Remember when candy Easter eggs were the exception rather than the rule? Coloring the eggs (real ones) was almost as interesting as the egg hunt itself. In fact, it was more interesting if you didn't like boiled eggs.

Close on the heels of the strike of postal workers in the North and East comes a report of some real, old-time detective work by the Postal Service involving the National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf Coast. That is where the whooping cranes spend the winter, and these huge birds, once on the verge of extinction, have caught the imagination of people in many lands. The Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the U. S. Department of the Interior reports that one letter came from England addressed to "Wildlife Refuge with Whooping Cranes, Texas, USA"

This one was delivered without any trouble.

Another one was addressed to "Aransas Texas National Wildlife Refuge," with no town, no zip code, etc., but it went to its destination easily.

Then there was one to "The Warden, Aransas Reserve, Near Corpus Chritsi, Texas." It came from London and reached the whooping crane refuge on time.

Still another took a little time, but it got there. It was addressed to "Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge, Blackjack Peninsula, Texas."

Zip codes never would have put these letters in the right place, and it should be of some comfort to all of us that the human touch still is essential to nearly every service required by man.

For many years the best locators of people were telephone operators. Just give one a name and a vague idea of where the person might be and she usually could get him on the other end of the wire. These services are not completely gone, but they have been overshadowed in favor of mechanical speed. This is not to knock progress. Indeed, there probably are not enough people available in any of these services to provide the personal attention that would be demanded now to provide strictly manual operations around the clock.

But it is nice to be reminded now and then that people still are important.

It was for people that He rose from the grave.

SIGNS PROCLAMATION—Mayor Bobby McCormick (right) signs a proclamation declaring April Clean Up Month in Snyder. Witnessing the signing ceremony are Doug Fowler, director of public works (left) and Fire Chief Alfred Kohl. The city truck is being used to remove a junked car from an alley in North Snyder.

REMOVES HAZARD—Moody Ward uses a track loader to remove debris from a dilapidated building on Avenue M with the owner's consent. The city will provide crews for removal of dangerous, dilapidated buildings during the month of April at no cost to the owner.

THROUGH MONTH OF APRIL

Clean-Up Drive Set

April has been officially proclaimed "Clean Up Month in Snyder" by Mayor Bobby McCormick.

Local home owners and residents can take advantage of a city clean-up drive during the month to have their old, junked cars or dilapidated buildings hauled away or torn down at city expense.

"The city will haul away wrecked cars or tear down old buildings during April," said L. A. Patterson, city manager. He pointed out local residents can save time and money by asking the City crews to remove such vehicles or buildings.

The city will have special crews working on Wednesdays and Saturdays during April. Persons who have junk or litter to be hauled off can get the city to do it for them by dialing 573-3536.

What some residents may not realize is the fact that four city ordinances arre in effect that prohibit the maintenance of a nuisance, such as a junked car, or the maintenance of a health hazard, such as an old, dilapidated building.

As a policy of long standing, the city has been asking the cooperation of its citizens in observing these laws or ordinances. Sometimes, where a violator refuses to cooperate, the city has had to resort to court action to secure compliance. This has been done in the past and could be done in the future, but the city is understandably reluctant to resort to legal coercion.

"Our only purpose is to prevent neighborhood decay," said Patterson, "and we ask the help of the people, especially during the month of April."

One local realtor contacted about the Clean-Up Month campaign in April said he stands solidly behind the idea. Property values remain high and often are improved where clean-up campaigns are conducted regularly, he pointed out.

The city was particularly commended by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce a couple of years ago when it won the Chamber's "Sparkle City" contest. A clean-up drive conducted prior to the contest went a long way towards influencing the judges to award the prize to Snyder. Also, the general overall cleanliness of the city figured prominently in Snyder's selection as an "All-America" city.

"We're proud of the cooperation and help we've received from the people," said

Snow Storm Hits Texas Panhandle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A near blizzard assured the Texas Panhandle of a white Easter and a southbound cold front sent light rain spreading over the rest of the state today.

Borger police measured the snow depth at nine inches near dawn. They reported drifts whipped up by gusty winds were stalling cars on some streets and highways.

Seven inches of snow covered the Amarillo area. Drifts rose five feet tall in Palo Duro Canyon, 20 miles south of Amarillo.

Although blowing snow cut visibility to zero at ground level from time to time, state police said all major routes were open at daybreak.

While the snow and winds appeared to be slacking this morning, a special Weather Bureau advisory warned, "Potentially this is still a very dangerous storm and may reintensify and also change course."

The heavy snowfall occurred primarily in a section north of a line linking Childress and Lubbock and was a boon to wheat growers whose fields have been suffering from a lack of moisture.

"Heavy thunderstorms and a threat of tornadoes preceded the snow in the Panhandle-Plains sector while winds gusting up to 50 miles per hour churned dust aloft at El Paso in far West Texas.

A tornado watch which expired Friday evening covered a 140-mile wide sector centering on a line from near Childress to near Roswell, N.M. It expired without word of any twisters striking.

One effect of the late storm was hardship for hundreds of fans gathered on a muddy farm site south of Lubbock for a hard rock music festival. Many departed.

Snow still fell across most of the Panhandle in early morning but it appeared to be slacking in most areas.

Light rains moved eastward across North and Central Texas, and another belt of showers spread through the coastal plains from extreme South Texas up the coast past Beaumont.

Plans Progressing For Little Theatre

Plans are making progress for organizing a Little Theatre group here.

A meeting has been set for 7 p.m. April 3 in the Snyder Savings and Loan Community Room to discuss the proposal. Anyone interested is invited to attend. The director of the Little Theatre in Midland will meet with the local group.

Cambodia Calls Back Reservists

SAIGON (AP) — The Cambodian state radio called on all army veterans and reservists to return to active duty today in the face of continuing demonstrations near the capital, Phnom Penh.

The radio, monitored in Saigon, renewed a government appeal to the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese to meet with a Cambodian delegation and arrange withdrawal of the 40,000 to 60,000 Vietnamese troops in the country.

But it did not seem likely the appeal would be heeded, since the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong withdrew most of their diplomatic personnel from Phnom Penh Friday.

With the new government apparently concerned about the possibility of a countercoup by supporters of ousted chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, both of Cambodia's international airports remained closed for the second day in a row.

Airlines sources in Bangkok, Thailand, reported scheduled flights of Air Vietnam, Union of Burma Airways and Lao Airlines canceled stops at Phnom Penh and Siem Reap. The sources said it was possible the airports would reopen Monday.

The Cambodian radio said in a French-language broadcast that on Thursday night and Friday morning, the Viet Cong organized demonstrations at Kompong Cham, about 35 miles from Phnom Penh, "to come and trouble our capital."

The radio warned Cambodians "not to be taken in by those who indulge in the games of the Viet Cong ... You must understand that Sihanouk was legally divested of his functions of chief of state, conforming to the constitution. He is a traitor to the nation."

Sihanouk was deposed March 18 while he was in Moscow urging Soviet leaders to help convince the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to get out of Cambodia. He is in exile in Red China.

Cambodia's provisional chief of state, Cheng Heng, told the country via radio Friday that "the Viet Cong have begun actions against the Cambodian people and our soldiers, especially in provinces near the border."

Viet Cong forces in civilian clothes were reported to have attacked a town less than 12 miles from Phnom Penh, and military security was stepped up throughout the capital, with tanks blocking all routes in and out.

The 28 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomats who left Phnom Penh departed from Vientiane, Laos, today after spending the night sleeping on the airport floor. They were not permitted to enter the Laotian capital.

World Celebrates Easter Sunday

By JOE NICHOLSON JR.
Associated Press Writer

Christians around the world will celebrate Easter Sunday, the most joyous holiday on the Christian calendar, with new liturgy and traditional Easter bonnets.

Coming after the repentant 40 days of Lent and the solemn three-hour Good Friday services marking the agony and death of Jesus on the cross, Christians will celebrate His Resurrection with sunrise services and new fashions.

Pope Paul VI is to give his famed papal blessing" Urbi Et Orbi—to the city and the world—to thousands of Romans and pilgrims in St. Peter's Plaza in Rome.

For Roman Catholics in the United States, it will be the first Easter Sunday with new liturgy for the Mass. It was approved by the National Conference of Bishops for use beginning last Sunday.

In New York, Fifth Avenue will be closed to traffic for the traditional Easter parade featuring women in flowered and beribboned bonnets.

Several blocks away in Manhattan's Central Park Sheep Meadow, several thousands hippies and other young people are planning to sing and commune with nature in the second annual Easter "be-in." Yogadonis, a reputed master of yoga, will lead a sunrise mediation.

In Minneapolis, the conventional Easter service at Holy Rosary Roman Catholic Church will be followed by an "Easter Vigil in Contemporary Style," featuring a time-lapse film of flowers blooming, accompanied by guitars and drums, and scriptural and secular readings by young parishioners.

In Waban, Mass., the Rev. William E. Foley, rector of the Episcopal church, said a red-robed quartet playing brass instruments would welcome the Resurrection.

S-Viets Deny Cambodian Attack

By DAVID ROSENZWEIG
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese military command denied today reports from well informed sources that its forces swept two miles into Cambodia, killing more than 50 enemy soldiers.

The reports came from sources in a position to know. They said South Vietnamese rangers and armored cavalry drove into Cambodia Friday and attacked a Viet Cong stronghold. Witnesses in a nearby village said they watched as South Vietnamese warplanes attacked the Viet Cong positions.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman told newsmen that the rangers and armored cavalry stopped about 200 yards from the ill-defined border in the battle 105 miles west of Saigon.

"The ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) troops did not go across the border to fight the enemy," he said.

Field reports Friday said South Vietnamese troops had attacked Viet Cong units two miles inside Cambodia, supported by Vietnamese jets.

The spokesman said today South Vietnamese forces did not fire back at enemy gunners who were believed to have fired on them from the other side of the frontier, even though the allies maintain they have an "inherent right of self defense" in such instances.

The military spokesman said it was not known precisely where the bodies of the 52 enemy reported killed were found.

He said, too, that the border area is marked only by poles spaced as much as a third of a mile apart.

American officials turned aside all questions about the raid, including whether U.S. advisers and helicopters aided the South Vietnamese.

"There are a lot of things going on they haven't told us about," one American officer in the Mekong Delta said Friday.

Field reports said the government troops crossed the border about noon Friday near the hamlet of Khanh An, about 15 miles north of the provincial capital of Chau Doc.

U.S. sources said no Americans were involved in the operation but conceded there was "unusual" activity in the area.

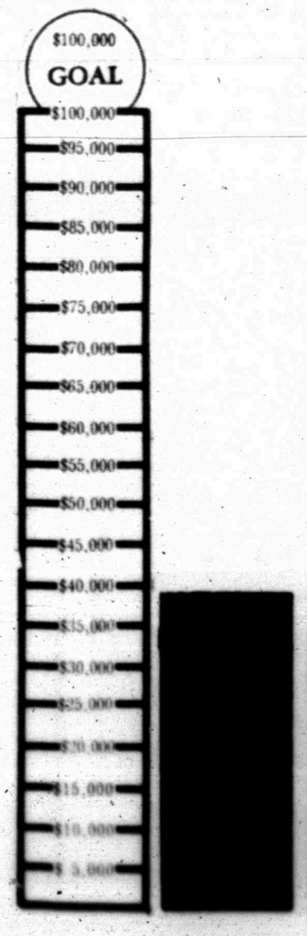

Informed sources had said South Vietnamese jets streaked across the border, carrying out two bombing raids.

The U.S. Command reported two American helicopters have been shot down and destroyed in South Vietnam with no casualties.

In the only major action involving U.S. forces reported by the Command Saturday, an American reconnaissance helicopter flying over the A Shau Valley near the Laotian fronteir was fired on by North Vietnamese troops and called for artillery and tactical air strikes on the gun positions. The command said 21 enemy bodies were sighted, along with three destroyed machine guns.

Air Force B52 bombers flew a total of seven raids since Friday afternoon and also joined Air Force, Navy and Marine tactical fighter-bombers in raids along the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos, the command reported.

Husband is too big-hearted

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: I am 25 and Doug [made up name] is 29. We've been married for three years and are as yet childless by choice.

We love each other, but there is one large area of disagreement which has caused many heated discussions and nearly a separation.

Doug thinks nothing of inviting his friends to spend anywhere from a week-end to a month with us. [And what friends!]

Abby, I am not a lady of leisure. I have a taxing daytime job and we live in a small apartment and all the extra work of overnight guests falls on my shoulders. Even their laundry, and I am sick of it. These friends are lazy, careless, and ungrateful.

In all the time we've been married I don't think we've spent a dozen week-ends alone. Once, Doug picked up a dirty hitchhiker and invited him to stay with us! He stayed nine days, and I was frightened to death of him. He had a wild look in his eye and I think he was "on" something.

In case you think Doug is stupid, he has a B. S. degree and a master's in social psychology. So what's the answer?

DOUG'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Common sense does not come in "degrees." Tho on the face of it Doug appears to be big-hearted, he is foolish and inconsiderate to put friends [and even strangers] before you. You two need to come to a better understanding before baby makes three.

DEAR ABBY: A week before my husband's birthday, his mother, who lives out of town, called me long distance and asked me what he would like for a gift. I gave her a few inexpensive suggestions, then she asked if he could use any t-shirts and undershorts. I told her no, he had plenty, as that's what she gave him for Christmas. Then she said, [and these are her exact words] "Well, that's what I bought him, so that's what he's going to get whether he likes it or not!"

Abby, I know it's not the gift—but the thought that counts, but why did she bother to call and ask me if she already had the gift bought?

Would I be out of line to tell her next time to just send a couple of dollars in an envelope and let him pick out what he wants?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: Not in my book!

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with a fine husband and two small children. I have lived in this area all of my life. My parents live near me. My husband has been offered a very big promotion which would necessitate our moving to another state. My problem is my parents. I am their only child and they have told me many times that all they have to live for is me and their grandchildren. Abby, how can I move and take away my parents' only pleasure in life and only God knows how many years they have left.

My parents can't move with us as my father still has to work for a living, and my mother has her mother in a nursing home here and she can't leave her. Please tell me what to do. My husband says it is up to me, but I know deep down he wants to take that promotion.

TORN

DEAR TORN: Your first responsibility is to your husband. You must move with him and return with your children to see your parents as often as you are able. It won't be easy to make the move, but "deep down" you know it is the thing to do.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WILL MARRY FOR MONEY" IN FORT LAUDERDALE: Good luck and happy fishing, Sister. You have a "geldt" complex.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Bank Leaves Doors Wide Open

BEAUNE, France, (AP) — The staff of a bank in this capital of the Burgundy wine country went away for the Easter holidays and left the doors of the bank wide open.

Customers wandered through the bank and right into the strong room without finding anyone—though the safes were locked and the cash had been put away.

Police put a special guard on the bank until the manager was summoned to lock up.

Easter Seal Appeal Made

A last minute appeal for Easter Seal support was issued Saturday by Cecil J. Boren, who is the Easter Seal Representative in Scurry County.

The Texas Easter Seal Society is providing treatment and services for 20,378 physically handicapped children and adults in the state, Boren said, and this program must be expanded. Many are going without services that would increase the productiveness of their lives. With increased growth of the Easter Seal Society, more and more of these people will be reached, he added.

The Society conducts a continuing program to seek out the disabled who are going without services, to see that they receive the help they need. As Easter Seal Representative, he is the person to contact for services from the Easter Seal Society.

SCREECHING HALT—Kent Horsley, 16, 217 Thirty-sixth Street, escaped serious injury when he apparently lost control of his 1963 Model Ford at 9:15 p.m. Friday, according to investigating officers, who said it crashed into a utility pole at Thirty-fourth Street and Jacksboro Street. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $350. Horsley sustained minor injuries, but did not require hospitalization.

Rotary Hears Stage Band

The Snyder High School Stage Band presented the program for the Snyder Rotary Club, Thursday, at their weekly luncheon meeting, held at the Snyder Country Club. The band played several selections that they played at contest. Don Eiring is director of the band.

H. F. Clark, president of the club, presided.

Guests at the meeting included, Jerry Anderson of Dallas, guest of Loren Sullivan; Les Wilkerson, guest of Steve Clark; Roger Sullenger, guest of H. F. Clark; Dillard Teal, guest of Si Steinberg; Fred Aggi, guest of Ben Brock; Beth Vestal and Allen Newman, guests of Bill Vestal; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Patterson, Dr. Robert Clinton, Mrs. Hargrove and Dianne Hargrove, all guests of Dr. Robert Hargrove.

One Injured In Two-Car Mishap

Cynthia Elaine Hardin, 19, 3111 Avenue X, sustained minor injuries in a two-car collision in the 3200 block of Avenue S at 7:15 p.m. Thursday.

She was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Snyder Ambulance Service and released after receiving treatment.

Investigating officers said Miss Hardin was driving a 1961 Model Chevrolet that was involved in a collision with a 1967 Model Chevrolet operated by William J. Schiebel, 3011 Avenue T.

Damage to Schiebel's car was placed at $250, and damage to the other one was estimated at $400.

CLEAN-UP

Patterson. He said clean up drives are necessary at various times to insure that neighborhoods do not decay.

The collection of junk is a slow process and a gradual change in the landscape isn't as noticeable as sudden changes. Thus it becomes necessary to guard against "creeping decay" by intermittent clean-up drives, it was pointed out.

The four ordinances referred to:

Junked Car Ordinance (No. 371) — Prohibits the accumulation of junk cars in residential neighborhood except when kept within an enclosed building.

Dangerous Buildings Ordinance (No. 314) — Requires owners of sub-standard buildings to either repair or remove such buildings.

Public Health Ordinance (No. 350) — Requires owners of weedy lots to keep them mowed and free of stagnant water, filth and rubbish.

Sanitation Ordinance (No. 96) — Requires garbage, trash and rubbish to be placed in garbage cans or dumpmaster containers so as not to spill into the alleys or streets of the city.

Nun Killed In Car Accident

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Sister Joan Roberts, a Roman Catholic nun from the Carmen Mission in San Antonio, was killed as two cars collided 30 miles north of here early today.

Two other nuns en route with her to Brownsville suffered critical injuries

Search For Five Boys Continues

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) —Fifteen-year-old Thomas Fiscella, said his mother, "had used the boat before, but always in sight of the house or pier."

Shortly before dark Thursday "was the first time he had gotten out of sight of someone at home or on the pier," Mrs. Ben Fiscella said Friday. "He was pretty well acquainted with the boat for pulling skis, but he was not familiar enough to cross the river."

But Thomas and four teen-aged friends—March Bunch, 16; Robert Goddin, 17; Patricia Carper, 13; and Robin Pate, 13, all of Newport News — apparently tried to cross the broad lower reaches of the James River in a 14-foot boat owned by the boy's father.

They weren't seen again, and an intensive surface and air search Friday failed to turn up any clue to the whereabouts of the boat or its five occupants. The search was to resume at first light today.

"My husband helped to launch the boat at the ramp near Red's Pier and we understood they were to head right up the shore to our house on the water," Mrs. Fiscella said. "We would not have sent him out to cross the river."

L. C. "Red" Crosley, who operates the city-owned Red's Pier, said he saw the group about 5 p.m. and quoted them as saying they were going to cross the river—about 7½ miles wide at that point. When they had not returned an hour later, a search was started.

Sheriff Knew Facts Very Well

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (AP) — Sheriff John Boynton told parents at a drug abuse seminar about an 18-year-old boy who planned to go to college.

The youth had a "bad trip" on some amphetamine. He took his father's gun, threatened his mother, father and younger brother, then left the house carryino the gun. The parents called for help. Sheriff's deputies and police soon caught up with the youth's car.

"He stopped once, his hands gripping the wheel as if in a trance," Boynton said. "Then he zoomed ahead for a few hundred yards, stopped, laid down in the front seat and shot and killed himself.

"It was the other fellow's child to everyone but me," he said.

"He was my son."

Cold, Snow, Wind Hampers Festival

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Threatened with tornadoes and stricken by wind, cold, dust and a fierce thunderstorm, the Southwest '70 Peace Festival faced a shaky future today.

Department of Public Safety officials expressed some doubt that the ill-fated hard rock show would continue under the miserable weather conditions.

Spokesmen for the show vowed that it would go on.

Hundreds of music fans, disgusted over a 24-hour delay, an abbreviated program Friday and the weather, fled the South Plains farm site Friday night.

They were chased out by a violent thunderstorm sweeping across the state on a cold front that dropped temperatures into the mid 20s.

"This is ridiculous," declared a long-haired Texas Tech student as he moved with hundreds of others through the rain and bitter cold.

"What the hell else can happen?" he asked.

What else happened was snow this morning, with winds of 33 miles an hour and 26-degree temperatures.

State patrolmen estimated 400 persons spent the night at the site in vehicles.

Others accepted invitations to sleep in churches and other places.

One favorite overnight spot was St. Christopher's Episcopal Church where about 200, all hippie types and some barefooted in the cold, slept in the basement and a nearby church building.

Members of the church fed the crowd this morning. The youngsters seemed to bear up well, laughing and joking.

The Rev. Ken Clark, St. Christopher's rector, said he and a parish member went to the festival site and brought those they could to the church in their cars. The word spread and others straggled in.

A shortage of electrical power, coupled with blustery winds, wiped out the opening show Thursday and pushed the three-day festival back to an Easter Sunday closing date.

The acid rock sounds of a Dallas band called Heaven and Earth officially opened the festival shortly before 2 p.m. Friday.

Less than six hours later, after an estimated 2,000 young people had listened passively to such groups as the Sweet Grass Camel and the Bloodrock, the thunderstorm dealt the festival a second severe blow.

DPS officials reported early today that fewer than 1,000 persons remained overnight at the muddy, windswept campsite 10 miles south of Lubbock.

Earlier, Maj. C. W. Bell, DPS regional commander, noted the exodus and said, "They're getting disgusted, packing up and leaving, saying it's just too miserable."

However, Bell said at the time he had no immediate plans to release the 316 state officers who assembled for West Texas' first rock festival. It was shifted here from Dickens, 63 miles east, last Tuesday.

Bell declined to estimate the cost of policing the festival, saying only, "Let's just call it preposterous."

The DPS reported a total of 140 arrests through Friday night, mostly for routine traffic violations.

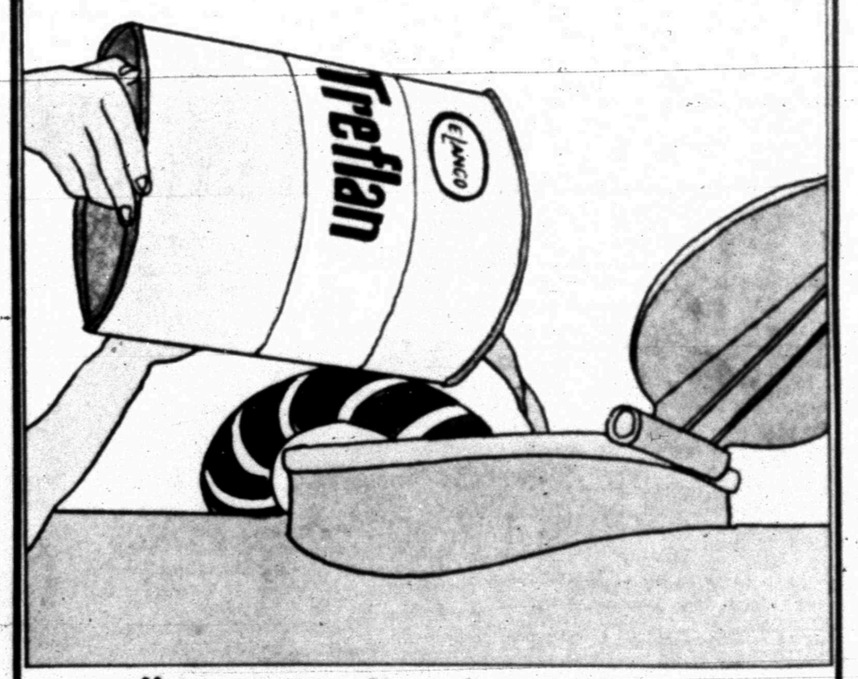

Fewer than a dozen narcotics violations were counted.

Two Vehicles Are In Mishap Here

Minor damage resulted from a two-car collision at the Tiger Drive-In Theater about 1:35 Saturday morning.

Damage to the 1957 Model Chevrolet of James Paul Duff, 906 Twenty-fifth Street, was placed at $60, and damage to the 1967 Model Ford of Larry Joe Hall, 4501 Crockett, was set at $10.

Basic Secretarial Skills Spell Success For Women

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Basic secretarial skills not only serve as stepping stones to important positions in nearly every business field but also provide a lifelong insurance policy, says the head of one of the nation's oldest secretarial training schools.

"Other than teaching, I don't think there's another area in which a girl is as professionally mobile," explains Alan L. Baker, recently named president of the 60-year-old Katharine Gibbs School. "Hawaii, Alaska, Des Moines—a secretary can get a job anywhere, go back to work any time. The need for good secretaries seems to be almost universal."

A girl often goes from being a private secretary to other responsibilities, he points out. With typing and shorthand ability as tools, she serves a sort of apprenticeship where her attitudes, her motivation, sense of responsibility and creativity become on-the-job aptitude tests from which promotions stem.

"Every girl who comes to New York wants to go to work for, say, a fashion magazine," Baker elaborates. "With thousands of applicants, many magazines have a policy of starting all girls as secretaries. That's where 50 words of typing and 80 words of shorthand a minute come in handy. Unless you have that, you can't get past the front door."

What are businesses looking for in a potential secretary? "Good skills, first," enumerates Baker. "A girl who will assume responsibility; a girl who is organized about her own work and who can help organize that of her boss; a good appearance—being well groomed and tastefully dressed is more important than beauty.

"The best secretary is the girl who identifies completely with her boss on the job he is doing; if she isn't involved she might as well be on an assembly line," insists the youthful-looking 40-year-old bachelor.

"She represents her employer; the manner in which she represents him establishes his reputation. She's his major communication vehicle," he continues, leaning back in his chair at the school's mid-Manhattan headquarters. "She handles his phone calls; she is his receptionist; she is his spokesman with others on the staff; she is in a position to implement policy through her attitudes toward the policy."

Baker, who presides over the four branches of Gibbs—New York City, Boston, Providence, R.I., and Montclair, N.J., has found one of his major challenges is attracting more girls to the secretarial field in the face of the many other opportunities available. The school has more than five job openings for every girl it graduates.

"The traditional way is to recruit in the high schools, working with guidance departments," he explains. "Now we dramatize exactly what is exciting and interesting about the field, the benefits, some of the glamorous jobs starting as a secretary can lead to. Another selling point is the salary," he says.

Last year the average Gibbs graduate started in a New York City job at around $106 a week. This year the average starting figure is up to $127 a week.

Baker has initiated an "Entree" program, a concentrated eight-week course for college graduates. The student learns to type on an electric typewriter, learns simplified shorthand and effective letter and report-writing techniques and attends a series of lectures on how to adapt to city life.

For girls coming to New York or any big city, Baker has this advice: "Prepare yourself with office skills; don't take the first job offered. You should have enough money to survive for four weeks because unless you're awfully lucky you're not going to land the right job immediately. If you don't have a personal contact, live in a women's residence while looking for living quarters and a roommate—the right place to live and the right roommate are almost as important as the first job. If you have these you can concentrate on your work."

When it comes to job hunting, Baker says the girls are looking for a man they can respect, the kind of person with whom they have rapport. They don't like multiple employer situations and will hold out for a job in which they have just one boss. The average girl would rather work for a man than a woman, he adds.

"We find it more difficult to place girls with a woman employer. Even our own graduates are not anxious to go to work here, because we have so few men in this business," he admits with his engaging grin.

Baker, who was "delighted" to be picked as chief of the school, feels the job is a natural for him, a proclaimed feminist. "I've always been sympathetic to the problem of getting women into business and getting them good jobs," he says.

Family Dinner

A generous amount of brown-sugar syrup accompanies these apples.

Lamb Stew with Onions, Turnips, Potatoes and Peas
Bread Tray Salad Bowl
Baked Mincemeat Apples

BAKED MINCEMEAT APPLES

6 medium baking apples, about 2 pounds
6 tablespoons (or more) mincemeat
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 cup water

Wash apples; core but do not cut through blossom end. Pare apples from stem end, one-third of the way down. Stuff core cavity of each apple with mincemeat. Place in a 9 by 9 by 2 inch cake pan or similar utensil.

In a small saucepan over moderate heat stir together the sugar and water until sugar dissolves and syrup simmers; pour over apples. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 375-degree oven, basting a few times, until apples are soft at center when pierced with a fork—about one to one and a quarter hours. As apples cool, baste with the syrup. Delicious served warm or cold with vanilla ice cream.

Two-Crust Lemon Pie

TWO-CRUST LEMON PIE

Pastry for two-crust 8-inch pie
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons flour
3 large eggs
2 tablespoons butter, melted and cooled
1-3rd cup lemon juice
3 tablespoons water

Roll out half the pastry and line an 8-inch pie plate with it. Roll out remaining pastry for top crust; cut vents in it; cover and refrigerate.

In a small bowl thoroughly stir together the sugar and flour. In a medium mixing bowl beat the eggs until they begin to thicken; add sugar-flour mixture and stir until smooth. Add butter, lemon juice and water; mix well.

Pour into unbaked pastry shell. Place pastry for top crust over filling; trim if necessary. Fold edges of both crusts under; seal and flute. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until pastry is golden—35 minutes. Cool before cutting.

Cadette Troop 266: Friday, March 21, 11 girls and a leader from Cadette Troop 266 marched into the Windsor Hotel in Abilene for the Cadette "Happening." The leader was Mrs. Franklin Pruitt and the girls were Kellye Crenshaw, Donna Early, Karen Stewart, Diana Campbell, Kathy Williams, Tyra Elkins, Elizabeth Mijares, Cecile Pruitt, Cydney McDonald, Roxanna Ainsworth, and Deborah Pruitt.

Mrs. Louise Green from Abilene talked to the more than 230 girls present about astrology and how the stars guide your life.

On Saturday morning Mrs. Grady Jolly talked to the Cadettes on boy-girl relationships.

Sherwood Suter painted a water-color for the girls and pointed out some fundamentals of painting.

Next, Miss Jamie Rogers showed exercises that the girls could do.

Cadette Troop 84 from Abilene held a Style Show that afternoon.

Then came the highlight of the "Happening" — Miss Texas, Dana Dowell, spoke on the importance of setting goals and doing one's best to reach the goals.

The "Citizens," a swinging group from the First Baptist Church of Abilene, sang some popular songs.

Representatives of each troop took part in a panel discussion—Action '70. The Cadettes mentioned some of America's problems and suggested ways to solve them.

Sunday brought the Alpha Psi Omega from Hardin-Simmons University. The play they presented, "Christ in the Concrete City," compared Christ's crucifixion with the way He is treated today.

The girls from Troop 266 thank all those who made this weekend possible and all the guest lecturers.

Carving Cues For Lamb

To carve a roast lamb leg, first remove two or three lengthwise slices from the thin side of the leg. Turn roast up on this base. When starting where shank joins the leg, make slices perpendicular to leg bone. Loosen slices by cutting under them, following closely along top of leg bone. Lift slices to serving platter.

Speaker For WSCS

Miss Barbara Summerville, Director of the Guadalupe Neighborhood Center in Lubbock, will be guest speaker at the First United Methodist Church on Tuesday at 7.

The meeting will be a Covered Dish Supper with baby sitters provided at the church.

This meeting is sponsored by the Womens Society of Christian Service. Members of The Methodist Men and The Wesleyan Service Guild are urged to attend along with the Methodist Men and Wesleyan Service Guild at Trinity United Methodist Church. All interested persons are invited.

Union 4-H Club Has Meeting

Rita Eicke presided at a meeting of the Union 4-H Club.

Lou Alice Mathis and Mrs. Mathis showed the girls how to lay patterns for their dresses and how to cut them out. This is a project that will be done at meetings of the club.

Club members attending were Lu Jean Eckart, Dotsy Rosson, Rita Eicke and Jean Ann Payne. Visitors were Martha Jo and Lou Alice Mathis and Tisha and Mrs. Seabourne Eicke.

MR. AND MRS. WELDON COOKE

Herring-Cooke Vows Are Pledged Here March 14

Miss Raye Herring and Weldon Cooke were married Satruday, March 14, in a double ring ceremony in Bell-Seale Chapel, with the Rev. Marvin G. Rogers officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Herring of Snyder. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cooke of Midland.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace. A Chantilly lace Coftan, with high scalloped neckline, and long bell sleeves, with pearl trimmed re-embroidered lace scalloping edged the dress and full length Chapel train flowing from the demi A-line silhouette.

A cascade of re-embroidered Alencon lace petals sparkling with crystals formed the bride's headpiece, and was attached to a bouffant veil of pure silk English illusion. She carried a white Bible with white ribbon streamers and pink sweetheart rose buds.

Mrs. Kerry Walker of Nocona, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and was attired in a street length, pink, long torso dress with a softly pleated skirt and long sleeves. She carried a miniature of the bride's Bible.

Jerry Shortis of Midland served as best man. Ushering were James E. Pollard and Kerry Walker. Organist for the occasion was Barbara Carter.

A reception honoring the couple was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's chosen colors of pink and white were carried out in the tiered wedding cake and floral arrangements.

For a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N. M., the bride wore a pink vest and dress ensemble with white accessories.

After the trip, the couple will establish their home at 3305 West Camarie in Midland.

Few drops lemon extract
1 ripe banana, sliced

Into an electric blender turn all the ingredients in the order given. Blend until banana is liquidized. Serve at once. Makes two servings.

Beautiful Lawns Don't Just Happen

Beautiful lawns don't happen. They are the product of good planning and management, including the use of the proper grass, fertilizing, mowing, watering, in some instances drainage and disease and insect control.

A deadline is at hand, says County Agent Billy Roach, and that is a spring application of a complete fertilizer. It should be made about the time the grass begins to grow. The fall application, again of a complete fertilizer, should be made about 30 days before the average date of the first frost. Generally, a fertilizer with a 1-1-1 or a 2-1-1 ratio should be used and applied at the rate of 2 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn.

Bermuda, Saint Augustine and Zoysia lawns should also receive 1 pound of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet every 30 to 40 days during the growing season to keep them green and vigorously growing.

Nitrogen is the key element in turf production. It produces vegetative growth and gives the plant a deep green color. Phosphorous stimulates development of a good root system and potassium affects the physiological processes of the plant, explains the county agent.

A nitrogen deficiency causes stunted plant growth. The leaves are relatively small, thin and yellowish green to yellow, resulting in a condition often referred to as "firing." Phosphorous deficiency causes slow growth of the entire plant and unhealthy dark green colored leaves. Potassium deficiency causes stunted growth with the entire plant eventually drying up and taking on a brownish color.

Roach says he has available detailed information on how to correct many lawn problems and invites interested homeowners to come by his office for copies.

Roses Topic For Club's Meeting

R. C. Eoff, manager of Snyder Nursery, was guest speaker at Thursday's meeting of the Snyder Garden Club. He addressed the group on the subject, "To Care for a Rose." He presented practical information on pruning, diseases, pests, watering, soil preparation, etc. and answered questions of members.

Mr. Eoff was introduced by Mrs. Homer Ray.

Mrs. John Hamblen, president, presided over the business session. Plans for the flower arranging school in April were discussed. On that committee are Mrs. W. B. McSpadden, Mrs. Charles Jones, and Mrs. R. H. Hargrove.

Also, the "Spring Fling" flower show has been set for May 2. Mrs. Charles Jones is show chairman.

Mrs. Hamblen asked each member to participate in the horticultural workshop at the April 9 meeting of the club.

Mrs. S. L. Terry reported on top awards made to Snyder Garden Club at the spring convention held March 16-17 at Midoand.

Mrs. Charles Jones was hostess. Sixteen members and one guest, Mrs. Henry King, attended.

Family Lunch

These cookies are pleasantly crunchy.

Cream of Tomato Soup
Tunafish Sandwiches
Carrot Sticks
Dundee Cookies Beverage

DUNDEE COOKIES

½ cup (¼ pound) margarine
½ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ cup sugar
1 large egg
1 cup quick-cooking oats
¼ cup chopped raisins
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
1½ cups sifted flour
2 tablespoons milk

In a medium mixing bowl thoroughly beat together the margarine, salt, baking soda, cinnamon, allspice and sugar. Beat in egg. Stir in oats, raisins and nuts. Add flour and milk; mix well. Chill until firm—about three hours.

Form into one-inch balls. Place about 1½ inches apart on greased cookie sheets; flatten with heel of hand. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until browned—12 to 15 minutes. With a wide metal spatula remove to wire racks to cool. Store in tightly covered tin box. Makes about three and a half dozen.

DKG Society

Meets In Museum

Zeta Lambda Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society held its monthly meeting Monday night at the Diamond M Museum, which was opened especially for them. This was in the nature of a "surprise" as members had been told to expect something unusual, and were called for by five members who were "in the know."

The program topic was "Do You Find Beauty in this Culture?" June McGlaun chairman, was assisted by Rosalie McGlaun, local artist. In her introductory remarks, Mrs. McGlaun quoted Jan DeRuth, a Czech artist who stated that art is a reflection of society.

Rosalie McGlaun talked to the members about the three different kinds of painting, and what the artist tries to achieve in each kind. In the first kind, the artist tries to tell a story, as Grandma Moses does in her paintings. In the second kind, the artist makes a statement, as in a still life or a portrait. In the third kind of painting the artists appeal to the emotions — as in abstract paintings — by form or color.

She concluded her talk by saying a good picture has good composition, paint value, and eye appeal.

Before the members toured the museum they were given questions to answer about the paintings and sculpture viewed. When all had reassembled different members pointed out paintings or sculpture which had especially appealed to them or which illustrated the points raised in the talk.

The business meeting was held at the Steak House with refreshments following. Mary Devenport, president reminded the members of the annual Birthday Luncheon to be held this year at the High School Cafeteria in Rotan, April 4, at 12:30. Ruby Lee Lafferty, Past President of Alpha State will be the guest speaker; and of the Luncheon April 25 in Big Spring at which Frances White, the present Alpha State President will speak.

Members present were Ruby Anderson, Barbara Bigham, Maydelle Burns, Rita Carter, Bobbie Combest, Mary Devenport, Geofgene Galloway, Durelle Gorman, Virginia Grove, Hazel Hanback, Bess Johnston, Philomen Kelley, June McGlaun, Dorothy Clark, Elwands Nall, Eva Nelson, Sally O'Rear, Pauline Turner, Agnes Kunkel, Margie McNair and Alta Nation.

ABWA Hears Mrs. Foree

The Scurry Charter Chapter of American Business Women's Association met for their regular monthly dinner meeting in the dining room of Carlos Little Mexico. There were 10 members and three guests present. The visitors were Freda Childress, Merle Bell and Mrs. Charles Foree.

Invocation was given by Inez Teaff, followed by a program given by Mrs. Charles Foree, who is an instructor in Food Nutrition at Texas Tech in Lubbock. Her subject, Food Nutrition Today, was most interesting to all women. She discussed the freshmen courses in Meal Management and the Importance of Color to Meals, then the junior courses of nutrition for their own age and How to Prepare food to save Vitamins. Of special interest to most of the ladies were her remarks on the Money Management of Food Purchases and Preparation.

A business meeting followed which was presided over by the Chapter President, Mary Starnes, Lucille Bynam gave the vocational talk and told of the new fabrics and finishes for spring. Benediction was given by Irene Brooks.

Treat For After School

These cupcakes store well.

Apple Wedges with Peanut Butter
Lemon Cupcakes Milk

LEMON CUPCAKES

1¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup (1 stick) butter
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 large eggs
1-3rd cup hot milk
Lemon Frosting, see recipe below

On wax paper sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. In medium mixing bowl cream butter, sugar and vanilla; beat in eggs, one at a time. Add the dry ingredients, then the milk, stirring until smooth after each addition. Turn into buttered muffin-pans filling cups two-thirds full. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean and tops are lightly browned—20 to 25 minutes. With a small metal spatula loosen edges and remove to wire rack to cool. Spread tops with Lemon Frosting. Store in a tightly covered tin box. Makes 12 to 14 medium cupcakes.

LEMON FROSTING: Beat together until smooth ¼ cup (½ stick) butter, 1 cup confectioners' sugar, dash of salt and 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Saturday Supper

Adjust the curry powder to suit your own taste.

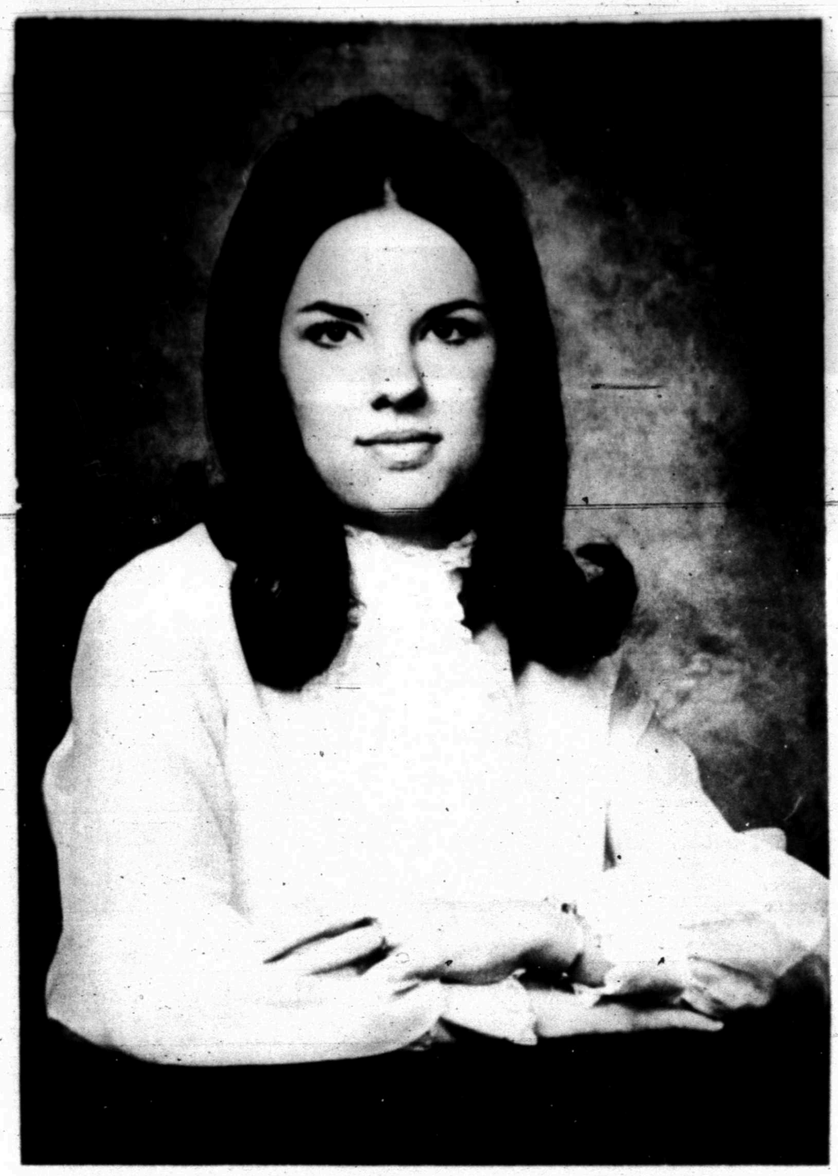

Indian Lentil Soup
Grilled Frankfurters in Toasted Buns
Mustard Cucumber Salad
Fruit Compote Beverage

INDIAN LENTIL SOUP

1 cup lentils
2 quarts water
2 chicken bouillon cubes
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, peeled and minced
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon chili powdr
1 to 3 teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Wash and drain lentils. Turn into a large saucepot (4 to 6 quart) with the two quarts water and bouillon cubes. Cook over low heat until tender—about half an hour.

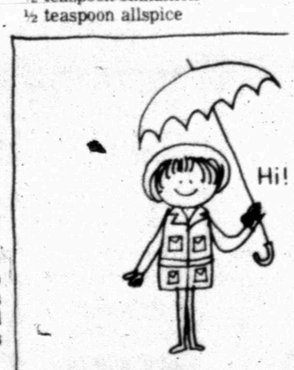

In an eight-inch skillet melt the butter. Add onion and garlic and cook until onion is yellowed and softened. Add salt, chili powder and curry powder. Cook gently for several minutes; add to lentils. Cook gently for about 20 minutes; puree in food mill. Just before serving add salt to taste and the lemon juice. Makes almost two quarts.

RANSOM NOT PAID

Kidnaped Consul Freed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Leftwing terrorists who kidnaped a Paraguayan consul on Tuesday freed him today despite the refusal of the Argentine government to free two political prisoners as ransom.

The Argentine government thus became the first in Latin America to defy the demands of leftists who have kidnaped half a dozen diplomats in recent weeks, releasing them in exchange for political prisoners.

Waldemar Sanchez, 56-year-old Paraguayn consul, was freed in a suburb this morning and appeared at the Paraguayan Embassy shortly thereafter. Although looking tired, he told newsmen that he had been treated well in captivity.

The Argentine Liberation front (FAL), a small leftist militant group, had threatened to kill Sanchez Friday morning and to execute the managers of U.S. Companies in Argentina if the government of President Juan Carlos Ongania refused to free two members of the FAL allegedly arrested last week.

Last night, however, they said Sanchez was still alive and would not be killed "for humanitarian reasons."

The government acknowledged that Carlos Dellanave, 20, was in jail, but said that the other man sought by the FAL, Alejandro R. Baldu, 20, was being sought by police.

The FAL claimed that Baldu had been arrested, but had been killed or so badly tortured that the police could not release him.

Dellanave's father, Raul, who had been arrested in connection with his son's activities, said at a news conference Friday that the youth had been tortured while in jail.

Both young men had been accused of participating in bank robberies and in terrorist raids on military and police posts.

Sanchez, the Paraguayan consul in the border town of Ituzaingo, was kidnaped on the eve of the arrival of Paraguayan president Alfredo Stroessner for a five-day official visit.

A U.S. military attache in the Dominican Republican, kidnaped the same day, was released Friday after the Dominicans freed 20 political prisoners and sent them off to exile in Mexico.

In similar fashion, the Brazilian government and the Guatemalan government freed political prisoners recently as ransom for the lives of diplomats kidnaped by leftists. In all, three U.S. diplomats, the Guatemalan foreign minister and a japanese consul have been abducted.

Teen-ager Had Profitable Business

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A teen-ager committed to the state Department of Institutions for using and selling drugs and marijuana claims he grossed more than $58,000 in illegal drug sales, police said.

Dale Deskins, captain of the Police Department's Youth Guidance Division, said reports show the youth began using amphetamines in 6th grade, marijuana in the 7th and LSD in the 9th, and dropped out of school as a sophomore.

Reminder Issued On Dog Law

Chief of Police Stephen Clark has reminded citizens of Snyder about an Ordinance that has been in effect here since 1953. Section 4-11 of the City Code is a regulatory statute concerning the keeping of dogs within the city limits.

"We are receiving an increasing number of complaints that involve violations of this ordinance," Chief Clark stated. "I feel sure that all of our people desire to comply with it. Probably any lack of such voluntary compliance comes only from a lack of familiarity with the law."

This ordinance provides for an annual license to be paid on all dogs in the city, $2 for each dog six months of age or over. In addition to this license, all dogs in the city are required to be vaccinated against rabies, and wear a tag attesting to this vaccination at all times. This applies even to the purely "house pet" variety.

A further provision of the law forbids the "running at large" of any dog. The Chief stated that it is a misconception to believe that a dog may run loose if it is wearing the proper tags. This restriction applies to all dogs at all times.

This ordinance provides the following penalty: "Any person violating the provision of any of the foregoing sections pertaining to dogs shall be fined not exceeding two hundred-dollars ($200.00)."

"Our community will be only as orderly as the citizens desire it to be, so we earnestly ask the cooperation of all," Chief Clark concluded. "All of the provisions are necessary for this order of the city, but the one requiring vaccination is indeed serious. It is advisable that you warn your children not to pet or play with strange animals or stray dogs and cats, and should they be bitten by a dog to get a description of the dog. Also try to see where the dog goes, so they can point him out to the police officer."

Postal Pay Raise Talks Continue

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union and government officials working to beat an undefined deadline have cast aside all issues except wage increases in the threatening postal dispute.

A joint announcement Friday night by the negotiating teams was seen as a possible blow to Nixon administration attempts to win speedy and massive reform of the mail system.

The negotiations resumed Saturday in an attempt to settle the dispute that led to a widespread strike of postal clerks and carriers a week ago.

The statement issued by the two bargaining teams offered no hint the discussions that began Wednesday had brought the two sides close to a settlement.

Both sides "agree that postal workers need and must have salary increases and that the only question is how much and when," the statement said.

It added that "all other problems—and there are many—must be postponed until the wage question is solved."

The Nixon administration tied the pay raise issue to postal reform prior to the walkout.

The participants in the closed meetings have been tight-lipped about details of the talks except for the daily joint statements and occasional public pronouncements that the sessions have been "business-like" and "serious."

An apparent conflict in union strategy developed Friday after James Rademacher, president of the AFL-CIO National Association of Letter Carriers, was quoted as announcing a Thursday deadline for the talks.

Although that would actually represent an extension of an earlier, unofficial union-imposed five-day deadline, the AFL-CIO later discounted talk of a deadline.

"There are no deadlines and no time clock is running," said Albert J. Zack, AFL-CIO public relations director.

He read a telegram which he said Rademacher had sent to all of his organization's locals, saying the "performance of government spokesmen ... satisfies our expectations of prompt and favorable results.

"The seven postal unions are presenting a united front," the wire went on. "The only thing which can jeopardize our favorable prospects would be unauthorized, precipitous actions at any level."

Rademacher has demanded a 12 per cent retroactive increase plus an additional $800 in July and area adjustments to compensate for a higher cost of living in various regions.

Other unions reportedly have sought increases as high as 20 per cent.

A House and Senate post office conference committee has before it two different pay bills, the highest totaling an 11.1 per cent pay boost although one Senate committee member said the conferees can draft a higher increase.

However, the conferees are not expected to act until the government-union negotiations are complete.

Guerrillas Kidnap Lebanese Agents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Palestinian guerrillas kidnaped 15 Lebanese customs agents and blocked a main highway out of Beirut today as the country's deepening political crisis went into its fifth day.

One commando was killed and four were wounded during the night when a guerrilla convoy was ambushed in Beirut. The attack brought the toll of the running battle between the Arab guerrillas and the rightist Falangist party to 41 dead and more than 70 wounded.

Lebanese government security forces have been involved in only a few incidents.

In another incident during the night, a rocket was fired at installations of the American-owned Mediterranean Refinery Co. 20 miles south of the capital. Officials said damage was superficial and no one was injured.

The ambush came as Falangist party chief Pierre Gemayel met with the Palestinian leadership in efforts to settle the crisis.

Gemayel and other Lebanese political leaders sought to assure the Palestinians they were not trying to liquidate the guerrilla movement.

Interior Minister Kamal Jumblatt said in a television address there is a plot to plunge Lebanon into civil war. He did not say who he believes is behind the plot.

Egyptian and Syrian newspapers have accused the United States Embassy in Beirut of paying agents $1 million to foment fighting between the two factions in Lebanon.

A military spokesman in Damascus said Syrian troops occupied 21 fortified Israeli positions along the cease-fire line during the night. An unspecified number of Israelis were killed or wounded and the installations were destroyed, while one Syrian was killed and three were wounded, the spokesman said.

Informed diplomats in London reported that the Soviet Union's position on the Mideast has hardened since the United States rejected Israel's request for new warplanes.

The informants said that Soviet envoys at the United Nations and in Washington now are insisting that Israel must abandon all territory it occupied during the 1967 war, and that any minor border changes could then be negotiated with the Arabs. Previously, the Soviets hinted that minor border changes could be a part of a peace settlement.

Air Strike Delaying Travelers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Traveling by air at Eastertime invariably involves crowds and delays. This weekend, a strike-reduced force of air traffic controllers made such travel formidable, though possible.

Especially in the Midwest and East, flying from one place to another meant enduring ticket counter lines, snackbar lines, waiting room lines and finally, sitting in planes lined up on runways.

As one of every four air traffic controllers-by their count-reported sick, it meant watching departure and arrival boards for information, running from airline counter to airline counter checking for alternate flights, taking already crowded trains and bases, or simply staying home and phoning Easter greetings.

The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, PATCO, claimed 3,500 of its members heeded its call for a general walkout in a long-simmering feud with the Federal Aviation Administration over pay, work load and equipment. The FAA, however, said only about 1,000 had failed to show on Friday's three shifts. It has threatened employes with dismissal for unexcused absences.

The Easter weekend travel crush is second only to Christmastime. The airlines scrapped hundreds of the 6,900 flights scheduled—especially short-haul runs on the East Coast. But the failure of airplanes to be at an Eastern departure point at the right time affected flights in the far West, too.

The absences were most keenly felt in the FAA's 21 air route control centers, where men at radar screens guide high-altitude jetliners between airports. There were pickets at some centers.

At the Kansas City center, where only 21 of 63 controllers showed for the evening shift, only two flights an hour were being handled from adjacent centers, while other overflights were being routed north and south. At the Kansas City municipal airport itself, all 10 controllers failed to report to work.

The FAA said in all such cases supervisory personnel handled the job and Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe said, "We do not intend to sacrifice safety at any time."

At the Chicago control center 39 of 113 controllers called in sick and the spacing of airplanes was reduced to the point that arrivals and departures were delayed by an average of 40 minutes.

Tank Trucks Fired Upon On IH 10

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — Two tank trucks carrying a highly volatile chemical were fired upon on IH 10 in Chambers County early Friday, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Union drivers of the trucks, owned by Leman Tank Line Inc. of Houston, are on strike and the vehicles were being driven by supervisory personnel.

A bullet struck the tank of one of the vehicles as it rolled on the highway near Winnie about 1:30 a.m. the DPS said.

A leak in the tank was the only damage reported.

About 4 a.m., the second Leman truck was hit by a bullet near the Trinity River brige. Chambers County law enforcement officers are investigation to the incidents.

Floods Destroy Half Of Crops

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Spring floods have destroyed up to half of Florida's vegetable crop, and Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner says that may cause a shortage in the nation's markets.

"The rains have flooded out the vegetable crops or rotted the roots so badly that more than 50 per cent of the spring crop is lost in some areas," Conner said Friday.

Spot checks of the area between Fort Myers and Palm Beach — which grows much of the nation's winter produce — showed that the record rainfall also has flooded pastures and killed cattle, Conner said.

Conner said he has asked the Farmers Home Administration to make available emergency low-interest loans.

Work was begun Friday to get nine counties designated as disaster areas.

Livestock sloshing through water, were reported starving in many areas despite efforts by ranchers to make up for the loss of grazing by dumping hay wherever they could find dry spots.

Children Of The Desert Try To Make Better World

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

BENSON, Ariz. (AP) — It is dawn. From the dark northwest the cold front musters blue-gray clouds before it, and the wind cuts through denim and wool.

Jane Rackley is in the kitchen kneading the dough for bread. She is 21, an escapee from North Carolina, New York's Greenwich Village, San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury. "I came here a year ago and they let me stay," she says, her long, brown hair falling over her slight shoulders. "It saved my life."

Mapa Pardeahtan, an Apache, sees a hawk on a Yucca spike outside his room. He runs out the front door to alert Bill Haines who has a gun. The hawk preys on the pigeons that Bill brought from the East. In another day Mana would have blasted the hawk himself from the bathroom window as soon as he spotted it. But now he abjures violence. "I don't kill any more," he says quietly. "I've killed too many things in my life." His long hair, fastened by an Indian headband, sometimes in a knot behind when he goes into town, falls loose over his bare shoulders as he ignores the cold. The hawk is gone by the time Haines fetches the gun.

Thirty diverse people live here, in their commune, backed up against the Rincon Mountains. They came together to be alone, hidden by hills and high chapparal. They pose the question for their own existence: can they, for all their various motives, within the limitations of this experiment, daring the word hippie, daring the memory of strong drugs; create something better than the other world out there?

There is precious little here. They make their own, personally in the close-knit fabric of self. And materially, with stone, adobe, timber to build a home.

Steve Marquess puts a fresh log on the fire, and the draft from the great stone fireplace borrows from last night's embers, sucks it to orange life. He is an architecture school graduate from Arkansas, the newest member of the commune, a conscientious objector. He is 24, his beard dark and his hair modestly long. He takes three incense sticks from a box on the mantle and places them in the mouth of a Tibetan statuette of a Lhasa dog, bronze and lion-like. He lights them and sits on the long window seat at the end of the room. The remaining members of the commune answer the call of the Oriental gong. The back door slams open and one by one they filter in for the morning reading.

Steve begins where he left off the night before. "All knowledge... aims at reaching the Unknown from the known, by dispelling Maya or illusion. Knowledge must proceed from a starting point of self, which is the postulate and axiom of existence..."

It is Yoga, their belief. But in ordinary words, says Bill Haines, it is much simpler truth, love and nonviolence. Only that? Perhaps more than that?

Haines is their guru. Not a simple man. He is 43 with a mind beset by practicalities he would prefer to ignore. He grew up in Manhattan, traveled in Europe and India, taught theater and writing, resents inquiry into his past. "Why do you need to know that?" he gruffs. "Just say I was a criminal."

He is also a sort of overseer without portfolio. The light in the back bedroom doesn't work. "How long has that light been out?" Haines shouts, charging down the hall. A confusion of abused and abusive voices echo back. Haines' voice rises above them.

After an evening reading Haines scathes the group. "You promised to plant 10 trees around the places where you live," he says. "You've been here two years and I still don't see the trees. Where are the trees?"

"Look," chuckles someone. "Johnny Appleseed is mad."

"We can't go out and steal trees," objects someone else. "You're not stealing them," Haines shoots back. "You're only moving them." Two days later a trio drives out into the desert to look for trees.

He is Orson Welles in voice, face and figure. He roars opinions as if into the face of the wind. Or he nearly mumbles, contemplatively, gently, and the room is still to listen. One of the commune women says, "Bill is really quite good. He doesn't try to control what you do. But whoever needs him, he's there."

Bill Haines led them to this new home in the desert. They began far away in the green hills of New York. They were four years younger then and chance brought them together one by one at another Yoga community in Monroe, N.Y. Some were on drugs, at least one addicted to heroin. It was an established ashram, or commune, and a comfortable one.

But the people there were "weekend Yogis, more interested in what room they were getting and what was for dinner," Haines recalls. They were frightened by the younger people they didn't understand. They wanted me to get rid of them. I couldn't do it. They brought in police with shotguns. We left. We were 28 people without a home. We had nowhere to go."

Rescue came from Timothy Leary, already discharged from Harvard in a campus scandal over experimentation with so-called mind-expanding drugs. He invited the commune to move into the second floor of his baroque three-story house in Millbrook, N.Y. He even paid for their meals. Out of the cold, but into the fire. They finally left the turmoil of Leary's beleaguered colony.

Their little caravan moved out on the back roads to avoid incidents, bound for Arizona. Three trucks, four cars, 16 people, 15 dogs, nine cats and a goat.

When they moved into the ranchhouse they had no furniture to speak of, few eating utensils. They lived on mattresses and rugs on the floor. The commune is not yet self-sufficient. But now there are walls around and a roof over Mana's formerly outdoor pottery shop. Sales are up. One of the customers for hippie handiwork is Goldwater's in Phoenix. Now they have a color television set, a party-line telephone, propane gas for heat, 360 acresof their own and 600 more leased from the federal government. They are respected at the local bank, make their mortgage payments, pay bills in cash. But more gratifying to them is the relative peace with their neighbors. One nearby rancher, a 75-year-old who drops by occasionally, was invited to a come-as-young-as-you-feel party by friends in Tucson. He picked up some clothes at the ashram and he and his wife went as hippies.

For all the brightening financial picture, it took some $22,000 from friends to keep the commune alive last year, most of it from Steven Lazar, a Los Angeles stock broker.

Still mostly they earn what they have. Before most of the commune is awake, the five youngest men take a quick breakfast and step out into the cold darkness. They coax slim life into one of the fleet of disabled jalopies and drive 70 miles westward to regular jobs in Tucson. The money last year some $9,600 goes into the commune kitty. It isn't enough to pay the $11,700-a-year grocery bill.

The car jerks out of the commune driveway, the seats crowded with uneasy riders. Boyd Dennison, 25, an Ohioan who drifted here from California, apprentice bricklayer. He hopes to buy a brick-making machine for the commune where he is building a home for Bobby and Becky Gessler and their 7-month-old baby, Joshua. Gerry Gessler, 20, Harrisburg, Pa., apprentice surveyor, learning another trade for the commune. Scott Clark, of Denver, works as a woodworker in Tucson's construction trade, hopes to be the commune's furniture maker. His current assignment is to make new dining room tables, but he is short on time. Haines presses him, "Do you realize that if you'd made the table for the Last Supper, He'd be alive today."

But the jobs in Tucson are exigencies only. Jane echoes the unanimous wish: "We've got to bring the boys home."

Roger Irwin is 31, a former minister in the United Christian Church. He and his wife Martha came here via Kansas where they had been part of another commune dedicated to teaching retarded children. He has degrees in sociology and philosophy. He acts as the commune's official guide, and does some carpentry on the side. For him and for others, the ashram offers a time to grow: "In the Christianity I was raised on, we were all thrilled about changing the world-to go out and start a new church, to preach. I'm all for doing good in the world. But not until I know what it is.

Junior Editors Quiz on PILGRIMS

QUESTION: How did the Pilgrims get their name?

* * *

ANSWER: As the word is generally used, a pilgrim is one who journeys to a far off land to visit some sacred shrine. Ancient peoples began to make great pilgrimages to their holy cities thousands of years ago. The idea spread to others the world over. As we show above, great numbers of people in our own time are pilgrims, too. The Hindus of India strive to bathe in the Ganges river in order to be purified; modern Christians flock to Jerusalem where Jesus Christ once lived; and, on the Jewish holiday of Passover, Jews come to worship at Mount Zion. Famous Mecca is the birthplace of the prophet Mohammed; Moslems try to visit there at least once in their lifetime. However, a pilgrim can also be simply "one who journeys to a foreign land." The pilgrims came to America more to flee their homelands than to visit some particular place, yet their leader called his group "pilgrimes." Actually, the Pilgrims were originally referred to by others as Old Comers or Forefathers. The term "Pilgrim Fathers" was not popularly accepted until 1820 when Daniel Webster used it in a speech commending them.

Chaps' Meade Devises New Cage Performance System

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Statistics to Lee Meade are banana splits, heavy on the topping.

If he's ever marooned on a desert island, Meade will probably chart the production rate of every coconut tree on the place.

So it's not surprising that Meade has developed a rating system—three years in the making—that could revolutionize the evaluation of a basketball player's performance.

Meade, besides being the public relations director and assistant general manager of the Dallas Chaparrals of the American Basketball Association, also gathers the ABA statistics.

The former sports editor of the Denver Post and his wife, Ellen, used to spend 160 man hours a week knocking out that chore before computers made it more of a fact gathering science.

"Just gather the facts and the computer does the complete tabulation flow in less than five seconds," says Meade in awe.

Recently, Meade tried out a new system on the computer. It considers scoring, rebounding and playmaking-as positive factors in the performance of a player—but it also takes into account turnovers and personal fouls on the negative side.

"I've been looking for something that combines all of the individual statistics into a single rating," Meade explains. "The Efficiency Per Minute Ratings are the result."

Under Meade's system, Denver's Spencer Haywood is the only superstar in the ABA with Rick Barry, hampered by injuries most of the year, closing fast into that category.

Haywood scores 1.036 on the EPM ratings.

"Anyone getting more than 1.000 qualifies as a superstar," says Meade. The .000 figure indicates that a player is contributing one point—either through scoring, rebounding or playmaking—to his team for each minute he's on the court.

Connie Hawkins had the highest rating with Pittsburgh two years ago at .967. Barry of Washington and Hawkins both topped 1.000 last year. Barry is .960 this year and climbing.

To determine EPM ratings, Meade adds a player's points and rebounds. He doubles the value of assists "because each assist represents two points for a teammate" and subtracts the turnovers and personal fouls. Then, he divides the final total by the number of minutes played.

"I'm not ready to claim this is the ultimate answer toward evaluating a player's value to his team, but the results are quite interesting," Meade says. "I'm throwing this out to see what reaction I can get and what suggestions and refinements might be made."

An All-ABA team selected from the EPM ratings this season would include Haywood and Barry at forwards; Mel Daniels of Indiana (.874) at center and Warren Armstrong of Washington (.873) and Lone Dumper of Kentucky (.867) at guards.

"I feel this is something that's really needed," says Meade. "Some look at the scoring of a player and say 'Well, he may be a good scorer but he can't do this or that.' This system helps establish a player's overall value to his team."

So send in your cards and letters, folks, to Mr. Meade about his newest project. Might even drop by and sit a spell if you have the time. Meade will be the one hovering over a hot computer with a Jack O' Lantern smile on his face.

Bases At Oakland Will Be Colored

OAKLAND (AP)—Charlie Finley wants his Oakland Athletics to see red when they head for first base this baseball season.

When they get to second, they will see yellow, and when they turn toward third base, they'll see blue.

It's all part of Finley's plan to bring more color to baseball—specifically to the Oakland Coliseum basepaths.

Finley said Monday he wants to color the bases red, yellow and blue.

"Under the lights, it will be beautiful. Simply beautiful!" the colorful owner exclaimed in a telephone interview.

It won't violate American League rules, Finley says, because the rules say only that home plate must be white.

Finley has already brought several innovations to the Oakland Coliseum—a scoreboard that explodes in a predetermined rhythm, a ball-carrying bunny that pops up behind home plate for the umpires, Charlie O. the mule, and bright uniforms of green and gold, plus white shoes.

The board of directors of the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Complex, Inc., had not heard of the idea but Wilsam Cunningham, coliseum manager, said he expected the directors to approve.

Finley said the idea came in a letter from 15-year-old Bryan Barsamian of Oakland, who, Finley said, will be his personal guest on opening day.

Finley thinks the bright bases may be easier for outfielders to see as they throw to catch the runner, but concedes that some players may protest that they are distracting to hitters.

The reaction in the A's training camp at Mesa ranged from "Oh no," to loud guffaws.

Finley's idea for painting the bases was first made known in a column by Prescott Sullivan in the San Francisco Examiner.

Giants Lose

TOKYO (AP) — Righthander Juan Marichal, 21-game winner for the San Francisco Giants last season, gave up only six hits today but they included a homer and two doubles and the Giants lost 2-1 to the Lotte Orions of Tokyo.

Owls Sweep Raider Series

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rice Owls continued their surprising play in Southwest Conference baseball Friday.

The Owls knocked off Texas Tech 2-1 to sweep a three-game series from the Red Raiders, who were picked in a pre-season poll to finish second behind Texas.

Rice now has a 5-1 SWC mark and Tech is 0-3.

Texas with a 3-0 record and A&M with a 2-0 slate hold the only perfect records in the early going.

In the only other action, Baylor split a non-conference doubleheader with Lamar Tech, rapping the Cardinals 9-3 in the opener and dropping the nightcap 5-4.

Bart Bratcher and Skip Balthrop hit home runs for Baylor in the first game.

The only scheduled action today is at Waco where Baylor again hosts Lamar Tech in a twinbill.

MINI-SKIRTED SHAY IS TOP DRAG RACER

Editors's Note: Car racing—listed as America's No. 1 spectator sport—has lost the black jacket and motorcycle boot image of years past. One of the top competitors in this chrome world of speed and excitement is a Texan—a beautiful housewife and mother who says the family that drags together stays together.

By JIM BRIGANCE
Associated Press Writer

CORSICANA, Tex. (AP) — Shay Nichols is one mini-skirted Texas housewife you don't have to drag to the drag races.

And it isn't just because she is one of the nation's very top drivers.

"It's simply because it gets in your blood. It's the most stimulating, most exciting thing in the world," says 25-year old Shay, a go-go-booted racer with a chasis like Detroit never minted.

Shay was American Hot Rod Association spring nationals runnerup last year at Bristol, Tenn., considered the Carnegie Hall of drag racing.

Any man who fancies himself a speed king between traffic signals is in for a heap of ego-deflating if he spends any time around the shapely Shay.

"Really," she said, "it's only the amateurs who cry about being beaten by a woman. The real pros don't care who is sitting in the next car. The idea is to win. That's what they're there for and that's what I'm there for."

Although women have thrust themselves into a number of heretofore sacred male activities, drag racing is one of the most gruelling they could have chosen. And not many have.

There are only five women qualified as professional drag racers, Shay notes.

You have to understand the litany of the race track to fully appreciate the world into which Shay has accelerated herself.

You have to narrow your eyes against the hammering heat of the asphalt, feel the bite of seat belts and harness straps, hear the angry growl of highly-tuned auto engines, the scream of tortured tires against the pavement. And you have to hear the roar of the crowd.

"Inside a quarter of a mile your car has gone from dead stop to maybe 135 miles an hour. Things around you are a blue.

"It's hard to describe that feeling."

But anyone watching Shay describe a race can tell something is happening to her. Her green eyes grow larger and seem to become electrified. Her speech turns staccato, a narrative in adjectives and sharp, incisive words as she literally lives the race again. The real Shay plainly is far out there with the pack, speeding along in her world of chrome wheels and hard-driving motors.

Cunningham, Riordan In Spotlight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association playoff spotlight, shared Friday night by Philadelphia sharpshooter Billy Cunningham and New York supersub Mike Riordan, shifts to Atlanta tonight as the Chicago Bulls try to bring down the high-flying Hawks.

Cunningham poured in 37 points as the 76ers squared their Eastern Division semifinal series with Milwaukee by thumping the Bucks 112-105. The Knickerbockers, sparked by Riordan's 11-point spree in the last period, topped Baltimore 106-99 for a 2-0 jump in the other best-of-7 Eastern semifinal set.

The Bulls, drubbed by Atlanta 129-111 in their Western Division opener Wednesday night, go after the equalizer in tonight's only post-season action. Sunday, the Knicks host Baltimore and Los Angeles, one game up on Phoenix in the other Western Division series, entertains the Suns.

Philadelphia avenged an opening 125-118 loss to the Bucks by stepping out to a 63-57 halftime lead and staying in front the rest of the way. Lew Alcindor was high for Milwaukee with 33 points.

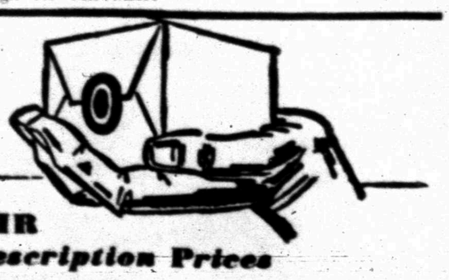

The game was marred by a third-quarter fight between Luke Jackson of Philadelphia and the Bucks' Don Smith. Both were ejected.

Riordan came off the Knicks' bench to hit 13 second half points and Bill Bradley, scoreless before intermission, added 15 as New York extended its playoff mastery over the Bullets to six games. The Knicks swept Baltimore in four games a year ago.

New York came from behind in the final quarter after trailing 51-48 at halftime and 71-64 in the third period. Gus Johnson paced the Bullets with 28 points, all but eight of them in the first half.

The Bulls primary targets tonight will be Joe Caldwell and Lou Hudson, who popped 39 and 36 Atlanta points, respectively, in the first game.

In American Basketball Association play Friday night, Denver beat New Orleans 103-92, Indiana topped Pittsburgh 115-111, Miami upset Carolina 112-107 and Los Angeles topped Washington 124-111.

Snyder Boys Advance At El Paso

EL PASO—Winds of 40 to 50 miles per hour hampered play in the annual Easter Tennis Tournament here Friday, and a "bad draw" was an ill wind that blew no good to the Snyder High School team, but despite all of the handicaps one individual and two doubles teams advanced.

Max Falls, who pulled a stunning upset the previous day in beating the fourth-ranked boy in the Southwest, defeated Joel Harchett of El Paso Austin 6-2, 6-4. But, Max drew his Snyder teammate, No. 1 seed John Phillips, in the next match and dropped a 6-1, 6-2 decision.

Ronnie Maddux was beaten in the quarterfinals 6-8, 1-6 by Joe Carrick of El Paso Burgess.

Maddux and Falls and Phillips and Carrick advanced to the semifinals in doubles play Saturday and John reached the finals in singles.

Steinke Has High Hopes

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Texas A&I coach Gil Steinke has some bad news for 1970 foes of the defending national small college football champions.

Steinke says "the enthusiasm has been the best ever" during the first round of spring football practice.

"This is always a good sign in any organization," says Steinke.

"The most satisfying thing in the spring is to see players who were redshirted or didn't play in the fall progressing and moving into the lineup.

"If some of these men who haven't played before don't progress and prove themselves, then you're in trouble. That's one of the purposes of spring workouts, to see which of the players are now ready for action."

Steinke says one of the redshirts who have emerged this spring is Keith Johse, a 195-pound fullback from Boling. Another newcomer drawing praise is defensive tackle Tom Morton, a 6-foot-6, 235-pound freshman from Ridgeland, S. C.

The Javelinas, now off for an Easter break, return to the practice field April 6.

Cougar Golfers Are Impressive

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston golf team has won 13th tournament this year and its latest victory was the most impressive.

The Cougars won the second annual Guy Savage collegiate golf tournament Friday with a 54 hole total of 1093 which was 77 strokes ahead of the nearest competitor.

Tiger Thinlies Took Early Lead

SAN ANGELO—The Snyder High School track team got off to a good start at the annual Relays here Friday, scoring 12 points to take an early lead in Division II. Their nearest competitor—defending champion Sweetwater—had only eight points.

The Tigers took first in the discus when senior Herbert Hodges heaved the saucer 152 feet, 6½ inches.

Leon McKnight was less than an inch off the winning distance of 21-0 ¼ in the broad jump. Joe Keel of Lake View won the event. Norman Davis of Snyder also placed with a measure of 18-½. He was fourth.

The Bengals apparently had a good chance to dethrone the Mustangs. Three individuals finished first in preliminary running events. Gary Patterson's 16.8 clocking was tops in the 120-yard high hurdles. Norman Davis was just a step behind with a 16.5 clocking, and Jeff Stewart was timed in 16.8.

Willis Harrison took first in the century with a time of 10 flat. Leon McKnight and Randy Beard both were timed in 10.6.

Larry Allen was first in the intermediate hurdles with a 41.2 clocking. Norman Davis was timed at 44.5 in the same event.

The remaining field events and finals in the relays and running events were on tap Saturday.

Death Forces Cancellation Of Baseball Tourney

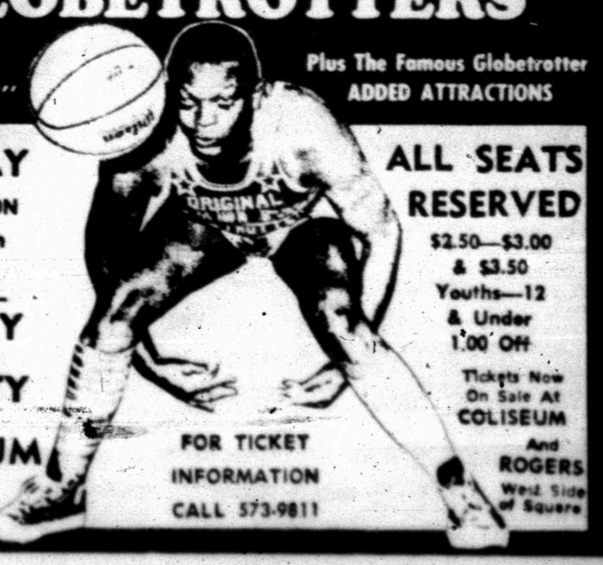

EUNICE, N. M.— The baseball tournament here was canceled Saturday morning following the death Friday night of Joe Langston, athletic director and head coach at Eunice, N. M. Langston died in an Abilene hospital apparently of a heart attack, according to information received here.

The Snyder Tigers defeated Monahans 6-5 in the first round of the tournament Thursday. A rain storm forces postponement of the games scheduled Friday. Then came word of Langston's death and the cancellation resulted. Thus, the Bengals returned home Saturday morning with a 1-0 record here.

Family Plans To Raise Bear Cubs

By STEVE MOORE
Associated Press Writer

THOMPSON FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Mrs. Leslie Hodges admits there "may be a tussle," what with the Siamese cat and all, but she's still planning to raise the 8-inch long baby black bear her husband recently brought home saying, "Here's your Valentine present."

He weighs 1½ pounds. His eyes still are closed. Now and then he sleeps with a Siamese cat.

"At first the cat's nose was out of joint, half a foot—wouldn't have anything to do with it. Now they get along, but I don't know what'll happen when his eyes open," said Mrs. Hodges.

The cub is one of two found recently by Dick Vinson, a logger who ranches near this northwest Montana community just east of the Idaho border.

"I felled this big tree and the mother came right out of the stump. It was hollow," said Vinson. "Scared hell out of me and hit me on the leg with a paw."

He ran one way; the bear the other.

The cubs were in the bottom of the stump, squealing because their winter den had been invaded.

Vinson said if he hadn't taken care of them they would have frozen. The mother bear didn't return that day or the next.

Mrs. Vinson and Mrs. Hodges each decided to rear one of the cubs.

"The formula now is a mixture of half canned milk, half water and a dab of honey—all in a baby bottle," said Vinson.

"We have wild bears all the time so we just as well have one of our own breaking the limbs," said Mrs. Hodges, referring to the 200 apple trees on the family ranch 2 of Thompson Falls along the Clark Fork River.

"He looks just like a pup. It's my husband you know—he's the one likes it the most ... Gets down on the floor and tries to play with it and it kicks and scratches and bites, just like a little puppy," Mrs. Hodges said.

In both cases, the bears are rather well off. Both sleep in boxes lined with heating pads, pillows and blankets. There's a cat for added warmth and a fully wound clock in one box.

Patricia Vinson said she's not really looking too far into the bear's future. "We just want to keep her and aren't thinking about turning her over to a zoo."

The female the Vinsons are rearing is largest of the two. She measures about 10 inches, not including the tail—which the male cub is minus.

"I don't anticipate any real problems—we have bears on the land all the time and in a way it will be fun," Mrs. Vinson said.

Vinson said there's now a steady stream of people coming to the ranch to see the cub.

"I've never seen one this small before and neither has anyone I've talked to around here," he said.

Neither family has specific plans for house breaking the cubs. Mature black bears generally weigh between 200 and 300 pounds.

SUMMER JOB IDEAS

FOR STUDENTS

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain

Soon I'll be 16 and I would like to know what types of jobs might be available for summer employment?

R.C., Santa Rosa, Calif.

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Some people spend their summers slaving over surfboards or hanging around tennis courts. Others decide to gain valuable experience, earn money, or make a contribution to people in their communities who need their help.

The latter group are moving now . . . thinking, planning, investigating. They aren't waiting until next June to start searching – they know all the best jobs will be filled by then.

YOUR MOVE. Start with your school guidance counselor, or college placement director. Register with the local office of your State Employment Service, or with its Youth Opportunity Center. In addition, many cities operate summer job bureaus. If you are willing to pay a fee, register with private employment agencies. Inquire about laws regulating youth employment; find out if you need a work permit. Read the classified ads in this newspaper; think about placing an ad yourself. When I was a student, I received 23 replies to my ad, and found a job I liked very much. Apply at stores and businesses in your neighborhood. Watch bulletin boards, and factory and store windows for "Help Wanted" signs. Talk it up – tell everybody you know that you're in the market for a summer job. Check with your local Chamber of Commerce to find businesses in your area that hire vacation workers.

JOB CLEARING HOUSES. A free, unique non-profit organization called "Youthpower," staffed by young volunteers, finds jobs for students in a number of cities. Costs are underwritten by Manpower, Inc., a temporary help service, and you can phone Manpower's local offices to find out if Youthpower will operate in your city this year.

FREE TIPS. Youthpower offers a 12-page booklet of guidelines for finding summer work. For a complimentary copy, send me, in care of this newspaper, a long white envelope, stamped and self-addressed. Write "Summer Job Tips" on your outside envelope. Allow several weeks for delivery.

BOOK. "Summer Employment Directory of the United States, 1970" is published by the National Directory Service (Box 65, Cincinnati, Ohio 45232). It contains specific leads on jobs in summer camps, summer theaters, national parks, ranches, resorts, restaurants, amusement parks, business and government. Check your library for other publications.

TYPICAL JOBS FOR TEENS: bus boy, caddie, cannery worker, car washer, cashier, construction helper, delivery boy, elevator operator, food store clerk, farm hand, gas station attendant, greenhouse worker, handyman, hospital worker, houseworker, library aide, lifeguard, office clerk, playground attendant, restaurant worker, sales clerk, ticket taker, tutor, typist, usher, window washer, yard man.

OFF-BEAT POSSIBILITIES. A young California man gets paid by the hour for riding a motorcycle! He's a motorcycle escort for funerals, and works for a firm supplying this service to client funeral homes. You could also: clean dorms for a college, work as a caretaker in an animal testing lab, be a gift-wrapper for a department store, work as a vault receptionist in a bank helping people find their safety deposit boxes, be a practice rider with customers of auto driving schools, become a dog-walker – check with apartment building doormen, work as a night hotel clerk, become a tour conductor for a local sightseeing bus company, become a summer chauffeur for a bank, replacing their regulars on vacation, organize a lawn mowing company – you handle the business end, your helpers handle the muscles.

HERE TUESDAY NIGHT — Tony Douglas, one of the best-known country music recording stars, and the Shrimpers will present a program Tuesday night in the Scurry County Coliseum. Douglas, known as "Mr. Nice Guy," has been widely acclaimed as the most devoted country music singer in the business. The program in the coliseum will begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Advance tickets are on sale at M&M Electronics at $1.50 each. Tickets at the door will be priced at $2 each.

Mailmen Delivering Census Forms

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mountain of government forms streamed into American homes today as the Census Bureau launched its once-a-decade effort of asking the public to line up and count off.

Mailmen were delivering to the nation's 62 million households questionnaires that, when filled out and sent back by return mail no later than Wednesday, will provide a basis for reapportioning the House.

The figures will also be applied under a dozen or more government programs to determine how much federal money goes where.

Most of the forms, about 80 per cent according to the bureau, will be four pages long and will take about 15 minutes to complete. Twenty per cent of the questionnaires will be more extensive and probably require half an hour or longer to fill out.

The Census Bureau wants the forms filled out Wednesday with information that applies that day. Envelopes accompany some of the questionnaires so they can be returned easily. The rest will be picked up by enumerators.

The Constitution requires the population count every decade and Congress set the date for April 1. It also added a housing census.

The short form comprises 23 questions, the long form 89. Originally, the first form of the 1970 census had 66 questions, but Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans ordered it trimmed after critics objected that the survey reached too deeply into individuals' private lives.

20 Arrested In Drug Roundup

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — State narcotics agents and local officers searched through 11 South Texas towns and cities Friday night for 48 persons accused of selling narcotics or dangerous drugs.

By midnight they reported 20 were in custody and the others still were being sought.

Elmer Terrell, head of the narcotics section in the Department of Public Safety, came here to coordinate the roundup, part of a series which started several months ago.

He said 71 indictments naming the 48 persons had been returned after six months of investigation by undercover agents, whose primary target was sellers of such items to teen-age or college age buyers.

Bonds for those taken into custody ran as high as $40,000 for Alvin Roundtree, 57, who was among those arrested in Corpus Christi. Others taken into custody here included Elisha Mason, 18, and Darrell Wallace, 18, for whom bond was set at $20,000, and Steve Anderson, 18, bond $7,500.

Terrell reported bonds for other defendants ranged down to $1,500.

Officers hunted for the others at San Antonio, Luling, Brownsville, Robstown, Nixon, Berclair, Mission, Beeville, Cibolo and Odem.

Similar roundups have been carried out in recent months in the Austin, Houston, Beaumont, San Antonio and El Paso areas.

Texas Rural Crime Jump Presents A Grim Picture

Editor's Note — The slick, hardcore thieves and muggers most commonly associated with urban areas have moved in on a more vulnerable front — the peace and heretofore solitude of rural Texas. Here's a grim picture of just how bad it has become.

By JIM BRIGANCE
Associated Press Writer

Big city criminals in Texas have taken their nefarious art to the country.

And their pictures aren't very pretty.

Major Texas crime jumped 15.9 per cent last year.

Rural crime in many areas leaped over 60 per cent!

Jails become more crowded. Because of this, sentences become light—paroles quicker.

Floyd Hamilton and Clyde Barrow did it with shotguns, fast roadsters and a Depression era perverted sense of right and wrong.

Today's thug does it with two-way radios, a sophisticated "fencing" system and a morality that opines "you have it and I want it."

But the worst part of this tawdy picture is that crime — particularly burglaries — is getting worse in the once pastoral rural areas of the state — the places where law enforcement is not so concentrated, where streets and roads are unlighted, where homes and businesses are more remote.

There was a major crime in Texas last year every 75 seconds of every day of every month.

Every seven hours someone was murdered. Some woman was raped in Texas every three and one-half hours of every day of the year. A robbery was committed every hour on the hour, a burglary every four and one-half minutes, an auto theft every 14 minutes.

The clock keeps ticking and so does crime. But convictions have begun to sag. Crime clearance rates in the rural areas last year dropped from 44 per cent to 34 per cent.

That means only a third of those who perpetrate crimes are punished. Those that are punished, say many police officials, are too often given a probated sentence or a light jail term.

Sometimes burglars are back on the street before the policeman has finished writing his report.

But the picture isn't best seen on charts and graphs.

You have to talk to the thousands of victims, listen to the frustrated law enforcement people, read the tons of police reports.

Dallas County Sheriff Bill Decker says crime in his area has climbed eight to nine per cent in the past two years.

Galveston County Sheriff J.B. Kline recorded a like increase last year alone.

Harris County authorities say rural crime around Houston is up eight per cent over 1968.

Similar increases are reported from Travis County (Austin), Ellis, Rockwall, Hunt, Rains and Hopkins counties.

Even cattle rustling is much bigger business today than it was 100 years ago.

Burglars in almost every instance are the big headache — particularly in resort areas.

Items most often taken are guns and television sets.

The root of this evil picture is frequently narcotics.

Addiction to narcotics is an expensive habit. Few can afford it. The alternative is robbery, theft and burglary.

"They support that habit by stealing guns or televisions or something they can sell quick," explains Bexar County Sheriff Bill Hauck. "They know what they're looking for and go in and get it. They don't need but 10 minutes."

In the Waco area, sheriff's deputies say television sets and guns are the most sought items by burglars.

Decker agrees. Kline says guns, television sets and hi-fi and stereo phonograph sets are most frequently taken by burglars.

Travis County Sheriff T. O. Lang said burglaries at summer homes around Highland Lake have increased — mostly guns and television sets are taken.

"Apparently, there is a market for them some place," Lang said.

"I don't know where the guns are going," said Decker. "We recovered a few television sets."

"We know a lot of items taken from fishing camps and summer homes around Galveston are fenced in Houston," Kline added.

The crime growth picture in rural areas of Hunt County provide a graphic example.

In the last six months of 1969 there were 78 burglaries, mostly farm homes and summer houses. That's 16 break-ins a month.

There were 19 burglaries in January alone and 10 more the first two weeks of February.

"I'd blame the big increase in crime—anywhere—on the liberalized probation and bonding procedures we have," commented Nueces County Sheriff Johnnie Mitchell.

"Years ago," he said, "I'd never heard of anyone being given two probations. Now you have people who are given probation as many as four times."

"We have a lot of first offenders," Kline said. "They're generally young adults under 25 who live in the area. They go out and break into these summer fishing camps because there usually isn't anyone around. Kemah, San Leon, Bolivar—they're all hard hit."

The criminals haven't confined their tastes, however, to inanimate items.

Cattle rustling has increased dramatically.

The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association reports that rustling of cattle and horses, theft of saddles and stock trailers is a million-dollar business.

"A good rustler can load up a truck and be in Colorado, sell the cattle, and be back in Texas long before the owner ever misses his stock," said a cattle raisers' investigator from San Antonio.

Sheriff Decker said he has increased his force by 100 men in the past two years "but I need more. We recovered $1.5 million in stolen goods but that's a small percentage of the things stolen."

"There is no one solution to the problem," said Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety. "I would urge Texans to notify their local authorities when they witness crimes or suspicious activities. I would also urge all citizens to serve on juries, and to assess upon the guilty appropriate penalties which will serve as the proper deterrent to the commission of criminal acts."

Aside from being expensive, bothersome, morally deteriorating, and frustraing crime can also be humiliating.

One recent Saturday afternoon a Hunt County deputy was one of the entire force on patrol for suspected burglars in the area.

The officers maintained radio silence as the probed the back roads and pastures of Hunt County.

Meanwhile, the officer's father had gone to pick up his wife at a bus station. He was gone from home about an hour.

Father, mother and young deputy returned to find the burglars had taken every stitch of clothing the deputy owned.

Soviets Singing Lenin Praises

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

There is no God, says the Soviet Communist party.

There is a demigod, however. Cantatas and chorales are sung in his praise. An oratorio has just been produced to glorify his name. Musical odes and symphonic poems are written about him. Young Communists lead pilgrimages to shrines where he once walked. Festivals celebrate his memory.

And that's only a small part of it.

Throughout April, Communists celebrate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov who, under the revolutionary name of Lenin, led the Bolshevik coup which seized the 1917 Russian revolution.

The buildup, going on under official auspices for two years, has been in some ways more extravagant, and certainly more pious, than the campaign of 1949 when Joseph Stalin, nearing his 70th birthday, was similarly deified.

Here are some of the things that are going on:

Early in February, Moscow reported the premiere performance of an oratorio, by a composer named Shchedrin. It is called "Lenin in the Heart of the People" and it uses poems about Lenin and reminiscences of his contemporaries as a text.

Leaders ordered production of novels, essays, short stories, plays, poems, picture stories, postcards, radio and television programs about Lenin as a child, as a schoolboy, as a young man, as a moral ideal, as a revolutionary ideal, as a worker's ideal.

Although Lenin is presented as a scientific rather than a spiritual deity, he is still an "immortal force" as "the acknowledged leader of the world proletariat and the international Communist movement."

Like other religions, the Lenin religion is infused with missionary zeal. Thus, the party announces, "there is not and cannot be world communism without steadfast adherence to Lenin's teaching."

But like other religions in the past, this one has its schisms, great and small, and its violent quarrels about who is the real interpreter, who is the real carrier of the "true word."

For all their adulation of Lenin, Soviet leaders must be aware of how, over the years, they have revised him and even distorted his revolutionary meaning to suit their changing needs, as in the case, for instance of modern-day Soviet denials that war is inevitable.

The Chinese Communists, now claiming to be the only true Leninists, constantly jeer at the Soviet leaders on this score and others. They cite instance after instance in which the Soviet "revisionist" heretics "betrayed the brilliant teaching of Lenin."

That must be a bitter pill for the Muscovite Communists to swallow.

Jury Finds Four Guilty In Kidnaping

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Jurors deliberated 90 minutes Friday before finding four men guilty in connection with the kidnaping of Karen Vickers last January.

A fifth man charged in the case was declared innocent and was freed.

The four men were convicted of the abduction of the 16-year-old girl from her home. They are Johnnie Tasby, 21, Paul Bryant, 21, Joe Feggett, 23, and Booker T. Burkhalter, 24.

Hugh M. Smaith, 26, was found innocent of all charges and released.

All but Tasby are from Dallas. He is from Nash, Tex.

The men were charged with conspiring to kidnap, kidnaping and using interstate communications in an effort to collect a $40,000 ransom which was never paid.

Sentencing was delayed for 10 to 15 days.

The four were remanded to jail pending sentencing.

Texas Oil Wells Ahead Of 1969

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas drillers have completed 1,317 oil and 462 gas wells this year, ahead of the 1969 figures for oil wells but considerably behind on gas well completions.

The Railroad Commission reported Saturday that 116 oil and 39 gas wells were completed the past week.

During the comparable three-month period of 1969, 1,167 oil wells and 714 gas wells were completed.

Wildcatters reported eight oil and 17 gas discoveries and 63 dry holes during the week.

Three oil discoveries were reported in the Corpus Christi District, two in San Antonio Dist. 1 and one each in San Dist. 1, the Houston District and the Midland District.

The Corpus Christi District had 11 gas strikes, the Houston District four and the San Antonio No. 1 and Kilgore No. 5 one each.

A total of 196 wells were plugged, including 109 dry holes.

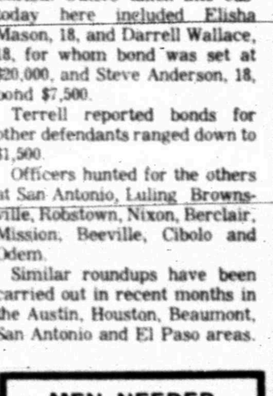

Tot Killed Near Floresville

FLORESVILLE, Tex. (AP)— A car flipped over on its top Friday night after running into a ditch seven miles west of here on FM 1344 and killed 20-month-old Christiana Hernandez.

Her father, Reynaldo Hernandez, was driving. The baby was pinned beneath the vehicle.

Texas Farmers Are Not Convinced Spring Is Here

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Spring is here but a lot of Texas farmers need convincing.

Beautiful weather, blue skies and sunshine, were welcomed in every section of the state as the week started, but said Director John Hutchison of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, "I guess it was just too good to be true."

Rains and snow a week earlier stopped most outdoor work, further delaying planting in all sections.

The over-abundance of moisture, Hutchson noted, was welcomed by stockmen for it means plentiful grazing later in the spring. Ranges would really come on, he said, if we could get some good growing weather.

Small grain grazing has been restricted because of boggy fields and because it is time to remove livestock from fields which will be harvested for grain. Wheat growth has been slow in the Panhandle, Hutchison said, due to the lack of moisture. This is the one area that failed to get enough moisture to relieve the situation, he noted.

Panhandle moisture was short over the entire area and dryland wheat defnintely needs rain now. Plowing for grain sorghum planting is active. Livestock generally are in good condition. Cattle are moving from wheat fields.

Wheat on the South Plains (Lubbock) was making excellent growth after recent rains and snows. Livestock are being moved from the fields. Onion and potato planting is being done as field conditions permit. Surgar beet planting has also been slowed by cold, wet weather. Most land has been prepared but some slow down was noted due to the weather. Livestock generally are in good condition and marketing is normal.

Moisture was adequate to surplus in 20 of the 22 counties in the Rolling Plains (Vernon). Grain growth was good and insect damage light. Fruit trees are in the near full bloom stage and little freeze damage is apparent. Ranges are providing above average grazing and livestock are in good condition.

Field work in North Central Texas is still bogged down and surplus moisture is reported for most counties. Despite too much rain and too little sunshine, grains look good especially those which have been top dressed. Farmers are anxious to finish top dressing and get grain sorghums planted but fields are still too wet. Grain grazing is very limited. Ranges are in about average condition and livestock were in fair condition.

Fields in Northeast Texas, except in spotted areas, are still too wet for plowing and fertilizing. Clovers and grasses are furnishing limited grazing and feeding is still heavy. No apparent freeze damage has been noted to peaches. Sweet potatoes are being bedded. Livestock were in fair condition with some reports of trouble from external parasites.

Moisture in Far West Texas improved but the cold has slowed the growth of range weeds and grasses. Plowing has been stopped but grains are making good growth. Livestock were in good condition. Sheep and goat shearing was on.

Rain, snow and sleet left West Central Texas with fully adequate to surplus moisture and stopped all field work. Grain growth was good but warmer weather is needed. Freeze damage to early peaches is still unknown. Ranges and livestock are in top condition. Goat shearing is about 75 per cent complete.

Every stream, branch, gully and spring in Central Texas is flowing and all field work has been delayed. Sorghum planting has been delayed so long some farmers are making adjustments in the planting plans and varieties. Only a limited acreage has been planted around Temple, Taylor and Cameron. Grains are doing well but fields are too wet to graze. No apparent freeze damage to peaches has been noted. Livestock are in good condition but some losses to nitrate poisoning in hay and bloat are reported. Some feeding is necessary.

The greatest need in East Texas is open and sunshiny weather, Corn planting has been further delayed but grain growth is improving and some vegetables have been planted. No damage to peaches and plums has been reported. Pastures are improving; feeding is slowing some; and most livestock is in fair condition.

All field work is at a standstill in Southeast Texas and wet fields are hampering grazing of grains and planting. Grain growth was only fair. Ranges improved but grazing is not good. Livestock were in fair to good condition with marketing normal.

Cotton, corn, sorghum, tomato and watermelon planting has started in South Central Texas. A surplus of moisture has dropped the planting behind schedule. Pecans are budding and fruit trees are now setting fruit. Ranges improved and livestock are in good condition. Labor is scarce.

South Texas moisture ranges from short along the Rio Grande to surplus in the Coastal Bend around Corpus Christi. Cotton and sorghum planting in the Valley is near complete but cold and wet soil is delaying planting in other areas. Citrus is in peak bloom.

Low prices have slowed the harvesting of carrots. Cabbage volume is beginning to taper off. Potatoes look good. Corn planting is about complete. Pastures are greening up and livestock are improving.

Tourists Converge On Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of persons were reported sleeping on Mexico's beaches as record numbers of cars and tourists converged on resort cities for Easter.

In Acapulco, a favorite spa for visitors from north of the border, hotel and guest house rooms were filled to capacity. Reports reaching here said 25,000 spent Friday night sleeping on beaches, in cars, and wherever there was room enough to spread a blanket.

Transportation terminals were jammed as frustrated visitors sought means to travel elsewhere. The Red Cross said it had treated about 35 persons an hour as the result of fights, accidents and near drownings.

Puerto Vallarta reported 10,000 Mexican and foreign visitors had flocked to its beaches as a hot sun and clear skies covered most of Mexico.

Mazatlan, another U.S. favorite on the Pacific coast, expected some 25,000 vacationers.

Police reported some arrests as hippie and student groups converged on Mexico for the Easter vacation. Marijuana and other drugs were confiscated by police during some of the raids.

In Mexicali, a newspaper said hundreds of hippies and tourists were prevented from crossing the border in Mexico because of an interior ministry order. The order stated that any person who did not present a decent appearance would not be allowed to cross the border.

Three oil discoveries were reported in the Corpus Christi District, two in San Antonio Dist. 1 and one each in San Antonio Dist. 1, the Houston District and the Midland District.

Bomb Threat And Menu Make Exciting Luncheon

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin sat down to an exciting luncheon in the South building of his agency a while back, exciting on two accounts.

A few minutes earlier District of Columbia police had notified department officials that a male telephone caller had threatened to blow the place up at high noon.

But no bomb was found and the luncheon proceeded on schedule.

The other exciting part, though more mundane, involved the meal itself, composed mostly of, as the official menu said — "textured vegetable protein products."

In other words, Hardin was treated to a fare comprised largely of soybean nutrients. The hors d'oeuvres included scallop coquilles, jambon dable, pinwheels and empanados, all made entirely without meat.

The entrees included meat loaf, 38 per cent of it made with soy; meat patties, 30 per cent soy; and sloppy joes, 40 per cent soy.

There also was soy-oriented dessert, including cookies and candy with nuts replaced by the "textured soy protein" products. Coffee, tea and milk were the traditional items.

The luncheon spread was sponsored by General Mills and Archer-Daniels-Midland, two of the nation's largest food processors and agricultural users.

One official who attended the meal vowed it was tasty and that he could not discern whether soy or any other substitutes had been used.

It illustrated a rather involved and complicated task going on within the food industry to help improve nutrition at lower costs to consumers, particularly among needy people who frequently cannot afford the "real" meatloaf as often as others.

Dr. Aaron M. Altschul, Hardin's assistant for nutrition improvement, said the textured soy food already has involved "a high degree of sophistication" and basically could provide the same nutritive values as all-meat at less cost.

Some use is being made now of soy products in institutional feeding, Altschul said, particularly as "extenders" to help trim costs while at the same time maintaining available nutrition.

The luncheon produced a chart showing what effects can be expected on use of soy in large lots of ground meat.

If 40.2 pounds of soy "textured protein" is added to 100 pounds of beef, for example, the cost would be 40 cents a pound for 140.2 pounds of the soy-meat product instead of 52 cents a pound for the beef alone, or a 23 per cent saving.

Baby Found In Empty Train

LONDON (AP) — Station hand Tom Treveavan checked a strange noise in an empty train and found an abandoned week-old baby girl in a brown paper shopping bag. She was taken to a children's home to spend Easter in comfort.

"She seems to have been well fed and clothed," a spokesman said. "She's a very happy, pretty little girl." The staff named the baby Allison.

Five Men Convicted In Conspiracy

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Raymond L.S. Patriarca, once identified in U.S. Senate subcommittee testimony as head of the New England Cosa Nostra, and four other men have been convicted of murder conspiracy, which carries a possible 10 year sentence.

Maurice Lerner, 33, of Brookline, Mass., was convicted also on two counts of murder in the deaths of Rudolph Marfeo, 41, and Anthony Melei, 26. They were slain April 20, 1968, in a Providence grocery store.

The verdicts were handed down Friday.

Convicted of conspiracy with Patriarca and Lerner were Rudolph G. Sciarra, 46, of Johnston, R.I., John Rossi, 29, and Robert Fairbrothers, 32, both of Providence. The state charged they conspired to kill Marfeo.

The jury was unable to reach a verdict on murder charges against Fairbrothers and Rossi or on charges of accessory before the fact of murder against Sciarra and Patriarca.

No date was set for sentencing and Superior Court James C. Bulman recessed court until Monday. Defense attorneys were given a week in which to file appeals.

Conspiracy is punishable in Rhode Island by a maximum 10-year prison sentence. Life sterms are mandatory for murder and accessory to murder.

The verdict was "the greatest blow ever struck against organized crime in Rhode Island," said state Atty. Gen. Herbert F. DeSimone and his assistant Richard J. Israel in a joint statement. Israel prosecuted the case.

"It gives women a derogatory image," claimed Roxie Bolton.

Pet Turtle Is Stolen

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — Eighty-three-year-old Bernice Howe Foster says someone swiped her 45-year-old pet turtle, all 30 pounds.

Mrs. Foster, a widow, said she had had other turtles stolen but "didn't feel so bad about them."

Rumor Sworn In Saturday

ROME (AP) — Italy's latest government, headed by Christian Democrat Premier Mariano Rumor, was sworn in today by President Giuseppe Saragat.

One by one after the bespectacled premier, the 26 Socialist, Republican and Christian Democrat ministers of the cabinet raised their right hand and swore over an original copy of the Italian constitution to remain faithful to the republic.

The swearing-in came as a new battle developed with the center-left government alliance over undersecretary posts.

Rumor, a 54-year-old former literature teacher, presented his list of ministers to Saragat Friday night.

But Rumor had no time to catch his breath. He had managed to keep the number of cabinet members — 16 fellow Christian Democrats, six left-wing Socialists, three moderate Socialists and one Republican — within the limits of his first center-left government, despite pressure from all parties to get more cabinet posts.

The battle then shifted to the posts of undersecretary. There were 56 in Rumor's first cabinet, a record. There were reports that Rumor might have to carry the number over the 60 mark to please all groups.

The premier was expected to announce the list of under-secretaries on Tuesday. This meant he would have to iron out controversies over the Easter weekend.

The seven-week crisis brought the country closer than it had ever been to a premature dissolution of Parliament.

The issues remain. The most basic is whether the center-left, as a four-party alliance grouping far leftists and staunch conservatives, can hold out against growing pressures to shift it farther to the left and closer to the Communists.

The leftist Italian Socialist party PSI contends that the median of Italian politics has shifted to the left since the massive union offensive for higher workers' wages last fall.

Leftists in Rumors's Christian Democrat party agree.
