Planned Parenthood to close Midland facility

Local groups applaud decision; South Texas partner to operate San Angelo center

By Rachael Gleason
rgleason@mrt.com

Planned Parenthood of West Texas announced Friday its decision to shut down the Midland health center by the end of the month.

The group cited political attacks from state lawmakers for the decision, which comes one month after Gov. Rick Perry approved a controversial bill that toughened statewide restrictions on abortion.

A Planned Parenthood partner out of South Texas will offer health services through its San Angelo health center, according to spokeswoman Mara Posada.

Local anti-abortion groups applauded this decision.

"This is something we've been fighting for, for so long," said Monsignor James Bridges, an outspoken anti-abortion advocate and pastor of St. Stephen's Catholic Church, after hearing the news Friday night. "It makes me feel like all of this has been worthwhile. It's a fight worth winning."

Choose Life Midland board member John Savage was pleasantly surprised by the decision but said his supporters noticed a difference in the center's activity over the past two months. The local organization has offered anti-abortion services in the building across from the center on Secor Street since November 2011 and recites rosaries three times a week.

"All of a sudden it was different. We had no idea what was going on. It hasn't been very active in the past couple of months," Savage said. "There's still a need in a number of different areas. There are plenty of situations where we can divert our attention."

Michael Banschbach, coordinator for ProLife Midland since 2000, said he didn't realize this day would come so soon.

"There are a lot of people in the Midland area who have put their hearts and soul into this. Certainly through prayers and efforts, physical presence, interactions with clients and employees — it's all played a role in coming to this day," he said. "Planned Parenthood has always

MISD seeks $1M to assist support staff

By Meredith Moriak
mmoriak@mrt.com

Housing assistance may soon become a reality for non-teaching employees in Midland ISD.

Superintendent Ryder Warren announced Friday morning at convocation that a $1 million grant application was submitted to a local foundation in hopes of providing support staff employees with housing assistance.

"Support staff, I know you're hurting. (On Thursday) we signed off on a grant application and have asked another charitable foundation in town, not the Scharbaurer Foundation, for $1 million to provide some monthly rental assistance to support staff. They could say no, but we're asking," Warren said.

MISD announced in mid-July a $3.3 million grant from the Scharbauer Foundation to provide up to 300 teachers with rental assistance of either $500 or 40 percent of the contracted lease or rental rate. Support staff, administrators and teachers not teaching core subject areas were not permitted to apply for these grants.

By submitting a request for an additional $1 million in funding, Warren said he hopes the district can help alleviate some of the burden on loyal employees who fill vital roles in the child nutrition, maintenance, custodial and transportation departments.

"We are directly fighting against oil companies for employees, and (oil companies) can pay a lot more, but we need these people to keep our schools running," Warren said.

Staffing, especially in support positions, has been a multi-year challenge for Midland ISD, but Warren told employees Friday he hopes some new initiatives — including $500 retention bonuses in December and May for

Gov. Rick Perry, seen here at a conference in March, has named two previous political appointees and an aide from his staff to the Texas Water Development Board.

Perry taps old appointees for revamped water board

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Gov. Rick Perry on Friday stocked the new three-member Texas Water Development Board, which will be paid for the first time in state history, with two previous political appointments and an aide from his own staff.

They replace an ousted volunteer board that was blasted in the Texas Legislature this spring as being ineffectual following a historic drought and averse to prioritizing projects at a time when the state is confronting water supply concerns for a booming population.

The new board is chaired by Carlos Rubinstein, who Perry appointed in 2009 as a commissioner at the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality. Another former Perry appointee, Texas Lottery Commission Chairwoman Mary Ann Williamson, was also selected.

Rounding out the board is Bech Bruun, who currently works in Perry's office as the director of governmental appointments.

Each board member will make $150,000 annually.

Perry spokesman Josh Havens said all three applied for the job. He said they were then chosen to oversee "historic measures" adopted this year in the Legislature, which also fired the state's water agency top executive, Melanie Callahan.

The new board will also control a new $2 billion water fund if the money is approved by Texas voters in a November referendum.

"This responsibility requires experienced leadership at the helm, and Gov. Perry is confident that these three individuals have the skill and expertise required to lead this agency as it embarks on a mission that is so vital to the sustainability of our economic success," Havens said.

A phone message left for Williamson through the lottery commission was not immediately returned. The Texas Commission on Environmental Quality referred calls for Rubinstein to the governor's office.

Bruun, in a statement provided by Perry's office, said he was "humbled and honored for the opportunity" to serve on the board.

The water board had been an all-volunteer, six-member structure for 56 years. The final meeting for the last volunteer board was Thursday, and Callahan has retired from the state.

Lawmakers purged the state of its top water planners under a bill driven by Republican Sen. Troy Fraser. Several small towns in Texas have nearly run out of water in recent years, while farmers absorbed an unprecedented $7.6 billion in agricultural losses from the 2011 drought.

Fraser and other lawmakers accused the board of being unresponsive and reluctant to identify the state's most pressing water needs. Callahan and the board have said that lawmakers fired them without seeking their input for new ideas or offering a chance to save their jobs.

Perry also appointed the previous volunteer board, which was chaired by Billy Bradford, an accountant in South Texas. After the Legislature passed a sweeping water reform bill that mandated his removal, Bradford praised the volunteer structure that he said was "independent and objective" of those who made their appointments.

Perry has picked Williamson and her late husband, Ric, before for key state appointments. Ric Williamson served with Perry in the Texas House in the 1980s and shared an apartment with Perry during legislative sessions. When he became governor, Perry appointed him to chair the Texas Transportation Commission.

Mary Ann Williamson was appointed to the lottery commission in 1999. She and her husband founded MKS Natural Gas Company, which Perry had an ownership stake in through a blind trust designed to avoid conflicts of interest.

Rubinstein brings the biggest background in water. He has served on several water councils and work groups and was watermaster for the Rio Grande under the TCEQ.

Bruun has also served as chief of staff to Republican state Rep. Todd Hunter and worked for the Brazos River Authority.

Teen charged with killing 6 in wreck

Associated Press

McALLEN — A teenager accused of killing six members of a family by crashing into their SUV while fleeing a state trooper in South Texas earlier this week was in jail Friday after being formally charged with six counts of murder.

Hector Ramirez, 18, of Roma, was arraigned Thursday after being released from a hospital where he was treated following the crash, Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Tom Vinger said. Ramirez was denied bond and remained in the Hidalgo County jail Friday morning. A jail official had no attorney information.

At the time of Monday's crash, Ramirez was out on bond after being arrested a week earlier while trying to cross into Mexico in a stolen vehicle.

Ramirez was fleeing from DPS Sgt. Enrique Chavez on Monday at high speed northwest of Mission when DPS said Ramirez ran a red light, slamming into three vehicles. One of them was a Chevrolet Suburban carrying seven members of the Penitas family. Six of them, including four children, died.

The lone survivor, who DPS identified as 3-year-old Jesus Ortiz, is currently in foster care.

Man arrested for allegedly hitting 2 people with his car

From staff reports

A man was arrested after allegedly hittng two men with his car early Friday morning. One of the men was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital in critical condition.

Oscar Menterosa, 36, has been charged with two counts of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle, according to a press release from the city's public information officer.

When the Midland police and fire departments responded at about 12:30 a.m. Friday in the 1100 block of East Maple Avenue, police found a 20-year-old man lying in the street with severe injuries.

Police found out that the incident stemmed from a disturbance involving Menterosa and a 26-year-old man. The two engaged in a verbal argument and Menterosa left in a car first heading eastbound then turning around to head westbound on East Maple Avenue. Menterosa attempted to hit him but "clipped" him, causing minor injuries, according to the release

Mentorsa then put the vehicle in reverse and ran over the 20-year-old, who was an acquaintance of the 26-year-old, according to the release.

Officers believe Menterosa's intentions were to run over the first man.

Injured deputy sues homeowner

Associated Press

HOUSTON — A Houston-area deputy has sued the family of a man he fatally shot following a 911 call last year, alleging he and others who responded were not properly warned about the danger they faced.

In a lawsuit filed this week, Harris County sheriff's Deputy Brady Pullen is seeking up to $200,000 from Carmina Figueroa, a relative of Kemal Yazar, for injuries he suffered, including a concussion and a broken nose.

Officials say Yazar confronted EMS workers and deputies who responded to a call from a home in the Houston suburb of Katy. Figueroa is listed as the home's owner.

Pullen's attorney, Mark Long, did not immediately return a call or email seeking comment on Friday. Court records did not list an attorney for Figueroa, who also did not immediately return a call seeking comment.

In a statement issued late Friday afternoon, Harris County Sheriff Adrian Garcia said the lawsuit was filed by an employee in his capacity as a private citizen and that the merits of the case will be "decided by others who have jurisdiction over such matters. "

"As trained public servants, our presumption when receiving and responding to emergency calls is that there is an element of danger present. As public servants, it is our duty to respond to those calls as quickly as possible," Garcia said.

At the time of the shooting, Garcia told reporters that EMS called in deputies for help after being confronted by Yazar. Pullen and another deputy initially tried to subdue Yazar with Tasers but ultimately had to use their firearms.

An investigation by the sheriff's office of the shooting is still ongoing.

In his lawsuit, Pullen alleges that Yazar had been taking bath salts — a synthetic hallucinogenic drug — for days and that Figueroa knew Yazar was such a danger, she evacuated children who were in the home at the time.

Figueroa "had a duty to exercise ordinary care in adequately (warning) others that her resident or guest Kamal Yazar posed a violent threat to others due to his ingestion or smoking of 'bath salts' or some other mind altering substance, and to make the premises safe," according to the lawsuit.

Pullen is seeking damages for past and future medical expenses, mental anguish and loss of past earning capacity.

'Free Willy' actor Schellenberg dies

Associated Press

DALLAS — Canadian-born actor August Schellenberg, who starred in the "Free Willy" films and appeared in numerous television roles, has died at his Dallas home after a fight with lung cancer, his agent said Friday. He was 77.

Schellenberg played the role of Randolph Johnson, a whale trainer in all three "Free Willy" movies. In 2007, he was nominated for an Emmy as a supporting actor for his role as Chief Sitting Bull in the HBO series, "Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee."

Schellenberg's big-screen work also included appearing in the 2005 film, "The New World," alongside movie stars Christian Bale and Colin Farrell.

One of his last notable works was in 2012, when he played the lead role in an all Canadian cast of Shakespeare's "King Lear" at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa, said his agent, Jamie Levitt.

"I got a call this morning from the NAC saying they have lowered their flags to honor him," Levitt said. "He was a loving father and grandfather and a very good husband. He was a very well-known Canadian and an iconic actor."

Levitt said Schellenberg, with whom she had worked for the past 15 years, died at his home Thursday.

According to his personal website, he taught acting workshops in Toronto at the Centre for Indigenous Theatre and at York University. He also was a former boxer, participated in various celebrity charity sporting events and served as a motivational speaker in Canada and the U.S.

5 govs want partnership to protect chicken

Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — The governors of Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas say public-private partnerships involving landowners and developers are the best way to protect the habitat of the lesser prairie chicken.

The five governors sent a letter Aug. 2 to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service asking the agency to not add the bird to the threatened species list, according to the Journal Record newspaper of Oklahoma City. They told the service's director, Dan Ashe, that protecting the lesser prairie chicken under the Endangered Species Act could slow development of oil and gas and wind energy projects across the Plains.

The lesser prairie chicken is a nomadic bird.

Clay Pope, the executive director of the Oklahoma Association of Conservation Districts, said he agreed with the governors. He said public-private partnerships are beneficial for landowners in the long term, but there can be a short-term cost.

"There are challenges in changing the way you manage your land," he said. "But there are benefits for the land when you manage for wildlife while still trying to produce food and fiber."

In 1996, the five states' wildlife agencies formed a group to determine how to conserve the bird's habitat and in April released a conservation plan that includes monitoring the bird's habitat and population.

Public agencies can provide technical assistance to help farmers, ranchers and landowners in order to lower fences, remove trees and alter grazing patterns, and can also provide grants to offset the costs.

The Fish and Wildlife Service says it received the letter from the governors and is working on a response. Service spokeswoman Lesli Gray also says it's working closely with the five states on a range-wide plan.

"We will be meeting again soon and we are continuing our efforts on the lesser prairie chicken and working with the five states," she said.

A decision on whether the lesser prairie chicken will be added to the threatened species list is expected next March.

Texas man gets 725 years in prison for sex crimes

A 65-year-old Central Texas man has been sentenced to 725 years in prison for sex crimes against two young children.

A Washington County jury in Brenham sentenced Benny Joseph Walker on Wednesday to three 75-year prison terms for each of three sexual assault counts for which he was convicted Wednesday. Jurors also assessed four-year terms for each of 125 child pornography charges. The sentences are to be served consecutively.

Walker was arrested in June after the two children told a relative that he had molested them while they were staying at his rural home about 90 miles northwest of Houston.

District Attorney Julie Renken told The Eagle of Bryan-College Station that Walker would not become eligible for parole for 185 years.

Mother hopes to keep convicted nurse in prison

A former Central Texas nurse convicted in a child's death is to be released in less than five years from prison. The child's mother and others hope, however, that another criminal case can keep her behind bars.

Genene Jones was sentenced to 99 years for murder in the 1982 death of 15-month-old Chelsea McClellan from an overdose of a muscle relaxant. Jones, now 63, is to be released in February 2018 under a mandatory release law in effect at the time.

However, she was suspected of being involved in dozens of deaths of other children. The tot's mother, Petti McClellan of Houston, says she hopes someone might be able to give additional evidence against Jones.

Defense points finger at stepdad in boy's death

The attorney for a woman on trial for the 2010 slaying of a 12-year-old Houston boy has suggested the boy's stepfather is to blame.

Mona Nelson is charged with capital murder in the death of Jonathan Foster, whose badly burned body was found stuffed in a culvert. The child disappeared Christmas Eve 2010.

Nelson has pleaded not guilty. Prosecutors say they don't have a motive.

The Houston Chronicle reported Nelson's attorney, Allen Tanner, has suggested that David Davis had a motive because his stepson had come between him and his wife.

Davis denied such claims on Thursday. Video surveillance presented at trial seems to show Davis was at a bar when the boy disappeared.

FORT HOOD

Fort Hood suspect kicked gun from officer's hand

With the gunman standing over her, Fort Hood police officer Kimberly Munley tried to fire her weapon as she lay bleeding on the ground. Nothing happened.

The shooter then kicked the gun from her hand. But then the shooter's gun malfunctioned and he stumbled back as one of Munley's fellow officers yelled, "Drop your weapon." The officer fired, and the gunman fell.

Munley recalled those seconds while testifying Friday at the military trial of Maj. Nidal Hasan, who is accused of killing 13 people that day at the Texas military base in November 2009. The Army psychiatrist also is accused of wounding more than 30 others in the worst mass shooting ever on the U.S. military base.

When asked if the man who tried to kill her was in the courtroom, Munley — who was shot three times — pointed to Hasan.

Munley told jurors that she quickly spotted someone in Army clothing with a gun after arriving at the scene, a medical building on the Army post that had been crowded with soldiers preparing to deploy. She then heard her colleague, Sgt. Mark Todd, order the man to drop his weapon.

Munley said she saw a red laser flash across her eyes, and she began shooting. She said the gunman was running and firing in her direction, so she took cover behind a building.

"I realized he was not slowing down whatsoever," she testified. "He rounded the corner and within eight feet or so, we blindly began to exchange fire."

Russians break own spacewalk record

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — In a record-long spacewalk, Russian cosmonauts rigged cable outside the International Space Station on Friday for a new lab that's due to arrive in a few months.

Fyodor Yurchikhin and Aleksandr Misurkin spent almost the entire seven-hour-plus spacewalk routing 120 feet of power and Ethernet cable. The cable had to be unreeled, then meticulously secured to handrails and hooks.

"Today we are the cable people," one of the spacewalkers commented in Russian as the work drew to a close.

The spacewalk lasted seven hours and 29 minutes, a full hour longer than originally planned in order for the two to get a jump on work awaiting them in yet another outing next Thursday.

It was the longest spacewalk ever by a pair of Russians, surpassing the former record of seven hours and 16 minutes set at the old Mir space station in 1990.

Americans hold the overall record: a nearly nine-hour spacewalk in 2001.

Friday's spacewalk occurred exactly one month after an Italian astronaut almost drowned when leaking water flooded his helmet during a spacewalk.

Luca Parmitano's spacesuit was provided by NASA. Friday's spacewalkers wore Russian-made suits that differ from the U.S. version.

NASA is still investigating last month's close call.

The problem appears to be in the life-support backpack. The spacesuit will be sent back for analysis early next year. Until the trouble is identified and resolved, U.S. spacewalks are on hold.

support staff — will keep quality employees long-term.

"There are no insignificant people in a school district. We all serve children. If we're not teachers, we are here to support and help teachers. Every single one of us contribute to that end product," Warren said.

As Midland continues to grow, Midland ISD trustees and leaders will need to develop a plan for the district's future.

Warren asked all employees to form an opinion on three different topics and share them with him via email. The topics are: Should sixth grade be moved to the junior highs? Should ninth grade be incorporated into the high school? Should Midland build a third comprehensive high school?

These questions will be asked of community members and leaders this fall through town hall meetings and Warren said he also wants feedback from the teaching base.

More than 3,000 MISD employees attended Friday's annual convocation at the Midland College Chaparral Center. The event kicked off with entertainment by drill teams, color guards, cheerleaders, mascots and football teams from both Midland and Lee high schools, as well as music from Lee's band.

Community leaders — including Mayor Wes Perry, Midland College President Steve Thomas, Midland Chamber of Commerce President Jay Edwards and Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce President Rachel Stone — spoke during convocation to thank MISD employees for all they do to help students succeed.

tried to dress up abortion and call it health care. I always thought it was deceptive. What is healthy about abortion? It's not healthy for the child getting aborted. It's not healthy for the mother, either."

Planned Parenthood of West Texas has closed about a dozen health centers over the past 30 years, according to its website. Banschbach said changes in how the Midland center was run over the past two years hinted at possible problems.

Jeffrey Hons, president and CEO of Planned Parenthood Trust of South Texas, said the 2011 Texas Legislature's policy to end family planning contracts and Perry's decision to dismantle the Women's Health Program forced Planned Parenthood to close its health center in Midland.

"Some additional health centers will close, and some will open," Hons said in a statement. "I hope there will be a time in the future when we can restore Planned Parenthood's service to the women in Midland and Odessa."

JOBS

From 1A

Midland created 700 new jobs between June and July, and between July 2012 to July 2013, 5,100 new jobs were created for a growth rate of 6.2 percent.

The mining, logging and construction sector, which includes Midland's dominant oil and gas industry, added 400 jobs from June to July and has added 2,700 jobs over the last 12 months.

Those jobs are being added by companies such as Frank's Tanks and Trucking, which currently employs 40 and just added two new crew members. The company was seeking roustabouts and sand blast/coating pushers. Mesquite Oil Tools, which has 12 people in its Midland office and a larger staff in its Snyder office, was seeking a machinist. Both companies said they don't have any problems seeking enough applicants for their open positions.

Trade, transportation and utilities added 200 new jobs, and manufacturing and government added 100 jobs each. The other services sector lost 100 jobs, and the remaining five industrial sectors remained stable.

While leisure and hospitality employment was unchanged from June to July, the sector has added 500 jobs over the last 12 months.

Torino's Pizza Bar in San Miguel Square is hiring kitchen and wait staff. Teresa Roumell, manager, said the area's thriving oil and gas industry can present challenges to restaurants that are hiring.

"There are times when (the applicant list) is short," she said.

Her applicants are an interesting mix of people — some who have just moved to Midland and some young people getting their first jobs, she said.

"For us to maintain the quality of service we want is tough," she said, especially with staff that are working their first jobs or not used to dealing with the public. Maintaining a locally owned restaurant can be difficult, especially if it's not appropriately staffed to maintain quality of service, Roumell said.

"It's a challenge, but it's a good challenge. We've found some good people we were delighted to have," she said.

Kirk Hart, general manager of the recently opened Hilton Garden Inn Midland, said he has worked in some very difficult markets, such as Key West, Fla., and downtown Atlanta.

"I find this place much easier," he said.

For him, staffing issues arise not from the hourly workers but owners and managers.

"A business is seven days a week," he said. "Managers may have to work 12, 15 hours a day. Eventually they throw in the towel, they stop training, they stop valuing, they stop embracing their employees."

Midland is only now seeing significant growth in hospitality with the influx of new restaurants and hotels, he said, so many residents are just now getting the opportunity to learn hotel management skills.

"I think management will get better," he said.

He also has a partnership with Texas Tech, hiring graduates of its hotel management program. Those graduates realize Midland may not be their entire career, but they're happy to spend 18 to 36 months getting hands-on training, he said.

As a hotel manager, he said he sees a high demand for single working mothers.

"My responsibility is to accommodate them," he said. "They can't always be on time, they can't always work the hours you want."

He said the new hotel has a great staff of desk clerks, servers, bartenders and housekeepers, but retaining a fully staffed maintenance department is more difficult because those skills are in high demand.

Hilton Garden Inn has 541 hotels worldwide, and Hart said that after being open only a couple of months, his facility has been ranked first in overall customer service.

Statewide, the unemployment rate remained unchanged at 6.5 percent for a third consecutive month and has been essentially flat so far this year.

Workforce Commission Chairman Andres Alcantar said Texas has maintained a positive growth rate for 39 straight months. The financial services field created the most jobs in July of any other sector with 9,000 new positions, he said.

"Our 3.1 percent annual growth rate compares favorably to 2.1 percent for the private sector nationally," commissioner Hope Andrade said.

While Midland had the state's lowest unemployment, the highest was in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission area at 11.3 percent.

3-day marijuana festival, rally at Seattle park

Thousands streamed into a Seattle waterfront park Friday for the opening of a three-day marijuana festival — an event that is part party, part protest and part victory celebration after the legalization of pot in Washington and Colorado last fall.

"This is going to be the biggest year for Hempfest," said Jack Beattie, an 18-year-old Seattle University student, as he shared a joint with two friends. "In past years, people were a little bit sketched out about smoking in public. Now, there's going to be a lot more."

The free, annual event was expected to draw as many as 85,000 people per day. On Friday, many strolled by vendor stands, joints in hand as they checked out colorful glass pipes, tie-dyed clothing, bags of "ideal cultivation soil," and hemp wares, including purses and necklaces.

Others sprawled on the grass in the steamy sunshine, listening to bands and speeches, or lit bongs on the beach and watched ferries cross Elliott Bay.

Hempfest is in its 22nd year of advocating for the legalization of marijuana, and this is the first time it's been held since last fall, when Washington's voters approved Initiative 502 and Colorado's passed Amendment 64, legalizing the possession of up to an ounce of pot by adults over 21. Both states are developing systems of state-licensed growers and processors, along with stores where taxed, regulated weed will be sold.

Theft of 840K coins sends meter-man to prison

BUFFALO — From the moment parking meter mechanic James Bagarozzo began his scheme to steal from the machines, his life became overrun with quarters. He stashed them in his pockets, in a sack in his truck, in closets at his house.

Over more than eight years, he brought home $210,000 worth of quarters — 10,500 pounds of them — which he dutifully rolled and packed in $500 boxes to be exchanged for cash at banks on his lunch hour.

On Friday, a judge imposed a 2 1/2-year sentence on Bagarozzo, who blamed a gambling addiction and an illness he believed would kill him before he built a nest egg for his family.

"With all its problems, the last thing the city of Buffalo needs is employees who don't do what they're paid to do," U.S. District Judge Richard Arcara said as he rejected a defense plea for home confinement or community service.

From 2003 through 2011, the meter mechanic spent the first half of every workday stealing from 70 to 75 meters, prosecutors said. Rather than fix machines, he broke them so that quarters would collect on top where he could grab them with his hands instead of dropping into the collection canister.

Bagarozzo, speaking purposely but with little emotion, apologized during a brief statement to the court and said he accepted responsibility.

Students in tornado-shattered town return to class

Associated Press

MOORE, Okla. — After an anguish-filled summer, students returned to classes Friday at two elementary schools destroyed last spring by a deadly tornado that ripped a 17-mile path of devastation through the suburbs of Oklahoma City.

The children of Moore were eager to reunite with classmates, but many were still haunted by fears of the weather and memories of young friends lost to the monstrous EF5 twister that killed 24 people.

Zack Lewis, who narrowly escaped the storm that took the lives of seven schoolmates, seemed to express the anxiety on everyone's mind when he asked his parents a simple, plaintive question: Who will come get him if another tornado approaches?

"He's a little anxious. He didn't want to eat," Julie Lewis said, wiping tears from her cheeks after escorting her son to his first day of fourth grade.

On the day of the storm, Zack's father plucked the boy from his classroom when the weather grew threatening, so the child wasn't on campus when the twister hit. The schoolmates died when a wall collapsed on them at Plaza Towers Elementary.

The EF5 tornado with winds that exceeded 200 mph also plowed through Briarwood Elementary School and destroyed scores of homes and businesses.

Counselors and five therapy dogs greeted students outside the Central Junior High School, which will share its campus with Plaza Towers students for at least the next year. Parents snapped photographs of their children in front of flowers, balloons and a red-and-white banner reading "Plaza Towers Elementary School. Welcome."

Inside the temporary school, teachers and administrators tried to create a sense of normalcy, but some acknowledged the challenge ahead.

Fourth-grade teacher Nikki McCurtain, who has many of the third-graders who survived, said she let her students pick where they wanted to sit as a way to let them feel like they had control. Gift bags filled with Tootsie Rolls, Pixie Stix and other items were left on each desk.

"I want to reassure them that it's going to be a good school year if they make it a good school year," McCurtain said. "It's just so tragic what happened."

One of McCurtain's students, 10-year-old Cam'ron Richardson, had trouble sleeping Thursday night as a storm rolled through central Oklahoma. He didn't speak much while preparing for school but looked sharp in his black jeans shorts and new basketball shoes.

"I am nervous for him. I just hope it doesn't storm the next few days," his mother, Alicia Richardson said.

Cam'ron was one of several children whose rescue was captured by an Associated Press photographer following the storm. He keeps one of the images on his cellphone to show others.

School officials were hopeful that Friday's return to school would help students put the memory of the May 20 tornado behind them. Many people in town had already returned to a familiar routine, but not the children.

When the tornado was brought up in one first-grade classroom on Friday, several students started recounting their experiences.

"My mom's car had a tree through the back," one first-grade girl said, looking up from her drawing.

Another student, 6-year-old Connor Lewis, was adamant he did not cry at the time of the storm.

"I didn't cry like a bit," he told his friends as he drew a picture of a swimming pool. Then he conceded there were a few tears: "Just for like one minute, and then I was done," said Connor, who is not related to Zack Lewis.

Connor said he didn't want to come to school at first, but midway through the day, he said he was having fun.

Kimberly Martinez, a fourth-grade teacher, said she got emotional at the start of the day but was able to pull herself together.

"I want to be strong for these kids. They deserve to have a really great year after everything they've been through," Martinez said. "I wanted them to see me smiling because I am excited to be back teaching."

In the nearly three months since the storm, students are still disturbed by heavy weather and vivid memories of the mayhem.

Eight-year-old Haley Delgado carries headphones to block out the noise of the wind. Her brother, Xavier, 10, says he is scared by loud thunder. And 9-year-old Ruby Macias, who was trapped under the same wall that crushed her classmates, remembers the screaming and the crying.

The site where the Plaza Towers school once stood, in the heart of a neighborhood decimated by the tornado, has become a makeshift memorial for the dead and a meeting spot for volunteers, even though there is just a slab where the school used to be.

RNC votes to block CNN, NBC from hosting debates

Associated Press

BOSTON — The Republican National Committee, responding to plans by two television networks to air programs about Hillary Rodham Clinton, approved a resolution Friday to block CNN and NBC from hosting GOP presidential primary debates.

The unanimous vote affirmed RNC Chairman Reince Priebus's threat against the networks if they went ahead with programs about Clinton, a possible Democratic presidential contender. Priebus said CNN has "an obvious bias."

"That's a network that won't be hosting a single Republican primary debate," Priebus declared, receiving a standing ovation from Republican activists from across the country gathered for the committee's summer meeting in Boston.

In a statement, CNN said a division of the company planned to air a documentary about Clinton in 2014.

"The project is in the very early stages of development, months from completion," the CNN statement read. "We encouraged all interested parties to wait until the program premieres before judgments are made about it. Unfortunately, the RNC was not willing to do that."

Meanwhile, the Fox TV Studios has decided not to help produce NBC's "Hillary" miniseries, said Leslie Oren, the company's spokeswoman. Fox's participation attracted attention because it is owned by News Corp. and is a sister company to the Fox News Channel, where the project has come under attack from commentators.

The studio's decision adds to the already considerable doubt within NBC that the miniseries will ever get made.

The NBC entertainment division's decision to go ahead with the project was made without consultation with NBC's news division. Some NBC News people, including political director Chuck Todd and Washington reporter Andrea Mitchell, have attacked the idea as something that would make life difficult for the news division.

Even before the Clinton dispute, Republican leaders favored plans to have fewer presidential debates with more friendly moderators. They believe their 2012 presidential candidates spent too much time beating up on each other in last year's monthslong primary season, contributing to Mitt Romney's loss.

"Our party should not be involved in setting up a system that encourages the slicing and dicing of candidates over a long period of time with moderators that are not in the business of being at all concerned about the future of our party," Priebus told reporters.

Democratic National Committee spokesman Michael Czin criticized Friday's vote.

"Instead of modifying their policies to actually present smart solutions for middle class families, the only thing the GOP can unite behind is a plan to continue to limit the audiences — and voters — to whom they will communicate," he said.

Hagel looks to cut impact of Obama remarks

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a highly unusual move to blunt the legal impact of the president's comments on military sexual assaults, Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel is ordering his top leaders to be sure to only base their judicial decisions on facts and their own independent judgment.

The one-page memo tells the military that even though senior U.S. leaders may openly condemn sexual assault, drug abuse, hazing and other crimes, such comments are not intended to sway the outcome of any particular case.

In early May, as high-profile incidents of sexual assault in the military spiked, President Barack Obama — the nation's commander in chief — declared he had no tolerance for the matter.

"I don't want just more speeches or awareness programs or training but, ultimately, folks look the other way," he said. "If we find out somebody is engaging in this stuff, they've got to be held accountable — prosecuted, stripped of their positions, court-martialed, fired, dishonorably discharged. Period."

Obama's remarks have already affected the outcome in some cases, including the decision by a judge in South Carolina to dismiss sexual assault charges against a soldier. Defense lawyers have argued that the president's remarks amounted to unlawful command influence on the cases.

"The comments made by the president did result in an impact in some of the cases that were ongoing from the view of the judges," Lt. Gen. Curtis Scaparrotti, director of the Joint Staff, said during a Pentagon press briefing Thursday. "As a result, we believed it was necessary ... to make a statement, simply to ensure that commanders understood that they act independently, based on the merits of a case, and to ensure that there's no taint in any of the jurisdiction that takes place or any of the cases that are ongoing now."

"I think it's wise for our military leaders to get on this train rather than get run over by it."

Sen. Claire McCaskill, D-Mo.

It's not clear if the memo will effectively limit the legal arguments that defense attorneys have made. But Scaparrotti said that commanders understand their responsibility to act on the merits of a case and will continue to act independently in line with the justice system.

The memo, obtained by The Associated Press, was first reported by The New York Times. Its disclosure comes as the Pentagon on Thursday released additional steps to increase accountability of commanders reviewing sexual assault cases and to improve support for victims of the crimes.

The new measures include the creation of a legal advocacy program to provide legal representation for victims; requirements that pretrial hearings of sexual assault charges be conducted by judge advocate general officers; and new authorities for commanders to reassign or transfer troops accused of sex crimes to eliminate contact with victims.

The changes would also require greater oversight by senior officers, allow victims to give input during the sentencing phase of a court-martial and direct the inspector general to regularly review sexual assault investigations.

In a statement, White House press secretary Jay Carney said the initiatives are a step along a path toward eliminating the crime from the military ranks. He said the president "expects this level of effort to be sustained" as far into the future as necessary.

The measures are being taken under growing pressure from Congress, including a spate of bills that seek to overhaul the military justice system in an effort to stem the surging tide of sexual assaults in the military.

Critics complain that victims don't trust the system and are worried about retaliation if they come forward and lodge complaints against fellow service members or officers who may be protected by their comrades. Gen. Martin Dempsey, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has expressed concern that women in the military are losing confidence that the problem can be solved.

Lawmakers, including Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand, D-N.Y., argue that commanders should be removed from the process of deciding which crimes go to trial and be replaced by seasoned trial lawyers with experience in such cases. Military leaders oppose the idea, arguing that removing the decision from their purview would undercut the ability of officers to maintain good order and discipline.

On Thursday Gillibrand went to her Twitter account to warn that while the new policy is a step forward, it is "inadequate to truly address this crisis."

Sen. Claire McCaskill, D-Mo., said Congress will move ahead with its own reforms, adding, "I think it's wise for our military leaders to get on this train rather than get run over by it."

In a recent report, the Pentagon estimated that as many as 26,000 military members may have been sexually assaulted last year, up from an estimated 19,000 assaults in 2011. The estimates are based on an anonymous survey of military personnel.

US rig count up 13 this week to 1,791

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the US increased by 13 this week to 1,791, according to Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

There were 1,397 rigs listed as searching for oil, up 12; 388 for gas, up two; and six as miscellaneous, down one. At this time last year there were 1,425 rigs searching for oil, a difference of 28, and 484 for gas, a difference of 96.

The U.S. ended the week with 12 more horizontal drilling rigs for a total of 1,077. There were 269 directional drilling rigs, an increase of three, and 445 vertical drilling rigs, down two.

A year ago this week there were 1,914 rigs in the U.S.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Texas dropped three this week to 846. At this time last year there were 902 rigs in Texas.

Rounding out the top five states by rig count were North Dakota with 172, up one; Oklahoma with 169, up one; Louisiana with 113, up five; and New Mexico with 76, up two.

Among the other major oil- and gas-producing states, California added four rigs, Alaska added two and Kansas, Ohio, Utah and Wyoming were up one apiece. West Virginia lost one rig. Arkansas, Colorado and Pennsylvania were unchanged.

The Permian Basin added two rigs, ending the week at 472. At this time last year there were 513 rigs exploring in the Permian Basin. The Barnett was unchanged at 32 rigs, the Granite Wash added three for a total of 74, and the Eagle Ford declined by seven rigs, finishing the week at 229.

In the U.S. there were 1,706 rigs listed as on land, up nine; 23 as in inland waters, down one; and 62 as offshore, up five. The Gulf of Mexico added four rigs for a total of 59.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Canada was unchanged this week at 358. Canada had 127 gas rigs, down one; 231 oil rigs, up one; and zero rigs listed as miscellaneous, unchanged. A year ago this week there were 326 rigs in Canada.

The total number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in North America was 2,149, an increase of 13 rigs. At this time last year there were 2,240 rigs in North America.

Power companies mull free nights, weekends

Green Mountain Power electric meters are seen on Aug. 1 in Montpelier, Vt. Some electric companies are increasingly offering customized pay plans, made easier by the growing use of digital meters that wirelessly link electric companies and customers.

NEW YORK — Electric bills have long been take-it-or-leave-it affairs: Pay one rate for all the power you used the month before, no matter when you used it.

But some electric companies want to shake-up that rigid business model. They are increasingly offering plans that sound like come-ons from mobile phone companies: Free nights, free weekends and pre-paid plans.

"We are seeing a transformation in the way people buy and use electricity in the U.S.," says Steven Murray, president of Direct Energy's residential energy programs.

The more customized plans are made easier by the growing use of digital meters that wirelessly link electric companies and customers, allowing both to track usage in real time. Digital meters have not only spurred competition, they have also enabled traditional utilities to reduce their costs by encouraging customers to use electricity during off-peak hours, when it is cheaper.

Forty-two percent of U.S. electric customers have digital meters, up from less than 5 percent in 2008. In 2015, more than 50 percent will have them, according to Navigant Consulting.

This new breed of electric plans comes with risks.

Customers can end up paying a lot more for power than they expected. Some plans offer low introductory rates that can quickly skyrocket. Others have high early-termination fees. Some fixed-rate plans are a great deal if power prices rise, but they may seem awfully expensive if prices fall.

If customers are careful, though, they can pay less.

Dorothea Miller of Sinking Spring, Pa. signed up for a Direct Energy plan that gives her one day of free power every week. She picked Saturday, and now saves as much of her housework as she can until then. She stops short, she says, of letting mountains of dirty laundry or dishes accumulate in anticipation of Saturday's free power.

"We pretty much run things the way we did before the plan, but now we set our dishwasher to go on after midnight (Friday) and do most of our laundry on Saturday," she says.

TXU Energy offers a similar plan to Texas customers that offers free power every night from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m., or free power Saturdays and Sundays, in exchange for a higher rate during other times.

Customized plans are most prevalent in the 13 states and Washington, D.C., where regulators have allowed companies to compete to sell electricity. In those states, the number of customers that have signed up with electricity suppliers that offer these types of plans rose to 13.3 million in 2011, from 8.7 million in 2008, according to the most recent numbers from the Compete Coalition, a group that lobbies to expand competitive electricity markets. The plans are also popping up in other states.

Electric competition has been around for more than a decade and utilities have experimented with pricing plans for even longer. But digital meters have made these plans easier to offer and manage. They are being installed around the world; utilities in China, Japan and across the European Union have aggressive plans to expand the use of digital meters.

In the U.S., companies have different motivations for offering innovative plans. Traditional regulated utilities are trying to reduce stresses on their grids. Upstart power providers are trying to lure new customers.

In both cases, they are trying to get customers to use less electricity when it costs more. Wholesale power prices fluctuate depending on the time of day, from zero overnight to thousands of dollars per megawatt-hour during a hot day.

Yet most customers see one average price every month, a price that includes those sky-high peak rates. With plans that offer prices that vary based on the time of day, customers can avoid high-cost power in the same way air travelers can save by not flying on the Wednesday night before Thanksgiving.

1,600 homes evacuated as wildfire burns

BOISE — Sheriff's deputies Friday expanded evacuation orders to 1,600 homes near the Idaho mountain resort community of Sun Valley as a wind-driven wildfire burned its way through sage and pine trees.

The evacuation orders for the 100-square-mile Beaver Creek Fire included homes in drainages and foothills west of the towns of Hailey and extending to north of Ketchum in central Idaho.

More than 600 state and federal firefighters were working to get the blaze under control and protect homes in the affluent resort region that's a second home to celebrities such as Arnold Schwarzenegger, Tom Hanks and Bruce Willis.

Another 1,000 firefighters were expected to report to the scene later Friday night, said Shawna Hartman, spokeswoman for the Beaver Creek Fire.

Fire managers said the fire grew rapidly Friday thanks to wind gusts topping out at 30 mph, low humidity and tinder-dry ground fuels.

"The fire activity is extreme," Hartman said. "It's safe to say we've got a lot of structures at risk."

No charge for Kanye West in LAX paparazzi scuffle

Kanye West won't face felony charges after being accused of attacking a photographer at Los Angeles International Airport. But he's not completely off the hook.

The Los Angeles County district attorney's office said Friday it is declining to prosecute the rapper, but his case will go to the city attorney for possible misdemeanor charges.

In the July 19 incident, West scuffled with a member of the paparazzi who staked out the airport to snap celebrity photos. Videos showed West lunging at a photographer's camera and trying to wrestle it away.

West has had similar run-ins with paparazzi at LAX in the past.

Prosecutors say the photographer did not have a significant injury and it's unknown if his camera was damaged. They also say no weapon was used and West doesn't have a felony record.

NEW YORK

Troubled NYC real estate heir Durst arrested again

A New York City real estate heir who admitted killing his neighbor in Texas a decade ago has had another run-in with the law.

Police say Robert Durst was arrested Friday outside his Harlem home on a trespassing violation. They say the 70-year-old son of real estate mogul Seymour Durst showed up at his brother's midtown Manhattan home in June after being told to stay away.

In 2001, Durst was arrested as a fugitive and admitted killing his neighbor in Texas and dumping the remains into Galveston Bay. He claimed self-defense and was acquitted of homicide charges.

Durst hasn't returned a phone message. His New York lawyer's name is unavailable. His Texas lawyer declines to comment.

Durst's family runs The Durst Organization, a privately held billion-dollar real estate company that owns several New York skyscrapers.

LOS ANGELES

Singer Chris Brown sentenced to 1,000 hours labor

A judge reinstated Chris Brown's revoked probation Friday and gave the singer a new sentence to perform 1,000 hours of community labor such as cleaning beaches or highways, removing graffiti or performing other chores assigned by the probation department.

Brown's current legal troubles are the latest repercussions of his arrest four years ago for assaulting his former girlfriend, Rihanna.

The popular R&B singer sat in a courtroom for nearly an hour as his lawyer, Mark Geragos, and a prosecutor shuttled in and out of the judge's chambers, with Geragos apparently seeking his client's approval for a plan to keep him from facing more serious consequences.

Superior Court Judge James Brandlin finally emerged and announced that an agreement had been reached.

Deputy District Attorney Mary Murray withdrew a request to rescind Brown's probation because of a hit-and-run charge that was dismissed in another court Thursday.

Brandlin then told Brown he must perform 1,000 hours of community labor with one of four public programs: California Department of Transportation highway cleanup, graffiti removal, beach cleanup or Probation Alternative Work Services.

Cowboys defense aims to continue turnover trend

By Tom Orsborn
San Antonio Express-News

GLENDALE, Ariz. — In many ways, Monte Kiffin's 4-3 defense is as simple as the text in the Dick and Jane books that helped many Americans learn to read last century.

See ball. Run to ball. Knock ball loose.

It's an easy three-step formula the Dallas Cowboys have practiced since the spring, and it's already paying off.

The Cowboys recorded just 16 takeaways last season, a big reason why owner Jerry Jones fired defensive coordinator Rob Ryan and replaced him with the 73-year-old Kiffin, who immediately scrapped the 3-4 defense favored by Ryan.

Dallas (1-1) has forced two turnovers in each of its first two preseason games. The Cowboys hope to keep the streak alive today afternoon against the Arizona Cardinals (1-0), who yielded an NFL-worst 58 sacks last season.

"(Defensive line coach Rod) Marinelli always says it's a bone-on- bone defense, my guy against your guy," defensive end DeMarcus Ware said. "Hustling is what this defense is all predicated on because when you get 11 guys to the ball, scratching and clawing at the ball, that's when you create those turnovers.

"That's what we've doing this whole camp and in the offseason. We've been doing it as much as we can even in walkthroughs. It's really predicated on the effort."

One of the knocks against Ryan was that his defense was too complicated. Kiffin's playbook isn't nearly as thick.

"We have a great grasp of the defense," safety Barry Church said. "We are working fast and communicating well out there."

It helps that the coaches constantly stress the need to swarm ball carriers and attack the ball.

"They have been harping on it all training camp," Church said. "We definitely have the talent and the will to run to the ball every play."

But the early success isn't without its missteps.

"Our tackling was pretty bad last week," Church said. "We need to get better at that."

There should be plenty of opportunities to achieve that goal against Arizona. Coach Jason Garrett said Friday the starters, including Tony Romo, should play 15 to 20 plays.

"Different guys will play a little bit longer based on a lot of different

Texas eyeing return to top of Big 12

By Jim Vertuno

AUSTIN —

With each day that goes by, the 2009 national championship game fades a bit more at Texas.

That 2005 national title? That's on the verge of ancient history considering two senior classes have come and gone since Vince Young wore burnt orange. Toss in a 12-16 record over the last three seasons and the once-mighty program seems on the verge of long-term mediocrity if Longhorns can't challenge for the Big 12 title this year.

"We've got a challenging year ahead of us, and it really starts from the beginning," Stoops said. "We understand and know it's going to be a challenge, but again, I believe it has our players' attention."

Five things to watch for as Oklahoma looks to return to the top of the Big 12:

1. THE QUARTERBACK IS?: Stoops has been in no hurry to name a starting quarterback during the preseason. Junior Blake Bell and redshirt freshman Trevor Knight are the primary candidates to replace Jones, after a foot injury knocked sophomore Kendal Thompson from the preseason competition, with Bell thought to be the front-runner. D'Arby Myers extended his hitting streak to 25 games and the Midland RockHounds won their second consecutive game with a 7-2 victory over the Springfield Cardinals at Citibank Ballpark.

Myers went 2 for 5 with a run scored as his hitting streak is not only the best in the Texas League this year but the best in the minor leagues. Also, only four players have longer hitting streaks in all of professional baseball — major leaguers David Ortiz and Michael Cuddyer and two players out of the Mexican League — according to RockHounds officials.

Report: A-Rod camp leaked docs implicating Braun

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Members of Alex Rodriguez's inner circle obtained and leaked documents that implicated Ryan Braun and other players in using performance-enhancing drugs, "60 Minutes" reported Friday.

Citing unidentified sources, the CBS news show said the leak occurred in February, days after the Miami New Times published documents implicating the Yankees star in the Biogenesis investigation.

In the Miami New Times documents, the names of Braun and one of Rodriguez's teammates, catcher Francisco Cervelli, are redacted. "60 Minutes" reports that members of Rodriguez's camp obtained unredacted versions and leaked them to Yahoo! Sports.

Rodriguez's lawyer, David Cornwell, denied the allegations to"60 Minutes."

"The allegations are untrue and are another attempt to harm Alex — this time by driving a wedge between Alex and other players in the game," he said in a statement to the show. "While Alex focuses on baseball and repeatedly states that he is going to respect the appeal process, the drumbeat of false allegations continues."

Rodriguez

Speaking before Friday night's game against the Boston Red Sox, Rodriguez claimed the story had been reported four months ago and was not a surprise.

"I spoke to Cervelli this morning. He understands," Rodriguez said in the visitor's dugout at Fenway Park. "We had that conversation. He understands completely that it's not true."

Rodriguez has been suspended for 211 games through the 2014 season. He is allowed to play until a decision is issued by arbitrator Fredric Horowitz, which is not expected until at least November.

"Let's make one thing clear: the next seven weeks there's going to be a very, very bumpy road every day and expect a story like this if not longer," Rodriguez said. "We're going to have to deal with it. When we have the right timing, and the time is appropriate, which is not now, I will tell my story."

Braun, the Milwaukee Brewers slugger, accepted a 65-game suspension last month. All-Stars Nelson Cruz, Jhonny Peralta and Everth Cabrera were banned 50 games apiece Aug. 5 when Major League Baseball disciplined 13 players, including Cervelli, for their relationship to Biogenesis of America, a Florida anti-aging clinic accused of distributing banned performance-enhancing drugs.

Rodriguez admitted four years ago that he used PEDs while with Texas from 2001-03 but has repeatedly denied using them since. His penalty was more than double the previous high for a PED suspension.

A-Rod's drug penalty was for "his use and possession of numerous forms of prohibited performance-enhancing substances, including testosterone and human growth hormone over the course of multiple years," MLB said.

His punishment under the labor contract was for "attempting to cover up his violations of the program by engaging in a course of conduct intended to obstruct and frustrate the office of the commissioner's investigation."

Commissioner Bud Selig said Thursday he thought the punishment was "eminently fair."

"I have a job to do, and that's protecting the integrity of the game and enforcing it, and that's what I'm going to do," he said.

Seager's slump-ending HR, Mariners beat Rangers

By Stephen Hawkins

Associated Press

Mariners	3
Rangers	1

ARLINGTON — Kyle Seager snapped a career-worst 0-for-21 slump with a go-ahead two-run homer and the Seattle Mariners beat the AL West-leading Texas Rangers 3-1 on Friday night.

Hisashi Iwakuma (11-6) struck out eight and allowed one run in seven innings.

Derek Holland pitched two-hit ball with six strikeouts over seven scoreless innings for Texas before Neal Cotts (4-2), whose 0.93 ERA was the lowest among American League relievers, walked Franklin. Seager then lined a shot into the Rangers bullpen in right-center field, his 18th homer of the season but first in 13 games.

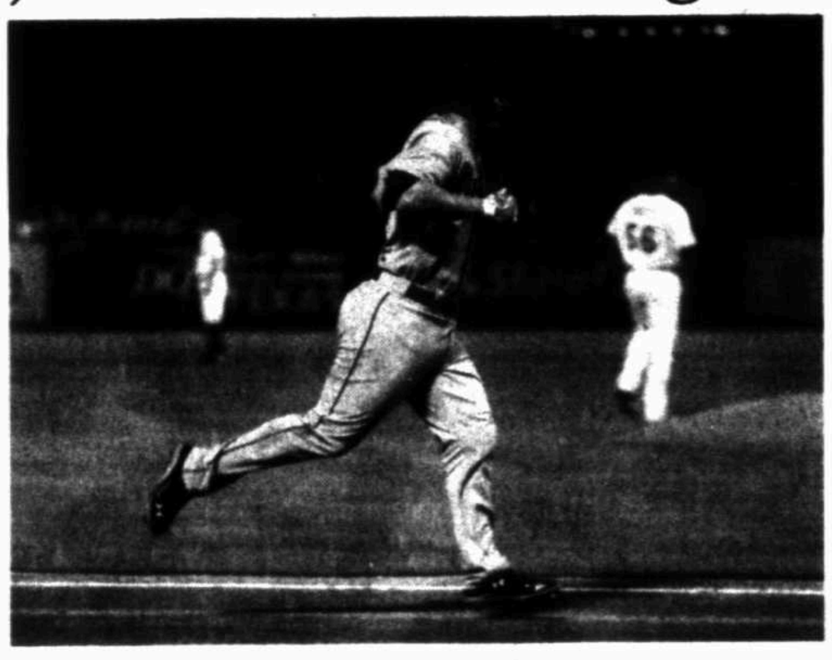
Justin Smoak homered in the ninth for Seattle, which won for only the seventh time in 19 games.

The Rangers had the bases loaded in the eighth when A.J. Pierzynski, whose RBI single in the fourth produced the only Texas run, had an inning-ending popout to third base.

After Mariners reliever Oliver Perez walked and hit a batter to start the eighth, the only batters he faced, Elvis Andrus had a sacrifice bunt before Ian Kinsler struck out. Adrian Beltre, already with two hits and hitting .452 over a 16-game span, was intentionally walked before Charlie Furbush came on to retire Pierzynski.

Danny Farquhar struck out two in a perfect ninth for his sixth save in nine chances.

Rangers manager Ron Washington twice went out to argue calls by Angel Hernandez, an umpire he publicly criticized in the past. Both calls were for players coming off second base — one defensively, the other a Texas base runner.



Tony Gutierrez/AP

Seattle's Kyle Seager trots home after hitting a two-run home run off of Texas' Neal Cotts, rear, in the eighth inning Friday in Arlington.

In the Seattle third, Rangers second baseman Kinsler was taking a throw for a force out when he shuffled his feet while trying to get out of the way of an oncoming runner. Hernandez immediately motioned that Kinsler came off the base before making the catch, and replays showed that to be the case.

An inning later, on his RBI single to left-center, Pierzynski was called out at second after sliding in ahead of the tag by Nick Franklin before briefly coming off the base. It didn't appear on replays that Pierzynski was being tagged when he came off before reaching out with his hand to get back on the base. Hernandez, behind the tangled bodies, called the runner out, bringing Washington out again as Pierzynski was flat on back screaming in disgust.

Two years ago, after Washington and first base coach Gary Pettis got ejected by Hernandez on a disputed balk call, the Rangers manager said, "Angel is bad. That's all there is to it."

Even before his reunions with Hernandez, Washington had gone out to talk with umpire Doug Eddings about an inning-ending play in the first when Andrus tried to score from first on Beltre's single to right. Andrus dived head-first, but was initially blocked from reaching the plate while catcher Humberto Quintero made a sweeping tag. It was unclear on replays if he actually tagged Andrus, or if the runner ever did touch the plate.

Texas A&M quarterback Manziel followed by trouble

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — An uncanny ability to escape trouble helped make Johnny Manziel a Heisman Trophy winner.

Whether it was an arrest that could have gotten him booted from Texas A&M before he even played a game or a swarming SEC defense trying to bury him in the backfield, Johnny Football was tough to take down.

Now another off-the-field problem is a much bigger threat to the quarterback's future. After a whirlwind season where he came from obscurity to become the biggest star in college football and the first freshman to win the Heisman, the question is: Will there be a follow-up?

Allegations that he received payment for autographs could threaten his eligibility along with A&M's championship hopes, and have some in College Station fed up with his antics.

Most in this town built around the university and its football program are nervously waiting for the results of an NCAA investigation that ESPN has reported is about whether Manziel was paid for signing hundreds of autographs for memorabilia brokers during the offseason.

Coach Kevin Sumlin tried not to make too much out of what could be a season-altering situation. He pointed out that last year most expected the Aggies to struggle in their first year in the Southeastern Conference.

"We had a cloud over our heads last season, no one thought we could win any games," he said. "Every year you've got a challenge."

Regardless of the outcome of the investigation, it has already distracted from what was expected to be a big year for the Aggies. They're coming off an 11-2 record, highlighted by Manziel leading Texas A&M to an upset win at No. 1 Alabama. The rematch in College Station is Sept. 14.

Manziel's lawyer has said he believes Manziel will play in Texas A&M's season opener against Rice on Aug. 31 — even if the investigation is ongoing. Ultimately, though, it could be up to Texas A&M to decide whether they want to play a player who could later be ruled ineligible.

Sumlin wouldn't speculate on whether Manziel will play in the opener and said that a lot of people would be involved in that decision.

That question is certainly the hottest topic in College Station and perhaps in all of college football. The website TexAgs.com, a site that caters to die-hard Aggie fans, has a poll on its home page asking whether Manziel will play in Week 1. Sixty-eight percent of the 4,000 people who voted think he will, but there are also plenty of Aggie fans who believe he shouldn't.

Manziel

They believe that A&M should keep him out to avoid facing possible sanctions for the program down the road.

"Holding this program and the school's reputation hostage to the immaturity and incredibly bad judgment of young Johnny is just stupid," a fan posted on a TexAgs.com forum about the issue. "Whether he took money or not, he put A&M in a really bad situation when it had the world by the tail."

Sumlin has been cagey during camp concerning the quarterback situation. But he did say that the Aggies "have to have a contingency plan for what happens at quarterback." He also said he alternates giving different quarterbacks more snaps each day at practice.

Manziel hasn't spoken to the reporters since SEC media days, but he has addressed his past mistakes, including his arrest last year, previously. Manziel was arrested last summer after a bar fight near campus and charged with disorderly conduct, possession of the fake ID and failure to identify himself to police. It was an incident that put him in danger of being suspended from school and left him having to earn the starting job in fall camp.

Manziel admitted this June that he failed to identify himself to police following the altercation. As part of a plea deal, other charges against the 20-year-old, including disorderly conduct, were dismissed, and it looked like Manziel's trouble was behind him.

"A truly critical error in judgment on my part, it's something that I look back on as one of the biggest mistakes of my life," Manziel said last year of the arrest. "From there, I've had to make a lot of changes in my life. I'm really more aware of my surroundings and what goes on in my life. I've had to surround myself with a great group of people. I have a great family, a great group of coaches here that really care about my well-being and me moving forward as a person."

It had already been an eventful offseason, filled with road trips to Las Vegas, celebrity mingling with LeBron James and rapper Drake, and early exits from the Manning Passing Academy and a University of Texas frat party. His tweets made news.

His latest trouble has many wondering if he has moved forward. But Sumlin and his teammates are standing behind Manziel, with the coach saying that the recent allegations "come with the territory of a high-profile player."

Texas

From 1B

But it's clear that Texas — from coach Mack Brown to the offensive line — enters the 2013 season with a quiet confidence that the Longhorns are being overlooked as not just Big 12 contenders, but perhaps national ones as well.

"I'm more confident this team will be the best one we've had in the last two years or three years," Brown said.

Texas returns 19 starters from last season's 9-4 squad, making it the most experienced team in the Big 12, and is coming off a bowl win over Oregon State that was arguably quarterback David Ash's best game of the season.

Here are five things to watch at Texas this season:

1. THE QUARTERBACK: David Ash has two seasons and 18 starts under his belt and Texas fans are still waiting to see what he can deliver week to week. He's shown he can win in tough road environments like Stillwater, Okla., and crater in the cauldron of the Cotton Bowl. Thrust into the job as a true freshman in 2011, Brown was frustrated in 2012 when Ash took a big step backward every time he seemed ready to break out. The Longhorns are hoping his superb effort to rally Texas to a win in the Alamo Bowl carried through the offseason, despite a couple of bad interceptions in the spring game. Brown has declared Ash his go-to quarterback, with Case McCoy the backup.

2. THE DEFENSE: The lasting image of the 2012 version of the Texas defense was an Oklahoma fullback hurdling through the secondary, jumping over one defensive back while another bounced helplessly off his midsection. It was easily the most embarrassing play of an embarrassing game that led many to speculate that coordinator Manny Diaz wouldn't return in 2013. Diaz is back and his defense did get better toward the end of the season. The Longhorns return nine starters on defense, including senior end Jackson Jeffcoat, a potentially dominating pass rusher whose career has been dogged by injuries. Despite all that experience, Texas lost its best two players from 2012 in safety Kenny Vaccaro and end Alex Okafor, who are now both in the NFL. Last season's struggles earned Texas a reputation as a soft defense. They will be tested early against BYU, Ole Miss and Kansas State by the end of September.

3. THE COACH: To look and listen to Brown is to see and hear a coach who hasn't felt this good in four years. He's dropped 25 pounds and took the unusual step of opening up six practices to the media and three to the public. The message: After two years of rebuilding behind closed doors, let me show you what I've got. Yet some things still seem unsettled. After Texas lost to Alabama in the BCS championship game after the 2009 season, Brown was determined to remake Texas from a passing offense to a power running game. After that failed with 5-7 finish in 2010, Brown pushed out longtime assistant Greg Davis for a new offensive coordinator, promising Bryan Harsin would rev things up. Now Harsin is the head coach at Arkansas State and Brown wants Major Applewhite to push the offense in an up-tempo, snap-every-few-seconds attack. While some speculate Brown could be in trouble if he's not competitive in the Big 12 in his 16th season, it likely would take a losing season to force a change.

4. SHOW ME, DON'T TELL ME: Brown can talk about his best team in years and fans can dream of chasing titles again in a league that looks as wide open as ever. But Texas won't make believers of anyone until they can beat Kansas State, not get blown out by Oklahoma and win in Waco against a Baylor team that has shredded Texas with its speed the last three years.

5. OFF THE FIELD: Texas fans may want to pay attention to the Austin federal courts in September. That's the earliest former women's track coach Bev Kearney can file a federal race and sex discrimination lawsuit over her forced resignation last January. How would this relate to football? It was Kearney's attorneys who shook out the embarrassing revelation in February that Applewhite had an inappropriate relationship with a student on a bowl trip after the 2008 season. Kearney's attorneys have threatened a lawsuit and point to the Applewhite instance as a major piece of evidence. A lawsuit would lead to another public airing of a humiliating episode for Applewhite.

Predicted finish in Big 12: Second.

Oklahoma

his throwing ability after patiently waiting his turn behind Jones.

2. RUN STOPPERS: For large portions of last season, Oklahoma went with a coverage-heavy defense — void of any linebackers — in an attempt to keep up with the Big 12's high-powered offenses. The result was the second-worst rushing defense in the conference, with the Sooners allowing 192.2 yards per game on the ground, including 5.2 yards per rush. Stoops has acknowledged Oklahoma played too much coverage last season, and he's counting on a youthful defensive line, led by junior defensive end Chuka Ndulue, to improve against the run this year. Also, defensive coordinator Mike Stoops is returning for his second year back with the Sooners and is counting on his familiarity with the team's personnel — and Big 12 offenses — to help slow down opponents.

3. WOUNDED PRIDE: The Sooners were picked 16th in the preseason coaches' poll, a blow to what has traditionally been one of the top programs in the country. Oklahoma's turnover at quarterback likely played a role in the ranking, just as did last season's crushing 41-13 loss to Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl. Stoops has limited player availability, and you have to wonder if he's not setting up the Sooners for an us-against-the-world approach. "I know my teammates and what we can do and what we're capable of," running back Brennan Clay said. "We've always been in the top five, top three or whatever it may be, and had an easy run at going at No. 1. We've always has that bulls-eye on our back. I think it's a little better kind of laying low right now."

4. STEADY HAND: Oklahoma must replace seven starters on defense this season. One player the Sooners are thrilled to have back is senior cornerback Aaron Colvin, who had four interceptions and 11 passes defended last season. "Aaron is a great leader," Stoops said. "He's a great player, and players recognize that. He's very competitive in how he plays, and Aaron is one of our best leaders."

5. RECORD WATCH: Stoops enters this season just eight wins short of tying former Oklahoma great Barry Switzer as the winningest coach in school history. Stoops is entering his 15th season with the Sooners, and he has a 149-37 record. His .801 winning percentage still trails Switzer (.837) and Bud Wilkinson (.826), but Stoops appears on track to overtake Switzer's school-record 157 wins before season's end. Just don't expect Stoops to keep tabs on where he's at on the record list. "In today's world, it isn't easy to be somewhere that long," Stoops said. "Just look around; there aren't many that have stayed in one place that long, currently anyway. I knew when I did take the job this was not a stepping-stone job. You don't come here and win to get another job."

Predicted finish in the Big 12: Second.

Phillies fire manager Manuel, promote Sandberg

By Rob Maaddi
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — With Charlie Manuel seated to his left, Ruben Amaro Jr. broke down in tears after announcing he fired his manager.

It was that emotional for the general manager and many associated with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Manuel was let go Friday after a disastrous second half, ending the most successful run in club history. Hall of Famer and former Cubs second baseman Ryne Sandberg, the Phillies' third-base coach, replaced Manuel for the start of a 10-game homestand.

"You people may not know the relationship I've had with Charlie. He's a special person. This is difficult for me. I hope he stays in our organization," said Amaro, who took over as GM after Manuel led the Phillies to the World Series title in 2008.

The 69-year-old Manuel, the winningest manager in club history, was in the final year of his contract and wanted to manage another two or three seasons.

"I never quit nothing and I didn't resign," Manuel said, making it clear he was pushed out the door.

Manuel had been a folksy presence in the Phillies' dugout since the beginning of the 2005 season. He wasn't a popular choice in Philadelphia when former GM Ed Wade hired him to replace Larry Bowa, but he became a beloved figure in a tough city.

"I think we're all a little upset, a little sad," Chase Utley said. "It's not easy to see the guy you play for, for nine years, not behind the batting cage right now watching batting practice. It's difficult.

"Charlie brought out the most in his players. He was a man you could walk up to and he was the same every day. He was always going to give that positive energy and a lot of times that translated to the field."

Sandberg managed the Phillies' Triple-A team at Lehigh Valley the previous two seasons. He was part of one the most lopsided trades in sports history when the Phillies traded him and Bowa to the Cubs for shortstop Ivan DeJesus in 1982.

things," Garrett said before the team broke camp in California. "I don't want to say it's the whole first half. We'll just try to gauge it as we go."

The game is expected to mark the preseason debut of rookie receiver Terrance Williams. The third-round pick from Baylor missed the first two games with a concussion.

"He'll certainly play early in this game, and he might get a little extended action," Garrett said

The Cowboys will return to Dallas after the game. In an attempt to beat the heat, practices will start at 8:15 a.m. next week at Valley Ranch.

"We had a really good camp," Garrett said. "Guys came here in shape, ready to go, worked hard. It was very competitive – as competitive a camp as I've been around."

Garrett said left guard Ron Leary's knee surgery went well Friday. "We don't feel like it was a major thing," Garrett said. "He'll be back in a couple of weeks."

SCHAUB

sent to Schaub's Gr8 Hope Foundation, which supports children with medical needs. Schaub was thankful he was able to spend time with his grandfather earlier this summer.

"We went back in early June, it was his 90th birthday," he said. "So to be able to spend that time and share in his birthday was pretty cool."

Schaub said it has been a tough week for his family, but that getting back on the field and to normalcy was a comfort to him. But his morning came close to taking a bad turn when he was almost run over by a golf cart near the practice field when the driver didn't see him.

"Good thing I have pretty nimble feet," he said with a laugh. "I was able to side step it."

Schaub was a perfect five for five in Houston's 27-13 win over Minnesota in the preseason opener last week. He isn't sure how much he'll play today against the Dolphins, but has plenty of goals for when he's on the field.

"Come out, start fast, make some first downs, move the football, get points out of our drives," he said. "Just being crisp, being sharp with our personnel changes, our pre-snap procedure, and taking care of the football. Just all those things that are the key to winning."

It's a big year for the 32-year-old Schaub and the Texans. He threw for 4,008 yards and 22 touchdowns last season. But wasn't able to lead the Texans to a win over New England in the divisional round of the playoffs, leaving some to question if he is the man that can get the team to the next level.

Coach Gary Kubiak, a former quarterback, has always stood by Schaub and said that criticism comes with the territory of playing the position. He raved about what Schaub's done for Houston and the fact that he doesn't let the negativity get to him.

"He's totally committed to a cause here in Houston," Kubiak said. "He's unflappable when it comes to pressure, which you have to be. You've got to be able to block out noise if you're going to be a quarterback in this league. Regardless of what's going on around him, he's always going to be there for his guys. It takes a lot of responsibility and that's why he's a great player."

The Texans believe that the addition of first-round pick DeAndre Hopkins and the development of their other young receivers will help Schaub and the offense improve this season.

PATRIOTS 25
BUCCANEERS 21

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Two days after spraining his left knee, Tom Brady completed his first 11 passes before missing his last one and threw his first touchdown pass to new top wide receiver Danny Amendola in the New England Patriots' 25-21 exhibition victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Friday night.

Brady played the first two series, then rested.

Bucs quarterback Josh Freeman also started and worked two possessions but had a much rougher time against the team they'll face in the third game of the regular season. He was sacked three times and completed only two of three passes before rookie Mike Glennon took over.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City quarterback Alex Smith struggled against his former team, and backup San Francisco quarterback B.J. Daniels threw a late touchdown pass to lift the 49ers last the Chiefs.

Phil Dawson hit all three of his field-goal attempts for the 49ers (1-1), two of them 55-yarders, while the Chiefs' Quintin Demps returned a kickoff 104 yards for a touchdown.

SAINTS 28
RAIDERS 20

NEW ORLEANS — Drew Brees passed for 202 yards and a touchdown while leading five scoring drives, and the New Orleans survived a sloppy second half to beat Oakland.

Brees' scoring strike was a 16-yarder to rookie Kenny Stills, who made the most of his second straight game playing with the first-team offense. Brees completed 78 percent of his passes (14 of 18), including a 56-yarder to Nick Toon, setting up Mark Ingam's 2-yard TD run.

BILLS 20
VIKINGS 16

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Rookie EJ Manuel took another step toward securing Buffalo's starting quarterback job, and the defense stuffed Minnesota.

Manuel went 10 of 12 for 92 yards and a touchdown through three series in the second half. Kevin Kolb was 13 of 21 for 111 yards and an interception in the first half.

NFLNOTES

FROM WIRE REPORTS

WASHINGTON REDSKINS GM: NO CONTROVERSY BETWEEN RG3, COACH: At Richmond, Va., Washington Redskins General Manager Bruce Allen says he doesn't see a controversy between quarterback Robert Griffin III and coach Mike Shanahan.

Allen said Friday that the views expressed by Griffin and Shanahan reflect "a very competitive player who's dying to play football" and "a very experienced coach who's doing the right thing."

Griffin has expressed a desire to practice more and to play in preseason games as he returns from knee surgery. Shanahan has taken a more cautious approach.

The Redskins have a vivid history of quarterback controversies. Allen's father, George Allen, had perhaps the most famous: Sonny Jurgensen vs. Billy Kilmer in the 1970s.

Allen says, "I know somehow Billy and Sonny are laughing that we created a quarterback controversy with Robert Griffin."

NEW YORK GIANTS GIANTS PREPARE FOR PRESEASON GAME VS COLTS: At East Rutherford, N.J., last year, Rueben Randle was a second-round draft pick for the New York Giants, Stevie Brown was an unproven free agent safety and Michael Cox was a graduate student in training camp at the University of Massachusetts.

Now Randle has more of a defined role with the Giants receiving corps, capitalizing on the off-season experience he gained during the absence of starters Hakeem Nicks and Victor Cruz.

Brown, previously cut by two different NFL teams, is the strong safety after collecting a team-high eight interceptions.

Cox, the seventh-round draft pick, was the Giants' leading rusher in the preseason opener last tonight against Pittsburgh.

The Giants are preparing for their second preseason game against Indianapolis on Sunday night at MetLife Stadium. All three realize that they have a chance to contribute against the Colts and during the season.

"I know I definitely don't want to take a step back," said Randle, who was a standout at LSU before joining the Giants last year. "I want to keep moving forward. I want to become more of a play maker."

Randle caught 19 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns last season, starting one game and seeing action in all 16 contests. He said that he worked hard in the offseason, just in case Nicks or Cruz would not be ready. Even with both of the Giants' top receivers in camp, Randle is still doing his due diligence.

PHILADELPHIA REJUVENATED VICK LOOKS BETTER THAN EVER: At Philadelphia, Michael Vick has his swagger back.

When last season ended, Vick was beat up physically and worn down mentally. He was uncertain of his future with the Philadelphia Eagles and his confidence was shaky.

Then Chip Kelly showed up, Vick stuck around, and the rejuvenated quarterback has never looked better than he has in the first two preseason games.

"I'm having fun playing football and I fell in love with the game again and I am thankful for that," Vick said after going 9 for 10 for 105 yards in a 14-9 win over Carolina on Thursday night.

"You've got to play this game with intense passion and purpose and I thank Coach Kelly for what he has done for me and that's just giving me that confidence that I felt like I was losing at some point in my career. You just have to keep working hard and when you do that, you get the results that you want. But I can't be satisfied with this performance. It's a long season and we have a lot of work to do and I understand that and I can't lose sight of that."

Vick restructured his contract, took a pay cut and had no assurances he'd even make the roster when he returned to the Eagles. He's been competing with Nick Foles for the starting job since Kelly's arrival and still isn't guaranteed anything at this point.

But Vick has outplayed Foles, who also looks sharp running Kelly's up-tempo offense. Through two games, Vick is 13 of 15 for 196 yards, one TD, one desperation-pass interception and a passer rating of 113.1. Foles is 11 of 14 for 98 yards, no TDs, one pick and a passer rating of 65.7 in two games.

DETROIT LIONS SIGN DTS BANNAN, DREW: At Allen Park, Mich., the Detroit Lions have signed defensive tackles Justin Bannan and John Drew and released cornerback Conroy Black and defensive end Brayton Broughton.

The team announced the moves Friday. The Lions also released linebacker Carmen Messina from the reserve-injured list.

Bannan started 15 games for the Denver Broncos last season. The 34-year-old Bannan joins a Detroit defensive front that already includes tackles Ndamukong Suh and Nick Fairley.

Drew is an undrafted rookie out of North Carolina Central.

PITTSBURGH STEELERS RB BELL RETURNS TO PRACTICE: At Latrobe, Pa., Pittsburgh Steelers rookie running back Le'Veon Bell said Friday the left knee injury he re-aggravated during practice a day earlier isn't believed to be serious.

The second-round draft pick called the injury "nothing major" and practiced in a limited capacity Friday. He did not participate in team drills.

Coach Mike Tomlin said Bell has a "clean bill of health." It remains uncertain whether Bell will be available when the Steelers play in Washington on Monday night.

INDIANAPOLIS COLTS LEAVE CAMP STILL TRYING TO FIND ANSWERS: At Anderson, Ind., the Indianapolis Colts came to training camp to see how much they had improved over last season.

They left Friday still looking for answers.

"I think once we get everybody healthy and we get everybody back, we've got a chance to be really good (defensively), especially in the back end," Pagano said. "Once LaRon (Landry) gets back, the corner position, I think we've really upgraded and solidified ourselves there. If you stay healthy there, we've got a chance."

A course marshall calls for quiet as Europe's Carlota Ciganda, of Spain, hits her tee shot on the eighth hole during a fourball match in the Solheim Cup on Friday in Parker, Colo.

Europe builds a lead on American soil

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

PARKER, Colo. — Europe took an important step Friday toward winning the Solheim Cup on American soil.

Carlota Ciganda of Spain salvaged an unlikely par from a hazard on the par-5 15th hole and kept her and Suzann Pettersen from falling behind. Pettersen won the next hole with a birdie, sending them to a 1-up victory in a pivotal fourballs match that staked Europe to a 5-3 lead.

A long day at Colorado Golf Club ended with Stacy Lewis, on the losing end of that match, getting into a heated discussion with an official over the use of a laser by the official to determine the right drop. At one point, Lewis threw her hands in the air.

It was a tough day for the Women's British Open champion.

Lewis struggled with the pace of lightning fast greens on the front nine as she and Lizette Salas fell too far behind to catch up in morning foursomes. Lewis played with another U.S. rookie, Lexi Thompson, who twice squandered good birdie chances late in the fourballs.

Lewis is 1-5 in the Solheim Cup.

Pettersen and Carolina Hedwall led the European charge by winning both their matches. Pettersen, playing in her seventh Solheim Cup, drilled a fairway metal into 20 feet on the 16th hole that set up Beatriz Recari for the eagle putt to take charge in a foursomes match. In the afternoon, it was Pettersen's 7-foot birdie putt on the 16th — after Thompson three-putted for par — that gave Europe the lead.

Hedwall was part of what European captain Liselotte Neumann called her "Swedish Vikings" to lead off the warm, sunny opening session south of Denver. Hedwall and Anna Nordqvist finished the front nine with two birdies to build a 3-up lead, and they never let Lewis and Salas any closer.

Angela Stanford's overall record dropped to 3-9-3 as she lost both her matches — with Brittany Lang in the morning and with rookie Gerina Piller in the afternoon.

The day was not a total loss for Meg Mallon's squad.

She was scrutinized for taking Michelle Wie as a captain's pick. Wie's superb short game combined with Cristie Kerr making big putts early as they disposed of Catriona Matthew and 17-year-old Charley Hull, 2 and 1, in the final match. The Americans picked up another point in the afternoon behind Lang and Lincicome, with Lang holing a bunker shot on the 14th hole to give her side control of the match.

In the morning, the lone American point came from Morgan Pressel and Jessica Korda, a 20-year-old rookie who had a most unusual start.

Korda described the opening tee shot as "very scary," and the rest of the first hole as simply surreal.

After a breakfast of milk and cereal, she was munching on a banana down the first fairway when she became nauseous. She walked over to the side of the fairway and threw up, news that spread quickly across the expansive course and gave her teammates a moment of levity.

"After I got past the first hole, I was pretty OK," said Korda, whose 7-foot par putt to halve the 16th hole clinched the match.

GOLFROUNDUP

PGA

WYNDHAM CHAMPIONSHIP: At Greensboro, N.C., PGA Tour rookie Patrick Reed shot a 6-under 64 to take a one-stroke lead over John Huh after the second round of the Wyndham Championship.

With wife Justine serving as his caddie, Reed had an 11-under 129 total at Sedgefield.

Huh had the best round of the day — a 62. John Deere winner Jordan Spieth was 9 under after a 66. Spieth is a PGA Tour rookie, and Huh is in his second year.

Charlie Wi, Bob Estes, Rory Sabbatini, Brian Harman, Jim Herman and first-round co-leader Ross Fisher were 7 under. Wi had a 65, Estes, Harman, Herman and Sabbatini shot 66, and Fisher had a 69.

Organizers moved up the third-round tee times Saturday to try to dodge a threat of rain, with players going off in threesomes at the first and 10th tees.

Champions

DICK'S SPORTING GOODS OPEN: At Endicott, N.Y., Kenny Perry shot a 7-under 65 to take a one-shot lead after the first round of the Champions Tour's Dick's Sporting Goods Open.

Perry, the Senior Players and U.S. Senior Open winner this summer, had three birdies over the final four holes to surge past Bart and Brad Bryant and Joel Edwards.

Perry's round turned with a brilliant shot at the par-5 12th hole. He holed a 6-iron from 187 yards for eagle. He also had six birdies to go with one bogey, hitting 15 fairways and putting just 26 times.

Esteban Toledo, Jeff Freeman, Rick Fehr, and Russ Cochran were tied for fifth at 67 as more than half the field broke par at the short-and-narrow En-Joie Golf Club under nearly ideal scoring conditions.

USGA

U.S. AMATEUR: At Brookline, Mass., Australians Brady Watt and Oliver Goss advanced to the U.S. Amateur semifinals along with Canada's Corey Conners and England's Matt Fitzpatrick, marking the first time that an American has failed to reach the final four.

Watt, a co-medalist in stroke-play qualifying, had a dramatic 1-up victory over 17-year-old Scottie Scheffler of Dallas. Scheffler, the U.S. Junior Amateur champion, had a hole-in-one on the par-3 seventh and trailed only once — when Watt made a 5-foot par putt to win the match on the 18th hole.

On Saturday at The Country Club, Watt will face Goss — a 5-and-3 winner over Brandon Matthews of Dupont, Pa. Fitzpatrick, trying to become the first English winner since 1911, beat Adam Ball of Richmond, Va., 4 and 3; and Conners topped co-medalist Neil Raymond of England 5 and 3.

If winning isn't everything, why do they keep score?

COWBOYS

things," Garrett said before the team broke camp in California. "I don't want to say it's the whole first half. We'll just try to gauge it as we go."

The game is expected to mark the preseason debut of rookie receiver Terrance Williams. The third-round pick from Baylor missed the first two games with a concussion.

"He'll certainly play early in this game, and he might get a little extended action," Garrett said

The Cowboys will return to Dallas after the game. In an attempt to beat the heat, practices will start at 8:15 a.m. next week at Valley Ranch.

"We had a really good camp," Garrett said. "Guys came here in shape, ready to go, worked hard. It was very competitive – as competitive a camp as I've been around."

Garrett said left guard Ron Leary's knee surgery went well Friday. "We don't feel like it was a major thing," Garrett said. "He'll be back in a couple of weeks."

SCHAUB

sent to Schaub's Gr8 Hope Foundation, which supports children with medical needs. Schaub was thankful he was able to spend time with his grandfather earlier this summer.

"We went back in early June, it was his 90th birthday," he said. "So to be able to spend that time and share in his birthday was pretty cool."

Schaub said it has been a tough week for his family, but that getting back on the field and to normalcy was a comfort to him. But his morning came close to taking a bad turn when he was almost run over by a golf cart near the practice field when the driver didn't see him.

"Good thing I have pretty nimble feet," he said with a laugh. "I was able to side step it."

Schaub was a perfect five for five in Houston's 27-13 win over Minnesota in the preseason opener last week. He isn't sure how much he'll play today against the Dolphins, but has plenty of goals for when he's on the field.

"Come out, start fast, make some first downs, move the football, get points out of our drives," he said. "Just being crisp, being sharp with our personnel changes, our pre-snap procedure, and taking care of the football. Just all those things that are the key to winning."

It's a big year for the 32-year-old Schaub and the Texans. He threw for 4,008 yards and 22 touchdowns last season. But wasn't able to lead the Texans to a win over New England in the divisional round of the playoffs, leaving some to question if he is the man that can get the team to the next level.

Coach Gary Kubiak, a former quarterback, has always stood by Schaub and said that criticism comes with the territory of playing the position. He raved about what Schaub's done for Houston and the fact that he doesn't let the negativity get to him.

"He's totally committed to a cause here in Houston," Kubiak said. "He's unflappable when it comes to pressure, which you have to be. You've got to be able to block out noise if you're going to be a quarterback in this league. Regardless of what's going on around him, he's always going to be there for his guys. It takes a lot of responsibility and that's why he's a great player."

The Texans believe that the addition of first-round pick DeAndre Hopkins and the development of their other young receivers will help Schaub and the offense improve this season.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

PATRIOTS 25 BUCCANEERS 21

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Two days after spraining his left knee, Tom Brady completed his first 11 passes before missing his last one and threw his first touchdown pass to new top wide receiver Danny Amendola in the New England Patriots' 25-21 exhibition victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Friday night.

Brady played the first two series, then rested.

Bucs quarterback Josh Freeman also started and worked two possessions but had a much rougher time against the team they'll face in the third game of the regular season. He was sacked three times and completed only two of three passes before rookie Mike Glennon took over.

49ERS 15 CHIEFS 13

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City quarterback Alex Smith struggled against his former team, and backup San Francisco quarterback B.J. Daniels threw a late touchdown pass to lift the 49ers last the Chiefs.

Phil Dawson hit all three of his field-goal attempts for the 49ers (1-1), two of them 55-yarders, while the Chiefs' Quintin Demps returned a kickoff 104 yards for a touchdown.

SAINTS 28 RAIDERS 20

NEW ORLEANS — Drew Brees passed for 202 yards and a touchdown while leading five scoring drives, and the New Orleans survived a sloppy second half to beat Oakland.

Brees' scoring strike was a 16-yarder to rookie Kenny Stills, who made the most of his second straight game playing with the first-team offense. Brees completed 78 percent of his passes (14 of 18), including a 56-yarder to Nick Toon, setting up Mark Ingam's 2-yard TD run.

BILLS 20 VIKINGS 16

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Rookie EJ Manuel took another step toward securing Buffalo's starting quarterback job, and the defense stuffed Minnesota.

Manuel went 10 of 12 for 92 yards and a touchdown through three series in the second half. Kevin Kolb was 13 of 21 for 111 yards and an interception in the first half.

NFLNOTES

FROM WIRE REPORTS

WASHINGTON REDSKINS GM: NO CONTROVERSY BETWEEN RG3, COACH: At Richmond, Va., Washington Redskins General Manager Bruce Allen says he doesn't see a controversy between quarterback Robert Griffin III and coach Mike Shanahan.

Allen said Friday that the views expressed by Griffin and Shanahan reflect "a very competitive player who's dying to play football" and "a very experienced coach who's doing the right thing."

Griffin has expressed a desire to practice more and to play in preseason games as he returns from knee surgery. Shanahan has taken a more cautious approach.

The Redskins have a vivid history of quarterback controversies. Allen's father, George Allen, had perhaps the most famous: Sonny Jurgensen vs. Billy Kilmer in the 1970s.

Allen says, "I know somehow Billy and Sonny are laughing that we created a quarterback controversy with Robert Griffin."

NEW YORK GIANTS GIANTS PREPARE FOR PRESEASON GAME VS COLTS: At East Rutherford, N.J., last year, Rueben Randle was a second-round draft pick for the New York Giants, Stevie Brown was an unproven free agent safety and Michael Cox was a graduate student in training camp at the University of Massachusetts.

Now Randle has more of a defined role with the Giants receiving corps, capitalizing on the off-season experience he gained during the absence of starters Hakeem Nicks and Victor Cruz.

Brown, previously cut by two different NFL teams, is the strong safety after collecting a team-high eight interceptions.

Cox, the seventh-round draft pick, was the Giants' leading rusher in the preseason opener last tonight against Pittsburgh.

The Giants are preparing for their second preseason game against Indianapolis on Sunday night at MetLife Stadium. All three realize that they have a chance to contribute against the Colts and during the season.

"I know I definitely don't want to take a step back," said Randle, who was a standout at LSU before joining the Giants last year. "I want to keep moving forward. I want to become more of a play maker."

Randle caught 19 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns last season, starting one game and seeing action in all 16 contests. He said that he worked hard in the offseason, just in case Nicks or Cruz would not be ready. Even with both of the Giants' top receivers in camp, Randle is still doing his due diligence.

PHILADELPHIA REJUVENATED VICK LOOKS BETTER THAN EVER: At Philadelphia, Michael Vick has his swagger back.

When last season ended, Vick was beat up physically and worn down mentally. He was uncertain of his future with the Philadelphia Eagles and his confidence was shaky.

Then Chip Kelly showed up, Vick stuck around, and the rejuvenated quarterback has never looked better than he has in the first two preseason games.

"I'm having fun playing football and I fell in love with the game again and I am thankful for that," Vick said after going 9 for 10 for 105 yards in a 14-9 win over Carolina on Thursday night.

"You've got to play this game with intense passion and purpose and I thank Coach Kelly for what he has done for me and that's just giving me that confidence that I felt like I was losing at some point in my career. You just have to keep working hard and when you do that, you get the results that you want. But I can't be satisfied with this performance. It's a long season and we have a lot of work to do and I understand that and I can't lose sight of that."

Vick restructured his contract, took a pay cut and had no assurances he'd even make the roster when he returned to the Eagles. He's been competing with Nick Foles for the starting job since Kelly's arrival and still isn't guaranteed anything at this point.

But Vick has outplayed Foles, who also looks sharp running Kelly's up-tempo offense. Through two games, Vick is 13 of 15 for 199 yards, one TD, one desperation-pass interception and a passer rating of 113.1. Foles is 11 of 14 for 96 yards, no TDs, one pick and a passer rating of 65.7 in two games.

DETROIT LIONS SIGN DTS BANNAN, DREW: At Allen Park, Mich., the Detroit Lions have signed defensive tackles Justin Bannan and John Drew and released cornerback Conroy Black and defensive end Brayton Broughton.

The team announced the moves Friday. The Lions also released linebacker Carmen Messina from the reserve-injured list.

Bannan started 15 games for the Denver Broncos last season. The 34-year-old Bannan joins a Detroit defensive front that already includes tackles Ndamukong Suh and Nick Fairley.

Drew is an undrafted rookie out of North Carolina Central.

PITTSBURGH STEELERS RB BELL RETURNS TO PRACTICE: At Latrobe, Pa., Pittsburgh Steelers rookie running back Le'Veon Bell said Friday the left knee injury he re-aggravated during practice a day earlier isn't believed to be serious.

The second-round draft pick called the injury "nothing major" and practiced in a limited capacity Friday. He did not participate in team drills.

Coach Mike Tomlin said Bell has a "clean bill of health." It remains uncertain whether Bell will be available when the Steelers play in Washington on Monday night.

INDIANAPOLIS COLTS LEAVE CAMP STILL TRYING TO FIND ANSWERS: At Anderson, Ind., the Indianapolis Colts came to training camp to see how much they had improved over last season.

They left Friday still looking for answers.

"I think once we get everybody healthy and we get everybody back, we've got a chance to be really good (defensively), especially in the back end," Pagano said. "Once LaRon (Landry) gets back, the corner position, I think we've really upgraded and solidified ourselves there. If you stay healthy there, we've got a chance."

A course marshall calls for quiet as Europe's Carlota Ciganda, of Spain, hits her tee shot on the eighth hole during a fourball match in the Solheim Cup on Friday in Parker, Colo.

Europe builds a lead on American soil

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

PARKER, Colo. — Europe took an important step Friday toward winning the Solheim Cup on American soil.

Carlota Ciganda of Spain salvaged an unlikely par from a hazard on the par-5 15th hole and kept her and Suzann Pettersen from falling behind. Pettersen won the next hole with a birdie, sending them to a 1-up victory in a pivotal fourballs match that staked Europe to a 5-3 lead.

A long day at Colorado Golf Club ended with Stacy Lewis, on the losing end of that match, getting into a heated discussion with an official over the use of a laser by the official to determine the right drop. At one point, Lewis threw her hands in the air.

It was a tough day for the Women's British Open champion.

Lewis struggled with the pace of lightning fast greens on the front nine as she and Lizette Salas fell too far behind to catch up in morning foursomes. Lewis played with another U.S. rookie, Lexi Thompson, who twice squandered good birdie chances late in the fourballs.

Lewis is 1-5 in the Solheim Cup.

Pettersen and Carolina Hedwall led the European charge by winning both their matches. Pettersen, playing in her seventh Solheim Cup, drilled a fairway metal into 20 feet on the 16th hole that set up Beatriz Recari for the eagle putt to take charge in a foursomes match. In the afternoon, it was Pettersen's 7-foot birdie putt on the 16th — after Thompson three-putted for par — that gave Europe the lead.

Hedwall was part of what European captain Liselotte Neumann called her "Swedish Vikings" to lead off the warm, sunny opening session south of Denver. Hedwall and Anna Nordqvist finished the front nine with two birdies to build a 3-up lead, and they never let Lewis and Salas any closer.

Angela Stanford's overall record dropped to 3-9-3 as she lost both her matches — with Brittany Lang in the morning and with rookie Gerina Piller in the afternoon.

The day was not a total loss for Meg Mallon's squad.

She was scrutinized for taking Michelle Wie as a captain's pick. Wie's superb short game combined with Cristie Kerr making big putts early as they disposed of Catriona Matthew and 17-year-old Charley Hull, 2 and 1, in the final match. The Americans picked up another point in the afternoon behind Lang and Lincicome, with Lang holing a bunker shot on the 14th hole to give her side control of the match.

In the morning, the lone American point came from Morgan Pressel and Jessica Korda, a 20-year-old rookie who had a most unusual start.

Korda described the opening tee shot as "very scary," and the rest of the first hole as simply surreal.

After a breakfast of milk and cereal, she was munching on a banana down the first fairway when she became nauseous. She walked over to the side of the fairway and threw up, news that spread quickly across the expansive course and gave her teammates a moment of levity.

"After I got past the first hole, I was pretty OK," said Korda, whose 7-foot par putt to halve the 16th hole clinched the match.

GOLFROUNDUP

PGA

WYNDHAM CHAMPIONSHIP: At Greensboro, N.C., PGA Tour rookie Patrick Reed shot a 6-under 64 to take a one-stroke lead over John Huh after the second round of the Wyndham Championship.

With wife Justine serving as his caddie, Reed had an 11-under 129 total at Sedgefield.

Huh had the best round of the day — a 62. John Deere winner Jordan Spieth was 9 under after a 66. Spieth is a PGA Tour rookie, and Huh is in his second year.

Charlie Wi, Bob Estes, Rory Sabbatini, Brian Harman, Jim Herman and first-round co-leader Ross Fisher were 7 under. Wi had a 65, Estes, Harman, Herman and Sabbatini shot 66, and Fisher had a 69.

Organizers moved up the third-round tee times Saturday to try to dodge a threat of rain, with players going off in threesomes at the first and 10th tees.

Champions

DICK'S SPORTING GOODS OPEN: At Endicott, N.Y., Kenny Perry shot a 7-under 65 to take a one-shot lead after the first round of the Champions Tour's Dick's Sporting Goods Open.

Perry, the Senior Players and U.S. Senior Open winner this summer, had three birdies over the final four holes to surge past Bart and Brad Bryant and Joel Edwards.

Perry's round turned with a brilliant shot at the par-5 12th hole. He holed a 6-iron from 187 yards for eagle. He also had six birdies to go with one bogey, hitting 15 fairways and putting just 26 times.

Esteban Toledo, Jeff Freeman, Rick Fehr, and Russ Cochran were tied for fifth at 67 as more than half the field broke par at the short-and-narrow En-Joie Golf Club under nearly ideal scoring conditions.

USGA

U.S. AMATEUR: At Brookline, Mass., Australians Brady Watt and Oliver Goss advanced to the U.S. Amateur semifinals along with Canada's Corey Conners and England's Matt Fitzpatrick, marking the first time that an American has failed to reach the final four.

Watt, a co-medalist in stroke-play qualifying, had a dramatic 1-up victory over 17-year-old Scottie Scheffler of Dallas. Scheffler, the U.S. Junior Amateur champion, had a hole-in-one on the par-3 seventh and trailed only once — when Watt made a 5-foot par putt to win the match on the 18th hole.

On Saturday at The Country Club, Watt will face Goss — a 5-and-3 winner over Brandon Matthews of Dupont, Pa. Fitzpatrick, trying to become the first English winner since 1911, beat Adam Ball of Richmond, Va., 4 and 3; and Conners topped co-medalist Neil Raymond of England 5 and 3.

If winning isn't everything, why do they keep score?

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I recently started dating one of my graduate school classmates. We come from different cultures, but we get along great and I really like him.

My problem is he's very close to his family, who seem to like me very much, but I always feel left out around them. An example: The nine of us went out to dinner and the whole time they were speaking to each other in their native tongue while I just sat there. Then, after dinner, his parents asked why I was so quiet.

The family speaks English fluently and are otherwise nice to me. When I confronted my boyfriend about it, he said it would be disrespectful for him to speak to his elders in English.

I want a future with this man, but I know it won't work out if I can't be included in his family. Am I wrong to think they should involve me in the conversation? — OUTSIDER IN NEW YORK

DEAR OUTSIDER: In light of the fact that everyone knows you don't speak the language, their behavior does seem inconsiderate — particularly if it's happening often. Perhaps you should speak to them about it and ask to be included in the conversation. An alternative would be to take a crash course in their native tongue so you'll have some idea about what's being said. (And won't they be surprised when you respond!)

One thing about your letter does concern me, however, because it raises a potential red flag. Does your boyfriend's unwillingness to stand up for you foretell a pattern of always deferring to his parents? If that's the case, it could be a source of frustration and conflict for you in the future. Please think about it.

DEAR ABBY: I have been in a steady, committed relationship with my boyfriend, "Carey," for four years. We have discussed our future and have agreed that we want to get married and start a family soon.

As a child, I always dreamed of a big, fancy wedding. Carey, on the other hand, says he doesn't want one. He feels it would be a waste of money. After a lot of discussion, we decided to compromise and have a courthouse wedding followed by a small, simple reception.

My biggest issue is he insists we don't need rings, and he refuses to get me one. Although I have explained that a ring would symbolize our love and life together, and it would mean a great deal to me personally, he won't budge. Now I'm beginning to doubt whether I want to marry him.

What should I do? Am I being superficial? — CONFUSED ABOUT MARRIAGE

DEAR CONFUSED: I don't think that wanting a wedding ring is superficial. It's normal. Furthermore, if you have any doubts about marrying this young man, you should put the wedding on hold until the two of you have had premarital counseling. Arguments about how money should be spent have ruined marriages, and it appears the two of you are planets apart on this important issue.

DEAR ABBY: What is proper when opening gift cards with money enclosed? My family has made it a habit for the nieces to open their cards in front of everyone. I feel it should be done in private. — UNCOMFORTABLE IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: Opening the card is fine. Reading the sentiments inside is also perfectly acceptable. But to reveal the amount of the check or money enclosed is a no- no.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 17, 2013:

This year you move forward with a venture that might be very important to you. Use good sense with those you choose to involve, eyeing loyalty and knowledge as important traits. Your endurance counts more than you realize. If you are single, use caution committing, as many people want to be your sweetie. In order to impress you, a suitor might distort who he or she is. If you are attached, make sure to include your sweetie in your outside life. Also make time for you two alone. CAPRiCORN pushes nearly everyone hard. He or she expects only the best.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Your fiery spirit and upbeat manner could be tamed by some fierce realities. You have an opportunity to revamp a project or situation. Once you do, possibilities open up. You still might opt to toss out the present set of circumstances and head in a totally new direction. Tonight: Put your feet up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ You often become quite stubborn about what you want. To get you to budge is like fighting city hall. Frustrated, others head in another direction, making a new set of decisions. Once you see those results, you might get a better idea as to how much flex you have. Tonight: Make a gesture through an invitation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ You could be overwhelmed by certain ideas and decisions. How you handle a personal decision could be impacted if it's made at this time. Your sense of direction keeps you on an even keel more than you realize. Respond to another person's invitation. Tonight: Put on your dancing shoes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Your awareness as to what could happen helps you make the correct choices. You also see a partner revamping his or her thinking. He or she is willing to give more than in the past. The waiting game probably will pay off, if it's combined with patience. Tonight: Sort through offers.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Pace yourself. If you feel the need, adjust your plans accordingly. Your ability to flex could prevent a problem. Make special time for a dear friend or loved one. You will be able to relax in a unique manner. Tonight: Unexpected news might surprise you. Stay level.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You might want to help another person, child or loved one to relax, which oddly could draw a negative response. Use your creativity, and give the person the space to work through an issue. A partner also has an unpredictable quality, as you will see. Tonight: Let your hair down.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ Stay focused on the basics. You know what you want and desire. Don't hesitate to try out an idea or suggestion that might make you happy. Others might appear to be very unpredictable when having a strong reaction. You might want to give them space. Tonight: How about a cozy get-together at your place?

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Stay on top of a personal matter. You might not be as sure of yourself as others might think. When a practical issue unveils itself, you could be surprised. Try to detach and look at the whole situation, which is in flux. Tonight: Hang out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ You might want to rethink a personal matter more openly, especially with someone whose opinion you respect. Your ability to get past a problem is rather remarkable, but still, getting some feedback is helpful. A child or loved one could act in a most unpredictable manner. Tonight: Indulge a little.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Don't get upset if others cannot keep up with your rapid-fire ideas and movement. You are able to catch up on news, errands and still make time for an important loved one. Get together, but be willing to flex when someone else appears or needs your time. Tonight: Seize the moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★ You might want to back off and do some thinking. A parent, older relative, friend or boss pushes you to do otherwise. You might come up with an unusual suggestion. Apparently you will be forced to be a little more quirky and creative. Tonight: Vanish if you want.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Zero in on a long-term desire. Have a discussion with the person involved with this wish. Together you can decide on the validity of your thoughts. Use care with funds. Count your change. The unexpected plays out. Tonight: Fun with friends.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
My friend is a jokester, and worse, I'm extremely gullible. Once when I hired a moving company to move me across town, she called me posing as the company secretary and said they accidentally delivered my stuff to the wrong house. She had me frantically driving around town looking for my stuff. After that, I've learned not to trust her. Now that I'm settled in my apartment, I'm thinking of getting a dog to keep me company. My friend, the jokester, is trying to convince me to rent a pet rather than own one. I've heard of renting an apartment or a car, but a pet? This sounds like another practical joke to me, but she's pretty convincing. She says she found a company in the classifieds that rents dogs part-time so you don't have to take care of them every day. I don't want to look like a fool, or worse, show up on a TV show. Is she playing a gag on me again?

Cash: Your friend doesn't sound like the first person you should call when you need help moving.

Carry: Although you never know if she plans to put you on a practical joke TV show, her information about renting a pet has some truth.

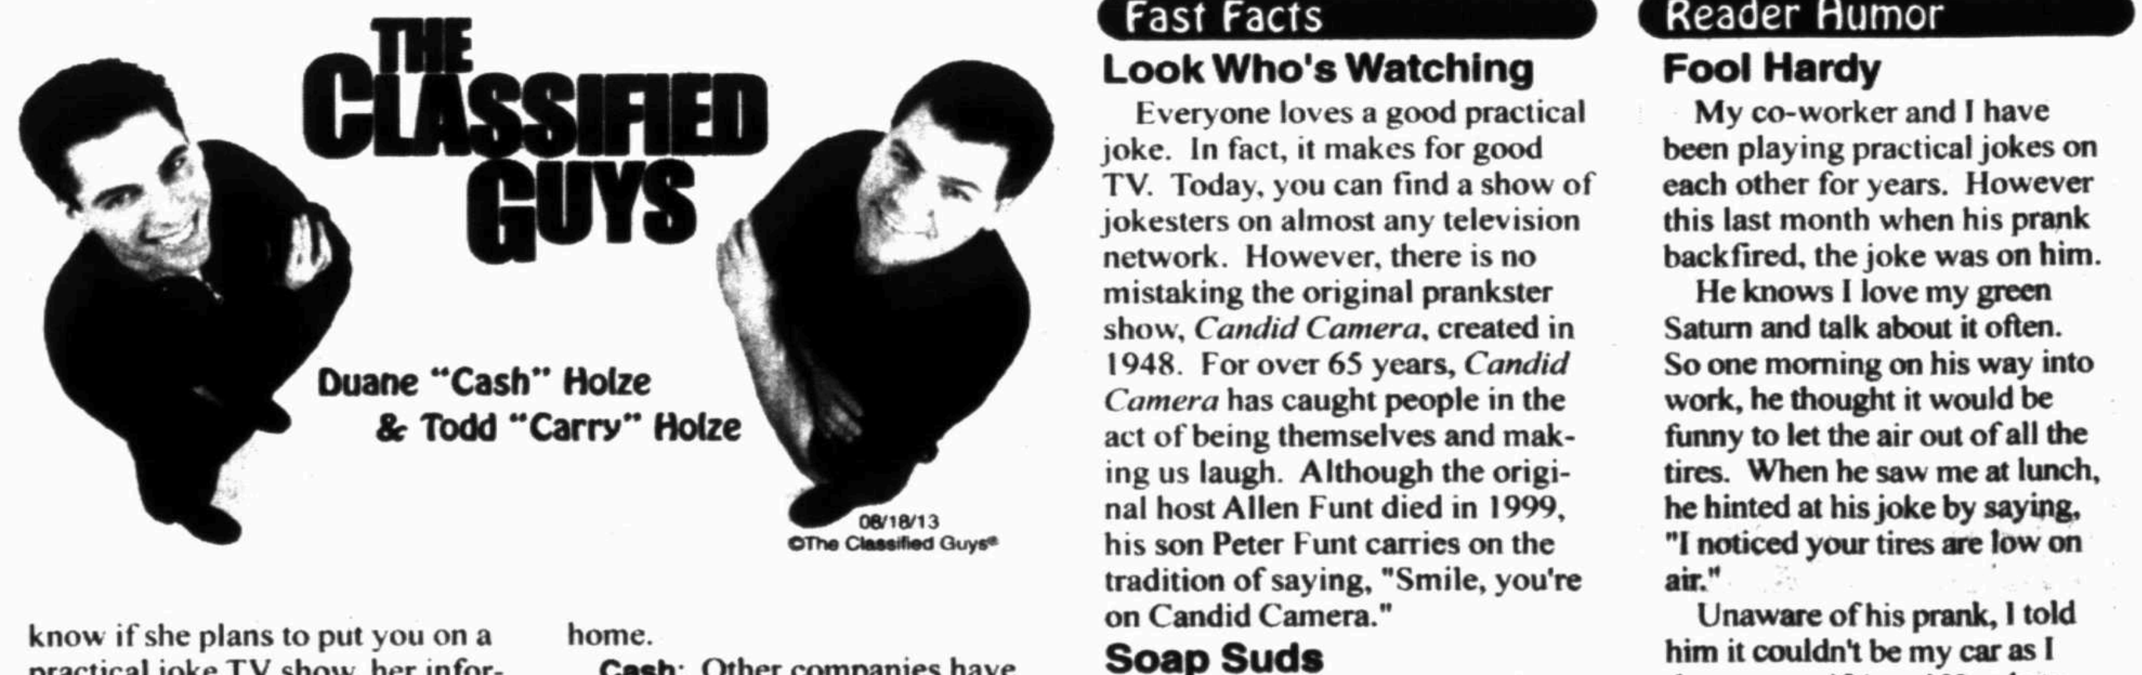
Cash: It may sound odd, but there are a variety of companies that allow you to be a part-time pet owner. For years, many animal shelters around the country have allowed visitors to take pets for a few hours or even overnight. Their philosophy is that it's good socialization for both the dogs and the people.

Carry: Some entrepreneurs have taken it a step further. There are hotels, for example, that offer part-time pets to their guests. It often helps the visitors pass the time or reduce the anxiety they feel from leaving their pet at home.

Cash: Other companies have set up the rental program as more of a time-share. They select dogs with good temperaments and pair the pets with several of their customers. Each member selects a number of days each month to take the dog home.

Carry: Although there are many people who could never fathom the idea of leasing a pet, the concept seems to work for some busy professionals or those unable to care for a dog full time.

Cash: Regardless of your decision to get a pet, it's probably a good idea to keep questioning your friend's advice. Otherwise, her next practical joke could have you chasing your tail!



Fast Facts

Look Who's Watching

Everyone loves a good practical joke. In fact, it makes for good TV. Today, you can find a show of jokesters on almost any television network. However, there is no mistaking the original prankster show, Candid Camera, created in 1948. For over 65 years, Candid Camera has caught people in the act of being themselves and making us laugh. Although the original host Allen Funt died in 1999, his son Peter Funt carries on the tradition of saying, "Smile, you're on Candid Camera."

Soap Suds

Although renting a pet may seem like an odd business venture, consider the Automatic Dog Wash created by a laundromat owner in western Japan. While owners wash their clothes, their dog gets the same treatment in the automatic dog wash next door. The dog is placed in a large red washer with a glass window. Jets of warm soapy water spray the dog followed by a rinse and a warm air dry. The company washes about 100 dogs a day at a cost of $17 for a small dog and $34 for a large breed.

Fool Hardy

My co-worker and I have been playing practical jokes on each other for years. However this last month when his prank backfired, the joke was on him.

He knows I love my green Saturn and talk about it often. So one morning on his way into work, he thought it would be funny to let the air out of all the tires. When he saw me at lunch, he hinted at his joke by saying, "I noticed your tires are low on air."

Unaware of his prank, I told him it couldn't be my car as I drove my wife's red Honda to work that day. "Then whose green car is that in the parking lot?" he asked with a bit of fear.

"Oh that's Phil's," I replied to his dismay. "Our new supervisor!"
