Stratton Indicted For Tax Evasion

McNamara Says Reds Not Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara permitted use of intelligence estimates to challenge Gen. Curtis E. LeMay because he wanted to kill at birth any myth about declining U.S. military superiority.

This was learned from defense officials today as the gulf widened between the strong-willed defense secretary and the equally strong-minded Air Force chief of staff.

Late Monday the Pentagon issued a statement stressing "the increasing military superiority of the United States." It came after publication of LeMay's February congressional testimony contending the Russians are narrowing the gap.

One high official familiar with McNamara's thinking said the defense secretary feels it is "dangerous to raise any doubts about our strength.

'Be Wrong'

"He thinks it would be wrong to sit by and allow creation of a myth—and it is a myth in his judgment—that there is any lessening of our strength," this official said.

The Defense Department statement did not name LeMay. Authorities would not acknowledge it was aimed at the controversial Air Force chief of staff, who feels McNamara is placing too much reliance on missiles and waving the manned bomber to the sidelines too early.

Officials noted that there had been a spate of criticisms, including a new defense strategy paper spelling out the views of one of McNamara's strongest foes, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

But Goldwater's paper dwelt mostly on the issue of missile reliability—which plunged him into collision with McNamara early in Goldwater's quest for the Republican presidential nomination. The senator is an Air Force Reserve major general.

Pentagon Blast

Instead, the Pentagon blast was aimed clearly at disputing questions raised "regarding the magnitude of our superiority and whether it is continuing to grow." LeMay's published testimony raised those questions.

Officials would neither confirm nor deny whether McNamara had initiated the statement, which was issued in the name of the Defense Department.

But they said it would not have come out "without the approval or knowledge of the secretary."

And this approval and knowledge would have applied to its contents—more specific intelligence information about relative U.S.-Soviet strengths than is normally allowed out by the Pentagon.

Asked why this data was being released now, a spokesman said, "These decisions are made in government from time to time."

Declaration

To support its declaration that our superiority "has been increasing and we intend that it shall continue to increase," the Pentagon disclosed that:

—The United States has 540 strategic bombers constantly on alert and that the Soviets "could place over this country, on two-way missions," no more than 270 bombers, including 150 mediums that could hit only Alaska and the U.S. Northwest.

—The Air Force has about 750 intercontinental ballistic missiles ready to launch while the Soviets have less than one-fourth that number in operation. That would be fewer than 187.

—"We have 192 Polaris mis-

Space Heat Experiment Relays Vital Information

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A spacecraft named Fire blazed back through the atmosphere faster than any previous space payload Tuesday night and radioed a wealth of information which could make manned trips to the moon safer.

The spacecraft, looking like a compact model of the Apollo moonship, rode an Atlas missile more than 500 miles into space. As it plummeted back toward earth, a 10-foot-long rocket fired and increased payload speed from about 15,000 to 25,166 miles an hour.

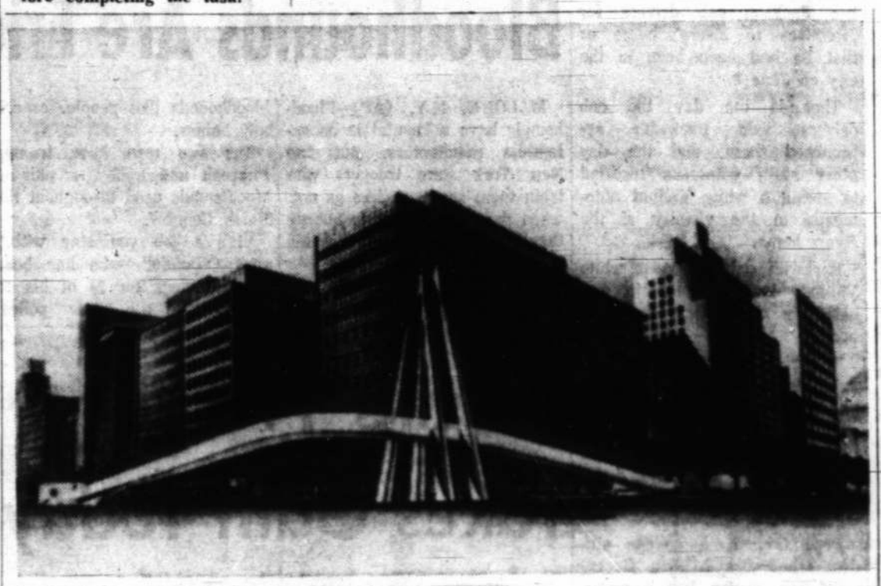
The speed was slightly higher than that the Apollo craft is to attain in returning astronauts from the moon. It also was more than 7,000 miles an hour faster than the velocity recorded by any previous space vehicle re-entering the earth's atmosphere.

As the 200-pound payload made the meteoric dive, it radioed information on the heat that seared its blunt shield.

A great shock wave built up in front of the payload and temperature of gases within the wave reached 200,000 degrees. An observer at the South Atlantic tracking station on Ascension Island described the spacecraft as a ball of fire.

An official of Republic Aviation, which built the spacecraft, reported the 20,000-degree heat could be converted to enough energy to lift the Empire State Building 25 feet.

Herbert A. Wilson, Project Fire manager for the space agency's Langley Research Center, told newsmen he was very pleased with initial data from the 32-minute flight. A tape recorder stored heat data during the peak period of re-entry when extreme temperatures cut off radio signals.



DAG HAMMARSKJOLD MEMORIAL—New York—This is the proposed design for a curved pedestrian bridge over New York's First Avenue in front of the United Nations Building as a memorial to the late U.N. mission in Northern Rhodesia. A fund drive was launched in New York Tuesday night to raise the $500,000 or more to build the memorial. Hammarskjold was killed in a plane crash while on a U.N. missing in Northern Rhodesia. Graham Man Dies Of Knife Wounds

GRAHAM, Tex. (Special) — Two Mineral Wells men were being held in Young County jail Wednesday morning facing murder charges in connection with the stabbing death of 20-year-old Glen Dale (Bud) Carnley of Graham.

Carnley, of 903 Texas, was dead upon arrival at Graham General Hospital. Officers said he suffered a great loss of blood from a leg wound inflicted during an argument on the Brazos River 10 miles south of Graham off State 254.

Jailed were Allen Lafayette Cook, 56, and his son, Willie Ray Cook, 24, both held in lieu of $10,000 bonds set by Peace Justice J. L. Miller.

Sheriff's officers said Carnley and a party of three other men went fishing Tuesday afternoon at a spot on the river across from a point where the Cooks and three other men had established a camp for cutting cedar fence posts.

Officers quoted one of Carnley's party, Jackie Carter, as saying the woodcutters were firing guns and the fishermen shouted across the river and asked them to stop.

An argument ensued, Carter was quoted as saying, and the woodcutters came across the river and attacked the fishermen. The rest of the party fled but returned shortly to find Carnley suffering badly from loss of blood, officers continued to quote Carter.

Carnley was dead by the time he arrived at Graham. Others in the fishing party were reported to be Charles Hays and Kenneth Borden, all of Graham.

An oil field worker, Carnley is survived by his widow and two children.

Major Investigation Of Draft Law Hinted

By STANLEY MEISLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman predicts the House will soon launch a major investigation of the draft law and feature heavyweight champion Cassius Clay as its star witness.

The prediction came from Rep. William G. Bray, R-Ind., who told a newsman:

"I think the Selective Service made a mistake in rejecting Cassius Clay. I'm not sure what the devil you could do with him. But I think the Army could have found a place for him."

The Army had said Clay was rejected after he failed to pass mental tests.

Bray, who is the ranking Republican member of the House Armed Services subcommittee on personnel, said he was not sure just which congressmen would do the investigating.

He said he was hoping to persuade his subcommittee to do it. He said there also was a possibility that a joint committee, made up of members of the Armed Services and Education and Labor committees, would do the job.

In any case, Bray said, he was confident that some subcommittee or committee would open an investigation soon and call Clay as a witness.

There was no official confirmation, however, of any committee plans. Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of Bray's subcommittee, said "I don't know anything about it."

Bray said there had been much discussion among members of Congress for some time about what they consider the failings of the draft system.

"I'm not blaming Selective Service Director Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey about this," Bray said. "I'm not blaming Cassius Clay. But it does not seem right to reject a heavyweight boxing champion."

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and several other senators, both Democratic and Republican, have proposed a presidential commission to study the draft.

HIGH COURT NIXES ROAD

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court struck down today a state law that grants landowners whose property is surrounded by the land of another person a right of way across the neighbor's property.

The court reversed a lower court judgment granting a Baylor County rancher a right of way across the W. T. Waggoner Ranch.

Wilmer Gleghorn, whose land is encircled by the Waggoner Ranch, won district court approval in Baylor County for a road through the Waggoner land to part of his ranch north of the Wichita River. Court records showed there already was a road to the south part of his ranch.

The trial court based its decision on a law which the supreme court said purports "to grant to anyone who claims the right to use land which is wholly or partially surrounded by land of another person the right to an easement over the surrounding land for ingress and egress to and from the surrounding property."

The supreme court said the statute conflicts with a state constitution provision that property will not be taken without adequate compensation, except by consent.

Billie Sol's Appeal Gets Third Reject

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals rejected for the third time today Billie Sol Estes' appeal of a swindling conviction but left clear the way for further appeals.

The court, Texas' highest for criminal cases, overruled a second rehearing request by the former West Texas farm financier.

However, a previous court opinion was reworded and this allows Estes to seek still another rehearing within 15 days.

The court in effect refused to alter its Jan. 15 ruling affirming the conviction and eight-year prison sentence assessed by a district court at Tyler in November 1962.

The conviction was the first to follow the arrest of Estes in March, 1962, after executives from leading finance companies across the nation tried unsuccessfully for two days to straighten out his financial affairs at a Dallas meeting.

The arrest by federal officers was followed quickly by collapse of his multi-million-dollar fertilizer and grain storage empire.

Johnson Reports 'No Settlement' In Rail Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said today "there is no settlement yet" in the railroad labor dispute which he is trying to help solve to avoid a nationwide strike.

Johnson said at a news conference it should be known not later than next Monday whether the unions and railroads can settle the five-year dispute in the emergency bargaining sessions arranged by the President.

"The country expects that answer to be yes," Johnson said.

He said the bargainers in five days of talks have "narrowed the area of difference on some of the issues" in the complicated dispute over wage structure and working conditions.

But, Johnson said, "there can be no settlement until all issues are disposed of."

A 15-day nationwide strike postponement which Johnson won from the two sides expires at 12:01 a.m. April 25.

The principal question is whether these bargainers can, in 15 days, get over four years of the idea of somebody else settling their disagreements for them," Johnson said.

"I hope they can and I think they can," Johnson said.

Johnson said the intensive mediation sessions which have been taking place in the White House or in the executive office building next door will continue.

Johnson discussed the status of the settlement efforts after receiving from federal mediators an accounting that was originally scheduled as a report on "the progress and the effectiveness" of the first five days of the emergency talks.

Former Illinois Governor Cited By Grand Jury

CHICAGO (AP)—William G. Stratton, Republican governor of Illinois from 1952 to 1960, was accused by a federal grand jury of evading $46,676 in income taxes his last four years in office.

The indictment was voted April 8 but was suppressed until this morning. The government said the grand jury action was kept secret to insure orderly conduct of Tuesday's Illinois primary election.

Source

The source of the funds on which he was alleged to have evaded taxes was not given. The indictment charged that income tax returns for 1957 through 1960 were false and fraudulent.

The returns were filed jointly by Stratton and his wife, Shirley, whom he married in 1957, but Mrs. Stratton was not named a defendant.

Government investiagors said that Stratton paid only $23,311.83 in taxes for the four years whereas he should have paid $69,987.94, leaving an alleged evasion of $46,676.11 on unreported income.

Edward Hanrahan, U.S. district attorney, said Internal Revenue Service agents had followed normal procedures in checking Stratton's returns and had discussed his taxes with him.

"He had an opportunity to pay," Hanrahan said.

No Comment

Stratton was not immediately available for comment. He worked Tuesday night as a political commentator for a Chicago television station.

If convicted of the charges, Stratton could receive a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $40,000 fine.

Judge William J. Campbell of U.S. District Court issued a summons for Stratton and set his bond at $5,000.

Stratton's administrative assistant, William W. Downey, pleaded guilty three years ago in Springfield to evading $77,000 between 1953 and 1956. He was fined $5,000 and placed on probation for three years.

In September 1963, however, Downey's probation was extended for two more years after the government said he had not complied with a provision to settle tax penalties and interest.

The government claimed he

Fair And Warm Is Prediction

Fair skies continued to grace the Wichita Falls area Wednesday with only occasional strong gusts of wind swooping in to mar an otherwise perfect spring day.

Wind gusts were hitting up to around 25 miles per hour, from the south, as the mercury began a steady upward march from the morning minimum of 50 degrees.

Forecasters at the U.S. Weather Bureau anticipated that the afternoon temperatures would reach 85 degrees. Tuesday had a high of 76.

Thursday morning the minimum will be around 58 degrees with the daytime temperatures expected in the upper 80s.

No precipitation is in sight this week with a warming trend due to continue through the weekend. However, in the extended outlook, a surge of cooler air is anticipated about Monday, with the possibility of some rain.

Goldwater Wins Illinois Primary

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's victory in the Illinois presidential preference primary shared interest today with a surprising show of strength by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith.

Charles H. Percy, who stepped into a president's post in industry at 29, captured the Republican nomination for governor at the age of 44.

Returns from Tuesday's primary gave these percentages of the preference vote: Goldwater 63, Mrs. Smith 26, Henry Cabot Lodge 6 and Richard M. Nixon 3, with the remainder split up among several others.

Sen. Smith, of Maine, came into the Illinois test after Goldwater had entered. She wanted, she said, to give the voters a choice.

Both traveled to Illinois twice during the campaign. The Arizona senator spoke Friday to 10,000 at a rally in the International Amphitheatre.

The lady from Maine was in the state at the same time. As on her previous weekend visit, she quickly made the rounds at colleges and small gatherings.

Her display of vote - pulling power was unexpected, too, when viewed in the light of her finish as a poor fifth in the March 10 primary in her neighboring state of New Hampshire.

Johnson Confesses Desire To Get 'Closer To People'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson outdanced 28-year-old King Hussein of Jordan, but he found they had something in common—a desire to get closer to their people.

In a champagne toast Tuesday night to the visiting Arab monarch, Johnson confided to 149 guests at a state dinner that Hussein "in his desire to be closer to his people has been known to disguise himself and drive a taxicab through the streets of his capital."

Johnson said he hasn't yet "found a successful disguise" for himself, though "the streets of our national capital are sometimes crowded with cabs."

"But," said the President, "I am trying to spend the weekends lately with the people of my country who are touring Washington."

Johnson has been out in the spring weather, walking on the south lawn and making occasional forays to see the sightseers.

He did it Tuesday after his noon-time conference with Hussein.

And, he confided at Tuesday's formal dinner that he means to do it "every chance I get."

The President and Mrs. Johnson invited the Dave Brubeck jazz quartet to provide after-dinner music for Hussein, a devotee of jazz. And, the east ballroom rocked with their improvisations and frenzied drumming by Eugene Wright.

Later, the whole party moved into the more intimate blue room, where Mrs. Johnson and the king started the dancing to "Fantastic," played by the Air Force Strolling Strings.

The circular room got crowded at times and some guests moved to nearby corridors to watch and sip champagne and after-dinner drinks.

Johnson danced just about every dance, switching partners often in mid-tune. The king kept twirling, too.

But, at 11:15 p.m., the king said his goodbys, and the Johnsons took a break to walk him to the door. Other guests left, too. But the President went back for more dancing. He kept it up until shortly after midnight.

Among the late dancers was British economist-author Barbara Ward. The President said he had recently read one of her books and he cut in several times to dance with her.

Students Clash With Police In Anti-Food Demonstration

MARYVILLE, Mo. (AP)—A week of demonstrations over the food at Northwest Missouri State College boiled into a clash between students and police on Tuesday night. They skirmished about 30 minutes with rocks, tear gas, fire hoses and police dogs.

Harold Reynolds, a fireman, was knocked out by a rock thrown from a throng of students as he manned a fire hose. He was treated for a slight head cut.

Four students were taken into custody, charged with disorderly conduct and ordered to appear in court Monday.

Police declined to give their names.

About a thousand yelling students headed toward the courthouse square with cries of "Let's go to town!"

Seventy peace officers marshaled from northwest Missouri and southeast Iowa confronted them after they had gone about one block.

"Back! Back!" yelled an officer.

The students jeered. "All right, the dogs," the officer said.

The students retreated to a corner of the campus. Firemen opened up with their hoses. The students sagged back to the center of the campus. Officers fired tear gas, and scattered the remaining demonstrators.

About 800 students staged a sit - down and march which blocked Main Street and U.S. 71 in Maryville for more than an hour Monday night. Officers used one tear gas shell, handcuffed two students but released them.

College officials expressed a belief they had taken the starch out of the demonstrating when Dr. J. W. Jones, the college's 70-year-old president, talked for 35 minutes to about 2,600 of the students Tuesday afternoon.

He told them their conduct was disgraceful and announced a committee of 30 students will confer with authorities on their complaints about the food.

"Half spring fever and half an attempt by a misguided few to gain publicity for themselves," was his analysis of the trouble.

The dining hall feeds an average of about 1,200 a meal and the average cost is 54 cents.

Acheson's Comment Was Highly Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP)—In 1950 Secretary of State Dean Acheson talked on the American defense line in the Pacific and got denounced for years afterwards. Republicans made him a punching bag.

It was one of the twists of history — or politics — that Gen. before drew exactly the same defense line but this went unmentioned by Acheson's critics and defenders.

Among the critics were Sens. Joseph McCarthy and Robert A. Taft and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Even when MacArthur died April 5, what he said in 1949 must have been long-forgotten. This writer found no mention of it.

This was the background. In 1949 the Chinese Communists were smashing Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists on the China mainland. Formosa, an island 100 miles off the coast, belonged to China.

Interview

On March 1, 1949, MacArthur —in an interview with an English newspaperman, Ward Price —discussed the American defense perimeter in the Pacific. The interview was published in the New York Times March 3.

MacArthur said the Anglo-Saxon "line of defense runs through the chain of islands fringing the coast of Asia." He listed them, from the Aleutians to the Philippines, through Japan. He left out Formosa.

In December 1949, Chiang and what was left of his army fled to Formosa. But by then the United States had given up on him and on Jan. 5, 1950, President Harry S. Truman called in newsmen to make a statement.

He said the United States would take no action to defend Chiang and his forces on Formosa, that it was a Chinese problem. This was an administration policy decision.

On Jan. 12, 1950, Acheson supported Truman and explained the decision in a talk at the National Press Club.

Repeating

Repeating what MacArthur had said 10 months before, Acheson put the American defense line in the Pacific off the Asian coast and in the string of islands from the Aleutians to the Philippines. He, too, omitted Formosa.

He then went further than MacArthur and sought to answer the natural question raised by his statement: what about protecting other areas in the Pacific and Asia from attack.

Acheson said: "It must be clear that no person can guarantee these areas against military attack. But it must be clear that such a guarantee is hardly sensible or necessary within the realm of practical relationships."

If such an attack did occur, he said, "the initial reliance must be on the people attacked to resist it and then upon the commitments of the entire civilized world under the charter of the United Nations which so far has not proved a weak reed to lean on by any people who are determined to protect their independence against outside aggression."

Acheson

While Acheson didn't commit the United States to the defense of any country attacked in Asia, he didn't say the United States wouldn't try to defend it. He left the door open for an American decision later.

A would-be attacker could construe it either way. But the United States had just gone through an experience with Chiang whose government and forces had frittered away American help.

On June 25, 1950, the North Korean Communists attacked South Korea. Truman acted at once: he sent American forces to the defense of Korea, under MacArthur. The United Nations quickly joined in. And Truman defended Formosa from Red Chinese attack.

Seven days after the attack started McCarthy denounced Acheson "announcement last winter that we would not defend Korea and Formosa."

And during the 1952 presidential campaign—MacArthur was keynote speaker at the Republican convention which nominated Eisenhower — they also denounced Acheson along the same lines.

Rachel Carson Dies Of Cancer

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Death by cancer has silenced Rachel Carson whose book "Silent Spring" created international controversy with its charge that man was poisoning the earth and himself by his efforts to control nature with chemicals.

Miss Carson, 56, a biologist who became a best selling author in 1951 with "The Sea Around Us," died Tuesday afternoon at her home. She learned five years ago, apparently while working on "Silent Spring," that she had cancer.

Her book helped inspire a White House report last May calling for stronger federal laws on pesticides and new steps to regulate their control.

The book warned of the dangers of tampering with the balance of nature and argued for biological controls rather than massive and indiscriminate use of chemicals, such as pesticides and weed killers.

She wrote: "These sprays, dusts, and aerosols are now applied almost universally to farms, gardens, forests and homes — nonselective chemicals that have the power to kill every insect, the 'good' and the 'bad,' to still the song of birds and the leaping of fish in the streams, to coat the leaves with a deadly film, and to linger on in the soil—all this though the intended target may be only a few weeds or insects. Can anyone believe it is possible to lay down such a barrage of poisons on the surface of the earth without making it unfit for all life?"

Miss Carson's book, which ironically also warned of the hazards of man-made cancer-producing substances, was criticized by some, including pesticide industry chemists, as presenting an incomplete picture. Manufacturers and trade associations defended the safety of pesticides "when used as directed."

Beckwith Trial Said Near End

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Byron De La Beckwith, accused of murdering a Negro integration leader, faces more questions today as his second trial nears an end.

The 43-year-old fertilizer salesman from Greenwood was questioned by Dist. Atty. William Waller for nearly an hour Tuesday. Waller said he was "nowhere near finished" when circuit court stopped for the day.

The prosecution charges Beckwith killed Medgar W. Evers last June 12 by shooting him in the back with a rifle. A first trial ended with a hung jury.

Defense attorney Hardy Lott handed him the 30.06 Enfield rifle found in a honeysuckle thicket near the scene and asked if it were his.

"This rifle is similar to several rifles I have owned," said Beckwith. "But I could not positively identify the rifle."

Beckwith said he never asked two Jackson cab drivers for directions to Evers' home or that he had even been in the city on June 8.

That is the day the cab drivers said Beckwith approached them, and the day other state witnesses testified to seeing a white Valiant automobile in the vicinity of the Evers home.

Beckwith drives a 1962 white Valiant, but he said it was never in the Evers' neighborhood.

The night of the shooting, he said, he ate supper in Greenwood, went home and worked awhile on reports. He said he couldn't sleep that night because of the heat and drove around town alone for awhile in his car.

Fred Conner, a college student who worked at a Greenwood bus station last summer, testified he ate dinner with Beckwith that night at the Crystal Grill.

The state's testimony showed Beckwith acquired an Enfield rifle through a swap in 1960 and traded for a telescopic sight for the gun a month before the Evers shooting.

siles deployed; the Soviets have substantially fewer submarine-launched ballistic missiles in operation."

—U.S. Polaris submarines are all nuclear-powered; only a small percentage of Soviet missile subs are atomic-run. Polaris missiles can be fired from under water; the Soviet missiles can't. Each U.S. Polaris rocket has at least a 1,500-mile range; the Soviet missiles less than 500.

Bombers

As for relative bomber strength since 1961, the Pentagon statement suggested this favors the United States—that the U.S. bomber force on combat alert has increased from less than 500 then while the Soviet bomber force has stayed about the same.

Both sides had only about "a handful of intercontinental ballistic missiles or submarine-launched missiles deployed" back in January 1961. The Pentagon said.

The implication here was that both sides started at about the same place three years ago and that the United States has vaulted ahead, not slowed down.

LeMay testified before a House Appropriations subcommittee in late February. That was before a decision was made to extend his tenure as Air Force chief of staff seven months beyond the July 1 expiration date of his present term.

McNamara's associates insist relations between the two men are cordial. But there is a strong belief the decision to extend LeMay until Feb. 1 was chiefly that of President Johnson.

U.S. Funds Asked To Move Ancient Egyptian Temple

WASHINGTON (AP)—For 32 centuries the massive statues at Abu Simbel have gazed impassively at the rising sun across the Nile. Now the United States Congress is being asked for $12 million so they can gaze for some more centuries.

Work has already begun on the U.N. project to save the temple and its statues from being drowned under the rising waters of the Aswan Dam.

The total cost of the massive and complicated moving job is estimated at $36 million. The United Arab Republican and the United States have pledged the biggest chunks of it, but the U.S. $12 million share its subject to congressional appropriation procedure.

The bill containing the funds is in the House Appropriations Committee. Target date for committee action on the bill is May 1.

Is it controversial?

"That is the understatement of the week," said subcommittee chairman John J. Rooney, D-N.Y.

He said the committee staff has been getting half a dozen queries a day from people interested in the Abu Simbel project. Many of them are very much against contributing money in any form to a project in Gamal Abdel Nasser's Egypt.

Max McCullough, State Department official who knows most about Abu Simbel, said "some comment" has been received on the question of helping Nasser.

But McCullough said no Jewish or Zionist group has viewed it in this light, the Israel has avoided any criticism of it in the United Nations, regarding it as a purely cultural project.

McCullough noted that the U.S. contribution would be in so-called counterpart funds.

This money in Egyptian pounds has piled up because of the Food for Peace program, under which American surplus commodities are sold to needy countries for their own local currencies.

The State Department expert said there is "no foreseeable use for the money" which cannot be exchanged readily for other currencies. It is simply piling up in a Cairo bank.

Rooney sharply disputed this. "Anybody who says it's wooden money — that's nonsense," he said in an interview. "We can get dollars for it. We can use the money to run our embassy and pay the rent."

The moving of the Abu Simbel temple with its four massive seated statues, including King Ramses II and Queen Nefertari, is a gigantic engineering project. A West German firm is directing it.

Bloodhounds Are Friendly Dogs

MALONE, N.Y. (AP)—Bloodhounds have a reputation as relentless manhunters. But two New York state troopers who train them say that, like as not, when the dogs rout their quarry they'll wag all over and lick his face.

Cpl. E. W. O'Donnell and trooper N. C. Thorne insist that bloodhounds like people, especially babies.

The two men have trained Pharoah and Bobby, a pair of bloodhounds used throughout the North Country.

"It's a job you stay with," says O'Donnell, who has been handling dogs for 24 of his 39 years with the state police. Thorne has been his assistant for five years.

Ninety per cent of the Malone team's work is finding lost hunters and fishermen, runaway boys and strayers from summer camps.

The toughest jobs involve lost children. Anxious parents are reluctant to have bloodhounds on the case. The dogs' size frightens people, Thorne says. When the hounds finally are called, the trail usually is cold.

Panicky parents also tend to rummage through a lost child's clothing before troopers arrive. The combination of scents confuses the dogs.

O'Donnell scoffs at the belief that water throws a bloodhound off the trail.

Several years ago, he recalled in an interview, a bloodhound trailing a lost boy led police down Schroon Lake's main street to the beach and plunged into the water. Divers found the youth's body in 10 feet of water.

Pharoah, now 5, made a notable debut at eight months.

Troopers seeking a former mental patient who had shot his wife and her parents found the man's car in a woods. Pharoah tracked through four miles of wilderness and, near a rock ledge, his nose went up.

"Up a tree," thought O'Donnell, and he pulled his pistol. Dogs scent such a ruse frequently when they raise their heavy muzzles, trainers pay attention.

In this case, heat waves from the rocks had wafted the scent upward. Pharoah trotted to the body of the slayer, who had committed suicide.

A bloodhound usually wears out before the trooper does because he doesn't pace himself, Thorne said. Given his head, he'll run for a mile or two, then drop from exhaustion.

"The dog is a lot of help on that leash," Thorne said. "He draws you along, especially uphill."

Brazil's President Takes Oath Today

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — A new chapter, possibly one of the most significant in Brazil's recent political history, opens today with the inauguration of Gen. Humberto Castello Branco as president.

How strong a hand the military will take in running the country and the prospects for political peace should be determined during the 21 months the 64-year-old former army chief of staff heads the interim government.

The military leaders of the anti-Communist coup that overthrew President Joao Goulart have promised elections for a new president in October 1965, when Goulart's successor would have been chosen.

Lack Of Interest

There was a marked lack of interest in non-official circles as authorities completed preparations for the inauguration.

No flags or banners flew in Brasilia's business district. Residents of the capital seemed to go about their tasks totally indifferent to the event.

Basically Castello Branco's regime is intended to provide a transition from military back to civilian control. But his decisions could chart the course of the ailing nation.

The extent of military influence is expected to become apparent early. The composition of Castello Branco's cabinet also should determine the degree of ultra-conservative sentiment in the government.

All this will undoubtedly determine the reaction of the sizable segment of the population most seriously affected by the recent coup. This is made up of voters who gave big electoral majorities to Goulart and his Labor party.

Left-wing extremists infiltrated this powerful force. But it also sought dramatic reforms in an attempt to bring Brazil out of its social and economic stagnation.

The military recently deprived this group of most of its leaders by suspending their political rights.

New leaders presumably will arise. The next 21 months should tell whether they will survive, or whether the armed forces will follow Argentina's example of dealing forcefully, but inconclusively, with followers of former dictator Juan D. Peron.

Measures

Castello Branco faces a need for drastic measures to halt whirlwind inflation that has brought Brazil to the brink of economic ruin.

Interim President Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli, the Chamber of Deputies president who succeeded Goulart, warned in a broadcast Tuesday night that Brazil's deficit for 1964 will total 1.5 trillion cruzeiros—$833.3 million at the current exchange rate.

Mazzilli said efforts for recovery would be futile without cuts in public payrolls and public spending.

New Experiments Planned In Space

HOUSTON (AP) — Twenty-three scientific and technological experiments will be tried during the next four Gemini spacecraft flights.

The experiments were chosen from almost 100 submitted by scientists and engineers at the various centers of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Department of Defense and the scientific community at large.

No scientific or technological experiments were aboard the first Gemini flight last week. The major objective of this unmanned flight was to test the compatability of the spacecraft and the Titan rocket, the launch vehicle in the Gemini program.

The first technological experiment during the next unmanned Gemini flight this summer, will test several techniques to assure communications between spacecraft and ground stations during re-entry of the spacecraft.

For a brief but crucial period during reentry of the manned Mercury spacecraft, communications were blacked out.

The first manned Gemini flight will carry two scientific experiments. It is scheduled for from three to five earth orbits late this year.

One experiment will test the effects of radiation and weightlessness on human white blood cells. The other will test the growth of sea urchin eggs, some of which will be fertilized before launch and the rest during the weightless condition of space flight.

Four technological and two scientific experiments will be aboard the fourth Gemini flight. Both scientific experiments will be photographic, to record geologic structures and weather systems.

Technological experiments during the week-long flight will test the astronauts' ability to view and photograph selected areas with commercially available equipment.

Data also will be gathered about the total radiation dose absorbed by Gemini astronauts.

British Firm Plans To Sell Cranes To Cuba

LONDON (AP)—A report that a British steel company is negotiating to sell Cuba heavy cranes has threatened a new dispute between the United States and Britain.

The Daily Mail reported the British firm, Steel & Co., was negotiating a $1.4-million contract with Fidel Castro's government.

The Cummins Engine Co., of Columbus, Ind., whose British subsidiary has supplied Steel & Co. with a dozen diesel engines in the past year, announced that if the Cuban deal goes through it will stop selling to the British firm.

The report also brought a protest from the U.S. Embassy that such a deal would be "a contravention of U.S. Treasury and export regulations."

C-C Groups Study Parking

Downtown and off-street parking was discussed at a meeting of the downtown redevelopment and the tourist development action groups in the chamber of commerce offices Wednesday morning.

A report by Bill Thacker on letters sent to other Texas and Oklahoma cities regarding parking problems showed these cities also had parking difficulties, but answers to the problems had not yet been found.

Dr. W. J. Thomas, professor of business administration and education at Midwestern University, spoke to the meeting about a survey made in 1961 pertaining to shopping habits. Dr. Thomas told the group the survey included not only the downtown area but the shopping centers in existence at the time.

After a brief discussion on the results of the survey, the group ask Dr. Thomas for copies of the survey to study for their needs.

Another survey made by the City of Wichita Falls in 1962 was compared with the Midwestern survey and copies of this were to be given the committee for further study.

No action was taken at the Wednesday meeting in regard to downtown parking, with the thought that the assemblying of information was the biggest problem facing the group.

Chamber member Wayne Smith told the action group the idea of using "dollies" for downtown shoppers was at a stalemate as he could find no one with the dollies that the city could lease for a short period of time to test the "shuttle-type" transportation plan. Further study will be given the suggestion of using the "dollies" to move at a three-mile-per-hour speed through the downtown area to provide a lift from one block to another. Under this plan, shoppers could simply hop on the slow-moving vehicle and hop off again at their destination without having to look for parking places or walking blocks loaded with parcels.

Smith told the group a program of colored slides along with a script would be presented at the next meeting, showing the results of remodeling done earlier in various cities.

False Death Story Sets Off Reaction

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The immediate reaction to Monday's erroneous report that Soviet Premier Khrushchev had died was an accurate foretaste of exactly what Americans will be asking when he does die.

It was "what now?" Monday and it will be "what now?" then.

The Western world cannot help being haunted by the thought that Khrushchev's successor, when the time comes, may turn out to be not another Khrushchev but another Stalin, or an imitation of him.

Stalin was a nightmare: unpredictable, relentless, ruthless and obsessed with a determination, even a compulsion, to impose communism wherever he could as fast as he dared. He died in 1953.

Communism under Khrushchev — at least the Russian kind, as distinguished from that of the Red Chinese — looks less sick and, from the Western view, has taken a more endurable turn.

Not that there weren't bad moments under Khrushchev who was just as much a Communist as Stalin and tried his luck at the old man's game. The Berlin wall is an example. Putting missiles in Cuba is another.

He knew the United States and the Soviet Union could destroy each other in a nuclear war. But he had to find out if this country was willing to risk it. The Cuban missiles were his supreme test.

Once he found the answer was yes—when President John F. Kennedy met the challenge and backed him down—Khrushchev subsided, has been purring since.

He has been well - balanced enough to accommodate himself to a reality: that bluster won't work and war is unthinkable. This requires the Soviet Union to be less belligerent, less reckless.

The alternative is obvious: the Soviet Union must concentrate more of its energies on building a Communist society that can try to match or outdo the West in comforts and thus make communism more attractive through affluence than conflict.

Last week he said in effect he prefers prosperity to revolution. It is over the Soviet Union's diminishing hostilities that the Red Chinese are supposed to be outraged. The roots go deeper.

The nationalism of the Soviet Union and China is stronger than their communism. Their antagonisms go far back. Only in this context can their so - called ideological differences make sense, for most of that is double-talk.

But it was Khrushchev himself who split the Communist world before the Chinese hit it with an ax. And in this, Khrushchev no doubt was compelled not by idealism but by contemporary necessity: treating the Russians as grown up.

The Russia that Stalin inherited from Lenin in the 1920s was an ignorant, unschooled, primitive world. He had a choice: organize its energies by reason or terror. He chose terror, which was part of his nature.

As a crutch and excuse for the discipline of terror he insisted upon infallibility, which became his justification for any savagery. But he was too inflexible to change with a changing Russia. He died out of date.

By then the Russian masses were vastly better educated and, therefore, better able to think, which meant more critical and questioning of him and the party and its practices.

They no longer could be treated entirely as vassals of the state. Their approval to some degree had to be sought. This meant elimination of terror and talk of a fuller life.

In these terms, Khrushchev's downgrading of Stalin is understandable. But in doing this he shattered, and must have understood he would, the infallibility of the leadership.

The result: the monolith of communism itself was shattered. Party members everywhere became confused. Differences followed, Moscow could be disagreed with. Khrushchev confirmed this point over the weekend.

Thus, as the Soviet Union lost its absolute control over world communism, it was no longer the single - willed monster of Stalin. The chance is there for growth in new directions.

Wichitans Study Museum Operation

Operations of two Fort Worth museums were thoroughly explored Tuesday by a group of Wichitans interested in promoting establishment of such a facility here.

Two bus loads of Wichita Falls men and women who are members of a steering committee and an advisory committee — both instigated by the Junior Service League in an effort to work for the building of a museum here —took the trip Tuesday.

Visited were the Children's Museum and the Art Center. Some of the group stayed over to tour the Western Art Museum.

Their hosts were Helmuth Naumen, curator at the Children's Museum, and Raymond Entenmann, director of the Art Center.

At the Children's Museum, which is currently being expanded to encompass 87,000 square feet; it was learned that some 200,000 persons a year tour the building or use its facilities.

Classrooms

There are 20 classrooms where courses in a wide variety of subjects are conducted for age groups ranging from three years old upwards. In addition to the usual museum type furnishings, this facility has a section housing live animals. It also has an auditorium.

The budget of the Children's Museum is about $150,000 annually. One third of this is paid by the City of Fort Worth, one third by the United Fund and the remaining third is financed by the museum's self - sustaining operations.

Wichitans witnessed volunteers in action, learning how they conduct classes and escort tours.

A concentrated drive to promote the building of a museum in Wichita Falls was started by the JSL earlier this year. Committees are investigating the various aspects such as acquiring land, employing a curator and staff and securing furnishings for a museum.

Tour Members

Those who traveled to Fort Worth Tuesday were Mrs. Royce Riddle, Mrs. Phil Bolin, Mrs. Don Barnhart, Mrs. Stayton Bonner, Mrs. W. T. Sanders Jr., Mrs. Ben Cunningham, Mrs. Tom Medders Jr., and Mrs. Frank Jones.

HAZELLE OWEN

Sertoma To Hear Librarian

Speaker for the Wichita Falls Sertoma Club at its Thursday luncheon in Villa Motel will be a well - known Wichita Falls educator and public school librarian, Mrs. Hazelle Owen.

Mrs. Owen's talk, in observance of National Library Week, will be on the subject, "Reading Is the Key." She will discuss books in elementary school libraries and the library's role in public education.

The Wichitan has had numerous honors paid her for outstanding achievements, among them selection as one of 10 former students of Central State College in Edmond, Okla., to be honored at homecoming in 1962.

Mrs. Owen has a bachelor's degree from that college and since then she has done graduate work at the University of Texas in Austin, North Texas State University and Texas Woman's University.

She has been associated with the Wichita Falls schools since 1955.

State Patrolman Wins Promotion

Highway patrolman Thomas W. Brown of Bowie has been appointed to the rank of sergeant, Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, announced Wednesday.

Brown, who will fill the vacancy left by the death of Sgt. O. C. Wheeler, veteran of 23 years with the department, joined the Highway Patrol in December, 1948. He served seven years and 18 months in Hearne before moving to Bowie where he has been stationed for six years.

The new sergeant was born in Whitewright in Fannin County Feb. 25, 1926. He attended school there, graduating in 1943. Brown joined the Navy after graduation and served from 1944 to 1946 with amphibious landing forces. After discharge from military service he returned to Whitewright and worked in the laundry business until joining the Department of Public Safety.

He is a member of the Baptist Church, active in the Bowie Junior Chamber of Commerce, and has attended several departmental schools. Brown is married to the former Nadine Voelkle and they have two children, James Robert, 17, and Dorothy Ann, 16.

Party Nominee Named In Charge

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— The National States Rights party's presidential nominee, John Kasper, has been charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 13-year-old Negro girl.

Kasper was charged Tuesday on a warrant signed by the girl's mother.

Charles W. Deweese, an employe at a garage here owned by Kasper, was charged with attempt to have carnal knowledge of the girl.

Police officers said the charges grew out of an incident Saturday night at the garage. The warrants were not sworn out until Monday, after a two-day investigation by Negro policemen Carl Crane and J. T. Booker.

Kasper and Deweese denied the charges. Kasper claimed the girl told officers at the time of the initial investigation that the charges were false.

Kasper is known because of activities during the 1956 desegregation of Clinton, Tenn., high school, which resulted in two federal prison terms, one in 1957 and another in 1959, for contempt of federal court injunctions.

In 1960, Kasper was sentenced to six months in the Davidson County workhouse for inciting a riot during desegregation here in 1957.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

New U.S. Steel Option Plan Ignores Blough's Own Creed

LIVINGSTON

By J. A. LIVINGSTON

Legal but impolitic.

These three words connect—for me—the United States Steel Corp.'s 1962 blunder in raising steel prices and its 1964 decision to reduce the price of stock options to executives.

Both actions violate behavior guidelines set forth by Roger M. Blough, U.S. Steel's chairman, in lectures at the Columbia Graduate School of Business in 1959. Blough described a free society as one "in which individuals are responsive to the changing boundaries of thought, culture, and conscience."

As U.S. Steel's chief executive officer, Blough has been unresponsive to changing social environment. See if you agree with me.

On April 6, 1962, after two months of knotty negotiations wetnursed by Arthur J. Goldberg, then secretary of labor and now supreme court justice, a steel wage agreement was signed.

Noninflationary

Promptly and elatedly, President Kennedy described the settlement as "noninflationary." David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers, said the agreement could "eliminate for all time basic steel strikes in America."

On April 10, just as the nation was relishing this achievement, Blough announced a $6-a-ton price rise. Bethlehem, Jones & Laughlin, Republic, Wheeling and Youngstown followed the leader. But not Inland Steel.

The next day, the President denounced this "irresponsible defiance" of the public interest. A "tiny handful" of steel executives displayed "utter contempt" for their fellow Americans.

Blough should have repressed his anxiety to improve U.S. Steel's profit margins four days after the settlement.

And he should have repressed the natural desire of U.S. Steel executives to take advantage of the leeway granted in the Revenue Act of 1964 to lower the price of options, once Congress voted disapproval of this practice.

$57 A Share

Blough is asking shareholders for authority to reduce the option price from $82 a share to the going market price at the time granted. The stock now sells around $57 a share.

The proposal is legal until Jan. 1, 1965, but does it conform to changing moral boundaries?

Among the principal beneficiaries of the old plan are Big Steel's three top officers. Blough bought 40,000 shares at an average option price of $28 a share and still has unexpired options on 8,000 shares at $82.

Leslie B. Worthington, president, acquired 15,000 shares at an average option price of $24 and has unexercised options on 3,000 shares at $55 and 12,000 at $82.

R. C. Tyson, chairman of the finance committee, acquired 30,000 shares at an average option price of $28 and has unexercised options on 10,000 shares at $55 and 8,000 at $82.

All are now substantial stockholders—Blough owns approximately 28,000 shares, Worthington about 10,000, and Tyson 26,000. They have plenty of incentive besides high salaries to work diligently and loyally for the comapny.

By renouncing the $82 options and taking up new ones, Blough, Worthington, Tyson, and other executives would become eligible to buy stock at a saving of $25—$57 versus $82—at the current market. This would mean $200,000 each to Blough and Tyson and $300,000 to Worthington.

Option Price

U.S. Steel stockholders who don't get a rebate when the stock falls, would foot the bill. The lower price comes out of the corporate treasury.

The changed attitude of Congress toward options is clearly expressed in the U.S. Treasury's official explanation of the revision: "The previous provision allowing the option price to be reset when the market price went down often worked against the intended incentive effect of options by guaranteeing stock bonanzas regardless of an executive's efforts or the progress of the corporation.

"Sometimes the provisions even allowed an executive to realize a greater eventual gain when the market price fell than he would have realized had it risen."

Perhaps Blough, Worthington and Tyson feel that lower-echelon executives in the company deserve to get options closer to the current market. But they ought to exclude themselves from this special privilege.

As pillars of our corporate society, they personally ought to conform to the new moral standards expressed by Congress even though these standards do not attain full legal status until next year.

LeMay Testimony Heats Up Dispute Over U.S. Missiles

By WALTER MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater hurled a charge of irresponsibility back at Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and said his faith is in seasoned military judgments on the state of U.S. strategic defenses.

The Arizona senator spoke out in an interview Tuesday as newly released congressional testimony by McNamara and Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, heated anew the long dispute over the reliablity of U.S. missiles.

LeMay told congressmen at a closed hearing Feb. 25 he thinks the Soviet Union has narrowed the margin of U.S. military superiority.

To help widen it, the general said, he believes "we should go ahead and develop" a 100-megaton nuclear bomb. The biggest weapon in the U.S. arsenal now is about 24 megatons.

LeMay added he "would probably not give as optimistic a picture" of U.S. missile as would McNamara.

New Ammunition

Goldwater, who seeks the Republican presidential nomination, said the testimony provides new ammunition for his campaign charge that intercontinental missiles are not dependable, and his insistence that the nation needs a force of manned bombers, too.

"I would much rather put my faith in the testimony of a man like Gen. LeMay, who has grappled with these problems both in war and in peace, than in a man like Secretary McNamara, who puts his primary reliance on computers," Goldwater said.

McNamara, in Feb. 19 testimony also made public Tuesday, said he and the nation's senior military leaders believe long-range missiles will provide "performance in relation to an objective."

"Irresponsible" Talk

"If there is evidence to support the belief that they are dependable in that sense, it is absolutely irresponsible to tell our public that they are not and to tell the Soviets that they are not," McNamara testified.

"This is the way to destroy, this is the way to erode away the deterrent strength of this country, the force that is deterring the Soviets from nuclear attack on this country," McNamara said.

Goldwater said: "I think it far more irresponsible for the secretary of defense to advise dishonesty in connection with the state of our weapons systems, regardless of what they are."

Flexible Weapons

"McNamara himself is eroding the deterrent strength of this country by not supporting more flexible weapons systems including manned bombers, and by his participation in the downgrading of military officers," Goldwater said.

LeMay, who also advocates a continuing force of manned bombers, told the subcommittee complete reliance on missiles would put the United States "in a musclebound position."

"You are endangering the defense of the country by depending on this weapons system alone because you have no flexibility," LeMay said.

Republicans Say Lodge Must Come Home To Win

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Influential Republicans of all shades of opinion believe primary victories will not be enough and Henry Cabot Lodge must campaign personally if he wants to try to win the GOP presidential nomination.

A cross-section survey of party members who will have a voice in the choice of a nominee disclosed nearly unanimous opinion that the current boom for Lodge will flatten out if he remains as U.S. Ambassador to South Viet Nam until convention time.

Lodge has said he isn't a candidate for the nomination and can't participate in politics while he serves as ambassador. President Johnson said last week that Lodge is playing a "very constructive role" in Viet Nam and is under no pressure to resign.

Irving Salomon, a close adviser, reported after talking to the ambassador on a recent Far Eastern trip he can't say whether Lodge will resign by June, "but he cannot ethically be an ambassador and be involved in politics."

Status

Lodge's current front-running status in national polls and his prospect of topping other candidates in the May 15 Oregon primary are attributed to various factors. One often mentioned is that of voter dissatisfaction with other presidential aspirants.

The surge for Lodge also is credited to his experience in the foreign affairs field, his remembered television image as a tough opponent of communism as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and his lack of involvement in current GOP bickering over conservative and moderate views.

Listed Lodge liabilities include his tie to President Johnson's policies in Viet Nam, his defeats for the Senate in 1952 and for vice president in 1960 and what many thought was his lackadaisical campaigning in 1960.

Strategists for Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller regard it as inconceivable that Lodge could win the nomination from Saigon. They believe his popularity would nose dive if he came home and subjected himself to questioning on the issues of the day.

Rep. Laird

Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., named to head the platform committee for the July convention in San Francisco, said he thinks Lodge will have to come home by May 15 if he expects to be the nominee.

"Anyone who discounts Lodge's chances of getting the nomination isn't assessing the situation carefully," said Laird, who isn't committed to any candidate. "There is a well-organized drive for him but if he isn't home by May 15 it could collapse quickly."

Laird said he thinks avowed contenders for the nomination have suffered from over-exposure in the long primary campaigning that stretches from January to June, and voters may be tiring of them.

A former Republican national chairman, who didn't want to be quoted by name, summed up Lodge's appeal this way: "This is the guy who is least undesirable to the voters at this point. They are disenchanted with everybody else."

'Another Ike'

But he added: "Lodge is not another Eisenhower. He is going to have to come home and answer questions on where he stands if he expects to get the nomination. He's also going to have to show he can take the pace of vigorous presidential campaigning."

Another former GOP chairman, who didn't want to be quoted by name, likened the Lodge surge to the Willkie boom in 1940. He said his travels indicate that Lodge has strong support among women voters, generated by his television appearances at the United Nations.

"But when he comes home—and he'll have to in my judgment if he expects to be the nominee — we'll have to see whether this image stands up," the former chairman said.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., a Republican liberal spokesman who remains uncommitted to any presidential candidate, said he is skeptical that Lodge can win the nomination.

'Tied Tightly'

"He is tied in tightly with the Johnson administration policies in Viet Nam and some Republicans are critical of those policies," Aiken said.

On the other hand, Aiken said Lodge, 62, "looks young" and seems to have an appeal to younger voters. He said there was a question in his mind whether Lodge could remain in Saigon and get the nomination.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, an announced presidential candidate, held that if Lodge wins in Oregon, where here name also is entered, he might look like a winner even to the pros.

Mrs. Smith felt that Lodge had attained some of the political glamour that surrounded Eisenhower in 1952. But she held that just as Eisenhower had returned to meet delegates before the 1952 convention opened, Lodge would have to return.

A spokesman for Rockefeller, who asked not to be named publicly, said Lodge had made "unheard of gains" in the polls and he doubted that any such popularity could be maintained until the July convention.

The Rockefeller strategist said he thinks the tragic death of President John F. Kennedy had left voters in a state of shock from which they have not fully recovered.

"They're just not getting excited about anybody at this point," he said.

ONE OF MANY COUNTS DROPPED AGAINST COHN

NEW YORK (AP) — The conspiracy charge in the indictment against Roy M. Cohn and Murray R. Gottesman has been dismissed.

U.S. Dist. Judge Archie O. Dawson refused to dismiss nine other counts charging perjury and obstruction of justice.

Dismissal of the conspiracy charge Tuesday left it up to the prosecutors to convince the jurors that the defendants actually lied—rather than conspired to lie—to a 1962 federal grand jury and that Cohn actually threatened—rather than conspired to threaten—other grand jury witnesses.

Today was given over to summations by defense and prosecution lawyers, and the judge said he would give the case to the jury of 10 men and 2 women Thursday.

Cohn, 37-year-old New York lawyer and onetime aide to the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis., faces three counts of perjury and four of obstruction of justice. Gottesman, 56, also a New York lawyer, faces two counts of perjury.

Dawson held the government had failed to prove the existence of an agreement between Cohn and Gottesman to commit perjury and obstruct justice.

The government charges that Cohn and Gottesman lied to cover up alleged efforts in 1959 to keep four swindlers from being indicted in a $5-million scandal involving United Dye & Chemical Corp. stock. The four men were not indicted in 1959. But they were indicted in 1960, and pleaded guilty in 1962. They have not been sentenced.

The four are Samuel S. Garfield, oil promoter of Clare, Mich.; his partner, Irving Pasternak, of Denver; their lawyer, Allen K. Swann, of Denver and Evansville, Ind.; and Allard Roen, manager of the Desert Inn in Las Vegas, Nev.

The government presented testimony that there was a $50,000 payoff for fixing the 1959 case, and that $16,333 of the money went to Cohn and $33,667 to Morton S. Robson, former chief assistant U.S. attorney here.

Cohn, also a former assistant U.S. attorney, and Robson, both denied the payoff from the witness stand. Robson's denial was supported by another witness, S. Hazard Gillespie, who was U.S. attorney in 1959. Gillespie said he alone made the decision to keep the four men out of the indictment.

Freshman English Mission Outlined

By LAURA T. DOING

Wichita Falls area high school English teachers heard a well-known Midwestern University English professor cite the mission of college freshman English as teaching the student to write persuasive papers.

Henry W. Barton, one of two speakers at the third in a series of English workshops being conducted by the MU English department for high school teachers, further explained the mission of freshman English is to instruct in and to conduct exercises in preparation of compositions.

Enthusiastically following Barton's words of advice and assistance to the secondary teachers was Patricia Ingle, MU professor who had just returned from the National College Conference on Composition in New York.

In her challenging presentation, Miss Ingle emphasized: "The anxious student possessing average intelligence can be taught to express himself coherently."

In defending high school English teachers, she said also: "Too often, I think, our students tend to judge us teachers — and we judge one another—on the basis of our poor rather than our good students."

Barton told the secondary teachers that college freshman compositions are aimed at preparing students for academic writing tasks: Term papers at the undergraduate level, seminar studies and theses at the master's level, "and, if it is not too much to hope, even the doctoral level."

Barton then listed four points "which we colleges have left to the high school."

First of these was the hope the high schools will not assume colleges are trying to influence them; second the urging of high school teachers not to push their people too hard in the direction of wrestling with abstractions; third the "quit-claim to narration and description which leaves the possibility of high schools using the adolescents' concern with self" and fourth, the argumentation and exposition which offer much room for students' growth.

Barton said college English professors would like these qualities in freshmen: Love of words; skill in the use of subordinate devices and an awareness of the sorts of propositions that they may have to defend and what they require in the way of support.

He said these same college professors would like to avoid the student who remembers the illustration but forgets the point being taught and the student who forgets discipline as a means and reduces it to an obsolete: "My teacher said I could not ever use 'I' in a paper. Can I?"

To illustrate her observations, Miss Ingle distributed sample paragraphs to the teachers, analyzing them as she continued.

"Here we have the paragraph . . . no great literary work, admittedly, but it does have the merit of being coherent and unified and furthermore being punctualized . . . And it can be expanded if you as a teacher feel that it is not developed adequately," she told her fellow workers.

She also told the group: "If a student finishes high school, masters sentence structure and has a reasonable proficiency in spelling and mechanics—say 95 per cent—and if he can organize a paragraph out of something more than airy nothing, then I for one will say well done and my job of teaching college composition will be a breeze."

Absentee Voting Gets Under Way

Mrs. J. L. Clayton, absentee ballot worker in the county courthouse, reported Wednesday that 21 persons had voted absentee since Monday, first day to cast the ballots, and 100 others had requested an absentee ballot by mail.

All of the 21 ballots marked in the courthouse were on the Democratic ticket, while the 100 requests by mail included both Republicans and Democrats.

Qualified voters in the Electra area may vote absentee in the public library, while those in the Burkburnett area will be able to cast an absentee ballot in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Miss Myrtle Russell handles the absentee ballots in Electra and Mrs. Marjorie Hofecket in Burkburnett.

By noon Wednesday there had been no absentee ballots cast for either party in Burkburnett or Electra.

Dora Davis, county clerk, reminded voters they may vote absentee through April 28. Citizens in the Wichita Falls and Iowa Park areas may vote absentee in the county clerk's office in the courthouse.

DAWC Agencies Are Featured

A report on the 1964 Bridwell Soil Builders Awards program and discussions concerning the represented agencies were featured items of the April District Agriculture Workers Council breakfast Wednesday morning at Underwood's cafeteria in Southmoor Center.

The monthly meeting started at 7:30 a.m. and Feeders Supply Co., represented by Roger Kerr, hosted the group.

Elvy Sargent, president of the DAWC, served as master of ceremonies and called on Wymore Downing for a progress report on the Bridwell Soil Awards program. It was pointed out that community leaders in Clay, Archer and Wichita Counties should judge their winter legumes as soon as possible. Attention was called to the fact that farmers in the individual classified group are not responding and entering competition as was expected.

"If any farmer in the tri-county area desires more information concerning the program he can contact any of the professional agriculture workers," stated Sargent.

Perry Woods, program chairman, called on the following individuals representing the various agencies in the agriculture workers group to explain the duties: Ben Fulton, soil conservation service; Bill Collier, county agents; Charles McGilvary, Farmers Home Administration; Wallace Dove, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and Wade Bailey, vocational agriculture instructors.

Emergency Groups To Meet Thursday

A special meeting of emergency groups, communications, weather, aviation, law enforcement, utilities and allied organizations will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the first aid room on the fourth floor of the county courthouse.

Kenneth Warren, county civil defense director, and County Judge Calvin Ashley announced the meeting.

The meeting is to set up a special committee to study the entire rescue operations of the recent tornado and to formulate plans to further facilitate and assist existing departments and coordinate potential groups into a disaster operating plan.

The committee to be appointed at this meeting will make a study of present facilities, determine what can be done to help or improve the effectiveness of all levels of rescue operations in times of emergency.

LIVELY KHRUSHCHEV CLINKS GLASSES—Moscow—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, right, clinks glasses with Poland's Communist Party boss Wladyslaw Gomulka as he attends a reception given in Moscow's Polish embassy Tuesday for the Polish delegation visiting Russia. In high spirits, Khrushchev turned up at the embassy, drank red wine, snapped at Red China and predicted a stronger world Communist party. (AP Wirephoto)

Khrushchev Appears At Moscow Reception

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—In high spirits, Soviet Premier Khrushchev turned up at a Polish reception Tuesday night, drank red wine, snapped at Red China and predicted world communism would emerge stronger than ever from its disputes.

Khrushchev never alluded to the rumor that flashed around the world Monday night saying he had died. But a Foreign Office spokesman disclosed at the reception that a strong protest had been made to DPA, the West German news agency where the report originated.

Khrushchev strolled into the Polish Embassy bareheaded and wearing a gray overcoat. He was grinning, undoubtedly aware of the reports of his death. He waved to ambassadors waiting in front of the cloakroom and walked on into the forward section of the embassy.

Reads Speech

After a speech by Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz of Poland, Khrushchev went to the microphone and read a brief speech in a slightly hoarse voice.

"We live in a period when peace is important, and we appreciate the contribution of Poland in supporting a settlement of the German question, and its proposals for establishing nuclear free zone in central Europe," Khrushchev said.

Then turning to the ideological dispute with Red China, he said: "Imperialists are beginning to hope the Communist international will weaken due to action to China.

Previous Battles

"The hope is premature because in the past there were always occasions when Communists had to fight against petit bourgeoisism and for the purity of Marxism-Leninism. We have come out of each battle stronger than before and we will come from this dispute stronger and more united than ever."

As Khrushchev drank toasts in wine with Wladyslaw Gomulka, Polish party leader, Western reporters asked Leonid Zamyatin, information director of the Soviet Foreign Office, about the erroneous report of Khrushchev's death that for a time startled the world.

"It was a pure provocation," declared Zamyatin.

He said he declined to accept the interpretation that it was a mistake and said a protest had been sent to the Moscow office of DPA — Deutsche Presse Agentur.

Agency Apologizes

DPA issued a statement from its headquarters in Hannover apologizing for the mistake. DPA explained it was due to a series of misunderstandings in its Hamburg office based on an original misinterpretation of a conversation in Russian.

The visit of the Polish delegation is one of a series of meetings out of which have come new pledges of solidarity in the Soviet bloc in the struggle with the Red Chinese.

PASF CANDIDATES—These members of the Wichita Falls High School Pan American Student Forum are nominees for Mr. and Miss Pan America. GREEKS TRAIN RIFLES ON TURKISH QUARTER—Nicosia, Cyprus—Members of the Greek security force on Cyprus train their rifles down Ledra Street toward the Turkish quarter in Nicosia Tuesday. Firing broke out in the island capital, accompanied by invasion jitters as 20 Turkish warships sailed from the port of Iskendrum, Turkey, toward Cyprus. Officially the fleet is on a routine gunnery exercise. (AP Wirephoto)

End To Long Coal Strike Approaches

WHITEWELL, Tenn. (AP) — Some 300 coal miners will return to work soon, ending southeast Tennessee's longest and bloodiest coalfield strike, a union official says.

It will be an economic stimulant for this Appalachian Mountain area's struggle against poverty.

Albert Pass, secretary-treasurer of District 19 of the United Mine Workers Union, announced Tuesday that five locals had signed contracts with operators who are subleasing land.

Stamper Collins of Oak Ridge, head of Whitwell Mining Co., said he had signed a contract and planned to hire 50 men initially. He said the dozen men who sublease land from him may have signed contracts also.

The strike began Dec. 26, 1962, when 600 miners walked out to back up demands for new agreements.

Violence has stemmed chiefly from operations of Grundy Mining Co., a small firm which has continued to operate with the help of court orders forbidding UMW picketing. The 150 Grundy employes are members of the rival Southern Labor Union.

Bombings, snipings and similar incidents were regular nightly occurrences during the past year. Violence reached a peak last summer when three men were slain.

Pass said the new coal mines had signed the 1964 UMS national contract. In negotiations prior to the strike, operators contended they could not pay the UMW's scale and compete with mechanized western Kentucky mines.

The strike was called to win approval of the UMW's scale of $23.44 to $26.40 per day, plus 40 cents per ton royalty to the UMW welfare fund. The operators countered with $20.12 per day, the government minimum wage, plus 8-12 cents royalty and company-paid insurance.

Even if all striking miners return to work, the coal produced will be only a trickle compared to what poured from the mountains in the days after World War II when 4,000 miners toiled in southeast Tennessee.

Hundreds of men, aside from the strikers, are jobless because mountain mines were closed in the face of mechanized competition from the central Plains states.

ESSAY WINNERS — Checks were presented Tuesday to three Rider High School co-eds who were winners in the annual essay writing contest sponsored in the city high schools by the Women's Auxiliary of the Wichita County Medical Association. Presenting the checks was Mrs. Frank Lee, 3617 Sheridan, right, public relations chairman for the county auxiliary. Receiving the awards were, left to right, DyAnn Garrett, junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Garrett, 4209 McNiel, honorable mention; Donna Forrer, junior, daughter of Mrs. Wanda Forrer, 2637 Wilson, honorable mention; and Carol Hargrove, junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Hargrove, 4725 Spiser, first place. Miss Hargrove's essay entitled "Advantages of American Free Enterprise Over Communism" has been entered in the state contest sponsored by American Association of Physicians and Surgeons.

BESIEGED HOMEOWNER LOSES BATTLE — Los Angeles — Stephen Anthony (center, arm to chest), Los Angeles bartender who resisted —all the way to the Supreme Court —the condemnation of his house to make way for a Hollywood entertainment industry museum, talks with newsmen and his partisans as a big crane demolishes his home near the Hollywood Bowl Tuesday. Anthony had been resisting police attempts to evict him for ten weeks, at times threatening them with a rifle. He contends the museum is private rather than public, as the courts have ruled. (AP Wirephoto)

EX-MARINE LOSES LONG BATTLE TO SAVE HOME

LOS ANGELES (AP) —Fort Anthony has fallen. But Stephen Anthony—vows to continue his crusade against the rights of eminent domain.

When his home was condemned to make way for the motion picture and television museum, Anthony contested — proposed $6.5-million Hollywood at times with loaded guns —the right of the county to evict him.

His eight-week battle to save the home while legal appeals continued ended when two officers, posing as friends, got into the home and grabbed him, opening the locked door for others to pour into the house and subdue the husky ex-Marine.

He was jailed on a six-year-old traffic warrant—for making an illegal turn—and resisting arrest.

Supreme Court

The U.S. Supreme Court had refused to hear a petition for a stay on the demolition order.

A virtual army of sheriff's deputies moved into the house to keep Anthony and his followers from re-occupying it, and Tuesday wrecking crews destroyed it.

Anthony, out on bail, watched from 200 yards away as the demolition started. "There she goes," he said tensely, his eyes rimmed in red, his fists clenched.

Then he moved to the tall fence which once separated his home from a parking lot for the nearby Hollywood Bowl. He yelled: "You miserable bunch of ——"

Sheriff's deputies moved up to the fence and Anthony backed away. "There's too many of them," he said.

40 Years Ago

The home, built 40 years ago in a style best described as Hansel-and-Gretel Tudor, had four bedrooms and three baths, exposed timbers on its stucco facade, and many-paned windows.

Neighbors, Hollywood cause-seekers and college students who cut class to picket on Anthony's behalf sang "God Bless America" as the home disappeared, chunk by chunk, into dump trucks.

"This isn't the end," said Anthony. "We'll keep fighting, as if the home was still there. We'll appeal the condemnation. We'll sue. We'll sue each of the Board of Supervisors involved in this thing."

Flight Surgeon Visits Relatives

ELECTRA, Tex. (Special) — Dr. Kenneth L. Westbrook and family, who have been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Westbrook of 4653 Briarwood, Wichita Falls, and relatives in Electra, will leave soon for Taipei, Taiwan (Formosa) where Dr. Westbrook, a Navy flight surgeon, will report for duty.

The flight surgeon was reared in Electra. He graduated from Electra high school with the class of 1953, received his BA degree from Midwestern University in 1958 and his MD degree from Baylor University School of Medicine in 1962. Entering military service in 1962, he did internship in the Naval Hospital at Great Lakes, Ill., prior to entering the Navy School of Aviation Medicine at Pensacola, Fla. He completed his training there early this month.

His father was employed with the production department of Texas Company in the Electra district until retirement some years ago, when he and his wife moved to Wichita Falls.

Attendant Jailed For Shooting Wife

HOUSTON (AP)—A disturbed service station attendant was in jail today charged with assault to murder after keeping his estranged wife prisoner in a locked bathroom nearly four hours, then shooting her in the cheek.

With five bullets still in the pistol, the man tried to put a bullet through his own head, but the weapon jammed.

Humble Named In Federal Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Justice Department is challenging plans of Humble Oil & Refining Co. to take over West Coast operations of Tidewater Oil Co.

The government filed suit Tuesday to block the $329 million transaction, scheduled for completion April 30. It also asked that Humble divest itself of Monterey Oil Co., a Los Angles-based firm acquired in 1961.

Humble, with headquarters in Houston, is a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, described as the nation's largest industrial concern in terms of assets.

A government spokesman said completion of the deal would wipe out actual and potential competition in West Coast petroleum marketing.

LIBRARY GIFT — Officials of the Wichita County Cancer Society visited the campus of Midwestern University Tuesday to present books and other material on cancer to Dr. Travis White, MU president. The books and material will be placed in the university's new library and will be kept up to date by members of the society. The material will be used by students and faculty members for research purposes. Seen here are, from left, Dr. White; Dr. D. L. Ligon, MU vice president; Dodd Wiley, county society president; and Dr. Charles M. Parker, director of the city-county health unit. The annual county cancer crusade door-to-door campaign is scheduled Monday from 6 to 8 p.m. Dr. Jerry Hathorn is 1964 crusade chairman.

Lions Elect Club Directors

Downtown Lions Club elected directors for the year 1964-65 Tuesday.

Directors elected are Ira D. Brown, Walter Colemen, Jim Deen, Dr. O. L. Parry, Harvey Owens, Layton Downing, Don Estes and Dr. C. E. Hayley.

Holdover directors are Ferral Wallander, Leroy Finkler, H. F. Hines, Luren Campbell and D. L. Ligon, who is a life director.

Also selected at this meeting were the delegates for the district convention, which is to be held in Wichita Falls May 8 and 9. Delegates selected were Col. Dalene Bailey, Max Brannan, H. F. Hines, Joe Haddon, Lloyd Neeley, Irvin Vogel, Jim King, Homer Doke, Wayne Mullins, Bill Baugh Jr., Charles Rippy, Kent Toler, Elmer Townsend and Bud Laughfrey.

A report was given by past president and international counsellor D. L. Ligon of the visitation made Monday night at Rule, where District Governor Charles Davis presented a charter to the new Lions Club of Rule. This club is the 53rd for the district and adds 38 members to the over 700,000 members in the international organization.

Four Boy Scouts, members of troop 11, Thomas Finley, John Underwood, Johnie Gill and Ronnie Finley were guests of the club and sold tickets to the Scoutarama that is to be held May 8 and 9.

British Airmen To Visit SAFB

Air Vice Marshal John Kevitt Rotherham of the British Royal Air Force will arrive at Sheppard Technical Training Center Thursday morning for a one-day visit and tour of the center.

He will be greeted with an honors ceremony conducted by the honor flight and band and will be met by Maj. Gen. Robert M. Stillman, commander of the center.

Air Vice Marshal Rotherham, commander No. 24 Group, technical training command of the Royal Air Force, is stopping at Sheppard as part of his visit to this country under the auspices of the military aid distinguished visitors orientation program. The purpose of the tour is to receive a general orientation in United States Air Force operations, organization and training.

The air vice marshal has among his decorations the Companion of the Order of Bath and Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

He is to be accompanied by four other members of the Royal Air Force.

They are Group Capt. Charles Victor G. Usher, director of technical training No. 1, Royal Air Force, Air Ministry in London; Group Capt. Sinclair M. Davidson, senior training officer, Royal Air Force, Locking Base, Somerset; Wing Cmdr. Maurice Ernest Claxton, project officer for TSR 2 (aircraft) who is attached to British Aircraft Corporation Ltd., in Weybridge, Surrey; and Squadron Leader John West, air training officer, RAF, Newton Base, Nottingham.

A briefing on the center mission, organization and facilities will be presented by Gen. Stillman. The visiting dignitaries will then tour the department of comptroller training to see the computer; department of civil engineering to view the Sage, Atlas and Titan Air Handling trainers; the department of missile and space training to see the educational television and laser demonstrations. Col. Charles W. Johnstone, commander of 3750th Technical School, will give a briefing on training management room.

Throughout the day the distinguished visitors will see the student airmen upgraded dormitory area, Biloxi - type classroom buildings, airmen support area, airmen dormitories, golf course, youth center, Chapel No. 3, Airmen's Club, the tornado damaged area, new hospital area, technical school ramp, outdoor communications and electrician training areas.

The day's tour will be concluded with a briefing on the 494th Bombardment Wing, Strategic Air Command, and a visit to the facilities.

While in the United States these RAF officers will visit Keesler AFB, Miss., Randolph AFB, Texas, Amarillo AFB, Texas, Nellis AFB, Nevada, Lowry AFB, Colo., Chanute AFB, Ill., and Andrews AFB, Md.

British Visitors

LONDON (AP) — More than 210,000 Britons will visit America this year and spend over $84 million, the U.S. Travel Service predicts. A spokesman said British visitors would more than double the total who came in 1963 and they would spend three times as much.

Tacos Speakeasies

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Tacos speakeasies — in doorways or operating from mobile units — have appeared in Mexico City as the result of a Health Ministry clampdown on stalls selling the popular Mexican-style sandwich. About 100 stalls have been closed for sanitary reasons.

AUTOGRAPH PARTY SET HERE FOR MU AUTHOR

Dr. John Nathan Cravens, head of the history department of Midwestern University, was first recipient of the Clara Driscoll Scholarship award established by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas for research work in Texas history.

Upon completion of his research on John Harper Starr, physician, secretary of the treasury of the Republic of Texas, one of the planners of the city of Austin and assistant postmaster general of the Confederacy, two granddaughters of Dr. Starr were so pleased with the amount of information garnered through his research and with the manner in which Dr. Cravens treated the life history of their grandfather that they financed publication of the book.

Dr. Cravens then gave the books to the Daughters of the Republic of Texas as a means of supplementing funds for the Clara Driscoll Scholarship Award —so it is with pleasure that the Rebecca Jane Fisher Chapter of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas offers for sale a limited number of copies.

An autograph party will be held at Lovelace Book Store, 911 Indiana, from 3 to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Concerning this book, Dr. E. C. Barker of the University of Texas has this to say: "James Harper Starr was a highly intelligent man, versatile, thoughtful, well informed and useful. His many letters and documents show a kindly man of equable temperament and a gentle, quiet sense of humor, which enabled him to take personal annoyances with resignation and philosophy . . . This portrait of a man is drawn with clarity and detail."

Jack Cox Predicts GOP Senate Win

Confidently predicting he will be the next U.S. Senator from Texas, Jack Cox met with his Republican supporters in Wichita Falls Tuesday night before stumping on to Lubbock.

The Houston businessman who is seeking the Republican nomination for senator said he would win GOP support by 250,000 to 300,000 votes and would, furthermore, defeat incumbent Sen. Ralph Yarborough, a Democrat, in November.

The loser in two previous political campaigns — the most recent being as the Republican gubernatorial candidate — Cox asked, "Where would this country have been if Abraham Lincoln had resigned from politics after his second race?"

Urges Vote

Cox urged all conservatives to vote in the GOP primary regardless of preferences in local races on the Democratic ticket.

"Fortunately, we have a two-party system in this state, and you are going to have to vote in the Republican primary if you want your voice to be heard as a conservative," Cox continued.

"... We would have won last time if it hadn't been for the Cuban problem... Our party needs more incumbents... We need to make (Republican John) Tower our senior senator from Texas and not the junior senator.

"... We need the strongest ticket possible. I am no coat tail rider... I want to help the entire ticket. The Republican party needs the best gun, the best vote getter, and that's Jack Cox," he said.

Foreign Policy Hit

Cox said he was for "the retention of individual liberty as guaranteed in our constitution," and was convinced that the U.S. State Department was following a "make - believe" foreign policy.

"The Russian Bear will not go away. The Communists want world conquest... We have nothing to negotiate with Panama. We have a valid treaty... I would like to see our former position of leadership restored in the halls of world government," Cox said.

"The answer to poverty will come through people being free. This is the American way of life; this is the American way I know. Any other way is the road to destruction," he continued.

Lists Opposition

Cox said he was against the civil rights bill in toto, medicare and federal aid to education. He also blasted government intervention in the U.S. cattle industry.

"We must have an effective limit on foreign cattle imports. Our ranchers have weathered many storms of a violent nature, but they can't weather the storms of government control," he concluded.

Cox and his wife arrived here about 3 p.m. Tuesday from Dallas. Following a tour of Times Square, new home of the Wichita Falls Times and Record News, they had dinner with friends and then attended a Cox rally at GOP headquarters at 703 Bluff.

WEATHER FORECASTS — Fair, warmer and windy is the weather prediction for the Wichita Falls area. Showers are forecast for the northwest Pacific coast and northern Florida with snow flurries in the northern Plateau. Colder temperatures are predicted in the northwest quarter of the nation and the northeast Atlantic states with warmer weather in the Great Lakes area. Little change is expected elsewhere. Ben Ludy Heads Fain Group

Ben Ludy was elected president of the Fain Improvement Association at a meeting of the organization Tuesday night in the Fain School.

Ludy, vice president of the group last year, replaces Keith Nelson, outgoing president of the city's oldest active community improvement association.

Al Flack Jr. was re-elected treasurer of the organization and Mrs. Layton Downing was re-elected secretary. The annual treasurer's report showed the organization to be "in the black."

The majority of the association's work during the past year centered around safety and efforts to obtain traffic signals, stop signs and relocation of school crosswalks.

Red Cross Reports On Tornado Aid

Aid amounting to $12,084 has been given to 96 families affected by the April 3 tornado according to Red Cross officials.

Of the number of families who had applied for aid through Tuesday, 44 cases have been closed.

A breakdown of the figures shows that $3,205 had been spent for mass care; $5,732 for food, clothing and maintenance; $3,131 for household goods; and $17 for medical and nursing care.

Friday is the deadline for applying for help.

City Prisoners Clear Parkland

Twenty city prisoners are being used by the parks and recreation department to clear the underbrush from a new park being developed off the Red River Expressway near the Iowa Park Road.

Jim Thornton of the department said the prisoners are allowed to volunteer for the job. For each day's labor they get two days marked off their assessed jail time.

The land for the park, along the Wichita River, was recently given to the city and work is moving ahead in getting it cleared and ready for use.

Army Band Wins Praise

By PERICLES ALEXANDER
Times Amusements Editor

Making like the Boston "Pops" and the Wichita Falls Symphony with its encores of "lollipops," the U.S. Army Field Band of Washington, D.C., Tuesday night played an hour-and-a-half concert of frisky musical entertainment at Memorial Auditorium.

The crack, 100-piece music-making service ensemble, directed by Maj. Robert L. Bierly, came up with some arrangements that were "lollipips" like its tricky arrangement of Pestalozza's "Ciribiribin" for a sextet of ambidextrous drummers and an excitingly grandoise arrangement of Meecham's lively "American Patrol" March laced with quotes from both "Dixie" and "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Unerringly snappy and crisp in performance in the grand tradition of service bands, it also made forays into classics of music literature and played the stimulating Overture to Carl Maria Von Weber's "Euryanthe" with an impressive "big band" sound and delivered the lovely waltz from Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty."

But there was a Wichita Falls audience of less than 400 to applaud the band's peppery "Tico Tico," its nifty arrangement of "Deep in the Heart of Texas," and the Soldiers Chorus' workout on "76 Trombones" from Meredith Willson's "The Music Man."

Several soloists scored with the audience, including baritone Ted Rollo with "They Call the Wind Maria" from the Lerner and Loewe musical, "Paint Your Wagon" and clarinet virtuoso Larry Skinner's dreamy, off-the-dance-floor version of "Don't Take Your Love From Me."

The free concert, sponsored by the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce's special events action group, established a season's record for disappointing attendance at Memorial Auditorium.

Academy Test Results Given

Results of the Iowa Tests of Educational Development, administered to the high school pupils of the Academy of Mary Immaculate March 18, have been received by the school.

The ITED consists of nine separate tests which concentrate on broad intellectual skills and understanding, designed to measure educational growth. One of its unique features is a school average percentile norm reported for each test, based upon a distribution of the average scores of schools all over the country.

These percentiles help answer the question, "How is a particular school doing in relation to other schools throughout the nation?"

The faculty reports that the ninth through 12th grade composite school norm percentiles, which provide an overall picture of general educational development, are all in the upper quartile, ranging as high as the 99th percentile.

Outstanding progress has been made in the field of English, with all classes having a school norm percentile of 99 in Correctness of Expression.

Notable progress has been made in the following areas: quantitative thinking (mathematics), with freshmen, sophomore, junior, and senior class averages ranging from the 78th to the 99th percentile when placed on a nationwide distribution of school averages; general vocabulary, with percentiles ranging from 85 to 99; and use of sources, with percentiles from 80 to 98.

Test results of individual students are used to assist the pupils in increasing their own educational growth and in relating their abilities to the college and career choices open to them.

The scores of individual students, as well as the school norm percentiles, are of great assistance to the school's administration in helping discover class and school needs in certain areas.

Test results help the faculty adapt instruction in order to increase growth in the areas which are most in need of attention and to continue development in areas in which the pupils already have high standards of achievement.

The academy's administration will use ITED Test results to help discover ways of improving the school's educational program.

Chamber Plans MU Promotion

Projects, ranging from athletics to landscaping around the new library, were discussed by members of the Midwestern University development action group Tuesday.

A two-fold project to bring basketball athletes to Midwestern was reported by P. S. Richards, chairman of the athletic sub-group.

The first part of the plan is to have the basketball coach "interview a player who would be a real asset to the team and if a summer job can be found for the boy and a permanent job for his wife, the possibilities of persuading him to attend MU are good."

It was also announced that 12 summer jobs are needed as of June 1 for other basketball players at Midwestern.

Richardson further cited the need of a scholarship push by saying currently only 18 athletic scholarships are offered.

Woody Featherston reported that the Midwestern student government association will sponsor a Parents Day May 8 in connection with city-campus activities.

It was decided to investigate the possibility of trees around the new library building and the soon-to-be completed science building.

Dr. D. L. Ligon reported that graduation is scheduled May 29 and that the new library will be dedicated on the same day.

Sam Houston P-TA Honors Principal

A popular administrator in the Wichita Falls Public School System, R. Paul Goldstucker, principal of Sam Houston Elementary School, was honor guest Tuesday night when that school's Parent-Teacher Association officers, committee chairmen and room sponsors entertained with a banquet.

Goldstucker received his bachelor's degree in 1929 from the University of Cincinnati and a masters degree from the University of Texas in 1954. He taught history at Zundelowitz Junior High School before coming to Sam Houston as principal in 1952.

He is a past president of the City Teachers Association, was on the board of directors of the USO and is a member of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Background

A charter member of the Evening Lions Club, Goldstucker has served in every elective office of the organization, representing the club at four Lions International conventions. In 1960 he was named Lion of the Year.

Active in church work at the Congregation House of Jacob, Goldstucker is president of the congregation, past secretary of the temple and now is acting Rabbi and superintendent of the church school.

Following World War II when the Auxiliary Fire Department was organized, he was made assistant chief and still serves as a volunteer fireman.

Master of ceremonies for the Tuesday banquet was J. Howard Morgan, vice president of the First-Wichita National Bank. Glenn Shelton, a special guest, gave the invocation.

Program

The program was provided by Alfred T. (Andy) Anderson, a teacher at Wichita Falls High School, who is a humorist and an accomplished pianist.

Mrs. Joseph Novak, retiring president of the P-TA, recognized teachers present and Mrs. Mack Colvard spoke on their behalf.

Mrs. Burt Slack, 1964-65 P-TA president, was introduced by Mrs. Novak.

Table decorations included baskets of pink roses, carnations, and snapdragons. Also featured were miniature pink umbrellas. Mrs. Clayton Tompkins was chairman of the decorations committee and Mrs. Wayne Wood, was hospitality chairman.

Electra Board Elects Officers

ELECTRA, Tex. (Special) — New members of the Electra Independent School board were installed Monday night at the regular meeting. New board members are Bob Holmes and R. E. Ray.

Ed Hart, who has been vice president of the board, was elected president at the organizational session. Howard L. McDonald was chosen vice president and Paul Jones was re-elected secretary - treasurer. Other members of the board are Ed Foster Jr. and R. O. White.

Among items approved by the board at the business session were authorization of payments to contractors engaged in work on the new music hall and gymnasium being built on the campus of the senior high school. Progress reports on the building program indicate the new structure will be completed, furnished and ready for occupancy for the 1964-65 term of school.

Supt. W. L. Hudson was authorized to advertise for bids on installation of two new tennis courts on the junior high campus and the purchase of a new pickup truck.

Fulbright Sees Hard Year For Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—A short, stormy Senate hearing Tuesday on a section of the administration's foreign aid proposal brought from Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., a concession that the program "is in for another hard year."

Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has the key role in the Senate in pushing the measure through. His forces had a tough time getting approval of a $3-billion program in 1963 just before year's end.

The committee took up Tuesday morning one part of the new $3.4-billion administration request—$225 million to continue grants for technical cooperation and help for underdeveloped nations.

Only Fulbright and Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, were present at 9 a.m. when the questioning began for David E. Bell, administrator for the Agency for International Development, and his aides.

Other senators began arriving later and peppered Bell with questions, many critical and covering the whole field of past, present and future foreign aid.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a vigorous foe of the new program, forced the hearing to a halt promptly at 10 a.m., the hour the Senate met to resume the civil rights debate. Committees may not meet when the Senate is in session except by unanimous consent.

"There is no hurry about this bill," Morse said. "We may be able to get around to it in November or December."

Bell told the senators he and his associates are willing to testify early in the morning, late at night or whenever the committee can find time to listen.

During one flurry of questioning, Bell told Morse it is up to Congress to decide whether to take up the new aid program as a single package or in eight seperate bills offered by Fulbright.

Morse commented there is serious opposition in the House to considering the program in eight different packages.

The new program, he said, is being pushed with arguments "as full of holes as a Swiss cheese."

Bell's discussion of a program to bring about 1,500 Africans to America for training and education during the next year brought a protest from Morse.

Taxpayers are financing "aid to education abroad" when this country badly needs to expand facilities for higher education before 1980, when U.S. college enrollments will be more than double the present total, Morse said.

SEATO Allies Assail French Plan To Neutralize Viet Nam

MANILA (AP)—France stood alone Wednesday in advocating neutralization of South Viet Nam after its seven partners in the Southeast Treaty Asia Organization voiced strong objections.

As the 10th anniversary ministerial meeting of the anti-Communist alliance prepared to wind up, informants said France made no effort to defend the plan when four other SEATO members leveled their criticism Tuesday.

After the United States, represented by Secretary of State Dean Rusk, opened the criticism of President Charles de Gaulle's plan Monday, the other members quickly lined up alongside.

Foreign ministers of Australia, Pakistan, the Philippines and Thailand declared neutralization could never halt the advance of communism in South Viet Nam and the rest of Southeast Asia. Britain and New Zealand earlier had endorsed the U.S determination to remain in Viet Nam until victory is won over the Communist guerrillas.

The ministers also discussed the dispute between Indonesia and Malaysia, the shaky coalition in Laos, India's border dispute with Communist China and the long-standing dispute between India and Pakistan over the state of Kashmir.

No major decisions or changes in the treaty organization were expected to come out of the ministers deliberations despite the desire of Asian members to further strengthen SEATO in order to deter Communist incursions in Southeast Asia.

A dramatic new way to relieve the kind of tension and pain known only to women

As a woman approaches "that time of month," fluid often accumulates in the sensitive tissues of her body. Warning signs are temporary weight-gain, facial puffiness, bloating, irritating pressure on nerves, and emotional tension.

This is a woman's kind of tension, and it demands more than treatment with ordinary pain relievers.

Cardui Brand Tablets contain pamabrom—developed by medical science to gently release excessive fluid from the body. With the burden of this fluid removed, related symptoms of weight-gain, headache, low back pain, and nervous tension seem miraculously relieved! No habit-forming narcotics or antihistamines to cause drowsiness. No interference with daily activities at home or at work.

In addition, two analgesics in Cardui Tablets give fast relief from functional monthly cramps and pain. Discover for yourself this remarkable new advance in medication for women. Get Cardui Tablets from your druggist.

Ironic Twist Seen In Oscar Showing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It seems a little ironic that each year the motion picture industry puts its annual big show on television. It turned up again Monday night on ABC and as usual rambled on for more than two hours of envelope - opening, heartfelt thank yous and bits of entertainment and small talk.

As usual, it was lots of fun to watch.

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has been handing out its Oscars for 36 years and the ceremony and protocols now are pretty well established.

The viewer usually can depend on one of the women winners breaking into happy tears. Unfortunately, neither Patricia Neal, winner of the "best actress" award nor Margaret Rutherford, who won in the supporting role category, was present to accept the statue.

Sidney Poitier, chosen as the best actor, received tumultuous applause and received his award with obvious emotion.

Hollywood goes very white tie and ball gown on these occasions. It would appear, to judge from the dresses of the women stars who made the awards, that softly draped chiffons or richly beaded satins are currently the vogue for formal wear. High, extremely elaborate hair styles seemed most popular.

The ceremonies seemed a little more exciting in the old days when the stars crowded into a smaller theater and the stage was comparatively small. The Santa Monica Civic Auditorium looks as big and chilly as Soldiers Field and the stage sometimes looked as bare as a prairie in winter.

Generally the show went along smoothly with occasional interludes of song or commercials. There were a few moments when viewers may have worried about the extreme decolletage of a rather active performer.

Jack Lemmon proved an ingratiating and easy - mannered host. It would be just great, however, if they could figure a way to cut the on-camera presentations about in half and then it would be a wonderful one-hour show.

Attempts To Settle Doctor Strike Stalled

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Social Christian-Socialist government coalition appeared split Tuesday on what to do about the 14 day-old Belgian doctors' strike against a new medical insurance law.

Socialists repeated in political caucuses that the new medical insurance law should be applied with no changes, despite the doctors' protests. But among Social Christians, the attitude was different.

Senate President Paul Struye, a Social Christian, seemed to put an indirect appeal to the government for a revision of the law when he said "conditions in which the law was presented to Parliament prevented proper debating. The consequence of this is the deplorable and regrettable situation now prevailing. Asked by both the doctors and the government, I am willing to act as a mediator."

Premier Theo Lefevre, a Social Christian, said "the government has decided to wait and let the situation evolve."

The doctors' representatives remained adament.

"Even if the Parliament convened to review the government law, it would not be enough to call off the strike," they said in a statement. "We want the authorities to give us guarantees."

They demand that provisions of the law to which the doctors object be deleted from the law or suspended.

The Liberal opposition demanded an immediate meeting of Parliament which is on an Easter recess.

Politically, the government was stuck. The Socialists were not likely to accept amendments to the medical law, and without the Socialists, the government would be defeated in Parliament.

Missionary Society Hears Talk; Makes Reports

"Understanding man's relationship to man and bringing about a better understanding of man's relationship with God" was the subject explored by the Rev. Tommy Lane, minister of youth activities at Southside Baptist Church when he spoke to the Federated Missionary Society Tuesday morning. The Society met in Wichita Falls Day Nursery, 403 Lamar.

Mrs. Maurice McCall, president, conducted the business session during which reports were given by Mrs. C. C. Hill, the Day Nursery service chairman; Mrs. Thelma Lewis, McCutchen Day Nursery service chairman and Mrs. Lydia Rodriguez who serves in that capacity for the Mexican Day Nursery. Mrs. O. T. Ailes reported on the financial status of the Wichita Falls Day Nursery and gave the Federation's financial report.

Monthly assignments for the Wichita County Farm social work were made by Mrs. George Turner, and Mrs. W. O. Waites made assignments for the day nurseries. Other reports were given by Mrs. Wayne Watts on recent case work for two needy Mexican children in the juvenile department. She said that a year's clothing has been supplied each of the children in compliance with rules concerning these benevolences.

Attending the Tuesday morning meeting were representatives from the following churches; Eastside, First and Fain Presbyterian; Lamar and First Baptist; Scotland, Floral Heights and First Methodist; Church of the Good Shepherd and All Saints Episcopal; Park Place and First Christian; and Our Lady Queen of Peace Catholic.

Women From State Area Attending WSWS Convention

Evangelical United Brethren church women from 30 societies in Texas and Oklahoma heard Miss Lois C. Olsen, medical missionary to Sierra Leone, speak at the first evening session of the Women's Society of World Service two-state convention here Tuesday night.

Miss Olsen, a registered nurse, also was the featured speaker at Wednesday morning's convention session. At least 130 delegates registered for the convention, which began Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Evangelical United Brethren Church, 18th and Broad.

The first business session began at 1 p.m. Tuesday afternoon with an address by Mrs. Manfred Gerhardt, who spoke on Christian leadership. Mrs. Martha Mitchell of Tulsa, Okla., played special music and Mrs. James Williamson gave the invocation. Mrs. W. P. Bigham, president of the WSWS of the host church, welcomed delegates and Mrs. Robert O. Tupper of Oklahoma City gave the response.

Mrs. B. D. Anderson, branch president, introduced the program.

After Miss Olsen's missionary address Wednesday morning, workshops in finance, missionary education for adults, youth and children, spiritual life and Christian social relations were held at the end of the morning and in the early afternoon sessions.

A buffet supper in Fellowship Hall at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday will precede the Youth Fellowship devotion at 7:30 p.m. and another talk by Miss Olsen. The convention will end Thursday morning after a Bible meditation, to start at 8:30 a.m.; a question and answer period and installation of new officers and consecration service.

Covered Dish Lunch Is Served To Club

A covered dish luncheon was served Tuesday to members of the Progressive Study Club at the farm of Mrs. Ed Maag in Huff Community.

Committee reports were given during the business session which was opened by Mrs. R. E. Stewart, and prizes were awarded for games played in the recreation period.

Mrs. W. N. Barringer, a new member, was welcomed to the group.

The next meeting will be May 12 at the Woman's Forum. Miss Jennie Roberson, former art teacher, will give the program.

Publicity Earns Diet

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mrs. J. E. Pitts visited the family doctor shortly after a picture of her husband appeared in a Memphis newspaper. "Saw your husband's picture," the doctor said as she was leaving. "Here, he needs this. Make him follow it." He handed her a diet sheet.

Two-Handed Bath

Most mothers know that bathing an active baby is a two-handed job. That's why it's doubly important for mother to protect herself and baby against serious falls in the bathroom. One way to gain added protection is to surface bathroom floors with a slip-resistant material such as unglazed ceramic tile. Here's another bathroom safety note: never touch electrical appliances, such as a heater, with wet hands. And never even take a radio into the bathroom!

The engaged couple are students at Eastern New Mexico University. She is majoring in physical education and her fiance is a psychology major. Her sorority is Chi Omega and he is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. They will be married May 30 in Portales, N.M.

Air Force Debs Have Punch Party

The twenty-one senior girls who will be presented as debutantes May 18 at the Sheppard Air Force Base Officers Club had their first informal get-together Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert M. Stillman, wife of the base commander.

Designed primarily as a means of introducing the debs to each other and to members of the advisory committee, the punch party was the first of the social events which will be climaxed by the mid-May presentation.

Receiving with Mrs. Stillman were Mmes. Dalene E. Bailey, advisor; Charles Leigon, deb advisor; Blaine Campbell, social chairman; Claud McIver, social co-chairman; Ernest McCollum, decorations; Robert Wist, publicity for the presentation, and Mrs. Joseph Walden, president of the Officers Wives Club. Mrs. Stillman is advisor to the deb committee.

The refreshment table was centered with a stylized arrangement of gold flowers and purple grapes. The punch bowls and other table appointments were of crystal.

Woman's Forum Garden Club Wins State Honors

A presidential citation for the best president's report, two first place awards on scrapbooks, a certificate of award and an Advanced Club Rating award were presented to the Wichita Falls Garden Club of the Woman's Forum at a meeting of the Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. in Austin last weekend.

Mrs. Joe Bashara, president of the club, received the presidential citation for her report on the work of the club. Mrs. J. Gordon Gose, president of the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc., made the presentation and Mrs. Howard Kittel, president of Texas Garden Clubs, signed it. More than 1400 clubs made reports and the Wichita Falls Club was the only one to receive a citation for a president's report.

The club received first place for its publicity - press scrapbook containing news clippings and pictures of the 1963 work and activities. The therapy scrapbook also received a first place and a grade of 99. This book contained one year's activities as reflected in newspaper clippings, pictures, copies of "Scoop," the State Hospital paper, and an outline of the lessons. Mrs. Jack Farley made this book. Mrs. John C. Murphree made the publicity scrapbook.

The Wichita Falls Junior Gardeners received a certificate of award for a scrapbook and received a grade of 97 which gave it a second place and the Dorothy Crockett award. Mrs. G. E. McBride is chairman and Mrs. Charles Fager is co-chairman of this club.

Mrs. Bashara accepted an Advanced Club Rating Award for the Wichita Falls Garden Club and for Dig and Delve Garden Club. She also brought home a yearbook award for Rivercrest Garden Club.

Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, a member of the Wichita Falls Garden Club and a past state president, was principal speaker at the awards banquet. She talked on "A Glance at the Past—Our Heritage."

Preceding the convention Mrs. Murphree, state chairman of garden therapy - psysically disabled, attended a workshop and clinic on "Skills and Techniques," with discussion of projects, procedures and treatment of patients. She also exhibited articles made by the physically disabled.

Mrs. Bashara, Mrs. Oneal, Mrs. Murphree and Mrs. S. H. Walton represented the Wichita Falls Garden Club at the convention.

Teachers' Society Founder Dies

AUSTIN (AP) — Mrs. W. E. Odom, a founder of Delta Kappa Gamma, international honorary teaching society, died Monday at her home.

While teaching at Vinita, Okla., one of her music pupils was Will Rogers, the humorist.

She was Lalla McClatchy when she and eleven other Texas women organized Delta Kappa Gamma. Chapters throughout the world have more than 87,000 members. Wichita Falls has two chapters.

Twilight Story League Hears Tales

The Twilight Story League was entertained in the home of Mrs. Jay Norwood, Rose Apartments, Monday evening.

The theme for the evening Silver Wings (Fairy Tales) was carried out by toastmistress, Mrs. J. T. Johnson, as she introduced Mrs. Norwood and told the story "Sadko and the River" from "Russian Fairy Tales" and Mrs. Earle Anderson whose story was "The Wheels of Time" by Florence Barclay.

Miss Winnie Foster, president, heard reports from Mrs. Carl Brooks, secretary, Mrs. Anderson, treasurer, and Mrs. Dewey Horton, chairman of the social committee. Reservations were taken for the Spring story festival to be held in Garland April 28.

Mrs. Norwood's home was decorated with pansies. Arrangements of the flowers were used up the stairway and on tables.

The next meeting will be May 4 in the home of Mrs. Kathleen Moore, 1006 Harlan.

Dear Abby

Tell Them Point Blank

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We have a telephone and our next - door neighbors have none. When they first moved in, they asked if they could use our phone. Thinking it would be only a short while before they had theirs connected, I said certainly. It has been a year and they are still using ours. There are five of them who use it, including a teen-ager who makes one call after another, some of them lasting 30 or 40 minutes. These people can afford their own phone, Abby, as three in the family work. I've thought of taking the receiver off the hook and saying it is out of order, but I hate to lie. Can you suggest something?—B.S.M.

DEAR B.S.M.: Some people have so much gall they should be divided into three parts. Tell these clods that you have a ONE-PARTY line — and you are the party!

DEAR ABBY: What does it mean when your steady boy friend tells you that he thinks it would be best if you dated other boys, and he thinks he should date other girls? We didn't have a fight or anything like that, and I thought we were perfect for each other. We have gone steady for five months, one week and four days. Should I break up with him for good? He is 17 and so am I.—CRYING MY EYES OUT

DEAR CRYING: Dry your tears and date others, honey. I think he has already "broken up" with you.

DEAR ABBY: Regrettably, the public doesn't know the difference between wild pigeons which fly around uncontrolled, making a mess, and the domesticated variety, which is kept under sanitary conditions and is not a nuisance to neighbors. Domestic pigeons do not carry diseases! During World War One and Two, carrier (or racing) pigeons saved thousands of lives, as they have in other disasters. Abby, if there is reincarnation, I am returning as a pigeon, and all those uninformed pigeon haters who condemn all pigeons had better watch out. You may print this, together with my signature. —BILL (WILD) FRAME, MARION, INDIANA.

DEAR ABBY: You would be doing a tremendous service if you would print in your column the answer to a question that has been the source of many harsh words in this household: What does "PERSONAL" mean on the envelope of a letter?—"D" IN TOPEKA

DEAR "D": It is a reminder that the letter is just that —"Personal" — and not community property, as mail is regarded in some households.

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Opening lead: Four of ♠ South, the declarer in today's four heart contract, was the victim of a mental state which, for the absence of a better term, might be labeled "finesse happy." This condition induced a certain looseness in his plan of campaign which led to his downfall.

West opened the four of spades and South chose to let the lead ride around to his nine in the hope that West had underled both the king and jack. East, however, played the jack of spades which held the trick. A trump was returned and declarer put up the ace. He crossed over to the king of clubs in order to take a second round finesse in hearts for the queen. When West turned up with this card, he led another spade. East ruffed with his last trump and then cashed the ace of diamonds to defeat the contract.

Altho declarer could have averted his ill-fate by refusing to take the finesse in hearts, we have no quarrel with him on that score. His handling of the spade suit, however, left something to be desired. Since he is presumably off, at most, one trick each in diamonds and hearts, he can afford to lose a spade trick as well. In order to maintain a fuller control over the proceedings, declarer should forgo the luxury of taking the double finesse in spades, for the success of his contract is virtually assured provided that West has either one of the missing spade honors.

It is suggested that South play the queen of spades from dummy at trick one. If this should lose to the king, declarer is still in position to finesse West for the jack of spades subsequently.

When East's jack drops under the queen, South can actually make a slam if he refuses to take the trump finesse, for subsequent finesses against West's king of spades will provide a parking place for declarer's small diamond on the fourth spade. If South chooses to take a second round finesse for the queen of hearts, West can give his partner a spade ruff; however, the ace of diamonds becomes the third and last trick for the defense.

Hints from HELOISE

This Mixture Good Idea

When I make instant powdered milk I double the strength and store it in my refrigerator. It takes up much less room!-It also tastes better when it's a day old.

I then dilute this to the desired strength with some ice water when ready to serve. -- Mae Beckham

Dear Mae:

I never thought of doing this! We all know that when powdered milk is made up, it should be kept cold since it tastes better when it's cold. But I never thought of making it double strength and then diluting it with ice water. Bless you, honey child. Look at the space you saved us in our refrigerator . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Here's a fine way for making attractive and inexpensive curtains for kitchen or bath with little care required . . .

I use two large striped or printed bath towels to match the decor. Fold over about a 2 inch portion at the top of each towel and stitch a hem for the rod to go through. Then, trim this fold and the bottom of towel with ball fringe, ribbon etc. and you've got a cute individual curtain.

This can be popped into the washer and dryer with no ironing needed!

The small towels or washcloths make excellent bibs for tots.

Cut out a circle for the neck and trim with what-have-you and add a snap or gripper. They're attractive, inexpensive, need little care, and they make great gifts for showers for expectant mothers because they don't have to be ironed . . . Mrs. T. V. Valvoda

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

How does one remove scratches from a mirror?

My little 9-year-old helper rubbed sandpaper across the face of the mirror!

Perhaps it's better that way. After all, when one is over 39 it's best not to see ourselves too clearly!—Helen Hiza.

Dear Heloise:

I remove rust stains from my linoleum, (caused by metal cabinets and the dust and dirt that collects around the base), by just using a soft steel wool pad (fine steel wool) and household scouring powder.

Presto, the rust marks disappeared like magic. Unbelievably simple and no damage to the surface. This method was recommended by my local floor covering company.—Hazel

Dear Heloise:

My girl friend recently had a baby shower and instead of throwing away all the pretty paper wrappings, she lined the baby's chest of drawers with the larger pieces of the gift wrappings.

It looks colorful and cute to see the drawers with this instead of the usual plain shelf paper. This idea also saves a few pennies and we're all for that!—Dorolyn Shulse

Dear Heloise:

When ironing pillowcases, lay them lengthwise on ironing board. This allows you a greater space before having to move them; just fold after ironing both sides. Then fold pairs together, it's much easier then to pick up mates.—Mrs. Ira Haines

---

Dear Heloise:

I am sure that almost everyone who has used masking tape finds that after it has been on hand for a long time it becomes very difficult to unroll .

I place my roll of "stuck" tape in a low oven, no higher than 300 degrees, until the tape becomes normal again. The tape becomes easy to unroll yet the heat did not damage whatsoever to the tape.—Stanely G. Petniunas

'Mending' Is Topic For Cooper Club

Miss Amelia Spencer gave the program "There Is Magic In Mending" for the Cooper Home Demonstration Club which met Monday at the home of Mrs. George Emmert, Charlie Road.

Miss Spencer showed how to glue pieces of glass and china together as well as how to mend wooden outdoor furniture with waterproof glue, repair plastic items with cement, and mount pictures.

During the business session Mrs. O. J. Cooper reported on Easter baskets given to Latin-American and Negro day nurseries, Mrs. Lee Cooper gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. Sam Spencer read the minutes.

Members of the program committee announced that graduates will be honored in May, an outstanding club member will be recognized in June, and the group will work at the State Hospital in July.

The recreation period was led by Mmes. Dawson Owens and J. D. Van Huss. Mrs. E. E. Walt won the prize.

Refreshments were served to 15 members and four guests — Mmes. Dorman Clark, Bill Knee, Misses Eva Mae Emmert and Janice Clark.

The next meeting will be April 27 at the home of Mrs. J. H. Gill, Burkburnett - Thornberry Road.

SPECIAL CLASSES FOR TEENAGERS OFFERED AT YW

"Project Poundage," ways for chubby teenage girls to lose weight through exercise and swimming, will get underway Friday at the YWCA, and five other classes for teenagers will begin Saturday. Elaine Bryant, a "graduate" of the course, will be the instructor. She is a gym leader at Rider High School.

Classes beginning Saturday include Tumbling, taught by Kay Mascari for grade school children; Art for boys and girls in the first through the third grade, and Art for juniors (fourth through sixth grades) taught by Gladys Henderson; Charm and Modeling taught by Doris Turner, and Driver's Education taught by the Texas Driving School.

Most of the classes will be for a six weeks period. In order to take driver's education the student must be at least 16 years old. The class will be limited to 10 students and will be taught from 10 a.m. until noon.

Other classes being offered to teenagers are twist lessons, to begin Thursday night, and square dance lessons and judo which began earlier in the week.

It isn't too late to enroll in classes which started Monday and Tuesday, Mrs. Louise Brown, director, says. Those interested may contact the YWCA for further information.

GIGGLES AND GUSTS—Milwaukee—Two young women are aided by Milwaukee police and a rope as they struggle to cross a downtown bridge in strong winds Tuesday. Winds gusting to 45 miles per hour caused police to string the rope across the bridge to assist pedestrians. The police occasionally gave a hand, too, when the wind was strongest. (AP Wirephoto)

Public Opinion

Surveys Find Anti-Integration Views Not Confined To South

GALLUP

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N.J. — It is not necessary to analyze the vote given Alabama Gov. George Wallace in the recent Wisconsin primary election to discover whether there is much anti-integration sentiment in the North.

Survey results during the last year have established that such feelings are by no means confined to the South.

While negative sentiment is held by sizable proportions of white Northerners on certain civil rights issues, a recent survey found seven out of ten white persons in the North in favor of the key "public accommodations" section of the Civil Rights Bill.

Many Would Move

On the other hand, a survey conducted in June, 1963 found 75 per cent of Northern whites saying they would either move or would consider moving from their own neighborhood if Negroes came to live there in large numbers. Eighty-six per cent of Southern whites held this view.

At the same time, white parents in both the North and South were asked if they would object to sending their children to a school where half of the children were Negroes.

Among Northern whites, 33 per cent said they would object, while 78 per cent of Southern whites held this view.

The means by which the Negro has fought for racial equality — "mass demonstrations" and "sit-ins" — have met with the disapproval of many Northerners.

In a survey reported in July of last year, 65 per cent of the whites in the North said they believed that mass demonstrations would hurt rather than help the cause of the Negro. This view was held by 73 per cent of white adults in the South.

Civil Rights Barometer

One of the most reliable barometers for gauging public sentiment on the civil rights issue has been the question:

"Do you think the present Administration is pushing racial integration too fast or not fast enough?"

In mid-summer of last year — at the height of racial tension in the nation — almost half (48 per cent) of white persons in the North said that the Kennedy Administration was pushing integration "too fast." Seventy-three per cent of Southern whites shared this view.

Earlier this year — in a survey completed just prior to the passage of the Civil Rights bill in the House — 28 per cent of Northern whites thought the Johnson Administration was pushing integration "too fast." About half (49 per cent) of Southern whites were of this opinion.

Change Planned For Texas Tags

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas auto license plates will bear three letters instead of two next year, but the "LBJ" combination won't be available.

By dropping a number and adding a letter, the Highway Department will be able to stretch the total number of possible combinations to 8 million —a total the department figures will meet demands for another 15 years. The 1964 auto registrations will total about 5.5 million.

The department will use only 20 letters, excluding the "Q" and all vowels, to avoid possible formation of "undesirable words."

"For obvious reasons, letter combination prefixes of 'LBJ' and 'JFK' also will be eliminated," the department said, referring to initials of Presidents Johnson and Kennedy.

TAKE SPECIAL CARE OF OILY SKIN PROBLEM

"Oh to be in England, now that April's there," says the poet. "Or at any other time insofar as complexion is concerned," says the beautician. The continually moist climate is conducive to the traditional dewy complexion of the English beauty.

No one has yet hit upon a way to bottle English air but our drug stores have some very fine substitutes. Moisturizinz creams and lotions do wonders in the replacing of the natural oils lost by sun, wind and steam heat. Skin that tends to dryness should also come in for special attention in the matter of astringents. Some astringents, particularly those designed for oily skins, intensify the problem. Avoid them. A natural herbal extract like good quality witch hazel makes an ideal freshener.

For the person with naturally oily skin a special cleansing and conditioning routine is recommended. First, as to cleansing: Wash with non - fatty soap and use a complexion brush. It removes grime and the solidified oils from the pores and stimulates the skin. Before applying makeup, close the pores with chilled witch hazel. Allow the lotion to dry by itself. Makeupu goes on smoother, lasts longer without spotting.

Oily skin should be washed thoroughly at least twice a day. A national survey made recently showed that more than forty per cent of the American women do wash with soap and water twice a day or oftener.

Periodically a mask should be used on oily skin. Mix kaolin, a bulk beauty clay obtainable at the drug store, with enough witch hazel to form a creamy paste. Spread the mask over the face, forehead and neck and let dry for ten minutes or longer. Remove with warm water and soap. Professional beauticians prescribe this mask as a specific conditioner for oily skin.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Emotions Are Cause Of Much Overweight

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Obesity is generally regarded as a serious health hazard. One pathology professor was fond of saying that carrying around a lot of excess weight was an athletic event. But he added sadly, it is not a "fun" sport.

He would then demonstrate an enlarged tired old heart with the resulting hardening of the arteries. Being overweight not only shortens life; it also makes it harder for your doctor to detect cancer and other tumors under the thick layers of fat.

What leads some people to eat more food than they need day after day is a subject scientists are still studying. One authority has classified problem eaters into several groups.

The obese person who comes from a family of overeaters usually does not have any guilt feelings about his size. He enjoys eating and sees no reason for wanting to reduce. A child brought up in such an atmosphere merely follows the example of those about him.

The next group includes the true gourmet who eats slowly and rarely snacks between meals. His problem is not acute, and his chances for reducing are usually good. The icebox raider who gets up at night for a little snack so he can go to sleep again and the compulsive all-day-long nibbler are usually victims of emotional tensions. Trying to get them to reduce is a hard job.

Finally, there are those who weigh 300 pounds or more. They probably have emotional problems too. But they refuse to air them and they stubbornly resist reducing.

Studies have shown that if a fat person is allowed to eat all he wants, he will not gain weight but will maintain himself at a certain level. This is because, although he eats more than enough to supply his physiologic needs, he feels compelled to satisfy his psychologically motivated appetite.

Until his appetite is satisfied, he honestly believes that he has eaten like a bird. What he forgets is that most birds eat nearly all day long and consume about half their body weight daily.

Most doctors now believe that the overweight person eats too much because of emotional conflicts. In other words they seek solace in food. Some persons with a feeling of inferiority yearn for greatness.

By overeating they gain weight and this makes them feel more important. They believe that they can reduce any time they want to. This feeling gives them a sense of power that they will not give up by putting it to a test.

"Each year more than 30,000 Americans lose their sight forever, half of them needlessly", according to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

"Guard against eye disease, eyestrain and poor vision with an annual, professional eye examination by a Doctor of Optometry," advises Dr. S. J. Rogers of Texas State Optical.

SUPPORT AND CASH—Little Rock, Ark.—Gov. Orval E. Faubus hauls a sack containing $2,461 dollar bills. In his other hand are petitions bearing 3,456 names from Conway County, Ark., asking him to seek a sixth term. The cash is to help pay for his campaign. The money and petitions were presented to Faubus Tuesday by backers from Conway County. The governor has not said whether he will run again. (AP Wirephoto)

Paleness, decreased appetite, loss of condition and occasionally blood in the droppings may occur in several diseases. Before starting treatment, establish the true nature of the disease because incorrect treatment can do more harm than good.

Everything Soaked

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Burma's strict military rule was released for the annual water-throwing festival in which everything got soaked except for festival floats and accompanying police cars. The festival marks the end of the Burmese calander year, in a tradition invoking the good spirits to bring heavy rains for the key rice crops.

Now you can get an 18-foot, two-ton Chrysler for less money than one of those jazzed-up compacts with a big car name on it.

Let's face it. You can't make a big automobile out of a compact (even when it has a big car name on it) no matter how many extra-cost options you add.

Right now, today, you can drive an 18-foot, two-ton Chrysler Newport sedan for less money and a lot less trouble.

You'll get the room you want. Weight to handle the road. Power for the tight spots. And the luxury you get only in a big car.

You'll get more value, too—things that cost you extra on a smaller car. Like a 361-cubic-inch V-8 that runs on regular gas. Foam-cushioned front seats. Padded dash. Sill-to-sill carpets.

So why settle for less than a Chrysler—now that price is no longer a factor?

A Neighbor's Kind Words

The Times and Record News have received many glowing compliments on their new home at Times Square, but none more appreciated than the following editorial from our close neighbor, the Lawton Constitution:

"Modern buildings, equipment and machinery alone cannot produce a good newspaper. But in this age of unexcelled communications, they provide the essential tools for the skilled and dedicated journalists, photographers, advertising salesmen, printers, pressmen and other craftsmen to accomplish the mission.

"With this in mind, owners of the Wichita Falls Times and Record News have constructed and occupied one of the finest and most modern newspaper plants in the entire Southwest.

"During the past few days, Rhea Howard, editor and publisher, and his associates and the more than 200 newspaper employes, have been proudly showing their new home to visitors from throughout Texas and Oklahoma. Among them have been many newspapermen, who, perhaps more than others, appreciate the huge investment and the skilled planning that went into building this handsome, spacious and functional newspaper plant.

"In commenting on the new facility, Mr. Howard said:

"'The purpose of this construction is to serve better the growing needs of advertisers, readers and all people of Wichita Falls and this trade area, who, after all, have made such an expansion program possible. We of the Times Publishing Co. are grateful for their support and loyalty over a period of more than a half-century.'

"Times-Record News has earned the reputation of being a newspaper dedicated to building the community. Wichita Falls has grown and prospered in recent years and much of its progress can be traced to the inspiration and leadership provided by its daily newspapers. On this happy occasion for them, we extend our congratulations and best wishes to Mr. Howard and his able associates, William Donnell and James B. Barnett, and the entire family of the Times Publishing Co."

It's Only A Possibility

Russia's troubles with Communist China make fascinating reading for westerners and provoke speculation that is more than fascinating. Up until now western leaders have been careful publicly not to recognize a split exists, afraid, in effect, to look at it for fear it might go away. Now, however, they are becoming bolder and reasonably sure the chasm between the communist camps is too wide ever to be completely closed up. Columnists and editorialists have been similarly emboldened to speculate.

In this week's Times, Walter Trohan posed an interesting point anent the communist split. He was speculating on the effect the split might have upon Chiang Kai-shek's ambitions to invade the Chinese mainland. "For years it has been insisted that any such offensive would spark World War III," wrote Trohan. "Now with Mao Tse-tung blasting Nikita S. Khrushchev as 'the greatest capitulationist' in history, it may be wondered if Russia would enter any Chinese quarrel. The Kremlin might be happy to see Mao nursing a crop of war boils."

Certainly, Trohan's observations are interesting. Conceivably the communist split might reach the point of no return. If and when it does, Chiang might be allowed, even encouraged, to do that which he so ardently wants to do: invade.

Even if Chiang cannot win a military victory, what would amount to civil war in China might erase for the time being what otherwise would be a real menace, an independent, ambitious, unfettered Communist China.

This is, after all, mere speculation of what could happen. But the very fact it could happen is heartening.

Who Wouldn't Be Jittery?

America's space program has reached the point that to be selected for a space flight might bring to an astronaut the famous mixed emotions. To be so chosen is a great honor, and progress in the astronauts' chosen field of endeavor. But to be selected now is reason enough for any man to suffer a real case of jitters.

The reason is that astronauts of Project Gemini are in line for fantastic adventures. The younger ones have an excellent chance that the finger one day will be put on them for a moon trip. They have an excellent chance, moreover, of finding themselves in earth orbit with no way home. Those are chances they were prepared to take when they joined the space team. But each new adventure must, at one time or another, put a chill on even the steel nerves of these fine young American spacemen.

One of the men with the better chance of going to the moon is a graduate of Southwestern State College in Weatherford, Okla. He is Capt. Thomas P. Stafford, one of the backup pilots for the proposed December two-man orbit of the earth.

The time will come when some of these men will be selected for the big trip itself, the jaunt to the moon. To be so selected will be a great honor.

But who could set forth on a journey to another planet without feeling emotions other than satisfaction and pride? Even an astronaut might be forgiven a mild case of nerves.

Hope Will Linger On

Some of the spirit of adventure is being taken out of philately, or stamp collecting.

The Post Office Department is going to use an electric eye on the feed mechanisms of its printing presses to prevent sheets of stamps from moving in wrong end first during the second impression of a two-color stamp.

Last year, the accidental inversion of the color of the Dag Hammarskjold commemorative stamp caused a sensation among philatelists — until the department swamped the market with deliberate misprints.

The machines have won another round over people, but it still takes human beings to design stamps and errors can still be made — in a date or spelling, perhaps. Collectors will go on hoping.

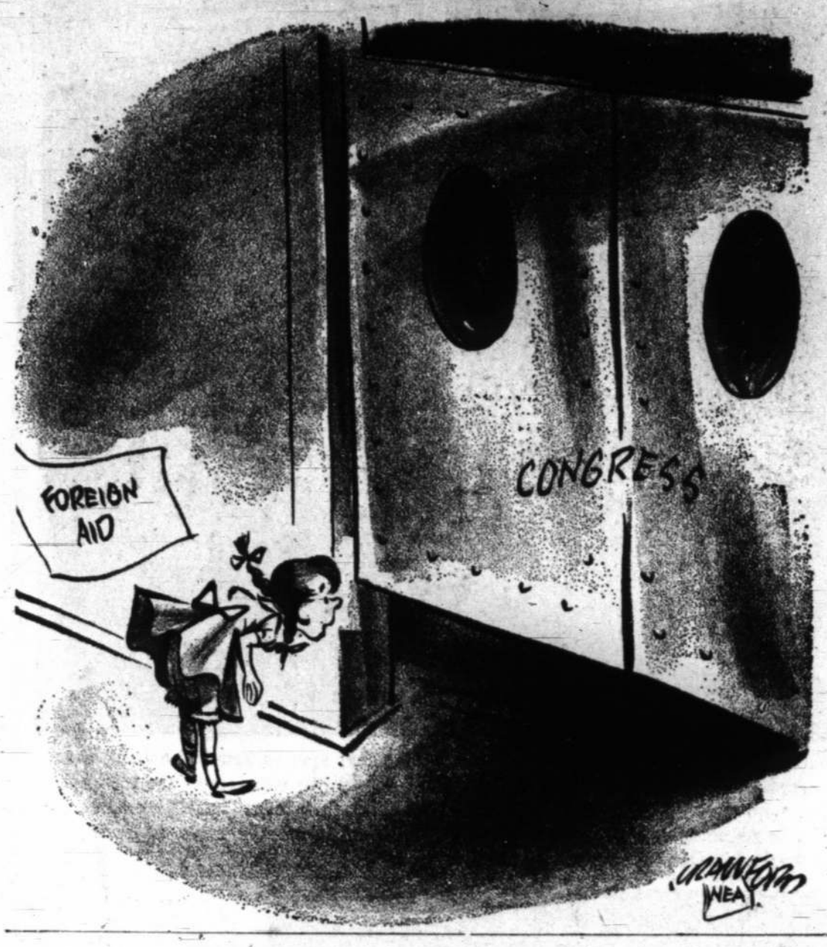
'Is My Daddy In There?'



Endorsements Avoided By Former Presidents

By CHARLES O. GRIDLEY
Times Washington Bureau

It has been quite a while since a former president of the United States has thrown his influence into the contest for nomination of a presidential candidate of his party. Harry S. Truman tried it unsuccessfully in behalf of W. Averill Harriman in 1956, but that was no more than a flash in the pan, rising out of Truman's resentment of Adlai E. Stevenson's refusal to follow his guidance in several respects.

When Truman endorsed Stevenson for his first candidacy in 1952, the then governor of Illinois already had the nomination in the bag, but kept the Democratic convention in a dither while he hesitated to accept.

Different Note

Republican conventions strike a different note than the more buoyant and usually more confident Democratic gatherings, and this year promises to be no different. But the question asked here is whether any single Republican is influential enough to influence the San Francisco convention's choice of a candidate.

The one name which pops up at once is former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose only role at the convention so far is that of commentator for a national television chain, an assignment which some party leaders think "Ike" may have gladly accepted to be in the picture throughout, but at the same time giving him a ready made alibi to refrain from active participation in the convention itself.

Influence Not Used

Not within modern memory has any Republican former president used such influence as he possessed in behalf of a presidential nomination. Herbert Hoover always refrained from endorsing or otherwise aiding any candidate, and Theodore Roosevelt more than half a century ago was still in the White House when he greased the way for William Howard Taft.

Whether President Eisenhower actually brought about the nomination of Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the 1960 presidential nomination is a matter of disagreement between veteran Republicans, but at least he did nothing to prevent it. The retiring President went so far as to mention half a dozen bright young Republicans eligible for the nomination, and there are many who insist that Ike's backstage work brought about the nomination of both Nixon for president and Henry Cabot Lodge for vice president.

React To Deadlock

How the retired general who insisted on numerous occasions that he was "a political novice, a neophyte among professionals" with "no great liking for politics," would react to a deadlock such as may occur at San Francisco cannot be forecast. The immediate likelihood is that only after the most concerted pressure would he consent to preside over the kind of huddle the Republican party became famed for at Chicago in 1920, known to history as the "smoke filled room" and then that he would make a recommendation only hesitantly.

There are only two men mentioned for the nomination to whom he can feel any sense of obligation — Richard M. Nixon, who served for eight years as his vice president, and Henry Cabot Lodge, who did as much as anyone to steer him into the 1952 candidacy for president and managed his emergence on the political stage from a military background so skillfully that he received much of the credit for the Eisenhower nomination.

Hope He Will Accept

In spite of his anticipated reluctance, there are many Republicans who hope he will accept the role of elder statesman. The point is not that his function in this role would help the nominee, chosen with his blessing, to be elected; it did not do so in 1960, when Eisenhower still had all the power of the presidency at his back.

Fear has been expressed by some GOP governors visiting Washington in recent days that the convention may become involved in wild and prolonged disagreement which would damage the party's reputation and leave a poor impression on the country.

Intent Reported

Recently Eisenhower was reported to be intent on persuading his fellow Pennsylvanian, Gov. William Scranton, to become an active candidate for the Republican nomination. Instead, Scranton has denied and discouraged any active candidacy, and barely left the door open for a draft, now considered unlikely though not impossible.

The former president's position is not made easier in that he expressed displeasure to friends with the 1960 campaign records of both Nixon and Lodge though he did little to help their ticket. But just now, it looks like the boys in the smoke filled room may have to huddle if Eisenhower doesn't stay away from the microphone long enough to give his advice.

Warren Panel Shouldn't Hold Back Its Report

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON —, There is growing uneasiness in Washington over the timing of the Warren Commission report on the assassination of President Kennedy.

Within the commission itself, headed by the forceful chief justice, very earnest consideration is being given to finding some way to postpone publication until after the presidential election.

The feeling of some members of the commission is that, if the final report is as sternly critical of the security agencies of the government as they would like it to be, it may be misused in the campaign and its detachment marred by partisanship.

Membership Diverse

The membership of the Warren panel is diverse and bipartisan. Besides the chief justice, it includes two senators, two congressmen, a former director of the CIA, and another Republican who has served many presidents. These men have all been in public life many years. They are steeped in the Washington atmosphere and it is understandable that they should begin wondering, now that their findings are taking shape, how they can avoid entangling their report with the presidential campaign.

What the commission is overlooking is that the national atmosphere is not a replica of the Washington atmosphere. I believe American public opinion, which responded to the horrible event of Nov. 22 with such calmness, balance and unity, will not misread or misjudge the commission's report even if some politicians tempt the public to do so.

Best Way Suggested

The best way for the Warren Commission to avoid getting its report entangled in the presidential campaign is to cease trying to keep it out; that is, to complete its exhaustive investigation as promptly as possible and to issue its report as soon as possible.

The worst thing to do would be to drag out the investigation and then drag out writing the report in the hope that this will innocently stave it off until after next November.

It is evident, I think, that the country wants and deserves to have the conclusions and judgments of the commission just as soon as they can be made ready. To use any artificial devices to hold up the report in an effort to avoid politics would, in my judgment, enmesh the report in politics.

Lessons Drawn

No American can look back at the circumstances which surrounded and followed the assassination of President Kennedy without feeling that there was laxity in security provisions and that some very important lessons need to be drawn from this experience.

I suspect that those who will be most disappointed in the commission's report will be the Europeans, who still seem intent upon believing that the assasination just had to be "some kind of a plot," a conspiracy in which Lee Harvey Oswald was used and then silenced by Jack Ruby's bullet.

Much of the French and British press still favor the "conspiracy" theory and they will have a hard time accepting the Warren Commission version that there was no plot. Perhaps one reason so many Europeans are wedded to the conspiracy theory is that they can't quite believe in the coincidence of two psychotics—Oswald and Ruby—in one place at the same time.

No Evidence

Apart from the fact of there being no evidence of conspiracy, Americans find it even harder to believe that the Communists would use such an obvious and unreliable agent as Oswald or that extremists on the Right would enlist or trust a pro-Communist agent to do their work.

There is no evidence that Ruby was a tool of anybody but himself. He had no conspiratorial ties with extremists of either end. There could be no assurance that he would ever be in a position to do what he did.

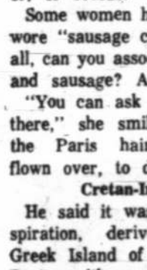
It is clear that the American people will ponder the Warren Commission report calmly and attentively. It should not be held back.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Richard Burton Will Never Be 'Mr. Taylor'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — You're never going to get a harsh word out of me about Richard Burton . . . for when he swept Liz Taylor with him into the Rainbow Room after the "Hamlet" opening, he spotted my accordion - plaited facade in the mob and he said, "Earl, come have a drink with us . . ."



WILSON

That's like being knighted, you know or having somebody give you some AT&T.

I've always admired him as a man's man and been devoted to the electricity of his acting. But I hung back. He was just being polite.

"Where's Earl?" I heard him ask, standing up and looking around. So I said "Here?" and sat down.

Champion Beheld

But frankly, Richard, my eyes were momentarily feasting on Liz, lavishing her unequalled beauty on the 650 revelers. A man I knew, who'd seen the great beauties of the world, gasped as he beheld the champion . . . nestling close to her man.

"My mother always told me I should marry a nice Jewish girl," he sighed.

Everybody was saying "Mrs. Burton" to Liz. "Would you describe your hairdo?" I asked her—just an excuse to lean closer, of course.

Some women had told me she wore "sausage curls" but, after all, can you associate Liz Taylor and sausage? After all!

"You can ask Alexandre over there," she smiled . . . toward the Paris hairdresser who'd flown over, to do her coiffure.

Cretan-Inspired

He said it was Cretan in inspiration, derived from the Greek Island of Crete . . . and Burton with a smile said, "Not Cretin, you understand."

We clicked glasses, Burton, Liz, Agent Harvey Orkin, the John Springers and Burton's foster father. "It was a thrilling performance," I commented. "Of course, I don't know much about Shakespeare."

"I don't either," Burton said. It was time to go into the other room and they were on their feet with their drinks half consumed, photographers flashing every step . . . as somebody said, "What a way to live!"

Hair, Not Her Hat

In the crowd I saw Walter Slezak, who sat behind Liz at the opening. "I was going to ask her to take off her hat," he said. "But my wife told me, 'That's not her hat, that's her hair.' She wore the most fascinating perfume. And she had on long drop earrings of emeralds. Sometimes I could see the stage through the emeralds, and do you know, that's a wonderful way to see 'Hamlet'—through emeralds!"

As the morning and the music grew gayer, Burton unclasped his hands from Liz' briefly and danced with Tammy Grimes. All I can say is that when a columnist who specializes in writing about gals turns to adjectivizing about a guy, that's a guy the world is never going to be calling "Mr. Elizabeth Taylor."

The Midnight Earl

Xavier Cugat dined alone at Danny's, at the table he always shared with Abbe Lane . . . Shirley MacLaine's husband Steve Parker is giving up his Tokyo residence to produce musical revues for a Las Vegas hotel . . . F. Scott Fitzgerald's dtr. Scottie is a production ass't on "This Was the Week That Was" . . . Hayley Mills, 18 next week, is dating Stewart Granger's teenage son Jamie.

Singer Alan Dale has a new Italian record coming out; he says, "I want it to be a big enough hit so I can change my name back to Aldo Sigismondi" . . . Don Rickles is seeing Molly Bee again, and Connie Francis is just his "telephone pal" . . . Ann Corio said at Manny Wolf's she may lease road company rights of "This Was Burlesque" to stripper Lili St. Cyr . . . Sean Connery (the movie James Bond) will finance a London publicity office.

Barbra Streisand's agent was asked if she'd sing the National Anthem at the Yankees' opener; he said modestly, "I don't think it'll work—she's so great the game couldn't follow her!" . . . Some N.Y. hotels are trying to move out their low-rent permanent guests, in preparation for fair visitors.

I'd Rather Be Light

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Joey Forman tells of the horse he bet on: "This nag was so bad it wouldn't even make good glue."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Sal Cucinotta described a lush: "He finishes a bottle as though he can't wait to get back a deposit on it."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A woman looks on a secret in two ways—either it's not worth keeping, or it's too good to keep"—Anon.

EARL'S PEARLS: A fellow complained that his wife's a nut on neatness: "When she goes to the doctor's office she spends an hour straightening out the magazines."

More and more women are buying their dresses on the installment plan, reports Arnold Glasow, and a lot of them seem to be wearing the first installment. That's earl, brother.

Koufax Opens Season And Shutout String

ON TARGET—San Francisco—San Francisco right fielder Harvey Kuehn takes a sixth inning liner from Milwaukee's Frank Bolling in the far right corner without losing stride and without dislodging the wad of tobacco that seems to keep his cheek in a permanent bulge. Pennant Picked Cards Fall, 4-0

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Sandy Koufax was interrupted last fall . . .

That's right, the Dodgers dandy took up Tuesday night where he left off last season, turning in one of his shutout specialties as Los Angeles opened defense of its National League championship by whipping St. Louis 4-0.

There were 50,451 in Dodger Stadium — the largest of the opening day crowds—when Koufax began to whip an assortment of fast balls and curves out of his effortless motion. And when it was over, he had fittingly pitched the first shutout in the National League.

Koufax, a 25-game winner last year with 11 shutouts marked against alongside his name, allowed the Cardinals only six hits, struck out five and walked none while winning his eighth consecutive game and recording his 18th victory in the last 20 regular season decisions.

But the 1963 World Series hero had to share some of the spotlight with towering Frank Howard, baseball's reluctant player. The Dodgers' main power-provider, Howard proved it by tagging a 420-foot, two-run homer that capped the victory.

In other NL openers, Willie Mays collected two of San Francisco's five homers in an 8-4 walloping of Milwaukee, Roy Sievers' three-run homer powered Philadelphia to a 5-3 victory over the New York Mets and Billy Williams' two-run loser in the 10th inning led the Chicago Cubs to an 8-4 triumph over Pittsburgh.

Houston and Cincinnati, who opened play Monday, were not scheduled.

In American League action, Minnesota edged Cleveland 7-6, Baltimore defeated the Chicago White Sox 5-3 and Detroit belted Kansas City 7-3. The Boston at New York game was postponed due to rain. Los Angeles and Washington were not scheduled.

Koufax extended his shutout string against the Cardinals to 24 innings with his latest effort, and hasn't been tagged with a loss by St. Louis since Sept. 21, 1962. This time, only Bill White reached second base, getting there in the fourth on a single and a wild pitch.

The Dodgers scored in the sixth against Ernie Broglio when Willie Davis singled, stole second and scored on Ron Fairly's single. That was enough for Koufax, but Jim Gilliam singled home another run in the seventh and then Howard wrapped it up in the eighth.

Mays hit a two-run homer in the third and finished off Warren Spahn with a solo shot in the eighth that chased the Braves' 42-year left-hander.

Jim Hart, Orlando Cepeda and Tom Haller also homered for the Giants, who broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth on Cepeda's single, a wild pitch and a single by Haller. Juan Marichal, 25-8 last year, was the winner on a seven-hitter.

The Phillies pulled out front in the first as Roy Sievers hammered a homer off Al Jackson following a pair of walks. Bobby Wine's run-producing single in the second and a run-scoring double by rookie Richie Allen in the eighth closed out the scoring.

The Mets got a run in the fourth on Joe Christopher's homer and Bob Taylor drove in two more with a single in the the fifth before reliever Johnny Klippstein shut the door.

Home runs by Andre Rodgers and Dick Bertell helped the Cubs build a 4-3 lead into the ninth, but the Pirates pulled into a tie on Don Clendenon's double and a single by Bill Mazeroski.

Then, in the 10th, the Cubs struck against reliever Roy Face for four straight hits—one the homer by Williams—and it was all over. Larry Jackson got credit for the victory.

Wild Game Fete Tonight At 7 In M-B Corral

One of the biggest and most unusual dinners in the area is slated to begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the M-B Corral on the Sheppard Access Road as the Northwest Texas Field & Stream Association holds its annual game and fish banquet.

Featuring a menu comprised of more than 1,000 pounds of deer, elk, antelope, quail, pheasant and several varieties of fish, the annual feed is expected to draw more than 1,000 persons.

Wes Harrison, guest star of several nationally rated television variety shows and the sound effects for Tom & Jerry cartoons, will be the featured entertainment.

Harrison, billed as "Mr. Sound Effects," has been described by entertainment trade publications as being one of the most unusual acts in show business.

In addition to Harrison, entertainment will consist of a style show of sportswear from Kirkland's and the Maskat Temple Clowns. Officials of the field and stream organization — one of the largest in the state — said a limited number of tickets would be available to the public at the door.

Buddy Works Surrounded By Wild Animals

Last time this column ran we promised to tell what Coach Joe Bob Tyler had to say about his Raiders for the 1964 football season.

The column was never meant to be a serial with such things as leaving the hero on the bank of the river, surrounded by natives, the forest on fire and alligators in the water. Instead it was meant to leave Coach Tyler standing on the practice field, surrounded by Coyotes, Gophers coming out of the ground and being stalked by a Tiger.

That's exactly what is happening and we won't know whether the Raider hero will escape until December. It's going to be a long serial.

To re-cap, in the last episode the coach and this writer had settled to talk football.

What Wuz

"We haven't held our spring practice yet, and the only thing we can go by is what happened last year. We haven't heard anything except how tough some of the teams around Fort Worth are going to be. And we don't have any first hand information on any of the teams," Tyler said.

"Right now I would say we would be doing good to finish near the top. The Coyotes are tough every year, and Irving and Grand Prairie always finish strong. Teams like L.D. Bell and Castleberry we have no idea of how good they are," Tyler explained.

His comments led him to observe, "A good AAA club is still a AAA club when it comes up against a AAAA club. And a good AAAA club will beat a good AAA club everytime."

Tyler also carried this to include AAA and AA. Hirschi of Wichita Falls, which won the 5-AA district championship is moving up to 4-AAA to take Rider's place.

But that's another serial.

Lost 10

Rider lost 10 players from the 1963 team. Tyler and his coaches will be looking for a punter, a left end, a left tackle, a right guard and also a defensive tackle and defensive end.

Of the starters off the co-champion 4-AAA team, three offensive places and two defensive slots are now open. The total is four boys lost to graduation. One player played both offense and defense.

There are 12 boys around whom Tyler will build what he hopes will be a real 4-AAAA contender. Ten are seniors and two are juniors.

The eight offensive starters include a "veteran" backfield. Bub Deerinwater, a junior, heads the team. He's a 190 pound blockbuster fullback who led the team in yards gained last year. The others are wingback T. San Miguel, left half Gary Barrier and quarterback, blocking back Roger Wallace.

The Trenches

The guards who are holdovers are Ricky Thomas (150) and Sam Montgomery (180 pounder transferred to left guard from end). Right tackle looks to be Tommy Binek (210). Center is Dickie Hander (185).

On defense Rickey Sheddy (205) and James Vanderslice, (185) the other junior on the team, are cornerbacks. Bernard Dawson (175) is a linebacker and Don Hobson (200) is a defensive tackle.

"We will be counting on some of the boys up from the junior varsity," Tyler said, "but we are just going to have to wait to see them this spring and again this fall before anything definite will be known."

An article on football may sound out of place in the early days of April. But the undergraduates of Rider High School, it appears, relish the thought of the coming season.

A lot will transpire between now and Saturday, Sept. 12, but come graduation, dropouts, moving or the like, Rider's Raiders will have a football team.

Finley Has Major Setbacks 1st Day

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The baseball season is just one day old and Charles O. Finley already has had two setbacks.

The American League torpedoed his "Pennant Porch" in Kansas City last week and the Tigers went to work on his ball club in Detroit Tuesday.

The results were the same. Municipal Stadium has half a porch and the Tigers left just about that much of the Athletic pitching staff intact after a 7-3 Opening Day victory.

Detroit's new-look Tigers were something to see but it wasn't a pleasant sight for Finley. The key executioners were Jerry Lumpe and Dave Wickersham, who wore the Kelly green and gold Athletic uniforms a year ago.

Finley

Finley swapped Lumpe, an infielder, and pitchers Wickersham and Ed Rakow for slugger Rocky Colavito and hurler Bob Anderson during the winter and off the first day's results, the Tigers came out way ahead.

Lumpe stroked a single, double and triple as the Tigers punished three Kansas City pitchers with a 12-hit assault. Wickersham came on in the ninth inning as the A's staged a later rally. After an error and a walk, he got Gino Cimoli to end it.

Colavito, meanwhile, went 0-for-4.

Nearly 300,000 Watch Openers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Almost 300,000 fans turned out for baseball's traditional opening day games.

With the meeting between the St. Louis Cardinals and the world champion Dodgers at Los Angeles drawing 50,451 Tuesday night, attendance for the nine-game program reached 291,109 with one postponed game still to go.

The Boston at New York opener was set back to Wednesday because of rain.

A Candlestick Park record of 42,894 was on hand for the Milwaukee-San Francisco game, boosting the National League total to 168,848 for five games. The American League, headed by a 40,145 crowd for the Presidential Opener at Washington Monday, drew 122,261.

The 1964 breakdown:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Los Angeles at Washington, Monday	40,145
Baltimore at Chicago	20,766
Kansas City at Detroit	35,733
Minnesota at Cleveland	25,617

SFPCALBTPS Has Answer?

El Nationals . . . Viva! El Yanquis . . . No!

Two million folks couldn't be wrong.

Destroy the Yankees, sink 'em in the East River or ship 'em to the Japanese League, but do something to save the American League.

Don't take offense Yankee fans, it's not that we hate your beloved pin-stripes, but rather it's now a case of either leading the winners of 21 of the last 28 flags to the sacrifice altar or walking the entire league there.

There is less pain by one team going than nine others. Majority rule — get the point?

Some folks, with good judgment, would reason with us and say, "Nothing but ill can be gained by building one by tearing down another."

At one time we would have agreed, but now the cold hard truth is even more present: The Yankees will never crumble under their own system.

Rome may have fallen and the Titantic may have gone under, but not the Yankees.

Your Grandmother

Your grandmother could lead them to the pennant even if she had never seen a baseball game.

Just send 'em on the field and get out of their way.

To save the American League (and 2 million fans did turn out for more National League games than American League) the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to American League Baseball Teams by the Pin Stripes (SFPCALBTPS) must gain support.

One high official in the SFPCALBTPS was quoted as saying the National League had turned thumbs down on accepting the Yanquis into the senior organization.

A poll of the clubs, with one declining vote, proved him right. Only the Mets wanted a monthly shot at the Yankees.

They felt it might help the attendance at Shea Stadium if someone hit a homer once in a while. After selling Snyder (Duke) to the Giants the honors are going to be few and even farther between.

But this still hasn't answered the Yankee problem.

Man On The Street

Even the man on the streets got into the debate and was asked by the SFPCALBTPS what his theory on the subject was.

Some of the replies: "I think Mickey Mantle is cute," a Yonkers housewife said.

"Have the Senate investigate 'em," mouthed a Teamster Union official.

"Handicap 'em," said a Churchill Downs patron, "and run 'em in the fifth."

Obviously, the answer can't be supplied by the average fan.

The next solution was to seek foreign aid.

A British subject came up with a solution to the Yankee success and said, "Blimey governor, the answer is as plain as your tea in the saucer.

"The only blinking solution to the whole of the mess tis to form a new baseball unholy three so to speak and beat the blokes with brains.

"I say, the only clear picture as I sees it, tis merger the likes of Bill Veeck, Charles O. Finley as general managers and place his nibs, Casey Stengel as the field general.

"Iffn you kan't beat 'em, drive 'em out of their blinking minds!"

And you know, that probably is the only solution.

Nicklaus Leads Golf Choices At Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — For two straight years, big Jack Nicklaus has made a charge at the Houston Classic's gold and glory averaging 68.8 strokes per round for eight rounds, and averaging $3,400 per trip to the paymaster's window.

So on the eve of the big tee off Thursday, the strong man from Ohio State has been established a 3-1 favorite to take it all this time as the $50,000 Classic moves to Sharpstown Country Club for the first time.

With both Arnold Palmer and Gary Player absent, Nicklaus was established the favorite over the defending champion, Bob Charles, the southpaw New Zealander who took the big bundle here last April with a record score of 268.

Charles

Charles is back for another run at the top money, but is bracketed at 5-1 with Houston's Dave Marr, Paul Harney, Dow Finsterwald and Bruce Devlin.

Nicklaus did not arrive Tuesday in time to join the rest of the field in a practice round, but was expected to make his appearance sometime today.

Most of the other leading contenders were already here, and tested Sharpstown's wind-swept acres Tuesday.

Charles expressed satisfaction with his game, and expressed the belief Sharpstown would play about the same as Memorial, perhaps a bit easier.

On the schedule today was the annual pro-amateur, which pairs a leading professional with three local amateurs.

EMERSON FACES TOP NET FOE

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia meets collegian Don Kierbow of Corpus Christi today in the second round of the 30th annual River Oaks Tennis Tournament.

Seven other singles matches will be played with the winners going into the quarter-finals Thursday.

In the matches today, Beau Maloney of Lamar Tech was pitted against Ron Holmberg of New York City, Boro Jovanovic of Yugoslavia against Jim McManus of Berkley, Calif. Antonio Palafox of Mexico, against Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., and third-seeded Rafael Osuna of Mexico against Cliff Buchholz of Trinity, Tex.

Fletcher

Also, Ken Fletcher of Australia meets Ham Richardson of Dallas, Gene Scott of St. James, N.Y., plays Nicola Pilic of Yugoslavia, and Jose Luis Arilla of Spain faces Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, the world's top ranked netter.

In Tuesday's competition, Scott demonstrated why he's the fourth-ranked player in the world.

The handsome Easterner built his high rank mainly by playing indoors and on grass. In his first appearance at River Oaks, Scott proved that clay also is his surface with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Newman.

Scott's overpowering serve and splendid vollying kept Newman off balance, and their center court meeting was soon over climaxing a rather calm day at River Oaks.

Two of the 16 exempt players, Ronnie Fisher and Andy Lloyd, were eliminated in their opening match, while the four seeded players failed to lose a set.

Only fourth-seeded Froehling worked up a sweat as Gabino Palafox of Corpus Christi pressed him in the first set before bowing, 8-6, 6-4. Otherwise it was a romp for first-seeded Emerson, second-seeded McKinley and third-seeded Osuna, who lost an aggregate of only 14 games.

Umbricht Remains Taken To Stadium

HOUSTON (AP)—The ashes of Jim Umbricht, the Houston Colt pitcher who died a week ago of cancer, have been scattered over Colt Stadium, an area he loved.

Umbricht was a right-handed relief pitcher for the National League Colts. He was buried Friday and the body cremated.

The ashes were scattered over the baseball field from a small plane Saturday, but this was not revealed until Tuesday by Colt officials.

"Jim's family wanted no advance publicity about the disposition of the ashes," a Colt official explained.

Clay & Draft Laws Forecast As Next Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressman predicts the House will soon launch a major investigation of the draft law and feature heavyweight champion Cassius Clay as its star witness.

The prediction came from Rep. William C. Bray, R-Ind., who also told a newsman:

"I think the Selective Service made a mistake in rejecting Cassius Clay. I'm not sure what the devil you could do with him. But I think the Army could have found a place for him."

The Army had said Clay was rejected after he failed to pass mental tests.

Bray —

Bray, who is the ranking Republican member of the House armed services subcommittee on personnel, said he was not sure just which congressmen would do the investigating.

He said he was hoping to persuade his subcommittee to do it. But, he added, there also was a possibility that a joint committee, made up of members of the armed services and education and labor committees, would do the job.

In any case, Bray continued, he was confident that some subcommittee or committee would open the investigation soon and call Clay as a witness.

There was no official confirmation, however, of any committee plans. Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., chairman of Bray's subcommittee, said, "I don't know anything about it."

Discussion

Bray said there had been much discussion among members of Congress for some time about what they consider the failings of the draft system. He said this predated the rejection of Clay. But he added that the Clay incident did give impetus to it.

"I'm not blaming (Selective Service Director Lt. Gen. Lewis B.) Hershey about this," Bray said. "I'm not blaming Cassius Clay. But it does not seem right to reject a heavyweight boxing champion."

Bray's views about the need for a study of the draft seem to have growing support in Congress.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., for example, recently told the House that "the draft law has been perverted from a system of satisfying the emergency manpower needs of the military in wartime into an inefficient, wasteful program of universal military training in peacetime."

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and several other senators, both Democratic and Republican, have proposed a presidential commission to study the draft.

SCORES WITH A TWIST—Chicago —Ball and runner are both behind the catcher as Chicago White Sox runner Don Bufford twists around Baltimore Oriole catcher John Orsino in the sixth inning of play Tuesday. Orsino was charged with an error when the throw from right field got past him. Baltimore won, 5-3, in the season opener for both clubs. (AP Wirephoto)

Alvin All Smiles On Bat Explosion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The ball club Manager Alvin Dark quickly labeled his best in four years at San Francisco after watching its opening five home run barrage goes for victory No. 2 tonight against Milwaukee.

Right-hander Jack Sanford, a 16-game winner last year, will face Milwaukee youngster Bob Sadowski at Candlestick Park.

If Sanford gets the power support the Giants gave Juan Marichal in Tuesday's 8-4 opening day victory, he shouldn't have much trouble.

Willie Mays—"I just swing"—blasted two home runs and Orlando Cepeda—"I did the same thing last opener" — rapped a homer and two singles.

Tom Haller and rookie Jim Hart also homered, but it was a sixth-inning single by Haller that drove home Cepeda, breaking a 4-4 tie.

The blasting bore out observers views that power is the Giants long suit for 1964. But Dark singled out "depth" when asked if he believes the current team is better than his power - laden 1962 National League champions.

Neither the bullpen nor the bench was tested Tuesday as Marichal went all the way. The Dominican right - hander almost failed to survive the early innings, but shut the Braves out on three hits over the final six frames.

"I hung a lot of curves," he explained. "And when I balked, I don't know what I was thinking. After the fifth I pitched a little better but I don't know what happened."

Coyotes End Losing Skein; Win 10 To 4

By TED LEACH

Mack Keck's Wichita Falls Coyotes unleashed some pent-up fury in Spudder Park Tuesday afternoon in a non-conference baseball game to snap a six game losing streak and plaster the Rider Raiders' debut, 10-4.

The Coyotes got four extra base hits and several times sent Raider outfielders near the wall to haul down long smashes as they dominated things pretty well. The only thing that kept it from being a perfect contest—as far as the winners were concerned — were five errors, three by shortstop Trent Capps.

Mickey Pemberton went the distance, scattered six hits and walked only one in picking up the victory. He has lost two. David Casey was tagged with the loss, although the Coyotes managed only four earned runs.

Scoring - wise, the contest was decided in the first two innings when the Coyotes struck for five runs.

Five hits, including John Runge's two - run double, got the show on the road and it was 3-0 before Casey could stem the tide. Al Syverson's double was the only hit for the Coyotes in the second, but they scored two with the aid of two errors and a fielder's choice.

Rider cut the lead by one on a nifty double steal with pitcher Casey taking second and batterymate Carl Lane coming home on the same play.

A double by Capps, a stolen base and an infield out gave the Pack a 6-1 lead in the top of the third. Rider got two in the home half of the stanza on a single by John Easterling and three Coyote errors, two by Capps.

The Coyotes added insurance runs in the sixth. A double by Jimmy Boyd produced one and Boyd pulled a double steal with Sonny McDougle to score the other.

Rider's final run was in the last of the sixth. Casey reached first on an infield single, was moved up a notch by Joe Ball's shot to center field and scored when Billy Watts beat out an infield grounder.

The Pack wrapped it up on a single by Mike McBride, a bunt single Mike Jenkins, an error on Wigington and a solid single by pinch hitter Clifford Brown.

Boyd was again the Coyote's big stick, producing three hits in five trips to the plate, including the third inning double. Brown and John Runge got two RBI's apiece. Ball was the only Raider with two safeties.

The Coyotes open District 4-AAAA action at Richland Hills Friday. Rider hosts Duncan at Spudder Park Thursday in its next outing.

Aggies, Others Win Exhibitions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three Southwest Conference baseball teams won games Tuesday with Texas A&M tying Baylor for the most games won.

The Aggies beat St. Mary's 9-1 for their 12th victory of the campaign and now have a 12-5 record.

Texas Christian broke a five-game losing streak by edging Sam Houston State 6-5. It also ended a five-game victory string for Sam Houston which now is 15-3 for the seasons.

Rice downed Texas Lutheran 4-1, winning the game with a two-run splurge in the sixth, scoring on an infield grounder and Russ Judd's sacrifice fly.

Wednesday night Southern Methodist plays its annual game with the Dallas Rangers of the Pacific Coast League.

Conference play resumes Friday and Saturday. Texas and Baylor, tied for the lead, clash at Austin. Rice plays Texas Christian at Fort Worth and Texas A&M meets Southern Methodist at Dallas.

Olympic Flame Passes Tests

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The torch for Tokyo's Olympic Games was lit in Beirut Tuesday night and plunged into a bucket of water to test its flame. The wet torch burned on successfully.

It was the first time the Olympic flame has burned in Lebanon.

Four Japanese officials watched the torch trial at Beirut's Sports City, a big stadium in the suburbs. They were Fumio Takashima and Tadasu Fujioka of Japan's Olympic Committee and Eiichi Morinishi and Shunuoke Kamata of Japan Airlines, whose special plane will carry the torch from Athens to Tokyo in August, stopping at 15 cities.

The genuine Olympic flame is scheduled to reach Beirut August 26 by relays from Athens and Istanbul, and be carried through the city by teams of runners. It is to burn here for two days before being flown on to Tehran, Iran.

Fem Cage Teams Leave For Peru

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (AP)—The Russian and U.S. women's basketball teams depart today for Lima, Peru, to play in the world's tournament.

The Russians wound up a five-game tour Tuesday night by beating the Wayland College Flying Queens, augmented by Rita Horky of the U.S. team, 50-49.

The Russians and the U.S. team, coached by Harley Redin of Wayland College, leave together by plane for Lima. Redin had 12 on his squad, five of them from Wayland College.

Too Many Spectators Sobs Toronto Coach After Loss

TORONTO (AP)—The official count showed that 14,017 fans saw the Detroit Red Wings beat the Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 Tuesday night to tie their National Hockey League Stanley Cup final at a game each.

As far as Coach Punch Imlach of Toronto is concerned, there were too many spectators. "Our Cleveland forwards might just as well have been spectators the way they stood around out there practically all night," the unhappy Imlac said in the Leafs' dressing room.

Third Straight

Toronto, seeking its third straight Stanley Cup, trailed 3-1 going into the third period but finally tied things at 3-all on a brilliant goal by Gerry Ehman with just .46 seconds of play left.

The Leafs, who won the opener 3-2 on a goal in the final two seconds, had visions of another such performance Tuesday. But, the Wings practically ran them out of the rink in the sudden-death overtime period.

Toronto veteran goalie Johnny Bower had a terrific night, kicking out 45 shots. He turned seven of them aside in the sudden-death period before Larry Jeffrey took a perfect pass from Gordie Howe to slam home the winner at 7:51.

Stock Mart Prices Irregularly Higher

NEW YORK (AP)—Cigarette stocks were strong and airlines were weak in an irregularly higher stock market early this afternoon. Trading was fairly active.

Gains and losses of most key stocks ran from fractions to about a point.

A feature of trading was a sharp decline by most of the oils in the Getty group following news of a Justice Department antitrust suit against Humble Oil's proposed purchase of Tidewater Oil's western operating properties.

The cigarette stocks put on a show of strength on news that two major producers had told shareholders of a recovery in sales of cigarettes following the slump early this year on the surgeon general's health report.

Motors had a thinly higher edge. Rails, utilities, steels and chemicals were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .3 at 305.0 with industrials up .7, rails unchanged and utilities up .1.

Among lower-priced issues which have been active recently, Transitron lost nearly a point as its retreat from highs continued. Erie - Lackawanna eased.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 1.37 at 824.32.

Control Data gained 3, Xerox more than a point. Polaroid and U.S. Smelting added a point each. IBM lost a point.

American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were narrowly mixed. U.S. government bonds were mostly unchanged.

Wheat Lower

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy selling drove May wheat sharply lower at times today in futures transactions on the board of Trade.

In the early afternoon, the delivery was down about five cents a bushel with profit cashing showing no sign of a letup.

The feed grains held small gains most of the day but soybeans were mixed and rye weak.

Carlot receipts today were estimated at: wheat no cars, corn 84, oats none, rye none, barley 6, soybeans 2.

Wheat was ¼-5¼ cents a bushel lower at the close, May $2.02¾-03; soybeans unchanged to ½ lower, May $2.58-58⅛; corn ¼-⅝ higher, May $1.23¼-⅜; oats unchanged to ⅛ higher, May 64⅛-¼ cents; rye 1¾-3 cents lower, May $1.28½.

Cotton Futures Show Decline

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures declined late today.

Commission house liquidation at one time extended losses to $3.75 a bale. Nearby May contracts were steady at unchanged prices.

Selling was associated with confusion over how the new cotton measure, aimed at lowering the cost of cotton to domestic mills, will affect market prices for the staple.

There were reports in the cotton textile market that some yarn producers have lowered prices.

Late afternoon prices were unchanged to $3.75 a bale lower. May 34.18, July 31.00, October 28.54.

T.H.E.M Holds Open House

By MARSHALL MOORE

Scores of friends, customers and contractors from top mechanics in multiple service lines to brass from Air Force bases visited the new installation of T.H.E.M. Service Industries on Hilltop drive just off Loop 165 (the Truck Route).

An open house, topped with a buffet luncheon, was given to honor visitors at the shops here where specialized services are available for a wide variety of lines from Thermo-King mobile refrigeration units for trucks to Thermo - King air conditioning units for trucks and automobiles, to liquid oxygen for stratopheric flights and hydraulic services for specialized equipment.

The firm's name T.H.E.M. stands for "temperature, hydraulics, electrical, mechanical" services and the new air conditioned shops include a large parts department and special shops for electrical service, loxtronics (liquid oxygen and electronics) and pneudraulics (pneumatics and hydraulics) and covering such specialized fields as repair of missile launching equipment and devices and specialized equipment for large bombers of the Strategic Air Command.

"While we do not handle any of the missile equipment, we do handle maintenance and repair of the launch equipment," says Harold G. Johnson, president of the corporation.

E. K. Bond, vice president, and E. L. Bond, secretary, were joined by several key officials of the nationwide service organization in escorting visitors through the new installation. They have been in the new building with a huge service drive to accommodate any customer for about 2 months and previously were off the old Petrolia Road for three years.

A highlight of the display was a self-contained mobile refrigeration unit that would keep a huge refrigerator van at 10 degrees below zero inside while it was more than 100 degrees above outside. Jim Will, of Dallas, service representative for a five-state area for Thermo - King, spent the day explaining the unit that had a 24-volt starter-generator and a defroster feature that has been in use more than a dozen years with all Thermo-King units.

Senate Rights Bill Debate In 31st Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — The behind-the-scenes search for a first-step compromise went forward today as the Senate's wordy floor battle over the House-passed civil rights bill moved into its 31st day.

Although President Johnson has called on the Senate to pass the bill without change, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said flatly there would be amendments.

But Dirksen, trying to thread his way through sharp differences among his GOP colleagues, was much less definite about what the changes would be.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Dixie forces, refused comment on the amendments Dirksen is working on. "We haven't seen them yet," he told reporters.

A similar wait-and-see position has been taken by assistant Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey, floor manager of the bill. He has made clear he will oppose weakening any essential features of the legislation.

Russell said he will offer an amendment providing that the bill, if it is passed, will not become effective unless it is approved by majority vote in a national referendum.

"The people ought to be heard before we change our form of government," he said.

The Senate stayed in session Monday from 10 a.m. until 10:44 p.m. Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., held the floor for 6 hours and 54 minutes, the longest yet, although this included an hour and 37 minutes he yielded to let colleagues speak on other subjects.

Thurmond argued that the Constitution's Bill of Rights and later amendments "'is the best of all civil rights measures and none other is needed.

Dirksen has concentrated his compromise efforts so far on the section of the bill prohibiting discrimination in hiring, promoting or firing workers on account of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. It would apply to employers, labor unions, and employment agencies.

GIANT COOLING UNIT — Harold G. Johnson, left, rests his hand on the 24-volt starter-generator that is a sure-fire starter for this self-contained 23,500 BTU Thermo-King mobile refrigeration unit that will keep a 24-foot refrigerator van at 10 degrees below zero. Looking on is Jim Will of Dallas, a service representative for 12 years for Thermo-King; and E. K. Bond, vice president of T.H.E.M., which held a successful open house Wednesday at the new plant of T.H.E.M. Service Industries on Hilltop Avenue just off Loop 165 (the Truck Route).

Oiler Completed In Eanes Field

By FRANK O. HALL
Times Oil Editor

J. R. Caswell and C. R. Boatwright of Dallas have completed the No. 1 Leonard Hickman in Montague County's Eanes (Viola Lime) Field.

Twenty-four hour flow through 32-64-inch choke from two perforations per foot at 6671-87 feet was 144.4 barrels of 41 gravity oil with packer on casing and 80 pounds pressure on tubing. Gas-oil ratio was 1120-1. Pay was acidized with 4000 gallons.

The 5½-inch production string was landed at 6776 feet.

Producer is eight miles southwest of Bowie, R. Laws survey A-423.

In Jack County

Shell Oil Co. reported a daily pumping potential of 64.31 barrels of 41.4 gravity crude, plus 11 per cent water, for No. 212 Yates Water Flood Unit in the Rusmag Field of Jack County.

Production is from 10 perforations at 4449-78 feet. Gas-oil ratio was 312-1.

Hole was bottomed at 4554 feet and plugged back to 4542 feet for completion.

The well is three miles north of Joplin, block 36, league 2, Henderson CSL survey.

New Pay Found

Star Oil Co. Inc., Dallas, has reported a daily potential of 212 barrels of 42 gravity oil for its No. 1 Ford Unit, completed as a Montague County Dolomite lime discovery five miles south of Bowie.

Flow was through 14-64-inch choke from 16 perforations at 6925-33 feet with packer on casing and 450 pounds pressure on tubing. Gas-oil ratio was 550-1. Pay was acidized with 5000 gallons.

The 5½-inch production string was landed two feet above bottom at 6946 feet.

Company plans to attempt dual completion in an upper zone.

Discovery is in S. Garner survey A-287.

West Of Childress

Kimbell, Swick & Gunn will drill the No. 1 Clyde Hackler as an 8000-foot Childress County wildcat five miles west of Childress. Drillsite is 660 feet from west and north lines of section 690, block H, W&NW survey.

Audience Told Of Time To Be Silent

By CARROLL COPELIN

Persons attending the next to the last of this year's Perkins Lectures by Rev. A. P. Tremlett at the First Methodist Church Wednesday morning were told there was a time and place in the lives of all Christians to remain silent.

The speaker, vicar of St. Stephen with St. John in London, said the time to speak was "when our Lord needs our testimony" but he cautioned that each Christian be certain the opportunity not be merely for the sake of argument.

Speaking on "Christ and Three Men" at Wednesday morning's service, the English vicar discussed the three major heavenly signs — a cloud, fear and a voice.

He termed the cloud as a symbol of the veil which "shields the glory of that too great for man to behold." He said the glory of God was "beyond man's apprehension" and the cloud was as near as mortal flesh can come to God.

Disaster

"For us, the cloud symbolizes disaster which robs us of our peace and security," Tremlett told his audience — many of whom witnessed the recent tornado which lashed Wichita Falls.

"This cloud usually means God is going to act. Remember, it is always darkest just before the dawn," he said. The English vicar explained fear always "grips the heart when the cloud falls."

"God means it so. Being human, we would prefer no shadows on our path . . . we would want sunshine," he said. Tremlett told the audience that individuals react in different ways to this cloud. "Some despair, others turn to God," he said.

"There is always the voice of God which we cannot or will not hear until we are stilled by fear," he said. "We force God to send us a cloud by not heeding his voice while on the paths of sunshine."

The speaker explained this "voice" always said the same thing, "Heed Him."

Hear Him

"If you hear Him, then you have nothing to fear," Tremlett said. The English minister pointed out Christians should remain silent in many cases involving scandal and the like. He pointed out "we often try to justify ourselves with bitter words when angry or unjustly accused when it is better to remain silent."

The final sermon in this year's Perkins Lectures is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. at the First Methodist Church when Tremlett will speak on "David and the Depths."

Dr. Howard Hollowell, pastor of the church, announced Wednesday morning that next year's lectures would be held March 21-24.

Dr. Hollowell also said Anglican Archbishop Angus Campbell McGinnis, the representative of all Protestantism in Jerusalem, would be here April 30 and speak at the weekly luncheon of the Wichita Falls Rotary Club.

The Perkins Lecturer described McGinnis as the only man who can pass freely between the Jewish - Arab border.

Around Town

R. T. Gregory, municipal director of public works who is resigning Wednesday to become Dallas County's first planning engineer, was honored Tuesday afternoon by city employes at a reception in Memorial Auditorium. Gregory and his wife were presented with gifts and lauded by City Manager Jack Davis, Mayor Winston Wallander and former mayor John Gavin.

A Chamber of Commerce group visited with officials of the Montague County Market Association Tuesday night to discuss the possibility of an area farmers' market and food - fiber processing plant. Representing the chamber were David Clinton, Bob Long, Noel Sharp and Wayne Smith.

A daughter was born Monday at Bethania Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Tony V. Twilligear of 1915 East Perigo.

A street dance, originally scheduled Friday night, has been rescheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday at the Brown Youth Center, 512 Texas. Free refreshments will be served at the dance.

A carburetor flooded on a 1957 Oldsmobile owned by T. L. Whitaker, 617 Eighth, starting a fire Wednesday morning at Tenth and Lamar. About $100 damage was reported.

Fields Funeral Set In Henrietta

HENRIETTA, Tex. (Special)—Henry Thompson Fields, 71, a native of Clay County who had lived in Henrietta 24 years, died here Tuesday.

Born in 1893 near Blue Grove, Tex., Fields was a rancher. He was a veteran of World War I and a member of the American Legion.

Service will be in the First Methodist Church of Henrietta at 3:30 p.m. Thursday with Rev. Curt M. Baird of Archer City officiating assisted by Rev. Bailey Duncan, pastor of the First Methodist Church and Rev. Warren Luce, Episcopal minister here. Burial will be in Bluegrove Cemetery under direction of Hawkins Funeral Home.

Survivors include the widow, Vivian Fields; three brothers, Ernest, T. L. and W. C., all of Bluegrove; and a sister, Mrs. David A. Greer of Henrietta.

Time for a Checkup?

Who knows, maybe it is. After all, you get a checkup on everything else — your health, your kids, the car.

So why not your investments, too?

After all, times change — and so do security values. The stocks you bought five years ago may have been just fine for your purposes then — but what about now?

Maybe your objectives have changed.

Maybe other stocks offer far better opportunities.

Maybe there are definite weak spots here and there in your portfolio.

That's why we think every investor should get a good financial checkup from time to time . . . find out just what his investment program looks like to a practiced, impartial observer.

And if you'd like to know what we think of the stocks you own, we'll be happy to tell you.

Our Research Department will mail you an objective review of your present portfolio, give you all the facts they can about any particular stocks you may want to buy or sell, or suggest a complete investment program for any sum, any objective.

There's no charge for this service, either. Whether you're a customer or not.

If you'd like an investment checkup, just write us a letter outlining your own situation and objectives. You simply address —

Cox Denounces Civil Rights Bill

By PEGGY SIMPSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, Jack Cox, said he opposes "every word, every comma and every title" in the civil rights bill before Congress.

Calling civil rights the top national issue, Cox said in Dallas that if the bill is enacted, he would work to have it repealed as senator.

Cox also criticized the Democratic incumbent, Sen. Ralph Yarborough, as not giving Texans the representation they deserve. "They need a man who is firm and who can be fair and who is reasonable," he said.

Yarborough, in a Galveston speech, hammered at the importance of more and better education for the state. At a dinner honoring state Sen. A. R. Schwartz, he said the Gulf Coast area is in a position to lead Texas to greatness because of what he called the progressive leadership such as Schwartz'.

Morris

Another Republican candidate for Senate, Robert Morris, told Austin newsmen he believes the key election issues are prayer in schools, proposals to regulate firearms ownership, and disarmament.

Morris said later in Victoria advocates of world government within the federal policy-making fold were getting bolder. "They're not even being subtle about it, anymore."

Gov. John Connally worked at his Austin capitol office Tuesday. His wife and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Merrill Connally, shared a coffee reception with about 300 persons at the Corpus Christi airport. They flew from Corpus Christi to McAllen for the night.

Connally's only Democratic foe, Don Yarborough of Houston, said in Bryan both the governor and senate aspirant Gordon McLendon "long ago deserted the Democratic party." In an interview, he said the two men aimed their campaigns at keeping Republicans from forming a two-party system in Texas.

Yarborough

In Lufkin, Yarborough said if elected he would try to enact an old age assistance system using California's maximum payment plan of $176 as a goal.

McLendon, Democratic candidate for Senate, outlined for voters a 12-point platform which includes opposition to the civil rights bill and the King-Anderson (medicare) bill. He proposed to limit the number and power of federal bureaus, end farm subsidy programs within 10 years, provide tax exemptions for parents of modest income financing their children's higher education and require "an adequate number" of Spanish-speaking civil service employes when a need for them exists.

Another GOP Senate candidate, George Bush, said it was time to stop what he called a whittling away of the nation's military preparedness program by politicians.

George Bush

Speaking in Borger, Bush said Sen. Yarborough said "one thing to distressed cattlemen in Hereford and another in Washington" concerning cattle imports. He said the Johnson administration and "its pawns like Yarborough has no intention of giving cattlemen in this country a break."

In the railroad commissioner race, incumbent Jim Langdon, Democrat, said an arbitrary increase in Texas' oil production is not the answer to the state's oil problem.

Langdon said people who suggest "state quotas" based on proved reserves are, in effect, advocating federal control of oil regulation. He said the free world was obviously able to produce more crude oil than it needed and that Texans were reasonable in demanding a curb of excessive oil imports.

Jesse Owens

Langdon's opponent, Jesse Owens of Vernon, said "public distrust of the Texas Railroad Commission is at an all time high." He said he wanted action, not alibis, in doing something "about the small allowables and big depression in the oil industry which aggravate the tax squeeze for home owners and workers."

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith, Democrat incumbent, told the Nueces county medical society in Corpus Christi the state "is in the best shape ever to meet the needs of youngsters committed to state control by courts."

He said appropriations for the Texas Youth Council have increased from slightly more than $2 million in 1956-57 to more than $13 million for the current biennium.

Child Struck By Automobile

Nine-year-old Vicki Morris, 809 Burnett, was treated and released at Wichita General Hospital after she was struck by a 1956 Buick driven by Lambert Lee Moore, 2803 Sherman Road, about 5:34 p.m. Tuesday in the 1100 block of Sixth.

Two minor traffic accidents with no injuries Tuesday afternoon were reported by police as follows:

Seventh and Holliday (12:25 p.m.)—1957 Chevrolet ($100 damage) driven by Ruby Merle Gant, 3100 York, and a 1955 Mercury ($75 damage) driven by Clarence C. Jackson, 414 East Rogers.

Avenue H and Bell (12:12 p.m.)—1956 Chevrolet ($150 damage) driven by Lowell Elbert Tate, 1634 Pearl, and a 1953 Mercury ($5 damage) driven by Darryl Wayne Wise, 2401 Buchanan.

Methodist Men Hear Baptist

Grant Street Methodist Men Tuesday night heard Rev. Gordon Highfill, pastor of Highland Heights Baptist Church, whose topic was "Put On the Whole Armor of The Lord."

Opening prayer was given by Rev. Foy Thomas, a former pastor of the church. A. H. Newsom was song leader.

John Haney, club president, introduced T. A. Flannery, program chairman, who in turn introduced the speaker. Rev. John McLean gave the invocation.

Members of the Women's Society of Christian Service served the meal.

MU To Show Russian Film

A Russian film, "Potemkin," will be shown at 8 p.m. Thursday in Midwestern University auditorium as part of the school's foreign film series.

Director of the movie, considered one of the most important films in the history of silent movies, was Sergei M. Eisenstein. It is regarded by many as his greatest work.

The story is based on an incident which occurred in the 1905 uprising in Russia.

A nominal admisstion fee will be charged for the showing which is open to the public.

Boy, 8, Drowns At Boys' Club

An eight-year-old boy became the first drowning victim in the 13-year history of the Boys Club swimming pool here Tuesday, less than an hour before he was scheduled to have his first swimming lesson.

Dead on arrival at Wichita General Hospital was Ben Holder, son of Mrs. Nina Darby, Bungalow Tourist Courts. The youngster and a 12-year-old companion, Gregory Dale Dickey, entered the pool area through a door which had been left unlocked following a high school swimming team practice only minutes before.

A rope which separates the shallow part of the pool from the deep water had been removed during the high school team's practice and had not been replaced.

The boys, who both joined the Boys Club only the day before, were unfamilar with the swimming pool rules and the pool itself. They were scheduled for their initial swimming class at 5 p.m.—only 55 minutes after the Holder boy drowned.

Pulled Out

The youngsters entered the pool area through a door from the boy's locker room. The Dickey boy apparently tried to save his younger companion and was discovered by club employe Tony Kowalick who pulled him out of the water and began resuscitation.

The Dickey youth was not discovered until minutes later by others who responded to the alarm.

Graham Ball, executive director of the Boys Clubs here, said the fatality was the first in 13 years of swimming instruction for thousands of youngsters.

"We feel it was an error attributable to no one," Ball said. "We take a risk, as does everyone, in every program we pursue. An unforseeable and unavoidable accident is the only verdict we can disclose. We have in the past and will continue in the future to take every humanly possible precaution to safeguard the young lives and characters entrusted to us by strict rules and expert supervisors. Again, I am deeply grieved," he said.

To Discuss Use

The Boys Club official broke down shortly after making his statement.

A director of the Boys Club, who asked not to be identified, said Wednesday he was certain the board would "discuss whether or not to continue to allow the high school swimming team to use our pool" at the next meeting of directors on the second Wednesday in May.

The police department was continuing its investigation of the matter Wednesday.

The young victim, was a student at San Jacinto School. He was born here Dec. 23, 1955, and had lived here all his life. In addition to his mother, survivors include his father, W. C. Holder; a brother, Charles Ray Campbell; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Holder and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Clark, all of Wichita Falls.

Services are under direction of Owens-Brumley Funeral Home.

Two Policemen Are Suspended

Sgt. Bill Rinehart and Patrolman John Goodman, city policemen, were given a three-day suspension Tuesday by Chief C. C. (Bud) Daniel for allegedly violating Section 22 of the Fire and Police Civil Service Laws which forbids a civil employe from taking an active part in any political campaign for any elective position of the city.

The term active part means making political speeches, passing out cards, or other political literature, writing letters, signing petitions, actively and openly soliciting votes and making public derogatory remarks about candidates for such elective positions.

Rinehart and Goodman alledgedly signed their names to a petition backing a candidate in the recent (April 7) municipal election. Rinehart is a veteran of six years with the police department. Goodman until a few months ago was a civilian patrolman for the Wichita Falls Country Club area, and earlier had been with the police force about three years.

Secret Plane Speed Clocking Considered

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Civilian aviation authorities who clock this country's 2,000-mile-an-hour A11 jet for record purposes need not get a closer view than was shown in official photographs already made public.

This is because the long-secret plane will be timed electronically on ground instruments probably far below.

Officials said there no longer is a requirement that an observer actually fly in a plane before certifying its speed and other marks.

President Johnson said Saturday that the 1,665-mile-an-hour aircraft speed record now held by the Russians "has been repeatedly broken in secrecy by the U.S. aircraft A11."

Conference

He told his news conference that he has ordered the Defense Department to, "demonstrate this capability with the procedure which, according to international rules, will permit the result of the test to be entered as a new world record."

The Pentagon and the Air Force were silent on this. It was believed preparations were under way to hold the tests, probably at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

Under the rules, speed and other aviation records are recognized worldwide only when certified by an international aeronautical federation which has headquarters in Paris. Acting for this federation in the United States is the National Aeronautic Association.

Information

Until now, the only performance information disclosed about the A11 has been in Johnson's statement that the jet has been tested in sustained flight at speeds greater than 2,000 miles an hour at altitudes above 70,000 feet.

If the United States should decide to try for altitude and time-to-climb marks, that would disclose even more of the plane's abilities which were screened from the world for five years until Johnson announced existence of the A11 on Feb. 29.

These records, too, could be verified without observers going near the plane.

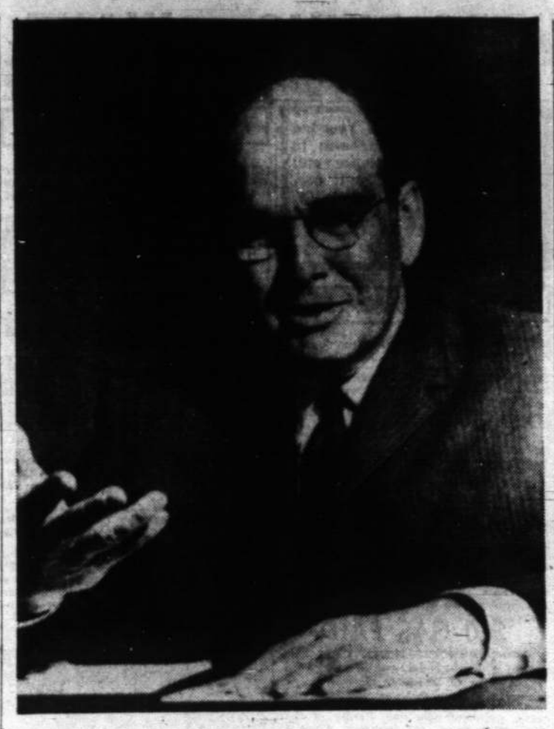
Ground radar would track the A11 on any altitude try and on-board-cameras could be used to photograph instrument readings aloft.

Old Eagle Dead

BERLIN (AP) — The American eagle named "Willy Brandt," presented to West Berlin by U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, has died of old age. Kennedy presented the eagle on a visit in 1962 and named it after the city's mayor because he said Brandt could be called the "Eagle of Berlin."

U.S. Embassy Opens

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The new United States Embassy building was opened to the public Monday without ceremony. Formal dedication of the building, on Mexico City's main avenue, the Paseo de la Reforma, will be held late next month.



AIM: TO MAKE MONEY—Wilmington, Del.—Edmund Fible Martin, new chairman of the board of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, gestures during an interview in Wilmington Tuesday as he said he has one main ambition for Americans second biggest steel producer. It's to "make some money for the firm." (AP Wirephoto)

Yugoslav Quake Damage $5 Million

SLAVONSKI BROD, Yugoslavia (AP) — The earthquake Monday centered near this mid-Yugoslav industrial city caused damage of more than $5 million in the district, city officials announced.

About 60 persons were taken to the hospital.

Three were in criticial condition, and three seriously injured.

REAGAN ORCHESTRA—In the recent regional Interscholastic League orchestra contest, Reagan Junior High School received a II division rating in concert performance. Soloists making first division were Vickie Brown, violin; Tobi Ann Groves, cello; Kelly Tibbels, cello. The string quartet, composed of Maurene Burton, violin; Vicki Brown, violin; Jennie Bryant, viola and Kelly Tibbels, cello. The orchestra performed for parents and for a student assembly program last week also. Director was Dick Affanatto. Members, other than those named above, include Joan Crane, Edith Dickerson, Mary Dickerson, Everett Geis, Noma Goode, Danny Griffin, Dollie Rios, Janet Spraggins, Miriam Trejo, Billie Souther, Wesley Kirby, David Archer, Richard Hankins, Curt Marks and Sandra Hood.

McLendon To Address Rotary

Gordon McLendon, contender for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator from Texas, will be here Thursday to make a speech billed as non - political at the noon meeting of the Downtown Rotary Club.

Tom White will be chairman for the day. The luncheon will be at the First Methodist Church.

McLendon's campaign chairman here, Reuben Knight, said that at 11:30 a.m. Thursday various supporters for the radio executive will meet at the headquarters in the Kemp Hotel and go to the luncheon together.

The supporters, who will be guests at the Rotary meeting, will be from Electra, Burkburnett and Iowa Park.

The 43-year-old native Texan is expected to talk about national policies and Texas government.

A veteran of World War II, in which he saw service in the South Pacific, McLendon joined his father in 1945 in forming a partnership principally in the broadcasting field. Together they own and operate radio stations in Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Buffalo, Chicago and San Francisco. They also share interests in motion picture theatres, film production, oil and real estate.

Early in his career, McLendon became known to radio listeners as the "Old Scotchman" through his broadcasts of major league baseball and other features.

McLendon has served as a member of former Gov. Price Daniel's water development committee and board member of the Texas Law Enforcement Foundation. He is a member of the board of the Richmond Freeman Memorial Clinic, the Dallas Theatre Center, the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, the Dallas Services for Blind Children and twice has served as president of the Variety Club of Dallas.

He is a sponsor of the Chinese Refugee Relief, a nationwide charitable project. He is also an advisor in communication matters affecting the Peace Corps.

Railroad Warning Signals Suggested

Members of the city's traffic commission were told at their regular meeting Tuesday the request of railroads for an increased speed limit within the city limits would hinge on their installing "adequate warning signals" at several crossings.

Leon Flake, chairman of the commission, reported on a recent meeting with officials of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and the Fort Worth & Denver. The railroads are asking the present 15 mile an hour speed limit on trains be increased.

The city countered by asking that warning signals be installed at two intersections off the Iowa Park Road. Flake indicated Tuesday the railroads would not consider this and their request would be brought to the attention of either the "Council or the city attorney."

Roy Wilshire, city traffic engineer, told commission members a study of the condition of Scott Street revealed the city was responsible for its care, rather than the highway department, and work would start soon on smoothing out that section between the overpass and 13th.

James Williams, member of the commission and an unsuccessful candidate for the City Council recently, thanked the commission for the support and said he was both "encouraged and real satisfied with the election."

Rome Birthday Is Fete Theme

By EDDIE LOFTIS

The 2,717th birthday of Rome was the theme of celebration at the Hirschi High School Latin Club's second annual banquet in the Hirschi cafeteria.

The Scutum Romanum Banquet started at 7 p.m. with a grand procession of the second and third year students and special guests.

Following this parade, Pro-Consul Joanne Cardin gave a welcoming speech and the main meal was served. Between the meal and dessert Eddie Loftis made an invocation and sacrifice to Jupiter, the head god of the Romans. Next on the agenda was a speech entitled "A Trip Through Roman History" by Mike Fry. Don Walker provided sound effects for the speech.

This was followed in order by "A Day in a Roman Court" presented by the second year students; a flute solo by Mike Maurer; "The Lady or the Tiger," a trombone solo by Robert Donahue; and a ballet by Nona Holding.

The festivities closed with singing of the club song "Gaudeamus Igitur."

A. T. Anderson, Latin teacher at Wichita Falls High School was special guest speaker.

Other guests were Mrs. Anderson and Anda Lea Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Neal, and Miss Ida McCain, club sponsor. Special envoys were Bill Cochran and Doris Mahoney from the "Gens Romana" WFHS Latin Club, Ronnie London and Ann Boone, representatives from the Hirschi Spanish Club, and Gary Blodgett and Jan Owensby of the Hirschi German Club, Benny Wilson and Carol Faulkenberry.

Third year students attending were Bobby Estrada, Joanne Cardin, Ruth Thoes, Patti Crowley, Zandara Figel, and Eddie Loftis; Eddie Witherspoon and Rosie Enriquez were judged best dressed.

Second year students participating were Mike Fry, Don Walker, Joan Brooks, Sally Babb, Bob Bowles, Jodi Ackerman, Phillip Moses and Emily Karsteter. Others were Kayla Hyde, Ruby Couch, Norine Thompson, Eddie Witherspoon, Sharon Weir, Rosie Enriquez and David Musselman.

Completing the list of banqueters were the first year students, Charlie Kay Culp, Bruce Coulombe, Lamberto Dangilan, Lois Jean Petty, Billy Bob Stewart, Madonna Smith, Nancy Streety, Donna Weir, Cathie Winn, Cookie Sims, and Terry Kirk.

New Trial Motion Denied By Judge

HOUSTON (AP) — A motion for a new trial in Rice University's lawsuit for authority to admit Negroes and charge tuition has been overruled by Dist. Judge William M. Holland.

Joe H. Reynolds, attorney for the intervenors, John B. Coffee and Val T. Billups, did not say immediately whether the case will be appealed further.

The judgment signed by Judge Holland March 9 gave the university trustees authority to disregard racial and tuition restrictions set out by the founder, William Marsh Rice, in an 1891 indenture.

A jury ruled Feb. 21 that the university's restrictions against Negro students and tuition fees rendered its development of a first-class school impractical in modern times.

Switzerland issued the first coin made of pure nickel in 1881.

IN SCIENCE DIVISION — Entries in the science division of the University Interscholastic League district AAAA meet in Richland Hills Saturday from Wichita Falls High School include, left to right, Joe Fowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben T. Fowler, 3239 Northeast; Austin Maglothin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Maglothin, Route 4; and Robert Eastlake, son of Mr. and R. I. Eastlake, 1701 Grant. Teachers for the trio are James Clark, physics, and Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, chemistry.

Dean Of Illinois Democrats Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Thomas J. O'Brien, powerful dean of Illinois Democrats in the House, died Tuesday in Bethesda Naval Hospital. At 85, he was the oldest member of the House.

O'Brien was rarely heard on the House floor or in the Ways and Means Committe on which he was third-ranked Democrat, but he was a power behind the scenes.

That was because he could usually deliver, virtually on demand, the votes of all the Illinois Democrats—as big a bloc of votes as any other House member could command.

New York City's "Bowery" is named for the farm of Peter Stuyvesant, Dutch colonial governor of New Amsterdam (New York).

SPELLMAN PAYS PIETA A VISIT New York — Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York is protected from the rain by an umbrella as he sees the crated Michelangelo masterpiece, the Pieta, aboard barge "Challenger" in Hudson River in New York. Spellman paid his visit before two towboats nudged the barge away from the pier with the Vatican work of art for trip to New York World's Fair site in Queens. The Pieta will be exhibited in Vatican pavilion at the fair. Lens shade used to protect camera lens from rain created the porthole effect. (AP Wirephoto)

BRIGHT PROSPECTS SEEN FOR INCREASED PAYMENTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chances of an increase in the basic retirement payment under Social Security appear to be bright this year.

Such an increase could be a by-product—and perhaps the only immediate result—of the continuing pressure for a federal old age health plan added to the Social Security System.

Another possible outcome would be a revamping of the present state-federal system of medical care for the aged to take in a broader income bracket and to de-emphasize what many critics regard as the welfare aspects of the program.

These were the prospects as the House Ways and Means Committee scheduled more closed-door discussions of the Social Security health care plan President Johnson backs—and of related matters, covering a broad field.

An increase in the retirement payment would fit in well with Johnson's antipoverty program and would not be likely to arouse anything like the opposition that has resisted every move to add health care to the Social Security System.

There has been no over-all increase in the old age retirement payment since Jan. 1, 1959. However, in August 1961, the minimum payment was increased from $33 to $40 a month. The monthly maximum for those fully covered now is $127 at age 65. Wives 65 or older receive half their husbands' benefits. Optional reduced payments may be had at ages between 62 and 65.

A majority of the Ways and Means Committee, which handles all Social Security legislation, is understood still to oppose the medical care plan.

But some of those who oppose it are known to be willing to consider an increase in the old age benefit, based on the argument that the slow but continuous increase in living costs has eroded the means of older persons dependent on Social Security.

Presumably, many members of Congress would welcome an opportunity to cast an election year vote "for the old folks," without becoming embroiled in the emotion-filled controversy over medical care.

As for a more direct approach to the problem of older citizens' medical needs, Ways and Means leaders have been looking into ways to broaden the present Kerr-Mills Act, named for its sponsors—House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., and the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla.

This legislation set up a system, optional in each state, under which federal participation was offered in meeting the health needs of low-income persons not so poor as to be outright welfare cases.

Standards of financial eligibility and of care offered were left, within broad limits, to the states. The various plans set up under the legislation vary considerably.

The committee is understood to have assembled information about the costs and administrative problems involved in possible changes, including:

—liberalizing the financial eligibility requirements, including the possibility of basing eligibility entirely on income, not property. Thus persons might not be required to liquidate real estate equities, life insurance cash values or small savings accounts in order to qualify.

—Setting up the health benefits on a sliding scale, so that instead of being abruptly cut off from eligibility if their income was at a given level, recipients would be required to pay part of the cost if they could afford it.

—Requiring states to administer the program through health departments or other agencies not designated as welfare departments.

—Possibly working out some form of advance contribution during working years, but not through the Social Security System.

Slowdown Of Steel Production Possible

Wichita Falls Times
WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS
WEDNESDAY EVENING April 15, 1964
Page 7B

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Busy steel mills have played a big part in boosting today's economy to record levels. But some are now warning that the industry might be in for an early summer.

Output normally dips from June to September for a number of reasons, such as vacations that close more customers plants each year. But this time there are some added ones that might advance the timetable.

There are rumors that the auto makers are planning an earlier changeover to new models. That would mean closing down auto plants for a while and changing the schedule for delivery of steel. Demand for steel would then slacken a bit earlier than usual since less would be needed for this year's models.

Uncertain

Still more uncertain a prospect is how upcoming labor negotiations with the autoworkers union might affect dealers' buying of this year's models. There is some talk of a possible buildup in stocks as a hedge against the chance of a strike.

An auto strike in itself would affect the steel industry quickly and drastically, since Detroit is a major customer.

Steel salesmen also are increasingly up against new thinking by customers on inventories. Most users now are playing cautious and keeping stocks to a minimum. They know that steel shortages are most unlikely. They can wait to see how their own prospects look in the fall without putting in orders in late spring or early summer.

Assumed

Thus it is assumed that most orders the mills are now getting, and that are keeping them going at a highly prosperous pace, are for use by the customers in the spring months.

And inventory thinking also is based on knowledge that if steel somehow should get hard to come by quickly, various substitutes are available for a large number of end uses.

Also steel mills now can supply more customer needs with less tonnage output. Development of light steels in recent years has cut the tonnage requirements for many uses.

Output Pace

But so far this year the steel industry has little to complain about in the matter of output and demand. Production to date tops 34 million ingot tons, almost 2.5 million more than in the like period of 1963.

For most of the year the output pace has been increasing. Last week it held at the previous week's figures, or about 77 per cent of estimated capacity. Even this leveling off, however, caused some to wonder if the peak has been reached for a time.

In the next two weeks most of the largest steel companies are expected to announce sizable profit gains for this first quarter over year ago figures.

Orders are reported still holding up well for many mills. But a few say they have slipped a bit this month after the busy first quarter.

McConnell Leading Contender For Post

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 56-year-old "soldier - statesman," now holding one of the most important U.S. military posts in Europe is rated the leading possibility to succeed Gen. Curtis E. LeMay as Air Force chief of staff.

He is Gen. John Paul McConnell, an Arkansas native who has been a military pilot for more than 30 years and has served in a wide range of staff and command positions.

Currently, the four-star Air Force general is deputy commander in chief of the U.S. European Command—second only to Army Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who is both NATO and U.S. commander for Europe.

With Lemnitzer having to devote most of his attention to NATO problems, McConnell for all practical purposes is in charge of the roughly 400,000 American military forces in that key theater.

McConnell's name figured high in speculation even before President Johnson announced he was extending LeMay's tenure as Air Force chief for staff seven additional months to next Feb. 1.

He is understood to have impressed Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as sharp minded and capable.

Several other high-ranking Air Force officers also are considered in the running for chief of staff.

They are:

German-born Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, research and development chief who directed the birth and growth of this country's intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Gen. Jacob E. Smart, a South Carolinian who was shot down and captured by the Germans in World War II and now is in command of all U.S. Air Forces in the Pacific.

Gen. Walter C. Sweeney Jr., a native of West Virginia who flew in the first low-level B29 bombing attack on Japan in World War II and now leads the Tactical Air Command.

Like McConnell, all are in their 50s and all have had bright military careers dating back more than three decades.

McConnell, Smart and Sweeney are West Pointers—the first two originally were commissioned as field artillerymen and Sweeney started out as an infantry second lieutenant.

Schriever was graduated from Texas A&M in 1931 and later won a master's degree in aeronautical engineering at Stanford while in the Army Air Corps.

For the past 14 years, Schriever has been associated chiefly with research and development. His identification as a specialist and his lack of a broad background in operating command may be a drawback in consideration for chief of all the Air Force.

Success Came Late For George Marshall

By JERRY BUCK

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP)—For George Catlett Marshall success came late.

He was 58, near the end of a military career he occasionally had thought of abandoning, when he was plucked from the rear ranks of the generals and made Army chief of staff on the first day of World War II.

Marshall left his mark — so much so that Winston Churchill called him the architect of victory.

From war he turned to peace and authored the Marshall Plan that won him a Nobel Peace Prize.

Beside the parade ground of Virginia Military Institute, where Marshall first learned the ways of soldiering, three presidents will come next month to dedicate a memorial to him.

Memorial

It is, in effect, a living memorial. The George C. Marshall Research Foundation is a museum and library where his papers from war and peace will be kept with other historical documents.

Coming to the dedication here May 23 are former President Harry S. Truman—who made Marshall his secretary of state and later secretary of defense—and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower — who himself was lifted from relative obscurity by Marshall—and President Johnson.

Marshall's career began in 1897 when his father sent a letter from Uniontown, Pa., to the VMI superintendent. "I send you my youngest, and my last" wrote his father. "He is bright, full of life, and I believe he will get along well."

Classmates

With uncanny way of singling out the comers among them, his classmates wrote: "He is not in the roll of common men—Dinks Marshall."

Marshall left the institute in June 1901—six months short of his 21st birthday and too young to be commissioned in the Army. While waiting to come of age Marshall served as commandant of cadets at the Danville Military Academy. He received a commission as a lieutenant in the Army after becoming of age.

Fourteen years after leaving VMI he was still a first lieutenant and wrote that he was considering resigning because of the slow promotions.

By the time World War I came he had reached the rank of captain, then rose quickly to colonel when Gen. John J. Pershing recognized his brilliance as a staff officer.

Staff Officer

But it was this brilliance as a staff officer that kept Marshall from the field command he so desperately wanted. Marshall eventually received a temporary brigadier general's star, but after the war he reverted to captain—to begin anew the slow climb to the top ranks.

He got his star back in 1936 and three years later President Roosevelt bypassed 34 senior officers to make Marshall acting chief of staff in July 1939.

On Sept. 1, 1939, the day Hitler invaded Poland, Marshall was promoted to general and made chief of staff. In the closing days of World War II he became a general of the Army with five stars.

The Marshall Foundation was organized in 1953 at the suggestion of Truman.

Money to build the $600,000 library and the administration building was raised through public contributions. Altogether the foundation hopes to raise $2 million to carry out its mission.

Brazil's Ousted Chief Joins Unusual Club

By FRED GOLDEN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—When Brazil's ousted President Joao Goulart flew to neighboring Uruguay he joined one of the world's most unusual clubs. It elects no officers and never meets. Although fashionably exclusive, most of its members would rather not belong.

It is made up of national leaders tumbled unwillingly from power and cast into exile. The roster includes kings, presidents, prime ministers and even an emperor.

What do these men do after the acclaim dies down? Do they dream of the day when their nations will recall them?

Juan Domingo Peron still cherishes the dream, even though he has been a political refugee since Argentina turned its back on his dictatorship nine years ago.

A resident of Spain, Peron, 68, says, "I am very happy here, but I will never give up hope of returning some day to Argentina."

Peron remains undisturbed by Argentina's recent effort to extradite him on criminal charges, confident that Spain will reject the request.

Of the country he once dominated, Peron says: "Much of the trouble in Argentina today is due to infiltration of Castroism and communism. Let the workers get what they deserve and the difficulties will disappear."

The man driven out of Cuba by Fidel Castro lives in neighboring Portugal in exclusive Estoril, home of many royal and political exiles. Cuba's ex-president Fulgencio Batista, 61, disdains social activities of the posh European playground, but has become a great tourist. He emerges often from his guarded villa for car trips to Spain. At home he writes profusely to justify his much-criticized regime but refrains from public pronouncements, on orders from the Portuguese government.

Critical

Privately, he is sharply critical of U.S. handling of the Cuban problem, insisting Castro should have been seen earlier as a Communist. Will he return to Cuba?

"Some day perhaps," he has told friends.

Italy's former King Umberto lives in almost regal splendor in a great mansion in Cascais, another Lisbon suburb. His "Villa Italia" is set in a pine grove and has a fine library in which Umberto reads history. His wealth enables him to maintain a large household, including his personal physician, Count Aldo Castellano, who runs a clinic with the monarch's support for Cascais' poor fishermen.

Umberto's friends describe him as a lonely man. His wife, former Princess Marie Jose, lives in Switzerland, and his son and three daughters are rarely with him.

King Farouk

Egypt's ex-King Farouk seeks solace in exile by drifting among the resorts of France, Italy and Switzerland, but diminished funds and perhaps boredom have curtailed his free-spending habits.

Still fat and now 44, the monarch of the Nile has sunk into almost complete obscurity 12 years after his flight. He long ago disappeared from Rome's "La Dolce Vita" cafes, which he used to frequent with his burly Albanian guards. He has sold his last yacht and has become a smaller bettor in the Riviera gambling casino.

Farouk drifts almost unnoticed from an apartment in Rome to an apartment in Naples, hometown of aspiring opera singer Irma Capece Minutolo, his companion for the past decade. He also visits his son, Ahmed Faud, 12, at a Swiss boarding school.

Naguib

Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib, who became a victim of the Egyptian revolution he helped create, was once sentenced to death by his old associates but has been allowed to live in "permanent isolation" under guard at a suburban Cairo villa.

With speckled gray hair and a kindly smile, Naguib, 63, is still regarded with nostalgic affection by many Egyptians. He was their first president after Farouk was driven out of Egypt. Naguib's friends say he suffers from rheumatism but is otherwise healthy, meets with his family, and reads a great deal. He is allowed to visit a mosque.

Romania's former King Mihail has achieved success in another area since the Communists forced him to abdicate in 1947. At 42, Mihail is regarded as a highly competent automobile, aviation and electronics engineer and is frequently called in as a consultant. He lives in a villa outside Geneva with Princess Anne and their four daughters.

Former Emperor

By title, Bao Dai, Viet Nam's former emperor, must be considered the ranking member of the exiles' club. Once noted for his playboy ways, Bao Dai now lives quietly in France, avoids the public eye and refuses to make any statements about the war in his homeland. He seems to have plenty of money.

Zanzibar's deposed sultan, Sir Abdulla Bin Khalifa, is a recent royal figure thrust into exile. On a weekly British dole of $672, the sultan, his wife, mother-in-law, brother and brother-in-law, five children and 20 followers, live in a small private hotel in the British coastal town of Southsea, near Portsmouth.

Under Arrest

Burma's ousted prime minister, U Nu, lives under arrest in a military rest camp 25 miles from Rangoon at the order of Gen. Ne Win, who deposed him in 1962. He is 54 and a deeply religious Buddhist.

Thailand's former premier, Pibul Songgram, has lived in Japan since his ouster in a military coup in 1957, but hopes to return home.

"Naturally, we must go back one day," he says. "I will go when the situation in Thailand has so readjusted as to welcome me."

Syngman Rhee, once one of the strongest of Asian leaders, is too ill to carry out his wish to return to South Korea. He has been in a self-imposed exile in Hawaii since he was toppled from the presidency in 1960. He is 89.

CARNIVAL

"Talking about new sounds, have you heard the one your father is making about the money you're spending on records?"

13 Million Voters

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The National Electoral Commission predicts that 13 million citizens will register for the July presidential election. This is a new record. Officials said the increase is based on a jump in population, woman suffrage and a growing interest in civic affairs.

Auto Tire To Last Lifetime Is Goal

By CHARLES C. CAIN
Associated Press Auto Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The ultimate goal of tire manufacturers is to make a passenger tire which will, under normal conditions, last the lifetime of your car.

They know, however, that a multitude of factors must be worked out before such a tire can be realized.

These include the cost of the tire to the consumer, safety, softness of ride and durability at high speed.

Undoubtedly it will be years before the car lifetime tire becomes a reality. In the meantime, the U.S. tire industry seeks constant improvements in its product.

Joseph F. Hutchinson, manager of auto tire engineering for Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., said, "Progress in tires is so swift that the auto tire of five years ago is obsolete by today's standards. For that matter, the tire of a year ago could not meet all the high standards of today."

Program

Goodyear, which has been the nation's largest tire manufacturer for more than 35 years, has a research, test and development program the annual cost of which runs into millions of dollars.

It runs its tires 16 million miles a year under laboratory conditions and an additional 58 million miles over private roads, turnpikes and test tracks.

One of the major problems Goodyear faces is the ever increasing speed, and resultant demands on tires in expressway and freeway driving.

Russel de Young, Goodyear president, was asked about current estimates in the auto industry that U.S. express roads in the not too distant future will have 100-mile-an-hour speed limits.

He said: "I would say the 100 mph turnpike poses no real problem so far as our tire development is concerned. Goodyear already has built tires that operate safely at speeds up to 600 miles per hour."

Concern

Of more immediate concern to the U.S. motorist is what his tires will be like in the next year or two.

Tire manufacturers work closely with Detroit's auto factories in tire development.

In 1965 cars, indications are that there will be much more use of low-profile tires, which were featured on some cars this year. The tire is called low profile because the height of the cross section was reduced while the width was increased, thus giving the tire more of a flat oval look.

Ford has reported that the low-profile tire used on its Lincoln Continental 1964 line gave improved tread wear, better high speed performance and more traction.

Goodyear has done experimental driving with the so-called radial ply tire, which is used on some European cars and U.S. trucks.

The radial tire offers more fuel economy and more mileage per tire, but it has a harder and noisier ride and Goodyear officials doubt the U.S. motoring public will give up its present more comfortable riding tires.

In a conventional tires, the plies run at about a 35-degree cross angle. In a radial tire the plies are at a 90-degree angle.

De Young said that one of the major problems facing all tire manufacturers is the ever increasing number of tires. Goodyear builds 2,500 different types now.

De Young estimated Goodyear this year would sell about a third of the 41 million tires for new cars and a fourth of the 80 million replacement tires.

30,000 Products

He said that Goodyear, which turns out some 30,000 products —ranging from tires to submarine-launched missiles, has its sights set on still further diversification in the years ahead.

Referring to Goodyear's recent acquisition of Motor Wheel Corp. of Lansing, Mich., De Young added: "We do expect this new subsidiary will strengthen us in the original equipment market. You will note that virtually all of the Motor Wheel products—including wheels, brake drums, hubs for various vehicles and undercarriages for mobile homes—complement our tire lines."

Goodyear, which has 40 of its 68 plants abroad, has embarked on its third consecutive year of $100 million capital spending to improve plants and machinery.

Its products include a giant moon tire, part of its collapsible space station program. One of Goodyear's fondest hopes is that the first man on the moon may ride on Goodyear tires.

Doesn't Know If He'll Accept Honor

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) —Shelby Longoria, banker, industrialist and big game hunter, says he has not decided whether he will accept an invitation to attend the annual awards dinner of the Carnegie Museum Boone and Crockett Club April 30.

Longoria is understood to be in line to receive an award for killing the world's largest polar bear.

He killed the 1,600-pound bear near Kotzebuke, Alaska, April 11, 1963, with four shots from a sako 300 magnum rifle.

Monitoring Broadcast Set

Short wave listeners all over the world will be listening for a special two hour program Saturday broadcast by Wichita Falls radio station KWFT, 620 Kcs, in cooperation with the North American Shortwave Association DX-pedition.

Theodore A. Templeton, 1601 Giddings, associated with the NASWA, Newark News Radio Club, Canadian DX Club, Worldwide Monitors Radio Club, laid the groundwork for the program entitled "Down Memory Lane," which will be heard from 2 to 4 p.m.

A special certificate of reception verification will be sent listeners who send a report of monitoring the program for a minimum of 15 minutes. Any listener in the world will receive the certificate if he files the report as to what he heard and the time with the radio station here.

News of the special program, which will feature some 190 songs and musical selections, has been printed in many of the shortwave monitoring publications.

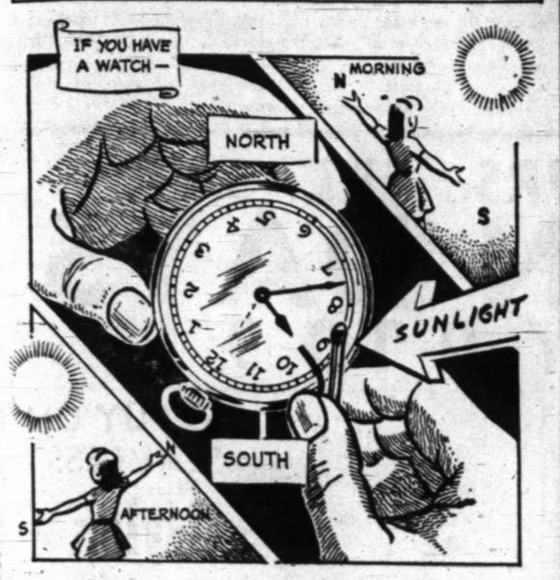
Junior Editors Quiz on DIRECTIONS



QUESTION: How can one find direction without a compass?

ANSWER: A compass shows north, south, east, west and the various points between and so helps us to find our way in case we don't recognize our surroundings. There are several ways to find these directions without a compass. If you have a watch and the sun is shining, use the method shown in the main part of the picture. Hold a match or thin stick against the edge of the watch. Now move the watch around until the hour hand lies along the same line as the shadow of the stick. Halfway between the shadow and the number 12 will show the direction south. With this determined, it is easy to see that north lies just opposite south on the other side of the watch, and then you can figure east and west. Without a watch, use the method the two little girls are demonstrating.

If the sun isn't shining, you can often find north by studying moss growing on tree trunks, for this is thickest on the north side of trees. At night, look for the familiar big group of stars, the Big Dipper, which looks like a large bent handle with a dipper on the end. The last two stars on the outside of the dipper point toward the Pole Star, the one star which stays in place as the others revolve around it. This star always shows the north.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: Try out each one of the direction finding methods we have mentioned and be sure you understand them. If you ever did get lost, they might prove of very great value.

OUR ANCESTORS by Quincy

"A leech for your black eye? Gee, I only sell them in pairs—can'tcha get in another fight?"

"ASTRO-GUIDE" By Ceean

For Thursday, April 16

Present—For You and Yours . . . Put your health above everything else. Don't take chances of any kind. Count to ten—or more—before you sound off in words or writing as people are thin-skinned today and may take offense where it is not intended. Face up to necessity for cutting down on expenses for a while.

Past . . . Man, said to have existed for about a million years, has possessed writing for about 6,000 years; agriculture somewhat longer. Science as a source of economic techniques has existed for only a little more than 150 years.

Future . . . Here's a prediction that will appeal to the ladies: lapel telephones will be worn before the end of the decade. They'll resemble jeweled pins. We shudder to think of the possibility of teen-agers adopting the fad.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) Stress social contacts. Radiations increase your popularity for a few days.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Minimize household drudgery by trying out new ideas you have learned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) People are easier to approach, so make the calls you put off earlier this week.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) Make concrete suggestions for improvements rather than criticize the past.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Generosity is a virtue, but don't let it get to point where others impose on you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Instead of letting work accumulate, tackle chores as they arise each day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Giving in to an impulse to take drastic action could prove very costly now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) The situation which has confused you will become clearer and you'll feel relieved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) To get in an argument now would be of little avail—and you might lose!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You'll feel overburdened with details. Bestir yourself and get them out of the way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Complete difficult tasks first and then spend time with family and/or hobby.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) A business proposition may culminate. Be sure all legal details are in order.

Decision Due Soon On Lithuli's Future

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — For nearly five years he has labored on a small plantation, supervising the planting and harvesting of sugar cane on the humid Indian Ocean side of South Africa.

Soon the South African government must decide the future of Africa's most famed black figure—Nobel Prize-winner Albert Luthuli. The banning order which has restricted Luthuli's freedom for almost five years terminates May 25.

One stroke from the pen of Minister of Justice Balthazar Vorster can reimpose the ban or set Luthuli free.

The banning order, imposed under this country's suppression of communism laws, confines Luthuli to a 15-mile radius of his home in Natal Province. It forbids him to attend meetings, talk with other banned persons or travel outside the restricted area.

World Opinion

For a brief spell in 1961, world opinion changed all that. When Lithuli won the Nobel Peace Prize, the South African government reluctantly granted him a temporary passport to enable Luthuli to go to Oslo, Norway, and personally receive his $43,000.

Two years later, when Luthuli was elected rector of Glasgow University in Scotland, South Africa refused him permission to leave this country to accept the honor.

Within months Luthuli dropped back into the obscurity of his plantation.

He headed the African Nationalist Congress, banned in 1960 after the government called for a national state of emergency following racial violence at Sharpeville, Durban and Cape Town.

Asylum

Luthuli could have sought political asylum in Europe, but he chose to return to South Africa, surrendered his passport and continued his enforced confinement.

Army Air Corps Still Active

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The song about "The Army Air Corps" still fits in South Viet Nam.

U.S. Army fliers are drawing bullets from the Viet Cong and snide remarks from the regular Air Force.

A "grass roots air force," Army reconnaissance fighter bombers sweep daily over the flat, green Mekong River delta, photographing and harassing the enemy.

The pilots contend their plane is better than any of the combat planes the U.S. and Vietnamese air force are using in Viet Nam. It is a twin-engine, Grumman Mohawk, or JOV1C.

Some Air Force men argue it's too hot a plane for the Army, and that the Army is horning in on an Air Force function by using it.

Pilots of the Army's 23rd Special Warfare Aviation detachment who fly the Mohawk say they're not trying to compete with anyone, but are just doing a job. One pilot observed:

"We need the Air Force for cover. Our job is in close ground support. We work direcetly with infantry division commanders in the field. When they need pictures of the enemy, we can supply them in a few hours, and we can get them where they're needed."

The turbine-powered Mohawks carry, besides sophisticated camera equipment, rockets and two 50-caliber machine guns. They could carry bombs and napalm tanks, but none of the half-dozen Mohawks in South Viet Nam are permitted this extra ordnance.

Pilots of the 23rd believe, nevertheless, that they are the only U.S. Army unit flying combat planes in combat anywhere in the world.

The Mohawks are scheluled for integration into a provisional Army aviation battalion, which will include helicopters, light spotting planes, and transport and administration craft. They are part of the Army's support command in Viet Nam, headed by Brig. Gen. Joseph C. Stillwell.

Stillwell, son of famed Gen. "Vinegar Joe" Stillwell, believes in his air force, and spends a lot of time with it in action. He has been slightly wounded several times while flying in the gunner's position on helicopters.

Mohawks are hit regularly and ground crews at bases in Vung Tao and Soc Trang some times must work 18 hours at a time keeping their craft flying.

Several weeks ago, Capt. Richard E. Urick, Los Angeles, was flying a mission a few miles from Saigon when a Viet Cong bullet hit one engine.

He said later:

"The engine stopped. The pucker factor Kreason for fear was that the engine was on fire. I put one bottle of extinguisher into it, but the engine continued burning. The second bottle got it out, and I landed safely."

Mohawk pilots must do all the flying individually. The co-pilot's seat always is occupied by a Vietnamese army observer whose job is to navigate and call the shots.

Automobile Age Comes To Yemen

SANAA, Yemen (AP)—Revolution has brought the automobile age to this Red Sea country, and many Yemenis aren't sure whether they like it.

"It's so dangerous in the streets now that we have to keep the children in the house," said one merchant.

Under the royal imams, who were overthrown by a revolution a year and a half ago, taxis were illegal. Private cars were discouraged because the automobile was a status symbol for the nobility. Businessmen got around town on bicycles. Sheiks or district governors rode horses.

Now more than 100 taxis ply the dusty streets here and in the seaport city of Hodeidah, or travel between them on the only paved road in north Yemen—built by Red Chinese engineers.

The most illustrious car belongs to the deputy minister of foreign affairs. It is an antique German model presented to Imam Yahya—later assassinated—by Adolf Hitler. It was the chief royal limousine for almost 30 years.

Drivers of old cars carry passengers, sheep or bags of charcoal. New taxis, imported since the revolution from nearby Aden, take only human cargo.

There is no car insurance. But if a driver runs down a pedestrain—or a sheep—he has to pay blood money.

Gasoline—imported in drums—costs about a dollar a gallon.

Says School Pupil Must Salute Flag

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)— The State Education Department says a public school pupil must salute the American flag in class unless he refuses to do so for religious reasons.

Charles Brind, counsel for the department, said in a letter made public today that a Long Island school board may require recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Brind's opinion was prompted by the refusal of about 20 pupils in the Wheatley School at Old Westbury to salute the flag.

It was reported on March 31 that the pupils had not saluted the flag in class for more than a month.

The 20 pupils at Wheatley claimed required recitation of the pledge violated the First Admendment, which guarantees freedom of religion, speech, press and the right to petition.

The pupil declined to salute the flag "until he can salute one that will fly over the entire world."

In a similar case in Scarsdale, a Westchester County suburb of New York City, pupils protested that the pledge was unconstitutional.

Death Investigated

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet judiciary is investigating the death from an overdose of sleeping pills of a student from Kenya, a spokesman of the Kenyan Embassy said today. The embassy said he apparently committed suicide.

IN TIL CONTEST—These young men at Wichita Falls High School will participate in the Texas Interscholastic League competition in slide rule at the district AAAA meet at Richland Hills Saturday. Under the direction of Randell Bradley, mathematics instructor, these boys work on practice problem sets before classes each morning. They are, left to right, Jimmy Shrode, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. FRENCH GUIANA LOSES PENAL COLONY STIGMA

By PAUL H. FINCH

CAYENNE, French Guiana (AP)—In less than two decades, French Guiana has been transformed from a dread penal colony into a bustling business community.

Dirt roads once trod by convict work gangs have become paved highways humming with the traffic of hundreds of streamlined Simcas, Peugeots and Fiats.

New homes and apartment buildings are mushrooming on land that was matted jungle 18 years ago. Along the muddy waterfront, American shrimp-packing firms have set up modern plants.

But grim legends still discourage investors and settlers from making a stake in this lush territory covering 34,740 square miles, of which 90 per cent is still covered by thick Amazon rain forest.

Burglar

"People must stop thinking of Guiana as a place of fever, snakes, spiders and terrible heat," said Raymond Vaudet, 63 who came to the islands in 1935 as a convicted burglar, escaped and returned after World War II to become a respected restaurant owner.

French Guiana's 36,000 inhabitants are proud of their community and sensitive about the fact that it has developed more slowly than any other South American region in its 360 years under French control.

Until France closed down the infamous prison camps in 1946, Guiana was looked on as a living hell, of which Devil's Island was the symbol.

Over the past 12 years, however, the French government has been pouring millions of francs into an effort to end Guiana's status as an economic parasite.

Road Program

In 1952, France launched a program of road building, land clearance and reclamation. Recently it began work deepening the waterfront approaches at Cayenne to make room for the increase in shipping.

All merchandise is still imported, but new stores are opening.

"Cayenne has changed faster in the last few years than it did in the previous 100 years," said one resident.

Kaiser Aluminum interests have signed a contract with the government to exploit bauxite deposits in the Kaw Mountains southeast of Cayenne. Production may start next year and the hoped-for export figure for 1966 is 500,000 tons a year.

The last gold mines shut down in 1959 but a California placer mining company plans to begin production on old sites with new methods in cooperation with a French company.

Shrimp Plant

James A. Henderson of Coral Gables, Fla., has started a shrimp packing plant outside Cayenne, pumping a $50,000 monthly payroll into the city and employing 30 free-spending boat captains from the southern United States. It's the biggest business in Cayenne.

Another American shrimp firm operates at St. Laurent, the second largest town, and a small French firm exports shrimp to France.

Only 10,000 acres of French Guiana are under cultivation but the goverament plans to add 5,000 shortly by draining swamp land east of Cayenne. Sugar cane has been the only cash crop but technicians are trying to add cacao, coconut margarine, and pineapple for export to France.

Hundreds of young French agriculture advisors have come to Guiana on a program of service accepted in place of military conscription.

Penal Colony

Guiana today is a far cry from the penal colony where thousands of French convicts were confined between the years of 1852 and 1946. Many died from fever, privation or harsh treatment.

Devil's Island is now a lush palm-covered memory 27 miles from Cayenne in muddy Atlantic waters.

Guiana has been a full department of France with representatives in Parliament since 1946.

"We do blame France for being slow in building roads and developing agriculture," says one businessman. "But we are just as much Frenchmen as Parisians. Nobody seriously talks about autonomy."

During his recent visit to French Guianan, President Charles de Gaulle promised that France would make up for centuries of neglect.

"We are determined to develop Guiana," said De Gaulle, and thousands of islanders, some in tribal cosutme, joined him in singing the "Marseillaise."

No Smoking Ban Gets Rewording

GRANDVILLE, Mich. (AP)— This Grand Rapids suburb passed an ordinance against cigarette smoking by minors.

Then Grandville police reported many youths were seen puffing cigars in public.

So the council held a first meeting Monday night on an amendment prohibiting youngsters 18 years old or under from using tobacco in any form in public.

Prisoners Help Battle Blood Factor Problem

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Sing Sing prisoners have taken a first big step toward saving babies from a deadly war in their bloodstreams.

They volunteered for injections which now promise a way of preventing tragedies as "RH babies," a medical team said today.

This is a condition in which a newborn baby's blood cells are destroyed by antibodies—natural protective agents — in the mother's blood. It can happen if the mother has RH negative blood, when her baby inherits RH positive type blood from the father.

Twenty-seven Sing Sing prisoners, all with RH negative blood, were given small injections of RH positive blood.

Three days later, 14 of them received shots of a blood product carrying special antibodies against the RH factor.

None of the 14 became sensitized—that is, they didn't produce their own antibodies to destroy the RH positive blood cells.

But five of the others did. They reacted to acquire a mechanism of making antibodies any time they received more RH positive blood.

A next step is to run tests with RH negative type mothers, to learn if the protective shots can keep them from developing antibodies, the researchers said.

The research, and its implications for thousands of families, were described to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by Dr. Vincent J. Freda of Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, New York, Dr. John G. Gorman of Lenox Hill Hospital, New York, and William Pollack Ph. D. of Ortho Research Foundation, Raritan, N.J.

THE WORRY CLINIC

How To Force His Hand

By GEORGE W. CRANE, M.D.

CASE S-439: Delores B., aged 32, is the girl who had been engaged for over a year to a bachelor, aged 37.

"Dr. Crane," she continued, "tell me more about that 'minor decision' strategy.

"For I never had any experience in the sales field, so it is new to me."

In selling, it is usually best to ease gracefully into the crucial "dotted line" stage.

After a smooth sales presentation, therefore, a star salesman doesn't rudely shatter the semi-hypnotic trance by baldly demanding:

"Well, take it or leave it! Do you want it or don't you?"

No, indeed, for that would arouse caution and subconscious warnings that are negative.

"Maybe I better sleep over this decision," would then be a typical reaction of the prospect.

So the professional salesman gently commits the prospect by casually asking him questions with two answers.

Thus, instead of asking "Do salesman inquires:

"Would you rather have shipment by express or by freight?" you want it or don't you?" the

Note that this answer to that question doesn't actually commit the prospect at all. But it starts him into the habit of saying "Yes."

"Would you prefer to pay by the month or give us a check on delivery?" is another query that illustrates the "minor decision."

Before long, the prospect is so far along the "Yessing trail" that he can't back up.

Then the smart salesman will smile, offer his pen, and suggest:

"Now if you'll just O.K. this down here, we'll have delivery on the date you wished."

Please observe that the salesman even then uses the milder term "O.K.," instead of "sign."

For that word "Sign" has vague nuances that suggest "Legal contract" and thus may start subconscious negative thoughts.

Well, you girls should all take a good course in salesmanship, for winning a wedding ring is a real sales job.

In fact, I used to steer scores of coeds at Northwestern and George Washington Universities into my big classes on the "Psychology of Sales and Advertising."

For the coeds then learned not only how to employ that deft "minor decision," but they also were surrounded by an excess of men!

For the men outnumbered the coeds probably 2 to 1. Girls, it is smart strategy to enroll in courses primarily aimed toward men for in that way you enhance your chances of a wedding ring!

Indeed, you can then lean upon an attractive male classmate for help in solving the homework problems, since you can profess to know little about such masculine topics.

"I feel so helpless in this course," a coed can sweetly smile as she disarms her male classmate, "but you are a brain so I wonder if I might ask you for some advice?"

Send for my booklet "Modern Sales and Advertising Strategy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. Girls, it helps win wedding rings!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Fire Controlled On Navy Tender

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Fire, touched off by a short-circuit in electrical wires, broke out early Tuesday in a storeroom aboard the U.S. Navy's destroyer tender Yosemite.

It was brought under control within an hour. A Navy spokesman said there was minor water damage to electrical material in the storeroom. No personnel were injured.

The Yosemite, whose home port is Newport, R.I., has been tied up in the Mississippi River alongside the U.S. naval station to service five reserve destroyers which operate in the Gulf of Mexico.

Life Sentence, Paddling Assessed

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—George Gray Leslie, 22, a gardener, has been sentenced to life imprisonment plus five strokes of the paddle on a charge of armed robbery.

Police said Leslie beat his employer, Dr. Walter Sproule, 72, with a hammer and ax in robbing him of $495 March 28.

Dr. Sproule, a dentist, is crippled. He is still in a hospital.

"The nature of this admitted attack on an old and crippled man shows a state of cruelty and lack of pity which is utterly incomprehensible to any ordinary person," Magistrate A.D. Poole told Leslie, who had pleaded guilty.

IN NUMBER SENSE — Representing Wichita Falls High School in University Interscholastic League District AAAA meet in number sense will be this trio. The meet will be held in Richland Hills Saturday. Seated is Ida Biskup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Biskup, 3000 Lawrence and left to right standing, Mike Donegan, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Donegan, 2109 Arthur and Mark Medford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Medford, 2124 Brown. Number sense is mental arithmetic requiring much skill and practice and the students drill every afternoon at the conclusion of classes on 10-minute practice tests under the direction of Randell Bradley, mathematics instructor.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

No One Can Do Right All Time

QUESTION: How can we be sure we are dong right all the time, if we sin without knowing it are we losing the chance to get to heaven?—J.O.

ANSWER: The Bible says: "Man looketh upon the outward appearance, but God looketh upon the heart." Everyone should know that God is no less exacting than a loving parent. He hates sin because He knows what it will do to us, and therefore, He warns us against it. But, if we inadvertantly commit a sin, we certainly do not lose our chances of going to Heaven.

The Bible says to followers of Christ: "If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

This doesn't mean that Christians go around deliberately sinning. If they live in constant sin, then it is an evidence that they are not truly Christian. What we are, we are by the grace of God. We are not saved because we are good, or lost because we are bad. We are saved because we accept Christ's ransom for our sins. He implants His new life within us, and our desire is to please Him. But if we stumble and fall, like a loving father, He forgives and pardons us, and gives us another chance. "If any man sin he has an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ."

THE HUNTER — Denver, Colo. — Puppies can be imaginative, adventuresome, mischievous and sometimes all three. Take the case of this little pup who obviously imagines himself a great hunter as he peers from the door, top left, sights his prey and cautiously stalks it, top right. He also enjoys the adventure of the chase, closing in, bottom left, only to have his more experienced adversary leap away, bottom right, saving the mischievous pup from another scolding. Teepee Assembly Line Operating MACY, Neb. (AP)—Send up a smoke signal, chief. There's a new batch of teepees coming off the assembly line.

Honest Injun.

The Omaha Indians have established an assembly line factory to make the teepees. The idea is to provide additional employment and augment a tribal farm with community industrial expansion.

The Omahas also want to keep alive old tribal crafts, even if it requires some of the white man's industrial know-how.

The five- and six-foot diameter teepees will be sold to summer pow-wow visitors and hopefully through retail outlets in cities.

Except for the use of sewing machines and heavy duty canvas instead of animal skins, the Indians say their teepees are authentic.

READ OF SON — Orlando, Fla. — Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Young, father and stepmother of Astronaut John Young, read headlines announcing the selection of their son to accompany Virgil Grissom on a three orbit trip about the earth in project Gemini. The parents of the astronaut expressed delight at his selection, saying "We are tickled to death because he is tickled to death." The elder Young said that he has no qualms for his son for he feels that they know what they are doing. (AP Wirephoto)

THEIR CHILDREN DIED IN FIRE —Chicago—Merrill Resnick sobs on shoulder of wife, Mary Ann, after learning their children, Brenda, 3, and Kenneth, 7-months, perished in a fire in their third-floor apartment on Chicago's north side. Mrs. Resnick, 21, said she ran to a rear porch to call for help when she saw flames in the living room. When she returned, flames barred her entrance to the children's bedroom. The father was at work at the time. (AP Wirephoto)

Region Band Contests Set

Between 1,500 and 2,000 high school students representing bands from 12 Wichita Falls area counties will participate in the Region XIV, University Interscholastic League meet at Midwestern University Friday and Saturday.

The concert and sight reading contest for high school bands from Hardeman, Cottle, Foard, Knox, Baylor, Wilbarger, Wichita, Archer, Young, Clay, Jack and Montague Counties is sponsored by MU under the leadership of Dr. Joe Haddon, MU band director.

Judges for the concert will be James Matthews, University of Houston in Houston; Bill Dean, Odessa High School and J. R. McEntyre, Permian High School in Odessa.

Judge for the sight reading will be J. W. King, Hale Center High School.

Wichita Falls junior and senior high school bands will be a part of the total of 40 junior and senior high school bands participating.

Each band will play three numbers for concert; two overtures selected from special lists prepared by a state level committee and one march which will be of the director's own choosing.

Judges will use rating sheets for each band, grading on performance perfection, proper interpretation, intonation and other qualifications.

Following concert performances, each band will enter the sight reading contest in which students and directors are given the music to an unfamiliar overture to test their ability to read and interpret music at sight. The director is allowed a few minutes in which to familiarize himself and his band with the number and then the band offers its rendition.

In both concert and sight reading, bands are given a rating in divisions I, II, III, IV and V, ranging from excellent and superior musicianship downward so the bands are competing not against other groups but against a criteria set up for their particular conference level.

ACCORDING TO BOYLE

Superstitions Have Way Of Remaining

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Sidewalk comments of a Pavement Plato:

Do you knock on wood three times to avoid bad luck?

Do you carry a silver dollar or some other object in your pocket to bring good luck?

If your answer in both cases is no, then you aren't a believer in the two most common American superstitions. But that by no means is proof you aren't superstitious.

Many people go through life without becoming religious, at least to the extent of adhering to a formal creed, but hardly any of us escape becoming devotees, consciously or unconsciously, of some of the thousands of superstitions that exist in the world.

Since the universe is large and man is small, he has sought since the dawn of his time to find some way of being less uneasy and feeling more comfortable and secure in that universe. Superstition was his first answer—the taking of some step that would either get the dark forces of destiny of his side, or at least keep their anger from destroying him.

Ancient Cry

"If you can't be for me, please don't be against me," cried ancient man—and knocked three times on a tree to placate the spirits he felt dwelt therein.

Today we still knock on wood three times at moments of possible peril, and we do it mockingly as if we were joking. But the main thing is—we still do it.

Childhood chants are full of superstition. Can't you recall skipping along the pavement as a youngster and saying "Step on a crack, and break your grandmother's back"? And when you did step on a crack, weren't you half - afraid that you have brought bodily disaster to that dear old lady?

We laugh at such old-time superstitions as that carrying a horse chestnut in your pocket will ward off rheumatism, or that if a bald man washes his head with sage tea it will cause a new growth of hair, or that wearing a piece of red wool yarn around the neck will prevent nosebleed.

Not Limited

Superstition isn't limited to any ago or class. Athletes and entertainers are notoriously superstitious, but how about housewives and business executives who regularly patronize fortune tellers?

As we grow older many of us make up fresh superstitions of our own out of the rituals of living we acquire along the way.

I know of one man who is sure everything will go wrong the rest of the day if he nicks his face while shaving. I know another who has similar premonitions of bad luck if he turns off the alarm clock with his left rather than his right hand.

Man may someday take the superstition out of science; science will probably never quite take the superstition out of man.

Office Tower Refurbished

NEW YORK — With a clean face and a new dress, one of New York City's noted landmarks — Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's 700-foot tower — is ready for a second half century of useful existence.

The fresh appearance is the result of a three-year reconstruction job designed to bring the tower into closer architectural harmony with the other buildings in Metropolitan's home office complex on Madison Square. The result is a slightly slimmed and simplified exterior and a completely new interior for the venerable building.

Thus at a time when more and more of New York's historic buildings are being smashed into rubble in the name of progress, the tower is being preserved for a useful future. Among its other honors the tower has collected in its lifetime, the New York Community Trust in 1957 selected it as a landmark worthy of preservation because of its architectural merit and importance, and in 1961 the Municipal Art Society picked it for inclusion in a book, "New York Landmarks."

End of the reconstruction and beginning of the new period of usefulness will be signalled at 8 a.m. tomorrow, (Monday, April 6) when the great tower clock (with faces larger than those of London's famous Big Ben) is started and the seven-ton Cambridge chimes again ring out the hours and quarter - hours. Then at 5 p.m. the lantern at the top of the tower will be lighted to flash the hours through the night. The clock was stopped, the chimes silenced, and the lantern turned off during work on the tower.

When the 50-story tower was completed in 1909, it was the tallest building in the world, and continued to hold that honor until the completion of the Woolworth Building in 1913. In design the tower was fashioned after the famous bell tower of St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice. During the half - century since its completion, the tower has served as a symbol of insurance protection and Metropolitan, and its likeness has appeared in drawings or photographs on hundreds of millions of insurance documents.

To the casual view, the refurbished tower is much cleaner than it once was, but is otherwise unchanged. To the practiced eye, however, there have been a number of small alterations. Overhanging balconies and corners have been reduced; limestone has replaced the marble in two broad bands from the first to the fifth and from the 20th to the 36th floors; the round columns in the loggia of open arches between the 31st and 35th floors have been replaced by square columns; and even the new cupola of gold - anodized aluminum at the very peak of the tower is simpler in line than the one it replaced.

The most obvious changes in the tower and its architecture have taken place in the interior, where the hopelessly outmoded amenities of a half-century ago have been replaced by the "necessities" of today. Air-conditioning, acoustical ceilings, asphalt tile flooring, and modern lighting have been installed for the comfort of future occupants. The handsome but slow elevators also have departed, and automatic elevators will whisk future passengers up and down the slender shaft at 700 feet per minute.

No change at all has been made in the three features which have given the tower its unique place in the New York skyline — the clock, the chimes, and the lantern. The four faces of the clock, each 26½ feet in diameter, have been cleaned, but otherwise the clock is the same. The four great bells which chime the quarter-hours and hours from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. were removed during reconstruction, but have now been rehung in their old locations and are ready to boom out the time signals with all the old force and vigor. The lantern, which flashes the time during the hours of darkness, has been rebuilt and is now housed in a new glass and aluminum shell, and is ready to act as a time-check for New Yorkers for another half a hundred years.

BLAME THE BOSS?—New York—Former Manchester, England, secretary and air hostess Diana Kay, 28, pursues her literary career in her home near Manchester today. She has written a 20,000-word book of advice to secretaries on how to keep too amorous bosses at arm's length. Of course, Diana had a secret weapon not ordinarily enjoyed by secretaries—a six foot two boy friend and a policeman to boot. She is now married to him. (AP Wirephoto)

Bit Of Film History Passed Unnoticed

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A bit of history passed with scant notice earlier this month.

The Association of Motion Picture Producers and the Alliance of Television Film Producers announced they were combining to form a new organization called the Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers.

Not much was made of the news, yet it represents an important transition in the patterns of the entertainment industry. The wedding of movies and television is now officially sanctified with a marriage license.

Who could ever have foreseen such a happening? Certainly not Will Hays, the shrewd Hoosier who wielded czar - like power over the film producers he had kept unified. Perhaps not even his successor, Eric Johnston, who tried to maintain unity of a bedeviled industry.

New Era

Now both are dead and a new era begins. The upstart television has taken its official place as partner of the movie business.

The wedding could have come about only through the change of personnel and circumstances. The Louis B. Mayers and other film pioneers would not have countenanced it. They had carved empires by playing to masses in theaters; they could not understand giving entertainment away.

They thought if they ignored television it might go away. Their stars weren't permitted to appear on it. Television sets weren't even allowed in living room scenes.

But as television zoomed and movies declined, changes had to be made. First Columbia broke the ranks to make films for television, then Walt Disney. All of the others eventually joined in. But they were too late to effect a monopoly.

Vacuum

The vacuum which the studios had provided by holding back too long had been filled by vigorous new independents like Dick Powell's Four Star and MCA's Revue, which later swallowed Universal.

The facts of life in mid-century Hollywood are that few if any of the big studios would now be operating without television. All of them have gone through periods of suffering huge losses—20th Century - Fox showed an almost $40 million deficit in one year, 1962.

Such losses could never have been survived without two sources of revenue from television: the sale of old movies and the production of television series. The former has provided quick, much-needed capital. The latter not only brings revenue: it also cuts down overhead and keeps crews busy during slack periods.

Old Armor Used

CATTERICK, England (AP) — Five tank officers started training recently with new equipment—17th century armor and pikes. In all, thirty officers are booked for the tactical innovation at Marston Moor.

An army spokesman explained: "An officer cannot get the feeling of battle from reading a book or hearing a lecture."

SAYS BRITISH TRADE IS BUOYANT—London—British Chancellor of the Exchequer Reginald Maudling is shown in London before he presented a new British national budget of $20,686,400,000 for next year, an increase of $1,285,200,000. He said that "trade is buoyant, business confidence is high and investment in industry is gathering pace." (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

World' Fair Visitors To Be Offered Treat

By FRANCIS STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—It won't take 80 days to make a trip around the world at the New York World's Fair.

But even in a few days the visitor may feel as though he has enjoyed a globe-circling tour lasting a much longer time.

The gourmet can get his fill, from Danish buffet to Cantonese, and from Jordanian delicacies to Pakistani pickles.

Those with a thirst, also will find plenty in numerous cocktail lounges and bars of the foreign countries.

The foreign exhibits will be free. Prices for food and entertainment will range from modest to expensive.

Examples:

African Fare

African Tree House Restaurant, with foods and entertainment indigenous to the African continent—average meal $4 including one drink.

Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan Restaurant, featuring Jordanian food—50 cents to $2.

House of Japan Restaurant, with both Japanese and international dishes, music and dancing, typical Japanese floor shows—a la carte items from 25 to 95 cents; complete lunch from $1.20 to $2.20; complete dinner $3 to $7.50.

An outstanding edifice will be the Vatican Pavilion. On display will be Michaelango's famous statue, the Pieta.

Old Cairo

Spain, too, will exhibit some priceless paintints by Goya, El Greco, Velazquez and Zubaran, and the works of contemporary artists such as Picasso and Miro.

The United Arab Republic will feature the atmosphere of Old Cairo and treasures from the Valley of the Nile; Jordan, the Dead Sea Scrolls; the Republic of China, a collection of jade and precious jewelry.

A typical Flemish village has been set up by Belgium.

About half the 50 states also will be represented with pavilions or other exhibits.

The purpose will be to show their products, natural resources, recreational features and industry. Many also will have restaurants featuring dishes popular in their regions. Some will have entertainment. Prices run the scale for meals and special shows.

The Illinois Pavilion will have a life-size, animated figure of Abraham Lincoln created by the Walt Disney organization. It will talk, sit, stand, make gestures, smile, chuckle, turn sad. The utterances will be excerpts from Lincoln speeches and sayings.

Louisiana

Louisiana is recreating a portion of the Vieux Carree section of New Orleans, complete with the atmosphere of Bourbon Street, Dixieland jazz and the carnival spirit of the Mardi Gras.

Maryland will present an historical presentation of the battle of Fort McHenry and the composing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Missouri will display Charles Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" plane, plus space capsules of today and tomorrow.

A combined New England states exhibit will offer such iteams as performances by the Boston pops orchestra, country store, fish hatchery and periodic "town meetings."

New York

New York State's theme will be the "Country Fair of Tomorrow."

Oklahoma will have a 110-foot topographic map of the state.

Texas will have several pavilions showing the state's development through different eras of history.

A modern "igloo" will house Alaska's exhibits.

Other states at the fair include Florida, Hawaii, Minnesota, Montana, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oregon, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Wisconsin is advertising a display featuring the world's largest piece of cheese. It weighs 17 tons.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The City Council was stunned Monday night when told a spinster left Ann Arbor about $1 million to keep its trees in good shape.

Mayor Cecil Creal said Elizabeth Russell Dean had stipulated that the money was to go for "perpetual care and maintenance, replacement and planting of trees on city-owned property."

Miss Dean died April 7 at the age of 79.

Toynbee Sees Better East-West Relations

By MILTON MARMOR

LONDON (AP) — Arnold J. Toynbee, the distinguished historian-philosopher, reached his 75th birthday convinced that the future will bring East and West together in a new world society.

He said that the mixture of the two civilizations will start mainly on a Western basis.

The eminent English scholar brings an Olympian approach to the study of mankind. He sees history falling into civilization patterns and views them in the whole context of their life spans.

In an interview with The Associated Press as he approached his birthday Tuesday he foresaw a detente between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Interview

The interview was in his study at the Royal Institute of International Affairs where he has been director for 30 years. Soon after, he left for Africa with his wife. He will be in Benghazi at the University of Libya on his birthday. His wife became 70 while they were in Ethiopia. They also visited Nigeria, Sudan and the United Arab Republic.

"America is becoming a bit of a free enterprise country. I think there will be a compromise between Western civilization and the others.

"There will be mixture, a common world civilization that will start by being on a Western basis. It will be altered as different people come into it.

"I think that what is most likely to happen is that the West will provide the framework for the new world society which will be mainly Western to start, but as the Chinese become more important—and the Africans to some degree—they'll put their civilizations into this."

Impression

Toynbee's monumental "A Study of History" made a great impression on the scholastic world. He began the 12-volume study in 1927 and finished it in 1961—all written in longhand.

The study aroused admiration in many quarters and some antagonism from historians with a different approach. An abridgement of his first six volumes became a best seller in 1947 in the United States.

Toynbee, formerly a professor at the University of London, attacks history from the viewpoint of the patterns that emerge with the rise and fall of civilizations. He looks at their birth, growth and decay.

His view is that the decay usually results from some wrong response to a challenge that confronts the civilization.

Emphatic

In the interview Toynbee was emphatic on the issue of Communist China—an issue that is a sore spot with United States foreign policy makers.

"China will overshadow the whole relations of the world," he said. "By the year 2000 she will be pretty well over half the population of the world. The Chinese are just, able, capable and a bit more hard working than the rest of us.

"We shall all be thinking about China. It will draw us together."

By "us", he said, he meant most people outside China, including the Soviet Union.

"Generally, in the past China has expanded peacefully and not by military force. Certainly, China will be the greatest single power in the world by the year 2000."

Less Struggle

The future, he thinks, will see less of a struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"I think we and the Russians will become more and more concerned about China—and this will bring us together," he added. "But I don't think the Chinese will try and conquer the world. On the whole they are moderate and sensible and not bloody minded."

At 75, Toynbee is a pleasant, good-natured man with a gentle sense of humor. He gives this counsel to the human race.

"Be patient. Don't liquidate the human race. Put up with your troubles, restrain yourselves. Think above all that if you don't liquidate the world now there are 2,000 million years that are still to go. Seventy-seven million generations are waiting to be born; that's a big responsibility."

Advice

He also gives this advice to the United States:

"I'd say it's going to be very hard not to recognize the existence of China when she is half the world. I would also say: try not to be fanatical. Dulles (John Foster Dulles, late U.S. secretary of state) put a kind of religion into America's relations with Russia. Don't feel that your opponent must be the devil. Don't think you are always on the side of the angels. I think it's the Puritan spirit in America that makes Americans so fanatical. The English exported their Puritans to America."

Nevertheless, Toynbee said, he likes Americans because they are "very warm hearted and sincere. When you go there you have a feeling of friendship and a feeling that they mean it. Then there is a kind of frankness and directness about American life that I like very much. I probably like it because they give you a chance. If I were a Negro I might feel differently."

Visitor

Toynbee has been a frequent visitor to the United States. He has lectured at many colleges and universities, and has seen more of the country than many of its inhabitants. His next visit will be in September when he goes to the University of Denver for a stay of about three months. In December he will lecture at New Mexico State University. After that he will spend several months at New College in Sarasota, Fla.

Toynbee was reminded in the interview that he had called this the "criminal generation." He was asked if he still thought so.

"I said our descendants, looking back at us, would say that we are criminal. They would say that the cold war, brinkmanship, and all that, was playing with the existence of the human race. Our differences over ideologies will be quite meaningless. They would say we had no right to do this. It was irresponsible. I think they will judge us very severely. They will say that all of us—Russians, Westerners and everybody—should have put everything else aside, once the atomic bomb was developed, and should have prepared to conserve the human race. We didn't. No thanks to us they will still be there."

History

Toynbee was asked what men of the 20th century will have a place in history.

"Gandhi, first of all," he answered. "In the past changes generally meant violence. And in the atomic age we can't have violence if we are to survive. Gandhi invented a way to make big changes without violence. He didn't know he was working in the atomic age, but he was. We also must consider his spiritual greatness. He taught his followers to fight the British without hating them.

"Then, Einstein, of course. Einstein didn't know he was a great man. Franklin Roosevelt —Churchill—those names come to my mind first of all.

"I hope Khrushchev will be the man in history who led Russia off the Stalin line. If he succeeds, he will live as a benefactor. We'd better treasure him, I think."

Eager

Toynbee is as eager as ever to go on learning. In late March he visited the cotton fields of the Sudan as well as the evidence of ancient Egyptian culture. He was the guest of universities and governments in Africa.

His next book — "a largish one," he says—is a study of Hannibal.

For 30 years Toynbee was director of studies at the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

He comes from a family of distinguished scholars and philanthropists. He was educated at Winchester School and Balliol College, Oxford. During the first World War he worked on Turkish affairs in the political intelligence department of the British Foreign Office and afterwards was a member of the Middle East section of the British delegation to the peace conference at Paris.

Director

During World War II, he served as director of the research department of the Foreign Office.

He has been married twice and has two sons by his first marriage to Rosalind, daughter of the late Professor Gilbert Murray. The marriage ended in divorce.

One son, Philip, is a novelist and journalist. The other, Lawrence, is an artist and a teacher of art. Toynbee's second marriage, in 1946, was to Veronica Boulter, who worked with him for many years at the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

Automatic Robot Blamed For Jitters

BALTIMORE (AP)—An automaton that roams halls and offices is giving the jitters to scientists at the Johns Hopkins University applied physics laboratory.

The 100-pound robot, dubbed the Beast, sends staff members scurrying to slam their doors when they hear its buzzing approach lest it pop into their offices.

The robot, which looks like a huge hatbox on wheels, is the only one in the world that can survive in a natural environment—in this case a maze of corridors and offices at the lab.

Hopkins scientists have given the Beast a computer brain and an electrical sense of touch that enables it to replenish its energy and cope with obstacles.

When its 12 silver cadmium batteries start to run down, the Beast feels its way along a corridor until it finds an electrical outlet. Microswitch fingers on the end of its arm can sense the contours of a regular electric socket. When contact is made, the robot inserts two prongs into the outlet and recharges the batteries. Then it pulls out the prongs and moves on.

The machine steers itself by using its arm and microswitches built into its wrap-around bumper to feel its way along corridors cluttered with soft drink machines, stair wells, office doors and people.

Occasionally, its arm gets caught in a stair railing or an electrical cord and has to extricate itself.

"To survive, it has to be able to recognize that it is not getting anywhere," said George Carlton, the scientist who heads the laboratory's adaptive machines group.

Soon, Hopkins scientists will equip the Beast with an echo-ranging device so it can roll straight down hallways and an electric eye for spotting wall plugs.

Eventually, scientists hope to develop more complicated models that can be used for space and underwater exploration.
