Agca alleges abuse in Italian jail

ROME (AP) — Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca today admitted he shot Pope John Paul II, but contested the right of an Italian court to try him and claimed in a courtroom outburst he had been tortured by his Italian jailers.

On the opening day of his trial, the 23-year-old defendant said his life had been threatened in Italian jails and that he had been subjected to "inhuman" conditions since his arrest for the May 13 shooting of the pope and two American women in St. Peter's Square.

In a statement translated from Turkish to Italian, Agca said: "On May 13, I was inside the confines of the Vatican when I shot the chief of state of the Vatican. I don't agree to be tried by an Italian court."

Agca, who has grown a full black beard during his confinement, addressed the court after the chief judge rejected a defense motion claiming Italy had no jurisdiction in the case.

Earlier, Agca had shouted from a bulletproof glass booth inside the courtroom that his jailers "have tortured me." After a 10-minute recess, he was allowed to address the court.

"I have lived for 60 days in inhuman conditions," Agca said. "I don't know if I am in a medieval jail or a jail of a democratic country."

He appeared in good health as he was led into the courtroom handcuffed to a police officer. Before the outburst, he stood impassively as scores of photographers snapped photos and yelled out his name, scuffling with courtroom guards who tried to push them back.

Agca's fate is in the hands of a jury of two women and four men. Both the prosecution and defense have predicted he will be sentenced to life imprisonment.

In addition to the protective glass booth for Agca, the 200 journalists covering the trial had to show special passes and then walk through metal detectors.

Agca's court-appointed lawyer, Pietro D'Ovidio, said before the trial that his client confessed to the shooting. He said he did not plan to plead insanity because there was no evidence to support such a plea, and he predicted Agca would be convicted and would get the maximum sentence.

Agca, described by police as a cool, self-disciplined gunman who had ties to right-wing groups in his native Turkey, insists he acted alone in the May 13 attack in St. Peter's Square.

Prosecutors say they have no evidence of a conspiracy. But police say they are convinced someone helped Agca, perhaps by financing his travels around Europe and North Africa after he escaped from a Turkish jail in 1979.

State prosecutor Nicola Amato said he would call about 30 witnesses after Agca finished testifying. Most of the witnesses were in the square during the shooting.

The pope, who is still hospitalized, has not been asked to appear as a witness or to give a deposition, legal sources said. He is recovering from a virus doctors say may have been contracted from the massive blood transfusions given him after the shooting.

Ann Odre, 58, of Buffalo, N.Y., one of the two women wounded in the attack, refused to return to Italy to testify.

There was no word whether the other injured woman, Rose Hall, 21, would testify. A former resident of Shirley, Mass., she is now living in West Germany.

The trial is expected to last less than a week. But if it is not finished by Aug. 1, when the court takes a month-long summer break, it will be recessed until September.

Agca has given conflicting stories about the motive for his attack and who financed him. At one point, he told the Italian police friends he refused to name gave him money. Later he said he got money through extortion.

U. S. urged to open arms control talks

MONTEBELLO, Quebec (AP) — America's principal allies are urging President Reagan to begin arms control talks with the Soviets and to lower U.S. interest rates before they trigger "profound impact" around the globe.

But Reagan, in his first major venture in international summitry, is standing firm on his present policy, challenging the allies to limit their trade ties with the Soviet bloc and saying he hopes to begin arms talks in November or December.

Meeting with leaders of the world's six other richest democracies at a heavily protected forest retreat here, the president defended his foreign and economic policies while expressing optimism that near-record interest rates in the United States might come down soon.

Today, aides said, Reagan planned to tell his counterparts from France, West Germany, Great Britain, Japan, Italy and host Canada that his administration "will be firm and steady in its own economic course" for fighting inflation.

Mounting concern abroad over when U.S. interest rates would recede became a major point of contention Sunday as the seven leaders gathered for a three-day summit at a giant resort constructed of logs in this village, 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Reagan arrived at his first major summit conference on the eve of his six-month anniversary in office. His first two meetings were with his two sternest critics on economic policy — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who has met Reagan once before, and Socialist President Francois Mitterrand of France, who met with the conservative U.S. leader the first time.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., who sat in on the sessions, said both Schmidt and Mitterrand complained that high U.S. interest rates threaten economies in Europe and possibly around the world.

Reagan was to start today with breakfast with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who is most supportive of U.S. economic policy among the Europeans because she is pursuing a similar course of credit and budget restraint.

At a Sunday night dinner limited to the seven leaders and their interpreters, Reagan heard the others express "very great sentiment...for arms control," White House counselor Edwin Meese III told reporters. "They indicated the importance to their countries of the negotiations," he added.

Refugees resume paces

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Haitian refugees flown to Texas to relieve overcrowding and health problems at a federal processing center in Florida begin a series of medical screenings and interviews here today while federal officials ponder where to send them next.

The 90 refugees who arrived here Saturday were among 286 Haitians transferred to relieve the congestion at the Miami federal processing center, a Immigration and Naturalization Service official said.

All the Haitians were tested for tuberculosis and placed in the Sunset dormitory, where they are separated from inmates at the minimum security federal prison here, an INS official said.

Assistant Warden Jerome Edwards said Big Spring officials were assured by the INS that the Haitians were "not sentenced prisoners."

"I want to allay the fears of the public," Allman said. "These are not dangerous people. They are not known for violence in their backgrounds."

Four French-speaking Big Spring residents were brought to the prison to communicate with the refugees, who did not appear distressed when they learned they had been taken to a prison, said prison superintendent

John Allman.

The Haitians told interpreters they thought they were coming to Texas to find jobs and that they were surprised when they were herded into the federal prison here.

"They thought they (federal authorities) were bringing them here to work — for jobs," said one observer who talked to a refugee. "They didn't understand it was a screening process."

Allman said the Haitians would not be released into the community. But he said he did not know what plans INS officials had for the Haitians after the screening process was completed.

However, Allman said the refugees would be kept under maximum security to ensure they could not wander away from the minimum security facility.

Five additional guards from other Texas and Oklahoma prisons have been assigned to the camp to handle the larger population.

Edwards said Big Spring was chosen because it has space for 250 additional inmates.

"But it will fill us up. And when you are going at a daily basis of 250 (people), we, of course, will have to do additional planning," he said.

Airlift of Haitians to continue

MIAMI (AP) — Twenty more Haitian refugees will be flown to Texas and New York early this week to cut the population at a packed and squalid Everglades detention camp, immigration officials say.

A total of 176 refugees were airlifted over the weekend to federal corrections facilities in Big Spring, Texas; Lake Placid, N.Y.; Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Morgantown, W. Va.

Mike Trominski, a spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said 10 each would be flown to Lake Placid and Midland.

The Saturday and Sunday flights, on chartered Ozark

Airline DC-9s, brought to 1,186 the population at the Krome North refugee camp west of Miami — nearly 300 more than the former missile base was meant to hold.

The Justice Department approved the transfer Friday as Gov. Bob Graham ordered state attorneys to file suit against the federal government demanding that at least 1,000 refugees be moved out of the state and no more Haitians be housed in Florida.

The Krome Avenue facility ideally would house 550 people, Trominski said, and maximum capacity has been set at 869.

Postal unions' strike still pending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators worked down to the last day in hopes of averting a possible nationwide mail strike today, with the Postal Service disputing union claims of no progress and telling Americans they can use the mail as usual.

Formal talks under the supervision of a federal mediator recessed shortly before midnight Sunday and were to resume today, 13 hours before current three-year contracts with four unions expire. Some subcommittee sessions continued past midnight on individual areas of a contract.

Presidents Moe Biller of the American Postal Workers Union and Vince Sombrotto of the National Association of Letter Carriers, which represent about 500,000 of the 600,000 unionized postal workers, said Sunday the talks have produced "no significant progress."

Their statement, however, omitted any warnings of a strike, which is forbidden by federal law that provides for binding arbitration if no contract agreement is reached.

Richard O'Connell, secretary-treasurer of the APWU, said weekend bargaining concerned non-economic issues only.

However, Assistant Postmaster General Walter E. Duka insisted, "We are making progress.... We believe we can have a contract. Obviously, they are difficult negotiations, but we continue to narrow the issues."

Postmaster General William F. Bolger, who has expressed confidence there will be no strike, said the public should continue to use the U.S. Mail.

Nevertheless, contingency plans have been made for a strike. These include using the military to sort and deliver mail and allowing private companies to deliver letters, which normally is illegal. How soon anything approaching normal mail service could be restored would depend on how widespread any walkout is.

The Postal Service says demands by the two major unions would drive the cost of a first-class stamp to 45 cents by 1984. The unions have maintained that mail rates would go up no faster than inflation under their package.

The two unions demanded 5 percent annual pay increases during the three years of a new contract, plus a one-time 2.7 percent inflation "catch-up" and an improved cost-of-living formula. They also want a 35-hour work week and an additional holiday.

Management proposed a three-year freeze on base wages, although the Postal Service said continuing cost-of-living raises would boost total pay by up to $3,000 a year. The freeze was rejected, with Biller and Sombrotto calling it "an insult" to the unions, and the two union leaders said Sunday no new offer had been made.

A typical postal worker now makes $23,300 a year.

Biller and Sombrotto, who as local union officials in New York City were key leaders in a 1970 postal strike, said Sunday, "We are no closer to an agreement than we were when negotiations started three weeks ago."

APWU spokesman Dan Driscoll said, "Under no circumstances am I going to say we are close to agreement on any part of a contract." Separate negotiations with two smaller unions appeared to be nearing a settlement. Duka said agreement has been reached on most parts of contracts with the National Association of Rural Letter Carriers and the mail handlers' division of Laborers International Union.

Bolger threatened to fire any postal worker who goes on strike this year, and the Justice Department has added that criminal cases may be brought against strikers.

Sunday's heat sets new record

Scorching temperatures will continue to move the mercury past the century mark after posting another record high Sunday, according to the National Weather Service at the Midland Regional Airport.

The weatherman reported Sunday's mercury reached 105 degrees, a record high temperature for that date. It marked the third consecutive day that a new record high temperature had been recorded.

Tuesday's high is expected to reach 102 degrees after an overnight low in the low 70s.

Private eye says Williams in wrong place at wrong time

ATLANTA (AP) — A private investigator who interviewed Wayne Williams in the Fulton County jail says the young black man indicted for two of the 28 murders of young blacks here was "just in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Will Northrop of Phoenix, Ariz., who has been hired to assist in Williams' defense, said he left a two-hour interview with Williams on Friday convinced the 23-year-old free-lance photographer is innocent.

Williams was indicted Friday by a Fulton County grand jury on two counts of murder in the deaths of Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, and Nathaniel Cater, 27, the 26th and 28th victims on the list of slayings of young blacks under investigation by a special police task force.

His case will be assigned to a Fulton County Superior Court judge this week, after which an arraignment date will be set.

"I'm very disappointed," Northrop said after the interview with Williams. "He was just in the wrong place at the wrong time."

"The only evidence I have heard of is fiber comparison. Fiber comparison is not proof. There is no way you can say the fibers came from that (Williams') rug," he said.

DURING A PRELIMINARY hearing on the murder charge against Williams in the Cater slaying, a state crime lab analyst said there was "no microscopic difference" between fibers found on Cater's body and fibers taken during a search of Williams' northwest Atlanta home.

Meanwhile, Tim Ryles, director of the Governor's Office of Consumer Affairs, said Sunday he will try to subpoena financial records of the Committee to Stop Children's Murders unless they are on his desk today.

When it filed registration papers in June, the committee, known as STOP, issued a statement saying it unintentionally had neglected to file the form earlier because "we have been involved so much in the plight of children."

The committee is composed of parents of some of the 28 young blacks found slain here over the past two years. STOP says its purpose is to promote children's rights, but it also has raised cash and given it to the victims' families.

Neither STOP's attorney, Don Keenan, nor any of the group's officers could be reached for comment Sunday.

WILLIAMS, WHO WAS arrested June 21, came to police attention May 22 when he was stopped near a bridge over the Chattahoochee River by a team of officers on stakeout duty.

Williams was stopped about 3 a.m. after a splash was heard in the river and his car was spotted driving slowly over the bridge, officers said. Two days later, Cater's body was found floating in the river several hundred yards downstream from the bridge.

Rash of burglaries keep local police busy

A rash of burglaries and thefts were being investigated this morning by Midland police.

About 4:45 a.m. today, burglars shattered a window at Merriman Appliance, 2400 W. Front Ave. and made off with more than $1,600 worth of merchandise.

Taken in that break-in was a video cassette recorder valued at $995 and a 13-inch color television set valued at $395. The window also was valued at $230, police reports indicated.

At 4:15 a.m. today, burglars hurled a cement block through a plate glass window at Morris Caffey TV & Appliance and took a video director valued at $728. The window was valued at $300, boosting the total estimated in that burglary to $1,028.

Mrs. Booker T. Chandler, 1801 S. Oak Ave., reported a theft. The woman said she returned home about 2 a.m. today to find a small window in her back door broken out and several items taken.

Taken in that break-in, police reports indicated, were four silver trays valued at $400, six silver candlestick holders valued at $100, a microwave oven valued at $250 and a combination black and white television and radio valued at $200.

Israeli troops raid southern Lebanon

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel said it sent raiding troops into southern Lebanon early today to attack Palestinian targets, defying U.S. efforts to halt the new spiral of violence that has taken at least 407 lives in Lebanon and five in Israel since July 10.

Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization said its guerrillas repulsed the Israelis, set one boatload of them afire and fired shells and rockets at half a dozen Israeli settlements in northern Galilee.

Israel admitted six of its raiders were wounded but claimed they killed an unspecified number of guerrillas. One Israeli woman was reported killed by the Palestinian shelling.

THE ISRAELI RAID followed heavy Israeli air attacks Sunday on Palestinian targets in southern Lebanon and a visit by special U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib to Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Spurred by the Israeli air attack on Beirut Friday which Lebanese sources said killed 300 people and wounded 800, Habib urged a halt in the air raids. But Begin said they were necessary to ward off the Palestinian rocket attacks from southern Lebanon.

Israel Television said Begin told Habib: "We will not cease our fire on the civilian population in Lebanon if the terrorists build headquarters or bases near or within civilian populations. We will continue to attack such headquarters and bases, and the responsibility for it falls on those who position themselves within civilian areas."

SECRETARY OF STATE Alexander M. Haig Jr. called the Middle East situation "tense and worrisome." U.S. presidential counselor Edwin Meese reported both sides were building up their forces along the border, signaling a possible "escalation of the violence."

Reporting on the post-midnight ground raid, the Israeli military command said the raiding party's troops trekked 2 1/2 miles inland from the coast "through difficult terrain" to hit a "terrorist objective" at Mazra'at al-Museileh, about 28 miles north of the Israeli border.

It was the first Israeli ground strike inside southern Lebanon reported since April 10. Israel said after the ground force pulled out, its gunboats pounded guerrilla targets between the southern Lebanese ports of Tyre and Sidon. The military said this killed "a number of terrorists."

THE PLO REPORTED that the gunboat bombardment preceded an attempt to land troops from the sea and by helicopter. It claimed that the seaborne commandos turned back after one boat was set afire by guerrilla shelling, and it indicated the helicopters were also driven off without landing.

"Our heroes once again managed to foil the enemy's attempts with great courage, inflicting the loss of one infantry-carrying ship," the PLO communique said.

It gave no casualty figures but said the fighting lasted about 30 minutes.

A Palestinian rocket and artillery attack Sunday on the northern Israeli town of Kiryat Shmona killed a 16-year-old Israeli boy and seriously wounded his mother and an Arab woman who was with the family. Other volleys along the length of the frontier wounded 22 Israelis.

ISRAELI JETS responded with strikes at Palestinian targets across much of southern Lebanon. The PLO said 18 guerrilla positions were hit between 7 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Lebanese police reported 14 dead and 45 wounded in cross-border artillery duels over the weekend, raising the reported toll of Lebanese and Palestinian casualties since July 10 to 407 dead and 1,110 wounded.

The PLO blamed the Israeli attacks on the United States, saying: "We put the responsibility for this aggression and acts of terror on the U.S. administration, which supplies this enemy with sophisticated arms and means of destruction and which sanctions such attacks."

Responding to U.S. criticism of the attacks, Israel Radio quoted Begin as asking, "If President Reagan had the kind of problem on the U.S.-Mexican border that we have on our Lebanese border, would he act differently? Why is he angry at me for trying to prevent the killing of Jews?"

Jaruzelski warns Poland's strikers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's soldier premier promised firm action if labor unrest continues, but the Solidarity labor federation went ahead with plans for dock and airline strikes this week after the conclusion of the Communist Party congress.

Warning that increased production is the "only way out" of the near-bankruptcy of the Polish economy, Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski told the congress Sunday, "There is no greater danger than anarchy. ... We cannot permit this. ... There are boundaries which cannot be crossed."

"If necessary," he continued, "the authorities will be forced to execute their constitutional obligations to save the state from decay and the nation from catastrophe."

THE PREMIER, a general who is also defense minister, hinted at the possibility of military action. He said the Polish army "kept cohesion and unity" during the labor crisis last summer, and "the party trusts the army."

Despite Jaruzelski's warning, a spokesman for the 45,000 dockworkers in the Baltic ports said their decision to strike Thursday for higher pay and improved working condition "remains unchanged." But he added: "There's Monday and Tuesday, and if the government is willing to talk, we are ready."

Hotel fire forces evacuation of guests

BOSTON (AP) — A four-alarm fire early this morning in the Essex Hotel forced about 200 guests from their rooms and injured at least five people, including a guest who was hospitalized with burns, officials said.

Firefighters arrived at the 10-story hotel across the street from South Station shortly after 3:30 a.m. The fire and smoke were brought under control about two hours later, a fire dispatcher said.

Two hotel guests and three firefighters were treated at Boston City Hospital and New England Medical Center. One of the guests, whose name was not immediately known, was listed in stable condition at Boston City Hospital, according to Boston City Hospital spokesman Bas VandeZaen.

Witnesses said the fire appeared to be confined to one room on the fourth floor of the hotel.

"It seemed only one room was on fire, but it certainly affected the whole hallway," Walter Burrows of Pittsburgh, Penn., said in an interview on WEEI radio. Burrows and his wife, who were staying in the hotel, climbed down ladders to safety.

Guests said they were awakened by an alarm.

Employees of LOT, the national airline, have called a strike Friday because the government refuses to accept their nominee for director of the airline.

After Jaruzelski's speech, Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania announced the 15 members of a new ruling Politburo, elected by the party Central Committee, in which moderates and liberals were in the majority.

ONLY FOUR OF THE 11 members on the previous Politburo were retained. Among the new members are four workers, including the ruling body's first woman member and a hard-line conservative.

The woman member is Zofia Grzyb, a supervisor in a shoe factory. Officials said she is a member of Solidarity.

He other three workers are Jan Labacki, the party leader at the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk where Solidarity was formed; Jerzy Romanik, a miner from Katowice, and Albin Siwak, a construction foreman and pro-Moscow hardliner who criticized the reform movement in a speech to the party congress Saturday.

The holdovers from the old Politburo are Kania, Jaruzelski, Kazimierz Barcikowski, a moderate ally, and Stefan Olszowski, a conservative who was once thought to be Kania's chief opponent but is now regarded as moving toward Kania's centrist camp.

THE OTHER NEW members are Interior Minister Miroslaw Milewski, Foreign Minister Jozef Cyrtek; district party secretaries Tadeusz Czechowicz of Lodz, Stanislaw Opalko of Tarnow and Tadeusz Porebski of Wroclaw, who is also a professor, and two other professors, Zbigniew Messner of the Katowice Economic School and Hieronim Kubiak of Krakow University.

Labacki and Mrs. Grzyb were said to be strongly reform-oriented, while Romanik, Messner and Opalko were considered potential supporters for them.

Investigations, funerals begin in Kansas City

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — As funerals began, engineers poked through tons of concrete and twisted metal for clues in the collapse of two suspended walkways at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. The death toll stood at 113, with 186 injured.

The first funerals following Friday's tragedy were scheduled today in Topeka, Kan. for four young members of the Mariachi Estrella Band who were at the Hyatt to entertain a Fuller Brush Co. convention.

Meanwhile, the owner of the luxurious hotel said it might be reopened within two weeks, and the sky bridges might be replaced.

There was still no official explanation for the collapse, although investigators were looking into the possibility that it might have been caused by people dancing or swaying on the spans.

THE SIX YOUNG WOMEN in the mariachi band were heading across the crowded Hyatt lobby to a room to change into their costumes Friday night, when the second- and fourth-floor walkways above them collapsed, crushing people in the debris. Four of the band members perished, and Rachel Galvan and Theresa Cuevas were hospitalized.

Miss Galvan was in critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital in Kansas City on Sunday, but Mrs. Cuevas had been released.

A joint funeral was being held today for Connie Alcala, Dolores Carmona, Linda Louis Schurlock and Dolores Galvan, sister of Rachel Galvan.

Of the injured, 90 remained hospitalized Sunday, 23 reportedly in critical condition or in intensive care units. Two of the injured died Sunday, boosting the death toll to 113.

The first investigators — hired by the hotel's architects from Failure Analysis Associates of Palo Alto, Calif. — were on the scene Sunday. Four other investigations also were announced — by the hotel owners, the hotel managers, the contractor and the city.

"WE ARE AT WORK TO find the most qualified team," said Donald Hall, president of Hallmark Cards Inc. "It will be a very thorough investigation." Hall said the company was contacting engineering firms across the country to put together a team of investigators.

Hallmark is the parent of Crown Center Redevelopment Co., which owns the hotel. The hotel is managed by Hyatt Corp.

Among the engineers contacted by Crown Center was James Stratta of Menlo Park, Calif., who was hired by Kansas City to learn the cause of the collapse of the Kemper Arena roof here in 1979.

"The first thing you have to do is determine, did something let go or did something break?" Stratta said. He said it must also be determined whether people dancing or swaying contributed to the collapse.

Crown Center President James McClune said the hotel might be open for business in a week or two.

"REOPENING DEPENDS on what the engineers tell us," McClune said. "If there has not been any structural damage to the hotel, we can reopen without doing anything about replacing the bridges and we will as soon as it is safe."

"I don't know if we will replace the bridges," McClune added. "It is a design we like. We have to look at what happened, correct it and get back in operation."

Mayor Richard Berkley and his wife, Sandy, spent five hours visiting the injured in three hospitals. He promised the city would investigate because "we have to bend over backwards to make sure there is (public) confidence." City Attorney Aaron Wilson said later, however, that the city's legal authority to probe the collapse was limited because it occurred on private property.

Witnesses differed in accounts of what happened in the seconds before and during the disaster. Some said as many as 300 people were on the second-level walkway watching a dance below in the lobby. Several were seen dancing and swaying to the music from below.

"IT (THE WALKWAY) wasn't swaying. There were people who told us you could see it bouncing," fire department spokesman Harold Knabe said. "The people were swaying on it like they were dancing to the music."

"People who walked across it said you could feel it bouncing and moving up and down. They weren't on it at the time it fell."

Some witnesses said the fourth-story walkway fell first and crashed onto a second-floor span. Knabe said other witnesses believed the second-floor walkway fell first and pulled the top one down.

"From what we've been able to determine, the two sections were suspended together," he said.

Hotel officials report no increase in cancellations

By The Associated Press

Managers at some of the nation's 59 Hyatt Regency hotels are ordering inspections of walkways and other suspended structures in the wake of the fatal walkway collapse at the Hyatt Regency in Kansas City.

Donald DePorter, regional vice president of the Hyatt Hotels Corp., said Sunday he had ordered an architect to "re-look" a ramp structure suspended by steel beams at Hyatt Regency in Illinois Center in Chicago, where he is general manager.

He said he would expect other inspections to follow, although there have been no official orders from the Hyatt management to do so. "We'll probably have a vice-presidents' meeting Monday or Tuesday and decide what to do," he said.

But so far the guests apparently aren't worried. The hotels Sunday reported no increase in cancellations.

"A lot of people think it's the DC-10, but all Hyatt hotels have different designers," said Brent Christie, executive assistant manager for the Hyatt in Dearborn, Mich.

The crash of a DC-10 jet in Chicago in May 1979 killed 274 people and was blamed in part on faulty maintenance which allowed an engine to fall off. All DC-10s were grounded for thorough inspections.

In Kansas City, 113 people were killed and nearly 200 injured Friday night when two 75-yard-long concrete walkways, suspended from the ceiling by steel cables, collapsed into a lobby where about 1,500 people were dancing. The walkways themselves were crowded with dancers and there was speculation the collapse may have been triggered by the weight or rhythmic vibrations from the dancing, although the cause is under investigation.

The Kansas City hotel, like most Hyatts, imitates the design created by architect John Portman from the Hyatt in Atlanta, where guest rooms open off balconies that line a vast interior courtyard, or atrium. In some hotels, walkways provide access between balconies on opposite sides or from elevators to balconies.

"I would say if there are other like structures or similar structures, we would have an architect look at them. We don't know of any, however," DePorter said.

INVESTORS GUIDE

No-load funds sell directly to investors

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I have just received some profit-sharing and pension plan money from a previous employer. My new employer has no retirement plan. I would like to start an individual retirement account (IRA) so I could roll over the money my previous employer and add $1,500 yearly from my present salary. I would like to have an IRA in a growth mutual fund.

Every broker I contact wants to put me in an annuity or a mutual fund with a big commission load. Can you recommend a growth mutual fund without such big charges? I have only six weeks to start at IRA.

A. This column never recommends individual investments. But it can point you in the right direction. Write to the No-Load Mutual Fund Association, Valley Forge, Pa. 19481, for a list of mutual funds whose shares are sold without any commission charge.

You can't blame brokers for trying to sell you annuities and mutual funds with commissions. That's how brokers make their living — from commissions. No-load funds sell directly to investors — no salesmen, no commissions.

And don't rush. Rather than six weeks, you have 60 days from the time you receive a lump sum distribution of an employer's contribution from a tax-qualified retirement plan to start a "rollover IRA." Assuming you won't reach age 70½ this year, you can put that money into a rollover IRA and postpone paying income taxes until you withdraw it.

Most people start IRA withdrawals after retirement, when they are in lower income tax brackets. You must start IRA withdrawals, during the year you turn 70½.

Also, you must set up a separate IRA for your annual contributions of up to $1,500 or 15 percent of your present salary — whichever is less — if your present employer does not have a retirement plan. You have until you file your income tax return, next April 15, to do that.

Q. I have been putting $1,500 a year into U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds since 1971, when individual retirement accounts were first authorized. I'm in my late 60s and still working. I know there will be some "tax consequence" when I become 70½, but I don't know exactly what it will be. Can you explain this situation?

A. If you still hold those U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds when you turn 70½, you'll be hit with a big income tax obligation. When you reach that age all your bonds will stop accruing interest. And you'll be required to report as taxable income the total value of those bonds — all the money you have put into them, plus all the interest that has built up on them.

This is one of the major problems with U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds — being forced to report all that money as income in one year, and being kicked into a higher tax bracket.

You can avoid that tax bite by what is known as an "IRA-To-IRA rollover." Redeem those bonds before you come 70½ and, within 60 days, put the money into a different IRA at a mutual fund, bank or such. Although you must start withdrawing your money from other IRAs at 70½, you can do it over a period of years — ducking a big tax in one year.

The other major problem with U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds is the low interest they pay — 8 percent on those issued since November, 1980, 6.5 percent on those issued from August 1979, through October, 1980, and 6 percent on those issued earlier.

In a nutshell, U.S. Individual Retirement Bonds are not good investments.

Q. I read a news item about the U.S. Treasury selling $6 billion of "cash management bills," at a yield to investors of 18.38 percent. What are these cash management bills? Why does the federal government sell them? How can an individual investor buy them?

A. Cash management bills are very short-term U.S. Treasury bills, similar to the 13-week and 26-week T bills the Treasury auctions off every Monday. They are sold when the federal government is strapped for cash for a short period of time. The latest issue matured in only 20 days.

An individual investor can buy them, by submitting a tender at the Treasury auction. But cash management bills come in minimum denominations of $1 million. That big number precludes most individuals from getting in on the action.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Productivity most often equals profits

NEW YORK AP) — As the economy becomes more involved in the production of services, C. Jackson Grayson is more concerned that we make a clear distinction between efficiency and effectiveness.

"Efficiency measures if you are doing things right. Effectiveness concerns itself with whether you are doing the right thing," says Grayson, chairman of The American Productivity Center, Houston.

He contends that both must be measured if a worthwhile productivity picture is to be obtained. And he suggests that America's lagging productivity growth is in part a consequence of poor effectiveness.

SHOULD WE measure hospital productivity solely by such factors as the number of patients treated? Or is a more productive facility one that teaches people how to remain healthy, and thus treats fewer patients?

In this age of electronic computers, shouldn't productivity be measured not just on the lines of data produced but on the basis of whether that data is read and utilized or just left to gather dust?

He draws still another example from the manufacturing sector. American automakers, he observes, ran their assembly lines as efficiently as they could. But, he contends, "they didn't produce the right cars. The Japanese did. The Japanese were both efficient and effective."

PRODUCTIVITY, says Grayson, is made up of many things, and "to work on one aspect could be a mistake. There is no one answer. And we should not expect improvements to come quickly and easily."

But he does have many suggestions about areas he feels are poorly understood. In service businesses as well as in manufacturing, people should count. Productivity can be improved, he feels, by paying greater attention to worker's job security, goals and need for involvement.

"Involvement means asking employees, listening to them, recognizing their contributions — perhaps with money — sharing information, letting them know about the future, letting them own a share in the business."

GRAYSON'S "own a share" was meant mainly in figurative sense, he said, but he recognizes that a common management reflex is the feeling that involvement with workers ultimately means loss of control.

"I don't think management will lose control," he said. "I don't believe employees want to control. They want to contribute."

Grayson, former dean of business schools at Tulane and Southern Methodist universities, left his post as President Nixon's price commissioner convinced that inflation had roots beyond his reach — that it was based in a productivity slowdown. How, he wondered, could prices be controlled when it was costing more to produce goods?

HE WAS APPALLED to find that productivity data was unreliable. The government's measure included labor's contributions, in the form of output per manhour, but failed (and still does) to measure the impact of capital invested. (The Productivity Center now has its own index.)

Raising $10 million in five years, he founded the business-supported center to educate the public, produce more reliable measurements of output, and teach management and labor how to implement techniques known to increase efficiency and effectiveness.

He feels the first stage has succeeded. "Awareness is going up," he said. But action, he laments, is lagging. Companies, he asserts, must recognize that productivity "is equally as important as profit."

WHICH IS TO say that short-term profits can be squeezed from a company while weakening it in the long run by not budging for productivity improvements. In that sense, the bottom line can lie; it can show profits today at the expense of tomorrow. The company could even die.

MONDAY JULY 20, 1981

This bedroom is attractive principally because of its accessories which demand attention and furniture which works effectively to show them off.

Choose furniture wisely to showcase accessories

The furniture is also well chosen because it works effectively to show them off.

Modular combinations add dimension to the room's faceless space. More than that, the units allow flexible storage and the display of a fascinating collection. African accessories move and dance in tune to the continent's spirit: all things possess life.

Thomasville designer Shelley Weiss has wrapped a bedroom in the boldness of patterns in natural elm woods and pecky-elm veneers. Carpet choice is a saxony plush in a Cafe-au-lait coloration. The mirrored screen has bent bamboo trim.

There is a distinct affinity here, a mutual and intimate need of certain furniture for particular accent pieces. This light group of furniture in clean, contemporary lines is dramatically highlighted with black safari primitive artwork.

A designer tip from Weiss: "Don't accessorize for accessories' sake...if your collection is cherished, it deserves the very best showcase—and vice versa."

Silicone sealants long lasting, resistant

By AL CARRELL

One of my favorite sealants is silicone. It is long lasting, resists moisture, shock and vibration. It can take a beating from such household chemicals as bleach, detergents, drain cleaners, disinfectants, and similar products. I'm not the only one who likes this stuff. It's a popular item in the home centers and hardware stores and it also brings forth some good ideas from you readers. Here are a few.

Dear Al:

With a house full of youngsters (we have four, and that is a houseful) there is considerable slamming of the screen door as they run in and out. It was about to drive me loco. By the simple addition of several dabs of silicone sealant around the door frame, the screen closes against padded bumpers and is much quieter. — Mother

Dear Al:

If you ever want to get more mileage out of a metal bucket that has sprung a leak, just put a dab of silicone sealant on the hole. When it sets up, the bucket again holds water. — W.J.

Dear Al:

Sometimes regular pipe joint compound doesn't seal a plumbing pipe to make threaded connections leakproof. To avoid such a failure, I apply silicone sealant to the threads and complete the fitting. Then I wait for the sealant to cure before subjecting the joint to water. It will not leak. If you ever have to remove the fitting, the seal can be broken with a wrench. — L.W.

Dear Super:

They say that silicone sealant can't be painted over since paint doesn't adhere to it too well. If you carefully coat the cured sealant with contact cement, the cement will adhere to the sealant, and then paint will adhere to the cement. — F.R.

Another way is to spray the sealant with artists' fixative. This too can be painted over and does adhere to the silicone.

Dear Al:

The throw rug in our entry hall was a dangerous flying carpet. We made it safer by running a bead of silicone sealant around the bottom edge. When the compound set up, the rug was slip-proof and no longer was a hazard. — H.S.

Dear Al:

This is really offbeat, but it worked. Our son's shirt tail never stayed in. I knew that my husband's golf slacks had an inner waistband that was a gripper for the shirt tail and was made of rubber. In my husband's workshop, he had some silicone sealant. I experimented with the idea of running a very small bead of this stuff inside the waistband of our son's trousers. It worked on that pair at keeping the shirt tail in reasonably well, and so I applied the stuff to all his slacks. — Mrs. R.D.T.

As you can see, there are lots of ways to use the stuff. I find it works best if you snip the tube spout off at about a 45-degree angle. The place where you cut the tapered spout controls the width of the bead. I've also found that you get a better bead if you push the material ahead of the nozzle as it comes out instead of pulling it toward you. Remember to follow the manufacturer's directions for use and give this and any other compound the proper drying and curing time. Goofs can be removed with paint thinner until the stuff starts to dry. Then you best wait until it cures, and cut and peel to remove. A sharp razor blade will slice through the sealant. Maybe you've found a few thousand other great uses for this stuff, and if so, send 'em in so we can "stick" them in the column.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Salad dressing booklet has helpful hints

DEAR READERS:

Have I got another good booklet for you!

The Association for Dressings and Sauces has put together a super little book with all kinds of information on dressings, mayonnaise, salad dressings, sauces and dips.

It has more than 150 hints and a number of good recipes plus some interesting facts on labeling, caloric content, cholesterol count and additives, which are very important to all of us today.

There is some interesting information on the history of salad dressings and sauces dating all the way back to over 5,000 years ago plus fascinating stuff about how European royal chefs often combined as many as 35 ingredients in one salad, including such exotic greens as rose petals and violets.

In the middle of the booklet is an easy to read chart with three different uses for each of 12 types of salad dressings. Some of them really are unusual and different.

That old tired song about inflation is true and getting to all of us. This book will help you stretch your money by teaching you ways to marinate inexpensive cuts of meats.

The cost of $1 for the booklet may seem high but please remember that the postage alone is 35 cents and that the price of printing a book with colorful pictures is not cheap anymore, not to mention the cost of handling.

This is a book you will put along side your cookbook and use for many years.

If you want to receive this great offer for "Salad Dressings and Sauces... Facts and Fancy Fare" send $1 in cash or a check made payable to Assn. for Dressings and Sauces along with your name, address and zip code (a must) to:

BREADBOX ODOR

Dear Heloise: To eliminate odor or mildew in your wooden breadbox, drill a few holes in the back or on both sides for ventilation.

I was given a beautiful bread box with an offensive smell, but as I'm not one to throw anything away, I had my son drill a few holes in it and within a short time, there was no more odor.

If you look at the metal boxes, you will find they are made with holes in the sides. — R.O.

NO DISAPPEARING ACT

Dear Heloise: While putting elastic in a casing, I discovered putting a safety pin in each end of the elastic prevents the "back" end from slipping too far into the casing and disappearing.

If it should slip through, you have only to take the other end and easily run it back to the opening. — Louise Hensley

Survey shows people doing more at home

MARYSVILLE, Ohio — If you are planning on fixing up the house and grounds this year, or doing more entertaining at home, you are not alone. Whether it's all for pleasure or because of the restraints brought about by inflation, homeowners are showing an increasing preference for activities centered around the house.

Nearly a third of the homeowners questioned recently said they plan to spend more time in home-related activities this year than they did in 1980, according to a nationwide survey of 2,805 homeowners conducted by The Home Testing Institute on behalf of O.M. Scott & Sons, the lawn people.

Home activities selected, in order of preference, were: interior decorating and home improvement, 53 percent; lawn and garden care, 51 percent; exterior painting and refurbishing, 44 percent; and home entertainment, 39 percent.

Lawn and garden care, which registered third place in order of preference a year ago, has moved up to second place with a jump of 18 percentage points. Interior decorating and home improvement jumped 8 percentage points; exterior painting and refurbishing jumped 10 percentage points; and home entertainment, 20 points.

This year, 39 percent of homeowners who plan to spend more time around the house also plan to spend more money on their lawns. While taking an active interest in lawn care they also showed increased appreciation for convenience products.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — We would like to cut the noise between two rooms, only one of which is already in place. We have heard that the best way to do this is to place insulation between the walls. Is that all that is necessary?

A — Insulation between the walls will help considerably, but that is only part of the solution. Sound travels through metal, under baseboards and even through electrical outlets. There are special non-metal connectors and insulation materials that can be used wherever noise might travel. Your best bet is to go to a dealer that sells this kind of sound-absorbent and deadening materials, explain what you plan to do and ask his advice. That's because each situation presents special problems and requires special solutions. Only an expert who knows your specific problems can give you accurate answers.

Q — I have to replace some broken window panes soon and would like to cut the glass myself. When I have tried this in the past, I always seemed to run into trouble when doing the cutting with a glass cutter. Either the glass cracks while cutting or the line begins to chip or the cutter skips in places and I have to go back over it. Is there something I am doing wrong?

A — Undoubtedly. Exactly what it is can't be determined from this distance, but a good guess is that you are not applying the proper pressure on the cutter. The pressure must be firm but not too firm. Usually, cracking comes from pressing too hard, skipping from pressing too little. Are you using some kind of straightedge along which to draw the cutter? Practice with pieces of scrap glass again and again. Suddenly, you will find yourself making perfect cuts. You won't be sure exactly why, but you will know then that you have acquired the hang of it.

Q — From the kitchen of our house at the rear, you have to go down four concrete steps to get to the backyard. There is no problem in the summer, but during the winter, the steps are sometimes covered with ice and very dangerous. We have thought of several solutions and even tried a couple of them, but nothing seems to be foolproof. What advice can you give us?

A — There probably is no foolproof method that will prevent someone from slipping on such steps forever. You might try something a friend of mine has found helpful. He has built a wooden frame for each step. The frame fits over the step in such a way that it cannot move, but if you can't get it to fit perfectly, use a couple of fasteners to hold it in place. Each frame is placed in position when winter is about to arrive and removed when it has gone. The important thing to do when building the frame is to slant it the tiniest bit to permit water to run off. Of course, water can freeze on wood under certain conditions or can become slippery for other reasons, but so far it has worked for several years. In any case, it most certainly is less likely to become slippery than the present concrete.

Q — The painted wooden floor in our family room is in excellent condition, with no signs of peeling, blistering or cracking, but there are two spots where most of the paint has worn away. In repainting the entire floor, should these spots be given special treatment?

A — Yes. Take a small quantity of the paint and thin it a bit with turpentine or mineral spirits if it is oil paint or water if it is latex paint. Paint the spots with this mixture and allow it to dry for at least a day. Now paint the floor the regular way.

(Kinds of paint, surface preparation, brushes, roller and techniques are among the subjects in Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," available by sending 50 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Preventive care for feet urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Feet hurt? You're not alone, according to U.S. Department of Health statistics which indicate that 87 percent of Americans have a foot problem during a lifetime.

And, many are painful. Not only do feet hurt, but a lot of people stoically endure the pain, say foot specialists.

"Foot pain is not a God-given trait," says Dr. Arlene Hoffman, a San Francisco podiatrist. "If we had one-tenth the pain in another part of our body, we'd run to the doctor to find out what's wrong."

Many other foot experts also consider feet to be the most neglected part of the body, she adds. To change that attitude, she and her colleagues at the American Podiatry Association have joined with Scholl to educate Americans about their feet and encourage better preventive foot health across the nation.

Why do people ignore their feet, even when they hurt? The podiatrists generally agree that it's because feet are covered up.

"Out of sight, out of mind," says Dr. William Munsey of Worthington, Ohio. "The fallacy of that, of course, is that the pain shows up in your face. Your fatigue level also increases when your feet hurt."

Fatigue also is cited as a symptom of sore feet by Dr. E. Dalton McGlamry, an Atlanta podiatrist.

"I can go down an assembly line and immediately identify people who tend toward excessive pronation (inward and downward rotation of the arch)," says McGlamry.

The doctor describes the symptoms of pronation: "They (people who pronate) fatigue early, become clock watchers and are more susceptible to injuries. Thirty minutes after they're on the job, their mind is off the job and on their feet. Overpronation is not a killer, but a killjoy."

Fear plays a role in foot neglect, say some experts. "Young people are afraid a podiatrist will alter the shoes they wear," notes Springfield, Ill., specialist, Dr. Jerry Brant. "But there are many kinds of treatment besides wearing 'old lady' shoes," he emphasizes. And, according to Brant, surgery isn't the only option, either.

Brant, along with other specialists stresses the importance of paying attention to young feet. Some foot problems, such as bunions or hammertoes, can be inherited, and if diagnosed early enough, controlled or prevented, he says.

"Younger people often let a foot problem slide because it's not a constant source of pain — yet," says Brant. "But if a foot problem is not properly treated, it will probably get worse as you age."

"When feet start dictating what you can and can't do, then it's time to see a professional, find out what's wrong, and how it can be corrected," Brant adds.

Between check-ups, the podiatry group suggests some basic care tips:

- Good daily hygiene.
- An occasional foot soak.
- A daily shake of foot powder to keep feet dry and comfortable.

- Cushioning and padding on feet and in shoes to protect from daily "blows."

- Shoes, socks or stockings that fit comfortably.

This does not mean that women should toss out all their high heels. Rather, the doctors recommend alternating heel heights to maintain comfort and muscle flexibility in the legs.

Foot specialists caution diabetics and people with poor blood circulation to be especially careful about their feet. People with these conditions should see a physician or podiatrist about even the simplest foot problem.

Understanding various lumber yard terms

By AL CARRELL

Not too long ago, I talked about the terms used in lumber yards to determine the total amount of lumber in a quantity of various sized boards. The term was, and still is, "board feet." If you don't remember, a board foot is a piece of lumber that is a foot wide by a foot long by an inch thick. You may also remember that the foot long part was the only one of those measurements that was actually a true measurement. The other parts were only the nominal measurements. The piece would be referred to as a "1x12," but the "one" would actually be only $\frac{3}{4}$ of an inch, and the "twelve" would actually only be 11 $\frac{1}{2}$.

You may also remember that when a board is, say a 1x4, it would take a 3-foot-long piece to render one board foot. We also ended up by telling you that most sellers of lumber for the do-it-yourselfer sell by the linear foot, so you can order whatever sizes are needed and know what it is going to cost per foot.

The folks in the lumber business also have some other terms you should know about. The term "board" does not apply to everything that you see in the lumber yard or home center. "Boards" are pieces that are less than the nominal 2 inches thick, and more than 3 inches wide. Here are nominal and actual sizes for boards:

Nominal Actual
1x4 $\frac{3}{4}$ x 3 $\frac{1}{2}$
1x6 $\frac{3}{4}$ x 5 $\frac{1}{2}$
1x8 $\frac{3}{4}$ x 7 $\frac{1}{2}$
1x10 $\frac{3}{4}$ x 9 $\frac{1}{2}$
1x12 $\frac{3}{4}$ x 11 $\frac{1}{2}$

Boards are used for things like flooring, sub-flooring, shelving, sheathing, paneling, decking, fencing and similar uses.

Smaller pieces that are less than 2 inches thick and are 3 inches or less in width are called "furring" or "strips." The two common sizes are 1x2 and 1x3. Their actual sizes are $\frac{3}{4}$ x 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ and $\frac{3}{4}$ x 2 $\frac{1}{2}$. They are, of course, used for furring plus as battens, stakes, lattice and other light applications.

The term for lumber larger than boards is "dimension lumber." This category includes pieces that are nominal 2 inches thick and are 2 or more inches wide. The 2x3s, 2x4s and 2x6s are also called "studs." Those wider than 6 inches are called "planks." Dimension lumber is mostly used for structural framing. It can also be used for decks, forms, stairs and the like. The nominal and actual sizes of dimension lumber are as follows:

Nominal Actual
2x2 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 1 $\frac{1}{2}$
2x3 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 2 $\frac{1}{2}$
2x4 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 3 $\frac{1}{2}$
2x6 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 5 $\frac{1}{2}$
2x8 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 7 $\frac{1}{2}$
2x10 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 9 $\frac{1}{2}$
2x12 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 11 $\frac{1}{2}$

Pieces that are square in cross-section, such as a 4x4 or a 6x6, are termed "posts." Their actual size is a half inch less than the nominal size. They are, of course, used as posts, but also are used for structural framing and other support chores as well as for decking support.

The last general term for regular lumber is "timbers." This applies to pieces that are 5 inches or larger in the smallest dimension. In other words, a 6x10 would be a timber. These big timbers would be used in heavy duty structural framing. The actual size would be a half inch less than the nominal.

After you have mastered the terminology, you'll want to learn more about the various species of wood. Different woods are better for different uses. There are "softwoods" and "hardwoods." This has nothing to do with the actual hardness of the woods. Softwoods are from coniferous (cone-bearing) trees, such as pine, cedar, fir, redwood and spruce. Hardwoods are from deciduous or leaf-bearing trees and include such trees as oak, maple, walnut, mahogany, birch and so forth.

Many lumber dealers will have charts telling the major uses for the more popular species of wood. You'd do well to get the wood suggested in such charts. There are also books available with color photos of the various species of wood so you can learn to tell what wood is which by just looking. Actual hands-on contact is the best way to learn though.

DEAR ABBY

Graduation gifts require diplomatic acceptance

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please help settle a disagreement we are having in our family. My grandson sent out his high-school graduation announcements before he knew that he didn't have enough credits to graduate.

He received many lovely graduation gifts, including some nice checks from relatives. I say all the gifts (and of course the checks) should be returned because he didn't really graduate. His mother (my daughter) insists that he is entitled to keep the gifts because he completed 12 years of schooling.

Do you think my daughter is right, and I should butt out? — ILLINOIS GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Your grandson should keep the gifts and send thank-you notes explaining that he did not graduate with his class, but he plans to make up the deficient credits and earn his diploma eventually — if indeed he intends to do so. Otherwise, he should return the gifts.

DEAR ABBY: My son, Allen, who is 18, has been going with Anna Marie for three years. She's also 18. They have been engaged since last Christmas, but no wedding date has been set. Allen lives at home and just started working at a bank. Anna Marie works there too. This bank has a great benefit package, which includes a $50,000 life insurance policy. Allen told me he made Anna Marie his beneficiary. I was very hurt. I told him that after they are married, Anna Marie should be the beneficiary, but until then, if, God forbid, something should happen to him, I should be the beneficiary of his policy.

He said no, that if something should happen to him tomorrow, he'd want his girlfriend to collect on his policy. What is your opinion? — ALLEN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm with you. Until Allen and Anna Marie are married (unless, God forbid, she's pregnant), Allen's beneficiary should be his mother.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column a while back from a woman who said that every time she got pregnant, her husband started drinking. My problem is just the opposite. Every time my husband starts drinking, I get pregnant.

I love kids, but we've got just about all we can handle right now.

Don't tell me to use birth control. I've tried several methods, and they don't work for me.

You keep saying that a wife shouldn't turn her husband away when he wants sex because that gives him and excuse to find another woman. So what do you recommend? — ENOUGH KIDS

DEAR ENOUGH: Planned Parenthood for you, alcoholics Anonymous for him and self-control for both of you!

DEAR ABBY: My husband has this friend who is always dropping in around supertime. Of course we have to ask him to stay for supper, but that's not the half of it. He sits around until 1:00 or 2:00 in the morning.

We've had to change our plans because of his unexpected visits. Sometimes he even brings his girlfriend along.

We have hinted that he should please let us know when he's coming, but it hasn't done any good. What should we do? We don't want to hurt his feelings, as he's a very sensitive man. — NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Sensitive? No way! Quit hinting. That's like using a BB gun when you need a cannon. Tell him what you've told me. And if you don't get him to respect your wishes, you deserve the inconvenience he's causing you.

DEAR ABBY: Is my husband crazy, or am I? He has worn glasses for years, and says when he takes his glasses off, he can't hear. Do you think he should have his head examined? — MOLLY IN GREECE

DEAR MOLLY: Not necessarily. But it wouldn't hurt to have his EARS examined.

DEAR ABBY: I've seen a lot of letters in your column from people who have no children but they're very content. I have one child and I'm satisfied to keep it that way.

My problem is relatives and close friends who keep coming up with stupid remarks like, "You have to have another one so Johnny will have someone to play with."

My sister, who has never been married and has no kids, is always on my case about the selfishness of raising one child. Worse yet, she keeps prodding my son, "Tell your mom you want a little sister." Now my son asks me every day when his sister is coming.

Abby, I am at the end of my rope with these people. I've tried long speeches on why I want only one child, and I've even told them I'm doing my part to curb the population explosion, but nothing helps.

Can you give me a good answer the next time a person asks, "When are you going to have another one?" — ONE'S ENOUGH IN WORCESTER, MASS.

DEAR ONE'S ENOUGH: You don't have to answer a question simply because someone had the nerve to ask it. And you need not apologize for refusing to answer.

DEAR ABBY: I cried when I read about the poor 11-year-old kid who still wets the bed, so his parents made him wear a diaper and put him out in the front yard where all his friends could see him.

Instead of writing to you about it, that neighbor should have called the proper authorities and had those parents arrested for child abuse!

They may not know it now, but they have lost their son. He will never forgive them to his dying day. — SICK AT HEART AND MOTHER OF FOUR

Make-at-home tofu puffs

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

As a collector of books on food and drink, I have carefully assembled those written by Trade Vic Bergeron. Years ago I first encountered his New York restaurant and later, his books. Ever since, like many other cooks, I have been aware of his interesting contributions to American cuisine. I've thoroughly enjoyed his interpretations of Oriental, Polynesian, Caribbean and Mexican food and have been influenced by them.

To say nothing about his amusing drinks — a wonderful combination of imagination and frilliness. Recently, even though a strawberry daiquiri — a delightful cocktail not widely enough served — wasn't listed on the menu of his New York City restaurant, I ordered it anyway and got the best of its kind.

Nowadays Trader Vic's four children have taken over the bulk of the responsibilities for his international chain of restaurants, but the Trader is ever alert to new food combinations. A few months ago I was offered his version of Chicken and Tofu Puffs and tried the recipe in my test kitchen. The Puffs are easy to make and if you prepare them for your family and guests, I think you'll enjoy serving them as much as I did. I offered them with duck sauce and hot mustard, but you may want to use some less mundane condiments.

TRADER VIC'S
CHICKEN AND TOFU PUFFS

8 ounces boneless skinless raw chicken breast
12 ounces fresh bean curd (tofu)
1 small onion (2 scant ounces)
2 medium scallions
2 large eggs
2 tablespoons medium sherry
1 cup (generous) fine dry regular bread crumbs (made from de-crustrated dried sliced white bread)
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup (about) Japanese bread crumbs

(panko), see Note

In a food processor with the metal blade, process together the chicken, bean curd, onion and scallion until finely ground. Add 1 egg and the sherry and process until blended. Remove to a medium bowl; gradually stir in enough fine dry regular bread crumbs to make mixture just stiff enough to handle. Using 2 tablespoons for each, shape into balls. Beat the remaining egg until yolk and white are combined; dip each ball in the egg and then roll in the Japanese bread crumbs. Deep-fat fry at 350 degrees until cooked through and golden brown — 2 minutes. Drain on brown paper. Makes 30 large balls that are crisp on the outside and have a spongy interior.

Note: Japanese bread crumbs (panko) are made from wheat flour, yeast, glucose, paprika and annatto extract, come in packages in several sizes and are available in some specialty food shops where Oriental foods (especially Japanese) are sold.

MONDAY JULY 20, 1981

Oil will start coming ashore from the Fulmar Field, Scotland, early in 1982 and is expected to provide 450 million barrels over the next 18 years. Oil is piped from the oil rig (background) to the tower in the foreground, which is built up from the sea bed. The 210,000 ton tanker Medora stores the oil, which is off-loaded into shuttle tankers from her stern. The unusual mooring gantry shown is designed to hold the Medora permanently in place in winds up to 98 miles per hour, with 88-foot waves.

Two discoveries, eight tests filed in West Texas; N.M.

Two discoveries, a field confirmation and eight wildcats have been filed in the Permian Basin counties of West Texas and eastern New Mexico.

REEVES DISCOVERY

R.K. Petroleum, Midland, has discovered gas in an undesignated pay, seven miles west of Arno. Potential of the No. 1 R.K. State is: calculated absolute open flow 65,000 cubic feet of gas per day; no oil; through a 4 1/4-inch choke. The gas is 57 gravity. Production is through perforations between 3,781 and 3,804 feet, acidized with 100 gallons.

Casing is 4 1/2-inch, set at 3,874 feet. The well is about 3/4 mile south-southwest of the 3,841-foot dry hole, E.T. Warren No. 1 State, which was abandoned January 4, 1966.

The location is 660 feet from the south and east lines of section 10, block C-20 of the Public School Land survey.

RUNNELS WILDCATS

JEM Petroleum Corp., Midland, will drill the No. 1 Davis, as a 5,100-foot wildcat, test at 4,850 feet to attempt to reopen Caddo gas production in the Motley, North (Palo Pinto), Goen lime, Odom lime and Caddo lime oil and Odom lime gas field and test at 4,790 feet as a 1 5/8 miles south outcrop to the Modley, West (Odom lime gas) field and 13 miles northwest of Ballinger.

Location is 467 feet from the north and east lines of section 21, of the H&GNRR survey, abstract 280.

Wood Enterprises, Inc., Abilene, will drill the No. 2 H.D. Poe, a 4,850-foot wildcat, six miles west of Winters, in Runnels County.

Location is 2,624 feet from the north and 2,678 feet from the east lines of the John L. Lynch No. 442 survey, abstract 346.

Premium Oil & Gas, Inc., San Angelo, will drill the No. 1 Lindeman, a 4,600-foot wildcat in Runnels County, 2 1/2 miles northwest of Ballinger. Location is 3,771 feet from the southwest and 467 feet from the southeast lines of the HE&WT survey No. 1.

SCHLEICHER PROSPECT

Walter Exploration, Inc., Dallas, will drill the No. 4 Josephine, a 4,500-foot wildcat in Schleicher County, 20 miles east of Menard.

Location is 467 feet from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 5 of the BS&F survey, abstract 39.

EDDY WILDCAT TESTS

Fuller Petroleum, Inc., Fort Worth, announced location for a 15,000-foot deeper-pool wildcat in Eddy County, New Mexico, 16 miles southeast of Malaga, 1/8 mile south of Delaware oil production in the Brushy Draw field, and six miles southeast of Morrow gas production in the Corral Draw field.

The wildcat is the No. 1 Brushy Draw Deep Federal, located 990 feet from the north and west lines of section 24, township 26 south, range 29 east.

Union Oil Co. of California, Midland, will drill the No. 1 Federal "FI" as a 4,600-foot new field wildcat in Eddy County, 29 miles east of Carlsbad.

Drill site is 660 feet from the north and west lines of section 35, township 21 south, range 31 east.

The site is 4 1/2 miles east of Atoka production in the Cabin Lake field.

Also in Eddy County, 1/2 mile east of Carlsbad, Delta Drilling Co., Midland, has completed a workover—well as an undesignated Wolfcamp gas producer.

Reentry is the No. 1 XL, which flowed 3,060,000 cubic feet of gas per day from Wolfcamp perforations at 9,722 to 9,756 feet.

The project was originally completed in 1976 as a Morrow gas well in the Carlsbad, South field by Morris R. Antwell. Total depth is 11,782 feet with 5 1/2 inch liner set at 9,982 feet. Location is section 20, township 22 south, range 27 east.

CHAVES CONFIRMATION

Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia, No. 1 Long Arroyo "OW" Federal, has been completed as the second well and 5/8 mile southwest extension in the Springer Basin (Morrow gas) field, seven miles southeast of Hagerman in Chaves County.

Producing from perforations at 7,926 to 7,943 feet, the well flowed 1,200,000 cubic feet of gas per day through a 1/2-inch choke, with a flowing tubing pressure of 175 pounds per square inch.

Total depth is 8,232 feet with 4 1/2 inch casing set on bottom. Location is section 23, township 14 south, range 27 east.

The discovery well for the field was the same firm's No. 1 Phillips "KH" Federal Com., completed in 1979 for a flow of 1,100,000 cubic feet of gas per day from perforations at 8,050 feet.

Yates Petroleum Corp. also announced location for a 4,450-foot new field wildcat in Chaves County, 21 miles northwest of Boaz and 2 1/2 miles northeast of Abo gas production in an unnamed field.

The site is two miles east of 8,292-foot Drinkard oil production in the Garrett field.

Second incident of possible sabotage at nuclear plant

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — A spokesman for Carolina Power & Light Co. said Thursday the utility is investigating another possible attempt to sabotage one of its nuclear power plants.

The latest possible sabotage attempt is believed to have caused a shutdown of Unit 1 at the Brunswick Nuclear Plant that is expected to last for the rest of the summer.

Last week, while Unit 1 was being returned to service after an earlier incident of "deliberate" sabotage, debris slowed the turbine to a stop, said Caudle Julian, chief of the reactor operations section of the NRC in Atlanta.

Geothermal power to be produced from volcano

PUNA, Hawaii (AP) — The light-bulbs and ceiling fans of 2,500 homes in this district of Hawaii Island will get electricity Friday from a new source of energy — the most active volcano on Earth.

The Hawaii Geothermal Plant will become the first in the United States to tap the energy of an active volcano.

"Utilizing the heat of our volcanoes to produce energy has long been a dream of scientists and planners," said Gov. George Ariyoshi. "Now this dream is being realized."

California, the only other state with commercially available geothermal power, taps into underground steam at the Geysers.

Hawaii's geothermal power uses energy along the super-hot east rift of Kilauea Caldera by releasing steam through a well. The steam is formed when rain seeps into pockets around the hot rock.

The 6,300-foot well is "one of the hottest and most promising in the world," according to John Shupe, chairman of a state advisory committee on alternate energy development.

The plant was built on a volcano that erupted just two years ago. But major equipment can be removed if lava threatens the site.

Because Hawaii's volcanic eruptions are non-explosive lava flows, scientists are counting on having enough advance warning to move.

But residents are not as confident that this intrusion into the home of the fire goddess Pele will be well-received.

No decision made on shale project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, facing a contempt of Congress citation, is delaying until next week a decision on whether to provide federal price guarantees to a commercial shale oil project.

"The president will make a decision on the contracts next week," said Rep. Joel Deckard, R-Ind.

Deckard is the ranking Republican on the House Government Operations subcommittee that has subpoenaed all Energy Department documents concerning the western Colorado project.

Energy Secretary James Edwards has refused repeatedly to comply with that subpoena.

An investigation turned up small bits of foreign metal imbedded in the turbine bearings, Julian said.

In the earlier incident, dirt, gravel and other foreign substances were found May 18 in oil lubricating the Unit 1 turbine generator, according to Mac Harris of CP&L's Raleigh office.

Harris told The Associated Press Thursday night that the earlier incident was considered to be "deliberate" and occurred while the reactor was out of service for scheduled maintenance.

The first incident was reported to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, he added.

Plant Manager Charles Dietz described the materials found in the turbine bearings last week as "foreign metallic chips not normally found in that area." The metal bits are small enough to be held in the palm of the hand, he said.

"The investigation is too premature to arrive at any conclusion," Dietz said. He would not rule out the possibility of sabotage.

Dietz could not offer any estimate of the cost of the damaged equipment.

Harris said he does not know if the two incidents are related. He said both CP&L employees and contract laborers routinely work in the area of the turbine lubrication system.

Harris said there was no danger of damage to other portions of the facility, and noted that the turbine was not a part of the plant's nuclear reactor.

Company officials have estimated Unit 1 will be out of commission until mid-September. The utility announced earlier this week it is reducing its voltage by 5 percent in an effort to conserve power.

Georges Bank drilling to start soon

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — After years of court battles and controversy, exploratory drilling for oil finally will begin today or Saturday in the rich fishing grounds of Georges Bank, an oil company says.

Shell Oil Co., the first company to set up drilling operations off the New England coast, had hoped to begin drilling Thursday, but last-minute details forced a delay.

Biological tests were finished shortly before midnight Wednesday, said spokesman Norman Altstedter. These are necessary so scientists will be able to determine later whether the drilling has had any effect on the environment.

Another task involves installing a discharge pipe that will spew out mud and rock churned up by the drilling bit.

The drilling rig, the Zapata Saratoga, is setting up in 450 feet of water 200 miles east of Hyannis on Cape Cod. The project is expected to take about 200 days and cost $24 million.

Shell will be followed soon by rigs from Exxon, Mobil and Getty.

With commissioning flags flying, the fast attack nuclear submarine USS Dallas lies at its berth at the U.S. Navy Submarine Base, Groton, Conn., Saturday. The Dallas, the 13th Los Angeles Class sub to join the fleet, was commissioned Saturday with Texas Gov. Bill Clements as the main speaker.

USS Dallas dedicated by Texas Gov. Clements

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — At commissioning ceremonies for the nuclear-powered submarine USS Dallas, Texas Gov. William Clements, a Republican and former deputy defense secretary, called national security "the most important issue before us in America."

But Clements also drew a laugh when he told the crowd that he is pleased to see the "U.S. Texas Navy" growing.

The Navy has named two other submarines after cities in the state, the Houston and the Corpus Christi.

"I only hope the Navy will have good judgment and add the San Antonio, El Paso and Fort Worth," he said during Saturday's ceremony.

Clements stressed that he is confident the Reagan administration will maintain a strong military as its top priority.

The Dallas and the Navy's other Angies-class fast-attack submarines are primarily anti-submarine weapons. They have four torpedo tubes capable of launching submarine rockets and Mark 48 torpedoes against surface ships and other submarines.

The Dallas is the third fast-attack submarine to be turned over to the Navy in nine weeks by Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp.

Electric Boat General Manager P. Takis Veliotis called that record an unprecedented accomplishment and had a warning for the Navy.

"Contracts must be awarded in a timely manner," Veliotis said, referring to the government's recent withholding of work from EB.

The Navy and the shipyard have had a long-running dispute over cost overruns and delays in the construction of nuclear-powered submarines. In March, Navy Secretary John Lehman awarded contracts for three 688-class submarines like the Dallas to EB's only competitor, EB has subsequently laid off 1,000 workers.

"We are committed and determined to providing six fast-attack submarines by the end of the year," Veliotis told the 500 people attending the ceremony in the bright sunshine at the Navy's submarine base in Groton.

The EB official added that the nation's first ballistic missile-firing Trident submarine, the USS Ohio, has returned from its second sea trials that he called "totally successful." Veliotis said EB would turn the Ohio over to the Navy this fall.

But if EB is to maintain the production schedule it wants to, "it is imperative that its work force be fully utilized" through the regular awarding of Navy contracts.

The Dallas, which is the 13th of its class to join the fleet, was nearly five years in the making at the Electric Boat shipyard.

The keel of the 360-foot long Dallas was laid Oct. 9, 1976 with its launching nearly three years later, April 28, 1980.

Fate of 22-year-old Tommy the bear rests with Illinois Court of Appeals

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP) — The fate of a 22-year-old brown bear which bit a boy rests with a state appellate court, which has been asked to order it killed so it can be tested for rabies.

A hearing was scheduled before the Illinois Court of Appeals today on a request from the parents of 11-year-old Scott Burrellsman that the mascot of Camp Ondessonk near Ozark be killed.

A St. Clair County Circuit Judge had ordered the bear destroyed Thursday, but the order was blocked the next day when Johnson County Circuit Judge Donald Lowrey issued a restraining order. Some 500 children gathered around the bear's cage late last week to protest the possibility that he would be killed.

Belleville lawyer Thomas Keefe Jr. said the Burrellsman's family doctor had recommended the bear be killed so its brain tissue can be tested for rabies. The doctor said the only alternative was a series of rabies shots for the boy, who was bitten July 7.

Scott already has received the first in a series of rabies shots and was due for another today pending the outcome of the hearing.

But Johnson County rabies control officer Dr. Harold James said the animal, dubbed Tommy by the camp children, would be dead if it was rabid. He obtained the order that prevented the bear's death.

James and other physicians said research has shown bears are poor hosts to rabies and argued that Tommy should be spared.

Dr. Gary McKibben said he is so certain the bear does not have rabies that "if it were my child, I would not allow him to take the rabies shots. The critical time has passed, and there's no reason for the boy to take the shots or for the bear to be destroyed."

Keefe criticized the camp for the handling of the incident and said telephone callers who favor the bear over the boy are causing problems for the parents.

Officials at the camp, which is run by the Belleville Catholic Diocese, said they tried to reach the Burrellsman family immediately after the boy was bitten. They said a staff member had warned children at the camp to stay away from the bear, which was being fed at the time the Burrellsman youth was bitten.

The Rev. Robert Vonnahmen, director of the camp, said it is a statement that the camp regret "the injury to this boy, but it did not seem unwarranted, as the boy reached through an open gate after being told explicitly not to do so by the staff member leaving the cage."

"Although we regret deeply the anguish of those who feel the child was endangered, we disagree with them. We regret also this action of killing this magnificent animal. However, since we would never place the welfare of an animal above that of a human being, we submit to the action of the court."

Vonnahmen said the bear has been a mascot since he was given to the camp 17 years ago by a man who won him in a poker game in Belleville.

Minnesota workers picketing capitol

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Workers began picketing the capitol, state hospitals, office buildings and parks today after 11th-hour negotiations failed to avert Minnesota's first border-to-border strike by state employees.

Gov. Al Quie issued a statement assuring the public that essential services will continue with minimal disruptions using managers and supervisors. The state hired a uniformed crew of private guards to patrol the capitol grounds.

"I regret that a strike has occurred," Quie said early today. "The state has made a fair and reasonable offer. However, this is a legal strike, and striking employees are within their rights."

Quie canceled a trip to the Republican Governors Conference in St. Charles, Ill.

The 15,000-member Council 6 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers called the strike after voting to reject an 8 percent pay increase offer.

State mediator Kenneth Boxell had shuttled between the sides for about two hours Sunday but announced at 4 p.m.: "This session is over."

Boxell said he would in frequent contact with the two sides. The strike was allowed under a 1980 law designed to make public labor laws similar to those in the private sector.

AFSCME represents about 60 percent of the state workforce, including blue-collar workers, clerical employees and state hospital workers except registered nurses.

The approximately 12,000 state workers represented by other unions are forbidden by law from honoring the AFSCME picket lines and must work, and some state employees — such as supervisors and prison guards — are prohibited from striking.

The walkout is the largest public employees strike in Minnesota — previous strikes have been regional — and would be the third recent strike by state workers, following those in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. And 110 Terre Haute, Ind. police ended their 5-day strike Saturday night, winning $400-a-year pay raises in the first year of a two-year contract. The contract will increase base pay from the current $11,131 to $12,600 by the end of the second year.

Terre Haute firefighters, who had threatened a job action, accepted a similar two-year contract, a fire official said Sunday.

James Geissner, negotiator for the state of Minnesota, said, "We think our offer is fair and reasonable — it's super-reasonable," Geissner said. It would have cost the state $85 million, about $50 million less than the union was asking, he said.

Bob Currie, executive director of Council 6, said the state had offered to reshuffle its money proposal but would not put any more money on the bargaining table.

Senate to take up property tax bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Since the 1979 Property Tax Code took effect, small cities have ganged up on big ones and taxpayers have complained about extravagances by some appraisal district offices.

The Senate takes up a bill today designed to correct some of the problems.

Features of the bill also include a requirement that property appraisal notices say don't blame the Legislature if your taxes go up.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, is asking senators to pass a bill that is different from what his Senate Finance Committee approved last week.

Jones' substitute tries to eliminate everything that could cause problems with the House, including an attempt to change the method for calculating property taxes on farm and ranch land.

"The floor substitute is about as non-controversial as a bill can be," Jones said in an interview.

The senator, a co-author of the Property Tax Code or "Peveto Bill," said he would introduce a bill today containing all the controversial provisions that resulted in a deadlocked conference committee during the regular session.

A major issue was the Senate's insistence on allowing agricultural use valuations to be based on what a farm or ranch will bring in rent. Appraisers generally are limited now to yield estimates prepared by Texas A&M. In some cases, the estimates result in zero valuation of land for taxation.

The bill before the Senate:

— Modifies the three-fourths rule. Normally, an appraisal district board of directors has five members, elected by officers of the taxing units served by the district.

Votes are weighted according to the volume of property taxes levied by the government units. But three-fourths of the taxing jurisdictions can get together and change the size of the board and the method of electing the board.
