Transfer of train[illegible]emical completed without incident

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

By midnight Wednesday, all the cargo classified as potentially hazardous had been removed from the scene of Monday's 13-car train derailment here.

Santa Fe railroad crews were continuing routine cleanup operations Thursday morning at the site, located between Ave. E and Ave. I in northeast Snyder.

Texaco, Halliburton and railroad personnel began transferring some 26,000 gallons of hazardous propylene oxide from a crippled tank car into trucks just before noon Wednesday. That operation was said complete around midnight.

The volitale chemical — used as an intermediate catalyst in the manufacture of detergents and lubricants — was moved from the rail car into four tank trucks in a careful and slow operation that took some 12 hours to complete.

Pressurized nitrogen provided by Halliburton Services was used to force the material out of the rail car and into the trucks.

The completion of the chemical transfer Wednesday night brought an end to the potentially hazardous situation which had existed since shortly before 2 p.m. Monday.

At that time, 13 cars of a westbound freight came off the tracks at a point just west of a trestle near the intersection of Ave. G and 21st St.

The involvement of the propylene oxide carrier and a second tank car containing dimethyl chlorothiophosphate in the accident had prompted the evacuation of Northeast Elementary School and the area immediately surrounding the accident Monday afternoon.

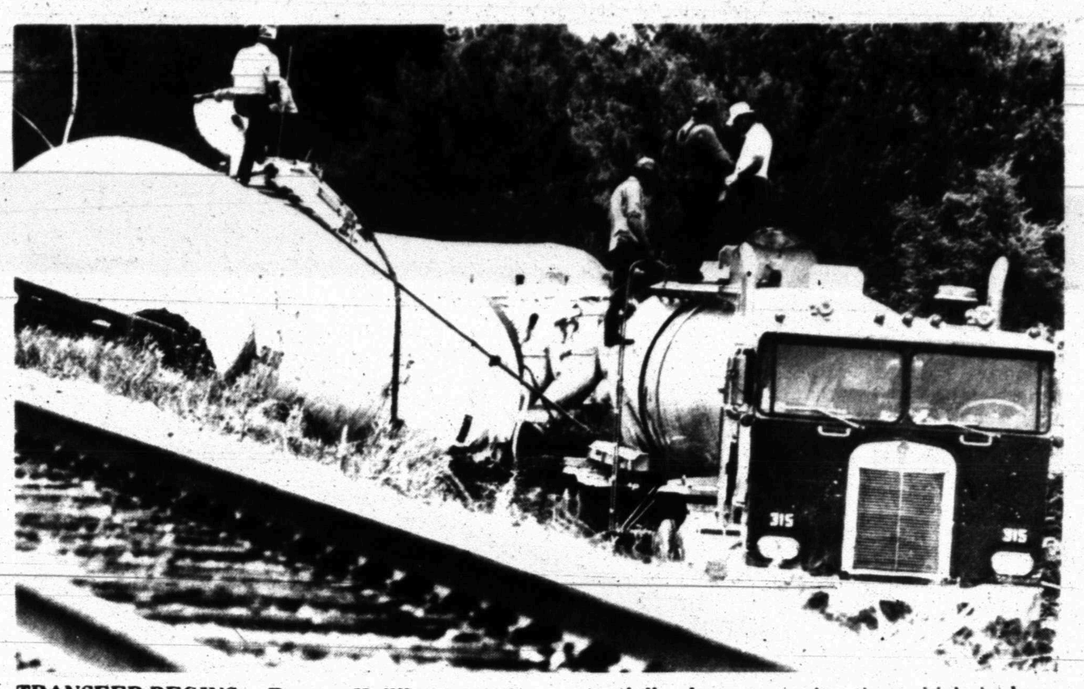

Apparently neither car leaked any of their contents, however, and residents were allowed back into the area at their own discretion before 5 p.m. Monday.

The dimethylene chlorothiophosphate carrier — rated as the most hazardous of the two — was placed back on the track and moved out of the area before daylight Tuesday.

Monday, emergency crews had worked through the night to clear the track and restore rail traffic through the area.

Several cars, including the now empty pro-

Q. — On television, what does "Closed Caption" programming mean?

A. — Such programs — now estimated to be about 95 percent of prime time TV on at least one network — carry subtitles indicating what is said and which character is speaking to aid hearing-impaired individuals. These subtitles can only be seen by persons who have attached to their TVs a device called a TeleCaption decoder. Such equipment, costing approximately $280, is available through retail catalogue stores like Sears and J.C. Penney.

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Ray Clore, who tearfully testified in the 1983 shooting of his comatose father, faces a three year prison term after his probation was revoked by a state judge.

State District Judge Ted Poe sentenced Clore, 27, Wednesday, telling him he had violated the state's law and another law of "honoring your father."

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Attempted murder charges in the retrial of Claus von Bulow could be dismissed because a doctor's statement that the socialite's wife caused her own first coma was never given to the defense team during the 1982 trial, lawyers said.

House okays tuition hike

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has approved a tripling of state college tuition in the fall, concurring with what one legislator criticized as "marching orders" from the Senate.

"We don't need to pass a tuition bill today. We need to get the two houses together in the true spirit of compromise," said Bay City Rep. Tom Uher.

But the House voted 85-60 Wednesday to scrap its plan to double tuition and go along with the Senate plan to raise the semester hour cost for resident students from the current $4 to $12 in the fall.

The measure now goes to Gov. Mark White, who has indicated that he approves of the tuition increase.

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin and sponsor of the House tuition plan, called on the House to agree with the Senate version. The colleges need the $275 million the hike would raise over the next two years, she said.

"Without a tax bill we cannot afford to continue to put as much money in colleges and universities as we have in the past," Mrs. Delco said.

The 1986-87 appropriations bill approved by the House cuts college spending by about 4 percent. The tuition hike would help fend off a 26 percent higher education spending cut recommended by legislative budget aides.

"This is reasonable, fair and affordable," Mrs. Delco said of the Senate version, which apparently will become the first tuition hike in Texas since 1957.

The hand of leadership was clear on the House floor. In a rare move, Speaker Gib Lewis voted to agree with the Senate version.

Even with the increase, Texas college tuition would be among the nation's cheapest.

The bill would raise tuition from the current $4 per semester hour to $12 in the fall. It would increase to $16 per hour for the next three years and then go up $2 a year every two years until it reached $24 in 1995.

The House tuition bill scrapped in favor of the Senate plan would have raised in-state tuition to $8 per hour this fall and in gradual increments to $20 by 1990.

Uher said some his "well-to-do" constituents complained about the proposed hikes, saying it called for "too much money too fast."

"Many of the young people are going to be knocked out" of a college education by the increase, he said.

"Compromise is a dialogue," Uher said in calling for a House-Senate conference committee to work on the tuition bill. "We have been handed down our marching orders from the Senate."

Mrs. Delco said there were sufficient grants, emergency loans and installment payment plans to guarantee that no student would be denied a college education because of lack of money.

Sixth graders to take on Shakespeare

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

All Snyder elementary youngsters have the opportunity to perform in a class play each year, but a 1½ hour romantic comedy from Shakespeare — scheduled Friday at West — may be a first.

The production will be offered by West Elementary's sixth grade drama class, also a possible first for local elementary schools, according to sponsor Elizabeth McCloskey.

Organized in October of last year, the class is comprised of 25 budding thespians who are "learning to express themselves."

Months of hard work will pay off Friday when they stage Shakespeare's "A Midsummer's Night's Dream," their most ambitious project to date. Running time is 1½ hours plus intermissions and it will include a piano accompaniment from Ken

Noah Project now at 'critical' point

The shelter for abused women and their children has been in operation here for six months. During that time 51 families have been helped with 24 residing at the shelter. Of the total families served, all but 10 have been Scurry County residents.

The shelter has been operating on state funds and local contributions, but after June 30 state funds will no longer be available.

The original grant from the state was an experimental grant for rural areas and is not expected to be renewed, Scalf explained. "We did not realize this at the time and expected it to be automatically renewed, but at a lower percentage."

Noah Project in Snyder is an outreach shelter for the Noah Project in Abilene and serves Scurry and Nolan counties. The Abilene shelter is responsible for an 18-county area.

Appliances said stolen from trailer

Scurry County sheriff's officers are investigating the apparent burglary of an unoccupied mobile home parked at the Oasis Trailer Park in north Snyder.

Ronnie Young, of Oasis Mobile Home Sales, called county authorities at 6 p.m. Wednesday shortly after discovering the burglary.

According to investigator's reports, a washer, dryer and refrigerator valued at approximately $1,100 were reported missing. Entry to the trailer was gained by prying open the back door.

The appliances are thought to have been taken sometime Tuesday night.

Hometown run slated for one-act

The first of three hometown performances of the Snyder one-act play "Romeo and Juliet" — this year's AAAA state winner — is scheduled here Friday in Worsham Auditorium.

The approximately 40-minute performance will begin at 8 p.m. and will be repeated both Saturday and Monday.

Ticket prices are $3 for adults and high school age students and $2 for those elementary age and younger.

House okays sales tax hike

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has voted to let most Texas cities add another penny to their local sales tax, a move that could raise that tax to 6.125 percent in some areas.

Under Killeen Rep. Stan Schlueter's bill, cities that do not collect a sales tax for transit could either tack on the added penny for transit or use it to reduce local property taxes.

The increased sales tax could virtually eliminate city property taxes in some areas. Lufkin, for example, could replace 95 percent of its property taxes by adding another penny to its current one-cent local sales tax.

The bill won 81-61 tentative approval in the House Wednesday, where it faces another vote.

The state sales tax is now 4.125 percent. Most cities collect a one-cent local sales tax, and several of the largest cities collect up to another penny for mass transit.

Under the Schlueter plan, cities with a population of 50,000 or more could collect the additional penny for transit. Any city could collect it for property tax relief.

"The people would vote to put this on themselves," Schlueter said of the sales tax hike, which would require a local vote.

The bill drew criticism, however.

Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, argued that the state might someday need the penny that Schlueter wants to give to cities. When the sales tax well is dry, the next step could be a personal or corporate income tax, he said.

"It's going to leave less room for the state," said Whaley. "We're that much closer to a state income tax."

And Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, said the property tax is fairer than a sales tax.

"Paying taxes ought to be related to one's ability to pay," he said. "Imperfect as it is, the property tax is a more accurate barometer of that ability to pay."

The Texas Association of Taxpayers, a business group, criticized the bill as unneeded.

"There is no demonstrated need for the new tax," the association said in a newsletter, adding that the measure does not guarantee permanent property tax relief.

"Passage of the bill will make it more difficult to increase the state sales tax and thereby move up the timetable for other, more onerous state taxes," the group said.

In other action Wednesday, the House voted down a proposal to allow Harris County judicial election ballots to show voters which judges are incumbents.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Clint Hackney, D-Houston, argued that Harris County voters sometimes face as many as 45 judicial elections on a ballot.

"They are unable to keep up with all those judicial races and with who the sitting judges are, much less their merits," he said.

Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, agreed, recalling the story of State District Judge Marsha Anthony of Houston, who he said unseated a qualified Democratic incumbent only because of the Republican landslide last year.

Ms. Anthony spent most of the campaign in England, and took the oath of office in the United States embassy in London, according to Colbert.

But Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Richardson, said designating incumbents could create more "ballot confusion" because incumbents in legislative, state and local races would not be designated.

Hackney's bill failed 62-75.

The House gave preliminary voice vote approval to a rewritten state election code, including changes that would:

— require voting booths at every polling place. Current law requires voting booths only in cities of at least 10,000 people.

— allow paroled felons to vote after two years, instead of the current five.

Dear Abby

Basically, You Know, Our Speech Needs Some Work

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Basically, this letter is about people who basically overuse a particular word, or groups of words. Basically, the worst offenders are people who say "you know" four and five times in one sentence—basically speaking, you know.

You know how overworked those basic words can seem after basically a short period of time. You know, I find such repetitions basically nauseating, really.

Based on my aversion, you know, I'm considering taking drastic action to basically draw attention to this basic speech fault by taping the offenders' mouths shut, you know.

I'm basically a fan of yours, you know, so would you see if there are many others out there who, you know, have basically the same reaction?

GAIL H., SHOREWOOD, WIS.

DEAR GAIL: You know basically I can understand your irritation because I do know that such sloppy speech habits are formed by people with basically limited vocabularies.

But don't go away; here's a companion piece to your letter from Scottsdale, Ariz.:

DEAR ABBY: One of the most annoying habits I find among people, especially teen-agers and young adults, is ending every sentence with "OK?"

The sentence can be a simple statement, such as, "I went to the store," but there's that superfluous "OK?" tacked onto it as if it were a question.

The "OK" habit is a sign of insecurity, and is used by people who need constant approval for everything they say.

It makes one wonder how people can go through school with such an irritating habit without having it corrected by teachers or associates.

TIRED OF "OK" IN ARIZONA

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What can I do about an old high school classmate who has been after me to resume our friendship after 18 years? We no longer have anything in common, and to make matters worse, she has just given birth to her first baby! (My children are in their teens.)

She is eager for me to see her baby, and I dread it. I certainly don't intend to buy a baby gift for someone that I have no intention of seeing again.

I can't stall her any longer. What should I tell her that won't crush her?

TOO OLD FOR BABY TALK

DEAR TOO OLD: You certainly can't tell her the brutal truth—that you have nothing in common and don't care to see her baby. You're exerting far more energy ducking her and feeling guilty than it would take to buy her a little gift and see her baby. Sometimes the easiest way "around" something is right through it.

Court upholds doctor's conviction

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An appeals court has upheld a doctor's murder conviction after determining he killed a newborn baby in a failed abortion attempt.

El Paso's 8th Court of Appeals handed down that ruling Wednesday against Dr. Raymond Showery, who was convicted in September 1983 of killing a baby removed during a Caesarean-like abortion operation at his clinic in 1979.

He was sentenced to 15 years in prison and is in El Paso County Jail awaiting trial on a separate manslaughter charge.

First Assistant District Attorney Bill Moody said he was "extremely pleased" with the court's ruling. But Showery's attorney, Mike Gibson, could not be reached for comment late Wednesday.

Showery's appeal centered on nine alleged errors in the 1983 trial, several addressing the issue of abortion and when a fetus is able to survive outside the womb.

The three appeals court judges who reviewed the case found both issues irrelevant, their opinion states.

The 27-page appeals court opinion says the newborn baby had the constitutional rights of an adult, even though it might not have survived and even though it had been destined for abortion.

Witnesses at his 1983 trial testified that Showery smothered the baby with its placenta, submerged it in bucket of liquid and placed it in a plastic bag.

Some people like their fine, dry hair with its frizzy curl. In that case, all it needs is a trim.

Others wish that they could get a softer look, especially in hot, humid weather. For them, today's beauty salon specialist can straighten the hair without damaging it or removing all curl.

Applying vitamins externally, as in a face cream, does nothing for the skin. As for the vitamins you need internally, a balanced diet should provide all you need for the good health that underlies beauty.

Sharper bidding finds the slam

At a recent team match, North-South at both tables stumbled into the rather inelegant contract of three no-trump. The heart suit was dutifully led and the defenders managed to collect five quick tricks to set the contract.

The bidding in the box suggests a reasonable way of arriving at the good six-club contract. After two no-trump, the three-spade bid not only shows four spades, but also suggests that responder's hand may not be totally suited for no-trump. Four clubs describes a good club suit, and also implies heart weakness. Now what about four hearts? Is there any danger that the four-heart bid could be passed? Really, no. North has bid diamonds, then spades. A heart bid now absolutely must be a cue-bid of some sort. Four spades showed the spade king, and then South heard partner bid five clubs. Is there any doubt that South should bid six? North has bid diamonds and spades, cue-bid hearts, and now supported clubs. Small slam should be easy, and it is.

What if North did not have such an unbalanced hand, but simply wanted to check for a possible four-four spade fit? My suggestion is that the partnership play that a three-club bid by North would be checking back to see if South held a four-card major, but that's a matter for you and your partner to work out and remember.

"HEY! WHAT'S ALL THE QUIET ABOUT?"

A surprise, yes; but Freeman is no cinderella story

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

You could call it a cinderella story if it weren't for the fact that it was hard work that put Kyle Freeman where he is today - on the road to the Class 4A State Track and Field Meet in Austin.

The Snyder High School senior is scheduled to compete in the discus at 2 p.m. Friday and the shot put at 7.

Only the most optimistic of people would have thought that this lanky young man who was throwing the discus 138-feet a year ago would suddenly mold himself into a state-class competitor. Even track coach Kevin Wiseman was surprised.

"I think Kyle realized football season was over and he didn't receive a lot of recognition like wanted. He realized he'd better go to work and improve his physical skills. He's been working hard and gaining strength and weight. It's a complete metamorphosis. He's faster stronger and larger," said Wiseman.

"He's really blossomed. I didn't really notice it that much until he threw 55 feet in the shot put his first meet of the season. He's really made some progress. He's improved nearly 50 feet in the discus over the past year and 8-9 feet in the shot. That in itself is pretty awesome. You just don't see that," said Wiseman. "I didn't see anybody else in our district who improved that much in anything. If there was a Most Improved in District 2-4A award, Kyle should get it."

No one has been more stunned - but thrilled - than Freeman himself.

"I'm very surprised I'm throwing this far," admitted Freeman, who was recently voted Snyder High School Male Athlete of the Year. "Over the years I had been improving a few feet every year but nothing like this. I guess maybe I matured a little bit but putting on weight I think was the big thing. I'm pretty quick. I had speed last year but I didn't have the strength that I have now."

"He's a real good coach. He knows that he's talking about and he's really helped," said Freeman. "He corrected a whole bunch of things that I was doing wrong. We've been going out and videotaping my workouts. Then we'll study the video and go right back out and work on it some more.

"I've been feeling real good in practice this week. I've been using a 10-pound shot instead of the 12-pounder to help me get a good, quick explosion. I'd never done anything like that before. Coach Wiseman got me doing it and it has really helped."

Freeman's 185-foot discus throw rates as the third best in all classes this season, making him somewhat of a favorite in Austin this weekend. His shot put best of 59-7 ranks third in Class 4A. Still, when he steps up to the discus ring at Memorial Stadium in Austin he won't be worring about winning. He'll just try to do his best. That's what he's been doing all season - and winning.

"I'd like to do the best I've done so far. I'd like to set a personal record. If I can do that, it won't matter whether I win or lose," he said. "I don't feel as much pressure on me this week as last week (at regionals) because this is the meet you work for all year. Last week I had to do well or I wouldn't have gotten the opportunity to go to state."

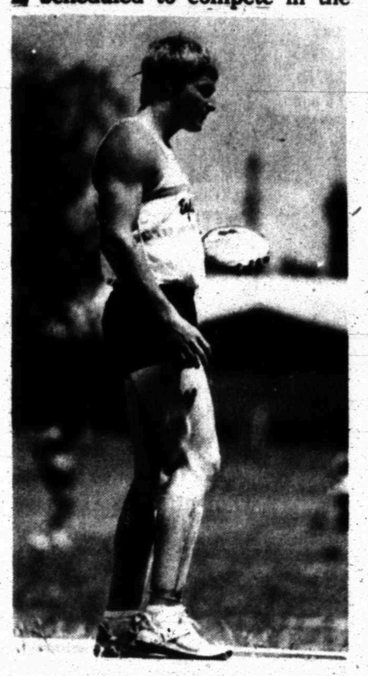

It's been since 1980 that Snyder High School has sent a boy's track team competitor to state. That year, both pole vaulter Dale Jenkins and high jumper Bradley Richardson came back with blue ribbons. Freeman could equal that, especially in the discus.

"I feel like if I have a good day I probably should win the discus," he said. "In the shot, I feel like I can push 60 feet. There are two other guys throwing around 60-62 so I'm not sure how I'll do in that. I think I am capable of throwing in the 60s. When I threw 185 in the discus it really surprised me because the wind didn't really help me much. I think with a better wind I can throw another 10 feet in the discus. The wind plays a big factor."

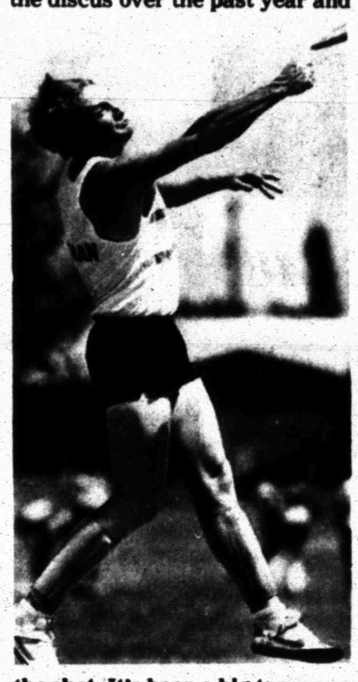

So does the man. And this weekend Kyle Freeman is the man.

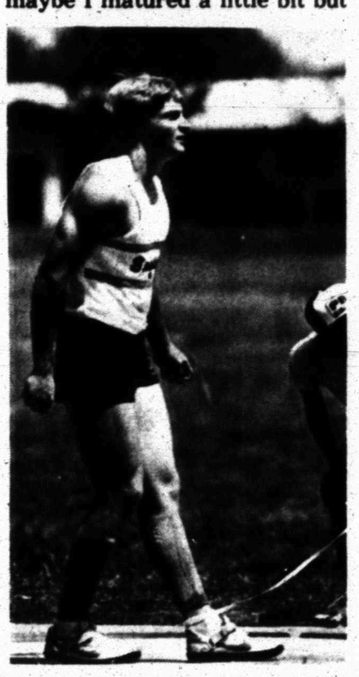

"...I had been improving a few feet every year, but nothing like this."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Snyder High School junior Karlene Thompson will be making her second straight appearance in Austin this weekend along with Freeman. She is scheduled to compete in the triple jump at 1 p.m. Friday. An article featuring the state-class jumper will be in tomorrow's edition of The Snyder Daily News.

FREEMAN BOUND FOR AUSTIN -- Kyle Freeman, state qualifier in the discus and shot put, was to head for Austin today to prepare for Friday's Class 4A Track and Field Meet. The Snyder High School senior has best discus throw of 185 feet in his class, and ranks third in the shot. It's been a big turnaround for the Tiger Athlete of the Year, who was throwing just 138 feet a year ago. (SDN Staff Photos by Bill McClellan)

Celtics back in forefront; can wrap up series Friday

BOSTON (AP) - His team had been gunned down twice in a row and Dennis Johnson couldn't wait to get another crack at the enemy. His marksmanship was sure but he didn't tally the toll until the battle was over.

"I really don't pay attention to points," said Boston's sharpshooter for a day. "I try to do what keeps us up, so I don't worry about the number...As long as we're ahead by one, that's what counts."

Johnson, the worst shooter among the Celtics' starters, hit 13 of 16 field-goal attempts and piled up a season-high 30 points as Boston fought off the determined Detroit Pistons 130-123 Wednesday night.

Boston, which had lost the previous two games of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal playoff in Detroit, took a 3-2 lead and can wrap up the National Basketball Association series Friday night on the road.

If the Celtics win, they'll play host to Philadelphia Sunday in the opener of the conference finals. If they lose, they'll return home to face Detroit that day in a decisive seventh game.

In the Western Conference, the Denver Nuggets open the best-of-seven finals Saturday afternoon on the road against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Larry Bird overcame two mediocre games with a career playoff high 43 points, including 17 in the fourth quarter, but he shared the raves with Johnson.

"They played one of their better games and they had to go down to the wire to win," said Detroit's Kelly Tripucka, who scored 20 points. "Even with Bird playing his best, they couldn't put us away."

A big reason for that was Vinnie Johnson. The substitute guard, who had 22 points in the fourth quarter of the Pistons' 102-99 fourth-game victory, poured in 30 Wednesday night on 11-for-16 shooting.

Boston has won 17 of its last 18 playoff games here.

Project funds said critical regarding acceptance or rejection is not expected before the middle of June.

In the meantime, the shelter needs to raise some $8,000 for the months of July, August and September which would "tide them over" until word is received regarding the state grant application.

Scalf said they need $20,000 to operate for a full year.

"If we had known our state funding was in doubt we would have been having fund raisers all along," she explained.

Scalf is the only paid person at the shelter and if the state funding is not renewed she said she will not be able to remain here. In that event, Noah Project would have to be operated on a strictly voluntary basis.

In addition to monies, both state and local, the shelter is also in critical need of volunteers. As of now, only five active volunteers are involved with the shelter, Scalf said.

Volunteers are needed to "man" the 24-hour crisis hot line (573-1822), work in the shelter and to help organize fund raising events.

Volunteers are trained by Scalf on a "one to one" basis. They also listen to "crisis tapes" and gain on the job experience by working in the shelter.

Volunteers may choose to help with the hotline number — work which may be handled from their home — or work directly in the shelter or help with fund raising events, Scalf said.

Those that answer the phones do so from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. on any given night, the hours the office is not open. The frequency can be as often as one night a week or one night a month.

Or volunteers may choose to work directly in the shelter from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. on any given night. These volunteers are there for "moral support" and to give the shelter residents "someone to talk to."

Volunteers must be 18 years of age or older and have a real commitment to wanting to help, Scalf said.

"Volunteers are especially needed to answer the telephone because women don't want to talk to an answering machine," she explained.

Anyone interested in donating time to the shelter is asked to contact Scalf at 573-1822.

Three wrecks Wednesday

Three minor traffic accidents — including a hit-and-run and one mishap at a local business' parking lot — were reported in Snyder Wednesday.

The hit-and-run incident was the day's first at the intersection of 37th St. and the East Highway. It was reported at 9:31 a.m.

Involved in it was a parked 1978 Chevrolet pickup owned by Billy Doucette of Snyder which had been struck by an unidentified vehicle.

The parking lot of Snyder Drug in the 3600 Block of College Ave. was the scene of the day's second mishap at 10:26 a.m.

Involved in it was a 1976 Lincoln driven by Ida DeShan of 3798 Sunset Dr. which struck a parked 1979 Mercury owned by Fred James Wilkinson of Snyder.

Wednesday's third mishap occurred at the intersection of 25th St. and College Ave. at 4:52 p.m.

Involved in that collision were a 1985 Honda driven by Sammie Darlene York of 3406 43rd St. and a 1982 AMC driven by Robert Edward Youngblood of Rt. 3, Snyder.

April report causes arrest

Snyder police jailed a Snyder woman Wednesday on a misdemeanor theft warrant prompted by an April shoplifting incident.

The case had been presented to the county attorney's office and Wednesday's arrest followed the issuance of a warrant in county court. The alleged offense was reported April 24 at Eckerd Drug.

City officers jailed five other subjects on misdemeanor charges Wednesday evening including two for driving with a suspended license and three for public intoxication.

Sixth graders to offer play

Gartman.

McCloskey said the play has helped develop a "strong sense of pride and kinship" among the class. "It's been a lot of sweat, but lots of fun also.

"Their hard work is paying off as they have learned to argue politely and stand up for their opinions," she explained. "They are beginning to feel they are 'experts' and can do anything."

The idea for the drama class first originated in October when McCloskey and Mary Lou Scott, West choir teacher, decided that the 50 sixth grade students should have a choice between drama or choir. As it happened, 25 students chose drama and 25 choir.

At first they learned pantomine and then graduated to straight mime, McCloskey explained. They also did nursery rhymes where each student chose a nursery rhyme and — using body language and facial expressions — acted it out before an audience.

Next came poetry where students chose a poem to memorize and research. At Christmas time they performed "A Festival of Lights" which involved pantomime, choral reading and acting. Christmas customs of six different countries was the subject matter of the production.

Then in January McCloskey said the students decided it was time to do a "major" production. Since they had already studied about European countries in history, they settled on something by Shakespeare and eventually picked "A Midsummer's Night's Dream."

To further hone their newly acquired acting skills, the 25 students visited with Jerry Worsham and his high school drama students last week. The high schoolers, many of them former students of McCloskey, worked with the sixth graders on a "one-on-one" basis.

Rehearsals for the play have been daily both before class from 8 to 8:30 a.m. and during the regular choir period. They have used the classroom, gymnasium, auditorium and "any place available."

Students receive a grade on their report cards for the drama class.

McCloskey says she isn't sure whether the drama class will become a tradition at West, but she hopes it does. "Regardless I'll always do some of it within my own class," she said.

Blue law...

Repeal approved for debate

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate State Affairs Committee has approved for debate, probably early next week, a House-passed measure that would repeal Texas' Blue Law for all except automobile dealers.

The vote Wednesday was 12-1 with Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, in opposition.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said he planned to offer the bill for Senate debate on Monday or Tuesday.

If approved by the Senate, the measure would go back to the House for approval of minor Senate amendments.

"There has been overwhelmingly public response to efforts to repeal the Blue Law," said Farabee, "but we have not had that from the automobile dealers, so that is why they are exempted from the bill."

The bill contains a provision that any automobile dealer who does open on both Saturday and Sunday could be fined up to $500.

The current law says 42 items ranging from hardware to clothing cannot be sold on both Saturday and Sunday. At the time it was passed in 1961, legislators were told the measure was needed to balance competition between downtown stores and discount firms, mostly in the suburbs.

Efforts have been made in all recent session of the Legislature to repeal or amend the controversial closing law.

Supporters say it affects Texas economy by shutting down many businesses at least once a week.

Opponents said it would interrupt family life in addition to conflicting with plans for religious services.

Gov. Mark White said last week he had not made up his mind about the House bill that passed 58-25.

"I'm very concerned," White said. "My concern is that there be no business pressure placed on individuals to work seven days a week."

Farabee said the bill includes a provision that no employee could be required to work on a day he or she wanted to attend a religious service.

"I represent thousands of retail employees who already work six days a weeks and sometimes two or three nights," said Ray Mason of Dallas. "We want Sunday off to be with our family and friends. This bill would have a negative effect on about 25 percent of the non-agricultural workers of the state."

Mason was the only witness to testify Wednesday.

Numerous witnesses who supported the Senate version of the bill at a recent hearing registered as supporting the House bill but did not testify.

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, made two attempts to amend the House bill.

One proposal would allow only grocery stores, drug stores and filling stores to open on Sunday. The other would strike the section exempting auto dealers. Both were defeated 10-3.

Used car rule is now taking effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 89,000 used car lots must clearly tell customers whether they offer warranties — and what is covered — on the vehicles being sold starting today.

The warranty information and other consumer warnings are to be included in window stickers, required under new Federal Trade Commission regulations for the estimated 10.5 million used cars sold annually by dealers.

The regulation forces dealers to disclose the most important information needed by a used-car buyer — who has to pay for any needed repairs — said Carol T. Crawford, director of the commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

And the warranties may well prove a good guide to the quality of cars being sold, since a dealer is likely to offer more protection on cars in which he has more confidence, added deputy director Amanda Petersen.

The FTC rule covers sales of used light trucks as well as used cars by dealers who sell at least six vehicles a year. The roughly 7 million people a year who sell their own used vehicles privately are not covered by the rule.

Detailed information on the new regulation was mailed to every used-car dealer in the nation two weeks ago, Ms. Petersen added, in order to give them tine to comply.

"Consumers should look for the stickers starting (today), and we want to hear from them if they're not seeing them," she told a news conference Wednesday.

Dealers who fail to comply could face fines of up to $10,000 per day per violation, although Ms. Petersen indicated the agency will be tolerant of some missing stickers in the early going.

The major focus of the new stickers is to require the dealer to state that the car is being sold either "as is" or with a warranty. And if a warranty is offered, the terms must be stated on the sticker.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Help! I am extremely thin. All my friends tell me I look like a skeleton. I am 12 years old, am 4 feet 11 and weigh 80 pounds. I exercise and practice gymnastics daily. I constantly eat but don't gain a pound! How could I gain some weight?

DEAR READER: You are probably burning up more calories than you are taking in. You might gain weight if you supplemented your regular three meals with a protein drink like Carnation Instant Breakfast. I doubt that you have reached your full growth potential, so you'll undoubtedly fill out more in the years to come.

However, I think you ought to check with your physician so that he or she can make sure you don't have a deficiency or a metabolic disorder. For example, an overactive thyroid gland frequently causes weight loss, even in the face of increased appetite.

Weight control in pre-adolescents is sometimes frustrating because young people are physically active at the same time that calories are being used for growth, muscle and bone development. Conversely, some preteens tend to be chubby; their hormones have not yet instructed their bodies to grow taller and gain muscle bulk.

Much 12-year-old thinness will take care of itself. Your doctor can best advise you whether to follow a weight-gain diet — or be patient.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 67, and quit smoking about one-and-a-half years ago. I now chew gum instead. Recently my mouth and throat have become extremely dry about two or three hours after I fall asleep. It is very painful until I get the saliva flowing again, only to have it happen when I go back to sleep. What might be the cause and what can be done to correct it?

DEAR READER — Lack of saliva may reflect your new chewing-gum habit, because your salivary glands may have come to rely on the stimulation provided by the gum. If you use a lot of chewing gum, I suggest you cut down the amount and use only types that are not highly spiced.

Of course, poor saliva-flow can result from diseases of the glands themselves, such as Sjogren's Syndrome.

If cutting back on chewing gum fails to help your dry mouth at night, check with your doctor to make sure the salivary glands are functioning normally.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What can a wife do to save a marriage, help her husband, and save her own sanity during her husband's mid-life crisis?

Our family doctor said he needs help. My husband is a few weeks away from being 50. Each year since 1981 he has been getting worse. He's had a total personality change, argues over anything, is sarcastic and selfish. None of these qualities were present before. He was soft-spoken, considerate and sweet. Perfect man! I want to help him get through this. How can I help?

DEAR READER: The causes of the so-called mid-life crisis are varied and complicated. I'm not sure you are going to provide much help for your husband without the intervention of a professional counselor, psychologist or psychiatrist. In essence, he is not going to change until he recognizes that he is "out of synch" with himself — and takes action. I wonder if your vision of him as a "perfect man" may be placing intolerable burdens on him. He may need your "permission" to be human — that is, flawed and imperfect.

I believe that you could help him most by helping yourself. Interpersonal problems are rarely one-sided. If you independently seek counseling to take care of yourself, you may discover useful ways to manage the difficult home situation. You may also discover, to your surprise, that you are inadvertently contributing to his crisis. When he sees you taking a constructive step, he may be encouraged to take responsibility for his own actions. By helping yourself grow, you may be astounded to learn of the healthy consequences that may result.
