Soviet Patience Wears Thin In Polish Squabble

MILDENHALL, England (AP) — The Soviet Union may not be willing to tolerate any further weakening of Communist Party control in Poland, a senior American official said today.

"We may have passed that point where any additional ... moderation, would be acceptable," said the official, who asked not to be identified.

However, the official told reporters traveling with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., that the Soviets do not appear to be taking advantage of President Reagan's injury in connection with the Polish situation.

"It's very clear that the president hasn't skipped a beat in his command and control, if you will, of his management of the government," the official said.

Haig's aircraft made a refueling stop at the U.S. air base here before continuing on to Cairo on the first leg of a 10-day trip to the Middle East and Europe.

The secretary's departure from Washington Friday night was delayed an hour and a half by his attendance at a White House meeting of the National Security Council.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes would not disclose the subject of meeting, but it was understood to concern developments in Poland.

Haig also met Friday with President Reagan at George Washington University Hospital, where Reagan is recovering from a gunshot wound suffered in an assassination attempt Monday.

State Department spokesman William Dyess said Haig will maintain close contact with Washington on the Polish situation. He said Poland will be a major topic in the European meetings and indicated Haig might cut his trip short if developments warrant.

The official traveling with Haig said a chief Soviet concern in Poland is the apparent decline of Communist Party hardliners.

"The party itself has lost much of its influence," he said. The independent trade union "Solidarity has become stronger and moderate elements in the party have managed to maintain themselves."

After his stop in Egypt, Haig will visit Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. On his return leg, he will speak with leaders in Italy, Spain, Britain, France and West Germany.

The main purpose of the Middle East tour is to enlist support for a common stance against what the Reagan administration sees as a Soviet threat in the region.

However, the official traveling with Haig said the secretary will not try to persuade Egypt or Saudi Arabia to accept American troops on their soil.

BUILDING PERKS UP—This new building going up at the I&R Meter Service complex is one of the major projects that gave Snyder construction figures a big push in March. The total for the year has zoomed almost to the $2 million mark. (SDN Staff Photo)

Building Activity Shows Huge Gain

Construction activity continued to set a fast pace here in March, city building permit figures disclose.

The month produced additional residential projects and some commercial building as well to push the total for the year near the $2 million mark.

The March total logged by the city included 18 permits for construction costing a total of $676,996. This represents a big increase over the total of $151,000 in February and is an even greater gain over the $64,400 recorded for March in 1980.

The total for the first quarter of 1980 was $664,600, or about one third of the total for the first three months this year of $1,987,086.

The gain for the city's fiscal year, which is now at the half-way point, also is impressive. For the first six months this fiscal year, the total is $3,383,656, compared to $1,611,036 for the last fiscal year.

The March permits this year include seven single-family dwellings and three mobile homes. This increases the number of living units added this calendar year to 63.

Major construction projects in March were a new building in the I&R Meter Service complex on 25th St., and a building for a Long John Silver fish restaurant at 35th and College Ave., which came in just before the end of the month.

Blame Smoker In Hotel Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A careless smoker sparked the $150,000 fire that injured 16 people and forced evacuation of part of Caesars Palace hotel earlier this week, fire officials say.

Capt. Ralph Dinsman, spokesman for the Clark County Fire Department, said Friday a cigarette smoldering in a bed caused the blaze, which damaged a five-room luxury suite at the Strip resort. The guests who had occupied the rooms had checked out before the fire erupted Wednesday, he said.

Most of the injured were treated for smoke inhalation and released. One firefighter who suffered burns was reported in good condition.

Blood Drive Scheduled Here Monday

A blood drive is scheduled from 4 to 9 p.m. Monday in the conference room of Cogdell Memorial Hospital, reminds the hospital auxiliary, sponsoring the drive.

Blood drives are held periodically to replenish supplies used at the hospital. The only source of blood is the human body and having an adequate supply on hand is of vital interest to the community, says Ouida Bruner, spokesperson for the auxiliary.

"When you come to donate, why not bring a friend with you? " she suggests.

Most people aged 17-65 can donate. However for the protection of both donor and recipient, potential donors are given a mini-physical exam. There is no charge for this and should any tests indicate need for medical attention, the person is notified and referred to a physician.

Donors will be asked for social security numbers at the time of donation for identification purposes.

"Remember," says Mrs. Bruner, "hospitals don't need blood, people do."

Rabies Count Up

ATLANTA (AP) — Researchers say they are uncertain why the incidence of animal rabies is soaring in the United States, but reported cases jumped to 6,405 last year — the most since 1954.

Thai Coup Is Crushed

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A conciliatory Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda returned to this capital city today after he successfully crushed a 56-hour coup attempt by top military officers.

The 60-year-old prime minister and army commander flew into Bangkok from his military stronghold at Korat, 150 miles to the northeast. He had fled there after the coup began with King Bhumipol Adulyadej and the rest of the popular royal family, who condemned the rebels.

Saying only that he has "lots of work to do," Prem went straight to the army auditorium the rebel officers had used as their headquarters and set up his own "joint operation center for the maintenance of peace and order."

Bones Tentatively Identified

ALVIN, Texas (AP) — Bones dug from a Brazoria County field were identified Friday as those of two young girls missing nearly seven years from nearby Dickinson.

Two other sets of bones found in the field have not yet been identified.

Fort Worth detectives earlier believed the bones might be those of three Fort Worth girls who disappeared after a shopping trip in December 1974.

But the Harris County medical examiner's office in Houston said the bones were the remains of Brook Bracewell, 12, and Georgia Geer, 14.

They disappeared Sept. 6, 1974, after deciding to cut school, said Lt. Matt Wingo of the Brazoria County sheriff's office.

Man Wounded After Chase

DALLAS (AP) — A 22-year-old man who allegedly stole a loaded pistol from a pawn shop Friday afternoon was shot and wounded by police after a 10-minute car and foot chase.

The suspect was reported in fair condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital after surgery on a wound on his right side.

Police Tactical Division Officer Leslie South, 33, shot the man once when he saw him reach into his waistband and turn after a six-block foot chase, said Lt. Roger Duncan.

A .25-caliber pistol was found nearby in some bushes.

Weekend update

The SDN Column

We may have been the victim of computer retribution.

This isn't what you were supposed to be reading here in this issue of the SDN. What was prepared for today's column appeared in Friday's issue, and it's the computer's fault, we think, but don't tell it we made any accusations.

This is what happened. About noon Friday, the people in our composing room asked where our column was.

"Oh, it was sent to you yesterday," we said.

But it wasn't there. No harm done, because all we had to do was call it up again on the computer, press the little key and it would be set into type in a couple of minutes.

So we thought. The computer didn't eject it, and a search through its electronic innards failed to locate it.

The computer had devoured our Friday column, which had a lot of good stuff in it, the details of which we do not recall off the top of our head.

We should have expected something like this. Just two or three days ago, out of the blue, came a column we had published two months ago, one that should have been erased from the computer's memory weeks ago.

But we figure it was that column the other day about Doc Griffin's experience with the insurance company's computer that caused our trouble Friday. All of these electronic marvels are cousins, you know. This was its way of getting even with us for belittling a close relative. So, we're keeping quiet about it, at least till this column gets through the typesetter, because we don't have another spare column lurking around in or out of the computer bank.

Oscar Monnig, the Fort Worth astronomer who asked for reports on a meteorite sighted the night of March 26 in this area, reports that response has been unusually good. Several people who saw the item in the SDN wrote Monnig that they had also seen the meteorite, and one even called Monnig on the telephone to make a report.

"I have not had time to evaluate and combine these reports well, but at present all I can say is that if any meteorites fell they are probably black-crusted rocks not too far northeast of Snyder and likely scattered over several square miles, weighing anything from an ounce or so up to several pounds," Monnig advises.

"If meteorites fall, there is generally a shock wave heard in the sub-final region, caused by the meteorite breaking the sound barrier. This has not been reported, which is unfavorable. I am hoping such a report may still come in from the area between you and Sweetwater."

Incidentally, Monnig is a familiar name to those who have shopped at Monnig Department Stores in Fort Worth, and this is the same Monnig. He devotes a lot of time to his astronomy hobby since they sold the stores.

He said he thought we might be interested in the reports he had received and the fact that "there really was a true spectacle and in the good coverage your paper has."

Shuttle Riders In Quarantine

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two astronauts scheduled to go up in space were in limited quarantine today so they wouldn't come down with anything before the space shuttle Columbia blasts off next week.

The countdown for the maiden launch of America's first reusable spacecraft is to begin at 11:30 p.m. EST Sunday when launch director George Page issues a "call to stations" to workers on the launch pad and in the control center. The shuttle is scheduled to blast off at 6:50 a.m. Friday.

Astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen planned to leave their quarantine trailers at the Johnson Space Center in Houston during the weekend to practice various phases of the flight in a shuttle simulator.

Young and Crippen and their understudies, Joe Engle and Richard Truly, were placed in medical quarantine Friday, a standard practice for astronauts the week before a flight. Most common respiratory diseases, such as colds, have an incubation period of five days.

But the astronauts aren't totally isolated: They can have limited contact with about 750 people, including their wives and children, who have had physical exams and received inoculations against various diseases.

The astronauts and the back-up crew are scheduled to fly to Cape Canaveral Wednesday to prepare for the launch.

Young and Crippen are to ride Columbia into orbit for 36 trips around the Earth in 54½ hours.

Ft. Worth To See Wyeth Collection

The Diamond M Museum collection of paintings by the renowned artist, N. C. Wyeth, will be temporarily out of the museum after today, April 5.

The collection is scheduled for an exhibition at the Reminisce Gallery in Fort Worth. The 15 paintings will be shown there from Friday, April 10, through Thursday, April 30.

One of her works, the bronze entitled "Palace Merchant," is prominently displayed as part of the permanent collection of the Diamond M Museum. The museum also owns works of Melvin Warren.

An exhibit of many works of N. C. Wyeth's son, Jamie Wyeth, will be at the Amon Carter Museum in Fort Worth, beginning April 24. That museum is open Tuesdays through Sundays. The exhibit of N. C. Wyeth paintings from Snyder will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, during its stay in Fort Worth.

22 Collegiate Teams To Compete In Rodeo Here

Twenty-two colleges and universities in the sprawling Southwest Region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association (NIRA) are expected to compete here next weekend.

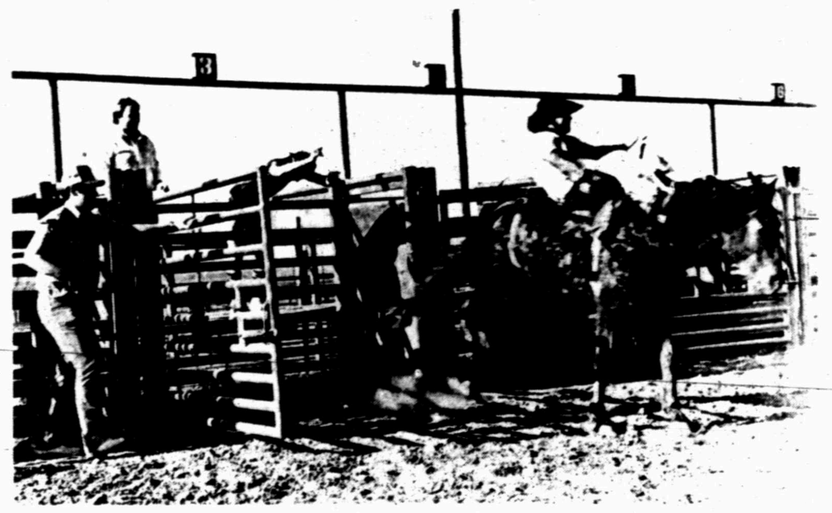

Western Texas College and Howard College at Big Spring are sponsoring the NIRA rodeo, which will be held in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Performances are scheduled at 8 p. m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Advance tickets may be purchased from WTC rodeo team members, or from candidates in the Rodeo Queen contest. Adult tickets are priced at $3 each, and student tickets cost $2 each. Box seats are also available.

This will be the first collegiate rodeo to be held inside the coliseum here. Previously, WTC has held its rodeos at the old rodeo grounds on West 30th St.

Quiet Night For Officers

Law enforcement officers experienced a quiet evening Friday with only one theft reported.

Officers were summoned to the Skinney's Convenience Store on the East Highway about 7:40 p.m. Officer Ed Neeley was told that two subjects had left the store with two large bottles of soft drinks without paying for them.

Shortly after midnight, Snyder firefighters were called to a truck fire 10 miles on the Roby highway, just outside the Scurry County line.

Sr. Citizens Plan Tour Of Hawaii

Because of interest expressed by many local senior seniors in going to Hawaii, the Senior Center has begun making plans for a 10-day tour this summer.

Alma Wallace, travel agent from Lubbock, will be at the Center at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday to outline the proposed itinerary and provide other information. She will als show slides of areas to be visited.

The trip is open to any individal 60 years of age or older. However, each person must be physically able to withstand the rapid travel pace, according to Gloria Shaw, Center director.

Tentative plans call for the group to fly from Lubbock to Dallas and then non-stop to Honolulu. Islands to be visited include Oahu, Kauai and Hawaii.

Reservations will be on a first-come, first-served basis, and a deposit will be required when each reservaton is made.

A shorter trip also is being put together. It is a three-day visit to Arlington to take in a Texas Ranger baseball game, a dinner theater and sightseeing. Dates have not yet been set.

It is common for modern railroads to transport new cars, trucks, and farm machinery, but the first such "piggy-back" transport took place in 1885. The Long Island Railroad Co. ran a train consisting of eight flat cars for carrying farmer's wagons, eight cars to carry their horses, and a coach for the teamsters, from outer Long Island to Long Island City. A ferry then carried the wagons across the East River to New York City.

'Burnout' Becomes Popular Disease

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Burnout!

"It's become a very popular disease these days," says Dr. Alfred Alschuler, a clinical psychologist and a professor of education at the University of Massachusetts who did extensive research on teacher burnout.

"Probably the easiest term for it is exhaustion. People are simply tired of what they're doing. They just can't put out anymore."

Its victims include business executives, human services workers, social workers, psychologists, teachers and policemen.

"It's a phenomenon that cuts across occupational lines," says Walter Gorski, chief psychologist for the National Association of Chiefs of Police.

"It occurs to anyone who is primarily involved in problems having to do with other people," says Alschuler, "primarily because human problems are simply not solvable in the same way that a problem with your car or television set is solvable."

Alschuler says the symptoms of burnout include distance from people, spending less time on the job, increased cynicism and negativeness and emotional and physical fatigue.

Silvia Rodriguez, 35, suffered some of these symptoms and burned out after more than 10 years of teaching in the Connecticut school system.

By her own account, she had been dedicated to her students. She wrote her own class materials for her high school language courses to make them more interesting. She gave up her weekends for such causes as the March of Dimes walkathon and the Special Olympics for handicapped children. She gave the needy food and clothing.

She felt she wasn't appreciated by school administrators or the community itself.

Then in the spring of 1979 there was a fight between students in her classroom. She was hurt.

"I went home and I began feeling very sick. I was out of school for three weeks. My body was in a lot of pain. I began looking at myself and realized it was not worthwhile."

"I was increasingly tired, increasingly bored. The thought of having to go back to teach was very scary, very petrifying. I really had a tremendous fear when I went back to that classroom.

"When I realized I had lost the trust of my students and that I was not feeling comfortable in their company any longer, I decided they did not need me."

She left teaching in June 1979 and now works happily at the National Institute of Education in Washington as an adviser on youth education and employment programs.

According to the National Education Association, the average length of teacher service has dropped from 20 years to 14 years in the past 20 years.

Alschuler says stress has been linked with almost every known human disease.

"The cause and relationship between stress and these diseases is not exactly clear but it does seem to be an aggravator of whatever tendency you have toward disease."

Some research, he says, indicates that people with high stress levels are far more likely to have an accident or illness within a significant period of time.

Gerald Arenberg, editor of Police Times, a magazine for members of the National Association of Chiefs of Police, quotes studies that show career police officers, both active and retired, die younger than most other occupational groups and suffer a high rate of health problems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although you won't relish having to make difficult decisions today, you're not likely to dodge them. In fact, your judgment is quite good under pressure.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Follow through immediately on any developments today which could be helpful to your career. You may think you have time to dally, but you don't.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to take yourself or today's happenings too seriously. This could be a very pleasant day if you'll let your hair down a bit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't deal in half measures today. If there's something you're involved in which should be finalized, stick to it until it is completed to your satisfaction.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be frank and open when discussing important matters today. Unless others know exactly where you're coming from, nothing is apt to be resolved.

Prey On Wealthy...

Gang Suspected Of Robbing Murchisons

DALLAS (AP) — The same gang suspected of robbing several wealthy Texas families in the past year may have been responsible for a robbery at the home of the late John D. Murchison Sr., police say.

Two men wearing blue jogging suits, ski masks and gloves and carrying pistols, knives and tear gas on their belts seized members of Murchison's family as they returned home Thursday night. One of the robbers also had a walkie-talkie, police said.

Lucille "Lupe" Murchison, 54, her daughter Barbara, 25, and three others were tied up while the men ransacked the house for three hours.

Police today still had not determined exactly what was taken from the house. Officers said Mrs. Murchison slept most of Friday and would mail them a list of stolen articles.

Murchison, who died in June 1979, was the son of oilman Clint Murchison Sr. and the brother of Dallas Cowboys owner Clint Murchison Jr.

The robbery resembles several others in the past year in Lubbock, Brownfield, Fort Worth, Houston, Abilene, Cleburne and New Orleans, said Fort Worth Police Sgt. John Ratliff.

The similarities include the descriptions of the robbers and their method of operation: tying up well-to-do families and then ransacking their homes. In several of the cases, a third person apparently has watched the house and may have monitored police radio broadcasts.

Last November, retired New York insurance broker John Howells and his wife Florence, a former Italian countess, lost about $245,000 in gold, silver and jewelry from their North Dallas home to robbers who said they needed money for drugs.

More than $1.4 million in cash, jewelry and silver was taken in December 1979 from the Fort Worth house of oilman W.A. "Tex" Moncrief.

In January 1980, another similar robbery occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Cooper — about 10 blocks away from the Murchison home.

Victims of the latest robbery refused to comment on details, but police gave the following account:

Mrs. Murchison and a friend, 64-year-old William Lamont, arrived at her home about 11:30 p.m. and were met outside by the two robbers.

They tied up and blindfolded Lamont and placed him in the back seat of one of Mrs. Murchison's cars in the driveway and forced her into the trunk.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Murchison's 25-year-old daughter Barbara arrived with Terry and Ann Murphy of Richardson, a Dallas suburb.

The men tied the Murphys together by their hands and took Miss Murchison inside the house, where they made her deactivate home alarm systems.

They then took Mrs. Murchison and Lamont from the car and took all the victims into a living room, where they again were tied up.

While one robber watched the victims, the other forced Miss Murchison to show him where the valuables were kept.

The robbers ransacked the house until 3:30 a.m. After they left, Murphy found a knife and cut himself and the others free.

Doubt Hinckley Was Neo-Nazi

By The Associated Press

Was John W. Hinckley Jr. a member of the Nazi Party of America?

That question about the man charged with the assassination attempt against President Reagan on Monday was the subject of growing doubt by Friday.

The evidence that Hinckley was connected with the neo-Nazi group consists of statements from two Nazi leaders — former American Nazi Party leader Harold Covington, and Michael C. Allen, president-elect of the Chicago-based Nazi Party of America. Both insist Hinckley was a member.

But law enforcement authorities say they have found no evidence thus far to corroborate the claim of the Nazi leaders. And both Allen and Covington say the party keeps no records that could prove his membership.

Meanwhile, The Daily Oklahoman, a morning newspaper in Oklahoma City, reported Friday that statements by Covington and Allen linking Hinckley as a former member of their organization are being viewed by federal authorities as vague and insignificant.

Absence of documentary proof and inconsistencies in statements from Allen and Covington have led some federal authorities to believe the Hinckley-Nazi connection may have been fabricated for publicity purposes, according to the story by Oklahoman investigative reporter Jack Taylor.

The Associated Press on Friday killed a photograph made available by freelance photographer John Wells and transmitted Wednesday that showed a man dressed in a Nazi uniform and said by Wells to be Hinckley at a meeting of the Nazi party in St. Louis on March 12, 1978.

On Friday, the news agency located the man shown in the photo. He said he had been a member of the Nazi party but quit shortly after attending the rally in St. Louis where the photo was taken. The man said he had severed all Nazi connections and asked that his name not be published now.

Covington said in an interview that Hinckley had written him 10 or 12 letters, but that Covington no longer had the letters.

"The man was a member and I did correspond with him for a while. That happens to be the truth," said Covington.

Allen said Friday that Hinckley was a party member.

Attendants Charged

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas County grand jury has returned 14 theft indictments against two former hospital parking attendants who police say pocketed at least $160,000 in parking fees in the past two years.

The indictments Thursday charged Keith Thomas Kuczaj, 28, of Irving, and Rocky Lee Cantrell, 33, of Dallas, with stealing more than $200 a day for six days in February.

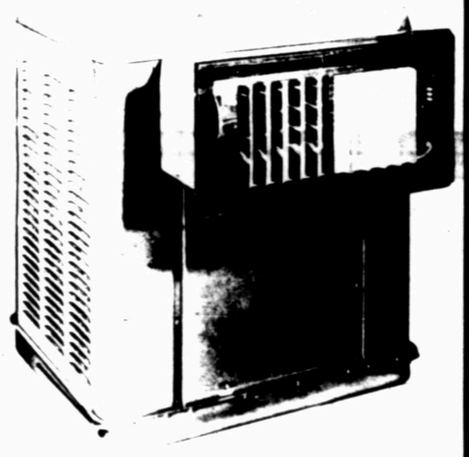

A seventh indictment against each man alleges theft over $10,000.

The pair was arrested Feb. 19 after St. Paul Hospital security officials gave police videotapes of thefts and written statements

Hughes Is Gone, But Wealth Remembered

HOUSTON (AP) — An elderly woman pauses beside the secluded grave to read aloud a personal tribute to the man whose tremendous wealth, curious manner and globe-trotting exploits intrigued and perplexed a nation.

Her lonely vigil is a stark contrast to the hordes of onlookers who once trampled the century-old Glenwood Cemetery searching for the simple marker locating the final resting place of Howard Robard Hughes.

Gone is the guard who stood as the last protector of the fabled billionaire's treasured solitude. And time has reduced to dust the mounds of flowers admirers, friends, distant relatives and would-be heirs heaped on the grave.

The eccentric recluse achieved in death the privacy he so desperately sought in life, but lingering questions about the disposition of his vast wealth remain unsettled.

The 70-year-old Hughes died of kidney failure aboard his private jet five years ago today — April 5, 1976 — as it streaked from his Mexican seaside hideaway to Houston, site of his birth, the city he had shunned the last 21 years of his life.

The emaciated body of Hughes, the once-dashing movie maker, daring pilot and unchallenged captain of a financial and industrial empire he molded from a Houston oil tool company, was buried beside his parents two days later in a brief Episcopal ceremony without the trappings and fanfare associated with his life.

"For about a year after he died, eight to 10 people would come by looking for his grave (daily). One evening, a bunch of them even climbed the fence after we'd closed," said a cemetery caretaker.

"Flowers used to be sent to the grave regularly from all around the world. Now about the only one who seems to remember him is a little lady who comes about once a week and sits on the grave and reads out loud to him."

While time has diminished curiosity about the veiled latter years of his life, the scramble for Hughes' wealth has mounted steadily as a worldwide search failed to produce a legitimate will.

Houston Probate Judge Pat Gregory predicts about 500 people will attempt later this year to prove they were related to Hughes and entitled to a share of his fortune.

Millions more are at stake in a long-awaited courtroom battle between California and Texas, a battle that could end with the U.S. Supreme Court eventually having to decide Hughes' legal residence and which state can levy inheritance taxes.

Colleagues have said Hughes, twice divorced and childless, had intended to leave his wealth to the Miami-based Howard Hughes Medical Institute.

A search of storage rooms and safety vaults failed to find a will, however. Also found were advertisements placed in 40 newspapers across the country by the Summa Corp., the Las Vegas-based umbrella company formed in 1972 to oversee Hughes' holdings.

About 40 purported wills turned up but only two, the "Morman will" and the so-called "lost will" were seriously offered for probate, Gregory said.

The Mormon will, a handwritten document delivered to the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City, surfaced mysteriously after Hughes' death [illegible] document later declared a forgery by juries in Las Vegas. Johnson, would have left his fortune to the Mormon Church, whose practices were Hughes' most trusted aides. Nevada service station attendant, Melvin Dummar, who claimed Hughes gave [illegible] so-called document [illegible] the estate [illegible] institute, [illegible] ruling [illegible] and will [illegible] estate be [illegible] fathers, [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] estate [illegible] as many as 500 people have claimed they were related to Hughes.

Gregory said a trial probably will be scheduled "sometime in the next nine months" to determine legal heirs.

The size of the inheritance will hinge on the determination of the legal residence and inheritance taxes.

In February 1978 a Houston probate jury ruled Hughes was a Texan, basing its decision on testimony of 100 witnesses and 2,500 documents.

But the State of California made similar claims and is vying for the huge inheritance tax.

The First Salvation Army meeting was held by William Booth in London in 1865.

Avoiding travel maladies

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We are planning a trip to Mexico and Central America and wonder how we can avoid getting sick. Almost everyone seems to get diarrhea and sometimes other digestive problems when they travel south of the border. Is this from the food and water or something else? We don't want our vacation spoiled by being ill. What suggestions do you have?

DEAR READER — Yes, most of the problems are from organisms in food and water. In recent years it has been pretty well established that the most frequent offender is a strain of E. coli, the organism that lives in our colon and usually does not cause us any trouble. The strain associated with attacks of diarrhea is slightly different even though it looks the same under the microscope. This difference was not appreciated for years and that is why the real cause went unrecognized.

Talk to your doctor before you go. There is an antibiotic (doxycycline) which can be prescribed to prevent or treat E. coli diarrhea but it may increase your chances of getting a salmonella infection. Let your doctor advise you about this for your individual case.

In addition to E. coli infections and salmonella infections there are a host of other organisms that can cause intestinal infections, including ameba which can survive water that is treated with chlorine.

There is no rule that will totally protect you but drinking bottled water or beverages and avoiding salads and raw foods may help.

You can also get food poisoning right here in the good old USA and it seems to be increasingly common today. It is a far greater problem in our food than the question of chemicals that is discussed so heatedly. Ways to protect yourself from food poisoning in your own home are discussed in The Health Letter number 6-2, Food Poisoning of Infectious Origin, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A large portion of poultry and other meats you buy are contaminated with bacteria. The only way you can really protect yourself is with proper cooking and care of foods in the kitchen.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a friend who has high blood pressure. The doctor told her he couldn't give her medication for it because she had been on birth control pills. She isn't now. Could she have a stroke?

DEAR READER — Of course. Anyone can have a stroke and the chances are increased with high blood pressure. So I surely don't want to say she couldn't have a stroke.

Now, her risk (chance) of having a stroke depends upon how high her pressure really is, and if it is persistently high or just when she is excited.

Also, you or your friend may have misunderstood her doctor. Birth control pills sometimes cause high blood pressure and when it is high one of the first steps is to stop the pill. That often cures the problem. If not, then the high blood pressure is treated just as it is for a person who never took the pill.

Says MX May Be Insufficient

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The United States could be forced to expand its proposed force of 200 MX missiles if the Soviets respond by building enough missiles to knock out the MX system, says retired Air Force Maj. Gen. John Toomay.

The Air Force wants to deploy 200 MX missiles to be shuttled in a giant "shell game" among 4,600 shelters dug into the vast desert of Utah and Nevada — a space which would cover the combined areas of Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

But, Toomay said Friday, "In the absence of any reasonable (arms) agreements," the Soviet Union could build enough missiles to hit each shelter, knocking out missiles and decoys alike.

In that event, the United States would have to consider building more shelters and more missiles, Toomay said.

Cost estimates for deploying 200 MX missiles range from $34 billion to more than $100 billion, when inflation is figured in.

Toomay and a battery of other Air Force officers faced critics of the MX at two public hearings here Friday on the draft environmental impact statement of the giant missile system.

A handful of the 200 or so persons in the audience asked whether construction of the MX, giving the United States an edge over the Soviets in nuclear weaponry, wouldn't provoke the Soviet Union to expand its own arsenal.

"How do we get off this merry-go-round?" asked Merrill Day of Salt Lake.

Toomay told him that in order to achieve reductions in nuclear arms the United States must show the Soviet Union that it has the "resolve and the capability" to build a superior weapons system.

The only U.S. state with counties divided into areas called "hundreds" is Delaware.

Junior College Start Best For Spradling...

Former Westerner Relives Year At TU

By BILL MCCLELLAN

Phil Spradling, former Western Texas College star who helped lead Tulsa University to an NIT championship this season, believes transferring to junior college two and a half years ago may have been the best move he's ever made and he would recommend it for other athletes as well.

"It's really a big change coming out of high school into a major college program. It would be hard for anyone to adjust," he said, speaking of the obvious let down for players who may have been stars in high school, but find themselves just another one of the crowd in a large program. Spradling himself first attended New Mexico University but transfered at mid-term to Western Texas.

Spradling, one of four players Nolan Richardson took to Tulsa with him from WTC a year ago, was at the local campus Friday, visiting some of his acquaintences, in particular, bride-to-be Shari Teal, a Western Texas Duster standout who plans to attend Tulsa next fall.

They plan to be married July 24 in New Deal, her hometown.

"The best move I ever made was to go to junior college. I got more experience here than I ever would have at a major university," he said. "I think a lot of people, especially if they aren't just super players, would be better off going to a junior college first."

A top student while at Western Texas and at Tulsa, Spradling is a physical education major. He received numerous on-court honors while a Westerner and made All-Confernce honorable mention last season at Tulsa. His constant up-and-down the court running caused TU fans to tag him "Roadrunner".

At Western, Spradling, Paul Pressey, David Brown and Greg Stewart - the four who went to Tulsa - aided Snyder to national recognition with a 37-0 record and an NJCAA national tournament title. One thing the 6-4 guard didn't need to say - but did - is that a skeptical media had to eat a lot of words they had printed about the Hurricane this season.

"We didn't really go into the season thinking about another 37-0 season, but we wanted to turn the program at Tulsa around. We were pretty sure we could do that," Spradling said. "But a lot of people, other coaches and reporters, said we were going to be in for a shock. They didn't think we (basically still a junior college team) would be able to compete that well. They were calling Coach (Richardson) a 'rookie coach' and saying we were outlaws and stuff like that.

"Then we went 9-0 and Sports Illustrated came out and did an article on us. Then," he laughed, "we lost the next game.

"We turned the program around; won more games than any other team in Tulsa history. We lost some games I think we could have won, but we only lost one home game. We won 19 home games. We were virtually unbeatable at home," he pointed out. "And we had tremendous fan response. The fans at Tulsa treat us so well it's unbelievable. We broke attendance records this year, and I'm sure every home ticket will be sold out next year it they haven't been already."

Obviously it was a satisfying experience for the junior college transfers to prove everyone wrong, but Spradling allows there is a difference between junior college and major college ball - and in the NJCAA and NIT tournaments.

"The NIT is stronger, a lot tougher. It's bigger, so it was a bigger win for us this year than it was last year. I'm not saying the NJCAA is not that big, because it is. It was a great thrill for us and always will be to be known as the NJCAA champions. But I'm saying it's tougher in a four year school. Everybody sets up the ball better. We're fortunate because we can run and break and press, but we could also set it up, too."

Syracuse, the team Tulsa defeated for the NIT championship, felt it was slighted because it didn't get into the NCAA Tournament. Spradling felt the same way, at first.

"Yeah, we were down about it for a little while, but we were grateful to go to the NIT. It was a thrill for us."

Tulsa probably lost an NCAA bid when a Hurricane player fouled and sent Creighton to the freethrow line for the winning points in the semi-finals of the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament. Creighton, which eventually lost to Wichita State, did recieve an invitation.

"You know," he said, "it was a tough loss at the time, but if he hadn't fouled, we probably wouldn't have gotten into the NIT. So really, it was like a blessing in disguise. Because, believe me, something like that (the NIT championship) doesn't come everyday."

Tulsa loses only one player off of the team, Bob Stevenson. Meanwhile, Richardson has all but signed WTC standout Chuck North, and is reported to be looking at, among others, Midland College All-American Charles Johnson and his brother, a senior in high school. Is the dream of an NCAA title a realistic one for TU in 1982?

"Well, your goal in major college is always the NCAA championship," Spradling noted. "That's what you're there for. I think we're capable of doing it. There are so many things that enter into it, of course. But I think we're capable."

PHIL "ROADRUNNER" SPRADLING

Despite Success, Richardson Still Thinks Of Snyder

Imagine Nolan Richardson relaxing at his desk in Tulsa, wearing a white, open-neck silk sports shirt, eyes wide open for the next challenge, a grin on his lips, talking on the telephone. He's recalling the aftermath of Tulsa University's NIT championship game.

"I got so many telegrams from people in Snyder that for a minute I was believing I was still at Western Texas," he laughs. "Really, for a time there, I was opening as many telegrams from Snyder people as I was from Tulsa. It was terrific."

Richardson, who was calling WTC to leave a message that he would be at Saturday's All-Star game in Amarillo to see Chuck North, took time to thank local citizens for their support.

"The people of Snyder have been so good to us here, both to me and my wife, and to the team," says the former WTC coach. "Don't ever think we don't miss Snyder. In many ways, we liked it better there than here. But there comes a time when you have to think about what you want in life, your goals. We're glad we made the move, but we'll always hold a special place in our hearts for Snyder."

The press had come out to the college to talk with former Westerner Phil Spradling, now a member of the Tulsa Hurricane. Richardson, upon learning one of his key guards was in the gymnasium here, added...

"Really? Well, on your way out, tell him we've got a team meeting here in 15 minutes," he laughs. "Tell him I said he'd better show up. He'd better get here quick." The laugh builds to a roar.

Richardson. Properity hasn't changed him a bit.

WJC Cagers Collect All-American Honors

HUTCHINSON, Kan. -- Charles Johnson, Kelly Lyons and Olivia Jones, Western Junior College Athletic Conference standouts, have been selected to the 1981 NJCAA All-American basketball teams, it has been announced.

Johnson, 6-6 leaper from Midland College, was the only WJCAC player to make the men's first team, but headed a group of five Texas Juco standouts who received honors. Craig Ehlo, 6-5 guard from Odessa College in the WJCAC, made honorable mention.

Others named from Texas were Tyler Junior College franchise Elton Webster, a 6-6 sophomore being recruited by, among others, Tulsa University. Also picked honorable mention were Lonniel Blunston, 6-8, from Blinn Junior College in Brenham, and Don Plummer, 6-7, from San Jacinto College.

Lyons, 6-3 of Howard County College, and Jones, 6-1 of Amarillo College, both made the women's first team.

Two other "Texas girls" were also first-teamers; 5-11 Lola Reescano of Henderson County and 5-9 Rosie Aldridge of Tyler.

The men's first team All-American list includes, in addition to Webster and Johnson, 6-5 Ronald Jackson of Roxbury, MA; 6-11 Greg Wiltjer of North Idaho College; 6-8 Nelson Johnson of Golden Valley Luthern, Minneapolis, MN; 6-3 Odell Mosteller of Hiwassee College, Madisonville, TN; 6-5 Fred Watkins of Lincoln College, IL; and 6-5½ Devi Parks of Arizona Western College.

The remainder of the women's first team includes 5-10 Brenda Hudson of Murray State, OK; 5-10 Regina Mille of Louisburg College, NC; 5-7 Helen Malone of Jackson State CC, TN; 6-2 Valerie Streelman of Grand Rapids JC, MI; 6-4 Sheri Sills of Moberly JC, MO; and 5-11 Regina Osborne of Truett-McConnell, GA.

Additional information provided by the NJCAA has Howard College's Randy Corker as the nation's sixth leading scorer, averaging 25.6 points a game. Danny Simmons of Alvin CC in Alvin, was the third best percentage freethrow shooter in the country with an 87.5 accuracy.

Lewis Optimistic Despite Big Loss

Snyder's Tigers got shafted 22-10 here Friday, but Coach Albert Lewis says there is a bright side to the game, which served as an interlude between the real world - District 2-4A games.

"Our defense was good and I was very pleased with our hitting," said the coach. "So the game left me very optimistic. We know Coronado is a tough team with good pitchers. We found out we can hit against these guys and that's worth something. Then, we didn't have anything in the pitching department. They've (Coronado) got a good hitting team too, and they just blasted us all over the place."

Lewis didn't utilize either of his primary hurlers in the game, choosing instead to save the pair for two district games on Tuesday and Friday. He expects to open with Tony Degrate, 5-1 Tuesday against Ector here, and pitch Mike Roemisch at Andrews on Friday.

John Wilson was tagged with the loss here, firing 2⅔ innings before giving way to Gary Don Edmiaston, who lasted one stanza. Tommy Gressett saw 1⅓ innings of work, and Gerald Don Hicks went the final two. The foursome handed out 17 hits and seven walks which left Lewis with a trace of doubt about the pitching situation.

"Right now, we'll be going with Tony and Mike in district. I had hoped one or two of these other guys would come on for us, but we'll be okay, I think."

Which isn't to say Lewis has given up on the others at all. But it is apparent they'll have to prove themselves again before earning a starting role in a key district game.

"The potential is there, but it may take a while longer to get consistant," he added.

Coronado got two runs in the first, six in the third, six in the fourth, two in the fifth, two in the sixth and three in the seventh. Dean Jackson, 4-2 was the winning pitcher.

Snyder bats were led by Mike Roemisch's three-for-four hitting, including one two-run homer. Brother Brent Roemisch also had a superb day, batting three-for-five with a double and three RBI.

"I've been real impressed with our hitting, especially from our younger kids. They've really come on for us in that department," said Lewis.

Snyder finally jumped on Dean in the fourth, scoring five runs. The Tigers added two more in the fifth and three in the seventh, off of relief pitcher Donald Kristan.

Swim Records Broken

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas sophomore William Paulus and Auburn senior Ambrose (Rowdy) Gaines established new world records Friday night in the 100-meter butterfly and 100-meter freestyle events, respectively, in a special time trial sponsored by the USA swimming sanctioned by FINA.

Paulus swam the 100 meter butterfly in 53.81 to beat the old standard of 54.14 by Par Arvidsson, the golf medal winner in the 1980 Olympics from Sweden.

Gaines' time was 49.36 in his second attempt to beat the record owned by Jonty Skinner of 49.44, established in 1976.

Signs With SWTSU...

Mayes Inks VB Letter

Sherry Mayes, an all-state high school volleyball player for Snyder High School last season, has signed a letter of intent with Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos.

SWTSU, which competes in Division II, is well known for its volleyball program, currently under the direction of Karen Chisum.

"I think she's made a good choice," said Snyder Coach Joyce Elrod, who guided Mayes and her teammates to a Class 4A state championship. "She chose Southwest Texas because of its reputation for volleyball and because their style of play is similar to what we play here at Snyder High School".

Chisum will be in her second year as head volleyball coach at SWTSU. As an assistant the year before, she aided the school in capturing the AIAW championship in division II.

Mayes was named all-district her junior and senior year, and was an all-state tournament selection and class 4A all-state pick as a senior.

A 5-8 spiker, she is also a member of the National Honor Society, the student council, and was named Miss SHS this year.

She will compete in the Texas High School Girls Coaches Association clinic at Fort Worth's Birdwell Coliseum on July 10. One of her coaches will be Coach Elrod; the other, Monahans coach Waynette Dolan.

Mayes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Mayes of Snyder.

SOCCER SCENE -- Snyder's youth have come out for soccer in full force this season, playing at the Boy's Club and the junior high school. Gerald Corkran caught this shot of recent action. Soccer is held every Saturday. See the schedule at right for remaining games and times.

Lakers Even The Score

by The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers and the Portland Trail Blazers both kept their hopes alive in the National Basketball Association playoffs Friday night, but the New York Knicks will have to wait until next year.

The Lakers defeated the Houston Rockets 111-106 and Portland tripped the Kansas City Kings 124-119 in overtime to tie their best-of-three Western Conference playoff series at 1-1.

The Chicago Bulls, meanwhile, eliminated the Knicks 115-114 in overtime to sweep their first-round Eastern set 2-0 and headed for a second-round meeting with the Boston Celtics in Boston on Sunday.

In the start of another best-of-seven second-round Eastern series starting Sunday, Philadelphia will host Milwaukee.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points and Earvin "Magic" Johnson hauled down 18 rebounds to help the Lakers send the series back to Los Angeles Sunday for the deciding game.

The Lakers, who lost the first game of the best-of-three series 111-107, never trailed Friday night and held as much as a 20-point lead over the Rockets, who could only manage to pull to within two points after falling behind.

Blazers 124, Kings 119

Calvin Natt and Kelvin Ransey combined for nine points in overtime and Mychal Thompson poured in a career-high 40 to lead Portland over Kansas City. The mini-series returns to Portland for the third game on Sunday.

Natt got the Blazers on top early in overtime on a three-point play. After Ernie Grunfeld scored for Kansas City, Natt responded with another field goal, then Ransey stretched Portland's lead to 121-116 with 1:22 left.

Bulls 115, Knicks 114

Reggie Theus scored 37 points and Artis Gilmore added 25, and the two combined for all nine of Chicago's points in overtime to lead the Bulls past New York.

"I have never been so physically worn out," said Gilmore, who said that Bill Cartwright and Marvin Webster "bumped me all night and got away with it."

Cartwright: "In the second half they were out to get the ball to Artis. When he gets it that deep, he can do a lot of things to you. I hope they go all the way. They can if they play like they did against us."

Tors Take Over District 2-4A Golf

SWEETWATER -- Preseason favorite Lamesa High School, behind after two previous matches, took the lead in the District 2-4A boys golf race here Friday, shooting a 314 to zip past Andrews.

The eight-stroke victory was good enough to loft the Golden Tornadoes into first place in the overall, three-meet standings, 940 to the Mustangs' 942.

Lamesa, Andrews and Monahans teams teed off first and finished about two hours before the rest of the field at Sweetwater Country Club Friday. Sweetwater, Fort Stockton, Pecos and Snyder teams were still out on the course when winds of over 40 mph hit, causing havoc with their scores. Only six players from a field of 70 broke 80, reported Snyder Coach Mackey Greene, whose Tigers finished 13th and 14th respectively.

Andrews finished with a 322 for second place, followed by Sweetwater I, which moved into third place ahead of Monahans in the overall standings.

Sweetwater I carded a 331, giving the hosts a 975 total. Monahans, which had held third going into the match, dropped to fourth with a 980. The Loboes, despite an early start along with Lamesa and Andrews, finished sixth in Friday's tournament with a 341.

Other scores from the 18-hole tourney were Fort Stockton I, 335; Sweetwater II, 336; Monahans; Lamesa II, 358; Pecos I, 361; Andrews II, 364; Pecos II, 368; Fort Stockton II, 371; Monahans II, 379; Snyder I, 383; and Snyder II, 477.

With only one meet to go, next Friday at Andrews, it would appear Lamesa and Andrews are the only teams in the running for regional honors. The top two teams in the district advance, and Sweetwater I - the current third place team - is 33 strokes back of Andrews.

Lamesa's Jeff Hansard tied with Shannon Self of Andrews, both shooting 74s, to earn co-medalist honors here. Rick Woodson of Lamesa was next with a 75.

Low men for Snyder I were Jay Eiland and Kris Seale, who turned in 94s. Steve Gressett, of the Snyder II squad, also carded a 94.

Other Snyder I scores included a 95 by Joe League and 100s by Jim League and Barry Blackmon. For Snyder II, John Sullivan had a 118, Steve Neeley a 119, Lawrence McCowen a 146 and Jerry Bowen a 168.

Slowpitch Softball

Men's Slowpitch Softball has scheduled a meeting for 7:30 p.m. April 6 at Towle Park Barn. League officials stress the meeting will be the final deadline for anyone wishing to join the league.

All registration fees must be in Monday evening also.

SWEETWATER -- Snyder boys eighth grade track squad polled 144½ points to run away with top honors in their division of the Plunkett Relays held here Friday.

Snyder grabbed four first places and six seconds to help build the victory, which could have been by a larger margin had the Cats not been disqualified in the sprint relay.

Charles Bollinger got in on three blue ribbon causes, winning the pole vault and the long jump, and taking part in the first place 1600 meter relay team. Others on the squad were Bruce Williams, Tommy Holladay and Roy Silva.

The other first place medal was taken in the 1600 meter run by Larry Castillo.

Williams, Silva, Donald Jeffery (two), Sammy Barerra, Romaldo Martinez and Jimmy Cain all brought in second place finishes.

The boys are scheduled in Brownwood next Friday.

DEDUCT YOUR CASUALTIES

As a general rule, you may take a deduction on your income tax return for the value of property destroyed, damaged or stolen. In the case of "non-business" property, the deduction is limited to losses arising from fire, storm, theft or "other casualty."

The "other casualty" referred to in the regulations concerns sudden, unexpected, or unusual causes.

The following could result in allowable deductions: auto accidents, earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, freezing and bursting of water pipes, vehicle damage to septic tanks, vandalism, and accidental damage to property. This list is by no means all-inclusive.

Losses are not permitted where the damage is the result of gradual deterioration or disease. The following do not qualify: insect attack on ornamental trees, contamination of well, rusting of metal, and termite damage.

The theft provisions of the regulations include payments made for blackmail and extortion but provide no deduction for "mislaid" or "lost" valuables.

The amount of your loss is the fair value of the destroyed or stolen property or your basis (cost) in that property, whichever is the lesser, reduced by any insurance proceeds received. This amount is reduced further by $100 per casualty.

The casualty loss for "non-business" property is an itemized deduction on your personal tax return and is generally taken in the year the loss occurred.

In the case of business property, the loss does not have to be the result of the above causes, nor are you subject to the $100 minimum.

Sailboat Masts Overshadow Cornstalks In Zenda

By JOHN SHURR
Associated Press Writer

ZENDA, Wis. (AP) — By all rights, those sailboat masts shouldn't be here, sprouting high above the rows of cornstalks in southern Wisconsin farm country.

Then again, sailing skipper Harry C. "Buddy" Melges Jr. probably shouldn't have his roots in the same fertile sod, either.

But they're here nonetheless, anomalies two.

At the outskirts of town, a squat sign, erected not by the Jaycees but by Melges, welcomes travelers to tiny Zenda, "home of Melges Boat Works Inc."

To the north about 2½ miles sits Lake Geneva, a glacial lake where many boats built by Melges and his father before him are raced in summer regattas.

Zenda, population roughly 90, boasts of a corn silo, a lumber yard, an antique shop, a fourlane bowling alley and the Zenda Tap, a small tavern nestled next to the boat works that specializes in chili at lunchtime.

"Since they put the thruway in, it's easy to miss the place," says Melges, poking fun at the quiet, tree-lined Zenda Road, which slices through town, crossing the Milwaukee Road tracks at one end.

As notables go, the Lake Geneva countryside has laid claim to a few, including Big Foot, long ago chief of the Potawatomi Indian tribe, and the very rich who summer in lavish cottages nearer the lake.

Today, 150 years since Big Foot was the king of the hill, Buddy Melges is taking on legendary status of his own in these parts — especially among the sailing set.

With the look and demeanor of common folk, Melges is a "winner" with enough trophies to stock a small museum. But put a sailboat tiller in his grip and he's like a duck in water.

Buddy Melges, simply put, is a sailor's sailor.

"If I had to pick one 'best' helmsman in the world, it would have to be Harry 'Buddy' Melges," says Cornelius Shields Sr., East Coast yachtsman and boat designer, in a book on sailboat racing.

"I say that for the simple reason that he enjoys competition — racing against anyone, anywhere, anytime, in any boat — and also because all his successes have been in one-design boats.

"Just imagine, he won three straight Mallory Cups (the North American Men's Championship), two Olympic medals, a gold in the Soling keel boat, and a bronze in the Flying Dutchman."

Hunting, according to Shields, "is about the only way to get him away from boats."

When Melges, 50, is not racing or working, he lectures the world over on how to make sailboats, especially one-design boats that compete in a strictly controlled class, go faster.

"He's good at telling stories — maybe not in perfect English, but good stories just the same," recalls one racing companion.

From Zenda, there's rolling farmland as far as the eye can see. Holstein cattle graze in a field of cut corn near the blue and white buildings that house Melges' boat works. Outside, scores of sailboats are stored for the winter, their masts pointing skyward.

For most boys growing up around Lake Geneva, the natural thing to do is follow their fathers into farming.

That, more than likely, would have happened to Melges if his dad hadn't been in the boatbuilding business and encouraged Buddy to get involved in sailing.

"That very well would have been the case," says Melges. "In fact, they were concerned that maybe I was going to be too involved with horses and not take up sailing as a youngster.

"I had a great love for horses and spent a lot of time at a livery stable, working there and taking care of the horses. So I was accused of letting my sailing go to pot."

But boats became more important and, today, Melges has no regrets about being pushed in that direction.

Besides winning the Olympic gold in 1972 and bronze in 1964, he has an assortment of world titles and scores of national and regional championships.

The gold medal, Melges says, was the "sweetest."

"That's because I wasn't just doing it for myself," he says. "I was doing it for my country and that's the difference between sailing for yourself and an Olympic effort."

Buddy's first major championship came at the age of 19 when he won the Inland Lakes Yachting Association C-Scow championship, with a woodenhulled boat built by his father.

He repeated that title in 1950 and again in 1974 but the acclaim in that class of boat pales in the light of almost 50 other championships listed elsewhere on his racing resume.

To wit:

"North American Flying Dutchman Champion, 1963, 1966, 1967; Gold Medal, Pan American Games, Flying Dutchman, Winnipeg, Canada, 1967; Herreshoff Trophy (awarded to the man who has done the most for yachting in North America), 1973; One-Design Sailor of the Year, 1978, 1979 ..."

And more.

But Melges isn't ready to retire from racing. He'll be shooting for more world titles and, in 1984, he's planning another Olympic bid.

Melges' start in sailing was on a small dinghy his father gave him in 1936 to knock about with his pals on Delavan Lake, just northwest of Lake Geneva.

It took Melges only a couple of seasons to reduce his mainsail to tatters. And, because his family couldn't afford to buy Buddy a new sail, Buddy sold sailboat rides for 10 cents apiece to raise the money.

The urge to make a boat go fast came not from racing per se but from trying to find faster ways to get from here to there on Delavan Lake.

"My friends also had some boats of nondescript types and we used to meet," Melges says. "We used to race, do the whole thing. It was my means of transportation, and, of course, you were always in a hurry as a young kid ...

"You wanted to get there as fast as you could. So the sooner you learned to use the wind and the waves to aid in your performance, the quicker you got there."

Many Witnesses Called In Trial

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — Prosecutors have a list of nearly 100 witnesses to testify against Symbionese Liberation Army member Russell Little in his retrial for the slaying of Oakland school Superintendent Marcus Foster.

Stallings And Griffin Exchange Vows In First Baptist Church Ceremony

MRS. THOMAS LANE GRIFFIN

Dian Lynette Stallings became the bride of Thomas Lane Griffin April 1 at the First Baptist Church in Big Spring.

The ceremony, performed by Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, took place under an arch covered in wild smilax and lily of the valley. Candelabra on each side of the arch were decorated with wild smilax, baby's breath and white spring flowers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Stallings of Big Spring. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T.L. Griffin of Coahoma.

Providing the wedding music were Joe Whitten, Ladies Ensemble of First Baptist Church, Lila Adkins and Mrs. W.W. Grimes.

The bride wore a formal white gown of chiffon and re-embroidered Alencon lace. The natural lace bodice, covered with lace, was centered with bridal pearls and featured a Queen Anne neckline. The bishop sleeves were trimmed and cuffed with bands of lace and the A-line skirt was pleated and had a deep lace flounce edging the hem and forming a chapel-length train. Matching lace edged the two-tiered chapel-length mantilla.

She carried a cascade of gardenias, white bridal roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Ken Froman, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Joe Holbrook, San Antonio; Mrs. John Hoffman, Arlington; Mrs. Allan McBrayer, Ft. Worth; Mrs. Bob Montgomery, Lamesa; and Miss Talley Griffin, Gail.

Candlelighters were Mrs. Dan Walker, Dallas; Miss Susan Brooks, Dallas; Mrs. Jack Madison, Midland and Miss Twila Stallings, Arlington.

Mr. Ernie Gandy of Plainview served as best man. Groomsmen were Kyle Stallings, Midland; Todd Stallings, Lubbock; Bill Hardin, Lubbock; Bob Montgomery, Lamesa, and Ken Froman, Big Spring.

Flower girls were Elizabeth Anne Froman, Big Spring; Tasha Ann Montgomery, Lamesa; and Jennifer Dawn Adkins, Lomax.

Passing out rice bags at the reception were Laran and Bethany Joe Stelter, Barry Madison, Leslie Adkins and Jeremy Stallings, all cousins of the bride.

A reception followed the wedding in the parlor of the church. The brides table was covered with a white lace tablecloth featuring a candelabrum holding peach spring bouquets. The Victorian style bride's cake was covered with large white roses, surrounded by wild smilax. Serving at the bride's table were Miss Candy Middleton, Mrs. Louis Dunnam, Mrs. John Rhodes, Mrs. Samuel P. Brooks and Mrs. Max Cogswell.

The groom's table was covered with hand crocheted lace and featured old-fashioned homemade cakes and a German chocolate cake with the groom's brand on top. Serving at the groom's table were Mrs. Jimmy Sterling, Mrs. Joe Pat Harding and Miss Linda Bartlett.

Mrs. Roger Huitt, Big Spring, and Miss Nancy Cramer, El Paso, registered guests at the wedding and reception.

The bride is a graduate of Alamo Heights High School, San Antonio, and has attended TCU and Texas Tech University.

The groom is a graduate of Borden High School in Gail. He attended South Plains College and graduated from Texas Tech in 1975.

Following a trip to the Hawaiin Islands, the couple will reside in Borden County.

COMBATING LAUNDRY — PRODUCT STAINS

Does your laundry have more stains after washing or drying than before you started?

Laundry products themselves could be the enemies.

Three "weapons" to combat laundry-product stains will make the family washday a more "peaceful" event.

RUSTY WATER STAINS

Rust in the water supply can cause yellowish or brownish stains on clothing that has just been washed.

Don't use chlorine bleach — it will make the stain more intense.

Use a commercial rust remover instead. Before you use one though, check the label for any warning about use in the washer.

LIQUID FABRIC SOFTENERS

Liquid fabric softeners can stain clothes when in direct contact with fabric.

Blue colored softeners create a bluish or grayish stain. White or pink softeners cause a grease-like stain.

Sometimes these grease-like stains are mistakenly identified as grease leaking from the washer.

These stains — from fabric softeners — are not permanent.

You can remove these stains by dampening the stain first, rubbing it with bar soap then rewashing the item.

To prevent these stains in the first place, use caution when you add a liquid fabric softener to the wash. Never pour fabric softener directly onto any fabric.

DRYER-ADDED SOFTENERS

Dryer added fabric softeners sometimes create oily stains or flecks, especially on solid-color permanent-press polyesters and nylons.

This happens particularly in cases of overloading, underloading or adding a fabric softener sheet after the dryer has been in operation for a while.

To remove these stains, rub with bar soap and then re-launder the article.

READ MANUAL, LABELS

To protect your laundry more efficiently, check the use and care booklets for your laundry equipment — as well as the labels of fabric softening products — to learn proper-use procedures.

Finally, if a particular product continues to stain your laundry, switch brands or use a different type of product — such as liquid or dryer-added, or discontinue use of the problem product.

Q. What shoe should I wear with a soft, flowing dress?

A. Wear something delicate and bared. This strappy sandal ties in a knot at the vamp to create a graceful, open feeling. And the slender mid-high heel is perfect for a dressy occasion.

LlanesWedsOvermanIn Double Ring Ceremony

March 20, Miss Pita Llanes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Llanes of Raymondville, was united in marriage with William "Skeeter" Overman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Overman of Andrews.

Officiating at the ceremony in the wedding chapel of the First Baptist Church was Rev. Jackie Barnett of Andrews.

Escorted by her father, the bride carried a bouquet of white daisies with white ribbon and lace streamers. The wedding gown of all-over lace worn over ribbon weave polyester sheath, was designed and fashioned by the bride. The headpiece featured small daisies tied with tiny white ribbons.

Maid of honor, Miss Paula Patton of Clyde, was attired in a pastel yellow sheath dress with keyhole neckline and white lace collar, and carried three long-stemmed daisies tied with green ribbons.

Best man was Brad Hilliard of Houston. Jerry Overman and Velon Burnett, both of Andrews, served as ushers and lighted tapers in the two seven-branched candelabra.

Soloist Mark Grissom of Andrews sang "Whither Thou Goest" an "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Patsy Turnbow, organist.

Following the ceremony and the lighting of the unity candle, a reception was held in the church parlor.

The bride's table was covered with white lace over a yellow undercloth. The centerpiece featured gold and crystal candelabra with yellow candles and a large basket of daisies. The wedding cake, topped by a small bride and groom and golden punch in a crystal bowl completed the decor.

The lace-covered groom's table featured a tall chocolate cake decorated in white and yellow daisies and baked by the groom's sister, Miss Sherry Overman.

Miss Kimberly Underwood of Odessa was at the guest registration table and Miss Cindy Underwood passed out rice bags.

Hostesses at the refreshment tables included Mrs. Jim Underwood and Mrs Joe Underwood, Misses Melba and Minnie Llanes, Mrs. Wayne Land and Miss Yoli Ignacio.

The bride graduated from Raymondville High School and is a sophomore at Texas A&M University. The groom was valedictorian of his 1976 senior class in Andrews and will receive his degree in Mechanical Engineering from Texas A&M University in August.

After a brief honeymoon trip, the couple will make their home in Bryan until school is out. They will then reside in Andrews where Overman will be employed by Exxon Corp.

Critters Tie The Knot During Armadillo Days

KOUNTZE, Texas AP— Hoover and Starr, two longtime residents of the area surrounding this east Texas town, have found wedded bliss as the state's first legally married armadillos.

Hoover, described as a portly but outgoing member of his species, parachuted out of a low-flying airplane, only moments before the ceremony began. His bride, wearing only a wedding veil, paced nervously in her basket as the Rev. Glen Drongoole of Sour Lake prepared the altar.

Hoover's handler and best friend, Gordon Baxter, said the wedding was long overdue. Starr bulged expectantly.

The two were wed as part of Kountze's annual Armadillo Days celebration. Also on hand was a best man — a poodle said to be still suffering from a hangover from the previous night's bachelor party — and a maid of honor, an elephant.

It was the first marriage for both, town officials said. The couple was carried off to an undisclosed location for their honeymoon.

Friends sf the couple say they plan to reside in the country.

The only time in U. S. history that the president and vice president were members of a different political party was in 1797. President John Adams was a Federalist and Thomas Jefferson, a Republican, became vice president.

Many industrial plants use their own waste products to make both electricity and heat together. The process is termed "cogeneration." At the Diamond Walnut Growers' facility in California the leftover shells are crushed, producing 35,000 tons of coarse brown powder each year. Once sold as poultry bedding and toy fillings, the shells are now burned in boilers that warm the plant and generate three times the electricity it needs.

Over 55 Age Group Ignored By Markets

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Think old.

If you think in terms of conventional stereotypes — poor, inactive, confined to a nursing home — you're on the wrong track.

"The picture that is traditionally given (of older Americans) isn't at all right," says marketing consultant Carole B. Allan of Washington, D.C.

In a recent article in "American Demographics" magazine, Ms. Allan said there is a vast, untapped market among people over 55 whose buying power and needs have, in the past, gone largely unrecognized.

Forty-six million Americans, about 20 percent of the population, are over 55. More than one-third of the households in the United States are headed by someone 55 or older. And the median age of the population is gradually creeping up; it is expected to rise from 30 to 35 in the next 20 years alone.

"Historically," Ms. Allan said, "middle-aged and older consumers have been the forgotten generations in consumer marketing."

Ms. Allan said in an interview that there are several reasons why marketers have largely ignored older people. "The United States has always been a youth culture," she said. "Traditionally, the marketing industry has said, 'Let's stop things at age 49.'"

Ms. Allan also said the young "can't conceive of what it is to be an older person." Misconceptions are numerous. Here, according to Ms. Allan, are some of the fictions and facts:

Fiction: The elderly live in nursing homes or with their children.

Fact: Fewer than 5 percent of all people over 65 are institutionalized; half the people 65 and older live in husband-wife households; only a small percentage are with their children.

Fiction: Older Americans are sickly and inactive.

Fact: Only one person in 20 is confined to his or her home because of poor health.

Fiction: Most older people are poor, with little discretionary income.

Fact: The 28 million households headed by people 55 or older account for 30 percent of the total income in the United States and have 28 percent of the discretionary income. Households headed by someone 55 to 64 have a total income of about $240 billion a year and an average annual income of nearly $20,000 each — more than $2,000 higher than the national norm. Households headed by someone over 65 have a total annual income of $162 billion and an average income of $10,291 a year each.

Fiction: Even if older people have money, they don't spend it.

Fact: The 28 million households headed by people 55 and over account for more than 25 percent of total consumer expenditures. People over 65 spend more per capita than average on such varied products as vacation travel, women's hair care, some types of clothing, mobile homes, newspaper subscriptions and food.

Dallas Chosen For Temple

DALLAS (AP) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has chosen Dallas as the site of its newest Mormon temple to serve church members in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, church officials said.

The exact location of the temple — one of 37 planned or existing temples in the world — has not been determined, a church spokesman said.

The 26,000-square-foot temple will not be as "architecturally unique" as the church's temples in Los Angeles, Washington, and Salt Lake City, said church officials, who said the temple would be completed in 1982 but declined to estimate the cost.

Rodgers, mother-in-law of the honoree; the honoree; Jane Lawler, mother of the honoree; and Sandy Lawler, sister of the honoree. Hostesses for the event were Mmes. PastimeBecomesCareer For Swatch Librarian

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

When Susan Meller was 8 years old, she used to rip up old sheets into squares, paint a design on them with marking pens and put the squares together into a "swatch book."

"Then I would play store with them and the sample swatches my uncle, a robe manufacturer, would bring me," she recalls.

Later, as an art student, she began collecting old textiles as a hobby.

These pastimes proved prophetic. Today, with her husband, Susan Meller runs a design swatch library. It is a business that serves the needs of designers of fabric, wall coverings, apparel and packaging.

From a loft building at the edge of New York's garment district and a group of storehouses in West Pawlett, Vt., the Meller collection of 5 million swatches and designs on paper is available for sale or rent to designers seeking inspiration.

Like other unusual businesses, this one started by accident and grew because it met an unusual but nevertheless very real need.

"Some designers don't like to admit it and our designer customers usually refuse to let us use their names because they want the public to think they invented the designs on their wall coverings and clothing and furniture. But there is nothing new under the sun," said Herb Meller in an interview with the couple at their New York office.

The popular looks today — such as small figured prints and French provincial designs — are not new. They have been done before, he added.

From a realization that design motifs are ageless to a thriving business employing generally four fulltime salespersons and a number of support staff is, however, a very long series of steps.

The steps to the Design Library began haltingly.

"As a textile designer, I continued to collect fabric swatches and designs both out of interest and for my own reference," said Susan. "Occasionally I would show my swatches to others in the field."

To her surprise, a number of designers and firms expressed an interest in buying the samples. She sold a few and then more, as word-of-mouth knowledge of her collection grew.

Then Susan and Herb met and married and decided to move to Vermont. As collectors of antiques, they eventually opened an antique shop there, now closed.

However, to serve her growing number of customers, Susan would go through her collections in Vermont and each month bring a bag to New York of the designs she felt were most suitable to current market trends.

Enter her uncle — the one who brought her robe swatches when she was a little girl. "He was retired and bored and he suggested I leave the sample bag with him instead of bringing back the unsold things to Vermont each month. He began going around to designers and selling the rest of the samples," she says.

From these small beginnings the present business was constructed. Today, the Design Library both rents and sells outright the designs it has bought. The collection emphasizes swatches and painted designs for fabrics mainly from Europe and America dating from 1790 to 1950. The bulk of the business — 80 percent — is divided equally among home furnishings and apparel designers.

Missing the king and jack

The classic case here is A Q 10 9 6 opposite 8 7 x x. If you want the maximum, finesse the queen. This gives you a 27 percent chance for five tricks and just over an 81.5 percent chance for four.

On the other hand, if you want to be as sure of four tricks as can be, you should play the ace and then lead toward the queen. It only gives you a 12.5 percent chance for five tricks, but it gets you four any time you don't find K J x or K J x x in back of the ace. This is an 83 percent chance. Not much better than 81.5 percent, but definitely better.

Furthermore, if you do play the queen and it loses to the king, your best play is to lead the ace next. Now, if it turns out that the king was singleton you lose two tricks in the suit while the ace lead would get you all five.

Let's shift the queen. You hold A 10 9 x x opposite Q 8 x x. If you need all five tricks, you can lead the queen and hope for K x x opposite J or lay down the ace and hope for J x x opposite K. Either play is a 6 percent chance for all the tricks. If you need four you should lay down the ace and lead toward the queen — an 83 percent chance.

The preceding assumes perfect defense. Against human defenders you should lead the queen when playing for five. Sometimes an opponent will duck with K x.

If playing for just four and you lead from the ace toward Q 8 x x, there are lots of players who will never play low from K x. Hence, if they do play low, you play the eight. If it loses to the jack, finesse for the king on the way back. This play insures four tricks unless the first player held K x x in which case you would lose to a singleton jack. This play wins 94 percent of the time.

embargo, good-bad

Uncertainty over the ultimate impact of the embargo of grain shipments to the Soviet Union — on our farmers as well as the Russians — plagues the Reagan administration in his consideration of the boycott's future.

The president has wondered publicly whether the effect on the Soviet economy is worth the disruption to farmers.

There are persuasive arguments for leaving the embargo in force and stiffening its enforcement.

Although shipments of wheat and corn were made to the Soviet Union through "loopholes" in the boycott, there has been a reduction in animal feed and a consequent reduction in meat consumption. The Soviet agricultural area, already lagging behind demand, has further depressed and weakened the entire economy.

And the blow to American farmers has been less severe than expected. Other grain markets have opened as U.S. allies have been less than cooperative with the embargo, neglecting their traditional grain customers to reap premium prices from the Soviets.

U.S. exports to Spain, Italy, Colombia and Japan increased as Argentina deserted them to fiil Soviet orders. Canada, Australia and European nations also increased their Soviet shipments.

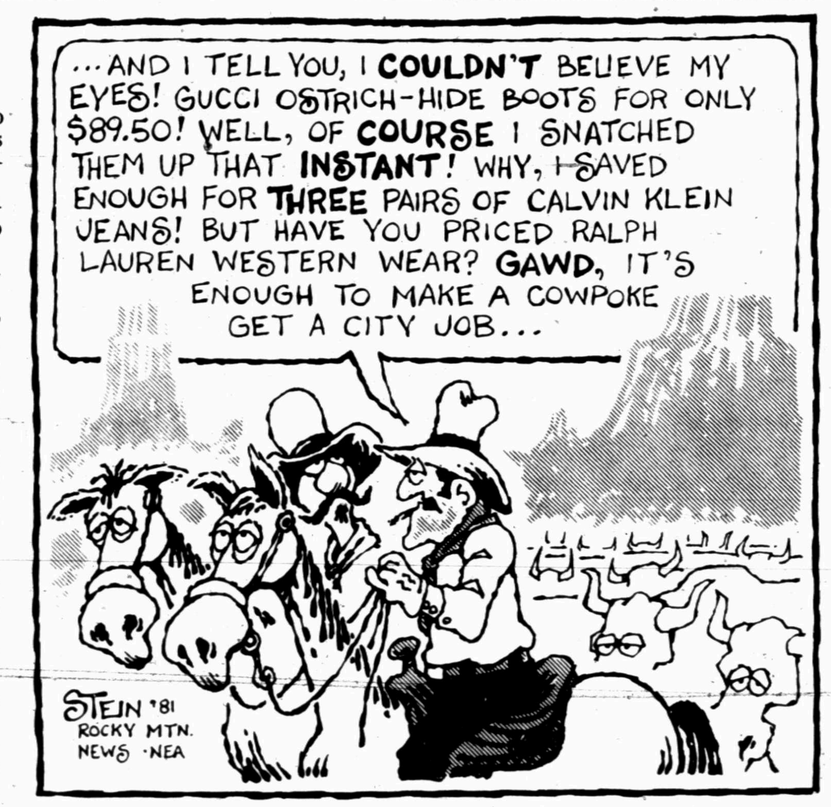

John R. Block, President Reagan's secretary of Agriculture, concedes that food is "a valuable instrument for peace," but should be used as a weapon "only as a last resort under extreme circumstances."

The Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan was an extreme circumstance, moving Soviet troops 400 miles closer to the Strait of Hormuz, our seaway to Persian Gulf oil. The grain embargo was a reasonable response, requiring no movement of troops, physical force, or extensive planning.

A boycott that was effective could create frustrations in Moscow every bit as unsettling as those that have the Polish people up in arms — a situation that strongly hints at further Soviet adventurism.

Leaving the boycott intact will impress the Kremlin with our seriousness of purpose. It should not affect farm income greatly.

The embargo emphasizes U.S. displeasure with the Afghanistan invasion, as well as other dangerous Soviet moves, and gives us some potential leverage against Soviet actions in Poland. If we talk tough and then drop the boycott, the Russians will be persuaded that we don't mean what we say.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

I sat next to a really neat lady at a luncheon the other week who got to talking about braces on the teeth...hers.

She said, "How come you never mentioned my braces?"

I stared awkwardly into her fruit cocktail and said, "I don't know...I guess I didn't want to make you self-conscious."

"I'm not," she said. "You are. It's funny, kids are great about it. They'll come right up and say, 'When do they come off?' or 'Wouldn't you kill for a caramel?' But not adults. They act like they don't see them."

It occurred to me that adults are that way about a lot of things. People make such a flap about face ad body lifts. I personally considered Eleanor Roosevelt the most beautiful woman I ever met, but if something bothers you and you can still get the parts, I say go for it!

Or, as a wise friend of mine once said, "To heck with my ironing board, let's put the silicone right up front where everyone can see it."

There is something admirable about a woman (or man) who works on perpetual maintenance. My mother-in-law went through extensive and expensive bridgework at the age of 74. Another woman in her 60s got a face lift and it made such a difference to her. Too often, we're intimidated by age. Everything becomes predictable. At age 20 the teeth start to go, at 30 the skin dries up, at 40 the eyes dim, at 50 all the muscles relax and bag around your knees, and at 60 you fall asleep during a tax audit.

I defy you to gather together a group of women (or men) and find one who is totally happy with the way she looks. One friend of mine confessed she hated her nose.

"What's wrong with if?" I asked. "It works, doesn't it?"

"That's not the point," she said. "It looks like George C. Scott's."

"So?"

"So, I can't act."

She had the nose altered and I swear I never saw the difference, but she did.

The mind is also not exempt from the self-improvement route. People who are college graduates are the first to admit it's overrated. I knew people who graduated with honors who could't operate a pay toilet. But another friend of mine lived for the day when she could enroll in the university and unlock the doors of ignorance.

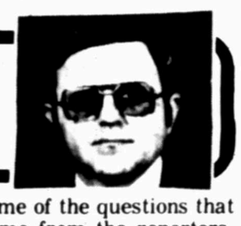

Whatever stands in the way of your self-confidence...whether it's an overbite, toeing inward, a 30-pound honker, hips like saddlebags, weak eyes, a quest for Thoreau, wrinkle city, hamster hair or a concave chest, fix it.

I know I never started to live until I lost ten pounds...five oft each upper arm.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Nowadays our necessities are too luxurious and our luxuries are too necessary."

The attempted assassination of President Reagan happened just as we were burning the final plate for our 2 p.m. press run.

The Associated Press wire in the office has a bell to alert those in the newsroom that an important story is about to move. It is rare that the bell rings, so rare in fact that we sometimes wonder if it still works.

The first thing to move was a single paragraph that shots had been fired as the president left a Washington hotel.

Editor Wacil McNair made a quick decision to remake the front page, which was done in a matter of about 15 minutes. Most of the delay was waiting for information to move on the wire.

As you probably noticed, our story was about 10 inches and stated that the president appeared to be unharmed. About 2:25 and the press rolling, a second bulletin moved that stated that the president had indeed been hit.

Those who spent the afternoon and evening glued to television sets know that the information and misinformation changed drastically.

Perhaps the worst blunder was the erroneous report that Press Secretary James Brady had died. CBS even had a moment of silence in honor of Brady.

Overall, however, we think the media did a spendid job in keeping everyone abreast of the latest developments. The early evening reports that the president was in good shape was especially heartening.

We were especially impressed with the spokesman at the hospital. Dr. O'Leary is about the most eloquent speaker we've heard in some time.

What did distress us was some of the questions that came from the reporters. The questions at times were not only repetitious but meaningless.

Our biggest embarrasment was Dan Rather and CBS who kept going back to Secretary Haig's statement about being in charge at the White House.

Secretary Haig never once said the word accession, but Dan Rather did on numerous occasions. We admit that the Secretary did say "Constitutionally."

What really was important was that Vice President Bush was on his way back to Washington and that Secretary Haig was available along with the White House staff to see that the government of the United States continued to function.

Nevertheless, such a senseless act is a sad commentary on the state of things. We have far too many nuts running loose, and it is anyone's guess when it might happen again.

letter to the editor

To The Daily News:

Can you afford to own land?

There is a 10,000-acre ranch in this county that is leased for ranch purposes at $4.50 an acre. One year of lease is $45,000. 10 years of lease is $450,000. At the price of land, this ranch will bring on the market enough money to buy 300,000 shares of Texas Utilities stock. One-year dividend payment on stock is $450,000, 10 years dividend payment is $4½ million.

A famous scientist is said to have discovered that a skeleton, unearthed 50 years ago in France and believed to be that of a prehistoric Neanderthal man, is acutally the remains of an old man who lived in the 1800s who had arthritis.

This piece of information is included in an illustrated pamphlet called "Big Daddy?" which is intended to be a refutation of the claims of the evolutionists. "Big Daddy," whose picture appears on the pamphlet cover, is the ape the evolutionists claim man is descended from.

Whether the story about the bogus Neanderthal skeleton is true or not, more and more people today are ready to believe anything that embarrasses the evolutionists.

It is said to be part of the growing anti-intellectionism of the times, resulting in a downgrading of science and a greater willingness to accept the intuitions of faith as fact.

That may be true. But the new breed of creationists — those who believe that the Bible story of creation is true — are not trying to garner a big chunk of the "science vote" as well. That is, the anti-evolutionists are basing their case not on Bible "evidence" but on scientific evidence.

"We take a strong scientific position," says Dr. Duane Gish, associated director of the Institute for Creation Research. He is a bio-chemist trained at the University of California.

"Our ultimate goal," says Gish, "is to establish a tremendous scientific case for creation. Known laws and natural processes demonstrate that the universe could not have created itself. Life itself could not have spontaneously come into being.

Gish is the author of a book called, "Evolution: The Fossils Say No!". In that volume Gish argues that the earth's fossil records undermine evolution because "a lot of intermediate steps necessary to the evolutionists' theory simply don't appear.

But the majority of people who accept the Bible story of creation — happy as they may be to find their position buttressed by science — would probably be creationists on the basis of "the Bible says so" alone.

Others have been converted from the scientific view to the Bible view of how man and the universe began.

"Many believe it is necessary to deny man's reason in order to restore humanity," remarks British scientist Denis Alexander in his book, "Beyond Science."

Alexander, searching for reasons "why so many are turning away from science," says, "Certainly some are frightened at the implications of current research. They see man as losing his humanity in a technological society."

Many scientists are willing to acknowledge that they don't know how man and the universe came into being. But they would insist this is not the same as saying, "Your guess is as good as mine," to anybody who has an opinion on the subject.

In other words, while conceding there are mammoth gaps in the evolution theory, most scientists would say it offers a better clue as to how life got its start than the six-day creation story in the Bible.

Many theologians agree. Teilhard de Chardin — a scientist as well as a philosopher — sees in evolution powerful support for belief in God. Evolution, he points out, reveals a steady upward progress in the complexity of life forms.

The scientific "law of entropy," he says, holds that there should be a steady degeneration of matter into even simpler and less complex forms. The upward direction in evolution suggests to de Chardin that the universe is under the control of an intelligent creative will.

In addition to the Bible creationists and the evolutionists, there is a third group which maintains that the Bible and Darwin may both be wrong in their ideas on how the universe began.

The current battle, however, is between those who stand up for evolution and those who uphold the Bible story. In that fight, the creationists may not be winning but they are putting the evolutionists on the defensive.

"Right now, we're doing little more than putting out fires," admits Dr. Francisco Ayala, president of the International Society for the Study of Evolution and professor of genetics at the University of California.

Creationists, meanwhile, have won public funding for presenting their views in 23 California school districts, several districts in Georgia and Virginia, as well as major cities like Dallas and Columbus, Ohio.

And the battle is only beginning to heat up.

Dear Abby

Daughter's Love Story Too Full of Facts

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was heartsick, but not terribly surprised, to find birth control pills in my daughter's bathroom. Rhonda (not her real name) just turned 18 and is a senior in high school. She's been going steady with a young man since last summer. Rhonda is an excellent student and plans to start college away from home next fall.

In today's world, what are a girl's chances of being harmed permanently by premarital sex? Rhonda is my only daughter. I love her dearly and never dreamed I would have this problem.

A MOTHER'S PROBLEM

DEAR MOTHER: A girl's chances of being harmed permanently by premarital sex would be infinitely greater were she not taking precautions to prevent an unwanted pregnancy. Many mothers whose daughters have had an abortion or a child out of wedlock would have welcomed your "problem." I am not condoning premarital sex, but when it's a fact, it should be dealt with intelligently and responsibly.

DEAR ABBY: Apparently neither you nor PERPLEXED IN N.Y. has ever been to a dance where there was a considerable number of unescorted women. I have, and believe me, the burden on the escort is nothing compared to that of the woman who must sit smiling while those parasites "borrow" her husband.

My husband and I both love to dance, and in the 40 years of our marriage we have attended many dances and exchanged dances with other couples during the evening. Now, however, there are increasing numbers of widows and divorcees to be waltzed around the floor, and if my husband danced with each one of them once, it would leave me without a partner all evening, so now we attend dances for "couples only."

While I sympathize with women who don't have husbands, it doesn't follow that I should give up mine.

ADAMANT IN N.Y.

DEAR ADAMANT: Read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow and I love to dance. When I go to a dance alone or with another woman and there aren't enough men to go around, it is torture for me to just sit and tap my toes while others are dancing, so I ask a woman to dance. It's not quite as much fun as dancing with a man, but it beats sitting.

Oh, I get a few funny looks, but that doesn't bother me. Do you see anything wrong with it?

LOVES TO DANCE IN HIBBING, MINN.

DEAR LOVES: No. But if two men started to dance together in public, they'd promptly be asked to dance out of the place. Unfair? Yes. But who ever said life was fair?

DEAR ABBY: I agree, the word "hopefully" is woefully overused — and incorrectly at that. It would be much simpler if "I hope" were used instead, because that is what is meant.

Another word that is overused is "very." I once knew an editor who told his reporters that he would fire any reporter who used the word "very" — they should substitute the word "damned" instead! But since it was a family newspaper, he blue-penciled all the "damneds" before the stories went to the composing room.

DEAR NOVELIST: That's damned interesting — I hope!

Bill OKs Group Proposals

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill authorizing bus companies and motor carriers to submit rate proposals as a group was approved by the Senate on Wednesday.

Senators concurred in House amendments and sent the bill to the governor on a 28-1 vote.

The Railroad Commission already accepts collective rate proposals from bus companies and motor carriers, but Senate and House sponsors said the bill was necessary to protect the companies from state antitrust provisions or federal interference.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, sponsored the bill.

LAFF - A - DAY

"I hate to tell you this, son — but the reward money is running out!"

Hospital Spells Relief For Allergy Sufferers

DALLAS (AP) — Life at the Brookhaven Environmental Control Unit is considerably less hectic than the rush hour traffic that surrounds it twice daily, blanketing the hospital in an invisible cloud of hydrocarbons.

For some of its patients, a whiff of the automobile emissions just a few yards away could mean wheezing and uncontrollable gasping for breath. For others, even the slightest taste of peanut butter can produce a toxic reaction.

Brookhaven is a man-made oasis in a world of man-made chemical pollutants and poisons, an internationally known center for the treatment of severe allergies.

Since its founding in 1975, it has provided safe haven for people like Becky Dial, a 31-year-old Dallas woman who two years ago couldn't ride in a new car without her legs hemorrhaging, the capillaries within them burst by chemical poisons. The "new car smell" was toxic to Mrs. Dial.

As the freeways begin to jam each weekday morning in northwest Dallas, the 25 patients at Brookhaven toast the new day with one of eight different brands of bottled spring water. Never mind the noxious clouds that gather outside, settling on the trees and flowers and water.

Inside, all is clean steel and porcelain and ceramic tile. The sunlight pouring through the unit's windows betrays but a few particles of airborne dust. The light bounces in flashes off walls covered with aluminum wallpaper.

The green bottles of Perrier water contain no chlorine or flouride. The aluminum wallpaper contains no grout. The ceramic tiles contain no wheat paste. Banned outright are after-shave lotions and perfumes, aerosol sprays and cleaning fluids. The patients and their hospital rooms are cleansed with baking soda.

So pervasive are these and other modern substances that there is a lengthy waiting list of allergy sufferers trying to get into Brookhaven. Most of them will remain hospitalized for a month or more. All suffered from allergies for years and chose isolation only when life on the outside became untenable, doctors at Brookhaven say.

Such was the case last month for one of the unit's most celebrated patients, former British pop singer Sheila Rossall. Ms. Rossall, 31, was stricken with "widespread allergy syndrome" about the time she recorded a chart-topping pop tune three years ago.

Elizabeth I, the daughter of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn, was born in 1553.
