JAYCEES AND JUDGES

Beards To Be Judged During Big Street Dance Here Tonight

Rodeo beards will be featured tonight in a Jaycee-sponsored street-dance, starting at 7:30 p.m. between City Hall and the Gray County Courthouse.

Judging will commence at 10 p.m. for the "Most Outstanding" and other beards of Pampa growers.

The winner of the beard contest will be one of the judges. This is Miss Linda Steele, "Miss Pampa of 1958." Sheriff Rufe Jordan and "Honest" Jess Williams will also share honors as judges.

Although a limited number of Pampans have gone out for the Jaycees' Beard Growing Contest, the judging is expected to be both humorous and spirited.

Pampa couples will dance to the music of "Honest" Jess Williams and his band from Amarillo. Twenty-five cents, a beard or a shaving permit will get a couple through the gate, into the roped off area.

Jaycees are expecting a large turnout for the street dance, the second they have held in connection with the beard-contest.

Chief Conner said, "during the rodeo week there will be large crowds in our city. I would like to urge motorists to drive carefully. The pedestrian also has responsibilities in regard to safety. Pedestrians must cross streets only at intersections and look both ways before stepping off the curb. They must also wait on the curb for the light to change."

"We have gone for 390 days without a fatal accident in our city and I would like to go another 390 days," the chief said.

Sergeant Albers issued this statement, "we have two exits at the rodeo. A west gate and east gate. If the motorists going east will use the east gate and motorists going west or coming back to Pampa will use that gate then there should not be many traffic problems."

"I would also like to warn the motorists to please watch their speed and to drive carefully. The speed limit at night is 35 miles per hour and the speed limit in day time is 40," Albers said.

In Top O' Texas Rodeo...

Little 'Uns Wind Up Tonight And Big 'Uns Start Tomorrow

With the final performance tonight of the Kid Pony Show and Miniature Rodeo, Rodeo Week in Pampa goes into the four big days of the Top O' Texas Rodeo tomorrow. Tonight's program will wind up the Kid Pony Show with bull riding, reining, calf roping and many races among the older children.

This performance, like the coming performances of the Top Rodeo, will begin at 8 p.m. in Recreation Park. Otto Mangold, Kid Pony Show chairman, has done a top job getting the groups together for the events of this seldom-lagging show.

Tomorrow will be the big day. Starting with the Rodeo Parade at 3 p.m., the Rodeo will be set for four of its most unique performances that will include the wonder dog Kelly from movies and television, the Wild Brahman Bull Gold Rush and Friday's Beef Calf Scramble.

There will be music at the Rodeo, in the National Guard Armory and in downtown Pampa. Leon McAuliffe and his Cimarron Boys will play the Rodeo dances at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday in the Armory. Ruby Nance and his band will play the overture to the Rodeo and give the performances the musical touch.

The Amarillo Air Force Base Band will lead off the big parade tomorrow. The McAuliffe and Nance Bands, many floats and riders make up the procession, that will wind from Foster and Purviance to East Brown, going down Cuyler.

Another attraction of the Rodeo will be the annual cutting horse show. (See LITTLE, Page 3)

Kremlin Delay Puzzles West

By K. C. THALER
United Press International

LONDON (UPI)—Western diplomats were reported puzzled today by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's delay in answering the Western notes on the projected summit conference on the Middle East crisis.

Khrushchev's answer may come today, according to reports from Moscow.

But there was some speculation here the delay may indicate a shift in Kremlin policy regarding the heads-of-government meeting. Information reaching here from Moscow suggested Khrushchev may be taking his time to ponder the differing Anglo-American and French proposals on the meeting. Western diplomats in Moscow were reported confident Monday that Khrushchev would accept the Anglo-American proposal.

President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan suggested a meeting "on or about Aug. 12" within the framework of the U.N. Security Council. French Premier Charles de Gaulle stated his preference for a summit conference of the Big Four and India outside the United Nations on Aug. 18.

Khrushchev originally proposed a meeting of the heads of government.

Hoffa Returns To Face Questioning

By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Teamsters president James R. Hoffa makes his long-awaited return appearance before the Senate Rackets Committee today in time to face questioning about the "human torch" attack on one of his associates.

Hoffa's second encounter with the committee was given added drama Monday by the ghostly fate which befell Frank Kierdorf, business agent for Teamsters Union Local 332 at Flint, Mich. Kierdorf, who appeared before the committee last year, was satistically burned by two men at Pontiac, Mich. At about the same time his uncle, Herman Kierdorf, also a Teamsters official, received an anonymous telephone call threatening him with the same treatment.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said both men got their jobs from Hoffa and were kept on by the union despite testimony linking them with violence, extortion and other improper practices.

Kennedy and Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said they had no information on whether the ment of Russia, the United States, Britain, France and India, with U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld. (See KREMLIN, Page 3)

Burning Victim's Uncle Disappears

By JERRY CHIAPETTA
United Press International

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI)—Teamsters Union official Frank Kierdorf, burned beyond recognition in a savage fire assault by two unknown men Monday, was interviewed for the third time today but his vengeance-seeking uncle, Herman Kierdorf, had disappeared.

Frank, a 56-year-old ex-convict business agent for Teamsters Local 332 in Flint, Mich., still clung to life in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital but doctors said his death was only a matter of time.

He repeated interviewing officers that he did not know the two men who doused him with an inflammable fluid and set him afire and gave no hint where he thought Herman might be hiding.

He Owned Silence
Herman disappeared Monday night from under the noses of police guards at the hospital but police admitted only today that they didn't know where he was.

They had obtained a warrant. (See BURNING, Page 3)

New Baseball Park May Be Built Here

Initial steps to give Pampa a regulation-sized lighted baseball park for next summer were taken here Monday night at the weekly meeting of the Pampa Optimist Club. It was revealed by Bill Garrett this morning.

"It will have to be a community project," Garrett said, pointing out the construction of a park the size desired by the Optimists was too large a job for the Club to tackle along with its other work.

A kick-off meeting for all persons interested in seeing a park built here has been scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Optimists Boys Club next Tuesday night.

The park, if built, would provide Pampa's American Legion Rebels a place to play night baseball games and also perhaps see the start of semi-pro club here. It would also be made available to local Teen-Age teams and could be converted into smaller dimensions for Pony League, Little League or softball tournaments.

Garrett said the largest expense would be the lights. He said the Optimists are ready to go to work, and are holding the meeting next Tuesday to see if other Pampans will be willing to donate time, labor and money for such a project.

Pampa has been without a regulation-sized lighted diamond since old Pampa was dismantled.

House Action Is Probable Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An administration bill raising the ceiling on the national debt to a peacetime record high of 288 billion dollars probably will be rammed through the House today.

The Rules Committee was reported ready to grant quick clearance for the measure in time for action by the House this afternoon.

The request to raise the debt limit was based on the assumption red-ink spending in the fiscal year which began July 1 would reach a total of 12 billion dollars, with spending of 79 billion and revenues of only 67 billion.

A House Ways and Means Committee report accompanying the bill predicts that "only under the most optimistic circumstances" will the government be able to avoid asking Congress for a further increase in the national debt ceiling next year.

Pressures on Congress were mounting to accept a rebuff from President Eisenhower in the form of a veto of a $6,584,169,000 appropriations bill which carried funds to run 17 agencies in the current fiscal year.

The President vetoed the bill because of a $88-million-dollar addition to the Civil Service Retirement Fund. Eisenhower said the money wasn't needed in the fund at present and would only increase the expected huge federal deficit.

House leaders indicated the big money bill probably would be re-passed, just omitting the sum Eisenhower didn't want. There was little talk of attempting to override the veto with a two-thirds majority. Congress never has overridden a veto by President Eisenhower.

Study Aid Bill
The Senate Appropriations Committee began closed door hearings on the President's foreign aid program bill with Republican leaders predicting substantial increases in the $3,078,000,000 originally voted by the House.

The President originally requested $3,942,000,000 for the program, with Congress authorizing $3,675,000,000 for another year of economic and military aid to friendly and neutral nations abroad. The House, however, voted only the $3,078,000,000 in actual funds.

Middle East developments and pleas for restoration of the funds by the President appeared to have increased prospects the Senate would restore most of the cut. Other congressional news:

Veterans: The Senate approved a series of bills aimed at liberalizing veterans' benefits in categories ranging from burial categories to disability insurance. One bill sent to the White House would increase by $100 to a total of $250 the government's share of funeral expenses for war-time veterans discharged with disabilities. (See HOUSE, Page 3)

Head Of Meat Firm Dies
Waukegan, Ill. (UPI)—Thomas E. Wilson, 90, board chairman of the meat packing firm of Wilson and Co., died at his farm home near here Monday night.

Wilson entered the meat industry in 1887 as a car checker in the Chicago stockyards. By 1913 he had worked his way up to president of Morris and Co., an early meat-packing firm.

Several leading congressmen and many economists, however, hailed the move as a step against inflation.

Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, said the market was not overvalued credit. And Edward T. McCormick, president of the American Stock Exchange, expressed the belief the present market activity and strength stemmed from confidence of the investors. He said the margin increase was "unfortunate and uncalled for."

Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), a member of the Senate Banking Committee, said the rise indicated the Federal Reserve Board could "admit mistakes and can improve."

Dr. Marcus Nadler, consulting economist for the Hanover Bank, said the Federal Reserve Board's action was an attempt to prevent too rapid an increase in the market. Such a rise, if unchecked, he said, might later cause a sharp decline that could upset business.

Market men said the margin rise from 50 per cent to 70 per cent came as no surprise to the financial district. It would not dislodge any big holdings of stock, the experts held, since most of these are covered by cash.

The new margins apply to new purchases and short sales. They have no impact on old accounts until new purchases are made and then only to a limited degree, it was explained.

Where Sputnik Elements Fell

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—American scientists attending the space conference here have told the Russians what became of major elements of their first two "Sputniks."

Dr. Luigi Jacchia of the Smithsonian Institution, quoting eyewitness reports, said Sputnik II disintegrated 62 miles off Barbados and fell into the sea, carrying the remains of space dog Laika to a watery grave.

Dr. Robert Jastrow of the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory produced charts of radar-computer plots to prove that the carrier rocket of Sputnik I fell in Outer Mongolia—not in Alaska or the western United States, as the Russians once claimed.

Other Americans present at the geophysical assembly session at which these facts were revealed said there was "an immediate drop in temperature" in the crowded auditorium when Jastrow produced his data.

Presumably the Russians already knew what really happened to Sputnik I's rocket, since the claim that it landed on U.S. territory was dropped months ago and no questions were asked at the conference session.

He projected a chart of the rocket's last flight on a screen. "As you can see from the track, it fell in Outer Mongolia," Jastrow said.

Russia's tracking procedures are mostly secret, and Americans who had hoped to get Soviet data on the orbits of Sputniks II and III have been unable so far to do so.

"The trouble may be that this is a somewhat classified project for the Russians," one American said. "It is also possible that they are planning to publish all their findings at the same time for maximum propaganda impact."

Jastrow said the fate of Sputnik I's rocket was determined by computer analysis of plots made by the long-range radar establishment in Westford, Mass., and Britain's royal radar establishment.

None of them reached South America.

Ballet Troupe

(Special to The News)

PERRYTON — Tentative plans have been made to have a water ballet group from Amarillo perform in the Miss Perryton contest at the swimming pool Aug. 15.

The Amarillo YWCA Water Ballet troupe will present an hour-long program of exhibition swimming and water ballet in the 7:30 p.m. program.

Additional seats will be available this year to seat the crowd, with plans being made to install bleachers along the edge of the pool, in addition to providing folding chairs.

Last year's crowd exceeded expectations and seating was not available for nearly the number of people who turned out for the program. The committee is doing its utmost to assure plenty of seats for this year's crowd.

The ballet and clown diving will be presented while the judges are interviewing the contestants to insure a fast-moving program. First item on the program will be the parade of beauties before the judges and the viewers.

Three more contestants entered the competition this week, to bring the total entered to five. Entering were Nanjean Boxwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Boxwell, sponsored by the Lions club; Marlene Wagner, daughter of Mr. and charging him with possession of a silencer.

The silencer was found in the home of a next door neighbor in Madison Heights. Judy Tyler, a 15-year-old girl residing at the home, said Herman gave her a brief case that contained a P-38 Luger automatic and the home-made silencer three weeks ago.

Herman told police he had no idea who attacked Frank but he was "going to find out."

A lieutenant told him to let police take care of the attack but Herman replied, "not if I get there first."

Two Attackers Argued

Frank, who last November refused to tell the Senate Rackets Committee about operations of his union, was drenched with a fluid, set afire and dumped in front of the hospital "looking like a zombie."

During spells of consciousness, Kierdorf told how two men took him from his home in Flint and drove him toward Pontiac to a wooded area. There, he said, one man poured inflammable fluid over him and the other threw a match. He burst into flames.

Kierdorf said the two men then argued over letting him die. One of them said, "We don't want a murder rap on our hands." Then they bundled his burned body in a bathrobe, put him in their car and drove him to the hospital where they dumped him and sped off.

Kierdorf's statement to Oakland County Prosecutor Frederick Ziem threw no light on the identity of the attackers. Ziem said he was convinced Kierdorf did not know the men, although he admitted there were a number of discrepancies in the story.

The Senate Rackets Committee entered the investigation by sending two men from its Detroit office to attend the questioning of Kierdorf. In addition, the committee scheduled hearings in Washington today with James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, as the chief witness.

According to committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy, Kierdorf got his job with the Teamsters from Hoffa, as did his uncle, Herman Kierdorf, another Teamsters official.

Only last week Herman Kierdorf had been before the Senate committee and, like his nephew, had invoked the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer questions. Before going to Washington, Herman had quit his job as business agent for Teamsters Joint Council 43 in Detroit.

Herman received an anonymous telephone call Monday threatening "you . . . you're next," shortly after Frank Kierdorf had arrived, terribly burned, at the hospital.

When first questioned at the hospital, Frank refused even to tell his name. Even after Herman and his son, Frank Jr., 30, arrived and identified him, he refused to admit his name.

Authorities had determined his identity through prints taken from his fingertips. The tips were about the only parts of his body that weren't burned, apparently because he had clenched his fists after being set afire.

All through Monday Kierdorf alternately rose from semi-consciousness and sank back but grimly refused to tell what had happened.

Finally, after 15 hours of silence, he made a statement in the presence of Ziem, Assistant Prosecutor George Taylor and the two Senate committee investigators — Walker Hansen and Sherman Wilse. The statement was tape recorded and transmitted to committee officials in Washington.

Shortly after midnight this morning, Kierdorf's wife, Mrs. Jessie Kierdorf, arrived at her husband's bedside. She had flown here from Florida. She told United Press International she had no idea who burned her husband and that he never told her anything about his business.

Credit Bureau Head Asked To Institute

Wynn Veale, manager of the Credit Bureau of Pampa, has been invited to represent Pampa at the Southeastern Management Institute, at the University of North Carolina, during the week of Aug. 10-18, for a short course in Credit Bureau, Collection Service and Merchants' Association Management.

The Southeastern Management Institute, now in its 12th year, conducts a series of studies on how to promote and control the sound extension of credit; how to aid debtors to rehabilitate their credit, where it has been impaired for reasons beyond their control, as well as modern management methods for assisting business and professional men in their credit work.

On the basis that sound credit is essential to this country's continued prosperity and is necessary to guarantee full employment and high standards of living, a minimum course of four summer institutes has been set up in cooperation with the Associated Credit Bureaus of America and its affiliated state and regional members. Upon satisfactory completion of this course of study a certificate of recognition is given to the student by the University and the Institute.

Instructors at the Institute are University professors and leading credit executives. Eligibility for enrolling in the Management Institute is limited to executives in charge of a Credit Bureau, Merchants' Association or Collection Service. Over 100 communities will be represented at the 1958 Institute.

Residents Of Florida Will Visit Rodeo

The first night of the rodeo will hold some unexpected pleasures for a Florida couple on their way to Alaska.

The rodeo performance tomorrow night will be the first one ever witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brown, formerly of Cape Canaveral, Fla., visiting here in the home of Mrs. Brown's brother, Charlie Wilkerson.

The Browns are on their way to Fairbanks, Alaska, where Brown, who is in the Air Force, will be stationed.

They have had a lot of bad luck on their trip so far, having had five blowouts on their 45 ft. house trailer in the first 1,000 miles of their trip.

marking sitting in. But in his previous replies to Western notes, he did not rule out a summit-council conference.

The British and French notes were delivered in Moscow last Thursday. President Eisenhower's message was dispatched Friday.

Sources said possibly some delay may have been caused by Khrushchev's surprise trip to Peking for consultations with Communist China's Mao Tse-tung and other Red Chinese leaders.

But Khrushchev returned to Moscow from the four-day secret meeting Sunday night, and it was considered almost certain he had been informed of the details of the Western notes beforehand.

Consultations among the U.N. Security Council members on arranging a summit-council meeting were suspended pending Khrushchev's reply.

Strike Hits Railroads In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The army took charge of Mexico's nationalized railway system today, guarding it against sabotage in a wildcat strike which has stranded hundreds of travelers, including many Americans.

Roberto Amoros, general manager of the nationalized railways, was negotiating with Demetrio Vallejo, leader of the "rebel" union faction that called the unauthorized walkout. Prospects for a settlement sometime today appeared to be good.

A wildcat teachers' strike was threatened in support of the rail picket.

Oton Salazar, leftist leader of the dissident teachers' union group which staged a sit-down strike in the Education Ministry several months ago, said Monday night his followers would not report for work today.

The wildcat rail strike began Saturday as a result of internal struggles within the 60,000-man railway workers union, headed by Salvador Quesada.

Murphy To Talk With Nasser

By LARRY COLLINS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U.S. diplomatic troubleshooter Robert Murphy scheduled a last round of conferences today with key men in the Lebanese political picture before flying to Cairo for talks with President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

The Cairo Press indicated Murphy would receive a cool reception. Egyptians are still rankled over U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' recent remark that Nasser does not represent Arab nationalism.

Murphy rounded out his mission to Lebanon with talks with President Camille Chamoun, President-elect Gen. Fuad Chehab and Foreign Minister Charles Malik. He leaves tonight by plane for Cairo on his way back to Washington.

During his stay in Lebanon, interrupted by flying visits to troubled Jordan, worried Israel and the new Iraqi republic, Murphy conferred with rebel leaders as well as with government and "neutral" officials.

Situation Easing

He conferred Monday for the first time with former Premier Saeb Salam, rebel leader in Beirut. Murphy said the two-hour talk was "fruitful" and Salam agreed.

As Murphy left, Salam called. "One last thing, Mr. Murphy—I want you to give my regards to Mr. Dulles."

"I certainly will," Murphy replied. "I hope to see him later this week."

There were other indications of a general easing of the situation with the opposing factions turning to negotiations rather than fighting to resolve differences.

In Tripoli, rebel leader Rashid Karami ordered his armed followers to stop shooting at security forces and to begin fraternizing and cooperating with them. At the same time Tripoli Gov. Nasser Had announced all arms issued to civilians in the government-held section of the port city would be collected and locked up.

There are 30 letters in the Russian language. It is written in the Cyrillic alphabet, which is based largely upon the Greek.

Two Die In Dallas Fire

DALLAS (UPI) — Mrs. Laura McClellon, 51, and her six-and-one-half-months old granddaughter, Jallie Marion McClellon, burned to death in a one alarm fire that destroyed their home Monday.

Neighbors had heard the woman screaming but were not able to reach the victims. Flames engulfed the hall leading to the second floor where the two were trapped.

Mrs. Gracie Calhoun, 84, was helped from a lower floor window of the house by two young boys. Damage to the nine-room house was estimated at $10,000.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who would send out a letter like this? "Dear Mr. and Mrs. So and So, Three months is long enough for anybody to wait for an acknowledgment of a gift. My daughter, in spite of my continual urging, still has not gotten around to writing her 'thank you' notes, so please forgive her laziness and accept my thanks for remembering her."

Sincerely yours,

MRS. BLANK

Just sign this "Curious." Dear Curious: I think I have finally found one mother whose bite is as real as her bark.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell the girl who signed herself "UNHAPPY" because she wets the bed to please quit being unhappy? I am 12 years old and have just passed the seventh grade. I used to wet the bed every single night! I have also been to doctors and had about a million examinations. The last doctor said he knows just loads of kids who do the same thing and told me I should not be ashamed and to take a warm bath in the morning and to quit worrying about it. I followed his advice and I have wet only once in a month which is a wonderful record for me.

NOT UNHAPPY

DEAR ABBY: For the past year I've tried to get proof that my husband is cheating on me with the girl who keeps his books down at the shop. Every time I walk in on them after hours this girl goes into the next room and pretends to be the girlfriend of the night man. They put on a good show and I can see them all laughing behind my back. My intuition is very strong on this, Abby, but I can't take him to court without proof. How can I catch him without hiring a private detective?

SUSPICIOUS

Dear Suspicious: Your imagination (along with your intuition) could be working overtime. Quit playing cops and robbers and start playing "truth or consequence."

DEAR ABBY: My son is 18 years old and not because he is MY son but any mother would be proud to have her daughter be seen with him. Well, to make a long story short, he took a 16-year-old girl to the movies and when he brought her home they were sitting on her porch talking. He said he was giving her a good-night kiss and all at once he got soaking wet. It seems her father was watching them and he turned the hose on him saying, "This should cool you off!" My son came home soaked to the skin. Should I have called the police?

IRATE

Dear Irate: If this is the way your son kisses goodnight, you'd better teach him how to tread water.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single girl with a child four years old. Recently I met a man who claims he is not married. I can't for the life of me figure out how this man is still single. Something tells me he is hiding something from me. Is there any way I can find out if he is married without his knowing I don't trust him? Please help me, Abby. I must know.

MUST KNOW

Dear Must: Certainly. Ask to meet some of his family, his friends, people who work with him. If he has no one who can vouch for his character, chances are he is hiding something. Probably wife.

For a personal reply write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Little Plaids For The Small Fry

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—Plaids will march down the road to the little red schoolhouse in great numbers this fall.

For the small fry, they're small plaids, scaled down to a miniature size and done in the right proportion for a tot.

In general, these 'samill' fashions follow adult styles but they're handled with a feeling of fun. There's nothing of the serious Victorian miss looking exactly like mama in these new clothes.

Low belts, dropped waistlines and brief pleated skirts are natural for children. They have the figures for them. The trapeze is right for children, too, when it's properly lined to keep its shape.

The straight and unfitted dress with pleats that stay in is one that looks smart and will get mom's vote since it takes relatively little care to keep it spruce. We show two examples here.

Dress with plaid top and permanently-pleated skirt (left) is in orlon-and-wool jersey. It's done in warm tones of brown, has narrow patent leather belt at low waistline. Deep white cuffs have jet buttons.

Do not put it back on the tea table.

If you can't find any other place to set it, hold it until someone comes along to take it from you.

MATURE PARENT

51st Year

THE PAMPA DAILY NEWS
TUESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1958

Before school closed, Bud had located a summer job in a local garage. But the first morning he turned up for work, its owner said he'd had to give the job to his wife's kid brother. "You know how it is," he said uncomfortably.

Bud didn't know how it was. Shocked by the world's teacher, he spent the rest of the day looking for other jobs. But people who were hiring high school kids had already picked their boys. At dinner that night he was so depressed that his father said kindly, "Look, Bud. Until you find work, we'll go right on with your usual allowance. Now take that load off your mind."

But Bud didn't. Though he muttered "thanks" for the $4 his father handed him, he was so grouchy and hostile toward his mother the next day that she said despairingly to his father, "You'd think we'd turned him out of the house instead of helping him. Sometimes I think that today's young people are just incapable of gratitude."

I think many parents of adolescent children know this appalling sense of ingratitude. In our hear's we often groan to ourselves, "The more I try to do for Bud or Lila, the more outrageously they treat me."

Out answer is: Bud and Lila want to do for themselves.

Bud is jealous of his father's established ability to earn his own income. When we make our kind effort to help solve his unemployment problem by giving him our money, his envy of our superior position becomes intolerable—and he strikes out at us as the "have-nots" of this world have been striking out at the "haves" since time began.

It's a great comfort to perceive that this is true. And it is what we need to maintain our kindness as Bud searches for another job, frustrated form of self-respect.

If we don't see it, we can get as confused as Alice in Looking-glass Land where to go forward, you had to walk backward. We begin to doubt the value of kindness that seems to produce irritability in Bud instead of gratitude.

We remain blind to the fact that his irritability is directed not at us but at his own dependence upon us.

The key to all nice adolescent youngsters' nasty behavior is their passion to be free of gratitude.

Immaculate Conception Church Scene Of Vows For Miss Dragoun, J. Sampson

(Special To The News)
PERRYTON—The Immaculate Conception Church was the setting for the July 25 marriage of Miss Louise Dragoun, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dragoun to Jackie Sampson of Odessa, son of Mrs. Eula Sampson of Iowa Park.

Reverend M. J. Mathiesen officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar banked with baskets of white gladioli, asters, and palms. White tapers in candelabra marked the pews.

Mrs. Jerral Allred, organist, provided nuptial music and was accompanist for Mrs. Jake Schwab, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride was attired in a waltz-length gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle fashioned with a lace bodice featuring a mandarin collar and tulle yoke outlined in sequins. The bouffant skirt of tulle and lace was worn over layers of tulle. Her elbow-length veil of illusion fell from a crown of lace sprinkled with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a crescent bouquet of white gardenias and stephanotis showered with white satin streamers.

Attendants for the bride were Mrs. Roy Rodgers as matron of honor; Miss Josie Cobb as bridesmaid; Miss Jackie Englert, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. Dennis Fletcher, Liberal, was best man. John Young served as an usher.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents.

The bride's table was covered

Wow! Look At The Bucs; Braves Braked

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

Those upstart Pittsburgh Pirates have "braked" the Milwaukee Braves' threatened runaway—and there may yet be a pennant race in the National League.

The Pirates, battling to finish in the first division for the first time since 1948, snapped the Braves' six-game winning streak, 4-3, Monday night on a ninth-inning homer by Roberto Clemente. The San Francisco Giants, who beat the Chicago Cubs, 6-4, in an afternoon game, thus moved within four games of the Braves and the Pirates moved up to within six of the world champions.

And so, all the talk of a Milwaukee runaway that started after the Braves' four-game week-end sweep of the Giants, is quieted. The Braves may go on to win another pennant but their opposition hasn't given up yet.

Best In The Majors

The Pirates, now three games ahead of the fourth-place Cubs, have won four straight games and 17 of 26 (a .654 pace) since July 4 when they were in seventh place. For the last week or so they've been getting the best pitching in either league—they had a string of 34 consecutive scoreless innings when the Braves scored in the third inning Monday night—and they're getting long-ball punch from such relatively under-publicized players as Clemente, Bob Skinner and Dick Stuart.

Skinner drove in the Pirates' first three runs Monday night with a two-run single in the first inning and an infield out in the fifth. That produced a 3-3 tie that stood until Clemente's ninth-inning homer gave rookie Curt Raydon his fifth win and Juan Pizarro his first loss since returning from Wichita.

Mays Finally Homers

Raydon, who yielded to a pinch-hitter in the ninth, gave up eight hits and struck out four batters. Elroy Face, the Pirates 155-pound relief workhorse, pitched a perfect ninth.

Willie Mays showed signs of going off on another "tear" when he hit a homer, double and single and stole a base to spark the Giants' eight-hit attack. The homer was Willie's 17th and first since July 2. He doubled in the fifth, stole third and scored on Bob Schmidt's single to break a 4-4 tie.

Yanks Widen Lead

Rookie Gene Green hit his eighth homer of the year in the sixth inning to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Yankees increased their lead to 13 games.

Larry Jackson, one of the Cardinals' "hot" and "cold" pitchers, pitched a five-hitter and struck out 12 as the Redbirds ended their seven-game losing streak.

Ryne Duren, making his first appearance since he was hit by one of Paul Foytack's pitches 11 days ago, no-hit the Orioles for the last three innings to preserve Don Larsen's eighth victory. Homers by Bill Skowron and Mickey Mantle sparked the Yankees' 12-1 hit attack.

Raiders Ready For SWC Foes

LUBBOCK (Sp.)—Two Southwestern Conference teams and a pair of Border Conference rivals make up Texas Tech's home football schedule this fall.

In Jones Stadium, Coach DeWitt Weaver's Red Raiders will meet West Texas State Sept. 27, Baylor Oct. 18, Arizona Nov. 8, and Arkansas Nov. 22. All except the opener with West Texas State will be played at 2 p.m. The Buffalo engagement is set for 8 p.m.

Special "days" have been designated for the games with Baylor (Dad's Day), Arizona (Band Day), and Arkansas (Homecoming). The 1958 schedule will mark the first time since 1949 for Tech to meet a Southwest Conference opponent at home.

To make a total of five Southwest Conference opponents—most in history—on the Red Raider schedule, Texas Tech will also play Texas A&M in Dallas Sept. 20, University of Texas in Austin Oct. 4, and Texas Christian in Fort Worth Oct. 11, all at night. The Red Raiders will meet five SWC opponents next year, also, before launching official title play in 1960.

A more experienced team than last year's will face the schedule, toughest in Tech history. Compared with only nine returning lettermen in '57, a 2-8 season, Tech will sport 20 returnees this fall besides two letter winners from previous seasons.

All of Tech's statistical leaders of last year return, including halfback Ronnie Rice of Lufkin, the top runner; quarterback Jerry Bell of Ballinger, leading passer; and halfback Jimmy Knox of Graham, best receiver. Also on hand again is the top rusher of 1958, fullback Doug Duncan of Wellington, out last year.

A strengthened schedule could easily offset the added experience, but Coach Weaver concedes that the outlook is brighter than it was last season.

Jimmie Wilson, business manager of athletics, reports a good demand for tickets. Individual game ticket orders—at $3.50 each—and season ticket orders—for $14—are being accepted at the Texas Tech Athletic Office. Mail orders should include a 25-cent mailing fee, Wilson said.

Mike, Art Wallop Bolo, Tokyo Joe

Iron Mike DeBlase and Art Nelson, a pair of ring "buddies" pooled their tricky talents to retain their tag-team championship over the Great Bolo and Tokyo Joe at the Top of Texas Sportsman Club here Monday night.

It was a fugged scrap from the opening gong, with Tokyo Joe getting the worst of it as his head was split open against one of the corner posts.

Newcomer, Al Kasehy, a lightning fast grappler whipped Tommy Phelps in two straight falls to sweep the semi-final match. Kasehy used a drop-kick and pin to win the second fall in a time of 7:37.

Bolo toppled Nelson in a single fall opener.

314 TEAM BAT MARK

Rebels Finish Up With 5-4 Record

Pampa High diamond boss, Deck Woldt, appears slightly on the optimistic side about next spring's Harvester baseball squad, and you can't hardly blame him.

Woldt, currently attending the New Mexico High School Coaches School at Albuquerque, displayed verbal pleasure with the way his American Legion Rebels "hit the ball with authority," this summer.

The Rebels, who won four of their first five games and then did a complete about-face in dropping three of their last four contests to finish with an overall 5-4 season record, posted a neat .314 team batting average.

However, that mark is 62 percentage points off that gaudy .376 average they owned going into a July 20 game with Stinnett here.

The Rebels lost that one, 2-0, and gathered only three hits in the process as their team mark dipped to .346. It fell off another ten points to .336 in a win over Borger, dropped nine points in a loss to Amarillo's Hansen Post and finally fell from .327 to the .314 standpoint in last week's finale, 3-1, loss to the Oldtimers.

During the season the Rebels bashed Borger twice, 13-6 and 7-1; split with Perryton, losing 9-6 in ten innings and winning 14-10; split with Stinnett, winning 19-1 and losing 2-0; whipped Amarillo's D&D Pharmacy, 23-4; and lost to Hansen Post, 4-3, and the Oldtimers, 3-1.

Oddly enough, the Rebels won four of four road starts but could do no better than a 1-4 record at home.

Nine players stroked the ball at a .300-plus rate this summer for the Rebels.

Pampa's Brown Impressive In North's All-Star Cage Camp

HOUSTON (UPI)—Nearly a dozen of the 56 stars making up the North and South squads for Saturday night's All-Star football game attracted the approving eye of their coaches in early drills at the 26th annual coaching school.

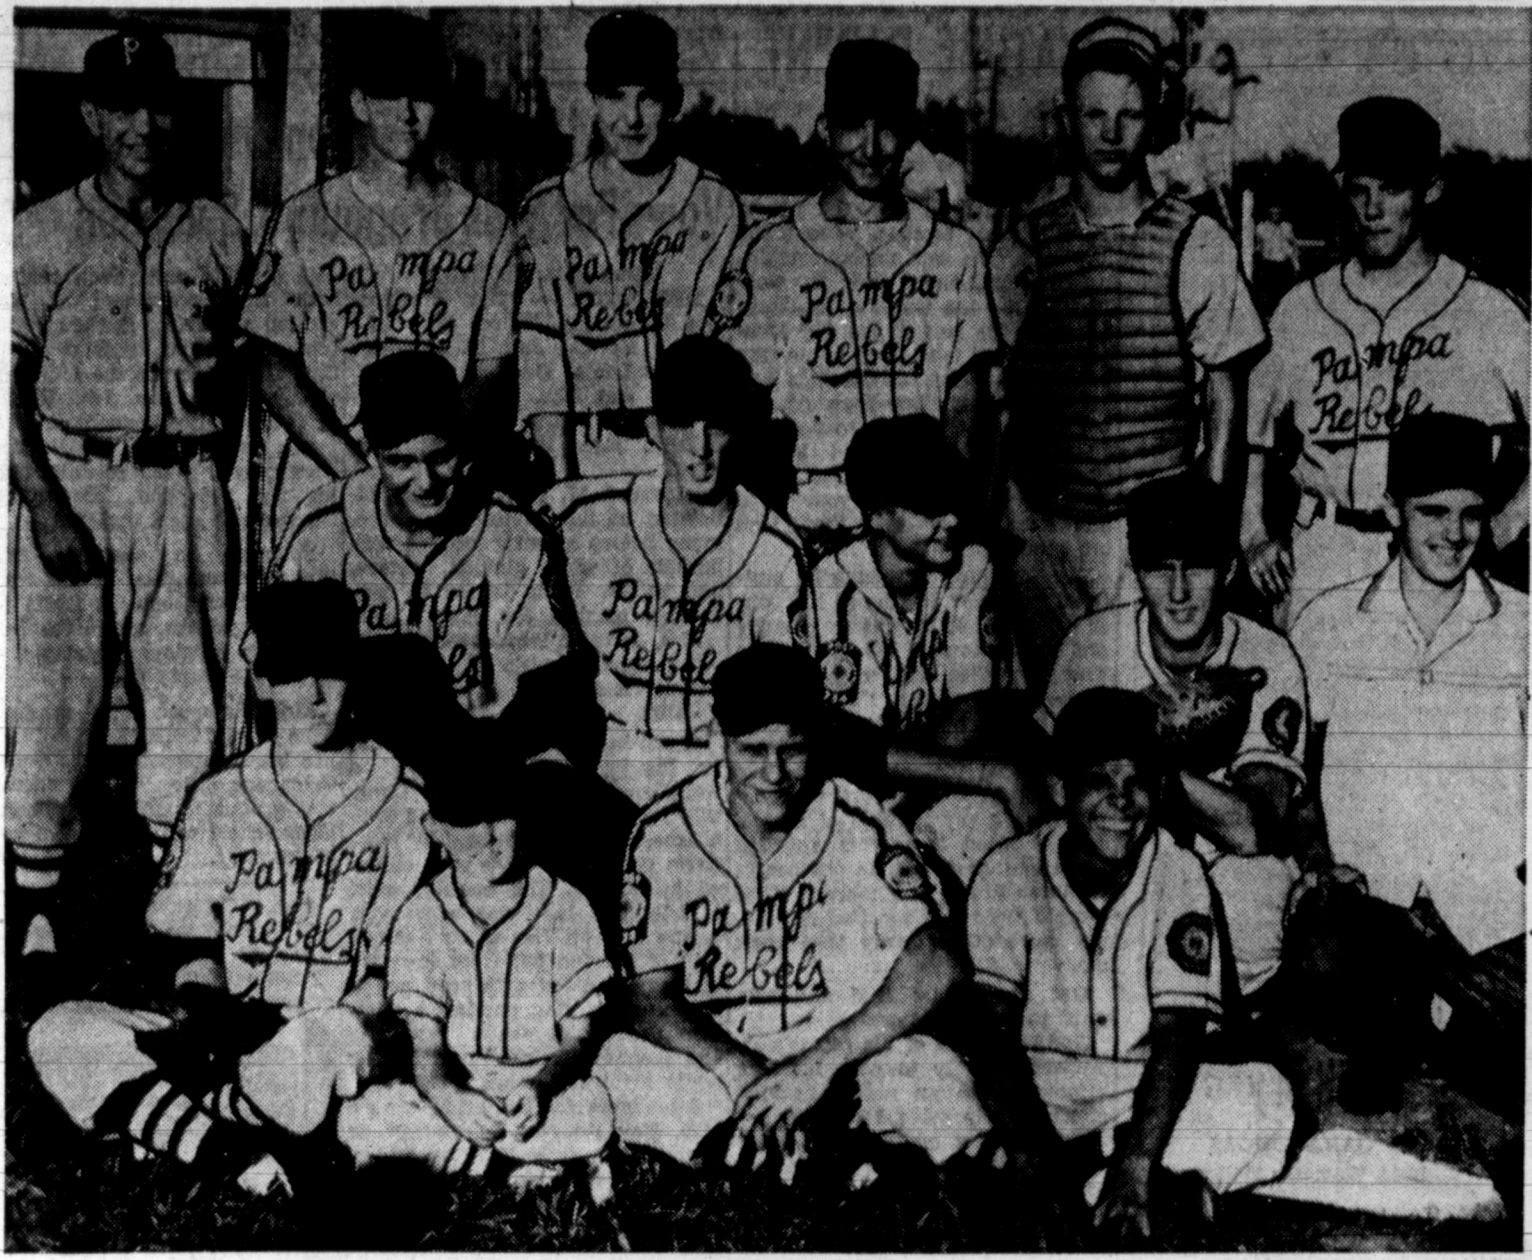

Coach Gordon Wood of Victoria worked his North crew on defense only 15 minutes out of an hour and a half workout Monday afternoon, but two linemen and a defensive back were quick to catch his eye.

They were Ken Chancelor of Gilmer, playing at middle guard; Jerry Ferguson, the terrific tackle from Sundown, and 165-pound David Ridgway of Amarillo, who made a name for himself on offense for the powerful Sandies from the Panhandle last season.

Nearby in the Rice gym, the North and South basketball squads went through two drills and the North group came up with a slight injury when Jim Cursinger of Hereford turned up with a bad ankle. Coach J. W. Black, however, said he thought the 6-4 forward would be able to break into his starting lineup if the ankle recuperates.

Biggest School Ever
Black put a tentative first team into a half-court scrimmage with 6-6 Jan Loudermilk in his single post job, Bobby Bernard of Graham and Rick Martin of Dallas Wilson at forwards and Bill Brown of Pampa and Phil Reynolds of Waxahachie at guards. Brown made a deep impression on the coach with his ball handling.

Carroll Broussard, the Port Arthur ace, looked good at the high post job on George Carlisle's South team in another half-court scrimmage. Ollie Shipley of Austin S.F. Austin and Jim Hammond of Houston Bellaire alternated at the baseline with Broussard.

Rick Pezdirtz

If gentleman Jim Myers is looking like he's saddle sore these days, it's 'cause he is.

Since taking over as the head Texas A&M cow-puncher in charge of rounding-up prime football beef, Myers estimates he's traveled about 25,000 miles.

With his late appointment as new Aggie whip-snapper, following the hassel of Who's on First, Leahy's on Second and Erdelatz's on Third, Myers squandered little time and spent a sizeable chunk of dough flushing out the best schoolboy gridders Texas had to offer.

His hunting wasn't half-bad either.

"We got a late start in recruiting but I think we lined up 45 outstanding prospects," Myers told us last week as we chatted with him about 20-minutes over the long distance wires.

Myers and his assistants have set a blazing trail over Texas and satellite state highways during the past four months.

And asphalt wasn't all they burned up.

"We burnt up all the cars we had. We had to buy a complete new set," Myers chuckled. I don't see how any group could work any harder than did my assistants. It will pay big dividends."

Among the expected dividends are 13 of the 56 youngsters who'll play in the Texas Coaching School North-South all-star football game in Houston Saturday night.

No other Southwest Conference School can make that claim—having 13 of the all-stars that is.

Outa Bud's Hip-Pocket

One of the top dividends for his efforts is likely to be Jim Murphy of El Reno, Okla.

Murphy is "one of the really outstanding boys," Myers said. "We really gave him the big rush act. He was one of the hoosies in Oklahoma high school ball."

The Aggies in general and Myers in particular must have rushed Murphy harder and faster than a college frat putting the bite on the rich mayor's kid. El Reno is practically in the back yard of Bud Wilkinson, the Oklahoma University coach who customarily has the football talent traveling north across the Red River instead of south.

"They're pretty hard to draw out of Oklahoma," Myers admitted.

Dudley Favors Single-Wing

When we had found Myers a most sociable sort, we sprang a probing question at the new A&M skipper, expecting maybe to have our right ear shattered over the long distance line.

Quite the contrary. We asked Myers if he'd like to maybe establish a two-week "away training camp" like Bear Bryant had at Junction when he first took over at A&M in 1954, if such a set-up was still legal under the good-graces of the conference dads.

"Are you nuts?" Myers laughed. "What'd ya want 'em to do, run me out of the state?"

Bryant was often times criticized of course for his "Junction Slave Camp" of 1954, when so many boys quit the team that the Aggies only suited up 28 players for some of their games.

One of those games was against Texas Tech, a team this

"I guess I'll be logging a good many more miles in the next four weeks before opening fall training too," Myers said with no sign of fatigue in his husky voice.

The new Aggie mentor and his family are in Sun Valley, Idaho, at the moment where Myers is lecturing at the Idaho Coaches Association clinic which ends Wednesday. He'll be back in Houston Saturday night to keep his peepers focused on his 13 all-star recruits in the North-South game, and then he'll jump back out west again, attending the Utah Coaching Association clinic at Salt Lake City, Aug. 25-26.

He's also got a couple dates in Dallas and Fort Worth before the Aggie Clubs, much like his appearance before the Amarillo Aggie alumni last week.

Texas Search Being Made For 'Miss Space Of 1958'

A search is being made throughout the State of Texas to find a beauty to be "Miss Space of 1958." The winner of the search will reign at the Air Force Association's 1958 National Convention and Airpower Panorama to be held in Dallas, Sept. 25-28.

Texas lassies who wish to try for the title must be single; be between 18 and 25 years of age; be nominated by a civic, fraternal, veterans or military organization; and be available to participate in Air Force Association events, expenses paid, from Sept. 21 to Sept. 28.

Among the events in which "Miss Space" will participate will be the Finish ceremonies of the Air National Guard's cross-country jet flight from Jacksonville, Fla., to Dallas on Sept. 21; an airpower parade from Fort Worth to Dallas; the opening of the Association's Airpower Panorama exhibition; plus a number of social events during the Convention.

At the Association's seven-hour Convention Wing Ding, "Miss Space" will portray the famous World War II comic strip heroine "Miss Lacey" created by Milton Caniff, who now draws "Steve Canyon."

Official entry forms and contest instructions are being distributed to organizations throughout Texas, according to Al Harting, chairman of the Association's Convention and Panorama. The search ends at midnight, Aug. 25.

A special committee, representing newspapers, radio and television, entertainment and civic affairs, will be appointed to judge the entries. The top contestants, selected from entry forms and photographs received by the committee, will be brought to Dallas for personal interview by the committee to select the winner.

Entry forms and instructions can be obtained by writing to "Miss Space" of 1958, 3200 Maple Avenue, Room 404, Dallas 4, Texas.

The Air Force Association Convention in Dallas will be attended by more than 3,000 leaders of government, industry and defense, and will include a city-block of displays of defense weapons and equipment. This will be the Association's twelfth annual meeting since its formation in 1946 by General Jimmy Doolittle.

The 60,000-member organization has its national headquarters in Washington, D.C., where it publishes Air Force Magazine.

Nasser Has A Big, Unsolved Problem

Foreign News Commentary By CHARLES M. MCCANN UPI Foreign News Analyst President Gamal Abdel Nasser is riding high in prestige — but he has a monumental problem that remains unsolved.

That problem is to better the lot of the ordinary Egyptian who hails him as a hero.

Nasser has nationalized the Suez Canal. He has joined Egypt and Syria in his United Arab Republic. Pro-Nasser elements have seized power in Iraq. They present a grim danger to Lebanon and Jordan. Nasser has made himself the dominant figure in the Arab world.

But all Nasser's triumphs have done nothing to improve his country's weak economy. Egypt remains poverty-stricken, as it was when Nasser and his fellow conspirators unseated King Farouk six years ago.

His policies have deprived Egypt of the economic aid which the United States and Great Britain might have given it.

Ties In With Russia. He has tied Egypt's economy dangerously close to that of Soviet Russia and its satellites. Egypt is spending much more for foreign goods than it gets for its exports. Russia, instead of the Western countries, is buying most of Egypt's cotton. But Egypt cannot get from Russia the goods that it needs.

This situation is not entirely Nasser's fault.

A lot of Egyptians are better off than they were under Farouk. Notably, Nasser has broken up Egypt's big estates. Hundreds of thousands of fellahs — peasants — now own little farms of two to five acres. Rents of tenant farmers have been reduced to one-third the amount paid under Farouk.

The government is opening up many rural community centers, each consisting of a hospital, a school and a meeting place. New schools are being opened at the rate of two every three days.

But Egypt's population of 23,400,000 is increasing at the rate of 500,000 a year.

Needs More Land. One great need — a desperate one — is for more land. Egypt's people are crowded into a narrow strip of six million acres of fertile land surrounded by 244 million acres of sand.

Nasser's dream is to add two million fertile acres by building the gigantic Aswan Dam. That project received a big setback when his tieing-in with Russia caused the United States and Britain to cancel credits they had promised.

Nasser has another answer to his problem — industrialization. He plans factories of all sorts — sugar refineries, automobile factories, steel mills. He has just opened the first steel mill.

Russian and West German credits are helping him here. But industrialization is a long-range project. What he needs is equipment from the Western countries. To get it, he must increase Egypt's exports to them.

Nasser's big trouble is that while he is winning victories in the Arab world, his country is in danger of going broke.

Work

Fortunate is that man whose work is such that it coincides with all his hidden motives. In this day and age there seem to be few who actually enjoy their work. By far and away the majority of human beings toil at what they find to do, without ever lifting their labor into the realm of desirable endeavor.

The reason for this does not reside in the fact that so many jobs are unpleasant and can only be accomplished by a drudge. The reason is far more profound. It lies in the fact that most of us have a wide streak of laziness and decline to do at all anything that we can avoid doing.

But in this tendency which is so prevalent, lies much of mankind's unrest and unhappiness. We work because we feel that we are compelled to work, not because we really want to work.

While it is true that we must toil or perish, there is little need to adopt an attitude which makes our work a form of punishment. The difference between an unhappy and a well-adjusted man, insofar as employment is concerned, is largely one of attitudes. If you consider your work degrading, exhausting and merciless, the fault is in you, not in the job you are doing. Any job can bore you if you have no internal riches. But any job can be an exciting adventure if you are mentally balanced and trained to understand the full meaning of what it is that you accomplish.

Work is the greatest blessing of the human race. First of all, it is a necessary discipline, without which we would drift aimlessly from birth to death. By means of work we learn the virtues which must accrue among us or there would be no meaning to existence.

And there is an odd paradox here. Many times a person will find himself doing work which he abhors. As a consequence of his attitude, he will shirk his duties, performing his functions in a hap-hazard manner. He resents what he does. And, strangely, just such a resentment is apt to bind him to the job he loathes.

But if he adopts an attitude of true interest and dedicated performance he will soon learn to do even an unpleasant job surprisingly well. And it is strange, but observable, that such a person who masters a particular job, is almost always the one selected for advancement, either by his employer or by life itself.

Of course there are forces at large which are organized to prevent such advancement. The state and unions can and do interfere. It is always imperative to agencies which employ force, that men be classed permanently in some little niche. It is so much easier to keep track of everyone, if everyone is carefully catalogued and left to vegetate in a particular avenue of endeavor.

Governments and unions love to classify and to freeze at predictable and controllable levels. But life is not like government or unions. Life is a dynamism which drives us forward to greater and greater achievements.

If we make a contract with life, to live it to its full, and to do each job we undertake with surpassing skill and excellence, then life opens the way before us and there are no limits to what we can do. It is when we make a contract with government or with unions that we must always be satisfied with less than what we could have. Many there are who prefer the appearances of security which rise like a mirage above governments and unions, to the excitement and adventure that life guarantees if we will dare to be free and to work with all our vigor.

It is true, of course, that all of us will seek to perform each task with a minimum expenditure of our time and energy. However, unless we throw ourselves enthusiastically into each task, we never can understand it sufficiently to master it and to rise to something better. Many a labor-saving device came into being only because someone truly understood a task that had to be performed and from that understanding was able to devise a better tool for its performance. Man's ability to improve his tools of production is based on his understanding of a job, not upon his reluctance to do the job.

We should always thank God that we live in a world in which work is the cornerstone of life. This is not man's curse but his greatest blessing.

Right To Work Discussed
By The Reader's Digest

In the last issue I was quoting from an article in the August issue of the "Reader's Digest" under the heading of "The Right To Work: Our Hottest Labor Issue." It closed with a statement from a Santa Fe worker in La Jolla, California asking "why, if there really were so many bleeding hearts in favor of compulsory membership, has it never been submitted to the rank and file for a vote?" The article continues:

"It never was. Instead, union leaders asked their Santa Fe members to authorize a strike on the issue."

"An employee in Escondido Calif., then wrote: 'How can the union ask us to go on strike without first allowing us to vote on whether or not we want a union shop?'"

"On some roads the unions held a vote on compulsory membership. A California employee of another railroad (who wrote the Santa Fe that 'I have been a union member all my railroad life, but compulsory unionism must go if we are to remain a free people') described two such elections: 'Of approximately 4500 switchmen, only 1700 were allowed to vote; 1000 voted for the union shop, and it was put in. In my class of yardmaster, only 200 out of approximately 350 were allowed to vote; compulsory membership was placed in effect with only 125 men voting for it. The union counted the ballots in both of these phony elections so there was never any doubt of the outcome.'"

"A Santa Fe union member wrote to the company from Riverside, Calif., 'You probably understand that many employees fear to express their views, on account of possible union reprisals.' Because of such fears, the names of the above-quoted railroad workers are not used here."

"Are the fears justified? Consider the case of William T. Harrison, a veteran of 30 years' service with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, 20 years a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, and for seven a District Chairman. Because his local opposed compulsory union membership by a vote of 208 to 1, Harrison dared to write his Congressman when, in 1951, the matter was coming up in Washington for a vote. For this offense, he was expelled by the Grand Lodge of his union."

Union Punishments
"The two federal laws which now legalize compulsory union membership (Taft-Hartley and the Railway Labor Act) attempt to give protection to union members, willing and unwilling, who work for companies whose businesses affect interstate commerce. Both stipulate that the union cannot drop a member, and thereby cause him to lose his job if he pays initiation fees and dues. The Railway statute makes union 'assessments' compulsory, while exempting the worker from union fines and penalties. But millions of Americans not working for companies whose businesses affect interstate commerce are unable to get any federal protection. They may be punished, fined or expelled for as great a variety of reasons as there are union constitutions, unless state laws protect them."

"The American Federation of Musicians has expelled members for criticizing its president, James C. Petrillo, now retired. A Cleveland carpenter was expelled for revealing 'union business' in public when he protested that he should have been a delegate to a union meeting. A wireless telegrapher with a family to support was expelled from his union (and lost his job) only because he spoke up in a meeting against Communist leadership. Unions have expelled men for 'defaming' a politician supported by union officers, and for opposing a bonus to be paid to union officials."

Union Dues
"George Means, head of the AFL-CIO, says: 'We have got to wipe off the statute books the so-called "right-to-work" laws. They are destructive of the rights of union workers.'"

"Often these 'rights' seem illusory. For example, there is no legal ceiling on dues. In theory they cover the costs of collective bargaining. But, according to the testimony of witnesses appearing before the McClellan investigating committee, the International Union of Operating Engineers had, out of its collective bargaining dues money, paid union president William E. Maloney (now retired) $13,287 in expenses for a trip to a labor conference in Europe — after Maloney's transportation and maintenance costs, totaling $1001, had already been paid out of federal tax money. Also charged to the collective bargaining costs of this union were $120,535 to maintain a yacht which, for the convenience of President Maloney and other union officials shuttled between Long Island and Miami."

"The AFL-CIO, defending compulsory membership, insists that 'union policies reflect the views of the majority of the workers.' Yet Hunter Wharton, supervisor of the Philadelphia local of the Operating Engineers, acknowledged to the McClellan Committee that although it has 4500 members, only 1250 are eligible to vote on local affairs. Senator McClellan said this made it 'disgracefully clear' that the union was 'holding men in servitude to a dictatorship.'"

Robert Allen Reports:

Military Intervention In Mideast Costing Taxpayers

WASHINGTON — U.S. and British military intervention in the Middle East is costing U.S. taxpayers some $200,000,000 — and that is just the beginning.

Double this amount is being pledged by the U.S. to bolster the economy and military forces of friendly nations there.

All these accounts for these new expensive aid measures won't be presented for months yet. But they will be eventually forthcoming and their total is estimated as likely to come close to three-quarters of a billion dollars.

As officially compiled for congressional information, a preliminary itemization of the cost of U.S.-British intervention in the Middle East to August 1 is as follows:

U.S. forces and support operations in Lebanon and worldwide alert measures — $115,000,000.

Emergency military and economic aid to Lebanon, Jordan, Turkey, etc. — $75,000,000.

U.S. logistical support for British troops in Jordan — $10,000,000.

These figures have been supplied the Senate and House Appropriations Committees by the State and Defense Departments.

The latter reported the funds for these purposes are coming from sums already voted by Congress for military and foreign aid expenditures. Replacement amounts will be sought in supplementary appropriations from the new Congress that convenes next January.

The State Department has advised Appropriations leaders that detailed estimates of the new aid outlays growing out of the Middle East crisis are not complete as yet. It was explained that demands for these additional huge expenditures are still coming in from Turkey, Iran, Pakistan, Libya, Sudan, Jordan, Lebanon, etc.

But already they total more than $200,000,000 — and the end is not in sight.

These "additional requirements" include $300,000,000 for Turkey, in grants and loans; $100,000,000 for Pakistan in new weapons; and six more divisions for Iran.

In all instances, the U.S. has promised extra assistance.

HORSE'S MOUTH — Secretary Dulles himself broke some of this grim pocketbook news to Appropriations leaders.

The State Department chief told the Senate Appropriations Committee that $75,000,000 in emergency economic and military aid has been rushed to friendly Middle East nations since the Iraq revolt.

Of the amount, $30,000,000 has been to strife-torn Lebanon.

The $115,000,000 price-tag for military operations in the country was given the House Appropriations Committee by Pentagon budget officials. They also disclosed the heretofore unknown fact that the U.S. is footing the bill for the 3,000 British paratroopers in Jordan.

Mac Makes His First Resolution For 1959

By HENRY McEMORE

New Year's Day is five full months away, but I have already made my first resolution for 1959:

Never again will I joke about the trials and tortures of the expectant father.

I have just finished being one, and if what the expectant father undergoes is funny, so then is the rack, the thumbscrew and being devoured by a whale.

Indeed, there were times when I would have welcomed the appearance of a hungry whale in the Fathers' Lounge. I would have been sorely tempted to announce that my name was Jonah and jumped into his mouth. Of course, there is no guarantee that a fastidious whale would have swallowed me, or any of the other expectant fathers waiting with me.

We were scurrying sights. We had all arrived at the hospital in our best maternity suits, shined and shaved to a far-the-well. But after a few hours our appearances were such that no self-respecting cat would have dragged us out, much less in.

I'm not lying when I say that I looked at myself in a full-length mirror after six hours of writhing, going to pieces inside, revolting, spinning, walking and collapsing, and didn't recognize myself.

"That poor devil," I thought when I saw my reflection, "isn't going to make it. Someone had better call a doctor for him. He's had it, and good."

Nothing that an expectant father has ever read, or been told, helps him one iota. Friends and relatives gave me a thorough briefing before the persecution started, and I had sort of half-felt that I would be able to retain a certain amount of calm and common sense. In I was thoroughly mistaken. I started going to pieces when Mary went out of sight, and disintegrated as steadily as a sand castle before an incoming tide.

I have heard it said that the worst thing about a husband having to wait for the baby to arrive is that there is nothing for him to do. Nonsense! There is plenty for him to do. Think, for one thing, I thought more in that Fathers' Lounge than I have thought in the past twenty years. What did I think about? Everything. Everything under the sun!

There is no use trying not to think. You might just as well try to hold your breath for an hour. Another thing: foxholes aren't the only place where you will find no atheists. Add the Fathers' Lounge. If you've never prayed, you'll start, and if you have always prayed, you'll double the amount. The Lord was real busy Tuesday a week ago.

And He didn't let us down. All of us inmates in that Fathers' Lounge that day were heard. One by one, the nurse, gave us the happy, happy word.

When my turn came, and the nurse said, "You have a girl, and everything is fine," I sat down on the floor. I didn't mean to, it wasn't part of my plan. But I was so weak that Megan, my brand-new daughter, could have whipped me right then in a fair fight.

To all expectant fathers, known and unknown, whom I have joked about, my deepest apologies.

The Doctor Says:

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M.D.

Unfortunately, there are a lot of health questions for which there is as yet no really good answer. Today's first query is an example.

Q—Please say something about brown patches on the skin. I am 39 and have them on my face, especially around the forehead and neck. What cause, them and is there a treatment? — Mrs. C.

A—This is a common complaint. Most of these patches go under the name of chloasma, which is a term used to cover various pigment changes in the skin of a yellowish-brown nature. Some are apparently related to the sex glands and some have been called "liver spots," though this is probably wrong.

It is claimed that some of these brownish patches can be lightened by the application of a chemical. But this must be used with caution, since it may irritate the skin if used too often or too freely.

Q—I am drowsy all day and can't sleep at night. What can I do? — Mrs. R.

A—If you do not sleep at night it is not surprising that you are drowsy during the day. Perhaps you can reverse the habit of getting your physician to give you a sleeping pill one or two nights.

Q—Please say something about a hairy tongue.—J. T.

A—This is a peculiar condition characterized by a discoloration of the tongue with hair-like growth on the upper surface. In many cases it is discovered by accident and is not associated with unpleasant symptoms.

There is controversy about the cause, but it has been found in association with the taking of various antibiotics and sulfa preparations, particularly when in the form of lozenges.

Treatment is aimed at clearing away the growth and, of course, stopping the use of an offending drug.

drug, if that is the cause.

Q—How can one go about obtaining reliable information on sex education for children, and for those in adolescence or approaching marriage? — S.-R.

A—There are a number of excellent books in this field. The American Medical Association (535 North Dearborn St., Chicago 10, Ill.) has published a series of pamphlets on this subject costing 50 cents each.

One is for parents of young children of pre-school and early school age; another for boys and girls of about junior high school age; a fourth for young people from 16 to 20, and the last for grownups who have responsibility for sex education.

Note on questions Dr. Jordan is unable to answer directly individual questions from readers. However, once a week, in this "Q & A" column he will answer the most interesting and the most frequently asked questions received during the week.

Rural Phone Move Makes Progress

(Special To The News)
PERRYTON—Farm and ranch families of Ochiltree county met last week in the District court room and formulated a plan to secure rural telephone service for the County.

There were 103 persons in the court room, unanimous in their demand for rural telephone service.

Prime target in the program is the General Telephone Co. of the Southwest which claims rural Ochiltree county in the area which it serves.

A five man committee was named at this meeting, a chairman and a resident of each commissioner precinct in the county, to work out a program for rural telephones.

J. R. Stump was named chairman of the committee. Members are Henry Pshigoda, Herman Wiebe, Clarence Lewis, and Arnold Good.

This committee will ask the County Commissioner Court, the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce to pass resolutions asking the General Telephone Co. to either serve the rural area of Ochiltree county or relinquish it.

If the company relinquishes the area, the rural telephone cooperative now serving Dallam and Sherman counties has indicated it will move into Ochiltree county on request.

Bob Elliott, manager of the RTA in Dalhart, was invited to the meeting and told of the steps taken by that cooperative in securing rural telephones. First the General Telephone Co. was asked to relinquish the rural area and did so. Then the Rural Telephone Cooperative was formed, and financed with a loan through REA.

Work has been under way in securing rural telephones in the county for some time. General Telephone Co. has not extended rural lines although some groups of farmers have built lines and maintains these at their own expense. Last fall a group from Ochiltree county visited Dalhart and asked Elliott and the RTA about the chances of securing telephone service through the cooperative.

Kim Novak Only Filmtown Beauty Without A 'Steady'

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Kim Novak, filmtown's reigning beauty, is the only charmer in Hollywood without a steady fella—and with no prospects in sight.

She's blonde, smoky-eyed, successful and so beautiful most men are tongue-tied in her presence.

Movie queens from Theda Bara to Marilyn Monroe zoomed through romances and marriages faster than editions could hit the streets. Not Kim. Even her headline-making dates with Gen. Trujillo weren't romantic. And the shapely star is the first to admit it.

"I think I've been in love in my life," Kim said introspectively, "but Ramfis wasn't the right man for me. He came close to what I want in a husband—kind, considerate and intelligent—but it wasn't love."

Rarely Dates
Kim rarely has dates. She attends parties alone, spends much of her time in the solitude of her new home.

"It's not a question of being mysterious," she smiled. "I believe it is better to be lonely by myself than to be lonely with someone I'm married to."

"I want a husband and family, someone to take care of. Just think, a man to cook for and to comfort and love. But I couldn't give him just part of me. I'd want to give him all of me—my heart and soul, my mind and my body."

Unlike her sister actresses, Kim has no driving ambition to continue her career. She recently completed "Bell, Book and Candle" at Columbia. But she would drop acting altogether if "Mr. Right" appeared.

"Sometimes I feel like a necklace or ring in a store window waiting for someone to take me," she added wistfully.

No Price Tag
"And there's no price tag. More than anything else I want to be a woman, and a woman isn't a woman without a man. I have no preconceived notions of what he'll look like or how he'll behave. But I do know if I settle for less than my dreams it would destroy me."

Bit parts, Story being told in the Hollywoods about Chico Marx, excited by headlines that his brother Zeppo was being sought in a gambling ring expose, called brother Gummy to ask where he could find Zeppo. Gummy wanted to know why. "So I can turn him in for the reward," Chico answered. Joel McCrea is the latest movie star to move to television.

The long-time western star will co-produce and play the lead in "Wichita Town," a horse opera scheduled to be saddled up later this year. Fred Astaire makes his first non-dancing appearance in flickers this year when he co-stars in "On The Beach."

Appointments to the ranger service protecting national parks in the United States are made by the Civil Service.

with Gregory Peck and Ava Gardner in "On The Beach."
