Family Reunions—
Another Burglary—
Any Arrests?—
Big News in Collingsworth—

IN the annual reunion, held at Decatur Monday by members of the Gose family, there is inspiration for an entire community, as well as for those who actively participated.

Stephen and Mary Frances Gose, according to the story in The Record News, settled on a farm four miles from Decatur in 1859. The first church of their community was organized in the Gose home, and services held there while plans for a building were made. Stephen and Mary Gose were pioneers in their church work, just as in the work of community and home building. How well they performed both missions is told in the lives of their children and their children's children—a group now numbering between 80 and 100, and the majority civic and business leaders in their respective communities over the state.

FAMILIES, to some extent, and sections and communities more generally, are too inclined to forget the work of the early settlers in West Texas. There should be more reunions (and there are a number, of course), such as the Gose gathering, and there should be more thought given to the sacrifices of those early arrivals in West Texas, who made the foundation of the section today in their work of a half or three-quarters of a century ago.

KNOB-KNOCKERS tap another safe Sunday night, this time time making off with more than $600 in cash, from the office of the Model laundry. Latest reports are to the effect that no arrests have been made by city officers, and, seemingly, for the time being at least, the burglars have successfully escaped with the loot.

The repeated raids which are made each week-end on Wichita Falls business houses indicate that this city has a rather sizeable gang of crooks operating here with more or less regularity and security. It is of course impossible to station a policeman at every safe in the city, or to guard each front door. It would be extraordinary luck if a burglar of any ability (and they seem to be rather adept here) should be caught in the act of robbing some establishment.

ACTIVE work by the police department, however, should give city officers some knowledge of who might be expected to commit burglaries. The police department has methods of making life very unpleasant for such known criminals or suspicious characters, and citizens of Wichita Falls have a right to expect that this, if nothing else, will be done.

Eternal vigilance over the suspicious characters of the city's underworld, together with an efficient and well kept system of police records and information, more than often leads to guilty persons in crime when police officers have no definite clues on which to work.

In Wichita Falls, more activity directed toward rounding up the criminals who evidently are sojourning here, and less toward the collection of $2 fines for minor infractions of traffic rules, would undoubtedly make cash registers safer for their owners, and perhaps restore some of the thrill to the gentle art of knob-knocking.

"WHOOPS — IT'S RAINED" is the rather unusual "banner" or headline across the top of the paper carried by the Collingsworth Standard, published at Wellington. The Record News has no criticism to offer on this score, for undoubtedly the showers which allowed Collingsworth county farmers to resume work constituted the "big news" of the day in that section.

The less West Texas must depend upon the fortunes of the weather, however, the greater prosperity in store for its farmers. Farmers "along the ditch" in any irrigation area are those who secure the greatest returns, and are reaping the profits of scientific farming all over the nation.

Wichita has one irrigation project completed, and now yielding its returns in the form of greater and more diversified crops. The Pease river survey is nearly completed, and this great plan should be pushed to a successful termination. Wherever waters can be stored up, conserved and utilized when most needed, there will be the future prosperity centers of the nation.

Wlited Flowers Mark Fatal Crash Scene

Five Lose Their Lives In Piedmont Storm

BRISTOL, Va.-Tenn., May 30. (AP) Five persons are known to have lost their lives in a wind and rain storm in southwestern Virginia and eastern Tennessee, last night. Three were drowned at Gate City, Va., and two at Elizabethtown, Tenn.

Solons Favor Creation Of New Road Commission

AUSTIN, May 30. (AP)—Governor Moody and several members of the senate—possibly a majority—disagree radically over proposed highway legislation, it was admitted on the upper house floor today. The senate spent nearly the entire afternoon session jockeying about on proposed highway measures and various members admitted the administration's bill would not be supported by them while others rallied to its cause.

Stuart's bill to create a highway commission of nine members, one from each proposed "highway district," apparently has formidable support and is distinctly at variance with the one submitted today by Wood of Granger, administration leader, with the statement that Moody favors it.

Charge was made that Stuart's measure, providing for immediate appointment of nine commissioners and the subsequent naming by the commission of a manager and engineers, would "legislate out of office" the present commission and highway engineer.

Bailey For Moody

Bailey of Cuero declared that Moody made his campaign largely on the issue of highway reform and that he (Bailey) "proposes to stay with what the governor thinks right."

"I wasn't for Mr. Moody and you all know it. I was a Davidson man. But the democracy of Texas elected Moody and I propose to hold up his hand.

"You all know that the Stuart bill is not favored by the administration. This senate should give the administration a chance to make the needed revision in its own way," Bailey shouted.

The statement has been made, Bailey said, that this week will make or break the administration. "I serve notice on you now that as far as highway legislation is concerned, I'm against what the administration is against."

Wirtz Is Independent

Wirtz of Seguin answered Bailey by saying that while he (Wirtz) has no desire to hamper the governor, he will "do his own thinking and try to legislate for the people."

"I don't see why the administration should be against the Stuart bill. It follows the line of Governor Moody's prison reforms ideas," Wirtz said. "And furthermore, I am willing to add t othe Stuart bill that the present commission shall stay in office."

Stuart's bill, reported favorably by a senate committee, is said to have substantial support in the senate and indications from the arguments were that the reports are correct.

Love, Ward and Woodward offered as a substitute to Stuart's measure a bill which would continue the present commission in office and would leave the commission's membership at three. McFarlane offered another which also would provide for only three commissioners.

Board of Nine Men

High lights of the Stuart bill new provisions:

Creation of a commission of nine members, one member from each proposed "highway district" in the state: Appointments to be made by the governor, three commissioners each biennium to be named.

Election by the commission, of a highway manager at $10,000 a year.

The administration would make no revision of the present highway commission and department, its object being to fix the policy of the commission. Under its terms, the commission by September 1 would be required to designate and establish a system of "primary highways" from the list of designated highways, total length primary highways not to be more than 5000 miles. Not more than 300 miles a year could be added to the primary chain.

The commission's policy would require it to give most preference to development of the principal and most travelled highways and to the filling in of gaps. No designation of highway made by the commission under the act could be cancelled without consent of the legislature, and in case of cancellation, counties which furnished funds toward proposed road construction would be given credit with the department and entitled to future state aid allotments.

Ax Over Counties

In the event a county should refuse to pay an equitable share of cost of any proposed highway through its bounds, the commission could withhold further allotments from the county.

The main differences between the Love-Woodward-Ward substitute and the Stewart bill are that the former would retain the present commission of three.

Solons Make An Error In Law Regulating Fishermen

AUSTIN, May 30. (AP)—A bill to amend a regular session law that unintentionally worked a hardship on East Texas fishermen, was prepared today by Representative Ben Woodall of Marshall, with the idea of getting Governor Moody to submit it to the special session.

Regulations prohibiting seining in Caddo lake failed to exempt minnow seining for bait, and one sportsman was fined $10 recently for catching minnows, Woodall said. This won't do, he declared, hence the bill to correct the omission.

$200 FINE FOR CRASH DRIVER

Council Works On Curb For Recklessness

An ordinance prescribing a maximum penalty of a $200 fine for any person causing an automobile accident through negligence was passed Monday night on its first reading by the city council.

The ordinance was termed "The Rogers' Ordinance" in honor of the late F. A. Rogers, who was chairman of the traffic committee of the Safety Council and under whose direction the ordinance was prepared.

The council authorized Mayor R. E. Shepherd to sign a contract with the Texas Electric Service company covering rates to be charged the city during the next five years.

The city will save $1000 a month on its electrical bill, according to the terms of the new contract.

Ask Lower Rates.

After the authorization was ordered Roy Carter, police and fire commissioner, suggested that the company be requested to lower the rates for domestic use in the city.

Britain to Send More Troops Into China

LONDON, May 30. (AP)—It was stated at the foreign office today that the British warships now enroute to Egypt from Malta were sent as a precautionary measure, such as the government had taken on various previous occasions.

From the tone of recent debates in the Egyptian chamber, Downing Street officials say Egyptian officials are endeavoring to create a wholly artificial situation of tenseness.

First Replies Received in Menu Contest—Prizes Offered For Best

Proof that Wichita Falls is a "city of good cooks" was received at The Record News office Monday with the first returns in the Sunday Dinner Menu contest which opened Saturday. Recipes for delicious dishes, new and appetizing methods of serving, and attractive suggestions on table service were among the answers, all of which evidenced an appreciation of the fine art of cooking and a willingness to share the knowledge.

The contest for the first week's prize will close Thursday at noon, and every housewife who is especially proud of her Sunday menu, or any recipe, is urged to send in her reply as soon as possible.

The first prize is $5 in cash, the second $2.50, and for each additional menu that is printed, $1 will be paid the writer. Winners will be announced in The Saturday Record News.

All who sent replies on Monday had paid a gratifying attention to the points on which the menus will be judged, appeal and attractiveness, timeliness, balance and originality, cost and discussion. Several of the dishes were entirely original, it would seem, and practically all were easy to prepare, as summertime dishes should be, and sounded highly palatable and appetizing.

GEO. SOUDERS WINS CLASSIC ON SPEEDWAY

Serious Accidents Mar Memorial Day Race At Indianapolis

By Universal Service.

SPEEDWAY, INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—Once again a youthful driver from the "sticks" instead of the bricks of the speedway flashed forth to win the 15th international automobile race here today.

The stranger, 24 years of age, George Souders, of LaFayette, Ind., managed to last the blistering 500-mile route while older and supposedly better drivers went to the walls, to the pits, and on their sorrowing ways.

This Souders, two years a student at Purdue university, drove his car from the start to finish, notable enough feat in itself in this race of dizzying changes in leaders, drivers, and the minds of those who provide the "official" bulletins to the press.

Not only did Souders finish what he had started, but on his only trip to the pits at the conclusion of 160 laps, or 400 miles, when he was offered a relief in the person of none other than Frank Lockhart, last year's winner, the young man scorned the suggestion, and remained at the wheel.

Averages 97.54 Miles.

Souders' time for the 500 miles was 5 hours and 7 minutes, 33.8 seconds, an average of 97.54 miles an hour.

His job today earned him besides the $20,000 first prize money the additional item of $5,100 representing the number of laps for which he set the pace, in the negotiation of the most important phase of this kind of a race, the last 75 miles.

Lockhart, out in front in the very first lap, led the field for 81 laps without a break, and when he went to the pits for a change of tires

SOUDERS FROM ABILENE.

ABILENE, Texas, May 30 (AP).—Abilene circle of auto racing fans received the surprise of its life today and it was highly agreeable. George Souders, for the last year an employe of a local garage, was the reason. He won the fifteenth annual 500-mile auto racing classic at Indianapolis.

Souders, an obscure pilot in the Indianapolis race, was the kingpin of tin derbies in this section of the state. He first attracted attention in Abilene when he captured the 25-mile and 10-mile events of the West Texas fair Independence day card in 1924. In the fall he repeated his successes on the dirt track here and returned in 1926 to make Abilene his home.

Ambassador Sheffield Tenders Resignation

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico, is returning to the United States on a "long leave" of absence and there is doubt that he will return to his post, it was learned in high official quarters here tonight. It is understood that he has actually tendered his resignation, but phrased it in such a way that it is to be accepted only in the event that the president can conveniently relieve him of his duties.

Captain of Leviathan Greets Atlantic Flier

LONDON, May 30. (AP)—Among the Americans at Croydon to greet Captain Lindbergh on his arrival from Brussels was Commodore Hartley, captain of the steamer Leviathan. Forest Fire Sweeps Over Big Territory

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., May 30. (AP)—The forest fire in the Lincoln national forest, which was held to the burning area last night, was believed today to be under control although still dangerous.

He Wins Race

George Souders, winner of the Indianapolis speedway classic, was among the racers competing at the Texas-Oklahoma fair here last fall, according to a belief expressed by R. E. Shepherd, secretary, Monday night. Mayor Shepherd said that while he could not be positive without a check being made of the entries of the race, he "felt fairly certain" that Souders participated in the races.

15 BALLOONS OFF FOR RACE

National Contest Starts From Akron

AKRON, Ohio, May 30 (AP).—Fifteen silver bags soared away to the northeast late today in the national elimination race that will determine the American ballooning champion and the personnel of a team to represent this nation in the international Gordon Bennett cup race next September.

It was a great start—completed just 20 minutes ahead of schedule, and the sun came from behind a mass of threatening clouds to see the pilots off.

Wind Aids Start

Scarcely a gust of wind was blowing over the field when Colonel DeForest Chandler of Washington, the starter, walked over to the United States army balloon No. 2 to put the silver bag on its way.

It was the first to take the air. Promptly at 5 o'clock, the time the race was scheduled to start, Lieut. James Powell, the pilot, and his aide, Major Maurice E. Smith, climbed into the basket. Then it soared away, ascending almost in a vertical line before it struck an air current.

At intervals of less than five minutes the remainder of the balloons took off from the field and none experienced the slightest difficulty. The Akron Beacon-Journal balloon, which had drawn fifteenth position and was not scheduled to leave until 6:15 made its start 20 minutes ahead of time.

Danger of Storm

If the weather reports received at the field before race time were borne out, the silken bags were in danger of encountering electrical storms unless flown at an altitude of about 6000 feet. In any event the racing balloonists had the prospect of navigating their way through very unfavorable weather, for thunderstorms were creating disturbances in this region all during the afternoon.

Off to the northeast the aerial parade started its journey through charted air currents.

Close Race Expected

By early tomorrow all of the bags will have landed, it was believed. But a close contest was the prediction of race officials.

MEMORIAL DAY TRIBUTE PAID BY COOLIDGE

President Urges Peace With Honor For America

PLEA FOR JUSTICE

Disarmament Will Come Eventually, He Tells His Hearers

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—President Coolidge today called upon the nations of the world to discard force and to substitute justice in place of brutal war for settling international differences.

And while urging an era of international comity, he pleaded with the people of the United States to obey their own laws and to treat the rights of all others with charitable consideration in order that their own example may demonstrate America's desire for peace throughout the world.

Flanked by the veterans of three wars, President Coolidge declared America's program of peace in his Memorial day speech delivered to a vast audience from the magnificent amphitheater atop the highest eminence in Arlington cemetery where the heroic dead await the final trumpet call to judgment.

The United States is ready to negotiate with Great Britain and Japan for limitation of armaments in order that the military incentive for war may be reduced, President Coolidge declared.

In China, Mexico, and Nicaragua, the sole purpose of this government has been to promote an early adjustment of their grave troubles on the basis of goodwill and justice, he asserted.

He declared in a few brief sentences the aims of the United States in its peace promoting policy as follows:

"We wish to discard the element of force and compulsion in international agreements and conduct and rely on reason and law.

"While we wish for peace everywhere, it is our desire that it should not be not a peace imposed by America, but a peace established by each nation for itself.

"We want our relationship with other nations based not on a meeting of bayonets, but on a meeting of minds.

"We want our intercourse with them to rest on justice and fair dealing and the mutual observance of all rightful obligations in accordance with international custom and law.

"We have sufficient reserve resources so that we need not be hasty in asserting our rights. We

Groom Refuses to Pay Fee For Services Of Justice

DALLAS, May 30. (AP) — The prize bargain hunter of Dallas was found Monday, and the sex isn't feminine.

A spry groom of 65 called on Justice of the Peace Ben H. Fly to perform a marriage ceremony. After uniting the man and his sweetheart, a woman about 10 years younger, Judge Fly was reaching for his receipt when he saw the couple making for the door.

"Just a minute," said the judge. "I usually charge a small fee for a ceremony."

"Fee?" repeated the newly wed. "What for? Say, I've been married four times before this and I ain't never paid a fee yet."

And with that the couple walked out.

RAIN COVERS LARGE AREA

Vernon received a light rain early in the evening, according to the Fort Worth and Denver dispatcher, and the M-K-T dispatcher reported fair showers over a large area. A noticeable drop in temperature was evident in all sections.

The maximum temperature at Wichita Falls was 102 for the day with a minimum at 74. At 5 o'clock the thermometer showed 92 degrees, with showers later in the evening causing a steady drop in temperature.

Injunction Halting Removal of Electra Police Chief Served On Council

Mandates of Judge W. W. Cook's order restraining the city council of Electra from ousting James T. Taylor as police chief and fire marshal were served Monday by Sheriff W. G. Bradley on all members of the council, with the exception of C. E. Miller, who is in West Virginia.

With the serving of the mandates the injunction proceedings instituted Saturday by attorneys for Taylor were completed.

Taylor, according to an order of the council four weeks ago, was to be relieved of his office at midnight Tuesday. However, the injunction continues him in office until a hearing to make the injunction permanent or dissolve it can be held at the next term of court in September, unless a petition is filed by the council to hold the hearing before that time. A hearing can be held 10 days after a petition is filed.

A $1000 bond to indemnify the city of Electra against any loss sustained by the issuance of the injunction if it is dissolved was posted Monday with Miss Eunice Jackson, district clerk, by Taylor.

Judge Cook ordered the bond posted before the injunction would become effective.

BORGER PAIR IDENTIFIED AS BEGGS RAIDERS

Two Carried to Oklahoma Robbery Scene From Texas

THREE NOW IN JAIL

Trio Held as Slayers Of Beggs Police Officer In Robbery

OKMULGEE, Okla., May 30 (AP)—Roy (Blackie) Wilson, and Hawk Whitehead were under heavy guard in the county jail here tonight, their identity established by witnesses of the Beggs robberies May 18 as the two men who held up the First National bank, Sheriff John Russell said.

The pair were whisked across the state from Borger, Texas, by Deputies M. L. Lairmore and Blain Hill in 13 hours and 15 minutes, arriving here at 7:15 o'clock tonight. No trouble was encountered.

About $600 in currency taken from Wilson at the time of the capture in Oil City, Texas, Friday, was brought back.

Three in Jail.

There now are three in jail here, charged with murder in connection with the Beggs robberies and the slaying of Chief of Police McAnally. The third is Roy Brandon, 32, who is to be given preliminary hearing tomorrow. The state has summoned only two witnesses, the sheriff said, who have identified the defendant as one who took part in the holdup.

Two men and a woman, arrested last Monday when Brandon was taken at his farm, five miles east of Bristow, were released this morning, and murder charges against them in the cases will be dismissed tomorrow, Mr. Russell said.

The trio consisted of John Brandon, 67, father of Roy; Hugh Hess, 22, brother-in-law of Roy, and Ruth Brewster, 26, thought to be a sweetheart of one of the alleged gangsters.

Brought From Borger.

The officers started at 6 a. m. today from Borger, Texas, Lairmore said. They were accompanied by Charles Ramsey, postmaster of Beggs; Earl Reading, son of a Beggs banker; Fred McAnally, son of the slain chief of police, and Glen F. Leslie, vice president of the First National bank. Two cars were used. The prisoners sat handcuffed and the officers rode with sawed-off shotguns.

First Wheat of Season, Delivered Here Monday, Shows Good Quality

W. K. Bandy Brings in Initial Load From 650 Acre Tract of Grain

Wheat being brought to the J. C. Hunt Grain company as the first threshing of the year Monday gradually improved in grade during the day, and will rate a No. 1 or No. 2 grading as soon as it is dry, it was learned at the elevators Monday night. W. K. Bandy is the "lucky farmer," and won the $25 prize offered by the Hunt company for the first load of wheat brought to the yards.

Load Delivered Early.

Starting before daybreak with a 15-foot International Combine thresher, which threshes as it cuts, Mr. Bandy had the first load in Wichita Falls by 7 o'clock, with others following as the grain was cut during the day. The grain was slightly damp, Mr. Hunt stated, but the improvement as cutting proceeded offers good indication for a better harvest than was expected in this section. Predictions had set the 1927 wheat harvest at only 35 per cent of last year's yield, and the oat crop at 50 per cent.

Mr. Bandy is known as one of Wichita county's most progressive farmers, as is proved by his 650-acre grain crop this year, 500 acres of which is in wheat and 150 in oats. The wheat will yield 12 bushels to the acre and the oats 30, he told The Record News. In addition, Mr. Bandy has 35 milch cows and a good poultry farm, patterned from the example of his father, W. A. Bandy, who lives one mile out on the Henrietta road, and who is one of the pioneer farmers of this section. Mr. Bandy of the first wheat harvest lives about five northeast of town, on the Charlie road.

Uses New Thresher.

It is significant to the grain growers of this section that Mr. Bandy is using the new Combine thresher, which, according to government figures, effects a saving of 3.35 per cent of grain shattered and lost in the field. According to records, 6.1 per cent of the annual yield is lost with the old type binder and thresher machines, while the new loss is only 2.75 per cent.

According to these figures, Mr. Bandy stated that if he had used the machine on his 14,800-bushel yield on 1926 he would have saved 495 bushels of grain, and asserted that the county yield would be greatly affected if this loss could be prevented.

The local market opened Monday at $1.30 on wheat and 40 cents on oats.

2-YEAR TERM IN THEFT CASE

I. B. Price Sentenced By Jury

Arraigned on a charge of theft in connection with the alleged stealing of saddles and bridles from the Wichita Riding club sables, I. B. Price was sentenced Monday by a jury in the Eighty-ninth district court to serve two years in the penitentiary.

Price, through his attorney, pleaded for a suspended sentence, due to his age of 23 years. However, the state, represented by E. F. Fruechte and Sam Spence, assistant district attorneys, contested the suspended sentence application and charged to the jury that Price had been involved in anoher theft case a few months ago.

Woman Escapes Forgery Trial When She Proves Right to Use Alias

Intricacies of the law resulted in Mrs. Pauline Spencer, indicted for forgery, escaping a possible penalty for this offense Monday and instead receiving a light jail sentence of 60 days in the county jail for swindling.

Mrs. Spencer was indicted for five cases of forgery in connection with the passing of checks to Wichita Falls merchants.

When Mrs. Spencer was arraigned Monday morning in the 89th district court, her attorneys James and Raymond Allred, presented a motion to the court to have the aliases alleged in the indicetments used by the woman stricken from the records.

The attorneys pleaded that she was known by these names in various sections of the state and that according to the law if she had been known by the names that it was not a case of forgery if she signed checks using the names.

After the attorneys had presented proof to the court that the woman's contention relative to the names was correct the court sustained the motion to strike from the records the aliases.

With the granting of the motion the original charges of forgery were automatically reduced to swindling under $50. Mrs. Spencer was then araigned in the county court at law, and Judge C. M. McFarland sentenced her to 60 days in jail.

S.S.S. is unequalled for restoring strength

In these days of keen competition, the people who are run-down, quickly fall behind—while their healthy, vigorous rivals, who comply with laws of Nature and keep their blood supply rich and nourished, get ahead.

Good blood is health's foundation. When your blood is poor, you are dull, weak, slow and pale—your brain cannot work effectively.

But you glow with health when your blood is rich and strong; You look vigorous! You fairly sparkle with winning magnetism!

Don't despair if others are forging ahead of you. S.S.S. will help you. It will bring back your red blood corpuscles. This is how S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished. S.S.S. is time-tried and reliable, and is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality. It is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

STORM FORCES ITALIAN DOWN

Mid-Atlantic Disturbance Delayed De Pinedo

HORTA, Island of Faya, Azores, May 30 (AP).—Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian aviator, arrived here this morning on the Italian steamer Superga, which had his seaplane, the Santa Maria II, in tow.

Undaunted by his forced landing in the Atlantic, De Pinedo said as soon as his seaplane had been put in flying order he would resume his four-continent journey, which began from Cagliari on February 13, and has carried him to Africa, South America and the United States.

Interruption of the attempted hop from Trepassey, New Foundland, to this port last Monday, the commander said, was caused by adverse weather conditions. The start from Trepassey was made in moderate weather, but the plane encountered a blanket of fog, and for 400 miles had to fly at a high altitude to get above the mist.

At this height a strong contrary wind was encountered, slowing the speed of the machine and increasing the consumption of fuel. When about 250 miles from Flores island, the most westward of the Azores group, the Portuguese schooner, Infante Sagres, was sighted. Being short of fuel and fearing he would be unable to reach Horta, De Pinedo decided to come down.

The fliers were picked up by the schooner and the plane was towed for three days, when the Superga hove into sight and took the fliers aboard, also taking over the tow of the seaplane. The steamer proceeded very slowly to avoid further damage to the plane.

White Man Jailed As Attacker After Little Rock Riot Against Negroes

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., May 30 (AP).—Charged with criminal assault on one of two Coffeyville girls, who later reported that they were attacked by three negroes, thus precipitating a race riot, Ira Kennedy, 30, motor car salesman, is being held in the Montgomery county jail here.

Kennedy, who denies the charge, was arrested yesterday at Wichita, Kan., where he has been living with his wife and four children. He denies being in Coffeyville when the alleged assault took place on March 17.

The two girls called for aid early on the morning of March 18, saying the negroes had entered the room in which they were sleeping. No other persons were in the house.

Coffeyville was greatly excited, a riot ensued, and national guardsmen were called out. During the night of March 18 windows of the Coffeyville city hall were smashed by mobs seeking entry to the building. A negro suspected of being connected with the alleged assault, but who later was released, was hidden in the cupola of the building by police.

The arrest of Kennedy follows an investigation of more than six weeks by a detective hired by the city of Coffeyville.

Petitions asking a grand jury investigation have been circulated in Coffeyville for the past month.

Rumors that the alleged assault was not made by negroes have been current for some time.

Bandits Apologize to Millionaire As They Carry Off $90,000 Jewels

NEW YORK, May 30 (AP).—Two "gentlemen" burglars who obtained $90,760 in jewels and cash from the country home of Jesse L. Livermore, noted Wall street trader, were hunted today throughout the exclusive Long Island colony and in the New York underworld.

The gems and cash were taken from Mr. and Mrs. Livermore and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Aronsohn, shortly before dawn yesterday. Mr. Aronsohn is a silk manufacturer of New York. Livermore's home is at King's Point, Great Neck.

Working with extreme politeness, even apologizing to their victims, the thieves returned other jewelry worth $69,000 on the tearful pleading of the women and ignored remaining valuables worth $50,000.

The robbers were unmasked. They were about 25 years old.

Theories that the pair might have been amateur burglars in search of stock market memoranda compiled by Mr. Livermore or society men in search of adventure were among the possibilities under investigation by police.

Entering two bedrooms on the second floor by means of a ladder, the robbers completed their work in one hour and ten minutes and escaped into the breaking dawn without disturbing the two Livermore children, a third guest, Robert Galston, and a host of servants in the house.

The Tennessee is a navigable stream to and beyond Knoxville. Habeas corpus proceedings on the grounds tha texclusive jurisdiction rests with the federal courts is expected.

OIL WELL FIRE VICTIM DIES

Well On Fire at Borger Continues to Burn

BORGER, Texas, May 30 (AP).—Lee Taylor, who was burned in the Cochrill-McIlroy well fire six miles east of here Saturday died at a local hospital during last night.

Gas from the well is still blazing fiercely, and the Cochrill-McIlroy Company officials declare they will attempt to "smoke it out" by steam, instead of having it shot by Tex Thornton, who extinguished with TNT the McMillan well at Sanford Friday after it had claimed eight lives.

Oil at the rate of about 7000 barrels a day is still flowing from a pipe which connects below the top of the casing, and is therefore untouched by the flames. The flame is largely gas.

Officials of the torpedo company whom Thornton is employed say Thornton is in charge of installing a battery of about twenty boilers from which steam will be applied to the well in an attempt to put out the blaze.

Steam is being used, they say, because explosive would blow off the Braden head, the valve which closes the casing about six feet above the ground, and release through the top of the casing.

Bite? Yes, Indeedy.

DIXON, Ill.—The most surprised man in Dixon is Charles Helfrech. Charles went fishing in Island park wit hin the city limits, the other day. He didn't expect to catch anything much, but he had time on his hands and the weather was warm. Helfrech dropped a line, and dozed. A sudden bite almost pulled him into the water. Tugging and shouting he landed his prize, a sapping turtle, which weighed 20 pounds, the biggest caught in this vicinity in years.

THIS WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

After Long Suffering by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—MRS. ED. DAUGHERTY, 1308 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

People Do Not Pity Business Girl Because She Isn't Married Woman

The Successful Business Girl Who Imagines People Pity Her Because She Is Unmarried—Getting Rid of a Back-Door Neighbor—Shall She Marry Her Sweet and Good Fiance Who Won't Work?

Dear Miss Dix—I am 30 years old and still unmarried. I earn a fine salary, have a good home, my own car and dress well. As I look around and see many of my married friens I realize that I am much better off than they are, but still I imagine they pity me because I am not married. Do you think people regard unmarried girls as objects of pity, or are they just as much respected as married women?

Answer: o

The expression you see in your friends' eyes that you mistake for pity is probably envy, for, believe me, many a married lady would gladly swap you her husband for your job and freedom.

But I am shocked and amazed that anybody in these enlightened days still clings to the mid-Victorian idea that it is any reflection upon a woman to be unmarried, or that she adds to her dignity and importance by annexing herself a husband.

In olden times, when about the only respectable gainful occupation open to women was marriage, a woman was regarded as a failure if she failed to land a husband, because that was about the only way for her to obtain a meal ticket or any freedom or a place in society. Hence, it was obvious that every woman would marry if she could, and if she failed to do so it indicated that she lacked somehow in charm and attractiveness.

Therefore the old maid was the subject of ridicule and was cartooned and made generally a figure of fun. But we have changed all of that, and that point of view is just as old fashioned as hoop skirts.

Nowadays a woman stands exactly on the same platform, so far as marriage is concerned as a man does. It is a matter of individual inclination. A woman either marries or stays single as she chooses, and nobody dreams of criticizing her or laughing at her any more than they do at an old bachelor. In fact, both of them are cherished members of society, much in demand for all festive occasions, for hostesses date on those cultivated and agreeable men and women who can be invited without having to drag along a dull wife or a heavy husband.

The poor, dependent old maid who had to be the fringe on some family that didn't want her was an object of pity and scorn. But nobody is sorry for the capable, independent, unmarried woman of today who earns a good salary, who lives well, who has a thousand interests and is alert and jolly and enjoys life and adds to the pleasure of all with whom she comes in contact.

There is only one reason in the world for marrying, and that is love. If you have found some man who fills his life so completely that existence without him is cinders, ashes and dust, then marry him. No matter what sacrifice you have to make for him no matter how poor you are or how hard you have to work, it will be worth while.

But for goodness sake don't get married just to escape being an old maid and because you imagine people are pitying you.

Lots of us are shedding barrels of tears of sympathy over women with drunken husbands, over women with unfaithful husbands, over women whose husbands are cruel to them, over women who are married to tightwads, over poor, shabby, overworked women with their houses full of little children whose husbands are too lazy and shiftless to make them a living.

But none of us has a tear to shed over a woman who is "sitting pretty" with a fat pay envelope and a car and a good house and pretty clothes just because she isn't married. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—We have a neighbor who visits us to death. She is in our house by the time we get up, and parks herself there for the rest of the day. She pries into all of our affairs, must even know who our letters are from. I am so tired of her that I feel as if I could give her a good dose of poison. What can we do to rid ourselves of her? DESPERATE.

Answer:
Of all pests in the world, the "back-door neighbor" is th worst. But, inasmuch as the law doesn't allow her to be dealt with as she deserves, all that you can do is just to tell her frankly that you haven't time to bother with her and that you will be glad if she will not come so often. If this takes more nerve than you possess, just keep your doors locked so that she cannot get in, and let her beat upon them in vain.

Whatever you do to rid yourself of her will make a mortal enemy of her, but that is better than being bored to death. If it will comfort you to know that you do not suffer alone I can assure you that we all endure this same affliction.

Probably there is no one so lucky as to have one of these old women of the sea on her back—some idle, purposeless woman who is too lazy to work, too slothful in mind to have any interests of her own, too dull and stupid even to read—who puts in her time and gets her only kick out of life by visiting.

She comes, as you say, before you are fairly up of a morning. She interferes with all your plans and interrupts your work. She stays uninvited to lunch. She snoops around the kitchen and peers into the icebox. She knows everything that you have, where you got it and what it costs; what you are doing and are going to do. She violates your privacy and outrages your sense of decency, and there is nothing you can do about it except to be weakly victimized or have the hardihood to order her out of the house.

They used to have a ducking school for the common scold. There should be a lethal chamber for the back-door neighbor. It's the only punishment that would fit the crime. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am in love with a boy and have been engaged to him for three years, but he never works. Sometimes he will hold a job for a few weeks, then quit. He has the sweetest disposition and is good in every way. Everybody likes him. Do you think he would make me a good husband? E. A.

Answer:
I certainly don't, E. A. I think a lazy, shiftless man is about the worst matrimonial bet in the world. Whether laziness is a mental or a physical disease, I don't know. But whatever it is, it goes to the bone and is incurable.

I have known drunkards to reform and gamblers who quit and never touched a card again and rounders who became as domestic as the house cat but I have never known of a lazy man who ever got galvanized into action. There just seems to be something about them that makes it impossible for them to exret themselves.

There are a lot of good men who are good-for-nothing. Goodness is only an asset when it is linked with other desirable qualities. There isn't much profit in a man refraining from doing harm if he never does anything at all.

And, believe me, my dear girl, you's sour on that sweet disposition of his if your husband just sat supinely down and let you starve or else made you go out and make the living for the family while he loafed and took things easy and was amiable and good-natured.

Every town has that sort of a kindly, good-for-nothing, worthless easy-goinging idler who wears the smile that won't come off and loafs around the village store or the engine house or the railroad station while his wife takes in sewing or washing to support him.

Don't let yourself in for a lifetime of misery with any man who won't work. The test of a man's love is his willingness to toil for his wife. DOROTHY DIX.

STRUGGLED TO GET WELL

But None of the Medicines This Ohio Lady Tried Seemed to Benefit Her Until She Took Cardui.

Batavia, Ohio. — Mrs. Mabel Lindsey King, who resides near here, says:

"When I began taking Cardui, I was sick in bed. I had made a great struggle against ill health, but no medicine seemed to help me. I tried several things, but I continued weak and listless.

"A friend told my mother to give me Cardui, which she did. After I had taken it for several weeks, I began to feel lots better. I looked like a different girl, too.

"I continued taking Cardui for over a year, and at the end of that time I was strong and well. My health has been good ever since. I have told other girls and mothers about it, and several of my friends have been very much benefited after taking Cardui.

"I think Cardui is a fine medicine, and am glad to recommend it. I no longer have backache, or headache, and am not troubled with spells of weakness as I was before I took Cardui."

For over 50 years, women who had suffered, or who had gotten in a weak, run-down condition, have been enthusiastic in their praise of Cardui. Thousands of them began taking Cardui because of the confidence they had in the advice of friends who had told them of their own experiences.

Public Office Is a Public Trust

GROVER CLEVELAND was one of the great presidents of the United States. He was one of the rugged idols of the party of Jefferson in the years in which he walked the political stage and championed the fundamentals of Jeffersonian democracy and the rights of all the people of the republic. He will live in history as one of the immortals of democracy and one of the most courageous defenders of the democratic faith.

He declared a public office a public trust. He declared public office not a private snap. He was one of the foremost champions of classified civil service in the state of New York when he was its great governor and he continued to be a champion of classified civil service with competitive examination when he made history as president of the United States. It is not necessary to recall to the student of history that after the republican party drifted out of the hands of Lincoln republicans that party became the party of spoilsmen and the spoils system became a public scandal and a disgrace to the American people.

All the illustrious leaders of the democratic party down to recent times have been champions of civil service and pronounced opponents of spoilsmen in politics and their system. Woodrow Wilson was one of the most ardent champions of civil service in public life for the reason that he believed in efficiency and that recognition should be based upon merit alone and merit is ever founded upon qualification. It was in the city of San Antonio, in September last, that the democrats of Texas declared for a classified civil service with competitive examination and threw down the gauntlet to those who believe in the spoils system and that it should be continued in this democratic state. They declared that heads of departments should automatically retire with the governor. Speaking of the Moody message the San Antonio Express declares editorially:

"Governor Moody properly emphasized the civil service bill. The democratic platforms consistently have advocated this reform for many years. It is indeed, as the executive pointed out, a well established party principle dating nationally from Grover Cleveland's time. It is clear how, applied to state concerns, such a system would promote both efficiency and economy. Appointment based on merit and tenure coincident with faithful performance of duty, would elevate the standard of the state's service and do away with the demoralization now attending every change in administration. Much waste and lost motion would be eleminated and the taxpayers would get more for their money. No question before the legislature is more important than this. The lawmakers have the opportunity to put the people in the debt by enacting such a reform."

This newspaper has no quarrel with individuals. Grover Cleveland had no quarrel with individuals. Governor Moody has no quarrel with individuals. Grover Cleveland fought the spoils system because it was a rotten system, because it was a wasteful system, because it was an inefficient system, because it deprived the American taxpayers of efficient and faithful servants in all departments of the government. He declared that the public service should not be honeycombed with the favorites of the relatives, regardless of qualification or fitness and appointed at the instigation of powerful politicians in either house of congress or their political managers without the pale of the American congress.

Grover Cleveland won his fight. He fought the system and partially destroyed the system. This newspaper is opposed to the continuance of the system because spoilsmen should not control the appointment in city or county or state or federal government. These positions should be open to the young women of America why by training and experience, are qualified to fill them. This is the position of the governor. Grover Cleveland in two great campaigns led the democrats of the United States back to the house of their fathers. He believed that the people owns the offices. He believed the people constituted the government. He believed in economy and efficiency and he insisted that where efficiency triumphed, economy had a vast deal to do with its triumph.

A civil service board would provide a certified list and when the head of a department needed a clerk or clerks, he would take those who came first on the list. All the so-called argument advanced against a classified civil service with competitive examination are as flimsy or as filmy as the clouds in the sky. This is a white man's government. This is a white man's country. White men rule it. White men will continue to rule it. There will never be an official pensioned class in this state—not for the thousand and one little positions which are filled by wage workers who are out on their own and who are entitled to just recognition if they have the ability and the training necessary to qualify them for their work.

All the taxpayers are concerned. They pay the bills. They believe in competency. They believe in integrity. They believe that the public servant, major or minor, is their servant and that efficiency and economy are the watch words of democracy and democratic government. This for the lawmakers of the 40th. This for the people of Texas. Grover Cleveland was right. "A public office is a sacred trust and not a private snap." Let us make it so in Texas.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, May 30. (EFS)—If the movies never accomplish anything else, at least this much may be chalked to their credit: They've put a silencer on Camille's cough.

Year after year the poor girl has been dragged through the theater dying on her feet, but always managing to survive past the Saturday matinee to the last performance of the week.

When the Silent Dray-muh came along it was a foregone conclusion that Camille would find her way out to the west coast to rehearse her heart-rending pulmonary contortions on a lacy, frilly, perfumed chaise-longue in a movie lot, with the justly-celebrated and well-advertised California limelight gleaming athwart her bronze bean.

The discriminating and highly-intellectual gents whose function it is to keep the moron mind in a perpetual state of blessed vacuity, have been taught to believe that where Camille is concerned, her cough must be featured.

So, when the film, "Camille" was released recently, the boys found themselves face to face with the problem of directing attention to the gentle lady's cough. You can see Camille cough on the screen, but naturally you can't hear her; and although Tennyson is authority for the statement that "things seen are mighiter than things heard," the Silver Screen Savants were taking no chances.

It was the publicity department that solved the problem with the accompanying advertisement that daily appears in the newspapers:

"Camille died from a cough. As nearly everyone has a cough nowadays, the management will give away, absolutely free, a package of Camille Cough Drops at every presentation of Soandso, in the Screen Sensation of the Year."

Plans have been completed for a $120,000 building to be constructed on First avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets, for a hotel for sightless men. A walled passage from the structure will connect with a factory for blind workers.

New York's blind are a self-supporting little crowd. It's only one out of 20 who taps his way through the theater crowds petitioning alms.

Gordon Lathrop, former newspaper columnist in the middle west, lost his eyesight, and the tragedy that accompanied the misfortune would have curled up a man with less backbone. There may have been a couple of days at the beginning, when he entertained thoughts of self-dissolution; but the minute he got his old balance back he squared his shoulders and started down the highway with the timid step and the nervously outstretched hand that marks the victims of that particular sort of disaster.

Lathrop came to New York and immediately made good. He does not require eyes to operate a typewriter and in his perpetual darkness is able to concentrate perfectly. He mints his experience into wonderfully readable magazine articles and news stories.

He finds vivid human contacts wherever he goes, whether along crowded city streets or quiet byways.

"There is a light that does not fail," he says, 'whether one sees with his eyes or with his mind and sense of touch only. The light that never fails is the light within—the light of human understanding and sympathy."

That's as brave and bright a philosophy as any the world holds.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Both Anne Tracy and Mr. Jones, who is the Tracy's milkman, object to the engagement of Phillip Wynne Tracy IV and Natlee Jones.

Phillip's mother plans to give a party hoping to interest her son in some other girl. She tells him about her friend, Lyra Hilliard's impending visit and unconsciously interests him in the woman.

Without his mother's knowledge Phil pains to bring Natlee to the party through his friend, Rodney Maxwell.

Meantime Phillip meets Mrs. Hilliard at the train and takes her to luncheon. Shortly after he finds he has fallen in love at first sight and hopes Natlee will decide not to come to the party after all.

After their first kiss on a midnight ride, Phillip only lives when he is near Lyra Hilliard and they make arrangements to go riding together again that night after the party, to which Natlee surprises everyone by coming.

The yuong girls at the party are jealous and criticizes Mrs. Hilliard for dressing too young.

Natlee overhears Phillip giving Mrs. Hilliard permission to call him Wynne. She breaks her engagement to him and refuses to be even friends.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XVII

RODNEY MAXWELL CONSOLES NATLEE

"But you can't go now, Natlee—Mother will be suspicious."

"Must you always be thinking of yourself, Phil, and expect me to help you out of every scrape? Well this is one time I am not going to do it. You must not for one moment think that I am going to make it easy for you.

"Take me to Rod. I'll tell your mother that I have a sudden pain that is agonizing."

Sullenly Phillip took Natle eto Rodney, all the while feeling as though he were accompanying some dead woman to the cemetery gates. "Rod, will you take me home? I'm sick of all this. Oh, Rod—Rod—get me out of this as quick as you can."

"Of course, I'll take you out of it, dear. There's Mrs. Tracy coming toward us now. We will make our excuses and make a run for it."

Natlee looked a thim gratefully even while he blunderingly said:

"Dear Mrs. Tracy, I think you will have t oexcuse Natlee and me—you see Nat has not been used at her father's frugal table to eat so much rich food.

"Mr. Jones would consider it wicked with so many people in the city starving.

"Your wonderful dinner has done something to Natle's little insides and her tummy has protested."

Mrs. Tracy was quite solicitous—she said she hoped Natlee's pain was no tserious.

"I'd like to tell that blind woman how serious it is," thought Natlee, but she contented herself with a faint smile until she got into the taxi which would take her to Aunt Julia's and then, although she told herself that her heart was broken beyond repair, she laughed.

Rod, rather mystified, joined in even before he asked: "What are you so tickled about, Nat? I thought I did that pretty well."

"You did, dear Rod—you did—your reference to my father's table and coupling it with my little insides was a stroke of genius.

"Of course, you do not realize that you also told Mrs. Tracy that my father hardly gives his family enough to eat and that she ought to be ashamed of herself for giving us such gorgeous eats when there were people starving in the city."

At this Rod looked greatly abashed, but seeing a ghost of a smile on Natlee's lips he in turn smiled and said, "Now tell me what it was all about."

"Rod—I am not going to call Phillip Wynne Tracy IV Wynne any more."

"Great grief, what's the matter?"

"Well, I heard him tell Mrs. Hilliard that she might call him Wynne so I told him that while two—meaning you and myself—might be company, thre twas a crowd.

"Oh, Rod, I am so unhappy—poor Wynne is sunk and all because that woman must feed her wicked vanity—why can't she take some one of her own age?—I hope if when I am over 30 I let a boy under 20 make love to me that some one will take me out and shoot me.

"Rod, what do you suppose his mother will do when she finds it out and he goes to smash? Why do you know he told me tonight that he couldn't help loving her and he said it was just plain 'hell'—yes, he told that to me—those were his very words and just a few weeks ago he said he wanted to marry me. Rod, what are we going to do—what are we going to do?" she repeated almost incoherently.

"Well, I don't know, Natlee, what you are going to do for no man can tell what a girl will do under any circumstances, but I know what I am going to do. I'm going to change the entire map of Phillip Wynne Tracy IV's face. He may not be old enough for that interesting lady who has her claws on him but he will have enough seams and scars on that handsome mug of his when I get through with him to make him look old enough to be that hankering female's father.

"I'll knock him into the middle of next week and keep him there until this week has time to catch up with him. I'll—"

"Rod—"

Natlee laid her hands on Rodney Maxwell's arm. He looked down into her face which was now divided between smiles and tears,

"Rod," she repeated, "I have never known you to get so excited."

"There's a lot of things you don't know about me, Nat, but if the knowledge that I love you, dear, will be of any comfort to you at this time I want you to have it."

Natlee nestled a little closer to him.

"I know I am not handsome like Wynne and I know I am rather dumb, but that hasn't kept me from picking out the loveliest and best I know in the world to love—

"No— don't stop me—I'm wound up now and I must get all this off before I run down.

"I will not bother you again, dear with my foolish dreams. I know I never had a chance beside Wynne—damn him—but I want you to know that that has never made any difference to me. I would rather love you knowing that I could never have you than be the white-haired boy of a Helen of Troy or a Lillian Russell."

He had ben talking fast for he knew that he must make the lovely golden head which had now come to rest just above his hear raise itself in gallant courage again.

" "Natlee must not feel herself deserted," he said t ohimself. "I'll make that plaster saint come back to her on his knees and ask her for forgiveness and beg for mercy or I'll make him into something that even his mother will shrink from."

His words did accomplish what he wanted them for the first time in his life he told himself, for presently he looked into eyes that had lost their misty sadness and had become cold steel again.

"Rod, you have always been my knight of the—"

"One track mind," he supplied, "but that track runs straight to you.

"Natlee, I promise you, if it will make you any happier, that you shall receive back that peice of damaged goods very soon. I will see that you have Phillip Wynne Tracy IV tomorrow or whenever you want him or he need never speak to me again."

"You mustn't think of it, Rod—he will be unhappy enough without losing his friend. Promise me, dear, that you will stick by him whatever he does.

"I can't do that for we have only been sweethearts, but you must do it even if you are disgusted and disappointed with him, for you are his friend."

"I can't do it, Natlee—you are asking too much of me. I have always been Wynne's friend, but I think from that time I could speak your name I, too, have been your lover. Yes, before I consciously knew what love meant I loved you. Ask me anything but that. I cannot be friends with any one who could hurt you."

"Yes, dear, you can be friends with Wynne, because I ask it."

Hardly believing it could be so for one fleeting instant Rod felt Natlee's soft lips against his but his heart hardened for after their delicate touch he tasted the bitter salt of her tears.

Before he could speak, however, she had opened the door of the taxi and was speeding up to the door of the apartment house where her Aunt Julia lived.

Rodney Maxwell cursed himself for his logginess for when he had reached the doorway she was just about to enter the elevator. "Good night, Rod," she called. "I'll see you very soon."

The young people at Mrs. Tracy's party with the exception of Rod and Natlee stayed until the last dance was played.

Phillip thought they would never go home and his mother, who noticed his bored face, was sure it was because Natlee had left so early.

"See if you can make him tell you if he has had a quarrel with that little Jones girl," she said to Mrs. Hilliard. "By his looks and actions he is telling every noe now that he wishes the whole thing was over."

"Wynne, dear, you must buck up," was what Lyra told him the next time he danced with her. "Your mother and I are afraid that others of your guests have noticed how bored you look. Your mother of course, thinks it is because Miss Jones has left. If that were the case, dear, I would not blame you, for you must know that she is unusually beautiful."

"Yes, Nat's lovely all right," answered Phil listlessly, "but she has no personality—she may get it in time—oh, dearest, if you only knew how all these young girls of no understanding bore me. They only think of themselves and a good time—they never stop to consider the other fellow.

"Lyra, I am sometimes sorry that you ever came here to show me the dfiference between those dancing shadows and a real woman—I am wanting you, dear, and I am nearly frantic because I cannot tell all those silly boys and girls dancing around me that I want you.

"You'll come down to the car for that ride as soon as possible after we get home—won't you?"

"Yes, I'll come, Wynne—"

His face lighted dangerously for his mother was watching. "You also must know Wynne it will be a terrible risk," added Lyra.

GOOD MORNING, MR NIBLICK, THE WATER BUSINESS IS GOOD - GETTING BIGGER ALL THE TIME - ITS A WONDERFUL BUSINESS WHEN YOU'VE GOT SOMETHING THAT MOTHER EARTH HANDS YOU FOR NOTHING AND YOU CAN SELL IT.
YES, AND IT DON'T MAKE ANY DIFFERENCE HOW MUCH YOU SELL, THE HOTEL EATS IT UP - BUILDING A HOTEL OUT HERE IS LIKE PUTTING ELEVATORS IN A BUNGALOW.
YOUR COUSIN PUT THE MONEY INTO IT BECAUSE HE USED IT TO SELL HIS REAL ESTATE - ITS DEAD - LETS BURY IT - WHY SIT UP WITH IT ANY LONGER.
I'LL MAKE THAT HOTEL PAY IF IT TAKES EVERY DROP OF WATER IN THE WELL - I'M NOT A MAN THAT FOLLOWS THE LINE OF LEAST RESISTANCE OR FLOATS WITH THE TIDE - I'LL MAKE THAT PLACE SO POPULAR I'LL HAVE SWINGING DOORS ON EACH ROOM SO ONE GUEST CAN GO IN WHILE THE OTHER IS LEAVING!

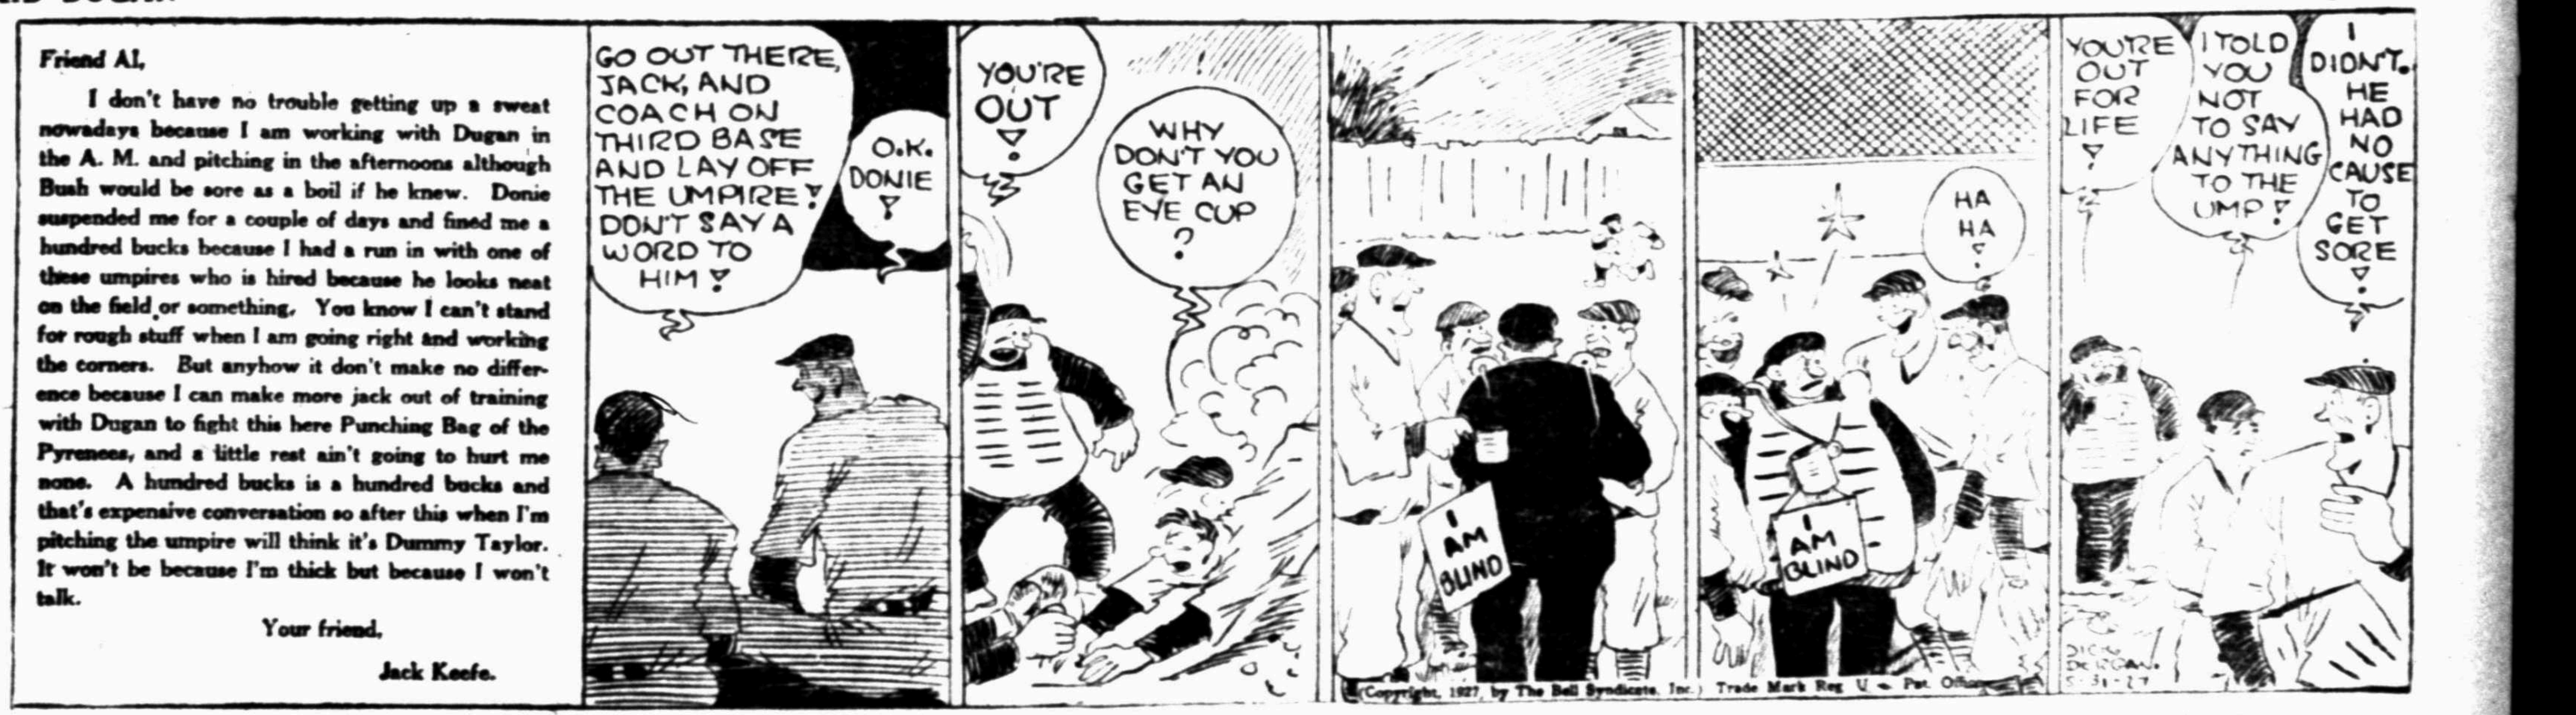
KID DUGAN

By Dick Dorgan



Friend Al,

I don't have no trouble getting up a sweat nowadays because I am working with Dugan in the A. M. and pitching in the afternoons although Bush would be sore as a boil if he knew. Donie suspended me for a couple of days and fined me a hundred bucks because I had a run in with one of these umpires who is hired because he looks neat on the field or something. You know I can't stand for rough stuff when I am going right and working the corners. But anyhow it don't make no difference because I can make more jack out of training with Dugan to fight this here Punching Bag of the Pyrenees, and a little rest ain't going to hurt me none. A hundred bucks is a hundred bucks and that's expensive conversation so after this when I'm pitching the umpire will think it's Dummy Taylor. It won't be because I'm thick but because I won't talk.

Your friend,

Jack Keefe.

GO OUT THERE, JACK, AND COACH ON THIRD BASE AND LAY OFF THE UMPIRE! DON'T SAY A WORD TO HIM!
O.K. DONIE!
YOU'RE OUT!
WHY DON'T YOU GET AN EYE CUP?
I AM BLIND
HA HA!
I AM BLIND
YOU'RE OUT FOR LIFE!
I TOLD YOU NOT TO SAY ANYTHING TO THE UMP!
I DIDN'T. HE HAD NO CAUSE TO GET SORE!

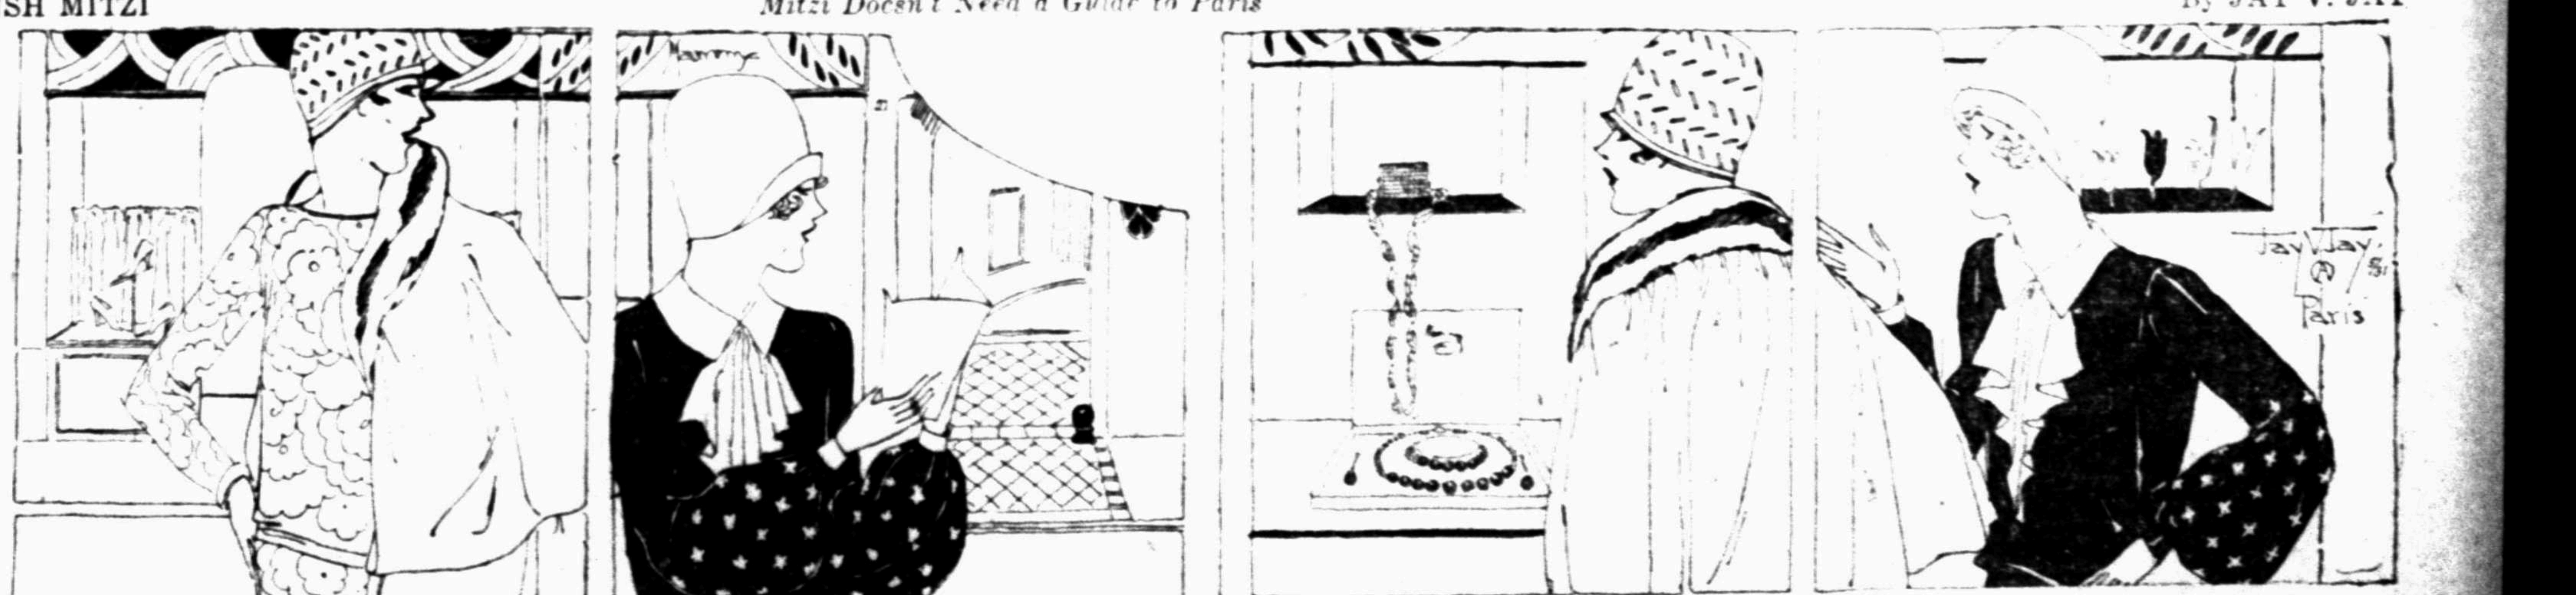
MODISH MITZI

Mitzi Doesn't Need a Guide to Paris

By JAY V. JAY



Some one gave her specific instructions about turning from the Avenue de L'Opera down the second street to the right. Mitzi didn't need it. She found the shops. Not that she has as yet found anything that she thinks is as smart as her printed dress with the kasha coat, nor her perforated felt hat.

Polly is armed with a map of Paris so that she can tell where she is. At least she could if she wanted to. But, after all, Polly too, finds it is best to be led by one shop window to another. This black crepe dress of Polly's has white embroidery on the full sleeves. She wears a white hat.

Jewelry, costume jewelry stops them as effectively as a gendarme. The twisted gold chain with the eight row bracelet is sponsored by Premet. Below it is a necklace, bracelet and earring set made of tiny pearls combined with carmine beads. Lost? Of course she is, lost in admiration.

Polly, the dear child, thinks she has become the only original discoverer of something new. Birds and animals in jade are set on pedestal of brilliants to be used on the crown of a hat. Mitzi tells her that these pins will be in every shop at home by the time she gets there. Poor Polly!

Tomorrow—Sports Costumes.

SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By Blondy Cross.

HOME AGAIN

Groggy, but still on their feet, the Spudders hit the home deck this afternoon in defense against the Dallas Steers. The, what might be called, recapitalization work sets in. Still leading the league, but only by a hair, the Williams wallopers endeavor to regain that lost ground with the home crowd gathered around for the old moral support gag.

Having used up everything else in his throwing department, there remains only himself for Manager Williams to heave into the pitching breach against the Steers this afternoon.

The unusual in sports: Formula, whatever it may be, that has kept J. Gardner out of the hospital, hale and hearty, through the worst series of buffetings our noble Spudders have caught in many a trip through South Texas. For J. Gardner is a baseball magnate whose baseball with him ranks as a life and death matter.

At that, Wichita Falls' diamond prexy appears to be failing fast, wasting away at a rate of speed one might say, which compares favorably with the swiftness Mitze's macemen went through us in three straight down at Santone.

If in the next day or so something happens whereby we lose our perch at the top, that loud flop you may hear simultaneously in vicinity of the Harvey-Snider building or out at the orchard will be but the falling form of one Jabez Alvin, for Jabez is going down with the ship, as it were. There is only one cure in this case, a complete reversal by Wichita's doughty, or doubtful, diamond athletes, else Wichita Falls will be less one ordinarily jocular citizen. This is no idle yawp. The situation is serious indeed.

Casualties have been heavy in betting circles. It is first hand info that more than several gambling rings here at home have been licked by our Spudders on the road.

Habits of great men: L. O. (Doc) Landon, sports goods man, organizing various amateur athletic leagues and getting rich off them.

The Philippines send a successor to Pancho Villa, one of the greatest little fellows who ever stuck on a four-ouncer, in Ignacio Fernandez of Manila. At last, the bantamweight ring championship matter appears about to be settled. Manila newspapers declare Fernandez a greater fighter than the almost incomparable Villa was.

Two world's bantamweight championship claimants apparently agree with the scribes of the far east, for neither Bud Taylor nor Tony Canzeroni seem to desire ring relationship with the "little brown man." Both have been offered a guarantee of $10,000 to meet Fernandez. Neither has accepted.

CATS LOSE TWO

DALLAS, May 30. (AP) — The Steers "decorated" the Forth Worth Cats with a pair of black eyes here Monday, 8 to 2, and 6 to 2. McColl hurled great ball for the Herd in the first game, but Shuman was weakening in the second game when early darkness put a stop to things. Love having gone into the bull pen as the Cats started hitting. Score:

SPUDDERS GO DOWN IN PAIR

Cellar Habitues Stop Loop Leaders, 5-4, 9-5

SHREVEPORT, La., May 30.—The Sports celebrated Memorial day by making a clean sweep of a double header here this afternoon against the league-leading Wichita Falls Spudders, 5 to 4, and 9 to 5. The locals were forced to overcome a three-run advantage gained by the Spudders in the first inning of the first game but in the second they took an early lead. They scored five runs and drove Payne from the mound in the opening inning. Roy Moore hit a homer over the score board in center in the first inning of the second game.

The Spudders bounded away to a three-run lead in the first inning of the opening game off Adkins, but could get no farther. Mann walked and scored ahead of Fitzgerald on his home run. Lamb doubled and scored on Jenkins' single for the third run.

A fielder's choice and a double by Nason gave Shreveport its first run in the third inning. A walk and singles by Taylor and Harris gave the Sports another in the fourth while a walk, a passed ball and a single by Taylor tied the score in the sixth.

A double by Fussell and a double by Fitzgerald gave Wichita Falls the lead again in the seventh, but Kilduff tied this in the last half of the inning with a home run over the left field wall.

Distel Wins.

A single by Kilduff, a sacrifice, a fielder's choice and a long sacrifice fly by Distel won the game for Shreveport in the last half of the ninth.

Shreveport jumped on Payne in the first inning of the last game for five runs. Taylor beat out an infield hit to short. Harris doubled to right sending Taylor to third. Moore hit a home run over the center field fence, scoring Taylor and Harris ahead of him. Williams beat out an infield hit to third. Kilduff was hit with a pitched ball. Both men moved up on an infield out, and scored on Elliott's single to left.

A single by Lamb, a walk and a single by Tobin gave Wichita Falls a run in the second inning. Two errors, a double by Tobin and a single by Mann gave them two more in the fourth.

Just Up Again' It.

Shreveport scored three in their half of the fourth. Harris doubled to center and was sacrificed to third. Williams walked and stole second. Turgeon let Kilduff's roller get through him, Harris scored and Williams went to third. Kilduff stole second and Williams home on a double steal and Kilduff continued to third on a wild return of the throw by Turgeon. Woehrs singled to center scoring Kilduff.

Singles by Wilkins and Taylor, a fielder's choice and a sacrifice gave the Sports another in the fifth.

Doubles by LaFayette and Fitzgerald gave Wichita Falls one in the sixth. A walk to Benton, an infield out, a stolen base and a single by Swenson gave Wichita Falls one in the seventh.

BEARS EARN SPLIT

SAN ANTONIO, May 30. (AP)—With a crippled outfit the San Antonio Bears got an even break with the highly touted Buff-Card combination of Houston and St. Louis, when they won the opening game of a double header Monday, 5 to 4, and were not beaten in the second game until the seventh inning, when the visitors took on a rally to score four runs for a 7-3 decision.

Added to Bear woe was an injury sustained by Frank Philbin, who was cracked on the kneecap of his tight leg by a line drive during practice. Philbin had to be helped off the field.

BLACK MARIA COPS

NEW YORK, May 30. (AP)—Black Maria, a 4 to 1 shot, won the Metropolitan handicap over one mile at Belmont park today. The time was 1:37 2-5. Osmand was second and the favorite, Valorous, third. The race was worth $5000 to the winner.

No two ways about it—
P. A.
makes some cigarette!

IF YOU like fragrance, open a tidy red tin of Prince Albert and treat yourself to the greatest aroma that ever floated out of a package. If you like easy rolling, notice how P. A. lies down and curls up in a makin's paper, without fuss or muss. That's because P. A. is crimp-cut.

Now light up. Let that marvelous P. A. taste percolate through your smoke-system. Cool as the girl's mother reminding you how late it is. Sweet as the last, lingering "Goodnight." Mild as winter in the tropics. Mild, but with plenty of cigarette body to make it a real smoke.

You'll have to admit that no other home-rolled cigarette ever had so much to recommend it. From the time you roll out of bed in the morning until the last station has signed-off, you'll make 'em and take 'em, end on end. Prince Albert is simply better tobacco, Gentlemen.

Have you tried a pipe lately? Men who thought a pipe was not for them have changed their minds after the first load of P. A. This friendly tobacco just wouldn't think of biting your tongue or parching your throat. Take my tip—get out the old pipe and give it a new deal.

P. A. is sold everywhere. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT
—no other tobacco is like it!

Favorite in Action Here Again Tonight

Yaqui Joe, the sensational Indian welterweight wrestler, returns to the Wichita Falls ring Tuesday night in a one-fall match with the rugged Billy Bain on the same card with the Zarynoff-Decker match.

Yaqui, they say, is just as speedy and clever as ever. The Sonora Indian youth long has been a favorite with Wichita Falls fandom.

Joe is pictured above, applying a Japanese wristlock, taught him by Matty Matsuda, on a wrestling partner. The shot was taken during a training spree in El Paso recently.

Cleveland 9-3, Detroit 8-11.

DETROIT, May 30. (AP)—Detroit earned an even break with Cleveland in the Memorial day double-header by winning the afternoon game, 11 to 3, after losing the morning contest, 9 to 8, here today. In the second engagement the Tigers made 19 hits for a total of 27 bases off Uhle and Karr. Score.

WASHINGTON, May 30. (AP)—Washington won both games of today's double header with the Red Sox, Walter Johnson shutting out the visitors in the first game, while Hadley, a recruit, pitched to a 13 to 5 victory in the second.

Johnson, hurling his first American league game of the season, having been laid up by injuries sustained in training, held Boston to three hits. Score:

COUNT HOPES TO TRIM LINK

Grapplers Tangle at Ross Stadium Tonight

THE CARD

Ivan Zarynoff of Russia, versus Link Decker, Victoria. Heavyweights, two falls to a finish.

Yaqui Joe, Sonora, versus Billy Bain. Welterweights, one fall to a finish.

Howard Jeffry, Lawton, versus Jess Lowrance, Wichita Falls. Middleweights, 10 minutes' limit.

Young Harris, Megargel, versus Buster Badgett, Wichita Falls. Middleweights, 10 minutes limit.

Place: Ross stadium.

Time: 8:15 o'clock Tuesday night.

Count Zarynoff, the heavyweight speedster and most sensational big fellow seen in a Wichita Falls ring, Monday declared himself on edge and impatiently awaiting tonight's bout with Decker and the opportunity to regain laurels lost in the Schikat match here last week when in an accidental fall, Zarynoff was knocked out.

The British Columbia scissors king is doped to give the bounding Russian more than an evening of gentle entertainment, but Zarynoff feels confident that he can battle his way to victory in the face of the rugged northernor's ferocious attack.

The Yaqui Joe-Bain match has been cut down in order to give a pair of Wichita Falls' star amateurs a chance to strut their wares. In Lowrance and Badgett, Matchmaker Ross has uncovered a brace of amateurs who bear promise of developing into first class professionals some of these days. Both Jeffry and Harris, their opponents tonight, are pretty tough boys.

They Ought To Play Down Here

NEW YORK, May 30. (AP)—One of the coldest and wettest spring seasons on trecord has forced 73 postponements to date in the major leagues. The National league has 42 games to be made up in doubleheaders and playoffs on open dates, while the American league is 31 games behind schedule.

The Boston Braves head the list with 10 games to be made up before the season closes. Other National league postponements will be played as follows. At Brooklyn, seven; Philadelphia, 6; New York, 6; Pittsburgh, 4, Cincinnati, 4, Chicago, 3, and St. Louis, 2.

In the American league Chicago will play seven postponements at home; Detroit, St. Louis and New York, five each; Cleveland, four, Philadelphia, three, and Washington and Boston, one each.

LITTLE BILL COPS CROWN

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30. (AP)—William Johnston, former national champion, today won his ninth consecutive Pacific coast tennis championship by defeating Gerald Stratford three sets out of five. The sets were 5-7, 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1.

SPUDDER WELCOME

The Wichita Falls baseball team returns to the home lot Tuesday afternoon with the Dallas Steers. A "Welcome Home" program has been arranged for the Spudders Wednesday night at the Ross stadium.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd is to be master of ceremonies. Nine acts of vaudeville will be run off under direction of the Lions club, sponsor of the show, according to A. B. Ross, business manager.

The public will be invited to attend free of charge, Ross said.

Announcement of the complete program is to be made Wednesday morning.

COLLEGE BOY WINS CLASSIC

Frank Lockhart Forced Out Of Spedway Race

and the lead went to Charles ("Dutch") Baumann, in a Miller Special, it was only a matter of 10 laps before Lockhart was again leading the field, and there he remained until a broken connecting rod put him out of the race after the 120th lap, 100 miles from the finish.

Lockhart's long list of won laps earned him $10,900 and he had the satisfaction of having given the every round.

Loses By Nose.

Not that Lockhart had anything to feel badly about. The most unfortunate of the original drivers, barring, of course, Frank Kohlert, Jules Ellinboe and Norman Batten, who were sent to the hospital as the result of mishaps was W. E. "Babe" Stapp in a Duesenberg, who two laps from the finish and with $10,000 second place money just that far—five miles away and apparently safely his, had his chariot develop transmission trouble and went out of the race.

Stapp was sitting in as a relief driver for Ben Shoaff, who drove the car most of the race.

The spectacular touches to the race were the accidents. The most serious of these was a crash between the cars of Cliff Bergere and Kohlert on the south turn, a crash that sent Kohlert to the hospital, with death imminent, according to first reports. Bergere escaped unhurt. Kohlert's skull was said to be fractured, but this was later denied.

Racer's Chest Crushed

Ellingboe's crash on the north turn brought him a crushed chest, and Batten's car, bursting into flames when it rounded the turn into the front stretch early in the race gave the driver a chance to show plenty of heroism. He remained with a flaming car, steering it first with one hand and then with the other, and finally rolled it into the pit, though he was badly burned about the arms and legs.

The numerous changes of drivers, the usual "official" bulletins that were denied about as soon as they were released for publication, and the cluster of accidents that kept occurring at regular intervals, certainly placed the fifteenth annual event in a class by itself, among the "modern" runnings of the race.

Souders, the youthful winner, was hailed by a tremendous crowd, when he wheeled across the line for the last time, and when the rush was on to applaud him at close range, the youngster's only response was "please let me alone. I'm tired."

He Limps to Finish

If he was, he should have remained to watch Frank Elliott, in a Junior eight special, limping around the track at a funeral gait, hoping and eventually succeeding to the distinction of being the tenth car to finish. The prize winners were:

1. George Souders, Duesenberg, $20,000.
2. Earl Devore, Miller Special, $10,000.
3. Anthony Gullotto, Miller Special, $5000.
4. Wilbur Shaw, Jynx Special, $3500.
5. Dave Evans, Duesenberg, $3000.
6. Peter Depaolo, Cooper Special, $2200.
7. Eddie Hearne, Miller Special, $1800.
8. Ralph Hepburn, Detroit Special, $1600.
9. Cliff Bergere, Miller Special, $1500.
10. Frank Elliott, Junior Eight Special, $1400.

Lap prizes: Frank Lockhart, Miller Special, $10,900; George Souders, Duesenberg, $5100; Peter Depaolo, Cooper Special, $3000; Charles "Dutch" Baumann, Miller Special, $1000.

Coolidge Urges Against Strife

can let our patience be commensurate with our power.

"It is in accordnace with this policy that we have sought to discontinue the old practice of competition in armaments and cast our influence on the side of reasonable limitations

Process Is Slow

"We recognize that in the present state of the world this is not a vision which will be immediately realized, yet little by little, step by step, in every practical way, we should show our determination to press on toward this mark of our high calling."

In the solemn presence of the heroic dead, President Coolidge justified the causes for which they surrendered their lives and made their record the basis for his claim that no nation can justly look upon America's aim with suspicion. These dead brought independence to their county in '76, he said, preserved it from disunion in '60 and served democracy in the World war. He continued:

"In no other country could the people feel, in performing a like ceremony (memorial services), that they were engaged in a more worthy purpose.

Fought For Justice

"When this nation has been compelled to resort to war, it has always been for a justifiable cause. The pages of its history are not stained with the blood of unprovoked conflict.

"No treachery has ever exposed our sister nations to unwarranted attack. No lust for conquest, no craving for power; no greed for territory, no desire for revenge has ever caused us to violate the covenants of international peace and tranquility.

"We have robbed no people of their independence, we laid on no country the hand of oppression. When our military forces have taken the field it has been to enlarge the area of self-government, to extend the scope of freedom and to defend the principles of liberty. We have established our independence, resisted encroachment upon our sovereignty, maintained our national union, rescued afflicted people from their oppression and brought victory to the cause of liberty in a world convulsion."

Reverence For Dead

Reverence for them requires respect for their successors, the president said. "It would be idle to place a wreath on the grave of the dead and leave ungarlanded the brow of the living," he asserted in calling for loyal backing of the present military forces who, too, are ready to sacrifice their lives for their country. "We can not be loyal to the flag if we fail in our admiration for the uniform," he insisted.

President Coolidge here declared that the United States, while aiming for peace, must maintain a military establishment sufficient to guard the country against aggression. He said:

"However much we pursue the paths of peace, however much we are determined to live on terms of good will both at home and abroad, we can not escape the fact that there are still evil forces in the world which all past experience warns us will break out from time to time and do serious damage to lawful rights and the progress of civilization unless we are prepared to meet such situations with armed intervention.

Need Military Force

"We could no more dispense with our military forces than we could dispense with our police forces. While we are firmly convinced that it is altogether practical and possible by international covenants to limit them in size, to consent to their abolition would be to expose ourselves first to aggression and finally to destruction.

"If we are sincere in our expressed determination to maintain tranquility at home and peace abroad, we must not neglect to lay our course in accordance with the ascertained facts of life. We know that we have come into possession of great wealth and high place in the world. There is scarcely a civilized nation which is not our debtor. We are sufficiently acquainted with human nature to realize that we are oftentimes the object of envy.

National Defense

"Unless we maintain sufficient forces, to be placed at points of peril when they arise, thereby avoiding for the most part serious attacks, there would be grave danger that we should suffer from violent outbreaks, so destroying our rights and compromising our honor that war would become inevitable.

"It is to protect ourselves from such danger that we maintain our national defense. Under this policy it is perfectly apparent that our forces are dedicated solely to the preservation of peace."

President Coolidge then commended the rightful pride of Americans in their America, but urged them to forego the spirit of boastfulness that stirs envy and hatred in others. He said:

America Can Glory

"As Americans we are always justified in glorying our own country. While offensive boastfulness may be carried to the point of reproach, it is much less to be criticized than any attitude of apologetic inferiority. Not to know and appreciate the many excellent qualities of our own country constitutes an intellecual poverty which, instead of being displayed with pride, ought to be acknowledged with shame.

"While pride in country ought to be the American attitude, it should not include any spirit of arrogance or contempt toward other nations. All people have points of excellence and are justly entitled to the honorable consideration of other nations. While this land was still a wilderness, there were other lands supporting a high state of civilization and enlightenment."

Appeal for Harmony

Appealing for unity here, President Coolidge said that nations which are torn by discord have little influence in promoting their ideals elsewhere. "Even the blind do not choose the blind to lead them," he said. "Foreign peoples are certainly going to seek assistance only from those who have demonstrated their capacity to maintain their own affairs efficiently. Unity comes best for obeying the laws of one's country," the president said.

This was his conclusion:

"We have made our place in the world through the union and the constitution. We have flourished as a people because of our success in establishing self-government. But all of these results are predicated upon a law-abiding people.

He Urges Industry

"If our government should be given over to violence and crime, it would be necessary to diminish the bounds of our freedom to secure order and self-preservation in whatever direction we may go we are always confronted with the inescapable conclusion that unless we observe the law we can not be free.

"Unless we are an industrious, orderly nation we can neither minister to our requirements or be an effective influence for good in the world."

FLIER YEARNS FOR AMERICA

Lindbergh Sick For Native Country

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—Captain Lindbergh is homesick—terribly homesick. He said so this morning. The knight of the air appreciates to the fullest extent the honors bestowed upon him here, in Brussels and in Paris, but he is eager to return home at the earliest possible moment.

He made this clear while speaking to the reporters upon his return to the American embassy after an early morning trip to the Croydon air field to make sure his trans-Atlantic monoplane had weathered the storm of the rough and tumble welcome given it upon his arrival from Brussels yesterday.

Lindbergh will have a chat tomorrow with King George and also the Prince of Wales. Wednesday he will be the guest of Lord Lonsdale, famous sportsman, at the running of the derby. Every waking moment of his time is booked during his stay here, but if he had his own way he would take his "Spirit of St. Louis" and start right back for New York.

"I want to get home that bad," he said, adding: "Though, of course, I am not thinking actually of returning by air—please understand that fully.

"There is nothing definite yet about the date of sailing, nor just how I shall go," he continued. "I am not a particularly good sailor and everything considered, I would rather fly back in the good old bus that brought me over. However, I shall probably not fly the Atlantic again. It has been done, and there is no advantage for me to attempt to repeat the performance."

Peeping into the future, he visualized a regular trans-Atlantic aerial service.

"It has wonderful commercial possibilities—there is no doubt about that," he said. "I came by the shortest route, but the route of the future must be determined after scientific research. This is already under consideration in various quarters, I have no doubt."

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 30. (AP)—The cotton market rose to new high levels for the season today with prices 15 to [illegible] points above Saturday's close. The main bullish influence was the dry weather over Sunday and private reports of continued drouth and low temperatures in West Texas. These [illegible] caused liquidation near the end and the close was steady at net gains for the day of five to 12 points.

Liverpool was better than due and opening trades here were [illegible] to [illegible] points up. The market continued to advance after the call, October trading to [illegible] and December 1743, 15 to 17 points above Saturday's close.

The absence of the weather map and other official weather reports due to the Memorial day holiday caused some nervousness near mid session and the market eased off [illegible] points, with July at 1619, October at 17[illegible] and December [illegible].

In the afternoon, however, more reports of continued dry weather in West Texas caused buying and prices rallied almost to the highs, but in the late trading the market eased off on liquidation brought about by the uneasiness as to the response New York may make to the advance tomorrow and prices lost 7 to 9 points but closed steady at net gains for the day.

Exports for the day totaled 2812 bales.

All the World to Someone

What Would Life Be Worth Without That Knowledge?

LITTLE ragamuffin or grand lady of leisure—each of them is all the world to somebody. And wouldn't the world be a sad place if each of us did not know that somewhere somebody was living and breathing and working just because of us?

The world takes on a new meaning, a new color, when that somebody comes into your life. You realize suddenly how brightly the stars shine at night, how warm the sun's rays are by day, how beautiful is the blue arch of the sky, how good it is just to live and breathe.

There are two worlds for everybody—one the world we know all alone, and the other world we know when it's colored by somebody's love. And it's not until we know that new, radiant world that we see truly.

How each little incident of your day grows in importance when you know that you are going to tell it to somebody to whom it will be important just because it happened to you.

Yes, that's really all you need to make life beautiful—just to know that you are all the world to someone.

Effect of Boredom on Work

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

IN every large factory or workshop there are certain jobs that involve a limited range of activity, doing the same thing over and over again.

CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D.

This is what science recognizes as a repetition job. This uniformity and continuity of work without the close incentive of competition and without diversion causes monotony by robbing the work of interest.

Repetition is not a new problem. Even a country shoemaker makes one boot after another, domestic work is often a rather uninspiring routine and in hoeing a twenty-acre field a large number of very similar movements are made. But through the logical extension of a process that began as soon as men ceased to provide all things for themselves, an increasing number of people do repetition work.

In consequence of this fact, the average length of the working cycle becomes progressively shorter.

In order to increase the rapidity of production and lower the price of goods, manufacturers divide the operations of the work and specialize the functions of the workers more and more. Where one man used to perform the whole work of making a boot, scores of men now divide the work among themselves, each using special knowledge and the skill of years on one fraction of the process.

This subdivision and specialization in practically all industries leave increasingly less room for self-expression and consequently for interest.

Interest is only possible while the work is still able to call out new reactions in the worker and to set him new problems.

The modern worker finds that in the one small process with which he is concerned, he soon overcomes all the difficulties and exhausts all the surprises. His own contribution is buried under the work of many other hands, and his only incentive is to pass a standard and to achieve output. He can no longer find scope for personal expression in his work, and simply regards it as a price that he has to pay for his leisure. This is fatal to his happiness and the unhappy worker is never a worker of maximum efficiency.

Although with increased uniformity of material there is a steady pressure towards increasing continuity of work, in actual practice, work is rarely continuous.

Dr. Vernon of the Industrial Fatigue Research Board of Great Britain selected fifty apparently continuous jobs in the manufacture of boots and shoes and tin cans, in laundry work and in packing operations, and investigated them. He found that stops occurred for many reasons; work had to be carried away or fetched, machines had to be cleaned and adjusted, delays occurred in the provision of supplies. Even in handkerchief folding, the most continuous of all, an average of three breaks occurred in the hour, with a total of four and a half minutes. In other jobs there were breaks of as much as eleven minutes in the hour. From one point of view this unproductive time is waste. But output does not entirely depend on productive time. If a worker who habitually sits at work can get up, walk about and talk, even for only a minute in each twenty, the monotony of his work is considerably reduced and his output is correspondingly increased.

The wise manufacturer recognizes this principle and turns it to his profit by affording rest breaks for his workers. He then has a personnel that is at once healthy, happy, and efficient.

NOT on far seas in fragile ships to unknown lands I sail, nor can I conquer towering heights against the raving gale. I do not seek to enter where the tropic jungles grow, or plunge into the trackless wastes of endless Arctic snow. For me no peaks unscaled by man, no virgin forest's deeps where many a stealthy creature hides and many a serpent creeps. But when I go adventuring I find some wonders still to set my fancies all astir and make my pulses thrill. My unknown seas are minds of men, sun-swept or tempest-tossed; vast deserts of the soul I glimpse, with battles won or lost. Far heights I climb, dim deeps I plumb, strange scenes in every part, when I go out adventuring to learn my brother's heart.

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

The Cigarette Girl.

THE woman and the girl stared at each other. For a second the woman closed her eyes as if to shut out something she could not endure. Then she jerked them open and watched, with a half-sneer on her lips while the girl jostled her way through the mass of tables that crowded Beppo's Jardina di Napoli.

ANN LISLE

As the tall, slim, young figure in shabby, green taffeta approached the table where Roy Scarlett's guests were dining, the woman turned to the man on her right and began chatting and laughing with a desperate pretense of animation. Vivian Scarlett acted as if her only concern in life was to be charming to her husband's guests of honor. But beneath the table her hands pulled and twisted a delicate handkerchief and tore it to ribbons.

Her tension relaxed suddenly and her mouth quivered in scornful expectation when an astonished voice declaimed:

"Oh, look who's with us! If it isn't Vivian's flapper double!"

Vivian watched her husband's guests anxiously as they stared at the girl. Her eyes were wary, but the plaque of diamonds and sapphires in the hollow of her bosom twinkled and flashed as it jerked at her jeweled platinum chain. The girl stood silent and still, as if she knew she could afford to wait. Her pendant was a wicker cigarette tray suspended from a satin ribbon.

"Any cigars—cigarettes?" she asked at last mechanically and without taking her eyes from the woman whose beauty she duplicated.

The host began examining the contents of the cigarette tray with nervous zeal. His guests refused to be turned aside by a mere:

"What will you have?"

There was drama and amusement in the presence of the girl whose copper hair grew low on her white forehead in a deep widow's peak whose sharp V was Viv's pet claim to distinction. Dark brows lifted like rising wings over long amber eyes. A warm luscious mouth invited a man's lips and a long creamy throat tempted a man's fingers. Feature for feature the cigarette girl at Beppo's duplicated Vivian Scarlett's odd, compelling beauty.

A long minute passed while Vivian waited for the girl to challenge her. But the sudden, hostile voice that cried out in daring relish belonged to the gypsy beauty, Bonnie Clair, whose nimble toes and darting tongue had made her a famous supper-club hostess and whose languorous eyes had brought Roy Scarlett to her feet.

"Vivian darling, please introduce us to this charming ghost from your—evidently delightful past!" she purred.

"I have never seen the girl before," Vivian told her coldly and with the crisp curtness other wives had been known to use to Miss Bonnie Clair.

"How odd, when she is the dead ringer for what you must have been at her age," Bonnie urged, her little gypsy face a mask. "Actually the cigarette girl looks enough like our darling Viv to be her daughter!"

There was an ugly silence. Then the man on Vivian's right broke in with a suave: "This is the first time I've heard twins labelled mother and daughter!"

Everyone laughed as if he had said something frightfully clever. Broadway was ready to pay tribute to anything MacNeil Shannon said—or did. He was president of the Shannon Hotels Corporation, whose holdings extended from coast to coast now that there was a Hotel Shannon almost ready to open its doors to New York. "Mac" Shannon was a good fellow and a good business man. People said that he managed the ladies as well as he handled his vast properties. Men liked him because he took his infrequent losses as gracefully as his usual victories. His iron-gray hair, steel-gray eyes and strong chin made him look ruthless and stern as well as mysterious and fascinating. He seemed much more than his thirty odd years until he smiled. Then he looked like a nice boy on his way to twenty.

The cigarette girl was the only person in the neighborhood who did not seem eagerly conscious of Mac Shannon. Her attention was focussed on Vivian Scarlett and when Roy had finished his purchases, she hurried to the other side of the table as if drawn by a magnet and stooped over Vivian to ask with a jerk in her breathing:

"May I give you a package of your favorites. I'd love to."

"My husband has bought all the cigarettes we wish," Viv said curtly.

"Show the crowd a good time, kid," Bonnie ordered abruptly. "You're among friends. Tell us your name. I may want to call you to give you a job in my supper-club or to inform you that the beautiful lady who looks like your—'twin'—wants to adopt you."

Bonnie's voice was a slurring insult. Vivian bit her lips and tried to join in the laugh. The cigarette girl watched her for a moment and then she turned on Bonnie and said impudently:

"Call me Carmen. But I'll never come if you call!"

Bonnie's shallow green eyes flickered and her narrow mouth pursed. And as the girl hitched her ribbon harness higher on her shoulders and turned away with something gallant in the toss of her head, Bonnie put out her hand and caught at the green taffeta dress.

"Wait a minute, Carmen. You're a clever kid. If you were mine I'd have the guts to claim you."

Vivian lifted eyes in which there was a sudden defiant flash.

"It must be nice to be frankly old enough to have an eighteen-year-old daughter, Miss Clair. When I arrive at that point ten years from now I hope I'll be as honest as you are today."

"Hurray for Viv!" shouted one of the men in Roy's party. "When she hits she certainly packs a good wallop."

"And insults her husband's guests—" Bonnie began poisonously. But before the scowling Roy could come to his "guest's" defense, there was a sudden cry from Carmen of the wicker tray:

"Oh, my cigarettes! How awkward of me."

The cigarette tray slipped to the floor, catching in Bonnie's billowing chiffons as it fell. Its contents cascaded in every direction. All the men in the vicinity scrambled to rescue its wares. The girl, who had called herself Carmen, did not stoop to aid them. Instead she stood smiling at Vivian with eager and almost passionate wistfulness. But Vivian seemed unconscious of the girl's pleading look. She gave no sign of gratitude for the accident MacNeil Shannon felt sure had been staged just to come between her and retribution for her daring and undoubtedly catty rebuke to Bonnie Clair.

All during the dinner Mac Shannon saw the girl watching Vivian; all during the meal he was conscious that his hostess was snubbing the girl. So perhaps it was his instinct for fair play that made him linger behind and stroll carelessly over toward the cigarette vendor when the rest of Roy's guests were hurrying out to the checkroom to reclaim their coats.

Mac went over to the niche in the wall where the girl was resting her tray against the shelving plaster and relaxing her body dreamily rather than wearily. He put his hands on her wicker tray and smiled at her with gay friendliness as he asked:

"Tell me, Carmen, have you ever heard of a psychological moment?"

"They happen in books, don't they?"

"And in life. And sometimes very clever, very kind girls handle them so neatly that they deserve humble thanks."

"Did SHE send you?" the girl asked eagerly.

"No one sent me," he told her gently. "Perhaps that is why I came. You did a gallant thing quickly and well. You kept Bonnie Clair from getting her claws in your double's delicate flesh. You stopped a man from rebuking his wife"——

"I was awkward and spilled my cigarettes," the girl interrupted with curt reserve.

"Now you're rebuking me. You're a little thoroughbred."

"You're a big one," she laughed suddenly. "It's nice of you to bother about me."

"No bother at all," he laughed. "You might make a man a lot of trouble if you wanted to. But it appears you're a young person of one idea."

She nodded gravely. "Wouldn't it puzzle you to see some one who looked just like you and to have her hate you so much on sight?"

"When a vain woman thinks she is unique and that they destroyed the mold after making her it may hurt to see a younger, lovelier edition," he said lightly.

"You think it's only that?" she asked breathlessly.

"What else? Chance resemblances are common. Why bother about some one who isn't thrilled to see herself reflected in you? Why not give a little attention to some one who sees so much that is charming in you?"

The girl looked at MacNeil Shannon oddly. "Don't be nice to me if you don't mean it. I haven't a friend in the world—and I'm hungry for friends."

"Are you sure?" He slid his hand along the tray and laid it over hers. His voice rang like metal as he asked: "Can you tell a friend on sight, little Carmen, as I can? Don't you know I'm going to be your friend, Carmen?"

"My name is Jill Hathaway," she said breathlessly. "To—my friends"

He smiled into the wistful eyes that glowed with dawning eagerness. And his voice commanded and demanded as he said: "Jill Hathaway, I'm going to say that name often so you know it means the caress it sounds like—"

He broke off abruptly, lifting his eyes and catching a sudden glimpse of Bonnie Clair watching him in mirrors that made a reflector for her spying. He laughed curtly, and slipped away from Jill and around the corner of the wall for a moment. He fumbled in his pockets before he turned back and picked up a random package of cigarettes from Jill's tray.

"I'll take these," he said carelessly and loud. "Keep the change."

"He didn't even tell me his name," Jill protested sullenly as he swung across the room and vanished beyond the door. Her fingers were disdainful though her eyes were wistful as she picked up the crumpled bill he had flung at her. She unfolded it indifferently. Suddenly her eyes focussed and gleamed oddly as she stared down at what she held. It was a fifty dollar bill. Lying inside its folds was a white parchment card inscribed:

"MacNeil Shannon, Hotel Shannon, New York, N. Y."

Lessons of the Playground

By L. Lamar Matthews.

EDWARD and Phyllis are poor little rich children. They are surrounded with servants and tutors. There is a governess and a French teacher and a dancing teacher and a riding master. The activities for every hour of every day are all nicely arranged for this twelve-year-old boy and his younger sister.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

Their parents believe that the children will never be contaminated by evil associates and never lack any advantages and never want for amusement and pleasures. But Edward and Phyllis lack one essential thing that money cannot buy. They need the companionship of other young people. They long with a mighty longing for somebody to play with them. They very greatly need the strength of character and the iron in their souls that is only gained by matching skill and wits with others.

Children learn more from their playmates than they do from their tutors and the playground wields a greater influence than all the grown-up associates combined. It is among other children that youngsters learn to give and take. It is their playmates who teach them to play fair and to be good sports.

To keep children away from the rank and file of young American boys and girls is a great injustice to them. There is no better training in skill, courage and perseverance than other children give.

The world is full of men and women who never know how to get along with their associates. They either play the martyr or they go around with a chip on their shoulder or they complain about matters that others accept as part of the business of living. The chances are that such people missed the opportunity of playing and studying and striving along with a lot of other children—no better and no worse than themselves. Poor little fellows who stand alone and whine "They're always picking on me," usually develop into grown-ups who can't get along with others.

To be able to work with other people—to forget one's own important self and to pull with and for "the team" is the best test of strong character.

Children do not need to be entertained, or pampered or served. They need a chance to use their own muscles and brains and ability.

Very few families are situated so that the children can have the restrictions and limitations and handicap imposed upon them that Edward and Phyllis suffer, but there is a tendency among modern parents to make life too easy for their children. There is too much coddling and too little necessity for youthful effort.

Encourage your child to go after what he wants. Let him understand that he must stand or fall by his own persistence and determination whether it be in his amusements, his studies or his small achievements at home. Keep your hands off and give him a chance to work out his own salvation.

Hold to Your Principles

By Lucy Lowell.

THEY were talking about tolerance.

And one said that it was a high and noble thing. To hold fast to a principle while granting others the right to hold just as fast to different principles perhaps diametrically opposed to his own—this was his idea of the golden rule worked out gloriously in human affairs.

LUCY LOWELL

Live and let live—a chance for everyone—all born free and equal with rights not to be assailed by prejudice or self-complacence.

But another saw that as deliberate ignoring of evil. "If you see another with ideas all wrong," he declared, "It's your duty to set him right.

"Because this may lead to disagreeableness makes no difference. The principle is greater than the individual and you would be dodging your duty if you let it get by.

"Toleration," he went on, "often is just another name for weakness. There is no such thing to the person of firm principles."

And the third asked if they ever had heard the story of the blind men and the elephant.

One blind man, passing his hand along the great beast's flank, declared it to be a creature much like a wall with a bulge in the center.

The second, having touched the animal's leg, maintained that the first was quite wrong, since the beast was a columnar thing rather like a tree.

But the third, feeling the elephant's trunk, angrily proclaimed them both at fault. He had encountered the elephant, said he, and it was exactly like a serpent hanging from a high limb!

"You see?" this third went on. "They were all right—as far as they went. Each principle was correct but none could stand by itself.

"What I believe," he added, "is that real tolerance depends upon the conviction that not one of us is able to grasp the whole truth."

Raw Water in City Mains Needs No Purification, Expert States

Unless it becomes necessary for the pumping of 400,000 gallons an hour of raw water into the city mains, no precautionary measures against disease need be taken by Wichita Falls citizens, Dr. A. H. Douglas, manager of the water department, said Monday night.

Dr. Douglas reported Monday that for the past nine days it has become necessary for the department to pump between 150,000 and 200,000 gallons of raw water into the mains per hour in addition to 200,000 gallons of filtered water, which is the capacity of the city filter.

Twice as much chlorine, a disinfectant, has been pumped into the raw water as into the filtered water, Dr. Douglas said, which makes the raw water safe for use. However, if it becomes necessary to pump as much as 400,000 gallons of raw water an hour, Dr. Douglas said the chlorine content would be too large for safe usage.

If it becomes necessary to pump 400,000 gallons of raw water an hour, Dr. Douglas said, he would recommend that the water be boiled by consumers before being used.

Dr. Douglas pointed out that the present filter was too small for a city the size of Wichita Falls and that the necessity of raw water was caused by the heavy demand during the warm weather.

NO CLUES TO SAFE BANDITS

Officers Work On Theft Of $600 Here

Officers connected with the police department and Sheriff W. G. Bralley's office were working without clues Monday afternoon and night in an endeavor to find the robbers who broke into the safe of the Model Laundry early Monday morning and obtained approximately $600.

Sheriff Bralley and Chief of Police Burns said that the robbers did not leave any finger prints on the safe, and had evidently worked with gloves.

The Model Laundry was one of two places in Wichita Falls which were the prey of "knob knockers" early Monday morning. Robbers broke the knob on the safe in Jim Show's drug store, 1500 Holliday street, but were frightened away before being able to obtain a small amount of money which was in the safe.

Employes of a bakery next door to the drug store heard the pounding on the safe and when they went to investigate the cause the robbers fled.

The Model Laundry robbers overlooked a package containing gold pieces valued at $600, which were hidden in the safe. They also left behind them checks made out to the laundry.

The entrance to the laundry was gained through a window which was about nine feet from the ground. The glass was broken to allow the unlocking of the window.

man used to work of making men now divide the themselves, each using knowledge and the skill of on one fraction of the process.

This subdivision and specialization in practically all industries leave increasingly less room for self-expression and consequently for interest.

Interest is only possible while the work is still able to call out new reactions in the worker and to set him new problems.

The modern worker finds that in the one small process with which he is concerned, he soon overcomes all the difficulties and exhausts all the surprises. His own contribution is buried under the work of many other hands, and his only incentive is to pass a standard and to achieve output.

Today { At the Theaters

By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: "Mare Nostrum," with Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno; comedy and Pathe News.

Olympic: "The Notorious Lady," with Lewis Stone, comedy and Fox News.

Mission: Rudolph Valentino in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," comedy and chapter 10 of "Scotty of the Scouts."

Garden: George O'Brien in "The Blue Eagle," western picture and comedy.

Gem: Franklyn Farnum in "Double Barrel Justice," and comedy.

Antonio Moreno in "Mare Nostrum" showing at the Majestic for four days starting today. Alice Terry is his co-star.

"Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea), Ingram's newest production for Metro-Goldwyn now showing at the Majestic theater, is an exceptional picture.

Ingram has taken the famous Blasco story and with Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno enacting the leading parts, and the original European locations as his background has made a powerful drama that merits all the praise and attention given it.

The story is of the Mediterranean Sea during the early periods of the war. The romance of the beautiful spy and the Spanish sea captain is the central attraction of the picture, with submarine warfare, secret service systems of European powers, marvelous characterizations by the foreign artists and the pictorial and historical locations on the continent all giving added interest.

With the exception of Miss Terry, Moreno and Hughie Mack, who has a prominent comedy role, the entire cast is made up of leading European actors and actresses who make their American debut in the picture.

It is a treat to see new faces and to have them give such creditable performances as the entire cast of "Mare Nostrum" gives. The German characters are especially fine.

The pictorial beauty of "Mare Nostrum" is beyond description. Ingram has carefully blended his locations into his story in a way that makes them a part of it.

Rex Ingram's well remembered screen classic, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," one of the greatest films ever produced by the industry, has returned in triumph to the Mission theater in response to a flood of requests from exhibitors all over the country. This picture, unsurpassed as an artistic record of its time, is the film that brought the late Rudolph Valentino to fame. Valentino plays opposite Alice Terry in this picture, and in it does some of the best work he ever contributed to the screen.

An enormous cast was employed by Director Ingram with phenomenal success in translating the popular Ibanez novel to the screen. Its first showing aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Los Angeles and other film centers, where it was characterized by the critics as one of the great pictures of all time.

Bible Training School Opens Third Session

The third annual Bible training school of the First Methodist church opened Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the church with a large attendance in each division of the work, according to E. F. Bohmfalk, assistant pastor of the church, and director of the school. Children will be received into the classes during all of this week, and all are urged to begin the work as son as possible, it was announced.

The beginners' department is in charge of Mrs. J. S. Crumpler, the primary department of Mrs. E. F. Bohmfalk and the junior work is directed by Mrs. Anna Barker. By action of the officers Monday, it was decided to open the classes at 9 o'clock each morning and close at 11:30 for a permanent schedule. The school will continue through June 17, a period of three weeks.

Work is given in all phases of Bible study suited to the requirements of the various departments. In these are included memory work, Bible study and drill, missionary stories, worship, handiwork and manual training, pageantry, and directed recreation.

KIWANIS CLUB HONORS DEAD

Bash Gives Memorial Day Tribute

"Let us claim our message of Memorial Day not from the tongues of men, but from the silent voices and the influence of our soldier dead," said the Rev. Floyd A. Bash in a short Memorial Day address to the Kiwanis club Monday noon, emphasizing the thought that a man has robbed himself who lets this day pass by without entering into the spirit and purpose of its meaning.

"We Americans are the heirs of some great days, full of great meaning—treasure houses for the race—but too often we exchange the gold of their message and significance for the tinsel of mere pleasure," he continued.

"If we will stand for a few moments by the graveside of our comrade dead, they will speak to us of duty—for they themselves died for that supreme cause. And if we today will not live for duty, we are not fit to live."

History of Day

The Rev. Bash gave a short history of Memorial Day, telling of its first observance when graves of the Confederate and Union men alike were decorated—only one year after the close of the war. He asserted that this was the essential spirit of the day, and that it is to all who have died fighting for the "majesty of duty" that "we pay tribute."

"The unity of these United States was most firmly cemented when the sons of the men in the blue and the gray fought side by side," he said. The Rev. Bash concluded with a tribute to the part played by America in the war, which he said would forever stand out because of the high idealism of its purpose.

Henrietta Club

J. L. Jackson Jr., and Walter C. Humpton of the Kiwanis international extension department, told of the new club being organized at Henrietta, Texas, and gave a report on a meeting held by several members of the Wichita Falls club there last week.

Welcome was extended to Don Bernard, an old member who has recently returned to the city, and to Fitzbugh Hurley, a new member, at the close of the meeting.

Quarantine Signs In City Show Decrease

Quarantined cases in Wichita Falls were materially reduced during the past week, according to a report issued Monday by the city health department.

Only 11 cases were quarantined which is a reduction of approximately 50 per cent from the weekly average that has been maintained since January 1.

During the week five measles cases were quarantined; one mumps and five smallpox. There were 18 deaths reported.

PROFITS THAT COME BACK TO US

The foundation stone of this bank's usefulness is the knowledge that our prosperity depends upon the prosperity of those who use us. That everything we do to help them do business profitably means profits for ourselves.

A horse had some brains

It wasn't so long ago when we let the reins drop and trusted to Dobbin to pick the right road. And, furthermore, Dobbin did it. He trotted along the road without guidance. He didn't need anyone to show him the way to go home.

But the old days are over. A moving car needs constant attention. It has no brains. Some drivers are careless. Protect yourself against accidents of all kinds.

Our Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

NOT on far seas in fragile ships to unknown lands I sail, nor can I conquer towering heights against the raving gale. I do not seek to enter where the tropic jungles grow, or plunge into the trackless wastes of endless Arctic snow. For me no peaks unscaled by man, no virgin forest's deeps where many a stealthy creature hides and many a serpent creeps. But when I go adventuring I find some wonders still to set my fancies all astir and make my pulses thrill. My unknown seas are minds of men, sun-swept or tempest-tossed; vast deserts of the soul I glimpse, with battles won or lost. Far heights I climb, dim deeps I plumb, strange scenes in every part, when I go out adventuring to learn my brother's heart.
