RANGER KILLED IN EAST TEXAS GUN BATTLE

Neff Calls Rail Board 'Spineless' In Handling East Texas Oil Proration

LETTER RAPS RICHMOND AS CURB UMPIRE

Former Governor Attacks Order as 'Illegally' Adopted

MOODY SEES SPLIT

Deliberate Breakdown of Limiting Proposals Charged

AUSTIN, July 7. (AP)—The rift between Pat M. Neff and other members of the railroad commission widened today with issuance of a statement by Neff detailing his reasons for refusing to sign the commission's order appointing Ray Richmond as umpire and agent and representative of the railroad commission in administration of the new oil proration order for East Texas. He termed the commission "spineless," in its handling of the East Texas field.

The order was signed by C. V. Terrell, chairman, and Lon A. Smith, commissioner. The statement issued by Neff was in the form of a letter to C. F. Petet, secretary of the railroad commission, and made a part of the official records of the commission.

Salary Cited

Neff, former chairman of the commission, charged Richmond was "for years the superintendent and representative of one of the largest oil companies of the state and is now drawing from this and other oil companies operating in the East Texas field $700 per month to enforce the orders of the railroad commission, that have for their purpose the regulation of the very oil companies who pay the salary of this (so-called) representative of the railroad commission."

He also charged the order was made public by Terrell and Smith before presented to him for signature and that he was given no chance to discuss it with the other commissioners. "I wish the record to show that I had no connection with the drafting of this order and that it does not in any way meet with my approval," Neff stated.

Order Attacked

Neff contended the order appointing Richmond was illegal because it was drawn by the chairman of the commission without advising the other members of the commission that it was being considered and was before the commission for adoption.

Neff said he was "unalterably opposed to giving the big oil companies a strength, seemingly offi-

PIONEER DIES IN MANGUM

Mrs. Anna B. Walton Yields To Attack

Special to The Record News.

MANGUM, Okla., July 7.—Mrs. Anna B. Walton, 63, widely known Mangum resident for nearly a quarter of a century, died today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Mecum where she resided. She had been suffering from high blood pressure and became seriously ill Monday morning.

Mrs. Walton, a native of Iowa, has been associated with the C. M. Stone company as bookkeeper for the past 18 years. She had taken an active part in church work, being a member of the First Presbyterian church here. She also was a participant in the activities of the Eastern Star lodge and the Business and Professional Women's club in which she holds membership. She was chaplin of the Eastern Star and treasurer of the business women's club.

Besides a host of friends who mourn her death Mrs. Walton is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Gladys Clements of Corona, N. M., and a sister, Mrs. P. L. Lewis of Willow.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed pending word from relatives, the Greer Funeral Home announced today. Interment will be at the Riverside cemetery. Rev. Nathan J. Salyer, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will officiate at the rites.

Sentencing of Fall Set for Thursday

WASHINGTON, July 7. (US)—The demand of the government for pronouncement of sentence upon former Secretary of the Interior Fall, convicted of accepting a $100,000 bribe in connection with the Elk Hill naval lease, today was postponed until Thursday.

The sentence would impose a $100,000 fine and one year in jail upon the aged ex-cabinet official.

Railroads Report Net Earning for Year

WASHINGTON, July 7. (US)—Class one railroads, with a net operating income of $188,387,587, earned at the rate of 2.10 per cent on their property investment during the first five months of 1931, the bureau of railway economics announced today.

In the corresponding period of 1930 their earnings totaled $308,216,627, or 3.51 per cent on property investment.

Hoover Loses Troubles In Watching Ball Game

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—The lure of America's national game pulled President Hoover away from a desk piled high with official correspondence to spend this afternoon watching the Philadelphia Athletics defeat Washington, 7-3.

Putting aside thoughts of reparations and war debts, but not forgetting those who had stood close by him during the past two weeks of tiring negotiations, the chief executive and Mrs. Hoover sat in Clark Griffith's box with a group of high officials.

LONDON PARLEY TO COMPLETE DEBT PROGRAM

Long Grind Foreseen in Final Adjustment of Technicalities

NEW MOVE EXPECTED

Washington Turns Toward Disarmament Plans After Success

(By The Associated Press)

Definite arrangements for a meeting of a committee of experts to work out the details of applying President Hoover's moratorium plan were made yesterday and the meeting is to be held in London next week.

In most of the capitals of Europe and in other countries of the world the Franco-American agreement was hailed with satisfaction and enthusiasm.

European stock markets generally reacted favorably to the announcement of the accord, although the New York stock market broke sharply during the day, recording net losses of from $2 to nearly $10 a share.

Mellon Leaves

Secretary Mellon left Paris for the Riviera and the impression prevailed that the part of the United States in sponsoring the moratorium was virtually ended. London was of the opinion that the experts' task would be a heavy one and Rome announced that it is now ready to participate in any conferences regarding the operation of the plan.

In a proclamation issued to the people, the German government warned that greater economy than ever before is necessary. It promised that the money released by the moratorium will be used only to assist the country's economic recovery.

At Washington the state department was at work on a mass of details and the administration expected that one important consequence of the moratorium will be an advance to world disarmament.

DISARMAMENT ADVANCE SEEN

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—A definite advance in world disarmament was expected tonight by the administration as one important consequence of the war debt moratorium.

With the holiday in inter-governmental payments definitely assured and steps already taken to adjust remaining details, President Hoover and his advisors made the forthcoming general disarmament conference their next diplomatic objective.

Issues Linked

Three times in as many months, the chief executive has linked the increasing costs of armies, navies and fortifications directly with the world's economic burdens.

Acting Secretary Castle of the state department, in a chronological resume of events leading to the president's proposal, disclosed today that the chief executive's first move toward the moratorium was made exactly one week after a public speech in which he linked world economic rehabilitation with the success of the coming disarmament conference.

February Parley

The disarmament conference will be held at Geneva in February under the auspices of the League of Nations. America will participate fully and officially.

Secretary Stimson is now in Europe to confer with the leading statesmen of the continent. He led the American delegation to the London naval conference. As the ranking cabinet member, he is acquainted with both the major policies and the minute feelings of the chief executive on the disarmament question. He is ready to talk on this and many other questions with Europe's leaders.

Low Power Rate Offered Panhandle Irrigators

LOCKNEY, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Farmers of the central Panhandle, where pump irrigation is more or less popular, have been offered a power rate of two cents per kilowatt hour by the West Texas Utilities company.

Judge I. R. Kelso, president of the company, said the rate was the lowest offered for farm use in Texas, and probably in the United States. The rate applies to all powef used on the farm for any purpose, but is intended to encourage irrigation.

Ex-Officer Denies He 'Cracked' Safe; Bond Set At $1,000

Charged with the the theft Sunday night of $1,500 from Lakeside park, C. M. Goodwin, manager of the park and former peace officer here, was released Tuesday afternoon from the Wichita county jail after he had perfected $1,000 bond.

Goodwin was arrested Tuesday morning on a complaint charging him with theft over $50. Officers investigating the burglary Monday said that the park office had been entered with a pass key and that approximately $1,500 in cash and $60 in checks, representing receipts from holiday crowds at the park for three days, had been obtained after the intruders had knocked the knob of the office safe.

Goodwin had been employed as manager of Lakeside park for the past two years. He denied that he was guilty of the theft, declaring that he left the park at 12:30 a. m. Monday.

He served as chief office deputy during the early part of W. G. Bralley's administration as sheriff, but later became connected with the police department, where he served as night desk sergeant. Later he was chief office clerk and record clerk for Frank Burns, chief of police.

He was arrested Tuesday morning at his home by Pat Allen, deputy sheriff.

Investigation of the case will be made by the grand jury during its present term.

Graham Fugitives Sought in Hills

GRAHAM, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Search for two prisoners who escaped from the Young county jail early today tonight had led officers to the hill country near here where they are thought to be hiding preparatory to fleeing from this section under the cover of darkness.

Meanwhile officers investigated in an effort to locate the source of hack saw blades which were found in their cells shortly after they escaped. The two bound and gagged Jailer Newell Yates before the escape.

Airmen Head for Oklahoma Today

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—The almost ceaseless round of activities with which the East has honored Wiley Post and Harold Gatty for their globe-cricling feat came to an end tonight with a banquet given for them by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America at the Hotel Astor.

Tomorrow, if weather permits, the fliers will hop off about 7 a. m., in the Winnie Mae from Bennett field for Oklahoma, where more celebrations await them. Their wives and F. C. Hall, backer of their flight, will follow in another plane.

Texas Congressman Calls for Extra Session

DALLAS, July 7. (AP)—To forestall what was characterized as a possible relapse, Congressman Hatton W. Summers said here today he thought congress should be called into extra session at once.

He said, if congress were called, it should deal, first, with the president's plan to suspend war debt payments, and then rededicate itself to furnishing relief to agricultural interests now on the verge of bankruptcy.

Summers' only criticism of the president's moratorium plan was based on the fact that congress was not first consulted.

Sailor Continues Fight On Deportation Order

MONTREAL, July 7. (AP)—Marvin J. Clark, wanted by authorities at Corpus Christi, Texas, today was granted a second writ of habeas corpus against the immigration department and its officers. Clark is said to have been a member of the crew of the rum runner I'm Alone.

He charged that the immigration department official who signed the complaint for his arrest sat on the board of inquiry which recommended his deportation and thus acted both as accuser and judge.

Negroes Face Trial on Murder Charge Today

HONDO, Texas, July 7. (AP)—John L. Green, 18, and Ernest Johnson, 20, of Devine, negroes, are expected to go to trial here Wednesday on chargess of killing Frank M. Kempf, Devine dairyman.

Judge J. L. Brucks has been appointed to defend the negroes and a special venire of 70 has been summoned from which to select a jury. Judge Brucks indicated that he would consent to the negroes being tried jointly but declined to positively declare in advance what steps he would take when the cases are called.

ENVOY JAILED FOR CONTEMPT

Mexican Consul Sentenced In Chicago

CHICAGO, July 7. (US)—Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul in Chicago, was free tonight on his own recognizance after having been sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court by Judge Thomas Greene. A writ of habeas corpus brought about his release.

Earlier in the day wires were kept hot between Chicago and Washington. Notified of the incarceration of the consul Mexican Ambassador Telles in Washington brought the case to attention of the American state department.

Probe Ordered

The state department wired Governor Emmerson of Illinois to conduct an investigation.

In the meantime a writ of habeas corpus was sued out before Judge Joseph Burke. Hearing on the writ was set for next Monday. Judge Burke ordered Senor Dominguez released on his own recognizance pending the hearing.

Consul Dominguez was present in Judge Greene's court in South Chicago this morning prepared to appear in cases later to be called when one Alfonso Martinez, a young Mexican charged with vagrancy, was before Judge Greene. Though the consul was not representing Martinez, Judge Greene turned to Dominguez and exclaimed.

Consul Scored

"You are the Mexican consul. Why don't you take care of your countrymen. I intend to find out if we can do something with foreigners who come to this country and make themselves a nuisance to the community. I am going to hold this man to federal court."

Dominguez explained he did not represent the youth and the argument continued to grow more heated until Judge Greene ended it by holding the consul in contempt of court and imposing a six months' sentence.

Texas Moves to Adopt U. S. Standard Weights

AUSTIN, July 7. (AP)—Plans for adoption of United States standards for testing weighing and measuring devices are being made by the state department of agriculture, according to M. S. Fraze, chief of the weights and measures division. A law requiring the adoption of United States standards for Texas was passed at the recent session of the legislature.

Enforcement of the law was expected to save Texas farmers several thousands of dollars by preventing "shrinkage" due to faulty scales.

Vatican Pours Oil on Troubled Roman Waters

ROME, July 7. (US)—While the Italian press continued its campaign of polemics against the Vatican's recent encyclical concerning the Italo-Vatican dispute over education and control of youth and the closing of the Catholic youth clubs, the vatican today sought to pour oil on the troubled diplomatic waters. In a statement remarkably conciliatory.

TEXAS FLIERS TO HOP TODAY FOR TOKYO

Two Refuelings Planned On 5,100-Mile Non-Stop Flight

NEW RECORD SOUGHT

55-Hour Maximum Time Set for Transpacific Journey

SEATTLE, Wash., July 7. (AP)—Reg Robbins, former endurance flight record holder, and H. S. Jones, his navigator, said tonight they will hop off from here between 3 a. m. and 3:30 a. m. tomorrow on their proposed 5,100 miles flight to Tokyo.

They announced their decision immediately upon being informed by the Associated Press their refueling plane had reached Fairbanks, Alaska, at 6 p. m. (Pacific standard time) from Telegraph Creek, B. C.

To Refuel Twice

The refueling plane, manned by Jimmy Mattern and Nick Greener, will refill tanks of the plane flown by Robbins and Jones over Fairbanks and again over the Bering sea coast of Siberia, across from Nome, Alaska.

By refueling in midair at those two points, Robbins and Jones expect to reach Tokyo in 50 to 55 hours, or early Friday, Pacific coast time. They are seeking $25,000 offered by a Japanese newspaper for the first non-stop flight between the United States and Japan. Plans to refuel in midair comply with rules set for the competition.

Mattern and Greener will accompany Robbins and Jones to Solomon, Alaska, picking up gasoline there to refuel the plane over the Siberian coast.

All From Texas

All four aviators are from Texas. They left Fort Worth, Texas, last week, Robbins and Jones flying here by way of Boise and Mattern and Greener heading for Fairbanks tomorrow by the "inland route." They will follow the Frazier river in Canada northward, pass over Prince George, Hazelton, Telegraph Creek and White Horse and follow the Yukon river into Alaska to Fairbanks.

They said the latest weather reported indicate favorable weather tomorrow and that they should reach Fairbanks in 15 to 17 hours. The distance is about 1,600 miles.

Breck and Cisco Seek Postoffices

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Conferences were held today with the interdepartmental committee by delegations from both Breckenridge and Cisco regarding federal buildings already authorized for both of those cities.

The Breckenridge committee consisted of Postmaster B. H. Trammell and Claude Thompson, representing the chamber of commerce. The delegation from Cisco was headed by Frank A. Blankenbeckler, Republican leader for that district, and Guy Dabney and W. J. Leach, representing the chamber of commerce. The appropriation for the Breckenridge building is $135,000 and that for the Cisco building $130,000. It is anticipated that the sites for both these structures will be selected within the next week or 10 days and that work on them will be started before the end of the year.

Tariff Cut Proclaimed Next Move for Hoover

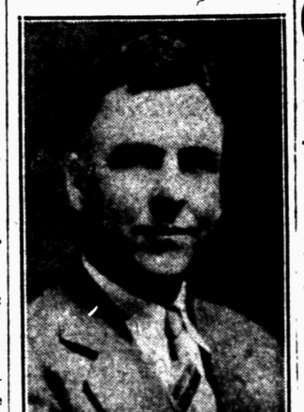

WASHINGTON, July 7. (US)—With debt payments by international agreement, Senator Joe T Robinson, Democratic leader, today called upon President Hoover to lead the way in bringing about a reduction in tariff duties.

In a statement issued through the Democratic national committee, Robinson blamed the tariff for much of the business depression. Attacking the Republican doctrine of "Isolationism."

HOWARD REUNION

BIG SPRING, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Old settlers of Howard county will hold their annual reunion in Parrish grove here Friday, July 26. I. B. Cauble is president, T. H. Johnson vice president, and Mrs. G. L. Brown secretary of the Old Settlers' association. Persons who resided in the county before 1895 are eligible to membership.

MERCURY HITS 106 DEGREES

Temperature Above 100 for Seventh Consecutive Day

For the seventh consecutive day Tuesday, Wichita Falls' temperature climbed above the century mark, reaching a maximum of 106 during the day.

The high reading, according to the Texas Electric Service company bureau, was reached shortly before 4 o'clock. After that hour the mercury dropped slowly until shortly before 8 o'clock, when a brisk wind somewhat cooled the city.

The present heat wave was inaugurated on July 1 with a season's record of 102. On the following day the temperature climbed to 103 and on July 3 to 107, within four degress of the all-time record for Wichita Falls. July 4 brought a temperature of 105, while Sunday and Monday saw weather almost as sultry with readings of 104 on each day.

Weather forecasts gave no indication of a possible break in the heat wave.

A light shower fell Tuesday afternoon in Electra to relieve the intense heat there, according to a report from The Record News correspondent. The temperature reached 106, but dropped following the shower.

Lindberghs Poised for Transpacific Flight

NEW YORK, July 7. (US)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh may hop off almost any minute for their transpacific flight to Tokyo, according to information reaching Universal Service tonight.

The Lindbergh plane is still at the Edo Float plant, at Port Washington, L. I., where the wing job has been completed, the radio installed, and the ship "test hopped" with its floats.

Orders are hourly expected to move the ship to the Glenn Curtiss airport from where the Lindberghs will take off on their Japan flight.

Women Protest Odds Against Sex in Business

RICHMOND, Va., July 7. Third Victim Near Death In Gladewater Street Fight

GLADEWATER, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Two men, Dan McDuffey, Texas ranger, and Jeff Johnson, recently relieved of duties as jailer, were killed in a gun fight near the business section of this East Texas oil town tonight.

McDuffey was slain by Johnson as he accompanied three others officers on a disturbance call. Johnson was shot by Chief of Police W. A. Dial immediately after he had opened fire on the officers.

The ranger died en route to a Longview hospital. Johnson died just a few minutes after he was taken to a Gladewater hospital.

Answers Call

Everett Hughes, another officer, was reported wounded in the exchange of shots, but this report was later refuted.

The trouble was said to have started after residents had called police headquarters and reported a man was shooting promiscously and requested officers to put a stop to this practice.

Four officers, including McDuffey, who recently was ordered to the East Texas oil fields from the Mexican border, entered a touring car and hurried to the section where the shooting was reported.

Bullets Exchanged

As the officers were slowing to a halt, the man, according to eyewitnesses, called to them to stop, and then without warning fired one shot. The bullet struck the steering wheel of the car and then glanced and struck McDuffey's watch and after a second glance entered his left leg, severing an artery.

After Johnson had shot the chief of police fired one shot, fatally wounding the former jailer.

VICTIM WAS NEWCOMER

TEXARKANA, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Dan McDuffey, Texas ranger, killed while attempting to arrest Jeff Johnson, deposed Gladewater jailer, was a comparatively newcomer to the Lone Star state force. McDuffy, though a veteran peace officer, joined the rangers only about three months ago.

Members of his family living here said he had spent most of his life as a peace officer. He is 48 years old and a member of an old Bowie county family. He had taken part in many famous man hunts in this section. In February he led a posse in a fruitless search for the men who attempted a bank robbery at Redwater.

McDuffy was born in New Boston, Texas. He had been a deputy sheriff, a federal prohibition agent and a candidate for sheriff in Bowie county three times.

After joining the rangers McDuffey was assigned to headquarters at Del Rio. He was transferred to the East Texas oil field a few days ago.

He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Miss Nina Margaret, New Boston; one brother, W. N. McDuffey, Texarkana; and three sisters, Miss Lou McDuffey and Mrs. Floyd Hightower, both of Phoenix, Ariz., and Miss Ann McDuffey, Texarkana.

Hawks Proposes Elevated Airport By Roofing New York Docks

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Adding one more record to his long string by flying the 350 miles from Montreal in an hour and 45 minutes, Frank Hawks returned from a three months' aerial tour of Europe today, bulging with an idea for an elevated airport in New York.

While abroad he studied airports of 12 countries. He said New York could beat them all by roofing in the three mile stretch of docks in the Hudson river.

"It would give plenty of runway for the biggest ships," he said, "and if it was done, when you flew to New York you'd land right in New York and not in New Jersey or out on Long Island.

Hawks established nine speed records while in Europe. His flight from Montreal today was made at an average of 201 miles an hour.

Fort Worth Slaying Linked With Three Dallas Holdup Murders

FORT WORTH, July 7. (AP)—Working with only meager descriptions of the two men who shot to death Rowland E. Lewis Jr., 37, about 2 a. m. today at Inspiration Point No. 2 at Lake Worth, where he had driven with a woman compaion, police had made little progress towards apprehending the slayers tonight.

Wyatt was confident that Lewis was the victim of would-be robbers who fired when Lewis refused to obey their commands to "stick 'em up."

Miss Holley Artie, 21, Lewis' companion, said two men opened fire on Lewis as he walked towards the other car after a second command to "stick 'em up."

That the slaying might have been committed by the same persons responsible for the three recent holdup murders in Dallas also was held to be probable since the slayers easily could have shifted their operation 30 miles westward.

MOODY CHARGES SPLIT PLOT

DALLAS, July 7. (AP)—Former Gov. Dan Moody today charged certain of the state's oil interests were agitating a breakdown in oil proration and proration plans in order to necessitate a special session of the legislature. Leaders of the Cranfill plan were in conference here this morning.

In addition Moody joined with Tom E. Cranfill to stoutly deny the present proration order, issued by the railroad commission, embodied the framework of the Cranfill plan.

"The proration order is certainly not the Cranfill plan," Moody asserted. He went on to say there was no resemblance between the proration order and the East Texas plan outlined by Cranfill.

"There are certain groups who desire the new order to be regarded as the Cranfill plan because they hope it will not work, and will bring about a special session of the legislature," the former governor said.

Earlier in the day Cranfill said his plan sought to give East Texans an opportunity to regulate their oil affairs in a democratic way. He charged the present railroad commission proration order was obligarchic in scope.

ADVISORY GROUP IS SILENT

AMARILLO, Texas, July 7. (AP)—The oil states advisory committee met here today at the call of Chairman Cicero Murray of Oklahoma and adjourned its closed session with the announcement that "we did nothing."

Although Chairman Murray declined to comment on the meeting, it was generally understood that a discussion of the situation in the East Texas fields occupied most of the day, and that any contemplated action was deferred until results of the meeting at Tyler tonight are made public.

General oil conditions were discussed during the six-hour session, which was closed to local operators and press representatives.

Robert R. Penn of Dallas, Texas member of the committee, could not attend, but told Murray over the telephone that he would be present at the Tyler meeting tonight.

Texan's Body To Rest at Arlington

AUSTIN, July 7. (AP)—The body of Ernest H. Gragg, the first Texan to die in the line of duty in the world war, will be brought back to the United States for burial in Arlington National cemetery, July 21, according to an announcement by Robert B. Gragg, state labor commissioner, and father.

Gragg, who enlisted in the navy at Corpus Christi shortly after the declaration of war, died of exposure five days after his ship was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland, Nov. 2, 1917. The body will be shipped from Queenstown July 10 and will arrive in New York aboard the liner President Roosevelt July 17.

Gragg, in honor of whom the American Legion post at Corpus Christi was named, was buried on the rugged shore of Northwest Ireland after the boat in which he was drifting was washed ashore. He died an hour before landing. Seven of his 13 companions also died from exposure.

Parents Irked at Baer's Engagement to Actress

OAKLAND, Calif., July 7. (AP)—Max Baer, California heavyweight boxer, will not have the blessing of his parents when he weds Dorothy Dunbar Wells de Garson, former actress, at Reno, Nev., tomorrow.

"Why, she's old enough to be Maxie's mother," Mrs. Dora Baer, the boxer's mother, said today. "She's 38 and Maxie is only 22. She's taking a mere boy to raise for a husband. Jacob (the father) and I will not be there."

Baer, who lost the decision to Paulino Uzcudun in a 20-round ring battle July 4, announced in Reno he would be married tomorrow at the home of a banker there. He said the wedding was not decided on until after the Independence day bout.

The bride-to-be was known on the stage as Dorothy Dunbar. She was divorced in Reno last January from Jaime de Garson, now an attache of a South American legation in London.

Thieves Loot Dentists' Offices in Big Spring

BIG SPRING, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Thieves have gone on a prospecting expedition in Big Spring.

A dentist reported $85 worth of gold, used in dental structures, had been stolen from his laboratory by some one who entered through a transom.

Two nights later two more dentists, in other office buildings, reported thefts of the same precious metal.

Queen of the Elks

It's easy to figure out why the judges selected Kay Johnson, above, 19-year-old Washington university co-ed, to reign as queen over the carnival festivities at the annual national convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks at Seattle. She is known as "Miss Elk."

Woodcock Leaves Drinkers to Own Consciences in Dry Law Policy

WASHINGTON, July 7. (US)—Convictions were scored against 50,334 liquor law violators in the past year, Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, revealed in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting system tonight.

In an outline of achievements during the bureau's first year under the department of justice, Woodcock said 29,372 persons were sent to jail and the remainder of the 50,334 were fined. These fines totaled $5,497,566.

Seizures Told

Woodcock also revealed that the bureau had seized 8,245 automobiles and 21,321 stills and obtained 6,378 permanent injunctions.

The director declared the bureau had lost only 14 per cent of the cases prosecuted. This, he said, was "a very satisfactory" showing.

Woodcock said the bureau has four policies:

"The first is to select our men more carefully and to train them to a higher standard of efficiency and loyalty.

"The second is to avoid all unnecessary irritation and annoyance to the innocent.

Drinker Escapes

"The third has been the direction of the bureau against a definite objective—the commercial violator. This means that we leave the purely private violator to his own conscience and the forces of education.

"The fourth has been to seek the fullest measure of state cooperation. . . . there is no way we can compel the states to assume their share of the burden."

As he looked into the future, he said:

"During the next year our forces will be one-third larger and they will be better trained and led by more experienced men. Our efforts should be much stronger."

In amplifying his statement that the bureau is leaving the drinkers to their conscience, Woodcock said:

"But the private violator—the consumer—may very probably escape all direct punishment because of the protection the law gives him. We are compelled to leave him to his conscience. The pity of it is that he is the tempter—the inciter of the commercial violator's acts, and, in a very real sense, is responsible for the latter's going to jail."

Wichita Boy Struck By Colorado Train

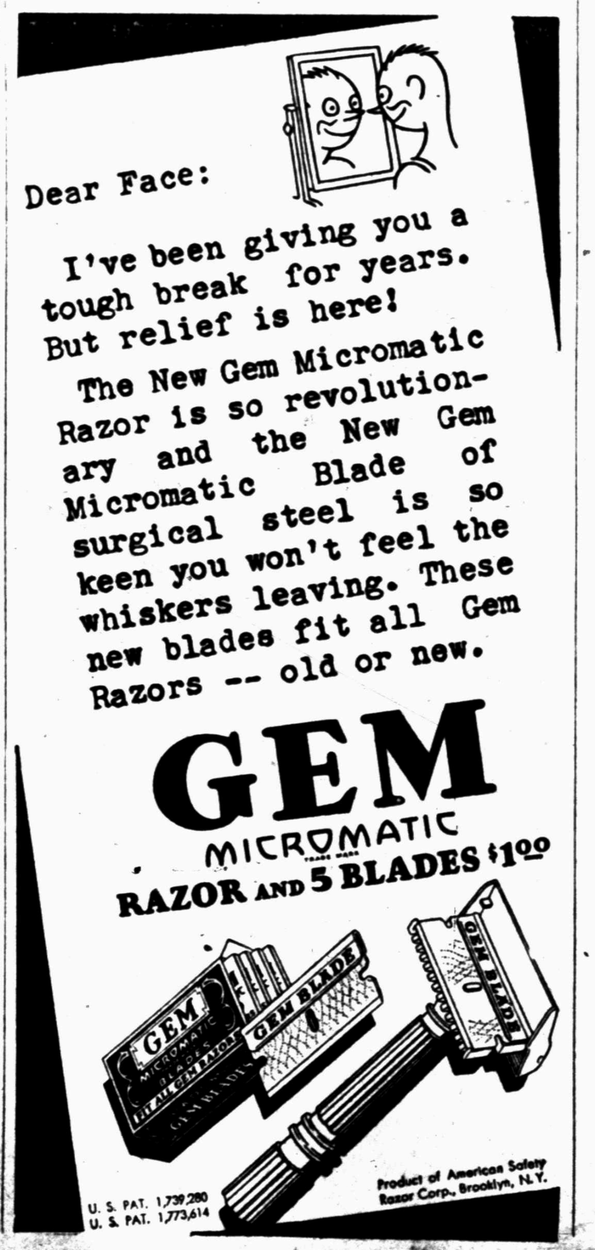

C. W. Carey left here Tuesday afternoon to go to the bedside of his son, Wilfred Carey, 18, at Pueblo, Colo., where he was seriously injured Monday night when run over by a freight train.

The exact nature and extent of injuries sustained by the boy were not learned by the parents when they were communicated with Tuesday from Pueblo, Mrs. Carey said. Mr. Carey is expected to arrive there during the day Wednesday. It was planned to return the son here if his condition will permit.

The boy had been traveling in Colorado for several weeks. He finished his junior year at the high school here at the close of the last term.

CONVICTS HELD IN SLAYING

Prison Guard Killed in Break Attempt

ANGLETON, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Two convicts were held today for possible grand jury action in connection with the fatal shooting of Guard Jim Sneed at the retrive prison farm last night. Sneed was shot when the two convicts sought to escape.

Mrs I. K. Kelly, wife of the prison farm manager, said the two were Jim Merriman of Houston and Jack Perry of Hempstead.

Prison Manager Lee Simmons said they were held with the understanding their case would be taken before the grand jury, which meets tomorrow. The formality of filing charges, he said, had been dispensed with.

Mrs. Kelly said the men somehow obtained pistols and confronted Guard Sneed in the west end of the main building at the prison farm, demanding that he give up the keys. He refused, she added, and attempted to draw his pistol. She said they then shot him.

Kelly heard the disturbance, Mrs. Kelly went on, and had guards surround the building. He went to the door and called for the rebellious convicts to drop their weapons, saying if they didn't "we will shoot them out." The two men then gave up their arms, she said.

Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

A DOG'S BONE

Teach the children to let their dog alone when he is gnawing his bone. Teach them to keep their hands off his bones at any time. A dog's bone is his heart's treasure. He will defend it to the death. The most friendly animal will turn upon the enemy who touches his bone. His instinct is to fight for his food, to guard his prey from the thieving enemy and his bone stands for that idea in his mind.

A dog will always warn against any handling of his bone. The moment a hand approaches it he is on guard. The pose of his body, from nose to tail, the low rumbling growl, the curling lip, say, "Danger. Don't touch." It is best to heed that warning and let the dog and his bone alone. The dog has spoken as clearly as he can. He has proclaimed his doggy rights. Shall they not be respected?

If a child does not respect the rights of his dog, if he cannot love him enough to try to understand his nature, he should have no dog. Too many children feed their love of power by ill-treating their dogs. But recently I saw a boy pick up his dog and throw him as far as he could ont into the lake. Again and again the dog swam to shore and pleaded not to be thrown in again. Each time the boy picked him up and threw him out once more. He stopped only when he was convinced that he was going into the lake over the same route if he touched the dog again.

"Well, it was his dog, wasn't it?" said his father.

That sort of thing does a child no good. It allows him to foster a side of his nature that might better be left to wither from lack of encouragement. It gives him an idea that bullying weaker creatures, children, animals, old people, anything or anyone appearing to be helpless shows power. This apparent strength becomes in reality a grave weakness. Strong spirits lend strength to the weak ones about them. Only the weakling bullies his way among his fellows and he is bound to come to grief. Meanwhile all who come in contact with him suffer.

Teach the children to respect the dog's rights. If the family dog has been selected with ordinary care, he is a gentle affectionate animal. He will guard the family with his life. But he will guard his bone the same way or it is instinctive in his nature to do so. When a child persists in taking a bone from his dog, just for fun, and the dog bites him, the child is to be instructed about his behavior, the dog cautioned, and there the matter should rest.

Do not fly into a panic and order the dog shot. He is not vicious because he fought for his bone. He was displaying the same trait that makes him defend his home and his family. If he has not been inoculated within the year have him placed under observation and have him inoculated so his bite will be harmless. After all the dog has rights.

This matter is important in the education of children because a child's associations with his pets affects his character. You can reach some of his basic faults through his relationship with the pets of the neighborhood and the household. Teach him to respect the creatures' rights, to treat them with kindness and affection and you lay the basis for those traits in the child's personality.

AIR INSPECTION CREWS GROW

Department Hastens Action On Applications

WASHINGTON, July 7. (INS)—To facilitate inspection of interstate air passenger lines that have applied to the commerce department for certificates of authority to operate, the aeronautics branch has increased its air line inspection force from three to twelve inspectors, it was announced today.

"The inspectors have been divided into four crews of three men each," said Assistant Secretary of Commerce Clarence M. Young. "Each crew will consist of two air line inspectors who are expert pilots and qualified to pass on such matters as equipment, personnel and the adequacy of the landing facilities on the routes operated, and an air line maintenance inspector, experienced in the maintenance of aircraft and equipment. Such crews will be responsible for the inspection of all lines and divisions within their territories."

SHIPPERS CALL MEET JULY 9

Texas Grain Men to Study Freight Rates

FORT WORTH, July 7. (AP)—In view of a pending conference at Austin of representatives from Texas shippers and carriers with the railroad commission the latter part of the week, the central grain committee, appointed by shippers to represent them in all negotiations regarding grain rate reductions, will convene at the Fort Worth grain and cotton exchange Thursday at 10 a. m.

The meeting will be open to all Texas shippers, Ed P. Byars, Fort Worth freight bureau head, said today.

The committee, according to Byars, will endeavor to determine the next steps to be taken by grain, milling and mixed feet interests of Texas regarding the grain rates which the carriers have been ordered by the Interstate Commerce commission to establish and make effective Aug. 1. These rates are effective on interstate traffic. The committeemen also will consider the question of what changes, if any, should be made by the railroad commission in the intrastate rates.

67-Year-Old Desk In Possession of Man in Clarendon

CLARENDON, Texas, July 7. (AP)—T. W. Smith of this city owns an old school desk that was made by hand in a carpenter shop in Waxahachie in 1864, when each pupil was required to furnish his own desk.

Although made of pine, the desk was so sturdily built that it has seen 67 years of hard usage, being used as a linen chest at the present time. The legs and body are still rigid. It is about four feet long and two and a half feet wide.

Smith stated that he and his mother drove to the shop behind a yoke of steers, hitched to a "lynch-pin" wagon, to get the desk. He was 7 years old at the time.

City-Owned Plants Eliminate Taxes in Model Kansas Town

CHANUTE, Kan., July 7. (AP)—Chanute city commissioners announced today that, for the second successive year, there will be no city taxes.

They adopted a budget calling for expenditure of $122,610.50, which is $3,000 more than last year, and said the gas, water and electric plants owned and operated by the city will yield $102,560.50 profits. Additional income from other sources than taxes will permit them to balance the budget.

Chanute retired $90,000 of bonds last year and has $220,000 cash in its treasury. Last year also the municipality purchased a $10,000 fire truck and began construction of an underground conduit system for electric power. The water system is the only municipal utility with bonded indebtedness.

Aviation Corporation To Be Reorganized

NEW YORK, July 7. (UP)—Plans for reorganization of the General Aviation corporation, a unit of General Motors corporation, are expected to be submitted to the board of directors Friday, it became known today.

It also was learned the production end of general aviation has been reorganized and the corporation plans to enter the field of metal plane construction. The Metaliar corporation has been formed in anticipation. Officers of General Aviation, however, denied that Anthony H. S. Fokker, director of engineering, had resigned or been removed.

China Protests Korean Attacks on Residents

NANKING, China, July 7. (INS)—Protesting against yesterday's attacks on Chinese residents of Korea in which 80 persons were killed, the Nanking government today dispatched a strong note of indignation to the Japanese government.

Anti-Chinese demonstrations, which started Sunday at Heijo, Korea, were reported to be spreading rapidly throughout the land. Infuriated Koreans attacked the Chinese quarter after a clash between Korean farmers and Chinese police. The Koreans at first resisted attempts to evict them from their homes on the ground that the law prohibited any but Chinese from living on the Manchurian side of the border.

Invalid Prisoner Wins Parole in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7. (UP)—Edgar Brewer, granted a leave of absence from the state penitentiary in 1921, after his conviction on auto theft charges, was granted a 15-year parole today by Gov. W. H. Murray.

Brewer is now serving a 20-year term in the Missouri state prison on a similar charge. Prison physicians there recommended his parole from the two sentences since he is near death from tuberculosis and cannot hope to live if confined.

Governor Murray's parole ordered Brewer not to return to Oklahoma under penalty of imprisonment on the old charge.

Appetizing Grasshopper Spoils Chances of Terrapin Race Entry

Special to The Record News

SHAMROCK, Texas, July 7.—At the firing of the starting shot 25 throroughbred racers swept forward toward victory in the sensational terrapin derby held July 4 by the American Legion. This breath-taking display of speed was a grand climax to the week of carnival features and the preliminaries to the grand finals in terrapin races which were held Friday and Saturday mornings.

Friday Cy Leland, rural entrant of Nathan Lummus, was leading the field by several inches, but just before the goal was reached he stopped and proceeded to nonchalantly eat a grasshopper which had entered the race track. This delay cost the rural entrant the first place despite the fact he started out after the dinner and crossed the line a close second to "Old Man Henderson," entrant of Perry Bros. Inc., who won first place in Friday's preliminaries.

A large crowd witnessed the Saturday finals when "Dynamite," belonging to Spurlock and Stanley, carried off first prize and the $40 prize money.

Dry Lather, entrant of Staggs Brothers barber shop, finished second and won $20, while G. P. Nance's Twenty Grand failed to live up to the performance of his namesake and finished his race at third place.

This derby was the main attraction of the week of celebrations and talk proves it is so popular that it may be made an annual event. The Charles DeShazo post realized a considerable sum from the Fourth celebrations and all of this money is to be used on the American Legion home.

W. T. Waggoner Restores Old Family Home Near Decatur

DECATUR, Texas, July 7. (AP)—A 19th century house, dominating the Wise county landscape like an old medieval castle thrust into modern civilization, is being restored here as W. T. Waggoner, wealthy Fort Worth cattleman and oil man makes preparations to return to "his own."

For the last year "the Waggoner house" has been vacant, but now the tall gray walls echo with the noise of hammer and saw, giving it a new lease on life for another half-century or more.

The house was built in 1874 by Dan Waggoner, the cattleman's father, and is surrounded by a 13-acre estate.

In it W. T. Waggoner and his wife lived during the early years of their married life. After their children were grown, the couple sold the old Decatur house and moved to Fort Worth, where they have lived many years. But relatives say Waggoner has told them he and his wife expect to leave their large home in Fort Worth by the first of December and return to the Wise county estate which cradled one of Texas' most famous families.

Park Dances Banned by San Antonio Council

Sunset News

Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, July 7.—During the recent excessive heat wave, dry, hot winds damaged corn, tomato and other crops here, but cotton and peanuts seem to be doing well. Crops and pastures need rain. The supply of stock water is running low in tanks and in the creeks.

July 5, Rhett Thomason, a farmer three miles west of Park Springs, exhibited ripe watermelons, in Sunset, which were grown from seed planted April 27. He calls them 57-day melons because they usually grow and ripen within 57 days from the time the seeds are planted. Their maturity has required a little more time than usual this year. They are good melons. He has three other varieties of watermelons. He is cultivating several acres of watermelons and cantaloupes and they are all making good. He is installing a pumping engine preparatory to pumping a supply of water sufficient to irrigate his melon crop when necessary.

The members of demonstration and 4-H clubs of Montague county will hold their annual meeting at the Odd Fellow picnic park at Montague, Saturday, July 11. The meeting will begin at 10 o'clock a. m. and continue until some time in the afternoon. Annual reports of club work will be made and will be followed by an address by some good speaker. There will also be other features of attraction, such as an exhibition of the best needlework. These clubs have been worth a great deal to the citizens of this county, especially in the communities where they are organized. Their work promises to be of greater value in the future years.

Prison sentences are longer in the United States than for corresponding crimes in England.

MACHINE DOES OWN COUNTING

New Devices Turns 'Light' On Problems

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 7. (INS)—A new type of calculating machine, which turns involved mathematical problems into a beam of light and analyzes the flight to find the correct answer, has been invented at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, after several years of research by Dr. Truman S. Gray.

The photo-electric cell, that versatile little device which makes movies talk, has been utilized according to an anouncement from the laboratory of the institute today.

The new machine, called the photo-electric integraph, is said to be a notable step in the advancement of machine methods of computation in science and engineering.

Engineers, dealing with functions, groups of numbers which indicate the way one quality varies with another, express these number groups as curves and graphs. Two photo-electric cells are connected in an electrical circuit which enables the operator to make a comparison between two light beams. One of these beams of known quantity is changed until it is shown by the machine to be equal to the other beam which is of unknown quality. The light in the beam of unknown quantity passed through screens which are cut out in the shape of the graphs which make up the problem, and the amount of light in the beam depends upon the products of the two curves.

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas Declaration of Independence had 51 signers. Twenty-three of them have been honored by having counties named for them including one who was doubly honored by giving the county seat his surname and the county his given name.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

Texas truck and fruit shipments continue to bring money into the hands of producers, workers and others engaged in handling them. . . . Up to June 28, shipments of tomatoes had totaled 7,886 cars, a gain of 562 over the same date in 1930. Trinity county, which was induced to experiment with tomatoes through a campaign inaugurated by the chamber of commerce aided by the county school system, has $100,000 income from the thousand acres planted as a result of the campaign. Jacksonville's bank deposits have climbed $900,000 within the past 60 days and attributes the bulk of the increase to money from its tomato crop. Lindale estimates the profits from its 4,000 acres of blackberries, in a poor season, at $250,000, besides giving employment to 1,000 pickers at 30 to 40 cents a crate and to hundreds of other workers, including those in three canneries, which are canning the berries at the rate of three carloads a day and expect to ship 100 cars. Texas yam crop, which last year brought $7,248,000 income to its growers, is coming along finely with increased acreage and the first of the new crop coming on to the market. Mills county, looking forward, budded from 16,000 to 20,000 native pecan trees this year with improved varieties and 85 per cent of the graftings survived. Not exactly "truck," but a contribution to Texas' miscellaneous income was the the $150,000 which Crockett county sheep men received for the sale of 35,000 of its 275,000 crop of spring lambs.

Haskell Chicken Profits Revealed

HASKELL, Texas, July 7.—In answer to a request made by the Haskell county agent, Jo C. Williams, an accurate report was rendered to him by Vernon Wofford of Haskell county on profits in chickens from Feb. 1, 1931, to June 1, 1931. Culling and selling hens, a few cockerels, sale of 146 dozen eggs, and the sale of 2,664 chicks ranging in age from a day old to fryers, with all expenses carefully deducted, the net profit was $448.57

Value of World Flight

THE Post-Gatty flight around the world seems more like a work of art than a scientific achievement. Like most great works of art, it has no utilitarian value whatever; it exists simply as a perfect achievement of its kind, valuable only for the emotions it arouses in the breast of the spectator.

It is interesting to study the ancestry of the flight. Probably the line traces back originally to Jules Verne's "Around the World in Eighty Days," although you could follow it clear back to Drake and Magellan if you felt like being fanciful. Verne's imaginary travelers had to work fast to make the trip in 80 days, and when a real human being managed to clip a few days from this record it was felt that human speed had reached its maximum.

And now these two young flyers have calmly divided the figure by 10! Imaginative as Verne was, he had no real notion of the marvels that were just ahead of him.

So the flight stands as a work of art—a supreme achievement in the field of speed, most interesting of all fields to the modern world.

Yet, if it is useless, as most works of art are useless, it is also like them in that it has a profound significance. When men can go from New York to the middle of Siberia in a few days, and can be back in New York again little more than a week after they left, it is evident that something radical has happened to the circumference of the earth. Our notions of distance will have to be revised. Obviously the world is not nearly as big as it used to be. Post and Gatty went around the world in less time than a man could go from Boston to Philadelphia a century ago.

Commonplace as this deduction may be, we have not yet acted upon it. We still conduct international relations and world economics on the framework erected in the old days, when distances were almost astronomical and every nation lived in more or less complete isolation. We imagine that such Asiatic peoples as the Indians and the Chinese are as remote from the currents of modern thought as they were in the day of the sailing ships. We pretend that the Atlantic and Pacific are the same impassable barriers today that they were when James Monroe was president.

Gatty and Post knew better; and so should we, if we studied their flight intelligently. The world has shrunk to a tenth, a fiftieth of its old size. We must revise our conceptions of politics, economics and human relationships to meet the change.

An Amazing Statement

SIDNEY BAER, St. Louis department store executive, tells the National Retail Credit association convention that the average American family is $400 in debt. Future salaries, he says, have been drawn upon to the astounding extent of ten and one-half billion dollars.

We do not know just where Mr. Baer got his figures, or how accurate they may be. Presumably a department store official would be able to come fairly close to hitting the mark in a matter of this kind. At any rate, the statement offers a possible explanation of the business depression.

If the average family is $400 in debt, it is little wonder that retail buying has slumped. In fact, it is hard to see how there can be a return to normal purchasing rates until that load of debt is at least partially lifted.

Diplomacy by Telephone

ONE of the most interesting things about the recent reparations-war debts moratorium negotiations is that they were conducted largely by transatlantic telephone. For the first time in history statesmen have talked back and forth across the ocean instead of confiding their interchange of thoughts to courier or cable transmission.

The enormous advantage that this gives to the modern diplomat is obvious. Five minutes actual conversation can adjust two conflicting points of view better than a whole sheaf of cablegrams. It is hardly straining the imagination to look forward to the day when heads of governments will talk with one another directly, without the use of any intermediaries at all. When they do, international understandings should benefit immeasurably.

Old Timer

If you had seen me twenty years ago—
Young, wealthy, wise—no sneers or curses, then;
Ah, Broadway was a fairyland, aglow.
What scenese! I see Delmonico's again.
Jack's, Shanley's and the Knickerbocker Bar
With Old King Cole benignly looking down;
The years have flown and I have traveled far,
But, youngster, this was once a princely town.

What shows! What girls! What magic nights I spent!
With golden lads who shared my wine with me;
If I had just a bit of what I lent
I'd not abuse your generosity.

Ah, bless you, sir. There's few like you today—
I wish you could have shared the old Broadway.

For the Records

No man, or woman, for that matter, has hurt the heart of Peggy Joyce so much as a recent statement that she is 43 years of age. The most famous of the blondes felt pretty wretched about the lie, of course, but her good friend, Jack Lait, challenged any person to a duel of typewriters (this kind or the sort Capone uses) that Peggy isn't 43.

Lait asserts Peggy was born on May 27, 1898, at Berkeley, Va., a suburb of Norfolk. Peggy says she was born on May 26, 1898. Her passport, however, gives the date as July 6, 1898—the passport clerk confusing her birthday with the day she applied for it. Heheheh, I mean, the day and month, of course.

So that the records may be kept accurate then, Peggy was born in the year 1898, and you are a cad if you ask: "B. C.?"

And, take it from the songsmiths along the Grandest canyon, things are so tough in the music business that Harms is only paying royalty on "One Heart in 2-4 Time"!!!

Character

Eddie Leonard, the headliner, is the N. Y. Giants' most rabid rooter. He rarely misses a game at the Polo Grounds, and is known to have canceled vaudeville engagements rather than miss an important series.

The pastime, they tell you, does much to keep the veteran artist young and alive—and he has his own system to make his home team win. He bets that it will lose!

At this paragraphing, the Giants have won 38 games and dropped 27—Leonard losing nine games or $900—a reasonable fee for happiness and health.

Tomb It May Concern

Tears fell when you whispered "Adieu,"
. . . but tears dry quickly,
At least, mine do.

A Form of Criticism

The theatrical sitch-ee-ay-shun, according to a show business journal, is in a fine mess. A producer is reported in Chicago buying actors for $1 the bushel.

"Really?" queried a rival manager, "when did the price go up?"

42d Street

The second most famous street in New York has gone Coney Island and all that, we know. Flea circuses to the right of you, shooting galleries to the left of you and everything that goes to make it "Small-Times Square."

But amid all the smutty dialog, beefy hip-flinging and undraped chunks of cow at the burlesque theater on that thoroughfare last week, the outstanding feature of the show was the singing of "Annie Laurie" by a soprano, who was fully clothed.

The grimy males in the audience gave the number the heaviest applause (which the singer merited), and the off-color jokes and the peeled "beauties" ran a poor second and a frightful third. It's little things like that, that make big paragraphs like these.

Gag

Fred Allen relates that at a Broadway opening the audience almost to a man, hissed the proceedings, except one chap, who kept applauding.

"Do you mean to say," Fred asked him, "that you have the unmitigated nerve to encourage such rotten acting?"

"Rotten acting, hell!" snapped the hand-clapper, "I'm applauding the hissing."

The Poke Graceful

Between acts on the pavement the other premiere evening some of the drama defenders were talking shop again. Percy Hammond, who has inspected the shows for over 30 years, asserted that he never read his contemporaries.

"Why don't you?" we asked.

"Because," was the retort sweleegant, "the poor critics would bore me, and the good ones would make me envious."

Hot Weather Song

I feel so exceedingly lazy,
I neglect what I oughtn't to should!
My notion of work is so hazy
That I couldn't to toil if I would!

I feel so exceedingly silly
That I say all I shouldn't to ought!
And my mind is as frail as a lily;
It would break with the weight of the thought!
—DON MARQUIS.

Merciless Truth

Marie Lachmann, all the way from Hollywood, observes that the world would be a nicer place to live in if more of us didn't take ourselves so seriously—and remembered that we're all here on a visit.

"Always Belittlin'"

Mr. Edward Locke, author of "The Revolt," and other reasons for bad theatrical seasons, observes in an interview that he always writes his plays by artificial light because plays are produced by artificial light, and that, therefore, he believed that this was the logical way to go about writing plays.

To which George Jean Nathan snapped: "Mr. Locke will agree with his critics that inasmuch as people always go to bed in the dark, it is but logical that, when the lights go out in the theater, and one of his plays gets under way, they should go to sleep."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A PIECE OF FLYING STEEL REMOVED AN EYE CATARACT—Robert F. Lanham of Bessemer, Ala., who had been practically blind in one eye for many years, was recently employed as a mechanic in the auto repair shop of Leon Mulkey, 341 Monroe avenue, Memphis, Tenn., and in the course of his work had a slight accident in which his eye was hit by a flying bit of steel. The steel shaving miraculously removed the obstruction over his eyeball, causing him to regain his sight completely after a period of a few days.

WILLIAM BECKFORD WROTE A BOOK AT A SINGLE SITTING—William Beckford (1759-1844) wrote "The History of Caliph Vathek," a belletristic masterpiece, without a stop for food or sleep within three days and two nights. Beckford, who was an English eccentric of colossal wealth, wrote "Vathek" in the French language, in 1781. It was subsequently translated into English, and is described as a volume of Oriental fiction which has no equal in European literature in its power to impress the imagination.

THE STORY SO FAR

Sally Blair, secretly engaged to Harvey Davidson, is in love with Peter, Douglas. In a week Peter is to marry Davidson's daughter, Linda. Peter asks Sally to go out with him once more before he is married and she consents to go for a short ride. Peter tells her he still loves her, that he doesn't love Linda. When she tells him that it is too late and that she is to marry someone else, he presses his foot on the accelerator and they crash.

CHAPTER XLII

Sally raised a numb stiff arm to her face. Wet. Sticky. Blood. Her head ached and she was dizzy. Could she move her feet? She could although it hurt to move them. Hurt her head.

Peter . . .

At first she couldn't see, it was so dark. The lights must have gone out when they crashed. She groped on the seat beside her. Peter's overcoat. She felt its soft texture. He was there. Dead?

She didn't know, but a sob came to her throat. So dark, so awfully dark. They were still in the car, both of them. It must have been strong to stand the fall. The door, where was it? Finally she found the handle but couldn't open it, because it was jammed. Peter was so quiet. He wasn't moving at all. Dead? He wasn't even breathing.

All she could hear was her own labored breathing, as she brushed the glass from her lap, and the wind in the trees around, whining and whistling. All the glass must have broken when they fell.

With all the strength she had she tried the door again, but it would not budge, and Peter was lying there not able to help, not able to move. His pulse, she would feel that. She must do something. . .

His glove, for she had found his hand limp beside her, why couldn't she get it off? She did after a while, and touched his pulse with her cold, numb fingers. Nothing; yes, there was something, or perhaps it was her own pulse racing like mad.

Mad—that's what she and Peter had been tonight. She never should have told him she was going to be married. If she hadn't they would still be on the road riding in the night.

Mad—Peter had said they should be mad, he and she.

If he would only move. Only speak, only tell her he wasn't dead. . . . Frantically she found his face and kissed it passionately. His lips felt cold.

"Peter!" she whispered, but he didn't answer, didn't hear her.

That terrible moment when she had felt the car in the air, flying over space. Then the crash. She had closed her eyes, and slid down to the floor.

Peter was so cramped—couldn't she get him out on the ground? She crawled out one of the broken windows, and tried to pull his body after her but made no headway. He was so heavy, and she was so weak. The effort of getting out the window exhausted her.

So dark down here in the canyon. How far had they fallen? Up above, she could see the road. The drop was about a hundred feet, she thought as she looked up. Two cars there, she made out the lights swimming in the blackness. Help was coming. . . .

About to call out, she put her hand to her lips to stifle the cry that was coming to them. How could she explain, when help came? What would she say? Here she was with Peter Douglas, and Peter was to be married in a week. She'd have to give her name, of course. Linda would know, and Harvey Davidson. . . .

Again she reached into the car and touched Peter's face. Was he dead? A low moan came from him, a pitiful sound.

He was alive!

Now she could hear voices above and the crash of the brush as if soneone were tumbling down the precipice. Her feet sank in crisp snow as she took a step away from the car.

She couldn't leave Peter—couldn't let other people come to him, help him. And yet she couldn't stay with him, be found with him.

He was alive—there was another moan from the still figure caught under the wheel of the car.

"Hello!" Some one called. A man. Very close his voice sounded to Sally. "Anyone hut?"

She didn't answer. She was standing swaying from side to side, dizzy again.

"Hello!" came the call again, almost to the car. She fell, because she couldn't stand any more, and on her hands and knees started crawling away from the wreck into the bushes ahead.

A flashlight was weaving through the darkness, as Sally sank, sobbing, beside a bush. How she had gotten there she never knew. Another voiced joined the first. "Find the car?"

"Here!" The light was on the car now, and from her hiding place the girl saw two men. She shut her eyes and touched her head again. It ached so terribly. Her fingers were wet as she took them away. Her handkerchief. She found it finally, and put it to her forehead.

The voices of the two men came to her distinctly, for the wreck was only about 15 feet away.

"Saw the car fall," one of them said, "a devil of a place to get down to. Oh, here's the driver, pinned to the wheel. Let's get him out."

"Dead?" asked the other.

No, Sally wanted to tell them fiercely, he isn't dead. He's alive. I heard him moaning only a moment ago. But her lips remained shut. Queer distorted visions kept coming before her eyes. Peter at the wheel, his face white in the darkness. Peter telling her he did not care what happened . . . Peter asking her who the man was who had sent her the roses.

Then the roses, sitting at home in their vase. Red as blood. She saw them again as she had taken them from their box, the green paper crackling as she lifted them.

Red roses.

"Can we carry him up, or do we need more help?" the first man was asking.

"I'll make a stretcher of his overcoat," the second man was answering. "Better get him to the hospital right away. No time to lose."

Sally watched them take Peter from the car, saw them start with his limp body slung in his own overcoat, then she must have fainted, for when she came to, it was quite dark, and the men were gone, and the lights above were out, and there were no more voices.

The car was there—blacker than the darkness, little patches of snow here and there around it.

Stumbling she went to the car, and looked inside. Peter was gone. The car was empty, except for his scarf which the men must have forgotten.

Peter was in a hospital somewhere, he didn't even know what hospital; and she was here—at the wreck. Peter might be dead by now, and she was alive wondering what she would do, where she should go.

"Oh, God, let him live, let him live," she prayed softly aloud. At any rate no one would know there had been another passenger in the car.

Why did she still feel so weak? And so cold? She was shivering, and her teeth were chattering, as she stood there trying to make up her mind to go back to the road and try to get a ride into town. Her feet were freezing and her coat was damp from the snow.

How long had she been lying on the ground in the bushes. She had no way of telling. A rustle from the trees near her, and she stiffened with fright. Another. Some animal in the woods, she thought when she got over her first fears. Couldn't be anything else.

She must look a mess. . . . She couldn't go up on the road, and ask for a ride like this . . . Her vanity case. Reaching in her pocket she found it wasn't there. She started searching for it, but it was so dark she couldn't see very well. It must have fallen out when she got out of the car . . . She didn't want any one to find it around the wreck. For half an hour she looked for it, sifting the snow in her almost frozen fingers.

The cracking of a bush sent her under cover again, but when she heard nothing more, she went back to the car and started looking anew. No, it wasn't there. Well, if she couldn't find it, perhaps no one else could either—perhaps when the snow melted later—

Not that she wanted the case. But she wanted to be sure it wasn't there. It would be easy to identify it if it was found.

A moon now, sickly, and small, a mere sliver showing over the eastern horizon.

Taking some of the snow, she cleaned her face and found a cloth in the pocket of the car which she used to dry herself.

Then she started trudging up the hill slowly. Hardly any strength to walk. Now and then she had to sit down to rest, panting and nervous. To her tired, spent body, the summit was miles and miles up.

No path. She had to break her way through the brush as the men had to when they came down to the wreck.

When she thought of Peter she gathered courage to go on. She must find out whether he was—alive. Must, no matter how hard it was to go. Up, up . . .

Time after time, when she sank exhausted, beaten on the ground, she wished she could stay and sleep. So cold, with the wind stinging her face like a lash.

He didn't care what happened, he had said, as the car plunged over the bluff.

"Oh, God," she prayed again aloud as she had been praying all the way up the hill, her frozen lips hardly able to form the words that she was crying aloud. "Oh, God, don't let him die! Don't let him die!"

Mad they had been. Mad, as Peter wanted them to be. Madness when they had that too-short kiss on the road. Madness when Peter's hand had faltered on the turn. Mad for that wild, brief moment that nothing would ever bring back to them. A short second, no longer than the quick intake of a breath, but long enough to change the whole course of their lives. Long enough, so that the thought of it and the flash of sudden racking pain it gave, would last forever. The memory of it stabbing always.

Sally fell down once more, and her eyes closed weakly. So good to rest . . . to sleep.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Did you ever write a letter to Frederic J. Haskin? You can ask him any question of fact and get the answer in a personal letter. Here is a great educational idea introduced into the lives of the most intelligent people in the world—American newspaper readers. It is a part of that best purpose of a newspaper—service. There is no charge except two cents in coin or stamps for return postage. Address Frederic J. Haskin, director, the Record News Information bureau, Washington, D. C.

Q.—I know of a clever device that has never been patented. Can I take out a patent on it?—C. B.

A.—It is impossible to obtain a patent on anything that has been in public use for two years.

Q.—When was Georgetown, District of Columbia, included in the city of Washington?—A. D.

A.—Washington was made co-extensive with the District of Columbia, Feb. 11, 1895. Since that time, Georgetown has been part of the city.

Q.—How much of the address side of a post card may be used for writing or advertisement?—W. T. C.

A.—One-third of the address side may be used.

Q.—Please give some information concerning the Hoover war memorial library.—N. H.

A.—This library is at Leland Stanford university. A building on the campus houses the library which is the most complete of this kind in the United States and perhaps in the world. The building was opened soon after the war. Additions to the collection of books are constantly being made, and even now a member of the board of trustees is in Europe collecting material.

Q.—What colors are used in the button-hole rosettes by the Sons of the American Revolution, Society of the War of 1812, and Colonial Wars?—R. McC.

A.—The rosettes worn by the Sons of the American Revolution are blue, buff, and white. Those of the Society of the War of 1812 are blue, black, and white with a red thread in the center. Those of the Society of Colonial Wars are nearly all red with a little black.

Q.—Where is Lafayette buried?—S. L.

A.—General Lafayette is buried in the Cimetiere de Picpus, a private burial ground for emigres and descendants of victims of the revolution. American soil was specially sent to cover the coffin of General Lafayette, and the United States flag surmounts his grave.

Q.—When were the slaves in the West Indies given their freedom?—F. C.

A.—The negroes in the British West Indies were granted their freedom in 1830. France granted freedom in its possessions in the West Indies in 1848, and Holland in 1859. These were by legislation and not by force of armies or revolt.

Q.—In what play is the line, 'This is Liberty Hall"?—C. B.

A.—In Goldsmith's comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer." Squire Hardcastle says to young Harlow and Hastings when they mistake his house for an inn, "This is Liberty Hall, gentlemen; you may do just as you please here."

Q.—How much linen material is used in the United States?—F. C. R.

A.—Linen fabrics, valued at $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 are imported and consumed in this country yearly. There are no woven linen fabrics produced in the United States besides crash for towels. There are no spinning mills in America to spin fine linen yarns.

Q.—Please name the present-day big league players who made 200 or more hits in their first major league season.—A. R.

A.—Earl Combs, Lloyd Waner, Dale Alexander, John Frederick, Roy Johnson, and Charles Klein, of the present major league crop of players, made 200 or more hits in their first major league season.

Q.—In the Baptistry of the Cathedral of Seville is a famous painting of Saint Anthony and the Christ Child by Murillo. Has this painting ever been in New York?—E. L. D.

A.—In 1874, the kneeling figure of Saint Anthony of Padua was cut from the canvas. Soon it was offered for sale in New York by a Spaniard, who sought out a well-known collector, Mr. Schaus. The latter, who knew of the theft of the figure from the Murillo painting, paid $250 for the work. He then notified the Spanish consul. The figure was returned to Seville, the painting was repaired, and amid public festivities, it was restored to the Baptistry.

Q.—When was the first police department in the United States organized?—J. B. H.

A.—The basis of the modern police organization was an act of the New York legislature in 1844, providing for a consolidated "day and night police." During the next few years similar measures were taken in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, New Orleans, Baltimore, Newark, and Providence.

The Record News Offers A Booklet on Poison Ivy

This is a booklet that should be in every home and the wise head of the household will secure additional copies so that one can be kept in the automobile, one in the first aid kit, and one in the camping outfit. It is an official government bulletin, prepared by experts, and is in every sense reliable. It tells how to recognize and avoid poison ivy, and what to do when you get a case of ivy poisoning.

A copy will be sent to any address for a nominal charge of ten cents to cover handling and postage. Use the coupon.

WICHITA FALLS SOCIETY AND CHURCH NEWS

Early Morning Ceremony Unites Popular Couple

A wedding noted for its quaint, sweet simplicity was solemnized at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning when Miss Eleanor Fleming became the bride of Frank J. Dempsey at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Fleming, on Tenth street. The impressive ring ceremony was read by Rev. E. S. Lowrance, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Iowa Park, in the presence of relatives and close friends.

The fresh garden flowers used in decorations added their beauty and sweetness to the scene. Masses of Shasta daisies and gladioli were tinted in the bride's chosen colors of pink and turquoise blue.

Mrs. J. E. Hall played Cadman's "At Dawning," as pre-nuptial music with Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff at the piano. Miss Louise Hall played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" as the bridal party entered.

The bride was radiant in her long ruffled pink organdy gown, the very bouffant skirt, long lace mittens and her arm bouquet of garden flowers in harmonizing colors making her an exquisitely quaint picture. Miss Margaret Fleming, her maid of honor, was vividly lovely in a turquoise organdy with pink accessories and an arm bouquet of tinted garden blossoms. Jack Rich was best man for Mr. Dempsey.

Mrs. Dempsey has lived almost all her life in Wichita Falls and is one of the most popular young women in the city. She is a graduate of high school and junior college and completed her education at C. I. A.

Mr. Dempsey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dempsey of Texarkana and is manager of the Bradstreet company in San Antonio, to which he was promoted from the same office in Wichita Falls.

Peggy Williamson, one of the bride's Sunday school pupils, presided at the bride's book. Following the ceremony, Mrs. Dempsey cut the beautiful three-tiered wedding cake which was served with a dainty ice course by other members of her class, including Nancy Lou Jamison, Louise Hall, Dorothy Fletcher, Anna Lee Waddell, Mary Lynn Herald, Pearl Dickson and Peggy Williamson.

The bride's going away frock was a two-toned blue silk ensemble with accessories to harmonize. Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey left directly after the reception for a wedding trip to Carlsbad and other points of interest and will be at home to their friends at 625 Van Ness street, San Antonio.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

For quite awhile now, the mad and merry days of housewives have been at hand. The canner is brought from the basement; pressure is put on the man of the house to purchase a steam pressure. All the cans from the half gallon down to the half pint have been washed and scalded and new rubbers purchased.

◇ ◇ ◇

With the beginning of fruit, a vision of colorful shelves haunts the housekeeper. Tiny beets in brilliant scarlet; carrots as golden as the gold of the Aztecs, milky white corn, tomatoes in their original color and soup mixtures promising delight when next winter's soup days arrive.

◇ ◇ ◇

Miss Ethel Luise Webb, county home demonstration agent, in giving her recent report, stated that in spite of several failures or partial failures in garden crops, members of the home demonstration clubs were canning a quantity of fruits and vegetables.

◇ ◇ ◇

Considerable quantity! Mrs. G. B. Campbell, 4-H demonstrator at Friberg, has canned 16 pints of beets and had fresh beets on the table for two weeks from one 10-cent package of seed; Mrs. C. C. Burrows of Pleasant Valley has canned 117 cans of vegetables and 105 containers of fruit. Mrs. Burrows gathered 20 gallons of strawberries from a small berry patch.

◇ ◇ ◇

A total of 46 women, it was stated, in the Iowa Park territory, are leading the county at a live-at-home demonstration. Shout hurrah for them.

◇ ◇ ◇

Women in rural homes can meat and have through the winter delicious steaks and roasts ready at hand. No sending to the market when company drops in. Turnip greens and mustard and spinach—carrots and beets and even round, smooth little Irish potatoes may be canned and ready for use.

◇ ◇ ◇

There is always a question preeminent among the fair sex and everything has been passed by now for the question of jellies that will "jell" and preserves of just the right sweetness and consistency. "Do you think it will take a cup of sugar to one of juice?" asks one doubter. "I believe three of sugar to four of juice would be enough."

◇ ◇ ◇

Then there's a wailing and gnashing of teeth when a novice at the business tries to make too much jelly at one time and makes a sirup. At their kitchen doors, triumphant wives thrust out their heads to call in the neighbors and show rows of clear yellow and red jellies that are just the proper "quivery" consistency.

◇ ◇ ◇

With cucumbers running riot all over the place, pickling has begun. Later on I will blossom out with my favorite recipe, a sliced crisp tomato pickle with raisins in the sirup. And a neighbor has an olive oil pickle that she will not give me the recipe for. Oh, this is really the mad and merry season for rivals in pretty pantries.

Miss Jordan Hostess At Unique Party

Miss Ruth Jordan entertained a group of friends with an apron and overall party at her home on Sunset lane Monday evening.

The early part of the evening a swimming party was enjoyed and later there were many games and dancing.

The hostess was assisted by Mesdames J. H. Jordan and A. B. Wolf in serving delightful refreshments to Misses Mary Ruth Wolfe, Ethel Wallace of Hearn, Texas, Claudia Lee Hampton, Jess Woods, Reba Banks, Helen B. Nolen, Mary Jane Banks, and Naomi Reasor; Messrs. George Wolfe, Chester Hampton, R. E. Rogers of Gracemont, Okla., Jack Jones, W. P. Reasor, Wayne Roberts, Betty Roberts, O. D. Taylor, Edgar Jordan, Mesdames J. H. Jordan, A. B. Wolfe and L. L. Gutshon.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Runnels of Center, Texas, are guests of their daughter, Mrs. Dudley B. Foy, and Mr. Foy this week.

◇

Miss Ethel Wallace, who has been visiting friends in Henrietta and in Wichita Falls, will return to her home in Hearne, Texas, Wednesday.

◇

Messrs. and Mesdames Armon Jaynes and C. R. Rutledge have returned to Wichita Falls after a delightful week-end spent at Medicine Park, Okla.

◇

Miss Bernice Poland of Crowell, Texas, who has been visiting friends and relatives in the city for about two weeks, returned to her home Monday.

◇

Mr. and Mrs. Carter Thompson of Jacksboro spent the week-end with Mrs. Thompson's brother, Wilson Hardin, and family on Kemp boulevard.

'Pretty-by-Night' Gardens Bring Many Pleasures

By BERTHA M'KEE DOBIE

"I have good times in the day," said Mary Anne, who was seven, "but the best times are at night when the moon is shining. Then mother and daddy and I all go out to the back yard. They sit in the swing and talk while I catch fireflies. The four o'clocks are blooming and look very beautiful. Nearly always I pick some and take them to mother and daddy. Then they say, 'How sweet the four o'clock smell!' and I run on off."

An old, old name for the four o'clocks that Mary Anne found so delightful under the moon is Pretty-by-Night, and to this day their catalog name in France is exactly that—Belle-de-Nuit. I have borrowed the name as a theme for this article on night gardens.

The moon is a sorceress who exerts her sorcery on gardens no less than on hearts, making the familiar unfamiliar, the stale fresh, the trivial mysterious, and the commonplace romantic, even adventurous.

"And in the night . . . .
How easy is a bush supposed a bear."

White Flowers

No garden looks by night as it looks by day, and some gardens are most beautiful then when they both proffer and withhold. In starshine shrubbery that in daylight is ligustrum, nandina, and pittosporum becomes a mass secret and unknown, the front line of which advances and recedes in dark undulations. The blackness of stream or pool is splintered with light from a star. Along the grass low waves of sound move. Then the moon, "stooping through a fleecy cloud," pushes back the shadows and reveals shapes of flowers cut white against the darkness. Light from a car picks out swinging sprays of pink queen's crown. Retama branches make Japanesque shadows on the sidewalk. And into the hearts of those who sit in the garden comes a realization of that beauty for which men spend their lives searching.

Night is the time to see white flowers best, and summer the season to enjoy a night garden. "I can't warm up to white flowers," a friend of mine used to say; and precisely the virtue of white flowers during the day is that they don't warm you up. Reds and yellows are hot to look at, and even blue—that quiet and composed color—is not so cool as white. But at night white flowers take on more positive virtues. I had idly wondered why any one ever planted white oleanders when he could have soft rose ones for as little trouble. Then one night I saw something that made a street car ride forever memorable. It was an oleander bush, a great swelling, spreading, burgeoning oleander bush as high as the house it grew beside; and on it gleamed with loveliness that seemed unreal, hundreds, thousands of white blossoms. Many years afterward I observed how along the 18-mile Victory drive from Savanah to the Atlantic beach the pink oleander flowers were lost, while white ones spotted the gloom.

Some white flowers which make the night garden beautiful in early summer are cape jessamine, perfuming the dusk; magnolia, its leaves glossy in the light of the moon or street lamps, and its great blossoms shedding fragrance; white lilac, for the more northern parts of Texas madonna lilies and after them regal lilies; candytuft, outlining flowering beds against dark grass; baby's breath, or gypsophila; gladiolus, either pure white or having a dark throat; campanulas in several species, C. persicifolia grandiflora alba, C. calycanthema (cup and saucer bells) in the white form, C. medium (Canterbury bells) which comes in white as well as in the more commonly planted pink, purple, and light blue; and perfumed pinks, which will bloom off and on all summer. Later, some of them continuing until cold weather drives us in from the night garden, come abelia, with its multitudinous sweet bells; moon flowers (Ipomoea grandiflora), covering porches—round and large like the full moon; garden tobacco, Nicotiana affinis hybrids; white dahlias and dahlia-flowered zinnias; sturdy daisies, which somehow become a little less matter-of-fact under the transmuting touch of night; white perennial phlox, of which Miss Lingard, red-eyed Count Zeppelin, Mrs. Ruys, and Mrs. Jenkins are good varieties; tuberoses; Schizanthus wistojensis, an annual known also as butterfly flower, fringe flower, and poor man's orchid; sweet alyssum for edging; sweet scabiosa; petunias; silver lace vine (polygonum auberti), making billows of foam in the darkness; the almost equally dainty Clematis paniculata, together with the less dainty but larger-flowered C. montana and Duchess of Edinburgh; and, very late, Japanese anemone. White water lilies gleaming against their dark pads are very beautiful at night. I shall never forget a night-blooming cereus that opened forty-nine blossoms, gigantic and mystic under the moon and stars.

At Twilight

Some flowers are particularly good in the night garden because of their imagination-stirring forms. Hollyhocks, reaching flower stalks upward; yuccas, with their great trusses of cream-colored bloom etherealized by moonlight; and dahlias, tall and giant-blossomed, are among the flowers that by their form contribute to the interest of a garden at night.

The beauty of a garden at twilight is akin to its beauty at night. But at this time delicately-colored flowers are lovelier than white. All pale colors, blue, pink and lavender, are at their best after the sun is low, when, though they may have looked faded in full light, they become delicately clear. Some flowers, other than the four o'clock, do not open until late in the afternoon. Datura, which, however, many people consider too coarse for gardens, is said to know the time of day, since at precisely 4 o'clock each afternoon it expands its heavy buds. Evening primroses are so common along the roadside that we think little of them as garden subjects. In the eastern United States and England, however, they are much grown. I have found the breeder's variety afterglow mentioned by so many writers that I set it down here for those who desire a large, soft yellow evening flower. People whose work takes them from their garden all day and permits them to enjoy it only during the late hours, might do well to plant softly-colored flowers for twilight and white flowers for night, though I should want a splotch of red and gold for holidays.

At night, when the eye partly rests, other sense organs become more perceptive. A night garden without fragrance is not to be thought of. Fragrance that in the day is scarcely noticed becomes at night a precious and pervading perfume, a sweet inducer to meditation. Mr. Anderson McCully, writing on nocturnal gardens, makes this statement: "If we are wise, we will look inward, choose our twilight fragrances from our hearts rather than from the nurseryman's pages, bringing back to our starshine dreams happy memories of beloved faces far away. The fragrances that a Texan in middle life remembers are of tuberose, magnolia, madeira vine, night-blooming jasmine, cape jasmine, honeysuckle, violets and oleander. He remembers roses, too, but modern roses have not so fragrant an exhalation as 'the sweet musk-rose' of Shakespeare and our grandmothers' gardens."

Summer Fragrance

Many of the white flowers named in this article are incense-bearing, for nature compensates flowers that lack the signal of color by giving them odor. There are, of course, many flowers not white that were deliciously fragrant. Pinks in many colors are among the most fragrant flowers of the garden. It is hardly worth while to grow some modern scentless hybrids, since the form of pinks is less beautiful than that of dozens of flowers and since their fragrance is uniquely pleasing. Carnations, though not so easy to grow as pinks, are yet not so difficult as people think them; some fine new varieties have recently been offered, among them hybrids by the French breeder, Chabaud. Petunias and four o'clocks are about the best flowers for evening fragrance over a long period. Calycanthus, or sweet shrub, exhales a perfume delicious and tantalizing.

Not only is our sense more perceptive at night, but some flowers, aside from those that do not open until late afternoon, actually surrender more perfume to the dewy night than to the day. All stocks are fragrant, but the odor of one species so belongs to the night that it is called night-blooming stock (Matthiola bicornis). This is not a flower to be planted for beauty, since the blossoms are dull-colored, but to be tucked away in a corner or among other plants, as a sachet is hidden among garments. Sweet

Leroy Edgemon Honor Guest at Dinner

Miss Ruby Marley, assisted by her sister, Mrs. C. W. Rowland, entertained at the latter's home with a surprise birthday dinner honoring Leroy Edgemon.

A color motif of blue and white was noted and a delightful dinner served to Misses Cecile Hutchison, Fannie Ray, Margaret Edgemon, Cecile McClure, Wichita, Kan., and J. R. Burrows, M. C. Lillard, J. A. Rowland, John Edgemon, Lige Edgemon, Ross Edgemon, Leroy Edgemon, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rowland, Miss Ruby Marley and little Betty Joyce Rowland.

A swimming party at Sandy Beach followed the dinner and iced melon was served after the swim.

Popular Haskell Couple Are Wed

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, Texas, July 7.—A wedding that came as a surprise to many friends was that of Miss Madge Hambleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Hambleton and Carl Arbuckle, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Arbuckle, of Haskell. The popular young couple drove to Wichita Falls where they were married, then wired the news to Haskell and went to Fort Worth and Dallas for a honeymoon trip before coming home. Both bride and groom are members of pioneer Haskell families.

President to Receive Mail in 'Installments'

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—Mail on the installment plan is the order of the day at the White House.

In order not to dismay the president with a display of the immense amount of correspondence that has piled up since he began negotiations on his war debt holiday two weeks ago, Mr. Hoover's secretaries are laying it on his desk in installments.

Scores of letters have piled up in the mail room to await presidential action. They are letters of a nature which only the president can handle.

Violators of Proration Must File New Suits

AUSTIN, July 7. (AP)—Fred Upchurch, assistant attorney general in charge of oil litigation, said today he believed East Texas oil operators violating the railroad commission's new proration order would have to file new injunction suits to escape penalties.

Upchurch told R. D. Parker, supervisor of the commission's oil and gas division, that the approximately 200 injunction suits against the old order had ceased to be effective.

MAKE THIS MODEL AT HOME DAINTY UNDIES—SIZES 16 TO 44 Pattern 2062

By ANNE ADAMS

A true, hot weather garment does away with unnecessary elastic, bands and fullness at the waistline. The chemise sketched goes further to provide coolness by opening the panties at the side. The garment is daintily trimmed with lace, ecru preferably, since that is smart on white, pink and flesh underthings. Pattern 2062 makes up nicely in crepe de chine, rayon, cambric or triple voile.

Obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 1½ yards of 36-inch fabric. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Send fifteen cents (15c in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be sure to state size wanted.

The pattern catalog features an excellent assortment of afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes, also delightful accessory patterns. Price of catalog, fifteen cents. Catalog with pattern, twenty-five cents. Address all mail orders to Record News Pattern Department, 243 West 17th Street, New York City.

Africans Call Americans 'Crazy After One Look at New York

NEW YORK, July 7. (UP)—Two black boys from Central Africa, boys who know only two words of English, announced through an interpreter today that "New Yorkers must be crazy."

They had come to this country with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, explorers, to help care for a motley assortment of gorillas, chimpanzees, and other former residents of the dark continent brought to Central park zoo, New York.

Their judgment was announced at the conclusion of their first sight-seeing tour in America, one that took them from the zoo, where they have been sleeping on the floor of the spare elephant pen, to the Johnson apartment in the St. Moritz, up Fifth avenue, through Harlem, where they saw their own people dressed as whites and driving automobiles.

Visitors Interviewed

During that tour, they were interviewed by Henry Lee Moon, for the Amsterdam News which circulates in the Harlem district.

Henry Lee Moon wanted to know "the reactions of the aboriginal Africans to the western civilization." He had to ask Mr. Johnson to act as interpreter, for he himself was quite unfamiliar with the Swahili dialect which this year is quite unlike that of Harlem, colored in spots by the Porto Rican influence.

The visitors' "reaction," translated, went about like this:

"These American people build nests in the air, like birds." They referred to the New York skyline.

"Fifth avenue is a swell government road." The only good roads back home, Johnson explained, are government roads.

"All these people must be crazy," they announced at a traffic intersection on Fifth avenue.

Laugh at Traffic

"They want to go all directions, therefore they do not know where they want to go."

"It's ridiculous," they said, "to have a train way up in the air without a 'head' (locomotive)" They laughed as the Ninth avenue "L" made it wide turn at 110th street.

"Only whites rode in automobiles back home. Why do the blacks or how do the blacks get to ride in them in this country?" they wanted to know as they approached Harlem.

Told the negroes here owned their automobiles, they asked:

"But how do they get so much money." They earned $4 a month at home and had not heard (nor were they told) of the great Harlem policy game.

At the Amsterdam news office they posed for the camera men, their own costumes of red fez, a striped sport shirt, blue sport jacket, gray flannel trousers and tan shoes attracting no end of attention.

Japanese Give Lindy Permit for Fuel Base

TOKYO, July 7. (AP)—The aviation bureau announced today it had granted Col. Charles A. Lindbergh permission to establish fuel dumps at Muroton bay, Shimushiru island, and Kakumabetsu and Paramaushir, all in the Kurile islands, to aid him in his forthcoming flight from America to the Far East. The United States army round the world fliers used Paramaushir as a base in 1924.

Rice is more consumed throughout the world today than any other food product.

TOKYO HAILS NEW PLANET

U. S. Astronomers Doubtful Of Discovery

TOKYO, July 7. (US)—Announcement of the discovery of a 10th planet, larger than the earth, and 180,000,000 miles away, was announced today at Kyoto astronomical observatory. Japanese astronomers characterized it as a "planetoid" although its measurements were based upon an estimated diameter of 11,000 miles. Its position was given as "south of Snake-charmer constellation."

With American and other astronomers somewhat skeptical today about the exactness of reports concerning the discovery of a new planet, it was pointed out that a heavenly body nearly a third larger than the earth and at so relatively small distance away could hardly escape discovery hundreds of years ago. Such a body, it was stated, would be visible to the naked eye from the earth.

At the distance calculated in the Tokyo announcement, the new planet would be fifth from the sun, placing it somewhere between Mars and Jupiter and about twice as far from the sun as the earth. Its estimated diameter would also make it fifth in size of our planets.

The planet "Pluto," number nine, was discovered in March, 1930.

Stalin's 'Zig-Zag' Hailed With Glee By U. S. Officials

WASHINGTON, July 7. (UP)—Soviet Russia's zeal to make the "five year plan" a success is responsible for recent departures from pure Communist doctrines, in the view of American officials conversant with Russian affairs.

Word that Josef V. Stalin, Soviet leader had advocated higher pay as an incentive to skilled workers was received with interest here. One official said:

"Whenever the Soviet gets into industrial difficulties, it reverts to capitalist principles. Then, when industry picks up, it returns to pure Communism. It is a 'zig-zag' policy. Stalin's latest pronouncement seems to indicate a 'zag.'"

Friberg News

FRIBERG, Texas, July 7.—Mrs. Ben F. Greer of Witchacres farm returned recently from a vacation trip to points in Arkansas and Oklahoma at Fayetteville, Ark. She visited the James Greer family and at Westville, Okla., she was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Smith.

Mrs. Amanda Thornton is visiting at Tulia, Texas, where she is the guest of her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Holley. The Holley's formerly lived here.

George Musgrave of Raymondville, Texas, is here on business and is visiting relatives and old friends in this section. He was a visitor at the Methodist church Sunday morning and made a brief talk.

Mrs. C. R. Cockerell and daughter, Miss Ruby Lee Cockerell of Denton, Texas, were week-end guests of her sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lamb and daughter, Miss Gladia Lamb from Friday until Monday.

George W. Emmert recently enjoyed an overnight fishing trip to Lake Kemp. He was accompanied by a party of "anglers."

Mr. and Mrs. Caley Thornton and daughter, Miss Venelia Thornton, spent the Fourth of July holiday in Wichita Falls, where they visited Mrs. Thornton's sister and family, enjoying a picnic outing.

Mrs. Jennie Jenne and daughter Miss Carrie Jenne, spent Sunday in Clay county visiting relatives.

There was a slight increase in the attendance at the Methodist church Sunday, both morning and evening. A number of old attendants were present again and several visitors. This was very encouraging to the pastor, Rev. A. F. Hensel and to the teachers of the Sunday school who have felt the decrease in attendance keenly.

Miss Millie Roediger is in Frederick, Okla., where she is attending a recent hospital patient.

Quite a number of threshing machines at work in this vicinity suspended operation during Saturday, July Fourth, so that their crews might avail themselves of the annual holiday celebration. However a number of machines kept at work until in the early evening because of the nearness of Sunday. July 4 is the one holiday in the year when the rural population puts on its best bib and tucker and rides into town.

The hot dry weather continues in this section, working slow destruction to corn, cotton, feed stuffs and late gardens. However these crops are holding their own in marvelous fashion against the dry seige but making very little growth. Rain is badly needed. The cool wind from the north all day Sunday and Sunday night was a welcome relief from the heat wave.

International Wine Tasters Gather

'Soul Mate' Dish of Each Vintage Sought

LONDON, July 7. (AP)—Epicures of three continents—Europe, Australia and America—are gathered in London to taste and pass judgment upon some rare old wines of proven worth and some newer upstarts which yet must make their way in the world.

Meeting at the Savoy hotel, the international wine tasters contend that every wine has a dish which is its soul mate. For example very rare red claret "Chateau Margaux 1914" was served at a luncheon with pie made of grapefed pigeons and trimmed with wild mushrooms.

A "Winkler Hasensprung 1925" noted for its raciness was served with filets of sole cooked in butter and lying on a bed of auberginee.

James Murfin of Detroit is head of the American committee of the wine tasters conference. He is regarded as a connoisseur and keeps a well stocked cellar in the Savoy for the use of his guests.

The connoisseur lifts a glass to his lips, mulling it with his hands, sniffing its bouquet and rolling a drop or so under his tongue to get the taste. There is very little drinking actually done.

Tastings will proceed for a month. Among the 350 rare vintages to be tasted is a bottle of 1810 madeira which, when in the cask was taken twice around the world in a sailing ship to bring it to perfection.

State Directs Sooner Roads

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7. (UP)—State control of secondary roads, formerly exclusively under county jurisdiction, appeared probable today as a result of Gov. William H. Murray's farm-to-market road order.

With all funds not needed for federal aid road construction ordered spent on secondary roads by the governor, the state highway commission was ordered to supervise building of the farm-to-market system although counties are expected to cooperate by contributing part of their gasoline and auto tag revenues.

Counties will be expected to share cost of maintenance as well as building expense, according to their ability to pay, the governor's order said.

Location of the roads, although to be determined jointly by the state highway commission and county commissioners, will be really decided by the state body since that organization controls the expenditure of money.

The farm-to-market road program will not get under way until Jan. 1, since all funds have been allocated to other purposes, J. F. McKeel, state highway commissioner said.

Comedy Skit Added To Vaudeville Bill

Drew McCulley and Max Rainey will be presented in a comedy skit as one of the features of Thursday evening's free vaudeville program on the lawn of the Memorial auditorium. Other attractions will include numbers by a fiddle band which includes Billy Wade, George Walker and Barney Kestler and a saxophone duet by Bryant Creighton and Fred Barron. They will be accompanied at the piano by Miss Violet Trevathan.

Oklahoma Licenses 38 Brand New Lawyers

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 7. (UP)—Many new shingles will grace law offices over the state tomorrow as a result of new admissions to the state bar today.

A total of 58 applicants were admitted to the bar today with 38 of that number appearing before the supreme court to hear Chief Justice Lester administer the oath.

Sterling Asked to Call Employment Parley

AUSTIN, July 7. (AP)—A delegation from the San Antonio Junior Chamber of Commerce today petitioned Gov. Ross S. Sterling to call a conference of mayors on unemployment. The governor took the petition under advisement.

MURDER TRIAL

SAN ANTONIO, July 7. (AP)—Charged with the murder of Frank M. Kempf, Devine dairyman, John L. Green, 18, and Ernest Johnson, 20, Devine negroes, will go on trial before District Judge Wallace in Hondo tomorrow.

DIVING TRICKS TO BE AIRED

Women's Prowess to Get Scientific Study

KURASHIKI, Japan, July 7. (AP)—Tricks of nifty little Japanese sea maids who go out to sea and dive for shellfish are to be exposed for the benefit of a lot of staid scientists at Geneva.

Miniature figures showing the undersea work of the women divers will be used by Dr. Gito Teuoka, president of the Kurashiki Labor Science Research institute, before the international industrial medical science conference which begins its sitting at Geneva early in August.

Such work has been carried on in Japan for centuries. Dr. Teuoka will explain in detail the divers' task which is generally looked upon by laymen as an almost superhuman act. His purpose is to determine what effect deep-sea diving has on the health of women.

It is a well-known fact that some women divers can remain at a depth of 100 feet for two minutes and a half without the aid of oxygen or diving suits.

Those divers able to work longest under water are women below the age of 30.

Among other things, Dr. Teuoka will explain about the labor conditions of Japanese professional women and the psychological effect upon them of their work.

U. S. Strike Victim Recovering in Spain

MADRID, July 7. (INS)—Lewis J. Proctor, American manager of the Spanish Telephone company, was recovering today from the severe beating administered yesterday by striking telephone workers as he was leaving the company's headquarters.

The strike called for today was postponed until July 15, but syndicalist workers walked out yesterday. News of the postponement arrived at Barcelona too late to prevent a walkout and service was partly disrupted there.

The telephone company is a subsidiary of the International Telephone and Telegraph company of America.

PRISONER ESCAPES

CARSON CITY, Nev., July 7. (INS)—Joseph Moriock Jr., 25, former Ohio youth, serving a life sentence in the Nevada state penitentiary here for a double murder in Southern Nevada about a year ago, escaped from the state prison here early today.

Friendly Fevers

The cure of disease by the use of fever is being discussed a great deal now since the discovery of a new kind of fever artificially produced by electricity which has been found successful in killing disease germs in the body. Especial success has followed the use of this fever on patients suffering from paresis, a form of insanity, and from a well known social disease. In many cases these patients have been restored to health by this treatment.

This artificial fever is caused by high frequency radio waves and the treatment is called radiothermy. It has one advantage over the natural form of fever in that it can be brought on whenever desired and is easily controlled by a switch.

These remarkable results with electrically controlled fever are being tested at the University of Rochester of New York, and much is being done at the General Electric research laboratory at Schenectady. You will probably hear more about this new artificial fever in time. However, the idea that fever is beneficial is not new. Wagner-Jauregg, of Vienna, sometime ago injected malarial fever germs into the body of insane patients and many of them were completely cured.

In my own experience, I have found that the high temperature of a fever often destroys disease germs in the body. I wrote an article several years ago which many of you have no doubt pasted in your scrapbooks, in which I brought out the idea that fever is not an enemy but a friend. The name of the article was "Fevers—Our Friends."

When the body has sufficient vitality it often develops a high fever whenever the system becomes toxic or poisoned. The fever never naturally develops until such toxic accumulations are present in the system. If you did not have the fever the poisons would overcome you, or as one health writer described it, "Fever is nature's way of fighting death." When you have a fever you begin to breathe quickly. By the quickened breathing the lungs are furnished oxygen which is needed to burn up the wastes. That is the principal purpose of a fever—you burn up poisonous wastes. When you see the temperature going up, breathing getting faster and a copious perspiration breaking out, you should realize that the body is making a valiant effort toward a cure.

The thing to do with a fever is to let it burn itself out, for as soon as the poisons are burned out the fever will disappear. Never attempt to break up or stop a fever, although it is sometimes advisable to control the temperature to prevent it from getting too high. You can do a great deal to help the body at this time by using the right treatment. Nature is really trying to save the patient's life and you will find that the best plan is to help along with the right treatment.

In tomorrow's article I am going to give you the treatment which I have found satisfactory for all simple fevers. After the fever is over the patient will feel better in every way. Be sure to save the article so that you will know just what to do if anyone in your home develops a fever. To do the right thing at the beginning of a fever often saves much trouble and helps the patient get well that much sooner.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Disseminated Schlerosis

Question—C. T. F. writes: "I have been troubled with disturbances of speech, sense of feeling and muscular motion. I have been to the doctor and he says I have an early case of disseminated schlerosis. Will you please tell me what causes it and whether or not there is a cure for it? I am 38 years of age.'

Answer—Disseminated schlerosis seems to be caused by toxic inflammation of the brain or spinal cord. The only treatment I have found of value is a fasting and dieting regimen to increase the speed of toxins from the system. Fruit fasts, taken at intervals of about a month apart, with a balanced diet between fasts, often proves helpful. It is also a good plan to take hot and cold showers over the spine to increase the circulation. Probably osteopathic treatments would be of some benefit after you have followed this regimen for a while.

Craves Sweets

Question—Mrs. B. E. B. asks: "Can you tell me why I should crave sweets, especially chocolate coated candy? It seems that I just must have them. I am 22 years old and the mother of two children."

Answer—Your diet is probably not sufficiently nourishing. One who eats plenty of healthful foods usually overcomes this craving.

Headache

Question—M. E. B. writes: "I have severe headaches which are becoming more frequent. What would be the cause, and what can I do to cure them?"

Answer—The cause of headache seldom can be found in the head, itself, but must be considered a symptom of some other disorder located in another part of the body which affects the nerves in the head by reflex action. By following a fasting and dieting regimen you will find relief from your trouble.

Knox County Grain Harvest at Peak

Special to The Record News.

BENJAMIN, Texas, July 7.—According to County Agent W. E. Jones there are approximately 12,000 acres of wheat in Knox county along with some oats and barley. Threshing is just now at its height over the county, and it is believed that about 22 bushels per acre will be a fair average. Around Truscott and Gilliland, the best wheat growing section of the county, 25 to 30 bushels per acre have been reported, while in other communities a range of from 14 to 19 bushels is the average.

One field of volunteer wheat near town has just been threshed, producing 19 bushels per acre, with enough of the grain left on the ground for seeding for another crop.

Six cars of wheat have been shipped from here within the past two weeks, bought by Chas. Moorhouse, resident buyer, and shipped to Fort Worth, Houston and other Texas points. Mr. Moorhouse has another car loaded and one being loaded to ship out.

Texans Robbed During Visit to Alamo Shrine

SAN ANTONIO, July 7. (AP)—While L. W. Pape and his family from Fort Worth were paying their respects at the Alamo this morning a thief took $150 worth of clothes which were in a suitcase left in the parked car.

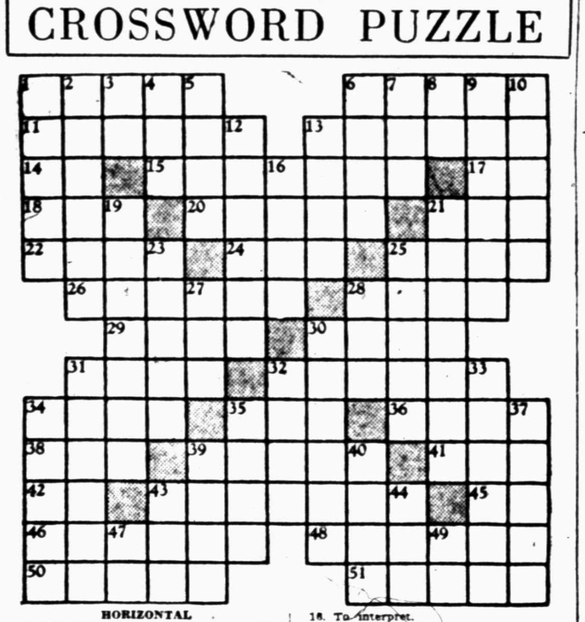

Pape said he and his family were on their way back to Fort Worth after having been on a tour of Mexico. The thief overlooked several other handbags in the car.

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Herr Schmeling, it appeared to some of us, should have been able to score an easy knockout in his match with Stribling, since he had the Georgian reeling from about the 12th on. But Stribling apparently knew how to ward off blows, since he couldn't land any himself. And when he went down for the count of nine in the 15th—that was a rarity in these days of set-ups, and it makes us feel kindly toward the German.

We read in an Associated Press dispatch by Charles Dunkley that it was Jack Dempsey who gave Max his first real encouragement. It was when Dempsey was in Cologne, Germany, on his honeymoon in 1924. He was earning expenses by appearing in exhibitions. Dempsey boxed one round with Schmeling, was impressed with the Teuton's ability, and encouraged him. "That one round started him on to ring success," Dunkley writes.

Previously Schmeling had wallowed in utmost poverty. Dunkley writes of these early days as follows:

"It was just a few years ago that Schmeling was stranded in Muhlheim Germany, broke, ragged and hungry. For a few cents he could buy a bowl of thick soup; spoons, knives and forks were attached to the table by chains so diners could not slip them into their pockets When Max could gather 10 cents he lived in the lodging house where a 'flop' on a crowded floor was his bed. A rope was strung the length of the room between two benches. The lodger rested his head on the rope and slept until an attendant of the 'flop house,' by the simple expedient of cutting the rope at dawn, awakened the sleepers.

"Now, Schmeling, with riches in his grasp, sincerely appreciates his expensive clothes, automobiles, good food and all the rest that goes with it. While not niggardly, Schmeling is thrifty and does not spend money foolishly. His ring earnings are wisely invested. He takes himself, his boxing and his pocketbook soberly and seriously as few boxers do. Schmeling is essentially a serious minded man, looking into the future.

"'I have my "mutter" to care for back in the old country, and I must make a success of this boxing business,' says Max. 'I do not wish to hurt any one, but this boxing is a profitable work, nein?'

"It was while he was broke that Schmeling, by mere chance, pulled on his first boxing glove. He was then in Mulheim and craving exercise, walked into the Sport Club Colonia, where he was invited to serve as a boxing partner.

"Max, then 19 years old, knocked out his opponent, who on regaining consciousness, engaged him for a bout with the middleweight champion of the club. Schmeling treated the champion to a knockout punch and began to wonder how long men had been earning money at this easy work."

Did You Know That—

Some of the state's best sports writers consider Buck Stanton a better first baseman than Irving Burns, of the 1930 Spudders.

The presidents of the Texas and Western league are doing some heavy thinking concerning a post-season series between the winner of the Dixie series and the Western league.

In New York state the fish and game protectors have explicit instructions to "make friends for the state"—they interview fishermen, find out what kind of luck they are having, learn the kind of bait or flies they are using, propose good places in which to fish, and direct sportsmen to unposted ground. They are clad in handsome brown uniforms and don't pull the hardboiled stuff.

Speaking of Fishermen

Ben Hill, sports writer of the Dallas Dispatch, gets off this one:

Behold the fisherman,
He riseth early in the morning
And disturbeth the whole household.
Mighty are his preparations.

He goes forth full of hope.
When the day is far spent, he returneth
Smelling of strong drink, and
The truth's not in him.

Taken From (Wotta) Life

"It's the last half of the ninth inning," says the radio announcer. "Two down, the bases are loaded, and the count's three-two on Stanton, first baseman for Wichita Falls. And on the next ball pitched Mr. Stanton—but first we wish to call your attention to that delicious peach ice cream, sold in bricks, clods, hunks, quarts, gallons, pails, wagon-loads, truck-loads, mule-loads, by your nearest dealer, and which may be eaten with knives, forks, shovels, spoons, steam-shovels . . ."

Knox City and Goree To Meet in Play-Off

Knox City and Goree, still tied for first place in the Brazos Valley league, will play it off for the first half championship next week, it was announced. Dates for the play-off were not definitely fixed. In last Sunday's games, Knox City defeated Sunset, 5 to 4, and Goree trampled Weinert, 18 to 8. In the other league game, Rhineland defeated Munday, 10 to 9.

Northsiders Defeat Katy Team, 12 to 6

The hustling Northsiders outslugged the fast stepping Katy nine Tuesday afternoon on Third and Broad and came out on top of a 12 to 6 score. This victory gave the Northsiders a clear claim to the top rung of the ladder for a day at least with a half game lead over the Veterans. Katy dropped back into a tie with the Taxman Refinery for third place. Bussy Qualls' big bat provided the punch for the Northsiders' attack, getting a triple, double and two singles in four trips to the plate. Prince and Wells, Qualls were the battery men for the winners while Holmes, Rhyne, Brandon and Thomas, Navaro worked for the Katy.

GULLIC'S HOMER UNLOADS SACKS

Stormy Returns to Mound In Great Style

DALLAS, July 7.—Ted Gullic's home run smash over the center field fence with the bases loaded in the fifth inning Tuesday night gave the Wichita Falls Spudders a well earned pitching battle between Fred Vincent and George Murray in the opener of their two-game series here before a crowd of 1,200 fans. The score was 5 to 1 but only one of the Spudders' tallies went on the books as earned as the side would have been retired without Gullic coming to bat in the fifth but for an error. Stanton fanned for what should have been the third out but reached base when the ball, which was low, got through Catcher Deberry and rolled to the backstop. It filled the bases for Garms had doubled and Allday had walked ahead of Stanton after two were out.

Vincent pitched a remarkable game, however, and clearly outduelled Murray. He gave up only three hits, two of which were successive doubles by Deberry and Murray after two were out in the eighth to produce the lone Dallas tally. The other hit off him was a single by the Dallas pitcher in the sixth. The only other man to reach base against him was Jones, who led off the sixth with a walk. Vincent set down the first 15 men who faced him.

It was Vincent's first completely pitched game since he was operated on several weeks ago for appendicitis.

Score in Fifth

While Vincent was mowing the locals down in one, two, three order through the early rounds the Spudders were putting one or two runners on base in every frame, although it was not until the fifth that they were able to cash in.

After Garms had lofted to Loepp and Allday lined to Benes in the first, Stanton got the initial hit of the fray, a sharp single to center. Gullic followed with a walk but Bradbury went out on three swings. James bounced to Euller and Benes and Loepp took the sky route to Garms and Gullic.

Fuss opened the second with a walk but was forced by Scharein, James unassisted. Loepp made a sensational running catch near the fence to remove Euller and Vincent forced Scharein, James to Benes. Langford rolled to Stanton. The third strike was called on Holman and Cotter lined to Fuss.

After Garms hoisted to Jones in the third, Allday beat out a scratch hit to Benes behind second but was blotted when Stanton slashed into a double play, Holman to James to Cotter. Jones rolled to Stanton. Deberry grounded and Murray popped to Scharein.

Loepp Stars

Loepp retired Gullic, Fuss and Scharein in the fourth, Bradbury being held to a single on a hard smash through third by Langford's fast fielding after the first out. Loepp's catch on Euller's drive was a leaping stab against the center field wire and brought a thundering ovation. James raised to Fuss. Scharein threw Benes out and took Loepp's pop fly.

Murray threw Euller out on a hard smash back to the box starting the fifth. Vincent grounded to James. Garms started the trouble by slapping a double to right and Allday walked. Stanton took three swings but the last one was low and got through Deberry to let the batsman reach first, loading the bases for Gullic to empty with his home run over the center field barrier. Bradbury was rifled down by Benes. Langford sailed to Gullic, Holman again fanned and Cotter took the ground route to Stanton.

Fuss' double to left center opened another scoring rally in the sixth. He counted when Scharein lashed a single to right. Euller sacrificed, Deberry to Cotter, but Vincent whiffed and, after Garms strolled, Allday was tossed out by James. Jones led off the home half with a walk, being the first Dallas player to reach base off Vincent. Deberry popped to Allday. Murray got the first Steer hit, a single to center, Jones stopping at second. James fouled to Bradbury and Benes flied to Gullic.

Fuss Good Afield

Murray knocked down another hot one off Stanton's bat and tossed him out as the seventh session got under way. Gullic was called out on strikes. Bradbury beat out a roller to deep short and was forced by Fuss, James unassisted. Fuss made a fine catch going back to dispose of Loepp. Langford and Holman were tossed out by Vincent and Scharein.

Scharein started the eighth with a hit through the left side. Euller sacrificed, Murray to Cotter. Murray took Vincent's bounder and tossed to Holman, who ran Scharein down unaided. James snared Garms' high bounder over Cotter's head and threw to Benes to force Vincent, retiring the side. After Cotter dribbled to Stanton and Jones popped to Scharein, successive doubles to left by Deberry and to center by Murray netted the Steers a run that averted a shutout. James grounded to Allday.

After Allday lofted to Langford and Stanton scooted to Benes in the ninth, Gullic socked a double against the left field boards. He was stranded as Bradbury was called out on strikes. In the last home stand, Benes and Loepp bounced to Euller and Langford popped to Bradbury.

Cubs Advance to Third Place by Winning Double-Header With Cards

CHICAGO, July 7. (AP)—Dan Taylor, pinch hitter for Jurges in the eighth inning with the bases loaded, drove a double to left field, cleaning the bases and giving the Cubs a 6 to 3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the second game of a double-header today. The Cubs won the opener 14-2 and advanced to third place by the clean sweep.

Flint Rhem was opposed by Bush, Malone and Blake. Malone got credit for the victory. Score:

Hoover and Other Notables Attend Game

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—Philadelphia, with big George Earnshaw playing the "iron man" role, came back today to even the series with Washington, scoring a 7-3 victory before President Hoover and a crowd of notables. The victory put the Athletics five and a half games ahead of the American league race.

Earnshaw, who lost the opener on Sunday, outpitched Crowder and Fischer today, holding Washington to eight hits and pounding in the first Philadelphia run with a double off the right field wall.

Governor Ritchie of Maryland and a staff of state officials occupied a box across the field from President Hoover and near the Philadelphia dugout. In the seventh inning Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington team, escorted the veteran Connie Mack across the field to shake hands with the president. The Philadelphia baseball leader was given a hand by the crowd.

Connie Mack had Grove warming up in the bull pen today and he is expected to start the southpaw ace in tomorrow's play-off of yesterday's scoreless tie. Score:

BROWNS LOSE IN 12TH

ST. LOUIS, July 7. (AP)—Big Chad Kimsey, slugging pitcher for the Browns, weakened momentarily in the 12th inning here today and the Chicago White Sox took the final game of the series, 10-8.

Kimsey, pinch hitting for Walter Stewart in the ninth, cracked out a home run to tie the score. In the 12th Simons drove in Watwood and Blue with a sizzling single for the margin of victory.

Red Faber, who relieved Thomas in the eighth, was credited with the victory. Score:

Golf Stars Begin Trek to Toronto For Canadian Open Tournament

TORONTO, Ont., July 7. (AP)—The scene of action on the far-flung battlefield of major golf shifts this week to the Mississauga stronghold, near Toronto, where the Canadian open begins Thursday.

The majority of the seasoned campaigners from the United States and Great Britain, who fought the heat and the rough at Inverness last week will be on hand Thursday morning to start the 72-hole quest of the crown now worn by Tommy Armour, British open champion. Play will continue through Saturday.

In the entry list of 154 are eight former champions, including Armour, Leo Diegel, Charles and Albert Murray of Montreal, Karl Keffer of Ottawa, Al Watrous, MacDonald Smith and George Cumming of Toronto.

George Von Elm, who lost the United States open by one stroke to Billy Burke, also has said he intends to play in the Canadian open. The entire British Ryder cup team and Henry and Leslie Cotton, the British free lances, are entered, as well as Aubrey Boomer and Aguste Boyer of France, and Percy Allis of Germany. Burke plans to be present as an onlooker.

Czechs to Curb Cheers As British Netters Play

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, July 7. (AP)—Nothing more than discreet murmurs of approval will break the silence around the tennis courts here Thursday when Great Britain and Czecho-Slovakia begin their duel in the European zone Davis cup finals.

Newspapers have exhorted all Czechs attending the matches to preserve the strictest self-control. The British players, it is said, are not used to the nerve-wracking noise which usually accompanied important matches in Czecho-Slovakia and their game likely would be affected seriously by such displays of enthusiasm.

Loafers Win on Forfeit; Veterans Win Protest

The Sibley Street Loafers were awarded their scheduled Twilight league battle Tuesday afternoon with Smoots Store by the score of 9 to 0. The Smoots Store nine failed to show up in time for the battle. This marked two straight wins for the Loafers, having beaten the Northwest Motors Sunday.

At a Twilight league meeting held Monday at the Wichita Poster Advertising company, the protested game between Smoots Store and the Veterans was awarded to the latter due to the use of ineligible players by Smoots Store. The Wichita Poster-Veterans game scheduled for Jalonic street diamond Tuesday was postponed until today by agreement of the two managers.

EMPIRE BEATS NOBLE-LITTLE

Lowery Allows Sluggers Only Four Hits

Gib Lowery Tuesday was in the form which made him famous in this section of the baseball world this spring as he let the hard hitting Noble-Little baseball club down with only four bingles while his mates were batting out a 7 to 2 Empire Paper company win.

The Empire Paper nine broke into the win column with a crash, nicking Wesley Hightower for 10 hits. McKee, Ray and Norris led the attack with two hits each.

Boyd provided the big thorn in Lowery's side, getting half of the four hits off Lowery and scoring both the Noble-Little tallies. Pete Robertson gave the fans a rare thrill in the seventh inning when he raced back into short left field to rob Curfman of a sure hit. He took the ball over his head with arms outstretched while running at full speed. Score:

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—After an early advance, cotton prices broke today under a heavy liquidating movement.

The general market closed steady, with a slight upturn from the lowest, but with net losses of 14 to 21 points.

The opening was steady 14 to 21 points higher and for a time displayed a fair amount of firmness with some active foreign buying as well as trade buying, based on firmness in the Liverpool market and a bullish interpretation of the final settlement of the principles of the war debt plan. It soon became evident however, that longs were inclined to take advantage of the more favorable news to liquidate previous purchases and the market developed a reactionary tendency, later becoming weak. The decline in the stock market served undermined confidence and leading Wall street houses were conspicuous on the selling side. Moreover, the recent rains in the central and eastern cotton belt states gave a more favorable impression regarding the progress of the new crop.

The government report, giving the first official figures on the new acreage, will be published at noon on Wednesday and part of the operations during the day were undoubtedly in the way of evening up for this report, which is considered of vital importance. The average of nine private crop estimates have indicated a decrease of 11 per cent in the acreage compared with last year and it seemed to be the consensus among cotton houses that a decrease of this amount has been about discounted and that it would require a considerable divergence from this figure to affect the market either way.

Liverpool cables reported that the market there had been influenced by local and foreign buying and covering on the French agreement and there was a fair cloth inquiry from India and China. Exports today 2,916, making 6,697,154 for this season. Port receipts 4,014. U. S. port stocks 2,970,253.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 7. (AP)—Cotton was somewhat more active today. After an early advance of a little over a dollar a bale mainly on the agreement of France to the moratorium, prices reacted practically two dollars a bale on liquidation in advance of the government acreage report due tomorrow and closed near the bottom showing a net loss of three-quarters of a dollar a bale.

A private authority estimated the decrease in acreage at 8.9 per cent.

Liverpool came in 9@10 penny points better than due and private cables stated that there was local and foreign buying on the French agreement and shorts covered. Manchester cabled that there was a fair cloth inquiry from India and China.

October closed at 10.12 and December at 10.35 or 14@15 points net lower for the day.

Liverpool Cotton

LIVERPOOL, July 7. (INS)—Spots cotton was in fair demand at the opening today with prices steady. Sales amounted to 5,000 bales and receipts totaled 2,000 bales.

At midday, middling fair sold at 6.78d, strictly good middling at 6.33d, good middling at 5.98d, strictly middling at 5.73d, middling at 5.58d, strictly low middling at 5.38d, low middling at 5.13d, strictly good ordinary at 4.93d, and good ordinary at 4.50d. December at 5.55d, January at 5.59d, March at 5.67d, and May at 5.75d.

BOSTON WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, July 7. (AP)—The wool market appears to be gaining strength on 56's and 48, 50's fleeces. A number of houses handling these lines have sold fairly large weights recently and several weeks will be required to complete grading and deliveries of recent orders. In view of this situation asking prices are being marked up one cent a pound in the grease. However, some fleece wools are vailable and sales are being closed at prices received last week.

Market Falls Back Sharply as Profit-Taking Wipes Out Advance

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 7. (US)—Stocks today experienced the sharpest setback since the "moratorium recovery movement" was initiated a little more than a fortnight ago.

Formal acceptance of the debt holiday plan by France roused only a feeble response at the outset. As so often happens, bulls took advantage of the "good news" to take profits with the result that the initial rally was stifled before it made any great headway. Furthermore, failure of public buying to make itself evident in any great volume on the publication of the good news prompted hurried liquidation by close observers.

All of these factors, together with unfavorable financial advices from Spain and knowledge that the internal banking situation in Germany still is critical, caused heavy liquidation by longs as well as renewed activities by prominent shorts. Considerable selling from foreign sources also was in evidence.

Then, too, leadership on the bull side was lacking. The operator who recently was most outspoken in his bullish sentiments withdrew from the long side and openly indicated that a "technical reaction" was overdue.

This confirms the exclusive disclosure made here that the former bear operator who reversed his position some time ago was anticipating a sharp setback. The operator in question, however, has not altered his long pull bullishness. On the contrary, it is understood that he plans to renew his activities should another sharp setback occur. Nevertheless, it was significant to note that all of his recent favorites such as Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Case Threshing Machine and Westinghouse Electric, were particularly weak, reflecting the withdrawal of support.

Liquidation also continued in evidence in copper stocks. Anaconda was sold on rumors of impending financing as well as on reports that unofficial prices were being shaded. Further reduction in the official price of export copper also is anticipated shortly. Heavy selling also appeared in International Nickel coincident with reports that earnings for the second quarter would be in the neighborhood of only about 5 cents a share. Slackening demand for copper metal, however, was responsible for general heaviness in this group.

Oils also were subjected to renewed pressure. Selling in this group largely represented disgusted liquidation by investors who apparently are becoming tired over the steady cuts in gasoline prices.

Notwithstanding the severity of the decline in many sections of the list, there is little disposition to become uneasy over the longer term outlook in conservative quarters. For several days past, it has been indicated in these sections that the market was over-discounting the immediate benefits of the moratorium.

The beneficial effects of this development over a period of time are not to be denied. Immediate benefits of the plan, however, are more psychological than tangible. Therefore, cool observers prefer to await more concrete results from industrial centers. Advices from these sections probably will begin to show some improvement during the early part of the fall. It is on this premise that conservative interests base their longer range optimism.

Weakness in rail stocks was in anticipation of unfavorable June early statements. Most of the leading systems will fail to register any improvement worthy of mention. Furthermore, the attitude of the I. C. C. regarding the request for a 15 per cent horizontal increase in rates is creating the impression that the increases will be granted too late to do much benefit this year.

Commodities were generally lower. Cotton was down about $1 a bale, while wheat was irregular. Corn declined fractionally.

Oats—No. 2 red 28@30c.

Barley—No. 2 38@41c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo per 100 pounds $1.05@1.10; No. 2 kaffir $1.02@1.08.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 7. (AP)—Downturns in wheat prices today superseded fleeting gains that resulted from accord with France about war debts. Stock market instability had a bearish influence, and trade in all cereals lacked volume. September delivery of wheat equaled the season's bottom price record.

Wheat closed irregular, at ⅝c decline to ⅜c advance, corn ½c off to ¾c up, oats ⅛@¼c down, and provisions varying from 10c setback to an equal gain.

At first wheat showed fractional upturns, responsive to moderate general buying, but initial prices were about the highest of the day. As demand waned, trade leaders expressed belief that so far as grain was concerned the market effect of France's action had been almost completely nullified because of repeated shifts backward and forward in public expectations. In addition, some selling on advances was ascribed to belief that reactions were to be looked for after good news was out.

An authoritative unofficial estimate that the amount of domestic wheat fed to livestock the season ended June 30 had been only 65,000,000 to 75,000,000 bushels more than for the season previous was generally construed as bearish. Some traders had expected the increase to be 150,000,000 bushels or more. Meanwhile, Canadian advices indicated no promise for much of a crop, and news was similar regarding Northwest North Dakota and Eastern Montana. The trade, however, paid little heed to bullish factors, and almost ignored evidence of a moderate improvement in export demand for wheat from North America. World's available stocks of wheat showed 4,863,000 bushels decrease from the week.

Corn and oats followed the leadership of wheat. July corn, though, was an exception, responding to a sharp falling off in arrivals, the day's receipts in Chicago totaling but 36 cars against 162 a week ago.

Provisions were governed mainly by the course of grains.

TRADE TRENDS

(By The Associated Press)

Automobiles—Registrations of new passenger automobiles in Wayne county, Michigan (Detroit), in July totaled 6,003, compared with 6,983 in May and 7,428 in June last year. Truck registrations last month totaled 508, compared with 480 in the corresponding month of 1930.

Building—June construction contract awards in the metropolitan area of New York were well ahead of May and only a little under the total for June of last year, F. W. Dodge corporation reports. The total for last month was $76,602,500, compared with $62,176,600 in May and $80,324,000 in June of 1930.

Cotton Manufacturing—While advices as to the cotton manufacturing situation in foreign countries are far from favorable, they have a much better tone than in many months, the New York cotton exchange service reports. The most pronounced improvement is reported from China, where the mills have sold large quantities of yarn and cloth for spot and future delivery.

Machinery—Again automotive sales are the strong point in the machinery and machine-tool field, American machinist reports in its summary of conditions in the industry for the past week. Chevrolet has purchased a substantial number of gear-cutting machines and some other equipment; Chrysler has purchased some tools, and other districts report a quickening of demand from automobile and accessory sources.

Silver—Bar silver held steady in the New York market, unchanged at 29⅜ cents an ounce. In London the metal was firm, advancing a sixteenth of a penny to 13⅝ pence.

Steel—The American metal market, in its weekly review of the iron and steel industry, says steel plant operations "this week may be estimated at not over 30 per cent" compared with last week's estimate of 34 per cent. "The two weeks combined," the review says, "in all probability represent the low point of the year, as the midyear inventory and the holiday made a special drag on the filing of specifications. Next week should show a slight rebound, but it is improbable that July as a whole will average a 36 per cent operation, which represents the rate of last December, the lowest since January, 1922, excepting July, 1924."

THROCKMORTON COUNTY SHOWING

The Sun Crest Oil company, a deep wildcat test located 450 feet east of the center of the west line of section 1615 T. E. & L. survey in Trockmorton county, is estimated making 2,000,000 cubic feet of gas from a foot of sand topped at 3440 feet. The test is a short distance east and south of the old Associates Oils company two tests which had a number of showings at various depths but were later abandoned as dry holes.

JACK MARTIN GOING AHEAD

Martin and others No. 1 Kemp townsite in the Kemp City area, south Wichita county, Tuesday night was slowly coring ahead in a hard lime formation looking for the saturated lime. The well is one mile south of the Deep Oil Development No. 1 Munger and should pick up the usual saturated formation in the next few hours.

ARCHER COUNTY DEEP TEST

Ten-inch pipe is being set at 3000 feet in the Deep Oil-Lindsay No. A-5, Luke McCrory trustee deep test in Archer county. The well, located 660 feet west of the discovery or No. 1 L. F. Wilson 2200-foot producer, about 10 days ago, passed through 19 feet of sand which from its showing of flowing to the derrick top was estimated at 1,500 barrels, will continue to drill to the contract depth of 5500 feet.

SOUTHEAST OF KEMP CITY

Shappell Oil company Tuesday night was still drilling on the cement plug at 2400 feet in their No. 1 W. P. Ferguson deep test, located in the Patterson survey southeast of Kemp City in north Archer county.

Youth Fatally Crushed In Quest of Work

ST. LOUIS, July 7. (INS)—An unidentified youth, about 19 years old, seeking work, was crushed to death here today when he was caught between a bucket of a crane and a platform at the Central Buildings Materials company.

Workmen at the materials company said the youth had told them he was Toy Hindman, but positive identification has not been established.

TO THE CREDITORS of the Wade-Thompson company, Inc.: You are hereby notified that the Wade-Thompson company, Incorporated, of Wichita Falls, Texas, on the Eighth day of June, 1931, executed a deed of assignment conveying to Frank Northcutt, acting as committee chairman for Wichita Falls Association of Credit Men, Incorporated, all of its property for the benefit of such creditors as will consent to accept their proportional share of its estate and discharge it from their respective claims, and that the undersigned accepted said trust, and has duly qualified as required by law. All the creditors consenting to said assignment must within four months after the publication of this notice, make known to the assignee their consent in writing, and within six months from the date of this notice file their claims, as prescribed by law, with the undersigned whose name and postoffice address is shown below. Witness my hand this seventh day of July, 1931. Frank Northcutt, P. O. Box 368, Wichita Falls, Texas.

'Jake's' Hidden Booty Sought

CHICAGO, July 7. (INS)—Buried treasure to the amount of $3,000,000 was sought today in downtown banks where John "Jake the Barber" Factor is believed by authorities to have cached it.

The search for gold was legally launched when Attorney John H. S. Lee, representing Arthur Traviss Faber, one of Factor's alleged British victims, filed an amended bill of complaint in the United States district court.

This action was taken barely two hours before the erstwhile Halsted street barber, who is charged with mulcting British victims out of $7,000,000 was to learn his fate regarding deportation to England from U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

VETS BORROW 792 MILLION

Washington Bureau Leads In Bonus Loans

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—New loans made to veterans since enactment of the 50 per cent loan law totaled $792,496,116, on June 27.

These were made to 2,064,809 veterans.

A tabulation issued by the veterans administrator showed the Washington office led all others in the amount and number of loans made, paying out $152,856,078 to 417,804 veterans.

Five other offices had loaned more than $25,000,000, New York leading with $79,115,531. The others were Hines, Ill., $45,837,241; Philadelphia $31,451,314; Detroit $28,173,002, and Los Angeles, $27,160,089.

Eighteen other cities surpassed the $10,000,000 mark. They were Atlanta, Ga.; Boston, Mass.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Charlotte, N. C.; Cincinnati; Cleveland; Dallas, Texas; Indianapolis; Kansas City, Mo.; Milwaukee; Nashville, Tenn.; Newark, N. J.; New Orleans; Oklahoma City; Pittsburgh; St. Louis, Mo.; San Antonio, and San Francisco.

Figures for offices in western portions of the country included Albuquerque, N. M., $3,413,862; Dallas, $14,925,188; Kansas City, Mo., $10,116,506; Oklahoma City, $12,752,031; St. Louis, $12,122,506; San Antonio, $11,160,036; and Wichita, Kan., $6,988,116.

Car Gives Clue to Death Mystery at Gainesville

GAINESVILLE, Texas, July 7. (AP)—Officers learned today that a maroon colored sedan had been seen last Friday in the vicinity of the ravine in which the partially decomposed body of a young man was found yesterday. A farmer said he saw two men drive the car to the ravine and later return. Officers were tracing this clue in the hope of identifying the dead man and apprehending the person or persons that shot him twice through the body.

SPAIN DRAFTS CONSTITUTION

Universal Suffrage Provided in Program

MADRID, July 7. (UP)—Universal suffrage, equal rights of men and women to hold office, and religious freedom were among the broad provisions in the projected federal constitution of the republic as revised by the judicial commission and made public today.

Religious liberty is guaranteed—it had been indicated the constitution would provide for complete separation of church and state—together with freedom of speech.

The draft of the constitution provides that congress will be elected by all citizens of Spain over 23 years of age. Citizens over 23, regardless of sex, are eligible for election as a deputy in the national congress, for a period of five years. Deputies may be re-elected for an indefinite number of terms.

The senate would be composed of 250 senators.

The draft constitution stipulates that constitutional rights and guarantees can be suspended wholly or in part by the government, when necessary for the security of the state.

The president of the republic will be elected by congress from among the senators. "Any Spaniard over 40 years of age is eligible, except naturalized citizens, military men on active duty, ecclesiastics, and members of former reigning families of Spain."

A term of six years was provided.

The constitution is to be considered at the constitutional convention, in Madrid July 14.

Navy to Enter Single Balloon in U. S. Race

WASHINGTON, July 7. (INS)—The navy has decided to enter one balloon in the 1931 national elimination balloon races which will start in Akron, Ohio. It will be piloted by Lieut. T. E. W. Settle, U. S. N., inspector of naval aircraft at the Goodyear Zeppelin plant at Akron. His aid will be Lieut. Wilfred Tushnell.

VALLEY TOUR PLANS READY

Many Visitors to Accept C-C Invitation

A large number of key farmers, county agents and visitors from this section are expected to be present here for the second annual tour of the Wichita irrigated valley Thursday and Friday, according to Frank Wolf, chairman of the Junior chamber of commerce agricultural committee, which is sponsoring the event.

Numerous invitations have been mailed to county agents and key farmers in a number of counties surrounding Wichita Falls, Mr. Wolf said, and replies had been received up to Tuesday from seven counties of Texas and one of Oklahoma, indicating that approximately 60 persons would be here to inspect the valley on the trip. Every reason is had to believe that at least 25 Wichita Falls business men will be on the tour, it was said.

Visitors Guests of C-C

Out-of-town persons will be guests of the Junior chamber of commerce on the tour. Local residents will be charged a small sum, $1.20, to cover the cost of three meals to be served on the journey. Mr. Wolf said Tuesday that a special invitation is extended to the people of Iowa Park to make the trip, and especially to take lunch Friday at the experiment station near Iowa Park, which is to be a major stop on the route.

Sights to be seen on the trip include several dairies, truck farms, grain farms, turkey ranches, and alfalfa fields.

The touring party will assemble at the courthouse here Thursday afternoon and will depart at 1 p. m. to go to the truck growing area east of town, where the Ferguson dairy, Hartsook & Downing dairy, and Ben F. Greer dairy and alfalfa crops will be inspected. From there the group will return through town and journey out the Seymour road to visit the Rivercrest dairy and Dr. L. Mackechney's dairy.

Spend Night at Diversion

The trippers will then go to the Diversion lake, where the night will be spent. Supper will be served there Thursday night, and breakfast Friday morning. During the stop-over time will be available for fishing and swimming.

Leaving the Diversion lake the party will work eastward during the day Friday, viewing alfalfa patches, dairies and representative valley farms en route to the experimen station at Iowa Park, where luncheon will be served. During the afternoon inspection of the station will be made for information about problems of agriculture being studied there and the extent of results being obtained.

All meals and the one night lodging at Diversion lake will be under the direction of Frank Creighton, Boy Scout executive, it was announced.

The tour is the second conducted in recent weeks by the Junior chamber of commerce. In June about 35 citizens of Wichita Falls participated in the "business men's" tour of the valley. Much good toward the education of Wichita Falls residents to the opportunities of the valley has resulted from the first tour, Mr. Wolf declared.

Sterling's Vacation Gives Witt a Chance

AUSTIN, July 7. (AP)—Edgar E. Witt of Waco has been lieutenant governor for about half a year and he still has not had a chance to act as governor.

However, his chance probably will come next month because Gov. Ross S. Sterling is planning a short vacation trip to Colorado, in connection with which he will attend the oil conference at Denver Aug. 10.

Asa Candler to Seek New Air Speed Record

BURBANK, Calif., July 7. (US)—Plans for a record-breaking flight from California to Florida by Asa G. Candler Jr., were announced by the Atlanta millionaire here today. He said:

"As soon as weather conditions are favorable Mrs. Candler, our pilot, Beeler Blevins, and I will hop off."

Candler recently purchased a speed plane at a cost of $25,000. The plane has an estimated speed of 220 miles an hour.

University Cafeteria Serves 1,500 Each Day

AD CLUB HOLDS FINAL MEET

First Fall Luncheon to Honor A. E. Kelly

Closing the activities of the summer, members of the Advertising club met for the last luncheon of the season at the Kemp hotel Tuesday at noon when the greater part of the time was devoted to a round table discussion on the modes of advertising.

In the business session which followed the discussion, plans were made to reorganize the club in September with a birthday party for A. E. Kelly, district manager for the Texas Electric Service company. Lester Jones was appointed chairman of the program committee for the meeting.

Tuesday's meeting was presided over by R. E. Shepherd, president of the organization.

Night Blooming Flowers Listed

rocket (Hesperis matronialis) is another flower the breath of which is sweet at night for those to whom a garden is something more than a splendid show.

Certain herbs may well be planted beside a path where a woman passing will brush them with her skirt, stoop to bruise their odorous leaves, and identify them by their smell. Rose geranium, savory marjoram, mint, sage, thyme, lemon verbena and basil—some of them has associative value for every one who reads these lines.

Sound and motion also contribute to the pleasures of a night garden. The movements of leaves when a breeze stirs, the sleepy murmurs of birds in a nest, the flowing of gentle waters, the chorus of tree frogs, a sudden splash, the small beat of a giant moth's wings, the waving of grass, chirp of crickets, and now and again the rich night song of a mockingbird—to him who has a garden beside water all these give joy.

Testimony Closed in $19,000 Slander Suit

Testimony in the suit of R. C. Mann, city food inspector, against R. L. Ward, produce merchant, for damage of $19,550 for alleged slander, was completed late Tuesday before Judge W. W. Cook of the 78th district court.

The jury in the case is to be charged Wednesday morning, Judge Cook said.

The plaintiff's petition alleges that the defendant published and circulated false and slanderous statements about the former. Testimony in the case started Monday and required the full day Tuesday. Judge R. E. Taylor represents the plaintiff. B. D. Sartin is the defendant's counsel.

Real Estate Owners File Tax Protests

More than 100 real estate owners appeared Tuesday before the board of tax equalization, composed of the commissioners court. Hearings of real estate cases will continue through Wednesday, and Thursday will be devoted to cases of banks, railroads and oil companies.

The board has thus far not raised the valuation of any property over the sum accepted last year, Commissioner M. A. Bundy said, although smaller renditions this year than last on real estate have in several instances been increased to the 1930 figure.

Why
Slow Melting Ice
Is the Most Beautiful Ice in the World

Several years ago our shareholders opened a research division for the improvement of the manufacture of ice, and so remarkable has been our success, we are anxious for the public to know of same.

We are now able to freeze ice and remove it from the molds at a low temperature which, formerly, would have cracked it into a thousand pieces. We have also, by a process of aeration, removed from our ice all white cores as well as taste and odor.

With ice frozen at such a low temperature, as clear as a crystal and hard as a piece of glass, it should now be the most economical part of your budget.

Hundreds of chemical refrigerator owners find our "SLOW MELTING ICE" indispensible in their homes.

Don't fail to give it a fair trial before the hot weather is over.

Economists Believe Moratorium Sure to Restore Good Business

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The success of President Hoover's proposal for a moratorium on governmental debts between nations is assured, in the opinion of economists, however much politicians of varying shades of opinion attack it. It is conceded that there may be changes in the final form of the agreement drawn up, if one ever is, but that is relatively immaterial. The outstanding fact in the situation is that the plan, by its very suggestion, has become operative. This appears to be true.

The situation may be compared to one in which a creditor knows in advance that his debtor cannot pay him. As the due date approaches, the impending default threatens to disturb credit relations beyond the immediate debt. So, seeing his debtor approaching him and knowing that he comes to say he cannot pay, the creditor steps forward and says: "Don't pay he now."

In this parable there are onlookers whose business affairs would have been adversely affected by witnessing an actual default. Instead of such an untoward event occurring, the tables are turned. The creditor volunteers to await payment and the debtor is spared the actual avowal that he cannot pay. Every one is encouraged; every one has an opportunity to take breath.

The next move is a decision to pause long enough to talk over the proposal to postpone. The governments now are in that position. France has her views which have not been in favor of an unqualified acceptance. Great Britain intimates a general agreement and, of course, Germany is exceedingly unwilling to accept the postponement. The agreement is general, if not on the question of a moratorium, at least on the question of discussing a moratorium.

The gravamen of the matter lies just here. The nations stop to consider whether or not they shall stop. Meantime, the stoppage, the pause —actually the morttorium—has become effective.

In almost any business deal in the world and especially in a large banking or financial deal, there is a suspension of activity pending a decision of the course to be followed. When a commercial firm is in business difficulties and the matter of applying for a receiver is under discussion, unless the business is some sort of public utility with a franchise to maintain, the chances are there will be a considerable suspension in activities. There certainly will be a suspension in payments of money, especially the payments the adjustment of which is the most conspicuous item under consideration.

Nations Move Slowly

If this is true in the fast moving business world it is more emphatically true of relations between nations. International negotiations are notoriously deliberate. Because the interests of so many people are involved, every step must be carefully examined. It will be remembered that months were required to arrange the terms of the funding of the allied war debts to the United States and, in the case of France, years.

In consequence, when a question so important as the formal declaration of a moratorium arises among nations, it is a foregone conclusion that long-drawn-out discussion will be involved. Meantime, however, there is the business pause, the suspension pending definite agreement on terms. That, in effect, brings the advantages of the moratorium itself.

In no other case of such magnitude would the effect follow in the same swift way. When a proposal is made to take an affirmative action any pause for discussion involves a delay. An agreement must be reached as to the manner of taking the proposed action before the action can begin. But when the question is, like the instant one, a question of refraining from doing something, the very process of pausing to consider is an accomplishment, in part, of the purpose itself. In pausing to consider whether or not certain nations shall refrain from collection of debts from certain other nations, the desired postponement becomes operative.

This situation is clearly realized at the White House. Close associates of President Hoover are aware that he feels that a tremendous psychological encouragement has been given the entire world by the mere proposal of a breathing space. He is of the opinion that, even though a final agreement is not drawn along the exact lines of the moratorium proposed, the pressure will have been removed sufficiently to allow for the needed economic recovery.

May Avert Catastrophe

The opinion has even been ventured that the effect of the pause will enable the German nation to so recoup its strength that it would be found that payment then could be made. In such an event, the unratified moratorium would have served its purpose.

Freedom From Default

What, in the opinion of statesmen and world economists, is most needed is a freedom, however brief, from the overhanging spectre of default. When payment has been deferred, pending discussion of the terms of a moratorium, that deferment does not take to itself the unwholesome name of default. Credit is not hopelessly impaired. And the pause gives opportunity for the gathering of financial forces to meet the issue.

The response of the bourses of the world to the proposal is regarded as a large justification for it. In every great commercial nation, prices of securities have reacted so that, in the aggregate, hundreds of millions of dollars of value have been added to quoted values. This is the sort of thing which helps business everywhere. Business men who have been hesitant concerning new enterprises, bankers who have been doubtful of the wisdom of granting applications for loans are given the heartening feeling that the world is being permitted the chance to move forward toward prosperity again. There is a freer and easier air about the commercial structure and the urge to do business, to place orders, to give employment, to lend money is felt.

HOOVER TO GET WHEAT PLEA

Capper to Take Appeal to White House

WASHINGTON, July 7. (UP)—Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, told the United Press today he would carry directly to President Hoover his appeal that Kansas wheat farmers be further assisted by the federal farm board.

Capper and Vice President Curtis called this week on Chairman James C. Stone to urge that the board's 200,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat be held for a price of 85 cents a bushel. Kansas farmers are about to harvest a bumper, low-priced crop.

"We didn't get much encouragement from the farm board," Capper said. "I am going to put the whole thing up to President Hoover, telling him just how things are out there."

Graham Youth Leaves For Navy Training School

James Gordon Graham, of Graham, Texas, was en route to the navy training station at San Diego, Calif., Tuesday, after enlisting in the U. S. navy here Monday, according to R. F. Gilmore, navy recruiting officer.

Barney Clyde Hall of Hollis, Okla., re-enlisted Tuesday after serving a four-year enlistment. Hall's re-enlistment is as elertcian's mate, second class. He left here Tuesday for Dallas, where he will be assigned duty aboard the U. S. S. Medusa, repair ship of the battle fleet on the West coast.

Graham, who is 18 years of age, declared his intention of trying for a navy appointment to the U. S. naval academy at Annapolis. He will serve a 12-weeks' training period at San Diego, and is entitled to academy entrance examinations after serving one year, with nine months' duty aboard a vessel in full commission.

Humble Reduces Posted Prices

HOUSTON, July 7. (AP)—An average 15 cents a barrel reduction in posted prices for crude oil has been posted by the Humble Oil and Refining company to become effective at 7 a. m. Wednesday.

The Humble Oil and Refining company in its new price schedule does not post prices for East Texas crudes from the Kilgore, Longview and Lathrop pools, continuing to pay the average price.

The latest price reduction brings about 10 cents a barrel oil for crudes in Winkler, Pecos, Crane, Upton, Crockett, Ector, Howard, Glasscock counties in Texas and Lea county, New Mexico, a reduction of 15 cents a barrel from the former price.

Mexican Wounded In Knife Duel

A Mexican was attended at the Wichita General hospital Tuesday night for severe although not serious knife wounds received in an affray with another Mexican at an address on Lake street.

His assailant was charged with aggravated assault and lodged in the county jail after he had reported with his wife to the police station. The man's clothes were clotted with blood as he walked into the station to surrender and to tell police that he had left the other man at their mutual home.

He and his wife explained that the fight was the outgrowth of an argument between the two men concerning an agreement of the injured man to provide groceries in exchange for room and board for himself and his son at the couple's home.
