Former superintendent facing Okla. problems

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Former Hereford superintendent Roy Hartman is under investigation in Marietta, Okla., because of a doctorate he received from a diploma mill.

Hartman received the doctorate from Western Colorado University. The "university" had rented offices in Grand Junction, Colo.

The investigation into Hartman's credentials coincides with heated collective bargaining negotiations in Marietta, according to a story in the Sunday Oklahoman. The story in Sunday's paper said the president of the Marietta Classroom Teachers Association, Teresa French, had nothing to do with efforts to discredit Hartman.

Hartman, who was named the 1976 Administrator of the Year by the Texas State Teachers Association, resigned his post in late June 1976 to become superintendent at Grapevine. Hartman has since been at Forney, Wylie, Liberal, Kan., and Marietta.

Jim Conkwright, president of the Hereford school board when Hartman resigned, said there had been questions raised about the validity of the doctorate. Conkwright said he knew of no gains to Hartman because of the degree.

"He didn't receive a promotion because of it, because he was already superintendent," Conkwright said. "As far as I know, he never received a pay raise because of it.

"We knew it was there, and there were two or three teachers who would ask about it, ask what we were going to do about it. There were more pressing concerns that we were more worried about. I think Roy left before we could ever get around to questioning him about that. We knew it was out there and he knew it was out there, but it wasn't a big thing when he left."

Hartman was one of three school employees to receive doctorates about the same time from Western Colorado University. Jim Holmes and Naomi Hopson also received "doctorates" from the business. Holmes left in early June 1976 to become superintendent in Panhandle.

Hartman's resignation was in late June.

"I didn't think there was anything wrong at the time with an administrator getting one of these things, as long as they didn't gain from it," Conkwright said. "It's more of a public relations thing to show to the public. It just looks a little better if that person at the top has that 'Dr.' in front of their name. It was never presented to us in any fashion."

The Sunday Oklahoman said there were "growing rumors" about Hartman's qualifications. The Marietta board met last Tuesday for over two hours in executive session and would meet again on July 6.

"To the best of my knowledge, Dr. Hartman is a licensed and qualified administrator," said Ken Delashaw, attorney for the Marietta schools.

Hartman had a meteoric rise during his 20 years in Hereford. He began as a classroom teacher and assistant principal in 1956 at the old Central School. He became principal at Northwest in 1959 after earning his master's degree from West Texas State University. In 1960 he was named principal at Shirley Elementary, then went to Bluebonnet Elementary as principal in 1965.

Hartman was named assistant superintendent in 1966. He became superintendent here in 1969, replacing Johnny Clark Jr.

We returned Sunday from a state press convention in Austin and heard plenty of talk about the weather from publishers all across the state. A number of points in West Texas have already received almost as much rain as they normally get in a year. We've never seen the country side as green, all they way from here to Austin, as it is this year. Of course, a lot of the cotton on the South Plains has been replanted due to rain and hailstorms.

Being in Austin, we also heard some political discussions. One hot topic concerns who will replace Gib Lewis as Speaker of the House. Jim Rudd of Brownfield and Pete Laney of Hale Center, two representatives who live near each other in West Texas, are the front-runners. There is talk that they could get in a tight battle and both lose out to a "dark horse."

This area could be a winner with either of these men in the Speaker's chair. This part of the state benefitted when Billy Clayton of Springlake served as the speaker.

An interesting guest speaker at the convention was Chris Matthews, a nationally syndicated political columnist from the San Francisco Examiner. He is a regular guest on "The Larry King Show," a political commentator for the Mutual Broadcasting System, and a regular on "Good Morning America."

Matthews predicted Perot would run strong this summer, President Bush would move to the front by Labor Day, and Clinton would move ahead late and win the presidential race. In 1988, Matthews won the Washington Post's "Crystal Ball" award by predicting the presidential winner, his percentage margin of victory, and the results of the electoral college within a single vote.

Enjoying a turkey leg Sunday

Storms hit region again

Deaf Smith County was hit with hail up to baseball-size Saturday night as a severe storm passed through the county.

Officially, KPAN recorded 1.15 inch of rain on Saturday. Along with the rain was wind up to 70 mph and pea-to-marble size hail. The farther west-southwest you were in the city, the larger the hail that peppered the city for almost 30 minutes.

Out west of Hereford, the rain and hail were heavier. Unofficial reports in the Westway and Bootleg area were as high as three inches, with hail up to baseball size.

Rains were so heavy that U.S. Highway 60 was closed Saturday night from Hereford to Clovis. A huge storm cell spawned a tornado north of Friona and near Bovina and deluged parts of Parmer County with, unofficially, five inches of rain. Officials also closed State Highway 214, which runs from Adrian through western Deaf Smith County to Friona and on south.

Monday night, an unexpected storm that made it from the Rocky Mountain foothills brought another .31 of an inch of rain. The storm began around 11:30 p.m.

That storm finished the month with 5.65 inches of rain. That's twice the average of 2.69 inches. For the year, Hereford's received 13.18 inches, according to the official observations at KPAN. Usually, we have 7.69 inches through the first six months.

County will aid truckers

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

Economically hard-hit truckers of Deaf Smith County got a boost Monday when Commissioners' Court decided to apply for grants from the Texas Capital Fund to supply loan money.

A meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the county courtroom on the second floor of courthouse has been called to explain the program to prospective borrowers.

Commissioners approved installation of a new telephone system for Deaf Smith County offices, heard an audit report on the Juvenile Probation Department and approved a request to cross a county road with a water line.

Judge Tom Simons also advised the commission that he is to meet Thursday with the county's attorney in pending litigation on precinct boundaries.

Simons reported to commissioners Monday that the TCF requires that TCF loans be used to create or retain jobs. Loans are made on a ratio of $25,000 per job up to $100,000.

Several truckers present at the meeting reported they are seeking applications from the Small Business Administration, based on the announcement that Deaf Smith County businesses are eligible for disaster loans.

"I think you'd be better served by the SBA," said Commissioner John Stribling of Precinct 1, who observed that SBA interest rates would be lower than the 6 1/2 percent placed on the Texas Capital Fund loans.

Simons said that if the county pursued the TCF program, Panhandle Regional Planning Commission would serve as administrator of the program for the county. He introduced Perna Strickland, director of economic development for PRPC, who explained procedure.

Any company could apply for loan monies, accompanied by the county's application, she said. Information about applicants, especially financial history, would be included on applications. Public hearings would be conducted on the grant program, also, said the PRPC official.

She also reported that the time involved to obtain funds might be up to six months. Although the county applies for grants, the Texas Department of Commerce determines the loan recipients, she said.

Several weeks ago, a representative of the Texas Department of Commerce met with truckers in Deaf Smith County to explain the program. The PRPC representative will review loan applications and other information at the Wednesday evening meeting.

On motion of Commissioner Lupe Chavez of Precinct 2 and second by Johnny Latham of Precinct 4, the commission voted unanimously to pursue the Texas Capital Fund program to benefit businesses in Deaf Smith County.

Status of the lawsuit that was filed against the county after precinct lines were not precleared will be explained when Simons meets Thursday with Bob Bass of Allison and Associates. The law firm prepared the precinct boundaries and is representing the county in litigation.

Approval of the new Plexar II telephone system was given unanimously by the commission. The high-tech system should reduce the county's phone bill by more than $6,000 per year over the five-year contract.

Donna West of Brown, Graham and Company reviewed the juvenile probation department audit which was accepted by commissioners.

The water line cut across a county road is near Hafliger Dairy, southwest of Hereford.

Four sentenced Monday

Probation of a defendant convicted of burglary in 1986 was revoked Monday in 222nd District Court by Judge David Wesley Gulley who ordered the defendant to prison.

Joe Zepeda, 37, was sentenced to five years in Texas Department of Criminal Justice institutional division after Judge Gulley granted the prosecution's motion to revoke the probation. Zepeda was convicted in December 1986 and given a six-year probated term.

Two defendants entered guilty pleas to charges during the court session and another was sentenced formally.

Juan Lopez Jr., 38, entered guilty pleas to two charges of felony driving while intoxicated, receiving five-year probated sentences on each. Provisions of probation on an earlier conviction were modified and he was directed to report to the Brownfield Residential Treatment Center.

A guilty plea also was heard from Pedro LaFuente Jr., to a charge of felony DWI. He was sentenced to five years in TDCJ institutional division, probated five years. He also was fined $1,500.

Benjamin O. Shreve, 74, convicted by a jury last week of felony driving while intoxicated, was sentenced formally after a pre-sentencing investigation report was turned over to Judge Gulley.

New poll considers city curfew, US aid to Russia

New topics for local and national issues are being polled by the Hereford Brand this week.

For the national topic, call 1-900-407-8550, extension 13. Each call to that number is also 99 cents.

Supreme Court ruling makes political mess

Abortion issue likely to be bigger in elections

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG
Associated Press Writer

The Supreme Court's abortion ruling appears to have shut the courtroom door on abortion bans in Louisiana and Guam, while opening the way for abortion debates in legislatures and at the ballot box.

Activists on both sides said the ruling will make abortion even more of a political issue - at the state and national level - than it has been since the court's 1989 Webster ruling gave states more authority to restrict abortion.

"I think you are going to see the politicization of women like you've never seen before," said Robin Rothrock, an abortion clinic operator in Shreveport, La., who heads Louisiana's League of Women Voters.

In its ruling in a Pennsylvania case, the Supreme Court on Monday upheld some abortion restrictions but explicitly reaffirmed the basic right to an abortion, which it established in 1973 in Roe vs. Wade.

That appeared to doom the laws in Louisiana and Guam, which have banned abortion in nearly all cases. Both laws have been blocked by the courts, and neither has ever been enforced.

The high court upheld provisions requiring that women requesting an abortion wait 24 hours, that doctors inform them of the alternatives and risks, and that unmarried minors get consent from a parent or a judge. A requirement that women seeking an abortion inform their husbands was struck down.

"You're going to have a lot of activity in states replicating Pennsylvania's law, but I think that's going to be far surpassed by activity at the voting booth," said Helen Alvare, a spokeswoman for the Pro-Life Secretariat of the United States Catholic Conference.

She and others said that the Supreme Court's 5-4 vote upholding Roe vs. Wade will raise the stakes in the presidential campaign, since the next president is likely to appoint the pivotal vote on the court.

The most immediate effect of the ruling will be felt in a small number of states, including Ohio, Alabama, Kansas, Maine, North Dakota and Utah, that have laws with restrictions similar to Pennsylvania's.

Those laws, most of which have been tied up in court, will now presumably be declared constitutional.

Ohio Attorney General Lee Fisher said the decision strengthens Ohio's law, which was found unconstitutional by a state judge last month.

LULAC praised by former mayor

Cisneros calls attention to education lawsuit

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Former San Antonio mayor Henry Cisneros says members of the League of United Latin American Citizens should not forget what the Hispanic rights group represents.

"It's really about ... change for people who have been left out," Cisneros said. "I, for one, appreciate LULAC."

Cisneros made the remarks Monday as the weeklong national LULAC convention got started in San Antonio. Following two days of workshops with federal officials, the 63rd annual convention officially begins Wednesday.

Cisneros praised LULAC for its lawsuit against the state of Texas over higher education. The league contended the system does not provide equal educational opportunities for people in predominately Hispanic areas.

"What organization had the courage to bring a lawsuit that resulted in a district court judgment that the system has to change? You guessed it - LULAC," Cisneros said.

The state is considering a $2 billion settlement in the lawsuit that would bring more degree programs and university campuses to a 41-county border region.

LULAC national president Jose Velez said the presidential race is expected to dominate the league's convention. Democratic candidate Bill Clinton is scheduled to speak Wednesday, and Democrat Jerry Brown is expected to appear Thursday, Velez said.

Likely independent candidate Ross Perot has not yet said whether he will attend. President Bush was invited but declined, league officials said.

Velez said the league is a non-partisan group that does not make an endorsement, Velez said, but added that after LULAC's meetings with candidates this week the public probably will sense which candidate the its members are leaning toward.

Velez said his organization will urge presidential candidates to consider a Hispanic as a possible vice presidential running mate. Velez said Cisneros would be his recommendation.

"If anyone in this country can represent us and do justice for Hispanics ... it would be Henry," Velez said, to cheers and applause from about 200 LULAC members. Cisneros smiled and shook his head.

Cisneros currently is in private business but remains active in public issues. He has said he is not interested in being a candidate right now.

LULAC leaders have said they expect up to 5,000 people to attend the convention and its public programs. As of last weekend, 800 people had registered and more were anticipated. A tally of convention delegates was not immediately available Monday.

Others scheduled to address the convention are Texas Gov. Ann Richards, FBI Director William Sessions and Flora Sambrano of the equal opportunity office of the U.S. Army in Korea.

Among the agencies represented at the federal agency workshops Monday and today were the Department of Labor; Department of Housing and Urban Development; Bureau of Prisons; and the Department of Defense.

LULAC was formed in Corpus Christi in 1929. For years it was considered the largest and most prominent Hispanic rights organization.

Thanks for the year

Exxon official died five days after suffering gunshot wound

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - Exxon executive Sidney J. Reso died after five days of suffering from a gunshot wound to the arm while bound and gagged in a sweltering storage room, according to published reports.

Results of an autopsy on the 57-year-old president of Exxon Co. International were not released Monday by the FBI, the U.S. Attorney's office or the Morris County prosecutor's office.

But reports Monday in The Star-Ledger of Newark and The Philadelphia Inquirer, citing unidentified law enforcement sources, detailed Reso's ordeal after he was kidnapped April 29. Authorities would neither confirm nor deny the reports.

Arthur D. and Irene J. Seale, both 45, were scheduled to be arraigned today in U.S. District Court in Trenton on federal charges of kidnapping, extortion and conspiracy.

Sources told The Associated Press that Mrs. Seale, known as Jackie, took investigators Saturday to the shallow grave in the Pine Barrens where Reso was buried. She has been held in a separate county jail from her husband since their arrest June 19.

Reso's body was found after a 12-hour search in Bass River State Park in southern Burlington County.

The Star-Ledger said Mrs. Seale provided authorities with details of the kidnapping and Reso's death. She said her husband, a former Hillside police officer and Exxon security adviser, grabbed Reso as he stepped from his car at the end of his driveway in Morris Township.

Reso was headed to his job 10 minutes away at Exxon's international division offices in Florham Park.

Seale forced Reso into a rented van, and shot him in the arm during a scuffle, the published reports said.

Mrs. Seale drove the van to a self-storage locker the couple had rented near the rural Lebanon Township home they shared with Seale's parents, the newspapers said.

The room was small, poorly ventilated, had a concrete floor, and was suffocatingly hot, an unidentified law enforcement source told The Star-Ledger. The Seales covered Reso's mouth with duct tape, bound his feet, handcuffed his wrists, and left him, the newspaper said.

Reso suffered a heart attack three years ago and was taking medication to control his cholesterol levels, but it was unclear if another heart attack killed him. The reports did not say if Reso's gunshot wound had been treated.

Reso died on May 3, Mrs. Seale reportedly told investigators, days before the couple sent their first ransom note. The ransom demand of $18.5 million is believed to be the biggest in U.S. history. Agents were prepared to make a phony ransom drop, but the Seales were captured before it was made.

Morris County Prosecutor W. Michael Murphy said Sunday he planned to file felony murder charges Monday against one or both of the Seales.

Mrs. Seale's attorney, Sallyanne Floria, did not return messages seeking comment on whether her client was negotiating a plea bargain.

A federal magistrate ordered the couple held without bail pending Tuesday's arraignment. Arthur Seale obtained a passport on June 3, and was planning to flee to Pakistan and stash money in secret accounts in Swiss or Pakistani banks, prosecutors have said.

Thomas, Clarke receive medical degrees from Tech

Ninety-three students received medical degrees during the spring commencement ceremonies at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC).

The two degree recipients from Hereford are: Shyla Thomas, daughter of Mary Thomas; David Bruce Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Clarke.

Thomas will serve an internal medicine/preliminary residency at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas. Thomas received an American Medical Women's Association Janet M. Glasgow Memorial Achievement Citation. Thomas also was named Outstanding Senior Student in family medicine, internal medicine, and pediatrics at TTUHSC's Lubbock campus. She was inducted into the Alpha Omega Alpha National Honor Medical Society. Membership is restricted to students graduating in the top 15 percent of their class.

Clarke will serve a family practice residency in Boise, Idaho.

Ultraviolet light may be linked to eye disorderrs

The sun's ultraviolet (UV) light causes skin damage, but it may also be linked to age-related eye disorders, say researchers at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"Understanding how ultraviolet light ages cells in the eye may help doctors treat disorders such as cataracts and macular degeneration, two major vision disorders that can be age-related," said Dr. Laurence Rapp, assistant professor of ophthalmology at Baylor.

Rapp is measuring the effects of UV-A light in the eyes of rats. Cells in the retina of the eye are examined to evaluate damage and to determine the influence of that light on the aging process. Rapp says this research may also answer some questions about one of the mechanisms which may be involved in aging called oxidation.

When oxidation occurs, cells lose the ability to break down matter which leads to a buildup of material known as 'debris'.

"The debris buildup caused by oxidation may cause several age-related problems in the eye such as detachment of the retina, hemorrhaging and cell death," said Rapp. "If we can learn how UV-A light enhances this process, we may be able to treat these and other disorders of the eye in earlier stages."

There are three bands of ultraviolet light called UV-A, UV-B and UV-C. Only two of them, UV-A and UV-B, penetrate the earth's protective ozone layer.

Student receives money

Hereford Toastmaster President Jay Reeve awards Shawn Lance, a sophomore at Hereford High School, with a $200 check from the Larry Leon Scholarship Fund. The money will be applied toward tuition for speech camp at West Texas State University scheduled later this summer.

Hamilton given scholarship

Former Hereford resident, Joellen Hamilton, was among 38 junior and senior Lubbock Methodist Hospital School of Nursing students and three allied health professionals who received 41 scholarships from 15 individual donors during a recent awards luncheon..

Hamilton was granted a scholarship from the head nurses of Methodist Hospital representing the Medical/Surgical Scholarship Fund for Nursing. The daughter of Bonnie Hamilton and the late Joe L. Hamilton, she is a senior student at Methodist Hospital School of Nursing and is employed as a nursing technician at Lubbock Methodist Hospital.

Special guests at the luncheon were the honoree's mother, and son, Michael Hamilton, also of Lubbock.

The Lubbock Methodist Hospital Foundation oversees the funds designated for the scholarships which award a minimum of $500 to each student. The scholarships were given on the basis of need and academic standing.

CAROL GARRISON
...new girls' basketball coach

Garrison looks for success in Texas

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Carol Garrison left Oklahoma for the golden fields of Texas Panhandle basketball. Now she hopes to bring the kind of basketball the Panhandle's known for to Hereford.

Hereford girls' athletic director Brenda Reeh announced on Monday the hiring of Garrison as Hereford's head girls' basketball coach.

Garrison played high school basketball in Hinton, Okla., well enough to receive basketball scholarships to Central State University, where she played from 1977-79, and to Utah State where she played the next two years. She served as team captain at both schools.

She returned to Oklahoma to launch her coaching career as an assistant at Duncan. The 4A school (5A is highest in Oklahoma) was an area finalist five of the six seasons Garrison was there. (In Oklahoma, that's one game away from the state tournament; eight teams go to state.)

Garrison was also the head softball coach at Duncan while she was there. For the 1987-88 season, she was head basketball coach at Sentinel, Okla. After that she came to Texas.

"The Panhandle is a hotbed of girls basketball," she said. "I wanted to be a part of it."

She coached the eighth grade girls at Crockett Middle School in Amarillo from 1988 up to last season.

"The (Hereford) athletic program is one of the best in the Panhandle--if not the state. It's a tremendous opportunity to be part of that."

Garrison said she doesn't have a particular style of coaching. "You have to look at the personnel; that's going to determine what you're going to do."

She's only seen a little of the personnel, she said.

"I just watched a little bit of game film. I saw a lot of good things, and at the same time I saw a lot of things we need to work on and build on. I think there's enthusiasm here.

"We'll try to build a tradition like the football team, the volleyball team, and the other programs here in Hereford. It'll take time, but hard work certainly takes care of a lot of things."

Kitchens Classic completed

The Cuby Kitchens Classic AAU basketball tournament wrapped up Sunday. No Hereford teams were in the finals, but there was valuable experience gained.

Hereford's one girls' team, the 12-under Heat, was a few seconds away from the finals. They lost in overtime to the Young Guns of Clovis, N.M., 40-34. Hereford led 34-33 going into the final seconds, but the Young Guns hit a free throw to force overtime, then controlled the extra period. Catie Betzen led the Heat with eight points, and Julie Rampley added seven.

The Heat won its first two games--54-40 over the Angels and 33-27 over Angelfire--before losing to the eventual champs, the Lady Bulls, 43-24. Kari Barrett led the Heat in that game with eight points, and she led the team with nine against Angelfire. The Heat had three players in double figures against the Angels: Betzen and Rampley each scored 14, and Misty Davis had 10.

The Lady Bulls gored the Young Guns 55-22 in the finals of the girls' 12-under division.

Hereford had two teams in the boys' 11-under bracket: the Herd and the Whitefaces. Both teams got wins against Amarillo Magic, and both lost to the teams that made the finals: the Ravens and the Rebels.

The Rebels had big wins over both Hereford teams, beating the Herd 54-36 and the Whitefaces 48-23. The Ravens edged the Whitefaces 46-40, and squeaked by the Herd 51-50. On Sunday, the Ravens beat the Rebels 42-41 for the championship--not the way their performances against Hereford's teams would have suggested.

The Herd whipped Amarillo Magic 51-27, with Andre Moton scoring 12 points and Jeremy Urbanczyk adding 11. Urbanczyk had 18 against the Ravens, and Mitch Wagner added 11. Wagner led the team against the Rebels with 10 points.

The Whitefaces nipped Amarillo Magic 41-10 as Chris Torres scored 13 and Slade Hodges scored 11. Against the Ravens, Hodges scored 12 and Shane Decker had 10. Against the Rebels, Cody Hodges led the Whitefaces with six points.

The Hereford Rebels played in the boys' 13-under division, where play was round-robin. The Rebels lost both their games, 63-44 to the Dimmitt Bulls and 65-52 to Amarillo Heat. Isaac Walker led the team in both games, with 11 points against Dimmitt and 17 against Amarillo. Walker was helped in the Amarillo game with 14 from Dustin Hill and 11 from Jonathon Keenan.

In the championship game, the much-taller Dimmitt team beat the Heat by a score of 59-52. Hereford's Chris Garth was a member of the Dimmitt team.

The tournament consisted of four divisions. The only other division was girls' 13-under, with three teams playing round-robin. None of the teams were from Hereford, but three Hereford girls joined teams from other cities for the tournament. Heather Hodges scored 16 points in three games for the second-place Ladies. Danielle Cornelius and Jennifer Jones both played for the Lady Buffs, but they came in third despite Cornelius scoring 19 points in two games. In the championship game, the Lady Bulls beat Hodges' Ladies 30-26.

Rivals say Mac can win

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - John McEnroe considers himself an outsider for the Wimbledon title. His rivals say he can win it all.

McEnroe reached the quarterfinals Monday for the first time in three years, beating Russian qualifier Andrei Olhovskiy - the man who ended Jim Courier's Grand Slam quest - 7-5, 6-3, 7-6 (12-10).

It was McEnroe's second consecutive straight-set victory and proved that, despite his 33 years, he remains one of the best grass-court players in the world.

"When the guy's playing well he's capable of anything," Andre Agassi said. "When he's playing his game, nobody does it better... I wouldn't be surprised to see him win the tournament."

McEnroe was the only unseeded player to make the men's quarters, the first time seven seeds have reached the final eight since 1988.

The other quarterfinalists are No. 2 Stefan Edberg, No. 3 Michael Stich, No. 5 Pete Sampras, No. 8 Goran Ivanisevic, No. 9 Guy Forget and No. 12 Agassi.

The eighth spot was to be decided Tuesday with the completion of the match between No. 4 Boris Becker and No. 14 Wayne Ferreira.

Ferreira won the first set 6-3 and Becker won the next two 6-3, 6-4. Ferreira won the fourth set 8-6 in a tiebreaker after saving a match point with a service winner at 5-6.

The women's quarterfinals were set for Tuesday: Monica Seles vs. Nathalie Tauziat, Gabriela Sabatini vs. Jennifer Capriati, Martina Navratilova vs. Katerina Maleeva and Steffi Graf vs. Natalia Zvereva.

Playoff decides Olds Scramble

The foursome of Steve Cross, Scott Jones, Tom Brorman and Mark Brorman birdied the third hole of a playoff to win the Oldsmobile Scramble Sunday at Pitman Municipal Golf Course.

That foursome and another--Jim Maurer, Jim Shankel, John Shankel and H.R. Kelly--finished 18 holes at 59. In the playoff, both teams birdied No. 1 and parred No. 2, then a 25-foot birdie putt gave Cross, Jones and the Brormans the win.

One team was third at 61, ahead of four teams at 62. At 61 was Gerald Gamboa, Arthur Valdez, Blair Rogers and Carlos Mendez.

Several miscellaneous awards were given out: Miles Goforth had the long drive; Arthur Valdez had the straightest drive; Scott Sebastian had the long putt on No. 12; and Gary McCulloch had the long putt on No. 17.

YMCA Tennis Open in July

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA Tennis Open will be held July 16-19. There will be 25 different divisions for men and women, boys and girls. A specific list of divisions is available from the YMCA.

The deadline for entry is July 14 for juniors and July 15 for adults. Fees are $7 for Y members and $9 for non-members--double that for entries in doubles divisions.

Scoreboard down; gangs might be responsible

Gang activity and bad weather combined to make a mess out of Whiteface Stadium over the weekend. The scoreboard at the football field was either blown or pushed off its supports, and graffiti was found in various places, including the fieldhouse barn and the home dugout at the baseball field. The graffiti includes "Eight balls" and "Latin Kings," the names of two known gangs in Hereford, said Hereford police Lt. Mike Ahrens.

Hereford school officials at first believed the scoreboard was knocked off by Saturday night's high winds. The four poles which support the scoreboard are still standing. The brackets that held the scoreboard on the poles (two on each pole) are not bent. The scoreboard buckled in the middle.

Although it's unlikely the scoreboard was pushed off by humans, police are considering the possibility, Ahrens said. The high winds were Saturday night, and Hereford police didn't notice that the scoreboard was down on Sunday.

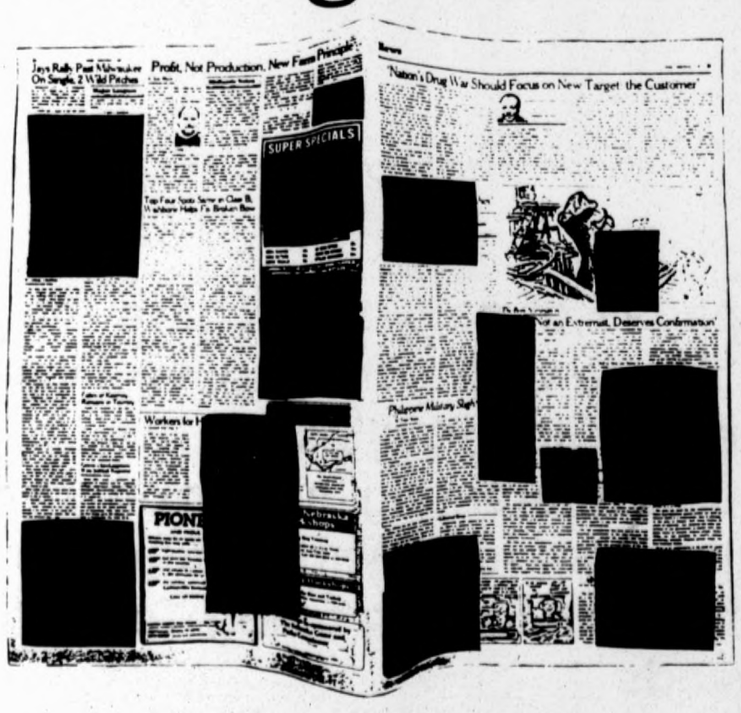

"It's possible the wind could have done it, but with the other stuff that went on out there (it could be criminal mischief). It's hard to say," Ahrens said.

Ahrens said the damage done was estimated at $10,000, including $5,000 for the scoreboard.

Our Best Friends Are Cutting Us To Pieces.

Our best friends don't always give us the best treatment. Typically, they invite us into their homes, read us like a book, take what they need from us, and put us aside to use again at thier convenience.
It's a tough existence, but we don't mind. In fact, we like it. The news, editorials, and advertising coupons clipped from our pages provide our readers with knowledge, enlightenment, even an occasional 30¢ off on breakfast cereal. We're kind of flattered that people enjoy hanging onto bits and pieces of us - sometimes for years. That's something no other local advertising medium can offer.
So, although our friends keep cutting us to pieces, we'll keep showing up at their homes. Our only request: sharp scissors and a steady hand.
THERE'S MORE Hereford IN THE BRAND.

Dream Team squeaks by Canada

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Brazil became the first official Olympic qualifier from the Tournament of the Americas.

The Dream Team's spot in the Barcelona Games was almost guaranteed the day the roster of NBA All-Stars was announced to represent the United States.

Brazil (3-0), however, did it on the court Monday night when it beat Mexico 90-87 to secure one of the four berths this hemisphere will have for Barcelona. Even if Brazil were to be upset by Uruguay in its final qualifying-round game on Wednesday, it would win all tiebreakers courtesy of a 23-point win over Puerto Rico and a 47-point victory over Venezuela.

"We didn't come here to go to the NBA party. We came here to qualify," Brazilian coach Jose Medalha said.

The Dream Team (2-0), which beat Canada 105-61 Monday night, will have to qualify without point guard John Stockton. He was originally diagnosed with a bruised calf after being kicked by Michael Jordan, but X-rays later showed he has an undisplaced fracture of the lower right leg. He will miss the remainder of the qualifying tournament and his status for Barcelona won't be known for awhile.

Brazil's status for the Olympics is known and the South Americans let everyone in on it by chanting "Barcelona, Barcelona" as they jumped and hugged on the court after the win over Mexico.

"Every victory, every tournament is emotional," said Oscar Schmidt, who scored 43 points and will be making his fourth appearance in the Olympics.

In other games on Monday, Puerto Rico beat Uruguay 104-88 and Panama downed Cuba 86-67.

The U.S. win wasn't as impressive as the 79-point debut victory over Cuba, but 44 points isn't too shabby.

"I don't think we came out quite as energetic as we did Sunday," coach Chuck Daly said. "We let them hang around a little bit, but then we picked it up, particularly in the second half when we got much more aggressive defensively. Once we start stopping people and we get out on the break, we're pretty difficult to handle."

Brazil 90, Mexico 87

Mexico (0-2) had rallied to take an 87-85 lead over Brazil with 48 seconds to play. Marcel Souza, like Schmidt now a four-time Olympian, was inserted back into the lineup and he made a 3-pointer with 32 seconds left that gave Brazil the lead for good. Mexico's Arturo Montes missed a 3-pointer 22 seconds later and Schmidt was fouled grabbing the rebound and made two free throws. Arturo Sanchez's final try at a tie at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

United States 105, Canada 61

Word of the severity of Stockton's injury came well after the U.S. victory, which came without Larry Bird, who sat out because of a sore back. Patrick Ewing missed the Cuba game as he recovered from an injury to his right thumb, but he played against Canada.

"Injuries are taking their toll a little bit," Daly said. "But we've got a lot people and we were able to spread the minutes pretty well."

Charles Barkley led the United States with 19 points, while Karl Malone had 15 as the Dream Team outrebounded Canada 54-32, 20-10 on the offensive end.

Mike Smrek, a teammate of Magic Johnson's with the Los Angeles Lakers in the championship years of 1987 and 1988, led Canada (1-2) with 14 points.

"This is the hardest we have played, but it's tough to win against the U.S.," said Smrek, the only Canadian to win an NBA title. "It would take an absolute supreme effort from some team to beat them, although it can be done."

Puerto Rico 104, Uruguay 88

Puerto Rico (2-1) dominated the boards by a 54-31 margin in the easy win over Uruguay (0-2). A 15-3 run gave Puerto Rico a 90-75 lead with 4:37 to play as Mario Morales, who finished with 21 points, scored seven in the spurt, including one of his five 3-pointers. Jose Ortiz, who played for the Utah Jazz, had 18 points for Puerto Rico, while Ramon Rivas, who played for the Boston Celtics, had 13 points and 12 rebounds. Horacio Lopez, who had 32 points in Uruguay's opening loss to Venezuela, finished with 30.

Panama 86, Cuba 67

Panama (1-1), the Dream Team's opponent tonight, was led by Stuart Gray, who played for the Charlotte Hornets. He had 13 points and 13 rebounds for Panama, which outrebounded Cuba 52-25, including 18-10 on the offensive end. Panama extended a 42-32 halftime lead to as much as 22 points. Leonardo Perez led Cuba with 19 points.

Dodgers beat Padres in 11th

By The Associated Press

Batting last seems to solve a lot of problems for the Los Angeles Dodgers. Maybe that's why they're 4-1 so far on a 22-game homestand following a 1-10 road trip.

"We're not going to give up," Mike Sharperson said Monday night after the last-place Dodgers beat the San Diego Padres 6-5 in 11 innings.

Sharperson sure followed that motto. He tied the game in the 10th inning with a sacrifice fly and won it in the 11th with a two-out, bases-loaded single.

"We're going to keep battling them 'til the last out," he said. "And no matter who we're playing, if we're down a couple of runs, the guys feel that we can come back two or three times."

San Diego had taken a 3-2 lead in the 10th on an error by first baseman Eric Karros at first, but Los Angeles tied the score in the bottom half on Sharperson's sacrifice fly off Randy Myers, who hasn't had a save since May 29.

Jerald Clark hit a run-scoring single in the 11th and Tony Gwynn had an RBI groundout off Steve Wilson (2-4), but Todd Benzinger hit a two-run single off Pat Clements (2-1) in the bottom half and Sharperson came through after Benzinger was thrown out at the plate on Brett Butler's bases-loaded grounder to second.

"I didn't make one good pitch," Clements said. "It was a forkball right down the middle."

Astros 4, Reds 3

Pinch-hitter Benny Distefano's bases-loaded triple in the eighth inning rallied Houston, which stopped the Reds' winning streak at five.

Ken Caminiti led off the eighth with a single off Greg Swindell at the Atsrodome. Rob Dibble (0-3) walked Jeff Bagwell and, two outs later, Luis Gonzalez was intentionally walked, loading the bases. Distefano, hitting for Scooter Tucker, then lined a shot to right-center field to clear the bases, Dibble's third blown save in 14 chances.

Al Osuna (4-3) pitched one inning for the victory and Doug Jones got three outs for his 17th save.

Cardinals 3, Pirates 1

Bob Tewksbury (9-2) scattered seven hits and lowered his National League-leading ERA to 1.94.

Gerald Perry and Craig Wilson hit consecutive RBI doubles in the fourth off rookie Victor Cole (0-1).

Cubs 5, Mets 2

Rey Sanchez's two-run double keyed a three-run fifth as the Cubs beat Dwight Gooden (5-7), who had won 12 straight from Chicago since Aug. 9, 1987.

Danny Jackson (4-8) allowed two runs and six hits in 8 1-3 innings as the Cubs won for the fourth time in five games and beat Gooden at Wrigley Field for the first time since 1984.

Phillies 5, Expos 4

Terry Mulholland (8-4), wearing extra padding to protect his broken glove hand, scattered eight hits in 8 2-3 innings at Veterans Stadium in his first start since the June 20 injury.

Ex-Met trio returns to Big Apple

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Even when Gregg Jefferies, Kevin McReynolds and Keith Miller played in New York for the Mets, they got booed.

So when they came back to town Monday night for the first time since being traded to Kansas City, they really expected to hear it from the fans.

Jefferies, McReynolds and Miller got their share of Bronx cheers before the game, and the boos became even louder when the trio went a combined 7 for 14 while leading the Royals past the Yankees 7-3.

"They were on me from the first inning to the ninth inning. Some of them were good lines, too," Jefferies said.

McReynolds went 2 for 4 with a pair of RBI singles. Miller went 3 for 5 and scored three times and Jefferies was 2 for 5 with a run-scoring single.

The three players were sent to Kansas City last December for Bret Saberhagen and Bill Pecota in the biggest deal of the winter meetings. The ex-Mets all got off to slow starts for the Royals, but so far that's still been better than what the Mets got, with Saberhagen expected to miss two months with an inflamed right index finger and Pecota batting .224.

Miller led off the game with a single and scored on Wally Joyner's one-out double. McReynolds singled home another run, George Brett doubled and Mike Macfarlane hit a two-run double for a 4-0 lead.

Miller singled and scored on McReynolds' single in the fifth. Miller doubled in the ninth and scored on Jefferies' single.

Brett later got the 2,900th hit of his 20-year career. Mark Davis (1-2), Rusty Meacham and Jeff Montgomery, who earned his 19th save, combined on a five-hitter. Jeff Johnson (2-3) was the loser.

Athletics 5, Mariners 4

Dennis Eckersley broke Tom Henke's major league record by converting his 26th straight save chance of the season, and Oakland stopped its seven-game losing streak at the Kingdome.

Terry Steinbach hit a solo home run in the sixth inning that gave the Athletics a 3-3 tie, and delivered an RBI single in the 11th off Mike Schooler (0-5). Vince Horsman (2-0) was the winner.

Twins 5, Angels 1

Kevin Tapani pitched a four-hitter, Greg Gagne hit a three-run homer and visiting Minnesota won its fourth straight game.

Tapani (8-5), who shut out California with a two-hitter five days earlier, again beat Chuck Finley and the Angels. Finley (2-8) has won only one of his last 12 starts.

Blue Jays 11, Rangers 4

Texas pitchers, leading the majors in bases on balls, tied a team record by walking 13 more batters, and six of them wound up scoring as Toronto won at SkyDome.

Bobby Witt (8-7) walked eight in four-plus innings, and he and Edwin Nunez also threw run-scoring wild pitches. Witt walked four straight during a five-run second inning that was keyed by Manuel Lee's two-run double.

The Blue Jays matched a club mark by drawing 13 walks, including three each by John Olerud and Jeff Kent. Candy Maldonado hit a two-run homer and a two-run double and Joe Carter hit his 16th home run.

Reliever Pat Hentgen (5-0) pitched 5 2-3 scoreless innings, allowing only two hits.

White Sox 9, Indians 6

Robin Ventura got four hits and drove in two runs.

Jack McDowell (11-3) tied for the most victories in the AL despite giving up home runs to Paul Sorrento, Carlos Baerga and Jim Thome. Bobby Thigpen pitched the ninth for his 18th save.

Scott Scudder (5-7) took the loss.

Tigers 8, Red Sox 3

Travis Fryman hit two home runs and Detroit won at Fenway Park.

Frank Tanana (7-5) gave up five hits in seven innings and Kurt Knudsen closed for his second save.

Brewers 5, Orioles 3

Bob Milacki became the latest Baltimore pitcher to make a bad start.

Milacki (5-5) allowed four runs in 3 2-3 innings. In the last 16 games, Baltimore starters are 1-10 with a 6.36 ERA.

Chris Bosio (6-4) and two relievers stopped the Orioles on six hits, with Mike Fetters getting his first save. The Brewers joined Oakland and Chicago as the only visiting teams to win their first game at Camden Yards.

Smokeless tobacco not harmless

Smokeless tobacco has hit a home run with males between the ages of 16 and 29 and cancer control experts are crying foul.

Many people think it is a safe alternative to smoking, but "there is a risk of developing oral cancer," said Dr. Larry Laufman of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "It is a gamble, just like smoking and lung cancer."

Smokeless tobacco also has cosmetic pitfalls: bad breath, receding gums, stained teeth and white patches (called leukoplakia) on the gums.

Studies show that 17 percent of boys in grades three through 12 and 22 percent of college men use smokeless tobacco more than once a week.

Prevent fireworks injuries

Fireworks injure nearly 10,000 people every year, but many of these injuries are preventable.

Most fireworks injuries occur in teenage and pre-teen boys," said Dr. M. Bowes Hamill of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "The injuries we most often see, to the hands and eyes, can be prevented by proper adult supervision."

Hamill suggests that parents take youngsters to organized fireworks shows, but, if fireworks are purchased, he recommends:

-Never allowing fireworks to be used without adult supervision.

-Never using fireworks in prohibited areas.

-Always placing firecrackers on the ground before lighting them.

-Never throwing firecrackers.

-Always launching rocket-like fireworks from the ground rather than the hand, and always pointing them away from people.

-Carefully reading the instruction and warnings on fireworks.

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) - Wayne Newton is scouting Branson as a location for his own theater and hotel, a newspaper reported today.

The Las Vegas star has toured several music theaters in the past two weeks and is close to making a deal, The Springfield News-Leader said.

Newton, 50, has performed several times in Branson, where several big-name country stars have opened their own theaters. The newspaper said Newton would continue performing in Las Vegas but would spend summers in Branson.

The theater, which would open next spring, would seat about 3,000, the newspaper said.

Hereford students get special telephone

Paul Hamilton, left, of W.T. Services, and Bruce Johnson, right, of the Hereford Elks Lodge, present checks to Nena Veazey, director of primary instruction for the Hereford Independent School District. The money will be used to purchase a Proctor Telephone Demonstrator. The special phone will be used by students in the Hereford schools and clients at the Hereford Satellite Center how to use the 911 emergency system and regular seven-digit dialing.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to respond to the woman whose 61-year-old mother was in failing health. The mother's doctor had her on numerous medications and refused to address her lifestyle, which was largely responsible for the shape she was in.

My grandfather, who is 96, has been in poor health for the last few years. His weight dropped from 200 pounds to 120. Family members were summoned home several times in preparation for his last days.

My grandfather's doctor had him on 14 different kinds of medication. Recently the doctor retired and Grandpa was forced to find another physician. The new doctor immediately took him off all medicine. Within a few days, Grandpa felt better than he had in years.

It turned out that all Grandpa needed was one pill three times a day. The improvement in his health has been almost miraculous. He immediately started to gain weight. He is alert and feels better than he has in ages. When he was 80 years old, he said, "My goal is to make it to 100," and now we are sure he will.

Too often we stick wit ha doctor and assume he is wonderful because he's been the old family standby. Remind your readers that it's always a good idea to get a second opinion. No one doctor knows everything.--T.J.S., Orlando, Fla.

DEAR ORLANDO: You've made two excellent points that deserve repeating. First, over-medicating is all too common a practice, and second, "No one doctor knows everything," is right on. It's always wise to get a second opinion.

According to the American Heart Association, high blood pressure is particularly prevalent in middle-aged and elderly people, blacks, obese people, heavy drinkers, women who take oral contraceptives, and people with diabetes mellitus, gout or kidney disease. High blood pressure is also more prevalent among men than women.

Take caution when eliminating bees

Homeowners must be careful when trying to eliminate wasps according to Lisa Cornter, executive director of The HomeCare Council. Yellow jackets, paper wasps, hornets and mud daubers, particularly, build nests near homes and can deliver nasty stings.

It is during the summer months and until the first frost, when the colonies are at their fullest, that homeowners must be on the lookout for nests near the home. Yellow jackets build their nests inside a hole in the ground, in logs or railroad ties, while hornets tend to build theirs higher in bushes, trees and shrubs. paper wasps, called so because their nests are made of a paper-like material and mud daubers which make their nests from mud, build their nests under eaves of a building or in other sheltered spots.

In the past, homeowners have poured gasoline or kerosene down a yellow-jacket nest hole or used fire to destroy a large hornets' nest. These techniques can be dangerous and put the homeowner, the home and the environment all at risk. To safely eliminate wasps, use the following tips:

-Inspect your property throughout the spring to eliminate small nests before they turn into mature colonies.

-Take action at dusk or at night when they are quiet and keep your skin covered from head to toe.

-Use effective formulations found in the hardware store that allows you to stand 20 feet away from the nests and blanket the wasps with foam to kill them quickly and prevent them from swarming and stinging.

For hornets and wasps, make sure you can see the entrance hole to the nest and can direct the spray to over the hole. It is the only entrance and exit, so it is critical to cover it full.

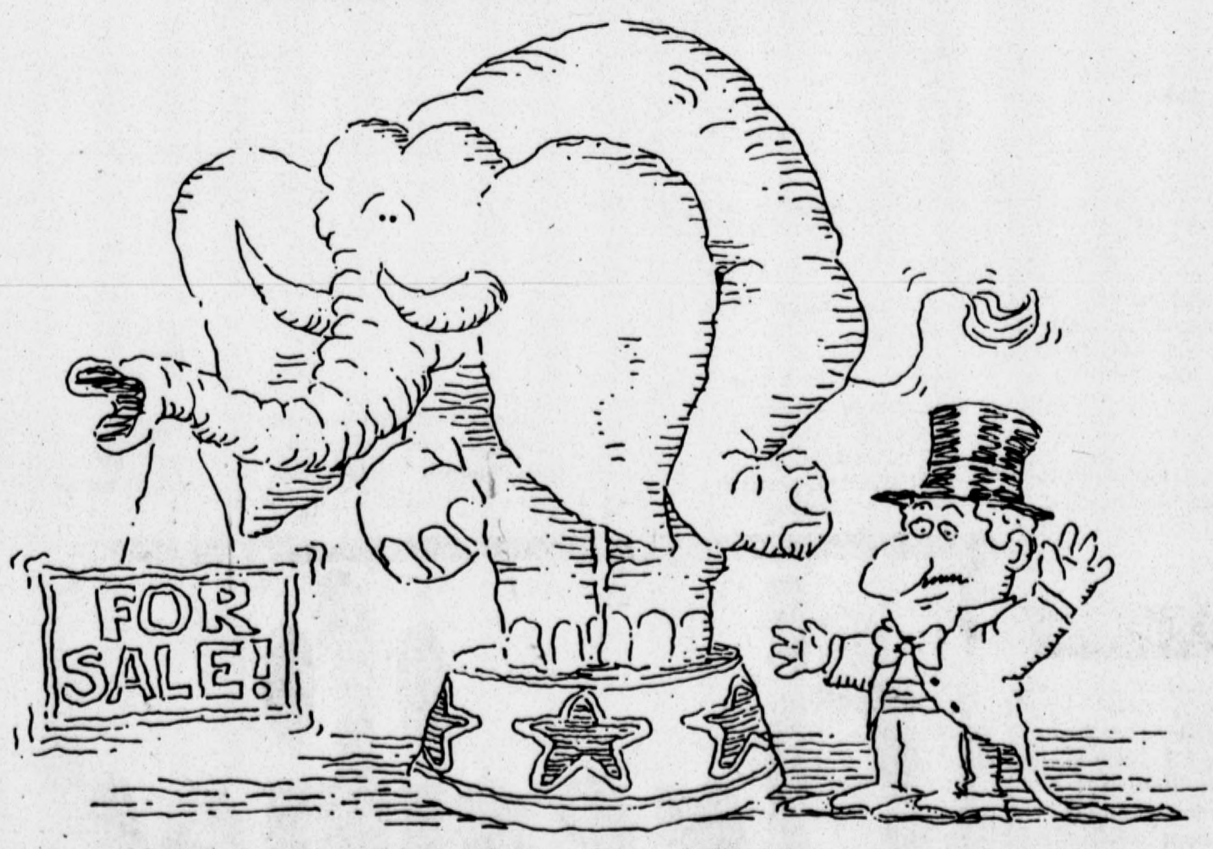

A dishwasher uses about 10 gallons of water. Washing the same dishes by hand would use around 20 gallons.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best.

You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

June Fest JAMAICA

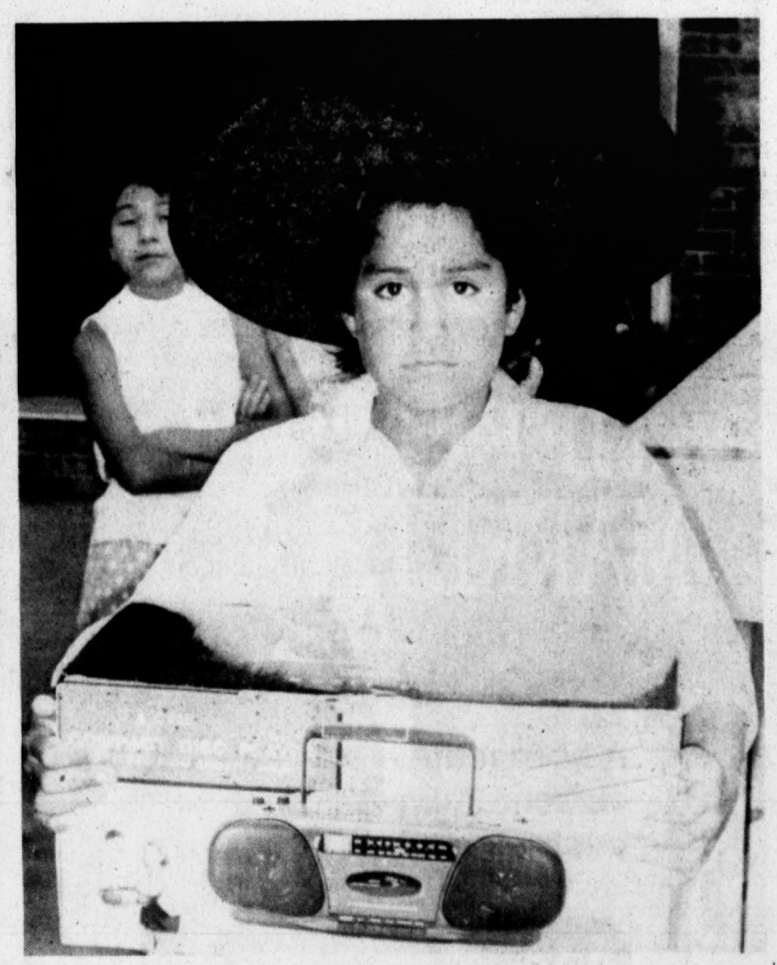

Saturday's storm moved the annual San Jose Catholic Church June Fest Jamaica from water-soaked Dameron Park to Sugarland Mall. That didn't deter the crowd, which enjoyed a wide variety of food, music and other entertainment.

Gilbert Hernandez won a compact disc boom box for the first place entry in the talent contest. Other winners included Josh Schroeter, second, who received an AM/FM/Cassette stereo; Bianca Zambrano, third, electric crystal ball; and Naomi Garcia, fourth, AM/FM/Cassette Walkman.

Others pictured include Monica Rocha, eating a candy apple; Fred Gamboa fixing burgers for the Knights of Columbus; and Charlie Galan cooking a deep-fried shell for gorditas.

Save a pet's life

By the time you finish reading this article, 150 dogs and cats will have been killed. These animals were not sick or injured. They weren't too old or too mean. The people who killed these animals did not hate them. In fact, they loved them.

For years, animal shelters have taken on the burden of pet overpopulation. They've accepted litters and litters of puppies and kittens when we did not bother to spay or neuter our pets and they have taken adolescent animals that we've grown tired of. Shelter workers willingly accept these unwanted, unloved animals in the hopes that they can give them a new chance at life. But they know that most of these dogs and cats will never find homes. The only thing they are sure of is that they can give these animals a humane, loving death.

The problem of surplus animals is not a new one. Shelters have tried to deal with this problem, but most are finding that it is just too big to handle alone. They need our help in easing this burden.

It's all about mathematics. For every animal that is taken in by an animal shelter, there has to be one adopted or reclaimed. That means that we have to reduce the number of animals that go to shelters by spaying or neutering our pets. Every day in the U.S., more than 70,000 puppies and kittens are born. When this number is compared to the 10,000 human births that occur every day, it's clear that there will never be enough homes for all these pets without some intervention.

But spaying and neutering is only a part of the commitment we need to make. We can no longer get our pets from pet stores, breeders and newspaper ads. Instead, we must get pets only from animal shelters. Every time we adopt a pet from a shelter, we save the life of a dog or cat that would have been euthanized. A litter of seven puppies delivered at the shelter door means that seven people must come to the shelter to adopt a pet. Otherwise some or all of those puppies will have to be humanely killed without ever having known the comfort and love of a good home. There are endless advantages to adopting a shelter animal. With so many dogs and cats to choose from, we all can select a pet that is just right. Shelters have animals of all ages and backgrounds. There are mixed breeds and purebreds of different sizes and temperaments and some of these animals are already housebroken and obedience trained.

Ultimately, the most effective way to address pet overpopulation is through responsible pet ownership. Many of the animals that end up at shelters are adults. That means that their owners were not willing to make a commitment to them. Often we don't think about the tremendous responsibility that goes with having a pet. We are obligated to provide veterinary care when they are sick and we must be able to offer them playtime and companionship. We also need to license our pets because when they are missing that license is their ticket home.

It is clear that this problem of pet overpopulation is not going to go away by itself. We have to make a conscious decision to do what is right and ease the burden on our shelters. We have created this problem and now we have to take responsibility for it. We must be dedicated to adopting dogs and cats from animal shelters and spaying or neutering our pets if we are to have any hope of making a difference.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Talk show host Dick Cavett will be honorary chairman of a campaign to raise money for a museum honoring the late poet John G. Neihardt.

A poet laureate of Nebraska, Neihardt is best known for "Black Elk Speaks," memoirs of an Ogala Sioux holy man.

Neihardt was interviewed by Cavett, a Nebraska native, in 1971, two years before his death.

Raisin Bran Bread

Who says bread has to be as simple as dough? A loaf of this bread proves the contrary.

	Vegetable oil spray*	2 tsp.	vanilla
1½ cups	low-fat buttermilk	2 cups	flour
4 Tbsp.	acceptable margarine, melted	2 tsp.	baking soda
		1½ tsp.	cinnamon
1 cup	bran-type cereal	½ tsp.	nutmeg
	Egg substitute equivalent to 2 eggs	1 tsp.	salt
		1 cup	raisins

Preheat oven to 350 F.

Lightly spray two 7⅜ x 3⅝-inch loaf pans with vegetable oil.

In a bowl, combine buttermilk, margarine, cereal, egg substitute and vanilla. Blend well.

In a separate bowl, sift dry ingredients together. Add to buttermilk mixture and stir just until blended. Stir in raisins.

Pour batter evenly into prepared pans and bake 40 to 45 minutes. Cool in pans for 5 minutes, then cool on rack.

Makes 48 1-slice servings.

* Do not use vegetable oil spray near an open flame or a heat source. Read directions on can before using, and follow directions carefully.

 Select margarines that have no more than 2 gm of saturated fat per tablespoon.

Selecting home can be hard

Placing a loved one in a nursing home is a difficult task.

"There are many factors to consider," said Dr. Husam Ghusn of the Huffington Center on Aging at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

People who are comparing nursing homes should:

-Find out when the home was last inspected and granted a license.

-Check the staff-to-patient ratios.

-Determine if the medical director is qualified in geriatric medicine.

-Determine if the facility has an emergency transfer agreement with a hospital.

-Find out if a professional social worker will be available at every stage of the admission process to help ease the transition.

-If possible, include the loved one in visiting and evaluating the nursing homes.

Tuberculosis makes unwelcome comeback

Tuberculosis. long considered a disease of the past, is making an unwelcome return. In 1951, Texas had 18 hospitals devoted solely to the treatment of TB. The disease declined steadily after 1953 because of public health measures, such as screening programs, and the introduction of effective anti-tuberculosis drugs. However, TB incidence started rising in 1985 nd has increased ever since.

Tuberculosis is an airborne infection which spreads on droplets released from the lungs through coughing. Although TB is contagious, it is not passed as easily as some other diseases, such as the flu or common cold. The average TB infection results from six months of daily, eight-hour exposure. Only 10 percent of carriers ever suffer symptoms and develop the disease. TB usually attacks the lungs, but also can spread to other parts of the body.

Why is TB back after almost being eliminated? The answer is complex. The increase in HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, is a major factor. HIV-infected people are especially at risk for tuberculosis because their immune systems are weakened. They can develop the disease form recent or past exposures to TB. Also at increased risk are people who live in crowded environments, such as homeless people in shelters or prison inmates. The reduction in screening programs also has contributed to TB's resurgence.

Other at-risk groups for tuberculosis immigrants from Asia, Africa, and Central and South America; alcoholics and intravenous drug users; minorities; diabetes victims; and the elderly. People who are not among these groups, but have contact with someone in one of these groups, also have increased chances of contracting TB. Examples include family members, fellow patients or inmates, and health-care providers.

The symptoms of tuberculosis are coughing, chest pain, shortness of breath, fever, night sweats, poor appetite, and weight loss. Tuberculosis is a serious and potentially fatal disease, but it can be treated with medication.

Drug treatment for tuberculosis is relatively inexpensive and almost always cures the disease. It requires taking multiple drugs for six months. Because symptoms are relieved within a few weeks, suffers often quit taking their medication prematurely.

However, partial treatment for TB is worse than no treatment because it leads to the development of drug-resistant strains, which ar more dangerous and have increased risk of being fatal. The greatest challenge facing the elimination of TB today is getting patients to complete their drug treatment.

Tuberculosis was the leading cause of death in the Unite States in the early 1900s. Just eight years ago, the United states has the lowest TB rate in modern history before its resurgence. TB can be eliminated in this country through increased prevention and treatment. If your think you have TB symptoms or would like more information about the disease, contact your physician.
