Four Women Accompany Brothers to Court For Arraignment

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 5. (UP)—Four mebmers of the Women's Christian Temperance union accompanied W. E. and Carson Chandler, whose father was slain by a prohibition agent, when the two youths were arraigned before a U S commissioner late today.

The youths were placed under $300 bonds each for alleged violation of the national prohibition act Appeals to charity will be made for their bond if individuals do not sign for it, R. L. Neal, defense attorney, said soon after the hearing.

Whether the W. C. T. U. was taking an active part in the defense of the youths could not be learned. When asked if her organization had employed counsel for them, Mrs. E. P. Butler, one of the women accompanying the youths, replied she had no statement to make. Mrs. Butler was a candidate for mayor of San Antonio in the last city election.

When Neal was asked if he had been employed by the temperance body he replied he did not know what organization employed him. Officers of the San Antonio W. C. T. U. said that the organization officially was not taking a hand but that they did not know what individual members might do.

Charles Stevens, veteran San Antonio prohibition officer, was charged with murder in Atascosa county Saturday in the elder Chandler's death and was released immediately under $2,000 bond. He testified at the hearing for the Chandler youths today.

City Prisoner Escapes Jail

Man Held for Amarillo Officers Gains Liberty

A prisoner who was being held for Amarillo officers at the city jail escaped his cell sometime Monday night, it was reported at police headquarters. The escape was discovered late Monday night when the jailer made his usual rounds. The lock on the cell door had been neatly picked with a sharp instrument or opened with some sort of skeleton key, officers reported.

It was thought that friends of the prisoner may have entered the building and gone up to the second floor, where the cell was located, by means of a rear stairway which is easily accessible without danger of being seen from the courtroom in which the desk is located. The stairs are used by firemen of the central station, whose sleeping quarters are in the west end of the building on the second floor The cell door was found closed but the lock was intact.

The man had been arrested here Saturday in connection with the alleged theft of a purse from an automobile in Wichita Falls and it was discovered Monday that he was wanted in Amarillo in connection with a felony theft case. Officers from the Panhandle city were to have arrived in Wichita Falls Tuesday morning to take the prisoner in custody.

'Politics and Liquor Like Beer and Pretzels'—Mabel

Long Standing Combination of Whisky Interests and Professional Office-Holders Are Described

(Copyright, 1929, by Current News Features. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.)

(Politics and liquor, according to Mrs. Willebrandt, former assistant United States attorney general in charge of prohibition, are as inseparable as beer and pretzels and in this the second article of her series she tells the sensational story of the quarter of a million dollars found in a dead senator's safe-deposit, the story of a bootlegger king who reached the ear of a president, and others who found powerful friends in Washington.)

II. Politics and Enforcement
By MABEL WALKER WILLEBRANDT

Politics.

In that one word I can best and most completely describe the greatest handicap to the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Politics and liquor apparently are as inseparable a combination as beer and pretzels.

But the combination is no new thing. It existed long before the 18th amendment was adopted.

My memory is not so short that I do not recall the old alliances between brewers, distillers, and saloon-keepers on the one hand, in the days before prohibition, and the professional politicians on the other hand. The liquor interests financed city and state campaigns; they controlled city councils, county boards of commissioners, state legislatures. They "headed off" through their political allies early-closing-hour ordinances, Sunday closing laws applying to saloons; local or county option measures, and higher-license ordinances and laws. The saloon-keepers, the brewery owners, the whiskey wholesalers, were always willing to "chip in" to help elect a county or state's attorney, a member of the legislature or the city council, who would be broadminded, as they termed it, on the liquor question.

Mrs. Willebrandt

I will not confess yet to being old, but I do not expect to live long enough to witness a complete divorcement of politics and the liquor trade, legitimate or illegitimate.

Let's see how politics and liquor maintain their alliance under prohibition.

"Party" Inherits Quarter Million

Not so long ago a politician of national rank—a recognized leader of his party and for some years a senator—died, leaving in a safe a quarter of a million dollar in cash. He had much other property, but the quarter of a million dollars did not go into his estate. Why? Because his heirs released the money to another politician also of national rank. Certainly none of the politicians who handled the money profited personally by its possession. They were not of that type.

Where did the quarter of a million dollars come from originally? Easily answered. The politicians first mentioned—the man who died with a quarter of a million dollars in his safe-deposit box which his heirs didn't want—practically controlled the government of an entire state in which prohibition enforcement had been and is most lax. Law enforcement officers there danced when he pulled the string. Elections were just processions of his creatures into office. But elections mean political campaigns—electors must be "told," and be made to like it. Political campaigns cannot be run on oratory and spell-binding alone—even in that politician-ridden commonwealth. Money, and gobs of it, is essential to do the trick. The big boss mentioned above needed money, it seems, with which to meet a campaign deficit. For that reason and others (partly to maintain his political control), he secured the appointment of a political friend of his as prohibition director. This man was wealthy and personally honest. He spent most of his time elsewhere and permitted two other men to direct "enforcement" efforts in his district. They managed affairs so efficiently that practically all those within the state who wanted permits for the manufacture, use, or sale of alcohol, and the operation of near-beer breweries, were eminently satisfied. Their satisfaction was such that they were glad to contribute large sums, including quarter of a million

FIRST BALE

Z. C. Williams Gins Season's First Cotton In Knox County

Special to The Record News.

KNOX CITY, Texas, Aug. 5.—King Cotton journeyed to market here today. It was the first time this year.

Knox county's first bale this season was brought in by Z. C. Williams. It weighed 484 pounds, and after it was ginned today it was sold for 22 cents per pound.

In addition, Williams received a premium of $75 offered the farmer bringing in the first bale.

TEMPERATURE NEAR RECORD

Thermometers Register 107 Degrees Here

Marking the eighth day of scorching temperatures, the mercury rose to 107 degrees Monday, only one degree lower than the seasonal record, and made a repetition of the previous severe heat wave when temperatures well over the century mark were recorded for 10 consecutive days seem likely.

An average wind velocity of only three miles an hour and an unusually low barometer reading of 28.67 emphasized the heat and sent residents of Wichita Falls in search of relief through cooling drinks. The water consumption was 4,100,000 gallons at 4 p. m. and it was apparent that the consumption would run to capacity of the filtration plant before midnight.

The previous 10-day heat wave, during the early part of July, forced the city water department to by-pass several million gallons of water with only chlorination before pumping it into the city mains. The capacity of the filtration plant is 6,000,000 gallons and a reserve supply, which would be quickly consumed in an emergency, is kept in storage, but during the last heat wave, the reserve supply was exhausted when the consumption exceeded the capacity of the plant and there was no recourse except to pump the water from the ditch into the mains.

In the event that the present wave continues, with capacity reached Monday, it is inevitable that more water will have to be bypassed, according to George D. Fairtrace, city manager. In addition it is likely that residents in outlying districts may be deprived entirely of a water supply, Mr. Fairtrace said. During the last heat wave, residents in the northwestern part of town, near the new standpipe, had no water for several hours during the late afternoon and evening due to the inability to pump water into the standpipe and to the shortage of water.

In Oklahoma City the mercury rose to 105 degrees, the highest since August 14, 1923. At Blackwell, Okla., a maximum temperature of 109 was recorded and Chickasha reported 107. A 15-year mark was broken at Alva, Okla., with 111 degrees, Associated Press reports said.

Texas found no relief from the sweltering conditions of yesterday when the mercury shot above 100 at many points and hit the top with 112 degrees at Brownwood. Dallas reported 99 and Corsicana reported a similar mark. Houston, near the gulf reported 94.

$350,000 OIL TREATING UNIT TO BE ERECTED

Chicago Firm Begins Work On Cracking Plant At Iowa Park

EMPLOYMENT FOR 50

Construction of Big Works To Require Four to Five Month's Time

Construction of a $300,000 Jenkins process cracking unit by the Graver corporation of Chicago adjacent to the Iowa Park Producing and Refining company's plant near Iowa Park will begin this week, according to information given by local representatives of the concern Monday. Total cost including labor, will run close to $350,000.

The new plant will be designed to crack about 1,250 barrels of fuel oil daily from the output of the Iowa Park Producing and Refining company's units, it was announced. Gasoline production from the cracking process will amount to approximately 30,000 gallons.

Adjacent to Refinery

Location of the new unit adjacent to the present refining properties affords the operators of the cracking system the advantage of extracting the gasoline content from the fuel oil at the point of purchase, thereby minimizing transportation costs, it was pointed out by representatives of the Graver corporation.

Construction sheds are now in process of erection at the site, while materials and equipment for the unit to be built are in transit, according to the announcement. It was said that about 50 men will be employed in building the plant, most of whom will be supplied by this community. It was estimated that from $35,000 to $50,000 will be spent for labor in completing the project.

Four Months to Build

When completed, the cracking plant is expected to afford permanent employment for 12 men. It was said that construction of the unit will require between four and five months.

The Graver plant will be the second of its kind to be built in this community during the current year. Construction of a similar unit at an estimated cost of $250,000, was begun at the Orient refinery on the Iowa Park road about two months ago.

Of the amount, approximately $1,000,000 is represented by a contingent fund created for the rebuilding of roads and bridges during flood periods or other emergencies.

OLD DOMINION VOTE WATCHED

Bishop Cannon's Power In Balance Today

By ARTHUR HACHTEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (US)—With the political leadership of Bishop James Cannon Jr. hanging in the balance in Virginia's gubernatorial election, political observers here today had their eyes riveted on the primary election of the regular Democrats in the Old Dominion tomorrow.

Virginia's gubernatorial race has assumed national interest in view of the fight of the coalition anti-Smith-Raskob forces, who swung the state for President Hoover, to capture the most important state offices.

A smashing defeat for Bishop Cannon's forces, it is believed, would have an important bearing on the way the state goes in the next presidential election.

The names of three "regular" Democrats will appear on the ballot tomorrow for the governorship nomination. They are John Garland Pollard of Williamsburg, G. Walter Mapp of Accomac and Rosewell Page of Hanover.

Dr. William Moseley Brown of Lexington is the nominee of the coalition forces, composed of some Republicans, but largely consisting of the "Cannonites." Doctor Brown already has begun his campaign, calling upon the voters to vote against any one having the backing of the present national leadership in the Democratic party.

A light vote is expected in tomorrow's primary in view of the split in the Democratic ranks. Politicians estimated that between 150,000 and 175,000 electors will select the man to "beat Cannon."

Bishop Cannon's anti-Smith party carried the state for Hoover by 25,000, but political scouts who have made a swing through Virginia returned skeptical that the Cannonites can make the "wet Tammany" and Raskob issue stick in a purely local election.

'Fewer and Cooler,' Is Battle Cry In Ever Spreading World Revolution

Metropolitan Centers All Over Globe Hotbeds of Men Demanding, and Getting, Revision of Attire

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. (AP)—A call to throw off the shackles that have bound the male to conventional garb has been sounded.

Mere man, usually represented as more scornful than envious of the approach of pennyweight garb for the so-called vain sex, now finds himself exhorted by self-appointed champions to rise in rebellion against the burdensome garments that have weighted his shoulders for centuries.

Few Followers

Thus far the unruffled calm of Main street has been undisturbed, but in the great metropolitan centers of the world—New York, London, Paris, Berlin and Chicago—males have heard the belligerent cries of brave souls suddenly aroused by man's sartorial enslavement. Their potential emancipators have gained few followers. But they are not downhearted.

Some would clothe his large frame in pajamas of multicolored design, with a swanky cut and set off by a tie or a belt. These two-piece costumes would supplant the heavier and more cumbersome apparel which he has worn with such fortitude.

Some More Conservative

Others more conservative, probably taking their cue from the golf links and the tennis court, would uncover the long hidden masculine knee to the breeze, expose his Adam's apple and free his bony elbows from encasement.

To accomplish this revolutionary

NEWS WRITERS TELL COURT OF JAIL INTERVIEW

Reporters Used as Witnesses to Present Accused Man's Story

THEORA GOT ANGRY

Snook Used Hammer as Pacifier, Testimony of Two Scribes Shows

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 5. (UP)—The so-called verbal confession of Dr. James Howard Snook that he murdered Theora Hix, was placed in evidence today at Snook's trial.

Two newspaper men, W. C. Howells, president of the Ohio Legislative Correspondents' association and reporter for the Cleveland, Ohio, Plain-Dealer and James E. Fusco of the Columbus, Ohio, Citizen, recounted Snook's story to the jury. This evidence was the high point in the state's case, which probably will be completed tomorrow.

Selected for Interview

Howells and Fusco had been selected by newspaper men to interview Snook after he had made the now disputed written confession, when an agreement had been reached with prosecuting officers that two reporters could question him. The interview was subsequently carried by the United Press.

Howells, corroborated by Fusco, told the jury that Snook said he quarreled with Miss Hix while they were motoring outside of Columbus. She had grown "madder and madder," Howells quoted Snook as saying, so Snook decided to take her to the New York Central rifle range and show her where he engaged in revolver practice, thinking it might be possible to divert her mind and talk her out of her anger.

Threat Recounted

"But I couldn't talk her out of it," Howells quoted Snook as saying. "Finally she said she was going to go back to Columbus and 'get' my wife and baby. It was then I struck her with a hammer. She got out of the car and shouted 'Damn you, I'll kill you.'"

Howells said Snook admitted that he struck the girl several blows and finally "one hard blow." She went down moaning.

"Then he was asked to describe the position of Miss Hix when he cut her throat and he said she was on her side," said Howells. "A few moments later he said that she was lying on her back when "I cut her throat.'"

Howells said Snook quoted the last words of the dying girl as damn you, I'll kill you."

Snook, Howells related, had described Theora as having great interest in sex questions but a purely "scientific interest." She had made the first advances to Snook, the reporter said he had been told, and had told Snook that he "had a lot to learn about sex matters."

Mud Splashing Wasn't Deliberate, Says Lindy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (US)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told reporters today that he "never deliberately splashed mud on anvone."

It was the flying colonel's first public comment on the accidental "mud-splashing" incident which evoked nationwide comment when it occurred here several months ago.

At that time Lindbergh had landed at Bolling field for a few moments only, en route from the South to New York. When a group of newspapermen and spectators rushed towards him, Lindbergh, anxious to keep them out of danger from his whirling propellor, turned the plane around and they received a liberal bath of mud.

'Hello World' Radio Dispute Ends When Skelly Withdraws His Claim

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (US)—The famous "Hello, world" radio dispute, involving the attempt of station KVOO in Tulsa to get the preferred wave length and power permit now held by KWKH in Shreveport, La., ended today as the Tulsa station withdrew its suit before the district court of appeals, to which it had carried the fight.

Formal notice of the withdrawal was given the federal radio commission late this afternoon. No explanation of the withdrawal was given, although it has been generally conceded here that the Tulsa station had little chance of gaining its objective.

The KWKH-KVOO fight, thus ended, is probably the most colorful in the history of the federal radio commission. Behind the Louisiana station—a powerful broadcasting unit just outside of New Orleans—was William K. Henderson, iron foundry king of the South and op-

Wives and Husbands Traded In Double Ceremony by Texas Group

CLAYTON, N. M., Aug. 5. (UP)—A pair of wives and husbands traded helpmates — legally—here yesterday. They drove from Borger, Texas, in the same car to have the knot tied. And they returned to Borger in the same automobile after the minister had completed his work.

Dr. R. M. Bentley, pastor of the Methodist church here, a strong opponent of divorce, who performed the double ceremony, today was busy explaining to his flock that he did not know the circumstances of the wedding.

The four were divorced recently in Borger, where they had become friendly in the usual social contacts of a small town—bridge, games, automobile rides and parties.

In the ceremony here A. W. Bennett, 62, married Mrs. Chavis Christmas, 22, while Bennett's former wife, Mrs. Anna D. Bennett 35, married H. J. Christmas, 28.

JUST THE Baer Facts

By Bugs Baer

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—There are two motor cars for every pedestrian.

One to smack him low. And one to drive him away with all honors and respect due to those who have been lowbridged.

We admire and relish the automobile industry.

It has made such strides that we think the bicycle is doomed.

But there is one feature about the bicycle that has been lost in the progressive shuffle. This item is very important in the cool of the evening when the parking begins.

The horse was called man's best friend. Not because he could gallop, eat oats and go seven days without water.

But because the horse could park himself.

That's why the bicycle was man's second-best pal.

You could always find parking space for it.

A bicycle would fit in the picture anywhere. Lean it up against a tree. Put it under the front porch or behind the towel rack.

No matter where you park it, the old bike was a bike until the end with its bent frame and its faithful punctured tires.

Where can you discover parking space for the motor car today?

Nowhere. Whereupon we rush to the aid of parkless humanity with a revolutionized invention.

The self-parking motor car!

It parks itself! It breaks the endurance record for gasoline breathing vehicles with monoxide perfume and re-fuels in mid-traffic.

By the aid of magnetic hubs and a gyroscopic bumper, it discovers acreage on boulevards and parking on avenues.

It parks itself. How it does it, we don't know. The patent office has asked for blueprints and specifications.

In another year we expect to be richer than one of John Rockefeller's over-dimed caddies.

Even if it doesn't work—it's a good idea.

Males Staging Clothes Revolt

stop they would have men don shorts reaching just above the knee, and sport shirts with collars open and tieless, and abbreviated sleeves. Socks and shoes would complete the costume.

The men of London, Paris and Berlin have been urged to adopt the shorts and reverberations of the call for a war on male dress have reached American shores.

In New York and Chicago, fearless males have expressed their scorn of convention by appearing in pajama costumes on its thoroughfares. Apparently they have been undismayed by the tenor of interest in their garb.

All of these champions of male freedom in dress contend that men should no longer suffer in stifling weather but take their cue from the opposite sex which, though pictured as weaker, has shown far more courage and independence. More comfort and less clothes is the watchword.

Some time milady's four-pound costume may be matched by men's garments but right now most of them seem content to bear up under their 10 pounds of clothing. But who can predict what the future may bring?

Skelly Closes Radio Dispute

erator of the station as a hobby. Behind the Tulsa station was William G. Skelly, Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma and oil king of that section.

In an effort to improve the facilities of his station, Skelly applied to the commission for the wave length then held by Henderson's station, and the hearing that ensued was the most colorful in the annals of the commission. Henderson appeared with nearly a dozen lawyers, a score of witnesses, and 267,000 signed and attested affidavits in support of KWKH, by way of defending his wave length. He apologized for the small number of affidavits, but explained that a large portion of the number sent in had been improperly made out and that another large number had been lost when the plane carrying them from Shreveport to Washington, crashed and burned at Birmingham. When opposing counsel objected to the acceptance of the affidavits without a thorough examination of them, Henderson had the entire number rolled into the hearing room on baggage trucks, and offered them to the opposition for individual inspection.

Skelly claimed that Henderson's station had charged him with being "a bootlegger, a crook, and a member of the Teapot Dome oil ring," and his son "with being a German spy."

When the federal radio commission refused to give Skelly the wave length and power held by Henderson's station, he appealed to the court of appeals of the district.

MABEL WRITES ON POLITICS

Ancient Alliances Are Explained by Woman

dollars which found its way into a safe-deposit vault.

Bootleg King Petitions President

The influence of liquor in politics begins down in the city wards and country districts. But it extends if it can, up to the cabinet and the White House in Washington.

After the notorious "king of bootleggers," George Remus, had been convicted, and successfully lost his appeals to the circuit court and the supreme court of the United States, the rumor reached me that he would never serve a day in Atlanta prison, to which he had been sentenced. A few days later, a phone call came from the White House, stating that a respite of 60 days would be granted Remus if the attorney general would send over the necessary papers to effect the result. Prominent politicians, including the then Senator Reed of Missouri, had intervened with the president to urge delay.

The natural impulse when the White House phones to any department is to rush into acquiescence to the request. But Attorney General Stone viewed it as a duty to inform the president of facts. We prepared a brief summary of the actual facts. President Coolidge refused the respite, and shortly after that the gentleman Remus took up his residence on "millionaire's row" in Atlanta penitentiary, where, with other wealthy prisoners he succeeded in bribing the warden to extend them special favors, for which the warden was in turn convicted and served a sentence in the institution he had once "managed."

While his case was before the supreme court of the United States on appeal, Remus figured in another case, turning on the use of politics by "liquor bandits." It involved the Jack Daniels distillery at St. Louis. The jury returned a verdict of guilty against 23 of the 26 men involved in the conspiracy. Among them were a state senator, a former collector of internal revenue, a former circuit court clerk, a former deputy sheriff, and a member of each of the city committees of the Democratic and Republican parties.

"Absorbing" a Distillery

The notorious Remus was the moving spirit in more ways than one. He devised the plan which succeeded in getting the whisky out of the distillery. First, he made a connection with both the Democratic and Republican politicians in St. Louis and secured an introduction to the collector of internal revenue. The collector agreed to change gaugers at the distillery and to substitute for the old, honest, experienced man a man suggested by Remus and his political friends. The collector did not accept a bribe. He simply did what the politicians told him to do. His job was dependent upon their continued good will. After securing the removal of the old gauger, the conspirators had the whisky siphoned into a garage across the street and water was substituted in the barrels remaining in the distillery. The collector was convicted and went to Leavenworth. He paid the price for his law violation, but some of the politicians back of him who exerted the influence over his official acts remain unpunished.

Very early in my tenure of office I ran into the powerfully entrenched influence of anti-prohibition sentiment and the tie-up between liquor and politics in New York. A courageous agent who reported evidence as he found it, irrespective of who the defendants might be, turned in very plain proof of a violation of law connected with the Green River and Eminence distilleries. It involved the handling of liquor by the La Montagne brothers, one of whom is a relative by marriage to the president of Columbia university, who is one of the most violent and vocal foes of the 18th amendment. The La Montagnes pleaded guilty and served a term in the local jail, in addition to being fined $2,000 each; but every conceivable political and personal appeal was made to quash the case, including an appeal by a cabinet official. It was reported that $18,000 was voluntarily "contributed" to the deficit left in the Republican national campaign by politicians who secured permits for the distilleries that released the liquor in question.

Attorney General Daugherty called me to his office and told me of the pressure that had been brought on him to "call off any further investigation in this matter." I conferred with the United States attorney and, learning the nature of the evidence, advised the attorney general that the United States attorney could not be, in good conscience, requested to withdraw from the case without himself becoming an accomplice in suppressing a crime. The attorney general agreed. The grand jury investigation proceeded. There was no trial because the defendants pleaded guilty and quietly went to jail.

Philadelphia for many years has been known as a center of the illicit alcohol ring. Consequently, liquor cases, there, play a very big part in city politics. A number of whisky and alcohol distillers organized several companies with interlocking directorates. Well-known state and national politicians assisted these five interlocking corporations to acquire permits. One day two inspectors, Connor and Quigley, watched a truck being loaded with unmarked pure grain alcohol. Seizing it, the driver, Joseph Aiken, was placed under arrest. There stepped forward a young lawyer named Ben Golder who secured prominence by juggling those cases. The evidence in one showed violation of the law to the magnitude of 300,000 gallons of bonded whisky released on 25 fraudulent counterfeit government permits. Underlings, however, were the only ones charged with an offense by United States Attorney Coles. When one case came up for trial the driver offered a plea of guilty. Connor and Quigley, the agents, stepped forward and asked the judge for permission to state the facts of the case. The judge listened to their recital and ordered the United States attorney's office to make a thorough investigation. However the only result to the government in enforcement of the law was a plea of guilty of two figureheads and a $1,000 fine!

Political Bee Stings Enforcement

In the meantime Mr. Golder's reputation was growing. He enjoyed a large "alcoholic" practice and was elected to congress, where he sits today. When the new prohibition administrator, Samuel O. Wynne, was recently appointed in Philadelphia, the first political request that reached him was from Congressman Golder to the effect that he get rid of Connor and Quigley. Colonel Wynne looked up their records—and promoted them to senior investigators!

It takes backbone to stand up against the corrosive influence of politics. Plenty of men can be found, however, who will do it. The men put in as United States attorneys and as prohibition administrators can stand firm, do a clean job on law enforcement, and still be fair to the politicians if they themselves are not possessed by an overwhelming political ambition.

I am thinking of one United States attorney, particularly, who is serving now in one of the most difficult districts in the country. He is a man of good personal character and an able lawyer; but the political bee has stung him. He has long looked covetously at a nomination for the governorship of his state. He sees the mirage of political advancement on every horizon. As a consequence he is timorous and yields to expediency and an over-solicitous desire to consult with political leaders when evidence is laid on his desk demanding prosecution that may not prove to be popular with the public. He can't enforce the prohibition law with one eye out for popularity. His ambition makes him unequal to his task. If law is to be enforced in his district, he will have to be replaced or learn to submerge his political yearnings in an aggressive pursuit of the duties of the job he has.

I do not object to politics. I have always been more or less active in political matters. I am not willing to be regarded as, nor perhaps is it unfair to call me a "politician." I just hold to the philosophy that in the end the best politics is playing the game squarely and enforcing the law vigorously.

The Underworld Vote

Politics, from the county courthouse and the city hall to the national capitol and White House in Washington, have been most responsible for the failures of prohibition enforcement.

I'm not minimizing the effect of the thirst of a large number of people for alcoholic liquor. But that's the other side of the picture. If they were not thirsty they would obey the law and enforcement would not be a problem. Obedience to law is ideal—and far more to be desired than enforcement. But we must face facts. And the fact is there's too large a number of people unfriendly to the 18th amendment to expect at this time enough voluntary obedience to it to save our national honor.

You can neither coax, scold nor nag people into law observance. Consequently, enforcement is the necessary approach at this time. Enforcement in court, not promises. Orderly enforcement. Strictly legal methods of enforcement. Enforcement by trained, highly intelligent men, imbued with high morale and a pride in their service. Courageous enforcement. Enforcement backed up at Washington. Everybody would not like such enforcement, but everybody would respect it—even politicians.

Politics has said: Enforcement can't be orderly because it must be periodically relaxed when we need the underworld vote. It must not even be as strong as the law is in a place like New York, where people are "touchy" on the subject. We must appoint, not trained men but those who got the vote out and who will be "reasonable" with the "boys."

Some evasive politician from a district where the dry sentiment is very strong, in order to capture the dry vote at an approaching election, is always urging the headquarters office to issue "Pollyanna" statements of how many agents will be rushed into that quarter and how effective prohibition is going to be—tomorrow—always tomorrow! Or when some agent or officer does act with courage, old "Political Pull" pussyfoots around the offices at Washington and gets some puerile "higher-up" to issue a vacillating statement or apology. No wonder at such times courageous agents on the "fighting line" lose their morale!

But one battle after another to try a case or remove an incompetent attorney has made me know that fine results can be obtained, even in the constant warfare against politics, by grit, persistence and a united front!

ZEP PREPARES TO GIRT GLOBE

Dirigible Groomed For World Trip

LAKEHURST, Aug. 5. (US)—The Graf Zeppelin today is being groomed for the forthcoming Hearst-Eckener around-the-world flight, which has captivated the imagination of millions of persons on this planet.

Wednesday at midnight is zero hour for the start of this dazzling adventure.

Besides the Zeppelin's famous skipper, Dr. Hugo Eckener, a distinguished company will make the voyage.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, renowned polar explorer; Lady Drummond-Hay, brilliant British woman, and Karl H. von Weigand, veteran newspaper correspondent, will embark with Doctor Eckener.

That a giant dirigible, peopled, fueled, cargoed, actually is on the eve of such a magnificent argosy today made the queenly Zeppelin a focus of intense interest in every detail of the preparations.

Instead of the "blau" gas which kept her Maybach engines thrumming steadily on the way across the Atlantic ocean, the Graf this time will find power in ethane, a fluid which vaporizes as it is introduced to the motors.

McKelvie Warns Against Crowding Wheat Market

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 5. (UP)—Wheat growers are making a mistake by overcrowding the market, Samuel R. McKelvie, recently appointed to the federal farm board to study the grain situation, warned today in a statement. The statement, he said, was not to be construed as an expression of the federal farm board.

"There is a disparity of from 12 to 13 cents between cash wheat and wheat contracted for delivery Dec. 1," he said. "This grain can be carried on the farm at a cost of from 3 to 4 cents a bushel until Dec. 1, so it is readily seen that the farmer is paying around 10 cents a bushel more than he should for handling the grain over the period in question."

ARCHER JURY INDICTS PAIR

Burglary Bills Voted In Monday Session

Indictments naming William Lee and Leo Belew in charges of burglary were returned Monday afternoon in a partial report of the 30th district grand jury at Archer City, according to information given by George Berry, assistant district attorney.

Lee is charged with burglarizing the home of W. D. Pace in Archer City on July 30. Belew is accused of having entered the home of Albert Roark on the night of July 4. Both men are in jail in Archer county and will be called to trial on Thursday of this week, Mr. Berry announced.

The grand jury recessed for the night after its partial report, and will reconvene at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. Its investigations are expected to be completed by noon Tuesday. The body was impaneled and briefly charged by Judge Allan D. Montgomery Monday morning on the opening day of the August term of the court.

RELIEF AGENCY IN TEXAS SEEN

Marketing Ass'n May Handle Farm Board Funds

DALLAS, Aug. 5. (AP)—The Farmers' Marketing Association of America, Inc., which has the bulk of its membership and strength in Texas, may be designated as one of the agencies that will handle funds of the federal farm board to be distributed in Texas for the stabilization and orderly marketing of cotton and other crops, it was brought out at the annual meeting of the association here today.

M. H. Wolf, prominent cotton man of Dallas, told of his trip last week to Baton Rouge where he attended a number of meetings of the federal farm board and discussed the agricultural situation with individual members of that body.

It has been clearly brought out that the federal agricultural relief fund will not be disturbed to individuals but through reputable and successful cooperative agencies, Wolf said.

"Records," he added, "show that about 8 per cent of the cotton farmers of the South belong to co-operative marketing associations, leaving 92 per cent out of reach of the board."

Two former lieutenant governors of Texas, Lynch P. Davidson of Houston and T. W. (Whit) Davidson of Dallas, were among the other speakers.

Fred David, former state agricultural commissioner, discussed the effect of continued good prices, declaring that by stabilizing the price of cotton and providing more money for the farmers their living conditions would be improved greatly and that they would be able to decrease the amount of acreage now planted in cotton.

"All agencies except the producer who have anything to do with cotton are in a position to establish prices on this commodity," he said. "It is a challenge to the cotton farmer of the South to cooperate in the orderly selling of his crop, and he must see that he gets more for the crop than it takes to produce same."

Delayed Firemen Reach Blaze Nearly Too Late

Firemen were called to 200 Flood street, near the Spudder ball park, about 5:20 o'clock Monday afternoon when fire of undetermined origin broke out in a vacant house at that address. The small house was quickly gutted by the flames and was almost a total loss before fire companies arrived. The owner of the house, whose name was not ascertained, was said to be in Dallas at the time of the fire.

Due to a mistake in turning in the alarm, fire trucks went to 200 Bluff street and were delayed several minutes in getting the correct address of the blaze, fire department officials said.

TEXAS AWAITS COTTON REPORT

Official Estimate to Be Released August 8

By LEROY PLUMLEY

DALLAS, Aug. 5. (UP)—Texas, with all the world, is anxiously awaiting the official government cotton report, to be issued at 11 o'clock the morning of Aug. 8.

The tenseness of this anxiety is accentuated by the importance of the estimated cotton crop for this year, which will determine not only partially the range of prices and the course of speculation but also the value of crops of Texas cotton growers.

This anxiety is further promoted by weather conditions over the state, which are as varied as anyone could expect.

Heat Hurts Crops

In southern, southwestern, southeastern and eastern parts of the state the crop is damaged some because of too much moisture, while in the north central, northwestern and west central parts, the lack of moisture has made the growers uneasy.

Excessive heat has ruled in the northern sections since early June with temperature in the last three weeks ranging from 100 to 108 degrees, according to reports. Experts say this condition is rapidly becoming critical and if the heat condition is not relieved within the next week or two the growers in this area will suffer severe losses.

A good general rain, which would stop soon enough would relieve the situation. Showers will help some but will invite trouble from leafworm and weevil.

Leafworm is proving a rather serious menace in the southern section at present, where ginning is at its peak while the boll weevil is giving the most trouble in the Rio Grande valley section. Reports from San Benito show nearly 10,000 bales of cotton ginned, with a little more than 75 per cent of the crop harvested.

A rather peculiar situation exists in the central area, in the fact that first cotton has already been baled in some places, even though cotton this year was planted late. This is of course due to the extraordinary long heat period. First cotton has been baled between July 26 and 30 in Waxahachie, Fort Worth, Hearne and Taylor.

Harvest Starts Soon

Harvesting will be under way in general in the north central and western sections between Aug. 20 and Sept. 1.

If attacks from boll weevil and leafworm become much more serious, Texans will be at a loss in fighting the pests, since it is reported there is a general shortage of calcium arsenate, a poison used in fighting the insects.

Condition of cotton in Oklahoma is reported good in most sections. Weevils are worrying the eastern half growers but the condition there is not serious.

Even though a rather disheartening situation exists in some sections, many cotton men are of the belief that the general condition will turn out to be average and perhaps a bit above average.

Meanwhile, they are either praying for rain or sunshine, as their crop may demand, as they await the report of the government.

Wichita Man Says He Is Full of Life and Energy

Walter Ford Gains Several Pounds On Orgatone in Few Weeks

"I have gained several pounds by taking Orgatone, and I feel better in every way than I have in several years," said Walter Ford, who resides on rural route 3, Wichita Falls, Texas.

"I suffered with awful stomach trouble and indigestion and was in a general run down condition for several years," continued Mr. Ford, "and I was constipated and I was continually having to take some strong purgative. Nearly everything I ate would sour and my stomach would fill all up with gas, and cause such suffering that I could hardly get any sleep to do me any good at night. Belching was the only way I could get any relief, from this distress, and I was low in spirits and didn't have any energy and just had to drive myself to do anything. I kept losing weight and getting more run down all the time. I tell you, I was getting in a pretty bad way when I heard so much talk about this Orgatone.

"I started it a few weeks ago, and before I had finished the first bottle I found my nerves were steady and my food began to agree with me and it seemed as if I could just feel what I ate doing me good, and getting my strength back. I began to sleep all night like a child, and when I got up I felt like somebody and went to my work full of life. Orgatone sure reached the spot in my case and I am mighty glad to tell you what I think of it. It's the best medicine I ever saw, and I don't mind telling that to anybody."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by the Allison's Drug Store.—Adv.

Row Over Fiddle Leads to Killing

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 5. (UP)—A quarrel over borrowing a fiddle today had led to the death of one man and the critical wounding of another.

J. Clem, 69-year-old fiddle maker, was in serious condition in a Tulsa hospital today after a shooting at Red Fork late Sunday in which W. B. Williams, 52-year-old florist, was killed. The quarrel started when Williams was refused the loan of one of Clem's fiddles.

Williams was killed by a single wound through the heart. Clem was wounded twice.

Williams had served two prison terms for murders, officers said. One was served at Leavenworth and the other at McAlester. He was released from McAlester three months ago.

Altus Laundry Robbed of $300

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Aug. 5.—Over $300 in checks and currency was stolen from the safe of the New Process laundry here between Saturday night and Sunday morning when an unidentified burglar entered the building through an alley window and broke the combination of the safe.

The job was thought by local police to have been done by a professional since a towel had been used to erase all finger prints on the safe.

Laundry officials declared that about $200 of the money was in checks and police hope to intercept the robber through the possible cashing of the checks.

Although more than one person may have entered the building only one set of tracks were found beneath the entrance window. No other clues have been found and no arrests have been made.

MUST PRORATE VET PENSIONS

Payments According Those Given Preference

AUSTIN, Aug. 5. (AP)—The fund to pay Confederate veterans pensions must be prorated among those given preference in sharing in it if it is insufficient to provide $25 monthly to the veterans and their widows, W. D. Lawrence, assistant attorney general, held today.

The opinion was given to Comptroller S. H. Terrell, who asked if he should issue warrants for the maximum amount allowed under the law or whether the fund should be prorated so as not to create a deficiency. Terrell said the fund was not even sufficient to pay the allotment in full given those in the preferred class.

He said there would be available in the pension fund for the quarter ending Aug. 31 the sum of $551,747, and with 8,000 pensioners on the roll entitled to receive $25 monthly under a law recently enacted by the legislature, this amount would be "insufficient to pay them in full."

The law gives preference to widows of veterans 75 years old or over.

"It seems to us there is only one possible construction to be made of the clear language of this act," Lawrence said. "That is, that there is established by this law a clear preference in behalf of Confederate veterans who have qualified for pensions, and widows over the age of 75 years, for $25 per month out of the available pension fund, to the exclusion, where the fund is insufficient, of the other qualified pensioners, being widows under the age of 75 years. It is to be regretted of course that the law must be so held, but the legislature has left by its enactment no other alternative."

A Daily Illustrated Poem For Children

PETER AND WENDY

My ducks are so funny, I think.
They peck at the bugs in the ground,
And always wherever they go
They follow each other around.

They like to play Follow the Leader.
Just watch them awhile and you'll find
There's one of them always in front,
The other one always behind.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

THUNDER—AND VANITY ON THE LEFT

For some strange and obscure reason, the notion persists that women are the vainer of the sexes.

But never, so far as I know, has a woman parted her name in the curious manner which some men affect. F. Scott Fitzgerald might be the name of a woman but we know it to be that of a man by its part and psychological marcel. F. Marion Crawford is the name of a man for the same reason.

Accused as we are of vanity, I know that women will never resort to this curious conceit.

Men, of course, are responsible for the wide circulation of the delusion that women are more vain than men. But many women, oddly enough, have aided and abetted them and given comfort to the enemy by agreeing with them.

I don't understand this. Men are first attracted to women because of their looks, not on account of their brains. Indeed, in the very nature and significance of this attraction there is reason to believe that every man considers himself worthy of only attractive women. That, my dears, is vanity.

But if a woman devotes any attention to her shiny nose, she is vain. Her lipstick is further evidence of her vanity. If she looks into a mirror to arrange her hat or dress, she is vain. Everything she does by way if improving her personal appearance is attributed to her rooted, incurable vanity.

So men say.

But would they have us appear other than at our best? The answer is obvious and in any court of law man would be held equally guilty as an accessory both before and after the act and fact. Man, however, disclaims his responsibility. Chivalrous, I calls it!

The indictment that women are the vainer of the species is of such long standing that a great many people have actually come to believe it. Including some women. The truth of the matter is that it is fallacious to conclude that we are vain simply because nature requires us to devote special attention to our appearance.

It is not a sign of vanity to powder our noses. A shiny nose is something we should properly be ashamed of.

That—and if, like some men, we parted and marcelled our names on the left.

Or am I wrong? Do you know of a woman who puts her name up in curling papers like the F. Scott Fitzgeralds?

Are you troubled and do you need advice? Betty Brainerd will reply personally to those sending stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Men Who Save For Future Don't Miss Joys of Present

Does the Man Who Saves for the Future Miss the Joy of the Present?—When Should a Wife Go to Work for Her Husband?—Best Proof of Love.

Dear Miss Dix—I am married to a fine man who is very good and kind to me and provides liberally for me in every way, but we cannot agree on the matter of saving money. I came from a family where we spent everything we made and we didn't own our own home or have anything laid up for the future. My husband came from a family where they were taught to save and look out for the future and they have houses and money in the bank. But I think my family's way is the best, because you have more fun as you go along, while my husband thinks his family's way is the best because you are looking out for your old age, but that is a long way off yet. What do you think? —MRS. J. P.

Answer—I think your husband is exactly right and that you are altogether wrong and I do not see what better proof you want of this than merely to contrast the position of your family and your husband's.

Which has the better position in the community? Which has the respect of those among whom they live? If sickness should come, which one would be able to have the medical attention, the nurse and care than might mean life or death? If the factory should shut down or the store change owners, on which household would the lack of employment fall hardest? When old age comes, what will be the fate of your parents and what the fate of your husband's parents?

It isn't hard to answer these questions. The man who owns his own house has a standing that the floater who moves from house to house, possessing no inch of property of his own, never has. The people who are respected, who carry weight in every community, are the solid, substantial citizens with money in the bank. Sickness and lack of employment are misfortunes to the forehanded, but they are tragedies to those who have nothing laid up for a rainy day. And nothing else in the world is so terrible and piteous as dependent old age.

A very wise man once said that ability to save was the test of success. If you could save your money you would succeed in life. If you spent everything you made you would be a failure.

And this is true, because if you do not save you will never have the means of taking advantage of the opportunities that come your way. If you have a poor job you will have to stick to it because you cannot take the risk of quitting it on the chance of finding a better one. Nor can you shift your occupation if you find out that your talents lie in some other direction than the way in which you are traveling. You must go on with work that is distasteful to you and in which you can never do your best because you are driven on by the day's need.

More than that, nothing breaks down a man's morale worse than never getting ahead. It takes all of the courage and energy and ambition out of him to toil day after day, and month after month, and year after year, and at the end to have no results. Just a pile of bills for automobiles you have worn out, for dresses that are in the ragbag, for parties that you have given to people who care nothing for you, for theaters that bored you.

Old age seems a long way off from you now, but it will be upon you before you know it, and then, if you have spent everything you made as you went along and saved up nothing, you will know how bitter is the bread of dependence and how steep another man's stairs. There will not be a depth of humiliation you will not suffer and you will be forced to accept grudging charity from relatives or live upon your children, unwelcome guest of your in-laws.

And in the meantime you live in the shadow of disaster because sickness and hard times come to all and sad is the fate of those who have nothing to fall back upon in that evil hour.

So, my dear Mrs. J. P., try to realize how much wiser your husband's family is than yours, and learn to deny yourself the foolishness you want today in order that you may have something worthwhile later on. Remember that these first few years of your married life will settle whether you will be prosperous and living on Easy street at middle age, or whether you spend your old age in Poverty Flat. And remember that just as there is no blessing that a man can have equal to a thrifty wife, so there is no curse that can befall him so great as having an extravagant wife. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am married to a man who has no earning capacity. He will not work regularly and when he does make a few dollars he throws them away on automobiles and gas, with the result that we have nothing and are always dodging bill collectors. I have two wonderful children and I am determined they shall have an education, but with such uncertain work as my husband does they have small chance of getting even the first years of schooling. My husband is fond of his children, even if he doesn't care enough about them to work for them. Now here is my problem.

Shall I stay at home under the present circumstances and probably bring more unfortunate children into the world that we cannot provide for nor educate? Or shall I leave my husband and go back to my old job where I can make enough to take care of these children I have and educate them properly? —MRS. H. T.

Answer—When a woman has a husband who is lazy and shiftless as yours apparently is, she is sensible if she just accept the fact that he is as he is and that she cannot change him and organize her life on that platform.

For the ne'er-do-well is the most hopeless proposition in the world. The drunkard frequently reforms and gives up liquor and becomes sober. The philanderer gets tired of chasing women and becomes a home body. Even the gambler often recognizes that the odds are against him and eschews games of chance. But no miracle ever happens that galvanizes and puts energy into the inert body of the loafer and makes him willing to work or gives him the strength to carry on when the novelty wears off a thing and it is just a question of sticking to a hard job.

So the woman who finds out that she is married to a man who won't work and support her had as well face the truth that she has to be the breadwinner for her family and the sooner she gets at it the better. Then she can do one or the other of two things. She can kick her no-account husband out of the door or she can keep him along as a domestic pet as he would a house dog. And sometimes he is pleasant and amusing enough to pay for his board and keep by his society and by furnishing his wife with something to take care of and caress. A necessity that women unfortunately seem to have.

In your particular case it seems to me that your duty to your children far outweighs any obligation you have to your husband. He has reneged on his obligation as husband and father and so you have a perfect right to ignore him if you care to. Besides, you can do nothing for him and you can do everything for your children by giving them their chance in the world.

Moreover, if there is any spark of manhood left in your husband, the fact that you are leaving him in order to do for your children what he should do will fan it into flame and make him go to work and do a man's part toward his family. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—What is the best proof of love? How can two young people prove which one loves the other the better? —CURLY.

Answer—The acid test of love is unselfishness. When you put somebody else's happiness and good before your own—that is love. Whichever one of you is willing to give up the most to the other, loves the most. —DOROTHY DIX.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5. (US)—No woman should miss seeing Hollywood. It will make her eyes ache.

To see even half of all that startles you, it is necessary to be led by someone so you can give your eye sight full play, without bothering about traffic. Sometimes you are sure you are "seeing things," and you pinch yourself to find it hurts.

A girl, tiny, with a tight black velvet skirt two inches above her knees, walked in front of me yesterday, her arms bare, her legs bare, her blouse of flowered silk gathered into a waist like a wasp. No hat, sun burned hair, green leather shoes, and get this—a diamond bracelet, with stones that should weight about a carat, (if you measure bottle glass in carats) around her wee ankle. If she didn't knock you out, the bracelet would.

Into a famous steak place for dinner, where very much dressed up people sit on stools along a counter and watch their orders cooked on an open grill. And oh these California waiters! If only a few of them could survive the rigors of New York! I heard one of them tell a man who said his steak was good: "Well sir, it gives quite a distinctive feeling to a man to give you the kind of food he should give you. Quite a distinctive feeling."

Fancy that!

There isn't a high hat in California. I saw a woman who used to be that way in Denver, chatting affably with the little roll girl who passed buns in a big hotel.

But you should have seen the girl! She gives you a biscuit with real anxiety in her face, for fear it might be that you wanted poppy seed instead of sugar buns. Then she throws you a devastating smile, and you eat and eat, just to see her do it again. She didn't wait for the men, as the roll girls in New York do, she was that way with everybody, particularly with older women and she was just a slip of a young thing.

The streets, the stores, the cafes are packed with women. Men are a real treat. At luncheon you seldom see a man without five or six women with him. I saw a party of two yesterday enlarge gradually until the man had 10 women guests. The women paid their own checks.

A big hotel in Hollywood where the movie directors eat, and the women dress as they would for the big scene in the third act. It was very warm yesterday, and a young thing sat there in a flame red suit with a white fur collar turned up till it almost hid her head. Wooly, hot looking fur. Her tight hat was white straw that covered all her hair, and her eyes were made up heavily.

A tall brunette in bright red with big white polka dots. And a hat like a red sun, just about to set. She walked around among the tables and went out to telephone and she let every director in the place see her, and mark you, see her well! You never can tell what it will get them, or who.

And—take no chances.

The town is full of rich widows. They say it's a grand place to retire, but you see so few who are retiring.

◇ ◇ ◇

Between the bright sun, everlastingly shining, and the gay dresses everywhere, you are reminded of what one author said: "That this everlasting sun reminds you of a woman with a bright red satin dress who puts it on every morning.

BRIDGE PLANS ARE PROMISED

Immediate Work on Red River Projects Seen

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 5. (UP)—Engineers from the Oklahoma and Texas state highway departments will start to draw plans for the three most important bridges over the Red river at once, Lew Wentz, chairman of the Oklahoma highway commission, said Monday.

Wentz, with S. C. Boswell, another commissioner, worked out a definite arrangement with the Texas commission last week whereby the two states would share 50-50 in the expenses of building three bridges across the river at all important points.

The three major bridges will cost approximately $700,000. Oklahoma will pay $350,000, Wents said.

The first three bridges, considered the most important, will be built on highway No. 75, south of Durant and north of Denison; on highway No. 77, south of Marietta and north of Gainesville, and on highway No. 81, south fo Waurika and north of Ringgold.

Any existing corporation will not be precluded from submitting a proposal of sale, Wents said. However, the two commissions are inclined toward new and modern structures.

Under the agreement with the Texas commission it is also planned to make a survey of the entire situation along hte Red River with a view to other free bridges, where necessary and where they may connect state roads. The amount involved in the additional bridges would necessarily be comparatively small, Wents said.

PUTTING TASTE INTO COOKERY

Four Women Experts Rediscover Old Secret

An old secret rediscovered by four well-known women cooking experts is worth the attention of every woman in the United States. Vegetables are rated by scientists with milk and fruits as essential foods. Anything that will make good vegetables more delicious, hence more widely eaten, is of importance to the national health.

That is exactly the problem these women experts were working on—how to make vegetables so delicious that every member of the family will enjoy them and eat them. They cooked vegetables in many ways. They worked and tasted patiently. All voted unanimously in every case in favor of vegetables cooked in little water and with the addition of a dash of sugar. How simple—yet how far-reaching!

Try this simple rule today with beets, peas, string beans, lima beans, corn, carrots, parsnips, sweet potatoes, squash, onions, tomatoes, cucumbers, spinach, asparagus, beet greens and celery. Try using a little sugar and just notice the difference in flavor. Remember it does not make the vegetables taste sweet. It makes them fresher, brighter and better.

Add also a little sugar to meat and vegetable soup blends. Watch how it brings out the flavors of the meats and vegetables. A little sugar promotes successful cookery. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar (Adv.)

LOUD SPEAKER BILL PASSES

Council Adopts Anti-Noise Ordinance Again

The "loud, loud-speaker ordinance" which was passed on first reading last Monday night was adopted on second reading at the meeting of the city council Monday night at the Memorial auditorium, following the hearing of a letter from station KGKO and the Radio Retail Dealers association of Wichita Falls pledging their co-operation in the abatement of the noisy speakers in places where they create a public nuisance.

The third reading was deferred until next Monday night in order to allow time for consideration of the specifications of the ordinance in regard to the locations in which the speakers may be operated. The council indicated that there may be different rulings regarding the residential and the downtown parts of the city. Opinions of persons representing both the residential and the business sections will be heard at that time.

Bids on supplying and installing the 14 new traffic signals and on the new street markers for intersections were received at the meeting and will be compiled during the week. City Manager George D. Fairrace will consider the bids submitted and was empowered by the council to accept those which he finds suitable, contracts to be let in the near future. The city will supply the posts for the street signs and set them up in concrete bases. Plates, headers and brackets will be obtained from the firm whose bid is accepted by Mr. Fairtrace. About 1,100 plates and headers and about 50 brackets, to be used in the downtown section, will be installed.

Bids on supplying the traffic signals were as follows: Toby and company, $2,449.90; Eagle Signal company, $2,216; Horni Signal company, $2,970; General Electric company, $2,258.10; Crouse-Hinds company, $2,269. Bids on the installation of the signals were as follows: Texas Electric Service company, $1,491.30; Ever Ready Electric company, $2,690; Dosch Electric company, $5,250.

Bids for the street signs were divided into three parts, one bid being submitted for plates, one for headers and one for brackets by each of the companies. They were as follows: Municipal Sign company, $4.01 total for the three parts; Union Iron Products company, $5.55 for the signs complete, with an alternate of $5.50; Veri-Brite Sign company, $3.19, total for the three parts; American Gas Accumulator company, $1.78 for the plates and headers and $3.50 for the adjustable and $2.11 for lamp-post brackets; K. E. Mason, $6.40, total for the three parts; W. E. Sadler, $2.75, total for the three parts.

The City Wide Advertising company submitted a bid which agreed to provide signs acceptable to the city in return for a 10-year franchise in place on the signs advertising, the latter not to exceed 280 square inches, no monetary expense being involved in accepting the bid.

The council also granted a permit to W. T. Willis for the construction of an apartment house at the corner of Tenth and Grace streets following a public hearing in which no protests were made.

T. A. Hicks, of the firm of Heyser & Hicks, presented an application for installation of curb and gutter on property belonging to Mr. Hicks and another owner in the vicinity of Avenue E and Polk street, Mr. Hicks agreeing to pay one-half of the cost provided the city would pay the remaining half. The council accepted the application following a complaint from the property owner that gutters installed by the city several years ago had created poor drainage conditions which were emphasized in time of heavy rains. The work will begin in the near future, payment to be made on the terms suggested by Mr. Hicks.

Petty Thefts Continue To Be Reported Here

Marking the sixth day of a wave of petty thefts two more cases were reported to police headquarters Monday. John Matthews 514 Lake street, reported that a battery was stolen from his car while it was parked on a downtown street. D. E. Cagle, 1700 Hayes street, reported that a suitcase containing a kodak, several articles of clothing and pictures had been taken from his automobile while it was parked on Indiana avenue Monday morning.

Wichita Needs New 'Mental Attitude,' Hubert Harrison Tells Kiwanians

Members of the Kiwanis club Monday heard a drastic arraignment of citizens whose optimistic loyalty to Wichita Falls fades with the passing of boom conditions, when Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, condemned destructive propaganda which he said abounds on the streets of the city.

"Any one could be successful when Wichita Falls was literally showered with prosperity," Mr. Harrison said, "but the city will be built now, and individuals will be prospered only by a courage which can endure and conquer more adverse conditions."

Social standing should be sacrificed by men who exchange gossip which would undermine half the business houses in the city, the speaker said. The factor most needed in Wichita Falls is a new mental attitude, one which recognizes present and future opportunities instead of weeping over times that are gone, according to Mr. Harrison.

"Deep oil development and commercial aviation were named as two industries to which the citizenry of this city should give more attention," Mr. Harrison said. "The man who decries the possibilities of these projects is blind to opportunity."

The ladies' quartet of the First Baptist church, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Cole, sang several selections. Walter Nelson and Jean Montgomery were elected delegates to the Kiwanis district convention to be held in Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 2-3. Dr. Ralph Peterson, district trustee, is an ex-officio delegate. Phil Cordell, Gerald Pond, and A. A. Spencer were named as alternates.

Deputy Nabs Racing Man And Captures Beer Cargo

After a brisk foot race in which Charlie Gant, deputy sheriff, won, a man giving his name as E. Campbell was arrested and 40 gallons of beer seized in a sheriff's department raid on a Scott street house Monday night. Mr. Gant and Dick Morris, deputy, poured out 38 gallons of the beer and brought into the office a score of bottles for evidence.

The brew was discovered in a two-room house in which Campbell was found. In the course of the search of the premises, the prisoner made an effort to escape, running out through the back door, according to the account given by Mr. Gant. He was overtaken almost at once. Federal charges were filed against him.

DEMOLAYS PLAN SEYMOUR TRIP

Degrees to Be Conferred There Aug. 20.

Hope chapter, DeMolay of Wichita Falls, will confer the DeMolay degree in a ceremonial to be conducted in Seymour on the night of Aug. 20, according to arrangements completed in a conference held in Seymour Monday. The Masonic bodies of the Wichita Falls district are backing the plans by district wide publicity, officials announced, the degree work affording the first opportunity for many Masons to witness the ceremonials of the order.

The program for Aug. 20 has been planned for all the commanderies in the district for the purpose of showing the Masons that the DeMolays are in earnest and in order to give the youth of other cities as yet unorganized, an opportunity to join the Wichita Falls chapter, it was explained. Dutton Bailes, eminent commander of the Seymour commandery, has promised an attendance of between 200 and 300 Master Masons, and a number of Wichita Falls leaders in the organization are expected to join the party. Several candidates from Seymour will receive the degrees.

The visit to Seymour is the result of the first of several invitations received by the Wichita Falls degree team from neighboring towns. The team will plan a ceremonial in Olney and Archer City soon, it was announced.

DeMolay leaders Monday night reminded the membership that officers are to be installed at a meeting at Faith lodge at 8 o'clock Wednesday night.

CLINE URGED FOR GOVERNOR

Petition Here Lauds Oil Man's Qualifications

Simultaneous with the receipt of Associated Press dispatches from Austin listing nine Texas men already definitely entered in the 1930 race for the office of governor, announcement was made Monday of a petition now in circulation here asking Walter D. Cline to become a candidate for that office.

The petition states that, "whereas the people are demanding that the administration of state governmental affairs be placed in the hands of one who is capable of instituting sound business methods and principles," the candidacy of Mr. Cline would afford the voters of the state an opportunity to support a man of the required qualifications.

Mr. Cline was absent from the city Monday, and no expression as to his attitude toward the proposed action was available. The petition bore the names of about 150 citizens of this community, with many additions anticipated with knowledge of the movement being made public.

VEEDOL MOTOR OIL

DESIGNED by a German, made in Germany, built with German money, with German metal, fabric, motors . . . Yet the Graf Zeppelin flies on all her cruises with an American motor oil—The New VEEDOL.

Why? . . . Because the same engineering genius that designed and built the Graf Zeppelin also dictated the choice of its motor oil. And out of all the motor oils in the world, they chose VEEDOL.

VEEDOL made a perfect record on the first voyage of the Graf Zeppelin to the United States—the longest, hardest battle in the history of aviation.

Since that conclusive proof of its quality, no other motor oil has ever been considered.

On the cruise just ended, VEEDOL gave its usual flawless performance in lubricating the Zeppelin's 5 powerful Maybach motors. So VEEDOL now has 4 Atlantic crossings to its credit, 3 trips by the Graf Zeppelin and 1 by the Pathfinder, recently flown from Old Orchard, Maine, to Rome by Lieut. Roger Q. Williams and Capt. Lewis V. Yancey.

When the Graf Zeppelin sails on her trip around the world, VEEDOL will again be used.

Do you realize that you can stop at any orange and black VEEDOL sign and get VEEDOL of the same proven quality used

Daily Editorial

NATIONAL development, by force of circumstance, is following Horace Greeley's advice.

We're slowly but surely eating our way across the continent.

Cities keep expanding and food acreage correspondingly shrinks with the absorption of nearby agricultural areas.

States along the eastern seaboard now hardly raise a third of their table requirements.

And vast districts between the lakes and the gulf are importing the bulk of daily edibles.

The original colonies are running short of timber, have no copper, little iron, scant pasturage and meager dairy herds.

New York's breakfast egg seldom travels less than a thousand miles to meet grapefruit and melon. And nine out of ten strips of bacon sizzling on New England's skillets were prairie-born.

Six years ago, Central park added a milk cow to its zoo, because of the many Manhattan children who had never seen one in the hide and flesh.

Thus, the Mississippi promises to divide the country into two economic groups—with a strictly industrial and commercial class on one bank, and the producers of our primary needs along and beyond the other.

The West is basically self-sufficient and rich in material wealths; for which the East has become a fabricator, distributor and consumer.

From the Ohio to the Atlantic, once abundant raw products and fertilities have all but vanished.

If their factories and humans, thereabouts, were obliged to subsist upon locally furnished stuffs, mills by the thousands and peoples by the millions would soon die of starvation.

NEW ENGLAND would weave no woolens, Pittsburgh forge no steel, and New York would perish from famine within a fortnight.

Southern secession merely shut down Yankee looms, but should the grange regions and trans-Rocky commonwealths discontinue regular delivery of meats, vegetables, fruits, fibers, ores, pelts, fleeces, lumber and grain—denser-crowded neighborhoods would be utterly prostrated.

Young men with an eye to independence—farm lads convinced that the prospects and returns of agriculture do not compare with big city opportunities or earnings—and saving accounts searching for substantial (if long haul) profits, are earnestly advised to examine the waiting bargains spread along transcontinental lines.

Far-sighted business is parlaying its bets by erecting plants and establishing branches closer to supplies—crossing to lands of plenty, where locations can be obtained for less, where cheap and indefinite hydro-electric power is omnipresently available, and where help may be better housed and commissaried.

History, again repeating herself, reminds us how the Adamsons have habitually moved to fresh regions with the exhaustion of earlier larders.

And so many of these larders are depleting that, herder-like, we're compelled to occupy further feeding grounds.

Times were never riper for land booms. Jim Hill wouldn't have let the chance slip to compete with Wall street for a share of the surplus billions now hanging around the stock tickers.

Once there was a tourist who said he intended to start at 5 a. m. the next day and he actually did.

Somme of these days an airplane is going to cross the Atlantic or a ship set a new record without a stowaway aboard, but that will probably only be a new publicity stunt.

Killing Our Children—5,000 Every Year

IF A DOZEN SMALL CHILDREN were to be killed at once in some automobile accident, a cry of horror would go up from all parts of the country, and every law enforcement agency in the neighborhood would begin to investigate the why and how of it, to punish any negligence that might be discovered and to make sure that such a tragedy would not happen again.

In other words, when tragedy is brought to a sharp, dramatic focus, we notice it and do something about it. But when it is spread out we fail to notice it.

Thus, while the death of 12 children in a single accident would stir us profoundly, we do not even realize that many youngsters are killed every day of the year by traffic accidents in the United States.

During the past year nearly 5,000 children under 15 years of age were killed in traffic. In addition, children under that age were injured at the rate of more than 400 a day.

And yet the nation accepts the situation placidly. There isn't much of an outcry about it. We don't have city and state commissions holding meetings to see where the blame lies. At the very most, we only caution our youngsters not to play in the streets and to be careful at crossings.

Perhaps if we could see the details of these accidents more closely we would be more aroused by them.

Picture your own lad, for instance. He's playing with a ball. It rolls out into the street; and, with a laugh, he darts out after it. Of course, being just a kid, he doesn't stop to look; so he doesn't see the auto that is coming too fast to stop. And that's the end of him.

Or perhaps he's going to the corner store to get a package of groceries; clutching his money tightly in a grubby fist, his face serious and proud because he has been given a grownup job to do. He gets to a corner. It looks safe, and he starts out. But out of nowhere comes a truck he didn't see—and, after one frightened little scream, it's all over.

Picture that; then stop and consider that it happens, on an average, more than 12 times every day of the year in this country that prides itself on being good to its children. Add to it the fact that 400 more children are hit each day and sent to the hospital—some of them never to walk and play again. And then ask yourself if it isn't time something very drastic was done.

It may be that we shall have to spend many millions of dollars to remake all of our residence districts, so that traffic can be routed around them. It is certain we shall have to spend millions to provide more play spaces for the kids, so they won't ever have to play on or beside the streets. It may be that we shall have to put unheard-of restrictions on traffic in residential neighborhoods.

Whatever the solution may be, it is past time that we found out. Here is a problem that must be tackled without any further delay. And the causes must be removed, no matter how much it may cost. The lives of 5,000 children a year are too high a price to pay for the use of automobiles.

Wichita Falls Area Sets a New Record

THE NEWS that pipeline runs of oil in the Wichita Falls area are now larger than even during the days of the Burkburnett and the Northwest field booms must be surprising to many who have not watched oil developments closely during recent months.

The Burkburnett and the Northwest field pools were limited to comparatively restricted areas. The developments were sensational and attracted widespread attention. The pools were rich and productive, but in each case the peak was quickly reached and was followed by a gradual subsidence.

Pipeline runs which have now made a new high record are from a scattered area and are far less sensational, but there are indications that they will be longer maintained and even increased.

There is now more drilling in this area than ever before.

Operators are not getting nearly so good a price for their oil as in the days of the Burkburnett boom, but they are operating more economically and about the same number of workers are employed, although at a lesser scale of wages.

While the Burkburnett boom brought with it a boom to Wichita Falls, present developments are not causing anything like a boom. But the effect is likely to be more permanent and in the end the benefit may be greater.

Legislating For Safety

CALIFORNIA recently passed a law providing that no one could fly an airplane in that state, commercially or otherwise, unless he and his plane held department of commerce licenses. It is a law that every other state in the Union ought to copy at once.

For look what happened in California. Immediately after the passage of the act, the junkyards were filled with ancient airplanes, selling in some cases for as little as $25 apiece. These near-wrecks were planes that the department of commerce experts ruled too dangerous for use—yet up until the time the law was passed people had been flying in them every day, risking their necks in unconcerned ignorance of their danger.

If every state would pass a law like California's the nation's toll of fatal airplane accidents would be cut down amazingly.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N, INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

"The truth never hurt anybody!"

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. She loses her job in Mrs. Mayberry's millinery shop because she talks too much.

Her mother, a dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, an old friend. Through her Chatty gets a job in the files department of Mr. Van Nuys' bond house down town. There she falls in love with Dave Jordan, a young bond salesman, and he begins to pay her a great deal of attention.

Billie Langenau, in charge of the files, tells Chatty that Dave never pays any attention to any of the girls in the office except Agnes Herford, Mr. Van's secretary. When Chatty repeats what Billie said she adds a lie of her own to it—and says that Billie told her that Dave and Agnes were in love with each other. Agnes threatens to tell Mr. Van that Billie has been gossiping about her, and Chatty determines to stop her if she can.

Finally she steals Agnes' desk keys and goes through her desk, trying to find a note she has seen Dave hand to her. The note is innocent enough, but Chatty finds Agnes' diary while she is hunting for it—and in the diary is the whole story of Agnes' love for Mr. Van. Chatty tears out the pages at home that night, and sends them to Mrs. Van. Agnes does not discover the theft at once.

Billie and her sister, Sara, come to live across the hall from the Chattertons, and Chatty learns that she is separated, but still married to a man named Brewster. However, no one knows this, including George Maynew, a bond salesman, who is in love with Billie. Billie insists that she feels only friendship for George, but one night when Chatty reports that she has seen him out with another girl, Billie bursts into tears.

Chatty has a "date" for that same evening with Dave Jordan. Chatty is about to destroy what is left of Agnes' diary when Dave calls suddenly, and she hastily stuffs it into her handbag. Next morning she remembers that she left the handbag in Dave's roadster. Later that morning Agnes comes to Chatty with the diary in her hand, and asks if Chatty saw anyone go into her room the night that she stayed late. She has found it on her desk. Chatty calmly shakes her head. While they are discussing, Dave comes with Chatty's handbag, and she realizes that Dave knows all. That same day Mrs. Van Nuys phones Chatty to ask her to stop at the house on her way home.

Now Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XVIII

Chatty knew perfectly well why Mrs. Van wanted to see her.

She knew that she was going to try to find out from her all that she could about the mild affair that Mr. Van was having with Agnes Herford.

And she spent the rest of the afternoon trying to make up her mind how much—if anything—she would tell her.

"If I say anything against Mr. Van I'll probably lose my job here," she decided at last. "So I won't do that—and I'll never confess to stealing that diary. Never!"

She was pretty sure that the theft of the diary never would be traced to her.

For the only person who knew that she had taken it was Dave Jordan—and Dave had told her he never would tell a living soul what he knew.

"So I'm safe," thought Chatty, comfortably, figuring it all out through the slow, sleepy hours of the afternoon. "And Dave will get over his peeve pretty soon—and everything will be just as it was yesterday."

A little before half past five she went into the cloak room and began to freshen herself up a little for her visit. She was carefully cleaning her nails with an orange wood stick when Billie and Winnie Talcott came in to put on their street clothes.

Winnie pounced on her at once. "Say, what's happened between you and Dave Jordan?" she wanted to know. "He's never been near you all day—and really, the two of you were getting so clubby that I was expecting to hear the wedding marriage bells peal out most any minute. What's happened? Had a battle with him?"

Chatty nodded. "He's sore at me because of something I did," she said, simply, and then turned to Billie. "Going home with George in his car?"

Billie shook her head. "No," she answered. "He asked me to ride home in it, but I told him I was going home with you."

Chatty noticed then that her pretty eyes were still swollen and misty looking, as if she had cried all night and part of the day.

"Well, I'm sorry, but I can't go home with you tonight, Billie," she told her. "Mrs. Van Nuys called up this afternoon and asked me to drop in at her house tonight."

Winnie's eyes, with their pasty looking blackened lashes grew round and big with wonder. "The boss' wife?—the boss' wife called you up and invited you to her house?"

She stared at Chatty as if she thought she had suddenly lost her mind.

It was Billie who answered her. "Chat's mother and Mrs. Van are very good friends," she said, in her sweet, dignified way. "Didn't you know that, Winnie?"

Winnie said that she hadn't known it. "But listen here, Chat," she went on. "If your mother and the boss' wife are such awfully good friends, you'd better tell your mother to put the boss' wife savvy to what's going on down here. Aggie has been in papa's office nearly all afternoon, with the door shut—and if I was his wife I'd sure come down here and raise plenty of sand!" Her painted lips came together with a snap.

Then, almost instantly, they opened again. "And if I were in your place tonight, I'd tell Mrs. Van, myself, all about it" she cried. "It's only right that she should know about it! A good looking, nice woman like Mrs. Van being cut out by that prune face—"

"Hush!" Billie stopped her. "Don't give Chatty that kind of advice, for goodness' sake, Winnie. It never does any good to come between a man and his wife—it's better for Mrs. Van to find out about Aggie herself, if she's got to know about her and Mr. Van."

Chatty smiled. "I think she has found out about her," she said, quietly. "And I think that's why she wants to see me—and if she asks me any questions about Mr. Van and Aggie having lunch together, I shall certainly tell her the truth. The truth may be painful, sometimes—but it never hurt anybody"

An she sailed out of the cloakroom with her head high—and suddenly feeling that if she told Mrs. Van everything she knew about Agnes Herford she was doing only her sacred duty!

She felt fine!

Out in the office, at his desk, sat Dave Jordan.

"I was waiting for you," he said, when she came up to him. "Did we have an engagement for tonight—you and I?"

Chatty shrugged her shoulders. "Did we? Did you ask me to go out with you tonight? I don't really remember." She tried to seem as indifferent as she could.

"I know I meant to ask you to drove out to Locustville tonight to a little place I know," he said. "But if I did ask you to, will you forgive me if I beg off?"

Chatty's chin went a half inch higher in the air. "I couldn't go anywhere with you," she said. "I'm going out to Mrs. Van Nuys' house."

She wouldn't have believed that he could look at her as he was looking at her now—as if she were a stranger to him.

And all at once she had a wild, overwhelming wish to put her head down on his shoulder, with her cheek against his cheek, and cry. She wanted him to put his arms around her once more and forgive her, no matter what she had done.

Surely, if a man really loved a girl he would love her in spite of sneaking, rotten things that she did, so long as she didn't do them to harm him.

"Will you drive me out to the Van Nuys' on your way home?" she asked him, suddenly.

Perhaps, she thought, if she could get him out of this bright office, where everybody was looking at them, it wouldn't be so hard to make up with him . . . If she could sit beside him in the Pride of America, and cuddle up against him, and cry on his shoulder a little, he would put his arms around her and they would be sweethearts again.

He was getting up. "Yes, I'll drive you there," he said, grimly.

They went down in the elevator together, in dead silence. And in dead silence they walked around to the back of the building, where the Pride was parked in a corner under a fire escape.

Then Chatty spoke. "Please do show me where you found that fool diary," she said, trying to make her voice sound cheerful and natural.

He showed her. "It was lying under the car when I went out to get into it this morning," he said, coldly. "I must have brushed the bag off the seat when I got out last night . . . and Agnes' book and some things of yours had fallen out of it."

He stopped for a minute and gave her one straight, accusing look.

"I knew she had some kind of a book that she wrote things in," he ran on, in that same cold voice, "because she had it out on her desk once or twice when I went into her office to speak to her . . . and she always hid it when I came in. What made you take the thing? Were you trying to get something on her? You knew it was her diary, and that she didn't want anyone to see it or she wouldn't have kept it hidden and locked up in her desk. Gosh all hemlock! I didn't know you were like that!"

Chatty's face went white in the glow of the arc light that hung in the middle of the parking space, and her lips quivered when she answered him:

"And I didn't know you were the way you are, either! Why, you don't even give me a chance! You just bawl me out as if I had taken a million dollars from her! You're crazy about her, that's what's the matter with you! Only you can't get her because she's running around with your boss!"

She burst into tears, and went flying through the alley that led out into Kinney street before he could put out a hand to stop her.

"I hate him! I hate him!" she sobbed, standing with her head bent so that no one could see her tears and her distorted face, as she waited for a street car to take her out to Wuthering Hill.

But she did not hate him. She did not hate him at all.

It was Agnes whom she hated—and she hated her now, more than ever.

"I'll fix her!" she made up her sharp little mind, as she sat in the street car and watched the jet-black roofs of the houses she passed and the starry sky above them.

There was a little wind stirring by the time she reached the Wuthering Hill district and left the car. The moon was sailing high in the sky, and the air was filled with the smell of the first June roses. It was a night for love and for lovers. It was a night for the snub-nosed gray roadster to streak its swift way through country roads, under the moon, to Locustville.

"I could smack Agnes Herford! I could smack her down!" Chatty said aloud, going up the wide path that wound through green lawns to the Van Nuys' house. "It's her fault that Dave is peeved at me . . . running around, having hysterics about her old diary! If she'd had any pride she'd never have said a word about it! Going out to lunch with another woman's husband and then writing all about it—putting it down in black and white!"

She was filled with fury as she rang the bell of the great house and marched in.

Mrs. Van was upstairs in her sitting room.

She was sitting in her flowered damask armchair near the bay window, and on a table before her she had laid a deck of cards out in seven piles.

She looked up when Chatty came in, and tried to smile. But her face was drawn, and the smile only made it look more haggard. Her eyes were red rimmed and swollen. They made Chatty think of Billie Langenau's eyes as they had looked that afternoon.

"I suppose I show that I've been crying, too! Women are such fools about men!" she said to herself, as she crossed the big room, with its gray velvet rug, its lilac colored silk cushions and curtains, its deep brocaded chairs and its tables loaded with books and lamps and photographs in silver frames.

"How are you, Mrs. Van Nuys?" she asked, taking the older woman's soft, plump hand.

"Not very well, dear," Mrs. Van said, and her voice sounded as if she were awfully sorry for herself. "Sit down, do."

She pushed the little card table out of her way and turned around in her big chair so that she faced the girl.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—In talking about the agitation for tearing down the Sixth avenue elevated, a real estate man gave me a little lesson in psychology.

"People prefer subways to elevated roads because they don't like the idea of climbing stairs at the outset of a trip," he said. "They'll go downstairs to a subway and never think about having to walk up at the end of the trip. It's the same in business. A basement shop may be successful, whereas an upstairs shop has a hard time attracting customers. Elevated railroads are just bad psychology in the beginning."

Life's a Funny Proposition

The news that George M. Cohan is to return to the stage recalls the days when he was acting in his own productions, and when he was busy between times grinding out songs. One of those early songs of his made all kinds of trouble for editors throughout the country. It was entitled "Life's a Funny Proposition After All." Dan Daly used to sing it. The words got into the newspapers, and at least once a month the hard-working editor who had to edit the Poet's Corner, in addition to his other duties, used to get a request to reprint some lines entitled "Life's a Funny Proposition After All," author unknown.

Linguistic Changes

It doesn't seem so long ago that New York was echoing to the "Wot t'ell" and similar expressions coined by Edward W. Townsend, a newspaper writer who originated the character of Chimmie Fadden. Now the street argot runs pretty much to the commonplace—witness the following exchange at a Washington market fruit stand:

"Yuh look like money today—all dressed up, eh?"

"I gotta dress right—gotta new job."

"Don't come to me fer a recommendation."

"No chanst. But I betcha I hold the job."

"Wot'll you bet?"

"My shirt. It's a new shirt—got it fer my birthday."

"So-o-o (very disdainfully) yer brother's stayin' home today and you're wearing the shirt!"

Here and There

Paper "ankle cuffs" worn by the girl clerks in a 14th street store to prevent the marks of work shoes from showing above the nifty slippers which are donned when the home-going gong sounds . . . The painfully rough riding of some of the society folk who follow the hounds at Montauk. . . . The fact that you can get everything but "hot dogs" at the Montauk bathing pavilion. . . . Montauk summer dwellers, it seems, aren't going in for frankfurters any more between swims . . . But wait for the gastronomical reports from Coney Island. . . . The chattiness of many taxi drivers. Wonder who started this stuff about the whole tribe being surly? . . . Increasing number of signs in restaurant windows: "We specialize in the Hollywood 18-day diet." . . . The permanent sign, on Broadway in the Thirties: "Joe—specialist in fat men's clothes—just around the corner." . . . Sheepish, not to say guilty, look of motorist who has to have his machine towed out of the Hudson tunnel, where the motto is: "Step on it."

City Fishing

"See that old man," said a friend as we stood on the sidewalk near city hall. "His specialty is retrieving lost coins from subway gratings. Watch him."

We watched an old man who had shuffled up to a grating. He peered below for a minute or two, and apparently caught sight of a coin. He lowered a string, to which was attached some shoemaker's wax or a similar substance, and in a moment had brought out a nickel.

"That's his racket," said my friend. "People begin fishing in their purses for coins before they reach the subway entrance, and occasionally one is dropped through the grating. There is a big iron pan right below the grating to keep street refuse from getting into the subway. Evidently the old man makes enough out of this kind of fishing to keep him going, as he is a familiar character down here."

Photos

The old-time newspaper men of Park row never had the experience of being sent out on an assignment accompanied by a photographer, but it's common enough now. News cameramen are around in swarms when any big event happens. One newspaper which specializes in pictures, employs more photographers than reporters. If anything wearies these news hounds of the camera it is a person who importunes them to take his picture.

"What do you do in such a case?" I asked a photographer.

"We French plate 'em," was the answer.

Further inquiry developed that a "French plate" consists of going through all the motions of taking a picture, after the subject is carefully posed, but forgetting to pull the slide, or perhaps putting in a holder that contains no plate.

Yaqui Indians Take Up Pastime of Baseball

GUAYMAS, Sonora, Mexico, Aug. 5. (AP)—Civilization has given to the Yaqui Indians the game of baseball, learned by the same civilization hundreds of years ago from the North American redskin.

A Yaqui tribe at Vicam, on the banks of the Yaqui river, near here, which until recently resisted all encroachments of civilization, has finally yielded to such a point as to take up baseball and has turned out a team which has scored victories over some of the best nines in this district.

The tribe also has agreed to send its young to school, abandoning the traditional Yaqui belief that physical development and mastering of the rifle were sufficient education.

'Business Is Business,' Says Kidnaper-Killer

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, Aug. 5. (AP)—"Business is business," declared the chief of a band of kidnapers when questioned here on the slaying of a man the band had abducted.

The kidnaper explained that the ransom demanded by the gang had not been promptly paid and that therefore, in keeping with the band's "business policy," the man was put to death.

The band, numbering seven, was captured after a pistol battle in which a policeman was killed.

Peace can be attained and preserved, think President Hoover and Premier MacDonald, by stopping work on cruisers. That's boloney. Peace can never be attained without stopping work on outboard motorboats.

Crowell Farmers Plan To Erect New Gin

WHAT GOES ON 'OVER' TEXAS

Air Notes From Air-Minded Cities

(By United Press)

Aviation is booming in the town of Snyder, Texas, a town of 5,000 people which has an airport with a landing area of 3,000 acres, a hangar that will house six planes, an electric refueling pump, an administration office, plane supply room and a machine shop. A government license pilot is in charge of the field. A monoplane is used for commercial work, flying school and cross country hops.

Ten ships have already signed up to make the good-will trip from Fort Worth to Sweetwater, Aug. 10 and 11, for the opening of Sweetwater's new airport. Prizes of $15,000 will be awarded for various contests, races and stunts scheduled for the two-day event. The tour which starts from Fort Worth will be made so that the planes will stop at Breckenridge and Stamford. The new Sweetwater field includes 280 acres and one hangar 118 by 100 feet in size. A $20,000 inn is adjacent to the field.

T. E. (Uncle Tom) Blair, a resident of Alvarado and pioneer resident of Johnson county, is claiming the world's record for airplane flights for a man the age of 83 years. He has been aloft 63 times and delights in doing all the stunts known to the aviators. He is well known and a favorite among the fliers. He is hoping to get in one of the endurance flights or hop off on a voyage across the Atlantic.

The city commission of San Benito has closed an agreement with L. C. Elliott, airways extension superintendent of the U. S. department of commerce whereby land will be furnished near that city for an emergency landing field to be developed, equipped and maintained by the government.

Aviation has a large part in the thoughts of Ranger citizens for the present and the future. It is the intention of the chamber of commerce there to continue to improve the airport from time to time to keep pace with aviation; to work in behalf of the designation of Ranger as an airmail stop and to establish here in the near future an aviation training school.

The popularity that aviation is gaining at the present time may be seen in the fact that in one day 26 planes, with crews of 28 and carrying 39 passengers arrived and departed at Meacham field, Fort Worth.

A novel feature has been added to the already complete and thrilling program for the opening of the Sweetwater municipal airport, Aug. 10 and 11. Earl Aken, one of the foremost glider men in the country, will make four daily glider flights. The glider is a motorless plane designed and built by Aken of Breckenridge, and is the only commercial glider in the state. It was the first glider to be registered by the department of commerce. He will attempt to make a new glider record on the 260-acre airport there.

E. G. "Swede" Rhenstrom, operations manager, has recently been made chief of the technical staff and put in charge of all flying activities of the various divisions of the Southern Air Transport, Inc., at Fort Worth.

Crowell Council Votes To Aid Paving Project

CROWELL, Texas, Aug. 5. (Spl.)—The city of Crowell, through action of a special meeting of the city council, has agreed to pay ten per cent of the cost of paving four blocks that were recently asked in a petition presented by property owners on Houston street from the Christian church, four blocks south.

When re-presented with the petition to see if the action of the city council was favored, every sigher agreed to the proposition. Another meeting of the council is to be called right away and it is probable that at this meeting the paving will be ordered. It is to be paid for in ten yearly payments, according to the plan under way.

Briand, French Premier, Explains Plan for United States of Europe

Originator of Idea Scoffs at Hints That Federation Would Be Aimed at U. S. or Any Nation

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following presentation of the much-discussed plan for a United States of Europe, as advanced by Aristide Briand, premier of France and sponsor of the plan, is particularly interesting on the eve of The Hague reparations conference where Europe's outstanding diplomats will meet this week. The economic United States of Europe plan has moved a long step forward in the public mind in recent months because of the wide discussion of American tariff rates.

By PIERRE SALARNIER

PARIS, Aug. 5. (UP)—The germ of a plan for a united states of Europe, which came into the mind of Aristide Briand four years ago, today has grown into a three-fold form of political, economic and financial cooperation among the countries of Europe with the primary aim of maintaining European peace.

Explains Plan

Briand, now premier of France for the 12th time, in a conversation with the United Press correspondent tonight authorized an explanation of Briand's conception of a United States of Europe. The conversation was on the eve of the departure of the big French delegation headed b ythe premier for The Hague, where the world war reparations questions are to be discussed with the hope of final "liquidation."

The veteran French diplomat's idea of the United States of Europe in no way envisages any competition with the United States. He feels that America would benefit directly by a European federation, as would any nation of the old world.

Stabilizing Move

He believes that such close collaboration as is proposed would further stabilize economic conditions in Europe, thus benefitting commerce throughout the world.

Briand staunchly maintains that any development of a United States of Europe should not be aimed against any single country nor any group of countries. In fact, he argues that he would not even attempt a European federation if such a malevolent spirit could seep into it, warping it from his original ideal of fostering peace and extirpating the hatreds which result from commercial and political discords.

He regrets exceedingly that some quarters have attempted to see certain phases of his dream as menacing to any other country.

Sees Difficulties

On the other hand, Briand is entirely cognizant of the tremendous difficulties of organization of such an undertaking but he contends that it is the duty of statesmen not to shrink before obstacles.

The possibilities of success in organizing a United States of Europe are as yet uncertain, Briand explained, however, that he already has broached the subject to various European statemen.

The first step towards realization of Briand's plan would be the establishment of an organization assuring permanent contact among European countries so that, whatever problems might arise, it could be generally discussed and settled by common accord of European countries.

In regard to this phase of his project, the French premier is certain that a majority of European countries would be willing to cooperate.

HOYT TELLS OF PLANE CRASH

Yukon Flier Reports Mishap Which Ended Flight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (US)—In a thrilling report to the war department here, Capt. Ross G. Hoyt, of the army air corps, today told of his ill-fated attempt to hop to the Yukon and return from New York.

Despite the fact that the trip was not completed, Captain Hoyt states that his plane functioned beautifully, and that he believes the attempt demonstrates the feasibility of establishing air connections between points in the United States and Alaska.

Hits Heavy Storms

The early part of his report is taken up with the details of the flight in which he flew through heavy storms almost all the way from New York to the point of the accident near White Horse.

At times, during this trip, he says, he came into clear weather, but only for brief periods. He reached Nome safely, however, and the "worst part of the journey was behind me when, within 200 miles of Edmonton, the trouble began to develop."

"About half way between Prince George and Jispels," he said, "just as I was starting to gain altitude to clear the last range of mountains before reaching the prairie country, my engine suddenly sputtered and backfired, much as though my altitude and adjustment was set much too lean.

Motor Falters

"I immediately changed the adjustment and glanced at my gas-pressure gauge which indicated normal pressure. The motor, however, continued to falter and at times would stop firing completely, my forward speed keeping the propellor turning. Then again it would pick up and for a few minutes it would function smoothly, but all the time I was losing altitude.

"I saw the handwriting on the wall and realized that unless a miracle occurred, the flight was over. For that reason my anxiety was divided between the dying motor and the utter absence of any place large enough to land my plane in that rocky and desolate region.

"I had unbuckled my safety belt and was ready to jump much as I hated to leave my ship, for I saw no other way out. As I stood up in the cockpit of my plane, I obtained a better view of the ground under me and saw a small clearing which I judged was large enough for the landing provided the ground was reasonably smooth. With fresh hope I got into the seat again, buckled my belt, and circled the field for landing. I had touched ground and rolled a few feet when my right wing struck a mound, throwing my left wing into the ground.

Plane Turns Over

Almost simultaneously, the right wing struck a similar mound, throwing the right wing to the ground. Both wheels struck a hollow, the plane nosed over and I found myself hanging upside down, held in place by the belt. Gasoline began pouring out of the inverted tanks, but fortunately I had cut the switches the minute I began to nose over so there was little risk of fire. I released my safety belt, landed on my head, and scrambled from under.

GASOLINE TAX MAY BE TESTED

City of Fort Worth Plans to Protest Levy

FORT WORTH, Aug. 5. (AP)—Possibility that the city of Fort Worth would present a test case in connection with the new four-cent state gasoline tax law arose today with the announcement by City Manager Carr that the city council might be asked to approve such a move.

The city has objected to paying the tax on gasoline used by the municipality. It holds that the state has no right to tax a city and that the tax, as applied to municipal gasoline, is unconstitutional.

It is tentatively planned to purchase a quantity of gasoline in Oklahoma. This, it was pointed out, would cause the state to file suit for collection of the tax if it expected to collect the money.

Present supply of municipal gasoline is sufficiently large to make unnecessary any additional purchase until early in September, it was said.

The city manager estimated that the tax here on municipally used gasoline would approximate $15,000 a year.

'Shimmy Queen' May Quit Work

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5. (US)—Gilda Grey is going to retire—maybe.

The so-called "princess of shimmy" is through with the stage at the end of her engagement here at the Orpheum. And she may be through with the screen, too.

"If I don't get the proper vehicle for screen work," the vaudeville star said, "I'm going to retire."

Miss Grey is known to have an aversion to being noted only as a "shimmy queen." She desires work where her ability as a portrayer of emotions can be of advantage.

And so when her R. K. O. contract is up the latter part of this week, Gilda at least is quitting the road where she has been living out of a handbag for the past several years.

"I'm going to live like a human being in the future—whether it's in screen work or in retirement," she said.

Gil to Tell of His Administration's Work in Address Before Congress

Mexican Lawmakers to Hear Full Report of Revolution Sept 1, Five Months Before Election

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 5. (AP)—President Portes Gil will summarize the achievements of his administration in a message to congress at the opening of the regular session, Sept. 1, five months prior to the date on which the provisional chief executive is to turn over the reins of government to his successor, to be chosen in the national elections Nov. 17.

In his message the youthful president, now in his early thirties, will lay stress on several of the accomplishments of his nine-months'-old administration, which has been marked by outstanding constructive endeavors as well as one of the most turbulent periods in recent Mexican history.

Report on Revolution

He will embody in his message the official report of General Plutarco Elias Calles on the campaign against the Escobar rebels in March and April of this year, giving his predecessor in office the lion's share of the credit for the rapid defeat of that movement. The report will give official figures on the casualties and financial losses sustained during the rebellion and reveal other aspects of the revolution as yet unpublished.

Going into another phase of his government's activity, the president will deal with the settlement of the three-year church-state controversy, announced June 21 in simultaneous statements by the head of the government and Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, papal delegate to Mexico. He will lay stress on the pacification of the country as a result of this settlement, which brought about the end of guerilla warfare waged by Cristero bands over a period of some 35 months, and will set forth that the country is at peace, ready to devote itself to the gigantic task of reconstruction.

University Rule Changed

Among other accomplishments of his administration, the president will refer to the cessation of government control over the national university, which was made an autonomous institution under joint student-teacher management by presidential decree a few weeks ago.

He will go into detail on the anti-alcohol campaign which he personally initiated and which now is being conducted by a national committee constituted under his direction. The campaign, the president will point out, is based on "persuasion" rather than prohibition, the aim being to interest the people in uplifting diversions and productive occupants and thus wean them away from the "pulqueria" and the drink habit.

Liquor Taxes Boosted

There has been some difference of opinion as to the real nature of the campaign, inasmuch as the president some time ago recommended eventual prohibition of the manufacture, sale or consumption of liquor of high alcoholic content, and several state governments have established prohibitive taxes on establishments selling liquor.

Formulation and presentation to the present extraordinary session of congress of a projected national labor law also will come in for prominent mention in the executive's message. The labor measure has created more general interest than any other act of the Portes Gil administration and has been equally defended and attacked. The president, who drew up the project when he was minister of the interior in the Calles government, has asserted it fills one of the country's greatest needs and is one of the outstanding developments of the Mexican revolution.

Extension of facilities for education in the rural districts and several other items of interest will be mentioned in the message.

Election in November

The present administration has at least one great trial still to face, the task of conducting an orderly general election Nov. 17 falling to its lot. In this election the people will be called upon to select a successor for the provisional president and the latter has declared that not only will he insure the peoples' right to vote as they wish but he will gladly turn over his office to the man chosen to succeed him, accepting thereafter whatever post the nation wishes to confer on him, however humble it may be.

There is no indication of trouble in connection with the election and General Calles, still looked upon as the strong man of Mexico has judged the situation so promising as to allow him to make a long desired trip to Europe. He is recuperating from a bothersome illness and holding conferences for financial reorganization of the National railways, a task which the board of directors assigned to him.

G. Bernard Shaw Chides Politicians About Advertising

LONDON, Aug. 5. (AP)—George Bernard Shaw, foremost literary showman of Europe, today made a defense of "political window dressing" before the independent labor party school at Welwyn.

He pointed the moral of his tale by saying that the conservative party had lost the parliamentary general election in May because its leaders failed to realize the value of such window display. He told the labor students that the conservatives had had a good program but never succeeded in advertising it.

"By neglect of window dressing the late government contrived to convey an impression of childishness and ignorance, which resulted in their being completely discredited," said Shaw.

He described the communists as "still dreaming and talking a lot of rubbish about revolutionary classes." He thought the decline of the liberal party was more apparent than real, finding the liberals victims of the present British electoral system.

"The labor party was not exactly popular but it was the only party that was not unpopular and people voted for labor because the others were so hopeless."

The largest class in the history of Kelly field, army air school at San Antonio, Texas, was graduated in June.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. Methods of Overcoming Stammering

In endeavoring to bring about a cure of stammering, it is important to develop a self-confidence in the patient. The spasmodic contraction of the throat muscle is based on mental conflict. Sometimes this conflict is hidden in the subconscious mind, requiring the services of a trained psychoanalyst to search out and discover the hidden cause, that it can be removed and worked out.

Stammerers are very susceptible to suggestion, and it is wise to suggest over and over again that the speech is improving. Methods should be used for distracting his attention, such as having him sing or chant. The main trouble is he puts his whole attention on his effort to avoid stammering. As with one caught in quicksand, the more he struggles to overcome his handicap, the more he becomes mired.

There are a number of systems of speech re-education, but they are based primarily on four important factors: relaxation, correct breathing, vocal gymnastics, and the use of phonetics.

The stammerer is always troubled with a rigid diaphragm, a hardening of the abdominal walls, a clenching of the jaws, tongue and teeth, accompanied by a spasm of the laryngeal muscles. These must be loosened and relaxed.

These children do not usually have breath control. They will pant while gulping in air, and the tendency is to use the upper portion of the chest rather than the more wholesome diaphragmatic breathing. They must also be taught exercises to enable them to control the action of the lips, tongue and laryngeal muscles. They should also be given exercises in using the letters and syllables which they find most difficult to pronounce.

There is a very good collection of books now available to teachers, giving definite speech exercises which can be used in enabling students to overcome stammering. By using these systems of cure, the whole attitude of the child changes and also its personality and social behavior.

There are many instances of famous men who have achieved success in spite of the mental agony and difficulties associated with stammering. Among these may be mentioned Aesop, Aristotle, Darwin, Demosthenes, Erasmus, Kingsley, Lamb, Mendelssohn, Moses, Napoleon and George Washington.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Exercises

Question—Mrs. O. H. D writes: "Please tell me, what is the difference between developing and reducing exercises?"

Answer—Exercises tend to produce the normal weight, whether one is too fat or too thin. Rapid exercises help to reduce the weight and the exercises taken slowly are of assistance in increasing the weight.

Singer's Voice Gets "Clogged"

Question—Singer writes: "I am to sing at a concert and would like to know what is best to soothe the throat. While at home my voice is very clear, but as soon as I face an audience it gets clogged. This might be due to a little nervousness, but please advise me what will keep it in order for the occasion?"

Answer—There is no special remedy to take which will soothe the throat, as the substances swallowed do not remain on the vocal cords. A small amount of menthol mixed with honey sometimes gives a temporary relief. It is also a good policy not to use cold water, ice cream or any other cold substances before singing and it is also wise to not eat a very large meal before your appearance. If you have a tendency to catarrh you should attempt to overcome this by following a correct fasting and dieting regime.

Value of Greens

Question—H. F. D. writes: "I would like to know the value of spinach, swiss chard, and brussels sprouts from a medicinal standpoint."

Answer—Neither spinach, swiss chard, nor brussels sprouts have medicinal value in the sense of curing disease. However, they are all alkaline-forming foods and should be used freely, with the possible exception of the brussels sprouts, which are gas-forming with some people.

Epilepsy

Question—K. B. writes: "I have epileptic fits, and a few days before a spell my hands and abdomen jerk. I eat candy and lots of it, and I surely suffer from these spells."

Answer—Intestinal poisoning is the real cause of epilepsy. Prolapsus or kink in the colon are contributing factors. Candy and all kinds of sugar must be entirely prohibited. Please send for a special article on this subject.

New Haskell County Road District Formed

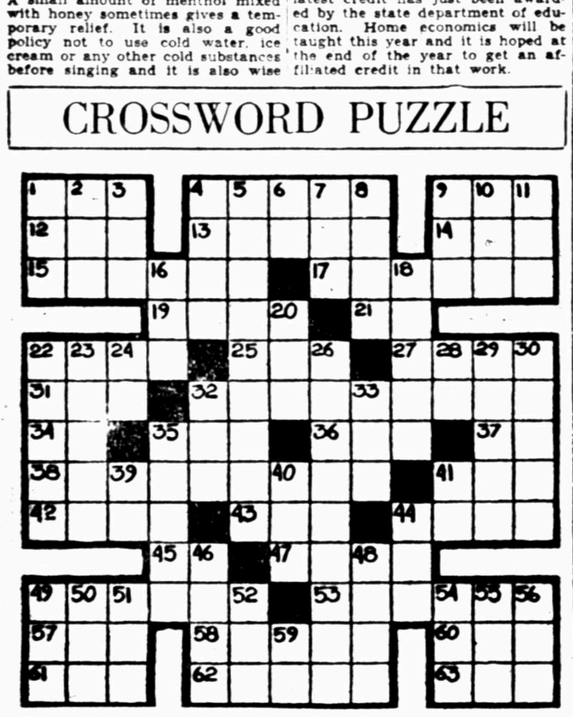

HASKELL, Texas, Aug. 5. (Spl.)—Road district No. 3 in Haskell county, which is highway No. 30, was created by order of the commissioners court at a recent meeting. A body of Haskell citizens had appeared before the court and asked for such designation. The district was formed to vote bonds to pave highway 30, which crosses the county north and south, about 30 miles long.

An election will be held soon to vote bonds to hard surface the road. Highway No. 30 is considered one of the most important of north and south highways in the state and if this stretch is paved it will mean that the road will be hard surfaced from Wichita Falls to Abilene.

WILTSE BESTS BURNS AND BLANKS EXPORTERS IN OPENER, 2-0

SPUDS DISPLAY FAST FIELDING

Swanson, Benton, Hermann And Lapan Lead Attack

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Harold Wiltse got by the eighth inning which recently has been his jinx and the Spudders showed a reversal of form yesterday over recent play by taking Claude Robertson's Beaumont Exporters into camp in the first of the three-game series. It wasn't a rout. In fact, it was a tight, excellently-pitched and splendidly-played contest. But the Spudders showed the punch and brilliant fielding, with Wiltse's own bearing down that enabled them to eke out a 2 to 0 shutout.

Denny Burns vied with Wiltse in the old-fashioned hurling duel, and it was a tough one for the Shipper righthander to lose. Burns gave up only nine hits to 12 blows by the Exporters, but the margin of victory lay in a bit more glittering defensive play of the Spudders and Wiltse's superb chucking when danger threatened.

The Spudders played errorlessly while the only misplay of the hostiles did not figure in the scoring. Bennett sparkled with no less than three sensational catches and Huber and Akers also showed some flashy fielding.

The Batting Leaders

Rabbit Benton got two hits and drove in a run and Lapan and Hermann also each whanged a brace of blows, one of Duke's going for two bases. Carl Swanson, Beaumont second sacker optioned by the Chicago White Sox, had three hits and Burns two.

Bill Kelly, hard-hitting first sacker of the Exporters was missing from the pastime after being struck on the head Sunday by a pitched ball. Dusty Boggess, the versatile utility man, was his understudy.

The umpires were changed again, Tom Erwin going away from here and Donnelly and Hunter Hill working with Les Tullos to provide a big league atmosphere of three arbiters.

Pitcher's Battle Starts

Swanson started the pastime with a single to right but was stranded on the lines.

Fitzgerald was safe when Boggess dropped and fumbled his liner and Bennett smashed a hit off Burns' shoulder but two were out and they were left.

Boggess' lift fell safely in right in the second after one was out and he advanced to third on Petrie's double to the left field wall, but Wiltse struck out Davey and Burns.

Hermann led off with a two-base smack to the left center fence, but held second on Stapleton's long hoist to Easterling. Lapan hit a long single to center, Hermann taking third. Catcher Davey threw high trying to trap Hermann off third but Huber knocked down the ball and threw out Duke at the plate, Stapleton going to second. Wiltse lifted to Petrie.

Swanson banged his second hit, a single to center in the third but got no farther. Benton beat out a hit to deep short to open the Spudder third but Turgeon fanned and Fitzgerald hit into a double play.

Spudders Field Fast

The Spudders flashed fast fielding to retire the enemy in order in the fourth. Bennett went far into foul territory for Easterling's foul; Turgeon took Boggess' bounder back of second and Bennett came in for Petrie's shoestring liner.

Wichita Falls tallied in its half. They don't pitch good ones to Powerhouse Red Bennett, the league's batting leader, and he walked and was sacrificed to second by Sullivan. Hermann singled to left, his second hit, advancing Bennett to third. Stapleton bounced to Swanson and Hermann caused the second baseman to toss to Boggess, Bennett scoring, and Hermann then was doubled at second.

Swanson got his third hit, a tap to Wiltse, in the fifth, but Davey and Burns had fanned and he was out stealing.

Lyman Lamb started the sixth with a hit to left but was forced by Akers, Benton to Turgeon, for the second out. Easterling doubled to center, Akers stopping at third. Boggess was called out on strikes.

Sullivan singled to left with two out and he got no farther.

Fire destroyed a small dwelling near the ball orchard and the fans stampeded to the top of the stands to watch the blaze as the seventh inning started.

Double Play Halts Foe

A lightning double play averted a Beaumont tally in the seventh. Davey singled to left and went to third on Burns' hit to center after one was out. Benton, Turgeon and Stapleton made the two-ply killing on Swanson's grounder to Rabbit.

The Spudders went out one-two-three.

Wiltse pitched out of a hole in the eighth. Huber singled to right and Akers beat out a roller to Hermann after one was out. Easterling popped to Stapleton. Robertson batted for Boggess and forced Akers, Benton to Turgeon.

Fitzgerald crossed the opposition by dumping a bunt and beating it out with two gone but he was left on the lines.

Petrie fouled to Lapan to start the ninth, and Bennett made a great running-in snatch of Davey's shoestring drive. Burns slashed a hit to right and Douglas ran for him, but Swanson was called out on strikes.

Subway Andy Messenger and Tom Estell probably will be opposing pitchers today. Skippers Jim Galloway and Claude Robertson indicated last night.

Dallas Bout To Test Fight Law

Mill Is Gratis Tonight at End of Wrestling Go

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. (AP)—The cauliflower industry throughout the United States is undergoing a depression this week after a burst of enthusiasm over the Mandell-Canzoneri battle. Not one of the fights on the national card can be rated as a first-class affair while the important arenas of several of the big boxing centers are without any attractions.

An interesting and perhaps important bout is scheduled to take place at Dallas, Texas, at the tail-end of a wrestling show Tuesday night. Kid Kober of Dallas and Duke Tramel are the principals. The important part is that the bout is being staged as a test for the state anti-prizefight law, no admission being charged. The fight will be staged following a wrestling match, for which admission is to be charged.

Eighteen and 36 Hole Matches

The one shadow falling across Pebble Beach for Bobby Jones and George Von Elm this far in advance is the haunting approach of the two 18-hole matches that must be surmounted on the first day of match play.

Neither is bothered in the slightest over the thought of qualifying among the first 32. Both are quite willing to take the full risk of any 36-hole test. But those forced shorter marches turn into another song. Jones just slipped through three of them by margins thinner than the segment of a toy balloon. He beat Dick Jones just one hole at Baltusrol by holding a good putt, where Dick missed a shorter one. McCarthy almost had his scalp hanging to the wigwam at Minikahda, being 2 up and 4 to play, and Rae Gorton carried him to the 19th hole at Braeburn. Von Elm's 18-hole career has been even more depressing. Ellsworth Augustus almost nailed him in the first round at Baltusrol. Then Harry Legg stopped him at Minikahda and Ducky Yates checked him out at Braeburn.

Quite naturally after these somewhat somber and melancholy episodes you won't find Jones and Von Elm, the two stars of the championship, cheering for the shorter hikes.

Yet these two 18-hole matches carry most of the action of the championship. It is here that most of the drama is lodged, that most of the excitement takes place. It might be argued that golf championships are not arranged for drama and excitement, but to find the best golfer. Even so, the best golfer must be able to sprint as well as to jog. Having perhaps the better swing, he must also be able to adjust his nervous system to the job at hand. He must make himself, if possible, face the assignment that demands action from the jump.

The Other Side of the Debate

Bernard Darwin, the able golf writer of "The London Times," has the following interesting comment to make along this line:

"The question of 36-hole matches, though it has lain more or less dormant for some time is not a new one either, nor are the arguments on either side. It may be that my view of human nature is a lamentably low one, but I cannot help feeling that the desire for a 36-hole match springs too often from the smart of recent defeat. Everybody has at some time or other lost a match as to which he has felt that if it could have gone on longer he would have won it. Everybody has felt a sudden qualm of nervousness in confronting on some more or less important occasion a player whom he usually can beat. These sentiments are not only to be discerned in the breasts of champions; it is one of the glorious privileges of the humblest of us that we share them with champions. They are eminently human; they are not too harshly to be condemned; but I cannot, for the life of me, see that they are admirable or deserve any great measure of practical sympathy. A few of these 'surprising' defeats of the mighty undoubtedly come from the humble player overwhelming his adversary under an irresistible avalanche of 3s, but this is not the common case. Far more often the big man gets a bad start, is given chances to retrieve it and is not sufficiently master of himself to take them. If he knew that he had plenty of time in which to recover from his alarms he would not be alarmed, but I am not convinced that he should be pandered to on that account. There is not one of us who in his own limited sphere has not a greater reputation than somebody else. When we meet that somebody it is good for us to be reminded that the match is not to be decided by reputation; the ball 'maun be hit.'"

The All-Round Test

The British have 18-hole matches up to the final round. But the present arrangement of the United States Golf association provides the best all-round test that golf offers.

First, there is the test of medal play in the 36-hole medal round. Then there is the test of a golfer's ability to swing into action from the start, which is more of a test of nerve control and adopting the right mental attitude than anything else.

After this the remaining golfers have their shot at the longer routes over the double round.

The golfer who can survive all three tests has proved his place beyond any argument.

To have the qualifying rounds and then the entire show at 36 holes extends the tournament beyond all bounds. It becomes a tiresome affair with little action. There is certainly no thrill for player or spectator in an afternoon match where one of the players is 6, 7 or 8 down in a hopeless spot.

There is no reason why the better and stronger golfers can't hit their top pace from the first hole. The better golfer ought to win at 18 holes just the same as at 36, if only he starts with the right mental attitude—that of wasting no time in swinging under way. This possibly isn't as simple as it sounds, but it is the main solution of the better player's problem.

The test at Pebble Beach is quite severe, especially in the way of certain carries against the wind. The harder the test the better chance the stronger entry has, for the weaker golfer can't depend so much upon putting luck and the run of the greens. He has to get there first. Upsets may happen, but this also is a big part of the game.

DAILY DOPE

THE CUBS and the Athletics apparently are about "in" with the major league pennants and nothing but a terrific slump or run of hard luck will prevent either leader from coasting home. It has been 16 years since the Bears of Chicago's north side and the White Elephants of Shibe park have met in a world series, and only once since that time have the Cubs engaged in the diamond classic. That was in the war year of 1918, when the Boston Red Sox beat the Cubs in a series of which little is recalled except that George Whiteman, the former Texan, was something of a hero.

The Athletics won four straight from the Cubs in the 1910 series. That marked the start of the dominance of the A's of Bender, Plank, Coombs, Collins, Baker, Barry and other stars, that included two world and three league championships and ended with Connie Mack dismantling his club following the loss to the Boston Braves of four in a row in the 1914 series.

As the Mackmen swept into their full glory in 1910, the Cubs faded away. The once glorious team of Tinker, Evers, Chance, Kling and Brown was broken up after 1910 and except for 1918, north side fans have been waiting for a pennant ever since.

◆ ◆ ◆

THIS YEAR the Cubs and Athletics, assuming of course that they win their respective flags, will be at the height of their power. Both are young clubs in a baseball way, that is, each has been assembled as they now stand within the past year or two. If they continue to occupy their present comfortable lead until the last day of the league championship season, there will be little to choose when they enter the October series. Each has tremendous attacking power and tight defense with superb chucking, though if one were forecasting the winner now at this writing the general choice probably would be the Athletics—but that is something to take up later.

They haven't yet won the pennants and that old saw of baseball—take nothing for granted—still holds good.

SENATORS GET MORE COOL AIR

Maybe Because They've Got More Oratory

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3. (INS)—When congress convenes again two weeks hence its members will not have to fear that contentious words will overheat already not chambers. A new air conditioning system will neutralize the atmosphere of the stormiest debate.

The elaborate system, perhaps in recognition of the senate's oratorical qualities, gives that body more consideration in the matter of refrigeration than is accorded the crowded house. Each senator will get 350 pounds of mechanical refrigeration—equivalent to the constant melting of an equal weight of ice—while 286 pounds will cool the fevered brow of the house member.

The house ventilating system pours 72,000 cubic feet of purified air into the chamber each minute, while the senate gets 60,000, but the senate's 96 members get 600 cubic feet each as compared with 470 feet for each of the 435 representatives. The gallery capacity of the houses is about the same. Full gallery attendance in the house raises the temperature from 7 to 9 degrees of yore, while the same condition in the senate increased it only 6 or 7.

The system will function in both winter and summer. The air is drawn into the capitol basement through a tower on the grounds and passes through oil filters—fine pipes covered with a sticky substance—which takes dust particles from it. Water sprays, kept at 42 degrees the year around, humidify it in the winter and dehumidify it in the summer. The warm, humid summer air, sent through the cold spray by pressure, precipitates 300 quarts of water an hour. The cold, dry air of winter sent through the same spray, then comparatively warm, is heated and saturated. The sprays also remove more dirt and dust.

Three Firemen Killed in Blast

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 5. (AP)—The owner and manager of a drug store here were arrested today as officers investigated blasts which this morning took the lives of three firemen caught beneath falling walls as they fought a blaze at the pharmacy.

Durward Dailey, 28, owner of the drug store, and John L. (Pat) Crowe, his manager, were arrested following a story told Edward P. Boyle, chief of detectives, by Warren McBride, 14-year-old delivery boy.

The boy, according to Chief Boyle, said he saw a "big tall fat man" carry liquid in a large bottle into the basement of the store late yesterday.

Record Gasser At Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 5. (UP)—The largest gas well in the world was predicted for Oklahoma City today by P. A. Sutton, production superintendent for the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company.

No. 1 Watters gauged 186,000,000 cubic feet of gas with 1,400 pounds back pressure. Sutton estimated open flow of the well will be 240,000,000 cubic feet. The well made about 3,100 barrels of gasoline the first day it was open.

The well has been shut in to conserve the gas. The world's largest gas producer now is located in California, 210,000,000 cubic feet.

Arrangements Made To Lubricate Zep's Motors

Official information was delivered to Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin upon the airship's arrival at Lakehurst that all arrangements had been completed in one of the important phases of the Graf Zeppelin's journey around the world—the lubrication of the five Maybach motors which are relied upon to take the huge dirigible on her 18,000 mile voyage. This was learned Monday through the Boardman Oil company here.

Dr. Eckener was notified by the Tide Water Oil company that in addition to two tons of Veedol on hand at Lakehurst and ready to pump into the ship's oil tanks, great supplies of the motor oil had been assembled at Friederichshafen at Tokio and at Los Angeles. In all eight tons of Veedol are awaiting the ship at strategic points around the world. The oil supplied is the same as that which was used by the Graf Zeppelin on her first journey from Friederichshafen to Lakehurst and home again, and on the journey which she has just completed from Friederichshafen.

Man Returned Here On False Entry Charges

E. E. Mosley, indicted here on charges of making a false entry for a sum over $50, was brought back to Wichita county from Fort Worth by Charlie Gant, deputy sheriff, late Monday. Mosley was arrested in Tarrant county at the request of the sheriff's office here, Sheriff W. G. Bralley said Monday afternoon.

The indictment, returned by the 30th district grand jury after its last session, grew out of entries made last March during the time the defendant was in the employ of the Exide Battery company here, according to information in the hands of Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney. Mosley's trial will probably be set for September, the official said.

QUANAH ROAD WORK ASKED

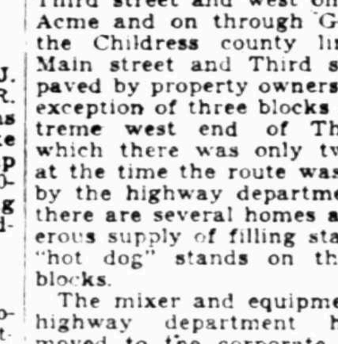

Officials Go to Austin to Seek Aid

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Aug. 5.—County Commissioner R. S. Reed and County Judge J. E. Wiley have gone to Austin to confer with highway officials in an endeavor to have the state authorize the paving of the three block gap on West Third street from the end of the city pavement to the beginning of the concrete on highway No. 5 west from Quanah. The route of this highway when accepted called for entering Quanah on East Eleventh, connect with paving on South Main at Eleventh, north on Main to Third street and west on Third to Acme and on through Goodlett to the Childress county line. Both Main street and Third street was paved by property owners, with the exception of three blocks at the extreme west end of Third upon which there was only two houses at the time the route was accepted by the highway department. Now there are several homes and a generous supply of filling stations and "hot dog" stands on these three blocks.

The mixer and equipment of the highway department has been moved to the corporate limits on West Third, and announcement was made that the gap of three blocks is not to be paved by the state. The visit of Judge Wiley and Commissioner Reed to Austin is for the purpose of endeavoring to secure a rescinding of this order.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. (AP)—Cotton was quiet today with the fluctuations attributed largely to further evening-up of accounts in preparation for the government crop report Thursday. Opening advances on reports of high temperatures in the Southwest over Sunday were checked by realizing or liquidation, but after selling off from 19.30 to 19.10 for December, prices rallied. December closed at 19.13 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 5 to 12 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points on covering. October sold up to 19.04 and March to 19.45 but the advance met realizing.

After showing net losses of about 15 to 17 points with October selling at 18.83 and March at 19.23, the market showed a steadier tone. There were rallies of 10 or 12 points from the lowest during the early afternoon. Liquidation continued. Closing prices were within 3 to 6 points of the lowest.

Three private crop reports were published. One made the condition 70 and the indicated crop 15,378,000 bales. Another placed the condition at 69.5 and the crop at 15,442,000 bales. The third made the condition 69.4 and the crop 15,390,000 bales.

Owing to the holiday there were no Liverpool cables. Exports today 10,846 making 28,534 so far this season. Port receipts 1,424. U. S. port stocks, 507,849.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 5. (AP)—Cotton worked lower today under some final liquidation in advance of the government report due Thursday.

October ultimately traded down from 18.91 to 18.73 and closed at 18.77, or 6 points net lower. The general market was steady at net declines of 5 to 6 points.

Liverpool remained closed. The local market opened steady. Active positions traded 5 to 9 points above Saturday's close.

The improvement met selling, and December touched 18.92 and January 18.27, or 16 to 19 points down from the opening.

Towards mid-session values became steadier and regained 5 to 8 points but towards the end additional selling entered the market and prices were on the down grade for the remainder of the session. Although the earlier lows were not duplicated in afternoon trading, final prices were near the bottom with December at 18.97 and January 18.97 bid.

Three private reports, issued during the day gave condition averages from 69.4 to 70 per cent, and indicated yields from 15,378,000 to 15,442,000 bales.

Receipts 8,882; for week 14,360; for year 23,521; last year 13,784. Exports 10,846; for week 11,624; for year 24,422; last year 35,134. Stocks 518,459; last year 520,437. Stock on shipboard 7,464; last year 37,068. Spot sales 7,464; last year 10,092.

New York Stocks Close Lower In Face of Advance in Call Money

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 5. (US)—Advance in the call money rate enhanced technical influences and closed the stock market lower today. Utilities were the one group to hold gains with American and Foreign-Power closing 7¼ higher, Consolidated Gas gaining 2½, Brooklyn Union 5⅛, Standard Gas 4¾ and United Corporation 2⅝. Steel closed 2⅞ lower after moving higher early in the day while other standard industrials lost from 1 to 3 points.

Recently active specialties dropped from 2 to 4 points in the afternoon setback. New Haven stood out in an otherwise reactionary rail department with gain of four points. Oils and coppers remained quiet, but evidenced a little better support. The motor group held to rather narrow price range also. From a renewal of 40 per cent the call rate was pushed to 12 per cent. Although some bankers reported funds were in better supply than last week. Turnover dropped under the 4,000,000 share level.

There was more heard of the "English bank rate" than there was last week when the National City bank first warned that an advance could not possibly held off much longer. Technical factors warranted some reaction in the market and the English rate was seized upon as a reason. An advance in the English rate, however, would not necessarily be bearish on our stock market. If maintained for any length of time it might mean gold exports from here unless the reserve took protective measures. Under current conditions in the money market, however, even a 6½ per cent rate in England would not make much difference. For the local reserve bank to advance the rediscount rate here now would tend to defeat its attempt to ease money for agricultural communities while maintaining a tight money market in this center. Bankers forecast an irregular money market here for the next several weeks with the next crisis reached about the middle of September.

The motors disappointed again although those close to insiders in General Motors, Hudson, Chrysler and others continued to maintain that strong interests had the market well in hand. They were said to be waiting for some easing in money conditions to force run in of the shorts. There is no doubt that a large short interest is outstanding in the motors, but none knows if there will be any material easing in money rates for the immediate future. If the reserve permits the banks can ease rates whenever they desire for there is plenty of money available for all purposes. Those interested in the copper shares also await some easing in money to try operation against the bears.

New interests were taking a position in International Silver coincident with issuance of special analysis that estimated net earnings this year would run up to at least $15 a share on the common stock. Operating expenses had been reduced, it was pointed out, and the company now is getting the benefit of new money obtained last year. Radio-Keith pool churned their pet in lively manner before the continued pressure of the money powers caused more offerings than were desired. Merger talk is revived but from all accounts the consolidation desired by insiders has been indefinitely postponed due to the talking of a "Chicago official." Quiet accumulation is reported in Indian refining for the account of oil interests who reputedly are impressed with its controlled process for turning out wax free lubricating oil.

Utilities started the week as though they were going to outdo all previous performances. Practically all the Utilities harbor a short interest now due mainly to advice of brokers that "technical setback was warranted." The brokers evidently went on the theory of gravitation alone as they know nothing of the plans of Electric Bond and other powerful interests for concentrating control of properties both by outright mergers and purchases in the open market. Foreign Power and American Super-Power as well as National Power & Light are among those mentioned most prominently in connection with such plans at the moment.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 5. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Curtailed receipts of cattle around the 11-market circuit stimulated demand for most all killing classes, with prices firm to unevenly higher. Packers, however, strenuously resisted the advance.

Beef steers and yearlings at some points were 50 cents higher than last week's close. Chicago scored $16.85 on choice weighty steers and $16.70 on light weights. Replacement stock shared the advance but current prices were relatively low with a year ago. Finishers at Kansas City paid $14 for fed Kansas grassers. Receipts 57,600 as compared with 89,419 a week ago, and 70,591 the corresponding day last year.

Opening hog trade to shippers was 10@25c higher but the close to packers ruled slow at values no more than steady. The top of $12.15 was paid at Chicago. Total offerings 101,500, a shortage of 23,500 from last Monday but 21,000 heavier than a year ago.

Sheep supply was 60,200 against 57,920 a week ago and 57,028 a year ago. Unevenness prevailed on fat lambs. Native lambs opened 25 cents higher at Chicago but later trade on westerns was steady to strong. River markets were on a steady to 25 cents lower basis. Closely sorted natives in Chicago reached $14, while best westerns made $13.75.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Aug. 5. (AP)—Announcement of a record-breaking increase of the United States wheat visible supply total went hand in hand today with much lower prices for wheat. The increase amounting to 17,167,000 bushels, was said to be the largest ever known at this time of year though the market scored a rally, signs indicating the peak of the 1929 domestic winter wheat movement has passed.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 2⅝ to 3⅛c a bushel below Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1⅝ to 1⅞c down, oats ⅝ to 1⅛@1⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 2c.

In Chicago the day's receipts were 1,415 cars, compared with only 181 cars a year ago. Minneapolis reported 1,016 cars today, against 290 cars last year. Early prices here reached the extreme level 4½c under Saturday's finish and 13⅝c down from last week's top figures.

Country offerings of domestic wheat fell in practically all sections, and primary receipts were 1,200,000 bushels less than was the case a week ago. Late estimates were current that world's available supplies of wheat are 85,000,000 bushels short of equaling last year's exports.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Downturns in corn prices were facilitated by better crop conditions in most of the corn belt, but Kansas and Missouri reports continue adverse.

Provisions were steadied by upturns in the value of hogs.

Negro Sought In Slaying at Altus

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Aug. 5.—A charge of murder has been filed against Roland Allison, negro, following the death of his wife late Sunday. He is alleged to have stabbed her as she returned home from church.

According to the dying statement of the woman made to the county attorney, she and her husband had quarreled and separated Friday. He had "threatened to get her" and attacked her on the street with a long knife as she returned from church. Several other negroes rushed to the scene immediately in answer to her cries for help, but the man escaped. He is still at large.

Acting Attorney General Given Information

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 5. (UP)—Status of the western boundary dispute between Oklahoma and Texas was given to Charles Hughes Jr., acting attorney general of the United States, today by V. P. Crowe, assistant attorney general, at Hughes' request.

Hughes asked also if state authorities thought a conference in Washington would be advisable. Crowe said this question could not be answered until further development.

Committees from the Oklahoma and Texas legislature are to meet in Austin on Aug. 26 to discuss the affair.

If no satisfactory arrangements are made at that time the state may find it advisable to hold the Washington conference, Crowe told the United Press.

Hoover to Attend Madison, Va. Celebration

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (UP)—President Hoover today accepted an invitation to visit Madison, Va., near his Rapidan fishing preserve, on Aug. 17, to participate in a community welcome celebration, the White House announced.

It will be the president's first trip from Washington for a speaking engagement since he made his law enforcement appeal in New York April 22.

10 MINERS DIE, 60 TRAPPED

TOKYO, Aug. 5. (AP)—Ten miners were killed today in the Sumito Bantan coal mine in the central part of Hokkaido (Yezo). Sixty-nine others were trapped with little hope of rescue.

TWO NON-STOP TRIPS PLANNED

Transcontinental Hops to Seek Endurance Mark

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5. (UE)—Two non-stop, round trip, transcontinental flights, extended into an endurance flight aimed at the newly established record of 420 hours—

That is the ambitious aviation project which is to start from San Francisco within three weeks, according to announcement today from S. A. Stimpson, division manager of Boeing Air Transport, Inc. Cooperating in the venture will be the army air corps and the post-office department.

Plans call for the transcontinental-endurance plane, a Boeing model of the type used in the air mail service, to take off from Oakland airport, fly to New York and return. It will refuel in flight, repeat the double journey and then fly to the Cleveland airport over which the fliers will circle in an attempt to set a new sustained flight record.

The purpose of the project—the first of its kind in which a commercial plane equipped with high power motor will fly over an established airway on regular schedule—is to determine feasibility of refueling transcontinental mail planes in flight.

Pilots of the plane, chosen by the army air corps, will be Capt. Ira Eaker, chief pilot of the "Question Mark," and Lieut. Bernard Thompson, pilot in the army's Pan-American good will flight of 1926.

Five planes are to be used in the project.

Pajama-Clad Editor Scores Another Victory

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Aug. 5. (UP)—W. O. Saunders, Elizabeth City publisher and exponent of pajama attire for men in hot summers, was elated today over his latest triumph.

"This sure is a funny old world," he said, explaining how he pajamaed his way into the dining room of an exclusive hotel at Ocean-view, Pa.

"A man in a sweater and flannel trousers was ejected from that same dining room just before I arrived.

"It simply proves my contention that correctly fitting pajamas in conservative patterns are in no way offensive."

Train Runs Over Man

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 5. (AP)—L. W. Jones, former Western association baseball star, was reported run over and killed by a train at Fort Smith, Ark., in a message received here today.

MIZELL DESCRIBES DAIRY OPPORTUNITIES HERE AS ABUNDANT

COUNTY HEADS HEAR REPORT

New Agent Amazed At Outlook for Industry

Opportunities for the development and expansion of the dairy industry in Wichita county are abundant and immediate in the opinion of John L. Mizell, new dairy counsellor, who Monday afternoon made his first report to members of the county commissioners' court in their regular weekly meeting. Mr. Mizell has spent the past week in visits to herds within the county and in acquainting himself with dairying conditions here.

Farmers to Meet

The dairy agent told the court that the definite policies and plans for his work would be developed in a meeting Tuesday or Wednesday between himself, O. K. Barnes of the chamber of commerce, Luke McCrory, chairman of a committee backing the movement, and G. C. McGown. At that meeting a date for a general gathering of farmers, dairymen, and bankers of the county will probably be set, Mr. Mizell added.

The counsellor said Monday that his first effort would be concerned with the accumulation of a fund of information about people in the county who are interested in the movement and who have the necessary assets to obtain financial backing from the banks of the county which have volunteered their support. A part of his work, he explained, is to act as liason man between the buyers and the financial resources at their disposal. A part of his first efforts will be the cultivation of a wide acquaintance in the towns as well as on the farms within the county.

Mr. Mizell told the commissioners that opportunities are "wonderful within the county.

Feed Available

"You have or can easily get abundant feed crops," he declared. "There is much native grass and a little encouragement will bring plenty of cultivated crops. I see evidences of a widespread interest and an eagerness to take advantage of any assistance we can offer."

In the course of the meeting Monday the court accepted the $145.20 bid of W. J. Howard for the extension of the courthouse driveway the work to begin at once. The commissioners also instructed Paul Barnett, county auditor, to advertise for bids for the natural gas supply for all the county buildings during the coming two years. The buildings include the general hospital, the jail and courthouse, and the county farm. Bids are to be opened on Sept. 9.

The court also accepted the month's reports of J. B. Fitts, county traffic officer, and of T. W. McHam county treasurer.

New Dollar Bill Is 'Raised' in Houston

HOUSTON, Aug. 5. (AP)—The first instance of passing the New United States currency where the denomination of the bill been raised was reported to Houston police today.

MAJESTIC: Who killed Mr. Rice? Mary Dugan at the bar of justice, H. B. Warner, Raymond Hackett and Lewis Stone in a brilliant legal battle. Paramount news.

STRAND: Genuine comedy amid phony stock in "The Time, the Place and the Girl," with Grant Withers, Gertrude Olmstead and Betty Compson. Vitaphone vaudeville. Comedy. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall in "Children of the Ritz." Our Gang comedy. Pathe news.

GEM: Buzz Barton in "Rough Riding Red." Western picture. Comedy.

Since a convincing response from the city's summer residents has proven that the glowing advance notices of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" were all on the up and up, the laurel now may be awarded to the personalities through whom the version of Bayard Vieller's play draws its success.

◇ ◇ ◇

The mainstay of much story telling, in novels, legitimate plays, and motion pictures within our ken has been the upstanding young district attorney, who defied gangland, squared the graft ring, and married the judge's sweet daughter. The lad's had his day. Present honors to H. B. Warner, whose prosecution of the tearful Mary actually, inspires a hymn of hate among the patrons.

◇ ◇ ◇

From a masterful portrayal of the Christ in "The King of Kings" to the remorseless, vituperative whip which scourges Mary Dugan is a far jump, accomplished with an amazing versatility. Warner endows any role with sincere and characterful realism. His ease of gesture and lack of flamboyant fireworks in voice and action bespeak the potency of restraint.

◇ ◇ ◇

And while focused on counsel's table, should Raymond Hackett care to hang out his shingle after completing his thrilling rescue of sister Mary's emaciated case, clients should be plentiful. Judging, of course, by the avid praise received from patrons young and old, male and beautiful, during the first four days of the trial here.

◇ ◇ ◇

Norma Shearer is innocent of the subtle beauty on which numerous ladies of the screen have ridden to stardom, but Norma piloted the good ship Anguish successfully through shoals on which others more fair have floundered hopelessly. Miss Shearer's lines consist almost entirely of saying nothing—in words. The eloquence of gesture and of suppressed sobs may be easily attainable, but just try it next time a tire goes flat, instead of talking.

A degree of realism is sacrificed on the altar of comedy by witnesses in Mary's trial. Stop-overs at the defense table en route to the witness chair grew a bit sallow in excessive endeavor toward perfect types. But such small shadows may be lost in the brilliance of Lewis Stone's impersonation of Mary's next door neighbor and self-appointed counsel. A quarter-inch lift of Lewis' immaculate eyebrow expresses the contents of many pages.

People whose time limitations forbid adequate training for strenuous vacations must be content with mere change of surroundings. For that purpose the "Trial of Mary Dugan" must be recommended. It will jerk the most hidebound forcefully from out his own maze of complexes and inhibitions.

Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackail, at the Olympic, have a very nice time showing us how a girl who never had anything but money and a boy who always had everything but money strike a lovely, happy plan for operating the family budget after an elopement.

But after all, with as much money as Angela's papa had been doling out to her, it does seem that she could have given us entertainment just a little more original than those same night clubs and Harlem hip-dancers that we saw last week, and the week before that. The butter and egg man who goes into New York can buy his entertainment on the Helpy-Selfy plan. We plead for more variety in the mail order shipments.

English Cotton Strike Enters Second Week

LONDON, Aug. 5. (UP)—The second week of the cotton strike in England began today with no hopeful sign of settlement. The gloom throughout Lancashire was further deepened when 50 additional mills at Todmorden, employing 13,000, which closed Saturday remained shut. Several of the largest artifical silk mills also have been forced to close owing to the curtailed demand for artifical silk yarns for cotton specialties.

COTTON LEAF WORM FOUND

Farm Agent Urges Use Of Poison Spray

Reports of the first cotton leaf worm discovered in the county this year, reaching G. C. McGown, county farm agent, Monday, resulted in the organization of an immediate poisoning campaign against the pests. Mr. McGown will demonstrate the methods of combating the parasites on a farm near Electra Tuesday morning, where the first leaf eaters have been found.

The agent announced that an adequate supply of calcium arsenate, the most effective poison, is to be had at the Sherwin-Williams company, and that the organization has agreed to keep a supply for any emergency. He urged the necessity of an immediate attack upon the worms before they imperil the late cotton yield.

"The worms are apt to show up first in a low, damp place in the field," Mr. McGown explained. "The farmer can see, hear, and smell them. They are green with a black stripe down the back and sometimes grow to be an inch or more long. The insects eat the leaves, stopping the growth of the stalk. They can be checked if not stopped. If the farmer will thoroughly spray the poison in the place where they begin their work."

Mr. McGown explained that he would be glad to offer advice and help to any farmer unaccustomed to deal with the pest.

Month in Country Girl's Sentence In Lieu of Training School Term

Judge W. W. Cook Monday afternoon substituted a month in the country for a training school sentence for a 16 year old Wichita Falls girl whose nomadic habits have been troubling juvenile officials for months. After the intercession of the girl's married sister, who promised to keep her busy in the country near Munday, Judge Cooke paroled the youthful prisoner with instructions that she reappear in court on Sept. 9 before Judge P. A. Martin who had original jurisdiction in the case.

The girl's most recent arrest came last week after Juvenile Officer James A. McDonald had dragged the young culprit from beneath a box car where she and her suit case were in hiding. She had run away after a scrap with her mother. Her father, it was explained, was recently fatally injured in an automobile accident here.

In sending her to the country for the present, Judge Cook explained that he hoped the separation of mother and daughter, who are continually at outs, might help avert the impending training school sentence.

'Lye Passed' When Negro Man And Wife Do Battle

Chester Thomas, negro, is nursing severe lye burns on his shoulder and arm at the Wichita county jail. His wife, similarly burned, has disappeared, although it is against Chester that the charges of "assault with intent to maim," are entered.

It was the newly purchased used car that started all the trouble. Chester, expert yard man who brings down good wages, bought the car last week. His wife took a Sunday afternoon drive. Chester wanted to take the ride himself.

When she came back, Chester expressed his burning disapproval, according to the story the wife told officials. She retorted, physically as well as verbally, and Chester got burned too.

L. V. Abernathy, acting for the district attorney's office, took the complaint, charging a felony against Chester, Monday. The prisoner didn't try to make bond, being very much concerned with the more immediate results of the altercation as expressed in the deep burns on his shoulder. He doesn't know, he says, who has the car now, and he isn't caring.

A "kill no stock" campaign will be conducted by the Illinois Central railway in August.

Author of Bloody Mystery Stories Can't Solve Real Murder

BRADLEY BEACH, N. J., Aug. 5. (UP)—Philo Vance, master detective mind of the S. S. Van Dine mystery stories, has been stumped by a murder committed in his neighborhood.

Some say Willard Huntington Wright, creator of the famous mystery stories, and honorary police commissioner here, is sidestepping the tangled threads of mystery surrounding the murder of 67-year-old George Danielson by bandits, and their escape with a $7,100 payroll.

Wright says the murder is "out of his jurisdiction," a statement some say is true to the type of regular police inspectors he chides so humorously.

DOTSON MAKES SOLO FLIGHT

Wichitan Takes Controls For First Time Here

J. O. Dotson, 2301 Avenue O, student flier of the Lone Star Aviation company at the Municipal airport, successfully completed his first solo flight Sunday afternoon, it was announced by C. P. Logan, manager of the airport. Pilot Fred Ridenour reported that Mr. Dotson is well adapted to flying and promises to make an excellent pilot.

Guy Mennis and Pilot Paul Woodall arrived at the airport from Fort Worth Sunday afternoon in Mr. Mennis' Sparton-Wright J-6 biplane, it was reported. Pilot Ridenour of the Lone Star company left for Denison and returned Sunday with W. T. Knight, oil operator of Denison, as a passenger. Thornton Lomax, oil operator of Wichita Falls and wartime aviator, is flying daily in the Travelair biplanes of the Lone Star company, Mr. Logan stated.

The airport is gradually assuming the aspects of a large railway terminal with the Southwestern Air Express and the Braniff airliners arriving and departing each day on regular schedule. Passenger lists are growing rapidly, Mr. Logan said, and air travel in Wichita Falls is becoming more and more an accepted mode of travel and less of an excitement.

American Movies Take Great Britain by Storm

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5. (US)—The American movie has so taken Great Britain by storm that at the present time there is one theater for every 10,655 persons in the British Isles, or, with six performances daily, practically enough for every one in the United kingdom to attend a show the same day. Commerce department reports from London today state that an overwhelming percentage of the pictures shown are of American make, with German productions running a poor second.

Stumped the Professor

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Dr. J. M. Bell of the chemistry department of the University of North Carolina, one of the educators conducting examinations in the Edison scholarship contest, said he couldn't have answered all the questions himself.
