Absentee voting 'heavy'

A heavy vote is being noted in Scurry County as absentee balloting moves into its final week.

As of Friday afternoon, the count had reached 727, which County Clerk Jenna Vee Miller characterized as "very heavy."

The last day to vote absentee for the upcoming presidential election and a host of other offices and issues is next Friday.

Miller noted also that Tuesday will be the last day to request an absentee ballot be mailed to you. She said the number of mail-outs had been particularly greater than usual with 279 requested to date.

She credited the large turnout in part to changes in election code laws which no longer require individuals to state a valid reason for voting absentee.

The ballot began Oct. 19 at the county clerk's office on the third floor of the courthouse.

It offers Scurry County voters one local contested race for 132nd District judge between incumbent Gene Dulaney, a Republican, opposed by Democratic candidate Pete Greene, former district attorney.

Also on the ballot are contests for this area's 78th District state representative's seat with ex-Snyder Mayor Rod Waller, a Republican, facing Democrat David Counts of Knox City.

Also to be decided is the state

Mock ballot slated

Students to target candidates, issues

Local high school and junior high students will be holding mock ballots this coming week as part of classwork in their economics, government and history classes.

At the high school Tuesday, seniors taking economics and government will vote the full ballot which will be before Scurry County voters this coming Nov. 8.

To better acquaint them with the voting procedure, the county clerk's office has loaned them computer balloting machines which will be set up in the hallway of the high school.

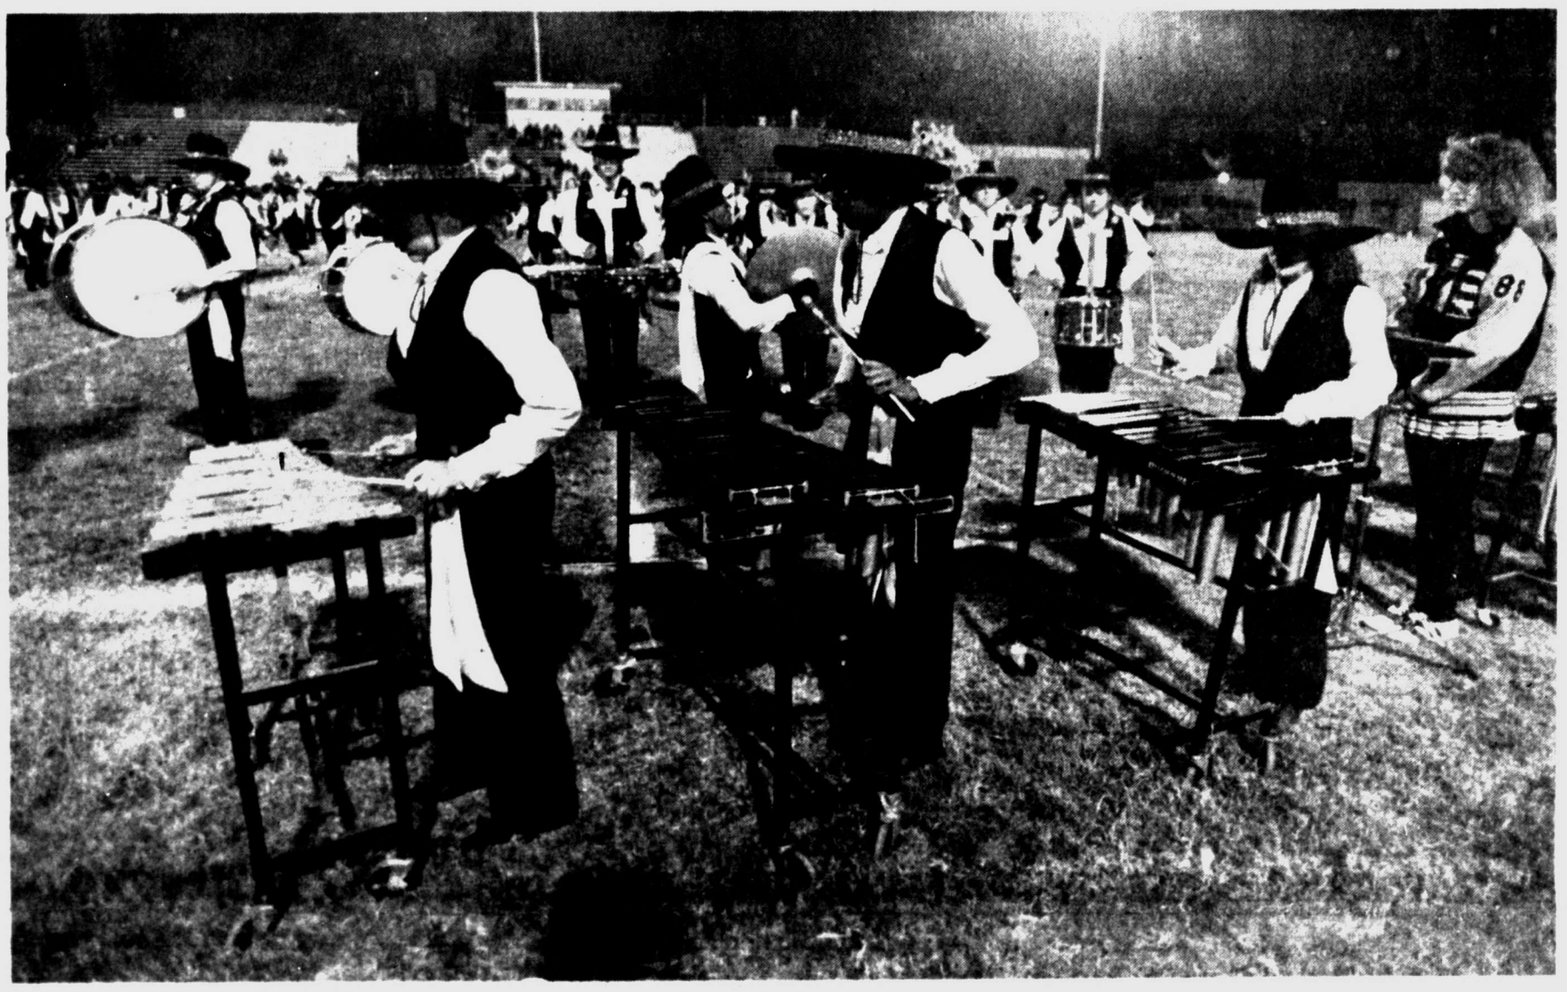

When the voting is completed around 2 p.m., County Clerk Jenna Vee Miller and her staff will take the county's tallying machine to the high school and will count the ballots.

In addition, Snyder Junior High students taking history classes as well as some sixth graders will be participating Thursday in the 1988 National Student-Parent Mock Election.

That day, students across the country will cast a prediction vote on such key questions as who will win the presidency and which party will win control of the Senate and House. Votes will be taken also on key issues of U.S. policy.

The results of this election nationwide will be covered by the CNN news network received over cable here.

In preparation for the vote, junior high history classes have been assigned to research the political issues and have been discussing these.

LAST HOME SHOW — The Black and Gold Snyder High School marching band made its final hometown halftime performance for the 1988 football season Friday. On Saturday, the group was to travel to Wichita Falls to compete in the regional marching contest there. Two Class AAAA bands will be chosen to advance to the state marching finals slated Nov. 7 in Austin. (SDN Staff Photo)

Spook events still ahead

Monday, All Hallows Eve, will include the annual Hermleigh Halloween Carnival and a "safe" Halloween party sponsored by the ladies auxiliary of the American Legion

Scurry County youngsters were to have a taste of the holiday Saturday night, however, with no fewer than three carnivals scheduled.

The Saturday night slate included the seventh annual Stanfield Halloween Carnival in the coliseum ag annex from 6 until 9:30 p.m.; the second annual North Elementary Halloween Carnival at the school campus from 7 until 10 p.m.; and the annual Ira Halloween Carnival at the old gymnasium with booths to open at 6 p.m.

On Monday, the Hermleigh school district will hold its annual carnival from 6 until 8:30 p.m. at the high school building and gymnasium.

Individual classes will sponsor game events and food booths featuring such items as chili, beans, hot dogs, Frito Pie and tamales.

There will also be a cake walk and a spook house.

Participants will be able to buy chances for a food basket and a $250 shopping spree.

Admission to all game booths will be 25 cents.

Also Monday, the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary will offer a "safe Halloween" party at 1800 Ave. R from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m. There will be no charge for admission and games and refreshments will be offered.

Central again sets classes for parents

Classes to teach English as a second language and beginning computer skills for instruction in math, reading and English will be offered to the parents of students enrolled at Central and Northeast Elementaries beginning this week.

These classes are sponsored through a program started at Central last year by Snyder ISD, initially begun as part of grant monies awarded based on the concept of greater community involvement in the area surrounding the Central district.

The program this year is expanded to include parents whose children attend Northeast Elementary.

Called the Community Education Parent Program, the classes are offered at no charge.

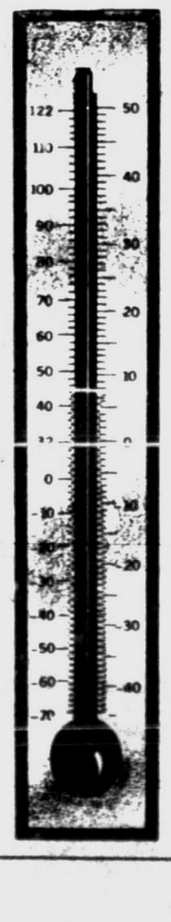

The basic education course in English will begin Wednesday and will meet once weekly from 7 until 9 p.m. in the library at Central. Instructors Tomas Gonzales and Virginia Quintela have volunteered to teach the courses.

In addition, instruction in computer operations will start Tuesday. These classes will meet twice weekly on Monday and Tuesday from 6 until 7 p.m. in the computer lab at Central.

Courses offered will include mathematics, adult reading skills, adult language skills and English as a second language as well as "keyboard skills" to include typing and word processing.

The school district's liaison staffer for the classes is Elida Garza.

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The safest way to spend a holiday is to sit home and yawn."

Halloween always gives us an immense feeling of power. Each year at this time we get a telephone call from some well-intended mother who suggests that the newspaper declare trick-or-treating to be held on Saturday.

Well, Halloween is Monday night and it's been our observation that kids are going to go from door-to-door on Halloween, even if it is a school night.

If we had that kind of influence, we'd declare a national holiday in honor of down-trodden newspaper types and suggest folks send cheerful cards stuffed with $100 bills.

We asked for money once before and the total contribution was a $2 bill from Red Tefertiller and a token from an anonymous source to ride the Dallas transit system.

One bad thing about having kids being "too grownup" is parents also miss out on trick-or treat. You remember those verses, "Trick-or-treat, smell my feet, give me something good to eat."

The good ole days provided lots of fun not only for the kids but also for mom and dad who accompanied youngsters. A good haul of goodies on Halloween night would last almost 'til Christmas--if big brother or dad would keep out of the stash.

We remember a couple of years where Halloween and a bad cold came at the same time, and our spook found out that staying at home and answering the door nearly as much fun as making the rounds.

Our gobblin found out early that Halloween in a small town was best. Not only did you have less fear about unthinkable pranks, you knew just about everybody you trick-or-treated.

In fact, he learned early that the best haul could be made at the home of a middle-aged couple whose kids were gone from home and they too were missing the annual fun of being a little kid's parent on Halloween night.

We guess that's why our doorbell has gotten a good workout the past few years.

Heart walk plans start

The annual Turkeywalk to benefit the American Heart Association is scheduled next Saturday, Nov. 5.

Volunteers are now seeking donors to sponsor them for each mile walked. The event itself will begin at 9 a.m. with registration to start at 8:30 a.m.

Prizes will be offered for the top three fund raisers. First place will receive a $50 savings bond donated by West Texas State Bank; second place, a stadium blanket donated by the C.R. Anthony Co.; and third place, a $15 gift certificate donated by Keaton Kolor.

Each participant who brings in more than $150 in pledges will receive a free turkey, donated by Everybody's Thriftway.

Ask Us

Q. — How old does a house have to be in Scurry County to have an historical marker on it?

A. — Age as such is not the only requirement. Such markers are issued through the State Historical Commission and its requirements regarding a house is that the structure be "significant" in its architecture, history or age. The guidelines state it must be at least 50 years old and in good repair.

Concerning Friday's Ask Us question as to the confusion regarding the salary paid a deputy district clerk and how this salary is budgeted, District Judge Gene Dulaney clarified an advertisement he ran in the SDN which stated one-half of this salary was transferred into his budget and equaled $22,017. Friday's question asked if the clerk earns $44,000 annually. Dulaney said the budget transfer reflected a two-year period rather than one year. As stated Friday, the clerk's annual gross salary is $18,225.

Whales break for freedom

BARROW, Alaska (AP) -- Two gray whales that were stranded in arctic ice for nearly three weeks apparently swam to freedom Friday, ending a million-dollar rescue effort watched around the world.

"There is no evidence of the whales in the immediate area," rescue coordinator Ron Morris said. "I think the whales are definitely gone."

North Slope Borough Mayor George Ahmaogak said the whales were last seen at 8:45 a.m.

"They were looking good," Ahmaogak said after talking by radio to Eskimos who had gone to open breathing holes for the whales. The last sighting was about an hour before sunrise. Ahmaogak later made an observation flight over 15 miles of the coastline south and west of Barrow.

"I feel great. I feel like I got no more burden," said Arnold Brower, the senior whaling captain who directed the Eskimo rescue efforts of cutting breathing holes in the ice with chainsaws.

Asked if he was confident the two gray whales swam to freedom, rather than died, Brower replied: "Yes."

Morris called the whales' survival chances "pure speculation. They had the will to live. They should make it."

Whether the whales survive probably will never be known because biologists chose not to tag them with radio transmitters to keep track of them.

Brower said he was confident the two whales had reached the channel cut by two Soviet icebreakers.

If the California gray whales followed the icebreaker's channel, they would still have to navigate "leads," natural breaks in the ice that vary greatly in width and close or open according to the wind, about 200 miles to open ocean.

Biologist Howard Braham, director of National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's National Marine Mammal Laboratory in Seattle, said he thought the whales could make the 200-mile journey if they would get moving.

"This is an open water species, basically, and for whatever reason, being in the ice is new to them," he said. "They are not adapted for it anatomically. They are in unfamiliar territory."

'Alamo Images' exhibit slated to open

"Alamo Images," a photographic exhibit telling the story of the Alamo from mission to fortress to ruins to shrine, will open Nov. 6 in the Scurry County Museum.

The 22 panels in "Alamo Images" uses over 140 photographs that explore what the Alamo means to Texans. Many of the panels focus on the Alamo of history, highlighting images of historic documents, letters, books, portraits and artifacts that explain the story of the battle and its heroes.

Also highlighted in the exhibit are panels that trace the evolution of the Alamo through photographs of paintings, movie stills, memorabilia, popular novels, television programs and popular culture artifacts. The exhibit was prepared by the DeGolyer Library of Southern Methodist University especially for Texas' Sesquicentennial. It was arranged for travel by the Texas Humanities Resource Center.

The "Alamo Images" exhibit is to remain in the museum through Dec. 7. Information about guided tours can be obtained by calling the museum at 573-6107.

Youth elected to post

Wes Allison, 17, son of Jim and Rinda Allison of Stratford, has been elected president of the Texas 4-H Council for 1988-89. He is the grandson of Sam and Ouida Bruner of Snyder and the nephew of Joe and Nanette Belew of Fluvanna.

Allison, a senior at Stratford High School, is also serving as president of the District I 4-H Council this year. This is the first time in at least 16 years that a youth from the Panhandle District has been elected to the state position.

Allison has also served as president of the Younger Texans 4-H Club and on the Sherman County 4-H council for two years. He is a charter member of the Sherman County 4-H Cattle Company and a member of the Sherman County 4-H Horse Club. He was a Gold Star winner in 1987 and has exhibited swine, lambs and beef at state livestock shows.

He has also participated in county method demonstrations, attended state 4-H Roundups for three years and has completed projects in veterinary science, leadership, rifle, electricity, foods and nutrition.

At Stratford High School, Allison is a member of the football, basketball and track teams. He is a member of the marching band, is involved in debate and persuasive speaking and has been an honor student for three years. He is a member of the First Baptist Church of Stratford.

Wright defends Dukakis

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright said contrary to Republican political rhetoric, if Democrat Michael Dukakis is elected president, thousands of employees at area defense plants and military bases will not lose their jobs.

"This is a frantic campaign of fear and smear on the part of the Bush campaign," the Fort Worth Democrat said of Republican campaign efforts on behalf of GOP presidential nominee George Bush.

Wright and Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, said Friday that recent Republican campaign stops in the area, including one by U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm at the LTV plant in Grand Prairie last week, were designed to scare defense workers.

"The Republican Campaign Committee has been doing (its) best to frighten the voters and the defense workers of Texas, and what they are saying is just not true," Wright told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "It's a lie."

Gramm told a group of LTV employees Wednesday that Dukakis would cut defense spending and that "many of the systems built here at LTV would be cut and we would lose tens of thousands of jobs."

Frost said there are more than 50,000 defense industry workers in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, including 14,000 at LTV, 7,500 with Bell Helicopter in Hurst and more than 30,000 with General Dynamics in Fort Worth.

Thousands more are employed at Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth and Naval Air Station-Dallas.

Wright said it is outrageous to suggest that a Democratic president would take away Texas defense jobs.

"So what do we do about it?" Wright asked. "We answer it with the truth. Thomas Jefferson said that 'democracy rests upon the assumption that truth is a sufficient adversary for falsehood.'"

Rosson to serve on state council

Jim Rosson, Snyder High School marketing and DE teacher, has been selected by his peers to serve on the state General Council of the Texas Vocational Technical Association (TVTA).

The association consists of representatives from technology, marketing education, health occupations, industrial education, health occupations, vocational guidance, vocational administrators, agriculture, home economics and vocational office education areas.

Rosson, along with Ron Upton of Lubbock, is representing the marketing education division at the state meeting which began Friday and continues through Saturday.

Rosson currently serves on the State Board of the Texas Vocational Consortium and is state president-elect of his professional association, Marketing Educators of Texas.

Superintendent Dalton Moseley and the local board of trustees gave special recognition to Rosson at the October school board meeting for his leadership role at the state level.

Commissioners to eye equipment purchases

Scurry County commissioners Monday will open bids for a dump truck and consider advertising for bids for equipment for two commissioners' precincts and smoke alarms at the jail.

The appointment of a county airport board member is also to be considered in the 10 a.m. meeting.

Bids for a dump truck to be used in Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr.'s Pct. 3 are scheduled to be opened, and Gray also has a proposal to be considered to advertise for bids for a new roadgrader.

Commissioner Duaine Davis will ask the court to authorize him to advertise for bids on two new dump trucks.

The court last week discussed possible appointments to replace airport board chairman Lynn McLarty, and the Monday agenda lists making the appointment as one item of business.

Sheriff Keith Collier last week informally discussed the Texas Jail Standards Commission's mandate for smoke alarm and air-removal fans to be replaced in the jail. He is on the agenda this week to discuss advertising for bids for the smoke alarms.

The U.S. senate seat is to be decided also. Lloyd Bentsen, running mate on the Democratic presidential ticket, is challenged by Beau Boulter, a Republican from Amarillo.

Other contested races on the ballot involve this area's seat on the state school board; seats on the Railroad Commission, the Texas Supreme Court, Court of Criminal Appeals and 11th Court of Appeals.

In addition, three proposed amendments to the state constitution will be decided in November.

UNOCAL in new offices

Union Oil Co. of California (UNOCAL) is moving its office this weekend from 1907 40th St. to 1911 40th.

Area superintendent Gary Dupriest said the move is to gain more space, with the 2,750 square of floor space in the new quarters more than doubling the company's current 1,320 square feet.

The new office is the former headquarters of the R.E. Smith oil production company.

UNOCAL employs 22 people in its local office, overseeing production from 559 oil wells and three gas wells over an area from New Mexico to Wichita Falls and south of Ozona.

Reagan rejects demands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has rejected a rice industry request for a federal investigation of Japanese barriers to rice imports, averting a political storm in Japan and threatening one in the United States.

The decision announced Friday was something of a surprise and was the first important test of the new, tougher 1988 Omnibus Trade Act that was designed to help restore the competitiveness of American goods on foreign markets.

Disappointed U.S. rice industry officials condemned the decision and said in a statement that it hoped the new administration to take office in January "will be more concerned about promoting U.S. interests than pleasing foreign governments ..."

Clayton Yeutter, the special trade representative, said in announcing the decision to reject a petition of rice growers and millers that Japan's virtual ban on imported rice was indefensible and intolerable. He said it would be vigorously challenged, but not in the bilateral fashion demanded by U.S. rice farmers.

Yeutter said the administration believed it would be more effective to pursue the complaint through the 97-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which currently is holding a full-scale set of negotiations on global trade liberalization. Agricultural trade is a central focus of the GATT negotiations.

New guidelines are drafted

DALLAS (AP) — Sex or drug partners of people who test positive for the AIDS virus could be getting a call from the state health department soon.

The Texas Department of Health drafted guidelines for a new program to notify those who have come in contagious contact with people who have tested positive for human immunodeficiency virus — HIV.

The Texas Partner Notification Program calls for specially trained "disease intervention specialists" to contact partners who have been exposed — and voluntarily identified by an infected person — so they, too, may be tested and receive counseling.

HIV has been linked as a precusor to acquired immune deficiency syndrome. Virus carriers generally do not show the symptoms of AIDS for five to seven years after they are infected. Researchers now believe that most people infected with HIV will contract the fatal disease, which destroys the immune system.

HIV is known to be spread through the exchange of blood and seminal fluid through the sharing of hypodermic needles and sexual intercourse.

The guidelines would require any AIDS testing clinic that receives federal funding to ask for the names and addresses of people who have had sex or shared intravenous drug needles with a virus carrier in the previous 12 months.

"First, we encourage the people who test positive to contact their partners themselves," Christie Reed, director of the state health department's AIDS division, told the Dallas Morning News. "We're developing this notification service for people who aren't comfortable doing it."

The newly created Department of Veterans Affairs will officially replace the Veterans Administration on March 15, 1989, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., veterans service officer for Scurry County, said.

The Department of Veterans Affairs is the 14th cabinet agency. Thomas Turnage, administrator of veterans affairs, present at the signing ceremonies creating the new agency, said, "This is the most significant day in America's long history of providing comprehensive services to those who have defended freedom and democracy--our veterans." He noted that the cabinet level status for the agency will give it greater opportunity to represent the interests of 80 million veterans and their dependents in helping shape the national policy.

DONNA GREENE

TO THE VOTERS OF SCURRY AND BORDEN COUNTIES OF TEXAS:

I have not had the opportunity to meet each one of you since my husband, Pete Greene, and I married and I moved to Snyder. I want to take this opportunity to introduce myself to you. My parents are originally from Post, Texas; my father worked in the oil field for Baroid. I am a graduate of Odessa Permian High School in Odessa, Texas. I have a six-year-old daughter, Erin, by a previous marriage. Her father is Jim Kirk, a medical doctor, in Lubbock, Texas.

If Pete's relationship with my daughter and her natural father has any bearing upon his qualifications for being a District Judge, I can assure you that he would be an excellent District Judge involving family law matters, regarding visitation and child support enforcement.

In addition to serving as your District Attorney for almost 14 years, he is experienced as a farmer and businessman.

I want to ask each of you for your support in our race for District Judge. When Pete made the decision to run for this position, it was after considerable thought and encouragement by many people in the community. Since the announcement of his intention to run for office, we have had a lot of positive support and encouragement.

As a judicial candidate, he can only promise faithful and impartial performance of the duties of the office of District Judge. I can assure you that you will be proud of him (and his family) if you place him in such a high position of public trust.

I realize that my daughter and I would be subject to your scrutiny as well as Pete. I will not betray your trust.

Trent tops Ira; Cards fall, too

TRENT -- Third-ranked Trent secured at least a tie for the 7-1A district title and all but knocked Ira out of the playoffs here Friday as the Gorillas handed the Bulldogs a 50-20 loss.

The win put Trent at 8-0 on the season and 4-0 in district play with one game remaining. Ira fell to 5-4 overall and 2-2 in loop action.

Loraine appeared to sew up 7-1A's runner-up playoff spot with an 80-52 thumping of Highland. Loraine, in its first six-man season, is 3-1 in district play now and 7-2 for the 1988 campaign.

In Friday's other district game, Blackwell defeated Hermleigh, 66-20.

Ira concludes the regular season next Friday by entertaining Blackwell while Hermleigh is at Loraine. Highland and Trent mix it up in Trent next Saturday.

Hermleigh, 0-8, was led by Andrew Sanchez, who scored two touchdowns and hit Daniel Ramey for another through the air. Blackwell, 2-6-1, got four touchdowns from Grady Hancock and three more from Ray Walls.

At Trent, Gorilla standout Lewis Knapp scored from 65 yards out on the first play but Ira answered with a 65-yard hookup from Charles Barbee to Alan Martinez.

No other details were available.

OH, NO -- Snyder's Kevin Dollins struggles to get to the ball after it was hiked over his head during a punt attempt at Friday's ballgame between the Tigers and the Pecos Eagles. In final home game of season...

Pecos Eagles claw Snyder, 33-14

Snyder's Tigers scored the first and last touchdowns here Friday but it was all Pecos in between as the Eagles clawed out a 33-14 victory.

The loss, Snyder's seventh in eight games, leaves the Tigers reeling as they prepare to go on the road to Big Spring next Friday.

"We've lost some of our competitive spirit," said a dejected Coach David Baugh. "We're going to have to suck it up and get after it."

Snyder got after the Eagles early Friday, taking the first Tiger possession and marching 82 yards in just six plays. Most of the real estate came on the first play when quarterback Randy Morris broke free on a 52-yard jaunt to the Pecos 30-yard line. Two plays later, the junior hit fullback Lee Fletcher for an 11-yard gain to the 19.

Fletcher carried three more times, finally bulling over from the 3 with 6:29 left in the period. Bert Merritt's kick-after was good and it appeared as if Snyder was determined to win its final home game.

In one play, Pecos took over the momentum, and got almost all of its points back, however.

Doni Talamantez cradled in the ensuing kickoff, got to the left sidelines and dashed 92 yards to score for the Eagles, who had not won a district game coming in to Tiger Stadium. Talamantez crossed the goal line just 15 seconds after Fletcher did, according to the scoreboard clock.

Snyder kept a slim, 7-6 lead when Morris dashed in and blocked Frank Orozca's conversion kick.

Morris, who has blocked a number of kicks and punts in his high school career, would later block a 29-yard field goal attempt by Orozco. The attempt was set up following a Snyder fumble, recovered by Armando Martinez at the Tiger 34.

But while the block stopped Pecos, Snyder was having trouble scoring again. The Tigers mounted a good drive, overcoming two fourth-down situations along the way, to reach the Eagle 19. A holding penalty pushed the hosts back to the 34, though, and Pecos eventually took over.

Eagle quarterback Bobby Ray Smith was expected to be Pecos' top threat coming into the game and he showed why on the next series. The senior directed a nine-play, 79 yard drive in the second quarter to put the Eagles on top for good. Of the 79 yards, Smith accounted for 73 - running for 43 and passing for another 30.

"I think it was pretty evident we didn't have anybody who could keep up with him," said

Landry faces former assistant

IRVING, Texas (AP) - It's one game Tom Landry needs worse than a former assistant.

For his morale and the 47 players on the Dallas Cowboys team, Landry hopes something positive happens Sunday when the Gene Stallings-led Phoenix Cardinals come calling at noon in Texas Stadium.

The Cowboys have lost four games in a row and have tumbled to a 2-6 record, worst in 26 years.

Stallings spent 14 seasons on Landry's coaching staff but he isn't going to roll over.

"We need a victory worse than Tom does," Stallings said. "He's been to five Super Bowls. We'd just like our fifth victory."

The Cardinals are 4-4, losing their last two games after taking an early lead in the NFC Eastern division.

Stallings has lost four of his five meetings against Landry, including a 17-14 decision in the second game of the season.

"Tom has been pretty tough on me," Stallings said. "He's still a great coach. He's catching a lot of criticism but it's not deserved."

Stallings called Landry this week to check his morale.

"He's still a good friend of mine," Stallings said. "I don't care if we are playing."

Landry helped Stallings get his job with the Cardinals, giving a glowing recommendation when queried by owner Bill Bidwell.

"Gene's teams are always aggressive and give you everything they have," Landry said. "Their defense will get after you - it's a trademark of Stallings' teams.

"The Cardinals are an excellent offensive team. They have excellent skill people at every position. You have to outscore 'em. It will take at least 28 points for us to win this game. We'll definitely have to be in the high 20s."

The most points the Cowboys have scored this year is 26 against Atlanta.

Dallas has won five of its last six games with the Cardinals and holds a 33-18-1 all-time edge.

"At 4-4 we are at least in the hunt for the NFC title," Stallings said. "If you had told me w we left training camp we wou be 5-3 I would have taken it. So 4-4 isn't too far off. We're still in position to make a run for it."

Landry said the Cowboys will be playing a spoiler role hereout.

"We have such a tough schedule that 4-4 in the second half of the season will be pretty good for us," Landry said.

Oddsmakers rated the Cowboys field goal favorites.

"I guess they (the oddsmakers) missed seeing some of our games," Landry said.

Lady Dusters defeat Lassies; set for South Plains Classic

WACO -- Western Texas College's Lady Dusters spanked host McLennan Community College 68-59 here Friday as the Highlassie Basketball Classic came to an end.

"We were really glad to win after getting beat Thursday," said Coach Kelly Chadwick, whose squad stopped Wharton 84-59 on Wednesday and lost to Kilgore 75-63 on Thursday to go 2-1 here. "It was probably our best defensive game and we had some really good spurts of offense. We haven't been able to maintain any offensive consistency and between too many turnovers and some missed shots, that's our problem right now."

Sophomore standout Nickey Allen again led the Dusters with 27 points. Stephanie McKnight, Snyder sophomore point guard, scored 14 points and had a 10-of-14 effort from the line. Stacy Smith and Valery Jackson added 6 points each.

Shawn Matlock led the Highlassies, also 2-1 on the season, with 19 points. Mary Stewart had 15.

The next stop for Chadwick's Lady Dusters is the South Plains College Classic on Nov. 3-4-5 in Levelland.

"This tournament has really been beneficial. Everybody we played had a good team. We got a lot of good out of it because Wharton is pretty darn good, then we turned around and played Kilgore and they are real good, and we played a good McLennan team," said Chadwick. "We're lucky to win two ballgames and get out of here."

Chadwick said he was pleased with the play of McKnight, and with Joy Muller, who filled in for Haskell sophomore Julie Roewe after she went out in the second half of the WTC-Kilgore game. Roewe, who suffered a back injury, is doubtful for the South Plains Classic.

Western Texas finishes 8th at golf tourney in Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Ark. -- Western Texas College shot a 621 over two days to take eighth place in the Texarkana Invitational Golf Tournament, held at Texarkana Country Club here.

San Jacinto won the 36-hole event with a 591, edging Paris Junior College by five strokes. Odessa was third with a 599.

There were 16 teams entered in the non-conference event.

Darrell Cofer led Western with a 151. Jeff Beal shot 154, Mark Burgen 156, David Turrentine 160 and Jeff Baker 171.

"There were a lot of good teams here. I expect five or six of these teams will be ranked when the ratings come out next week," said Coach Dave Foster. "Overall, we didn't play that bad but on this course you can't take an 80 or an 82 as a counting score and expect to be in the top six. The key to winning here is to get five scores under 77. Keep your mistakes to a minimum because you don't make up shots on this golf course."

WTC golfers entering as individuals were Mike Montgomery, a 166 and Jerry Whitten and Chris Jefferson, 167s.

San Jacinto's Jimmy Spurlock won medalist honors with a 142. Brad Ott of Paris shot 144.

Next action for Western Texas will be a conference tournament set for Nov. 11 in Odessa.

Lots of low scores at Disney Classic

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) - Among those most impressed by the low scores in the Walt Disney World Classic are the golfers shooting them.

"It's amazing the talent that's out here on this tour," Fuzzy Zoeller said after shooting a 66 on Friday. He had a 17-under-par score after 54 holes, yet was only in fourth place.

"I feel like I should be leading by 10, and I'm down by four," Zoeller said. "Maybe because it's Fantasyland, the scores are just crazy."

Leader Bob Lohr was at 195, 21 under par, going into Saturday's final round. Paul Azinger and Chip Beck were tied for second at 19 under.

The leaders agreed that perfect weather and the immaculate condition of the tournament's three courses contributed to the low scores.

"We haven't had any wind," Zoeller said. "These courses play differently when there isn't any wind."

Still, the weather and course conditions are good at other tournaments.

"I'm proud of 21 under after three days," Lohr said. "No matter where you do that, on any course, that's an accomplishment to be proud of."

Lohr's 195 broke the tournament 54-hole record of 196, set by Larry Nelson in 1984.

Lohr needed a 7-under 65 Saturday to break the record for most shots under par in a PGA tournament. The record for a 72-hole tournament is 27 under, set by Ben Hogan in the 1945 Portland Invitational and tied by Mike Souchak in the 1955 Texas Open.

Azinger and Beck moved into contention with fine rounds at the Palm course.

SHS netters reach 2nd round but fall to Brownwood, 10-3

LUBBOCK -- Snyder varsity netters ran past Cedar Hill but was sidelined by Brownwood in the Class 4A, Region I Team Tennis Tournament here Friday.

The Tigers strolled past Cedar Hill, winning 17 of 18 matches, to advance to second-round play here. Brownwood ended Snyder's first-ever postseason team tennis event by a 10-3 count later in the day.

Schools may play up to 18 matches, but only 10 wins are necessary to claim a team victory.

"We met a strong Brownwood team that played real well and was just better than us in the second round," said Snyder Coach Charlie Chrane. "We played well the second round. There were a couple of matches I thought we could have won and we didn't but overall we played well. We had a good fall season. I was happy with the performance of the team, winning second in our district and getting to go to regional."

Hereford, Monahans, Brownwood and Waco Midway were among the schools vying Saturday for the Region I crown and a trip to next weekend's state tournament in Austin.

Kim White and Teri Lawdermilk won singles matches against Brownwood while Alfred Brice and Michael Rodriquez teamed to win their doubles match.

Cats battle Sweetwater

Snyder Junior High football teams won one game, lost one, and tied two others in action with Sweetwater this past week.

The eighth grade A-team won 14-0 on touchdown runs from Brian Luna and Wayland Harrison. Luna also ran over one conversion.

Coaches said outstanding defensive efforts were given by Luna, Charles Richardson, Duffy Galloway, Stephen Bollinger, Ben Wilson and Jason McAden. Offensively, Bollinger, Galloway, Todd Iglehart, James Herrera, Neil Childs, Charlie Busby and Richardson were standouts.

The B-team lost 26-6. Top players were Peyton Daniels and Chris Cunningham.

Snyder seventh grade B-team tied 0-0 and the A-team locked up 8-8, with Sweetwater. Tyson Cromeens scored Snyder's only seventh grade TD. The A-team also got 2 points on a safety.

Next action for the junior high teams will be Nov. 3 against Big Spring at 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. The seventh graders play in Big Spring. The eighth graders are at home.

TIGERS

Baugh.

Smith got the TD on an 11-yard strike to Eric Bradley. The Eagles went for two on the conversion, but Smith's pass was incomplete this time.

Though Snyder had only five penalties for 48 yards in the game, they came at crucial times. Another holding infraction brought the Tigers to a skidding halt on their next possession. The penalty made waste of good field position after Michael Riggins had returned Pecos' kickoff 42 yards to the Eagle 41-yard line.

A 48-yard punt from Kevin Dollins seemed to insure the halftime score would be 12-7, but it wasn't enough.

Backed up to their own 13-yard line with 28 seconds left in the quarter, Pecos might have been expected to run the clock out. Instead, Armando Martinez reached the corner on a routine running play, then raced 83 yards to score with 13 seconds left in the half. A PAT pass from Smith to Gabriel Gonzales was on target, giving the visitors a 20-7 advantage.

"Well, it looked like to me we were just loafing," said Baugh of the touchdown run. "We were just standing around and they went right by us."

Later, in the third quarter, the ball went right by Dollins - or over his head to be more exact - to set up Pecos' fourth touchdown. The snap sailed over his outstretched arms and rolled to the 4-yard line, where Pecos took over. On second down from the 2, Tommy Valdez slammed over for the score. A conversion pass fell incomplete, but with 9:47 to play in the quarter Pecos led 26-7.

Snyder charged back, but met up with the same problems as before. The Tigers drove from their 19 to the Pecos 22 before another penalty set them back. A Rafael Gonzales sack for 13 yards ended the threat altogether.

Pecos then put the game away with a 65-yard, 10-play drive with Valdez scoring on a 6-yard run. Orozco kicked the conversion.

Snyder finished out the numbers on a seven-play drive, good for 53 yards and another Fletcher touchdown. The senior runner shoved his way in from 4 yards out and Merritt followed with the conversion.

Fletcher carried 15 times for 59 yards while Jayson Presley had 49 steps on seven carries and Riggins added 44 on 15. Pecos' Martinez led all ballcarriers with 108 yards - including the 87-yard TD run - on six tries.

The game witnessed the varsity debut of backup quarterback Edward Rios, who was lifted from the JV earlier in the week. He hit Tracy Odom on a pair of passes. Odom, who also caught a pass from Morris, had 51 of Snyder's 67 yards receiving.

The loss dropped Snyder to 1-7 overall and 1-4 in District 4-4A play. Pecos, which improved to 4-4 and 1-4, entertains Monahans next week.

FOOTBALL

NEW YORK (AP) - Victor Kiam, owner of Remington Products Inc., became principal owner of the New England Patriots, ending more than four months of negotiations to buy the NFL team from the founding Sullivan family.

Billy Sullivan, the family's 73-year old patriarch, remains the Patriots' president, while his sons, Pat and Chuck, also stay, Pat as general manager.

The Sullivans said they looked on the purchase by Kiam and his partner, restaurateur Fran Murray, as a rescue from the franchise's financial problems.

Hershiser wants $2 million a year for pitching services

NEW YORK (AP) - Orel Hershiser wants the Los Angeles Dodgers to pay the price for their success.

Hershiser said Friday that he wants a long-term contract from the Dodgers after leading the team to the World Series title in five games over the Oakland Athletics.

Hershiser's agent, Bob Fraley, said the pitcher wants a five-year deal worth about $10 million. If Hershiser doesn't get it, it's back to arbitration.

"If we go to arbitration, we will try to set an indoor world record," Hershiser said Friday.

Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees set the record for an arbitration winner in 1987 at $1.975 million. George Bell of the Toronto Blue Jays asked for $2.105 million last year, but settled before the hearing, getting $6.1 million over three years.

Fraley said the pitcher would not agree to a multi-year contract unless it was for more than three years. The last contract longer than that was a four-year deal agreed to by Ken Oberkfell and the Atlanta Braves on Oct. 11, 1985.

132nd District Judge

On Thursday, October 27, 1988, 132nd District Judge Gene L. Dulaney said: "Out here in West Texas, there is not any difference in a Democrat and a Republican."

Today I want to show you just what the difference is...

Democrat Wayland G. Holt vs. Republican Gene L. Dulaney

Court Appointed Attorney's Fees Authorized by the Judge and Actually Paid by the Scurry County Auditor*

1981	$27,647.04	1985	$28,603.45
1982	$32,396.45	1986	$86,410.20
1983	$36,817.60	1987	$89,816.01
1984	$26,700.02	1988	$51,405.01
Totals:	$123,561.51		$276,234.67

Difference: $152,673.16 more tax dollars spent by Republican Judge Dulaney

Assume: $100,000.00
of the court appointed attorney's fees was spent for the necessary prosecution of the Defendants who were tired for capital murder in 1986, in connection with the death of the clerk from Allsup's grocery.

Conclusion: $52,673.16 more tax dollars spent by Republican Judge Dulaney over the last 4 years!!!

Criminal Cases Filed By Indictment in 132nd District Court

1981: No. 4325 thru No. 4579--254 cases	1985: No. 5329 thru No. 5469--140 cases

1983: No. 4980 thru No. 5210--230 cases	1987: No. 5653 thru No. 5785--132 cases
1984: No. 5211 thru No. 5328--117 cases	1988: No. 5786 thru No. 5891--105 cases*
Totals: 800 cases	559 cases

*thru Oct. 3, 1988

Difference: 241 more cases filed from 1981 thru 1984

Actual Expenditures by 132nd District Attorney's Office

Lealand W. (Pete) Greene	vs.	Ernie B. Armstrong
1981: $18,577.94		1985: $34,149.04
1982: $19,178.67		1986: $28,504.36
1983: $21,502.94		1987: $28,476.27
1984: $23,940.14		1988: $21,417.02*
Totals: $83,199.69		Totals: $112,546.69

*thru Oct. 28, 1988

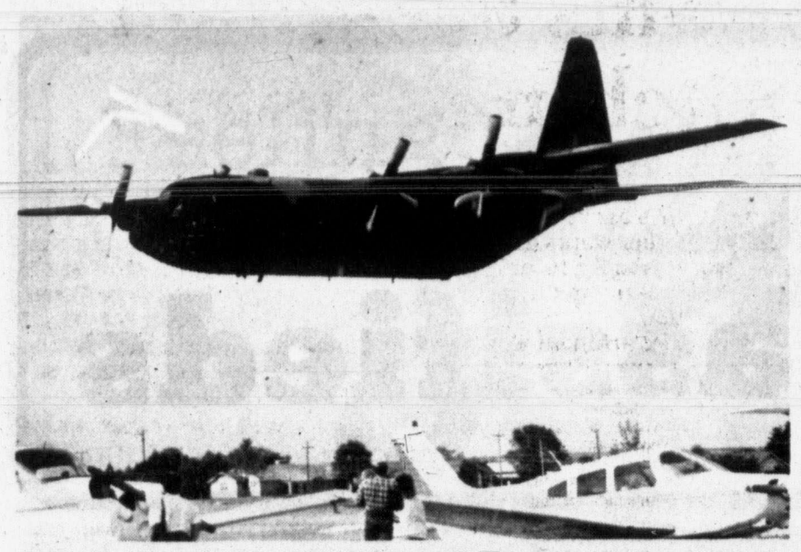

Difference: $29,347.00

Democrat Pete Greene saved the taxpayers and prosecuted 241 more cases!!!

FLY-OVER — A C-130 transport plane from Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene flew over Winston Field and performed maneuvers Wednesday at the Winston Field air show. The propellers appear to be almost still because the photograph was taken at two-thousands-of-a-second shutter speed. (SDN Staff Photo)

AIR SHOW — These are some of the estimated 250 persons who attended a Wednesday air show and airport renovation celebration at Winston Field. A Corsair fighter plane from World War II is in the background. (SDN Staff Photo)

Workshop series to begin

Approximately 35 Snyder ISD teachers and administrators will participate in a workshop which begins at 5:45 p.m. Monday in the Learning Resource Center at Western Texas College. The workshop is entitled "A Framework for Improving the Teaching of Skillful Thinking Using Media." To comply with the goals of the Texas State Board and the local board of education, all teachers and principals in the Snyder district will be trained in this or similar workshops during the next three years.

Offered on six consecutive Monday nights, the workshop will provide an instructional framework for K-12 personnel to develop and nurture the teaching of skillful thinking within the content areas. Special emphasis will be given to areas of math and science.

Dr. Billy E. Askins, professor and associate dean of the College of Education at Texas Tech University, will be the program presenter. The presentations will consist of a combination of lecture, discussion of reading assignments, question and answer, viewing of video tapes, modeling and critique/sharing of lesson plans. The purpose of this workshop is to incorporate the teaching of thinking skills and reasoning skills into the classroom.

Cuomo denies rumors of romance

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — New York Gov. Mario Cuomo says there's nothing to reports of a possible romance between his son, Andrew, and Robert and Ethel Kennedy's daughter, Kerry.

Andrew and Kerry have had "a couple of dates" and Kerry attended a wake last week for Andrew's maternal grandfather, Cuomo said Friday.

Several New York newspapers reported this week on the friendship.

"Kerry's a friend of mine and that's all there is to it," Andrew Cuomo told Newsday.

Andrew Cuomo, 30, recently said he was leaving his Park Avenue law firm in New York City to devote energy to his program that builds housing for homeless families.

Museum seeks volunteers for Christmas Happening

The Scurry County Museum and Western Texas College will be hosting the 10th annual Christmas Happening on Dec. 4 and the museum is looking for volunteers to help get ready.

Men and women who would like to give volunteer time to the museum are asked to contact the office or call 573-6107. Duties range from helping put up decorations and Christmas trees to assisting with activities on Dec. 4.

The museum's Country Store will be opening on Nov. 14 and local craftsmen who would like to sell their handmade work in the store are asked to take them to the museum starting on Nov. 7. The museum receives a 15 percent commission on all sales and participants are asked to donate one item to the museum. Proceeds go to help finance the museum's educational programs.

Santa Claus will be in the museum during the Christmas Happening to visit with children. Other activities will include pinata breakings, puppet shows and the Christmas concert of the WTC music department.

Family's 6 months trip to be filmed

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former Gov. Lamar Alexander says he's not sure who should play the leading man in the television movie version of his book about his family's six-month trip to Australia.

"Robert Redford is taken," joked Alexander, whose book "Six Months Off" was purchased by Warner Brothers Television. "My daughter Kathryn says Chevy Chase would be perfect."

After they left the governor's mansion in January 1987, Alexander and his family went down under for six months.

Financial Focus

Two events we'd all like to avoid are death and taxes. Eating well, exercising and staying away from tobacco postpones one, but taxes remain hard to shake. The trick is to use the tax laws to avoid or defer taxes until you, not the IRS, decide to pay.

There are two reasons to defer, rather than pay taxes, at each taxable period. First, if your investments are made so taxes on the income, either received or reinvested, are due and payable each period, that extra income could move you into a higher tax bracket. Not only would this income be taxed at a higher rate but it could also cause other income to fall within a higher marginal bracket. If you arrange your investments so your income is tax-deferred, it can be reinvested to compound with no current tax liability. Moreover, it can be further deferred until you decide to receive it and pay taxes.

Another reason to defer taxes is that you have use of all your money to compound during deferral. It's like an interest-free loan from the IRS. For example, a $100,000 investment compounding at 12 percent tax-deferred for 30 years will grow to $2,995,992. That same investment, taxable each year at 28 percent, grows to only $1,201,414, a $1,794,578 difference! Since the taxes have only been deferred, the gains are taxable in the year you decide to convert the investment to cash. If you are in a 28 percent marginal bracket, you'll have about an $810,887 tax bill. However, that still leaves $983,700, or 82 percent, more profit.

By deferring taxes and using the money ordinarily dedicated to pay taxes each year, you can compound your investment into a much larger estate.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 132ND., JUDICIAL DISTRICT:

After the close of World War Two, and after having been given the Purple Heart Citation for injuries received in combat; Gene Dulaney came to Texas to study law, and thereafter to Snyder to practice law. He reared his children here, sent them through school here. As an attorney he ably tried as many cases here in the court over which I presided as District Judge, as did any other attorney who practiced here at that time. He was fair, honest, and above board in his dealings and his education and his experience gained as a trial lawyer qualified him to try any type of litigation that general practice of law made necessary. He was a qualified and experienced attorney.

When he was elected District Judge, he disqualified himself in all cases wherein he had represented clients as attorney; as all other judges who ever served this area as District Judge had done.

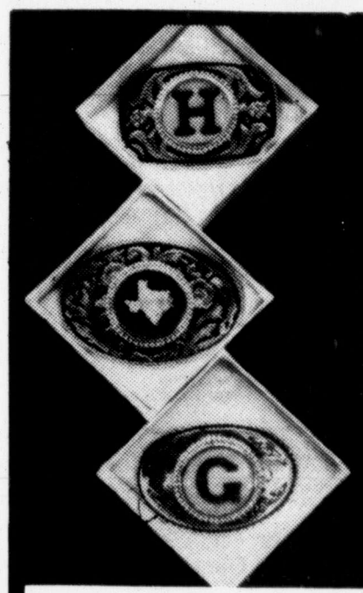

It has been my observation that in the trial of cases during his first term, Gene Dulaney has not been on anybody's side; but has heard the evidence as it was introduced; considered the motions as they were made to him; and ruled thereon fairly, honestly and impartially so that all parties were given a fair trial.

I believe Judge Dulaney should be elected to a second term as District Judge.

Respectfully Submitted;
Sterling Williams

Center plans Halloween events

A costume contest and a baking contest will be part of the Senior Center's annual Halloween party on Monday. The carnival booths will open at 10 a.m. All senior citizens are invited to get into costume and join in the festivities.

The Western Texas College Westerners will be playing their first home basketball game of the season on Tuesday night and senior citizens are reminded that they are admitted to all home games free of charge. Senior citizens also give volunteer time to sell tickets at the door.

Hoss Clayton and his band will present a program of western music in the center starting at 11:15 a.m. Tuesday. Senior citizens meet at Snyder Lanes for bowling at 2:30 p.m. Wednesdays. Square dancers meet in the center at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. An aerobics class for women meets at 3 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays in the center.

The Scurry County chapter of the American Heart Association will be sponsoring its annual Turkeywalk on Saturday morning, Nov. 5. Senior citizens will work as volunteers to help with registration and serve refreshments to the walkers.

Hospitalized PM receives visitor

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — European Commission President Jacques Delors visited hospitalized Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey at the start of an official two-day trip to Ireland.

Haughey, 63, was admitted to the private wing of the Mater Hospital with a respiratory infection two weeks ago. His condition is improving and he is working from his bed, the government said Friday.

Haughey also was hospitalized on three occasions earlier this month for recurring pain from a kidney stone.

Candidates: return to elected board keeps reform going

DALLAS (AP) — Returning to the election of State Board of Education members will keep reforms moving in Texas schools, say candidates for the board.

But some also say an appointed board was the best way to make the dramatic changes in Texas schools.

"There comes a time when special interests are so entrenched that you have to change the rules to put everyone back to square zero," said John Shields, Republican candidate in District 5, which stretches from the Hill Country near San Antonio to western Houston suburbs.

"I think that's what we've done," Shields said of reforms that included teacher competency testing, strict class size ratios and a no-pass, no-play rule.

"We needed some drastic moves and we made a good start," said Donna Ellis, Democratic candidate in District 6, Harris County.

As part of the school reform legislation passed in 1984, then Gov. Mark White appointed the 15 board members. But House Bill 72, the sweeping school reform measure, also called for the board to revert to an elected panel after four years.

Texans last year defeated a referendum calling for continued appointment of the board, so on Nov. 8 voters will choose education board members for the first time since 1982.

Most candidates this year praise the work of the appointed board, but they have differing views about the success of the reform effort and the direction it should take.

The need to provide enough money for reforms and to involve teachers and school administrators in them are persistent themes in conversations with many of the 26 candidates.

Only four incumbents are running for the board, and two of them are unopposed. There are races in 11 districts for seats on the 15-member board.

Placed last on the list of statewide races on most ballots, the education board contest is subject to the whims of straight-ticket voters.

That fact prompted business and government leaders of the 1984 reform movement, including Democratic Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, to oppose the return to an elected board.

Bentsen predicts win if Demos vote Nov. 8

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Friday he and presidential candidate Michael Dukakis can win the election if Democrats work hard and turn out to vote on Nov. 8.

"If we just go flat out for the next 10 days, we're going to win it," Bentsen told a rally at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library on the University of Texas campus.

Bentsen, who's also campaigning for re-election to the Senate in Texas, said he feels confident the Democratic ticket can overcome opinion polls that have shown Republican candidate George Bush in the lead. He displayed a copy of the 1948 Chicago newspaper which wrongly bore the headline that had Republican Thomas Dewey defeating Democratic President Harry Truman in that election.

"I've just returned from California, and I can tell you the momentum is really moving our way. We see it all over America. The polls are really moving in our direction," Bentsen said.

Bentsen, who was chosen by Dukakis in a bid for Texas' 29 electoral votes, also criticized the Bush-Dan Quayle campaign for what he said was overly negative advertising that had distorted Dukakis' record.

"The American people are fed up with the kinds of lies and distortions we've seen out of this Republican campaign," he said. "You know why the Republicans fear the truth? For the same reason baloney fears the slicer."

Bentsen also rapped the GOP vice presidential hopeful, saying Quayle wasn't up to the job and wouldn't be good for Texas.

"A vote for George Bush is a vote for Dan Quayle. And a vote for Dan Quayle is not a vote for Texas," Bentsen said.

About 2,000 people gathered in front of the LBJ Library at the Bentsen rally.

Prior to Bentsen's arrival, Democrats hammered away at what they called Bush's negative campaign, said the Dukakis-Bentsen ticket was gaining strength and urged Democrats to work hard for victory.

"It's a test of wills," said Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox. "If we have the will to do the work, we will win."

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro noted the current controversy between Democrats and Republican Secretary of State Jack Rains, who is the object of two lawsuits alleging he is trying to intimidate minority voters at the polls.

"They (Republicans) know if there's a big turnout in Texas, they'll lose," said Mauro.

Mauro said the Republicans offered "the most contemptible presidential campaign I've seen in my lifetime. No lie, no hypocrisy is beneath George Bush."

Bentsen responded to Republican criticisms about the Massachusetts prison furlough program, an issue that has hurt the Democratic ticket in Texas.

Bentsen said Dukakis inherited the furlough program from a Republican administration and eventually changed the program, making it tougher.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

Mrs. Bobby (Vickie) Jones of Snyder, who underwent a kidney transplant nearly three years ago, says she now has an active and healthy life, enjoying, as she puts it, more energy than she ever thought possible.

Her "cure" from kidney disease has its side effects, however.

She has started a fulltime job and she and her husband, Bobby, an electrician for B&L Electric, are raising their three children, Casey, 14, Nickey, 7, and Brady, 5.

Before the transplant, performed at Lubbock General Hospital in February of 1986, Vickie said, "I didn't believe that I would ever feel good again."

At the time, she weighed only 90 pounds.

Her new health was made possible by the donation of a kidney from her sister, Carol Waid, who lives in Austin.

Vickie, the daughter of Doyle and Peggy Chandler of Snyder, suffered with kidney disease for several years and her kidneys were only functioning at 10 percent capacity when the transplant was performed by Dr. Neal Glass. She was his third transplant at the time but since then the specialist has performed over 70 transplants.

Her kidneys were not removed, instead the third kidney was added on her right side, which she still tends to "protect." "For the longest time I could feel something inside me but then I gradually got used to it,"" she said.

Immediately after the transplant, Vickie started taking two anti-rejection medications, Prednisone and Imuran, which she will have to take for the rest of her life. She also has monthly blood tests at the Cogdell Memorial Hospital lab and every four months she returns to Lubbock for a consultation with Dr. Glass.

Vickie said she left the hospital nearly three years ago feeling incredibly energetic and ready to live life again. And even though there are side effects and possible risks to the medications she has to take, she said it is "worth it" because "they allow me to keep my new kidney."

In fact, the medications she takes can have 20 different side effects and she said she left the hospital in Lubbock "knowing what every one of them were."

"The medical staff wants transplant patients to know exactly what they will have to face," she said.

The medications can cause cancer and cataracts and since it also causes bones to deteriorate she has to take a calcium supplement. She also has to have a Pap Smear twice a year.

"The medication increased my appetite. I gained 40 pounds in six months. I was moody and I developed acne and it was all caused by the medication."

It also caused depression and mood swings.

She also has to be careful to never take her medication on an empty stomach since it can damage the stomach lining.

At one point, her weight went to 135 pounds but now she has lost down to 119. "That doesn't sound like a lot of weight to some people but when you are only 5 feet 2 inches tall it is a lot. I was starting to get tired again and wasn't feeling well and it was caused by the weight gain," she explained.

She said she tried diet pills but they didn't work for her. She would be so ravenous that she would find herself eating a bowl of salad at 9 a.m., anything to stop the hunger pangs.

Vickie never started any kind of exercise program but eventually she did find a diet aid which helped her "get past the slump."

"Even though I knew what to expect, that first year after the transplant was the toughest because everything was so new," she explained. "But as far as I am concerned the good far outweighs the bad."

Six months after the transplant, a routine blood test indicated her body might be rejecting her new kidney. Her medication was increased threefold for two weeks and during that time her appetite also increased similarly and she started gaining as much as two pounds a day.

Since that time, she has had no other problems with rejection. However, she is keenly aware that she can lose this kidney as in fact some of the patients she has met at the hospital have done.

But she said she doesn't dwell on that possibility and notes that her family is so close "another kidney would probably be made available."

Sometimes, Vickie said that weight gain due to fluid retention can signal that a body is trying to reject a kidney.

Another signal can be tenderness in the area where the kidney has been attached.

Since the transplant, Vickie said she is also able to think clearer and faster. She and her

Evening vows unite couple

Sabrina Suzan Robinson and Sean Howard Randolph were united in matrimony at 7 p.m. Sept. 9 in the First Baptist Church Chapel. Shawn Rhodes and Robbie Boyd officiated the double-ring vows.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Rex Robinson of Snyder. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ron Randolph of Snyder and Mrs. Connie Keen of Haltom City.

Vows were exchanged before a brass arch covered in greenery, white silk carnations, and forget-me-nots.

Organist Carla Thompson accompanied Ramona Cain of Abilene with "Only God Could Love You More."

Given in marriage by her father who wore a white tuxedo with light pink bow tie and cummerbund, the bride chose a formal imported gown of white taffeta and lace. The bodice was heavily beaded with pearls and sequins on re-embroidered Alencon lace. The design featured a high, illusion neckline with lace leg-o-mutton sleeves which tapered over the hands and were double shirred at the shoulders.

A deep, basque waistline fastened to the full skirt which featured gathered scallops embellished with hand-sewn pearls and sequins. The back was accented with a bow and streamers which flowed into a cathedral train.

The double-tiered bridal veil fastened to a floral wreath headpiece decorated with pearls and sequins. White silk calla lilies made up the bride's bouquet. Nephthytis foliage set off the creamy blossoms.

The bride's garter was pink with blue, white and pink rosebuds created by her cousin, Julie Johnson. The bride also carried the same Bible her mother carried when she was married, and a handkerchief given to her by her maternal great-grandmother.

Lisa Loyola served as maid of honor with Lisa Waller and Ramona Cain of Abilene attending the bride.

Each wore a tea-length white satin dress with a V-back and wide, light pink sash tied in a bow in the back. Light pink satin shoes set off the styles. Bouquets of two white calla lilies were set off by pink silk roses tied with white tulle and finished with a puffed tulle bow.

Best man was Lou Vicknair with groomsmen Kenneth Pickering and Donnie Davis of Sweetwater. Ushers were David Tate, Darrell Williams, and Kevin Keen of Hobbs, N.M., uncle of the groom.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with tails and white accessories. Male attendants wore regular white tuxedos accented by pink bow ties and cummerbunds. White shoes completed the formal attire.

Shondra Robinson, cousin of the bride, registered guests at a table covered in white and accented by pink carnations given by Susan Kiker and a white ceramic bride and groom made and given to the bride by her maid of honor. A white basket held rice bags.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Garden Room of the church. The bride's table was covered in white with a white lace overlay. Pink bows at each end of the table set off a brass vase holding pink silk roses and greenery arranged by Judy Aishman. Punch was served from a crystal bowl with silver accessories.

The three-tiered white cake was decorated with dark and light pink roses. Topping the cake was a white heart trimmed in pink lace holding wedding bells.

Servers were Eva Robinson of Seminole and GiGi Robinson of Huntsville, both sisters-in-law of the bride.

The groom's table was arranged and decorated by Mrs. Keith Pitner. A double horseshoe red velvet cake was covered in burgundy icing trimmed in light pink and light pink roses. Brass leaves highlighted the cake which rested on a brass tray. A brass coffee service and accessories set off napkins and mints in the bridal colors.

Servers were Denise Blythe and Hannah Randolph of Hobbs, N.M., sisters of the groom.

Following a honeymoon trip to Glorietta, N.M., the couple will reside in Sweetwater. Both are Snyder High School graduates. The bride is employed with Chevron in Snyder and the groom works for Grover Oil Co. of Sweetwater.

KIDS AND LOW CHOLESTEROL DIETS

Children eat and they grow. So, other than starting the baby on solid foods or getting the kids to eat their vegetables, most parents have few concerns.

Now, however, national health organizations and the media are telling parents they should also be concerned about whether their children are eating a "heart-healthy" diet.

Medical research studies of adults have clearly shown that eating a diet high in saturated fats and high in cholesterol directly increases the risk of heart disease. Other factors, especially smoking, high blood pressure, diabetes and a family history of heart disease add to that risk.

Heart-healthy eating, a term coined by the American Heart Association, means reducing total fat intake in the diet to 30 percent of calories, reducing saturated fats to about 10 percent of calories and reducing total dietary cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day or less.

Since most people don't count every calorie, let alone know the percentage of calories devoted to each type of fat, this gets translated into a generally low-fat, low-cholesterol diet — and a diet which may not be the best for young children in the family.

This diet advice has left many parents confused.

Parents should be concerned about their children's diets. A balanced diet is still most appropriate for all ages.

There is some disagreement among medical authorities as to the exact age when children should start eating a low-saturated fat diet. But they all agree that it shouldn't be before the age of two.

Medical studies of babies under age two whose parents put them on low-fat diets by giving them skim milk, for example, show the children suffer from slow growth and failure to thrive.

Since children need fat for normal growth and development, diets that are extremely low in fat are not desirable.

Severely restricting the amount of fat or cholesterol children eat would mean less meat, milk and cheese in their meals, which reduces excellent sources of calcium and iron that children need.

Parents can begin to instill heart-healthy eating habits in their children when they are preschoolers, but changes should be moderate. Children can eat what the family eats, as long as they get the nutrients and calories they need for growth and development.

In a family where adults are trying to cut down on total fat and cholesterol, that means eating

FEATURED THIS WEEK

For those cold days ahead, parents may want to take time out and read to their children. There are some excellent selections of classic favorites that can be read aloud together.

"Mike Mulligan and His Steam Shovel" by Virginia L. Burton is about a man who races against time to dig a cellar with his steam shovel in one day.

Eric Carle's "The Very Hungry Caterpillar" takes the young reader through the stages between caterpillar and butterfly.

A Scottie dog who becomes upset when a new cat invades his territory is the theme of "Angus and the Cat" by Marjorie Flack.

"Pinkerton, Behave!" explores the amusing antics of man's best friend who can't seem to behave. Steven Kellogg's Pinkerton becomes a hero in the end.

These are just a few suggestions of books to read aloud. So as winter's chill slowly begins to cowe[illegible]about, get a book, curl up with your child, and enjoy reading together.

Dunn community sets homecoming

A reunion of past and present residents of the Dunn Community will be held Nov. 12 at the Community Center. Registration will begin at 1 p.m.

Each family is asked to bring sandwiches, chips and cookies for the 5 p.m. meal. Drinks will be furnished by the community.

Old memorabilia and pictures of school and community or updates on grandkids are welcome.

Mrs. E.M. Ashley is chairman of the homecoming committee.

The winner of a solar-powered car race from Darwin to Adelaide, Australia, averaged 41.6 miles an hour over 1,950 miles.

Kidney transplant patient said fine

sister, Carol Waid, have grown a lot closer since the transplant. As it is they get together about three times a year and every February they exchange special gifts. They also talk on the phone a lot.

Vickie said that her sister has suffered no ill effects since donating her kidney and in fact the "only drawback" is that she can't wear a bikini swimsuit because of the scar.

"My parents have always been there for us if we needed something and they are really just glad to have me well," Vickie said.

She said she gets a lot of help around the house from her husband and three sons who don't mind pitching in and helping with the chores. That enabled her to seek full time work outside the home.

Another plus of the transplant is that six months after her surgery she said she started working toward her GED which she eventually earned. She had quit school in the ninth grade.

"I really think that the reason I was so slow in school was because my kidneys were failing but we didn't know it at the time," she said.

In general, Vickie said her life hasn't changed that much except that she feels like doing more things now, things the average, healthy person takes for granted.

Since her own transplant, Vickie has also come to value how important it is for organs to be donated. "Everyone in my family has a different attitude about it now also," she said.

"When you see sick people and little children who need a transplant you quickly come to realize how important they are. Everyone immediately improves and gets a return to health and vitality after a transplant," she said. "It's incredible."

On Sept. 28, the Texas Animal Health Commission adopted an emergency amendment to the regulations that restrict the movement of heifers from a quarantined herd.

The rule, in effect as of Oct. 1, brings Texas into compliance with U.S. Dept. of Agriculture guidelines, which are considered "minimal standards" for states.

According to the new regulations, the following rules must be observed:

—Regardless of age or vaccination status, heifers moved from quarantined herds must be "S" branded on the jaw or tailhead. Branding may be done on the premises or at the market.

—Approved personnel must issue a 1-27 (or "S" brand) permit before the animals are to be moved.

—The heifers may be sold through a livestock market — or be permitted for direct movement. Destinations are restricted to quarantined feedlots, quarantined pastures, or slaughter.

—Bull calves less than 18 months old, steers, and spayed heifers may be moved from a quarantined herd without restrictions.

These regulations also apply to heifers in the same consignment with cattle that test positive at the market. The CITE test will be available for test positive animals if they are vaccinates. A card positive and CITE negative animal will not restrict the remainder of the consignment. However, heifers in a consignment with a card positive, non-vaccinate, or CITE positive cattle must either be "S" branded prior to sale, or be sent home under permit and hold order.

This information was received by the Texas Animal Health Commission, P.O. Box 12966, Austin, TX 78711-2966. If you have questions regarding these regulations, you may call 512/-479-6697.

Scientists at Moulis, in the Pyrenees, have determined that an average-size man walking in a cave for an hour produces 20 to 25 liters of carbon dioxide, 30 grams of water, and a heat flow equivalent to a 175-watt light bulb.

The count goes on

By James Jacoby

Edith Freilich is one of those players who have won more North American championships than they can count. But she hasn't stopped counting the distribution of her opponents' hands. In today's deal, after East opened with a weak two-spade bid, Edith bid two no-trump, a natural overcall on minimum no-trump-opening values. North cue-bid three spades to look for a possible 4-4 heart fit, and South subsided in three no-trump.

She won the opening spade lead and led the 10 of hearts. West played low, and the 10 won the trick. West won the next heart trick with the ace and continued spades. Edith won and played another heart, picking up West's queen. After cashing dummy's fourth heart, she led a club back toward her queen. West followed with the eight, apparently signaling four cards in clubs. Edith was now disposed to believe that the diamond king was with West, and she further presumed that East had only a singleton, since he had shown up with three hearts and presumably had six spades. In addition, she trusted the helpful eight of clubs as being a true card. So she led the diamond queen from her hand. West followed low without pause.

Declarer believed that West would have covered with K-10-x-x and would have shown some reaction with K-x-x-x. Trusting her judgment, she rose with dummy's ace, dropping the singleton king from East. A low diamond back to her nine gave West a trick, but the defenders could not defeat three no-trump.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Kids need fats, snacks

lean meats with external fat trimmed, poultry with fat and skin removed, low-fat milk, cheese and other dairy products, and fewer eggs within a regular balanced diet that includes daily servings of vegetables, fruits and grain products.

Parents can stick with this lower fat menu while still providing whole milk for children under two. For older children, switching to 2% milk is acceptable.

Parents sometimes deny children snacks in the belief they're bad for them. But nutritious snacks are necessary for growing children to keep up their energy levels and can be part of a heart-healthy diet.

The following are ways to reduce saturated fat in the family diet, without sacrificing nutrition and adequate snacks for children:

—Keep healthy snacks on hand, such as fresh fruit, peanut butter spread on apple slices, unbuttered popcorn, low-fat yogurt and pudding made with low-fat milk.

—Choose lean cuts of red meat, usually labeled "select," and trim visible fat. Also prepare chicken without the skin.

—Try low-fat cheeses. Children typically like American cheese and there are lower-fat versions of these available in the supermarkets.

—Keep ice cream for a special treat. Instead, offer children fruit juice bars, sorbet, sherbet, ice milk or frozen yogurt for regular snacks.

—Choose lower fat cookies, such as fruit or raisin bars, ginger snaps or oatmeal cookies. Check the labels on cookie packages and avoid those that use the highly saturated coconut and palm kernel oils or animal fats.

Also read labels on other prepared foods to avoid saturated coconut and palm kernel oils or animal fats.

—Use a tub variety of margarine that lists a liquid vegetable oil first on the list of ingredients.

Dear Patients and Friends:
I will be closing my medical practice in Snyder, effective November 9, 1988. I will be joining Family Medicine Associates in Stamford, Texas. I wanted to take this opportunity to thank the many friends and patients of Snyder and the surrounding communities for your friendships. It has been a privilege for me to be a part of your health care for the past four years.
For patients with medical records in my office, please notify my office as soon as possible, so they may be released.
Best wishes for your future health and happiness.
Sincerely,
Neil Gibson, D.O.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Oct. 30, 1988

Projects or ventures you conceive that are imaginative have excellent chances for success in the year ahead. Let your brain lead your feet to the bank.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although you're likely to be very direct and frank in your discussions with others today, you'll unleash your words in such a charming fashion no one will be offended. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Both reasoning and intuitive faculties will be keenly tuned today. This should give you a big advantage in situations that involve money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be guided by your instincts today to do the best for the greatest number. The more unselfish you are, the more fortunate you're apt to be.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep your priorities in focus today and put your emphasis on what is most productive. Important objectives can be achieved.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Good things could happen for you through friends who have your best interest at heart, especially those you've gone out of your way to help in the past.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you may feel inclined to negate your own logic in order to give credence to less wise counsel from friends. Your perceptions may be superior.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Partnerships could work out rather well today if you and your counterpart's ideals are in harmony. Neither should lower standards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Subtle changes are stirring that could prove to be of benefit materially. However, you'll have to be watchful and alert to recognize the signals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your greatest asset today is the ability to get along with others on a one-to-one basis. You'll have several opportunities to test this out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your efforts will be greatly appreciated today if you step in and help where you are needed. Making others look good will reflect favorably on you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The influence that you'll have over your peers today may be much stronger than you realize. It will be your sincerity that will make you effective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your thoughts are likely to be focused today on what you can do for those you love. Someone else who has only you in mind will be thinking similarly.

Your Birthday

Oct. 31, 1988

A number of good things could come in small packages in the year ahead, but you could also get a parcel of considerable size. You'll direct the event, but Lady Luck will write the script.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Pieces you've been unable to fit together could blend rather magically today. Make your move now if you have ambition on the burner. Major changes are ahead for Scorpio in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Things are likely to work out to your ultimate satisfaction if you play it loose. Frustrations will be robbed of their sting when treated philosophically.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If something can be constructively adjusted today where your work is concerned, don't just study the situation, take positive measures to improve it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have the ability to make everyone with whom you deal today feel important. This is an asset that will encourage others to hook up with you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Drop whatever you're doing today if you see a way to utilize your efforts for something profitable. You could be exceptionally lucky in material matters.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your optimistic attitude will affect people favorably. You'll come off like a winner who they will want to emulate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Lady Luck tends to favor you today in situations where money is concerned. She'll be doing all she can to help you get a slice of the pie.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Operating independently of others will enhance your chances for success today. People who are not in tune with your mind set could slow you down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There are strong indications that you may benefit from two unrelated sources. The greatest boon could come from the least expected channel.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be charismatic to begin with today, but you'll be even more appealing when there are attractive members of the opposite sex present.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The percentages are on your side today for getting a favorable response regarding requests you make for career or financial assistance.

Firm wants skeleton in every closet

GATESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Old Dr. Frankenstein would think he died and went to heaven if he could visit two small buildings in central Texas: a leg here, an arm there, a shelf full of hearts and skulls and skeletons by the dozen.

But it's not something out of a Halloween horror movie; it's the big business of bones. Medical Plastics Laboratory Inc., which claims it is the only U.S. company to make life-size reproductions of skeletons, says the product rakes in millions of dollars.

Thousands of the skeletons are used by doctors, hospitals and medical schools around the world. The bones also have made their way into rock music videos by the Grateful Dead and props for the "Miami Vice" TV series.

"There's really no one we can't sell to," Jerry Smith, director of special projects, said recently. "We have something for everybody."

Medical Plastics, now in its fourth decade, claims it is the first company in the world to take a human skeleton, make molds and duplicate it completely.

Until 1985, real skeletons were imported from India. But that source was lost when the Indian government, concerned about grave robbing, halted such sales.

"Right now, there is a market simply because there are no longer human bones available," said Joe Herndon, Medical Plastics' national sales manager. "So people have no choice. They have to buy a plastic or reproduction of a skeleton. And we feel we produce the one that has the greatest detail."

In the past two years, sales of skeletons and other Medical Plastics products such as first-aid training mannequins have doubled to $3 million, and should approach $5 million a year, Herndon said.

"Our biggest competitors are companies in West Germany," he said. "To my knowledge, we are still the only people in the U.S. who do this, who make a life-size reproduction of a human skeleton."

The company, which employs 125 people, was started in 1949 by two Gatesville physicians and a dentist who grew tired of waiting for months and months to get a model of a skull.

According to Herndon, the three were booted out of their homes by their wives because the plastics they were experimenting with smelled so bad. They finally produced their first skull in an old chicken coop.

The skull — dubbed "Yorick" after the skull in "Hamlet" — is on display in a glass case in the company's office lobby.

From skulls, the company evolved to full skeletons, organs and training mannequins, which account for more than half the business, according to Herndon.

The mannequins, which are bought by the government and the armed forces, are used to teach emergency workers and others how to treat wounds, administer injections and perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Some have names. Mr. Hurt, for example, sports a broken nose and jaw and a skull fracture.

The key to the company's skeletal success is that the facsimile is so detailed it defies detection as artificial.

Bones are made from a plastic that has the same consistency, weight and color as real bones. They even react the same under X-rays.

"It's got to be perfect," said Sheli Allen, one of several people who assemble the skeletons. "If it's not perfect, then it won't look like a real body."

Depending on the amount of custom work, full-size skeletons range in price from $995 to nearly $3,500. Less detailed models, intended for elementary school use, start at $365.

Despite all efforts, however, some bones — particularly those inside the skull and in the nasal cavity — defy human attempts to copy.

Government tells firm to resume distribution of pill for abortion

PARIS (AP) — Health Minister Claude Evin today ordered a pharmaceutical company to resume distribution of an abortion pill in the interest of public health, and the company said it would comply, the ministry said.

The company, Roussel Uclaf, announced Wednesday it was pulling the drug off the market in response to an "outcry of public opinion at home and aboard" and a threatened boycott of its products.

The Health Ministry statement was issued after Evin met with executives of the company, which manufactures the RU 486 pill also known as Mifepristone.

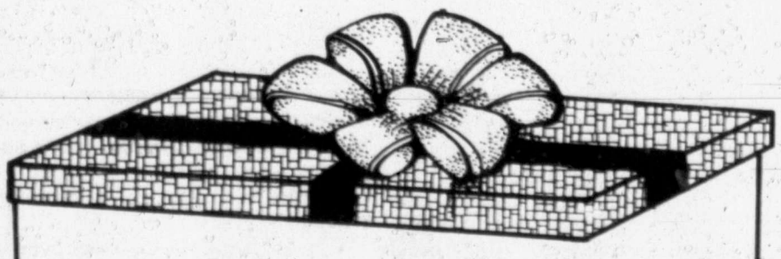

On Thursday, a Roussel-Uclaf vice president, Pierre Joly, said the company had not abandoned hopes of distributing the drug.

The ministry statement said Evin summoned Joly to his office to express his astonishment the company's decision.

Scientist reports bats are helpful

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — To most people, the sight of a sinister-looking, winged creature flying by night and emitting eery cries prompts fear and dread.

But bats shouldn't give people the creepy-crawlies and don't deserve their macabre reputation, say biologists who study the creatures.

"We bring bats into class and people just shudder," said Robert Baker, director of the Natural Science Research Laboratory at Texas Tech University. "It's on the same order as seeing a rattlesnake. They overreact."

Actually, he says, bats are a diverse group of animals who help man by devouring pesky insects, pollinating trees and shrubs and serving as research animals. In China, they are seen as good luck.

"One of the reasons bats are misunderstood is that they're creatures of the night," he said.

Calling someone "blind as a bat" isn't accurate, because all bats have sight, Baker said, although most depend on their acute auditory sense to navigate at night.

And, however, eery an atmosphere it creates at home, some scientists even keep bats as pets, Baker said.

"People keep them for many years and they become quite attached," he said. "Sometimes people will come into the room, and the bats will fly over to see them, like a dog running up to greet you."

Fossil records trace human ancestors back 2 million years.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I received an invitation to a wedding reception. The bride is a longtime family friend of my husband's. We have socialized with her for more than 15 years.

The invitation was addressed to "Mr. and Mrs.," so we certainly did not bring our children, who are 6 and 13 years old.

When we got to the reception, we saw children of all ages there! Several people asked me where our children were. I simply said they were at home with a sitter.

Now I am wondering why there were other children at the reception if mine were not included. Are there functions where some people's children are invited, but not others?

I told my husband I thought this was very strange and it bothered me. He said if it bothered me, I should call the bride and ask her to clarify this. I did not want to call her, but I just can't let this go, Abby. Please help, but do not use our real names.

MYSTIFIED

DEAR MYSTIFIED: People with good manners do not bring their children unless they have been specifically invited. Unfortunately, some parents do it anyway. There are some functions to which some people's children (usually family members) are invited, but others are not.

You used excellent judgment in not calling the hostess and demanding a clarification. Let it go.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of two healthy, precious boys, ages 3 and 5. Both are very attractive children, but the younger ("Adam") has strikingly beautiful red hair, and every time we go out in public, someone is sure to make a fuss over him while his older brother ("Aaron") is silently hurt.

I know these people would never be intentionally unkind, and they're not even aware of what they may be doing to the other child. Surely they could find something nice to say about the other boy to include him. I hurt for Aaron, and try to include him myself by pulling him close and saying, "Yes, God has certainly blessed me with two fine-looking sons."

I know this situation bothers Aaron because we have discussed it more than once, and the jealousy is already too pronounced for my liking. I reassure him that what's "inside" counts for more than what's "outside" — but that is not easy for a small child to understand.

Abby, please remind people never to fuss over one child to the exclusion of the other, especially when it is based on physical appearance alone. Sometimes what is meant to be an act of generosity toward one can be an act of cruelty to another.

TORN MOM

DEAR MOM: I'm sure there are many parents who will identify with this problem. Thank you for the reminder.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the man whose wife had gained 45 pounds and refused even to try to lose weight. You advised: "Quit nagging her. A loving husband will accept his wife the way she is." Then you added, "I've yet to hear from a woman who would tell her overweight husband to either shape up or ship out." Well, you're hearing from one now.

My first husband was somewhat overweight when we married. He quickly added extra pounds. After experiencing high blood pressure, kidney stones and a heart problem, his physician told him to lose weight or prepare for surgery. The last time I saw him, he had gone up six suit sizes. I said goodbye.

I made my second husband model for me in his underwear before we were married. He was 6-2, 175 pounds, handsome, and a doctor to boot. Immediately after our marriage he started to put on weight. By our 10th anniversary he had gained 90 pounds. (His breasts were larger than mine and he absolutely crushed me when we made love.) Meanwhile I stayed within five pounds of what I weighed when I married him. He was shocked when I left him.

I realize that not everyone can stay slim and trim, but when a person quits worrying about his health and appearance, how can he expect his mate to find him desirable?

ANTI-FAT

DEAR ANTI-FAT: "Fat," believe it or not, lies in the eye of the beholder. Fat and sloppy is not acceptable. Neither is thin and sloppy. Some overweight people are meticulously groomed and stunningly dressed.

We owe it to those we love — and those who love us — to do whatever it takes to maintain our health. When obesity becomes a health problem, it's time to bite the bullet instead of the blintz. But to leave a person because he or she has become fat? What ever happened to love and caring?

DEAR ABBY: When someone tells my husband he looks good, he immediately says, "I should only feel as good as I look," then he goes into a long spiel about all his health problems, his medications and his doctors. Most people listen politely but I can tell that they are bored. It's very embarrassing.

I've tried to tell him that "Hello, how are you?" is meant only as a friendly greeting; nobody is interested in hearing a complete medical report.

Abby, he is a dear man and I love him. How can I keep him from boring everyone he meets?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Keep reminding him that "How are you?" should not be taken literally by anyone but his physicians — that a cheery, "I'm fine, thank you," is the most appropriate response.

Your problem brings to mind this little poem I've kept for many years. Clip it and give it to your dear man. It could be good for what ails him:

TALK HEALTH
by Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Talk health. That dreary never-ending tale
Of mortal maladies is worn and stale;
You cannot charm or interest or please
By harping on that minor chord, disease.
So, say that you are well and all is well with you
And God shall hear your words and make them true.

Congressman helps Afghan resistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charlie Wilson says congressman rarely score points at home when they tinker in international affairs, but he's not worried his support of the Afghan resistance cost him any votes back in East Texas.

"People in Lufkin like to see the Russians get their butts kicked," said Wilson, a Democrat credited with supplying the Afghan Mujahideen with hand-held but sophisticated weaponry that brought down the Soviet war machine and forced its retreat.

Wilson said he became almost fanatical about helping the Mujahideen's fierce but underfunded fight against the Soviets in 1982, almost three years after the Dec. 27, 1979, invasion, and after his first visit to the rugged, mountainous and primitive country.

It was a natural fit, Wilson and the Mujahideen: A colorful man and a colorful people, united in their loathing of the communists and their love of a good warrior, said Henry Kriegel, executive director of the Committee for a Free Afghanistan, a non-profit educational and humanitarian organization.

"It was obvious the Afghans had made a decision to fight no matter what," said Wilson. "They were killing Russian soldiers with stones, inferior rifles, and they looked very worthy of our help. They looked like they would fight to death against the communist invaders."

A swashbuckling kind of guy, tall and match-stick thin, Wilson revers the Mujahideen — a Muslim word for holy warrior who fights the infidel invader.

"The Afghan tribesmen are probably the fiercest warriors in the world. They are perfectly willing to die; they are very clever. They are very intelligent, very brave, very ferocious. They're childlike in the way they like to pose like the fearless warrior and they are the fearless warrior."

He describes them as gentle fathers, excellent horsemen, and said they have an instinctive ability with hand-held weapons — the only kind they'll use.

"If it shoots, they can handle it," Wilson said last week. "They have steady hands and good eyesight."

The Afghans' arsenal, however, held just a pitiful supply of the old British Enfield rifles, Wilson said, holding one he keeps in his office.

Although the Enfields are useful in sniper attacks, Wilson said the Mujahideen needed more. He helped put in their steady hands the powerful, 34-pound Stinger missle — capable of shooting down armored helicopters and other aircraft.

The decision to send the stingers came down to President Reagan, but Wilson said he and Sen. Gordon J. Humphrey, R-N.H., can take credit for keeping the issue "fresh on everybody's mind and that appropriations were adequate for the Mujahideen and Pakistan."

Kreigel said Wilson was "very instrumental in securing Stingers and other sophisticated weapons and humanitarian aid to the Mujahideen and for this he will be always remembered in Afghan history."

The extent of the spending is classified, Wilson said. News reports have pegged the cost over the past six years at $1.5 billion to $3 billion.

The result of the aide, Wilson said, was that a ragged band of warriors drove the Soviets from their land and caused them enormous losses.

In a United Nations-sponsored accord reached April 14 between Pakistan and the Kabul government, and guaranteed by the United States and the Soviet Union, the Soviets agreed to begin withdrawing their troops over nine months. The first left May 15.

"It was the first time the Red Army was driven off of soil that it's occupied since 1942 — by a bunch of ragged, illiterate sheepherders with good eyesight, steady hands, and who are fearless," Wilson said.

The Mujahideen, however, aren't letting the Russians leave in peace, he said, because one of their traditions holds that someone who kills an invader is elevated to a "ghazi," a revered warrior status.

The Afghans themselves face a desperate situation at home, where clinics and schools have been destroyed, irrigation systems have been wiped out, and one-third of the population are refugees in Pakistan. One million people died; most of them civilians who were bombed and strafed, he said.

FACTS ABOUT WORKMAN'S COMPENSATION

1. The Texas Legislature will pass and the governor will sign a law to reform the workman's compensation system.

2. Plaintiff lawyers will challenge the constitutionality of the new workman's compensation reform law.

3. The future of the bill will be decided by the Texas Supreme Court which currently is influenced by plaintiff attorneys.

4. The only hope for the economic future of Texas is to elect a Supreme Court which will decide this and all cases on the merits of law--not on the basis of campaign contributions.

5. The Choice is Clear on Nov. 8. Texans can put a majority on the 9-member Texas Supreme Court as six seats are on the ballot.

Opponents of these candidates, some of them incumbent members of the court, have received millions of dollars in campaign contributions from plaintiff lawyers and plaintiff law firms. Why--because suing is big business in Texas.

Genital warts can be cleared up

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter (20) has condylomas and I (48) have verruca vulgaris. My husband does not have warts nor does my daughter's boyfriend. We don't understand where they come from and wish to keep our two younger daughters from catching them. Can you help?

DEAR READER: Condylomas and verruca are skin lesions casueed by viruses usually spread by sexual contact. These are often called genital warts. They can be surgically removed (by lasers or electrocautery) or medically treated by topical compounds such as podophyllin.

Recently, reports in the medical literature have shown that a variety of anti-viral agents, especially interferon, may be helpful in curing genital warts. Check with your doctor about which form of therapy would be appropriate for you and your daughter. The physician should also be able to tell you how your two younger daughters can be protected.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Whenever my husband urinates, it looks like bubble bath in the water. Is this something to worry about?

DEAR READER: Given the information you supply, I can't say. The most common cause of the peculiar situation you describe is detergent or soap in the water of the toilet bowl. This material is "activated," rather like bubbles in a bubble-bath, by the force of the urinary stream.

Your mind can be set at ease if your husband will undergo a simple urinalysis, during which the doctor will check for unusual substances in the urine. If your husband is OK, you can avoid worry — and direct your attention to the bowl.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there a remedy for lazy eye?

DEAR READER: The term "lazy eye" usually refers to an imbalance of the ocular muscles that move the eyeballs. When this occurs, one or the other eye tends to "wander," instead of focusing on an object. Most people with this condition selectively use one eye as the dominant eye (or alternate between the two). By choosing the image coming into one eye, either consciously or unconsciously, they avoid having double vision, a common consequence of two different images being transmitted to the brain.

Some forms of "lazy eye" can be helped by special muscular exercises. However, most cases require surgical correction. I suggest that any person with this condition seek a consultation with an ophthalmologist, a specialist who can advise which treatment is appropriate.

British health care is near collapse

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Long considered to be the pioneer model for government-controlled medical care, Britain's National Health Service is close to collapse. Recent articles in the lay press (New York Times, Aug. 7, 1988) and in the medical literature (Medical Economics, July 18, 1988) have underscored the tenuousness of the 40-year-old NHS.

Unquestionably, the socialist dream is in crisis. Because backward-minded U.S. health-theorists have been looking to NHS for the answers to our own health-care problems, the American consumer needs to understand how the British system is failing its citizens.

To begin with, at latest count, almost a million patients are waiting for treatment in NHS. In some parts of the United Kingdom, patients who need elective surgery — such as hip replacements and cataract extractions — are faced with a wait of up to four years. During 1987, 10,000 operations were postponed, in large part because hospitals were filled. The 500,000 operations a year done "privately" undoubtedly reduce some of the frustration at having to wait interminable periods for treatment.

Britishers are rightly indignant that their needs are not being promptly met. Yet, last June, a survey showed that 64 percent of British adults favored "total state funding" for NHS, despite the enormous financial commitment required.

Second, hospitals are being forced to close beds at a time when more beds are needed. Last year alone, 35,000 acute-care beds were removed from service, further accentuating the schism between the need for health care and its availability.

Third, English nurses are poorly paid by international standards, including ours. Each year, about 30,000 nurses quit the system, often to emigrate to other countries or to find other professions in which salaries are more commensurate with skill. Last winter, tens of thousands of British nurses went on strike to dramatize their dissatisfaction.

To be sure, Britain's health service is reflecting the same difficulties faced by most developed nations. These include the soaring cost of high-technology medicine, an aging population that requires more medical care, higher public expectations and increasing disenchantment by doctors in the system.

Some experts claim that NHS is in a shambles because of poor management. In fact, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher continues to push for privatization of health care. Although virtually all British MDs are employed by NHS, most doctors supplement their incomes with private consulting work. Thus, one could claim, the British socialized medical scheme is being kept alive by free enterprise.

Other experts believe that NHS is in trouble because of inadequate funding. Britain spends 6.2 percent of its gross national product on health services, in comparison to France's 8.5 percent and the United States' 11.1 percent. Certainly, more funding is necessary. NHS now cares for six million in-patients and 53 million out-patients a year. The health system employs 1.25 million people, making it second only to the Soviet army as the largest employer in Europe. You can't run this type of operation on a shoestring. However, like their American counterparts, the British seem to be unwilling to cough up the extra taxes to sustain the huge enterprise.

At its inception, NHS promised to each British citizen equal access to "whatever medical treatment he requires, in whatever form he requires." That promise has been shattered. Unless NHS is infused with cash — and a lot of it — the program will die a slow and painful death. Do we Americans want to model our own health system on such a dismal failure?

Michael Dukakis, the Democrat Presidential candidate, has stated that if elected, he will "strive to establish a national health care system in the United States. Health care is a right," he says. I hope that he doesn't propose to copy the two-tiered program of health-care rationing that the British are putting up with. We surely deserve a healthier system than that.

Celebrities gather for Texas 'roast'

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Clayton Williams Jr. admits he's more of a ham than a roast, but submitted willingly while some statewide celebrities took their best shots at the flamboyant West Texas oilman.

The roasters for Thursday night's $100-a-plate, black tie event, benefiting the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness, included Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis, former Speaker Billy Clayton, television's Dr. Red Duke and Texas A&M coach Jackie Sherrill.

The celebrities took turns spinning old yarns, telling Aggie jokes and dishing out one-liners to poke fun at the effervescent Williams, a never-say-die Aggie who with his love of cattle, oil and hunting typifies Texas.

"He the best material I've ever seen for an Aggie joke," said Lewis.

In deference to Williams' Wild West spirit, the roasters all sported the West Texas version of black tie attire: tuxedo jacket and black satin cummerbund over faded blue jeans and boots.

The 57-year-old Williams, known as Claytie to his friends, made his fortune in the Giddings oil field in south central Texas. He has diversified into real estate, banking and communications.

"He's shy, a real shrinking violet. Hardly anyone knows he's around. Just ask AT&T," joked Hobby, referring to one of Clayton's more recent celebrated episodes.

Williams rode a horse up the steps of the Capitol as leader of a horseback-mounted "Posse for the People" in 1987 to protest a state Senate bill that would have deregulated AT&T.

After the bill failed, he started his own long-distance company, Claydesta Communications, which has grown into the largest long-distance company headquartered in Texas, serving more than 60,000 customers.

Dressed in Western garb, Williams stars in commercials for the company filmed on his ranch, but sometimes gets a little tongue-tied, as numerous outtakes from the commercials showed.

But Williams' business success is almost overshadowed by his fondness for practical jokes and rabid support of his alma mater.

It's not hard for visitors to Midland to guess where Williams went to school.

"He flies his (Aggie) flag everwhere — over his buildings, at his ranch, at his cattle sales and over his outhouse," said longtime friend Aaron Geibel.

A swimming pool shaped like a Aggie boot is among the adornments at his Alpine ranch.

Many differences between U.S., Soviet space shuttles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. space shuttle was never equipped for an unmanned test flight like the one planned tonight for the Soviets' look-alike orbiter. At the time, the program was behind schedule, money was tight and the technology was not well developed.

NASA, however, says it had confidence that its design would work the first time when the shuttle Columbia made its debut more than seven years ago.

Despite the striking resemblance of the two spacecraft, there are numerous other differences between them.

The Soviet shuttle's main engines will be on the Energia rocket instead of on the reusable orbiter. The craft has small jet engines that give it greater maneuverability for landing. And it has liquid-fuel booster rockets instead of solid-fuel boosters like the one that destroyed Challenger in January 1986, grounding the American program for 32 months.

The Soviet Union announced Wednesday that its shuttle would be launched at 11:23 p.m. EDT today, or 6:23 a.m. Moscow time Saturday. The shuttle is named Buran, Russian for snowstorm.

Soviet officials said Buran's first flight would be pilotless to avoid deaths in case of an accident like the Challenger explosion.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said its decision to have two astronauts pilot the first U.S. shuttle reflected engineers' confidence that it would work the first time, but only if humans were aboard.

Spacecraft in the earlier Mercury, Gemini and Apollo programs underwent extensive unmanned testing before men flew them.

But the shuttle program was running three years behind schedule and financial pressure on NASA was rising.

Flying the shuttle without astronauts would have required extensive and expensive changes to allow the automatic pilot to respond to radio commands.

Officials also noted that the American shuttle was built with the technology of the early 1970s, when it would have been more difficult to develop an automated landing system for so complex a craft. The Soviets, coming along a decade later, could take advantage of the latest developments.

As a precaution, the U.S. shuttle included ejection seats for the two pilots who flew early shakedown missions. But there was room for only two such devices, and they were removed when crews expanded.

The Soviet shuttle will be boosted into orbit by the new Energia rocket, which can lift a 220,000-pound payload. That rivals the power of America's huge Saturn 5 rocket, which was scrapped for economy reasons after taking six Apollo crews to the moon.

The liquid-hydrogen, liquid-oxygen booster has had only one test flight, in May 1987. The Soviets called the test a success, even though the payload failed to reach orbit. Several other technical problems cropped up during the flight, and engineers worked for months to correct them.

The Soviet shuttle's main engines are attached to the Energia, meaning they will be jettisoned and cannot be reused. On the U.S. shuttle, the main motors are part of the orbiter and can be reflown up to 55 times.

Lawn darts are banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission voted Friday to ban lawn darts, which have been implicated in several recent deaths and injuries of children, and to extend a ban on three-wheel all-terrain vehicles.

The commission voted 2-0 to prohibit sale of lawn darts, a ban which could take effect as soon as December, prior to the Christmas shopping rush.

Commissioner Carol Dawson abstained from the vote, but issued a plea for adults who already have lawn darts in their homes to keep them out of the hands of children.

In the last 10 years, an estimated 150 to 200 youngsters have suffered severe injuries when these heavy darts struck and penetrated their skulls, the commission was told.

Juarez crime said on the decrease

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Police say new restrictions on the sale of alcohol, plus increased patrolling of bars and outlying subdivisions, have resulted in a 32 percent decrease in crime in one month.

The decrease during the 30-day period ending in mid-October comes during a year of monthly increases in crime.

Residents' complaints and arrests totaled 6,086 from mid-September to mid-October, said Hector Chavez Soto, in charge of statisics with the Juarez police department.

THAWING FROZEN MEAT

If is not safe to thaw frozen meat or poultry on the countertop. Room temperature encourages the growth of bacteria. To safely thaw meat, take it out of the freezer and refrigerate it overnight. For quick thawing, use a mircowave oven, or put the meat in a watertight plastic bag and emerse it in cold water, changing the water often. The cold water will control bacteria growth on the outside while the inside thaws.

Above the Fold

By Donny Brown

Pop was a self-described yarn teller who was essentially uneducated in the formal fashion. He had a long memory, though, and he said he grew up on tales from "windy old men."

When he died in January of last year at age 84, he left his six surviving children with a catalogue of his own windy stories. At least one is appropriate for Halloween.

In the early days of marriage to our mother, they rented a cabin in the rough country surrounding Gainesville in Cooke County.

They married in June of 1923, so this was a time when the hours of daylight determined your work schedule and night was spent, at least in that rural region, around a coal oil lamp.

It was, by his description, a large log cabin with an open ceiling and rafters. Shortly after moving in, he said, his bride coerced him to climb into the eaves of the "house" to inspect for bird's nests or bats.

By this time it was after sunset, he said, so he used a kitchen chair to boost himself high enough, then had mother hand him up the lamp to provide some light.

The rafters crisscrossed the dark ceiling like the ribs of a ship, forming a series of pyramid-shaped triangles.

These he mounted one at a time until, at the peak of one, he spotted a glint of light, the image of the lamp's burning wick apparently reflecting off of a glass surface.

Moving closer, he saw a small enclosed area, a smaller triangle built-in at the apex of two ceiling joists. Through its cracks, he said, he saw what appeared to be a jar or bottle.

The small boards covering it were nailed, but they had warped outward and he reckoned a little prying--the enclosure was above his head--would shake them free.

He sent mother to find a tool, and he spent his time looking at the glass container through the cracks, still hampered by the dim light thrown off by the lamp.

The glass appeared to have some type of liquid in it, he said.

Mother returned, and he reached over his head to pry a board away. The loosest one faced away from him and, after breaking it free, he had to reach around to the front of the box "blind as a bat" to its contents.

His fingers encountered the cool, hard feel of glass and he said his hand was a fit around what seemed to be a Mason canning jar.

Pulling it from its dark hole, he could feel a liquid sloshing against the glass walls and further the distinct impression that something was bumping against the glass from the inside.

In this position, he was balancing on the overhead beam, holding a lamp in one hand and the jar in the other. Before he could take a closer look, he said, he hunkered down on the rafter. Then he moved the lamp closer to the jar.

Inside it was a human hand.

It was floating in a liquid he took to be alcohol, filled almost to the brim.

On closer inspection, he saw it wasn't the entire hand but what appeared to be the four fingers and thumb cut off just below the knuckles. The fingers were curled like that of a sleeping baby.

At this point, we always asked him what he did next. "Why, I got down out of the roof, of course."

The jar was placed outside, he said, the questions surrounding it better answered in the light of day.

As it turned out, the explanation was known to the neighbors. A former tenant of the cabin had suffered an accident while chopping wood, accidentially severing his left hand in the way described.

"We never could figure out why he saved it, though," Pop would end the story.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

"Is this Deanie Mills?" said the shy voice over what sounded like a long-distance line.

"You got her," I said with a smile, thinking it was my book editor returning my call.

"You don't know me," she began hesitantly, "I'm calling from South Dakota...."

I was not surprised, any more than I had been when I received calls from New Jersey and the Texas Panhandle, or the letters from Michigan, Washington state, Iowa, Georgia, or West Virginia.

"I read your article in the June issue of 'Parents,'" she went on, "the one about coping with chronic illness and raising kids. You mentioned that you suffer from fibrositis and, well, I have it too, and if it hadn't been for your article, I don't know what I'd have done! Nobody ever heard of it before; the doctors don't know what to do...."

I let her talk. They talk for hours, these women, and their letters go on for pages and pages about this little-known disease which resembles rheumatoid arthritis in every way except, mercifully, the crippling. Because there is no known test for diagnosis, and because there is no known treament, many of us have become medical science's guinea pigs. One woman's doctor gave her a hysterectomy; one woman lost 30 pounds at her doctor's request; and one woman's doctor was so sure it was an emotional problem that he doped her up on so many anti-depressants that she can no longer drive a car. None of these treatments have helped.

I probe into their backgrounds, knowing that a major illness is nearly always precipitated by a major life-loss or crisis within two years before onset of symptoms. I hear tragic tales of lost children, the death of parents, job lay-offs, spousal heart attacks.

Then I talk to them about taking responsibility for their own health. "If the drugs aren't helping you," I tell them, "then stop taking them. It is YOUR body, after all, not your doctor's." I talk to them about reversing their attitudes toward life. "Give up perfectionism," I say. "It's a killer." I tell them to rearrange their priorities. "It's much more important that you cuddle your child than that you wash the dishes."

I teach them to slow down, to meditate, to visualize their body's own immune system fighting off the disease. I tell them to stop praying that God will heal them and to sit back and let God show them how they can heal themselves.

Many of these women are much, much sicker than I am, although I was much sicker five years ago than I am now. I believe that my personal battle against the tyranny of disease has taught me some valuable lessons that I can pass on...but I've also learned, to my considerable dismay, that some people CHOOSE the victim role in life. Some people want to be sick.

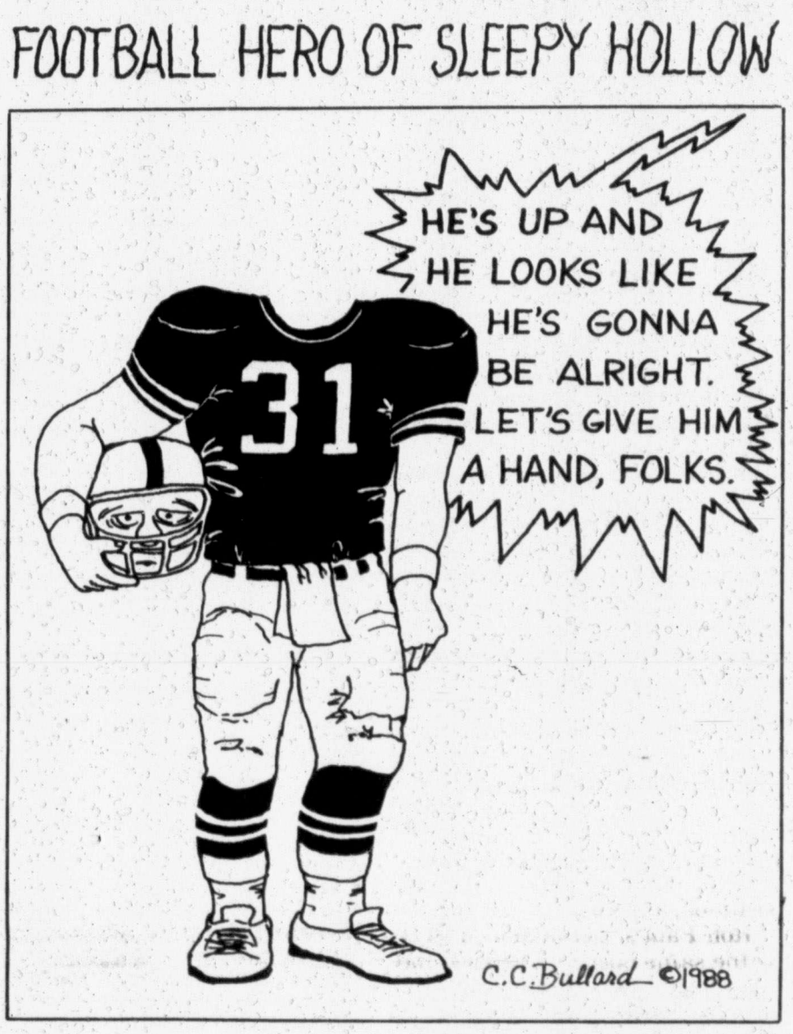

They cry, sometimes, the strangers on the phone. But we always find something to laugh about, we battle-scarred warriors. They want hope so very desperately. They want me to tell them there's a cure, that one day they'll be healthy again. I can't do that, but I can say, "You're going to make it. You are."

We talked for two hours, the woman from South Dakota and me. She's a single mother, on Social Security disability, barely able to walk. I went outside and saddled up the big black and took him out across a pasture golden with October's evening light. The air seemed to be holding its breath — I couldn't even hear the tractor over in the next pasture, though I could see its smoke.

Everywhere were the riches of autumn, fields gold and emerald and a sapphire sky. All I could hear was the symphony of the insects. It was a long way from the Flint, Michigan factory where one woman works, operating a stamp press on a concrete floor all day, suffering such agonies of pain she can barely talk to her coworkers, ever fearful of losing her job which is the sole support of her son.

I kicked the big black into an easy, rocking lope. I knew my legs would hurt later, but I didn't care — the point was, I COULD DO IT. Somehow we hit a rhythm and for a few delirious moments...I was floating...just floating across the pastures with my hair in the wind...and I felt, just for a moment, a Oneness, a Unity that is indescribable but real all the same.

And I thought of the scripture that says, "To whom much is given shall much be required." But the burden was light and the evening was cool in my face and we rocked on, the big black and me, until the colors blurred together and all I could hear was the pounding of his hooves.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY
October 23

No-pass, no-play figures reported Sunday for Snyder Junior High indicated 26.2 percent of students enrolled failed at least one grade during the first six-weeks.

By grade level, 28.8 percent of the seventh graders failed at least one subject; and 23.6 percent of the eighth graders.

The first in a series of articles related to the TASP test for college-bound seniors was included in Sunday's SDN.

Beginning next fall, all freshmen entering Texas colleges and universities will be required to take the test.

MONDAY
October 24

Scurry County commissioners heard Sheriff Keith Collier report Monday that fire alarms and smoke removal fans will have to be changed in the county jail to satisfy the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

The floor of the Scurry County Coliseum was the scene Tuesday for the start of two days of exit level testing for Snyder High School juniors.

On Tuesday, juniors took the math portion of the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) test, followed on Wednesday by the English Language Arts portion.

WEDNESDAY
October 26

Local and area political candidates attended a political coffee Wednesday morning at the Snyder Junior High School patio.

Among those attending were State Sen. Steven Carriker of Roby, state representative candidate Rod Waller, Republican incumbent district judge Gene Dulaney and his Democratic opponent Leland "Pete" Greene and County Attorney Michael Line.

The fall rally for the Texas unit of the Avion Travelcade Club began Wednesday at the Scurry County Coliseum with an afternoon registration.

Wednesday morning, more than 60 travel trailers had already arrived with approximately 100 expected. The Avion group held its fall rally in Snyder in 1986 also and more than 80 trailers were here for that event.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements campaigned in Snyder for almost two hours Wednesday, taking the opportunity to praise and support presidential candidate George Bush and to lambaste Austin District Judge Harley Clark, whose ruling in the case Edgewood vs. Kirby now threatens how Texas allocates funds to its 1,100 school districts.

Clements' message regarding Bush was to the point. That Republicans should not be "lulled into a false sense of security" based upon polls which show their candidate far ahead of Democratic nominee Michael Dukakis.

The general contractor for the Winston Field airport renovation project told an estimated 250 people at a Wednesday air show at the field that his company put more than $97,000 into Snyder's economy during the project.

Bob Price of Price Construction in Big Spring said during a 2 p.m. ceremony that living expenses, materials purchased locally, salaries to eight Snyder men who were employed during the job and numerous other expenditures resulted in almost $100,000 being spent here.

The show featured more than 80 locally based aircraft and a Marine Corps Corsair fighter plane and a B-25 bomber owned respectively by Bill Arnot and Howard Pardue, both of Breckenridge.

THURSDAY
October 27

General guidelines for incentive offers expected to be made to recruit both an internal medicine specialist and a general surgeon here were approved Thursday by the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board.

Simultaneously, income estimates that both specialties might be expected to generate "toward operating expenses" at Cogdell were quoted, figures which indicate income to expenses represent approximately a four-to-one ratio.

A temporary arrangement designed to relieve the three local physicians who agree to be on call for the Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room has been reached, but the facility's chief of staff told the hospital board Thursday he believes the situation, unless changed, will be ultimately "more than we can do."

Dr. Paul Thompson told the board Thursday that he and his fellow physicans have received an agreement from Drs. W.B. McSpadden and Robert Pierce to provide ER coverage for one night a week on a rotating basis.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Trinity Methodist Church observed its 30th anniversary with special services and a Thanksgiving dinner.

Local Kim Byrom was one of 30 girls chosen for the Angelo State University Angelettes. The ensemble danced at halftime activities and other community affairs.

10 YEARS AGO

Mary Killam was named Texas Business Assn. Dist. XIV Teacher of the Year and given a plaque at the TSTA Convention luncheon. Killam had taught school 16 years with eight of those at Snyder High School.

Todd White and June Martinez were chosen boy and girl of the month at Hobbs School.

The first of two Skinny's Convenience Stores planned for Snyder opened for business at 407 East Highway.

Chief of Police Bill Stone was honored on the 20th anniversary of his law enforcement career with a surprise party and plaque.

Ruby Butts, retiring Scurry County Extension Agent, was presented a plaque at a retirement luncheon held at Texas A&M University. Butts served 31 years with 25 of those in Scurry County. She was also listed in Who's Who of American Women and Who's Who of Southern Personalities.

20 YEARS AGO

The Scurry County Historical Survey Committee was honored for the fourth consecutive year by the Texas State Historical Survey Committee and by the Texas Historical Foundation for distinguished service. Committee members were also given individual citations for their community contributions.

The first snow of the year fell wet and heavy, bending tree branches to the ground and surprising local residents.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

I want to send this note to the people of Snyder in praise of a very unique individual in your school system. This man is so dedicated it is unreal to me, and yet some of you do not even appreciate him.

That really disturbs me. This man took my son last year and made a man out of him. He told him that all he had to do in order to succeed in life was to believe and act on his belief. This man never ceased to praise my senior, even though others could never see any potential at all, or just never told him.

Because of this teacher, my son is now becoming a strong man in the Lord. He is totally dedicated to God and His goals. There is nothing or no one who will stop him now.

Snyder was a great place to live. I praise all the people who supported me in my personal and business life including Lawanna Vincent, Dinky Floyd, Cindy Sanders, and many others. Our entire family misses you all and wish the best for each of you.

But my deepest thanks goes to the man I spoke of, Jerry Worsham. I know some strange people would like to see him leave Snyder. I guarantee the rest of the towns need and would welcome such a great man.

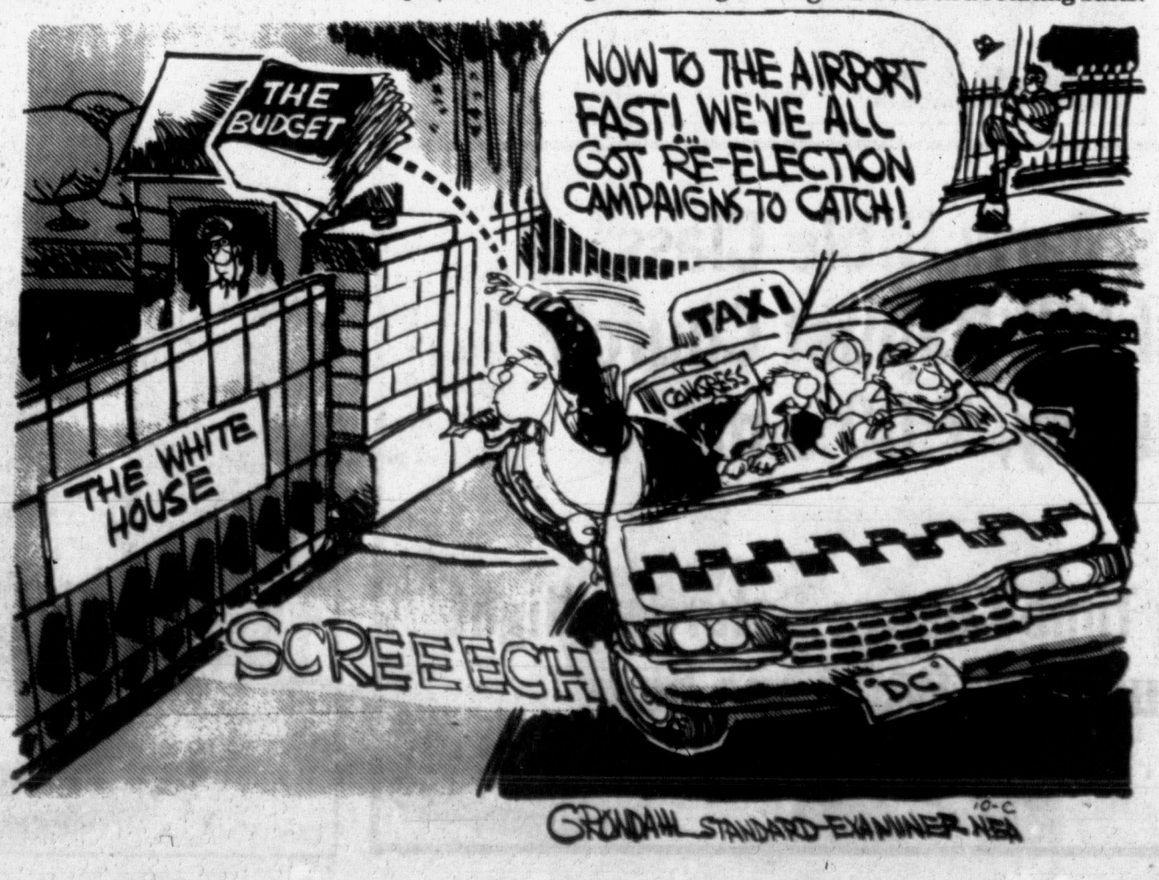

Now, because we had to move, our other two children will never learn from him and that really makes me sad. I think Mr. Worsham is the kind of teacher we all need to appreciate and support. I pray God sends one to Liberty.

THE DAY OF THE DEAD--November 1 and 2 will be celebrated in Ira's Spanish II class by having a special day in their own "cemetery." Students are making "tombstones" of famous Spanish personalities and will bring special Spanish and Mexican dishes for a meal in their classroom or "cemetery." Students are doing this to "get the feel of this unique custom," said teacher Lillie Sullivan. Ira students to observe 'Day of the Dead'

In Latin American countries All Saints' Day, Nov. 1, and All Souls' Day., Nov. 2, are often celebrated as one holiday. Nov. 1 is a religious holiday when families attend Mass. Nov. 2 is a memorial day when families place flowers and candles on altars and carry them to the graves.

Next week Ira's Spanish II class, under the direction of Lillie Sullivan, will celebrate both days by turning their classroom into a "cemetery" complete with "tombstones" of famous Spanish personalities.

Students will also bring Spanish and Mexican dishes to be shared during lunch in their classroom or "cemetery." The project was planned in order that students "could get the feel of this unique custom," Mrs. Sullivan said.

In Mexico, food is left for the dead who will return on Nov. 2 to share the food and be with their relatives. A picnic lunch is often shared by the family at the graves of their relatives. "Pan de los muertos," a sweet bread in the shape of a skull and crossbones, is sold in the bakeries. Decorated sugar candy skulls are sold to children at the markets. "Mole poblano con guajalote" is the favorite dish during this holiday.

In Spain, bells are tolled for the dead on Nov. 2. Oil lamps are burned during the night at relatives' graves. Performances of Jose Zorilla's classical play about Don Juan are given throughout the country.

Democrats looking to gain 2 more seats in the House

By The Associated Press

Fighting to regain two congressional seats lost in President Reagan's 1984 landslide, the Democrats hope to pick up the state's only vacant seat upstate and oust an incumbent down south.

The state's Democratic House members could outnumber their GOP counterparts by more than two-to-one if the party can pull out wins in tight races in the 13th and 14th districts.

In the largely rural 13th, Democrat Bill Sarpalius is keying on his eight-year record in the state Senate as he faces political newcomer Larry Milner in a race that's expected to go down to the wire.

Party leaders say it's also a tossup in the Coastal Bend's 14th District race, which puts Republican Mac Sweeney in a rematch with 1986 Democratic challenger Greg Laughlin.

"I think what we're looking at is a return to the political map prior to the coattail effects of Ronald Reagan," said Texas Democratic Party Executive Director Ed Martin. "We think we have an excellent chance to gain one or two seats in this election, whatever happens at the top of the ticket."

The GOP, however, is counting on strong pull from George Bush to hang on to the 13th and 14th seats.

"Our presidential candidate is running a very strong race in our state and he will continue to do that," said state GOP Chairman Fred Meyer, "and our candidates in those two (U.S. House) races are running hard, good campaigns."

Twelve other of the state's 27 congressional seats will be contested by major-party candidates on Nov. 8.

In seven races, incumbents face Libertarian challengers. Six incumbents, including House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth, are unopposed.

The Texas delegation to the 100th Congress was composed of 17 Democrats and 10 Republicans.

The 13th District seat was put up for grabs when Republican Beau Boulter decided to challenge Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's bid for a fourth term. The race in the 13th, which encompasses the Panhandle and sweeps south to Wichita Falls, has been a duel between conservatives.

"I would definitely say this is a tight and hard-fought race," said Randall Rainer, Sarpalius' campaign chairman. "There are lots of similarities between the candidates, so we've been focusing on the differences."

Milner was forced to backpedal after incorrectly stating that Sarpalius voted for a $5.7 billion tax increase in 1987 while in the Senate. The Democrat, in turn, charged that his opponent was unfairly trying to paint him as a liberal.

"I'm a Democrat and I'm running, so it's easy for him to say that I'm a liberal, but my record clearly shows that I'm a conservative," Sarpalius said.

The two also have swapped accusations that the other supported bringing a high-level nuclear dump to the Panhandle. The dump went elsewhere, and both candidates deny supporting the project.

Having defeated five primary opponents after resigning as president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce to enter the race, Milner has parlayed his pro-business image into campaign contributions. He outdistanced Sarpalius in fundraising and campaign spending.

But Sarpalius has represented 22 of the district's 37 counties while in the state Senate, where he served as chairman of the Agriculture Committee, and has historically garnered crossover votes in the Panhandle, said Rainer.

Milner is little known outside Amarillo and has advertised heavily to increase his name recognition in the sprawling district.

The English Channel was dry some 18,000 years ago, during earth's last major glaciation, says National Geographic.

from the news media, it might be well to let the people of this area know a little about him.

The Hon. Ron Paul was elected four times to the U.S. Congress from Houston as a Republican. On Feb. 6, 1987, he announced his candidacy for president on the Libertarian Party ticket to challenge big-bank privilege and the Federal Reserve; federal spending in all areas, from social welfare to the Pentagon and corporate welfare; a run-amuck IRS and outrageous tax system; government lying about everything; the vicious attack on our liberty and financial privacy; and the foreign policy that drains our wallets, enriches our enemies, shreds the Constitution, and kills our children.

Ron Paul's message of liberty is the same one that inspired the founding fathers to fight for our independence, that galvanized mass movements in the 19th century for hard money and personal liberty, and that mobilized millions in the 20th century.

In that magnificent American tradition, Ron Paul wants to abolish the income tax, bring the boys home to simply defend our own shores, establish a gold standard and abolish the Federal Reserve to stop inflation, and leave us alone to enjoy our freedoms.

Here is the Statement of Principles of the Libertarian Party: "We, the members of the Libertarian Party, challenge the cult of the omnipotent state and defend the rights of the individual. We hold that all individuals have the right to exercise sole dominion over their own lives, and have the right to live in whatever manner they choose, so long as they do not forcibly interfere with the equal right of others to live in whatever manner they choose.

Governments throughout history have regularly operated on the opposite principle, that the State has the right to dispose of the lives of individuals and the fruits of their labor. Even within the United States, all political parties other than our own grant to government the right to regulate the lives of individuals and seize the fruits of their labor without their consent.

We, on the contrary, deny the right of any government to do these things, and hold that where governments exist, they must not violate the rights of any individual: namely, (1) the right to life — accordingly we support prohibition of the initiation of physical force against others: (2) the right to liberty of speech and action — accordingly we oppose all attempts by government to abridge the freedom of speech and press, as well as government censorship in any form; and (3) the right to property — accordingly we oppose all government interference with private property, such as confiscation, nationalization, and eminent domain, and support the prohibition of robbery, trespass, fraud and misrepresentation.

Since governments, when instituted, must not violate individual rights, we oppose all interference by government in the areas of voluntary and contractual relations among individuals. People should not be forced to sacrifice their lives and property for the benefit of others. They should be left free by government to deal with one another as free traders; and the resultant economic system, the only one compatible with the protection of individual rights, is the free market."

Republicans, Democrats swapping angry charges

AUSTIN (AP) — Charges are swirling over what the secretary of state's office says is a crackdown on voter fraud but Democrats charge is an effort to intimidate minority voters.

At the center of the firestorm is Assistant Secretary of State Randy Erben, who this week said some Hidalgo County paper ballots would be impounded because they made it appear that separate votes could be cast for Republican George Bush for president and Democratic U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen for vice president.

Democrats, using some of the toughest language of the campaign to date, Thursday said Erben should be fired because he and other Republicans were trying to keep Hispanics and blacks away from the polls Nov. 8.

Erben said he and Republican Secretary of State Jack Rains are only doing their job, and that it's Democrats who fear an honest election.

"We and others will stand up for the voters and expose these dirty tricks. Texans want free and fair elections, and we will reject George Bush's intimidation," said Larry Veselka, general counsel for Democrat Michael Dukakis' Texas campaign.

"Partisan Democrats are upset that Rains will no longer tolerate dirty, back-room politics as usual. The partisan Democrats can cry all they want to, but Secretary Rains will never stop his crusade against vote fraud," Erben replied.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, Attorney General Jim Mattox, Democratic Party executive director Ed Martin and Jose Villarreal, Southwest political director for Michael Dukakis' presidential campaign, were among Democrats raising the charges.

Villarreal said Rains and Erben, instead of protecting the election system in an unbiased way, were "leading a campaign intended to impugn the integrity of Hispanic voters by creating an atmosphere of mistrust and embarrassment with the ultimate aim of suppressing Hispanic voter turnout."

Martin said Erben called a news conference Tuesday to make public accusations against Hidalgo County, Clerk William "Billy" Leo without investigating what Leo said was only a printing error with the paper ballots.

"If the Randy Erben press conference is any example, I don't think we can trust the secretary of state to run the election fairly, unless that kind of behavior is stopped, stopped right now and apologized for," Martin said.

Erben said there was no reason to apologize.

"I am committed to preserving the civil rights of all voters whose votes may be canceled or diluted by illegal ballots. If this makes certain partisan Democrats mad, so be it. I can sleep well at night knowing I am on the right side of this issue," he said.

Other controversies are boiling as well.

Democrats accused the Bush campaign of what they called "discriminatory tactics."

Those include telephone calls in some minority precincts telling residents to avoid lines at the polls by voting by phone, and broadcasting Spanish-language radio commercials in the Rio Grande Valley which the Democrats said "imply" that election officials would check citizenship papers.

Mark Sanders, a spokesman for the Bush campaign, denied that anything improper is being done and contended it would be Democrats whose tactics should be watched.

"We want every registered Texan to vote. We don't want the graveyard vote, we don't want the Alice-in-Wonderland vote, and we don't want the precinct vote in Outer Mongolia," Sanders said. "Democrats in this state have been trying to steal elections since the turn of the century..."

And in a related development, two Democratic Travis County election judges accused the secretary of state of overstepping his power and trying to intimidate minority voters by issuing election orders that represent a "radical departure" from past practices.

In documents filed with the Texas Supreme Court, election judges Walter Timberlake and Jerry Buttrey take issue with a Rains memo that permits pollwatchers to leave polls to make phone calls.

First Lady receives honor

DALLAS (AP). — First lady Nancy Reagan urged women to take early steps to battle breast cancer and said fear of the disease should never keep women from facing up to the need for mammograms.

Mrs. Reagan, who has recovered from breast cancer, was presented the 1988 Betty Ford Award at a Dallas hotel Thursday for promoting awareness of the disease.

"I know how hearing the word 'cancer' or 'malignancy' can just absolutely freeze you with fear," Mrs. Reagan told a luncheon audience of more than 2,000. "But that fear should never keep you from facing up to the need for mammograms."

Mrs. Reagan was diagnosed as having breast cancer in October 1987.

Founded in 1982 to fight breast cancer, the Susan G. Komen Foundation honored Mrs. Reagan with the Betty Ford Award, given annually to an individual outside the scientific or medical community who has greatly enhanced public understanding and awareness of breast cancer.

Former first lady Betty Ford, for whom the award is named, made the presentation. Also a recovered victim, Mrs. Ford was the first recipient of the honor, when it was called the Peace Rose Award.

"Your inspiration provided the leadership for all of us today," she said in introducting Mrs. Reagan. "You deserve so much credit because you were straightforward right from the start.

"If the first lady can have breast cancer and survive, then perhaps (other victims) can too."

Mrs. Reagan reminded the audience that her case is an example that the disease can strike anyone at any time.

"I never really thought I'd be recognized for what has brought me here today," she said. "This wasn't an award I thought I'd get."

According to the National Cancer Institute, breast cancer affects one in 10 women, and 140,000 new cases will be reported this year. About 42,000 women will die from the disease this year, making it the second-leading cause of death among women behind heart disease.

"Medical science is so advanced today," Mrs. Reagan said. "You have choices if you get that mammogram early enough, and I made the choice that I felt was right for me."

Also honored was Jill Eikenberry, a star of the NBC-TV series "L.A. Law."

Mrs. Eikenberry, who successfully battled breast cancer two years ago, was recognized for her production of "Destined to Live," a television special broadcast earlier this month that deals with the emotional aspects of breast cancer.

UPPER COLORADO SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

1988 ANNUAL REPORT

BREAKFAST—The fire was popping, the coffee was steaming and the vittles were ready as a large crowd went through the line at 7 a.m. Wednesday on the Jess Everett Ranch south of Snyder for a Ranch Breakfast co-sponsored by the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District and Ezell-Key Grain Co. Programs related to cattle raising and hunting leases were offered as well.

Report Sponsored by the Directors of the Upper Colorado SWCD

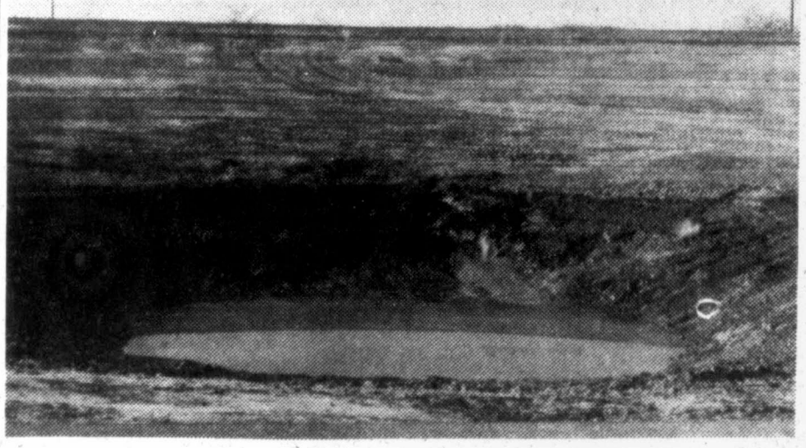

Regular monthly meetings are held on the third Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Soil Conservation Office at 3423 Ave. T. Phone: 573-1288.

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is a legal sub-division of the State of Texas, governed by five elected directors. Our self-governed District has a working agreement with the Soil Conservation Service to provide technical assistance for planning, application, and management of conservation activities.

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District wishes everyone a happy and prosperous year in 1989. Our sincere thanks go out to each person, business, organization, and unit of government who helped us in our effort to make the District a more satisfying place in which to live and work. We especially thank the Snyder Field Office staff of the Soil Conservation Service for providing the technical assistance necessary for us to carry out our objectives. District Conservationist Terry Hefner, Range Conservationist Ricky Linex, Range Conservationist Mike Squires, Range Conservationist Lynn Wauer, and SCS Technicial Mark McDaniel have helped to make our accomplishments in conservation possible.

The Board of Directors

The Soil Conservation Service assists farmers and ranchers in planning and constructing ponds for erosion control, stock water, and recreation. The pond shown here is on the Ted Crenwelge farm east of Snyder.

CONSERVATION PRACTICES APPLIED IN THE UPPER COLORADO SWCD IN 1988

378 new district cooperators covering 72,186 acres
6 Great Plains contracts current
9 LTA contracts current
46 Conservation Reserve contracts on 6,130 acres
552,752 feet of terraces constructed
155 acres of range seeding
2,560 acres of brush control
7 ponds constructed
8,933 acres of upland habitat wildlife management
17,867 acres of highly erodible cropland planted to permanent grass

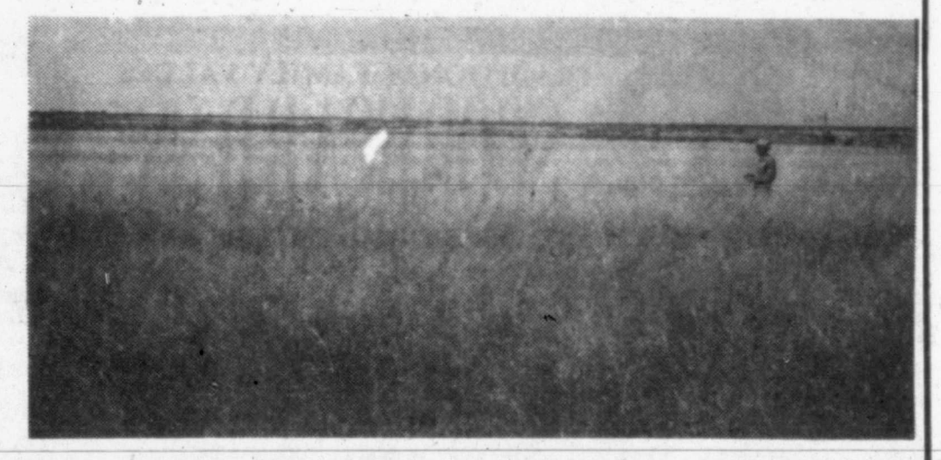

17,867 acres have been seeded to permanent grass in the Conservation Program in Borden and Scurry counties. Billie Bob McMullan and G.A. Parks, Jr., are shown checking the grass on their CRP acreage.

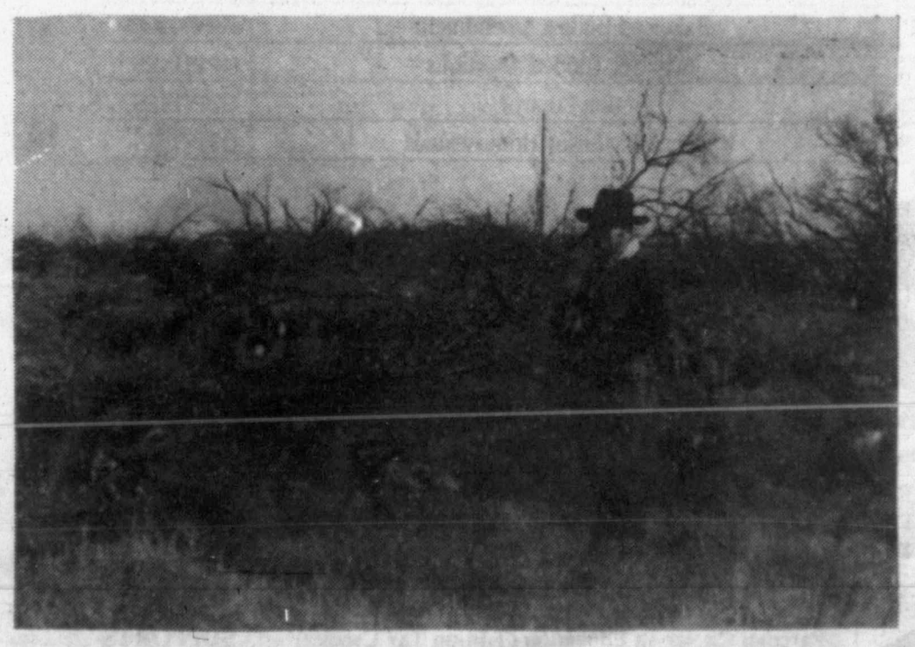

CONSERVATION AWARDS—Connie Tutt of Hobbs and Bennie W. Edwards of O'Donnell received the annual Conservation Rancher and Conservation Farmer awards, respectively, at the 1988 Upper Colorado Conservation Awards Banquet Thursday night at the Willow Park Inn.

The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), enacted December 23, 1985, as a part of the Food Security Act of 1985, encourages farmers to stop growing crops on highly erodible cropland and plant it to grass through 10-year contracts with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Walter Stirl is shown here in a field of klein grass on his farm in the eastern part of the county.

TEACHERS—Hermleigh home economics teacher Carrie Richardson and Central Elementary sixth grade teacher Caddye Claborn are the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District's conservation teachers of the year, shown here at a Thursday night banbanquet at the Willow Park Inn.

Brush control was carried out on 2,560 acres in the District in 1988. Lynn Wauer, Range Conservationist, is shown on the Jeff Martin ranch in the western part of Scurry County.
