, afterward so deeply skilled in oriental languages and antiquities, was pronounced by his father to be "a grievous dunce," and of Boileau, who became a model for Pope, it was said that he was a youth of little understanding. Dryden was "a great numskull," who went through a course of education at Westminster, but the "stimulating properties of Dr. Busby's classical ferrule were thrown away upon the drone who was to be known as 'Glorious John.'"—London Standard.

Bodies Turned to Stone.

Human bodies buried in limestone countries are often turned to solid stone by the limewater which penetrates the graves. In other soils there are elements which sometimes so embalm the buried dead as to preserve form and features unchanged. Many such cases are on record. Robert Burns' body was disinterred in 1815 to be removed to a new tomb. To the surprise of all his friends the features were found to be as perfect as at burial. When the body of John Hampden, the famous English patriot and leader, was disinterred by Lord Nugent 200 years after burial, the form and features were as unchanged as if the corpse had been recently laid in the grave.

One of Dumas' Jokes.

Just for a joke Dumas once addressed a letter to "the greatest poet in Paris." The postoffice sent it to Lamartine, the idol of sentimental readers. He hesitated to open it and took it to Victor Hugo, who protested that his brother bard had far too humble an opinion of himself. After some conversation they agreed to decide by lot which of the two should open the envelope. The lot fell to Victor Hugo, who, taking out the letter, read, "My dear Alfred." It was written to Alfred de Musset.

A Capable Student.

In one of the Philadelphia colleges a professor of chemistry asked a student the other day, "Now, suppose you were called to a patient who had swallowed a heavy dose of oxalic acid, what would you administer?"

"I would administer the sacrament," replied the student, who, by the way, is said to be studying for the ministry and takes chemistry because it is obligatory.—Argonaut.

Reason For the Hit.

"Was Mrs. Gabbot's 'conversazione' a success?"

"Decidedly. Everybody chatted at a great rate."

"How did she ever manage it?"

"Oh, she had a musical programme, you know, that lasted all through."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Reason.

Judge—Your statement doesn't agree with that of the last witness.

Witness—That is easily accounted for, your honor. He's a bigger liar than I am.—Chicago News.

The man who leaves church just as the collection plate starts around may have been taken suddenly ill, but he rarely gets credit for it.

WHAT HE THOUGHT OF HIM

A Postal Card Serial Story and a Lost Suit For Slander.

A certain Kansas man, so the story goes, wanted to tell a neighbor what he thought of him without laying himself open to a suit for damages. So he hit on the plan of sending him each day a postal card with only one word written on it in a large hand, in addition to the date obscurely tucked away in a corner.

The person receiving the cards recognized the handwriting and, suspecting something, kept them until they stopped coming, when he read them consecutively in the order of their reception. What he read was, "Ridiculous old Bill Jones is the meanest cuss in town," and he at once instituted a suit for slander against the sender.

The latter's lawyer, however, called attention to the fact that the postal card containing "ridiculous," though mailed first, was dated the day after the date of the card having the word "town." Moreover, a careful inspection would show that after the word "ridiculous" was an exclamation point, and after the word "town" was an interrogation mark, so that the series of postal cards might be made to read: "Old Bill is the meanest cuss in town? Ridiculous!" He claimed, therefore, that instead of slandering the plaintiff his client had defended him from slander, and this plea was sustained by the court.

But, all the same, everybody in town insisted that the first reading of the cards was the correct one, so that the writer attained his object.

Reasons For Pride.

There was present at a certain big dinner in England an American woman of prominence who was somewhat annoyed by a tactless English woman who undertook to banter her and who said:

"I take it for granted that you have no coats of arms in your new country."

"Of course no American family could have one unless it was borrowed from English ancestry," replied the former American.

"For instance, has your family any especial cause for pride over your grandfather?" persisted this particularly tactless female cad.

Then the American woman opened up and replied as calmly as possible under the circumstances, "Not much, perhaps, only that my grandfather on my mother's side received Burgoyne's sword when he surrendered at Saratoga and my grandfather on my father's side received the sword of Cornwallis at Yorktown."

A Small Legal Fee.

The smallest fee ever taken by an English counsel was sixpence, that fee having on one occasion been taken by the late Sir John Holker. Barristers' fees were in olden times much less than those now paid. An entry occurs in the churchwardens' accounts of St. Margaret's, Westminster, for 1476, showing that a fee of 3s. 8d., with fourpence for his dinner, was paid to Robert Flypot, counsel, learned in the law, for his advice.

In Nare's "Glossary" a barrister's fee was stated to be an angel, or 10 shillings. These are somewhat different figures from the 600 guineas paid to Sir Charles Russell a number of years ago at the Leeds assizes for less than three hours' work, or at the rate of over 3 guineas a minute.—London Tit-Bits.

In the Art Gallery.

"Ah," exclaimed Mrs. Oldcastle, who was again enjoying the splendors of her new neighbors' art gallery, "a Corot, I see!"

"Where?" asked her hostess, looking doubtfully at the canvas which seemed to claim the other's attention.

"There," answered Mrs. Oldcastle, pointing with her lorgnette.

"Well, now, I declare. I can't see a single crow anywhere around. You don't mean them little black spots in the left hand corner, do you? Them's clouds!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Limit of Chivalry.

There was once a man who zealously declared that woman has no right to invade the field of wage earning men. She should stay at home, where she belonged.

Finally his four sisters, three cousins and two aunts, who were without a masculine protector, gathered about him and inquired:

"Whose home? Yours?"

Whereat he perceived that theory ends where fact begins.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Good and the Bad.

One ought to balance the good with the bad and also the length of time a man has lived to form a true estimate of his character. Polybius, the Greek historian, has an observation to the same effect. "There is no reason," says he, "why we should not sometimes blame and sometimes commend the same person, for, as none is always right, neither is it probable that he should be always wrong."

Out of His Class.

Mrs. Jones—Just think of it! That fellow came in and actually stole the clock right off the mantelpiece.

Mrs. Brown—And your dog was in the very same room!

Mrs. Jones—Yes, but that didn't count. Fido is only a watchdog, you know.—Boston Transcript.

Sorry She Spoke.

"Thank you, my little man," said Miss Passay to the nice little boy who had given up his seat in the car. "And have you been taught to always give your seat to ladies?"

"No'm," replied the bright boy; "only to old ladies."—Philadelphia Press.

AN ODD CALLING.

The Professional Business Adviser and His Methods.

One of the oddest of occupations is that of the professional "business adviser." If your affairs are not conducted to your liking, this gentleman for a consideration will station himself in your office in a position to see all that is going on. He will nose into your affairs for a week or longer at your option, at the end of which time he will be prepared to point out the faults of your system, employees who neglect their duties, wastage of supplies and time, and suggest means of improving, extending and conducting your affairs on a sounder basis."

The words quoted are from this modest gentleman's advertisement. In brief this man, after a week's observation, will undertake to rearrange the most complex office systems "for a consideration" and give you advice "free, gratis, for nothing." As drowning men catch at straws, so do men whose affairs are hopelessly and inextricably muddled grasp at the chance this gentleman holds out to them. The professional "business adviser" has plenty of clients, and nine times out of ten his advice to his employer is to "make an assignment for the benefit of your creditors." It is the safest counsel he can give.—Philadelphia Times.

Water Clocks In China.

In the history of the Tang dynasty it is stated that in Persia at the same period there was a clepsydra on a terrace near the palace formed of a balance containing twelve metal balls, one of which fell every hour on a bell and thus struck the hours correctly. It is deemed not unlikely that this instrument was identical with the celebrated one which the king of Persia sent in the year 807 to Charlemagne.

In 808 the astronomer Tsiang produced an improvement on all former instruments—a machine arranged on a sort of miniature terrace ten feet high and divided into three stories, the works being in the middle. Twelve images of men, one for every hour, appeared in turn before an opening in the terrace. Another set of automata struck the hours and eighths of hours. These figures occupied the lowest story.

The upper story was devoted to astronomy, containing an orrery in motion. Very complex machinery must have been required. As to the nature of the mechanism nothing is known except that it was kept going by falling water.

A Story of Professor Huxley.

Professor Huxley, Dr. Wayland declared, was once sitting at dinner beside a lady who in impassioned tones asked him whether he did not think it a very terrible thing that the Rev. Mr. Jones, the vicar, should have adopted the eastward position in administering the sacrament. "My dear lady," he replied, "I am told by Sir John Herschel that to drop a pea at the end of every mile of a voyage on a limitless ocean to the distance of the nearest fixed star would require a fleet of 10,000 ships, each of 600 tons burden, all starting with a full cargo of peas. Now, do you really suppose that the Maker of the fixed stars considers this new position of Mr. Jones a serious thing?"

Some Phonetic Spelling.

Before we complain of the spelling of our daughters we should perhaps take exception to the pronunciation of our fathers. Most of the eccentricities in spelling common to children arise from their attempts to reproduce words as they hear them pronounced by their elders. A child who was told to make a list of all the fruits she knew wrote down, "Apls, strorbriz, rarsbriz, goozbris, bnarners." Another spelled the word "idea" with the addition of an "r." "Idear!" exclaimed her teacher. "That is a funny way of spelling idea." Her pupil, however, was not to be outdone. "I know," she answered readily, "but I spelled it that way for short."—London Chronicle.

Too Much Appreciation.

A biography of Huxley dwells on the annoyance which he suffered from bores. But the plague had its funny side. Huxley once wrote to a friend:

"I had a letter from a fellow yesterday morning who must be a lunatic, to the effect that he had been reading my essays, thought I was the man to spend a month with and was coming down by the 5 o'clock train attended by his seven children and his mother-in-law!"

As will be seen by the above the threshers were able to keep on with their work without losing a single day's time. You should keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. For sale by Overton Drug Co.
