Black widow spiders

Q. Are the black widow spiders in this area poisonous? If you are bitten, what should you do?

A. Yes, the black widow spiders in this area are poisonous, county extension service entomologist Richard Minzenmayer said. If bitten, a person should seek medical treatment immediately. The poison, which deteriorates muscles, affects individuals differently. The most extreme result of the black widow venom has been death, he said.

Judge strikes down laws on pickets

AMARILLO (AP) — A bitter dispute between vegetable growers and union organizers that began five years ago in an onion field ended in federal court Wednesday when a judge struck down seven Texas laws restricting workers' rights.

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson ruled that the statutes restricting the right to picket and organize unions are unconstitutional because they violate free speech guarantees.

The dispute began when Deaf Smith County officials arrested Arizona labor organizer Kafen Kincaid in 1980 for allegedly trespassing on an onion field six miles west of Hereford.

The arrest spurred a group of High Plains growers to seek a court order to stop union activists from organizing protests.

A restraining order was granted by State District Judge Wesley Guley. But the order was quickly overturned by U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward on July 9, 1980. The case then moved to Ms. Robinson's court.

Her ruling strikes down for the whole state of Texas statutes that have limited the ability of workers to picket and organize.

"The attorney general of the state of Texas, the sheriff of Deaf Smith County, Texas, and the criminal district attorneys of Deaf Smith County, Texas, and all those in active concert or participation with them, are hereby permanently enjoined and restrained from enforcing or attempting to enforce the statutes declared unconstitutional..." her judgment said.

Specifically, the laws:

- Limit the amount of picketing in a given area near a workplace;
- Forbid picketing that would stop or intimidate nonpicketing employees from working;

• Forbid picketing that presented libelous and slanderous statements;

• Make it illegal for a minority of employees to strike or picket with intent to impel, coerce or force an employer to recognize or bargain with any labor union or coerce, force or compel any employee to join such an organization.

Ms. Robinson's decision forbids law enforcement agencies from enforcing those statutes.

Developer promises Settles tax payment

San Antonio developer Gil Cuadra has not met a voluntary payment deadline for delinquent taxes on the Hotel Settles, but said today he will make a payment by Friday afternoon.

Cuadra, a developer with properties in Midland, San Antonio and San Angelo as well as Big Spring, said he was late because of temporary cash-flow problems.

"We'll pay it by tomorrow... this really affects our credibility," Cuadra said in a telephone interview from San Antonio. His company, MPG Management Inc., of San Antonio, purchased 800 apartments this month, and it "really drained our cash."

Both Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore and employees in the Big Spring Independent School District tax office said Cuadra had not paid off any more of the delinquent tax bill he inherited when he bought the historic hotel.

Moore said Wednesday afternoon, however, that Cuadra told her recently the money was on the way.

Cuadra has paid off the current year's property taxes to the county, the city of Big Spring, the Howard County Junior College District and the Big Spring school district.

Moss Lake to host air traffic

Model aircraft pilots due here

By LISA MUSSER
Staff Writer

The airplane is poised and ready to soar into the Howard County skyline, but this plane is different. The craft was made by its pilot, who will never leave the ground during flight.

The pilot is a model aircraft enthusiast.

People from all over West Texas who share his pastime will gather Sunday morning at a new attraction in Big Spring: the Moss Lake Model Airport.

The airport, with a shaded pit area and 350-foot runway, was constructed this summer by the Big Spring Model Aircraft Association and will be the site of the group's third annual Fun Fly.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Events will begin about 9 a.m. and continue into early afternoon. Swapping of parts and ideas will take place the remainder of the day, association members said.

The Fun Fly is a "non-competitive" meet with events designed for fellowship among model aircraft enthusiasts and people who enjoy watching these hobbyists at their craft.

No entry fee will be charged for the events; however, proof of membership in the American Modelers Association is required, contest director George Gatliff said.

The contest will include such events as the most loops in 30 seconds, the most realistic flight, climb and glide, and spot landing.

Gatliff, 44, has been interested in model planes since he was 16, he said.

Secretary Andy Archand, 62, said he also got into the hobby at a young age. One of the goals of the fun fly is to "get young people interested in aviation through modeling," said Archand, who is retired from the U.S. Air Force.

Many model aircraft events are designed for serious competition, but "fun fly" events are becoming more popular, the secretary said, because many modelers enjoy trading ideas and flying their planes without pressure.

ANDY ARCHAND, secretary of the Big Spring Model Aircraft Association, tunes one of his planes in preparation for the organization's Third Annual Fun Fly and Swap Meet.

The local organization distributed brochures on the Fun Fly to West Texas organizations and published an announcement in Model Aeronautics, the official publication of the Academy of Model Aeronautics, Archand said.

Last year more than 30 families participated in the Fun Fly, and about 80 cars lined up to watch the activities. Archand said he expects at least as much participation this year.

Prizes to be awarded to winners in each event include T-shirts, hats and "radio control goodies," Gatliff said.

Turner may breathe new life into MGM

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whether Ted Turner is buying MGM-UA Entertainment Co. to boost his ego or strengthen his assets was debated by analysts, but most agreed the maverick broadcaster could bring a breath of fresh air to Hollywood.

his takeover bid for CBS Inc., which rebuffed him, the companies said.

"The acquisition of MGM represents an excellent opportunity to improve the strength and stability of TBS," Turner said in a statement. "We think the business of MGM is highly compatible with TBS' existing operations."

TBS owns Cable News Network and WTBS Superstation, an Atlanta-based distributor of sports, movies, commercial programming and news to cable television systems nationwide.

With the acquisition of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Turner would inherit a film library with more than 2,000 titles, including such gems as "Gone With the Wind," "The Wizard of Oz" and "Doctor Zhivago."

"He will have an ensured supply of programming at a reasonable cost," said Harold Vogel, analyst with Merrill Lynch in New York.

The MGM-UA agreement has been approved by both companies' directors but faces the scrutiny of stockholders and government regulators. If it passes muster, it would be the second marriage this year of television broadcasting and Hollywood filmmaking.

"He has always been a programming entrepreneur who is looking to expand his wealth of product," said Sharon Armbrust, entertainment analyst with Paul Kagen and Associates in Carmel. "He likes to put his stamp on things... You know he won't be bereft of ideas."

Turner, chairman of Turner Broadcasting System Inc., is buying MGM-UA for $29 a share, or $1.5 billion in cash, and dropping

Officials say religion under siege

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religion is an integral part of America's heritage but is increasingly under siege from people demanding separation of church and state, according to two top Reagan administration officials.

Education Secretary William J. Bennett warned Wednesday of an "assault of secularism on religion" that he said is comparable to past intolerance of Catholics and Jews.

And Attorney General Edwin Meese III decried "this idea of religious nihilism as a principle of government," pledging the administration will resist that notion.

The two cabinet members made the comments in speeches to the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus, a Roman Catholic lay organization meeting in Washington.

Both men said people who demand total separation of church and state are mounting an assault on religion.

The speeches recalled a theme President Reagan enunciated on Aug. 23, 1984, in Dallas on the day he accepted renomination from the Republican Party.

Addressing a prayer breakfast, Reagan said, "The truth is, politics and morality are inseparable. And as morality's foundation is religion, religion and politics are necessarily related."

Bennett, in his speech Wednesday, declared: "Our values as a free people and the central values of the Judeo-Christian tradition are flesh of the flesh, blood of the blood."

"... American history — the fundamental shape of the American experience — cannot be understood without reference to the Judeo-Christian tradition, a tradition which gave birth to us and which envelops us," he said.

By contrast, Bennett said, the Supreme Court seems to treat entanglements of religion and the schools "as something akin to entanglement with an infectious disease."

Speaking a few minutes later to the gathering, Meese said the framers of the Constitution wanted to give Americans the freedom to express their religious beliefs in their own way and without "the heavy hand of government" or a national church.

But they also believed that "without a sense of public and societal morality, that society would not endure," Meese said, arguing the First Amendment was never intended to "preclude federal aid to religious groups, so long as that aid did not favor one group over another."

Fire and rain

School puts firefighters in hot spot

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Firefighting has come a long way from the days when the bell rang and the town's people grabbed buckets in an often futile attempt to save a neighbor's house. Now, with sophisticated firetrucks costing upwards of $100,000, the buckets have been replaced by hoses and the town hires professional firefighters.

But those firefighters have to be taught the tricks of the trade. That's where Jack Gott, training officer and director of emergency medical services for the Sherman Fire Department comes in. He directs the only firefighting school in North Central Texas that is open to firefighters from industries and agencies from other cities. Texas A&M University also has an open firefighters' training program.

Gott's North Central Texas school is open to both men and women, and students come from up to 100 miles away to participate. They study subjects ranging from fire and arson investigation to community relations and mathematics.

"There are 23 different subjects they have to complete that are required by the state for firefighter certification," Gott said. But, the training all fire personnel must undergo within one year of being hired. Texas requires 335 hours of training, Gott said, but "My school requires 360."

"The school is 80-percent classroom and 20-percent field experience," Gott said. But, the field practice is the most exciting part.

The summer's class included 10 students from the Greenville Fire Department, four from Sherman, and one from the Grayson County Airport. Local industries often send their fire brigade workers to the school.

"The idea is to get us used to the heat and smoke, as well as teamwork," said student Barry Witherspoon, a Greenville firefighter and 20-year volunteer with the Paris Fire Department. "For some of the rookies, it's the first time they've been in a fire."

The idea of the field experience, of course, is to simulate a real fire and to use hose and water stream techniques firefighters will later use when lives and property are at stake.

The outdoor training includes extinguishing controlled natural gas fires, oil fires, house fires and fires in taller buildings. Firefighters also learn rescue techniques.

"We're taught theory in the classroom," Witherspoon said. "This is the practical part."

Working in 100-degree heat is hard enough, but trainees often work in scorching temperatures of over 1,000 degrees. "That fire (in the oil pit) was close to 1,500 degrees," said Greenville firefighter Benny Thompson.

The idea of the training is to allow new members to practice before hitting the real thing. "The training is for the protection of property and people," Thompson said.

Gott generally holds the school one or two times per year. It is, he said, an all-or-nothing shot. "They have to successfully complete each subject with a 70 or above or that's it, they're not firemen," the 14-year training veteran said. "If my men fail, we just let them go. We hire another person."

Sheriff's Log

Man arrested on burglary

Howard County Sheriff's deputies arrested a Big Spring man on suspicion of burglary of a habitation.

Wilford Eugene England, 39, of Motel 9 remained in county jail Thursday morning with a $5,000 bond set for his release.

Deputies arrested a Midland man Wednesday night on a peace bond warrant issued from Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin's office.

Victor Longoria Ochoa, 56, was released from county jail on $2,000 bond.

Big Spring Police transferred Tommy Williams, 22, of 2911 West

Highway 80 after he was arrested on Texas Department of Public Safety charges of speeding and failure to appear. He was released on $400 bond set by Justice of the Peace China Long.

Wichita County sheriff's deputies arrested Elizabeth Cox, no age given, of Burk Burnett on a Howard County warrant charging her with issuing a bad check. She was released on bond.

Police transferred William Herrera, 18, of 511 Owens to county jail after he was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,500 bond.

County tax appraisal district approves tentative budget

Howard County tax entities will be presented with a tentative 1985-86 fiscal budget of the county's tax assessment office Sept. 11.

The county's tax appraisal district review board unanimously approved a motion made in yesterday's meeting that a tentative budget, prepared by chief auditor Gene Pereira, be approved and that a public hearing be conducted during the board's next meeting in September.

Pereira said after the meeting that the tentative budget was up slightly from 1985's total of $373,737. During yesterday's meeting an amount of $386,000 was mentioned during budget discussions, but Pereira said afterwards the amount was subject to numerous changes before final approval in September.

"We did not ask for an increase from any of the nine tax entities. In fact, we stated to them that we're taking a slight cut from their funding," Pereira said.

According to Section 606(b) of the state property tax code, a final budget must be approved by Sept. 15. The code further states that governing bodies shall receive written notices of the public hearing 10 days before it is held.

Man's DWI charge reduced

A Big Spring man who requested a trial by jury after he was charged with suspicion of driving while intoxicated Feb. 24 had his charge reduced in an agreement with County Attorney Tim Yeats Wednesday morning.

Kenneth Wayne Owens, 23, of 3313 11th Place agreed to plead guilty to a charge of public intoxication. He also faces charges of driving while license suspended, a second offense of failure to maintain financial responsibility and possession of drug paraphernalia.

"We discovered a problem with the evidence prior to the trial, and we disposed of the DWI charge when he agreed to plead to a lesser offense," Yeats said.

Owens was represented by Lubbock attorney John Maner.

Basketball camps offered

A one-day basketball camp for girls Saturday and another one for boys Aug. 17 will be offered by the continuing education department at Howard College.

Each camp will run from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cost will be $26 per person.

The camps will feature college player demonstration, offensive and defensive drill, guest speakers and fundamentals. Emphasis will be on improving each individual's shooting, dribbling, passing, rebounding and defensive skills, according to a release from the college.

For more information, call Howard College at 267-6311.

State escapee arrested

Howard County sheriff's deputies and a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper arrested Glen Love, 27, of W. Third Street Wednesday afternoon.

Love was listed as an escapee from the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville, from which a warrant was issued for his arrest. Love had overextended a five-day furlough that the penitentiary had granted him.

He will be transported back to the prison by sheriff's deputies upon orders from the TDC.

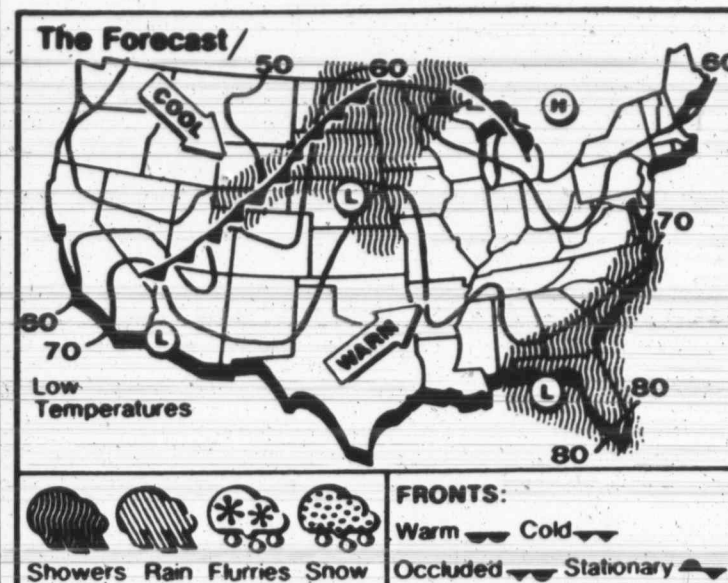

Judge James Gregg sentenced Albino Noyola, 33, of 404 Benton to six years in TDC yesterday in 118th

District Court. Noyola recently was arrested for revocation of probation for a prior arson conviction. His probation was revoked in yesterday's hearing before the judge, and he was given credit for 13 days spent in county jail.

Joe Thomas Rodriguez, 19, of 501 N.E. Ninth pleaded guilty in district court yesterday to a felony charge of driving while intoxicated.

Judge Gregg gave Rodriguez a two-year probation sentence and sentenced him to a 10-day jail term. Rodriguez also was required to pay court costs of $101.

Weather

Local

Skies should remain sunny through Saturday. High temperatures will hover slightly above the 100-degree mark, while winds will be mostly from the south. Today a slight breeze of 5 to 10 miles an hour will blow, but winds should pick up speed to 10 to 20 miles an hour Friday.

Nation

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms rumbled from the Plains into Texas and rain dotted other sections of the nation today after hurricane-force winds blasted a Texas airport, damaging cars and airplanes.

A band of showers and thunderstorms stretched from eastern South Dakota and southwest Minnesota to the Texas Panhandle.

Rain also dampened sections from southern New England across the mid-Atlantic Coast states while showers and thunderstorms were scattered across the Ohio Valley and Southeast.

A cold front moving through the northern Rockies triggered thunderstorms in Montana and northern Idaho and sent gusty winds through the Northwest.

Rainshowers dotted the Pacific Northwest and thunderstorms lingered across parts of Arizona and New Mexico.

A cluster of thunderstorms lingered over southeast Texas and southwest Louisiana.

Severe weather moved across the Plains Wednesday evening. Tornadoes touched down near Nordon and Wallace, Neb.; golfball-sized hail hit Badlands National Park, S.D.; and hail damaged crops near Faulkton, S.D., the National Weather Service said.

Thunderstorms packing large hail and gusty winds spread from central Texas through northwest Louisiana late Wednesday.

The winds near Lufkin, Texas, reached 83 mph, said George Ellis, with the Federal Aviation Administration Flight Service Station. Hurricanes have minimum sustained winds of 74 mph.

The winds knocked out the windshield of his car and others on the parking lot and damaged several airplanes at Angelina County Airport, Ellis said.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms across the Atlantic Coast states; scattered showers and thunderstorms across the upper Ohio Valley, central Gulf Coast region and from the northern Pacific Coast to the northern Plains; and widely scattered afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms across the central and southern Rockies.

Highs will be in the 60s to 70s across northern New England, the northern Rockies, Pacific Northwest and along the California Coast; around 100 across much of Texas; between 100 and 110 across the desert Southwest; and in the 80s to 90s elsewhere.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 45 degrees at Burns, Ore., to 92 at Las Vegas, Nev.

Other reports:

$1,100 in auto parts stolen

More than $1,100 in automotive parts and other items were stolen Sunday afternoon from 1301 W. Second, Cecil Cranshaw told police.

Taken at 1 p.m. Sunday were an Oldsmobile V-8 455-liter engine, valued at $316; a hydraulic 12-ton cherry picker lift on four iron wheels, valued at $750; a 15-inch tire and rim, valued at $50; and a 10-foot length of 7/16-inch chainlink, valued at $50.

Ronnie Maines, an employee of LTV Energy Products at 201 Bell, told police burglars broke into the business between 7:10 a.m. Tuesday and 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Stolen were $140 in cash and a 12-volt battery charger, valued at $50. Damage to a window, through which the burglars entered the building, is estimated at $25.

Erlene Anderson, an employee of The Tropics club at 508 W. Third, told police burglars took $82 in quarters from a cigarette machine between 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Burglars broke a window at the Senior Citizens Center in Building 487 at the Big Spring Airport and ransacked desks between 4 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 a.m. Wednesday. Damage to the window is estimated at $75.

John Wesley Price, an employee of Big John's Feed Lot at 802 N. Third, told police someone broke the storm door and hasp on his barbecue restaurant between 8 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. Wednesday. Damage to the door was estimated at $50. In addition, the burglars took seven small bags of potato chips valued at $2.45.

Police on Wednesday arrested Robert Charles McDaniels, 27, of Lubbock at the police station on suspicion of unauthorized departure.

Police Wednesday afternoon arrested John Ramirez, 18, of 1607 Avion in the 1600 block of 11th Place on suspicion of no driver's license, no insurance and failure to identify as a witness.

FBI agent 'inept'

LOS ANGELES — Richard W. Miller was an FBI legend, a fat, inept bumbler whose final bid for glory as an FBI agent landed him in prison on espionage charges, his lawyer told a jury.

But defense attorney Stanley Greenberg insisted Wednesday that no matter how incompetent Miller was, he never spied for the Soviet Union.

"He is not on trial for being a perfect person or not," Greenberg said. "The question is whether he intended to betray his country."

The government launched its case Wednesday against Miller, 48, the first FBI agent ever charged with espionage. Miller is accused of passing classified documents to the Soviet Union for a promise of $65,000 in cash and gold and a gift of an expensive trenchcoat from his lover, emigre Svetlana Ogorodnikov.

Social security

WASHINGTON — A half century after President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Social Security act to help protect "the average citizen" against poverty-ridden old age, most Americans view the program as an indispensable success, a nationwide survey says.

Nine out of 10 people aged 25 or older believe Social Security should be spared from cutbacks regardless of the federal government's deficit problems, according to the "50-Year Report Card" commissioned by the American Association of Retired Persons.

Foreclosures rise

AUSTIN — The nation's leading mortgage insurance firm reports it had twice as many foreclosure claims in Texas as in any other state during the first quarter of 1985.

Michael Carroll, Austin representative for Mortgage Guarantee Insurance Corp., said that of the $46 million in claims his firm paid during the first quarter, Texas led with 635 claims.

California was second with 330 claims and Florida was third with 191.

About 424 of the Texas foreclosures were in Houston, Carroll said.

"Houston is leading everywhere. If Houston was a state, it would be our No. 1 claim state," Carroll said.

Picturephone plug

WASHINGTON — AT&T has inaugurated a plan to breathe new life into its sluggish picturephone business by introducing a marriage of the telephone company's technology and the meeting-marketing expertise of Hilton Hotels Corp.

Hilton has installed $200,000 worth of cameras, TV screens and associated electronics in meeting rooms in its hotels in New York, Washington, Chicago and San Francisco.

INVESTIGATORS look for clues at Frankfurt's Rhein Main Air base after a car bomb blast today.

Leftists suspected in blast that kills 2 at U.S. air base

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A bomb hidden in a parked car exploded outside the headquarters of the U.S. Rhein-Main Air Base this morning, killing two people and injuring 11, authorities said. They said the leftist Red Army Faction was suspected in the attack.

Base spokesman Sgt. Dave McMahon told The Associated Press one of the dead was a U.S. serviceman and the other was a civilian woman. He said the woman's nationality had not been established.

U.S. Air Force Capt. Lorrie Bourland told reporters that names of the dead and injured were being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Three of the injured were hospitalized in U.S. military medical facilities. Their condition was not made public. The others were treated at the Rhein-Main medical clinic and released.

The bomb went off at 7:15 a.m. (12:15 a.m. CDT) in a parking lot as many base personnel were reporting to duty.

Kurt Rebmann, West Germany's chief federal prosecutor, said: "The circumstances of the attack point to the Red Army Faction."

The leftist terrorist gang has been responsible for several attacks on U.S. and NATO military installations in West Germany in the last decade.

Investigators said that the bomb was placed in a car that had false American Forces license plates on it.

Ms. Bourland said the bomb blew up between the base's headquarters building and a nearby dormitory. The blast shattered windows and turned nearby cars into twisted wrecks.

Wreckage was thrown onto the roof of the building and strewn up to 200 yards away.

West German radio said that a "very, very strong bomb" caused the blast at the heavily guarded base, although the type of explosive was not known. Eyewitnesses said the blast left a crater about 3 feet deep and 6 feet wide.

Cmdr. Tom Connor of the U.S. European Command in Stuttgart, West Germany, said both West German and U.S. investigators were at the scene.

Security at the fenced-in base is tight, and all drivers are stopped at a checkpoint and asked to produce identification before entering the parking lot where the blast occurred.

The Rhein-Main Air Base is a tiny city in itself with living quarters and offices for 4,000 U.S. Air Force personnel and 4,000 dependents. It is located across the runways from busy Frankfurt Airport.

Hesse state-Interior Ministry spokesman Jan von Trott said the bomb was placed inside a parked car near the headquarters building of the 435th Tactical Airlift Wing. Trott said 29 cars were damaged in the blast.

U.S. Air Force spokesman Capt. George Sillia told the AP that buildings in the immediate area were heavily damaged by the explosion, which took place place between buildings 347 and 350 on the base.

The base is located about six miles from the center of Frankfurt.

West German radio reported that investigators were searching for a taxi that was seen leaving the scene around the time of the blast. However, police said the search ended when the taxi driver turned himself in and proved he had nothing to do with the explosion.

1 freed, 1 taken

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Police said gunmen kidnapped the Canadian head of a religious relief and agriculture agency in southern Lebanon today, hours after the Lebanese manager of the ABC News bureau in Beirut was freed unharmed by his abductors.

Police said the Canadian, 30-year-old Bob Berkholder, was kidnapped by gunmen as he headed to work in Nabatiyeh, a Shiite Moslem market town about 37 miles south of Beirut. A Lebanese companion with him was left behind by the gunman, police said.

Reporters in Nabatiyeh said Berkholder lived there for three years with his wife and three children. They said he was the head of the Central Commission for the Menonites, a social relief and agricultural aid organization.

Riots hit Durban

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — At least 14 blacks were killed and more than 100 injured in 24 hours of fierce rioting in Durban's black townships, hospital officials said today as hundreds of Indian families fled from black rioters.

Police confirmed they shot dead eight blacks in clashes in the townships from noon Wednesday to early today. That brought the official death toll to 10 since late Tuesday in the worst outbreak of rioting since a state of emergency was declared in 36 cities and towns 19 days ago.

U.S. climb ends

MOSCOW — A group of young Americans left the Soviet Union today for home after climbing Europe's highest peak with 10 Soviet companions.

"It was one of the greatest days of my life and I'll never do it again," 21-year-old Taylor Smith of Jacksonville, Fla., told reporters on Wednesday.

Eight Americans, ages 17 to 21, reached the top of the 18,481-foot Mount Elbrus in the southern Soviet Union on Aug. 3 with their Soviet companions, and planted U.S. and Soviet flags.

The American team, organized by the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Youth Exchange Program and funded by various private corporations, left the United States on July 14.

BBC back at work

LONDON — News reporting resumed today on British airwaves at the end of a 24-hour journalists' strike to protest the BBC's cancellation of a documentary on Northern Ireland that featured an interview with an alleged IRA leader.

The British Broadcasting Corp. will broadcast a re-edited version of the documentary, BBC Director-General Alasdair Milne said today.

Opinion

China's differences are not an illusion

Underscored by China President Li Xiannian's recent visit to the United States is the mutual self-interest of both nations in certain areas. There are also political and philosophical differences that are mutually exclusive. Neither self-interest nor differences should blind Americans to the hard realities of the Sino relationship.

China's human rights record is abysmal. The most heinous abuse currently is the "Population Control Campaign," which according to a Heritage Foundation study, "has led to millions — perhaps tens of millions of forced abortions and sterilizations." In a society in which male children represent Social Security, a one-child-per-family quota results in the state-sanctioned killing of baby girls.

Then, there is Taiwan, a longtime U.S. friend and ally. This is the big burr in the saddle as far as Peking is concerned. As is the case with most Chinese visitors, Mr. Li pegged Taiwan as "a major obstacle" to U.S.-China relations. Tibet, which the Chinese communists invaded, conquered, and annexed 34 years ago, is a vassal state closed off from the West.

Despite these sharp differences, the administration recognizes China's worth to the United States.

China is a counterweight to Soviet expansion, particularly in Asia. And, the campaign by China's true head, Deng Xiaoping, to liberate China's economy from Marxism holds vast promise for the free world. Finally, there are rising commercial opportunities in China.

It is imperative to keep China in perspective. On his way home, Mr. Li spent a day in America's isle of illusion, Disneyland. That's as far as illusion should go on either side.

Cable TV launches era of viewdom

For decades, cable television has been subservient to a host of government regulations. But a series of recent court decisions suggests that the First Amendment finally is asserting its undeniable authority over the medium. For cable TV, an era of freedom may have begun.

Cable TV regulation mostly has followed the lead of broadcasting regulation, with authorities exerting broad control over what operators transmit. Cable firms have been forced to carry some types of programming regardless of whether they (or their customers) want them. Cities and towns have restricted competition through monopoly franchises.

This treatment contrasts radically with the liberty guaranteed to the print media. The government has no authority to forbid newspapers from publishing what they choose or to require them to publish designated material. Nor may newspapers be required to have licenses to publish.

The rationale for broadcast regulation lies in the physical scarcity of broadcast frequencies. The theory is that since broadcasters, unlike newspaper publishers, enjoy the free and exclusive use of the public airwaves, the government has the right to insist that they use it to serve the "public interest."

But the theory doesn't apply to cable TV, which can provide an unlimited number of channels and doesn't use "public" airwaves. The federal courts have begun to recognize the fundamental differences between broadcasting and cable, which can only be good news for the latter.

In the most recent decision, the federal appeals court in the District of Columbia struck down Federal Communications Commission rules requiring cable firms to carry all local broadcast signals. The court gave several reasons why the rules violate the First Amendment: "They favor one group of speakers over another. They severely impinge on editorial discretion ... (In some cases) the rules prevent cable programmers from reaching their intended audience." Though the court didn't consider the "public access" channels required by most municipalities, the same objections apply to them.

Regulators suffered an equally damaging setback in a March court decision involving the city of Los Angeles. Like most municipal governments, it chose to allow only one company to furnish cable service, shutting out other aspirants. The federal appeals court said the monopoly franchise defies the constitutional guarantee of free speech and press.

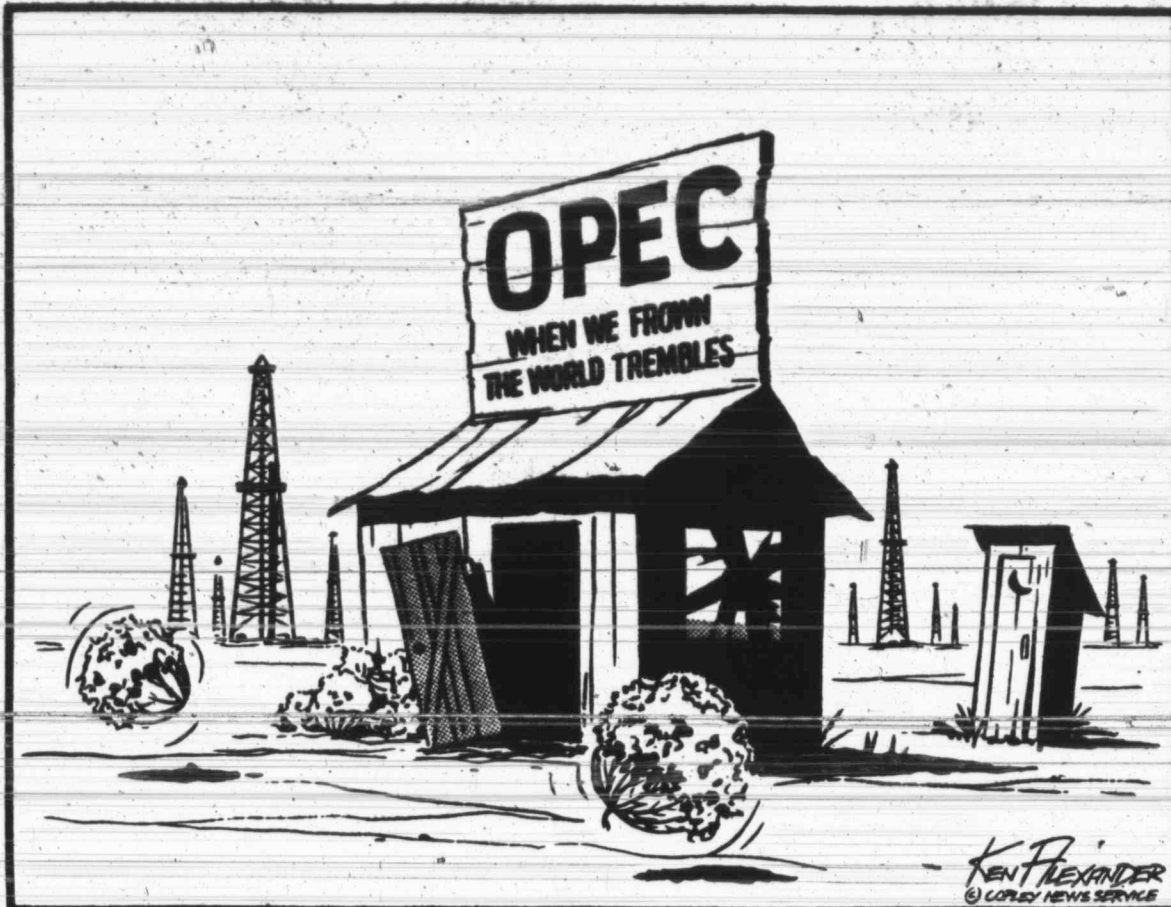

The mere fact that cables are strung on city utility poles and use public rights-of-way isn't enough to justify limiting access to them. Nor may a city single out one company — one "speaker" for favored treatment. Allowing it to do so, said the court, is akin to letting the city "grant a permit for the operation of newspaper vending machines located on public streets only to the newspaper that the government believes 'best.'"

If policies like these are recognized by courts to breach the First Amendment, then overtly censorious regulations are bound to be thrown out, too. Cable operators have long been restricted in what they can offer subscribers, particularly in the realm of sexually oriented fare. But those restrictions also are falling before judicial scrutiny.

The most recent case grew out of Miami's prohibition on "indecentcy," a ban adopted by dozens of communities around the country. In March, a federal appeals court reached the inevitable conclusion that the law couldn't be squared with the First Amendment, which protects any material that doesn't meet the Supreme Court's definition of obscenity. That ruling jeopardizes dozens of similar ordinances around the country, raising the welcome prospect that adults will be allowed to decide for themselves what to see.

Taken together, these decisions provide the means to break the grip of politicians and bureaucrats on this medium, leaving operators restricted only by the preferences of their customers. They hasten the day when cable TV will see government dictates give way to personal liberty.

Tax man goes fishing; records are the catch

WASHINGTON — No law-abiding taxpayer likes a tax cheat. But should the Internal Revenue Service or the Justice Department be allowed to snoop through every American's bank records in search of chiselers or white-collar criminals?

This Big Brother approach is exactly what the IRS, the Justice Department and the FBI are proposing. They want access to records kept by the so-called "supervisory agencies" — the Federal Reserve System, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and Federal Home Loan Bank Board. These agencies obtain individuals' bank records as a routine part of their mission to protect the customers of financial institutions.

Our reporters Stewart Harris and Donald Goldberg have learned details of these proposed turnovers of confidential information to the Justice Department and the revenue.

One plan was laid out in an internal strategy document OK'd last year by IRS Commissioner Roscoe Egger Jr. The purpose of the proposal to feed the IRS data collected by other agencies is "to obtain tax information of a significant nature that is discovered by other federal agencies during the course of their respective investigations," according to the document.

This sounds laudable enough at first glance. But it happens to run head-on into the Fourth Amendment, which prohibits "fishing expeditions" by government agencies, and requires that the feds have "probable cause" to believe that a crime has been committed before they can get a warrant to search a citizen's home — or rummage through his papers.

Under the IRS plan, "tax information of a significant nature that is discovered during investigations or examinations by other federal organizations could be furnished to the (Internal Revenue) Service."

An IRS spokesman said the tax-collecting agency has already approached several of the supervisory agencies, but that no agreement has yet been reached. He insisted that the plan would merely give IRS an "index" of other agencies' activities, not "carte blanche" access to their files. If a targeted individual objected, a subpoena would have to be issued before IRS agents could prowl through the other agencies' records, he said.

Another document — an agreement among the Justice Department, the FBI and several regulatory agencies — proposes amending the Right to Financial Privacy Act, a 1978 law requiring that individuals be notified whenever their financial records are given to any government agency. Here's what the inter-agency agreement states:

"The amendment ... would permit the transfer of financial information lawfully in the possession of one government authority (such as a supervisory agency) to another government authority (such as the Justice Department) for a law enforcement purpose within the jurisdiction of the receiving authority" — and here's the crucial kicker — "without notice to the customer."

The rationale for the proposal is somewhat baffling: "When customers who are 'victims' or who are otherwise uninvolved in the suspected criminal conduct, receive notice under the (law) upon transfer of their financial records to the Justice Department, it caused unnecessary confusion and concern."

But in the meantime, according to the agreement, "the supervisory agencies will implement procedures to ensure that criminal referrals are made in a manner that does not require notice to customers."

Footnote: Frighteningly enough, the proposed change in the law may not even be necessary. One banking official told us that the privacy act is regularly circumvented. Regulatory agencies turn over complete records already, withholding only the names. If the enforcement agencies see something interesting, they simply subpoena the names.

UNDER THE DOME: Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Joe Barton, R-Texas, are out to scuttle a 1972 tax ruling that lets women who have abortions claim a dependency exemption for a fetus that lives even briefly outside the womb. Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Roscoe Egger Jr. has proposed a change that would require such women to prove that an attempt was made to save the life of the fetus. Helms and Barton want to go further, though, and outlaw the dependent exemption for anyone who has an abortion.

Reagan rebuts idea of a tax increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that Congress has approved a 1986 budget with a less-than-hoped-for effect on the record federal deficit, is it time for "the last resort?" Is a tax increase on the way?

Here's the latest from President Reagan:

"The economy is in good health ... The road ahead looks clear to a strong job market with no new tax increases to slow us down and no dark clouds of inflation on the horizon."

At his news conference Monday, the president expressed disappointment that the budget outline passed by Congress last week didn't produce all the savings he had wanted. But he praised his administration and the lawmakers for holding firm to the principle that deficits must be cut "not by reducing the people's earnings but by reducing government spending."

So, does it really matter that House and Senate Democratic leaders, including Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and a number of senior Republican senators, including Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, think a tax increase is necessary?

Apparently not — so long as Reagan stands firm against it. Even if the House and Senate voted a tax increase, Reagan has a signed pledge from 147 House Republicans that they would uphold his veto — enough to give the president a veto-proof Congress.

Nevertheless, says Rostenkowski, a tax increase is inevitable. Former Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker says one is overdue. And it is difficult to find a staff member who works with the budget or tax-writing committees who does not expect Congress to raise taxes on grounds there is slight prospect of more significant cuts in government spending. But if it comes, next year is far more likely than this year. Two factors are involved:

—The public is not flooding Washington with mail demanding that taxes be raised to slash the budget. True, polls show voters are becoming concerned. But as long as unemployment is not rising, inflation is in check and interest rates are fairly steady, the public apparently will view the deficit with less alarm than do some politicians.

Economists cite the lingering red ink in the budget as a major cause of the record trade deficit which, in turn, robs the nation of jobs. But if there is a single factor that could set the government scurrying to make sharp reductions in the budget deficit, it would be a sustained increase in interest rates. And that is not happening yet, although some forecasters say it could come in the first half of 1986 — an election year. —Reagan and Congress are ready to devote the remainder of 1985 to overhauling the income tax, even though odds are against final passage of a new plan this year. Reagan is insisting the bill produce no more and no less revenue than the present law; most lawmakers say it should not lose money.

Democrats, who control the House, are committed to passing a tax-overhaul plan by about mid-October, if for no other reason than to watch the majority Senate Republicans battle with Reagan over what goes into the bill. The calendar, the sheer size of the president's plan and the tradition of almost unlimited debate in the Senate weigh against final action this year.

That would put tax overhaul at the top of agenda when Congress reconvenes in January, just in time to receive a proposed 1987 budget from Reagan. By then, argue some congressional economists, it should be clear that the 1986 budget adopted last week will fall short of the deficit reduction it promised.

Any indication that interest rates are moving up would give Senate Republicans an opening to use the tax-overhaul bill as a vehicle to raise taxes. Democrats would probably do nothing to promote the third tax increase of the Reagan administration unless the president were leading the charge.

Reagan then would have to decide whether further deficit reduction were important enough for him to stop tarring Democrats as big-time taxers and announce the time had come for what he calls the last-resort weapon — a tax increase.

Billy Graham

Child suffers in divorce

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Until two years ago I was very happy with hardly a problem in the world. But then my parents got a divorce. They had hidden their problems from me very well, and it was a real shock. I have withdrawn from people, my grades are down and sometimes I get so depressed I wonder if life is worth living. I need help. — F.D.

DEAR F.D.: I have selected your letter to point out that those who often suffer the most from a broken marriage are the children. When God gave us marriage, He intended it to be the life-long commitment of a man and woman to each other — and one reason was so their children would grow up in an atmosphere of love and security as they learned about life. Perhaps your question will cause someone who is thinking about divorce to stop and instead work toward a better marriage.

Now, what should you do? First, realize that although your situation is painful, God wants to help you overcome it — and you can with His Help. You may feel that no one cares for you or loves you. But that is not true. Your parents still love you — and more than that, God loves you. Even when our earthly parents are less than they should be, we can turn to God, our heavenly Father. He has promised, "I have loved you with an everlasting love; I have drawn you with loving-kindness. I will build you up again" (Jeremiah 31:3).

Turn to Christ right now and ask Him to come into your heart by faith. Then go to a church where Christ is preached, and where you can find Christian friends who will help and encourage you. Some of them may have been through the same experiences you've had, and they can show you how Christ can make the difference if you will turn to Him each day.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Aug. 8, the 220th day of 1985. There are 145 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Aug. 8, 1974, President Richard M. Nixon announced in a nationally broadcast address that he would resign his office at noon the following day. Nixon's decision to resign followed further erosion of his remaining support in the wake of new revelations connected to the Watergate scandal. Nixon said he "deeply regretted" any injuries he had caused and said some of his judgments had been wrong.

Area Girl Scouts shaping up at annual day camp at park

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Area Girl Scouts are shaping up and cooling down this week at Comanche Trail Park.

With "Getting into Shape" as the theme of this year's day camp, the girls are spending the week doing aerobics, hiking and taking dips in the City pool.

The girls also are doing arts and craft and working on badges, according to Judy Staggs, camp director. The camp, which began Monday and will end Friday, is from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Sixty girls are participating in the week-long event, including the cadettes and senior scouts who help the 10 adult leaders.

Today, the girls hiked up Scenic Mountain and ate lunch at the State Park.

Friday's events include a cook out. A water fair also will be held to "just kind of top off the week with something cool," said Staggs. Each unit will have a booth featuring some water event such as a water balloon throw.

Arts council now in planning stages

A local council on the arts is in the planning stages, according to members of the Crossroads Fine Arts Association.

Peter Fox, president of the Texas Assembly of Art Councils, will be in Big Spring Aug. 13 at 2 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce conference room to discuss the local council.

The council will be comprised of representatives from all art oriented groups, business people and leaders from the area. The group will work toward unifying all areas of the arts.

In other business, the Crossroads Fine Arts Association met Aug. 5 to welcome new members LaRue DeViney, Billie Dillon and Jerry Williams. Betty Pitts was named membership chairman. Becky Smiley was appointed to chair the high school portfolio competition.

The high school portfolio competition will be open to all school students in Region 18. The event has been tentatively scheduled for March of 1986. Prizes include scholarships and monetary awards.

Wayne Brannon, administrator of Malone-Hogan Hospital, talked to the group about displaying art work at the hospital. Brannon is selecting a committee to establish criteria for art work to be displayed. Each display will be on exhibit for 30 days.

Jerry Williams will begin a series of art lessons on "how to do an oil painting in one evening" at the Treasure Chest, 1609 Scurry. The lessons are slated for Thursday evenings at 6:30 p.m. and Saturday mornings at 10 a.m. The lessons are open to the public for a fee. For more information, call the Treasure Chest at 263-3352.

The next film to be presented by the Crossroads Fine Arts Association will be "Henry Moore, Master Sculptor." The films will be shown at the Howard County Library on Sunday, Aug. 18, at 3:30 p.m., and on Monday, Aug. 19, at 7 p.m.

Dr. Donohue

Precaution answer to tourista

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am taking my vacation abroad in areas where traveler's diarrhea (tourista) is common. Isn't it possible for me to take some medicine before I leave to guard against it. My own doctor told me he would rather I didn't. He said I probably wouldn't get it anyway, so why take the medicine. — P.S.R.

I think we are losing in translation here. First, there is no single medicine that can guarantee protection from traveler's diarrhea. There are so many potentially infectious agents that that kind of medicine would be impossible to make. I am sure this is what your doctor really meant. The trend today is toward taking along medicine to use for relief when you become infected.

Whatever you do, the wisest preventive measure is one you take on the site — watching your water supply, purifying it if necessary, and being careful about foods like raw vegetables and fruits, for examples.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My sister has been diagnosed as having shingles and she's been informed that there is a good chance she will get cancer from her shingles. Is this true? — P.N.

That's not true. It is true that people whose defenses against infection have been weakened either from cancer or cancer treatment have a greater than usual chance of getting shingles. But your sister can be assured that shingles is not a danger signal for potential cancer. We used to think that was so, but we know better now. The theory has been disproved. Other shingles facts and myths are discussed in the booklet "The Facts About Shingles," which other readers can obtain by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for printing and handling.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a diabetic. I am taking Tolinsae for it, but I am having trouble keeping my blood sugar down where it should be. I really try hard to avoid sweets, starches and carbohydrates. What else can I do to bring my blood sugar down? — E.G.

There is more to a diabetic diet than giving up sugar and sweets. I think we are all at fault when we tend to simplify diabetic diets. The best way to get off on the right foot is to have a discussion with a dietitian. Each diabetic is a special case and so his diet is special. It is based on whether he needs to lose weight, and it has to be tailored to the best amounts and combinations of all food types — carbohydrates, proteins and fats.

Now you are the kind of diabetic who doesn't have to take insulin. The Tolinsae is being used to control things. For a diabetic in this situation the really important part of dieting is keeping weight down. Getting rid of extra body fat allows your insulin (the kind made in your pancreas) to work more efficiently. That permits better blood sugar control. See the booklet "Diabetes The Sneaky Disease," which other readers can obtain by writing me care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for printing and handling.

FOR MR. E.F. — For a man of your age (70) the appearance of blood at the end of urination often points to prostate gland enlargement. True, you can get it as a result of vigorous exercise. Other causes? Kidney, urinary bladder or kidney infection, or from stones. Get to a doctor. I want you to rule out the most ominous potential cause of all — cancer.

Dear Abby

Man wonders if good cook has right stuff for marriage

DEAR ABBY: Please answer this as soon as possible. I have been living with this wonderful girl since last October. She is a good, clean housekeeper and wonderful cook. She always has supper ready when I get home from work. She is 23 and I am 24, and she wants to get married. I have never been married and neither has she.

The problem is that she had been the same as a wife to four other men before she met me, but she promised to be faithful and true to me as long as we live. I love her very much and told her I would write to you and do whatever you said.

UNDECIDED
IN WHEELING, W.VA.

DEAR UNDECIDED: What's the hurry? A decision that you expect to live with for a lifetime deserves more thought than you have given to it. I have no way of predicting whether this girl will be true to you as long as you both live. (Nor have you or she, for that matter.) Don't marry anyone because she's a good cook and housekeeper. If you have to ask me whether you should marry her, I say don't. It's easier to get married than divorced. And much cheaper.

DEAR ABBY: Last week, a bus-load of us senior citizens went to Niagara Falls and Canada for an outing, financed by our town (West Edmeston, N.Y.).

There were 37 of us on this trip and we had a wonderful time except for one thing — the Falls on the American side were grossly neglected and looked terrible. But the Falls on the Canadian side were beautiful, bright with flowers and well-maintained. The comparison made us Americans feel somewhat ashamed and therefore sad.

I know it would cost our government a few dollars to beautify our side of the Falls, but it would be well worth it to restore our national pride.

I sure hope I see this in print.

SAD SENIOR

DEAR SAD: And I sure hope Secretary of the Interior Donald Model sees it, too.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Tired of Waiting," whose in-laws' graves are still unmarked after five years because one of their sons wanted to put something on his father's headstone crediting him with having served in the Army overseas but didn't know how to word it.

They should contact their local Veterans Administration office and apply for a monument, available in granite or marble. It is free to any deceased veteran who was discharged under conditions other than dishonorable. The serviceperson's name, dates of birth and death, branch of service, last rank attained and war served in can be engraved on the marker or headstone.

The family need pay only for the installation. As even the freight is paid for by the government.

GLAD TO HELP

DEAR GLAD: Thank you for helping to solve this serious problem.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently going with a boy who is five years older than I am, and my mother is having a fit! She says he's too old for me.

Now, there's the kicker: My mother married a man who was 18 years older than she was, so I don't see how she can tell me that a man five years older than me is too old for me. Her marriage isn't perfect, but it's not a disaster either.

Maybe you can shed some light on this situation.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: How old are you? If you're 21 and he's 26, that's one thing. But if you're 13, and he is 18, that's something else.

Hull family hosts reunion in Stanton

Members of the S.L. and Gussie Hull family gathered in Stanton recently for a family reunion at the community center.

S.L. and Gussie Hull moved to Howard County in 1906. They had 11 children, including three girls and eight boys.

Three of those children still live in Big Spring, including Earl Hull, Floyd Hull and Leona Baugh. The Hulls had 27 grandchildren, including 21 still living.

Ninety-six people attended the reunion from Odessa, Big Spring, Stanton, Charleston, S.C., San Angelo, Carlsbad and Water Valley.

Wild, wooly weather hits Lufkin

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Small planes were overturned at the Angelina County Airport by a severe storm packing hurricane-force winds that moved through the Lufkin area Wednesday night, officials said.

George Ellis, with the Federal Aviation Administration Flight Service Station, said the winds near Lufkin reached 83 mph at 6:45 p.m.

"I didn't wait around to keep watching the machine to see if they went any higher, but I don't believe they did," Ellis said.

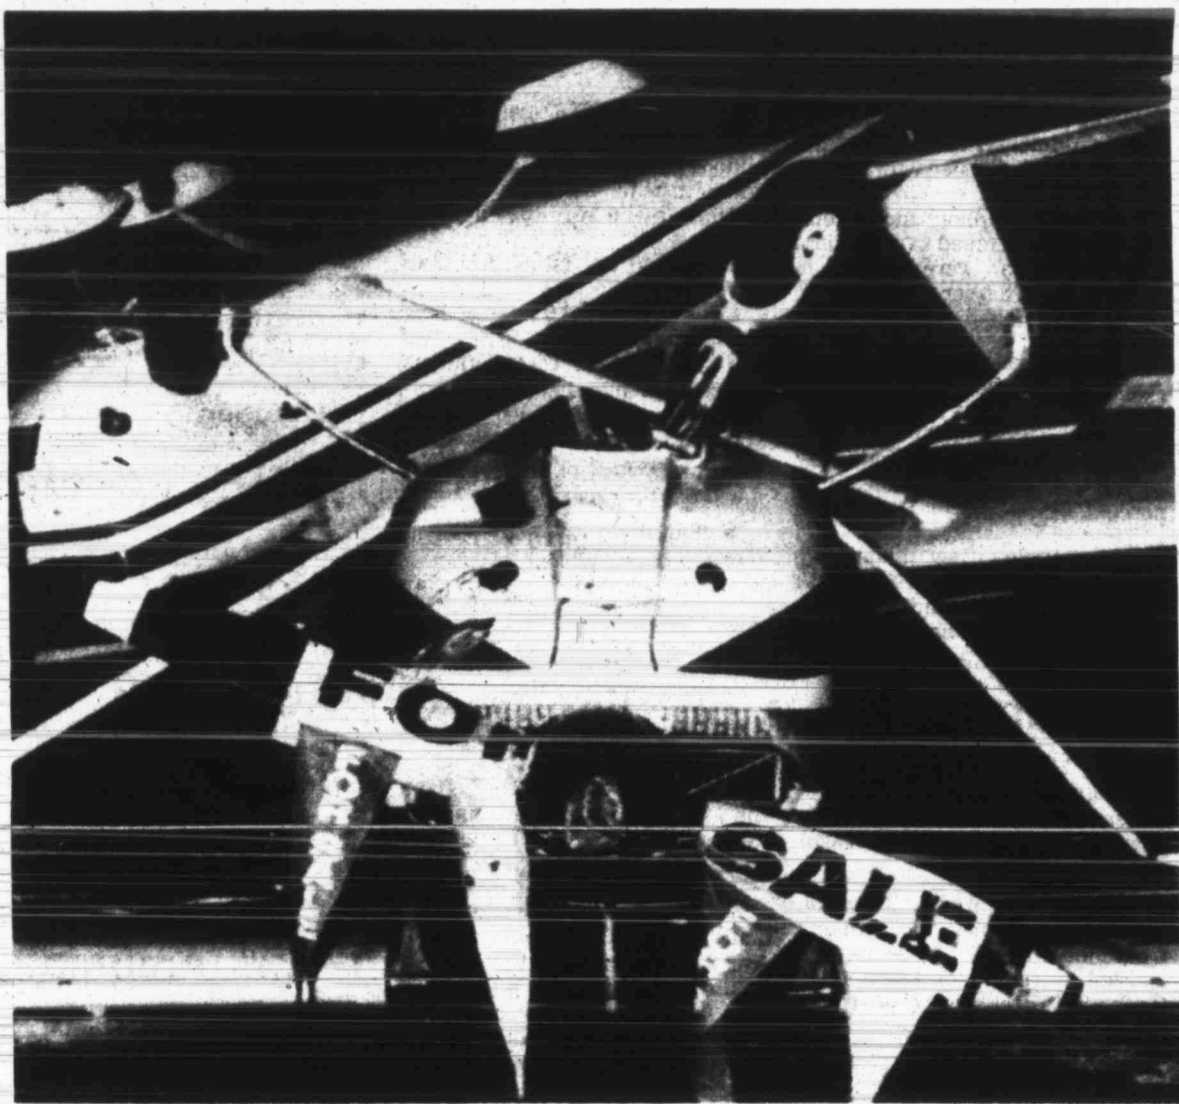

The winds knocked out the windshield of his car and others on the parking lot, Ellis said, and damaged many airplanes.

No tornado report was issued and the weather service office in Fort Worth said the damage could have been caused by strong straight-line winds.

By Thursday morning, the showers and thunderstorms that fell over parts of East and Southeast Texas and the Panhandle had dissipated.

But the National Weather Service forecast called for more widely scattered Southeast Texas, the far west and along the upper coast Thursday.

The weather service also said the state could expect hot afternoons Thursday and Friday highs will be in the 90s to low 100s. Lows Thursday night were expected to range from near 60 in the mountains to the 70s elsewhere with a few 80s on the coast.

TWO AIRPLANES, including one bearing a For Sale sign, lie upended at the Angelina County airport in Burke after hurricane-force winds swept the field Wednesday night. Three planes worth $42,000 were wrecked.

Water, water everywhere ... but not enough to drink

AUSTIN (AP) — The city of Austin, which has plenty of water but a shortage of water treatment plants, was waiting today to see if it would expand its watering restrictions to a ban on lawn sprinklers.

If Wednesday water use topped 157 million gallons — as it did Monday and Tuesday — the city manager would be authorized to order "phase three" restrictions.

Those restrictions limit lawn watering to buckets, hand-held hoses and drip irrigation systems. Since July 31, Austinites have been under mandatory restrictions limiting the use of lawn sprinklers to one every five days, based on addresses.

Jerry Lawson, director of the city Resource Management Department, said Wednesday he expected City Manager Jorge Carrasco to order the tighter restrictions if the 157 million gallon mark was exceeded Wednesday.

Austin's three water plants can pump and treat 165 million gallons a day. There is no shortage of water, but there is a shortage of facilities to pump and treat water for the fast-growing city.

Lawyer's work with victims nets criticism

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas County district attorney's office and the State Bar of Texas are investigating the involvement of attorney Melvin Belli's firm with families of Delta Air Lines crash victims, according to published reports.

Prosecutors and bar officials began the investigation after a complaint from an attorney representing Delta, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Belli's San Francisco law firm set up shop at a local hotel two days after Delta Flight 191 crashed Friday night at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, leaving 133 people dead.

Belli's son, attorney Caesar Belli, denied he or another attorney with the firm had done anything wrong.

"We don't need to go out and stir up litigation," said Caesar Belli. "We don't contact people; they contact us."

Larry Fitzgerald, a spokesman for the state bar, said the bar's Dallas office had contacted Austin officials about some allegations against Belli.

United States Aviation Underwriters Inc., which represents Delta's insurers, has denied allegations that it is trying to persuade victims' families to agree to immediate settlements instead of hiring lawyers and suing.

Both sides say they are working on behalf of the victims. Both sides have been criticized for hurting the victims.

In the conflict between the two, everyone emerges the loser, said a lawyer prominent in airline torts.

"It puts the insurance industry and the bar in very bad reputes," said New York lawyer Lee S. Kreindler, who has been involved in air-crash cases for more than 30 years. "It's unseemly."

Famed personal injury lawyer F. Lee Bailey said a close friend who lost a wife in the Delta crash has told him that many victims' families are expressing open bitterness toward both parties.

"The reports that I'm getting is that they are very resentful of being solicited," Bailey said. "It's like invading Bhopal, India, before all the bodies have been buried."

Belli made a highly publicized trip to Bhopal to sign clients in the wake of the Union Carbide toxic chemical leak last year.

Stacy Dam funding on tap

Authorization to proceed with financing of the Stacy reservoir project may develop during an Aug. 15 meeting of the Colorado River Municipal Water District directors in Big Spring.

The meeting will be preceded by a 9 a.m. finance committee meeting in the district headquarters building. The panel is expected to make recommendations after reports from the fiscal agent.

The director's meeting also will consider a $60,000 appropriation from the 1984 construction fund for U.S. Geological Survey quality studies above Lake E.V. Spence. Directors also will be asked to recognize a 1984 series bond lost by a private individual and to hear reports from O.H. Ivie, general manager, and Robert Moore, legal counsel.

Ag group honors educator

Hulan Harris, Area II supervisor of vocational agriculture education in Big Spring, received two awards from the Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association at its annual awards program.

He was presented the Honorary Life Membership Award and the 35-Year Tenure Award by the organization's president, Terry Phillips of Seagraves, in recognition of service rendered to vocational agriculture.

College teaches managers

Howard College personnel are interviewing prospective mid-management students for the fall semester, which begins Aug. 29.

The mid-management program is designed for employees with management aptitudes and interests who wish to work toward a two-year degree.

Persons interested in the program should call Doris Huijbregtse, director, at 267-6311 between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. Monday or 263-6525 evenings.

Students in the program receive three semester hours credit during each of four semesters for attending a weekly one-hour seminar in addition to their on-the-job experience.

The courses provide education in management theory, human relations, communication and business skills, training in planning and organizing work, selecting and training personnel, directing the work of others and making decisions, Huijbregtse said.

Hay deadline Monday

The Howard County agricultural extension office will sponsor a West Texas Hay Show and Forage Seminar Oct. 3 in Fort Stockton for West Texas producers.

Hay will be tested for quality without charge, but a sample must be sent to the Howard County extension office by Monday.

Categories for show entries are baled alfalfa hay, cubed alfalfa hay, sorghum hay for forage and grass hay. The grass hay category includes Bermuda, Jose-wheat, Johnson grass and other grasses.

Samples should be in a small bale, or half a bale from a stack or round bales, or a large grocery sack of cubed hay. The Howard County office will send the sample to Fort Stockton.

A seminar will follow the awards presentation. Topics and speakers include extension forage specialist Don Dorsett on hay show standards; extension forage specialist J. Neal Pratt on nitrogen's effect on forage yield and production; and Midland County extension agent Earnest Kiker on forages for small acreage.

Other speakers will be Larry Chicacek, a researcher at New Mexico State University in Artesia, N.M., on alfalfa fertilization; John Arlidge, a New Mexico researcher, on preserving alfalfa; extension entomologist Charles Allen of Fort Stockton on early season insect management; and Naomi Waissman, a researcher for the state agricultural experiment station in El Paso on alfalfa varieties in West Texas.

District water deliveries increase slightly in July

Water deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District were erratic but ended with a slight increase in July.

Almost 74 million more total gallons were pumped to customers last month than were pumped in July 1984 for a 3.6 percent increase, according to the district's reports.

This was due largely to San Angelo taking heavy volume and sharp increases in oilfield deliveries. Oilfield deliveries were 183 million gallons last month. July 1984, it was 56 million gallons, or 45 percent less.

San Angelo drew about 178 million gallons. In July 1984, it took only about 2 million gallons, according to a release from the district.

Without those increases, municipal deliveries of almost 2 billion gallons would have been down instead of showing a 17 billion-gallon or .09 percent increase.

Deliveries by cities for July were:

- Big Spring, 319,536,000 gallons, down 13.45 percent;
- Midland, 417,470,000 gallons, up 1.28 percent;
- Odessa, 861,008,100 gallons, down 4.95 percent;
- Robert Lee, 14,192,000 gallons, down 30.19 percent;
- Snyder, 131,400,000 gallons, down 13.19 percent;
- Stanton, 13,105,000 gallons, down 8.36 percent.

Indian artifacts on display

Big Spring's Heritage Museum is featuring a special exhibit this month of photographs of American Indian artifacts.

"Circles of the World," based on the original display of artifacts from the Denver Art Museum, was created by the Texas Humanities Resource Center. The photographs consist of household items, toys, clothing, pipes, weapons and articles created for use in religious ceremonies.

The exhibit also offers a short slide and tape presentation about the Plains Indian culture and the importance of the four circles.

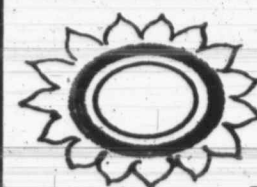

The Heritage Museum, 510 Scurry, is open from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday. Admission is $1 for adult non-members. Students, children and youth groups are admitted free. For further information, contact museum curator Neil Allen at 267-8255.

KBST takes Arbitron lead

KBST radio station increased its listening audience to 11,900 listeners a week in 1984, winning the local Arbitron ratings race for the third consecutive year, according to a news release from the station.

The Arbitron study used 305 in-tab diaries from Howard, Borden and Glasscock counties to determine the ranking and average quarter-hour listeners.

Fishing slowed down at area lakes over the weekend due to hot weather, but not for Dick Lamb of Westbrook.

Lamb hauled in a 25-pound striped bass at Lake E.V. Spence.

There were several small stripers caught there, along with a mixture of catfish and white bass. At Lake J.B. Thomas, crappie fishing suddenly was good with numerous catches in the one-pound range.

The 1985 Prude Ranch Races will be held August 25 in Ft. Davis.

There will be six different categories, starting with the one mile fun run for children 14 and under. There will also be a three mile fun run and a six mile run as well as a half-marathon and full marathon.

The day before the races, there will be triathlon competition.

There will also be a fitnessrunning camp held at the Prude Ranch the week before the races. For more information call Melinda Green at 426-3202, 689-8279 or 694-8176.

The Figure Seven Figure Tennis Camp will be held August 24-28 for youngsters who haven't competed in tennis on a varsity level.

Registration fee is $65 per person and this includes a one month membership to Figure Seven Tennis Center.

Camp hours will be from 9 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m.

The Big Spring Cardinals will be going after their second consecutive Texas-New Mexico Semi-Pro championship this weekend when they take on the Odessa Colt 45's in the title series.

The Cardinals didn't have an easy time getting to the finals, squeaking by the Big Spring Oilers in a three-game series.

After losing the first game 15-7, the Cards came back and won back-to-back games by scores of 9-8 and 1-0.

Annie Ward and Stormy Ward shot a 42 to win the Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association best ball play day at Comanche Trail Golf Course Tuesday.

Tied for second place with a 43 were the teams of Dee Jenkins, Harriett Richardson and Annette Kestermeir as well as Tammy Newsome and Dee Rogers. Also tying for second were Ramona Harris and Betty Ray Coffee.

Martha Saunders and Delores Hull finished third with a 44 in nine holes of play.

While on the subject of golf, two of the Herald's finest will be hitting the greens this Saturday in the Media Preview Golf Tournament at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Sports writer Charlie Alcorn and news reporter Scott Fitzgerald are just two of 25 participants from surrounding area radio, television and newspaper staffs, who will play in the tournament.

The tournament is just one of many activities planned for the day. The event is sponsored by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce in order to let other Medias know about the Crossroads Stampede coming up August 16-18.

Tours of Big Spring will be given and a dance and barbecue will be held at Comanche Trail starting at 6 p.m. Tee-off time for the tournament is 1 p.m.

Now on with some news of men's slow pitch softball tournaments.

This Saturday and Sunday the 3-2 tournament will be held at Stink Creek Diamond in Big Spring. Entry fee is $100 per team. To enter call Noel Hull at 263-3108 or Rocky Viera at 267-7773.

In Colorado City, a tournament will be held this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Hertenburger Field.

Entry fee is $95 and deadline to enter is Thursday at 7 p.m. To enter call Vince Gaona at 728-3880 or 728-3819.

There is still time for girls to register for the Howard College Day Basketball Camp scheduled for this Saturday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Girls must not have played basketball on a varsity level, to be eligible for the camp.

Entries must be made by Friday. To enter call Roy Green at 267-6311.

Big Spring Country Club members who will be playing in the Scotch Foursome this Friday are encouraged to call the Country Club no later than 5 p.m. Friday.

Tee off time is 5:30 p.m.

Baseball strike over!

NEW YORK (AP) — They will play 162 games, the way they're supposed to.

No split season. No intradivision playoffs. No asterisks. None of the things left over from a seven-week strike that wrecked the 1981 baseball season.

This year's strike is over. Two days after it started.

"I'm glad for everyone in America — especially me because I'm probably America's biggest baseball fan. I'm just glad the darn thing is over," Texas Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine said after players and owners reached agreement Wednesday to end the walkout that called off a total of 25 games.

But all of the games will be made up. Five double-headers tonight help get the baseballs rolling.

Commissioner Peter Ueberroth had maintained this should be the Year of the Record, not the Year of the Strike. He wound up with a split — there was a strike, and it was the shortest one on record.

Was this year's one-day walkout necessary? Depends on who you ask.

"I know it seems impossible that we went seven months and couldn't get the job done," said Lee MacPhail, the top representative for team owners. "I'm sorry we couldn't get it done without a strike."

In the end, though, MacPhail and counterpart Don Fehr, head of the players association, did get the job done. They settled the tricky issue of salary caps with some hard bargaining Tuesday and Wednesday and salvaged the season.

Who won and who lost? Depends on who you ask.

"We lost and the owners won," said Rick Miller of the Boston Red Sox.

"I don't like anything about it," said Texas owner Eddie Chiles. "I think it's a totally bad agreement. Very, very heavily weighted in favor of the players."

On the issue that most threatened to wipe out the season, the players won. There will be no limits on how much a player can win in salary arbitration. The owners wanted, and later demanded, that players be allowed to get no more than double his current salary.

It had been a fundamental dispute, with players saying they wanted the right to make as much money as they could on the free market and owners saying they needed to curb costs to offset projected losses of $86 million by 1988.

"I'm sorry we couldn't get more for the clubs," said MacPhail of the Player Relations Committee. "We were hopeful of getting a cap. We didn't get it."

The owners did get increased — from two full years to three — the amount of time before a player can file for salary arbitration. That provision goes into effect in 1987, meaning rookies such as Vince Coleman will not be able to go that route then. But second-year players like Dwight Gooden will.

On the pension plan issue, once described by MacPhail as the "most troublesome" matter, the sides compromised.

The owners will contribute an average of $32.6 million annually to the players' pension plan during the five-year agreement. That is more than double the $15.5 million

Hawks hoop recruiting is hot

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

During the long West Texas summers hardly a soul can be found any where near Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The shiny home of the Howard College basketball teams has been silent, with the conspicuous exception of Hawk head coach Ed Sparling's mezzanine office.

Inside Sparling's air-conditioned command post, there's a hot-box aura. Phones ringing off the hook. Player stats, scholarship applications, travel vouchers and various sports papers littering the room. The second-year coach is sweating through college basketball's own brand of heat; recruiting North America's basketball hotbeds.

From the bayous of Louisiana, through the steamy Southeastern states, across the Great Lakes to the Pacific Northwest and down to Southern California, not to mention every piece of hardwood in Texas. Sparling has been burning up the airwaves, freeways and telephone lines forging his first recruiting class at Howard College.

He's not finished yet, but the end is near. And Sparling's Class of '85 is liable to soar like the Hawks of old.

At present, Sparling has signed 10 high school graduates, lured two transfers from four-year colleges and received verbal commitments from two outstanding prospects. This is in addition to returning All-Region performer Bruce Kimball and leading rebounder and shot blocker on the '84-85 team, Walter Reynolds.

Here are thumbnail sketches on

Something fishy going on in Redskins camp

By The Associated Press

Defensive tackle Dave Butz is reportedly being fined $1,000 a day until he signs a new contract with the Washington Redskins, an action the National Football League Players Association says is illegal.

"This is totally out of line," Gene Upshaw, president of the NFLPA, said of the report. "This is ridiculous. We are going to look into it. Are the Redskins negotiating in good faith with Dave Butz?"

The Washington Times reported the Redskins are offering Butz, a 13-year NFL veteran, a $200,000 signing bonus, a salary of $325,000 for this season and $450,000 for 1986.

On Wednesday, the Washington Post quoted Butz as saying he was "disheartened" by the reported fine.

Upshaw said the collective bargaining agreement allows teams to fine players under contract who do not report to camp. But Upshaw said Butz is not subject to that rule because he is a free agent.

Free agent Bobby Hebert, a former United States Football League quarterback, signed Wednesday night with the New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

Hebert, a native of Cut Off, La., played college ball at Northwestern State University at Natchitoches, La., where he now

"I know I'm going to enjoy this situation. I'm looking forward to playing for Bum Phillips and being in a situation where people can pronounce Hebert," said Hebert, pronounced Ay'-bair. He played with the Oakland Raiders last year after two seasons with the Michigan Panthers.

Hebert, a native of Cut Off, La., played college ball at Northwestern State University at Natchitoches, La., where he now makes his home.

The Cincinnati Bengals broke a week-long deadlock and signed first-round draft choice Eddie Brown. The 6-foot, 185-pound University of Miami receiver was the 13th player selected in the NFL college draft.

The New England Patriots, who lost rookie receiver Gerard Phelan with a knee injury, signed Bill Cowley, a rookie free agent from Holy Cross who was waived Monday by Dallas.

Blessed with backfield talent, the Los Angeles Raiders released running back Joe McCall, a third-round draft pick in 1984. McCall, who played college ball at Pittsburgh, appeared in just five games last year and had only one carry for three yards.

After putting veteran John Misko on waivers, the Los Angeles Rams handed the punting job to Dale Hatcher, their third-round draft pick.

Hatcher, considered the finest collegiate punter in the nation last season at Clemson, is the only punter left in training camp.

The decision to waive Misko, the Rams' punter for the last three seasons, came 24 hours after five-year veteran Russell Erxleben walked out of camp.

The San Francisco 49ers signed cornerback Wymon Henderson, a veteran from the USFL, and two free agent centers, Chris Jackson and Mark Shupe. Henderson, 23, will be trying out with the NFL champions after three seasons as a starter with the Los Angeles Express of the USFL.

Also signing was linebacker Duane Bickett of Southern California, the Indianapolis Colts' top draft choice. The 6-foot-5, 235-pound Bickett was the fifth player taken in the draft.

Biondi shatters another record

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — It appears only experience stands between Matt Biondi and a world record in the men's 200-meter freestyle.

Biondi, of Moraga, Calif., swam the event for the 10th time in his career Wednesday night, set an American record and missed the world mark by little more than a half-second.

The 6-foot-6, 195-pound Biondi turned in a clocking of 1:47.89, breaking Mike Heath's American mark of 1:47.92. Biondi, who twice lowered the world record in the men's 100-meter freestyle Tuesday night at the Phillips 66 U.S. Swimming Long Course National Championships, swam his first 200 freestyle 16 months ago and knows his experience in the event is lacking.

"I've only swam the 200 10 times," Biondi said. "I still don't have too much confidence in this event."

"I know Michael Gross has swam the 200 more than 10 times," Gross of West Germany is the world record holder with a mark of 1:47.44, set at last summer's Olympics.

"I'm looking forward to meeting Gross at the World Championships next summer," Biondi said. "He'll be there, and I hope I will be too."

First, Biondi turned his attention to today's men's 50-meter freestyle. Also scheduled today are prelims and finals in the women's 50-meter freestyle and, for both the men and women, the 400-meter freestyle, the 200-meter individual medley and the 400-meter freestyle relay.

The long course nationals, which began Monday, continue through Friday.

Biondi's development into a world class freestyler has not surprised his peers in the swimming relay.

"Last summer we talked about the future, and he was looking forward to this summer," said Mary Wayte, who won the women's 200-meter freestyle.

"I had a feeling he was at the point (last summer) of untapped potential. I am impressed with his performance here, but I am not surprised."

Other winners Wednesday night were Jeff Kostoff, in the men's 400-meter individual medley, and Erika Hansen, who took the women's 400-meter individual medley.

Wayte's victory in the women's 200 freestyle came only after she held off Carrie Steinseifer's challenge in the last 50 meters.

"It scared me a little," said Wayte of Mercer Island, Wash. "But (my finish) was an indication of my training. I always am strongest in the last lap of a race."

Wayte finished with a clocking of 2:00.56, with Steinseifer of Saratoga, Calif., posting a 2:01.06.

The women's 400-meter individual medley also turned into a virtual match race during the final 50 meters. Hansen, of King of Prussia, Pa., managed to hold off Michelle Grigione of Alexandria, Va. Hansen touched in 4:48.08, Grigione in 4:48.41.

"I knew they would all be passing me in the breaststroke," said Hansen, who finished second in the women's 200-meter butterfly Tuesday night. "But I knew I had the distance background to bring it home."

In the women's 400-meter freestyle relay, the Mission Viejo "A" Team of Kim Brown, Debbie Babashoff, Tiffany Cohen and Tami Bruce was a clear winner in 8:17.80.

The Holmes Lumber "A" team of Bob Beck, Michael Dillon, Matt Cellinski and Heath won the men's 400-meter freestyle relay in 7:26.36.

Olympic gold medalist MARY WAYTE of Mercer Island, Wash., does some stretching prior to competing in the women's 200-meter freestyle at the U.S. Swimming National Championships. She won the race in 2:00.56.

Top seeds roll in Player's Challenge

TORONTO (AP) — A rested Chris Evert Lloyd led a parade of seeded players into the round of 16 at the $260,000 Player's Challenge women's tennis tournament Wednesday.

Lloyd, the top seed, had an easy opening match when the Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., resident defeated Tina Mochizuki, ranked 138th in the world, 6-2, 6-0 in second-round play.

"I hadn't had a break in the last four months so I took two weeks off and didn't put a racket in my hand," said Lloyd. "I really need to get into the tournament."

Following Lloyd into the round of 16 were No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia; No. 4 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia; No. 5 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany; No. 11 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany and No. 12 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary.

Mandlikova defeated Rosalyn Fairbank of South Africa, 6-3, 6-3; Sukova defeated compatriot Iva Budarova 6-1, 6-3; Kohde-Kilsch downed Sabrina Goleas of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-1; Hanika downed Jane Young of Waterloo, Ontario, 6-3, 6-3 and Temesvari dropped American Rene Blount 6-2, 6-2.

In night play Toronto's Carling Bassett, the eighth seed, defeated Terry Phelps 6-0, 2-6, 6-3. Earlier in the evening, in other second-round matches, American Molly Van Nostrand rallied from a 5-2 deficit in the third set to oust sixth-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia, 6-4, CHRIS EVERT LLOYD is just one of many top seeds that had an easy time advancing to the next round of the Player's Challenge tournament.

2-6, 7-5. And in a match held up by a rainstorm that delayed play for two hours, Marcella Mesker of the Netherlands upset 10th-seeded Bettina Bunge of Monaco, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

Lloyd said the Player's Challenge is the first step in her preparation for the U.S. Open.

"This tournament is a big tournament, practically everybody is playing, then there's just two weeks preparation for the U.S. Open so it's a very important time period. And it's one of the toughest time periods because of the heat. It's the hottest part of the year so conditioning will be a big factor."

Young, 20, the recently crowned Canadian national champion who is ranked 262nd, lost point after point on the same shot — Hanika would take a short ball, chip it low to her backhand, come to the net and watch Young's attempted two-handed backhand passing shot go into the net.

"She kept chipping to my backhand," said Young. "Usually my passing shots keep me in a match, usually I can dig them out. But her ball stayed so low I kept hitting them into the net."

In other second-round matches: Elizabeth Smylie of Australia defeated Pascale Paradis of France, 6-3, 6-4; American Vicky Nelson blanked Myriam Schropp of West Germany, 6-0, 6-0; Virginia Ruzici of Romania downed Jenny Klitch 6-2, 6-0; Kristen Kinney upset Elise Burgin 6-2, 6-2 and Raffaella Reggi of Italy downed Eva Pfaff of West Germany 6-3, 6-1.

Judge nixes delay in Tulane trial

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lawyers for John "Hot Rod" Williams failed Wednesday to win a second delay of the trial at which the former Tulane University basketball player faces point-shaving charges.

Judge Alvin Oser, who earlier delayed the trial from Aug. 5 until Aug. 12, this time rejected without comment arguments by defense lawyers that they needed more time to prepare their case.

Williams' lawyer, Joel Loeffelholz, told Oser that his preparation had been impeded by repeated juggling in court over what evidence the prosecution should give the defense.

Loeffelholz and an associate, Alan Tusa, objected that information given them earlier Wednesday by the district attorney's office was confusing and included descriptions of allegedly overt acts that should have been given them a week ago.

"How many more acts are there?" Loeffelholz asked. "Are there any more that they may have forgotten or left out?"

Williams and eight others are accused of conspiring — for money and drugs — to shave points in 1985 Tulane basketball games against the University of Southern Mississippi, Memphis State University and Virginia Tech.

The accusations ultimately led Tulane to drop men's basketball and to the resignations of the school's athletic director, one of his assistants, Coach Ned Fowler and his entire staff.

While overruling defense objections about information provided by the prosecution, Oser said he would compel the state to give complete descriptions of any deals struck with witnesses who will testify against Williams.

Oser warned, too, that he would declare a mistrial if testimony discloses any deals that defense lawyers were not aware of.

In response to another defense complaint, prosecutors Bruce

Whittaker and Jim Williams said they may call Dr. Gerald Gindler to testify at a hearing Thursday in the case.

In addition to their complaint they had not received Gindler's report, defense lawyers said they also had received no report from experts who examined a videotaped statement by Williams after his arrest in February.

Also Wednesday, the defense asked the Louisiana Supreme Court to require Oser to force prosecutors to give them the last six pages of a police report that summarizes the district attorney's investigation of the alleged scheme.

Landry wants to speak with 'Touchdown Tony'

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said Wednesday he would like to talk to holdout running back Tony Dorsett "to see what he's thinking."

Landry said he wasn't in a position to comment on Dorsett's charge that the Cowboys "double-crossed" him on his contract.

However, Landry told The Associated Press by telephone from the Cowboys' training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif. that Dorsett's statements "certainly don't help team unity."

"Tony has himself in a predicament and I guess it's just his way of fighting his way out," said Landry. "I guess he is doing what he thinks is best."

Dorsett, the Cowboys' team captain, told the Dallas Times Herald that he wants to be traded unless his contract demands are met. He's said he was mad at the Cowboys for "telling the media about my financial problems."

"It's a decision Tony has to live with," said Landry. "It's his decision to make whether he's right or wrong. However, I don't like to get things second hand. I'd like to talk to him and see what he's thinking and what all the details are."

Landry is fining Dorsett $1,000 per day while he misses training camp.

Asked if Dorsett should continue to be the team captain, Landry replied, "That depends on how all of this is resolved."

Landry said he wasn't certain where the situation was headed.

"I've been in this business a long time and I don't try to predict anymore," he said.

Landry said he thought Dorsett could come back the week before the National Football League season opener against Washington Sept. 9 and still be able to play.

"Tony has been in our system a long time," said Landry. "He could come in the week of the game and still play. I'm just not sure how good he can play. I wouldn't know what kind of condition he would be in."

"When a running back stays out of camp, he kind of jeopardizes himself to a certain extent. It's difficult to be in tip-top shape."

Also, Landry said a running back "will have trouble with his timing and his competitive edge."

"That's the key to the game, the competitive edge."

per year the players had been getting, but far less than the $60 million they sought.

All of that money comes from a $1.1 billion network television package signed last year. In the past, the players had traditionally — but not officially — received one-third of the TV amount. This time, one-third would have been $60 million.

The settlement also does away with the re-entry draft, enabling a free agent to sign with the team of his choice, and eliminates professional player compensation for clubs that lose free agents. Those affected teams will now get draft choices. Minimum salaries were raised from $40,000 to $60,000, and there were changes made to limit the amount of money that could be deferred in a contract.

"One hope I have, and it's a hope I've had since I've been involved with these negotiations ... is maybe sometime down the road, we can find a way to do the job without the threat of a crisis or the crisis itself," Fehr said. "If that comes out of this process, that'll be a good thing."

Fehr added that the final decision on the contract would be made by the players, who still have to ratify the pact. At least one team, the Minnesota Twins, gave player representative Ron Davis verbal agreement Wednesday night.

Word that an agreement had been reached came shortly after noon Wednesday, when the commissioner's office announced a "tentative understanding" had been worked out.

MacPhail and Fehr, who met four separate times for nearly 10 hours on Tuesday, got together again at 10 a.m. Wednesday in an undisclosed location — which turned out to be MacPhail's apartment in Manhattan — and reached verbal agreement on a pact within an hour. By 11 a.m., Ueberroth arrived at the talks. A little more than an hour later, the announcement was made.

Last week, Ueberroth stated he "just really can't allow a strike." The bylaws of baseball did not give him the official power to prevent a walkout, but his powers of persuasiveness helped him end it.

In any case, both sides knew Ueberroth was there during the negotiations.

"His presence hung over them like the ghost of Banquo," said Baltimore Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams, referring to Shakespeare's specter in MacBeth.

Ueberroth was smiling when he made the opening remarks at a press conference to formally announce the settlement. That press conference had originally been scheduled to start at 5 p.m., but did not begin until after 10 p.m. while the sides finished working out final contract language.

The commissioner was just one of many who were smiling.

"Well, this is quite a thrill," said Milwaukee pitcher Pete Ladd. "This is something. I guess we'll have to play a triple-header."

"I like new clothes, but I wish they could be for someone else."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 9, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening to be very practical and to get into the various details connected with money, property and possessions, which should work out smoothly.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get into worldly interests early. Be sure to pay any pressing bills and make collections possible.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get out to the beauty or barber shop and make yourself more attractive. Handle your business carefully.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study how you stand where practical affairs are concerned, and plan how to make improvements on them. Listen carefully.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) If you apply yourself earnestly, you can gain the personal aims that mean so much to you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Know what your needs are in the outside world and how best to gain your aims and gain more public acclaim.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have some new plan in mind that could be very good, but be sure to garner more information before putting it in operation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Talk over your practical affairs with persons in business and gain good advice from them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A fine day for a conference with associates and planning the future better. Take better care of your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get right down to business and make a big dent into that work load and get fine results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get into the matter of detail where amusements are concerned and then they will turn out well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may be rather bored with conditions at home but apply yourself and do something about it to improve them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get errands run, make important visits, and clear yourself of work for the weekend. Go on a spree with friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will do well in either business or banking or a combination of the two. Give as fine an academic education as you can and teach to use computers and the like for greatest efficiency. Teach to be more broad-minded as well as to have a heart.

LEE TREVINO, defending PGA golf champion, has had his share of problems in the 1985 season, but oddsmakers are making him one of the favorites to repeat the first round begins tomorrow in Denver.

Super Mex among favorites in PGA

DENVER (AP) — Lee Trevino showed up without his putter, but he might just as well have left his driver at home, for all the good it is likely to do him in the 67th Professional Golfers Association Championship.

"I went to the practice green on Tuesday and asked Herman (caddy Herman Mitchell) for my putter, and he said, 'You don't have one,'" Trevino said. "I had left it at home in my living room. Can you believe that? Talk about being ready to play. They shipped it to me Tuesday night."

With putter in hand, Trevino got in a full practice session on Wednesday in preparation for today's opening round of the PGA at Cherry Hills Country Club.

Trevino, 45, pronounced himself not among the likely contenders for the title he won in 1984.

"I haven't been playing too well," he said. "I missed the cut at the U.S. Open and at Hartford two weeks ago. I played fairly well in the British Open except for the eighth hole; I was 9-over-par on it."

"I feel like my game is fairly well suited for this course, but not as much as if we had to drive the ball a lot."

Because the course is playing much shorter than its 7,089 yards — due to the thinner air at Denver's mile-high elevation — and because of punitive rough, players expect to use irons off many tees.

"I may use my driver only four or five times a round," Trevino said. "Someone like Seve (Spain's Seve Ballesteros) may not use his driver at all."

"I think I've always been the best driver out here. But if you take the driver out of my hand, it's like playing poker and everybody else around the table has seen my hole card."

"I don't think my chances are as good as they were at Shoal Creek," site of his 1984 PGA victory.

"Shoal Creek was too long to play irons off the tee. When I came in there and saw how high the rough was, I said, 'I got 'em this time.' Besides, I was playing really well prior to that tournament. I was on a roll."

So far this season, Trevino has won $65,883, which ranks him 94th on the money list. His best finish was a tie for fifth in the Byron Nelson Classic.

Who does Trevino pick to win here this week?

"There are so many talented players," he said. "This has been a great year for foreigners, and Seve and (Masters champion Bernhard) Langer are good players. Greg Norman should do well, too."

"This is a thinking man's golf course, so don't rule out somebody like Gary Player. He can putt, and he's a great sand player and wedge player. It wouldn't surprise me a bit if he's right in there as he was last year."

"I think Tom Watson is going to play well. I played with him today and he was swinging awfully well and putting well. Andy North should be a factor, too. He's a good putter and he won here last time (in the 1978 U.S. Open)."

Trevino disputed claims that the PGA has come to rank a poor fourth among the sport's major tournaments.

"This tournament carries a tremendous amount of weight, as much if not more than any of them," he said. "This is a major and always will be a major."

"Look at the caliber of the field. There are some club pros, sure. But there are very few touring pros who aren't here. That's not so in the U.S. Open, where you have to qualify."

"Arnold Palmer didn't play in the Open, but he's been granted a lifetime exemption for the PGA, and I think that's terrific."

Palmer, 55, won his only Open title here in 1960, driving the green on the 346-yard first hole en route to a final-round 65.

"Arnold has to hit driver off No. 1," Trevino said. "He has no choice. He tried to hit an iron this morning, and the people booed him."

Some other leading contenders in the field of 150 that is chasing $700,000 in total prize money are Lanny Wadkins, Mark O'Meara, Calvin Peete, Hale Irwin, Ray Floyd and leading money-winner Curtis Strange.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by ABC.

Sheehan seeking streak

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Patty Sheehan is seeking her third straight Henredon Classic LPGA title, but the golfer who says her play has been lackluster this year is facing a challenge from the tour's two top money winners.

Sheehan has 12 finishes in the top 10, but many of those came in the early portion of the tour. She says her problems have stemmed from erratic play on the fairways, adding that her driver "has really been astray."

"The first part of the tour was excellent. I played extremely well," she said. "Since the middle part of the year, I haven't done anything I can brag about. The second part was not so good."

The threats to Sheehan's reign at Willow Creek Golf Course are Alice Miller, the LPGA's top money winner, and Nancy Lopez, in search of her fourth victory on the tour in 1985.

Sheehan says she's more concerned about overcoming recent poor performances.

"I feel that my game isn't really where I want it to be," Sheehan said. "It hasn't been that I've played all that terribly. I've just been lackluster."

Much the same can be said for Miller, who before 1985 had won three tournaments in almost seven years and collected nearly $375,000. This year alone, Miller has captured four tournaments and won more than $324,000. Her last victory was in June's Mayflower Classic and she admits that finding the motivation to continue has been difficult lately. She says the notoriety that has accompanied her success has been more harmful than good.

"I just haven't been getting much rest. And when I take weeks off, they haven't been real restful weeks," Miller said.

Fina to honor student/athletes

DALLAS — Fina Oil and Chemical Company and Gov. Mark White recently announced a program in which Fina will award $1,000 college scholarships to 11 Texas scholarathletes who combine football prowess with outstanding schoolwork.

Winners will be named to the Fina Texas Academic All-State Football Team.

Coaches, principals, student advisors/counselors will submit nominations to the Fina Company.

U.S. Juniors undefeated

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Titi Roche's RBI triple highlighted a four-run, seventh-inning rally as the United States beat Venezuela 6-4 to remain undefeated in the World Junior Baseball Championship.

The United States, 5-0, is the only unbeaten squad remaining in the eight-team tournament. Cuba, 3-1, suffered its first loss when it fell to Chinese Taipei, 6-4.

In other games, Canada crushed Mexico 20-5 and Panama routed Australia 8-1.

'Albatross' wins ESC

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Michael Gross of West Germany captured the 100-meter butterfly at the European Swimming Championships.

The 21-year-old Gross, winning his second gold medal in as many days, was timed in 54.02 seconds. He was followed by Britain's Andrew Jameson at 54.30.

East Germany's Elke Friedrichs won the women's 200-meter freestyle in 1:59.55 to match Gross' two-day medal tally. The 15-year-old Friedrichs finished first in the 100-meter freestyle.

Top seeds cruise in Volvo

STRATTON, Vt. (AP) — The top three seeds — John McEnroe, Ivan Lendl and Jimmy Connors — cruised into the third round of the $315,000 Volvo International Tennis tournament with clinic-like, straight-set victories over unseeded players.

No. 7 Brad Gilbert of Piedmont, Calif., eighth-seeded David Pate Las Vegas and No. 13 Tim Wilkison of Asheville, N.C. were among others advancing, while Greg Holmes of Danville, Calif., the ninth seed, was the first seeded player to lose when he fell to Colin Dowdeswell of England in straight sets.

Becker rained out

KITZBUHEL, Austria (AP) — Spain's Emilio Sanchez eliminated second-seeded Joakim Nystrom of Sweden 6-4, 6-4 in the first round of the $150,000 Austrian Open tennis tournament.

Later, steady rain forced postponement of West German Boris Becker's first singles encounter for the second day running.

Becker, this year's Wimbledon winner and the No. 1 seed, will play Uruguay's Diego Perez Thursday.

LeMond takes Coors lead

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Greg LeMond of Nevada returned to familiar training ground to capture the 67-mile sixth leg of the Coors International Classic and take the overall lead from teammate Steve Bauer.

LeMond, from Washoe Valley, Nev., covered the mountainous run in 2 hours, 21 minutes, 56 seconds to finish just ahead of Andrew Hampsten of Boulder, Colo., who was given the same time.

John Paul, Jr. awaits sentencing

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Race car driver John Paul Jr. could be sentenced to up to five years in prison this fall after pleading guilty to federal charges of racketeering and possession of a false passport.

Paul reached an agreement with the government last month to enter the pleas in exchange for the government's dropping of four other drug-related charges. Under the agreement, Paul, 25, will face up to five years in prison on the racketeering count and up to five years probation on the false passport charge.

Paul, his father, John Paul Sr., and six other people were charged in a federal indictment in January with conspiracy to import marijuana into the United States. An estimated 200,000 pounds of marijuana was allegedly smuggled into this country from Colombia.

Olympic champ puts 71'

VIAREGGIO, Italy (AP) — Olympic champion Alessandro Andrei of Italy won the men's shot put with a throw of 71 feet, 9 1/2 inches, the third best in the world this year, in a track and field meet in this Tuscan resort.

Jabbar named Black Athlete of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, in the twilight of a record-breaking National Basketball Association career, won the second-quarter balloting for the Gordon's Gin Black Athlete of the Year award.

The Los Angeles Laker center amassed 177 points in the balloting and easily led the four other candidates named by a panel of black sportswriters and sportscasters.

In second place was Herschel Walker, who became only the third professional football player to rush for more than 2,000 yards in a season. The New Jersey Generals star rushed for 2,111 yards in 16 games, surpassing the National Football League mark of 2,105 set by Eric Dickerson of the Los Angeles Rams in 1984. Walker finished the United States Football League season with 2,411 yards.

Crenshaw's crisis continues in '85

AUSTIN (AP) — This has not been the best of years for Ben Crenshaw.

Since the 1985 PGA tour started in January, the Austin golfer has earned just $14,675. He ranks 151st on the money list. He has entered 19 events, missing the cut in 12, including six in a row. He's been disqualified twice. His best finish was an 18th.

"I feel like waking up into 1986. I've lost all confidence. I'm cursed this year," Crenshaw says.

In April 1984, Crenshaw won the Masters, finally taking a major title. But after winning $201,000 by April 30 last year, he finished with $270,989.

Crenshaw and many others blamed his 1984 slump on a lack of concentration resulting from post-Masters celebrations and the divorce he and his former wife, Polly, were going through.

But in January, he said the slate was clean. "I feel at ease now," he said then.

But his condition has worsened, both psychologically and physically. He worries constantly and has been unable to regain the 10 pounds he has lost since the Masters. Once a sturdy 5-foot-9, 170 pounds, Crenshaw now is a frail 160-pounder. "My metabolism has changed," he said.

Weakened by the weight loss, Crenshaw has averaged 249 yards off the tee, 162nd among tour pros.

Brent Buckman, a friend who will be the head pro at the new Barton Creek Club, says Crenshaw really wasn't mentally ready when the season began.

"We all (friends) felt this wasn't going to be a good year. We felt he still had so much on his mind. He's just hanging on, trying to overcome himself," Buckman said.

Crenshaw speaks of the frustration.

"I wake up every day feeling well and then I play badly. It's my 13th year and I should know about this game. But everything has gone wrong and it adds up. I've missed (hotel and airplane) reservations, bad business deals. All I can do is laugh about it."

More than a month ago, the last time he was home, Crenshaw visited Dr. Richard Coop, an educational psychologist at the University of North Carolina who works part time at the Academy of Golf at Austin's Hills of Lakeway.

"Coop pointed out some things, like I'm a very soft-hearted person. My mom died suddenly in 1974 and I've gone through life missing her. Maybe I just worry about things too much, think too much. But I'm 33 and can't change," Crenshaw said.

Fellow Austin resident and touring pro Tom Kite says Crenshaw likely will have to change.

"I'll bet he'd like to give up some niceness for cockiness," Kite says. "You have to have a cocky attitude to win. Most good golfers do. And I don't mean that as a derogatory term. When he was playing well, he was cocky. You need more than just a nice swing."

Crenshaw also is having trouble putting, once one of the strongest aspects of his game. He ranks 140th on the greens, averaging more than 30 putts per round.

"I consider myself one of the best putters in the world. Standing over the ball I'm confident. But I've seen so many putts miss that it hurts," he said.

Buckman says that problem is causing Crenshaw to take too many chances from the fairways, going for the pin.

"He's feeling pressure and has the attitude that he has to go for the flag. So he misses the greens and the rough is tougher than it used to be ... He ends up with a difficult shot from the rough. He needs to just shoot for the middle of the green and let the putter do the work," Buckman said.

"His problem is mostly mental. He'll come out of it a much better person if he ever climbs out of the hole," Buckman added.

Crenshaw, encouraged by making the cut at the British and Western opens, just hope that day comes.
