Mother, Sons Found Shot In Farm Home

FARMERSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — A mother and two of her sons were discovered shot to death in their farm home beds today, and two shotguns were found lying on the floor alongside the mother.

Montgomery County Sheriff Harold Whitten identified the victims as Mrs. Ann Beferman, 53, and her sons, Tom, 13, and James 9.

He said he had no idea yet who did the shooting. But he said it did not appear that the house had been broken into and there was no sign of a struggle.

Whitten said the bodies were discovered by another son, Charles, when he returned home early today from a date in Springfield. Another son, William, lives in Springfield.

Whitten said the sheriff's office was notified of the deaths by the husband and father, Cletus, when he returned home from working the night shift at the Crown Mine at Farmersville.

Whitten said the mother was shot in the forehead and the two boys in the head. He said it appeared all were shot at close range.

The mother was clad in a dress, he said, and the two boys were in night clothes.

State's Atty. Otto Funk, who was at the Beferman home along with Whitten investigating the shootings, said they apparently occurred during the night.

He said the body of the mother and one son were discovered in the mother's bed. The body of the second boy was found in another bedroom.

Whitten said the shotguns were either 12 or 16 gauge.

Farmersville is about 20 miles south of Springfield.

PAMPA POLAR BEAR!

Posed atop the diving board of the Pampa Hotel swimming pool in the midst of Monday's freezing snowstorm is local insurance salesman, W. T. Braly. Not on a wager, but more on the line of a friendly dare, did Braly and Mildred Vermillion agree to take a 15-minute dip in the pool's heated waters. That's Mrs. Vermillion's husband, Roy, hotel manager, in the background at left, living in season, shoveling away a portion of the five-inch snow that hit Pampa. Note the open cabana behind Braly so that a fast dash to warmth could be made after the swim. (Daily News Photo)

Rebels Boast They're At 'Doors of Triumph'

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press International

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Cuban rebels struck into the heart of Havana Province today with a daring raid on an explosives depot in which they dynamited the huge stores of ammunition they could not carry away.

The raid on privately owned explosives depot I Guanabacoa across the bay from Havana followed rebel claims to have smashed government forces in central and eastern Cuba. The rebels were boasting they were "at the doors of triumph."

Government sources disputed the sweeping rebel claims but admitted there was heavy fighting around the city of Santa Clara in central Cuba where the rebels have claimed major successes in street fighting.

The army said its forces were on the offensive in central Cuba and were driving the rebels ahead of them despite rebel propaganda broadcasts to "create unrest."

The blast of the Guanabacoa explosives rocked lower Havana. Police called in all reserves and alerted the 19 precinct stations in the greater Havana area. Roads and airports were blocked off.

First reports said several armed men aboard a six-wheeled truck pulled up in front of the explosives storage of the "Armeria de Cuba," imported of explosives, at 8:30 a.m. and with the aid of two of the three soldiers on guard, loaded the vehicle.

Bridge Also Blasted
They tied up a civilian watchman and the third soldier and dynamited what explosives were left.

It was the second rebel-authored incident of sabotage in Havana province in 12 hours. A small bridge was blown Monday night at Guira de Melana.

At the same time a new radio station which identified itself as the Voice of the Communist Party appealed to all workers and members of the party to join forces against the "last stand of the dictator" President Fulgencia Batista.

Rebel radio broadcasts said insurgent forces had captured 80 per cent of the rich farming province of Las Villas in central Cuba in a major rebel victory that would cut the island almost in two and seal off Havana from its food supplies.

Other broadcasts reported sweeping victories in Oriente Province, the center of rebel activity in easternmost Cuba. Rebel radios said the army was on the run in many areas falling back on the provincial capital of Santiago.

Bomb, Strafe Rebels
The government bombed the rebels relentlessly "in around-the-clock bombing and strafing attacks in perhaps the heaviest fighting of the Fidel Castro-led revolution, but heavy street fighting was reported underway in Santa Clara, the capital of Las Villas Province, 160 miles east of Havana.

A rebel broadcast said their troops smashed through government lines to enter the city of Santa Clara and capture the University of Santa Clara three miles from the city limits. It said "army forces fell back towards the Leoncio Vidal Barracks," headquarters.

The radio said the rebels were led by Dr. Ernesto Guevara, a left-wing Argentine-born physician who successfully assaulted nearby cities last week.

Plan Provisional Government
A new station heard in Havana, which claimed to be pro-rebel, hailed him as a "Communist comrade."

A report from central Cuba said the rebels were planning to form a provisional government at Caibarien, 25 miles southeast of Santa Clara, under Dr. Manuel Urrutia, a former Oriente Province judge who fled into exile in the United States and returned to Cuba recently.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Passengers on an airliner which landed here Monday on a flight from Cuba, said two protesting Americans were dragged from the plane before takeoff by belligerent nationalist policemen.

Officials of Delta Air Lines confirmed the seizure and identified the Americans as James W. Reid and Louis F. Brantley, both en route from Montego Bay, British West Indies, to New Orleans.

Passengers said the two men were discussing the Cuban revolution at the Havana Air Terminal before boarding the plane and that apparently this was the reason for their arrest.

Wrestled From Plane
Dr. Daniel Thomas, 39, of Gary, Ind., one of the passengers, said a half dozen Cuban plainclothesmen entered the plane while it stood on the ramp, almost bowling over one of the stewardesses.

"They went straight for these two passengers," he said. "One (passenger) was a young man from Tennessee and the other was middle-aged."

"The Cubans wrestled them from the plane," Thomas related. "Both were protesting all the while that they hadn't done anything and that they were American citizens."

"One of the armed men cocked his pistol and shoved it against the younger man's abdomen, telling him to shut up and come along."

Another passenger, Daniel Freeman, 43, of Oakland, Calif., said he ran forward and told the plane's captain what was taking place.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A boost in social security taxes will reduce take-home pay of about 57 million jobholders, starting Thursday.

About four million employees also will be hit by higher taxes. Employers must match penny for penny the contributions of employees covered by the social security system.

The tax increase will bring close to one billion dollars in added revenue into the social security fund next year.

This will more than pay for the 7 per cent increase in monthly checks which the 12,500,000 persons on the benefit rolls will receive, starting in early February.

The changes in the program, enacted by Congress last summer, will improve the actuarial soundness of the social security fund.

For two years the fund has paid out more in benefits than it has collected in taxes. But the fund won't be operating in the black again until 1960 when a second tax boost goes into effect.

Starting with a covered worker's first January paycheck, the government will deduct in social security taxes 2½ per cent of the first $4,800 he earns in 1959. The tax rate was 2½ per cent on the first $4,200 in earnings this year.

For a $60-a-week worker take-home pay will be cut only 15 cents a week. He will pay $1.50 a week instead of $1.35.

For workers who earned more than $60 a week, the social security tax bite will be deeper.

For some, the bite will seem sharper than it actually is.

For example, take-home pay in January will drop $2.50 a week for the $100-a-week workers, $3.75 for those earning $150 a week, and $5 for those earning $200.

The workers in these higher brackets — $100, $150, and $200 weeks — aren't paying social security taxes at this time of the year. The payroll deductions stopped after the government collected the tax on the first $4,200 of their 1958 earnings. The total collection from each was $94.50.

They will go back on the tax rolls at the higher rate in January. Psychologically, they will be getting a sizable pay cut.

Employees who earn $4,800 or more in 1959 will have to pay $130 in social security taxes. That's $25.50 more than they paid this year. The tax increase for self-employed persons will range as high as $38.25. The self-employed pay a 50 per cent higher rate.

Pampa's City Commissioners this morning discussed the weather, noted the snowy streets and then ran quickly through a small agenda of business.

A 20-year contract with the Southwestern Public Service Co. was approved on second reading. The contract, first read last Tuesday following a meeting with Southwestern officials, provides for the supplying of electric power in Pampa the next 20 years.

Southwestern will continue to pay the city a monthly "rent" for its services of 3 percent of its gross receipts.

Commissioners also decided to ask for bids on a new station wagon automobile for the Pampa Fire Department.

City Manager John Koontz said repairs on the present station wagon — a 1952 Ford — might be considerable and advised that bids be sought on a new vehicle.

Mayor Lynn Boyd said bids will be opened Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 10 a.m. The present station wagon will be traded.

IOWA'S ROSE BOWL BAND VISITS SUNDAY

Pampa will be host Sunday to 250 members of the University of Iowa Hawkeye Band and pep organization, the Scottish Highlanders. Enroute home from Pasadena, Calif., and the New Year's Day Tournament of Roses, the group will make an 8:45 a. m. church stop here.

The Chamber of Commerce with the cooperation of local churches has arranged to meet the students at the Santa Fe station and conduct them to Protestant and Catholic services.

The Hawkeye Marching Band, 150 members strong, and the all-girl, 100-member Highlanders, will arrive in a special Santa Fe "Chief" on their way back to the University of Iowa, Iowa City.

Protestants in the group will go immediately to the First Methodist Church. The Catholics, 32 in number, will go to Holy Souls Catholic Church for 9 a. m. Mass.

After the Rose Bowl game, the Iowans will board the Chief for a visit to the Grand Canyon.

SS TAXES TO CUT DEEPER

FOR SURVIVAL

12 Ounce Infant Is Given Chance

CHICAGO (UPI) — Doctors said today 12-ounce Gloria Hanes has a fighting chance for survival if they can get some food in her.

If the child, born Sunday, lives, she will tie the world's record for the smallest baby in history to survive.

The infant is only 10½ inches long and can be held easily in the palm of the hand. Her head is the size of a tennis ball.

The baby, actively waving her arms and legs about, was being cared for in an incubator in Swedish Covenant Hospital, where she was born 3½ months prematurely.

Dr. Nils Tunestam, the family physician, said the infant "has a chance to survive, although it is a slim chance." However, he said if Gloria lives, the odds were better than 50-50 that she would grow up to be a normal child.

Feeding Big Problem
A hospital spokesman said the big problem now is when and how to feed the girl. She has not eaten since her birth Sunday afternoon.

"The decision to feed her is a big one because the way she takes food is very important to whether she will survive," he said.

The infant probably will not be fed until Wednesday or Thursday, unless she shows signs of drying out. Mucus in her tiny throat might prevent oral feeding with an eye dropper, in which case physicians said they would try to give subcutaneous injections of water and sugar.

In treating Gloria, doctors went back to the records of Jacqueline Benson, also of Chicago, who holds the all-time record for lightweight babies who survived. Miss Benson, now a 22-year-old kindergarten teacher in suburban Palatine, also weighed only 12 ounces when she was born at St. Anne's Hospital on Jan. 14, 1936.

Miss Benson was kept in an incubator for 4½ months before she was sent home weighing 7½ pounds.

When told of Gloria's birth, Miss Benson said "Wonderful! If she has the kind of care I had," she'll make it.

Says Prayer
"I've said a prayer for the little girl," Miss Benson added. "I hope she grows up to be a fine healthy young woman."

Holiday Accident Mark Now At 805

United Press International

Authorities braced for the long New Year's holiday today, hoping to hold the traffic toll below the nearly 800 fatalities chalked up during the long Christmas week-end.

A final United Press International count showed traffic killed 599 persons during the 102-hour Christmas holiday. The toll fell below the 620 deaths estimated by the National Safety Council and was well under the Christmas holiday death record of 712 set in 1956.

However, the count was 119 higher than the normal 480 traffic deaths which could be expected for a non-holiday period of the same duration at this time of year.

In addition to traffic, 8 persons were killed in plane crashes, 98 in fires and 102 in miscellaneous accidents for an overall holiday death total of 805.

Panhandle Buried With White Mantle

Despite five inches of snow, and it was still falling at noon today, Top O' Texas highways are open, the Texas Highway Patrol here reports. Snow plows worked on the roads during the night.

United Press International

The vicious storm that covered the Panhandle and South Plains with sleet, snow and ice moved eastward into north central and the northern part of East Texas today.

The storm stranded travelers in the Panhandle and West Texas by the hundreds and it seemed likely that it will begin to tie up roads to the east by night. It was blamed for at least three deaths.

Wichita Falls, in the upper Red River Valley, reported three inches of snow and drifts six or seven inches deep. Wichita Falls was now in the center of the storm.

The Department of Public Safety at Wichita Falls advised motorists to use chains as far east as Nocona and as far south as Mineral Wells.

The latest weather forecast contained a freezing rain warning for north central Texas. It predicted freezing rain over the whole north central sector by tonight with occasional freezing rain likely Wednesday. Temperatures in north central Texas will drop as low as 20 tonight.

Forecasters also predicted freezing rain in the extreme northern portion of East Texas late tonight and in the northwestern part of South Central Texas through Wednesday.

But they predicted only light snow for the Panhandle and South Plains and east of the Pecos Valley in West Texas, where temperatures were expected to get as low as 10 degrees.

Only the southernmost sections of the state were expected to escape a freeze.

Panhandle highways, clogged by snow drifts and plagued by reduced visibility in Monday's mile-a-minute snowstorm, were slowly opening to local traffic this morning, and the high winds subsided to just stiff breezes.

Through traffic north and west of Amarillo to Oklahoma and New Mexico still was being held up by road blocks early today because of the heavy accumulations of snow, but officials were permitting local travel between Panhandle cities.

Storm Causes Traffic Deaths
The snowstorm was blamed for the traffic deaths of at least three persons in Texas—one when a farmer drove into the path of a train near Muleshoe and two when a mother and daughter were injured fatally as an auto transport truck crashed into their car (See PANHANDLE, Page 3)

DOWN, BUT HE SEEMS HIGH!

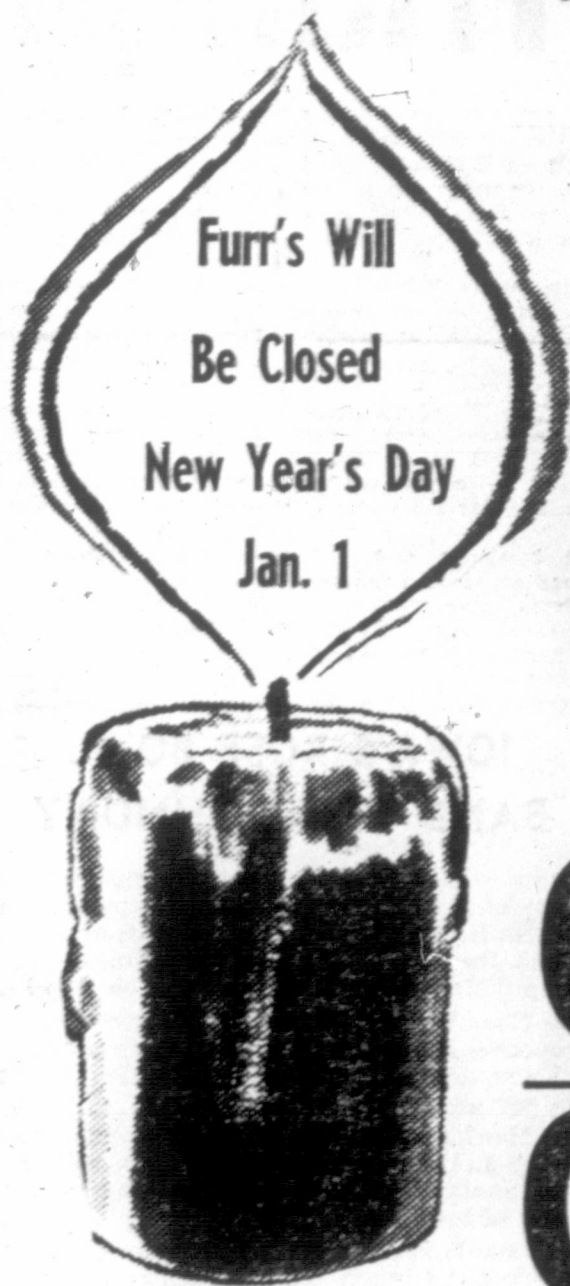

The Panhandle of Texas or Massachusetts, it's all the same story today. There's plenty of snow on the ground for the likes of most winter-loving souls. Except maybe Mr. Gull here who is grounded at Springfield, Mass. Mr. Gull appears high as a March kite as he staggers through the snow. May have imbibed some potent antifreeze!

FBI Head Warns, Commie Underground On The March

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Lost in all of that Christmas rush was a warning of which good citizens should take heed, although they probably will not.

The warning was contained in the year-end report of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. Hoover said the Communist underground again was on the march in the United States. He put it like this:

"Sensing a more favorable atmosphere, the Communist Party, U.S.A., and its dupes and sympathizers gained further courage and became more vocal in their attacks upon law enforcement and other professions which are dedicated to preserving our freedoms."

"Its leadership reins," Hoover reported of the Communist Party, U.S.A., "are firmly held by rapidly pro-Soviet elements and the party's ultimate objective remains the overthrow and destruction of our government. By force and violence."

Hoover is not given to loose language. He could not have been unaware that the implication of the first quoted paragraph is that there is, actually, a more favorable atmosphere in the United States now than previously for Communist plots and maneuvers.

The question arises: More favorable now than when? Surely not more favorable now than, say, 10, 15 or 20 years ago when a broad scale Communist infiltration of practically everything gained for the Communies or their stooges a sizeable and significant place where you scarcely would believe it if it were not a matter of record.

Such places, for instance, as in the White House, the State Department, the Treasury, the Agriculture Department, the National Labor Relations Board, the CIO, to name some bell ringers. Those were the days, and let them not return.

There was considerable public outcry about all of this way back yonder when it was laid out for all to know and the Republicans made a lot of political mileage out of it in the 1952 campaign. It is not likely that Hoover meant the new atmosphere was so favorable as all of that. Even so, his report should jar and jab the citizens pushed up the bill for collecting the full amount, the source pointed out.

The tax settlement had no bearing on the immigration status of Chaplin, a British subject who never sought U.S. citizenship during his 42-year Hollywood career.

The comedian had a re-entry permit when he sailed for Europe in 1952 with his wife and children. But shortly after his departure, the attorney general's office announced Chaplin would not be permitted to re-enter until he proved at a hearing he was admissible under U.S. immigration laws.

Revenue Service officials admitted they were puzzled over Chaplin's compromise of the celebrated tax case. They said the former baggy-pants comedian had taken all his assets out of the country after moving to Europe in late 1952.

The government claimed Chaplin owed $486,950 in personal income taxes for 1953. The Celebrated Films Corporation, which he owned, also was in debt to the tax collector for $55,678 over a three-year period. Interest at 6 percent brought the U.S. claim to about $700,000.

The tax case against the 69-year-old actor had been slated for a hearing in federal court in Los Angeles next week.

Chaplin, who now lives in Switzerland, refused to pay the amounts sought by the government. He contended that he was no longer subject to American taxes after he left the United States.

Stricken Comedian In London Clinic

LONDON (UPI)—Movie actor Charlie Chaplin, from whom the U.S. government has extracted $425,000 to settle an income tax claim, entered a London clinic today with a badly abscessed wisdom tooth.

He had no comment on the tax settlement when he arrived here by plane from his Lake Geneva villa in Switzerland.

Chaplin paid $425,000 in settlement of government claims adding up to about $700,000, including back interest. The payment was delivered to the Los Angeles IRS office Monday by Chaplin's attorney.

Revenue Service officials admitted they were puzzled over Chaplin's compromise of the celebrated tax case. They said the former baggy-pants comedian had taken all his assets out of the country after moving to Europe in late 1952.

The government claimed Chaplin owed $486,950 in personal income taxes for 1953. The Celebrated Films Corporation, which he owned, also was in debt to the tax collector for $55,678 over a three-year period. Interest at 6 percent brought the U.S. claim to about $700,000.

"Uncle Sam feels pretty good about the settlement," one government source said. Court costs involved in a legal fight would have pushed up the bill for collecting the full amount, the source pointed out.

The tax settlement had no bearing on the immigration status of Chaplin, a British subject who never sought U.S. citizenship during his 42-year Hollywood career.

The comedian had a re-entry permit when he sailed for Europe in 1952 with his wife and children. But shortly after his departure, the attorney general's office announced Chaplin would not be permitted to re-enter until he proved at a hearing he was admissible under U.S. immigration laws.

FBI Head Warns, Commie Underground On The March

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Lost in all of that Christmas rush was a warning of which good citizens should take heed, although they probably will not.

The warning was contained in the year-end report of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. Hoover said the Communist underground again was on the march in the United States. He put it like this:

"Sensing a more favorable atmosphere, the Communist Party, U.S.A., and its dupes and sympathizers gained further courage and became more vocal in their attacks upon law enforcement and other professions which are dedicated to preserving our freedoms."

"Its leadership reins," Hoover reported of the Communist Party, U.S.A., "are firmly held by rapidly pro-Soviet elements and the party's ultimate objective remains the overthrow and destruction of our government. By force and violence."

It was only last October that the New York Times reported on page one that Pentagon and Atomic Energy Commission officials were expressing alarm because of fears that Soviet agents in the United States were doing some fancy spying on U.S. atom tests.

The new atmosphere must be mightily favorable to permit that.

Americans seem reluctant to believe that the ultimate objective of the Communist Party, U.S.A., is the overthrow and destruction of the U.S. government by force and violence. That is all a matter of record, too, set down in books written by the American bosses of the American Communists.

William Z. Foster laid it all out in a book more than 25 years ago; its title: "Toward a Soviet America." The final chapter coldly proposes revolution in the United States. Subheads of that chapter are such as: "Nationalization of Industry and Agriculture; Liquidation of Religion; Expropriation of Capitalists."

"Its leadership reins," Hoover reported of the Communist Party, U.S.A., "are firmly held by rapidly pro-Soviet elements and the party's ultimate objective remains the overthrow and destruction of our government. By force and violence."

Cite Old Days
Hoover is not given to loose language. He could not have been unaware that the implication of the first quoted paragraph is that there is, actually, a more favorable atmosphere in the United States now than previously for Communist plots and maneuvers.

The question arises: More favorable now than when? Surely not more favorable now than, say, 10 or 20 years ago when a broad scale Communist infiltration of practically everything gained for the Communies or their stooges a sizeable and significant places where they scarcely would believe it were not a matter of record.

Such places, for instance, as in the White House, the State Department, the Treasury, the Agriculture Department, the National Labor Relations Board, the CIO, to name some bell ringers. Those were the days, and let them not return.

There was considerable public outcry about all of this way back yonder when it was laid out for all to know and the Republicans made a lot of political mileage out of it in the 1952 campaign. It is not likely that Hoover meant the new atmosphere was so favorable as all of that. Even so, his report should jar and jab the citizens

Stricken Comedian In London Clinic

LONDON (UPI)—Movie actor Charlie Chaplin, from whom the U.S. government has extracted $425,000 to settle an income tax claim, entered a London clinic today with a badly abscessed wisdom tooth.

He had no comment on the tax settlement when he arrived here by plane from his Lake Geneva villa in Switzerland.

Chaplin paid $425,000 in settlement of government claims adding up to about $700,000, including back interest. The payment was delivered to the Los Angeles IRS office Monday by Chaplin's attorney.

Revenue Service officials admitted they were puzzled over Chaplin's compromise of the celebrated tax case. They said the former baggy-pants comedian had taken all his assets out of the country after moving to Europe in late 1952.

The government claimed Chaplin owed $486,950 in personal income taxes for 1953. The Celebrated Films Corporation, which he owned, also was in debt to the tax collector for $55,678 over a three-year period. Interest at 6 per cent brought the U.S. claim to about $700,000.

The tax case against the 69-year-old actor had been slated for a hearing in federal court in Los Angeles next week.

Chaplin, who now lives in Switzerland, refused to pay the amounts sought by the government. He contended that he was no longer subject to American taxes after he left the United States.

"Uncle Sam feels pretty good about the settlement," one government source said. Court costs involved in a legal fight would have pushed up the bill for collecting the full amount, the source pointed out.

The tax settlement had no bearing on the immigration status of Chaplin, a British subject who never sought U.S. citizenship during his 42-year Hollywood career.

The comedian had a re-entry permit when he sailed for Europe in 1952 with his wife and children. But shortly after his departure, the attorney general's office announced Chaplin would not be permitted to re-enter until he proved at a hearing he was admissible under U.S. immigration laws.

AIR FORCE CAN STRIKE ON THE GROUND, TOO

By GENE MEAKINS
United Press International

AIR FORCE-ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI)—The Air Force Academy Falcons, facing tough Texas Christian University in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day, have a lot of football weapons and they know how to use them.

The Falcons employed strong passing, running and kicking and a tough defense to score nine victories and one tie this season; their first in major college competition. The Academy has not yet graduated a class.

They tied Iowa, 13-13, with a balanced running and passing attack. Against Oklahoma State, they took to the air brilliantly to win, 33-29. They remained mainly on the ground to crush Wyoming, 21-6; kicked field goals to edge

U.S. Advances In Cup Play

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI)—Hamilton Richardson, a diabetic of questionable stamina, and Alex Olmedo won the longest challenge round doubles match in history today to give the United States Davis Cup team a 2-1 lead over Australia in the best-of-five series.

After spotting Australia's heralded super men, Mal Anderson and Neale Fraser, the first two sets, the gritty Yanks rallied courageously to win the four-hour struggle, 10-12, 3-6, 16-14, 4-3, 7-5.

Now the underdog Americans need only one victory in Wednesday's concluding singles matches to reclaim the famed mug, which Australia has won seven times in the last eight years. But they'll have to do it without Richardson.

Although ranked No. 1 in the U.S. tennis ratings, Richardson was omitted from the singles assignments by non-playing Captain Perry Jones, who considered the former Rhodes scholar from Arlington, Va., too weak to handle the giant Aussies.

Richardson won't even be around to watch his mates in the decisive singles matches. Extremely bitter over being snubbed by Jones, the freckle-faced netman will leave by plane for the States Wednesday morning because "my part of the job is done."

While Richardson is winging back across the Pacific, Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, who won the singles assignment over the Louisiana-born star, will play Anderson and Olmedo will face Ashley Cooper in Wednesday's pairings.

AGGIES UPSET TCU IN SWC MEET FINAL

By KYLE THOMPSON
United Press International

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Aggies of Texas A&M, the proud possessors of an upset 61-45 victory over highly favored Texas Christian, today tasted their first Southwest Conference pre-season tournament title.

The upstart Aggies turned the trick in the final tournament game Monday night, by preventing ninth-ranked TCU from maintaining a scoring attack with a determined defense.

Rice took third place in the tournament when guard Dale Ball connected on two free throws in the final two seconds to break a tie and inch over Southern Methodist, 81-79.

In earlier consolation games, Texas Tech defeated Arkansas

72-64 and Baylor won over Texas, 76-64.

Aggie forwards Wayne Lawrence and Wilmer Cox kept up a steady stream of field goals to keep the Horned Frogs off balance.

Steady Drive

A capacity, 6,200 crowd watched the Aggies hold a steady drive that carried them to their first tournament championship since it was started in 1951. The victory gave A&M an 8-1 season record, and left TCU with a 7-2 standing. The halftime score was 26-21.

TCU's 6-10 center, H. E. Kirchner, who collected 63 points in three games, was named outstanding player of the tournament. Kirchner was held to 13 points last night, but was high man for the Frogs.

Lawrence was high scorer for the game with 17 Aggie points, and Cox netted 14.

Kirchner, Bobby James of SMU, Neil Swisher of Texas A&M and Tom Robitaille and Ball of Rice were selected for the all-tournament team.

Rice made a thrilling comeback behind surge starting in the first minutes of the second half, and quickly whittled on SMU's 49-40 halftime lead until the Owls were ahead 54-53 with only four minutes gone in the second period. SMU regained the lead, however, and held it until Rice's 6-9 Robitaille tied it up with a field goal, 79-79, with 44 seconds left.

Cincinnati Holds Number One Spot

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cincinnati retained first place in the United Press International college basketball ratings while relaxing during the Christmas holiday, but this week Oscar Robertson and Co. got a stiff test to determine their right to the No. 1 spot.

Coach George Smith's Bearcats, who led Kentucky by only 19 points in this week's rankings by the UPI Board of Coaches, are engaged in the Dixie Classic, rated the toughest of the holiday tournaments. Cincinnati beat Wake Forest, 94-70, in its first Dixie Classic game Monday afternoon, but conceivably could meet two teams in this week's top 10 before the tournament is over.

Holiday idleness "froze" the alignment of the top six teams, with Kansas State, Michigan State, North Carolina and North Carolina State holding the ratings from third place through sixth in that order.

Bradley moved up to the top 10 group for the first time this season (in eighth place) and Texas Christian returned after an absence of one week (in ninth place).

Top Ten

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United Press International major college basketball ratings (first place votes and won-lost records through Dec. 27 in parentheses):

Team	Points
1. Cincinnati (21) (5-0)	333
2. Kentucky (10) (9-0)	314
3. Kansas State (4) (7-1)	232
4. Michigan State (4-0)	182
5. North Carolina (5-0)	158
6. North Carolina State (6-1)	119
7. Northwestern (6-1)	81
8. Bradley (7-0)	76
9. Texas Christian (7-1)	65
10. Auburn (6-0)	50

Second 10 teams—11. Purdue, 44; 12. St. John's (N.Y.), 38; 13. St. Joseph's (Pa.), 34; 14. West Virginia, 33; 15. California, 27; 16. Mississippi State, 26; 17. St. Louis, 22; 18. Xavier (Ohio), 21; 19. Marquette, 15; 20. Washington, 11.

Northwestern, ranked seventh, and Auburn, ranked 10th, completed the top 10.

The coaches based their ratings on games played through Saturday night, Dec. 27.

Michigan State, North Carolina and North Carolina State, ranked 4-6 in that order, all started play in the Dixie Classic this week. It was inevitable that some of these powers would clash with one another or with Cincinnati before the week is over.

Harvesters Seek Second Win Over Tall Indians

The Harvesters shoot for their 25th straight win, and their lucky 13th of the year, tonight at 8 p.m. in Harvester Field House.

Their opponent will be the Quanah Indians, a team they have already beaten this year. In the second game of the year, the Harvesters downed the Indians, 67-51.

Quanah is the tallest team Pampa has faced this year. The Indians are, in fact, an inch taller per man than the Harvesters. Quanah averages 6-4, the Harvesters 6-3. Both teams have only one man under six feet tall.

Tonight's game, the last for the Harvesters before the January 6th district opener here against Borger, will be preceded by a B game at 6:30 p.m.

The Indians may have improved since the first Harvester game, since they beat a good Amarillo Sandie team by seven points in a recent tournament.

For the Harvesters, Mack Layne has been the big man in more ways than one. In recent games, the 6-5 center has scored 56 points in the last three games, including 26 in the first Denton contest—the individual game high for any Harvester.

Layne will be guarded this time by a man as tall as he is, so it will be interesting to see if he can keep up his torrid scoring pace.

Quanah's height didn't show the Harvesters the last time they met. The Harvesters are hitting a torrid .508 percentage from the floor, but have slumped recently at the free throw line.

Pampa was hard pressed last weekend to beat the Denton Bronchos, a team averaging five inches shorter than Quanah. However, height was the only thing Denton lacked, because the Bronchos had the sharpest shooting, smoothest looking team which has played the Harvesters in a home game.

One advantage the Harvesters will probably not be able to hold against Quanah is in rebounds. Pampa grabbed almost two rebounds to Denton's one, but it's doubtful if they'll do that well against the big Indians.

Layne, Bob Gindorf, and Coyle Winborn will be depended on for Harvester rebounds. Layne has grabbed 144; Gindorf, 6-4, has snagged 114, and Winborn, 6-4, has taken 115.

WINS GOLF TITLE
PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI)—Buddy Baker, a 17-year-old shotmaker from Florence, S.C., won the 11th annual Donald J. Ross golf championship Monday with a one-under-par 70 3 course. Billy Womack, also of Florence, finished second in the A division, 15-17 years old, of the tourney.

Prodigal Government

The fifteenth chapter of Saint Luke, in the scriptures, contains that charming and familiar story of the prodigal son.

It will be recalled that a certain man had two sons and divided his substance with the younger of the two, who then went out and wasted what he had received in riotous living.

Later, the son returns and is welcomed by the father, who rejoices so heartily that a great feast is prepared and the fatted calf slain for the occasion.

The young son is forgiven for being prodigal, whereas the older son is made unhappy by the degree of warmth for his brother revealed by the father. The old man's love of his son is understandable.

But a parallel of this parable recurs annually in our land in relation to the government, but why the slaying of the fatted calf continues year after year, when there is no evidence that a true state of repentance has been reached, remains one of our modern wonders.

If the taxpayers are seen as the father and the government as the younger son, we have an interesting and dramatic parallel. Each year the government, in this role, goes out and spends the money it receives from the taxpayers in riotous living. When it is all spent the government comes back, not in a repentant frame of mind, but hasting after more loot.

And here the forgiveness of the taxpayers is seen. For the taxpayers fail to take the necessary steps to stop this sort of madness. On the contrary, they utter such platitudes as: "Well, it's always hard for the government to reduce expenditures," or "We must back up our government, now that it's in such terrible difficulties," or "We must let the government run into debt, so taxes must be raised."

Undoubtedly, if the Biblical parable had dealt with an unrepentant wastrel who came back looking for a second handout, the culmination of the story would have been in another vein. But in the modern version, the taxpayers are far more forgiving than the dotting father in the Bible. Someway, the taxpayers seem to hope that the government will ultimately mend its ways, but in the meanwhile it must be backed up regardless of what it does.

The government gives no evidence of being repentant. On the contrary, it continues to run into enormous problems sired by its general profligate character. But when the accounting is made, it is always the taxpayers who are placed in the wrong for not having provided the government with whatever it was the government thought it had to have.

We are reminded of this peculiar fact by a recent announcement made by the American Bankers Association. If there are any taxpayers who understand the folly of wasteful spending, the bankers ought to be those taxpayers. But now the banking fraternity is calling for a broad tax increase if the federal budget cannot be balanced by cuts in spending.

Of course the federal budget can be balanced by cutting some of the spending. Of course the government doesn't plan to cut the spending. So, of course, the taxpayers are going to be compelled to pay more money, either beforehand thru taxes or after the fact, by servicing the new debts the government will rack up.

Here's the way the bankers put it: "Our fiscal situation has now become a serious inflationary threat to our economy."

"The tax burden already is heavy, and we know from past experience how hard it is to curb governmental expenditures. If, however, the administration and the Congress are unable or unwilling to hold expenditures down to the level of realistically estimated revenues for fiscal 1960, then revenues should be increased to cover expenditures — in other words, taxes should be raised."

"This of course would be painful, but far less painful than the consequences of continued deficit spending."

The bankers are right, too, except on one important point. If it is hard for the government to live within its budget, it is even harder for people to do it when the government apparently has the power to loot their incomes without limit.

If ordinary little people can manage to reduce their own expenditures, so that the government can spend what it pleases, then certainly the supposed geniuses of finance in the government ought to be able to do as well.

The end of the problem will never be found by raising taxes. The only possible solution will come when the people themselves refuse to continue to support this prodigal government of ours.

Freedom For Farmers

Recently in Boston, the Farm Bureau Federation's 40th annual meeting was held. It is almost always encouraging to hear what members of the Farm Bureau Federation have to say, for, in the main, this organization is dedicated to free enterprise and the fundamental concepts of Americanism.

On the occasion to which reference is made, Federation President Charles B. Shuman gave a memorable talk, excerpts of which should be of interest to rural folk in this area whether or not they are members of the federation.

"Those who believe in government direction of individuals, and those who do not recognize that our successful system in this country depends upon freedom of individuals to choose, always advocate more government controls over the economy when faced with the failure of current programs."

"Many panaceas will be proposed to the new Congress — bushel and poundage quotas, income subsidy payments, strict marketing orders for all crops, multi-price schemes and many others."

"Most of the so-called new proposals being offered have the same built-in weaknesses that brought failure to past programs and would, if adopted, accelerate the trends toward socialized agriculture."

"Excessive production is encouraged as certainly by income payments as by price guarantees. In fact, the income insurance feature of these various schemes assures uneconomic stimulation of production."

"Present excessive wheat and cotton production has been in part caused by the insurance feature — the price and market being guaranteed by government before planting — as well as by the levels at which prices were fixed. "If we place all farm production under a control and pricing scheme or add farmers to the public payroll under some income payment plan, we will have moved a long way toward peasantry in American agriculture."

"The way to a healthy, prosperous agriculture is not to make farm income dependent upon Congressional appropriations."

There were other comments of merit in Mr. Shuman's presentation.

"The question is often asked — why is there so much opposition to every attempt to take a small step toward a return to a market price system for agriculture?"

"There are three groups who like things as they now are: large surplus stocks and farmers dependent upon political action by Congress."

"The first group consists of a few devoted Marxists who wish to see our free competitive capitalistic system replaced by a system of state ownership and control of property and individuals."

"The second group is the increasing number of warehousemen and handlers of farm products who are profiting from the government storage programs. Included in this group are a few farmer cooperatives."

"The third group is the relatively small but powerful group of politicians who like to be in the position of dispensing favors to farmers. They like government farm programs because they can take credit for all improvements in farm income or make extravagant promises when conditions are not so good."

What Mr. Shuman was getting at was a trio of proposals which have been submitted by the Farm Bureau Federation. These propo-

Inhumanity Of The Minimum Wage

Paul L. Poirot has an interesting essay on "Inhumanity of the Minimum Wage" as published in "Essays on Liberty."

When minimum wage was first started, I always believed it was impractical and would lead to unemployment and/or inflation.

Unemployment is relieved by reducing real wages by giving a dollar that is of less value. Inflation is a natural result that follows inhuman laws like minimum wage laws.

This is the way Poirot presents the case:

"The Republican President of the United States believes that no person should be allowed or required to work for less than 90 cents an hour. The Democratic Governor of New York urges raising the minimum wage to $1.25 from its present level of 75 cents. Except for such differences in detail, fixing a minimum wage by law has come to be a bipartisan project. That may indicate good politics — but it is no assurance that a minimum wage law will accomplish what is claimed for it."

"Beginning with the truism that 'the laborer is worthy of his hire,' proponents of the minimum wage interpret it to mean that anyone who works thereby establishes a valid claim against his employer, or against society, for a wage sufficient to assure an adequate standard of living. Though it may be difficult to say precisely what constitutes an adequate standard of living, the opinion is widely held that such a standard lies somewhere between the prevailing extremes of wealth and of poverty; underlying this opinion is the assumption the poor are poor because the rich are rich; that is, that employers exploit their employees. It is supposed that employers withhold as much as they can of what the workers have produced — that the so-called 'wages fund' is not fully disbursed as wages — and that this is a crime against workers in particular and society in general. And if crime is being committed, it is the duty of government to intervene; hence, a minimum wage law."

"If this theory is correct, how is the injustice of inequality, or exploitation, done away with by a minimum wage as low as 90 cents or $1.25 an hour? If the compulsory equalization of wealth is a proper means to a better society, why shouldn't the minimum wage be at least $5 an hour?"

"The answer, of course, is that the minimum wage theory does not square with experience. The reason is that work, as such, is not something scarce and useful to human beings. Sheer effort is not one of the things men will buy in the market place. The goods and services produced by workmen are the things valued, regardless of how much or how little labor went into their creation. If a horse can pull ten times as many babbages to market as a man can, who in his right mind would hire a man instead of a horse for that job? But if the horse is hired, should the cabbage-mover then be required to pay ten men to sit by and watch the operation? That would be a logical development, according to the minimum wage theory that human labor is the only thing of value to society."

"That theory is wrong because horsepower also has value, as tools are valuable, and scientific knowledge, and a great many other things besides direct physical labor. How valuable? Why, just as valuable as producers and consumers jointly determine in the market place. There is no such thing as a 'wages fund' in the minds of individual buyers and sellers who bargain with one another. The money a man owns, or the property it symbolizes, may be offered in exchange for labor — a service — or it may be offered in exchange for other property. The fund, if one chooses to call the earnings and savings of individuals a fund, cannot be paid solely and exclusively to labor. Some of it must go as a return for the use of tools and capital, or else there will soon be none of those savings which create job opportunities and which help to improve the productivity of the laborer."

Unemployment Of The Least Capable

"A dictator, it is true, can arbitrarily declare human labor to be the only thing of value in the world; and he can set a minimum or a maximum wage, or just fix prices. But he cannot enforce his dictates because they run contrary to the rules of human behavior. As long as men harbor their own distinctive sense of values, there is no way of pre-termining the price they will pay for what they want. That is set in the market place, whether it is legal or 'black.'"

"A $5 minimum wage is indeed ridiculous, not because $5 is the wrong amount, but because it is ridiculous to try to set a minimum wage at any level. It doesn't work. And it is an injustice to the people it is supposed to help — the less productive and less fortunate members of society. If a minimum wage is set high enough to have any effect, that effect must be a closing of the market to those persons least capable of earning a living. For the minimum wage denies such persons the right to offer their services for what they are worth. The law says in effect, 'If you are not worth the legal minimum wage, you are not worth anything.' This, of course, is arbitrariness of the very worst kind. It is difficult to visualize a greater injustice than this among supposedly civilized human beings — the strong gangling up to deprive the weak of their limited means of helping themselves."

1958 Year-End Clearance

Robert Allen Reports:

Ike, Dulles Have Been Close To Parting

WASHINGTON — Intimate as their personal and official ties are, President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles have been close to a parting of the ways.

The break was averted by the narrowest of margins. This extraordinary incident occurred while the ailing Dulles and his doctors were urgently striving to get him ready to fly to the NATO conference in Paris.

During this time of great physical stress, the Secretary was confronted with a grave policy crisis precipitated by former U.S. Ambassador to Italy Clare Boothe Luce, and a group of former Hungarian officials in exile here, who were determined the U.S. should take drastic action against Hungary at the General Assembly meeting.

Dulles flatly and vehemently rejected their proposals and backed up his opposition with a threat to resign.

Only a last minute reversal by President Eisenhower kept Dulles from submitting his resignation.

For weeks before the UN meeting, State Department aides debated what course the U.S. should follow in the General Assembly to keep world opinion focused on Hungary.

After hearing all suggestions, Dulles decided to support new motions denouncing the executions of former Premier Imre Nagy and other Hungarian patriots, and calling for a new UN watchdog for Hungary.

Dulles rejected more explosive proposals — calling on Hungary to give Cardinal Mindszenty safe conduct out of the country, and barring the Hungarian delegation from its UN seat.

The Secretary was convinced these might lead to new uprisings in Hungary, and the closing of our embassy in Budapest.

Deputy Undersecretary Robert Murphy supported the more drastic suggestions, as did former Ambassador Luce.

Dulles gave Lodge his full support.

That night — on the eve of the UN debate on Hungary — Lodge explained to the President in great detail why he thought Dulles was right. At one point, when Eisenhower argued it was outrageous to let the Hungarians keep their UN seat, Lodge said he agreed, but that the cost of barring them might be too high.

Once diplomatic relations were broken off, he pointed out, the U.S. would be forced to close its embassy in Budapest. Then, if we wanted to save Cardinal Mindszenty, we would have to fight. And if we did not save him, our prestige would suffer a terrible blow.

Lodge assured the President that the U.S. could keep the UN from accepting credentials offered by the group, thus withholding UN endorsement. This action, he explained, would not bar the delegation from taking their seats or taking part in Assembly debate but was, nevertheless, a strong diplomatic slap.

The President agreed that Lodge had shed new light on the matter. He told him to disregard earlier instructions, and to relay this word to Dulles.

Two days later, the UN adopted a resolution sponsored by the U.S. and 36 other nations condemning the Soviet Union and Hungary for bombard Luce and the exiled Hungarians.

They were strongly opposed by Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. delegate to the UN, and Francis O. Wilcox, Assistant Secretary for International Organization Affairs.

Secretary Dulles sided with the latter group.

The matter seemed settled until Mrs. Luce learned of the decision. She immediately arranged for C. D. Jackson, former White House aide, and now a Luce Publications executive, to see the President.

In an hour — long talk, Jackson persuaded President Eisenhower to reverse Dulles on one of the resolutions, and instruct Ambassador Lodge to block the Hungarian delegation from taking their UN seats.

Secretary Dulles learned of this while he was at Walter Reed Hospital. He called the President and asked to come to the White House as soon as his doctors would permit. The President replied that he would go to the hospital.

The Secretary urgently and vigorously explained his stand. He said that if the Red delegation was barred from the UN, their puppet government would retaliate by breaking off diplomatic relations with the U.S. This could set off a terrible chain of events, he warned.

The President promised to look at the whole matter again, but the next day he telephoned to say he was committed to his original decision.

BREAKING POINT — This was when Dulles told aides he was considering submitting his resignation.

He told one close associate he felt he had no choice, since the President had overruled him at such a critical time.

Ambassador Lodge then called Dulles from New York to say he had received his new instructions and didn't like them. Lodge felt so strongly that he said he planned to talk to the President if the Secretary did not object.

Dulles gave Lodge his full support.

That night — on the eve of the UN debate on Hungary — Lodge explained to the President in great detail why he thought Dulles was right. At one point, when Eisenhower argued it was outrageous to let the Hungarians keep their UN seat, Lodge said he agreed, but that the cost of barring them might be too high.

Looking Sideways

By Whitney Bolton

NEW YORK — This is a pleasant and confiding time of year and I might as well tell you now that I have three wigs, blond, red and brown, and they do exactly nothing for me. I look much better in my customary suit of skin on my head. As a blond, I look unlikely. As a redhead, I look sinister. And as a brown-haired fellow, I look silly. As a bald man, I am not exactly a militant threat to Yul Brynner, but at least I am myself.

The way it was, I know a girl named Judith Wyramp. Type of name not easy to forget. I saw Judith at lunch a few tables away the other day and she was blonde, Scandinavian looking and lunching with four women, all of whom looked like frumps compared to her. About 5:30 that afternoon, in the same watering hole, I saw Judith with a crew-cut Madison Avenue ad executive-type man and she was a redhead. Flaming head of curls, and she had her date obviously hog-tied and weak. That night, at the theater, about 8:30, I saw her in a seat across the aisle and she was a sedate, Mandollan-like type with dark, silken hair combed severely.

"I want to see you at intermission," I whispered, and she nodded. At intermission she told me all three hair-dos were wigs, the work of Larry Mathews, adding "If you go to 701 Seventh Ave. sometime tonight, knock twice and say Judy sent you." So after doing my work of reviewing the new show (it wasn't much good), I went there and Larry was there. "I'm open all night," he said. "Come on in."

We waded through a squad of night-club kids getting curl and dye jobs between floor shows and Larry explained how a simple idea had parlayed $2,500 in a GI loan into this 24-hour curl, dye-and-wig salon in which all Broadway comes at all hours.

"I borrowed the money, studied hair-work on women and then used what I thought. You know what I thought? I like women, they are fine to work with if you don't try to understand them. Norma, my wife, quit fashion modeling and took a course in hair styling and now we run this mad enterprise together. Strange place. I had a girl come in here at 1:15 one morning and say: 'Dye me green inside 10 minutes, so I can collect a bet of $200.' We dyed her hair green and next day she was back to be a redhead. She said she was at a restaurant with a Texan and she told him anything could be done at any hour in New York. He said she couldn't get a green hair dye at that time of night and she bet him $200 she could. She did, collected the two bills, came in here and offered us $50 for ourselves. We didn't take it. We just charged the regular dye rate. But the kids got so crazy with this changing hair color in the middle of the night that now we wig them. Judy Wyramp? She has six wigs from us. We don't charge those $250 and $300 Fifth Avenue prices for a wig. Ours cost less and the kids can afford them. Now, about you..."

"What about me?"

"I can wig men in colors, too. You haven't anything to dye on your head except skin, and that would make you look like an outer-space alien. Let's try three wigs on you and get your true type."

"I know my true type. I'm the no-hair Brynner type. All I lack is a grey shirt and a balalaika. I believe that real masculine deriding-do is best expressed by being bald."

"You get sillier all the time," said Larry. "Let's look."

So we tried three on in the three mentioned colors and I looked like an escaped fiend from a TV horror show. But Larry said, "Take them home and live with them awhile. Get used to them. But don't wear any one in Central Park at night. Somebody might shoot you for a werewolf."

My bride is not speaking to me, my twins quake when they see me. I look like a smug Dracula. The wigs go back to Mathews today, intact.

Judy Wyramp and a lot of the girls look fine in these colored wigs. I don't know what other men might look like. Better, maybe. But as for me, put it down in clear type: I look frightening.

the executions, and naming Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand as UN watchdog for Hungary; Dulles flew to Paris as Secretary of State, and Cardinal Mindszenty said his Christmas Mass in the U.S. embassy in Budapest, under our full diplomatic protection.

Catch The Corner Bus In Outer Space, Huh!

By HENRY McELMORE

Remember the old, old joke about not being able to get to the post office from here?

Well, it's about to come true. Read this news dispatch from Washington and see for yourself: "Launching of the Atlas missile in to orbit may mark a step toward creating 'flying post offices' — satellites that would handle the world's mail by space transmission."

This bit of tomfoolery on the part of the scientists must be stopped. Flying saucers are bad enough; flying mail boxes would be too much. Let this happen, and before you could say "Duck!" we'd have everything that belongs on a corner flying — fire hydrants, litter cans, parking meters, No Parking signs, and telephone poles.

A post office in outer space, one flying around the earth at 25,000 miles a minute, or some such ridiculous speed, is too mad to consider. How would you ever find it to mail a letter or buy a money order? The square, squat, brick ones on earth are hard enough to locate. Anyone who has ever tried to mail something in a strange town knows this.

How would you like to wait in line to buy a stamp in the lobby of a post office that was only a whoop and a holler from Venus or Mars? And you'd have to wait in line, you'd be sure of that! You'd freeze to death while the clerk was looking in the drawer for the denomination you wanted.

Why don't the scientists figure out some way to quicken the service in earthbound post offices before sending one into orbit?

Too, what about writing pens in a flying post office?

True, the ball point pens which the post office provides today are better than the sharpened splinters of a few years ago. But the ball points are not something you like so well that you're tempted to pull off their chains. Most of them write like bells — baseballs.

Put them in outer space, and you really would have a pen to run you crazy. The only thing they'd be good for would be to hang on to for, remember, there is no weight in outer space, and the lobby would be filled with floating humanity.

Then there are the postmen to consider. They have a hard enough time as it is without having to walk each morning from somewhere alongside the Milky Way to reach their route. There would be no getting by with a dollar bill or a necktie for Christmas for a postman who walked that far to deliver your mail.

He'd rate all you had in the bank, plus a gift certificate for a dozen ties.

Such faraway post offices would play the devil with the pairings system. That must not be overlooked. A man wouldn't work too hard for his party if he knew he was going to be rewarded by being named postmaster of an office just three miles south of the Dog Star, or within pitching distance of Orion.

Stamps would have to be changed, and just when everybody is becoming accustomed to the new "four-cent" stamp.

I believe it is time Dr. Werner Von Braun took a vacation.

DEAR ABBY...

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced two years ago but we still have a lot in common. We have started to see each other again and what's bothering me is that all the mouths in the neighborhood are working overtime. He comes to see me and stays the night sometimes. We are both 40 and think that this is nobody's business but our own. Are we right or not?

DIVORCED

DEAR DIVORCED: It is your business — but you should be aware that you are doing business without a license.

DEAR ABBY: For "Animal Lover" who wrote "People can ask for food when they're hungry and tell you where it hurts when they're sick, but dogs and cats have to depend on humans." God wasn't as generous with some children as He was with animals. If "Animal Lover" was with me just one of the many nights I prayed my little girl could tell me where it was hurting her. I think she'd change her mind. My child is over 5 years old but she doesn't know me from Adam. If people have money and don't know what to do with it, there are an awful lot of retarded children who couldn't find a glass of milk if it was two feet away from them. I'll bet a cat could.

CHILD LOVER

DEAR ABBY: I could kick myself for letting this go on for 30 years but I kept thinking things would change. Have you any idea how humiliating it is for a wife to BEG her husband for every dime he gives her? I never knew what it was to have an extra penny in my purse. It is a war to get a little money for the collection plate. I never was foolish with money. I make all my own clothes (but I can't make my shoes) do all my own work and when a gift is due I can knit, crochet or sew it. Please answer this in the paper and give my husband the works. He deserves it.

SLOW BURN

DEAR SLOW: (and you were slow, Lady) You can't teach an old dog new tricks but yours could be a valuable lesson for others. Newlyweds should set up a budget, and the wife should have an "allowance" to call her own — even if it's only two dollars a week.

DEAR ABBY: How can a 13-year-old girl tell her own mother to please wash the dishes with soap? My mother just rinses them under the hot water and says, "That's good enough." My father also never washes the ring out of the bathtub after himself. Once I counted six rings. I've tried everything but it doesn't do any good. All I get is ridicule when I tell them to use soap. They call me "PRINCESS GRACE." What can I do, Abby?

GRACE

DEAR GRACE: Don't try to educate your parents, just quietly honor your mother and father and use lots of soap.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HONEYBUN: He's taking too many detours off the straight and narrow. Tell that truck driver to hit the road.

For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Young Clothes For Gay Winter Cruise

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — The gal who saves up all year to take her vacation in the winter on a cruise ship doesn't want to sink every penny she has into clothes for the trip.

But equally, she does want to look smart. That's half the fun of the voyage. New people will be seeing her and forming an opinion of her. The earliest opinion they have will stem from the way she is dressed.

The young traveler will look for clothes, therefore, that fit her budget, are easily packed, crease-resistant and washable. Where there are pleats, she will insist upon permanent pleating. She will examine hangtags carefully when she shops to make sure that she is getting exactly what she wants.

Then, even though she packs a capsule wardrobe, she is sure of looking chic and well-groomed. We show two examples from just such a wardrobe, both of them bearing modest price tags.

Eye-catching plaid (left) is used for easy vest and pleated skirt. Vest goes over your own skirt or sweater. Permanently pleated skirt in white (right) is worn here with coordinated top. But it could take to a sweater or sleeveless top just as well. These are Century designs.
