USA'S EAGLE FLIES FROM MOON

Moon Paydirt

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston — The Apollo astronauts struck paydirt in their prospecting on the moon.

Their luck especially was in finding a great varlety of different rocks, which could tell much about the moon's age and origin.

They saw a curious purple rock and perhaps put it in one of the two treasure chests they are bringing home.

And they cored out a five-inch deep sample of lunar soil that "looks moist," a suggestion there might be water and so perhaps microscopic life beneath the moon's surface. But the moist, dark appearance could simply be from tight packing of fine particles of material, cautions Daivd McKay, geologist of the Manned Spacecraft Center.

They found the crust of the moon much harder than numerous geologists and astronomers expected they would. It took work to dig out two core samples and to plant the American flag.

They found rocks that look like basalt, born of volcanoes, and rocks resembling biotite, a dark colored mica that usually contains two to four per cent water. They found the surface dusty, getting their boots coated cocoa brown with it.

They set up a seismometer which soon was recording moon tremors, although these might be only from the footsteps of the astronauts, espacially when they cavorted on the desert-like moon like kids in a playground.

If the moon still shimmies after they leave today, scientists think the ultra-sensitive instruments can tell them if the quakes come from volcanic activity, or hits by meteorites.

Incredibly calm most of tne time, the astronauts performed will their role as good observers specially trained in geology.

Medically, their excursion showed the moon to be not so fearful a place as cautious planners had had to paint it.

The men surprised doctors and others by their quick adaption to the moon's low gravity. Their energy expenditure in their tasks was within the limits shown in their earth training, said Dr. Willard R. Hawkins, a flight surgeon.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, July 21, the 202 day of 1969. There are 163 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1954, armistice agreements ending the Indochina war were signed in Geneva. France surrendered North Vietnam to the Communists.

On this date:

In 1588, British ships under Sir Francis Drake clashed with the Spanish Armada in the English Channel.

In 1831, Leopold I became king of the Belgians following the separation of Belguim from Holland.

In 1861, the first major military engagement in the Civil War took place at Bull Run Creek in Virginia.

In 1873, Jesse James staged the world's first train robbery at Adair, Iowa, escaping with $3,000.

In 1918, during World War I Allied soldiers captured Chateau-Thierry on the Marne River in France.

In 1930, the Veterans Administration was established.

Ten years ago — The Indian government in New Delhi dismissed the Communist government in the state of Kerala, charging it could not govern peaceably and in accordance with the Indian constitution.

Five years ago — Several hundred Cuban exiles clashed with police in Washington while trying to march to a meeting of Western Hemisphere foreign ministers.

One year ago — Nigeria and Biafra agreed to hold peace talks and consider proposals to aid civilian victims of their war.

OLD GLORY FLIES ON MOON — Apollo 11 Commander Neil Armstrong plants the United States flag on the moon as America's two moonmen prepare to perform a list of chores on the lunar surface.

Astronauts' First Steps On Moon Were Cautions Ones

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — They took their first steps onto the moon cautiously, like prudent boys testing the first ice of winter on a country pond.

When first they walked, they walked carefully and slowly, leaning forward, plodding heavily like tired old cops on a beat in Staten Island.

As they acquired confidence, they walked faster, now with a slow bounce in the one-sixth gravity of the moon. And then they ran and their stride was longer than on earth and their shoes seemed suspended off the strange lunar surface, with something of the floating quality of figures on slow motion film.

When they were still, they seemed very still, as if frozen, and they leaned forward like puppets to be at a lunar form of attention when the president spoke to them from earth.

All the while, the earth was "bright and beautiful" above them. In this first incredible day of an incredible new era one needs to repeat that: the earth was above them.

In the distance, the lunar surface looked pocked and leathery like the back of a dead alligator. Closer up, it looked like rubble, like earth levelled roughly after a disaster, dead.

They looked ghostlike on the soundless, airless, mostly colorless moon. Over the curving horizon, only one and a half miles away on a planet smaller than earth, there was the blackness of space and infinity. The foreground was starkly lighted by the sun and the men and their vehicle cast long shadows. It was dawn on the moon and a dawn in the history of man.

Neil Alden Armstrong, formerly of 601 West Benton St., Wapakoneta, a town in Ohio, a state in the United States, a country on the planet earth, extended his left foot onto the moon.

"That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind," he said. The first words were fine. History would be content.

Now for the scientists: "The surface is fine and powdery. It adheres like charcoal to the soles of my shoes. You go down only about an inch."

And for the doctors: "There seems to be no difficulty in moving around."

And for the geologists and the biologists and the others seeking the age of the solar system and the secret of life he immediately began collecting "contingency" samples of rock. "Contingency" in case he had to leave in a hurry.

And Buzz Aldrin came down, the second man on the surface of the moon. And together they walked and ran like kids at recess and then like men with the responsibility of the ages they went to work.

They gathered rocks, they set up a foil panel to measure the solar wind, they installed a seismometer to probe the interior of the moon, they set up a small mirror to reflect laser beams from earth, to measure the quarter million miles between the two planets to an accuracy of six inches. And they planted the flag of their country on the still face of the moon.

Finally, Aldrin to Earth: "Anything for us before I head up?"

Earth: "Negative. Head on up the ladder, Buzz."

Buzz was first up. Armstrong stayed a few minutes longer, carefully guiding the hoisting of the rock boxes like the last pirate off an island with a load of gold. Then Armstrong climbed up, the captain being the last to return from alien land.

And now the moon was motionless again. All that remained was the landing craft, looking like a surrealistic crab, and the scientific instruments, and the American flag frozen in arrested motion, and in the stillness the mystery of the moon began to end for scientists and the mystique of the moon began to end for poets and lovers.

Luna Apparently Lands On Moon

JODELL BANK, England (AP) — Russia landed Luna 15 on the moon's surface today, 500 miles from where America's Apollo astronauts were preparing to take off on their journey back to earth, Jodrell Bank Observatory reported.

Signals picked up at the giant radio-telescope here indicated that after four days of moon orbit the unmanned probe landed on the moon's Sea of Crises.

Jodrell Observatory, headed by 55-year-old Sir Bernard Lovell, stood by for any sign that Luna itself might be preparing to return to earth.

Prof. John G. Davies, Lovell's aide, said at 12:05 p.m. EDT: "Luna has landed."

The last signals received from Luna were "appropriate to a soft landing," he added.

Unofficial sources in Moscow had predicted when Luna 15 took off July 13 that it would attempt a remote-controlled lunar landing to retrieve a sample of moon soil—a task already performed by the American astronauts.

But in the absence of signals, there was no immediate indication that Luna 15 was operating "live" on the moon's surface.

Asked about the possibility that the probe could still lift off with a lunar sample for a round trip to earth ahead of Apollo 11, Davies said: "It is now possible that the Russian probe will be back faster than the Americans. There may be savings in time with an unmanned craft with no docking procedures."

Drowning Victim's Rites Here

Funeral service for Eddie Lee Wiseman, 13, who lived in Snyder until about three months ago, will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Bethel Baptist Church.

The youth drowned at about 8:15 a.m. Sunday at Oak Creek Lake. He reportedly had gone into the water to try to untangle a fishing line.

The son of Lee Wiseman of Loraine and Mrs. Patrick Bullard of Benton, La., he had lived in Snyder until the family moved to Loraine the past spring. He had been a student at Travis Junior High School here.

The Rev. R. Virgil Mott will officiate at the funeral service. Burial will be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Surviving are the parents and home and two brothers, Martin Luther and Collin Faye of Benton.

Ship Achieves Orbit As Planned By NASA

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Americans blasted off from the moon today, reaching the relative safety of lunar orbit and leaving their footprints in the lunar dust and in the history of man.

It was the first time anything had ever rocketed away from the moon.

Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin A. Aldrin Jr. immediately began pursuing the command ship, orbiting 69 miles above the surface with astronaut Michael Collins at the controls.

"Beautiful. Very smooth," Aldrin commented as Eagle took off from the moon. "A very quiet ride. There's that one crater down there.

"We've a little bit of slow wallowing here," he said later.

"Shutdown," he called out as the engine stopped.

"Great," Mission Control said and reported Eagle in a near-perfect orbit ranging from about 11 to 54 miles high.

They had to catch Collins in a 3½-hour chase to get back to earth. Their lunar vehicle was not built to take them home.

Collins was spring-loaded to speed to the rescue if something should go wrong with the lunar taxi called Eagle.

"Roger, understand we're No. 1 on the runway," Aldrin said minutes before the blastoff.

A fiery burst from a small engine propelled Armstrong and Aldrin off the moon at 1:54 p.m. EDT, ending man's first exploration of another celestial body.

They had camped at the base named Tranquility for 21 hours 36 minutes, raising the banner of their nation above it and fulfilling a dream of the ages. Seven minutes 18 seconds after the liftoff, Eagle's cabin section settled into a low lunar orbit. The bottom half of the vehicle, with the landing legs, served as a launching pad and was left on the moon.

The command ship, Columbia, and Eagle, had worked in close radio harmony as the critical firing neared. Precisely 69 seconds after Collins flashed over the landing site, Armstrong and Aldrin took off.

By the time they reached orbit, Columbia was 300 miles ahead and the chase was on.

Armstrong and Aldrin were to execute several intricate maneuvers, triggered by engine firings, to close the gap and catch its fleeting target.

Linkup was scheduled for 5:32 p.m.

After a rest period, the astronauts plan to light up the big command ship engine at 12:57 a.m. Tuesday to start the quarter- million-mile journey back to earth. Splashdown is scheduled at 12:51 p.m. Thursday in the Pacific.

Just hours before Eagle departed, the moon received another visitor. Russia's unmanned Luna 15 landed in the Sea of Crisis, 500 miles from the Americans, after orbiting the moon for several days on a mystery mission.

Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory reported Luna's radio transmitting device had been traveling at about 300 m.p.h. when the signals stopped and "it is unlikely that anything could have survived such an impact."

COMMEMORATIVE MEDAL — Photo shows both sides of the commemorative medal designed in honor of man's first flight to the moon and the men who landed there — the Apollo 11 astronauts. The medal was designed by New York sculptor Ralph J. Menconi and is being struck in both silver and bronze. (AP Wirephoto)

Mission control awakened the moonmen shortly after 11 a.m. following a six-hour rest period. Instruments which monitored Armstrong during the night indicated he slept fitfully. There is only one set of biomedical instruments in the cabin so Aldrin was not monitored.

Sleeping in the cramped quarters of the LM is difficult and Aldrin reported: "Neil has been lying on the engine cover and I curled up on the floor."

Checking of systems and switch settings for the critical liftoff was the No. 1 priority after wakeup.

Gatewood Rites Pend

Roney Dee Gatewood, 74, of Fluvanna died at 4:30 p.m. Sunday in Root Memorial Hospital in Colorado City.

A native of Melrose, N. M., Mr. Gatewood had lived in Fluvanna for 19 years where he had operated a cafe.

He is survived by his wife; a daughter, Mrs. James Bellamy of Snyder; two sisters, Miss Pat Gatewood and Mrs. Eula King, both of San Antonio; three brothers, R. S., L.L. and J.B. Gatewood, all of Sudan; and one granddaughter.

Mr. Gatewood was a veteran of World War I and was a member of the Church of Christ.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Bolger Funeral Home.

Nixon Schedules August Speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will present proposals for welfare and poverty-related programs Aug. 8 in a nationally broadcast speech, then follow up with specific messages to Congress.

The White House, promising "dramatic new approaches," said the messages will cover welfare, manpower training, revenue sharing proposals to help states finance these programs, and reorganization of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Formal Complaint Is Filed Against Edward Kennedy

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Police today filed a formal complaint charging Sen. Edward M. Kennedy with leaving the scene of an accident

The complaint stems from a weekend wreck on Chappaquiddick Island, adjacent to Martha's Vineyard on which this small resort town is located. A young woman was killed and Kennedy injured, though apparently not seriously.

The complaint was filed by Police Chief Domenic J. Arena with the District Court Clerk Thomas A. Teller.

Arena said that an Edgartown lawyer, Richard J. McCarran, had informed the clerk he is representing Kennedy. McCarran asked for a hearing, to which Kennedy is entitled before any summons is issued.

Teller set July 28 for the hearing, which will be held in the Edgartown courthouse.

A crowd of several hundred persons, mostly tourists, filled the street outside the red brick, century-old courthouse as Arena crossed the street from his headquarters in the Town Hall to visit the clerk.

Arena said Sunday he is "firmly convinced there was no negligence iinvolved in the accident.

"But the matter of the time period after the accident . . ." Arena said. "There is, in my opinion, a violation concerning going from the scene, leaving the scene."

The mishap occurred between 11 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday as Kennedy was driving Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, of Washington, to a landing to catch the ferry back to the Vineyard.

The car skidded off a narrow bridge and landed bottomup in eight feet of water. Kennedy escaped with what a physician said was a mild concussion. Miss Kopechne, former secretary to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., was trapped in the vehicle and drowned.

Kennedy went to the police 10 hours after the accident. The car had been found by then; two boys going fishing saw its wheels beneath the water.

In a police statement, Kennedy said he was left dazed by the accident. He said he tried repeatedly to rescue Miss Kopechne, but was not able to find her.

The 37-year-old Massachusetts Democrat and Miss Kopechne had been at a dinner party at a private home on Chappaquiddick attended by several of Kennedy's friends and political associates. Kennedy said he returned to the home after the accident and climbed into the rear seat of a car parked outside.

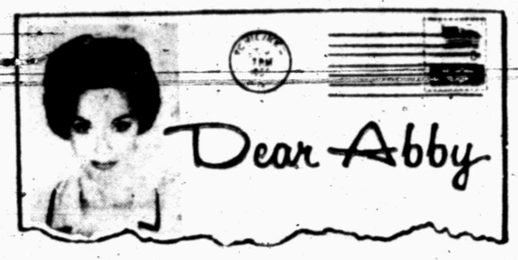

"I then asked someone to bring me back to Edgartown," he continued. "I remember walking around for a period of time and then going back to my hotel room. When I fully realized what had happened this morning I immediately went to the police."

The time was 10 a.m. Saturday.

Arena said Sunday he already had sent Kennedy notice via registered mail that a complaint was being filed against him. He said that would be followed by formal notice of the complaint, after which Kennedy would have 24 hours in which to request a hearing. If no hearing was sought, Arena added, a formal summons would be issued automatically.

Kennedy and his wife Joan remained in seclusion Sunday at his home on Squaw Island, a short distance off Hyannis Port on Cape Cod where the Kennedy family compound is located. A contingent of police kept newsmen and sightseers at a distance.

In Washington, a spokesman for the senator said he would have no statement to make in connection with the accidnet for the time being.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think children — from kindergarten on — should get their sex education in the schools? If not, why not? And if so, why?

CONCERNED PARENT

DEAR CONCERNED: Really, don't help. What do you think they need to know about sex at home, from intelligent parents, who themselves have healthy, wholesome attitudes about sex as well as high moral standards. But unfortunately (if my mail can be believed) the child who has had his sex education from such parents is as rare as hen's teeth.

Parents today (thru no fault of their own) are victims of parents of yesterday who equated sex with "sin" and were too embarassed and ill-informed to tell their children the facts of life. Consequently most children received their sex education from each other, and in the alley.

So I believe it is preferable for children to learn the facts of life from informed, responsible educators, of whom they can ask straight questions — and get straight answers — rather than in the alley.

And may I add, parents need not fear that their children will "get into trouble" because they know too much. Children get into trouble because they know too little.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl who last year came from Stockholm to work for a family I will call "The Smiths." Mostly I have been looking after their children.

A few days ago Mrs. Smith received sudden word that her mother who lives in a neighboring state is seriously ill, so she went to be with her mother.

Last evening Mr. Smith engaged a sitter for the children and invited me to go to a movie with him.

Now he tells me that he has engaged the sitter again for Saturday, and he is taking me dancing! Abby, I do not care to go dancing with this old man (he must be 40) and besides I have a steady boy friend who is very angry already about my going to the movies with Mr. Smith.

Altho Mr. Smith has done nothing improper, I do not wish to go out with him, neither do I wish to offend him. Can you advise me?

Respectfully, FROM SWEDEN

DEAR FROM: Thank Mr. Smith for his kind invitation, and tell him your boyfriend objects, so you must decline. That should settle it.

DEAR ABBY: Before my huband goes to bed he likes to fix himself a "snack" which usually consists of pickles, salami, and other things loaded with garlic and onions. Then he climbs into bed and gets amorous! I love this guy, but I can't stand him near me with THAT on his breath.

Don't tell me to "join" him and eat pickles and salami. My stomach won't tolerate it. And don't recommend tooth pastes and mouth washes. He claims he's used them, and I can tell you, if he has, they don't help. What do you recommend?

EDITH

DEAR EDITH: A clothespin for your nose.

3 Mishaps Are Logged

The Snyder Police Department investigated three automobile mishaps Friday afternoon and night.

The first one was at 2:40 p.m. in the Rainbow Market parking lot on Twenty-fifth Street. Involved was a 1960 Chevrolet driven by Fred Bowers, Hermleigh, and a 1961 Ford, driven by Maria Rodriguez of Snyder. Minor damage was reported on the Chevrolet, and none to the Ford.

A mishap occurred at 4:32 p.m. at the intersection of Beaumont Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. A 1968 Chevrolet, driven by Latrix Ann McMullan, was in collision with a 1962 Chevrolet, driver unknown. Damage to the car driven by Miss McMullan was estimated at $250, and damage to the other vehicle was reported at $500.

The police were called at 11:10 p.m. to Avenue S and Thirty-ninth Street to an accident involving a 1965 Chevrolet Pickup, driven by Harley Smith, and a 1960 Ford driven by Kenneth R. Shifflett. Estimated damage was $250 to the pickup and $200 to the Ford.

No injuries were reported in any of these mishaps.

Historic Call Is Long Distance

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a super long distance call to tell America's men on the moon "how proud we all are," President Nixon phoned Mamie Eisenhower and former President Lyndon B. Johnson to share his jubilation with them.

"This certainly has to be the most historic telephone call ever made from the White House," Nixon told astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin Jr.

Millions of television viewers saw Sunday night's telephone conversation through a split picture showing both the President and astronauts.

"For one priceless moment in the whole history of man all of the people on this earth are truly one," Nixon said during his brief message congratulating the astronauts.

After talking with the astronauts, Nixon called Mrs. Eisenhower at the nearby White House mansion where she is visiting. He disclosed that the widow of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower had commented earlier that "somebody up there is looking at them too"—referring to the late Gen. Eisenhower.

Nixon telephoned Johnson at his Texas home.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters the President informed Johnson that "I thought we ought to share this great moment."

Johnson told Nixon, Ziegler said, he had been following the Apollo 11 activities all day and appreciated Nixon's call at the historic moment.

Like people around the world, Nixon watched the television screen intently to see man's first step on the moon.

"It's an unbelievable thing — fantastic," he was quoted as saying at the moment Armstrong put foot on the moon.

Ziegler and Astronaut Frank Borman, presidential adviser for the mission, met with newsmen just after midnight to go into more details how Nixon kept in touch with activities on the moon.

"He was amazed at the agility of the astronauts in floating around on the surface," Borman said of the President.

He said he thought the moon landing and the operations on the lunar surface had been so successful because there had been no major surprises.

Borman was with the chief executive starting from the time the astronauts were preparing to step from their spacecraft onto the moon's surface, outlining the procedures.

Firemen Get Six Alarms

The Snyder Fire Department was kept busy over the weekend, making six runs Saturday and Sunday.

Two of the calls came Saturday, and both reported grass fires. At 10:30 a.m. the firemen were called to a fire 10½ miles southwest of town. The second run was made to a grass fire east of Wilson Motors.

Four runs were made Sunday afternoon. At 1:25 a call came to a grass fire between Avenue E and Avenue I on the Santa Fe right-of-way.

The firemen went to a car fire at 2907 Avenue U at 2:10. The automobile, a 1960 Chevrolet, was owned by Richard Howard of Snyder.

Another grass fire took the firemen 16 miles north of Snyder on highway 84 at 4:30.

The final run Sunday came at 5:15 to a grass fire on the S. D. Hays ranch northwest of town.

Jewish Prayer Is Revised

JERUSALEM (AP) — The American landing on the moon resulted today in the revision of an ancient Jewish prayer.

The prayer asked God to preserve the Jew from harm "just as the moon is untouchable by man." Gen. Schlomo Goren, the Israeli army's chief chaplain, said it had been changed to "just as the moon is not touched by man."

Texas Welcomes Showers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers and thundershowers—welcome in most cases—spread into most sections of Texas at dawn today, and one storm in Wise County produced a funnel cloud.

Highway patrolman reported a funnel cloudy early this morning between Alvord and Decatur in North Texas. No damage reports or reports that the twister touched ground were received.

The showers and storms were evident throughout North Central Texas and West Texas early this morning with considerable shower activity developing along the middle and upper Coast.

Some fog was reported in parts of Southeast Texas, with temperatures across the state in the 70s or low 80s at dawn.

A five-day forecast for the period through Saturday indicates some relief from the hot, dry conditions that prevailed in the state for weeks.

Rain was expected in every section, ranging from locally heavy downpours in Southeast Texas to moderate, scattered thundershowers in southwest portions. Temperatures for the period were expected to average slightly below normal.

Miss Diaz Starts Reign

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It was just one of those days for Miss Universe. Her juice glass dripped on her breakfast, her crown didn't fit and the photographers got her wet.

Gloria Diaz one of 12 children of a Filipino paper dealer, awakened Sunday to a new life that will mean $20,000, a trip around the world and a $7,500 mink coat.

But the outcome was something that the 18-year-old commercial school student hadn't even hoped for. "No. Really, I didn't!" she emphasized. "Anybody else but me."

Miss Diaz—who entered the 62-nation beauty contest as Miss Phillippines—greeted photographers according to protocol Sunday morning. She wore a quilted red robe with ostrich feather fringe. She sat cross-legged on her bed with a breakfast tray on her knees.

As she posed, the 34½-23-34½ beauty sipped prune juice. But moisture condensed on the outside of the chilled glass and dripped onto the ham and eggs in the plate.

She then donned a swimsuit and went to the beach for more pictures. She wore her sash and her crown clung precariously to a mound of hair on the back of her head.

"Move your crown like ths," a photographer instructed, giving the sparkling tiara a shove forward.

"It doesn't fit like that," the raven-haired beauty wailed. She was right, but she caught it before it tumbled into the sand. Next, the lensmen took away the crown, handed Miss Universe her scepter and sent Miss Diaz into the surf. They made her walk and then run, splashing herself fairly thoroughly.

African Is Charged With Assassination

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Police charged an African today with the assassination of political leader Tom Mboya, gunned down on a Nairobi street July 5.

Mboya's death touched off tribal clashes between his Luo tribe and the Kikuyu, who make up a majority of those in government and are the largest tribe in Kenya.

The man charged in court here and held without bail pending trial is Nashashon Isaac Njenga Njoroge.

Police declined to give his age, address, tribe or any other details, but Njoroge is a Kikuyu name.

Asked if any other arrests were expected, a senior officer said only that the investigation was continuing.

Restrictions Eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is easing trade and travel restrictions toward Communist China, effective Wednesday, the State Department announced today.

Increase In Funds To Fight Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big increase in funds to combat crime in the streets and drug abuses was approved today by the House Appropriations Committee.

The committee also adopted a new, tough provision aimed at student rioters, and turned down an administration request for more money to help local school districts desegregate.

The actions were taken by the committee in approving a bill that would appropriate $2.5 billion for the departments of State, Commerce and Justice during the current fiscal year.

The total goes over the budget estimates of the Nixon administration which asked for only $16 million for the construction of new merchant marine ships but will get $200 million if the committee action is sustained by Congress.

Moon Dirt Seems To Be Wet

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts may be bringing back some water from the moon.

Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. drove a hollow tube into the moon's surface during his lunar walk. He then removed the tube, bringing up a core sample of lunar soil.

He told mission control just after withdrawing the tube that the soil seemed "almost wet."

If the dirt indeed is wet, it may mean there is life in some form on the moon.

Armstrong Was Unable To Sleep

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — It was a rugged day but apparently sleep did not come easily for the commander of the lunar module Eagle, perched on the moon.

Mission control reported at 6:25 a.m. EDT, two hours after bidding astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. goodnight, that telemetry showed Armstrong still awake.

Aldin's sleep status was not known. He was not hooked up to biomedical telemetry signals back to earth.

Biggest Crowd At Rodeo Finale

One of the best rodeos ever staged here was completed Saturday night with the final performance of the 33rd annual Scurry County Rodeo. The largest crowd of the four nights was packed in the stands to see the windup as the final winners were determined.

Although the Texans won over South Dakota Saturday in the matched bronc riding contest, they did not score enough to overcome the lead held by the visitors, and ended the rodeo competition with 687 points, while the South Dakota team had 713.

It was one of the Texans, however, that was judged the top saddle bronc rider of the two teams. Scott Maynard, 17 year - old high school student from Waco, was the highest scorer Saturday night, and also for the four nights of competition. His winnings totaled $325 for the entire rodeo. Jud Sims, Lubbock had the second best average, and Jim Burns of Rapid City, South Dakota, was third.

J. W. Jones of Abilene was the only bareback rider that made a mark Saturday night, and he was awarded 37 points. This was good enough to put him fourth in the overall standings. Ed Workman, Mineral Wells, won first money for the entire competition, which was good enough for $224.

In the barrel race Saturday, Marie Voss of Snyder came in second, with a time of 18.2 seconds. However, she did not rank in the top three in the overall competition, because she had been penalized for knocking over a barrel in her first outing. Best average was made by Deborah Whitehead of Morton. She won the final go - round in 17.9 and had won the first round of competition in 17.6. Viola Sims of Lubbock was third Saturday, and also had the third best average.

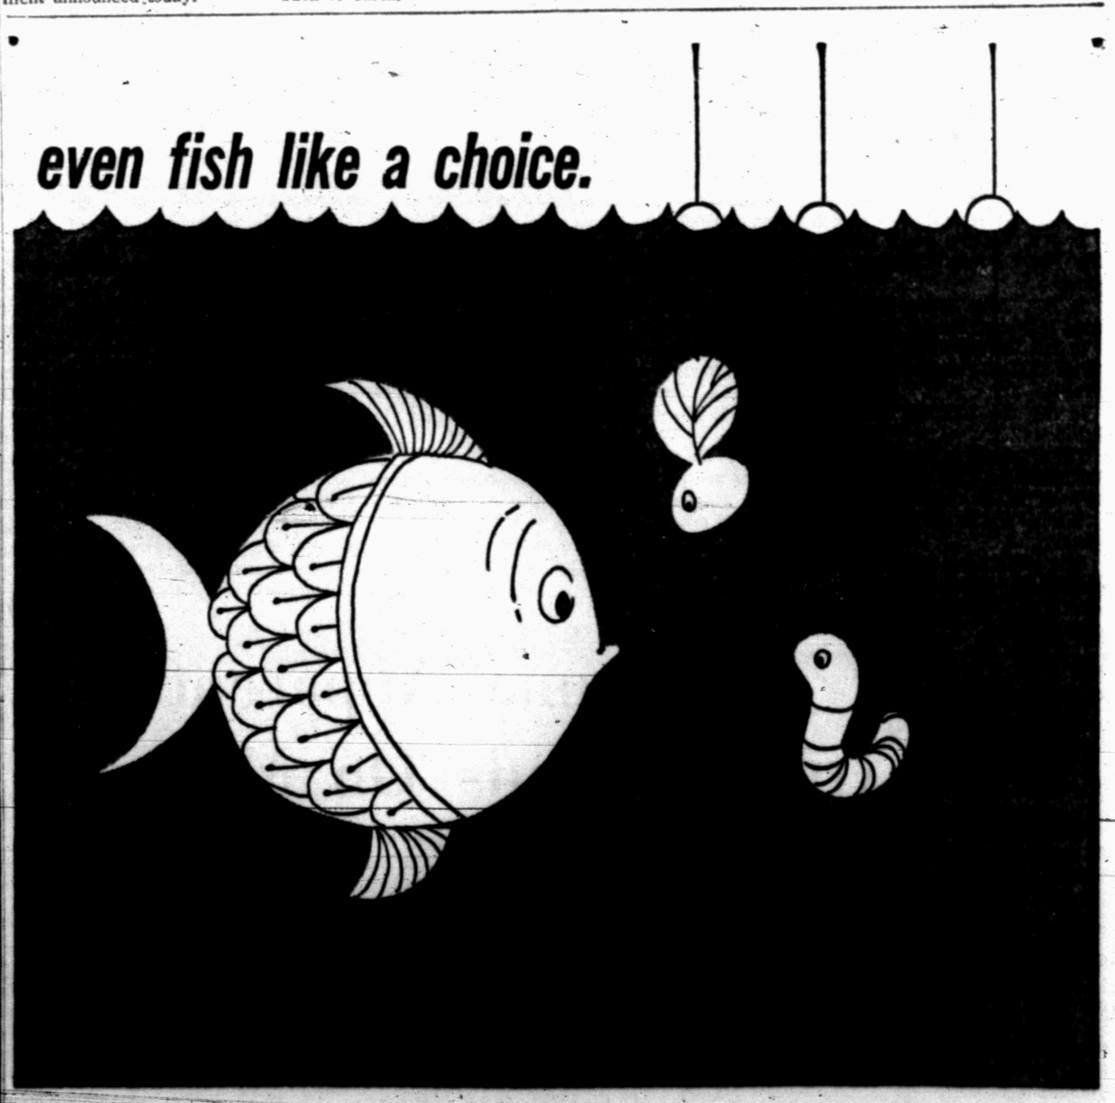

Joe Hall, Goldsmith, had the best time in the last performance in the tiedown calf roping event. His 12.5 seconds was good enough to get him a tie for second place for the four nights of competition, with Terry Riddle of Wichita Falls. Winner was Royce Kitchens, Cisco, who had a 11.4 Friday night.

In the bull riding event Saturday, Eddie Eicke, Snyder, was the only one who managed to stay on the required time. He was given 39 points, good enough for fourth place in the final standings. Overall winner was David Elma of Holland, with 58 points, followed by Charlie Northcutt, Colorado City, and Roger Ruderick, Grapevine.

Riley Miller, Fluvanna, won the stockholders roping event in the final show, and that put him in second place for the four nights. He was awarded a belt buckle for his showing. First place and a saddle went to Floyd Payne of Snyder.

Pasternak's Unfinished Play

THE BLIND BEAUTY. By Boris Pasternak. Harcourt, Brace. $3.95.

This is a play that Pasternak was unable to finish before his death in 1960. For literary students, it is almost like a bit of archeology.

The author of "Dr. Zhivago," which was published in 1958, had been writing a three-part play about the liberation of the serfs in 19th century Russia, and had discussed it in letters to several friends. The partial manuscript was lost and then rediscovered long after his death.

To one friend he wrote that when the play was finished it would "continue and deepen" the story of "Dr. Zhivago."

It ranges from the 1830's to the 1860's, and the missing third part would have extended into the 1880's, describing the changes that took place in the serfdom of Russia and the unrest that struck the country long before the revolution of the 20th century.

The title derives from a small figure, a serf girl named Lusha, and Pasternak wrote in a letter that she is "of course symbolic of Russia, oblivious for so long of its own beauty, of its own destinies."

Would it have been a real play? The answer has to be no. In terms of the theater, it is clumsy. Especially in the early passages in which there is no action and the characters spend an endless time explaining the situation to each other. The play's chief interest now is that it gives an oblique insight into the author's thinking.

Sketches Of Lonely People

AND REALLY FRAU BLUM WOULD VERY MUCH LIKE TO MEET THE MILKMAN. By Peter Bichsel. Delacorte. $4.75.

This odd little book is something that people interested in writing might look into as an experiment in catching nuances of meaning in a very short space.

What Bichsel, a Swiss teacher, has attempted, in this collection of 21 items, is to catch the essence of a situation in a few swift strokes. His miniatures range from a few paragraphs to two or three pages.

The themes are rather lonely ones. They express the difficulties of human communication and the bleakness of old age.

Typical is the title story, which concerns an old woman whose only contact with the milkman is a series of trivial notes left with the milk bottles.

There is one item about an old woman waiting to die, another about an old grandfather who long ago had given up his dreams. There are pieces about the boredom of marriage, about a tired old priest, an old character who kibitzes a card game, and a spinster who is fluttering her life away in silent solitude. There is a glimpse of a young girl who waits each evening for a train.

Some of these miniatures catch a quick flash of humanity in a few lines, and others fall flat because they are so elliptical they puzzle the reader. The experiment has been only partially successful, but it may interest writing technicians.

Bioluminescence appears in fireflies that scatter living sparks about gardens and bacteria that shine on decaying meat. It exists in fungi, sponges, snails, and milipedes.

MEN ON THE MOON

Millions Around The World Watch

LONDON (AP) — Laplanders pasturing their reindeer listened on transistor radios. Japanese stayed up all night to watch on television. Millions around the world hung on every word from the two U.S. astronauts walking on the moon.

In some countries many remained unaware. Commuist China, with one quarter of the world's population, did not broadcast news about Apollo 11, nor did North Vietnam or North Korea.

As Neil A. Armstrong's boots scuffed the lunar dust, it was just before sunrise in most of Europe and a crowd of 2,000 still clustered around a giant television screen in London's Trafalgar Square.

At the Jodrell Bank radio observatory, Sir Bernard Lovell, Britain's leading space expert, stopped tracking the progress of the Soviet craft Luna 15 over the moon to watch Armstrong.

"I'm just speechless with amazement," Lovell said. "There is nothing more I can say than that it is absolutely fantastic. One can scarcely believe it is taking place as one sees it."

Crowds in front of TV screens at Paris sidewalk cafes and bars in Rome cheered as Armstrong bounded over the moon's surface and Buzz Aldrin began his descent.

There was no word from the Vatican on whether Pope Paul VI stayed up to watch the walk, but when the astronauts landed the 71-year-old pontiff hailed them as "conquerors of the moon." He said man faces "the expanse of endless space and a new destiny."

In Venezuela, today is a national holiday, and the bells of hundreds of churches pealed during the walk. A Japanese girl in Tokyo said as she watched a streetside monitor, "It's like a dream, although I know it's not a dream."

One Yugoslav teen-ager sounded a dissent: "They have stolen the romance out of the moon and it will never be the same again. Now the moon is real, and lovers won't have it for themselves alone anymore."

In arctic Norway where the midnight sun kept skies bright through the night, Laplanders sat around their campfires composing sing-song folk poems about the astronauts as they listened to their transistors.

Poles jammed the lobby of the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw while hundreds applauded outside. Soviet media reported the landing without fanfare, but many Russians undoubtedly stayed up to listen to Western broadcasts about the exploration.

Pravda, the Soviet Union's leading newspaper, gave the U.S. moon triumph only a small headline above a small story near the bottom of the front page.

In a more prominent place at the top of the page was a larger story on the shift of Luna 15, the unmanned Soviet spacecraft, closer to the moon. Pravda still gave no hint what Luna 15's mission was.

At headquarters bases and other rear areas in Vietnam Americans gathered around radios at midmorning to hear the broadcast of the walk as did the staff at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

In the war-torn Middle East Cairo Radio broadcast news about the first steps before reviewing Sunday's fierce air battle with Israel.

One night club owner in Beirut stopped a striptease act to tell the audience, "We've made it."

In Australia it was lunchtime when the astronauts stepped onto the moon. From the cities to the lonely cattle stations in the moon-like Outback, Australians regarded the lunar exploration with awe. Australian newspapers highlighted their "kangaroo" movements.

For many people in the Asian subcontinent and Africa, the Voice of America broadcast was the only means of hearing about the two astronauts.

Thousands of Europeans without TV sets spent the night at friends' houses to follow the lunar adventure.

In Fife, Scotland, a boy born Sunday night was to be named Neil Edwin Michael—the second child in Britain to be named after all three astronauts.

On British television Sunday night David Threlfall, who bet $24 five years ago that man would set foot on the moon before 1971, received a check for $24,000 even though Armstrong hadn't left the lunar module yet.

A spokesman for the London bookmaker William Hill, with whom Threlfall placed the bet at 1,000-1 odds when he was 26, said the touchdown was "good enough for us."

As newspapers prepared special editions with huge headlines, world leaders went on television to express their admiration and sent congratulatory cables to President Nixon.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain called it a "most historic scientific achievement in the history of man" and told his audience: "Above all we must pay tribute to the heroism and fortitude of the men who are out there and to the men who have gone before them."

President Guiseppe Saragat of Italy said: "Of all the sentiments that stir us, gratitude toward the American people dominates, that people formed by innumerable immigrants from every country, that has given humanity so great a victory."

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said: "The moment of triumph and achievement is also a moment of humility and self-search . . . Let us direct this power of man which soars starward into strengthening the bonds of peace and brotherhood on earth."

Not all the reaction was favorable.

In Havana, where the Voice of America broadcast went unjammed, one Cuban industrial worker, Luis Sosacotilla, 43, said: "Their experiment does nothing to benefit humanity." He said the money should have been used to wipe out poverty and misery in the United States, a reflection of the government view on Apollo.

Klaus Bahnke, president of West Germany's Radical Socialist German Students Federation, said he and his colleagues were avoiding the news "because they are only trying to cover up the real goals of the United States."

Apollo TV Schedule

NEW YORK (AP) — Scheduled Apollo coverage on the three major television networks (all times EDT):

Monday CBS and NBC, conclusion of 31 hours of continuous coverage through 6 p.m.; ABC, conclusion of 30 hours continuous coverage through 6 p.m., 7:30-8:30 special.

Tuesday: ABC, 9:02-9:17 p.m., live pictures from capsule, 10:58 p.m., progress report; CBS, 9-9:20 p.m. live transmission; progress reports through day; NBC, 12:50-1:15 a.m., rocket firing for return to earth.

Historic Moments

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration set the exact time of Neil A. Armstrong's first step on moon soil as 10:56.20 p.m. EDT.

The official touchdown time for the lunar module was logged at 4:17.40 p.m. EDT.

Astronauts Leave Expensive Junkpile On The Moon

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Apollo 11 astronauts leave behind one of the most expensive junk yards in the universe when they lift off from the moon today.

They discarded almost $1 million worth of cameras, tools and breathing equipment up there.

The cameras included the black and white television camera that captured their moon walk for the world. This camera cost the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $259,000.

Also in the litter—a Kodak worth $50,000 and a Hasselblad camera that cost $11,176.

After returning to the moon lander's cabin, the astronauts opened the hatch and dumped the back packs which kept them alive during their walk.

Each of these units, called the Portable Life Support System, cost NASA $300,000.

Moon tools designed especially for the astronauts added to the junk pile.

Tongs, a scoop, a long-handled hammer, an extension handle and other items were dropped when the spacemen were through with them. These tools cost $45,000.

Largest item to be left was the descent stage of the lunar module. NASA is reluctant to put a cost on this two-ton piece of metal since it's only part of lunar module that cost $41 million.

Even if the spacecraft stage hadn't been left on the moon, it could never have returned to earth; it has no heat shield.

An American flag was left on the moon. The space agency doesn't know how much it cost and doesn't want to.

NASA bought a large number of flags from different manufacturers, a spokesman said, and then removed all labels. One was selected at random.

"We've no idea which one is up there," said the spokesman. "This was so no company could make a big thing of their flag being on the moon."

A silicone wafer bearing electronically-rduced messages of goodwill from 78 countries cost NASA nothing. A private firm produced it at no cost to the government.

A plaque bearing the autographs of the astronauts and of President Nixon couldn't be priced. It was made in the metal shop at NASA of materials already at hand.

A host of plants, as well as animals, carry their own tiny lanterns. One species of umbrella-shaped fungus turns into a facismile of a small night lamp.

Perry Leads Twins To Marathon Win

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the Seattle Pilots had a choice, they'd probably repeal the Satuurday night curfew and pass a Blue Law banning Jim Perry on Sundays.

After struggling to a 16-inning standoff against the Pilots Saturday night before an American League curfew rule suspended play, the Minnesota Twins handed Perry a bat and ball Sunday ... and quickly doubled their investment.

Perry pitched two scoreless innings in the resumption of the suspended game and doubled to launch a four-run burst in the 18th that beat Seattle 11-7. Then he started, and finished, the regularly scheduled game, scattering nine hits as the Twins blanked the Pilots 4-0 for a game lead in the AL West Division.

The two victories, which gave Perry an 11-4 season mark, moved the Twins another length ahead of second place Oakland. The Athletics divided a doubleheader with California, winning 9-6 after a 7-3 first game loss.

Elsewhere, Boston downed Baltimore's East Division leaders 6-5; Kansas City swept a twin bill from the Chicago White Sox 8-6 and 3-2 in 11 innings; Detroit edged Cleveland 3-2 before bowing to the Indians 5-4 in 10 innings and the New York Yankees shaded Washington 3-2 in 11 innings.

In National League action, the Chicago Cubs won a pair from Philadelphia 1-0 and 6-1; the New York Mets split with Montreal, taking the nightcap 4-3 in 10 innings after losing 8-2; Atlanta blasted San Diego 10-0 and San Francisco whipped Los Angeles 7-3.

The St. Louis-Pittsburgh single game and the Houston-Cincinnati doubleheader were rained out.

The Twins and Pilots were deadlocked 7-7 when Saturday night's marathon was suspended because of the 1 a.m. curfew. When play resumed Sunday, Perry took over on the mound for Minnesota and rookie John Gelnar did the pitching for the home club.

The tie stood until the 18th, when Perry lashed a one-out double. Ted Uhlaender beat out an infield single, Rod Carew walked, filling the bases, and Gelnar balked, scoring Perry with the go-ahead run. Chuck Manuel's two-run double and Rick Renick's sacrifice fly capped the rally.

With both pitching staffs depleted duuring Saturay night's endurance test, Perry and Gelnar also got the starting assignments in the regular game.

Perry again stopped the Pilots cold, but Gelnar, 2-7, was tagged for bases-empty homers by George Mitterwald and Cesar Tovar before being lifted in the eighth.

Home runs by Aurelio Rodriguez and Jim Spencer, coupled with four Oakland errors, helped the Angels win the opener. But Reggie Jackson smacked his 37th homer and two doubles in the nightcap and Sal Bando and Danny Cater hit successive homers as the A's bounced back.

Syd O'Brien rapped a homer, triple and single, knocking in three runs, as the Red Sox completed a three-game sweep over the Orioles. O'Brien's two-run triple in the eighth keyed a three-run burst that offset a three-run Baltimore rally in the ninth, giving Ray Culp his 14th victory in 20 decisions.

Bob Taylor drove in five runs with a homer and two singles as Kansas City snapped a six-game losing streak in the opener at Chicago. The Royals broke an 11th inning stalemate in the nightcap on Bob Oliver's RBI single.

The Tigers beat Cleveland on Willie Horton's eighth inning homer, then blew the second game when Jose Cardenal scored from third on a bases-loaded force play in the 10th.

Chuck Hinton's blooper to center was trapped by Jim Northrup, who fired the ball toward the plate in an attempt to nail Cardenal. But first baseman Norm Cash cut off the throw and threw to third for a force as Cardenal tallied the winning run.

Roy White doubled in the 11th and scored from second on Gene Michael's infield hit, sending the Yankee past Washington.

Hill Not Happy With Golf Win

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dave Hill had just taken the $39,000 first prize in the Philadelphia Golf Classic but said he really hadn't won it, really didn't want to and really didn't much care.

"This tournament was more lost than won," the slim perfectionist said. "Tommy Jacobs and Grier Jones lost it. I didn't win no golf tournament. They lost it.

"It's a shame for Tommy to lose. He played four shots better than I did. My sympathies were with him. I wanted him to win it. And I didn't want to win with the score I had.

"I don't much care about winning. I care about playing well. Winning just comes from playing good. I don't care if I win one tournament or a thousand, just let me play."

Hill, 32, a pro since 1959, beat Jacobs, R. H. Sikes and Gay Brewer in a four-way playoff on the first extra hole Sunday. His 11-foot birdie putt clinched his third victory of the season.

And it was his third triumph in his last four starts, put him in the top spot on the money winning list at $129,333 and clinched him a spot on the Ryder Cup team.

Hill shot a final-round 69, three under par on the 6,670-yard Whitemarsh Country Club course, and was tied after 72 hole at 279 with Jacobs, Sikes and Brewer.

Jacobs, who shared the third-round lead and is on a comeback from three bad years that almost forced him off the tour, had a 72, Brewer a 66, including an eagle on the 17th hole, and Sikes a 67.

Frank Beard had a 66 and was alone at 280. Tied at 281 were Jones, who shared the third-round lead with Jacobs and finished with a 74; Mac McLendon, 68; Bruce Devlin, 65; Lou Graham, 70, and Deane Beman, 70.

Arnold Palmer had a 71 for 286 and was tied at that figure with Billy Casper, 68. Lee Trevino had a 69 for 285.

On the first extra hole, Sikes left a 20-foot birdie putt an inch short and Jacobs chipped past the hole before Hill ran in his winning putt. Brewer missed on a 10-foot attempt and it was over.

"I thought for sure it would take a 66 or 67 to win it. I'd have been happy with that," Hill said. "It's a shame for Jacobs to lose. But it's his best finish in some time and I'm pleased for him about that."

Few Fans Turn Out For Meet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They had just finished handing out the medals at the conclusion of the U.S.-Soviet-British Commonwealth track meet when a football appeared on the green playing field of the Los Angeles Coliseum. Some athletes, it appeared, were as uninterested in the procedings as the general public.

A total of 30,340 fans saw the meet Friday night and Saturday —a sharp drop from the crowds that have attended previous American-Russian track meets.

In 1962, when the meet was at Stanford University, for instance, around 150,000 saw the two-day meet.

The Soviets and the British were surprised at the poor crowds and quick to point out how well the meet would have drawn abroad.

How the turnout would affect future international competition in non-Olympic years remained to be seen.

A television contract probably kept the meet from losing money, but the Amateur Athletic Union was unable to get any civic organizations to sponsor the meet.

The AAU had asked for a $90,000 guarantee, which nobody would meet. That led to poor publicity and, as a whole, organization for the affair appeared to be nonexistent.

The meet itself produced no world records, but several outstanding performances were recorded including several Coliseum records.

The U.S. men won 12 of 22 events—with John Carlos capturing the 100 meters in 10.3 and the 200 in 20.3—while the U.S. girls won seven of 13 events—with Barbara Ferrell winning the 100 at 11.5 and the 200 at 23.6.

The U.S. men won dual meet competition against both the Russians and the British and also captured the unofficial triangular victory.

The U.S. women beat the Russians for the first time since these meets began and also beat the British and won the triangular. No score was kept between the Soviets and the Commonwealth.

All Is Well: Namath Is Back In The Fold

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Joe Namath was back with the New York Jets today.

The super star quarterback arrived at the Jets training camp at Hofstra University Sunday night and said he would work out for the first time this season today.

For Namath, it ended a brief retirement which he announced June 6 when pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle ordered him either to sell his interests in an East Side restaurant, Bachelors III, or face suspension from football.

Perkins Retires Without Fanfare

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — It was about this time last summer that Don Perkins took personal stock of himself at the Dallas Cowboy training camp.

"I should be home mowing the grass," he said.

And that's where the gutty fullback is right now in Albuquerque, N.M.—a professional football player no more.

Perkins, the fifth leading ground gainer in National Football League history with 6,217 yards, has decided he would rather be with his family instead of playing games.

The articulate, soft-spoken Perkins quietly retired over the weekend by not showing up for the Cowboy camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

He told Dallas President Tex Schramm by telephone "Consider this my official notification of retirement."

No fuss or muss. No news conference. He just didn't feel like putting his helmet on anymore.

That's the way Perkins has always operated—both on the field and off. But don't get the idea he was weak-kneed.

He was one of the most vicious blocking fullbacks in the history of the NFL.

Coach Tom Landry, a perfectionist, continually marveled at Perkins' blocking ability where he seldom missed an assignment.

"We would run the films over and over and you really had to hunt to find him making a mistake," Landry said.

Perkins was a tremendous short-yardage gainer. With a high pumping leg action, he was difficult to tackle one-on-one. Perkins seldom broke for a long gainer because he didn't have exceptional speed. But he could get you that third and two.

The 31-year-old Perkins now surrenders his fullback post to rugged Walt Garrison, who has backed up "The Perk" for four seasons.

The retirement of Perkins and quarterback Don Meredith wipes out half of the Dallas backfield from last season.

No longer will fans be able to beef about the traditional opening Cowboy play "Perkins up the middle."

Meredith and now Perkins...

You'll definitely need a program to tell who's playing in the Cowboybackfield this Autumn.

BREAK RECORD — Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins broke the American League season record and tied the major league season record for stealing home plate. He stole home for the seventh time this season in a game against the Chicago White Sox. (AP Wirephot)

Dodgers Win Over Oilers; Take Title

The Dodgers won the championship of the Junior Teenage League in Towle Park Saturday night as they romped over the Oilers 15-3. This was a replay of a tie game earlier in the season.

In the first game of the double header, the Rebels defeated the Bullets 9-6, which at that time gave them a chance for a tie for the league title. However, the opportunity disappeared with the Dodger victory. The champions ended their season with a 10-2 record, and the Rebels came in second with a 9-3 record.

The Dodgers will next enter an area tournament, which will probably be held next week.

The Dodgers wasted no time against the Oilers as they scored three runs in the top of the first on two walks and two hits, a double by Butch Buchanan and a single by Albert Hernandez.

The Dodgers added six more runs in the second on two walks, two hit-batsmen, and singles by Buchanan, Tim Holder and Larry Beard.

The winners didn't score in the third, but came back in their half of the fourth with two runs on no hits, three walks and a sacrifice.

The final four runs for the Dodgers came in the fifth and final inning, due to the 10-run lead rule. Once again there were no hits, but five walks off of Oiler pitching enabled the Dodgers to get the scores.

The Oilers got one run in each of the first, fourth and fifth. In the first frame, Ivory Greer walked and came in on a double by Robert Braziel.

The fourth inning run came on no hits and two walks. In the last inning, Crayton walked and crossed the plate on a single by Gharles Anderson.

The Rebels scored in every inning but the second and the sixth enroute to their win over the Bullets. They tallied twice in the initial inning on a walk by Bobby Burleson and a single by Gary Patterson. Both boys scored.

The Rebels added two more in each of the third, fourth and fifth frames, and one in the final stanza.

The Bullets scored once in the first, four times in the sixth, and once in the seventh.

10-Game Winner In Texas League

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Antonio hurler Dean Burk became a ten-game winner Sunday night, as he pitched the Missions to a four-hit victory over the Sun Kings, 3-2.

Amarillo's Bill Frost also threw a four-hitter, as the Giants downed the Arkansas Travellers, 4-1, and in Albuquerque, Memphis scored six early wins and held on for a 6-5 win over the Dodgers.

The Sun Kings gave up two runs in the first inning, then had to wait for Mike Floyd's homer in the seventh for their first tally. Their second run came in the ninth, but it was not enough to stop the Missions, who got the winning run in the eighth.

At Amarillo, Frost pitched no-hit ball through seven innings, then gave up a single to Gino Mairena to open the eighth. The Giants were srtong enough in the second to produce three runs against loser Dave Bakenhaster. They got another in the third for the 4-1 win.

Memphis needed only five hits to score all their six runs against Albuquerque in the first four innings. Three first-inning walks and a passed ball helped the victory.

The winning run came when Ken Singleton scored from third after Dodger catcher Steve Sogge let a pitched ball get by him.

Mann Says Victory An Intellectual One

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Articulate and intelligent Carol Mann said her two-stroke victory Sunday in the $20,000 Lady Carling Golf Championship over a charging Kathy Whitworth and steady Sharon Miller was not a physical achievement, but rather an intellectual conquest.

Miss Mann carded a final round 72, even par over the 6,503-yard Ridgewood Country Club layout, and picked up the first prize check of $3,000.

Meanwhile her playing partner, Kathy Whitworth, who passed the quarter-million dollar mark in tour winnings, launched a strong challenge dropping birdie putts at the last two holes. But she finished two strokes back at 217.

Andretti Takes Fifth Race Win

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Indianapolis 500 winner Mario Andretti racked up his fifth win of the auto racing season over the weekend by edging Wally Dallenbach by 6½ seconds in the Trenton 200 Saturday. Andretti finished the race with one gallon of fuel left in his car.

Andretti raced around the 1½-mile Trenton Speedway track in his rear-engine turbo-charged Ford at an average speed of 139.991 miles per hour.

Andretti, who races out of Nazareth, Pa., won over $13,000.

Mike Mosley of West Covina, Calif., placed third in the race which saw half the starting field of 26 drop out before the finish.

HIS ALBATROSS

ON SPACE PROGRAM

Cost Argument To Continue

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Temporarily suspended as America watches the latest space adventure is the argument about whether or not the program has been worth the money. But it will resume, for certain.

The spending of $24 billion on any one program, as is the case, is enough to put doubts in the minds of millions of Americans. But the space program has an increasingly strong case.

One of the most convincing and tangible arguments in favor of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is "spinoff," or the use in other human endeavors of the technology and discoveries of space studies.

In Houston, for example, Dr. Denton Cooley monitors heart transplant patients with a device developed by NASA. In White Plains, N. Y., General Foods improves its products with a NASA-developed computer program.

These are among the first of thousands of products that conceivably could come into use in American industry or be used more directly in aiding individuals. But they are only the beginning.

"There isn't any question that the technologies of the 1960s will be the practical realities of the 1970s," said Ronald Philips, director of Technology Utiliation for NASA in a telephone conversation the other day.

The transference of technology from one field to another has sped up greatly since the space program. More startling is the shrinking time gap between basic research and practical application.

Scientists once estimated that 50 years elapsed from the time basic research began until a useful product was developed. This was reduced to 30 years and then 18 years, and then even less in this generation.

"Now we say conservatively," Philips said, "that much technology reaches production in 8 to 10 years and we have heard of many examples in which only 2, 3 or 5 years elasped."

Philips observed that if the same 99.99 per cent reliability of the previous Apollo shot were built into automobiles they would run 100 years without a mechanical problem.

The space program has also helped to integrate various disciplines, medicine and physics for example, that could conceivably lead to solutions of human problems that in the past eluded explanation.

It is the products, however, that demonstrate immediately that there are benefits to terrestial beings, that some if not all the money spent will come back to earth as a reward for all the hard work. Here are a very few:

—A "sight switch" which enables paralyzed people to control wheelchairs, signal for help, turn appliances on-off by simple eye movements.

—Computer programs, now being used by hundreds of companies, for "optimizing" products and services. That is, that is, the programs permit companies to find the most productive arrangement of many variables. Cost $300.

—The undersea pinger. This battery-powered device was developed to help find test rockets and capsules, but now is used for plotting ocean currents and the movement of fish.

—A new class of high strength plastics, a fire retardant foam that can be used as a building insulator, a spray-on electrode that permits ambulance attendants to monitor hearts and transmit electrocardiograms.

Junior Editors Quiz on FIRE

QUESTION: Why is fire so hot and red?

* * *

ANSWER: The neat Indian-type tripod of sticks Bill has set up to make a campfire from will ignite because his burning match is raising the temperature of the dry sticks to their kindling point, the point where the burnable material in them is able to unite with the oxygen of the air. Heat is a natural result of this burning process, called oxidation; the color of the flames will depend on the materials being burned and the temperature of the flame. Look at a candle flame (be careful with it). There is a very bright white part but above this it turns into yellow or orange. This part is also very hot; but the bright white carbon atoms are turning into carbon dioxide in this area, giving off much less light — these parts tend to orange or red because such colors are low on the wave length spectrum of light. It is much like this with your camp fire. Enjoy your camp fires this summer, but please, PLEASE, put them out very carefully when you leave them. Sprinkle with water, stir until it's all soaking-wet, wet ground around and cover with dirt.

Boyle Opens Mail Again

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The U.S. population is growing older. Back around 1900 only four per cent of the people were over 65. But government figures indicate that by 1975 one in 10 persons, some 20 million, will be in the senior citizens bracket.

Speaking of age, here's a novel way to classify ourself. If the first love letter you wrote took a 4-cent stamp, you're still young. If it had a 3-cent stamp, you're middle-aged. If it had a 2-cent stamp, you're ancient.

Are the frustrations of life in crowded cities a major cause of heart attacks? Dr. Robert W. Wissler of the University of Chicago doubts it. A study he made of caged and uncaged monkeys found little statistical difference in their cholestrol levels and artery-hardening rate.

Thin people are more likely than fat people to be bitten by mosquitoes. The reason: they generally have a higher metabolism and emit more heat, which attracts the insects.

The open road is becoming more deadly. Every 11 minutes around the clock an American man, woman, or child is killed in a highway accident. Every nine seconds someone is hurt badly enough to be disabled for more than a day.

Quotable notables: "When you're a blonde, people sort of lean forward when you ask them a question. They take your arm to keep you from falling into an open manhole. But when you're a brunette . . . you're just one of the bunch."—actress Carol Channing.

Speed-up: By signing only his first and last names to official documents—omitting the middle name or initial—President Nixon is reported to save 47.8 seconds a day, according to the New Yorker magazine. That gives me about four minutes more a week to solve major crises at home and abroad.

Household hint: If you can't seal an envelope because it has too little adhesive, use colorless nail polish as a glue. It dries quickly, leaves no smudge. A further advantage: the envelope can't be steamed open and resealed.

Spreading the Gospel: One Midwest auto dealer places a copy of the New Testament in the glove compartment of every new or used car he sells.

Protection: Perhaps the widest fear in America today is the fear of illness. Nine out of 10 people in this country under 65 now have some form of private health insurance.

Quickies: Color blindness is more common among highly civilized people than among savages. The longest national anthem is that of Greece, which has 138 verses; the shortest anthems are those of Japan, Jordan and San Marino, each having only four lines. An Australian boomerang in the hands of an expert is deadly up to 100 yards. The longest hop on record by a flea, measured in 1910, was 13 inches.

It was Charles Baudelaire who observed, "One must work, if not from inclination, at least out of despair—since it proves, on close examination, that work is less boring than amusing oneself."

Astronauts's Wives Elated

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — No different from the rest of the nation, the proud Apollo 11 wives struggled to find enough adjectives to express their feelings for their men on the moon.

"The evening has been unbelievably perfect," Mrs. Neil Armstrong said today after watching the moon explorations of her husband and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. "It is an honor and privilege to share with my husband, the crew, the Manned Spacecraft Center, the American public and all of mankind this magnificent experience of the beginning of lunar exploration."

Earlier, Mrs. Armstrong expressed her feelings much more simply. "I was tremendously excited," she said.

"It was hard to think it was real until the men actually moved," said Mrs. Aldrin. "I felt I was looking at another simulation."

After the moon touchdown Mrs. Aldrin said she wept "because I was so happy."

"I thought it was fantastically marvelous," said Mrs. Michael Collins, whose husband flew a moon orbit in the command capsule while the two other crewmen visited the lunar surface.

'Don't you think he is with them there in spirit?" Mrs. Collins replied when asked if her husband was disappointed because he was not in the landing party.

All apollo families planned to sleep late today before the next criticial phase, blastoff from the moon.

Tuesday night, if everything goes right, the three wives will be honored at a presplashdown party given by astronaut Bill Anders.

"The splashdown will be the best part of the flight," Mrs. Aldrin said Sunday at a news conference.

And Mrs. Armstrong did not consider the moon landing the greatest moment of her life.

"That was when we were married," she said.

The astronauts' children shared in Sunday's excitement and in the praise of their fathers.

"It was pretty exciting," said 12-year-old Ricky Armstrong. "I'm proud of daddy."

"It was very exciting," said 11-year-old Andy Aldrin.

Had Andy any ambitions to become an astronaut?

"Oh Lord, I couldn't go through this twice," Mrs. Aldrin answered.

Two Killed In Car Accident

SAN ANTONIO (AP) —An airman and his wife died Sunday night in a two-car crash that injured eight other persons. Police said the crackup occurred northwest of the city limits.

Killed were Airman Randall Silvia, 20, and his wife, Georgia, 19.

The eight injured persons were all treated and discharged at a hospital.

Indians Skeptical On Landing

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP) — The Uriana Indians did not believe until the last that man would land on the moon. Now that he has, they are afraid the world will end.

"From now on, all will be evil," said Yolanda Gonzalez, a member of the Urianas, who live in a poor section of this major oil city. They are part of the Guajiro tribe, the oldest inhabitants of Venezuela.

The Urianas were skeptical as they followed the progress of the Apollo 11 mission on transistor radios and television sets. When word came that astronaut Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. had landed their lunar module, men ran through a local square shouting: "Man walking on moon!"

Then the Indians began preparing for a Chichamaya, a dance in which they pray to their ancient gods that no harm befalls mankind.

Humphrey Meets With Kosygin

MOSCOW (AP) — Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey met today with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and said Kosygin told him the Soviet government is looking forward to cooperation with the United States.

"Kosygin gave me a message to take back to the United States," Humphrey said after the 2½-hour meeting. "He wanted me to tell the President and the American people that the Soviet Union wants to work with the United States for peace."

"I think there is a basic Soviet desire to negotiate in good faith on matters of substance."

Humphrey also reported that Kosygin was "very complimentary about Apollo 11 and expressed his personal good wishes to the astronauts and their families." Humphrey told a news conference that the premier was very complimentary in general about U.S. space achievements.

The chief of the Soviet Communist party, Leonid Brezhnev, also wished the Apollo mission success as he arrived in Warsaw to attend the 25th anniversary celebrations of the Polish Communist government. As he passed down the receiving line at the airport, he shook hands with U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. and said in Russian, 'Z spiechom,' which means 'With success,'" Stoessel told newmen afterwards.

Humphrey was going later today to Yugoslavia.

It was the first time this year that Kosygi nhas seen a leading U.S. politician and seemed further evidence of a Soviet wish to Stoessel r. and said in Russian, improve relations with the United States.

Rocket City Was Hushed Sunday

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — The Rocket City that produced man's most powerful machine —the Saturn 5 rocket that launched the Apollo 11 lunar landing mission last Wednesday —was hushed Sunday.

Most of its residents—many of them employed in the aerospace industry—watched television coverage of the first men on the moon.

Normally busy streets were deserted as the people of this north Alabama city waited until later to celebrate the success of their efforts.

Apollo 11's splashdown in the Pacific Thursday is signal for the start of a mass celebration. Church bells will ring, fire works will explode, sirens will wail—calling an expected 50,000 persons to the town square to whoop it up and hear speeches by city and county dignitaries and officias of the Marshall Space Flight Center.

Man's First Moon Steps Snapped

BARSTOW, Calif. (AP) — Like photographers around the world, U.S. space agency took photographs of man's first steps on the moon off a television screen.

But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration pictures were much clearer. They were taken off a special monitor at the Apollo tracking station at the Goldstone Communications Complex 50 miles north of here while the transmission was being converted for relay over commercial television.

The spokesman said NASA used a still camera whose shutter was synchronized to the scan rate of a special monitor screen. Home television was less clear because conversion to its faster scan rate leaves small white bar between the picture lines.

An estimated 500 pictures were taken at Goldstone.

BELL-SEALE FUNERAL HOME

Bell-Seale Facilities Are Among Best For Service

What should a funeral home look like?

This, according to Bill Seale, of Bell-Seale Funeral Home, has long been a question of importance in his profession. And, he says, the answer has constantly been changing.

"In the earliest years of the funeral profession," Seale explained, "the care of the deceased was primarily the responsibility of liverymen or furniture makers. About their only duty was to nail together a coffin and provide transportation to a cemetery.

"Facilities weren't much of a consideration then, of course. Since the 'undertakers' didn't really provide much service to the living, they could operate in drab little buildings and no one much cared.

"Gradually, things changed. Family's homes became smaller, making it impractical to hold funeral services there and thereby making special funeral establishments necessary.

"Relatives, instead of living in one concenrated area, began to scatter to all parts of the nation. This meant the funeral couldn't be held until all could travel some distance back home necessitating embalming.

"And an awareness grew that people faced with the loss of a loved one require more than perfunctory assistace, beginning the move toward highly personalized attention to countless details.

"As the funeral home began to replace the family home as the place for receiving friends and, often, holding funerals, the question of decor arose.

"At first, there were two basic types of funeral home.

"One was the old private residence that was converted into a funeral establishment. Through the years, such establishments — unless conscientiously kept up-to-date — have become outdated and rather drab, and definitely not functional in light of the many services which the modern funeral director provides.

"The second type was the commercial building that was neither constructed or renovated to serve its purpose. Most of these buildings, while more functional than the remodeled private residence, provided a very cold atmosphere which was hardly conducive to comfort.

"Finally," Seale said, "it was realized that a funeral home serves a very sacred purpose, deserving — if not demanding — a specially planned and constructed building. It was realized that friendly, homelike surroundings should be provided in which family members could receive friends. And that a reverent, dignified setting should be provided for the funeral ceremony, which is, after all, based upon religion."

Bell-Seale Funeral Home, located at 3101 Avenue S in Snyder, was built less than five years ago. It features tastefully decorated and furnished rooms in which visitation may be held. For funeral services, there is a spacious chapel, complete with organ and pews, which is appropriate for the occasion.

Seale stated that the public is welcome to stop by and tour facilities at any time.

"Our funeral home," he said, "is modern and beautiful without being ostentatious. We think it represents the perfect balance between warmth and dignity, and that everyone in Scurry County will benefit by seeing it."

Fairfax Happy Over Rowing Feat

By RICH OPPEL
Associated Press Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — John Fairfax planned for 17 years to be the first man to row the Atlantic. But when he set out to do it in three months, he admits, "I didn't know what I was talking about."

Almost to the day, it took him twice that long to row the 4,000 miles from his starting point, the Canary Islands.

"But I wanted to do it and I did it," said the 32-year-old Briton, "and I feel bloody happy about it."

His long hair bleached by the sun and his eyes bloodshot from the glare of the sea, the grinning London bachelor stroked ashore at 1:36 p.m. EDT Saturday to be congratulated by scores of sunbathers at Hollywood Beach.

One of the first to speak to him, a pale-skinned man in trunks, said: "You're a damn fool, you know."

But Fairfax described himself as a romanticist and said he finally accomplished something he had planned to do since he was a schoolboy of 15.

"I think it is a bit symbolic that I arrived in America, which is a son of England, you know, a rather large son," he said. "And I did it about the same time as you Americans were reaching for the moon."

Guided only by sextant and compass, Fairfax landed only 12 miles north of his planned destination of Miami. Swift currents of the Gulf Stream propelled him 110 miles north during the last 48 hours of his voyage, he said.

Oil Group Gets Financial Analysis

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A group of 28 oil companies accounted for 69 per cent of all the oil produced last year in the United States.

The same companies also produced 59 per cent of the total Free World output.

Refineries owned by the same companies processed an average of 16.8 million barrels of companies processed an average of 16.8 million barrels of crude oil a day or 53 per cent of the free world total.

These figures were reported in the latest edition of a financial analysis of a group of petroleum companies as published annually by the Chase Manhattan Bank since 1945.

"Because the combined operations of these companies constitutes a major proportion of the world wide activities of the petroleum industry, their combined financial performance provides a valuable basis for determining the probable experience of the overall industry," the bank reported.

Capital expenditures of the 28 companies included in the 1968 study accounted for $9.8 billion, a 10.9 per cent gain over 1967. Domestic expenditures totaled $6.8 billion, foreign $2.8 billion.

"In the United States, the group's heaviest spending was for the purpose of production," the banks reported. "Of the overall outlay as much as 57 per cent was concentrated in this area. Participation in offshore lease sales in Texas, Louisiana, California, and Alaska contributed importantly to the spending increment in production. The offshore outlay, amounting to $1.3 billion, represented one-third of the total expenditure for production."

Foreign expenditures were at their highest level in history.

"The increased spending was concentrated in two areas—production and transportation," the bank said. "Much of the additional spending in the production category was devoted to natural gas processing. An outlay of $181 million was almost five times greater than the year before and the first really substantial expenditure for this purpose in the foreign sector."

With emphasis on tanker construction, spending for transportation purposes rose a second consecutive year by more than 37 per cent.

Domestic expenditures on production exceeded $3.9 billion. Similar foreign operations exceeded $1.2 billion.

"In addition to its capital outlay for production purposes, the group spent another $638 million for exploration and development which was treated as a direct operating expense," the bank said.

"Altogether, the total funds devoted to production in 1968 amounted to $5.8 billion—22 per cent more than in the proceding year."

The group's oil production averaged 6.3 million barrels a day in the United States and 18.6 million throughout the world. The overall increase was 9 per cent.

Libya accounted for the largest increase, 311,000 barrels a day. The United States followed at 242,000, with Saudi Arabia ranking third with a 232,000-barrel increase.

"Throughout the Free World, the group produced 1.8 million barrels per day more than it refined and the excess was sold to others," the bank reported.

"In the United States, however, the group's production for its own account continued to meet only about 70 per cent of its refinery needs. The other 30 per cent or 2.7 million barrels per day was provided by purchases from independent domestic producers and from imports of oil produced abroad."

Investors Offer $4 Million For Stock

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) —A spokesman for the Arlington First National Bank says that 31 per cent of the bank's stock has been tendered for purchase. A group of Fort Worth investors have offered in excess of $4 million for outstanding stock.

Texas Areas Are Withering Beneath Cloudless Skies

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas crops and ranges are withering under generally cloudless skies and heat.

Scattered showers, some heavy in coastal areas, did little to improve the overall situation, said John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, last week.

The High Plains report that most crops are making good progress but dryland crops in the area are shoting the need for rain, the director said.

A further decline in crop and grazing prospects was noted in all other sections and grass fires are a real hazard, Hutchison added. Livestock generally held up well but grazing is declining and some weight losses are now being noted. Marketings are nearly normal, Hutchison said.

Moderate to substantial rains covered most of the Panhandle and the moisture situation has improved. Forage sorghums and sudans are providing good grazing and ranges are above normal. Cotton is responding to the hot weather and making good progress. Irrigation of grain sorghum and other crops was a major activity.

Lubbock area cotton made good progress and is blooming. Irrigation of sorghum was at a peak with severe moisture stress in some areas. The Onion harvest was in full swing. Hot, dry weather deteriorated ranges. But livestock are holding up well.

All the Rolling Plains Vernon) need rain. Cotton and grain sorghum growth was fair to good. Cotton was squaring and sorghum was heading. Some fleahopper and boll weevil damage was noted in cotton. Peaches are being harvested; ranges are dry and fire is a real threat.

All crops in North Central Texas suffer from drought and heat. Ranges are declining but livestock are holding up well.

Extremely dry, hot weather in Northeast Texas cut crop pasture and hay prospects. Peaches, tomatoes and watermelons are being harvested with yields light. Grass is very dry but livestock are in good condition. Some weight losses are beginning to show. Water supplies in some areas are causing concern.

Hot, dry and windy weather besieges Far West Texas. Dryland crops are suffering but irrigated crops are making good growth. Livestock are in good condition with some marketing of heavier lambs is reported.

Soil moisture in West Central Texas is getting away fast. tanks in Kerr County are either dry or very low. Range fires burned over widespread areas in San Saba, Illespie and Irion counties. Livestock are holding up well and grazing is abouut average. Cotton was satisfactor- but needs rainn. Other crops show moisture stress.

Moisture in Central Texas is short to very short and temperatures are high. Corn and sorghum have been damaged but cotton is holding up fairly well and insect activity is light. Much sorghum has been baled in Burnet and Hamilton counties and some "hot spot" sorghum has been harvested in Milam County (Cameron). The harvest of a generally good tomato crop in Falls County (Marlin) is about over. Watermelon prospects are declining. Peanut irrigation was heavy. Some range fires have been reported and fire guards are being constructed in many areas. Labor is short.

East Texas moisture is very short and all crops, including hay, are suffering. Tomatoes and watermelons are being harvested with yields generally low. Peach and pecan prospects declined and pastures were burning badly. Some improved pastures furnished good grazing. Livestock are in good condition but weight losses are reported.

Except in the shower areas, Southeast Texas has short to very short moisture. Where possible, cotton iis being irrigated and some is opening prematurely due to heat and drought. Late corn is expected to be nearly a complete failure. Rice is heading and some harvesting is near. The watermelon harvest is more than 75 per cent complete. Rain is badly needed for hay. Ranges are average to below but livestock are in good condition.

South Central Texas moisture is very short and the watermelon harvest about over. Crops are being pushed to maturity and ranges need rain. Some livestock are losing weight.

Cotton picking has started in the dryland areas of the Rio Grande Valley. The South Texas sorghum harvest is in full swing. Some okra and peppers are being harvested. Land is being prepared for vegetable planting. Ranges were very dry but livestock generally are in good condition.

Lake Worth Monster Is Causing Stir

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The Lake Worth monster may be caused by Texas' burning heat of the last few weeks, police opine, but if that is correct, about 100 persons have been similarly stricken.

The 7-foot, half man, half goat has been chased and done some chasing himself for about two weeks on Greer Island on the old lake.

Police last had a report on the furry and scaly creature only Thursday. The latest witness said it had a "head like a man, ears like a goat, a dragon's back, one horn and scales."

Another witness said he just wasn't able to describe the thing.

Officers first heard of the monster 10 days ago when a man told them the thing jumped on his car as he drove on Greer Island. It ran way, the man said, then picked up a tire and rim and threw it 500 feet at him.

Police found a scratch on the man's automobile—but no monster.

Jack Cooper, who lives about a tire's throw from Lake Worth, said he and some Fort Worth naturalists have concluded that the monster is a bobcat.

A tire throwing bobcat?

Joe Pack of Fort Worth carved a statue of the monster after listening to about 100 people describe it.
