$14.3 Million in Crude Oil, Natural Gas Produced Here

The production of crude oil and natural gas in 1974 continued to have a significant impact on the economy of Aransas County, with the estimated value of the county's production, royalty payments, and state severance taxes reaching new highs.

Aransas was one of 197 counties—an increase of four from 1973—which produced oil and gas valued in excess of $100,000 in a year which saw the total value of state production jump from just over $6.7 billion to almost $11.4 billion.

The county ranked 119th in the state in the total value of petroleum produced—$14.3 million—with $6 million of that coming from the sale of 860,247 barrels of crude oil; $8.3 million from the sale of 28.5 million MCF of natural gas.

This study by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association shows also that the county's petroleum production last year resulted in the payment of $1.8 million to royalty owners.

"These figures, whether considered statewide or individually in almost 80 percent of Texas' 254 counties, emphasize the importance of a healthy petroleum industry in the nation's No. 1 energy state," said Sherman Hunt, a Dallas independent oil man who is president of Texas Mid-Continent.

"In the face of declining production in Texas, it is significant that this increased return to royalty owners and producers came from crude oil and natural gas which is free from restrictive federal price controls. But there are at this time proposals in Congress which would place all of Texas' petroleum production under federal price controls, with predictable disastrous consequences for the industry, as well as the whole economy of the state," Hunt said.

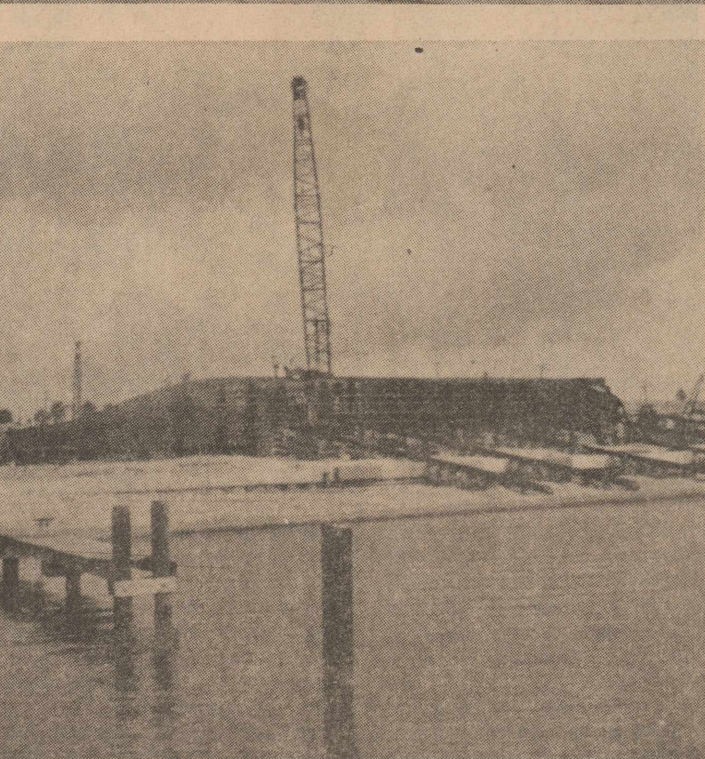

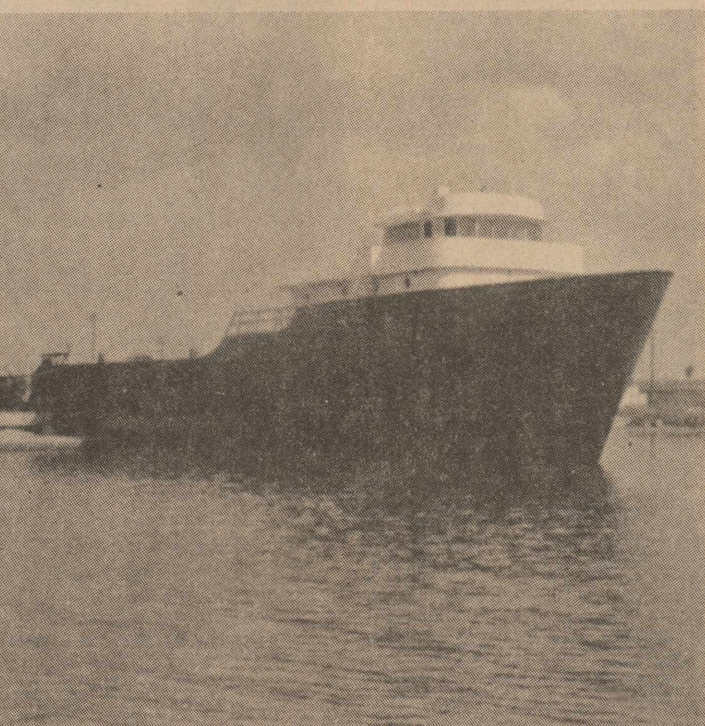

The survey also shows that the State of Texas received $900,000 in production taxes from county wells, with $277,000 coming from crude oil output and $623,000 from natural gas production.

Oil and gas developers spent an estimated $2.4 million drilling 18 wells in the county last year, with 27.7 percent of that figure lost in eight dry holes. The total drilling yielded one oil well and nine gas wells. The exploratory effort in the county included the drilling of nine wildcat wells seeking new oil and gas fields.

According to the Texas Employment Commission, 166 oil and gas industry employees worked in the county in 1974 and shared a payroll totalling $1.4 million.

Processing plants also added to the county's petroleum-related economy: The "Oil and Gas Journal" lists one carbon black plant and one natural gasoline processing plant, with a daily capacity of 75 million cubic feet.

RYSCO LAUNCHES SHIP, HUNDREDS WATCH EVENT

LAUNCH HUGE VESSEL — As more than 200 workers and spectators watched, this ship—the largest ever built by Rockport Yacht and Supply Company—was launched last Saturday after being under construction for over eight months. It will go into action for a firm that services offshore oil rigs and platforms. This vessel is 175 feet long and 38 feet wide.

In the bottom photo is shown the latest ship of the same general type which is now under construction at the RYSCO shipyards. It will be even larger than the first one, measuring 185 feet by 38 feet.

Tennis Tourney Winners Named

Dr. Jim Wideman and Ann Van Vooren, winners of Division A of the third annual Rockport Summer Fun Mixed Doubles tennis tournament, were presented the Fred Whittle Memorial trophy Sunday afternoon at the conclusion of the two-day tournament at Rockport Racquet Club. They defeated Jack O'Shay and Katie Heck, 7-6 and 6-1. A tie-breaker was required to decide the first set.

The trophy, which honors the memory of Fred Whittle, retired Air Force colonel who spent the last years of his life promoting tennis in the Rockport area, especially among young players, was presented by his widow, Gunny Whittle, widely known local artist.

Winners of Division B were Joe Hugenberg and Nancy Moran who took the finals match, 6-1; 6-2, from Tom Heffernan and Judy Karcher.

Division C winners were Bob Dingemary and Helen Tatar who defeated Don King, Jr., and Eileen Casterline 7-6 and 6-1.

Paul Revere silver bowls were presented to winners and runners-up in the three divisions.

The three final matches attracted what is believed to be the largest crowd ever to witness tennis matches in the Rockport area. Also, spectators were on hand for all of the matches which began at 8 a.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament was announced as the first officially designated Bicentennial event in the Rockport area. Flags and bunting in keeping with the patriotic theme of the Bicentennial were used to decorate the tennis court area, and a large mobile sign sponsored by Rotary Club announced that the tournament was a Bicentennial event.

There were two social events during the tournament week. (Continued on Page Two)

Tourism Up from $16 Million To $160 Million In 20 Years

Encouraging progress in the continuing campaign to attract more tourists to the lower Coastal Bend area was reported by Bob Conwell, managing director of the Corpus Christi Convention and Tourist Bureau, at a luncheon meeting of Rotary Club July 16 at Sandollar Restaurant.

Conwell is completing 20 years with the Corpus Christi organization and is considered dean of Texas Tourist Association executives. He reported that when he started in the business there was considerable opposition among some leaders in this area to making it a tourist attraction. Many of the old timers wanted the coastal area to remain unchanged and often resented an annual invasion of tourists.

It was Conwell's opinion that this feeling has largely disappeared as residents of this area have come to realize the economic importance of tourism and to look on it as a business. He added that tourism in this area has grown from $16 million to $160 million in annual income in the time he has been active in the business.

In recent years the importance of convention business to this area has been recognized and only this year the name of his association has been changed to include it, he said.

Conwell said that 10 years ago the state administration became concerned about the public image of Texas and Texans so it authorized a public opinion survey of the subject. It was learned that a majority of outsiders believed Texas was "a vast dry, hot land largely inhabited by loud-mouthed folks who wore boots and 10-gallon hats and were forever bragging about their state." Several years later a second survey was commissioned. In this survey it was the opinion of northerners that Texas was "a vast, hot land largely inhabited by loud-mouthed folks who wore boots and 10-gallon hats and were forever bragging about their state."

As a result, out-of-state advertising now stresses the vast variety and appeal of Texas such as its thousands of lakes and miles of seashore as well as its mountains of which there are nine more than a mile high. As a result, according to Conwell, Texas' public image has gradually changed for the better with an accompanying upswing in tourist traffic.

He admitted that the gasoline shortages of last year had an unfavorable effect on tourism, but this has been overcome by a number of actions, such as scores of bus tours from Canada combined with more attention to attracting tourists from neighboring states and from Texas itself. He pointed out that the shorter distance to Texas from the midwest as compared with trips to Florida and California has been a factor, as well as lower costs for visitors to Coastal Bend communities.

Conwell asserted that many authorities on tourism compare the Coastal Bend area of Texas today with the Miami area of 30 to 40 years ago. They see a comparable growth for this area. He added that several nearby communities have enacted a hotel and motel tax to help finance the cost of advertising to prospective tourists.

Conwell paid tribute to Rockport's upcoming SeaFair festival scheduled for Oct. 11 and 12 as a commendable attempt to attract more Texans to the seacoast during a period between the close of the summer season and beginning of the winter season.

WINTER CREEL SURVEY RESULTS ARE COMPUTED

Palacios — Winter fishermen along the Texas coast landed more speckled trout than any other species; at least, that's one bit of information gleaned from a creel survey of four major bay systems by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department coastal fisheries personnel.

The survey is part of a year-long study of sportfishermen's catches at Galveston, San Antonio and Aransas Bays and the Upper Laguna Madre.

Initiated in spring 1974, the survey will serve as a model for monitoring sport catches in all major Texas bays.

Checks of sport anglers during December 1974 and January and February 1975 showed that fishermen reeled in some 102,000 pounds of speckled trout from the Upper Laguna Madre, the most of any of the four bays checked.

San Antonio Bay yielded the most redfish, nearly 15,000 pounds; some 56,000 pounds of black drum were harvested from Galveston Bay and the Upper Laguna accounted for nearly 35,000 pounds of flounder.

A total of 610,556 pounds of fish were taken from the four bay systems during the winter quarter of the study.

Tom Heffernan, Parks and Wildlife Department biologist in charge of the creel survey, said that wade and bank fishermen and pier fishermen accounted for a good deal of the fish taken during the winter months.

Truett Roach Is Honored

William J. Ratliff, new president of Rockport Lions Club, presented a plaque of appreciation to Truett A. Roach, immediate past president of the club, at the first regular meeting of the new year last Thursday noon, July 17, at the Sandollar Restaurant, with a statement: "This is for a very successful year observing the 25th anniversary of the club with good projects and an increase in membership."

Robert E. Konvicka, chairman for the recent annual July 4 barbecue, reported that the dinner netted almost $1,200 through the cooperation of members and the support of the community. A number of local programs are promoted by the Rockport Lions Club including eye care for school children, Little League, a Cub pack and scholarship.

In setting out ten goals for the club during the 1975-76 year, President Ratliff emphasized that there would be continued recognition of the club's responsibility in the community through worthwhile projects of service.

The Rockport Lions continue to meet on the first and third Thursday noon for a luncheon meeting at the Sandollar Restaurant.

Live Oak State Bank Will Be One Year Old on July 31

Live Oak State Bank will observe its first anniversary on Thursday, July 31, 1975.

George S. Cone, Jr., president, said that on that day "we will have open house for all our customers and friends and all area persons will be welcome to stop in for refreshments and allow us to express our appreciation for the fine acceptance we have received in one year in the Rockport area."

Cone pointed out that the board of directors, stockholders and all employees of the bank are pleased that in one year it has grown into an institution with assets of over $4 million.

Cone also stated that at the first anniversary open house there will be a drawing and the prizes will be two limited, signed prints of paintings by the noted artist, E.M. "Buck" Schiweitz.

Schiweitz, who is now residing in Rockport, has long been recognized as one of the most successful artists in capturing the scenic and architectural beauty of Texas in watercolors, etchings, oils, lithographs and mixed-media paintings.

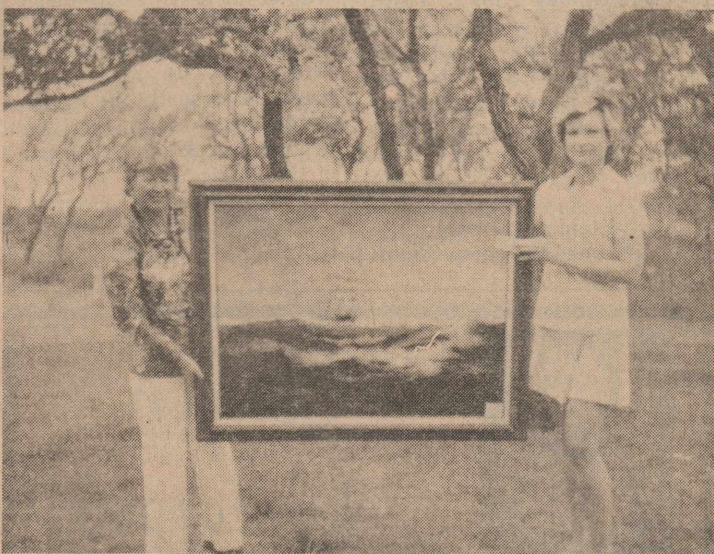

TWO MAKE SOLO FLIGHTS

Two new pilots took to the air July 17 at the Aransas County Airport. Richard (Rick) Berry, 26, and Thomas (Peden) Rogers, 19, both of Rockport, made their first solo flights. This is the first time the student is allowed to fly the airplane alone and it is a memorable experience.

Rick Berry took his first flying lesson June 18 and Peden Rogers started June 19. Both students are enrolled in the new Cessna Pilot Center training course offered by Aransas Aviation located at the Aransas County Airport.

A new 1975 Cessna Skyhawk is used for the course. This aircraft is equipped with a full instrument panel and all the radio equipment needed to fly the aircraft without visual reference to the ground and this training is included in the flight course.

Anyone interested in learning to fly may contact Aransas Aviation at 729-7657 and arrange an introductory flight lesson.

The Colonel On Chicken

Colonel Sanders, the white-suited southern gentleman who has sold a lot of fried, isn't always satisfied with the "fixins" at restaurants bearing his name.

This may surprise those who think Colonel Sanders, 84, owns the restaurant chain, or a major part of it. Years ago Sanders sold out for $2,000,000. The business men who bought from him later sold out for $20,000,000—to a major conglomerate.

The Colonel has continued to advertise for the chain, make public appearances and promote KFC. Yet he has not always been satisfied. Now he says he wants to open a new chain, different from KFC, because he wants to give the folks something better.

Maybe the Colonel can do that and maybe he's correct in his criticism. Some customers have at least hoped of late that the price of fried chicken would come down; KFC's new ribs are even more expensive than chicken.

No doubt about it being finger-lickin' good but what many want today is good chicken (and fixins) at an old-time price.

Winter Creel—

Heffernan, "most of the fish and especially trout are affected by cold weather and move into deep holes and cuts."

"Non-boat fishermen can take better advantage of this and are more productive than private boat fishermen who might be kept onshore because of the bad weather."

Heffernan said that private boat fishermen in the Aransas area tallied 111,000 man-hours of angling during the summer months, but this dropped to only 50,000 hours in the winter.

The data has not been analyzed as yet, but Heffernan feels certain that out-of-state fishermen contributed much to the total winter catch, especially in the Upper Laguna Madre.

Creel survey work in the four bays will continue until September. At that time a full year of catch information will be on record: the total sport fish harvest by species from each bay and the percentage composition of those species in the creel.

With the approval of the Parks and Wildlife Commission, in the fall Heffernan and his crews will move on to the Sabine, Matagorda and Corpus Christi Bays and the Lower Laguna Madre.

And on alternate years, each of the pairs of four systems will be rechecked but on a smaller scale.

Heffernan said that cooperation from sport fishermen has been excellent throughout the work.

"We interview fishermen at designated check stations," he said, "and record the number of fish caught, types of fish, weight and length of fish, duration of fishing trip, gear used and type of bait used."

"Survey samples are taken from private boat fishermen, commercial pier fishing, and wade/bank/private pier fishing."

When all is done, biologists will know what types of fishermen are catching what percentage of fish and on what kinds of bait. They will have some indication of the effects of sport fishing pressure on particular species in a particular bay.

This vital information will enable coastal biologists to develop a sound base for the regulation of both sport and commercial fishing on the Texas coast.

Petty and Hunt Unite

Miss Rosa Lynn Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. (Woody) Hunt, La Porte, Tex., became the bride of Steven D. Petty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammie D. Petty, Pasadena, Texas, in an afternoon ceremony June 28 at First United Methodist Church in La Porte.

Rev. Gary Munion performed the double ring ceremony. Decoration for the ceremony was an archway entwined with greenery flanked on each side by candelabra with white wicker baskets of gladiolas, blue babies'-breath and greenery on each side. Garlands of greenery were draped along the pews to the altar.

Music was furnished by organist, Lindy Lyons and vocalist, David Blossingame who sang "Time in a Bottle," "More" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Hunt was escorted down the aisle by her father, Frank D. Hunt and she wore a designer gown of imported silk organza and chantilly lace. An empire bodice of lace featured a scalloped, scooped neckline trimmed with bridal pearls and bishop sleeves with bands of lace with pleated ruffles extended from the waist to the hem and bands of lace circled the hemline. She also wore a full-length mantilla veil with matching lace held in place by a lace and pearl Juliet cap.

For her bouquet she carried a cascade of carnations, blue babies'-breath and greenery surrounding a white orchid with streamers of ribbons tied in lovers' knots.

Mrs. Wayne Callahan, sister of the bride from Little Rock, Ark., was matron of honor. She wore a blue floral dress of mirra mist over satin fashioned with a belted empire waist with butterfly sleeves. She wore blue babies'-breath in her hair. She carried a nosegay of blue dipped daisies with avocado centers and blue and white babies'-breath and blue streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Suzanne Bayette, Mrs. Jackie Fallic and Mrs. Peggie Smith. They wore dresses and hairpieces identical to the matron of honor.

The best man was Warren Petty, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Ted Locklear, Jeff Turner and Bob Bain. The ushers were Blane Hunt, brother of the bride, and David Pilkington. They all wore blue tuxedos with blue shirts and black pants.

The bride's mother wore a long hot pink chiffon dress with dark pink accessories and matching orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a long turquoise knit dress with matching accessories and an orchid corsage to match.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall and was highlighted by the bride's table which was covered with white ruffled dotted swiss skirt with greenery around the edge. In the center was the four-tier wedding cake decorated with light blue roses and daisies topped with doves with silver candelabra holding blue bridal tapers on each side with blue nosegays in front.

The groom's table was covered with a blue ruffled dotted swiss cloth with greenery around the edge. The centerpiece was an arrangement of blue flowers with candles on each side. The two-tier German chocolate groom's cake, topped with ball and chain, was at one end with a silver coffee service at the other.

Punch was served from a silver punch bowl on a round table done in white dotted swiss and greenery around the edge. The register table was done in white with greenery with a bird cage with doves, greenery and grapes with blue rice bags in small white baskets on the side.

Assisting at the reception were Miss Kay Kinsey, cousin of the bride, Miss Carol Sartor, cousin of the bride, Miss Carol Parker, Mrs. Connie Petty, sister-in-law of the groom, Miss Barbara Ryan, Mrs. Debbie Thompson, Miss Nelda Wilson and Mrs. Debbie Norwine.

The bride wore a three-piece peach knit suit for going away ensemble with a white orchid corsage and white accessories.

After a short trip to San Antonio the couple will make their home in Pasadena.

The bride is a graduate of La Porte High School and attended San Jacinto Jr. College. She is currently enrolled at the University of Texas Dental Branch in Houston studying to be a dental hygienist.

The groom is a graduate of Deer Park High School. He attended Texas Lutheran College in Seguin and San Jacinto Jr. College and is presently employed at Arco.

Rona Lynn is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.W. Hamblin, Rockport, and Mrs. Velma Malchor of Corpus Christi.

Slim Janes

One of life's mysteries is how the fashion magazines and a few society leaders, who "must" stay thin, fool so many young girls into starving themselves into skinniness.

Of course, it's the chic or "in thing" to be a bean pole these days. Gaunt, hungering females haunt today's fashion slicks, and flat-chested skinnies model and rattle about in films. Of course, it's good stuff for photographers.

But the skinnies aren't good scenery for males. And just as medical authorities have recently discovered, pregnant mothers shouldn't keep their weight as low as was believed only a few years ago, one suspects the current fad, which leads girls to be underweight, is unhealthy. Healthy, robust, handsome girls—filled out to a degree—are more natural, appealing and normal.

Amber's Origin

Amber is actually a fossil tree resin that has achieved a stable state through loss of volatile constituents and chemical change under pressure beneath the ground. Largest and most significant deposits occur along the shores of the Baltic Sea.

NATO ministers agree on joint arms concept.

City Sales Tax Checks Mailed

Austin -- Comptroller Bob Bullock sent checks totaling $11.4 million Tuesday, July 15 to Texas towns and cities for their monthly July city sales tax payments.

The total July payments were smaller than the June rebates, Bullock said, because the June payments included "clean-up" allocations of money carried over or coming in late from the last round of quarterly tax payments received from merchants.

"We have now refined our system such that not a penny of city sales tax money can stay in this office longer than 45 days before being sent back to the city," Bullock said. "This is a far cry and a grand improvement from the old quarterly system with its 60 and 90-day delays."

Bullock said when the monthly system was started that cities could expect two smaller payments followed by a third larger "clean-up" payment in each three month cycle.

During the first two months of the cycle-including this month-payments are not made to cities whose allocation is less than $500.

Skiing Simple If Rules Followed

Austin -- At this time of the year, water skiers are making their impact on lakes all over Texas.

Joel Block of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's Water Safety Section warns: "Too often water skiers ignore or do not know the correct and safe methods of water skiing and become accident statistics."

"As spectacular as skiing may appear," said Block, "it is one of the easiest sports to learn. Many neophyte water skiers, especially children, can easily master the fundamentals within an hour."

If you've never been up on a pair of skis before, it's a good idea to take lessons from an instructor or an experienced skier to learn the correct and safe methods. This can be very important, because bad habits once learned are difficult to correct.

Before you hit the water, you'll probably find yourself on the beach learning such things as required equipment, tightness of your ski binders, how to hold the tow line, how to get up and how to stay up.

It may take a number of attempts to get up and moving on skis, but once you have done it, it is relatively easy to remain standing while gliding over the water. Points to remember which will add to your ease and enjoyment are:

1. Try to relax. Holding the towline too tightly and becoming tense are bad habits. Handle-grip tension has a way of transmitting itself to your legs, back and thigh muscles. A relaxed skier learns faster and takes fewer spills.

2. Fight off that fall. At least half the falls a beginning skier takes needn't happen at all. Too often, a skier feels that a fall is inevitable and simply resigns himself to a dunking.

3. If you must fall, don't fall forward. Lean to the side or back before you release the towline. In this way, you will fall in the direction of the lean. As you fall, cover your face with your forearms to cushion the impact and protect your face. Don't attempt to dive as you fall.

4. When you have recovered from a fall, give a signal by clapping your hands over your head to tell your boat operator or observer that you are all right. From that time until you are picked up in the boat or are skiing again, keep a ski lifted vertically out of the water to make it easy for you to be seen by your own boat and others.

Communications are very important between water skier, boat operator and observer. There are only two audible signals required for skiers. A shout of "In gear" means the skier is in starting position and the boat operator needs to take up the slack in the tow line.

Then, when the life is taut and the skier is ready, he shouts, "Hit it." The boat operator opens the throttle and smoothly pulls the skier to his feet.

In order for the skier to communicate with the boat operator and observer, a series of hand signals should be agreed upon.

You'll probably discover that water skiing requires much concentration and a lot of practice. If you'll commit yourself to these principles--and remember to take along common sense--you'll be in for a lot of fun out on the water.

Veterans News

Q - My education allowance check for last month has not arrived from the Veterans Administration. What should I do?

A - Check with the "vet rep" if there's one on your college campus. If not, write to the VA regional office which has your file. Be sure to provide your name, claim number and address.

Q - I'm a World War I veteran drawing compensation from the Veteran's Administration for a service connected disability. Am I eligible for a $3,000 automobile allowance?

A - No, sorry. The law restricts this benefit to eligible veterans of World War II, Korean Conflict, Post-Korean Conflict, Vietnam Era and military personnel currently on active duty.

Q - How many spinal cord injury treatment centers and prosthetic treatment centers does the Veterans Administration have?

A - As of June 1975, VA had 17 spinal cord injury centers and 20 prosthetic treatment centers for amputees, geographically dispersed around the country.

Q - I'm a 66-year-old veteran unable to work. Can I qualify for a disability pension from the Veterans Administration?

A - Probably. Laws governing VA pensions consider veterans 65 years old and older totally disabled and eligible for pension if they fall within income limitations. Suggest you contact the agency.

Q - I was discharged recently from military service and I plan to go to school under the GI Bill. How long do I have to finish schooling?

A - Under a recent law (PL 93-337, July 10, 1974) veterans are allowed 10 instead of eight years from date of separation to finish schooling.

Q - My husband was drawing compensation from the Veterans Administration for a 30 per cent disability when he died. Am I eligible for the agency's health care program, CHAMPVA?

A - If your husband died as a result of his service-connected disability and you're not eligible for the military's CHAMPUS program or medicare, you may be eligible for CHAMPVA. Check with the nearest VA hospital or clinic.

Q - When is the deadline for veterans to apply for medical treatment at Veterans Administration hospitals?

A - There is no deadline, but priority is given to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

Q - I lost my World War II National Service Life Insurance policy. How can I obtain a copy?

A - Request a copy from the Veterans Administration Insurance Center where you pay your premiums, either in Philadelphia or St. Paul, Minn. If you had a paid-up policy, direct your request to the VA Insurance Center in Philadelphia.

ANOTHER RECORD PIKE FROM GREENBELT

Austin -- Greenbelt Lake to the east of Amarillo is fast getting a reputation as the place to go for trophy northern pike.

It was only in May that a 17-pound five-ounce pike was taken from the lake to set a new Texas State Fish Record.

But on June 11, Buster Dorrough of Kress, Texas, landed an 18-pound two-ounce northern pike to break the month-old mark.

Dorrough's fish measured 41 1/2 inches in length and 17 inches in girth and was taken by trolling an artificial lure on 20-pound-test line.

TONS OF CATFISH NETS $4,000 FINE

Texarkana -- Most anglers call it a good day if they bring home a few pounds of channel catfish.

But during the spring, two Texarkana men could not be satisfied with less than one ton of the tasty fish.

And for their efforts, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens Lynn Clanton and Lawton Peacock brought them to justice where they paid $4,110 in fines for illegally trapping and netting fish.

According to P&W Law Enforcement Director Henry Burkett, this is one of the largest fines recently paid for such illegal activity.

Clanton and Peacock had been informed that illegal netting was going on in the area of Redwater in far Northeast Texas. During one of Clanton's stakeouts he heard equipment being loaded into a pickup.

After a short chase, the warden pulled over the truck and its occupants. Beneath a tarp he found that the entire pickup bed was filled with three-pound catfish.

Clanton radioed to Peacock for assistance.

The still-live fish were returned to the water and the fisherman taken before a local justice of the peace.

Texans who are interested in wildlife should investigate sources close to home before they spend too much money on books. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department prints and sells literature about Texas wildlife at a mere pittance of what such a book would cost if purchased on the commercial market.

A great deal of money is being spent each year on books that have to do with outdoor subjects. More and more of these books are being published as the interest in our environment and our wildlife grows. Some are good—some practically useless.

The P&WD publications are based, for the most part, on knowledge gained by many biologists working in the field for many years. Sometimes, however, the assistance of persons outside the department is sought if that person happens to have outstanding qualifications in that particular field. In any event, the writings are about Texas wildlife—not anything so vague and all-encompassing as wildlife of the world or of North America or the South—just Texas.

The recently-revised The Mammals of Texas is a good example of the use of an expert from outside the department. Originally published in 1960 as a contribution from the Department of Wildlife Management, Texas A&M College, the book was written, and revised in 1974, by Dr. William B. Davis, professor emeritus and former head of the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries at A&M.

This is a scholarly work which should be in the hands of every teacher, Boy Scout leader, Girl Scout leader, anyone who works with youth, every wildlife science student or anyone else who has any interest in Texas wildlife. It is the most expensive bulletin published by the P&WD at $2.36, tax included.

There are many other bulletins available on subjects that range from Brush Control in the Rio Grande Plain at 37 cents, to Freshwater fishes of Texas at 63 cents. Poisonous snakes, catfish, quail, deer, crabs, squirrel and exotic animals are just a few of the species covered.

Any office of the P&WD has these bulletins for sale or a list of those available can be obtained from the department in Austin.

Before you spend your money for expensive wildlife encyclopedia, why not investigate what is available right here in Texas?

Hippocrates said the index finger could tell a doctor how the patient's lungs were functioning. Doctors still check hands for clues.

Some medical-care units in Burlington, Vt., are giving patients copies of their medical records. It seems to reduce anxiety.

Just what everyone needs to know: to "deodorize" someone who's tangled with a skunk, use a lot of tomato juice to wash all over—then shower it off. Works on pets, too.

No one knows why, but studies show that nitroglycerin works more effectively if you stand up when you take it.

Service disabled military retirees entitled to $150 annual clothing allowances should apply well in advance of August 1 to receive them in September 1 checks. A.A. Hunter, Veterans Administration Regional Director, advised today.

Hunter noted that military retirees need not waive any portion of retirement pay to qualify.

Service disabled veterans are eligible for allowances if their prosthetic or orthopedic devices (artificial limbs, braces, wheelchairs, etc.) tend to wear out or tear clothing.

Military retirees who do not draw VA compensation for their disabilities must apply each year. This is because the agency does not maintain current records on retirees who elect military retirement pay in lieu of VA compensation, Hunter explained.

Other eligible veterans, however, including military retirees on VA compensation rolls, automatically receive the allowances each year after initial application.

My father used to delight in telling about an ornery trick that he and some of his buddies used to pull on a boy in his home town, a country village in central Illinois.
The victim was a lad whose last name was Hasty. This boy not only could not read or write but he couldn't even spell his name. To lead up to how the kids used to pester this boy, it should be explained that in this same town lived a youngster named Billy Woodrum, who everyone considered the smartest boy in town.

Almost every day, Dad and his cronies would stop Hasty and ask, "How do you spell your name?"
His reply was always the same. He would answer:

"Oh, it's H-S-T-Y-Ste, just like Billy Woodrum would say."
Dad used to tell this story over and over, and he would laugh so hard that tears would come to his eyes.

My father was a good man and I loved him, but a saint he was not, especially in his younger days.

Saturday night was a big one at the Center. Alfred Zabel and Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Ravell came over from Woodsboro and with Alfred playing accordion and Jackie Ravell on the banjo, we had some mighty good singing of about every kind of song anyone wanted to sing. Some danced, others just sang. Our faithful ladies from the Altar Society of St. Mary of the Sea Catholic Church of Aransas Pass were the hostesses for this most enjoyable program. Thanks! to all of you.

We had several guests with us and we want them to come again and that is an open invitation to all of you people wherever you are. Come out and have fun with us, for we really do have lots of fun at our home.

Sunday morning Rev. Al Bankert had another record attendance at the church service.

Sunday afternoon the ladies from the Aransas Pass V.F.W. Auxiliary came out for their afternoon game time.

Also, later Sunday afternoon a few members of North Side Church of Christ, led by Mrs. Heather Miller, came out to visit and bring articles they had made to give to the residents.

I want to thank the nice people who come out and bring clothes and magazines and many other articles for the pleasure of our residents. Gee! we have another big week coming up so if you would like to visit us and join in with some of our activities, just come on out and we feel like you will be very well pleased with the activities that our folks participate in.

Circulation of the 8mm films (standard and super) is growing. A total of 47 films were checked out during the month of June.

These films include comic skits by Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello, Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton and the Three Stooges. Other film titles available are Gulliver's Travels, Life of Abraham Lincoln, News Parade of 1973 and World Without Sun, a Jacques Cousteau adventure beneath the Red Sea.

Films may be checked out overnight. Patrons must have their own projector.

Summer Reading Program participants should check their reading charts to be sure they have read enough books to qualify for a certificate.

The library gratefully acknowledges gifts of books and memorials from Wilma F. Holloway and Bracht Lumber Co., Inc.

One might call this the era of the investigation.

IT'S A BOY

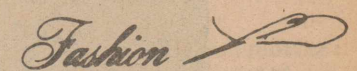

Mr. and Mrs. M.A. Grumbles, Jr., Clute, Texas, are the parents of a 7 pound 14 ounce baby boy born July 10 and named James Clinton.

Maternal grandmother is Mrs. C.B. Grumbles, Clute. Maternal grandfather is G.H. (Mac) McDaniel, Rockport. Paternal grandmother is Mrs. M.A. Grumbles, Sr., Fulton. Maternal great-grandmother is Mrs. Esther McDaniel, Rockport, and paternal great-grandmother is Mrs. George Reader, Victoria.

VISIT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Rossi, Jr., of Copano Village, Rockport, and San Antonio, recently had Mrs. Rossi's brother and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marley of La Crescenta, Calif., and their daughters, Dinah and Tashya, as their guests.

While in Rockport the two couples enjoyed a fishing trip to Cedar Bayou, catching 168 speckled trout, and a trip to the Gulf with a catch of 10 kings.

CATCH 50 FISH

Donald Brashier, Lancaster, Texas, caught an 8 pound trout Monday south of Rockport. Altogether, he and his wife caught approximately 50 fish.

A favorite hair-do this season, for those who do not prefer the very short cut, has a side part with shoulder length hair curled up on the ends.

ACCENT ON HEALTH

J.E. PEAVY, M.D.
Commissioner of Health

Chances of a poisoning within the home increase with the advent of every new household chemical, but there's one danger which has remained constant—common plants, tree and shrubs.

While vegetation in its various forms helps sustain life, many varieties are potential killers, warns the Texas Department of Health Resources. Potential sources of poison thrive in backyards and gardens all across Texas. The little-known sources of these poisons are common, garden-variety plants.

Most plants are harmless. Many are poisonous under certain conditions. A few are poisonous under nearly all conditions. More than 700 species of plants in the United States are known to have caused death or illness. Each year, about 12,000 children in this country chew or swallow potentially poisonous plants. Parents need to be especially watchful of small children, especially on picnics and outings, since they come in contact with many plants.

The poisonous nature of a plant is caused by the presence of one or more kinds of substances. There are some substances which are themselves toxic to animals; an alkaloid, for example, is the toxic principle in poison hemlock. Other substances are initially harmless but may decompose to form toxic products soon after being eaten -- an example is glucoside, a sugar produced in wild cherry which changes to form the highly toxic prussic acid. Some substances are formed by the action of micro-organisms on plants; a fungi on moldy hay forms decomposition products, some of which may be toxic. Still other substances are absorbed directly from the soil and stored in harmful quantities in the tissues of certain plants: selenium, for example, may be found in some species of locoweeds, or potassium nitrate may be present in oats.

To the average person, the term "poisonous plant" suggests one that poisons upon contact, causing a mild or severe dermatitis or skin irritation. Texas certainly has its fair share of the plants known to be capable of causing such irritations, say State Department of Health Resources officials. Possibly the most familiar are the leaves, bark, and fruit of poison ivy and poison oak.

But did you know that hairy leaves and stems of parsnip and lady slippers, the milky juice of spurge, and the leaves of the cultivated primrose are also causes of dermatitis? Lily bulbs and stalks, stinging nettles, and vanilla beans likewise have toxic qualities, and are capable of producing severe skin irritations.

Most poisonous plants are harmful only when they are eaten. In the case of nitrate-containing plants, the nitrate content is reduced to the toxic substance. This substance then enters the blood stream and changes the red pigment of the blood in such a way that it is incapable of transporting oxygen to body tissues. The result is suffocation.

Poisonous mushrooms, mostly toadstools, cause more than 100 fatalities in this country each year. Daffodil bulbs, larkspur seeds, lily of the valley flowers, and jasmine berries are all harmful if eaten. So, too, are the leaves of the poinsettia and oleander bush, and all parts of buttercups, rhododendrons, and laurels. In some plants, only particular parts are toxic. A classic example is the rhubarb which has a perfectly edible stalk, but contains a deadly poison in the leaf.

Contact poisoning can be prevented best by learning to recognize the plants and avoiding them. Of course, it is always prudent to wear protective clothing such as leggings and gloves when venturing into areas where poisonous plants are known to flourish.

If you are exposed to a poisonous plant, immediately wash the contact area with laundry soap and water to remove toxic resins.

Measures can also be taken to prevent the accidental eating of plants. Keep children away from plants and teach them not to chew plant stems or to put plant parts, such as berries or bulbs, in their mouths.

If your child does eat a plant, and you are uncertain whether it is poisonous, immediately call

FEWER CASUALTIES THIS FOURTH OF JULY

Austin -- Early reports to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department show that Texans had a quiet Fourth of July weekend on the state's public waters.

"At this time," commented Charles Talbert, P&W water safety law enforcement supervisor, "we have had reports of only 13 water-oriented fatalities this Fourth of July weekend compared with the 17 we had last year."

In all areas checked there were either fewer people on the lakes or when there were larger concentrations of people they were more safety conscious than usual.

Only one major boating accident has been reported to P&W water safety officials.

A boat exploded while refueling at a Lake Possum Kingdom marina and three people were injured, two critically.

Witnesses state that a man was at the stern of the craft refueling. One of two women who were in the bow lit a cigarette and there was a tremendous explosion.

The man was blown into the water and the women were hospitalized with burns over 65 to 85 percent of their bodies.

The boss grumps that most of his staff should be listed in Zoo's Who.

History Comes Alive At Goliad State Park

Goliad -- Just mentioning the name of Goliad to a Texas patriot is enough to conjure up visions of the state's proud history. Now, at Goliad State Historic Park, a chapter of this history vividly is brought to life by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in its remarkable interpretive display just opened to the public.

The park, located approximately one-quarter-mile south of the City of Goliad on Hwy. 183, has the dual attraction of being a magnet for history lovers and also for those looking for a pleasant spot to relax in the outdoors. It's a happy combination, judging from its year-round popularity with visitors.

And now there's more to offer than ever.

Catching the eye as one approaches the main park are the reconstructed buildings of Mission Espiritu Santo de Zuniga. The original Mission Espiritu Santo, founded in 1722 near Matagorda Bay, was moved in 1726 to Mission Valley near Victoria, then in 1749 was relocated at its present site on the San Antonio River.

The mission, which lasted longer than any other Spanish mission in Texas, was secularized in 1830, repaired for public school use in 1848, and then the buildings were used by Aransas College, one of the first established in the state for Spanish-speaking Texans. In later years, the mission remained in ruins until it became part of Goliad State Park in 1931.

The saga of the Franciscan Fathers, who founded this and many other missions, is one of courageous dedication and fortitude. Purposes of the missions were to Christianize the Indians, extend the frontiers of Spanish dominion and aid in establishing civil law. In Texas they were faced with an especially difficult problem since practically all the Indians were nomadic.

Much overall success was achieved in converting the Indians and introduction of European animals and agricultural implements and practices. The missions' long-range influence affected the course of history, in providing the nucleus of culture which eventually attracted Anglo-American settlers.

Mission Espiritu Santo prospered for many years, surrounded by spacious grazing lands and fertile fields and housing a considerable population of Indians. This was the first great cattle ranch in Texas, the vast herds being a source of supply for settlements far and wide. These herds eventually were reduced to a mere fraction, due to Apache raids and an order which declared all unbranded cattle to be the property of the Royal Treasury. In the late 1700s there began a general decline in the mission's activity, culminating in its desertion by the natives and settlement of its lands by colonists.

The outstanding new interpretive exhibit in the granary building transports the visitor back to the Spanish era. Exquisitely detailed miniature figures in a series of dioramas give a realistic view of mission life and several life-size figures give the startling illusion that the visitor himself has become part of it. Further insight into the history and natural surroundings is gained from other exhibits and a colorful slide show.

Hours of intensive work, over a period of many months, went into production of this interpretive exhibit. It involved specialized skills of TP&WD historical planners, designers, biologists, craftsmen, artists and audio-visual experts, among others. The life size figures were built out of former department store mannequins, cut apart, rewired and resculpted. The robe for the one depicting a Franciscan padre was specially woven of heavy, natural wool in authentic detail.

Still more is being planned. The interior of the chapel is to be refurbished as it was around 1775, including wall paintings. Replicas are being made and religious artifacts located and secured. A workshop will be refurbished to show the area where weaving and other crafts were taught to the Indians. There will also be an interpretive path within the mission compound, identifying such things as the remnants of a fire pit and old stone foundations. All of this will take about one year for completion.

In the park's headquarters building, a few steps from the mission, cases of later historical exhibits are on view, pertaining to the Goliad area from the end of the Spanish period. Audio-visual programs are also presented here.

There still is plenty for history buffs to explore in adjacent areas. A large portion of the park visitors, however, are equally eager to investigate the outdoors.

The park's 178 acres of gently rolling terrain beside the San Antonio River and its visitor facilities are beautifully maintained. A short distance from the headquarters building are mowed picnic areas and a children's playground. A brushy, secluded trailer area features convenient, semi-circular pull-ins, with screened shelters also available.

In another part of the park, a spacious group shelter is attractive and versatile, complete with fireplace and kitchen fully equipped to cater for large crowds. The park also has some wilderness areas, partly by the river, for picnicking, nature study and primitive camping. Boating and fishing are other favorite activities. Two miles of hiking nature trail start near the mission, giving a close-up view of the brushy woodland and varied bird life. Also to be seen on this trail are the ruins of a lime kiln and an old rock quarry which produced the stone used in construction of the mission.

The staff likes to make each visitor feel personally welcome and, according to Park Superintendent Lee Murphree, many of the visitors return regularly. Winter visitation has become as heavy, if not more so, as in summer.

This park has other historic units within easy reach. Fannin Battleground State Park is nine miles east on U.S. 183, the ruins of Mission Nuestra Señora del Rosario are four miles west and General Zaragoza's Birthplace is a quarter mile southeast of the main park headquarters.

Numerous other notable places to visit in the area include the reconstructed Presidio la Bahia, moved to its present location in 1749 for the protection of nearby missions; the historic City of Goliad itself, with its venerable courthouse and "hanging tree" and the Fannin Monument and Old Market House Museum. Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, winter home of the famous whooping cranes, is only an hour's drive from the state park.

Set in a fascinating part of the country, and especially since the park itself has so much to offer, it's no wonder Goliad State Historic Park has such a high repeat visitation.

GI BILL ENROLLMENT AT ALL TIME HIGH

GI Bill enrollments have set two record highs, topping all monthly totals for the current GI Bill and exceeding all previous fiscal year totals in only nine months, A.A. Hunter, Veterans Administration Regional Director, announced recently.

Veteran enrollments under the Veterans Administration program reach 1.8 million high mark in March, pushing the total in the first nine months of the fiscal year to 2.158 million, Hunter said. This compares to 2.128 million for all of fiscal year 1974. Enrollment among active duty servicemen also was up -- 11,000 more than the fiscal year 1974 figure -- bringing the total for veterans and servicemen to 2,370 million. College level trainees during the period numbered 1,501 million.

Hunter added that the spurts followed enactment of a December 1974 law raising benefits by 22.7 per cent.

Fifty-eight per cent of all Vietnam veterans have used at least a portion of their eligibility. This compares to 50.5 who used World War II bene-

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Martin Ragusin Pena, Sr., wish to express our most profound gratitude to those people who remembered Martin in his passing.

Special thanks go to those organizations and individuals who helped at our home. These people provided us with food and physical health that made it possible for all the people to be made welcome at our home. The great support which the entire community gave us would have made Martin a very proud man indeed.

There is no way that all acts of kindness (through flowers, cards, letters, etc.) can be repaid in full. The only way we find to do it is by simply saying thank you.

Air & Smokers

Window stickers proclaiming that restaurants maintain a section with clean air for non-smokers are now beginning to be seen across the country. In Germany, Lufthansa has declared the left side of all airliners non-smoking seats. (This affords the non-smoker cleaner air than some other seating arrangements.)

Restrictions on smoking in public places, in hospitals, on public conveyances and in other places are increasing—rightfully so. The time when a tobacco addict could cause acute discomfort to some in any room, bus, or airliner is coming to an end.

This reform, a proper consideration for the health of others, is overdue. Scientists have recently discovered that unbreathed smoke—that which curls into the air from the burning end of cigarettes—is more dangerous than that sucked through a cigarette filter.

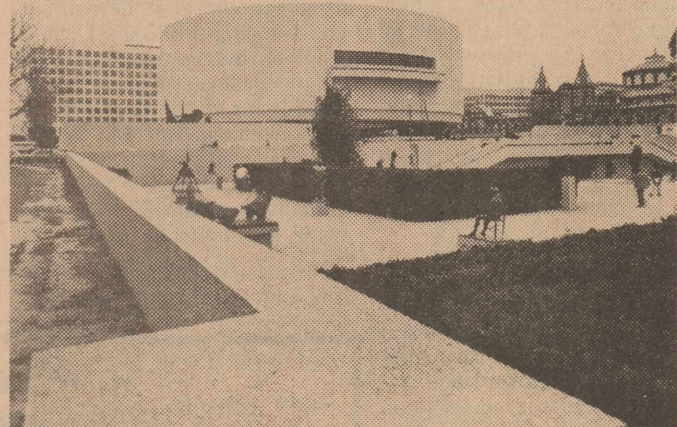

So the nice looking young lady who sits next to you and fires up, and lets her smoke drift into your face, isn't nice. If you're one of those with an allergy or a susceptibility to polluted air, she's damaging your health and that of others.

Hirshhorn Museum—'The Mighty Life Saver'

Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden as seen from the Mall.

"Suffice it to say that this building and its attendant garden of sculpture have been appropriately controversial. If it were not controversial in almost every way it would hardly qualify as a place to house contemporary art," commented S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the Smithsonian, at the dedication of the Hirshhorn Museum, Oct. 1, 1974.

The Doughnut, The Bunker, The Mighty Life Saver, all are nicknames for the Hirshhorn Museum which is exhibiting, currently, more than 800 works of art. The entire Hirshhorn collection numbers 4,000 paintings and 2,000 sculptures collected over 40 years and representing 19th century to the present in modern art. The magnificent collection, over 100 million dollars worth, represents the admiration and taste in art, plus the business savvy of one Joseph Herman Hirshhorn who believed in American art and American artists long before it became fashionable. Described by Aline Saarinen as "a little man in a big hurry" because of his penchant for buying several works of art at a time —whatever his eye and instinct dictated. More than twenty years ago, Mr. Hirshhorn responded to the dynamic energy represented by American art that would eventually influence artists all over the world, and his response was phenomenal!

The man who came from Latvia in 1905, at age six, and lived in dire poverty as the 12th of 13 children in a fatherless family (his father died when he was an infant), was earning two million a year at age 28 and had the prudence to get his money out of the stock market before the crash of '29. At the groundbreaking ceremonies, Joseph Hirshhorn referred to the establishment of the Museum which was legislated by the U.S. Congress, encouraged by the Johnson administration and named for him, as his golden moment, a special occasion celebrating a lifetime of effort and commitment.

The Museum itself is 231' in diameter with an inside courtyard 115' across. There is comfortable sitting space in the galleries and marvelous resting places, with view, in the inner circle of the museum structure, overlooking the courtyard. Beyond the great "bandbox", approached through a tunnel, is a 1.3 acre sculpture garden with a rectangular reflecting pool and many benches from which on-lookers may appreciate the massive Burghers of Calais by Rodin, Henry Moore's King and Queen, and the sculptures of Picasso, Calder and David Smith, to name a few.

At the dedication ceremonies, Secretary Ripley described the value of such a museum as a reminder that "the human mind in its relentless diversity is capable of seeing life subjectively, and being stirred by objects into new and positive ways of thought, thus escaping from the numbing penumbra of the ritual known as everyday."

GLITTER is everywhere and hats, too, are feeling the effect. This draped turban of bronze satin by Frank Olive is good for all occasions—dinner, theatre or parties, and permits the wearer to tuck hair in for an extra chic look.

Behind the Seams

BY PEGGY BENDEL

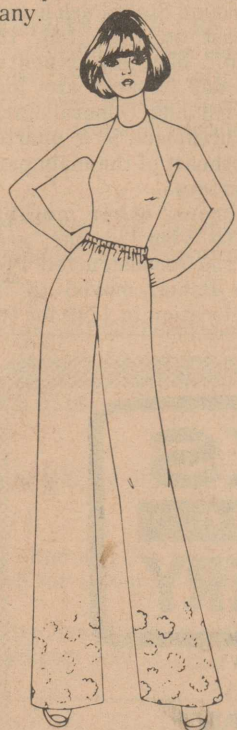

Q. Our women's guild would like to stage some kind of bicentennial event, perhaps a quilt fair. We're not sure how to go about it—can you help us? Mrs. C. A. Honodor, Denver, Colo.

A. Many organizations have found that quilts draw crowds. For ideas, perhaps you could adapt the program women in Terre Hill, Pa., used when they held their recent quilt show and sale to benefit the local volunteer fire company.

Their main attraction was a large pictorial quilt, made by the ladies' auxiliary. Each block depicted a monument or historic event in the town's past. A local art teacher sketched the blocks, and the members embroidered and applied the scenes. Then, the general public was invited to a three-day quilting bee to complete the stitching. While the ladies quilted, the men and children were treated to a variety of homemade foods, thus combining business with pleasure, just as our ancestors did.

Also finished at the quilting bee were 56 quilt tops which the women had made throughout the year. These quilts were set out for viewing by potential buyers the morning before the auction, where all quilts were sold. As good selling strategy, all the quilts were made to be machine washable and there was a variety of bed sizes including crib, king and queen.

To make your fair a standout, ask your members if they have any old quilts for an exhibit. Display fragile quilts by spreading them out on tables. Hardier quilts can be hung like paintings. To do this, sew onto the top edge of the back a long, narrow sleeve of sturdy cotton. This forms a casing into which a wooden dowel or metal rod can be inserted. Secure the dowel or rod to the wall with shelf supports or wire hangers.

SOME PATTERNS provide special layouts to help you use border fabrics effectively. Simplicity 6977 shows you how to use the border at the hemline of pull-on pants.

Proffit and Hesseltine Wed

Miss Opal Hope Hesseltine and Daniel David Proffit, Jr., were married July 19 in the Church of Christ, Rockport. Brother Daniel D. Proffit, Sr., father of the groom, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Hesseltine, Jr., and the groom is the son of Brother Daniel D. Proffit and Mrs. Proffit, Sr., of Rockport.

The church was decorated with two standing candelabra, two baskets of white mums and gladioli on stands. Songs were "We've Only Just Begun," "Speak Softly Love," "Faithful and True." Singers were Johnny, Sherry and Dennis Stephens, Austin, and Cindy Haigood, Midland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a traditional white empire style gown of organza, eyelet lace and satin ribbon trim with high neckline collar, trimmed with lace and ribbon, long puffed sleeves and an A-line skirt ending in a cathedral train. Her fingertip veil had a crown enhanced with pearls and crystal tear drops. The bride's bouquet and corsage were of yellow roses and white carnations.

Maid of honor was Miss Cathy Kleine. Bridesmaid was Miss Kery Ogle and junior bridesmaid was Susan Proffit, sister of the groom. Flower girl was Audra Ballou, niece of the bride, and ring bearer was James Ballou II, nephew of the bride, of West Monroe, La. Best man was Greg Whitmire, Bona, Texas. Groomsmen was Bob Farley, Jr., Palestine, Texas, and junior groomsman was John Mark Hesseltine, brother of the bride.

The maid of honor and bridesmaid wore floor-length empire style dresses of mint green and yellow with lace the entire length of the front of the gown and matching picture frame hats. They carried bouquets of carnations trimmed with green and yellow ribbon.

A reception was held at the Sandollar Inn Colony Room.

The bride's table was laid with a white net cloth and yellow ribbon, centered with silver candelabra and an arrangement of white carnations with yellow and green ribbon. The wedding cake was three-tiered trimmed with yellow roses and sugar bells. The groom's table was covered with white net with green ribbon centered with an opened Bible with two long-stemmed roses across it.

The bride is a graduate of Rockport-Fulton High School and the groom is a graduate of Bona High School. After a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Abilene, Tx., where they will attend Abilene Christian College.

The bride was born and reared in Rockport and the bridegroom and family have been in Rockport approximately 14 months.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. James K. Ballou and children, West Monroe, La.; Mr. and Mrs. B.C. Horton and sons, Lubbock, Tx.; Mrs. William C. Hill and children, Alice, Tx.; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Reed, Lake Jackson, Tx.; Mrs. E.F. Family Physician

BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

With summer just around the corner from us, now is a good time to start preparing ourselves for the special activities which accompany vacation time. Here is a list of some of the problems which bring people into my office each summer — and which might have been avoided with just a little foresight.

1. The cuts and abrasions which accompany hiking, camping, bicycling etc., may be an indication for updating your tetanus (lock jaw) immunization. If you've had a booster within the last six years, you probably don't need one now, but if it's been longer than that, get one!

2. The first long hike of the summer shouldn't be tried in brand new boots. Start breaking them in now in order to avoid blisters with your first hike.

3. Muscles that haven't been used all winter are prone to strains with vigorous exertion. Calisthenics and jogging now will help to develop better tone and protect you against the pain and disability which extreme exertion may otherwise cause. Graded exercise over a period of several weeks now will also prepare your circulatory and respiratory systems for the stresses of an active summer.

4. If you're a water fan, take advantage of the courses which many year-round pools are offering in lifesaving. Besides getting your muscles into shape, this offers the opportunity to refresh your skills in artificial respiration. Some places have special classes for toddlers so that the whole family can get in on the act. This is also a good time to check the safety equipment on your boat and to review the regulations concerning safe boat operation.

5. If the weather permits, start exposing your skin to the sun. Gradually increasing your sun exposure time will help to avoid burning. If you intend to accomplish this by using a sunlamp, be sure to follow the manufacturer's recommendations as to time and distance. Overuse can cause severe burns. A reminder: exposure to the sun is cumulative and, although deep tans may be esthetically nice, they do represent permanent damage to the skin — with the eventual hazard of skin malignancies. Don't overdo it!

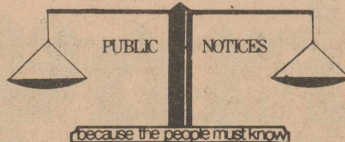

6. Check your first-aid kit to see that it hasn't been depleted of antiseptic, bandages and band-aids, cotton tipped applicators, antibiotic ointment, aspirin, and a thermometer. Replace whatever is missing.

7. If you're over 40 — or if you have any chronic disease of any kind — go to your family doctor for a general physical examination in order to be assured that you're in good enough condition to do whatever your plans may involve. It's silly to sit at a desk all winter and then to suddenly put the stress of mountain climbing or water skiing on a circulatory system that hasn't had its 40,000 mile check. It makes good sense to take at least as good care of your body as you do of your car. After all, you might be able to replace the car!

Questions to Your Family Physician should be addressed to Dr. James G. Price in care of this newspaper.

WHALE OF A TAIL is all that remains of a 15-foot fossilized whale believed to have lived in the Krasnodar territory of the Northern Caucasus, USSR, over 10 million years ago. The discovery is especially significant since it supports theories that the area was originally covered by water and connected the Black, Azov and Caspian seas.

Too Much

The recent use of Navy ships and planes to recover thirty-nine merchant seamen from the communist Cambodian regime was necessary, and won the "face" contest in Asia, but too much has been made of it by a Washington press corps with little else to write these days.

To begin with, the Cambodians were almost defenseless at sea against the might of the U.S. Navy in the Gulf of Thailand. Secondly, we lost a number of American lives in this operation. We estranged Thailand, by using Thai bases to mount the air-marine strike.

It was a military operation deemed necessary and timely for various reasons — and the nation and Congress backed the President. But it was also a resort to force, a necessary one, which is best described as regrettably necessary.

Drowning Time

Already drownings are occurring in some sections of the nation—in the ocean and in lakes and streams.

One precaution swimmers should observe is to try to swim in groups, especially in the oceans. This offers any swimmer in distress immediate help and it also affords protection from sharks and other dangerous fish.

It is always shocking to read of persons who are unable to swim going out in boats without life preservers—and many drown in this way every year. Others underestimate currents or their ability to swim or the distance involved. And such mistakes are often paid for with life itself.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—Ever see a child's face light up when he or she is given that first puppy or kitten? It's enough to make the training period that follows almost bearable.

But our Attorney General's Consumer Protection lawyers say that some persons who purchase pets occasionally get far more than they expect—or want.

They may get animals that appear healthy but quickly get sick; they may discover that an animal is not as represented to them; or they may find for some reason, perhaps size or temperament, that the animal simply doesn't fit into the family.

In cases where misrepresentation of merchandise or other false, misleading, or deceptive sales practices have occurred, consumers who purchase pets have recourse under the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices-Consumer Protection Act.

But otherwise, if a consumer just has second thoughts about the purchase, there could be some disappointment. That's because no store is required to give refunds or exchanges, although many do so to maintain customer good will.

Our Consumer Protection Division has had complaints from several pet purchasers. In one case, a man ordered and paid in advance for a lion cub. Later, after talking it over with his wife, he changed his mind and requested a refund. The pet store owner refused, saying he had already ordered the cub from a supplier and couldn't cancel the order.

Another complaint involved an out-of-state consumer who ordered a woolly monkey from a Texas seller. After arrangements and payment had been made, the seller backed out of the deal. Even though the consumer's money was refunded in this instance she still was unhappy since what she really wanted was the monkey.

Such examples illustrate the fact that, with pet purchases, as with all others, the consumer should check refund and exchange policies in advance.

Far more common than complaints involving exotic pets such as these, however, are problems some consumers have with purchase of domestic pets. In some cases, purchasers of expensive pedigree dogs or cats are told proper registration papers and "family trees" will be sent by mail, but never receive the information. Without such papers, an animal may be less valuable for breeding, and may be unable to enter shows and competitions.

Other problems can arise when an animal becomes ill after it is taken home. While many pet stores or individual breeders offer money-back guarantees if an animal gets sick within a few days after purchase, some diseases don't show up for weeks. Some conditions, such as hip dysplasia, a disabling condition affecting certain large dog breeds, may not show up for a year or more.

Our Consumer Protection attorneys recommend the following precautions: (1) Get all promises or guarantees about an animal or about refund and exchange policies in writing; (2) Always have a veterinarian inspect the animal before the purchase or immediately after it; and (3) Ask for an animal's registration papers or bloodline information at the time of purchase. If they are unavailable, get a delivery date in writing.

By BOB BULLOCK
State Comptroller

Austin—A look at the tremendous revenue Texas gets from tobacco taxes might make one think the state smokes like a giant smudge pot.

This current year we will take in more than $250 million in taxes on cigarettes, cigars, pipe tobacco, chewing tobacco and tobacco for roll-your-own.

This revenue ranks tobacco as the state's fifth largest revenue producer, coming behind sales taxes, motor fuels, oil and natural gas.

The historical pattern of our tobacco tax income indicates that smoking Texans apparently haven't been changed by the anti-smoking health campaigns of the past few years. In fact, in several past years Texas smokers have topped the national average of an annual four per cent increase in cigarette consumption.

The great bulk of our tobacco tax money comes from cigarettes. The cigarette tax is 18.5 cents per package and that produces more than $240 million of our tobacco tax income.

Cigarette taxes have increased much faster than most taxes over the years, going from 5-cents a pack in 1955 to 8-cents in 1959, 11-cents in 1965, 15.5-cents in 1969 and on to 18.5-cents in 1971.

The Comptroller's office administers the cigarette tax laws although the distributors make their actual purchase of the cigarette tax stamp for each package from the state treasurer's office. We deal with more than 35,000 cigarette wholesalers, distributors, retailers and vending machine operators.

From these various types of distributors the state also receives about $300,000 a year in permit fees. Everyone handling cigarettes is required to file monthly reports with us and we examine and audit their books once a year—which is certainly one of the most comprehensive audit programs of any state tax.

Besides the cigarette taxes, the state gets just less than $5 million a year from cigar taxes. Cigars are taxed according to size and price. These range from the little cigars which are packaged like cigarettes and taxed one penny for each 10 cigars to the largest and most expensive which are taxed at penny and a half each.

Another $4 million a year tax money comes from all other tobacco products—pipe tobacco, chewing tobacco and roll-your-own tobacco.

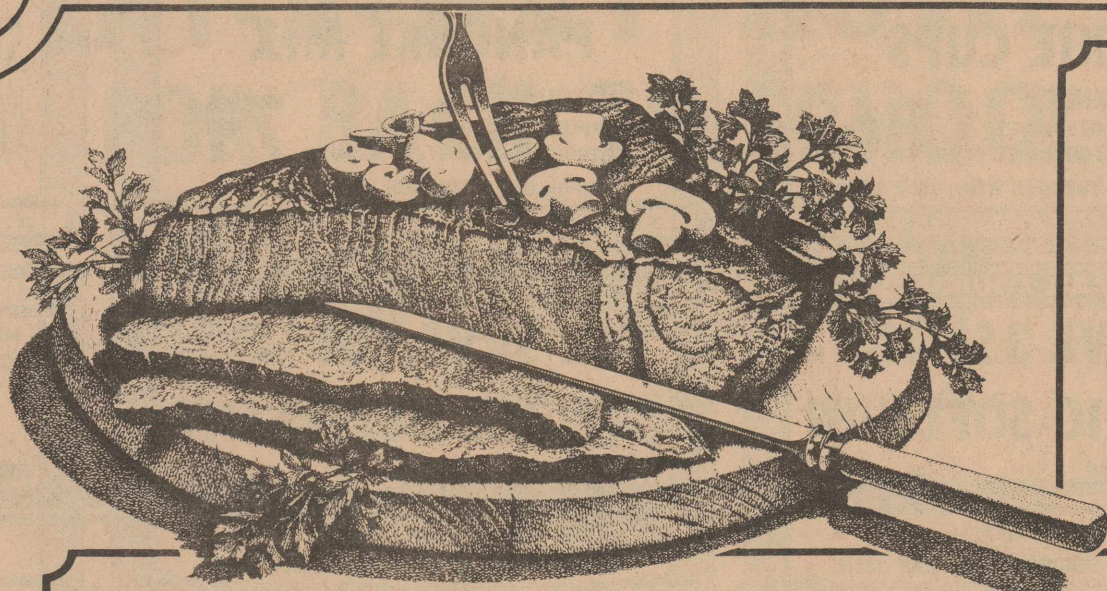

The tax for this catchall category is 25 per cent of the manufacturer's list price.

With three small exceptions all cigarette and tobacco tax money goes into the state's general revenue fund.

One penny of the 18.5-cents cigarette tax is dedicated to the state parks fund. In the current year this will be $13.3 million. Another small portion of the tobacco tax income, dictated by a complicated formula written and rewritten many times by the Legislature, will send nearly $10 million to the Available School Fund. Another small portion is earmarked for our enforcement costs to administer the tax.

The only form of tobacco not taxed by tobacco taxes is snuff. But wouldn't you know that snuff is covered under the sales tax!

Lt. Governor's Report

By Bill Hobby

The purpose of the revised Foundation School Program is to guarantee that each school district has adequate resources to provide each eligible student access to programs and services which are appropriate to his or her educational needs. To support this purpose, the new public school finance law provides a system of funding more equitable than that afforded by the Foundation School Program before its revision.

Equalization of available funds is accomplished by: 1) the use of market value to determine a school district's ability to pay its share of the Foundation School Program cost; 2) application of a revised method of fund delivery for maintenance and operation costs; 3) increased funding for transportation; 4) expanded programs and services available under the Foundation School Program; and 5) direct equalization aid.

Since the major source of revenue for public school education in Texas is still the ad valorem tax, shifting from a multi-factor economic index to market value as a base for determining a local district's taxpaying ability will send more State money where the need is the greatest - the poor districts. A district's ability to generate ad valorem tax revenue will determine its local fund assignment as well as its fair share of available State funds. Districts with a broad tax base will be required to contribute more heavily to their Foundation School Program costs and will receive proportionately less State aid. This funding pattern will free more State money for distribution among districts with limited taxing ability. Increased State aid to districts with a narrow tax base will tend to equalize Foundation School Program funds among the districts.

State aid to the school districts for maintenance, operations, and transportation costs is substantially increased under the revised Foundation School Program. Rather than basing a district's maintenance and operations entitlement on the number of teachers employed, funds are now allocated at a fixed rate per student in average daily attendance. The result is a maintenance and operations funding increase of 190%. State aid for transportation is increased over the amount allocated to the districts for the 1974-75 school year by 62.5%.

Within the State's current financial means, the revised Foundation School Program is a significant move toward implementing this policy.

OLDEST VETERAN ASSURED OF MAXIMUM BENEFITS

Veterans Administration efforts to insure that the nation's oldest veterans are receiving maximum benefits have revealed that Spanish-American War veterans differ little from the today's other 29 million former servicemen.

There are fewer than 1,100 survivors of the 392,000 Americans who participated in the 1898 hostilities. As is the case with the over-all veteran population, most of the senior veterans live in California (180). One each resides in Alaska, Delaware, Vermont and New Mexico.

Since the first of the year, VA benefits counselors have been visiting these elder statesmen, whose average age is 95. The oldest, Norton Nelson of Whitestown, Indiana, was 105 in January. His kid brother, Everett, of Palestine, Ill., also a Spanish-American War veteran, is 95.

At one stop the counselors found their 90-year-old subject skinning logs for use in constructing two new cabins for his hunting camp. The veteran suggested he was in better physical shape than his two visitors and he received no argument.

The arrival of the "government officials" prompted a 95-year-old to express his displeasure with the spiraling economy. When the counselors attempted to explain possible increases in his VA pension, the veteran shook them off, assuring them he was able to manage on his present income.

A 98-year-old veteran living with his wife of 59 years welcomed the VA. Informed that his situation warranted an increase in his monthly stipend, he turned to his wife and said, "I'll take you dancing tonight."

The veterans' careers following their military service at the turn of the century are varied. Some remained with the military. Many were recalled for World War I duty and even a few in World War II.

Others returned to civilian life in such fields as law enforcement, politics, banking, clothing, cattle ranching, teaching, judicial, railroading and baking.

At least one veteran interviewed was still salaried. The 90-year-old was found on the job, operating an elevator. Another, age 98, had just returned from 18 holes of golf. He explained it helped restore his strength after a series of heart attacks, also noting that he was still "dating."

The counselors shared lunch with a 95-year-old veteran who had given up his heating business only four years earlier. While he talked, the veteran sipped on a can of beer. As the interview concluded, he crushed the empty can in his hand.

A 96-year-old recalled how he remained in the Philippines after the war with Spain. He ran an import-export business and was interned for three years during World War II. His only complaint was the state's refusal to renew his driver's license for more than two years at a time.

But more timely was the 97-year-old widower who had been married 66 years. He wanted to know if VA had any connection with the Internal Revenue Service. He's embroiled in a tax dispute over insurance payments.

Consumer Food News

College Station -- Demand for beef, particularly for quick-cooking cuts, is influencing the price, one consumer marketing information specialist said this week.

"For real economy, select the less tender cuts such as chuck roasts, chuck and round steaks. Other good choices are ground beef and liver, price-wise," Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

Another economical possibility is fresh fish and shellfish. Many varieties will be available in the coming weeks, adding to good supplies of fresh frozen seafoods. This means attractive buying opportunities at prices substantially below a year ago, the specialist reported.

"Increasing supplies of peaches, nectarines, plums and grapes have resulted in slightly lower prices."

Fresh vegetables soon to be arriving on the market in canning-size quantities are purple hull peas, soft shell squash, carrots, corn, cucumbers, cshaw, green onions and radishes."

Prices are slightly higher on fryer chickens.

Eggs are in good supply at reasonable prices. Compare large and medium sizes for the best value for egg money.

Consumer Watchwords: This year's crop of apricots is large. But since the season is short, prices will remain relatively high.

LAY-A-WAY NOW! FOR BACK TO SCHOOL.
