

County School Office Long A Political Target

A growing move to abolish the office of county school superintendent in Lamb County is leading to the growing possibility of a county-wide election on the matter later this year.

The move, endorsed early this month by the Olton Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture, has met with disagreement from County Superintendent C. Roy Stevens.

The battle lines in the controversy are now firmly drawn, and verbal shots are being fired by both sides.

Melvin McReynolds, Olton C-CA manager, endorsing the movement, tabbed the county superintendent's office a "waste of money." Stevens has taken issue with this statement, arguing that the abolishment of the office would not effect the full saving of his $8,000 salary and other expenses of the office.

Stevens says that new arrangements for the office could cost $5,200 annually if the abolishment is carried through. He referred to an arrangement where the county judge would become an ex-officio county superintendent if the office is abolished as if possible under a 1961 state law.

Although new arrangements for the office could cost this much, most Texas counties that have changed their county school superintendent system have done so at a lower cost than this.

The 1961 law allowing the abolishment of the office provides that an ex-officio superintendent—county judge—may be paid up to $2,600 annually and may have an assistant paid the same amount. This is, however, a maximum; no minimum figure is set by law.

The C-CA maintains that the county superintendent's office "is merely a rubber stamp position." The county superintendent contends that "The state wants the office as it is....you cannot abolish the office; you can only transfer it to another office, as a minor part of the office."

AT THE REQUEST of the Enterprise, Stevens put forward a list of 23 duties he says are part of his office. The Enterprise discovered that many of these duties are performed by individual independent school districts and submitted to the county superintendent for formal approval or forwarding to higher state authorities.

C-CA Manager McReynolds made the following statement about the office:

"The county superintendent has no authority, nor responsibility, in connection with any local independent school district.

This includes all areas such as finance, election of teachers, school program, transportation, supervision, or any other area.

"Lamb County has only independent school districts, and so the county superintendent has little or no work to do in the fields of employing teachers, calculating teacher's salaries, approving teachers' contracts, or other such things. These and other such items are handled by each local school district."

The controversy surrounding the county school superintendent's post is not new. The status of county superintendents has been the subject of a state-wide argument for some ten years now, and the Lamb County post was an election issue two years ago when Mrs. Doris Eaton of Littlefield ran as a Republican on a platform calling for the abolition of the office. Stevens won the 1962 election by a 2-1 majority.

In the mid-1950's the office of county superintendent had become a political target in the state. In 1957 about 200 county superintendents marched on Austin and the state legislature against a proposed law to abolish the office in the state.

The legislature studied the proposal again in 1959, and in 1961 the law allowing counties to abolish the office by popular vote was passed.

THE PRESENT MOVE in Lamb County to abolish the office is presently centered around a petition calling for an election to determine whether or not the office should be abolished.

The petition must be signed by 25 per cent of the qualified voters who cast a vote in the last general election for governor. This means that more than 1,000 signatures of currently qualified Lamb County voters will be required on the petition before it is presented for action.

Signers of the petition must be qualified voters, but they need not have voted in the last general election.

Copies of the petition are located in five Olton business establishments—the Ideal and Spotlight Cafes, Southwestern Public Service, the Chamber of Commerce office and the Olton State Bank. Plans are to have the petitions circulated across the entire county.

More than one-fourth the needed signatures already have been collected. When the necessary number of signatures have been collected, the petitions will be presented to the county commissioners court to be certified. If the commissioners find the required number of signatures on the petitions, they are required to call an election on the issue.

The office cannot be abolished during an existing term. If Lamb County voters did away with the office this year, it actually could not be abolished until 1966 when Stevens' four-year term expires.

And no abolishment election may be held during the year the office is open for election. The election on the office can be presented in either 1964 or 1965, but not in 1966—if the position still exists at that time in the county.

The current move is aimed, according to its backers, at a 1964 election.

Stevens said that if the Lamb County voters want the office abolished, "I'll have no crow to pick with them."

He went on to say that he asks "only that the voters think about it" before they vote to eliminate the office.

And it's quite possible that Lamb County voters will have their say on the issue before the year is out.

A senior class of 33 students graduated from Olton High School in commencement exercises Friday.

George Jones was the class valedictorian—with a 94.11 grade average—and Margaret Schaefer, with a 93.37 average, was salutatorian.

Other honor graduates were Carmen Bley, Darwin Cox,

Clyde Galloway, Maxine Schaefer and Pat Thompson.

Dale Amerson, Keith Berry, Carolyn Bley, Darlene Burk, Billy Carson, Tommie Covington, Billy Cox, Nancy Davis, Linda Frazier, Paul Hernandez, Gary Huckabee, Doris Jeffries, Kenneth Justus, Martin Kunkel, Preston Leggett, Elaine Lewis, Humberto Leyva, H.L. Col. Richard A. Steele, commander of the 3500th Air Base Group at Reese Air Force Base and base commander, delivered the commencement address.

George Jones, who was also named "Best Citizen of the Year," delivered the valedictory address, in which he compared life to a "river's course" with the individuals as "ships" on that river.

Jones said, "Today, each who weathered the opposing forces reigns as the 'captain of his ship' and each has safely piloted his vessel to the site where we stand today."

Margaret Schaefer delivered the salutatory address, and Clyde Galloway presented the senior gift to the school.

Olton High School Principal Joe Turner presented the graduates to Johnny Clark Jr., school superintendent, and Gilbert Roberson, school board president, who presented the departing seniors with diplomas.

Mike Read, senior journalism student from Texas Tech, has been employed by The Olton Enterprise as a newsman for the summer months.

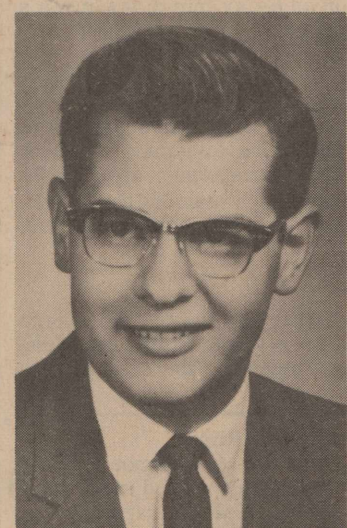

A past feature editor of The Daily Toreador, Read will serve as assistant editor of the paper next school year.

He is a 1960 graduate of Amarillo High School and attended his first two years of college at Amarillo College, where he was political editor of the Amarillo College Ranger.

The young newsman has a political science minor and is a past president of Lubbock County Young Democrats.

He has attended school for four years on the Eldon Durrett Memorial Scholarship.

He and his wife, Jill, are residents of Lubbock.

Meters If Wasted

Olton residents must use water wisely during the next few months of heavy usage, or face the possibility of having meters installed throughout the city.

That warning came Wednesday from Mayor Bill Thomas, who urged efficient watering of lawns.

"We have plenty of water, and we want people to use all they need," the mayor said. "But we do not want to see it wasted."

He asked that people "refrain from running water down the streets" when watering lawns.

"We will issue first a warning to anyone violating this request," the mayor declared. "If the party continues this wasteful practice, his water will be placed on meter," he added.

Thomas reminded residents that once a water user goes on meter, he must remain there a year before he will be allowed to change back to the current flat rate used by the city.

"The State Fire Insurance Commission has warned the city that wasteful practices will necessitate the installation of meters for everyone in Olton," Mayor Thomas said.

"Our problem is not one of supply," Thomas said. "It is one of distribution."

Insurance representatives warned the city that during peak summer usage, wasteful practices by residents could force such a shortage that enough water might not be available in case of major fire.

Thomas said the city is gradually improving its fire protection situation. He noted that the city council last year okayed drilling of a new well and this year is purchasing a new fire truck. A lower key rate for fire insurance is expected in the next 12 months.

"We now have three wells instead of the two we had last summer, and our storage for the present is adequate," the mayor said.

"The thing that works against us is our distribution system." Thomas said the city actually is using more water than the pumps can force through an eight-inch main.

What the city needs, Thomas said, is a 10-inch main from storage areas to the first branch of the water distribution system.

"Then we need to go in and add a six-inch main to replace some two-inch line. A dozen fire plugs are needed, too," he said.

"This will take three or four years to accomplish, and will cost several thousand dollars," Mayor Thomas explained.

SNOW BALL IN THE SPRING—Snow Ball, a rare albino shetland mule born May 15, is dwarfed by her breeder, J. D. Rogers. Rogers has been breeding the unusual hybrid mules for two years now and has been rewarded with the rarest of them all—an albino cross between a paint shetland mare and a paint jack.

Rogers Raising Rare White Mule

Snow Ball, owned by J. D. Rogers, area farmer, is a most unusual mule.

Although white as fresh driven snow, no snow was in sight when this Snow Ball was born.

Being a mule is distinctive, but Snow Ball is a shetland mule—which is even more distinctive. To top off her other accomplishments, Snow Ball is an albino—completely white except for her pink nose and eyes.

As an albino shetland mule, Snow Ball is probably the most unusual animal in the area.

Snow Ball is not the only unusual animal in the Rogers menagerie. Rogers also has a couple of spotted shetland mules—spotted being only slightly less unusual than albino, though not nearly so rare—and a six week old solid black shetland mule.

The farm also boasts an Apalosa shetland—a cross between a shetland mare and an Apalosa stallion.

Rogers, who enjoys training animals when he can find the time, also has a 20 month old Apalosa stallion, Hi Fi Jr., on the farm. The stallion has been trained and can perform several tricks.

He also has a spotted jack, a spotted jenny and several shetlands on the farm.

The shetland mule is a hybrid, and, in almost all cases, is sterile. "I've never known any," Rogers said, "that reproduced their kind." Snow Ball weighed 38 pounds when she was one day old, and she looks a lot like a shetland with the head of a mule.

Rogers has been raising shetlands since 1954 and started the hybrid crossing to produce the shetland mule about two years ago.

Lamb Sale Nets $2900

Approximately 100 lambs changed hands this past Saturday at the Olton Sheep Breeders Association's Annual Lamb Sale. The lambs brought a total of $2900.50 for an average $29 per lamb.

C. M. Moss sold the top and second-top lambs. Both lambs were Hampshires, and the best one sold for $80—making it the highest priced lamb of the sale. The second-best lamb of the sale went for $58. Moss also had the highest average for lambs sold by a single individual—$50.07.

Buyers representing FFA chapters were present from Amarillo, Bovina, Dimmitt, Hart, Littlefield, Midland, Nazareth, Petersburg, Plainview and the local area. Individual buyers from the local area and surrounding towns were also present.

General Rain Brings Area Needed Moisture

A much-needed and most-welcome—at least for the farmer—rain paid a brief visit to the area Tuesday.

The rains could slow high-way construction in the area for a day or two, but they give agriculture production a shot in the arm.

Although the thunderstorms were rather scattered across the area, the local area received a fairly even amount of rainfall from the storms.

From the W. R. Bean farm southeast of Olton came the comment: "Real good rain. Hit where it was needed and stayed where it hit. We could use some more." The farm, one-and-a-half miles from town received about .50 inch of rain.

The Paul Feathernigill farm

a half miles north of Olton got .70 inch of rain, and Mrs. Feathernigill said of the moisture, "I think it was a lifesaver."

The H.M. Langford farm five miles west of town soaked up .80 inch of moisture, and the comment on the rain was, "Just wonderful—a lifesaver I reckon."

Elmer McGill, southwest of town, said "It sure was a nice rain." He got about three-quarters of an inch and remarked,

Tentative Date Set To Dedicate New Post Office

The Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture has set July 8 as the tentative date for the dedication of the new Olton Post Office.

All arrangements are subject to the approval of the Post Office Department, but the C-CA hopes to dedicate the new building between 2 and 5 p.m., Wednesday, July 8.

The move into the new building will probably take place in three or four weeks, when the new building is made available to Postmaster I.B. "Doc" Holt.

Many To Close

Memorial Day is a Chamber of Commerce-sanctioned holiday in Olton, C-CA Manager Melvin McReynolds reminded residents this week.

McReynolds said he expects most of the town's businesses to be closed Saturday in observance of the holiday.

Olton State Bank will be closed for the day, as will post office windows.

Churches Set Plans For Bible Schools

Area churches have moved into the summer with vacation plans of Bible schools.

Hopewell Baptist Church began its Summer Bible School program Monday and will bring the program to a close Friday, May 29, with an evening commencement exercise.

The First Methodist Church will begin its program—for ages 4 through 12—Saturday, May 30, at 9 a.m. The Bible school program will come to a close Friday, June 5.

The First Baptist Church will have two programs this year. Bible school for ages 3 through 12 will begin Monday, June 1, and last until Friday, June 12, with sessions lasting from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The intermediate program, for ages 13 through 16, begins Friday, June 5, and lasts through Thursday, June 11, with sessions from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The Main Street Church of Christ will have three programs associated with vacation Bible school. The high school class will meet each day, June 9-12, at 8 p.m. The session for those from the age of 2 through the eighth grade, will last—along with an adult session—from 9 to 11 a.m. from June 15 through June 19.

The Nazarene Church will also begin its Bible school—for ages 4 through 14—on June 15 and end the program Friday, June 19.

An Opportunity To Judge

The question of abolishing the office of county school superintendent has been in a cross-fire about three weeks now.

The man on the job, C. Roy Stevens, naturally has defended the position. His critics have hit hard with a theme of "wasted money."

We think we have gathered enough information of our own the past three weeks to have an opinion of our own.

While taxpayers' money is, indeed, a real issue, we think there is another one which needs bringing to the front.

That is the issue of wasted effort.

It does not seem necessary to us that the county superintendent "submit" the report of a local school district census to the State.

Why shouldn't the local district do this itself? All the work of preparing the census is done by and financed by the local district.

It does not seem necessary to us that the county superintendent "approve" transfer of pupils between two school districts.

Why, indeed, shouldn't the local districts themselves perform this duty? Both local districts must consent to a transfer before the county superintendent can go through the formality of "approving" it.

There are many other questions we would like to ask, and we will ask them in weeks to come.

In the meantime, we think it highly advisable that everyone possible sign a petition now circulating.

All this petition does is ask that an election be called to let the voters decide whether the post should be abolished.

We think the people should be given this chance.

Philosopher Finds Comfort In Lady Bird's Farm Profit

Editor's note: The Running Water Philosopher on his care-free farm on Running Water Draw takes note of a certain famous farmer this week.

Dear editor:

There are some types of news that sort of jump out at you from a newspaper and then continue to stare you in the face throughout the day.

A sample is the news I read in a newspaper yesterday morning before I began my day's work. Some farmers fill up their tractor with oil and gas and then take off, but I always figured I ought to fuel up my mind too and consequently like to look over a newspaper before starting out so my brain will have something to operate on also. Sometimes you don't find much, but then sometimes it doesn't take much for a brain to run on. If you will adapt your brain to whatever newspaper is handy, you'll find you can get by on very little, and while I'm not naming any newspapers, frequently it's a necessity.

Down Memory Lane

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Cumberland Presbyterian Church sanctuary were held Sunday afternoon just east of the present building.

Little league election was held and W. T. Hall was named baseball commissioner for the little league.

Jerry Parker, a ministry music student from Wayland, will be music leader and educational director for the First Baptist Church.

Miss Janice Gallaway was installed as worthy advisor of the Order of the Rainbow Girls at the Masonic Hall by Latrell Stewart the installing officers.

Forty-six members of Olton High School will be graduated in ceremonies Friday night and then will leave early Saturday for an 8-day trip to the nation's capital.

Olton High School will have two Future Homemakers of America chapters and Gayle Machen, a senior next year, will head the older chapter.

Hail and rain did some damage in the Olton area Monday night but the damage was isolated.

VISITS PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Caley and children visited in the home of Mrs. Caley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Cocke of Petersburg over the weekend.

According to this item, Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, the President's wife, made only $284 profit on a 4000-acre farm in Alabama last year.

I thought about this all day and came to some conclusions.

In the first place, this proves the folly of keeping books on a farming operation. It's a lot better to wind up a year knowing which is what Mrs. Johnson's farm made. At that figure, a man would need 50,000 acres to clear only $3,500 a year, and there's not that much land to go around on earth, even if you count the floor of the ocean.

Mrs. Johnson says she's saving this land for her children, but you reckon that's a favor to them?

I know this is unscientific, but I don't care to know in black and white how much per acre this careless weed farm is making.

At any rate, it's good to know that Mrs. Johnson and me are farming along the same lines and it's a comfort to know that we've got a President whose wife can tell him us farmers aren't coining money.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

MISFORTUNES CAN BE CORRECTED

Dear Amy:

I'm a young fellow in my mid-twenties and I have had the misfortune of becoming completely bald. I'm very embarrassed in company and seldom go out without a hat on. I want to buy a hair piece but my father says it's against nature. He is 25 years older than I and has been bald for 10 years. What should I do?

Hairless

Dear Hairless:

If a hair piece will soothe your vanity, get one. What looks good on father may not look good on you... yet!

Dear Amy:

I am writing this for a very dear old friend of mine who had been invited on Mother's day week-end to a friend in Philadelphia to stay a few days. Saturday evening they had been invited for a turkey dinner party and wanted to take her along but she refused as her husband had died a few months before. She was not in the mood for a party. So she left for home and forgot her dress. Now those friends refused to give the dress when other friends called for it. They want her to come and get it herself. But she has high blood pressure, is over 70 years of age and can stand no more excitement. Isn't there anything we can do about this?

Wanting to Help

Dear Wanting:

Do your friend a favor by getting in touch with these people and request they return her dress for the reasons you mentioned. If they still refuse, they are not to be considered her friends.

Dear Amy:

My boss went to the hospital to undergo surgery and he's feeling pretty low. A few of the fellows suggested we chip in and send him something. Everybody had a different suggestion. We ruled out a plant (too feminine), a basket of fruit (nobody went for it) and pajamas (they said let his wife buy that). But the guys all agree on a bottle of liquor. They think he would appreciate that more than anything else.

What do you think? Is it in good taste?

The Chairman

Dear Chairman:

Although your gift may be tasty to the boss, sending liquor to a hospital patient is a new one on me. His spirits may be low... but your gift may make him 'high'. Check with his Doc.

Dear Amy:

My husband works in a large city about 60 miles from where our home is. He doesn't commute to work daily but comes home just for the week-ends. By accident, I came across a letter from a girl (who lives in the city) addressed to him at his rooming house. The letter sounded as though they knew each other pretty well. When I questioned him, he explained that she was just a friend and there was nothing between them. As far as he was concerned, the incident was closed... but I called the girl. I didn't let on who I was and pumped her. The story she told was much more romantic than my husband's version.

Amy, what should I do? I don't want to leave him and I have our children to think of. I know he still loves me.

No Name Please

Dear No Name:

At a distance, your husband offers no resistance. A lonely man in a big city is a sitting duck for a slick chick. Before you are replaced by a part-time Miss, join him as a full-time Mrs.!

Dear Amy:

I'm getting married in a few months and my future mother-in-law is arguing with my fiancé that after we are married we should live with her. I would like to get a place of my own but my fiancé doesn't want to antagonize her and feels we should live with her for a little while. What should I do?

Bride-to-be

Dear Bride:

Start your marriage off right with a place of your own. Most mothers-in-law are grand if you don't have to live with them. If you don't have to, DON'T!

The gown was designed with a bodice top of Venice lace, with cap sleeves and a portrait neckline. The panel skirt was accented with a chapel train and a large butterfly bow. A crown of pearls held her veil of imported silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of dawn pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Charlotte Taylor of Lubbock was the maid of honor and her bridesmaids were Miss Rona Russell, Miss Judy Guyner of Dallas and Miss Melva Lynn Ross of Sundown.

The best man was William DeBerry, brother-in-law of the groom and groomsmen were Kent Wozencraft of Riverside, Calif., Jack Royce Straw of Hereford and Jack Hysinger of Olton.

Miss Barbara Shipp of Shallowater was soloist, singing "Because", and "The Lords Prayer", accompanied by Larry Douglas on the organ.

FRENCH BARS

4 eggs, well beaten
2 1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed

1 1/2 cup soured heavy cream*
1 1/2 tsp. baking soda
2 1/4 cup unsifted flour

1 tsp. cinnamon
1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 cup chopped walnuts

1 1/2 cup cut-up dates
1 cup. toasted flaked coconut
Add sugar to eggs and beat until thick. Stir in soured cream.

Blend in dry ingredients. Stir in nuts, dates and coconut. Do not overmix batter.

Spread into two lightly greased 14 1/2 x 10 1/2 x 1 inch pans or three 13 x 9 x 2 inch pans. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 20 minutes. Cool. Frost if desired. Makes 80 bars.

* This is heavy cream allowed to sour; do not substitute commercial sour cream. The commercial sour cream contains less fat and gives a less tender product except in recipes developed especially for its use.

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING
1 lb. confectioners sugar, sifted
1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup orange juice
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. grated orange peel

Combine ingredients and beat until creamy. Spread on cooled bars. Let frosting set; rinse a sharp knife in cold water and use to cut iced bars (1 1/2 x 2 1/2 inch.)

NOTE: You may wish to frost only one pan of bars, storing the other uncut and unfrosted.

Thompson Imp. Smothers Blue Sox 12-5

In the final game of Tuesday's double header, Thompson Imp. defeated the Halfway Blue Sox, 12-5.

Thompson Imp. was never behind as they built up leads of 2-0, 3-0, 3-0, 4-1, 9-5 and 12-5 as the six-inning game progressed.

The Blue Sox rally in the fifth inning--which produced four runs--fell short following the five-run barrage led down by Thompson Imp., in the first half of the inning.

David Turner, c, scored in the second, fifth and sixth innings for Thompson Imp. His three-run total was not matched by any other member of either team during the game, and gives him the league lead in runs scored.

Roger Pinkerton, tb, lead the scoring for the Blue Sox with two runs--one each in the fourth and fifth innings.

Thompson Imp., however, made six errors during the game, while the Blue Sox bobbled the ball only three times.

Red Sox Tounce Olton Co-Op 9-4

The Halfway Red Sox opened the Olton Little League baseball season by touncing the Olton Co-Op Gin, 9-5.

The Red Sox got off to a fast start, as they collected four runs in the first inning--although they had no hits during the inning. Olton Co-Op Gin came back strong with three runs on two hits to stay in the game.

The Red Sox picked up one run on one hit in the second inning, while Co-Op Gin was shut out on one hit.

The Sox moved four runs ahead in the third inning, as they picked up three runs while Co-Op Gin was getting one run on one hit.

Neither team collected any runs in the fourth inning, but the Red Sox added one more run to their margin in the fifth, as they collected one run on four straight bases on balls--Co-Op Gin was retired 1,2,3 in the fifth inning.

The Red Sox went scoreless in the sixth inning and saw their 9-4 lead trimmed by one point--to the final 9-5 score--as Olton Co-Op Gin put three men on base and collected one run before being retired.

Ronnie McDolland, rf, scored two runs for Co-Op Gin, and Carol Blackwell, fb, scored two runs for the Red Sox.

New Fashion In Auto Licenses

Texas automobile license plates will have a new look in 1965—a format that is designed both to make the tag easier to see and read and to provide more number combinations.

Herbert Dunn, Lamb County Tax Assessor-Collector, has a sample of the new tags and the new is that the long-used two-letter prefix will be replaced by three letters and only three digits will be used.

Both the word "Texas" and the year numbers will be larger on the new plates than on the old, reportedly giving readability up to 125 feet for persons with normal vision.

The black-white color combination will be retained, with the 1965 license plates being white with black letters and numbers.

Although the sample plate has the prefix "SAM—for sample—there will be no vowels nor the letter "Q" appearing on any of the new tags. And no "special" letters will be available—such as LBJ or JFK.

The primary reason given for the omission of vowels is to avoid the possibility of spelling out words or having undesirable combinations.

The state has calculated that it can make 7,290,000 different license plates by using the three letters and three digits format.

The state issued about 6.5 million license plates this year. Texas is the third-ranking state in the nation in total number of auto licenses issued. New York is first, closely followed by California.

One thing unchanged about the new tags—they won't go on sale until the usual time—Feb. 1, 1965.
