Solid Colored Borders Used to Trim Prints and Plaits

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

BORDER your new frock with a contrasting fabric and be in fashion. It matters not whether one's dress be of gay print or plaited from head to foot, a bordering of solid color will add unto itself stylishness.

For midseason there is nothing more wearable and desirable under one's long topcoat than a dress of gay print or one which is elaborately plaited. The two French models here pictured are typical of the mode.

All signs point to gay silk prints as being more fashionable than ever. The last word, however, in style headquarters is that they must be bordered with a silk of solid color. These wide bandings are whimsically applied, giving individuality to the dress model.

As to bordering as a form of trimming treatment it is an outstanding theme in the spring dress program. It is said that hundreds of pastel colorings will be part of the scheme in these border effects. An orchid georgette bordered with delicate lavender blue, a delicate maize banded with white, violet with purple, gray with yellow, these but suggest the color combinations which will later follow.

Juniper frocks yield charmingly to border embellishment. The wide band finishes the hemline of plaited skirt, perhaps, a corresponding border encircling the blouse, with cuffs, necktie and collar to match.

Often the solid band is scalloped along the edge which sews to the dress foundation, for scallops continue to occupy the attention of style creators.

Speaking of the exotic silk prints which promise such a brilliant future, sometimes the order is reversed when it comes to borderings and bandings, in that the dress or trunic is made of the solid colored materials with the flowered or spicily patterned silk forming the trimming. Satin frocks bordered with crepe roma of identical shade especially appeal to exclusive taste. The full finish of the crepe contrasts favorably with the high luster of the satin. Often several rows of soutache braid served above the border, add to the effect.

Several gifts were received by the college library yesterday from people of Lubbock and other cities among the most important were: 20 Pamphlets on various phases of World Peace given by Mrs. J. L. Shyden of San Antonio, Texas; "Living Age" given by Miss Boone of the History department and some Agriculture books given by Dr. Jackson of the History and Government department.

The library is constantly receiving valuable gifts from people over the states and Miss West stated that they are more than glad to receive any books that will be of use in the study of the students.

His subject will be on the highest gem of literature written during the Middle Ages, which leads direct line with the present study of the class. The title of the lecture is the song of Roland. Miss Boone stated yesterday that the lecture is the best reflection of the history of the Middle Ages.

Denton Teacher's College Sends Greetings to Tech
President Horn sent out little cards last week announcing the one-thousandth student to be enrolled in Texas Tech for the first year to many of the nearby schools. Since then six more students have enrolled in the college. He received many replies from the schools in its first year. Here is a typical reply, coming from the President of North Texas State Teacher's College of Denton:

Dear President Horn:
The North Texas State Teacher's college sends greetings to the Baby Giant of the Plains and we congratulate that institution upon its magnificent initial enrollment.

Very truly yours,
C. L. MARQUIN.

Requirements for Graduation Announced for Liberal Arts School
Dean Gordon of the School of Liberal Arts at Texas Tech gave out the following statement yesterday relative to requirements for graduation and entrance requirements:

The Deans of the College are exceedingly busy putting in final shape the material for the annual catalog. They seemed somewhat reluctant to give out information with reference to the catalog, or it may be they did not care to take the time to do so. Dean Gordon of the School of Liberal Arts did risk certain suggestions with reference to his school.

Entrance requirements: (1) English, 3 units; Foreign Language, 2 units; (2) Mathematics, Plane Geometry, 1 unit, Algebra, 1 unit, (4) 2 units from either History, civics, economics, sociology, or (5) Botany, zoology, chemistry, physics, geology, general biology, general science, physiology; (6) 1 unit from the group not chosen under (4); 3 units from any accredited high school subjects, not more than four of which may be vocational subjects; total 15 units.

Requirements for graduation: (1) English 7 courses, one-third of the second year course may be taken in public speaking; (2) Foreign language, 2 courses, if three or four units have been offered in high school and the same language is continued in college, 1 course only; (3) Social Science, 2 courses; if three units have been offered in high school, 1 course only; (4) Mathematics, 1 course, if three units have been offered in high school, 2-3 of a course only; (5) Science (Must be laboratory science), 2 courses; if two units (3 if general or introductory science is included) have been offered in high school, 1 course only; (6) Psychology or Philosophy, 1-3 of a course only. Total of maximum requirements for graduation, 9-13 courses; total of minimum requirements, 6 courses.

In addition to the above, the student must have a major and one or two minors. Three advanced courses constitute a major while two advanced courses in an allied subject, or one in each of two allied subjects constitute a minor or minors.

In the foreign language requirements, the present "A" courses are designated courses. That is to say, a student who enters with two years of Latin, for example, may meet the college requirements with only two years of a foreign language including the beginning courses he does not continue his Latin.

Committee Appointed to Select Artists' Program for Next Year
President Horn appointed a new committee for the next long session of the college to serve as the Artists' Course Committee. It is composed of Prof. W. R. Waghorne, Miss Ruth Pirtle, and Prof. R. C. Harrison. They plan to secure the best possible entertainers for the next year. It is also a desire of the committee to present a musical and literary program some time during the year.

There will be a meeting today in the office of the president to discuss the course for the next year. All the musical people of the town are invited to attend the meeting, as it will be of vital interest to them also. Many cities of Texas have a musical association to take care of all classical entertainments of the city, and one may be formed here. The committee plans to discuss the course for next year and the remainder for this one also. The next number will be Percy Grainger in a concert at the High School February 5.

Member of State Board of Control to Visit Tech Soon
R. L. Walthall, member of the State Board of Control, announced to the president that he would make a visit to the Tech some time in the near future. His business will be to look over the needs of the college and taking up budget for the next biennium. He did not set the exact date of his visit but will be here the latter part of this term.

Faculty Urged to Pay Poll Tax
In a communication to the members of the Tech faculty, President Paul W. Horn urged them to be sure and pay their poll taxes for the coming year. He stated that he thought it the duty of every citizen to pay his poll tax and take active interest in the affairs of his state and country.

In the letters he stated that such people as college professors should not in any manner disfranchise themselves, and reminded them that the time expires January 31. This is a very good suggestion and the members should by all means take heed to the president's advice.

College Orchestra in Need of Several More Players
Professor Waghorne, director of the College Orchestra, announced yesterday of a dire need for more instruments in the College Orchestra. They have need for two flutes, an oboe, double bass, and especially for a cellist.

Professor Waghorne plans to make a small symphony out of the College Concert Orchestra as soon as he secures enough instruments. He stated that all town people who are good on any of these instruments are invited to attend the rehearsals every Wednesday evening at 7:30, in room 302 of the administration building. At present they have a good list of instruments but he needs the above named for the symphony. He has 12 violins on the list and a number of other instruments also. Any town people interested in the formation of a symphony orchestra are requested to see Professor Waghorne in his office on second floor.

College Inn Honors Faculty
The girls of College Inn, together with Mrs. Studeman and Mrs. Thompson, honored the president and dean of women with a dinner party last evening at the dormitory. The guests were President and Mrs. Horn, Mrs. Doak, Misses Keith and Horn, and Mr. and Mrs. Chitwood.

Color scheme of the decorations was pink and orchid, with flowers on each table. During the dinner the following toasts were given: To the Occasion, Mrs. Carrol Thompson; To Dr. Horn, Miss Agnes Brown, and To Mrs. Doak, Miss Lucille Davis. Mrs. Doak gave a beautiful response, and Dr. Horn made a splendid after-dinner speech.

After dinner, the guests assembled in the parlor, and Miss Dennis Cobb favored them with a piano solo, while Miss Pirtle gave a clever reading. The guests all reported a very enjoyable time and the girls received many compliments on their entertainment.

BLOOD AND SAND FROM EL TORO

Speaking of sand—well there may be some still out here in the great open spaces, but appears to us that it doesn't have much chance to blow around so freely since the advent of the snow.

And this snow does stay—especially down one's collar when he gets lambasted upside the head with a nice fluffy snow brick. Yes, yes, Horace, a delightful sensation—our ear is stinging yet from the kindly ministrations of a pretty, white, fuzz ymass of the substance.

Dr. Horn's Sunday school class had a lovely time last evening. What kept them from being more so, however, was the fact that some few mighty good ham sandwiches were missing when refreshments started. We don't know at all, just what did come of them, but we heard stealthy footsteps deprecating when we slipped cautiously around to get one ourselves—and they were gone!

Merchants Suspend Meeting Favor Short Course

The Retail Merchants Association will suspend their regular weekly credit meeting next week, the association voted yesterday at the regular meeting, in order that the merchants might attend the farmer's short course which will be held at the First Baptist church Thursday and Friday and which is expected to be of as much value ultimately to the merchants as to the farmers. The next credit meeting will be held Friday, February 5, at 1:30.

The short course which will be held Thursday and Friday will have three meetings daily, one in the morning, afternoon and evening. The afternoon session would likely conflict with the credit meeting, the credit men decided yesterday and so voted to miss the meeting in order to give the short course the proper endorsement.

The Retail Merchants Association is rendering all assistance possible toward making the short course a success. The association is assisting the chamber of commerce in securing a good representation of farmers to the meeting by placing posters in the most conspicuous places in their stores and show windows and by inviting all their customers to attend the meetings and receive the benefits therefrom.

Anything which will help the farmers of the South Plains will help the merchants of Lubbock, according to officials of the Retail Merchants Association.

ship." The Choir under the splendid direction of Mr. H. E. Blocker will render that beautiful anthem, "The Peace of God."

At the evening service at 7:30 the pastor will preach on the subject, "The Ultimate Triumph of Christianity." Do you doubt it? What do you think of the Christian church anyway? Is the Lord fighting in a cause that is already lost? In addition to the message a quartet composed of Messrs Blocker and Wilson, and Mrs. Blocker and Lewis, will sing, "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

BETTER HOMES

Last year nearly two thousand communities in the United States observed Better Homes Week. Almost double that number will do so this year, April 25 to May 1. The plan is for the community to build or borrow a house for the week, which will represent the most attractive type of inexpensive small home suitable for that community. The house is open to the public for the week and there are hostesses from various organizations to explain the plan of the house, the arrangement of the furniture, the labor-saving devices and other details.

Women's clubs are having a part in this work, of especial interest to women. They are arranging contests for gardens, improved kitchens or living rooms, beautification of premises, and best home library lists.

Chambers of Commerce, civic associations, newspapers, and school children are cooperating in this work. Herbert Hoover is president of the Better Homes movement and the headquarters address is 1653 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C. The movement was begun several years ago by Mrs. William Meloney Brown, editor of the delineator.

We are of the opinion that the people of Lubbock and the South Plains should enter into this campaign this year in an enthusiastic way, and make the homes of Lubbock better. There is scarcely anything that will better the conditions of any country than the better condition of the homes. Making the home comfortable and attractive has much to do with keeping the wife and children contented and has a tendency to make the home life more inviting, which might have a tendency to keep the boys at home and also help the girls to become more interested in home life.

Lubbock has many homes. We have some very magnificent homes and we are sure that in these homes there is every comfort, and every convenience, but many of the homes are not as well fixed up as they might be even at a very small cost, merely so because of unthoughtfulness of the owners, so we would think that a campaign of education along this line would not be out of order, and we are sure that this work might well be taken up by the civic clubs of the city, and given light of way over many other things, especially during the time between April 25 and May 1.

DIVERSIFICATION IS THE SIDE PARTNER TO PROSPERITY.

The recent report from the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture, that was mailed to me shows that during 1925 the largest acreage was planted to cotton that has ever been given to this crop.

This is especially significant to the farming people at this time because of the condition that were unusual last year, and it should be a warning against a continuation of the one-crop cotton system.

Approximately one half of the state Texas suffered from a severe drought in 1925, and in spite of that condition the price of cotton declined since the harvesting time began. Let us assume had another year such a drought as the one that lanketed Central and South Texas does not come, and that this vast section makes only a fair crop, his would increase the yield materially, and we have every reason to expect that only an average crop over this territory would cause an abrupt drop in the price of the staple. If a bumper crop should be harvested in 1926, with the increase in acreage, it is not illogical to assume that cotton would drop below the cost of production.

The report from the secretary shows that the foreign demand for cotton has lessened and that no foreign mills are tolerably well supplied. That no doubt would affect the cotton price in case we have only an average crop. Since the war, the price of cotton has remained at a fair height because all the cotton that has been stored and the cotton products were consumed or destroyed during the war. We are catching up with the shortage, since then.

So, every indication points to a possible slump in cotton prices basing our conclusion upon the report from the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture, and a probable drop in an average yield is harvested per acre another year.

This is not an attempt to predict prices or conditions, but it is a reasonable outlook of the situation, if the report from the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture is correct. So, with the facts before us, would it not be advisable to consider now the advisability of formulating a program of diversification rather than a plan to crop most of our ground to cotton? When the slump comes, it will be too late to consider diversification for that year. When we refer to diversification of farming in West Texas we do not mean to dabble with everything, but to lay the foundation of his home-living preparedness.

Let us base this program of stable farming upon the assumption that 100 hens, two brood sows, three good milch cows and a garden will support a family, which is not merely a theoretical assumption. They will actually maintain a family if they are given due attention. If we go out to buy this foundation stock as mature animals, the cost will be large. The average farmer cannot afford to invest at one payment a sufficient amount to purchase these animals. But by buying younger stock at a lower price, within a year they will have matured sufficiently to give a return upon the investment.

The cost of 100 baby chicks, two pigs as a foundation stock for a couple of brood sows, and three bred heifers, would be little compared with the cost another year of matured animals.

Furthermore, grass and other grazing crops must be planted for the live stock if they are to be maintained economically, which will require a year.

Will we continue to follow the one-crop cotton system with the warning that the figures of the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture would indicate? Or will we be statesmen; foresee the conditions, and act wisely and act in time?

We hope that the farmers of this city will see to it early in the year that an intensive program of diversified crops and diversification of products shall be put into effect on their farms. In this way there will not be the disappointment and grief that has resulted because of the freeze that cut the cotton crop short, and the dry spells that destroyed the crops for others.

The presence of the cow, the sow and the hen on Lubbock County farms will certainly have good effect on the financial condition of the farmers and the business men of the South Plains.

THE AVERAGE.

The world's work is carried on by average folks. Occasionally we have a Burns, a Shakespeare, a Caesar, or a Napoleon, but they are rare. The output of humanity is, on the whole, only fair; fair sermons, fair poems, fair manufactured products, fair crops raised, fair business and professional accomplishments. This is because most people are not willing to put forth the utmost effort. They are content with the average. Not "somewhat better," but "that will suffice." Instead of most of us giving all we can of self, we try to figure out what the smallest amount is that will answer. The average in people is seen in two things—inheritance and attainments. Some people are blessed with about 100 per cent native ability, and their attainments are 50 per cent of what they should be. Sometimes there are those who rank about 50 per cent in endowments, but their returns are 100 per cent. Others are blessed with about 50 per cent of what we like to call "genius," and their attainments are about that ratio.

Now the trouble with our world is that most of its people are in the third class, when they could just as well be in the second class mentioned. A mediocre kind of work is being accomplished, when it should be first class. The reason for this is that those of limited endowments claim exemption from responsibility. That principle is not only wrong, but it is perilous. Refuse to use your right arm for a few weeks, and you will find it hard to use. Fail to exercise it for a few months, and you lose the use of it. That atrophy of disuse is manifested in our heaven-born gifts. The less we do, the less we want to do. Disinclination to serve arise from moral atrophy. It is the result of failing to exercise the gifts we do have. The person most highly blessed is not he with many endowments, but it is he who uses what he does have. The first may be spectacular, but the latter is far more useful. When a person makes a success in life, and towers above his fellows, he is accomplishing no more than he ought to. Every person ought to be successful. If nine persons out of ten fail, they should be blamed for it, but the tenth one deserves no honorable mention. He is simply doing his duty, while the others did not. An average person who fixes his eye on an average standard will do average work—which is far below the standard that should be maintained. About 90 per cent of the world's work is attributable to second-rate methods in the hands of one whose creed is, "I'm as good as the average." He is right, and that is the reason he is not farther along in the world.

BOOTLEGGING SENATORS.

We think United States senators are paid about two thousand dollars per month for their time, but few of them put in anything like full time, but they collect the salary just the same. It is a law that the sergeant-at-arms of both branches shall deduct from each member's pay for each day that he does not attend to duties, but the law is a dead one, and is never paid any attention to, and many of the congressmen and senators are just common ordinary bootleggers of time, and are no more entitled to the pay than we are, and are merely grafting on the public and taking the people's money when they give nothing in return for same. We elect men to represent us in congress, but many of them do not, but fall far short of their duty, and we pay for something we do not get.

A British journalist and lecturer predicts that scientific chemical manipulation will soon be employed to create whatever type of man the educator may decide he wants. He asserts that science will not be content to alter the face of the landscape and the beliefs of mankind, but will alter man himself through a simple process of education regardless of the vast amount of rubbish talked about the ductless and other glands of the human body. It may be possible that some day science will discover just what a thought it is where it comes from and where it goes to. Its something we all have but know nothing about—yet it is a fundamental of life.

FARM RE-LEAF

SO THINK WE

We think the reason so many folks fail to recognize opportunity when they see it, is that they are looking for some dressed up affair, when opportunity often dresses in overalls or at least very plain clothes.

We think it is hard to tell just who is going to win out in the weary battle between politics and finance in France, but it seems that politics are making greater headway just now.

We think that even with the frequent falls that the European governments have they very seldom fall for as silly things as our strong government does occasionally.

We think that safety first is a mighty good slogan for the people of America to adopt. Most of us get in too big a hurry anyway. We think there is possibly little difference after all. Men talk shop, and women talk shopping.

We think that some beauty is possibly only rouge deep.

We think there is hardly anything as rare as a June day in January, although Lubbock has had a few of these June days. Yesterday was not one of them.

We think that after all the old fool may not be so much worse than the young fool.

We think the trouble with the parents of this day and time is that they care very little about the young man's morals and manners that comes to see their daughters. Just though he has some coin and an automobile, no matter whether it is paid for or not, and he must be a good forty-two player and expert with cards and know golf.

We think that no man can be truly moral, yet be merely moral.

We think it is probably best not to say anything if we merely say pleasant things because because it sounds nice. If we do not mean it we are deceiving ourselves—and not the other fellows.

We think the safest way to avoid a second family quarrel is not to pull the first one.

We think it far better to be one-sided than two-faced.

We think that lessons learned in the cradle last to the grave. Anyway the little ones begin to catch on at a tender age, and we wonder if you are teaching them things that will benefit them.

We think that if one would have the boys of the town love them, they must first show a disposition to love the boys.

We think if a lot of the men of the town were seen going to church rather than to the domino parlors and other gaming places, that their lives would have a better effect on the boys of the community.

IT IS REPORTED

That we only have a very few more days to pay our poll tax. Have you paid yours.

That one man put a classified ad in The Morning Avalanche and got seventy eight replies. The Avalanche ads are real result getters.

That many farmers will attend the short course given by the International Harvester Company in Lubbock January 28-29. That is the proper thing to do.

That Slaton now has a candidate for sheriff.

That many of the people of Lubbock are becoming very much agitated over the way some of the cases against alleged jake peddlers are being handled.

That a large number of hydrants froze and burst Thursday night.

That about thirty per cent of the automobiles in Lubbock County have not yet been registered and tax paid on them.

That a large number of voters will have a slim chance at voting in the coming elections if they do not get a poll tax receipt very soon.

That Lubbock will need about fifteen thousand trees planted between now and spring.

That plans are going forward for the enlargement of the fair for this fall. We are glad the board is getting busy on this early in the year. It will mean a bigger and better fair.

That there is going to be a good comedy out at the Carlisle school tonight. The money derived from the sale of tickets to be used for the benefit of the band at that place. Lubbock people will be welcome if they will attend.

TIMELY WORLD VIEWS ON TOPICS

United States is Steadily Being Dragged into Circle of League of Nations Influence Says Raymond B. Fiedick
"More and more each year the United States is being dragged into the circle of the League of Nations influence," declares Raymond B. Fiedick, former Under-secretary of the league, in an article in the anniversary number of the League of Nations News.

"Officially, or unofficially," he continues, "we are represented at nearly every meeting at Geneva and American citizens are members of many important commissions that originate there. Surely the day will come when America will take her place at the council table of the nations and join in this great new venture that is laying the foundation of a better world."

"The technique that was born in 1920 was new in that it was based on the principle of continuous conference. It brought 80 nations together automatically in the uninterupted discussion of problems that are always overflowing national boundry lines. It set up machinery that was permanent, ready for any emergency that might develop, able to focus immediate attention on an question whatever relating to the well-being of mankind. Instead of spasmodic conferences dotted over a score of years, it established the tradition and habit of conferences. It marked a new train of thought, a new method of approach, rooted in the mechanism of Geneva.

League is Outdistancing
"That is why the League of Nations is so outstanding an experiment in human relationships. It represents foresight and preparedness. It represents the ingenuity of man trying to rationalize his relations with his fellows and adjust himself in orderly fashion to his new environment."

"Every conceivable sort of human problem has been brought up for discussion. Matters of peace and war, of health and disease, of economic, trade and industry have been thrown on the conference table. "It is from these small and uncertain beginnings that the League of Nations has grown to its present proportions. Every year adds to its effectiveness and prestige. Internationally speaking, nothing can be done without reference to it. The Locarno treaties were built into it, and the new conference for disarmament is part of it."

WHAT COUNTS

When you've done your little boasting and you've had your hour of pride.

When you've talked of your possessions to the stranger at your side.

Don't you sometimes get the notion that life's real and lasting joys After all are not connected with the cheering and the noise?

When you've tasted all the sweet things which the cup of life can give.

And you've reaped the goal you've fought for, you have still some time to live.

You will wake up with the morning very happy in your fame.

But this world and those about you will be very much the same.

WHO'S WHO

IN THE DAYS NEWS

JOSEPH E. EASTMAN

Occupying the chairman's seat of the Interstate Commerce Commission when hearings on the proposed Van Sweringen merger project launched by O. P. and M. L. Van Sweringen, of Cleveland, to consolidate the Chesapeake and Ohio, Pere Marquette, Lake Erie and Western, and Erie railroads with the Nickel Plate as a nucleus) are held will be the commission's chief dissenter, Joseph E. Eastman of Massachusetts.

He holds the office by reason of an agreement of ten years standing which revolves the office year by year, the chairman moving up in the order of precedence fixed by length of service.

Eastman, chairman of the 1926 commission and the youngest member of that body, has led a militant minority and has written many scathing dissenting opinions scoring decisions which the majority has arrived at. A holder of radical views, he has always dealt strictly with mergers avoiding those which permitted banking and financial organizations to step in and out with profits which he regards as unreasonable. Eastman drew a life of adverse criticism when, in the Missouri, Texas and Kansas case, he refused to allow lawyers to collect exorbitant fees for their services in the stock reorganization which took place.

Eastman, however, will have little opportunity to impress his views upon other members of the commission during the year, as the chairman is little more than a presiding officer.

He was born in Katonah, N. Y., in 1882. Attended Amherst College and later held an Amherst fellowship at South End House (social settlement) in Boston.

WESTERNER-BULLDOG CLASH TONIGHT, HOME COMING GAME

A NO-HIT GAME IS ONLY ONE DAY'S WORK

So Charlie Robertson, Bought on Payments, Goes to Browns as Bargain

By NORMAN E. BROWN

On the 30th of April, 1922—many a man is no waltzer who remembers that famous day and year—Charlie Robertson, youthful pitcher with the Chicago White Sox, joined the other five immortals who had pitched a no-hit, no-run, no-man-reach-first game.

A few days up from the Minneapolis club of the American Association this had faced the ball-murdering Tigers (Cobb, Hellmuth, Veach, et al) and figuratively wound the ball around their necks.

The two men who had accomplished the feat in the American League up to that day were Addie Joss and Cy Young—Young in 1904 and Joss in 1908. These men had won fame and glory—had established themselves as great pitchers before their no-hit games. Robertson stepped from the bushes to the ranks of these men.

Back in 1876 G. W. Bradley of St. Louis had amazed the old National League with a no-hit game. Ten years later and within five days of each other, J. J. Richmond of Worcester and J. M. Ward of Providence pitched such contests. Richmond's came on June 12 and Ward's on June 17.

But never since then has a National League pitcher turned the trick. Yes, it was some feat for a rookie hurler. The first thought of the baseball world was that this had been done on a future great. A study of his work the next two years indicated he might live up to his expectations. He won 14 games and lost 15 with a losing ball club that season and won 13 the following year.

But in 1924 he apparently lost all his earnings. Or perhaps fame had come too quickly and had given him the wrong conception of the endeavor or success demands. Whatever this case, Robertson won but four games in 1924 and lost 10.

Last year, despite the improved condition of the ball club under Eddie Collins' regime, Charlie failed to do anything. The final averages game him just eight victories and 12 defeats.

So now we find this same hurler, who rode the crest three years ago,

HOW ROBERTSON BAFFLED TIGERS

First Inning—Blue struckout. Cuthbert popped to Collins. McClellan threw out Cobb.

Second Inning—Mostil caught Veach's long drive. Hooper got under Heilmann's fly. Hooper caught Jones' line drive.

Third Inning—Collins caught Rigney's pop fly. Manion fouled to Schalk. Pilette was easy for McClellan and Shooley.

Fourth Inning—Blue struck out. Cuthbert lined to Collins. Cobb flied to Mostil.

Fifth Inning—Veach lined to Hooper. Robertson tossed out Heilmann. McClellan caught Jones' foul fly.

Sixth Inning—Rigney fouled out to Shooley. Collins threw out Manion. Pilette fanned.

sold to the St. Louis Browns at the winter price, this led to his being the best in the early days of 1922, passed up by seven clubs as not being a valuable addition to their staff.

All of which seems just simple proof of the moral that a no-hit game lasts just one afternoon and counts for just one victory in the records. And the main idea in pitching, after all, is to pitch just efficiently enough at all times to give the home team a reasonable chance to win.

Robertson's feat brought to light the fact that the Sox had bought him on the installment plan. The Sox found him pitching for the Sherman, Tex., club of the Western Association in 1917. They agreed to pay $2,000 for him, $250 down and the rest if he fit when they got him home. The war interrupted his hurling for a while and when he did report to the Sox they decided he wouldn't do and sent him to Minneapolis. When he finally delivered here the Sox paid the $1,750 for him.

BUSH GRAHAM BEATS JOE LYNCH FOR TITLE CHANCE

BY FRANK GETTY
 United News Staff Correspondent.
 MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Flashing as brilliant a combination of speed, skill and hitting power as has been seen in the bantam ranks for many a day, Bushy Graham, of Utica clearly demonstrated his right to a title bout with Charley Robertson, the world's champion, when he gave California Joe Lynch a bad beating

COMMISSION WILL GO TO THE AID OF WILLS

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Like little Eva rushing to the defense of Uncle Tom, the New York State Boxing Commission has entered the lists on behalf of Harry Wills, the persistent Senegambian challenger of Jack Dempsey.

There is a move afoot (details to be announced in a few days) to sidetrack the patient Wills in behalf of Gene Tunney, the former leatherneck and Florida golfer. Tex Rickard, from whom a hint is more highly valued than all the promises and guarantees of a score of other possible promoters, has indicated he will arrange a match between Tunney and Dempsey for the heavyweight championship of the world.

"The duke," as the boxing commissioners have come to be known in these parts, are in an arms in defense of Harry Wills, who they selected as "logical challenger" for Dempsey's title.

"Mr. Rickard had better be careful how he talks," said Commissioner Farley, "or he will find himself in serious trouble."

The other commissioners nodded their heads sagely. "Harry Wills is the next man to fight Dempsey, if any," chimed in Commissioner Muldoon, the big exercise and health man, "or he will know the reason why."

COLD WAVE HAS PASSED, WARM WEATHER TODAY

COLD REACHES AS FAR SOUTH AS GULF OF MEXICO

By United News
 CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—The crest of the cold wave passed over the central area of the United States Friday night. Darkness sent the mercury down below the zero mark again but the federal weather bureau predicted warmer for Saturday.

A return to "more seasonable temperatures" is predicted for Sunday in the Chicago forecast area.

Intense cold now envelopes all of the central states. It has reached the Gulf of Mexico through Texas and is moving eastward. Atlantic seaboard cities will experience its icy blasts over the week-end.

Charity organizations were flooded with pleas for food, fuel and clothing in Chicago and other middle western cities as temperatures, dropping to 20 degrees below zero in some places, brought suffering to the poor.

Fires resulting from over heated stoves and faulty flues sent scores of families scattering into the wind swept streets. The Chicago fire department answered 90 alarms during Thursday night and Friday. The sudden change in temperature brought deep snows to Kansas and Ohio.

Northwestern states were inconvenienced by irregular train and traction service, due to a freezing over the slushy layer of snow that has covered that region for several weeks.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 22.—Farmers and stockmen of the southwest, listening to the messages borne by the icy ether waves, were cheered Friday by the announcement that the backbone of the cold wave had been broken.

Increasing cloudiness and lighter winds Saturday will bring warmer temperatures, probably reaching the 20's, it was predicted here.

While zero temperatures prevailed over the northern half of Kansas, heavy snows ranging in depth from five to seven inches fell in the Ozark regions of Missouri and Arkansas, extending into Oklahoma.

Omaha and St. Joseph reported the mercury at 4 degrees below zero.

FARMERS URGED TO ATTEND SHORT COURSE

Over two thousand letters to farmers of Lubbock and surrounding counties went out yesterday from the chamber of commerce inviting them to attend the farmers' short course which will be held Thursday and Friday at the First Baptist church.

No stone is being left unturned to bring the largest representation of farmers into the benefits of the chamber of commerce. The principal obligation assumed by the chamber of commerce in signing for the meeting with the cooperation of the International Harvester Company was to get a good audience and officials of the organization believe the attendance will set a new record for farmers' meetings.

The three speakers the International Harvester Company will send here have had years of experience and local speakers are slated for addresses which will be able to offer good suggestions for the betterment of agriculture on the South Plains.

The letter went out from the chamber of commerce yesterday under the signature of D. F. Eaton, chairman of the short course committee.

"If every town in West Texas was wiped off the face of the earth tonight, the farmers would continue to live and prosper with only a limited amount of inconvenience.

"If every farm was to be destroyed tonight, grass would grow in the streets of every village, town and city with six months.

"This is how important agriculture is. This being true, the better farming, the more prosperous both the man on the farm and the man in town.

CONSOLIDATION IS PLANNED BY TWO RAILROADS

By United News
 NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—As a result of the purchase of a majority of stock of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad, the St. Louis San Francisco railroad is understood to be practically the owner of the former road and has thus formed what is probably the largest railroad combine of its kind in the history of the industry.

This consolidation with combined assets of almost a billion dollars would create a new southwestern system with a trackage exceeding 13,000 miles.

The merger of these two roads is thought to be the first step in a series of mergers. It is expected that the next link in the chain will be the acquisition of the Southern Pacific by the newly consolidated organization.

For the past two months, the banking firms of Speyer & Co., and J. F. Seligman & Co., fiscal agents for both roads, have been quietly accumulating stocks of the Rock Island and the Frisco in the open market. So closely did both banking firms work that they acquired more than $20,000,000 of Rock Island common while it was $50 a share, most $20 below the high price reached by this issue.

Western Union to Build New Cables

By United News
 SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—A cable connecting the Pacific coast directly with the Far East and representing an expenditure of approximately $15,000,000 will be built as soon as possible by the Western Union Telegraph Co., Newcomb Carlton, president of the organization announced here Friday night.

The project can not be consummated for four years because of Danish and British contracts with the Chinese government for exclusive communication systems. These franchises, which have been protested by the United States government, do not expire until 1930.

Carlton said that the Western Union will install a new cable between New York and Europe capable of carrying more than twice as many messages as the present system.

"None of your business."
 Later Stephenson was deposed as head of the Indiana Klan and continued to lead a faction of insurgents up until the time he was indicted for the Oberholzer killing a year ago.

Since then according to the testimony of J. E. McQuinn, treasurer of the Atlanta organization, the K. K. K. has declined rapidly in Indiana.

McQuinn declared that at the height of Stephenson's power there were 200,000 active klansmen in Indiana and that now the paid up membership is only 50,000.

OLD STARS OF THE GAME WILL PLAY THE SECOND TEAM FIRST—FIRST HOME COMING BASKETBALL GAME

Ancient rivals—a basket ball game—the home coming of the ex-students of the Lubbock high school is the program for this evening at the Lubbock high school gymnasium at 7 o'clock.

The Plainview Bulldogs with their stellar five will clash with the high school westerners in the first home coming basket ball game in the history of the Lubbock high school.

A record breaking crowd is expected to see the game tonight as it will bring back fond remembrances when the gang stood on the side lines boosting for the old high school team. The ex-students' committee has worked hard and diligently sending out invitations for all of the students who have attended the high school since the year one.

Arrangements have been made to have the members of the championship team of the Lubbock high school in 1921 to meet with the second team of the high school of the present date. The old stars have tried to retain their old form the past few nights, but in vain it seems as if it will never come back, but at any rate, they will be back on the floor again with the same spirit that they had in that glorious year whether or not they have the old form.

The Plainview Bulldogs have a good record for the present season thus far winning the biggest majority of their games. They recently defeated the bi-district champions of 1924, Tulia high school, and this team has practically the same line up that they had last season.

The Westerners have a good record also for the present season and with the two teams meeting it will indicate that the evening will not lack entertainment and thrills.

but they talked so much that I have returned to only one. But I don't like this idea. What can a girl in such a position do?
 MISS PARTICULAR
 It is the inalienable right of any young girl to have as many suitors or admirers as she wishes. Nothing is a greater safeguard to the girl herself, and her parents should encourage it. Surely nothing gives her a better chance to choose with discrimination. However, many girls who think they should have only one "fellow," let one young man monopolize them all their time to the exclusion of others, and find in the end that other boys have lost interest in them. Of course, no girl wants to be too friendly with a number of men; then she only cheapens herself in their eyes. As long as she has many friends, she should not favor any one to the exclusion of the others, but should rather encourage friendly rivalry.

LONESOME LOU—As you are only 15, and your parents do not like the young man, the most sensible thing to do is to wait a few years before taking so important a step as marriage. Possibly by the time you are 18 you will wonder why you ever worried so or else another and father will have altered your opinion.

JOE—Yes, if the girl is willing, you may call at her house even if you do not know her parents. This offers an excellent chance to mend what it isn't necessary for you to make candy and flowers, but either would be a pretty tribute.

The Element of Success
 If we are to believe the speeches they make, and the interviews they give the Opportunity magazines, then there is a theory among successful men, that there is no such thing as luck in business; that success depends solely upon hard work, diligence, foresight, thrift, superior brains and the like.

It is refreshing then to read what Joseph E. Gilbert, builder of several of the world's tallest skyscrapers, and a successful man by all the popular canons, has to say about success:

"A successful man is an accident."
 "The only element a successful man can credit himself with is concentration."
 "This success stuff you read about in the magazines is a lot of bunk."
 "I read of these fellows getting up early and staying late and never missing a day of work."
 "Well, I doubt it."

And this is the story of a great many of the great American fortunes, of the rich men who give us the rules of success.

TODAY'S RECIPES
 Corn Fritters—One cup crushed canned corn, two eggs, one teaspoon sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup flour, three-quarter teaspoon salt. Beat eggs light and add sifted dry ingredients, turning often. Drop from tea spoon into hot oil and fry until a golden brown.

Broiled Steak—Wipe and trim a sirloin steak and lay in a piping hot skillet. Sear on one side then turn and sear on the other. Broil for ten or fifteen minutes, turning often. Have ready two tablespoons of butter melted, one-fourth teaspoon salt and a little pepper. When the steak is done pour over it the butter, and seasoning and turn from one side to the other, then remove to hot platter. Drain most of the juice from a can of peas and empty them into the skillet in which the steak was cooked. Let them heat thoroughly and then arrange around the platter with the meat.

Date Bread—Chop one cup dates and one cup sugar and two tablespoons shortening. Pour over the above one cup boiling water. Let cool a little and the add two and one-quarter cups flour, one egg, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon salt, one cup chopped nuts. Bake in round tin in a moderate oven.

Pineapple Fluff—Soak for two hours one-half pound of marshmallows in the juice from a can of pineapple. When ready to serve dice the pineapple and mix in a cup of chopped English walnuts. Whip one-half pint of cream and mix into this the marshmallows, pineapple and nuts. Serve in sherbert glasses.

SUGGESTION
 Underground or otherwise inaccessible pipes may be thawed as follows: Open the frozen water pipe on the house end. Insert one end of a small pipe or tube with the aid of a funnel at the other end of the small pipe pour boiling water into it and push it forward as the ice melts. A piece of rubber tubing may be used to connect the funnel to the pipe. Hold the funnel in such a position that the water from the hot water has been used to force the cooled water back to the opening where it may be caught in a puddle. The head may be increased and the funnel may be more conveniently used if an elbow and a piece of vertical pipe are added to the outer end of the thaw pipe, as shown. Add more than pipe at the outer end unless a passage is made through the ice. Withdraw the thaw pipe quickly after the flow starts. Do not stop the flow until the thaw pipe is cleared of ice. A small force pump is often used instead of a funnel and is such to be preferred for opening a long pipe of pipe. If available, the hot steam may be used instead of hot water; being hotter, it is more rapid.

PHILADELPHIA—The Workers' Party and the Young Workers' League has been refused permission to hold memorial services being commemorating the death of Nikolai Lenin. The American Legion made the protest.

DETROIT—One of the highest rewards ever made by a jury for the loss of an eye was given. Thomas Newell, 28, a boiler-maker, who was actually blinded while working for the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad years ago, Newell received $25,000.

WORLD COURT WILL BE APPROVED BY U. S. SENATE—MINORITY LEADERS REALIZE THEY HAVE LOST THE BATTLE

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United News Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—American participation in the world court organized by League of Nations appears to be only a few days off.

A favorable vote by the senate is certain. An attempt to break the world court filibuster by force has been started in the senate, as forecast Thursday night by the United News.

Thirty senators have signed a cloture motion. It will be presented to the senate Saturday unless Cole Blaise, the lone hold out against an unanimous consent agreement to vote February 10, yields overnight.

At the end of one of the most dramatic days in the senate since the historic League of Nations controversy, the pro-court forces had a cloture petition signed by 30 senators. Blaise will be given one more chance to accept an unanimous consent agreement to stop the filibuster.

If he still refuses the cloture motion will be presented Saturday. It will be over and come up automatically Tuesday and be voted upon without further debate. The necessary two thirds are available. Upon passage of this motion, each senator will be allowed a total of one hour in which to discuss the world court resolution, and reservations thereto.

Only part of this time will be utilized as some senators will not care to use the full hour.

This forcible move to break up the filibuster, forecast Thursday by the United News, came at the end of some of the most dramatic days the senate has seen since the league fight.

Borah, leader of the opposition, opened the debate, while another private effort was made to reach a unanimous consent agreement.

Senator Reed, Missouri democrat, one of the chief figures in the filibuster, was furious at the presentation of the cloture motion.

Warning is given. "The minority senators who support this move are helping to prepare a noose to choke themselves," Reed said, and alluded to the arch-lynching and fore-closures which have prevented any democratic filibusters in the past.

"The day is coming when you will regret it," he said, looking around at his democratic colleagues. He threatened to revive cloture in other legislative matters himself later if the precedent is set now.

Cloture was invoked during the League of Nations fight. Cloture motions were presented twice in the past, once on the Lever food control bill and once on a wartime revenue act but in both instances, unanimous consent agreements were obtained and the cloture motions were withdrawn. This rule was adopted by the senate in the year of the world war when Wilson was unable to get his armed ship bill through the senate because of a filibuster by the "wily twelve."

Democrats injected taunts at the republicans for being unable to vote on the world court or to lay it aside for the tax bill. Finally Senator Robinson, Arkansas, minority leader, proposed a unanimous consent agreement to vote February 10. Several leaders on both sides huddled in the center aisle in a conference over details of Robinson's proposed agreement.

While this informal conference was going on Senator Cole Blaise walked into the chamber, patting his rolling forelocks into place, and took his stand beside his seat ready to address the chair.

It was apparent to everyone except the conferring leaders huddled in the center aisle that Blaise was waiting to object to any unanimous consent agreement and a general titter spread over the chamber. Moons, irreconcilable, went to Blaise and in a whisper urged him not to object. Blaise waved him away.

The South Carolina "lone wolf" struck a pose the like of which has not been seen in the senate in this generation with hands thrust in his trouser pockets and head lifted majestically to the crowded galleries—one lone senator in majestic solitude defying the other ninety five, reveling in his moment of power and indifferent to the cutting glances he would receive later in the cloakroom.

Blaise Objects. The agreement was proposed formally and Blaise objected. This made cloture almost inevitable.

At once Senator Walsh produced a typewritten cloture motion, and took his seat at the rear of the chamber as senators filed by and signed it. It was held up until the end of the day's session in the hope that Blaise could be persuaded to accept a unanimous consent agreement but he refused.

Young La Follette, unaware that Mrs Woodrow Wilson was just above him, leaning down over the gallery railing to hear, took up the burden of the filibuster with a speech that required all afternoon, making several severe criticisms of Woodrow Wilson.

Dressed in collegiate fashion, young Bob looked like a high school senior in a class debate as he rose with a thick manuscript. But he soon showed himself to be a post-graduate student of political affairs and delivered his speech with confident force that recalled his famous father. His voice was strong and he emphasized his remarks with frequent gestures. He refused to permit his friends to call a quorum as he began to speak—the usual way of drumming up an audience for a speaker about to make a set speech. However, he asked the vice president to call for order for once when a group of senators were conversing in undertone in the back of the chamber.

Criticism Pointed. "Senators don't have to listen to me," he said, "but if they don't want to they should go out of the chamber."

As La Follette brought Wilson in to his discussion, the widow in the gallery leaned forward until she could have dropped her black hemmed handkerchief down on the young senator's head.

He declared Wilson's appeal to the country for the League was probably the greatest instance of mistaken judgement and the result the greatest political reversal in the history of the country. When he finished this message, Mrs. Wilson leaned back and smiled to Mrs. Swanson, wife of the Virginia senator, who accompanied her.

President Coolidge declined to discuss the senate situation and is not intruding. Few presidents have been able to resist the opportunity to show the country how they can make the senate roll over and play dead. Perhaps one reason that Coolidge is so completely out of the picture is that is exactly what Senator Curtis, majority leader, wants him. Curtis believes in the senate running its own affairs without the White House intervention. Previous leaders often climbed out of a hole on the back of the president.

When Pat Harrison, Mississippi, democrat, twitted republicans with being unable to decide which to vote on first, the world court or the tax bill, Curtis retorted that he did not need to go to the White House for instructions.

Strike Settlement Mere Dream—Both Sides Indifferent

By UNITED NEWS
SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 22.—Prospects for an immediate settlement of the anthracite strike apparently had faded Friday night after a day of new hopes during which the miners had accepted a new peace plan and the operators had been reported as having done so. In Washington, Senator Pepper announced that the strike had been settled.

The new attempt to end the deadlock was proposed by E. J. Lynett, publisher of the Scranton Times, and was accepted as a basis for negotiations by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers. The publisher interpreted a letter from W. W. Inglis leader of the operators as acceptance on the part of the coal companies.

The Lynett plan provided that the miners resume work immediately and sign a five year contract with wages as under the last scale. Sixty days before two years of the new contract had elapsed, either side would be permitted to call a joint conference for the consideration of a wage change. A conciliation board would pass upon the demand and whatever this decision, the miners would remain at work until the end of the five year period. The year before the expiration of the contract, operators and miners would draw up a new one.

Inglis, in his letter to the publisher said the operators saw no objection to the provisions of the plan under which the miners would return to work immediately nor to the five year contract, and the paying of the last wage scale at the start.

Democracy injected taunts at the republicans for being unable to vote on the world court or to lay it aside for the tax bill. LIQUOR PURCHASES ILLEGAL, AND PURCHASERS GUILTY; HOT-SHOT BETWEEN THE BUYER AND DRINKER

By United News
NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The person who purchases illegal liquor in this country today is paying a reward for law violations and is endangering the whole structure of society, John Garibaldi Sargent, attorney general of the United States, told members of the State Bar Association Friday night.

Sargent appealed to the lawyers of the Empire state to aid law enforcement through encouragement of law observance. He condemned the purchaser of liquor as responsible for the liquor problem and in a large measure for the wave of crime.

The prohibition law can be enforced if people will quit buying liquor, Sargent said.

The attorney general likened the purchasing of bootleg products to bribery for law violation.

"If a citizen offers and pays the bribe," Sargent said, "and so induces some one to violate the law and make a forbidden sale to provide what he desires to drink, can that citizen logically find fault with the man he has bribed, when that man in turn offers and pays part of his bribe to some one to violate another law to get something he wants, or to enable him to escape the consequences of the unlawful act the citizen has paid him to do?"

"What but logical is there in the mental processes of a man who has been paid a reward for law breaking, by substantial, wealthy, respected members of the community, in thinking and saying, 'they pay me to commit crime. I will get more pay for committing crime by robbing them of their money and jewelry. They are willing to pay me for the bribery, perjury, violence and murder I must commit to get them what they want; why should I hesitate at violence and murder to get from them what I want.'"

"Is it any wonder that banditry, murder, bribery and corruption flourish?"

In pursuing his plea for law observance Sargent pointed out that "without counting the time of judges, district attorneys, marshals and other salaried officials most of whose time and strength is needed for other purposes the federal government expends nearly $30,000,000 a year upon suppression of the liquor traffic; state governments as much or more."

Sargent defended the prohibition law saying:

"That traffic for which generations has been recognized, discussed and written about by economists, sociologists and jurists as an evil may be marked for extinction by the law making powers and agencies of the country is not only settled law, settled beyond the stage of even being longer open to question, but it has been settled and rests foundations of soundest reasoning."

OBITUARY

Mrs. Sarah Judson Gauntt King was born September 4, 1884 and died December 22, 1925, at her home eight miles north of Lubbock, Texas. She became a member of the Missionary Baptist church at the age of 16 and was married to E. A. King, December 21, 1902. To this union was born six children, five boys and one girl, all of whom are at home with their father.

After a short funeral service conducted by the writer at the Lubbock cemetery, the body was laid to rest to await the resurrection of the just.

We deeply sympathize with the bereaved husband and children in the loss of a wife and mother, and commend them to God for strength to bear the ough in this sad hour.

ROUND THE SQUARE

Yesterday was aggressive merchandising day in Lubbock. You can tell that by the advertisements in this morning's paper. People who don't read ads in this vicinity are people who evidently don't need or care to save money. For example: Mop handles at 19c, Electric Irons at $8.79, Butter at 39c, Oranges at 19c, Syrup at 66c—Diamonds at big savings, dinnerware at 25 per cent actual reductions from regular price—are just a few of the hundreds of items mentioned in ads in this newspaper as special bargains Saturday only. Figure your savings for just one day.

Remarkable are the figures—staggering in totals—given by T. B. Duggan, vice-president of the Temple Trust Company. On their ninth year of business on the South Plains this company finds they have financed business homes and residences on the South Plains to the amount of more than 8 million dollars. This is one of the pioneer concerns with great faith in Lubbock and the South Plains—evidenced by making loans in the smaller towns for brick building—when other loans were not obtainable. Such a concern aids more than one can tell in the growth and progress of this section. Eight millions of dollars! Indicates we South Plains people certainly have the security.

Recently a well known dry goods store of Lubbock mailed out circular letters to what they thought was a correct list of customers and addresses. Nearly one-half of them were returned unopened—unread—quite a little expense!

Freeland Grove, Cashier of the Lubbock National Bank is Chairman of the committee appointed to see that Lubbock county buys her part of the Memorial coins for the erection of a monument on Stone Mountain to the memory of the valor of the confederate soldier. There were 700 coins sent to the Lubbock National Bank for sale. Today is the last day.

R. H. Martin is a "practical Dreamer" and one who enjoys the confidence of R. H. will soon find that this is so. R. H. visions and then puts his vision in brick, concrete, equipment and product. Yesterday in a reminiscent mood R. H. told of writing two ads—years ago for the Weekly Avalanche. One of those ads was inserted in the Avalanche when less than 1500 people lived in Lubbock. As a result 40 layer cakes were sold in one day. Then when he introduced Butter-Flake bread R. H. wrote his own ad and placed it in the Avalanche. In starting his ad he stated: "Lubbock want good bread, why not a Lubbock man make and supply it?"—and why not R. H. got a vision of Lubbock and his business years ago and dreamed of its future—and anyone acquainted with R. H. intimately can see that he is surely bringing those dreams into reality.

Hindenburg Makes Changes About "White House"

By ERIC KEYSER
BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Paul von Hindenburg had made far-reaching changes in the presidential palace, recently occupied by his late predecessor, President Ebert. Most of these alterations, which have just become known, vividly reflect the character and mind of Germany's new chief executive.

President Hindenburg's study in his Berlin abode, at once conveys the impression that its occupant must be a soldier.

The room was used for a study by the late President Ebert. But then it had quite a different atmosphere.

When Paul von Hindenburg moved into the presidential palace in the Wilhelmstrasse, he had the room entirely refurnished.

Now, huge paintings are hung to report and will be in charge of a big theatre in that city. Bert "knows his stuff"—and he struts it too, over at the Palace. Just look at the signs in the entrance today. Bert did that. He has assisted in the annual style shows held at the Palace and has created several programmes for Feature pictures.

Speaking of young fellows making good, there's Wayne Hutson who is establishing one of the nicest businesses in the City. Wayne stays on the job early and late and delivers the goods. That's more than most young men do from what the elder ones tell us.

"We're sure getting lots of inquiries and prospects about and for Dodge Brothers cars since the big January reduction was announced," stated Walter Royalty of the Agency in Lubbock. "Business is doing mighty fine considering everything," Walter said.

G. C. Barrier, manager of Barrier Brothers Musical Department has been absent from the store this week on account of a bad cold. By the way Barrier Bros. just finished inventory and report that 1925 was their greatest year in sales volume. Barrier Brothers have been engaged in the Dry Goods business in Lubbock nine years.

Chas. F. O'Neil, local Real Estate operator and Developer has had many inquiries for loans since announcement was made of having secured a loan connection.

upon the walls, depicting martial scenes of Germany's and Prussia's glorious military past. The President himself chose them from the vast collections of the National Art Gallery.

Only one picture in the room does not allude to military splendor, although it, too, is reminiscent of a glorious epoch in the fatherland's history. It is the famous portrait of Prince Bismarck by Franz von Benbach. It shows the "Iron Chancellor" in mufti, the massive head crowned by a broad-rimmed sombrero.

The rest of the pictures abound with soldiers and war and cattle. There is first Anton von Werner's picture of the battle of Mars la Tour August 16, 1870. It shows the "Todesritt"—the fatal attack—of the Prussian cavalry on French troops in that battle. Werner has chosen the moment when the broad front of the Prussian horse brigade, cuirassiers and uhlan's break into the French lines and carry the day for the Prussian colors. It does not, however, show the mangled few who returned from that "Todesritt."

"Schwerin's Death," the second of these huge pictures is one of the most impressive war paintings. It depicts the famous general of Frederick the Great, dying a hero's death in the battle at Prague, 1757, in the midst of powder and smoke leading the scattered columns of Prussian guards to counter-attack and victory. It shows Schwerin as the missiles felled him, hands clutched around the staff of a bullet-torn Prussian standard, only the royal eagle intact in its centre field.

Less sanguinary is the third of the large pictures. Two famous regiments of the army of Frederick the Great, the Bayreuth and Dessau regiments, meet on the highroad. The stalwart Dessau grenadiers poke fun at the Bayreuth's "Markstenderin." The marketenderin is a buxom lady, a forerunner of the "Wanda" of late and like these, charged with presiding over the itinerant canteen. She seems to resent their jokes intensely. From her elevated position, astride a mule, the lady apparently hurls a volley of curses at the grenadiers' heads.

Management Big
Beaumont Show

Announcement was made here yesterday that Prof. J. Bert Mitchell, house manager at the Palace Theater, has resigned that position to go to Beaumont where he has been given complete management of a large theatre operated there by the Jefferson Amusement Company. The Jefferson company is one of the largest operators of theatres in the state, and their house at Beaumont is their largest, which speaks well for their confidence in Prof. Mitchell, whom they have known for some time. His being given management of the large house at Beaumont is accounted for in the splendid work he has done in theatres at Lubbock, Fort Worth and Dallas. Prof. Mitchell will leave here February 1, and will go to Fort Worth where he and Mrs. Mitchell will spend several days visiting his relatives. They will go to Beaumont from Fort Worth.

TODAY'S RECIPES
Veal Stew—One and one-half pounds veal from shank, four medium potatoes, one medium onion, two peppers, one-quarter teaspoon celery salt, dash of paprika, two teaspoonfuls salt, two cups boiling water, three tablespoon flour, one-quarter cup milk. Cut veal in small pieces; onion and peppers into small pieces. Put all into pan with three tablepoons drippings and brown. Add seasonings and water and cook slowly about three hours until meat is tender. Five minutes before serving add flour and milk mixed. Stir in thoroughly.

Jelly Snails—Jelly snails are made from the pie dough. Roll out into oblong; spread lightly with butter, generously with any tart jelly; roll as for jelly roll and cut into small slices. Bake in hot oven ten to twelve minutes.

Corn-Omelet Sandwich—One egg, one-half cup cooked corn, one teaspoon butter, two tablepoons milk, salt. Put all ingredients into saucepan over a slow fire. Stir constantly until egg is very firmly set. Put white hot between slices of buttered bread or toast.

SUGGESTIONS
A number of towel racks of varying sizes is essential to an orderly state of things in the bathroom. A combination glass shelf and towel bar placed over the lavatory will be found a decided convenience. Install a number of robe hooks in the bathroom. You will find them a great convenience.

Generally the mattress pads you buy are narrow and wrinkly. Buy yours the length of your pad, cut it in two and sew on the sides of the pad. This makes it wide enough to tuck under the mattress and keeps nice and smooth.

The leg of a discarded white stocking makes a good cover for the sleeve board. It fits smoothly and needs no tacking and is easily drawn on and off.

A crayon chalk is best for marking material in sewing. Never use a wax or grease chalk.

When basting velvet use sewing silk. Pasting thread or cotton will leave the print of the thread on the velvet.

When marking goods for hem-stitching use a thread matching the material and you will probably not have to rip it out after the work is done.

Buy fruits in season. This is not only economy but the fruit is of a better quality at that time.

IN FLORIDA BOOM
SAYS LOCAL MAN

F. T. Dysart has just received a lengthy letter from his son-in-law, Bill Howard, who is visiting at Miami, Florida, in which the rash to that section is painted a great deal differently to what one reads in the newspapers. Mr. and Mrs. Howard are planning on leaving there early in March and will be joined on the trip by Mr. Dysart and family. In describing conditions at Miami, Mr. Howard stated that several real estate offices there have been closed and that living accommodations are very high, but that many residences and office buildings are being erected as rapidly as possible, but that building materials are hard to get. An idea of the congested condition may be gained from the following paragraph that was contained in the letter received by Mr. Howard. "I am working at Miami Beach now, just seven miles from Miami, and we are still living at Miami. I go over there every morning and back every night. It's only seven miles over there but it takes anywhere from one to two hours to get over there. The cars line up for a mile and a half waiting to get across the causeways. Thursday I was one hour and ten minutes moving three blocks. That's just how congested things are here, therefore I advise you to forget your trip to Florida and go elsewhere to enjoy yourself."

Insurance Club Officers to Be Named Tonight

The meeting of the local chapter of the National Association of Life Underwriters, will be held at the office of K. L. Riggs, 302 Temple Ellis Building, this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Officers for the local organization will be elected and installed at the meeting tonight, and every man and woman of the plains country connected in any capacity with an old-line legal reserve company is invited and urged to be present.

The initial meeting of local writers was held on January 6th, and was followed by an organization meeting last Monday night at which time the first members of the organization were tentatively enrolled.

The new organization will serve insurance men of all West Texas who are in better contact with Lubbock than other cities where similar organizations have been perfected, and at the meeting this evening plans will be made to affiliate the local organization with the National Association of Life Underwriters.

Chas. E. Graham, representing the Central Life Assurance Society of Des Moines, Iowa, has been the prime mover back of plans to organize the life writers of this section, and has been given the assistance and able assistance of J. P. Mitchell, Sam Henry, Chas. Whitacre, G. J. Leland, J. A. Wells, W. C. Rylander, N. H. Wright, K. L. Riggs and other prominent local insurance men, all of whom have announced intentions of attending the meeting this evening.

British Method of Crime Punishment Is the Best

By CHARLES M. McCANN
London, Jan. 22.—British experts believe that part of England's success in keeping down crime is due to her old-fashioned way of punishing criminals.

British courts deal fairly and justly with criminals; but they hand out justice with the jazz like out.

There are two outstanding differences from the American system. First, the sentence is comparatively short. Secondly, the sentences are served right away.

There is one chance of beating a sentence as handed down in the original court—an appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeal, a specially constituted body.

If the court decides to hear it, the appeal comes up in about a fortnight and lasts an hour. That ends it.

Any convicted man, however, poor, may appeal. But the court may increase a man's sentence if it decides the appeal was entirely unjustified, and sometimes it does.

Perhaps that is why, in 1922, out of the thousands of men convicted for serious offenses only 415 appealed. After investigation of their merits, the appeal court decided to hear only 86 of the 415 appeals. In 20 of the 86 cases heard, the conviction was quashed; in 38 it was upheld; in 28 the sentences were changed—some up and some down.

Great Britain pays her crime judges $25,000 a year, and expects them not to convict a man in the first instance unless he is guilty.

There are four kinds of imprisonment—first division, second division, hard labor, and penal servitude. The maximum sentence in the first three classes is two years; the minimum sentence of penal servitude, three years.

Hard labor is kept for bad short-sentence cases. It is the worst punishment a court can give. Frequently, and literally, a belligerent thug of the tough-guy type sentenced to two years' hard labor faints or bursts into the first tears he has shed for years and begs to be sent to penal servitude for three or even five years instead.

Sentences are comparatively short. A life-term murderer—life is not given for any other offense—whose death sentence has been commuted is usually released in 15 years. Five years is a heavy sentence for a felony. But it is not indeterminate.

Flogging is used in a very few bad cases of robbery with violence or diving off the immoral earnings of a woman. This also brings tears. The usual sentence is three lashes, with a cat-o-ninetails, added to hard labor.

There are no jazz bands or bed time stories in prisons.

Schools are like all other institutions—they run on money—or rather it takes money to keep them running, and the tax payers are the only source from which this money is derived.

A member of the Avalanche force gathered some idea of the seriousness of the financial situation regarding the schools yesterday in setting through a conference between Superintendent M. H. Duncan and Tax Collector A. C. Jackson, who is also treasurer of the schools.

Jackson stated among other things that while the tax rolls carry an adequate amount to support the schools, the payments have been deferred by so many individual property owners that there is barely enough money in the treasury at this time to meet current expenses.

Tax payers, Jackson said, are calling at his office in greater numbers during this week than has been the case at any time this year, and he is hopeful that payments will be made that will better the condition of the school funds.

Those of Lubbock who are unable to meet their school tax payments at this time are urged to do so.

While very little has been said about the financial condition of the Lubbock Public Schools, the fact remains that unless a large number of Lubbock property owners make immediate payments of taxes the management of the schools will find it extremely difficult if indeed not impossible to pay the bills.

Makes Rubber From Refuse

Refuse from oil refineries, garbage disposal plants, soap works and turpentine distilleries provides the materials for a new synthetic rubber discovered by Harry M. Culmer, Chicago chemist. He says 180,000,000 pounds of natural rubber is destroyed annually by the oil industry in by-products.

New School Term Finds Students Hard at Work

A large number of new desks are being installed in the schools of Lubbock, and while the buildings are all crowded to capacity the students are being looked after without a great deal of difficulty and class work is carried on with a high degree of efficiency.

Some splendid work is being done by the students, according to teachers, and the new term is considered well on its way with prospects good for a number of graduates to receive honors at the close of the term.

A RACE OF COWARDS
Traveling had made Polar a very wise bear. He had learned that asking questions was a good way and almost the only sure way to find out just what he wanted to know. At last he could stand it no longer. He must hear from Hyena's own mouth why that fellow was acting like a crazy creature. He rattled his bars to make Hyena pay attention to him.

"What are you laughing at, neighbor?" growled he. "Be a good fellow and tell us the joke. Brown Bear and I would like to make merry too."

"Ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho! Hee, hee, hee! I have a good reason to laugh. You were hungry and you saw a fat sheep and you fell upon it. I was not hungry, for I had just eaten. But like yourself I saw a fat sheep and I, too, fell upon it. And here we are prisoners, side by side—you a thief in spite of yourself and I a thief just for the fun of it. What difference does it make now whether you were right and I was wrong? I get as much to eat as you do. I have a cage as good as yours. You've been boasting how brave and strong you are—how when you fight, you fight in the open. I being a Hyena think it much more sensible to strike in the dark—and when your enemy isn't looking. 'Tis so much easier to make an end of him, and then you one doesn't run so much risk of being hurt oneself."

"Coward, yes! you make me sick!" growled Polar and shook his head.

"Coward, yes!" admitted Brown Bear. "But at least he is not ashamed to admit it, and that is something in his favor!"

"And why shouldn't I be a coward, pray tell? All my relatives before me have been too proud to fight unless they knew they would win! Hyena, not a bit cross at being talked over by his neighbors, continued:

"But, coward or no coward, I am dangerous when I am angry. I am not a Tiger Wolf for nothing. Remember that and don't make me mad. By the way, did they throw mud in your face?"

Next: "Lizard Magic."

WITH THE WOMEN TODAY
BY MRS. LILIAN CAMPBELL

The problem of the wayward girl whose parents "can not do a thing with her" is one, like the poor, that we have always with us. But our methods of dealing with her have changed. We used to beat, imprison and otherwise try to show her the error of her ways, but now we psycho-analyze her and try to understand the cause of her waywardness, whether it results from wrong home training or mental unfitness to grasp the difference between right and wrong.

Mrs. Eleanor Rowland Wembridge, psychologist for the Cleveland Woman's Protective Association, applies mental tests to girls who have strayed from the path of rectitude, and has written a book, to be published shortly, which records the stories of some of the cases that have come to her for solution. The book is titled "Other People's Daughters."

At Radcliffe College, from which she was graduated, Mrs. Wembridge specialized in psychology. Later she taught that subject in Mt. Holyoke, Mass., and in Reed College, Oregon. Then she married and went to live in Cleveland, Ohio. Life at home was delightful but she felt she was wasting a good deal of time, and when a chance came to spend part of it in helping the Protective Association wrestle with its many problems, she was glad to do so.

In her estimation the waywardness of girls is not so much the result of a mother who is too busy helping earn the family income to bother with her daughter. It is rather the result of the ignorant mother, the quarrelsome mother, the silly mother—the mother who does not understand. Mothers who do not read or study, play the piano or do anything worthwhile themselves expect their daughters to do all of these things.

And then there is the problem of the subnormal girl, not the "sheer imbecile," but the one the total of whose "aptitudes and defects is just a trifle too meager for the complex demands of modern life, and who can not be made to develop further. In her we confront the morose or the border-line feeble-minded, or the dull or the retarded. All these terms designate different varieties of weak, but often likeable individuals. They are doomed to carry loads too heavy for them," says Mrs. Wembridge in a recent magazine article.

Mrs. Wembridge's stories of some of the cases she has handled are delightfully written and full of humor, but behind the amusing incidents which make one smile is the tragedy of these human misfits, as she sees them, and the ever-repeated and never-answered question of how to solve it.

An adorable year-old baby daughter is Mrs. Wembridge's most promising subject, and she says she will not promise how much time she will give to the Protective Association's problems when Mary Althea gets a little older and demands more of her companionship.

Women's incomes are rising rapidly, according to tax officials. The increased income of women is explained as due to the fact that new lines of business constantly are being opened to them, and women have been quick to take advantage of their broader opportunities.

Boston Astrologer Predicts for 1926 Period of Unrest

By CARL HUBER
(United News Staff Correspondent)
BOSTON, Jan. 22.—The year 1926 is to be a period of unrest, according to the horoscope cast by Catherine Howard Thompson, Boston astrologer.

By Mrs. Thompson's forecasts women are going to wear even fewer clothes than they have been wearing; there will be a general tightening of money; the country will experience one of the coldest winters, and scientists will make startling discoveries in radio.

And having opened an interview with these few predictions, Mrs. Thompson let go a lightning tongue and proceeded to show what an experienced astrologer can forecast when she finds herself in the proper mood.

"Jupiter entered Aquarius, the sign of the new age, in January, and will remain there," she snapped out so quickly and apparently so authentically, that her statement could not be questioned.

"And just as certain as we are alive, this means we are entering a cycle of unrest, denoting world-wide changes," she added.

"Furthermore, Aquarius is opposed to Leo, the sign of Temporal power. You are aware of the meaning of this; but nevertheless, I should like to reiterate the contention that we may expect further decline in the rule of monarchs. In fact, Europe will be the scene of revolutionary movements, which will be more violent as the year draws to a close. There will be a continuation of crime, business will be good generally in spite of secret intrigue among the nation's financiers, and a new religious cult, based on the principles of Christianity, but not conforming to the old traditions, will come to the Eastern section of the country.

The two evil planets, Saturn and Mars, are to continue to cast their shadows over us. "The loss of the Shenandoah," she says "shows the opposition of these two planets to the coming 'Age of Air.'"

"The Malignant Tongue"
It is to be doubted if there ever was a time when the ancient platitude, "The pen is mightier than the sword," was true.

Laws are useless without force. And, anyway, the tongue is more powerful than either pen or sword.

The name of Jean Baptiste Massillon, French bishop, is remembered two centuries after he lived, because of a sermon he preached on "The Malignant Tongue."

"The tongue, says the Apostle James, is a devouring fire, a world of iniquity, an unruly evil, full of deadly poison.

"And behold what would have applied to the tongue of the evil-speaker, had I undertaken to give you a just and natural idea of the enormity of this vice:

"I would have said that the tongue of the slanderer is a devouring fire which tarnishes whatever it touches; which excites its fire on the good man, equally as on the chaff on the profane, as on

German Women Wait Longer to Marry Now Than Before the War

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—(United News)—German women are waiting, or are kept waiting, three years longer to marry than they did before the war.

Official statistics gathered throughout Germany reveal that the average age of the German bride is now 27 years, whereas in 1913 it was twenty-four.

There are several theories regarding the change.

An eminent sociologist's view is: "The day of Bismarck's Doll House has passed. Nowadays no restrictive laws who have surmounted the flapper stage."

Generally, however, the higher age of present brides is attributed to postwar economic conditions, which are held to make the responsibilities of familyhood greater.

WINDSOR TAKES JOB WITH RETAILERS AT LAMESA

T. Windsor, former secretary of the Lubbock Retail Merchants Association, has been employed as secretary of a newly organized association at Lamesa, according to information contained in the weekly bulletin issued from the office of the local association yesterday.

Mr. Windsor is now secretary of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, which place he has resigned to take the Lamesa job, according to information received at the Avalanche office.

Lamesa merchants will find Mr. Windsor an energetic worker and one capable of taking care of all of the responsibilities of the secretaryship of their association.

The following account of Mr. Windsor's resignation as secretary of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce was contained in yesterday's issue of the Lamb County Leader.

At a meeting of the directors, Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, held Tuesday, the resignation of T. Windsor, as secretary, was tendered and accepted, effective February 1st. It was stated by Mr. Windsor that he had accepted a position of greater remuneration at Lamesa as secretary of that Retail Merchants' Association and assistant secretary of that Chamber of Commerce.

the sacred; "Which, wherever it passes, leaves only desolation and ruin; digs even into the bowels of the earth, and fixes itself on things the most hidden; turns into vile ashes what only a moment before had appeared to us so precious and brilliant; acts with more violence and danger than ever in the time when it is apparently smothered up and almost ex-tinget; "Which blackens what it can not consume, and sometimes sparkles and delights before it destroys. "I would have told you that evil-speaking is an assemblage of iniquity; a secret pride, which discovers itself to us the mote in our brother's eye, but hides the beam which is in our own;

"A mean envy, which, hurt at the prosperity of others, makes them the subjects of its censures, and studies to dim the splendor of whatever outshines itself; a disguised hatred, which sheds, in its speeches, the hidden venom of the heart; "An unworthy duplicity, which praises to the face and tears to pieces behind the back; a shameful levity, which has no command over itself or its words, and often sacrifices both fortune and comfort to the imprudence of an amusing conversation; "A deliberate barbarity, which goes to pierce your absent brother; a scandal, where you become a subject of shame and sin to those who listen to you; an injustice, where you ravish from your brother what is nearest to him."
