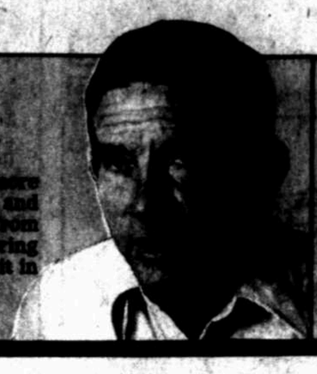
Coming Sunday

Pawn business

Everything's being in everything from guns and jewelry to plastic items. A newspaper "serves the community just like a bank does," says one local pawn broker. Read about it in Sunday's Lifestyle section.

Medical business

"We felt we wanted to do something more than what we were going," said Dr. John and Martha Adams who, 20 years ago, moved from Texas to Nairobi, Kenya. They work to bring health to the people of Africa. Read about it in Sunday's Lifestyle section.



Airline business

Major airlines lose $1 million a day, and pilot negotiations are in turmoil. Pilots, mechanics, reservations, travel agents, and investors operating airlines will be discussed in a Page One six-part series beginning Sunday.

CAT scanner hearing OK'd, not scanner itself

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

A $1 million CAT scanner, which was reported approved by the Texas Health Facilities Commission in Friday's Midland Reporter-Telegram, only has been approved to be heard by the commission.

According to the Reporter-Telegram's Austin Bureau, the THFC has scheduled a hearing Sept. 1 on a request from Midland Memorial Hospital to replace an existing second generation CAT scanner with a more recent model CAT whole body scanner.

The Austin Bureau reported the THFC said the project involves renovating 2,707 square feet of space to relocate a classroom and a testing area.

Equipment and services costing $400,000 or more require a certificate of need (CON) from the THFC.

While two hospital administrators explained during a break in Thursday's meeting of the MMH Board of Trustees that replacement of the CAT scanner does not require a CON, MMH President Ray Branson said it did.

According to Vice President of Finance Dale Miller, "There is no need for a certificate of need. On replacements, you don't have to file for a certificate of need."

When asked what would be done with the old CAT scanner, MMH Director of Public Relations Arlene Strickland said she didn't know whether the machine could be sold or traded.

"I know we won't keep it because if we did, we'd have to go to a certificate of need," Miller said.

Branson, however, said a certificate of need was required for any services and equipment costing $400,000 or more even if it is replacing equipment that already has received a certificate of need.

Although Branson was attributed in Friday's paper as saying the CAT scanner had been approved, Ms. Strickland said Friday that Branson meant a hearing on the equipment had been approved.

According to Branson's secretary, Gail Huggins, a letter from the THFC saying the application had been accepted was written about June 14.

Ms. Strickland said the letter simply notified MMH officials that the request had been approved for a hearing.

The new CAT scanner will produce images in 5 to 10 seconds, as opposed to the outdated one, which takes 30 seconds, Miller said.

The new scanner is expected to be delivered Sept. 5, and installation requires about 30 days, Miller said Thursday.

According to the Austin Bureau, opponents to the project have until 5 p.m. Aug. 15, to file a protest with the THFC. The commission may proceed without a hearing on the application if no notice of intent to become a party is received.

Baby boom

Hospital personnel were swimming in a sea of babies this week. Midland Memorial Hospital graduate nurse Ebbie Campbell, who is expecting to add another to the list, cradles Joey Ciurro, one of the twins born to Mr. and Mrs. Mark Ciurro of Route 2 Box 115. According to hospital officials, as many as 46 babies at one time were in MMH. With back-to-back records of 14 births Monday and Tuesday, the husband of one hospital administrator blamed the birth boom on the football strike last fall.

General says he would use Agent Orange again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, in the government's first study of the effects of Agent Orange on Vietnam veterans, said Friday there is no evidence of abnormal death rates among the 1,269 pilots and crew members who sprayed the dioxin-laced herbicide — and sometimes got drenched in it.

But that early finding came as no surprise. Environmental cancers can take 20 to 40 years before they cause death — and the nine-year defoliation campaign, called Operation Ranch Hand, did not begin until 1962.

Moreover, critics noted the report — which dealt only with the mortality question — did not address veterans' concerns about whether Agent Orange had left them with physical or behavior problems or could cause birth defects in their children.

"So the Ranch Hand study really doesn't answer our questions," said Peter MacQueen, a spokesman for the 2.6-million member American Legion.

Only four cancer deaths were recorded in the group, none of the type usually associated with chemicals.

Maj. Gen. Murphy A. Chesney, deputy Air Force surgeon general, announced the findings, saying participants in the aerial spraying campaign had virtually the same death rate as members of a comparison group.

"Do I worry as a physician because we used it? The answer is no," he told a Pentagon news conference. And he said he would recommend using Agent Orange again, under the same circumstances, despite some veterans' concerns that the herbicide has damaged their health and caused birth defects in their children.

Maj. Gen. Murphy A. Chesney

"I say war is hell; you've got to win it," the general said. "Agent Orange was a war agent. It was used to protect our ground troops. It saved millions of lives possibly — thousands, anyway, in Vietnam."

The study said nothing about whether the Ranch Hand veterans are experiencing more health problems than other veterans. The results from research into that question — part of a $10 million effort — will be announced in October.

Nurse recruitment bonus offered

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

A shortage of nurses at Midland Memorial Hospital has prompted a $250 bonus for any full-time employee of at least three months who helps in the recruitment and hiring of nurses.

According to MMH Public Relations Director Arlene Strickland Friday, the hospital "has lost and is in the process of replacing licensed personnel," meaning both registered nurses and licensed vocational nurses.

Although the figures change daily, according to Ms. Strickland, the staff was down 20 registered nurses and seven licensed vocational nurses as of Friday afternoon.

MMH President Ray Branson, when questioned about the nursing shortage Thursday, said the hospital was down "approximately 17 nursing positions."

When asked about the closing of a wing on the third floor due to a shortage of nurses, Branson said, "We have consolidated our patients because of the low census of patients."

Members of the MMH governing boards were told during regular meetings Thursday the number of patients admitted during the summer is traditionally lower than during the rest of the year.

The third floor, or "overflow section" was closed, Ms. Strickland verified, and personnel were transferred to areas "that have been more in need of staff," she said.

Areas such as the nursery and delivery wards have been busy this week, she explained.

Hospital officials have been monitoring nurses leaving MMH. Ms. Strickland said the major reason nurses are leaving is "the downturn in economy and the fact that spouses have not been able to find work here."

According to Ms. Strickland, besides offering the $250 bonus, hospital officials are in a "heavy recruitment phase."

About five nursing candidates will be brought in during the next week and a half, she said.

Andrews' streets quiet once more

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

ANDREWS — Law and order has returned to the streets of Andrews.

It has not always been such.

Just more than a year ago, many Andrews residents were living in fear. They shunned going out at night, avoided social engagements, eschewed driving or walking the streets after sundown.

Street crime was raging. Drunkenness, confrontations, fights were the rule rather than the exception. A loosely knit gang harrassed the innocent. And law enforcement officials finally got fighting mad about it.

Mad enough to organize a modern-day posse to patrol the streets, wreaking justice at every corner.

Composed of officers from Andrews County Sheriff's Department and Andrews Police Department, this "task force" came alive last June slapping leather against local "hell-raisers" and filling the "cross-bar hotel" to the gills.

In one night alone, 36 persons were arrested. When the task force action was repeated a week later, 24 more met the strong arm of the law. And in its climactic, three-day finale, the unprecendented mass of badges crowding the streets brought 18 more do-badders to justice.

Apparently, the task force organized by Sheriff Wayne Farmer and Police Chief Doug Gaines had a powerful effect on this city sustained by oil activity.

"We haven't had to (call out the task force) again, 'cause everything's been running pretty good," Farmer said this week. " There's not near as much problem on the streets as we were having before, (but)...we might entertain the thought of doing it again before too long on a limited-type basis."

Gaines agreed. "We wouldn't hesitate to do it again if it became necessary," he said. "I think the public will support us on this. When we ran those back last year, I think the public was wondering at the time why we hadn't already. They were concerned as much as we were."

When the task force was established, street crime seemed at an all-time high in Andrews and "was getting worse," Gaines noted. "We got less each time we ran it, which indicated that we had done some good."

Farmer feels the quieter streets in Andrews these days are a direct result of the task force action rather than the fact fewer drifters are in town now.

"Most of the people that were arrested during that...were people that've been around here or still around here now," he said. "There were a few transient people involved but not that many."

The gang composed of five to 15 Mexican-Americans and Caucasians between the ages of 17 and 22, no longer exists as a source of trouble, noted the officials.

"I think probably the biggest majority of them are still here, but they're not causing problems or they're not openly violating the law like they were before," said Farmer.

"What little problem...we're having out of 'em is on an individual basis, such as drunkenness or maybe an occasional fight," explained Gaines. "They're not congregating."

Many of the violations warranting law enforcement action last year were in regard to a city ordinance prohibiting the possession of an open liquor or beer container along a public street or park. Now that a new DWI law is going into effect statewide, even more emphasis will be placed on seeking out alcohol-related offenses, said Farmer.

"Since (the task force action), we're not dealing with as many public intoxications," he said. "Before this deal was run on the street they'd ride up and down the streets or would get out on the streets after they got intoxicated, maybe not even thinking about it. Since that time, I've heard a lot of 'em comment, they're still drinking but they're doing it at home now."

That, say the officials, has left the streets safer for law-abiding citizens now.

"I think, as far as here in Andrews, people are not as hesitant to get out and freely move around and participate in whatever social activities they've got," said Farmer.

"I've had several citizens to express their opinion that what we did a year ago...had helped considerably," said Gaines. "They felt better now that we'd shown some of the people that were causing problems that we did mean business."

The police chief added, however, that the lessening of street crime doesn't mean Andrews law enforcement personnel are left twiddling their thumbs. "There's still plenty for us to do, but not near what it was," he said. "When our business is bad, it's good; when it's good, it's bad."

For the sake of the residents of Andrews, Gaines and Farmer hope street business stays bad.

Four men murdered at arcade

HOUSTON (AP) — Four young men were stabbed repeatedly and left dead in their own blood after an apparent robbery Friday of a Houston miniature race track and game center, police said.

"There was blood everywhere, splattered on the walls, the floor, all over," said John Brite of the Harris County medical examiner's office. "What amazed me was the amount of cutting. This was more than your average 'Hey, you're gonna die' and stab them."

"We don't know if any of them were shot. There was too much blood to tell," said homicide Detective J.C. Mosier. The slaying scene was "horrible," he said.

Police said it was Houston's worst mass slaying since July 1979 when three youths were shot and killed and a fourth wounded at a bowling alley.

About 20 feet from the front door, investigators found a spent small-caliber shell and a small amount of blood in the driveway, a detective who refused to be identified said.

All four men were employees of the Malibu Grand Prix, a recreation center in the southwest part of the city which features a track on which go-kart cars are raced and a video game arcade, police said.

Three of the victims were found locked in a bathroom, according to Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk, the Harris County medical examiner. The fourth, the night manager, was in an office.

"It looked like there was a whole lot of movement in there, whether it was offensive or defensive, I don't know," Brite said.

A safe in the manager's office was standing open. Video game tokens littered the floor, he said.

Brite identified the night manager as Anil Varughese, 18, of Houston. One of the three victims, all crewmen who serviced video machines and helped clean up, was identified as Rod Harris, 23, also of Houston. The names of the remaining two victims were withheld until relatives could be notified.

Varughese and two other victims had their throats slashed, and all had numerous stab wounds to the chest, head face and torso, Brite said. Investigators found a bloody knife blade, about four inches long, under Varughese's body, he said.

Houston police spokesman Raul Correa said authorities had no suspects but robbery was believed to be the motive. The building had been ransacked, he said. "It had to be more than one person," he said.

Tornado warning issued for city

Billowing gray clouds giving rise to omens of tornadoes passed over Midland Friday night.

But no tornadoes were sighted, although a tornado warning was issued.

"The radar indicated one (tornado)," said the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, "but it was never confirmed." The tornado was detected in north Midland County about 6:55 p.m. Friday but was not sighted, he said.

Although the weatherman reported no rainfall at the airport, a smattering of rain fell over parts of the city Friday night.

For today, the weatherman is predicting a 20 percent chance of late afternoon and evening thunderstorms. Today's high temperature is to be near 101. The overnight low is to drop to the low 70s. Winds are to be southerly at 10 to 20 mph.

The weatherman forecast a chance of thunderstorms Sunday and Monday. Both days are to be hot.

Friday's peak temperature was 104 degress, which was just a mark from tying the record high of 105 degrees for July 1 in 1964. The overnight low was 70. The record low for a July 2 was 60 degrees in 1936.

Fireworks take tolls with deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American love affair with fireworks has been getting stronger every year since the Bicentennial, but all those bursting bombs have taken a toll in injuries and deaths.

The number of people injured by fireworks annually has risen over the past decade, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and recent explosions at illegal fireworks factories have caused 15 deaths.

There are more injuries because more fireworks are being bought, said Paul Galvydis, a compliance officer with the commission.

"After the Bicentennial, fireworks usage went up," Galvydis said Friday. "People just got used to liking fireworks."

While fireworks caused an estimated 4,700 injuries serious enough to require some medical attention in 1975, they caused an estimated 11,100 injuries in the Bicentennial year, according to the commission. The numbers dropped in 1977 but then rose gradually to a new peak in 1981 of 11,400.

The estimate for 1982 was 8,544, but Galvydis said he was unsure of the reason for the one-year drop.

Some 65 percent of the fireworks injuries are due to misuse rather than malfunction, he said, and 25 to 30 percent are caused by firecrackers alone.

The commission warns consumers to look for signs that the fireworks they buy meet federal safety standards.

The commission, which regulates the safety of fireworks and numerous other products, said Thursday that "bootlegged" M80s, M100s and M1000s made at illegal operations may be offered for sale.

The commission urged consumers to make sure there is a manufacturer's label on all fireworks and instructions for proper use. "Illegally manufactured fireworks rarely have either," it said.

The commission said there have been 21 reported incidents of explosions at illegal fireworks factories since 1978, resulting in 25 deaths, 58 injuries and more than $7 million in property damage. The commission said 15 deaths came within the past few months.

The government has banned as hazardous substances M80 salutes, M100s, M1000 firecrackers, cherry bombs and aerial bombs. It is illegal to make, distribute or sell them.

The safety commission urged consumers to take these other safeguards:

—Store fireworks in a cool, dry place and avoid rough handling that might damage the fuses.

—Provide adult supervision for children and do not allow very young children to handle fireworks.

—Light fireworks only outdoors in a clear area away from houses, dry brush or anything that might ignite. Keep water available.

—Light only one firecracker at a time.

—Soak malfunctioning firecrackers with water to prevent their possible future use.

Hunters convicted for importing bears

By ED TODDd
Staff Writer

Two Midland bear hunters were convicted Friday by a jury in federal court here of violating federal laws by importing a captured live cub bear and three adult bears they had killed by rifle in Mexico in June 1981.

The men, Steve Dudley Quain, 40, and Frankie Keller, 30, are to be sentenced July 20 by U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton in the courtroom of the George Mahon Federal Building. Each could be imprisoned up to five years on each of three counts of smuggling and conspiracy to smuggle the bears and up to one year for not getting a permit from the U.S. Department of Interior to bring the bears across the border. Fines for each defendant could total $31,000.

Quain and Keller claimed they had shot the bears on Sanderson Rancher Pinky Carruthers' ranch on the Texas side of the Rio Grande after they had spotted what they thought were javelinas in a ravine while flying over the Rio Grande in a helicopter piloted by J.C. Short of Midland.

The men claimed they were looking for a fishing lease along the river at the time.

Quain said Short, who had contracted with the rancher to shoot coyotes and other predators on Carruthers' 35,000-acre sheep ranch, landed the helicopter near the ravine. Quain and Keller grabbed their .223-caliber rifles and stalked the bears.

After the two hunters had killed the bears and captured the cub, Quain said Short was upset and feared that his contract with the rancher to aerially destroy coyotes by shotgun might be endangered. At that point, said Quain, he and Keller decided to alter their story and to tell Carruthers and others that they had killed in bears in Mexico.

"We told everybody else we killed them in Mexico," Quain said. "I didn't have any idea we were going to get in trouble over it."

They returned the bears to Midland for mounting, but the cub escaped from their pickup truck's tool box while they were eating in a cafe in Sheffield.

Carruthers testified that he had never seen bears on his ranch until Short flew them in that June. Further, he said that he would have been "very happy" had Quain and Keller shot the bears if they been on his ranch.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Bill Russ of Sanderson said he had never seen bears or bear tracks in Texas, though he had heard reports of bear sightings in Texas.

Short did not testify.

James M. Stinebaugh, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agent who investigated the case, said neither Quain nor Keller would name any others who might have been involved in the bear hunt.

The federal wildlife service is continuing its investigation into the unlawful aerial shooting of wildlife from aircraft in West Texas.

In a related case, Midlander Wesley Michael "Mike" Nickell, 22, has pleaded guilty to shooting a Barbado sheep from a helicopter piloted by Short in January 1982. He could be sentenced up to one year in prison and fined $1,000 for violating the U.S. Airborne Hunting Act, which prohibits the aerial shooting of animals, include game animals, other wildlife and livestock.

Short has been named as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Judge recesses foreclosure hearing

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A hearing to bar Texas Commercial Bank National Association (TCB) from foreclosing on a 4,500-acre ranch in Erath and Hood counties in Central Texas was recessed Friday by Odessa Judge George Kelton in Midland's 142nd State District Court.

Midland oil operator Bill Mathis had sued for an injunction after TCB threatened to hold a foreclosure to sell the ranch. TCB had planned the sale July 5 to recoup the $3.5 million which the First National Bank of Midland had loaned Wood & Locker Inc., under the signature of Mathis, to purchase the ranch.

Last week, Wood & Locker, its president, John W. Wood Jr., and John Dee Wood filed for bankruptcy. Earlier, FNB had turned the note over to TCB.

"I have no intentions of violating this order (from U.S. Bankruptcy Court)," said TCB attorney John Nabors.

He said the bank will be prohibited from any foreclosure affecting Wood & Locker while the company is in bankruptcy court.

"I'm bound by this (order)," Nabors said. "This enjoins me from from foreclosure...Your honor," he told Kelton, "I know when I'm licked."

Mathis was represented by Midland attorney Bill Browder. Jerry Prothro represented FNB.

Mathis is complaining that Wood & Locker and FNB used "trickery and deceit" to get his signature in securing the note for the company.

FNB had represented that Mathis' signature on the note would not reflect his debt or that of his partnerships, that the debt would not be collected from him or his partnerships and that the deed of trust to the ranch would never be foreclosed, Mathis claims.

After getting the $3.5 million loan under Mathis' signature, Wood & Locker purchased the 4,500-acre ranch for Mathis.

In exchange, Mathis entered an agreement with Wood & Locker whereby Wood & Locker would acquire 32,069 acres of oil and gas leases in the Overthrust Belt of Montana. Previously, Mathis had options to purchase 578,211 acres of leases in the Overthrust Belt.

The Reporter-Telegram's report of the suit in Friday's editions incorrectly said the $3.5 million was to secure the 32,069 acres of leases in Montana.

Waste dump proposal protested

BIG SPRING — A resolution protesting consideration of Howard County by the state as a site for a low-level nuclear waste dump was passed in emergency session last week by Howard County commissioners.

Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority has targeted several West Texas counties, including Howard, as possible locations for the waste station.

Final selection of the site is set for October.

The Howard County commissioners' action came on the same day on which more than 100 Mitchell County residents gathered in Colorado City to plan opposition to the possible location of the waste plant in their county.

General says he'd use Agent Orange again

The study said 50 Ranch Hand members have died from non-combat causes while 250 deaths have been recorded in the comparison group of 6,171 men, nearly five times larger.

"There is no indication that Operation Ranch Hand personnel have experienced any increased mortality or any unusual patterns of death in time or by cause," the report said.

"They are not dying in increased numbers, at earlier ages, or by unexpected causes."

Chesney said he would not even have sought protective clothing for the spraying crews based on the knowledge he now has. But he would have asked for purer Agent Orange, less contaminated with dioxin, a highly toxic byproduct of the manufacturing process.

Rep. Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., chairman of the Vietnam Veterans in Congress Caucus said the study may not be applicable to the Army and Marine troops exposed to Agent Orange on the ground.

"It's good news for the Ranch Hand personnel but I don't think it guarantees a clean bill of health for the ground units who served in Vietnam," Daschle said.

"Ranch Hand units could change clothes and bathe at the end of the day whereas ground units could not. Ground units also drank water and ate food contaminated with herbicides," the congressman said. "I think it would be premature to say everything is OK simply on the basis of the Ranch Hand mortality findings."

When it reviewed the proposed study two years ago, the National Academy of Sciences questioned its value.

Dr. Philip Handler, then the academy president, said in a letter to Chesney: "As designed, the proposed study probably would not identify adverse health effects due to exposure to the herbicide, primarly because of the relatively small size of the group to be studied and the relatively short time for which it is proposed to follow the health of the group."

Lewis Milford, a lawyer with the National Veterans Law Center who has sued on behalf of compensation for Vietnam veterans who claim their health was damaged by Agent Orange, belittled the findings.

"The Air Force was warned by eminent scientists that its health study was not worth doing, yet it ignored that and went ahead anyway," Milford said. "Now the Air Force is trying to sell the results to the public. The findings are defective goods and the public should not be fooled."

During the war, 12 million gallons of the herbicide were sprayed in an effort to strip away the jungle canopy that concealed Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops. The spraying stopped after concerns were raised about the long-range effect of dioxin.

Air crews flew low, with their windows open and they often returned to base soaking in Agent Orange.

"It would erode their boots away," Chesney recalled Friday.

In a summary of Friday's report, The Defense Department said: "Most of these men were exposed to herbicides for up to 10-12 hours a day, five to six days a week, for periods of at least one year. Thus the Air Force considers them to be the most heavily herbicide-exposed group of U.S. military personnel in Southeast Asia."

Enlisted men were found to have had a higher death rate than officers, and the Air Force said it would keep an eye on that factor as it tracks the Ranch Hand participants over the next 20 years.

Chesney said the only cause of death with a higher statistical occurrence among the Ranch Hand men was gastro-intestinal disorders. He suggested this was due to heavier drinking in their ranks.

DEATHS

Fairy M. Short

KINGSLAND — Graveside services for Fairy Myers Short, 58, of Sunrise Beach Village, mother of Pat Short of Midland, are set for 3 p.m. Sunday at Lakeland Memorial Park in Burnet. Handling arrangements is Waldrope Funeral Home of Kingsland.

Mrs. Short died Thursday in a Kerrville hospital after a lengthy illness.

She was born July 22, 1924, in Ackerly and owned Fairy Myers Properties in Odessa from 1973 to 1981.

Other survivors include her husband, James Short of Sunrise Beach Village; a son, Fred Myers of Kerrville; five daughters, Brenda McLean of Odessa, Rebecca Meiske of Austin, Shannon Short of Austin, Kathy Anderson of Tempe, Ariz., and Michelle Short of Houston; a sister, Maxine McKinnon of Poteau, Okla.; her stepmother, Ione Sumner of Lamesa; and 10 grandchildren.

HAYWARD, CALIF. — Memorial services for Robert F. Pollard, 72, of Hayward, father of Robert F. Pollard Jr. of Midland, are pending at Neptune Society in Castor Valley, Calif.

Pollard died Thursday in Hayward after a lengthy illness. Other survivors include his wife and two sons, all of Hayward.

Lou McGuairt

Services for Lou Alma McGuairt, 61, of Route 9, will be at 1:30 p.m. today in Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. Steve Edwards, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiating. Arrangements are being handled by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Friday in a Midland hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. McGuairt was born March 28, 1922, in Gainesville and spent her early life there. She lived in Ira, Spur and Stanton before moving to Midland in 1933. She married Bill Wells in 1941 in Midland. He died in the service during World War II. She married Amos McGuairt Aug. 8, 1958, in Midland.

Survivors include her husband; a son, Bill Wells of Christoval; three brothers, Jay Henshaw of Leavenworth, Kan., and John Henshaw and Bill Henshaw, both of Midland; and four grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be sent to Hospice of Midland, P.O. Box 2621, Midland.

Travis Brunson

Graveside services for Travis Brunson, 54, of Route 4, will be at 10 a.m. today in Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Jimmy Stovall, pastor of South Memorial Baptist Church, officiating. Handling arrangements is Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Thursday in a Lubbock hospital from burns received in a fire at his home June 26.

Brunson was born Dec. 15, 1928, in Ropesville and spent his early life near Morton. He joined the Army in 1946 and was stationed in the United States. After discharge he began his work in a barber shop in Snyder. He moved to Midland in 1952 and opened a barber shop.

Survivors include two daughters, Virginia Hash of Spring and Emmie Walker of Magnolia; three brothers, Orval Brunson of Dennison, Orlando Brunson of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Elvis Brunson of Willows, Calif.; six sisters, Naoni Pryor of Willows, Loretta Gobles of Olympia, Wash., Oleen Bundrant of Poteet, Bertha Strange of Sierra Vista, Ariz., Sue Pryor of Sacramento, Calif., and Opal Boner of Streetman; and six grandchildren.

Jury indicts Cuban for murder

ANDREWS — Eugenio Lopez Rodriquez, 27, a Cuban national, has been indicted by an Andrews grand jury in the April 20, 1982 murder of a Andrews convenience store clerk during a robbery.

Mark Allen Wilson, 21, was killed by a single shot from a sawed-off .22 rifle on his first night of work at South Main 7-11.

The indictment against Rodriquez was for capital murder, an offense which, if proven in court, could carry the death penalty.

Rodriquez also has been charged in the May, 1982, murder of an Odessa bar owner and the double homicide of two women in an Allsup's store in Clovis, N.M., that same month.

The Andrews robbery was the first of a series of 11 such robberies or burglaries Rodriquez has been implicated in, said Andrews Police Chief Doug Gaines.

Rodriquez entered the United States at Key West, Fla. May 11, 1980. He has been a suspect in the Andrews murder since shortly after he was convicted of armed robbery in Austin and imprisoned.

Rodriquez is in jail in Odessa.

Four men stabbed to death at arcade

"I'm just sick," Ernest Jaramilo, the center's assistant manager, said. "These were all kids I cared about."

Jaramilo, 29, said the operation employs 23 people, all in their late teens or early 20s. Large amounts of cash were kept in the building, he said. He would not say how much.

"I just want to find out what happened," he said.

Jaramilo said he talked to the employees "three or four times" Thursday night, the final time just before midnight. "Everything seemed to be going fine," he said.

The intruders would have had to come through the front door because all the employees entered through a back door, which automatically locked. Once the game center closed about midnight, the front door routinely was locked with a chain and padlock, he said. Friday, the chain and lock were found beside the front door, he said.

Jaramilo said no weapon was kept in the building. "We didn't think we'd need one," he said, breaking into tears.

The bodies were discovered shortly after 8 a.m. by a Federal Express delivery man and a female employee of the track, according to police.

The delivery man, whose name was not disclosed, found the door to the arcade wide open. When the woman employee arrived about the same time, the two went inside and discovered the bodies in a back office.

"The woman noticed that the manager's door was locked, which she found unusual. She said the two started looking around and that's when they discovered the bodies," Mosier said.

The woman's name was withheld.

Both she and the delivery man were taken to Houston police headquarters for statements.

15,000 Austin residents will be entitled to utility refund

AUSTIN (AP) — City officials released a list of 15,000 Austin residents Friday who are entitled to a refund of the deposit they made years ago when they applied for electric service, and Gov. Mark White was among the recipients.

White said he was donating his $58.50 windfall to the city's new program to help poor people pay their utility bills.

The city-owned utility now routinely mails customers their security deposits after several months of receiving payments on time. But it was handled differently before 1975, and the utility ended up with $352,000 in deposits made between 1927 and 1975 that were not refunded.

City officials said it would be too expensive to try to find the 15,000 people on the list, so instead, it posted the lists in libraries and city offices for inspection by anyone listed who wants to claim a refund.

Gasoline should be plentiful

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas motorists should have no difficulty finding gasoline this Fourth of July holiday weekend but prices are up as much as 7 cents per gallon from Memorial Day, the Texas branch of the American Automobile Association reported Friday.

The AAA survey of 270 service stations around the state showed regular fuel at full-service pumps averages $1.28.9 per gallon, up from $1.21.8 during the Memorial Day weekend. Unleaded gasoline is $1.34.7, up from $1.33.1. Self-serve stations average $1.10.6 for regular, up from $1.08.4. No-lead is $1.17.4, up from $1.14.9, the AAA said.

Among cities in the survey, best buys at a full-service station were in El Paso, where regular was $1.21 and unleaded $1.23.7. For self-serve, a Beaumont station in the survey had regular for $1.07. No-lead was cheapest in Dallas at $1.13.3. Most expensive regular fuel in the survey was $1.37.9 for full-serve in Midland. No-lead at a full service station in Waco was $1.45.2. Among self-serve stations, $1.15.9 in Amarillo was the high for regular; $1.27.5 in Waco was the high for unleaded.

Strangling ruled accident

WINDCREST (AP) — The death of an 8-year-old boy who strangled after getting tangled in a mechanical towel dispenser was an accident, a police sergeant said Friday.

The Windcrest police department has closed its investigation into the May 21 death of Eugenio Franco, who strangled in a restaurant restroom in this San Antonio-area city, according to Sgt. John Frisco.

"Interviews with witnesses in the El Jarro Restaurant at the time of death were unable to turn up any suspect," Frisco said. "The report from the boy's father concerning a mysterious person who left the restroom proved unfounded."

Mattox names prosecutor

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox today named Assistant Attorney General Luis Vallejo to prosecute a Fort Sam Houston soldier who received a probated sentence in the traffic death of a man killed while walking along a New Braunfels road.

Pfc. William Savage was convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the drunken driving case and received a probated 10-year sentence and a $5,000 fine in the death of Ruben Saucedo.

'American dream is a nightmare,' says father of murdered English girl

The family was "in limbo... A great treasure has been taken away from them and they are at a loss."

FORT WORTH (AP) — Area businesses donated funeral services and offered a reward for information about the slaying of an 11-year-old English girl who disappeared from the motel where her family was staying.

Funeral services, donated by an Arlington mortuary, were to be today.

The family of Julie Fuller, meanwhile, remained secluded at the home of friends.

The girl's parents, Colin and Janet Fuller of Essex, England, had been staying at the Kensington Motor Lodge and Apartments in Arlington since they immigrated to the United States a month ago. The girl left the apartment to take out some trash at about 6 p.m. Monday and did not return.

Her body was found Tuesday near the west fork of the Trinity River in Fort Worth. Investigators said she had been raped, then strangled.

Linda McClure, with whom the Fullers are staying, said the family was "in limbo."

"A great treasure has been taken away from them," she said, "and they are at a loss."

On Thursday, Ms. McClure said she was shielding the family from reporters. She said Julie's 13-year-old brother, Lee, was "beside himself."

On Wednesday, Fuller told a reporter, "The American dream is a nightmare."

The Fullers were staying at the apartments while they looked for a house in Arlington. Friends said the family planned to sign papers on a home the night Julie disappeared.

Schepps Dairy Inc. of Dallas offered a $5,000 reward Thursday for information leading to the indictment of the girl's killer.

The Bank of Arlington also offered a $500 reward for information leading to an arrest and conviction and is seeking additional donations, which can be sent to the Fuller Reward Fund, Bank of Arlington, P.O. Box 3416, Arlington 76010.

Fuller was working for CPI Electrics, a contracting firm in Grand Prairie. Last year, Fuller worked on a contract for CPI, but returned to Stanford-Le Hope in Essex, England.

"But he still wanted to come back," said Mike Craig, his boss at CPI.

Craig said Fuller returned with his family a month ago.

Residents of the Kensington complex described its clientele as mostly hard-working people who need a temporary place while they search for permanent homes or jobs. But they said there is a less savory element at the apartments, which rent by the day, week or month.

"I wouldn't turn my back out there at night," said an unidentified policeman working on the case.

Neighbors said the Fuller girl spent the day with other children playing at the motel pool.

Craig said Fuller moved his family into the apartments because "he doesn't know this country."

"I wouldn't know where to stay in England," Craig said. "If you didn't know anyone, you wouldn't know if it was a good place to stay or a bad place."

Other families staying at the apartments feared for the safety of their own children.

"We're all afraid it is someone in the motel," said Cynthia Reese, who said her 10-year-old daughter, Shannon, was Julie's best friend. "We think Julie knew whoever it was."

Police said they were questioning people in the area, but that they think the girl was killed somewhere else.

Funeral services for the Julie were scheduled at Moore Funeral Home with burial at Moore Memorial Gardens.

Ban on sale of paint requested

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — Fearful that even 7- and 8-year-olds can afford the cheap high of sniffing paint, some residents want the city to ban its sale to children under 14.

"You see it all over," said Rick Thomas, director of the Alcohol Treatment Center for Native Americans in Sioux City. "You see kids sitting at ball games sniffing, walking up the street sniffing. Sometimes you can see the residue on their faces and shirts."

"Face it, it's a cheap high," said police Chief Gerald Donovan, adding he knows of 20 habitual paint sniffers, most of them 11- and 12-year-olds. He said 7- and 8-year-olds can afford the habit.

Items valued at $1 million stolen

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Burglars struck a mansion in this sailing resort, and carted away $1 million in valuables, police said Friday.

Ruth Tinney, whose family has owned and lived in the mansion for 27 years, said her home has a "very, very good security system. But something just happened during the night."

Guided tours have been offered through the home for peopleto see its fine furniture, rugs, silver, gold artifacts, stained glass and works of art.

Grand jury doesn't indict judge

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — After six weeks of investigating allegations of bribery involving a municipal judge, a grand jury has decided to issue no indictments.

Municipal Court Judge Bobby Youngblood, notified of the Orange County grand jury's decision Thursday, said it vindicated him and his friend Pat Bland, a Santa Ana private investigator.

The grand jury investigated allegations that Youngblood had received a $5,000 bribe, through Bland, from an attorney in exchange for reducing bail in an investment fraud case.

Judge pleads guilty to bribery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge accused of reducing a drunken-driving sentence in exchange for a $6,000 payoff has pleaded innocent to charges of bribery and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Citrus Municipal Court Judge Eugene Osko's co-defendants, Larry Artis and Shirlene Cardenas, also pleaded innocent Thursday in Superior Court. Each is charged with conspiring to obstruct justice, bribing a judge and solicitation to commit crime. All were released on their own recognizance pending a Sept. 6 preliminary hearing.

Following the 1981 drunken-driving conviction of San Jose businessman Robert Roman, Osko sentenced Roman to a year in jail, reducing the penalty last November to a $1,600 fine and three-months' probation. The judge denies that he received a payment.

Five stabbed in parking-lot feud

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Five men were stabbed and three critically wounded in a possibly gang-related feud in a restaurant parking lot, police said Friday.

The names of the victims will not be released until officers have interviewed them, detectives Thomas Jones and Martin Martinez said.

The fight, which witnesses said involved up to 20 people, erupted in the parking lot of a fast-food restaurant in Hollywood around 10:30 p.m. Thursday, Martinez said. It had started inside.

Automakers must meet standards

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The California Air Resources Board has denied petitions by several automakers to delay implementation of 1984 smog standards for diesel cars.

The board said Thursday improvements in air quality were more important than giving manufacturers more time to clean up nitrogen oxide emissions from diesel-powered cars and trucks.

Chairman Gordon Duffy noted that the 1.0 gram-per-mile emission standard adopted in 1977 was orginally scheduled to go into effect during the 1982 model year. Three postponements to give automakers time to solve technological problems delayed implementation until the 1984 model year. The board rejected petitions by Mercedes Benz, General Motors and Automobile Importers of America, for an extension through 1984.

Two lanes of Boston bridge closed down

BOSTON (AP) — The two outer lanes of the bridge connecting Boston and Cambridge were closed indefinitely Friday after the discovery of fractured joints, a state official said.

The flaw in the Massachusetts Avenue bridge was found in an inspection prompted by the partial collapse of the Connecticut Turnpike bridge Tuesday, according to Stephen Burgay, executive assistant to William Geary, head of the Metropolitan District Commission.

"Right after the Connecticut bridge collapse, Geary told our people to go out and inspect all of those bridges which had the same kind of joints," Burgay said.

The four-lane bridge spans the Charles River, which separates Boston and Cambridge, home of Harvard University. Burgay said he did not know how old it is. He said he believed it is about 20 feet above the water.

The heavily traveled Massachusetts Avenue bridge is one of about 100 owned by the Metropolitan District Commission, Burgay said. The state agency provides police and other services in the Greater Boston area and is responsible for several major roads and other facilities.

Burgay said he did not know how many commission bridges had been inspected or how many had joints similar to those on the Connecticut Turnpike bridge.

Three people were killed and three were seriously injured Tuesday when a 100-foot section of the Connecticut Turnpike in Greenwich, Conn., feel 75 feet into the Mianus River.

Detroit mayor imposes curfew for youths

DETROIT (AP) — Police said Friday they would not banish all youths from the streets during the first night of a curfew so that people under age 18 could attend a fireworks display on Detroit's waterfront.

"The curfew law won't be enforced this evening to those youngsters in the downtown area behaving in a normal manner," said Police Cmdr. William Dwyer. "But where there are groups of youths congregating and creating a disturbance, then officers will be using common sense and discretion in making arrests."

Police will have about 1,400 to 1,800 fulltime and reserve officers in the downtown area, said Dwyer, adding that up to 1 million people were expected to attend the event.

The curfew remains in effect in all other city areas and police are advised to act with "discretion, common sense and good judgment," Dwyer said.

The curfew, to take effect at 11 p.m. Friday, was imposed by Mayor Coleman A. Young on Wednesday in an effort to curb the city's rising crime rate.

Under the program, people under 18 must be off the streets after 10 p.m. on weeknights and 11 p.m. on weekends. Detroit has had a standing curfew since 1976, although it has not been strictly enforced.

According to police department statistics, major crime rose 14 percent in the first three months of this year compared to the same period last year.

The American Civil Liberties Union planned a Friday meeting to discuss possible action against the ordinance.

United Farm Workers Union issues checks to retirees

COACHELLA, Calif. (AP) — The United Farm Workers union has begun issuing monthly checks to retired workers for the first time since it began negotiating for a pension fund 10 years ago.

As he handed out eight $50 checks here Thursday, union President Cesar Chavez said the distribution was "just the beginning."

"We are doing more than presenting them with checks," he said. "We are presenting the idea that these workers' dignity and respect is finally being recognized. Even though it's a token recognition at this time, it is a very important and far-reaching benefit."

The $50 checks were given to retired farm laborers over the age of 65 from Coachella, Blythe, Calexico and San Ysidro.

The checks, from a pension fund made up of contributions from growers, came after 10 years of planning and negotiating by the union, Chavez said. The first distribution was made Monday in Delano.

Meanwhile, Chavez said another consumer boycott may be necessary if Gov. George Deukmejian weakens the state's Agricultural Labor Relations Act.

"We certainly don't have a friendly administration in Sacramento," he said.

Deukmejian got heavy financial support from agricultural interests unhappy with what they felt was the pro-union makeup of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board appointed by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

"We're thinking very seriously of embarking on an all-out boycott activity. That is what really built this union," Chavez said, referring to the table grape and other boycotts of the late 1960s and early 1970s.

"Instead of making the act work, we're being subverted by the administration. The growers and Deukmejian are trying to scuttle the act. That in itself is the reason to take action."

Window washer plummets to death

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A window washer plummeted to his death and his partner dangled by a safety belt 34 stories above the ground for 20 minutes Friday after a cable on their scaffold snapped.

Robert Ferguson, 27, of Coraopolis, fell to the ground from a metal scaffold attached to One Oxford Centre, a 46-story downtown building. He died instantly, said assistant Coroner Joseph Panza.

Ferguson's companion, Kurt Pipes, 24, of Pittsburgh hung by a rope attached to his safety belt until police pulled him in through a 34th-story window. He was treated and released at Mercy Hospital.

"I was standing on the walkway when it broke and I jumped back," said Thomas Donovan, who was delivering equipment to the building when the accident happened shortly after 7:30 a.m.

"The stage came down slowly and started teetering, and then the man's belt broke and he slid out like he was on a slide. He came flying out of there," said Donovan. "I seen the man hit the walkway. You knew there was no life."

Pipes was pulled into the building by Bob Adelsberg, a member of the city police Special Operations Unit.

"I leaned out, reached down and grabbed the guy around the waist. He was scared to death. He was real white. He was hanging about 20 minutes. I guess it seemed like three days to him," said Adelsberg.

Cabinetmaker's house for the birds

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Kendall Thurston is up a tree, and has been since January.

The woodcarver and cabinetmaker lives in a 10-by-12-foot treehouse, nestled in branches 35 feet above the Suwannee River's eastern bank.

The split-level house, called the "Nestle Inn," includes many of the comforts taken for granted in larger homes on the ground: stove, refrigerator and radio. Gas lanterns light the home, and a 12-volt battery powers the radio and a few appliances. There's even a bathroom, though Thurston heads to his parents' home about a half-mile away when he wants a shower.

He enters his home by rope ladder or the hand-powered elevator he installed for his parents.

"I did this just for me," Thurston said. "One of my main motives was to have a getaway place, a unique place where I could do artwork."

The front porch offers a panoramic view of the river, about 30 miles west of Alachua. Thick woods provide an idyllic backdrop, winds rustle through the trees and fish splash in the water below.

Thurston owned a cabinetmaker's shop in Chester, Vt., and started building the treehouse when he house-sat for his parents three years ago.

"I got permission from the man who was leasing the land the tree is on," he said. "But when the lease ran out, the landowner wanted me out. He was concerned about the legalities and squatters' rights or homesteading.

"But we finally worked it out where I'll be leasing the 10 acres that the tree is on. Everything just sort of worked out; I don't think I could have planned it any better."

He began by laying the foundation. Using block and tackle, he hoisted a pair of 20-foot utility poles into the tree, anchoring them in branch forks. One is suspended from an overhead branch by chains.

"The poles are not nailed to the tree, so they won't cause stress on the branches," Thurston said. "This lets them move with the tree."

Next, he hoisted up cypress boards, Southern pine decking and tongue-in-groove pine.

"When I completed the deck, I pitched a tent up here while I worked on the house," Kendall said. "I built the house in sections and hoisted them up. I worked full time on it for about three or four months — until I ran out of money and had to get a job. After I got rolling, it took about six months to complete, and I still have to put in real windows."

Most of the materials are second-hand, taken from a demolition project. Thurston plans to add a utility enclosure underneath, along with a light and stained glass window over the bedroom loft.

But he has no plans for electricity.

'Fish tank' has $6-million-price

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Reluctantly, Eric Blum will sell the fish tank behind the bar of a distinctive home he built in an exclusive neighborhood here. The only problem is that you'll have to buy the multilevel house as well — and that has a $6 million price tag on it.

Actually, only the most blase would call Blum's mini-sea world a "fish tank." The 8,000-gallon seaquarium, filled with exotic tropical fish from around the world, is unique and experts know of none larger.

"Fish and plants are my two passions in life," Blum admits, identifying some of the rare species as they swim by two picture windows that provide visitors with an underview from the cabaret-like room into what appears to be a natural cove or reef.

"It's an integral part of the house's foundation and took almost 10 months to build, put in all that plumbing and crank it up," said Blum with pride. Imported coral and stone were hand-picked to give the seaquarium its natural appearance.

Sea water is drawn from Biscayne Bay and processed through an elaborate ultraviolet sterilization system in a nearby utility room.

While the seaquarium is extraordinary, so are the grounds and home that took architects nine months to draw and took 5½ years to build.

Entrance to the two-acre waterfront estate is through a 16-foot electronically controlled gate opening onto a horticulturist's fantasy.

"It took 18 months to do the landscaping alone, which includes a small rain forest. There are more than 200 different plants and trees here," says Blum, picking a fallen leaf from a flower bed, "and I can name every one of them — because I picked them out."

The home is owned by Establissement Rabanne, a Liechtenstein-based corporation that commissioned Blum to select and purchase the property as well as oversee its design and construction. Blum says it was built with a particular buyer in mind, but the person died before it was finished in September 1982.

"I was given free rein to build it. I'm an organizer," explains Blum, a former associate producer of films.

The 20 rooms of this multilevel home provide 8,500 square feet of living space. An enclosed patio, swimming pool, waterfall and terraces cover another 3,500 square feet. To one side of the Japanese-inspired house is a sunken, stadium-like clay tennis court.

There's a third-floor office shaped like a pagoda, not far from the master suite that includes a luxurious bathroom complete with a Roman tub made of marble.

Wood, glass, stone and tile are prominent throughout the house, which is decorated in earth tones.

"We used 40,000 feet of cypress and it was milled right here," Blum adds. "There are more than 200 windows and 57 doors. The burglar alarm system has 192 points and took months to install."

He's particularly proud of the cabinets and woodwork throughout the home. One windowed corridor serves as an art gallery. Portuguese cork is used on some walls, while others are covered with Korean wallpaper.

Gourmet chefs would be delighted with the spacious, well-planned kitchen area.

The two guest suites are roomy, as are the staff quarters.

The monthly electric bill for the house, Blum says, will run about $1,700. "However, an economical family could keep it down to $825."

Another breath-catcher is the living room with its 35-foot-high ceiling. In one corner stands a growing 3,000-pound palm tree.

Blum will continue to live in the house until it is sold. Most of the furnishings, he says, go with the place.

Town welcomes temporary Duffers

DUFF, Ind. (AP) — The vast majority of the 2,000 people expected to help celebrate the 100th birthday of Duff this weekend are not likely to be Duffers. Or maybe that should be Duffites.

Right now, only about 70 people live in this Dubois County hamlet about 100 miles southwest of Indianapolis. Even over the course of the last century, Duff may not have even produced 2,000 people.

It doesn't matter, though. Anybody can be a Duffer, or Duffite, for a day during the celebration held today through Sunday.

New Duffers can bone up on the town's history by reading "Duff: A Continuum," a written history of the town that will be unveiled during the party.

The book was written by Hugo Songer, an attorney whose sister, Mary Ann Whitsett, is organizing the festivities.

Mrs. Whitsett is preparing for an invasion of part-time Duffers.

"We're moving the cows farther west to make room for parking," she joked. It's not far from the truth, though. The craft booths, food stands and beer garden will be held on her farm.

Mrs. Whitsett said she prevailed upon her brother to complete the history in time for the centennial celebration. They both grew up in Duff.

"He was going to do it after he retired," said Mrs. Whitsett, "But we talked him into getting the book out in time for the centennial."

The book's 154 pages chronicle the history of the area from the time it was a hardwood forest inhabited by Indians through the first map of Duff laid out by Robert Small in 1883, shortly after the first railroad line was laid through the area.

Duff was actually preceded by Dufftown, south of Duff, which dates from 1833. Songer recounts that his great-grandfather, Floyd Songer, came to the area in 1862 as a Union soldier.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, July 3, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The President of the Continental Congress Samuel Huntington and the marvelous film rogue George Sanders were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: former astronaut and U.S. Senator Harrison Schmitt, jazz musician Pete Fountain, playwright Tom Stoppard and the Texas Rangers' fastballer Frank Tanana. In the months ahead, financial trends shift in your favor. Stay alert. A golden opportunity arises, requiring a quick decision. A wonderful surprise makes romance happier than it has been for a long time. Count on your loved ones to rally around when the chips are down. Someone close to your heart deserves more of your time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A family situation turns out differently than you anticipated. Most of those involved will be pleased. Do not bottle up your emotions —it could be hazardous to your health.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A walk or drive leads to a happy surprise. Romance is in the air. Mate comes up with something that seemed impossible only days ago. Celebrate with those you love most.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Face the facts about a financial matter. Family member will help. A parent-child conflict is resolved so that everyone saves face. A new approach is needed if romance is to work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You deserve a day to do as you please. Catch up on your sleep. Loved ones will be understanding. A phone call could result in revised travel plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Use new tactics in romance. Someone's criticism is not meant to hurt you. Be a good sport. Do not duck phone calls. A glittering social event opens important doors.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Children deserve the lion's share of your attention today. Let them know that you believe family fun to be just as important as work. Insist everyone wear seatbelts when traveling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A reconciliation leaves you feeling more secure. Be careful not to gamble or speculate. Spend more time and money fixing up your home—improvements add to its real estate value.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A misunderstanding over money could mar the morning, but a heart-to-heart talk soon clears the air. A sermon has an important message for you. You feel a new peace.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get out and see new faces this Sunday. A jumbled message will be made clear after you receive a phone call. Your powers of persuasion are at their peak with mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Let family members know how much you love them. An older person could increase his income by selling an heirloom. Do not let sentiment affect your usually astute judgment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Delays are frustrating but could work in your favor. Expand your horizons by surrounding yourself with new people. Conquer a tendency to be overly emotional by concentrating on your goals.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A social event may not live up to your expectations. Come to grips with a personal problem and tension will drain away. Postpone making a major career or financial decisions.

TV station stresses employment

PITTSBURGH (AP) — One year and nearly 600 resumes after being laid off from his accounting job, Tim Pechar took his search for work to television.

Pechar, 25, of nearby McKeesport, appeared on Pittsburgh's KDKA to seek out potential employers in a kind of public "positions wanted" free commercial. Three weeks later, Pechar had a new job.

Pechar is one of about 50 newly employed people who have found work through KDKA. With the region's unemployment rate hovering above 16 percent, the television station "declared war on unemployment" in February.

"It was a last-gasp effort for me," Pechar says.

"It was a need we wanted to respond to," says Kweilin Nassar, a spokeswoman for the station. "I know we didn't do this to affect our ratings."

THERE HAVE been other programs designed to help the jobless. Five of CBS' owned stations, in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and St. Louis, joined forces in June for "Project Working," an effort to treat the problem with news programs, editorials and public service announcements.

And Group W Cable in California distributed "Unemployment and You," a show offering the unemployed information on how to cope with the psychological and financial stresses of joblessness, as well as leads to available work.

At 6 p.m. each weeknight, the Pittsburgh station gives two unemployed people 15 seconds each to blurt out their names, some background information, and the positions they seek. The spots are taped at state unemployment offices in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

Once a week, an afternoon talk show profiles five applicants for part-time work. A weekend program devotes a segment to tips on coping with unemployment, including advice on saving money, how to handle stress, dealing with domestic trouble and how to stay active.

IN MARCH, the CBS affiliate pre-empted "Magnum, P.I." and "Simon and Simon" for its prime-time "Job-A-Thon," which encouraged telephone calls from 4,600 job seekers.

The "war" against joblessness is waged off the air as well. Weekly drives organized by the station have collected 115,000 pounds of food and nearly $18,000 for local food banks, Ms. Nassar says.

About 1,500 people have attended four-hour job hunting workshops sponsored by the station, she says.

"We're still looking at expanding," Ms. Nassar says. "This is a new poor. People who are needy now are not used to being needy."

Tim Pechar has "nothing but praise" for KDKA's efforts. He had worked at U.S. Steel Corp. for about a year before his layoff on April 1, 1982.

"Corporate-wide, they had been cutting back right and left — last one in, first one out," Pechar says.

DESPITE his dual degree in management and accounting, along with experience at a bank and U.S. Steel, Pechar says he found the job hunt depressing.

"People think I exaggerate when I tell them I sent close to 600 resumes out," he says. "The economy was just so bad. ... There are a lot of professional people out of work. It's not just blue collar steel workers. The competition was just brutal."

Pechar and his wife, Joanne, who works as a dental assistant, put their dream for their own house on hold. They had begun to consider moving when he was chosen to record a pitch for the 6 p.m. news.

EPA to campaign against dioxin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is preparing a campaign to identify and combat the toxic chemical dioxin across America, and to ballyhoo the plan with a major public relations effort.

"The dioxin issue is one of such magnitude and potential seriousness due to its extreme toxicity that it demands an agency-wide response," states the draft strategy, which is said to have the backing of top EPA administrators but will not be final until mid-July.

A copy of the document was shown Thursday to The Associated Press.

Sites contaminated with dioxin continue to turn up around the country, causing public worry and unknown health effects, the report notes, but there has been no governmental attempt to coordinate responses to the toxic threat.

"Dioxin is indeed a major environmental and public health problem that will not go away unless EPA takes a series of very specific steps over the next few years," it concludes.

Among those steps are a two-year, $12 million effort to ferret out locations where dioxin may have been produced as an unwanted byproduct of the manufacture of the herbicide 2,4,5-TCP, which is no longer being made. The search by the agency and state officials would begin at the 13 known sites where the herbicide was produced.

The agency also proposes to greatly increase commitments of manpower and money to the dioxin problem, especially in the area of research on the chemical's human health effects and on ways to destroy or otherwise dispose of contaminated material.

Another aspect the agency regards as important is use of the strategy as a public relations tool to reassure citizens that new EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus is responding quickly to public concern over dioxin.

Twelve pages of the 67-page document are devoted to how to get the most out of the report's publicity value and how to mount a "community relations plan" on dioxin.

"There are indications that the administrator would like to take the high-profile approach and use the release of the strategy to call attention to EPA's efforts to address dioxin problems," the report says.

The paper says the agency is spending $44.6 million this year on dioxin-related activities, most of it devoted to relocating residents and cleaning up contaminated areas such as Times Beach, Mo. About $9.6 million is for research. The amount currently proposed for dioxin action in fiscal 1984 is $24.8 million.

But for 1985, the strategy proposes boosting overall dioxin spending to $81.6 million or more, depending on how much is needed for cleanup activities under the "superfund" law.

About $25.6 million of that amount would be tabbed for new research into dioxin's health effects; a reassessment of what concentration of the chemical in soil, air, water or food should be considered a health threat; tracking down sources of dioxin and looking into ways to dispose of or destroy it.

The effects of dioxin — a potent poison and suspected cancer-causer — on humans is the subject of vigorous scientific debate, a debate which flared again Thursday at a hearing before a House Science subcommittee.

Under criticism from panel chairman Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., a representative of the American Medical Association backed down from language in a resolution the AMA endorsed last week, saying it was "imprudent" and did not represent the association's official position.

The AMA statement called for an effort to get "accurate information" about dioxin before the public and for updating the organization's 1981 report on the chemical. It stressed that dioxin is not known to have ever killed anyone and the news media were accused of "hysterical malreporting" that was frightening the public.

The AMA spokesman, Dr. John Beljan, disavowed some of that language, saying it was only the opinion of the Missouri delegation, which introduced the resolution at an AMA meeting in Chicago.

"I regret the imprudent language of my Missouri colleagues," Beljan said.

Police chief thought his NAACP application was just a joke

Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — Police Chief Daryl Gates says he thought it was a joke. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says it is not amused.

The genesis of the latest flap between Gates and members of the city's black community came Sunday, when the chief pocketed an NAACP membership application before he addressed the group. According to a spokesman for the black rights organization, Gates promised to fill out the application and send it back with a check.

But when stories reporting that Gates had joined the group hit the news media yesterday, a police spokesman stepped forward to deny them.

"He did not believe that the presentation of the application card to him was done in a serious vein, so he went along with it in a humorous vein," said the spokesman, Cmdr. William Booth.

Gates' denial infuriated local NAACP leaders.

"Chief Gates stood before a crowd of 500 interested citizens as well as members of the news media and went through the shameless charade of submitting his membership to the NAACP," John T. McDonald, president of the Los Angeles chapter of the group, said in a statement.

Young artist wins competition

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A silk-screen logo, employing the theme: SAN ANTONIO, AN ALL AMERICA CITY, is the winning entry in a congressional art competition for high school students conducted by U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez.

Darrell Cerda, 18 year old student at Lanier High School, is the creator of the first-place artwork which will soon be displayed in a U.S. House of Representatives corridor leading to the U.S. Capitol in Washington.

Gonzalez organized the competition in San Antonio in cooperation with the Congressional Arts Caucus which has developed the Capitol complex exhibit as a tribute to the young arts of America.

Cerda is the youngest of five children of Mrs. Ofelia G. Cerda, 902 S. Colorado, and has been winning art contests since he was a student at Tafolla Middle School. He has taken art classes since he attended J.T. Brackenridge Elementary School.

He praised highly his instructor in art at Lanier, Rudy Trevino. "He's really helped and encouraged me," said Darrell.

From a poor family, Darrell hopes eventually to earn money with his art to help his family.

Deodorant has smell of $28 million

BOSTON (AP) — Such a seemingly commonplace item as deodorant is nothing to sniff at.

With annual sales worth $1 billion, deodorants are second in importance only to shampoo in the personal care industry.

That's why Gillette plans to spend $28.2 million, including $13.5 million on a not-so-subtle television message about underarm odor, to "restage" its Right Guard deodorant, once a top selling toiletry that has fallen on hard times.

It is the largest and most expensive product campaign in Gillette history and offers an insight into the planning and execution of marketing strategy, affected in this case by such vagaries as the earth's ozone layer and a lawsuit over stripes.

"We're not talking about a medical cure, but if you consider that we have sold 1.4 billion units of Right Guard, you can understand why it's so important," Bill Ryan, president of Gillette's personal care division, said of the campaign.

By the mid '60s Right Guard was the largest selling deodorant with a whopping 25 percent share of the market.

The product'sdecline is blamed on a debate among scientists over the impact of fluorocarbons on the earth's ozone layer. The theory holds that the gases used to propel Right Guard and other aerosol products out of their cans destroyed the ozone layer, a buffer against harmful ultraviolet radiation.

Right Guard's market position plummeted from first to fifth; its market share shrank to less than 9 percent.

Nadelberg said the campaign was being handled as if Right

The reselling of Right Guard is a mixture of the old and the new. In addition to the standard aerosol, Gillette will sell Right Guard in sticks, solids and roll-ons.

Dane expelled from Parliament

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Anti-tax crusader Mogens Glistrup was expelled from Parliament Friday, little more than a week after the Supreme Court upheld his conviction on charges of massive tax evasion and fraud.

The leader of what was once Denmark's second biggest political party, Glistrup shouted from the rostrum, "We shall overcome!" shortly before the assembly voted 128-22 that he was "unworthy to sit" in Parliament.

Nine days earlier, the Supreme Court upheld Glistrup's high court conviction for tax offenses but reduced his four-year term to three years and his fine from $445,000 to $111,000.

In 1979, Glistrup, a millionaire, announced that he hadn't paid income taxes for years and that he had set up a web of transactions and companies solely as tax shelters for himself and his clients.

Program unites Korean families

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Millions of South Korean television viewers watched tearful family reunions Thursday night when the state-run KBS-TV network aired a special four-hour live program designed to help reunite relatives separated in two wars.

When the program ended, 30 families had found their missing relatives in Seoul or other towns, mostly those separated during the 1950-53 Korean War.

In the program, 868 participants assembled in the station's main auditorium to appear on television one by one carrying placards inscribed with their names and other identification.

'Citizen of the world' arrested

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP) — A man who claims to be a "citizen of the world" without need of a passport was back at home in Peterborough on Friday after being expelled from the Soviet Union for illegally crossing the border on a "peace march."

Peter Hall, 34, said he planned to walk to Moscow collecting signatures on a peace petition but was arrested 4 miles into Soviet territory when he asked Soviet soldiers to sign.

After his detention three weeks ago, he was released at the Norwegian border, and the Norwegian police arrested him for not having a valid passport, he said.

German delegates to visit U.S.

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Representatives of West Germany's anti-NATO Greens party will visit Washington next week in a campaign to persuade the Reagan administration to abandon plans for new nuclear missiles in Europe, a spokeswoman said Friday.

The eight delegates hope to meet with President Reagan and top administration officials, as well as with representatives of the American peace movement, spokeswoman Marieluise Beck-Oberdorf told a Bonn news conference.

She said the trip to Washington and New York was part of an effort to stop the arms race. She said talks are under way to prepare for a Greens visit to Moscow.

African university offers arms course

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — The University of Zimbabwe has introduced a diploma and master of arts course in warfare and strategic studies.

"The profession of arms is a noble profession which, with the profession of medicine, has its foundations in the defense of human life," Prime Minister Robert Mugabe said at the inauguration ceremony Thursday night.

Some of those enrolled are being groomed as military attaches for Zimbabwe embassies abroad. Others are being trained as instructors for the Zimbabwe Staff College, the country's only military academy for officers.

Thatcher honors retired speaker

LONDON (AP) — The retired speaker of the House of Commons, George Thomas, who refereed Parliament's tumultous debates for seven years, has been honored with a hereditary peerage, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office said Friday.

Thomas, 73, has been named a viscount, a spokesman at her 10 Downing St. office said.

He becomes only the second hereditary peer named since influential Conservative lawmaker John Granville Morrison was made Baron Margadale of Islay in 1965. In recent times, service to the nation has been honored in Britain by life peerages.

Bomb explodes

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — A bomb exploded Friday at the Social Affairs Ministry, smashing windows but causing no injures. A few hours later hundreds of people were evacuated from the building when a dud bomb was discovered.

A police spokesman said the suspected bomb was found about among shrubs directly beneath the second-floor office of state secretary, the No. 2 man in the ministry.

Guatemalan president fires 50 army officers

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — President Efrain Rios Montt fired about 50 army officers from high-level government jobs Friday and sent them back to their barracks, a spokesman said.

Rafael Escobar Arguello, deputy press secretary for Rios Montt, said the highest ranking of those dismissed was Capt. Mario Antonio Ardon Aguilar, deputy minister of education. He said civilian replacements already had been chosen.

It was the third apparent concession by the right-wing president since military and other critics pressured him to resign this week among a flurry of rumors about an impending coup.

He previously announced Constituent Assembly elections for July 29, 1984, after refusing to set a date, and he fired six junior officers who had acted as his advisers.

Rios Montt, who is a member of an evangelical Protestant sect, took office after a March 23, 1982, military coup and made vague promises about democratic reforms. Critics say his government harasses the dominant Roman Catholic church and terrorizes civilians suspected of sympathizing with a leftist guerrilla movement.

Officials also said Friday they began implementing a new registration system, organized by a five-member Supreme Electoral Tribunal that took office Thursday. The new system will replace registry books that date to the 1930s.

They said they hoped the system will eliminate a common election fraud in which votes are recorded for people who have long since died.

Newspapers in the capital published carefully written versions of the national news Friday, functioning for a second day under "state of alert" censorship that Rios Montt said might remain in force for a month.

The papers published innocuous reports of official functions, news agency copy from abroad and social notes.

Rios Montt decreed the emergency Wednesday after an apparent coup attempt. The decree suspends civil liberties and gives police broad power to arrest and detain suspected subversives.

The coup reports surfaced Tuesday night when Col. Francisco Luis Gordillo Martinez, who participated in a ruling junta with Rios Montt last year, said on television he was going undergound to plot Rios Montt's overthrow.

As rumors of a coup plot spread, army and police intensified street patrols. But on Friday the Guatemalan capital appeared normal, with no unusual signs of police or military activity. Thursday was Armed Forces Day, a holiday, and the capital was quiet.

Late Thursday, the government announced it was postponing for one month implementation of a controversial 10 percent value-added tax which was to have gone into effect Friday. The tax was one of many actions by the Rios Montt government that has angered the traditionally strong and influential private sector in Guatemala.

U.S., Soviet reporters will be trading places

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A group of New England and Soviet editors agreed Friday to an exchange of reporters who would work directly for publications in the host country.

The editors, meeting for four days in Leningrad, also agreed to two other exchanges — of one or two journalism students who will study at Boston University and Leningrad State University, and a swap of columns between New England and Soviet papers about life in each country that would contribute to better international understanding.

Danil Kraminov, the deputy chairman of the Soviet journalists' union, said he would have to clear the proposals with the operating committee of his union. But he said he believed the union would accept the recommendations.

Ted Holmberg, president of the New England Society of Newspaper Editors, said he expects the exchange of reporters to begin in mid-1984, with three reporters from each country working in the other country for three months.

Chad rebel leaders arrest Coloradoan as CIA spy

PARIS (AP) — The leader of the rebels in northern Chad said Friday he is holding an American, Mark Frohardt, 32, of Colorado Springs, Colo., as a spy for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the French news agency Agence France Presse reported.

The French humanitarian organization Doctors Without Borders said Frohardt was the technical coordinator for all its medical teams in Chad. It said it hoped "this misunderstanding will be cleared up rapidly."

AFP said ex-President Goukouni Oueddei told a group of journalists in Faya-Largeau, the northern oasis town his rebels captured last week, that Frohardt "is an agent of the CIA, and he will be considered as such until proved the contrary."

Goukouni said he deduced the American was a spy because he was not on a list of three foreign medical personnel in the town that the Geneva headquarters of the International Red Cross sent to his headquarters in Libya.

"We found an American too many," the rebel leader was quoted as saying. "He must furnish us with explanations. We won't harm him, but he will be treated as a spy."

AFP said Frohardt told the journalists he assumed the Red Cross in Geneva did not know he was there because he arrived on the same plane with the Red Cross representative, and the battle for the town began half an hour later.

"His work consists of going frequently to all of the 10 health centers where the association operates," Doctors Without Borders said in a statement. "It was in this capacity that he went to Faya-Largeau in the company of the International Red Cross representative."

AFP said Frohardt was continuing to work with the foreign medical team, and Goukouni's men did not try to prevent him talking with the journalists.

Goukouni, who was overthrown by Defense Minister Hissene Habre a year ago and fled to Libya, last Friday announced the capture of Faya Largeau, a key point on his way back to N'Djamena, the capital 480 miles to the southwest.

France, the former colonial power, responded with an airlift of military equipment to Habre, and this is continuing with three flights a day.But a spokesman for the French Foreign Ministry said Friday that no military personnel have been sent, and there are no plans to send any.

Ahmad Allam-Mi, Habre's charge d'affaires in Paris, said Friday his government did not exclude the possibility of calling on France to send in troops if Libya intervened in Chad.

AFP said Goukouni denied Libyans were involved in his offensive but said he was ready to ask for help from "friendly countries" if the French intervened.

"There are practically no Libyan or other foreign advisers in our ranks," he was quoted as saying. "It is our military forces who are taking the decisions in hand and routing our enemy. But our enemy daily receives quantities of arms and munitions from Israel via the Sudan and Zaire, from the United States and from France."

The former president said France wanted to "re-colonize Chad" in complicity with the United States. He said he was astonished that France did not invoke the Franco-Chadian military cooperation agreement last year.

Comedian feels more comfortable in films

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

A law career seemed just the ticket comedian Franklyn Ajaye wanted to purchase for his life. When he graduated from UCLA, he headed for Columbia University's law school.

"I did study law there for about three weeks," Ajaye quipped in a recent telephone interview, his tone humorous. Then he added, more seriously, "Actually, I withdrew during the second semester.

"I had entered law school primarily because I was searching for a career. And that had always been sold up as a very secure career, kind of a glamorous profession.

"When I got there I realized it was a mistake. I didn't really have the discipline or, more importantly, the interest to be a lawyer."

Inside he knew what he really wanted to do.

"I had always been kind of a funny individual with my friends in school, so it was always in the back of my mind that perhaps I could make a living being a comedian.

"I was in New York City which was, at that time, entertainment center. I started out trying to be a comedian just to see if I could do it.

"It was almost in a sense a practical decision — 'What can you do to make a living?' The difficulty of it didn't really impress me."

He was 23. Since that time he has performed in numerous clubs, including the Bottom Line in New York and the Roxy in Los Angeles.

Franklin Ajaye

He has also appeared on most television talk shows and has had guest-star roles in "Bionic Woman," "Barney Miller" and as Della Reese's son in "Chico and the Man."

Sunday he will bring his act to Chaparral Center for an 8 p.m. concert with singer-songwriter Peabo Bryson. Tickets, priced at $12.50, may be purchased at Endless Horizons, Milton's Records and Chaparral Center.

After working 11 years as a standup, Ajaye said of his routines, "I do a lot of autobiographical material. I do some observations — things about music and some of my travel experiences. My show changes. I take a look at the audience and see what I think will interest them."

In addition, Ajaye has been in five movies — "Stir Crazy," "Sweet Revenge," "Convoy," "Car Wash" and "The Jazz Singer."

Although he enjoys live performances as well as films, right now Ajaye prefers "films; they refresh me."

"The teamwork aspect seems to allow me to feel more comfortable. I can correct mistakes at my own leisure. It's funny," Ajaye said, reflecting on the subject for a moment. "In a sense it's easier as I get older to be a standup comedian. I have a repertoire and I have skills that I have mastered.

"On the other hand, I find that it drains me much more than being an actor because of the pressure in some cases of being the only one to entertain the audience," Ajaye said, quickly interjecting, "which is not bad. It's fun except on your bad days, your down days or the days when you really don't have that desire. That's when it's kind of tough.

"When I do movies, if I'm going in not feeling like going in, it's not quite as draining. You have time to relax. And you have somebody to kind of help you get up. The pressure of doing a scene is pretty much spread among all the participants."

Today, at 34, Ajaye is taking a hard look at his career. He knows what he wants professionally and privately. The problem is achieving those goals. And he has just broken off a six-year personal relationship which has left him feeling at loose ends.

"In one way I have a lot of changing to do this year and I'm doing it. I'm taking a lot of steps so I can see the growth. In another way I'm confused in my love life, and it's very important to me. It really is. I think it has always taken precedence over my career.

"Now I'm at the age I really am missing a family type of environment. Trying to start from scratch depresses me. The whole dating thing again gets me down."

As far as his career is concerned, Ajaye said, "I want more control — much more control over it, because the older I get the less I want to be jerked around by it or really just go when I'm called. I want to really be able to plan, especially what the year's going to be like.

"Now I have an idea for a script that I have submitted to a company. It's the first time I have ever done something like that just to start to give myself more options.

"I'm getting back into pursuing acting with more determination than I had in the past," he said, adding, "I decided to hire a publicist. This is something I had never done. All (are) in an attempt to get more control over my career."

Although his life is not quite to his liking right now, even if he had the option, he wouldn't back up and reverse his career decision.

"I never regretted that decision. I've been in the courtroom, it's not like performing. Television makes you see it like that, but it's really dry and very bureaucratic."

MC pre-registration ahead of last summer

As Midland College closed for the Fourth of July weekend, pre-registration was running more than 32 percent above last year as students signed up for second summer session classes.

By Thursday morning, the pre-registration count was 513, a 32.5 percent jump over the 387 who had pre-registered at the same time in 1982.

Pre-registration will continue from 7 a.m. until noon Tuesday in the Office of Student Services in the Administration Building.

"Pre-registration provides the advantage of obtaining an exact time period to report for registration, rather than having to be processed on registration day," said Dee Windsor, MC associate dean of students and registrar.

Registration will be from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m. Wednesday in the Physical Education Building.

Prospective students who do not pre-register should come to the Physical Education Building between 6 and 8 p.m. to be processed as quickly as possible.

By the time late registration ends July 13, officials expect more than 713 students to be enrolled in classes for the second summer session. Primarily offered in the academic and business areas, classes will start July 7 and end Aug. 11.

Persons interested in specific day and night classes offered may call 684-7851, extension 166, Tuesday.

UTPB registration slated

ODESSA — Second summer session registration at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. July 11 in the UTPB admissions office.

Courses listed in the second summer session schedule include regular six-week courses running July 11 through Aug. 19, and several three-week courses slated July 11-29.

Classes in psychology, history, government, education, physical education, accounting, economics, finance, management, marketing, geology and criminal justice are included in the schedule.

Enrollment at UTPB is open to students who have completed 60 hours of course work at another college or university. A new law, effective fall 1983, allows students with fewer than 54 hours to request admission, which will be considered on an individual basis depending on the course work the student wants to take and the student's previous academic background.

Basic rule of golf left out

The basic rule of golf, that you must play the ball as it lies, was not in the original Rules of Golf as written in 1754 by the Society of St. Andrews Golfers in Scotland. But it was implied.

Paper sold

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — Donrey Media Group of Fort Smith, Ark., purchased the Alamogordo Daily News and assumed control of the newspaper Friday, the company announced.

Donrey purchased the newspaper from Billie Holder and Aubrey Dunn, both of Alamogordo. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Holder has been publisher of the newspaper since Jan. 1, 1954, and Dunn joined him in mid-1956. Since that time they have run the newspaper jointly.

Donald W. Reynolds, president and chief executive officer of Donrey, appointed Dale Wetenkamp general manager of the newspaper and Wetenkamp assumed his duties today.

Navratilova would like short, sweet victory

Unseeded Lewis faces McEnroe in Wimbledon finals

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova wants to make today's women's final at the Wimbledon Tennis Championships short and sweet. But she would take a long three-setter as long as she wins.

The defending champion and No. 1 seed on the grass courts of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, Navratilova will face third-seeded Andrea Jaeger for the women's title and the $101,000 that goes with it.

"My game is better suited for grass than Andrea's," Navratilova said after demolishing Yvonne Vermaak 6-1, 6-1 in the semifinals on Thursday. "While your past history does help to a certain point — Andrea hasn't taken a set off me in two years — once that first ball is hit, nothing else matters."

Jaeger advanced to the final with an equally easy 6-1, 6-1 semifinal victory over veteran Billie Jean King, who at 39 was seeking her seventh Wimbledon singles crown.

"I just hope I can play as well (in the final) as I have been these past few days," Jaeger said. "Martina has had a pretty easy run to the finals and she is very confident and playing well.

"I will just go out there and do my best, but I certainly am not going out there thinking I will lose."

SEEKING HER fourth Wimbledon singles title — she also won in 1978 and 1979 — Navratilova has made her on-court stays as short as possible. She has not lost a set and has dropped only 22 games in her six matches.

Only once has she been forced to a tiebreaker, that by Sherry Acker in the second round, a set that took 49 minutes to play.

Most of her matches have been completed in less than 49 minutes.

Navratilova crushed Beverly Mould of South Africa in 31 minutes, needed 42 minutes to down Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia and took 37 minutes to eliminate ninth-seeded Claudia Kohde of West Germany.

Jennifer Mundel of South Africa extended Navratilova to 49 minutes in their quarterfinal match, while Vermaak was dispatched in 35 minutes.

Jaeger's baseline game took her longer to dispose of opponents than did Navratilova's serve-and-volley tactics.

ENROUTE TO the final, the 18-year-old right-hander eliminated Susan Rimes, Pam Casale, Sue Leo of Australia, Carling Bassett of Canada, 11th-seeded Barbara Potter and King, who was seeded 10th.

In their career, Navratilova holds a 10-4 edge over Jaeger, Navratilova winning their last seven meetings.

The women's championship match will be followed by the men's doubles final, which will pit two-time champions John McEnroe and Peter Fleming against Tim and Tom Gullikson, only the third set of twins to reach the men's doubles final and the first in this century.

"I FELT all along that this was my week -- and I told myself it's about time," 100-1 shot Chris Lewis said Friday after crashing into the Wimbledon men's singles final against John McEnroe.

"I felt I was at the cross-roads of my career," he continued, "and I went into the tournament with the determination to give it a go.

"I had dropped down from the 20s in the world rankings (91 going into Wimbledon) and I was getting very discouraged.

"I started on a hard training program, worked with my coach Tony Roche, and felt I was in as good of shape as I'd ever be."

Lewis' intense physical regimen paid off as he defeated hard-serving Kevin Curren of South Africa, conqueror of defending champion Jimmy Connors, in a 3 hour, 46 minute marathon 6-7, 6-4, 7-6, 6-7, 8-6.

SPECTATORS WHO came to watch the highly ballyhood grudge match between McEnroe and Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl — one of them England's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher — stayed until nearly dark to cheer one of the closest, most exciting maches ever on center court.

It was a contest not only of excellent shot-making but also of breath-taking acrobatics on the part of both of the dark-horse competitors.

They lunged. They dove. They scrambled. They virtually hit balls out of their ears. In the course of the match, both took a number of nasty spills.

They scored winners backhanding lobs over their shoulders. They hit the ball while flying through the air, sometimes hit balls between their legs and other times were sprawled on their backs on the court.

The fans loved it.

"I am cut up and bruised," said Curren, who went 70 service games in the tournament before losing his delivery to Tim Mayotte in the quarterfinals.

"Me, too," added Lewis, when it came his time to face the press. "I think nothing of it. I am always landing on my elbows and knees. That's the way I play."

LEWIS WAS one of the world's most promising teen-agers, winning the Wimbledon junior event and going to the finals in the U.S. Open in 1975.

Demonstrators, no-shows mar University Games

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Prince Charles officially opened the XII World University Games Friday, marred by more than 2,000 demonstrators from five nations and three no-shows by men's basketball teams.

After the prince's speech before nearly 61,000 spectators on the sunny day, Canadian athletes Graham Smith and Tracy Mills lighted the torch atop the dove of peace in Commonwealth Stadium.

Smith and Mills trotted around the stadium, side by side, carrying the torches on the final leg of an 8,000-mile trip from Sofia, Bulgaria, site of the 1981 games.

Meanwhile, in men's basketball, the United States men, heavily favored to win the gold medal, picked up a forfeit when Benin failed to show for the event.

The American women take on Hong Kong in their debut Saturday.

Also awarded two points for men's basketball forfeits Friday were Yugoslavia over Wranda and China over Nigeria. Wranda and Nigeria also did not send teams.

Cuba, another expected men's basketball power, smashed Hong Kong 128-48.

In first-round games in men's basketball Friday night, Australia faced Finland, Canada took on Angola and Israel played Mexico.

Activity in swimming, diving, water polo, volleyball, fencing and gymnastics joins basketball on Saturday's calendar. Cycling and tennis begin Monday and track and field waits until Tuesday.

Most of the crowd entering the stadium ignored the demonstrators from Vietnam, Poland, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Afghanistan. Edmonton police reported no incidents from the pickets, all licensed by the city.

The largest and best-organized group were the Vietnamese, estimated at 2,000 by its leader, Hai Nguyen of Ottawa, and at 1,200 by police. The demonstrators carried banners protesting the Hanoi regime, sang Happy Birthday on Canada's 116th anniversary and chanted, "Down with the communists."

They also ripped up a flag for the current regime in their nation.

Hai says it is not the purpose of his group to seek defectors from the Vietnamese team at these games. "We don't know if there will be defections. There could be. There are usually a lot of defections by communist athletes at world games."

Most of the demonstrators dispersed after the opening of the games, satisfied they had gotten their messages across to the fans, who watched 68 nations' athletes march into the stadium in the opening pageantry.

The Poles, about 250, and 30 Afghans were protesting against the appearance of the Soviet Union in this event, the Poles for martial law in their homeland and the Afghans for the Russians' invasion of their nation.

Police said there were about 50 ticket-holding Polish demonstrators wearing Solidarity T-shirts inside the stadium.

Two Afghans held a 30-foot white banner that read: "Stop Soviet atrocities in Afghanistan — 500,000 Afghans killed and 4 million refugees."

Ten Pakistanis said they were demonstrating against a military regime that has supressed human rights, barring women from sports and closing most universities.

The Tamils, with 68 pickets, were protesting the treatment of minorities by the majority Sangalese in Sri Lanka, a British colony along the Indian Ocean.

Fate can be rough on independent drivers

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dave Marcis, his battered cap pulled down low over his weathered face, was bemoaning the fate of the independent car owner in the world of Grand National stock car racing.

"Things have not been going very well for us this year," said Marcis, who has five victories and almost $1.5 million in earnings since he began driving Grand National cars in 1968.

Marcis is one of a dying breed, the men who own and drive their own stockers without the financial resources to go first class.

"It's always a struggle," Marcis said Friday as one of his crewmen worked under the hood of his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, getting it ready for the opening practice session for Monday's Firecracker 400 at Daytona International Speedway.

"But I thought this year might be a lot different, what with us being on the Winner's Circle," he added.

THE WINNER'S Circle is a program put together by NASCAR in which eight cars which have won at least one race in the past or current season are paid a cash bonus for showing up at every Grand National race. To be eligible, the team must run the full 30-race schedule.

"Without the Winner's Circle, we couldn't even be out here right now because of the way things have gone this season," added Marcis, who got onto the program in the spring of 1982 by winning a rain-shortened 400-miler at Richmond, Va.

"Last year was such a good year for us," Marcis said. "I won that race and we got $62,000 in (Winston Cup) point money. I was sure we were going to be more competitive, maybe win a race early in the season.

"I took all that money, the whole $62,000, and spent it all on new engine parts and pieces. It just hasn't worked out for us. If I had it to do it all over again, I'd wait and spread it out over the season."

THE MAJOR problem for Marcis this season, ironically, has been engines.

"We started the season with more and better engines parts and pieces than I've ever had, and we've blown up six complete engine, all with new pieces in 'em," said the 42-year-old resident of Avery's Creek, N.C.

"We came to Daytona (in February for the Daytona 500) with three engines — never in my life did I come to a race with three engines — and a nice, clean Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS that I thought would be a real little runner. But not one of those three engines would run a lick. And that's the way it's been going all year.

"The one thing I've got going for me is my people haven't given up. We intend and are trying to turn it around. I just hope this is the place where we can get it started going the other way."

Marcis also is working on a new car — an Oldsmobile Cutlass.

"I am building a car and we're going to try it, test it and see how it runs," Marcis said.

1933 -- The New York Giants swept the St. Louis Cardinals in a doubleheader by identical 1-0 scores. Carl Hubbell went all 18 innings in the first game, allowing six hits and no walks. Roy Parmelee outdueled Dizzy Dean in the nightcap, striking out 13 and walking none.

Cubs end Dodger series with 2-1 win, first place

SAN ANTONIO — Jim Wright pitched eight innings of shutout ball before allowing a run in the ninth, but it was too little, too late as the Midland Cubs held on to post a 2-1 win here against the San Antonio Dodgers.

Wright, 4-1, allowed only two hits through the first eight innings. San Antonio chased him in the ninth with lead-off singles from Dodgers Stu Pederson and R.J. Reynolds. Bill Johnson came on in relief of Wright and picked up the save to give the Cubs the series, four games to two.

San Antonio pitcher Ken Howell matched Wright's performance through most of the game. Howell had a no-hitter going until Midland's Rick Baker lashed a single to right field in the seventh inning. Baker advanced to second on an errant pickoff throw at first, moved to third on a ground ball out and scored the game's first run when Tom Lombarski singled to center.

The Cubs added a run in the eighth. Jay Loviglio beat out an infield hit with two outs, and Baker provided more heroics with a triple over Pederson's head in right field to score Loviglio.

Meanwhile, Wright allowed no hits until the Dodger's Reynolds singled with two down in the sixth.

After Johnson came on in the ninth, Dodger Tom Beyers singled to score Pederson. But Johnson halted the rally when Dale Holman grounded ir.to a game-ending double-play.

Wright struck out six in the game.

THE CUBS return home today in first place after a 12-game road trip to open the second half of Texas League play. Midland hosts El Paso tonight in the first game of a six-game set with the Diablos. Game time is 7:30 at Cubs Stadium.

El Paso, after losing Friday to Beaumont, 8-7, fell one game behind the Cubs in the West Division.

Guidry to miss All-Star game

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees will miss next Wednesday night's All-Star game in Chicago as well as a scheduled start Sunday against Boston because of back spasms, the American League club said Friday.

Guidry, 10-4, with a 2.96 earned run average, is tied for the most victories in the league. The left-hander, who last pitched in Baltimore on June 22, developed back spasms while the Yankees were in Boston last weekend.

He missed a scheduled start earlier this week against Baltimore and has been scratched as the Yankees' pitcher on Sunday against the Red Sox.

The AL did not immediately name a replacement for Guidry on the All-Star team.

Giants use three-run fifth to break tie, go on to win, 4-3

Friday's Late Baseball

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bill Laskey and Jim Barr combined on a six-hitter and Chris Smith and Brad Wellman delivered RBI singles in a three-run fifth inning to give the San Francisco Giants a 4-3 triumph over the San Diego Padres Friday night.

Laskey, 9-7, departed with two outs in the eighth inning after giving up a solo home run to Steve Garvey, his 13th, and a single by Terry Kennedy.

Jim Barr came on to strike out Sixto Lezcano and work a scoreless ninth inning for his second save.

The Giants' three-run fifth broke a 1-1 tie and pinned the loss on Tim Lollar, 3-6, who lasted just 4 1-3 innings.

Darrell Evans led off the fifth with a single, Jack Clark walked and Jeff Leonard singled to load the bases. Bob Brenly's sacrifice fly to center broke the tie and Smith, batting just .100 at the start of the game, singled to make it 3-1. Luis DeLeon replaced Lollar and gave up a run-scoring single to Wellman.

After Leonard's run-scoring single in the first inning gave the Giants a 1-0 lead, a two-base throwing error by San Francisco third baseman Joel Youngblood on Juan Bonilla's grounder set up the tying run in the third. Lollar singled in Bonilla.

The Padres trimmed the lead to 4-2 in the seventh when Tony Gwynn led off with a double and wound up at third as center fielder Leonard misplayed his ball for an error. Gwynn scored on Bonilla's groundout.

Improved Brewers edge Indians in slugfest, 11-10

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cecil Cooper, Paul Molitor and Robin Yount hit home runs as the Milwaukee Brewers outslugged the Cleveland Indians 11-10 Friday night for their sixth victory in seven games.

Mike Caldwell, 6-7, was the winner despite yielding five runs on 10 hits, including six doubles, over the first 5⅓ innings. Jim Slaton finished up for his first save.

Cleveland's Juan Eichelberger, 3-7, was driven from the mound by a five-run first inning. The Milwaukee outburst was aided by third baseman Toby Harrah's error, a routine line drive which center fielder Gorman Thomas misjudged — giving Ted Simmons an RBI double — a passed ball and a wild pitch.

Rick Manning, making his first appearance in Cleveland after being dealt for Thomas in a June 6 trade, added a two-run single to the rally and Ned Yost lined a run-scoring single.

American League

Cleveland cut the lead to 5-3 in the bottom of the first as Mike Hargrove singled home one run and Toby Harrah laced a two-run double, but Cooper built the Brewer lead to 7-3 in the second with a two-run homer, his 15th.

Thomas doubled in a run for Cleveland in the third, but Milwaukee bounced back with two in the fourth on Molitor's solo home run, his sixth, and Simmons' RBI double. The Brewers added a run in the fifth for a 10-4 lead when Molitor doubled in a run.

Cleveland scored in the sixth on Manny Trillo's sacrifice fly, then pulled within 10-7 in the seventh on sacrifice flies by Julio Franco and Broderick Perkins, before Yount hit a bases-empty home run, his 11th, in the Milwaukee eighth.

The blow became decisive when Ron Hassey slugged a three-run homer in the Cleceland ninth for the game's final runs.

Orioles 9, Tigers 5

DETROIT — Todd Cruz, playing his first game with Baltimore, slammed his eighth home run of the season and drove in six runs as the Orioles snapped a three-game losing streak with a 9-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

With Detroit leading 3-2 in the third, Eddie Murray and John Lowenstein singled, and Jim Dwyer was walked intentionally before Cruz, who was purchased from Seattle Thursday, cleared the bases with a double to left.

The Orioles increased their lead to 8-3 in the fifth. Murray singled, took second on a passed ball and, following another intentional walk to Dwyer, Cruz slammed a three-run homer off Detroit starter Milt Wilcox, 7-8.

Baltimore took a 2-0 lead in the first on back-to-back homers by Cal Ripken, his 13th, and Murray, his 12th. But Detroit's Glenn Wilson answered in the bottom of the inning with his ninth homer, a three-run shot.

Lance Parrish hit a solo homer for the Tigers in the sixth and pinch-hitter John Grubb added a bases-empty shot in the seventh.

Storm Davis, who no-hit Detroit through eight innings June 26, allowed six hits, walked two and hit a batter as he raised his record to 6-3.

Twins 6, White Sox 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Randy Bush hit his seventh home run of the season and Tom Brunansky highlighted a four-run eighth inning with a two-run double as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-3.

LaMarr Hoyt, 9-8, who had a personal three-game winning streak halted, gave up Bush's homer leading off the second inning and the Twins made it 2-0 in the fifth when Ray Smith doubled and Houston Jimenez singled.

Minnesota's first run in the decisive eighth scored on singles by Jimenez, Ron Washington and Gary Ward and the second came in on Kent Hrbek's sacrifice fly. After Bush was hit by a pitch, Dick Tidrow gave up Brunansky's two-run double.

Davis recorded his 12th save despite allowing Julio Cruz' single, Fisk's double and Tom Paciorek's two-run double in the ninth.

Mariners 11, Blue Jays 2

TORONTO — Dave Henderson's two-run homer highlighted a five-run third inning and Jamie Allen's two-run single keyed a four-run fourth as the Seattle Mariners routed the Toronto Blue Jays 11-2.

Leading 2-1, the Mariners put the game out of reach with the big third inning, chasing Jim Gott, 5-7. With one out, Ricky Nelson tripled and scored on a single by Richie Zisk. A grounder moved Zisk to second, Steve Henderson singled him home, Henderson took second on the throw to the plate, then Allen singled to score Steve Henderson before Save Henderson greeted reliever Mike Morgan with his seventh homer of the season.

Yankees 12, Red Sox 8

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees blew a seven-run lead built on six extra-base hits in the second inning but won an 12-8 slugfest with four runs in the sixth, including Roy Smalley's tie-breaking sacrifice fly and capped by Graig Nettles' two-run single.

Nettles had a solo homer and an RBI double, while Smalley slammed a three-run homer as the Yankees pounded Dennis Eckersley and John Henry Johnson for seven runs in the second inning.

The Red Sox bounced back with a long-ball attack of their own, which included four home runs and a double among their 14 hits.

The Yankees rapped out 12 hits, including three homers and four doubles — all in the second inning — and a leadoff triple in the sixth by Don Baylor which became the tie-breaking run when Smalley followed with a sacrifice fly.

Lewis' game was going down hill old Curren, who had become a Wimbledon favorite.

Then, strangely, his game went into an inexplicable eclipse. He ranked 57th at the end of last year and dropped into the 90s this season on a nondescript record.

Roche, the left-handed Australian who coaches the New Zealand Davis Cup squad, has contributed materially to Lewis' improvement.

"I thought I had it when I won the first set and especially when I went up 3-0 in the fifth," said the 25-year-

"But he hit some unbelievable shots on big points. He was in better shape than I am. He played the game of his life."

Curren said he had not fully recovered from an attack of fever he suffered in the spring and was not up to the series of tough matches he had to play here.

"I got fatigued. I wasn't as sharp as in early matches," he said.

"I couldn't feel any better," he said. "I don't think I've played this well in two years."

WHEN CURREN went ahead 3-0 in the last set, he added, he just became determined "to give it everything I've got."

Curren was disturbed when, at break point and down 0-40 in the 13th game of the last set, Lewis hit a backhand down the line that was called out by the linesman but overruled by the umpire.

"A replay showed that the ball was clearly out," Curren said. "An umpire isn't supposed to overrule a linesman unless there is no question. There certainly was question on this."

Lewis took Curren's side.

"I was surprised," Lewis said. "It was very close. There were many more calls where an overrule might have been justified. I don't blame Kevin for being upset."

On the prospect of meeting McEnroe in center court Sunday, Lewis said, "I'm not intimidated, but I am nervous."

Junker hits two slams

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A California League outfielder with a .260 batting average hit two grand slams in the same inning — a feat too rare to be listed in league record books and one never accomplished in the major leagues.

Lance Junker of the Class A Redwood Pioneers hit both homers in the top of the ninth inning as his team came from behind to drub the Reno Padres 16-5.

Junker, 22, blasted four grand slams among six season home runs last year at Danville, Ill., in the Midwest League. But he had not hit a single homer this season before stepping up to bat with the bases loaded Thursday night.

California League records make no mention of anyone hitting two grand slams in one game, let alone a single inning. Only seven times in major league history has a player hit two grand slams in one game, and never in one inning.

Heavy rains wash out Western Open play

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Heavy rains washed out play in the Western Open Friday and forced a revision of the schedule for the $400,000 golf tournament.

Second-round play now is set for Saturday, with a double round of 36 holes to be played Sunday.

The rainout marked the seventh time in the last eight tournaments on the PGA Tour that play had been disrupted by bad weather.

A heavy thunderstorm, packing winds in excess of 50 mph, heavy rain, hail and lightning, swept over the Butler National Golf Club course in surban Chicago Friday morning.

The course, already saturated by storms earlier in the week, became partially flooded and unplayable under the rules of golf, PGA Tour official Frank Kavanaugh said.

About half the field was on the course when the storm hit. No one had played more than eight holes, however, and all partial scores from Friday's play were washed out.

After Saturday's second round, the field will be cut to the low 60 scorers for the double-round windup Sunday. (The 36-hole cut normally is to the low 70 scorers, but the tournament director has the authority to reduce the field if necessary to accommodate a 36-hole finish.)

Tom Watson, with a 5-under-par 67, led after the first 18 holes. Buddy Gardner was alone in second at 68. Tied at 69 were Bruce Fleisher, John Adams and Australian Greg Norman.

None of those leaders had teed off when Friday's play was canceled.

Four tied for PJC lead at 8-under-par 136

POINTE CLAIRE, Quebec (AP) — Four players, including first-round leader M.J. Smith, won a battle against strong winds Friday to share the lead at eight-under-par after two rounds at the Ladies' Professional Golf Association Peter Jackson Classic.

Tied with Smith, who has a 36-hole total of 136 over the par-72, 6,033-yard Beaconsfield Golf Club are Hollis Stacy, Sandra Spuzich and Donna White. Smith had entered play Friday with a 2-stroke lead after an opening-round 65.

Spuzich, with a 6-under-par 66, had the best round Friday, prompting her to say, "I probably played the best golf of my life. The wind was blowing so hard, you had to keep the ball in play or else end up shooting big numbers."

It was Stacy, however, who had the finest finishing touch. She birdied the 170-yard, par-3, 17th hole before using a sand wedge to chip in a 60-footer for an eagle on the 479-yard, par-5, 18th hole.

"I tried to get a little more height to the shot than I normally do," said Stacy. "Usually, I just try to knock it down. I opened the blade a little and cut it. It was perfect."

White wasn't perfect but she played consistently. She parred 12 holes and birdied five others, taking her only bogey on the seventh hole.

Like the other golfers, she spoke of the stiff breezes that were especially tricky on the par-3 holes.

"It was really blowing on the front side," said White. "I couldn't believe it.

Smith, the New Zealand native looking for her first tournament victory, said she started her round timidly, leaving putts short on early holes, which was the differencve between a birdie and a par. She settled down, however, and drew gasps from the gallery on the 11th green when she sank a 50-foot putt.

On the 18th, with a chance to have sole possession of the lead, she came up short on a 35-footer and tapped in from about one foot for a par.

Trailing the co-leaders are Jo Ann Washam, two strokes back, and Jan Stephenson, who won the event in 1981, and Patty Sheehan, tied at 139, three behind the leaders.

Barber leads seniors by two

MARLBORO, Mass. (AP) — Miller Barber, the leading money winner on the seniors tour, shot a second-round 67 Friday and took a two-stroke lead after 36 holes in the $150,000 Marlboro Classic when first-round leader Kel Nagle four-putted his final hole.

The 52-year-old Barber, the leading senior tour money winner in each of the last two years, and nearing the $2 million mark in career earnings, had carded an opening-round 70 over the 6,174-yard Marlboro Country Club course.

His 5-under-par 137 total for the 36 holes gave him a 2-stroke edge over Gay Brewer, who at one time was three under on each of his two rounds, en route to a 139 total.

Barber's round featured four birdies and no bogeys.

Brewer was making a serious charge when he ran off three birdies in four holes on the back side. But he three-putted twice on the way home.

Nagle finished with a double bogey six on his final hole of the day and finished with a 141 total.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer finished at 144 halfway through the 72-hole tournament.

Ashby placed on 15-day disabled list

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros catcher Alan Ashby, fighting a viral infection, has been placed on the 15-day disabled list retroactive to June 27.

Ashby, the eighth Astro season to go on the disabled list this season, will be replaced on the roster by catcher George Bjorkman, whose contract was purchased Friday from Houston's Triple-A affiliate in Tucson.

Dodgers beat Astros in 10th, 5-2

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Dusty Baker's three-run double in the 10th inning lifted the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 5-2 triumph over the Houston Astros Friday night.

Pinch hitter Rick Monday opened the 10th inning with a single and was replaced by pinch runner Ken Landreaux. Loser Frank LaCorte, 4-4, plunked Steve Sax with a pitch and walked Derrel Thomas to load the bases. All-Star reliever Bill Dawley entered the game and was victimized by Baker's third game-winning hit of the year.

Alejandro Pena, 7-3, scattered five hits over nine innings, striking out nine and walking none. Steve Howe pitched the final inning for his eighth save.

It was the eighth victory for Los Angeles in nine games against Houston this year.

National League

The Astros tied the game in the ninth inning on Dickie Thon's RBI single. Omar Moreno had doubled with one out, breaking a string of 15 straight batters retired by Pena.

Los Angeles took the lead in the first inning as Thomas singled, stole second and scored on Pedro Guerrero's two-out double. Thomas led off the third inning with a triple and scored on Dusty Baker's sacrifice fly.

Houston made it 2-1 in its half of the third when Bill Doran and Moreno doubled.

Braves 5, Reds 2

ATLANTA — Phil Niekro allowed five hits in seven-plus innings and contributed a run-scoring single as the Atlanta Braves turned back the Cincinnati Reds 5-2.

The 44-year-old knuckleballer ran his record to 4-6, walking four and striking out six before walking the first two Reds in the eighth. Steve Bedrosian came on for his 10th save.

Gary Redus lashed Niekro's fourth pitch of the game for his 12th home run. The Reds made it 2-0 in the second when Nick Esasky's two-out drive to center field eluded Dale Murphy's jump and caromed off the wall and rolled halfway back to the infield, allowing Esasky to circle the bases for his first major-league home run.

But Atlanta rallied back as every Braves starter had a hit in their 14-hit attack.

Cardinals 13, Pirates 6

PITTSBURGH — Willie McGee, George Hendrick and Andy Van Slyke rapped three hits apiece in a 22-hit attack that carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a 13-6 trouncing of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Winner Joaquin Andujar, 4-11, who riled the Pirates with brushback pitches earlier this week in St. Louis, stopped his personal six-game losing streak. He allowed seven hits in 7⅔ innings before leaving with a bruised right knee.

The Cardinals took a 3-0 lead in the second when Van Slyke and Ken Oberkfell singled and Andujar followed with a run-scoring single. Tom Herr then cracked a two-run triple.

St. Louis added three runs more in the third inning. Consecutive doubles by Hendrick and Van Slyke made it 4-1. Oberkfell then walked and Darrell Porter added a run-scoring single. Smith's RBI single chased Don Robinson, 1-1.

Pittsburgh scored four runs in the eighth, two on Dave Parker's single.

St. Louis made it 13-6 in the ninth on McGee's run-scoring groundout.

Cubs 7, Expos 5

CHICAGO — Ron Cey and Leon Durham each hit a home run and a double as the Chicago Cubs posted their fourth straight victory, 7-5 over the Montreal Expos.

Dickie Noles, 2-3, who scattered 12 hits, was backed by three double plays but needed eighth-inning help from Lee Smith as the first-place Expos suffered their third loss in a row. Smith picked up his 10th save.

Chicago scored two runs in the first inning on a single by Bill Buckner and succesive RBI doubles by Cey and Durham off Randy Lerch, 1-2. Ryne Sandberg doubled in a run in the second and Cey, who had three hits, cracked his ninth homer of the season in the third inning.

Durham hit his 10th homer in the fifth and the Cubs added a run in the sixth on a double by Jody Davis and a triple by Larry Bowa. Andre Dawson drilled a two-run double for the Expos in the third inning and Montreal scored three runs in the eighth, two on Tim Raines' single.

Phillies 5, Mets 1

PHILADELPHIA — John Denny pitched a two-hitter and hot-hitting Ivan DeJesus singled home the winning run in the sixth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies beat Tom Seaver and the New York Mets 5-1.

Denny struck out six and walked one as he earned his sixth victory against four defeats. Seaver fell to 5-8.

After Ron Hodges singled in the second, Denny retired 16 consecutive batters until he walked Danny Heep to start the eighth. He then struck out Hodges and got pinch hitter Rusty Staub to hit into a double play.

The Phillies snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth when Greg Gross walked with two outs and went to third on a single by Kiko Garcia. DeJesus then singled to right-center.

Tampa Bay could use some help

By The Associated Press

For the Tampa Bay Bandits, winning isn't everything. They have to hope, too.

Entering the final weekend of the United States Football League's regular season, the Bandits are entangled in a three-way tie with the Chicago Blitz and Michigan Panthers for first place in the Central Division, each with an 11-6 record.

That means, barring a minor or major upset, one of them will win the division title, another will be the USFL's wild-card playoff entry and the third team will have nothing to do on July 4 except empty out lockers and start thinking about 1984.

The Bandits, who close out the regular season tonight in Birmingham, are in the most precarious position. Not only must they beat the Stallions but they also must hope that either the Blitz (at home against Oakland) or Michigan (playing host to Arizona) lose on Sunday.

Also in the running — barely — for the wild card is Boston. The Breakers, closing the season at home against New Jersey, are 10-7. In order to get into the playoffs, not only must the Breakers beat the Generals but Chicago and Tampa Bay must both lose.

USFL Roundup

IN THE remaining USFL games Sunday, Philadelphia is at Washington and Denver is at Los Angeles.

"If Michigan wins, the Panthers will be the Central Division champs regardless of what the Bandits and Blitz do, based on a better record among the three teams. If Chicago and Tampa Bay both win as well, the Blitz will win the wild card based on two victories over the Bandits. If those two teams win and the Panthers lose, the Blitz will win the division title and the Bandits the wild card.

Tampa Bay Coach Steve Spurrier said the Bandits would "like to be 12-6, even if we don't make the playoffs. And we'd feel awfully bad if one of those other teams (Chicago or Michigan) lost and we lost, too."

He's counting on quarterback Jimmy Jordan to deal with the Birmingham defense the way he did last June 5, when Tampa Bay trounced the Stallions 45-17. "He had an outstanding game against Birmingham before," Spurrier said of Jordan, who took over for injured John Reaves and completed 16 of 31 passes for 223 yards and four touchdowns.

But Coach Rollie Dotsch said his Stallions, 8-9, won't just be playing out the string. "We're going to make every effort, though, to disrupt Tampa Bay's playoff hopes," he said. And, looking back on that rout of a month ago, linebacker Rick D'Amico observed, "I guess you could say we owe them something."

New Jersey Coach Chuck Fairbanks is returning to New England for the first time since he quit as head coach of the National Football League's New England Patriots in 1978. He coached the Patriots for six years before walking out on a contract to return to the college ranks at Colorado.

Boston will be seeking to make it two in a row over the Generals. The Breakers beat New Jersey 31-21 March 27. The Generals are 6-11 despite the efforts of Herschel Walker, who leads the league with 18 touchdowns and 1,738 yards rushing.

The game likely will be the Breakers' last appearance at Boston University's Nickerson Field — and perhaps their last in Massachusetts. With a seating capacity of only 21,000 and limited facilities, the field has proved inadequate for pro football. Harvard University won't let the Breakers play at its stadium and Sullivan Stadium, the Pats' home, is asking too much in rent.

The Invaders, having wrapped up the Pacific Division title last weekend by edging Boston 17-16, are 9-8 — but Chicago Coach George Allen warns: "Oakland is a good physical team. They're bigger than we are, and quick."

But the Blitz has the league's No. 1 defense and the third-best offense.

McKenzie sets hammer throw record, 241-6

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The first event of the National Sports Festival's glamour competition, track and field, produced a meet-record Friday and an Olympic team was selected in women's field hockey.

As the Festival entered it's final three days, track and field began at the Air Force Academy with American record holder Dave McKenzie setting a Festival record of 241 feet, 6 inches in winning the hammer throw.

McKenzie, 34, of Fairfield, Calif., managed the fifth best throw ever by an American, shattering the NSF mark of 236-3 he set last year at Indianapolis. He had the three best throws in the competition.

Ed Burke, the former American record holder, finished second at 230-0 and Andy Bessette was third at 224-5.

Sports Festival

McKenzie, the 1983 national champion, said he found it difficult to perform at peak in this meet "for a number of reasons."

"One was the altitude (7,300 feet)," he said. "Another was the upward slope of the field. The conditions were not optimal."

MARLENE HARMON of Thousand Oaks, Calif., and California State-Northridge, set an American record for the heptathlon in the 110-meter hurdles, clocking a 13.10 to snap Jane Frederick's standard of 13.24. Harmon also won the shot put at 40-8¼ and was fourth in the high jump portion of the heptathlon. That discipline was won by Lauri Young of DeRider, La., at 5-11½.

Bruce Bickford of Wellesley Hills, Mass., won the men's 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:59.61, winning by almost 11 seconds, while Francie Larrieu Smith of Denton, Texas, who will undergo foot surgery on July 13, outlasted Michelle Bush of UCLA in the women's 1,500 in 4:28.17.

Todd Scully, a former pig farmer from Blacksburg, Va., took the men's 20-kilometer walk in 1 hour, 39 minutes, 13 seconds, beating runner-up Dave Cummings by more than a minute.

Patty Kearney of Eugene, Ore., won the women's javelin with a toss of 178-2. She was in fourth place until she uncorked her winning effort.

After the West shutout the East 2-0 in women's field hockey, 16 players were selected for the 1984 Olympic team. The squad, which will be coached by Vonnie Gros of West Chester, Pa., includes 14-time national team member Beth Anders, a midfielder, and veteran goalie Gwen Cheeseman.

Michelle Berube of Rochester, Minn., won the all-around gold medal in rhythmic gymnastics, Berube, 17, won three of four events held: clubs, ribbon and hoop.

Csonka joins USFL as scout

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Former Miami Dolphins fullback Larry Csonka, saying "my sights are set on championship football," joined the United States Football League Friday as scouting director for the new Jacksonville team.

"I'm very happy to be realigned with football," said Csonka, the bruising fullback who led to Dolphins to three Super Bowls and two National Football League championships in the early 1970s.

Csonka, who bulled through NFL defenses for 8,081 yards in 11 seasons, will concentrate on current pros, owner Fred "Bubba" Bullard said in announcing the hiring.

"Larry Csonka not only possesses tremendous football credentials and knowledge, he has outstanding contacts in the professional football ranks," said Bullard, whose team is to be named July 4.

Csonka, a former NFL All-Pro, said he would "base my directorship of scouting on the number eight — that is, to locate, evaluate and negotiate football players, be they in the NFL or CFL, respectively."

"My sights are set on championship football," he said, adding that his first priority was a strong offensive line.

Csonka, 36, said he has spent the past few years "feeding the cows and digging the coal up in Ohio," referring to a farm and small strip-mining operation he owns.

UT cultivates French connection to aid West Texas wine industry

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas-France business alliance has signed an agreement to build a commercial winery and operate the University of Texas' vineyards in West Texas.

UT Chancellor E.D. Walker said a successful Texas wine industry could make up some of the "inevitable decline in revenues" from university oil and gas leases, and he added:

"It is one of the most exciting projects in West Texas and the prospects are almost unlimited in scope."

UT signed a lease agreement earlier this week with the Gill-Richter-Cordier Corp., which will operate UT vineyards in Pecos County, 30 miles east of Fort Stockton.

The vineyards are expected to reach 1,000 acres by 1984, and produce enough grapes to make 1.5 million gallons of wine by 1988.

"The success of this venture emphasizes the need for the university to continue its plans to experiment with innovative ways to use the surface of the university land," said Beryl Milburn, chairman of UT regents' land and investment committee.

"We hope that such crops as apples, pears, pistachio nuts, almonds and Guayule, a rubber plant native to West Texas, will have commercial viability and enhance the West Texas agriculture economy," he said.

Henri Bernabe, president of the 100-year-old Richter Co. of Montpelier, France, said his company decided to invest in Texas instead of California or New Mexico "because we felt the climate and the soil were conducive to quality wine production and, in addition, this project presented an interesting challenge."

Mrs. Milburn compared Texas' Chenin Blanc to that produced by California wine makers Louis Martini, Paul Masson and Sebastiani.

UT started experimental vineyards in 1975, and started a commercial vineyard development in 1981.

"The climate is dry, which inhibits the development of fungus and also permits the production of the best Vinifera varieties," Bernabe said. "There is also a warm climate, which produces a high sugar content, and the cool summer nights permit slow maturation and the creation of the flavors which give fruitiness and balance to the wine."

Lucien Viaud, vice president of production for Cordier, said, "We are going to use some new methods and technologies for the production of quality red and white wines."

Steamboat made money

Robert Fulton's Clermont, launched in 1807, although not the first steamboat in America, was the first to be commercially successful in American waters.

Students use brushes, microscopes

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Their tools are paint brushes, cotton swabs, microscopes and infrared cameras.

They bend to their tasks for long hours each day in a studio on the shore of Lake Otsego cluttered with easels, light tables, laboratory equipment and fading artworks of centuries ago.

They're the students of the State University of New York's graduate program in conservation of historic and artistic works — a select group of serious, aspiring conservators who have come to this tiny, central New York town from around the United States to learn techniques of preserving past treasures.

One of just a handful of art conservation graduate programs in North America, the Cooperstown program accepts just 10 students each year for its three-year course of study from a field of usually "70 or so" applicants, says F. Christopher Tahk, the program's coordinator of academic affairs.

Admission standards are high and the work for those accepted is rigorous, Tahk says, but students normally receive grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Mellon Foundation that cover most of their costs during the two years of studio work and third year of internship.

According to Tahk, 98 percent of the students who have graduated from the program since it began in 1969 today hold permanent, full-time jobs in the business.

Most of those jobs are in museums or regional conservation centers. Some graduates eventually go into business for themselves.

To become a member of this elite group of graduate students requires an unusual combination of studies as an undergraduate. Students who are accepted into the program should have strong backgrounds in art history, studio art and chemistry as well as some work experience in the area of conservation, says Tahk.

Tahk himself came to the art world from science. A chemistry graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he holds a doctorate in organic chemistry from the University of Rochester as well as a master's degree from the Cooperstown program.

Scientific equipment his students have at their disposal includes the X-ray powder diffraction unit he obtained with a National Science Foundation grant. Using that device, one student tested a minute particle to determine what kind of mineral was making it difficult for her to clean an artifact. She found the answer in the pattern with which X-rays scattered off the sample — making a design on film that's as unique and positively identifiable as a human fingerprint.

Nearby, another student exulted over her creation of a rare blue pigment made, more or less, according to a recipe used by Renaissance artists. In another part of the lab, a high-power stereo microscope showed distinct layers of paint and fiber on a paint chip barely visible to the human eye.

And, placing a painting before an infrared vidicon camera revealed an artist's experimental positioning of a girl's hand, later rejected and painted over. It also revealed the painting's title, which the artist had written on the back of the canvas.

The Cooperstown facility also has less sophisticated, but equally effective, equipment, some of it developed here. There are vacuum tables in the paper conservation room which enable conservators to clean delicate paper artifacts without soaking the object, and a heat table in another room used to apply wax to art works.

Students do the conservation work under the close supervision of the Cooperstown faculty — five specialists in different conservation disciplines who help diagnose problems and prescribe remedies.

Austin photographer, East Texan winners of Paisano Fellowships

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin photographer and an East Texas writer were named as winners of 1983 Paisano Fellowships awarded by the University of Texas and the Texas Institute of Letters.

Alan Pogue of Austin will hold the Ralph A. Johnston Memorial Fellowship and will live and work at Paisano, the late J. Frank Dobie's ranch.

Cheryl Ann Cessna of Cleveland, Texas, will hold the Texas Institute of Letters fellowship at Paisano.

Pogue is a Corpus Chrisi native who was the photographer for "An Oral History of Women in the Texas Labor Movement: 1933-1948," a project funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Texas Committee for the Humanities.

His project at Paisano will include a portfolio of photographs of Mexican-American farmworkers.

Some graduates must wait lifetime for jobs

GATESVILLE, Texas (AP) — While many 1983 college graduates are seeking jobs, some must wait — perhaps almost a lifetime — before they can begin their searches and launch their careers.

Ellen Faye Morrison recently graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree in sociology from Tarleton State University, but she did not attend classes and graduation cermonies at the Stephenville university.

Ms. Morrison, a 29-year-old inmate serving a life sentence for murder, instead attended school at the Mountain View prison unit in Gatesville, where she became the first woman inmate in Texas to receive a college degree through a Texas Department of Corrections program.

Her friend, Cleo "Doris" Green, who is serving a 45-year sentence for delivery of heroin, is expected to receive a sociology degree in August after completing six more hours of college credit.

The two women participated in the spring graduation cap-and-gown ceremony along with 58 other inmates, including four men from the nearby Hilltop Unit, who received associate degrees from Central Texas College in Killeen.

"Doris and I had a lot more determination than the others," Ms. Morrison said. "In fact, I would have been willing to work harder and more."

Ms. Morrison said she could not attend college before her incarceration because she was married and financially unable to pay for a college education. However, she said, "I knew I was going to get a degree sooner or later."

Cleo Green, left, and Ellen Faye Morrison both inmates at the Mountain View prison unit in Gatesville, Texas, pose in caps and gowns recently. Ms. Morrison, 29, serving a life sentence for murder, became the first woman inmate in the state to receive a college degree through a Texas Department of Corrections program.

MS. GREEN, 45, said her desire to learn increases with the amount of education she receives. "I don't think I can get enough education," she said, adding that Mountain View Warden Lucille Plane encouraged her to supplement the credits she previously earned outside the prison.

"I've always wanted to finish college," she said.

Ms. Morrison said she eventually would like to earn a master's degree in social psychology to be able to counsel children. Speaking from family experiences, she said, most emotional problems begin in childhood. Correcting problems in children helps prevent them from growing up to be troubled adults, she said.

Ms. Morrison, who prefers not to discuss details surrounding her conviction, said she is "optimistic about parole," mostly because she is young. After serving nine years of her life sentence, she currently is under review by the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Ms. Plane said both Ms. Morrison and Ms. Green, who also is under parole board review, have earned trusty status, which enables them to go in and out of the prison gates without supervision. Inmates achieve this status after demonstrating good behavior over a period of time, and then become eligible to live in the "trusty room." Ms. Plane said Ms. Green is her housekeeper.

IF SHE IS released, Ms. Green said, she would like to operate her own nursing home because she enjoys working with the elderly and has had experience working in such homes. She said she would be flexible with the home's residents, such as allowing them to watch a late-night television shows, freeing them of hard feelings that stem from incarceration and regimented living.

"I would want them to feel at home," she said.

Both women acknowledge that they sometimes became discouraged while earning college credits, and that they sacrificed many recreation hours to get the education.

However, Ms. Green said, they each relied on their religious faith and encouraged each other. They still "more or less lift one another up," she said.

"The grades are the praise," Ms. Morrison said. "Every time I got an A, it was a reaffirmation of myself. I've gained self-confidence." She said inmates and officers helped her with studying and exchanged ideas about study material.

Some women chided Ms. Morrison about earning a degree, she said, adding, "I was given a hard time when it came close to graduation." She said she received negative remarks such as "Well, I'm proud of you to have a sociology degree, but I wouldn't have one."

BUT NOW Ms. Morrison has one, thanks to the prison college program. The first Tarleton State course in sociology was offered at the prison in September 1980, and Ms. Plane said that when prison coordinators began the program, they chose sociology because it would enable most inmates to relate to the subject matter. TDC research indicates that education greatly reduces the chances for repeat offenses, she said.

Ms. Plane said a general business degree curriculum might be considered because inmates have indicated interest in the field.

Lobby admires Castro more than Reagan

An Analysis

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among leaders of the public interest lobby, Fidel Castro is more widely admired than Ronald Reagan, according to a survey published by two politicial scientists. They say that the "public interest elite" is out of tune with the public on a variety of political and economic issues.

The portrait drawn by S. Robert Lichter of George Washington University and Stanley Rothman of Smith College doesn't match the image of the selfless crusader for the public good, standing against the narrow special interests.

Lichter and Rothman say the leaders of public interest organizations are the vanguard of a new American liberal movement — and that 51 percent of those they surveyed think the country would be better off were it to move toward socialism.

They are highly educated and well paid, with family incomes rivaling those of business leaders.

The survey, published by the American Enterprise Institute, a Washington think tank, covered 157 people in the public interest movement. Among them were members of major public interest law firms, and leaders or top staff members of 74 organizations such as the American Civil Liberties Union, Common Cause, Congress Watch, the Environmental Defense Fund and Ralph Nader's Public Citizen.

"The public interest movement brings together established consumer and civil rights groups with the new Nader groups and other organizations working for governmental and social reform," Lichter and Rothman write. "In a little over a decade, it has helped redirect the public agenda to encompass such diverse concerns as voting reform, consumerism, environmentalism, and the right to uphold deviant attitudes and life styles."

The leaders of the movement, according to Lichter and Rothman, are young, highly educated, well paid and overwhelmingly liberal. The average age in their sample was 39. Seventy-eight percent were lawyers and all but 11 percent had postgraduate degrees.

Thirty-five percent earned over $50,000 in 1981, and 58 percent had family incomes over that level.

Ninety percent of them say they are left of center, 8 percent consider themselves centrists and only 2 percent identify themselves as right of center. In surveys of the general public, about 43 percent of Americans consider themselves to be in the middle of the road politically.

The public interest people agree almost unanimously that the government should redistribute income to narrow the gap between rich and poor. Eighty percent believe that the government should guarantee jobs and a good standard of living. Rothman and Lichter report that 37 percent support government takeover of big corporations.

Nearly half those surveyed said U.S. institutions should be completely overhauled, and only 30 percent think the private enterprise system is fair to workers.

In rating public figures and groups, the public interest people ranked Nader No. 1 and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., close behind him. Castro's approval rating put him seventh out of 12 names on the list; 34 percent approved him. President Reagan ranked 11th, with a 5 percent approval rating.

The people surveyed were shown the names of the dozen public figures who were rated, and asked whether they approved, disapproved or were neutral about the individual or group.

Jeanne Sallman, left, runs the national Odd Shoe Exchange, solving shoe problems for the tough to fit. With part-time helper Heather Weeks, Ms.Sallman sorts through her thousands of shoes to find a mismatched pair of athletic shoes.

Woman makes career of matching odd shoes

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) — Jeanne L. Sallman has just the merchandise for people in a pinch — thousands of shoes, no two alike, collected over the years for the National Odd Shoe Exchange.

"I think the foot-handicapped person is among the most neglected in our society," said Ms. Sallman, whose customers include amputees needing only one shoe, people with feet of two different sizes and those with unusually large or small lower extremities.

The 40-year-old NOSE, which Ms. Sallman took over last year, is known to thousands of people nationwide, including doctors, manufacturers and distributors. Bags of mail nestle among the piles of shoe boxes in her basement headquarters.

Many requests are met via the 14,000 file cards that Ms. Sallman uses to match those who need and those who can provide unusual footwear or single shoes.

"We have a lot of people who wear a size 6 on one foot and a size 1 on the other foot," Ms. Sallman said in a recent interview. "To make them look good and feel good about themselves is what we're after."

But it's not always as simple as matching people with the same shoe size.

"If they're a nurse, like myself, they may need white shoes," said Ms. Sallman, who, because of a birth defect, has a size 6 left foot and a size 4 right foot. "We ask about their hobbies and interests, so we can match people who will be buying the same type of shoes. There's a lot of problems we have to consider."

Some requests require shoes not available on the market. Then, Ms. Sallman turns to her personal catalog of small manufacturers who, using only the paper outline of a foot, will make a shoe to order.

"We had one request for a size 10 AAAAAA," she said. "I asked what size his foot was and he said it was 2 inches wide. We have a lot of extremes."

The merchandise comes in part from shoe stores that send mismatched pairs. Ms. Sallman once received from U.S. Customs a shoe shipment that somehow went awry when it entered the country. Customs officials were about to discard the whole lot until they heard about Ms. Sallman.

NOSE was begun in 1943 as a nonprofit organization, and Ms. Sallman hopes to expand it soon by opening a shoe store where handicapped people can browse and find what they need.

She's got her eye on a $400,000 building in Indianola and is trying to raise the money to open the store.

"They just want a shoe store where they can go in and buy shoes and feel comfortable," she said. "Something like that is really needed."

She also dreams of sponsoring a national convention of the foot-handicapped.

"I want a convention so bad," she said. "I simply lay awake at night thinking of all the fun things we could do."

Women gaining ground in underground coal mines

DAWSON, Pa. (AP) — After almost a decade at work in underground coal mines, women say they're gaining the respect of their male coworkers, partly due to hard times.

"Men have always seen us as a threat, or as unnecessary. But in the last year, they have begun taking us more seriously. They know we need the money, too," said Marjorie Foster of Ellsworth, a miner for eight years.

"The union is finding that women are some of its staunchest supporters. The union and women have to work together," said Joan Levitt of Marmut, W.Va., one of five female members of United Mine Workers Local 2236 furloughed from a U.S. Steel Corp. mine in Marmut.

The two women are among about 200 people gathered here for the Fifth National Conference of Women Miners. The conference, which opened Friday, is the first officially endorsed by the UMW.

UMW President Richard Trumka spoke at a Saturday session and about 50 men registered for conference workshops, emphasizing the importance of the conference, several of the miners said.

It's a thrilling sight to see our flag in a parade. We react in different ways. The stars and stripes make some of us think of Washington and his gallant men at Valley Forge. Others remember Pearl Harbor, the Normandy Invasion, Vietnam or some we may have known who gave their lives in one of this century's too frequent wars.

The flag of our nation is beautiful but it's what the red, white and blue stand for that makes us proud to be Americans. Wherever she waves, all the sweat, blood, sacrifices, honor, loyalty, heroic deeds and accomplishments of our 200 plus years are symbolized in Old Glory.

Just as our flag represents our country and the American people, the Church is God's major tool for continuing His witness and work in the world.

You are always welcome in the House of the Lord. And you will find a lasting inspiration there for your life.

The nation's donations

Americans gave $59.9 billion to charity in 1982. Eighty-one percent of that total came from individuals, with the rest being donated by corporations, foundations or coming in the form of bequests.

Forty-seven percent of the money donated ($28.1 billion) went to religious organizations, with "education" and "health and hospitals" the next largest categories, receiving $8.5 billion and $8.3 billion, respectively.

Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod to meet in week-long convention

ST. LOUIS — The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod is expecting 1,100 delegates to its weeklong July convention which begins Wednesday. On the agenda are 163 resolutions which have been proposed along with the election of a president and other officers.

LCMS is North America's second largest Lutheran body. It contains 6,100 congregations comprising 2.7 million members.

Most of the resolutions, drafted by floor committees that met in St. Louis over Memorial Day weekend, have to do with "internal" matters, such as, the Synod's structure, finances and planning. One calls for increased stewardship activities and programs and another for the number of LCMS vice presidents to be reduced from five to one.

Several resolutions deal with topics that might be considered more external.

Among those is a measure calling on all in the church to study the issue of nuclear armament, peace and the whole area of church involvement in governmental issues.

That resolution notes that Christians are called to be peacemakers, and that massive arms buildup and possibility of the violence it poses results in a "...actor of incalculable moral magnitude." It states that it is "imperative to work together...for responsible limitation of armaments and the eradication of sources of conflict."

Another resolution states "we deplore and disassociate ourselves" from "intemperate remarks" Martin Luther made about Jews, but affirms his final attitude that "we want to treat them with Christian love and to pray for them, so that they might become converted and would receive the Lord." That resolution condemns "any and all discrimination on the basis of race or religion."

Another resolution calls for creation of a restructured or new inter-Lutheran agency.

The Synod and four other churches currently comprise the Lutheran Council in the USA. Three of those other member bodies are planning to form a new Lutheran church, which, along with other factors, calls into question the future of the Council.

The LCMS resolution urges that planning for the re-structured or new agency involve all Lutheran church bodies.

A "Laborers for Christ" movement will be started if one resolution is passed which calls on utilizing skilled and semi-skilled construction and related types of workers to erect church buildings, thus reducing the cost. That need has arisen as Synod ministries have increased. Last year, over 100 new LCMS congregations were formed.

In addition to considering resolutions and electing officers, the convention agenda includes a rally to celebrate the 500th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther and another rally calling attention to youth ministry. Theme for the 55th regular convention is "Him We Proclaim."

Church takes anti-abortion stand

PELLA, Iowa (AP) — The Reformed Church in America has taken a stand against abortion, shifting from its past position emphasizing the right of the individual to decide about it.

The denomination's governing synod opposed "the use of legal abortion in all but very exceptional circumstances," and even in them, urged "proper regard" for the unborn.

The denomination rejected proposals that it withdraw from the National Council of Churches and World Council of Churches, reaffirming membership in them.

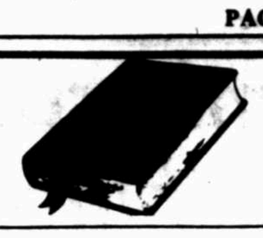
The Newspaper BIBLE



IF I COULD ONLY TOUCH HIM . . .

One day Jesus went out into the mountains to pray, and prayed all night.

At daybreak He called together His followers and chose twelve of them to be the inner circle of His disciples. (They were appointed as His "apostles," or "missionaries.")

Here are their names: Simon (He also called him Peter), Andrew (Simon's brother), James, John, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thomas, James (the son of Alphaeus), Simon (also called "Zealotes"), Judas (son of James), Judas Iscariot (who later betrayed Him).

When they came down from the slopes of the mountain, they stood with Jesus on a large, level area, surrounded by many of His followers who, in turn, were surrounded by the crowds. For people from all over Judea and from Jerusalem and from as far north as the seacoasts of Tyre and Sidon had come to hear Him or to be healed. And He cast out many demons.

Everyone was trying to touch Him. For when they did healing power went out from Him and they were cured.

Dallas Baptist College to offer master of arts in Biblical studies

DALLAS — Dallas Baptist College will begin offering coursework in a new master of arts in Biblical studies degree program this fall.

The degree has been designed both for students who wish to pursue graduate level Biblical studies for personal enrichment or professional advancement and for those who are preparing for further graduate study at a seminary or other graduate school.

The MABS will be a 36-hour non-thesis program. Degree requirements consist of 24 semester hours of required courses and 12 hours of electives. Required courses include nine hours of Greek, six of Hebrew and nine of theology and apologetics. All MABS courses will be offered on the DBC main campus in southwest Dallas.

The new degree program was approved by the Christian Education Coordinating Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. For more information write the Dean of Graduate Studies, DBC, 7777 West Kiest Boulevard, Dallas, 75211.

Media portray contradictory view

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A United Church of Christ leader says "all-pervasive" electronic media of communication portray a view of life that contradicts Judeo-Christian concepts of existence.

The Rev. Everett C. Parker, retiring later this year as head of the denomination's communications office, told the church's governing synod that a "communications revolution" poses a growing challenge.

"It tends to foster marketplace values over ethical values," he said. "Content often deliberately aims to narrow the scope of human thought and imagination and to foster conformity."

St. Nicholas Episcopal sponsors summer intern

Ellis E. Brust, candidate from the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas and a senior at Virginia Theological Seminary at Alexandria, is serving a 10-week summer internship at St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave.

Brust graduated in May of 1980 from Bethany College, Lindsborg, Kan., with a bachelor of arts in psychology. He completed his clinical pastoral education at Good Samaritan Hospital, Phoenix, Ariz.

Before going to seminary, he worked as primary counselor and assistant administrator for St. Francis Boys' Home, Salina, Kan. His duties there included account keeping, individual and group counseling with teenage boys and recreational activities with the boys and the staff.

Brust has also worked as a staff member at the diocesan Conference Center, Amarillo.

His duties at St. Nicholas include hospital and home visitation, working with the youth of the parish, assisting in Sunday and weekday services and attending various clergy and diocesan meetings.

Ellis E. Brust

His hobbies include golf, tennis, raquetball, swimming, drama and music. He is a member of the church league softball team.

Christians go to church for different reasons

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Christians go to church for uiffering purposes and expect different results from it, a Lutheran study finds. They also have varying notions about basic church doctrine. So do the clergy.

Similar findings have showed up in several denominations. Such divergence in attitudes from official church standards has long been assumed, but recently gathered statistics bear it out.

For example, a new Presbyterian survey finds that half the members and nearly two-thirds of the pastors think their church defines marriage as a "sacrament." But neither Presbyterians nor other Protestant denominations do so.

Ironically, although Baptists have long disavowed any creed except the Bible, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville recently dropped a noted professor from teaching duties after he was accused of discounting a required concept.

"Once saved, always saved," the particular tenet usually is phrased, meaning that once a person accepts Christ, he can't fall from grace and his salvation is assured in eternity — a view mainly distinctive to Baptists.

The seminary put the Rev. Dale Moody, a long-time professor, on salaried leave, without classes, after some Baptist conservatives objected to his teaching and cut off their support.

"When things contradict the Scripture I reject them, I don't care how hoary they are with antiquity," he commented, maintaining that some other rules of the century-old requirements are generally ignored.

One of them, he says, specifies the use of "wine" in the Lord's Supper, although Baptists use grape juice, and another forbids "worldly amusement" on Sunday, which would exclude watching Sunday afternoon sports.

He says he's "tired of creedalism," which some moderates claim is rising among Southern Baptists, the nation's biggest Protestant body.

Lutherans elect first black bishop

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A black bishop has been elected for the first time in the American Lutheran Church.

The Rev. Nelson W. Trout of Columbus, Ohio, a seminary professor and director of minority ministry studies, was elected bishop at a convention of the denomination's South Pacific district.

Termed the first black elevated to such an office in U.S. Lutheranism, he said "it does not mean that the rapture has come or anything like that. It means that at a certain time and place the Lord was in our midst and blessed us."

Roman Catholic pastoral plan focuses on homosexual persons

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new pastoral plan for Roman Catholic ministry to homosexuals reaffirms the church's rejection of homosexual activity but urges acceptance of homosexually oriented persons and sensitivity toward them.

The plan, approved by Archbishop John Quinn, provides for establishment of a Board of Ministries to Homosexual Men and Women.

Smithsonian takes stock of things...all 100 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution has taken stock. It has: a pair of size 18 shoes, Dwight Eisenhower's pajamas, Warren Harding's playing cards, 7 million beetles, a 1932 Packard automobile, 20 pipe organs and a tube of applesauce John Glenn took into orbit but didn't get around to using.

That's not all, by any means. The Smithsonian discovered that in 137 years it has accumulated 100 million relics, 22 million more than it guessed when curators started taking inventory five years ago.

The shelf-by-shelf enumeration of artifacts in the world's largest complex of museums took five years and cost $8 million for salaries and computer time, and even then the computation was hardly exact.

Nobody bothered trying to count living earthworms or fish in bottles, for example. And when the inventory takers came upon drawers full of pottery shards in the Museum of Natural History, they settled for an estimate of the pieces.

Moreover, Registrar Philip Leslie said, some items were treated in different ways. The philatelists in the Museum of American History considered a sheet of 100 aviation stamps to constitute 100 items while the Air and Space Museum counted the same sheet as a single item.

Everything has a story. Ike's pajamas are the red ones he wore in Denver while recuperating from a heart attack. The size 18 shoes belonged to a Union soldier in the Civil War who stood over 7 feet tall and had big feet.

The collection is growing at the rate of a million artifacts a year.

They also have: 6,106 shrimps, 2,500 living animals (at the National Zoo including two rufous motmots, an exotic bird); 12,724,557 postage stamps; 3,618 leeches; 30,834 dresses; 23 stuffed giant pandas and hair from the heads of every president from Washington through Pierce.

And the skeletons and skins of 8,424 shrews; an American flag that measures 235 feet by 104 feet; 2,001 stuffed brown bears; 10 pipe organs; President Franklin D. Roosevelt's lap robe; more than 3,700 lion, tiger and bear skins; about 1,600 political campaign buttons; Charles Lindbergh's jumpsuit.

More: 114,429 bird eggs; 7,640 works of art in the Smithsonian's Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, not including the 6,000 additional works Joseph Hirshhorn left the institution in his will when he died in 1981; a tomahawk given to Davy Crockett in 1835; 11,545 portraits of notable Americans and historical objects connected with them; a mechanical fly trap; 4 million moths and butterflies.

AP Laserphoto

Museum technicial Susan Schreiber counts sports buttons and medals, program books and baseball cards in a stoage area of the Smithsonian's Museum of American History. The Smithsonian finished taking its first inventory Wednesday and found it owns 100 million items.

A piece of fabric from the Wright Brothers original airplane; a wad of tobacco carried by Commander Robert E. Peary when he arrived at the North Pole in 1909; and 5,419 glass plate negatives from the studios of Mathew Brady, the Civil War era photographer.

A Conestoga wagon, 77 spacecraft; the original art work for 1,016 Time magazine covers; a flying saucer-like craft tested by the Air Force, six locomotives and the skeletons of 226 alligators.

Most of the Smithsonian's acquisitions came "as a result of the westward flow of American settlement and through scientific expeditions to many parts of the world," the museum spokesmen say.

But no one could blame the curators if they were to say, "Send us no more pressed herbarium specimens of ferns and flowing plants."

They already have 340,000 of them.

Famine in Africa comes at at time of surplus elsewhere

NEW YORK (AP) — In parts of drought-stricken Africa, crops are withering in the sun. Parched, starving livestock, ridden with disease, are keeling over. Hungry people are growing hungrier.

At the same time, 290.3 million tons of surplus grain pack the world's storehouses, according to the U.S. Agriculture Department.

Feast and famine, and the gap between them, are obvious in 1983.

In Africa, "agricultural production is severely down because of the drought in 20 or more countries ... below the Sahara Desert — and at the same time, their ability to import food is severely restricted by the world recession," said Nicholas Raymond, a spokesman for the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization.

He predicted that enough emergency grain donations would be arranged to avert absolute starvation in drought-stricken areas, but endemic malnutrition will get worse.

In May, FAO Director-General Edouard Saouma predicted a 2.6 million-ton food shortfall in Africa's 1983-84 crop year. He urged donor nations to increase their contributions.

The 36-nation World Food Council meets at the United Nations in New York City on Monday to discuss the problem of big food reserves in the major food-producing countries and the dwindling production in many Third World countries.

Jim Mayrides of the United Nations' Africa Section said that without sufficient emergency assistance, hunger-related deaths alone in Africa "could well be 2 (million) to 4 million people in the next 12 months." That is in addition to 4 million to 6 million Africans who "die from poverty-related causes each year."

Raymond said donor nations are "doing what they can," but "they are being pressured internally to hold down on foreign aid because of the recession."

"Food is money," he explained. "The United States will send a tremendous amount of food aid to Africa this year. When it's there, it's in tons. But when I talk to you, it's in money. So that's the problem: the industrialized countries have limitations on how much foreign aid to spend."

Aside from purchasing the foodstuffs from farmers, a donor government must also pay to ship it.

Disasters are taken in stride

GANDY'S BEACH, N.J. (AP) — While to the east, officials study emergency procedures in the event of a hurricane, and, to the west, they ponder evacuations in case of a nuclear accident, residents of this tiny Delaware Bay community try not to worry about much.

Most neighbors go about their business as if there wasn't a care in the world, except maybe what sort of bait to use for stripers, or, perhaps, whether to relax or spend the day sailing.

Here, in a town located almost midway between the nuclear reactors of Lower Alloways Creek Township, about 20 miles away, and the sometimes violent Atlantic Ocean, visitors will find casual Americana.

Everybody in Gandy's Beach has one address: Cove Road. It's the only street in the town of about 30 stilted homes.

And residents don't worry about things they can't change, like the weather. Ask anyone along Cove Road about the "storm of '80" and they will go on for hours about the problems it caused this Cumberland County town.

"The water was up to about here," said Karl Stahlberger, demonstrating with his arm straight out from his shoulder.

But they all say they saw no reason to move out.

Stahlberger, who has been coming to this little bay community since he was just a lad, is just completing renovations after the storm of '80 lifted his house off its 4-foot-high pilings.

'Angels' plan campout

DESCANSO, Calif. (AP) — Some worred campers canceled reservations at Cuyamaca State Park after learning about 150 Hell's Angels and their families planned to celebrate the Fourth of July at a campground, rangers say.

But Ranger Steve Treanor said members of the motorcycle group would be camping in a separate area, and that members of the public should not be concerned.

By early this week, six people had definitely canceled their reservations at the park in East San Diego County, and another four had tentatively canceled plans to visit, Treanor said.

"There just is not going to be a problem," he said. "The fear and the anticipation is causing a lot of people to miss a nice weekend."

36-year-old physician still practices despite permanent paralysis

LORDSBURG, New Mexico (AP) — Robert North is paralyzed from the neck down. He also is a practicing physician.

"I might even be the only practicing quadriplegic physician in the world, but what's the big deal?" the soft-spoken family doctor said from his wheelchair after examining an infant suffering from tonsillitis.

After North's car veered off a Southern California highway in November and pitched down a cliff, the 36-year-old doctor spent four months recovering from a broken cervical bone, which has left him almost totally disabled.

Now North can only move his head, has limited arm movement and no use of his hands. The thin, blue-eyed doctor also has a way of talking about his ordeal that seems as if he is doing nothing out of the ordinary. Fears, however, underlie his calmness.

Hard economic times in the mining industry that is the lifeblood in Lordsburg and the New Mexico boot heel and his physical debilities, now have the general practitioner scared.

"Depression is a problem. I've done a lot of crying," he said, taking a draw from a cigarette strapped to his right index finger by a plastic clothes-pin and rubber band. "My business now is borderline."

The economic downturn and some patients' fears of his capabilities have cut his business in half, North said. "I used to treat 20, maybe 30, patients a day. Now, I'm lucky to get 10 (patients a day)."

North's wife, Stephanie — a registered nurse — helps him from the moment he awakens until night, when he is moved from his wheelchair into bed. She's also afraid North may lose his practice.

"It's gotten worse, not better," she said.

Mrs. North was seven months pregnant with their second child and 600 miles from the San Diego hospital where her husband lay in critical condition when she heard of the accident.

Two church fellows immediately offered to drive her to San Diego. On the long drive, the blonde, 31-year-old converted to Christianity, and by the time she arrived, her prayers were answered — North was alive, but preliminary tests indicated paralysis from the neck down.

North also knew his prognosis was poor. "The first time I had my diagnosis, I didn't have trouble understanding it. I knew I wouldn't walk again and that it wasn't going to go away," the 1979 University of Southern California medical school graduate said.

North and his wife had had a fairy-tale life up to the accident. After his graduation from the University of Southern California medical school, they moved to Taos, which turned out to have an oversupply of doctors. Liking New Mexico's sunniness, they settled in Lordsburg, a two-doctor town of 5,000 on the Southern Pacific railroad line.

North hung a shingle in Doc Baxter's office — Baxter had retired recently after a lifetime of serving Lordsburg — and attracted a stream of clients. The couple soon bought a home on 400 acres of scrubland and moved with their first child into their dream house.

"We really seemed to be living the American dream," Mrs. North said, clutching their two-year-old daughter, Mia, whom North delivered.

The crash drastically altered the dream.

"Being a quadriplegic changes your entire perspective on life. My head now is the only thing I can use well," North said.

Mrs. North said after they returned home from the hospital, "it hit us, what we were up against. We did a lot of crying."

Asbestos may harm students

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government program to search out and correct asbestos threats in the nation's schools has failed, leaving as many as 3.24 million school children exposed to possibly hazardous levels of the cancer-causing chemical, a labor union says.

The Service Employees International union said Thursday it had conducted its own 50-state survey of progress toward removing hazardous asbestos from the schools because federal agencies could not supply adequate data.

The union estimated that 9 percent of the 120,000 public and private schools in the country had potentially dangerous asbestos problems which are not being addressed in any way.

"This means an estimated 3.24 million school children as well as some 600,000 teachers and school employes could be exposed daily to this highly toxic substance, a known cause of cancer and lung disease," said John J. Sweeney, president of the union.

The 750,000-member union said that the Environmental Protection Agency and the Education Department have done a poor job implementing a law designed to alleviate the problem, largely because Congress has not supplied money to support the effort.

The union said a government task force established to coordinate activities in the area had not met since 1980 and a $150 million loan fund to help schools remove asbestos has never been given money by Congress.

Even though all schools were to have been checked for asbestos hazards by Tuesday, the EPA, which set the deadline, has no idea whether schools complied or not, the union said.

EPA officials said its regulations did not require the schools to report on the outcome of their inspection programs, but the Education Department requires such reports be submitted by each state. However, education officials said that many states are behind in submitting status reports so they could not comment on the reliability of the union's projections.

Ed Klein, director of the EPA's chemical control division, said that the union estimate sounded reasonable, based on an earlier estimate that 10 percent of the country's public and private schools likely had asbestos hazards. He said the EPA would have a better idea later this year after it conducts its own survey to determine what schools actually found.

Klein said the EPA regulations do not require schools to correct any asbestos hazards that are found, only to make the hazards known to school employes and the school's Parent-Teachers Association.

"We figured that if you provide information to all the interested people, then they would come up with a rational solution," he said. "It is very difficult to say on a piece of paper in Washington what kind of abatement practice makes the most sense."

In 1980, the agency said 100 to 6,800 premature cancer deaths could result from students, teachers and workers being exposed to asbestos in the schools.

The EPA banned all use of asbestos in schools in 1978, but not before some 30 million tons of the fire-retardant were sprayed on walls and ceilings, put into ceiling tiles and wrapped around pipes for insulation.

The union's estimates that 10,800 schools have asbestos problems which they have not corrected came from data gathered by schools in 11 states with the most complete records. These results were projected for the entire country, the union said.

Even though the Department of Education requires the states to keep records of how many schools have been inspected and the results of those inspections, 20 states have failed to meet these reporting requirements, the union said.

Illegal fireworks may be hazardous

WASHINGTON (AP) — Citing 15 deaths caused by recent explosions at illegal fireworks factories, the Consumer Product Safety Commission is warning consumers to look for signs that the fireworks they buy meet federal safety standards.

The commission, which regulates the safety of fireworks and numerous other products, said Thursday that "bootlegged" M80s, M100s and M1000s made at illegal operations may be offered for sale.

The commission urged consumers to make sure there is a manufacturer's label on all fireworks and instructions for proper use. "Illegally manufactured fireworks rarely have either," it said.

The fireworks that don't meet federal safety standards may be offered for sale by dealers distributing them from their residences, garages or motor vehicles, the safety agency warned in a statement.

The commission said there have been 21 reported incidents of explosions at illegal fireworks factories since 1978, resulting in 25 deaths, 58 injuries and more than $7 million in property damage.

The commission said 15 deaths came within the past few months and called them "a stark reminder of how dangerous these illegal fireworks are."

It said the use of fireworks last year injured more than 8,500 people seriously enough to require treatment in hospital emergency rooms. Most of the injuries were to children and youths under 20 years old whose hands, faces or eyes were harmed.

The government has banned as hazardous substances M80 salutes, M100s, M1000 firecrackers, cherry bombs and aerial bombs. It is illegal to make, distribute or sell them.

The safety commission urged consumers to take these other safeguards:

—Store fireworks in a cool, dry place and avoid rough handling that might damage the fuses.

—Provide adult supervision for children and do not allow very young children to handle fireworks.

—Light fireworks only outdoors in a clear area away from houses, dry brush or anything that might ignite. Keep water available.

—Light only one firecracker at a time.

Area students named Permian Honor Scholars for fall semester

About 60 area students have been named Permian Honor Scholars for the upcoming fall semester at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin and area community colleges.

Supported by businesses throughout the area, the Permian Honor Scholarship Foundation, Inc. provides scholarships to Permian Basin residents who plan to attend a local community college and UTPB. Community colleges in the program are Odessa College, Midland College, Howard College, Western Texas College and New Mexico Junior College.

J. Conrad Dunagan, founder of the foundation, said the scholarships are assigned to recognize academic excellence and are not contingent on financial need. Awards are for $200 per semester. Initially, awards are made for four consecutive years to carry the student through two years at the community college and two years at UTPB.

If a scholarship recipient relinquishes his award for any reason, his scholarship may be given to a student already attending UTPB or one of the community colleges as a "residual" award.

Students receiving awards to attend Midland College this fall include Valton L. Acree of Midland in computer science; Jeffrey N. Adams of Crane in management; Brenda K. Bohannon of Midland in management; Russell D. Cavin of Midland in Engineering; Lisa M. Coldeway of Midland in speech; Evangelina Escarsega of Midland in computer science; Tim H. Hunter of Midland in engineering; Nichole L. Morgan of Monahans in life science; Nancy Darlene Munn of Midland in elementary education; Jeff L. Pinkston of Crane in mathematics; R. Caine Rosignol of Midland in engineering; Diana C. Smith of Midland in elementary education; Pam S. Tatsch of Midland in mass communications.

Students receiving residual awards to attend MC are Laurie Hamilton of Midland in geology; Montie Sue McDonald of Midland in art; and Sharlyn Pettes of Midland in accounting.

Students receiving residual awards to attend UTPB this fall are Amy Jo Carman of Anson in computer science; Kimberly A. Floyd of Odessa in chemistry; June G. Hail of Odessa in accounting; Michelle A. Harris of Andrews in psychology; Kathleen Kennedy of Big Spring in accounting; Craig A. Klinefelter of Midland in computer science; Debbie L. Knight of Odessa in government; P. Kay Kolb of Kermit in mass communications; Taanya Monogue of Odessa in mathematics; Janyth A. Morgan of Odessa in psychology; Melinda Pilgrim of Midland in mass communications; and Melinda G. White of Odessa in physical education.

Students receiving awards to attend Odessa College are Jeff B. Adams of Odessa in management; Laura K. Bushnell of Odessa in management; David Agustin Hernandez of Odessa in engineering; Jay Russell Milleson of Odessa in management; James R. Patterson of Odessa in sociology; Cynthia D. Russell of Odessa in management; Rosy M. Sanchez of Monahans in management; Linda Kay Shaw of Odessa in psychology; Caroline A. Sherwood of Odessa in engineering; Diana F. White of Iraan in management.

Receiving residual awards to attend Odessa College were Lora J. Buitrago of Kermit in life science; Evelyn J. Lockwood of Kermit in mathematics; and Robyn G. Williams of Odessa in history.

Recent high school graduates from Big Spring receiving scholarships at Howard College this fall are Vicky L. Baggett, computer science; Silvia M. Cisneros, business administration; Rickie W. Long, accounting; Lisa J. Musser, mass communications; Amy L. Ragan, accounting; Kathi M. Wallis, social science; and Valerie A. Subia, biology.

Residual scholarships for Howard College were awarded to Joni Lynne Poynor of Forsan, elementary education; and Scott D. Savell of Sonora, management.

Snyder students receiving awards to attend Western Texas College this fall were W. Jean Anderson in health science; James E. Caldwell in management; James Kraig Milton in engineering; and Margaret E. Anderson in health science.

Margaret Anderson is a Permian Presidential Scholar, which is an award given to a Permian Basin high school graduate who finishes in the top 1 percent of his or her graduating class.

Hobbs, N.M., area students receiving these awards at New Mexico Junior College include Sam H. Seed of Hobbs in engineering; and Suzanne Seilheimer of Hobbs in engineering.

Receiving a residual award to attend New Mexico Junior College is Lanna D. Chambers of Jal, N.M., in psychology.

Betty Ford wanted husband to choose female running mate

Betty Ford

Gerald Ford

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Former first lady Betty Ford says she tried to persuade her husband to choose a woman as his 1976 vice-presidential running mate, a step she termed "long overdue."

"I tried to get my husband to run a woman with him," Mrs. Ford told a gathering or women journalists Thursday.

"I think there are many able women today who could serve in that position," said the wife of former President Gerald Ford, who ran unsuccessfully in 1976 with Kansas Sen. Bob Dole as his running mate.

Ford, who became president after Richard Nixon resigned amid the Watergate scandal, was seeking a full term in the office.

When asked which Democratic and Republican women she would like to see as candidates for the job of vice president in 1984, Mrs. Ford said she would have to "plead the Fifth."

Her comments came at a three-day annual convention of the National Federation of Press Women in Vail, where Mrs. Ford received an award for "frankness in responding to the media." Federation President D. J. Cline of Brookings, S.D., praised Mrs. Ford's support of women's rights and her frank discussion of her bout with alcoholism.

Mrs. Ford, who was treated for prescription-drug and alcohol dependency, said women alcoholics need "special treatment and understanding."

She also reiterated her support of the Equal Rights Amendment.

She said she would be spending two months at the Fords' Vail-area home, as her husband recovers from minor surgery.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — William Shatner has been chosen best actor by a fantasy films group,for his role as Capt. James Kirk in "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan."

The award came at the 10th annual Saturn Awards given by the Academy of Science Fiction, Fantasy and Horror Films on Thursday.

Best actress honors went William Shatner to Sandahl Bergman of "Conan the Barbarian."

Three nominees shared the honors for best film: "E.T., the Extra-Terrestrial," for science fiction; "The Dark Crystal" for fantasy film; and "Poltergeist" for horror movies.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — After advancing to the Wimbledon finals, defending women's champion Martina Navratilova bicycled to a florist's to buy roses for the ailing Duchess of Kent, a newspaper reported Friday.

She returned with the roses, went to the royal box in Center Court and met the Duke of Kent as he was leaving.
