150 TI workers taken to hospitals

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON and JIM STEINBERG

About 150 employes of the Texas Instruments plant at Midland Regional Air Terminal were rushed to Midland and Odessa hospitals after they became ill about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

Some workers were still being treated at 3 a.m. today.

In a release issued at 6:30 a.m. today, Bill Steele, plant manager, said the plant was evacuated shortly before midnight when one assembly line operator fainted about 10:10 p.m., and three others had similar symptoms about 11 p.m.

After the plant was evacuated, some of the 300 employes outside the building began to be affected by what Texas Instruments medical director Dr. Milton Schulman believed to be "mass anxiety and hyperventilation."

Texas Instruments plant engineers, safety and medical personnel and other officials, who flew in early today from Dallas, have checked the plant thoroughly, Steele said.

When asked if the first four incidents could have had an organic cause, Texas Instruments public information director Dick Perdue said, "That's the other side of the coin of hyperventilation. There was no organic cause. Hyperventilation can be caused by mass hysteria or excitement."

Perdue cited quotes from incidents where one-half of a high school band became affected with chest pains, choking and fainting during two separate football games in Texas last year.

Then he added, "It's hysteria—like girls at concerts."

Texas Instruments site service manager Floyd Purvis said today that there was probably some organic cause to the first group of women getting sick, such as a stomach flu, and that hysteria would account for the spread to other group members.

Emergency room spokesmen for both Midland Memorial Hospital and Medical Center Hospital in Odessa said early today that all 150 employes were treated and released.

A physician at Medical Center Hospital, where 95 employes were taken for treatment, said those who were not treated for hyperventilation were treated for inhalation of activated resin flux.

"It was 90 per cent hysteria and 10 per cent mild gas inhalation," the physician said.

However, Purvis discounted the physician's report that the victims were treated for a resin flux by saying, "I stuck my nose right in those two small cans and there was nothing to it."

Purvis said tests showed no

Fans mourn 'king's' death

By LES SEAGO

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fans of yesterday and today, old and young, teenyboppers and their middle-aged mothers, gathered today on Elvis Presley's doorstep, not to scream and cheer but to mourn. Their king is dead.

Elvis Aron Presley, the Mississippi truck driver whose hip-grinding performance style helped launch the sexual revolution as he became America's greatest king of rock 'n' roll, died Tuesday afternoon of a heart ailment. He was 42.

A crowd of more than 200 mourners had gathered by midmorning outside the gates of Graceland mansion, where Presley's body was to be on public view from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. CDT today in a special solid seamless copper and steel casket.

Jim Stewart, night supervisor at the Memphis Funeral Home where the body was taken after Presley died, said the casket was similar to the one the singer chose for his mother when she died in 1958.

"We don't even keep this casket in stock. They are very expensive," Stewart said, adding it had been flown in from Oklahoma City late Tuesday night.

Outside the mansion, a special police security detail was assigned to direct traffic and keep watch over the crowd, which ranged from young children and teenagers to people in their 40s and 50s.

At one point during the night, the gates opened, several cars came out, and the crowd swarmed around taking pictures and trying to get autographs. One of the cars carried Vester Presley, an uncle who was chief of security, and his wife.

Vester Presley said Elvis' former wife, Priscilla, whom he divorced in 1973, arrived at the mansion at about 3 a.m.

"She is taking it hard. She is in a total state of shock," he said.

Stewart said the switchboard at the funeral home received calls from all 50 states and from as far away as Guam and Johannesburg, South Africa.

"Everybody wanted to know where to send flowers," Stewart said.

Vester Presley said the decision to open the casket to public view was made by the singer's father, Vernon Presley.

Dr. George Nichopoulos, longtime physician to the swivel-hipped, throaty baritone who was known as the "King of Rock 'n' Roll," said an autopsy revealed a constriction in one of the main arteries to the hear, which restricted blood flow and brought on a heart attack.

"What caused it? Any one of a number of things," he said following Presley's death Tuesday.

Nichopoulos said his patient, who carried about 175 pounds on a six-foot frame as a young man but recently had been reported grossly overweight, had been taking a

Culver asks Judge Culp to disqualify

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

County Judge Barbara Culver requested Tuesday that District Judge Vann Culp disqualify himself from hearing a lawsuit brought against her and other county officials in connection with a juvenile rape case.

Judge Culver made the request in her answer to a petition filed by John B. Billingsley Jr. as parent of 16-year-old Glenn Bryce Billingsley, who was indicted July 6 on charges of aggravated rape and burglary.

The Billingsley petition also named as defendants County Attorney Leslie Acker, District Attorney Vern Martin and juvenile probation and intake officer Grover B. Green.

Billingsley alleged in the suit, filed July 27, that the transfer of the rape case from juvenile court to district court and the subsequent indictment were not valid because the county court cannot, under state law, be the juvenile court.

Judge Culver said in her reply, filed Tuesday, Culp should disqualify himself because he was Democratic county chairman in 1976 and, in that role, "actively solicited the candidacy of Billingsley for political office in the Democratic Party primary in 1976."

Billingsley was the Democratic nominee for state representative until he withdrew after the party primary. Before Billingsley withdrew, Judge Culver said, Culp "gave his political support and counsel" to Billingsley.

In addition, Judge Culver said, Culp should disqualify himself because he is a former law partner in the firm of Lynch, Chappell, Allday and

'Mystery malady' dazes employes

By ED TODD

The workers seemed dazed. They appeared as if they had just been awakened from a long, deep sleep.

Something definitely was awry.

Some were lying motionless on hospital stretchers, some were sitting half-awake in wheelchairs and just plain chairs, and still others were just standing around in the hospital corridor.

All were bleary-eyed — that is, those who could kept their eyes open.

He is one of about 50 or so Texas Instruments workers who were treated for a mass sickness at Midland Memorial Hospital at midnight and later today. Others were treated in Odessa.

TI officials called the cause of the common symptoms "mass anxiety and hyperventilation."

Butler didn't have a name for it. Butler, who was working on the 4 p.m.-to-midnight shift, was doing soldering work on watches when "it" struck him.

His shift was close to an end.

"Several people just started passing out," Butler said.

About 300 employes were working in the plant's watch and calculator divisions when the symptoms suddenly struck.

"They said it was some kind of gas . . . coming through the vents," said Vanessa Medlock, who works in the watchmaking division.

Most were half-dazed and were breathing hard, she said.

The ill-feeling workers-turned-patients were carried to hospitals in Midland and Odessa by Midland Fire Department ambulances, Midland police units, Department of Public Safety patrol cars, and by private vehicles.

Peggy Everett, 36, of Odessa, seemed to be coming out of a daze. She's a TI timekeeper.

"I still feel funny . . ." she said about 1:30 a.m. today. Called-in and on-duty doctors and nurses were still bustling in examining and treating the TI workers for their midnight malady.

"I don't know," she said of the cause of the nausea, headaches and occasional faintings. "They told us to clear the building," Mrs. Everett said.

The workers, some staggering, exited.

"I saw a bunch of people lying around the the door outside the building," she said.

Workers in the calculator division apparently were struck more severely by the sudden illness than those working on the timepieces, she said.

School tax rate to decrease, but overall, taxes may be higher

By KAY HORD

Midland school board Tuesday afternoon approved a 45.5 cents decrease in the tax rate for 1977-78, compared with the 1976-77 tax rate. The board approved a tax rate of $1.17 per $100 of assessed valuation, compared to the 1976-77 tax rate of $1.62½.

Although the tax rate has been lowered and homeowners are paying lower tax rates, they may be paying higher taxes because of the property reevaluation.

Of the $1.17, $1.01 would go towards maintenance and building a surplus in the reserve funds.

The other 16 cents would be for debt service, which will be planned deficit funding requiring the board to withdraw $20,927 from the debt service reserve fund.

"That will be deficit funding," said board member Joe Dominey.

With the increased property evaluation from $641,867,140 to $960,551,790, the $1.17 tax rate is 4 cents above the $1.13 tax rate calculated earlier to equalize the amount of taxes brought in in 1976-77 with a $1.62½ tax rate.

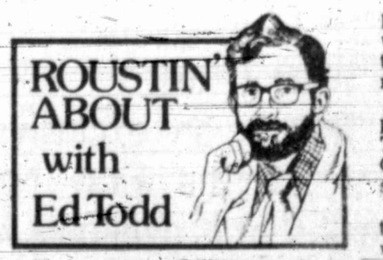

The $1.17 tax rate would mean that on a $40,000 home, at 75 per cent of the assessed valuation, a homeowner would pay $351 in taxes.

The increase of 4 cents in the tax rate, from $1.13 to $1.17, will be used to cover higher utility costs, a 10.7 per cent teachers' pay increase, a 10 per cent increase in administrators' salaries and a surplus in reserve funds.

Crane boy headed for the 'big time'

CRANE — Berry Ingram is an enterprising lad. If he were in tattered clothing, he might be a promising candidate for the Horatio Alger "rags-to-riches" rainbow.

"I'm 16, fixing to be 17," he said in an unrushed moment.

He was helping cover Crane's once-in-an-eternity Golden Jubilee that, rightfully, paid tribute to the oil field pioneers, the hired hands, their rigs and about everything else that smacks of black gold.

It's Crane County's basic economy.

Young Ingram had just viewed the parade and the skydiving, and was toying with the idea of joining in on another celebration just down Sixth Street.

But he had priorities.

"I'd like to go out to that (goings-on), but I've got to run out to the station."

He has responsibilities, you know. Ingram, who's still in high school and has a bit of a way to go before he makes the big time, toils away at Crane's KBSN radio station. It's heavy on the religious side.

"I'm part-time everything," said the lad. "I'm public relations director . . . When they need somebody, I'm there."

This Ingram youth is the station's part-timer. He works mostly on weekends, when he plays religious tapes and, for a whole hour, is a for-real record-spinning DJ.

Although he does drive a motorcar, this enthusiastic radio lad has other ways of handily getting around.

"I crawled on my KBSN bicycle up there," he said. See over there? "And rode over there," he said of a jubilee event he eye-witnessed.

Fairly regularly, too, he said, he pedals his reliable two-wheeler to the station that's a mile north of town.

"I ride it to the station just for exercise," he said.

That's a good start for an up-and-coming lad, huh?

Chapter, stores schedule dystrophy bike-a-thon

Members of the Midland Muscular Dystrophy Associations Chapter and the 7-11 Stores will sponsor a bike-a-thon against muscular dystrophy beginning at 7 a.m. on Saturday.

"There is still plenty of room for bicycling participants to enter the contest," Jim Galyean, chairman of the bike-a-thon, said today. The route will consist of six and two-thirds miles and is open to all students and citizens of the Permian Basin Area.

He said, "Participants in the bike-a-thon secure sponsors who agree to pay them a specified amount for MDAA (Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America Inc.), for every mile they ride. There is no limit to the number of sponsors a rider may sign up. Individual riders are encouraged, and organizations may contribute by sponsoring a single rider or several riders from within their group."

The entire route, from its beginning at the 7-11 store at 4308 Neely Ave., will be supervised by the Midland Police Department. Checkpoints have been set up along the route to offer first aid, refreshments and rest areas.

Children under 12 years of age must be accompanied by an adult on the ride. Sponsor sheets and further information are available at any Midland 7-11 store or by phoning 694-0157.

Prizes will be awarded for the rider completing the most miles, the oldest rider, the best decorated bike, the hard luck award, and the best funny costume or riding outfit.

MDAA provides a wide range of services at no cost to individuals. It sponsors a series of 146 MD clinics across the country.

Order signed; hearing set

State District Judge Vann Culp Tuesday signed a temporary restraining order barring Jack L. Martin and Growth Energy Inc. from disposing of personal property or business records from the Desert Inn West.

Midland businessman Ray K. Horton is listed as registered agent for Growth Energy. Martin's residence is listed as the Desert Inn West.

The restraining order, filed late Tuesday afternoon, was requested by Affordable Inns Inc. which said in its petition that Growth Energy and Martin defaulted on terms of a contract in which Affordable Inns agreed to sell the motel.

Horton contracted to buy the property in 1975, the petition said, and transferred the contract to Martin this year.

Nomination of Johnson expected, sources say

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter plans to nominate Frank Johnson, a deep South judge with a strong civil rights record, as the next director of the FBI, knowledgeable administration sources say.

The White House was expected to announce today that Carter will send Johnson's name to the Senate, which must confirm his selection. The choice ends a seven-month search for a director to take charge of the bureau and its 8,000 agents.

Carter and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell chose the 58-year-old federal district judge to succeed Clarence M. Kelley after rejecting four candidates recommended by a presidentially-appointed search committee, the sources said.

By choosing Johnson, a Republican, Carter and Bell may have a candidate who can sail through the Senate hearings with little, if any opposition.

But Sen James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee that will first consider Johnson's nomination, would not comment Tuesday night.

"I know the whole score," Eastland said, "and I don't leak stories. I have no comment."

Johnson's nomination is certain to please civil rights groups, who assailed the bureau in the 1960s for allegedly ignoring beatings of black activists in the South.

Johnson's record seems to show a quality Bell particularly sought in an FBI director. The attorney general had said he wanted someone strong enough to control "the dominant personalities" in the bureau's hierarchy.

While Kelley was respected for his sincerity and good intentions, he was often criticized by congressmen and others who deal with the bureau for being too weak to control the old Hoover hands still holding powerful FBI jobs.

Appointed a federal judge in Alabama in 1955, Johnson has handed numerous victories to civil rights activists pressing suits before his court.

His judicial record has earned him bitter enemies in his home state, chief among them Gov. George C. Wallace, his one-time law school classmate.

False alarms logged

Brezhnev likes Carter's tone, requests more practical deeds

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev says some of President Carter's recent statements "sound positive" but he challenged him to translate them into "the language of practical deeds."

Brezhnev, in a speech Tuesday welcoming Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito, picked up Carter's feeler toward the Kremlin in a speech last month in Charleston, S.C.

"If a good initiative appears anywhere, we are always ready to respond to it," the Soviet leader said, adding that the Soviet Union constantly seeks peace in its foreign policy.

Attempting to thaw the chill in U.S.-Soviet relations brought on by his human rights crusade, Carter offered to clarify some of his human rights statements to show the campaign is not aimed solely at the Soviets.

"Compared with the previous moves by the U.S. administration, these statements sound positive," Brezhnev said. "If there is a wish to translate them into the language of practical deeds, we will willingly look for mutually acceptable solutions."

Carter in his Charleston speech said there had been "negative" Soviet comments about his proposals for limitation of nuclear arms and "about our more general relations."

"If these comments are based on a misconception of our motives, we will redouble our efforts to make them clear," Carter said. "But if they are merely designed as propaganda to put pressure on us, let no one doubt that we will persevere."

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, indicated on Aug. 3 that the Kremlin was pleased with Carter's remarks.

Kappler search stopped

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The West German police have called off their hunt for escaped Nazi war criminal Herbert Kappler amid growing belief he will be allowed his wish to die in Germany.

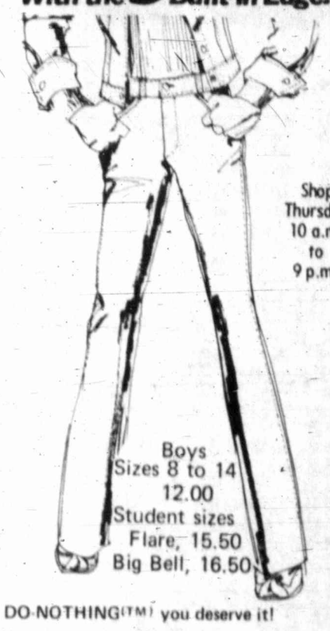

The police said they canceled their alert for the ailing, 70- year-old wartime Gestapo chief in Rome because the constitution bars his extradition to Italy to complete serving a life sentence.

Kappler, reported dying of intestinal cancer, was smuggled out of a Rome military hospital early Monday by his wife. Italian officials said his illness had reduced him to 105 pounds, and she apparently took him out in a big suitcase.

West German officials said Mrs. Kappler telephoned Monday that she had brought her husband to West Germany, but his whereabouts were not known. Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti ordered his ambassador in Bonn to begin extradition proceedings, and a police hunt was ordered for the missing man.

The Federal Criminal Office in Wiesbaden announced Tuesday night that the police were no longer involved.

George files for Mahon position

Jesse T. George

Jesse T. George, who has spent the past seven years directing campaigns for other Democrats, has become the first Democrat officially to announce his candidacy for the 19th District congressional seat.

Incumbent George Mahon has announced he will not seek re-election.

In an interview after the news conference, George, 36, said he believes the big issue in the campaign will be deregulation of oil and gas.

Although he is a Democrat, he opposes President Carter's plans for price controls. "I know the program is going to cost Texas $56 million a year on the natural gas (price) rollback alone."

George said he plans to campaign on a one-to-one basis as much as possible and he plans to run "an issue-oriented campaign." He said he plans to campaign full time from now until the May 1978 primary.

George began his political career as the Youngest legislator ever elected in Texas — at the age of 22 he was elected to the legislature and served one and a half terms.

He then went in 1967 to Washington to accept a presidential appointment as congressional relations liaison with the Small Business Administration. He later served the same function in the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Since 1970, George has been coordinating and managing political campaigns for other Democratic candidates. Among his assignments was serving as national coordinator for Hubert Humphrey's 1972 campaign for the presidential nomination. In 1976, he served as deputy state coordinator in Connecticut for the Carter-Mondale ticket.

George believes it will take about $80,000 to $100,000 per county to run an effective primary campaign in the 19th District. There are 17 counties in the district.

He hopes to rely heavily on small contributions. The "sincerity of committment" of the $1 contributor means more than the $10,000 contribution, he said. Such contributions also help build volunteer support, he said.

George also supports "a stabilized farm program that will enable farmers to recover their cost of production and earn them a modest profit" and the concept of less government regulation.

He has promised to oppose any national water policy which would damage future Texas water importation plans.

Household sizes decreasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smaller packages of hamburger may appear at the neighborhood grocery store and more one-bedroom apartments may be built if businessmen act on a new government report showing that over half of all American households have only one or two persons.

The Census Bureau said Tuesday that in March 1976, 51.2 per cent of the nation's households contained no more than two persons, compared with 40.9 per cent in 1960.

Average household size has decreased, the report says, because more people are getting divorced, fewer babies are being born and more young adults are postponing marriage. And more people — both young and old — are setting up house alone or with a friend.

The report says the data will have "a substantial impact on the level of demand for a vast array of products and services, including housing, education and health care."

Married couples last year made up 65 per cent of the nation's 73 million households, the figures show, down from 71 per cent in 1970.

The report also shows that the number of households of at least six persons is decreasing rapidly.

Last year only seven of every 100 households were that size or larger, the government says, compared with 11 of every 100 households in 1960.

The report also shows that despite the rising cost of housing, many young married couples are still purchasing homes.

Report queries funeral homes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's morticians, relying on public ignorance, sometimes take advantage of emotionally vulnerable customers by hiding important consumer information, says a report to the Federal Trade Commission.

The report's author, Jack E. Kahn, said "substantial misrepresentations" by the industry have left consumers "disadvantaged economically and in some cases emotionally."

Kahn, charging that morticians have dominated state efforts to eliminate deceptive practices, backed the commission's proposed regulation of the country's funeral homes.

State regulatory boards, he said, have been used "to restrain, harass or otherwise interfere with the sales of funeral merchandise and services and alternative methods of disposition, including cremation services and contracts with memorial societies."

He cited a "virtual absence of consumer knowledge about funeral laws, regulations, practices, alternatives, prices and pricing policies."

Kahn also said competition within the industry has not reduced the number of funeral homes or cut prices.

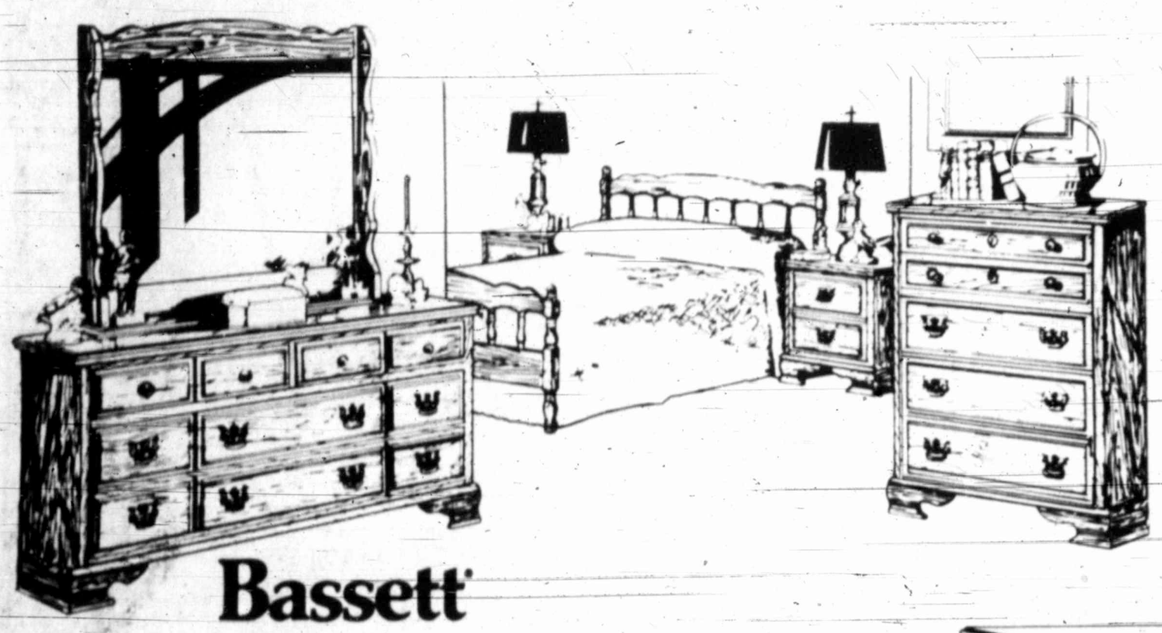

His report has not been reviewed by the FTC, which said it should not be interpreted as reflecting the commission's views.

Elvis' impact recalled

By MARION CLARK
The Washington Post

Tuesday afternoon the '50s bit the dust. The King was gone ... just like that, the blue suede shoes empty. It's not just one heart that's stilled, though; it's all our hearts — those of us whose teenage hearts pounded, creaked, catapulted when Elvis, as new as first love, stopped, mid-beat, swiveled, looked right at us, slacked his jaw a touch and then ... UNH-UNH ... whammed his pelvis forward.

Back in 1956 the big question was, "Did the Devil Bring Elvis Presley?" Newspapers got to write all about the invasion of Elvis The Pelvis putrifying our brains, taking our parent's children away, turning them into sex-crazed rebels. Preachers never had it so good. But we kids had it best. We just had to sit there and rock with the ecstasy.

I remember the way it felt, the way it smelled — Old Spice, sweatsox, too-sweet perfume — the way it sounded when we danced to "All Shook Up" at a Teen-High. You talk about your Guru chanting, your touchdown frenzy, your Beatlemania, those are just a whisper compared to a '50s dance floor (meaning the gym) filled with foot-stompers jiving to The Pelvis, screaming Unh-Unh in unison. The grooves on my Sun label Elvis 45s are all ruts. We played them 'til they died, until we had to scotch-tape four quarters on the record player arm to stop the skipping.

There are Elvis milestones I know all of us are thinking about now: the first movie, the first television show, the drafting of our hero, (the end of civilization as we knew it); the triumphant return. These moments wrenched our lives, brought us together at the end of "Lonely Street."

I can't remember the name of the movie right now in my grief, but I know the beginning scene as if it were this instant. Black and white, no sound at the beginning, the camera panned an empty corn field real slow. I had sneaked out to the neighborhood theater telling my mother I was going to the library.

You see a gaunt figure, silhouetted on the horizon next to a plow, hunched over. The camera moves in. It's ..... ELVIS. The theater screams as if struck by a roof cave-in. No one hears the whole rest of the sound tract for the 90-minute scream-a-rama.

And then: Ed Sullivan. Anticipation for weeks. The invitations buzzing like New Years in New York, to watch it in different living rooms, and you weren't taking any flak from your parents either. That big mahogany set was warmed up for hours, tuned in perfect.

You had to sock people to shut up because the screaming started right when Ed said, "Tonight we have a really big show."

Elvis sang "Don't Be Cruel" that night — a little bit of heaven right here on earth. But, what we remember most is how we were cheated by those stupid television people who refused, no matter how much we shouted from our living rooms "MOVE THE CAMERA DOWN," to show Elvis the Pelvis below the waist. We didn't know the word "Rip-Off" then. We just kicked the screen and said things like "You Jerk-Os. You Nerds."

And then I remember the glorious day I was cruising for burgers in college and saw "Return to Sender" on the jukebox. We had lived through Elvis getting his hair cut — our sexuality threatened en masse — and going away to the army.

Of course he never made it into a combat zone but still it was scary. Who knew if he'd be able to sing again after an experience like that? So, seeing "Return to Sender," I knew it was a new Elvis song and he was out of the Army, but could he still sing? I gambled a dime to find out. Could he still sing! "Return to sender — UHN! Ad-Dress Unknown." I jetted back to the dorm, burst in the study room and screamed "Elvis is Back!"

And, until Tuesday, it was always all right from that moment on. He could sing with beauty and power right until the end. He survived — like we did — the '60s, Acid-rock, Punk Rock, the Me Decade, Twerp Rock, every last fad that faded like glimmer dust. And sure he got fat and some creepy newspapers started calling him The Paunch; and sure he got rich and had too many Cadillacs; but let them say he went Show-Biz, let them say what they want. We know he's gone to Hillbilly Heaven. We knew him well. And he was all of us, down here at the end of lonely street at — UHN — Heartbreak Hotel.

Presley set standard, influenced generation

Elvis Presley was scheduled to appear Monday, Aug. 22 on Long Island. This retrospective of his life and career was written before his death and was to be published on the eve of his sold-out performance.

By WAYNE ROBINS
Newsday

NEW YORK — John Lennon once told a biographer that an early goal of the Beatles was to knock off Elvis Presley as the king of rock and roll. The interesting thing about that mad ambition was that it nearly succeeded.

For a number of years, the Beatles did displace Elvis in terms of mass adulation and dominance of the record charts. It took four of them to do it, however. And while the Beatles, though splintered, remain the obsession of a generation that clamors for the band to reunite, Elvis remained a Sun King. He was wondered about, worshipped, a figure of transcendant splendor.

He was beyond rock, beyond pop, beyond Hollywood — it seemed at times that he was beyond caring about his career. Yet he still served, releasing records with the same carelessness with which he bought Cadillacs for strangers. He also performed concerts, which is what he was to have been doing Monday night at Nassau Coliseum. It was long ago sold out.

It hardly need be mentioned that the Elvis of the mid-1970s was a different figure from the hip-swiveling young man from Tupelo, Miss., whose gyrations polarized America in the 1950s.

Some, like theatrical producer Billy Rose, described Presley's performance at the time as "animal posturings." The mother of a 14-year-old Fast Meadow, L.I., girl told a reporter the reason her daughter ran away from home: "We quarreled about Presley. I hate him." The girl had taken $52 that she had earned babysitting, and caught a bus to Memphis, hoping to meet him. She didn't, and was brought back home to Long Island by her father. The year was 1956.

In that same year, Ed Sullivan and Steve Allen each had Sunday night variety shows on television. When Allen's show premiered against the popular Sullivan program, Sullivan clobbered Allen, beating him in the 15-city Trendex ratings 24.6 to 13.3. A week later, Presley made his first appearance on "The Steve Allen Show." The ratings: Allen had a Trendex of 20.2 to Sullivan's 14.0.

"I just didn't realize Presley could draw such a crowd," Sullivan said. Sullivan had at first decided not to have Presley on his program because of a torrent of complaints that had met Presley's earlier appearance on the Milton Berle show. But Sullivan changed his mind after Presley's appearance with Allen, although he noted that thousands of teenagers had written to say "since I had Johnny Ray on the show, I should do the same for Presley."

Sullivan booked Presley, paying him $50,000 for three shows. And thought Sullivan promised that Presley would be allowed to perform "unrestrained," the network brass thought otherwise. Presley was shot from the waist up.

The hullabaloo about his boogaloo was surprising to Presley. "I do what I feel when I sing," he told some reporters in 1956. "I don't feel any sex when I sing. Gyrated my pelvis? Bah! It's the biggest lie that's ever been printed. I know vulgarism when I see it. I don't do any wiggles. I don't do any grinds. I don't do any bumps."

A devoted fan who remembers the way it was agrees with Presley's disclaimer at the time. "Nothing he did was more than a suggestion," Patricia Mulhern of Massapequa Park, L.I., said just the other day. "In those days, nobody was allowed to do anything — anything revolutionary or radical was frowned upon. What Tom Jones does now is far more graphic than anything Elvis ever did."

It was insinuation rather than anything explicit that made Presley such an explosive figure. The Mississippi-born white youth sang black rhythm and blues with his own snarling, breathless style. That spelled danger to parents, to whom Pat Boone was a model of what a good, teenage, pop artist should look and act like. It also spelled money to Sam Phillips, who ran Memphis' Sun Records, the company that released Presley's first recordings. Phillips sold Presley's contract to RCA Records for $35,000 in 1956, and 150 million records later, that exchange stands, for Phillips, as one of the worst business decisions since the Indians pawned Manhattan.

From the time of his first release for RCA, "Heartbreak Hotel" (January 1956), Presley became the standard by which all subsequent rock and roll singing had to be measured. Whether he sang uninhibited rockers like "Don't BE Cruel," "Hound Dog," and "Wear My Ring Around Your Neck," or ballads like "Love Me Tender" and "It's Now Or Never," he delivered his songs with a heartfelt emotion quite foreign to the bland popular tastes of the 1950s.

Early Elvis movies like "Jailhouse Rock" and "King Creole" (his best) helped make Presley a figure of rebellion, a symbol of American teenagers' growing identity as a unique subculture. But a two-year stint in the Army (the only deferment Presley sought was a delay in induction so he could finish filming "King Creole") helped him and his brilliant manager, Col Tom Parke, develop a new image, that of the All-American boy next door.

Since the early '60s, Presley's output had been so diffuse as to be irrelevant. There were throwaway movies like "Kissin' Cousins," "Roustabout," "Blue Hawaii" and "Force of Habit" (the latter introducing Mary Tyler Moore as a social worker-nun, and throwaway records.)

There were flashes of brilliance, to be sure. In 1969, Presley released "Suspicious Minds," as moving as anything he'd recorded a decade earlier. And in the early 1970s, he momentarily reverted to the classic, red-hot rock style with "Burnin' Love."

City unsure at first

By HENRY MITCHELL
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It wasn't just prepubertal girls who liked Elvis Presley (it soon turned out) but their great-aunts as well. They thought he was sweet.

The city of Memphis, where Elvis lived, did not know quite what to make of him at first because for one thing he wiggled his hips a lot and got his voice way back in his throat as if singing through a milk shake and, besides, you could not be sure it was really art.

So at first — long after Sam Phillips at Sun Records got him making records, and long after the softest hardcore of his fans had discovered him — Elvis was largely ignored by local establishment.

There was a feeling, in the 1950s, that blacks were taking over the entertainment world, and to hear people talk you'd have thought they all just sat around singing madrigals and could not abide vulgarity.

And Elvis was vulgar, because he wiggled and because he threw the maidens of Memphis into swoons and thus may have been sexy.

But the top blew off on the Ed Sullivan Show on television when he wiggled exceedingly, and came to the attention of many sober people who had never heard of him before. One of them demanded to know how we expected men like Dr. Schweitzer to live his beautiful life of service, and the Queen of England to do her duty, too, if any bumpkin could seduce the world with a few grunts and whines while doing his hips.

How this interfered with Dr. Schweitzer was not altogether clear, but it split the city into hostile camps. On this side, the teachers of elocution and the chamber music crowd, temporarily and uneasily allied with plantation owners, bankers and editorial writers, while on the other side, Elvis' side, were all girls from 6 to 13, and iconoclasts in general.

Once the girls found out their parents were revolted by Elvis Presley and his wiggles, they embraced him with everlasting bonds, naturally, and as they grew up — and as the singer's popularity seeped up from the young to the old — it finally occurred to the city at large that Elvis was not so awful, after all, and the hip business was wholesome waggery like a dog after a bath, sort of.

If Elvis ever noticed the shift in his favor, he did not comment on it publicly.

"THINKING"
PHILIPPIANS 4:8

Webster defines the word prejudice as "judgment or an opinion formed before the facts are known; preconceived idea; a judgement or opinion held in disregard of the facts." Have you ever heard someone say, maybe even yourself, "I may be prejudice, but, thus and so?" In the light of the meaning of the word we would have to conclude that being prejudice is anything but noble. Would you not agree?

I have heard people say that members of the church of Christ believe in a "works" salvation. They have said, "Members of the church of Christ think you are saved as a result of earning your salvation by the doing of a bunch of works." Now, if you were to come to such a conclusion about the beliefs and teachings of the members of the church of Christ BEFORE you knew the facts, would you belong to the dishonorable crowd of prejudice people? Why sure you would. But you are not going to be like that, are you? Of course not.

The plain truth is, that there are a number of "works" that the Bible speaks of. For instance, you could not even "believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God" and not believe that a man is saved by "works." Jesus said, "...this is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent (John 6:29). In the preceeding verse we read, "...what shall we do, that we might work the works of God?" Whatever God has required of man as an expression of His grace, man MUST DO IT! (Mathew 7:21)

If some person has in mind that people can accomplish the works of human design for the redemption of his soul, that person is dead wrong. This is the kind of "works" which Paul discusses in Ephesians 2:8,9. "Not of works lest any man should boast." If man could devise works or a plan whereby he could save himself, then he would have earned his salvation and then would have something to boast about. Such is not the case. Man cannot direct his own steps, and there is no mistake about that. (Jerimiah 10:23)

We say to our readers today, that we believe that one must be obedient to the gospel or suffer the consequences of disobedience (2 Thessalonians 1:7-9) but that does not sound like anyone believe or teaches that we believe in a "works salvation". Don't be prejudiced about that matter.

Singer's death shocks, saddens Midlanders

Shock and sadness were the reactions, for the most part, of Midlanders to the death of legendary singer Elvis Presley, who died Tuesday at the age of 42.

"My first reaction was tears," said 23-year-old Roseann Dinsmoor of 2000 Seaboard. Dinsmoor said she was on her way to Stanton when she heard the news on the radio and turned around and drove back to Midland.

She said she was not really a fan, but Presley was a "legend."

A 66-year-old man who refused to give his name said he had once been a fan but in recent years "lost faith with the boy."

"If you'd asked me that four or five years ago, I'd have been sad, but, today, no reaction," he said. The man said he believed Presley's morals had declined.

Charlie Jezek, 35, said he listened to Presley's music while Jezek was in high school. "I used to be jealous because all the girls liked him," Jezek remembered.

Jezek expressed surprise when told that Presley was 42. "I didn't realize he was that old," he said.

Several of the people interviewed said they weren't really surprised at the singer's death because of the kind of schedule he maintained over the years, the "one-night stands."

"A great loss to the music world," was the reaction of Henry Natividad, 26, of 726 Beckley St.

A 39-year-old woman who did not want her name used said, "No, that's terrible!" when told of Presley's death. She remembered that he was popular when she was in high school and went into the Army at about the same time her husband did.

"I don't particularly like his kind of music, but I appreciate the man for what he was," said Terry Garner of 1710 N. A. St.

"I guess they've all got to go but he was the king. It makes you wonder who's going to go next," said Robert Proctor, 23, who resides on Route 1.

discernible vapors from the resin flux used at the plant.

"I sure would like to get ahold of the doctor reported to have made that statement. We'd like to check it out," Purvis said.

"The first worker to become ill was in the calculator assembly section of the plant, as was the second. The others became sick as word of the first two spread," Purvis said, recalling what led to the evacuation.

He also discounted the theory that hydrogen sulfide from a forklift battery charger could have contributed to the incident.

"This is an assembly plant. We don't use any of the exotic gases such as arsine that are used in the production of component parts," he said.

Midland deputy fire chief John Bourke said firemen first suspected a leakage of hydrogen sulfide gas while batteries were being charged as the cause of the illnesses.

However, fire marshall James Roberts said today that it is now believed that simple hydrogen was the by-product of the charging batteries.

"We were saying hydrogen sulfide last night, but we didn't know what the by-product was. Simple hydrogen is not toxic, but it does cause nausea," Roberts said.

Bourke said that a high concentration of the hydrogen gas was found near the area where the first people started to become ill.

The highest concentration, according to one fire official, was in the northeast corner of the building, and it was possible that the gas spread through an air conditioning duct.

"None of the employes was in critical condition when we arrived, but they were well on the way," the fire official said.

Midland Memorial Hospital's emergency room was filled to capacity about 1:15 a.m. today, and emergency medical technicians were radioed not to take any more patients to that hospital.

All available ambulances from Midland and Odessa were called in to transport the employes. As many as four employes were placed in one ambulance, and where possible, those able to sit up were transported by Midland police and Texas Department of Public Safety patrol cars.

A female employe of the plant said she was working in one room when she saw employes in another work room start falling to the floor. She said she tried to enter the room, but was "overcome by the gas."

Another female employe said she became ill outside the plant after the evacuation as persons "all around me" became ill. She said she suffered numbness in her arms and legs, was dizzy and had nausea.

A majority of treated workers were allowed to go home about 2 a.m. today after officials determined it would be safe for them to drive home.

plant when he first noticed a change in himself and those about him.

"I don't know," said Jones. "I started smelling gas." He said "they," apparently supervisors, herded workers to a back room, but the smell of gas was still evident.

"So they just ordered us out. It (the odor) was worse outside," Jones said.

Some workers passed out once in the open air.

By 2 o'clock this morning, most of the affected workers had been examined and were being driven home by volunteers, including some plainclothed Texas National Guardsmen.

He related what happened.

"I was sitting up there working (in the watch division) and started getting dizzy. I went outside and fainted," he said. "I'm still dizzy."

Unlike some others, Lovins said he didn't detect an odor.

"You couldn't actually smell anything," Lovins said. "I didn't know what it was."

Neither did Oscar Brady, 27, or his friend Cathy Williams. She was rubbing Brady's back. He was still slumping in a wheelchair. Ready or not, he was to go home.

Larry Jones, too, was leaving the hospital. He appeared to be in good shape. He said he was unshaken by the incident.

"Oh, it's a good job and all that," Jones said.

"That thing that happened was one of those things that popped up and happened. Nobody can do anything about it. It should be no reason to quit (the job)."

'Malady' dazes TI employes

Culver asks

Aldridge, which is representing Billingsley.

Judge Culver said Culp should decline to rule in the case "due to their (his and the attorneys') close friendship and past business association."

Culp, judge of the 238th District Court, this morning said he had not seen the reply, which was filed late Tuesday afternoon. He declined to comment in the case, but said he and 142nd District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett exchange benches so that the judge who is available hears pleadings in cases.

Judge Culver also said the case should be heard in 142nd District Court, since that is the court in which the indictment was filed.

As to the substance of Billingsley's contention that the county court cannot be the juvenile court, Judge Culver listed four points of law she said supported her claim that the county court and judge can be designated juvenile court and judge.

She has served as juvenile judge since becoming county judge in 1963.

Judge Culver also asked that the suit be dismissed because the transfer of Glenn Bryce Billingsley's case to district court is being appealed to the state Court of Civil Appeals. She said the Billingsley petition, filed in Culp's court, is "an effort on plaintiff's part to get two courts to rule on the same issue."

The Billingsley petition maintained that the county court can become a juvenile court only when the legislature passes a statute giving the individual county court that specific power, which, the petition said, has not been done in the case of Midland County.

Also Tuesday afternoon, County Attorney Leslie Acker filed an answer to the petition for himself and Green.

Acker's reply asked that Green be dismissed from the suit since his involvement is based only on his being present at the transfer hearing.

Acker also asked that the case be dismissed because of the appeal in progress. He asked for a judgment stating that Midland County Court does have juvenile jurisdiction.

The selection in Midland County of the county court as juvenile court is done by the Juvenile Board, made up of the county judge, domestic relations court judge and district judges.

A hearing on the petition is scheduled for Aug. 30, but Judge Culver asked that it be postponed until after Sept. 5 because her family vacation "for "any months" has been scheduled for the last two weeks of August.

OSHA may be probing TI incident

DALLAS — The U.S. Department of Labor's Occupatiomal Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) may be "investigating the situation" that caused many Texas Instruments workers to fall victim to nausea and fainting spells around midnight Tuesday at TI's Midland plant at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Les Gaddie, the Labor Department's public information director in Dallas, this morning said any investigation would be headed up by OSHA Inspector James B. Brown of Lubbock.

Brown, contacted at his Lubbock office, said two industrial hygienists were en route today to make an initial survey.

Their findings will determine whether or not OSHA will launch an investigation into the midnight incident.

"I don't have any plans at this particular time to come to the site at Midland," Brown said.

Brown said TI officials do not connect the incident with any safety omission on their part.

"TI has contended to me that this was a hysteria type of thing," he said.

Although some TI workers reportedly have complained in the past about escaping gas at the plant, Gaddie said OSHA has not received any complaints about the operation.

Too, Gaddie said, OSHA has not yet inspected the plant for safety. He said that is probably because the plant is so new. The facility, which manufactures digital watches and calculators, started production in April. It employs about 1,000 workers.

Business as usual at plant

The Texas Instruments plant at Midland Regional Air Terminal is operating as usual today despite the sudden illness of about 150 employes about 11 p.m. Tuesday, according to Bill Steele, plant manager.

Steele said the first shift reported for work as scheduled about 3:30 a.m. today.

The illnesses forced the evacuation of the plant's 300 employes from the building until about 2 a.m.

Partly cloudy, warm forecast

It may sound like something that's been heard before, but the weather Thursday is expected to be partly cloudy and warm.

The weatherman predicts a low tonight of near 70 degrees and a high Thursday in the upper 90s. Winds are expected to be from the south at 5 to 10 mph tonight, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Tuesday's high was 100 degrees and this morning's low was 71 degrees.

Weather today in Andrews, Lamesa, Crane, Stanton, Rankin and Big Spring was reported to be fair and hot.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were being reported in the Texas Panhandle today along and north of a cold front pushing its way into the state.

There were also some reports of shower activity along the gulf coast. Elsewhere, skies were clear to partly cloudy and temperatures remained quite warm.

number of appetite depressants, but did not have a drug problem.

Dr. Jerry Francisco, the Shelby County medical examiner, discounted rumors that Presley, who had been a virtual recluse at his white-columned Graceland mansion for 20 years, had suffered from a drug problem.

"There was no indication of drug abuse at all," Francisco said. "I was aware of the rumors and that is why I mention it."

Reevaluation to negate rate drop desegration plan this fall, and other operational costs.

A tax rate of $1 per $100 of assessed valuation was calculated to bring in the approximate amount of revenue for maintenance as last year, with an additional 2½ cents to cover the teachers' pay increase. The additional penny, raising the tax rate from $1 to $1.01, will add approximately $96,000 to the reserve funds.

The 1977-78 budget will be approximately $23,371,408, compared to $19,863,714 in 1976-77, an increase of $3,507,694 or approximately 17.6 per cent, according to school finance manager Don Furgeson.

The budget, including amendments in administrative salaries and salaries for substitute teachers, secretaries and clerks, was approved minutes before the tax rate was set.

In other action, the board approved an increase in salaries for substitute teachers. The board failed to approve a first recommendation for substitute teachers for $25 a day for the first 30 days cumulative work and $30 a day after 30 days. Joe Dominey then made a motion, which was approved, to set the pay scale at $25 a day for the first 20 days cumulative, and $30 a day after the 20 days. The board also increased the pay scale for substitute secretaries and clerks to $20 a day for the first 20 days cumulative, with $25 a day afterwards.

Following an executive session which lasted approximately an hour and a half, board members agreed to an approximate 10 per cent pay increase for administrative staff. Dr. James H. Mailey received a $3,600 increase, approximately 10 per cent of his previous salary of $36,000.

"This was below some comparable districts, but this was the increment granted to teachers and other staff. Dr. Mailey requested that his increase be held to about the same increment," said school board president Johnny Warren.

The 10 per cent increase in administrators' salaries was opposed by Don Sparks.

"We have a budgeted amount, and this increase exceeds that by 20 per cent. We have got to hold the line, wherever it may be. I cannot support this proposal," Sparks said.

The board also approved extending the work year for freshman and junior high school assistant principals to 11 months from the previous to 10.5 months.

Braniff, TI facing another indictment

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Braniff Airways Inc. and Texas International Airlines Inc. face a second federal indictment in less than three years on charges the two firms conspired to monopolize airline traffic among three Texas airports.

A federal grand jury returned the indictment Tuesday accusing the companies of trying to squeeze Southwest Airlines Inc. out of the market that included flights between Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

The first indictment against Braniff and Texas International, which was returned in February 1975, was dismissed by a federal judge last Feb. 22.

A Braniff spokesman in Dallas said the company had not had a chance to study the new indictment but "it appears to be a repeat of old and discredited charges that were made in the indictment of February of 1975."

"We will defend the case vigorously and will demonstrate to the court that all of our conduct was fully consistent with the antitrust laws and with the standards of airline competitive conduct as enforced by the CAB (Civil Aeronautics Board)," the spokesman said.

Sam Coats, Texas International's general counsel, denied the charges and said his firm will exert every effort to have the charges dismissed again.

The new indictment accuses Braniff and Texas International of conspiring from around May 1971 to at least 1973 "to impair the ability of Southwest to commence and maintain operations as an air carrier among the major Texas cities."

Southwest began regular flights in June 1971 between Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston and between Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio. A few months later, Southwest started service between Houston and San Antonio.

Southwest became a strong new competitor for Braniff and Texas International, which had dominated that market.

The indictment charged that Braniff and Texas International together plotted their strategy for fighting the Southwest challenge.

Among those tactics, the indictment said, Braniff and Texas International tried to prevent passengers from switching to Southwest flights when their own flights were canceled, filed a flurry of requests and petitions before court and federal agencies opposing Southwest's service, and tried to hamper Southwest operations at Houston's Hobby Airport.

As a result of the alleged conspiracy, "Southwest's entry each year as a competitor for the transportation of intrastate passengers by air among the major Texas cities was delayed."

Southwest's business relationships were injured and Southwest was denied a chance to compete in the market freely, the government charged.

In addition, "the public was denied the benefits of free and open competition," the indictment said.

If convicted, Braniff and Texas International each would face a maximum $50,000 fine.

Texas 'water czar' surprise pick

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas has a new "water czar" to head the super water agency that starts business Sept. 1, but only on an "acting" basis.

Charles Nemir, 45, was appointed interim chief of the Texas Department of Water Resources on Tuesday.

He has been assistant director of the Texas Water Development Board since 1972, and the six-member board elevated him to the new post.

It also appointed Dick Whittington, 49, currently No. 2 man on the Texas Water Quality Board staff, as acting deputy director.

The board rejected both Nemir's and Whittington's present bosses, who had been the most active candidates for the top job in the new agency. The department was created by the legislature this year and represents a merger of the existing three water agencies.

The board turned down Hugh Yantis, director of the water quality board, and James M. Rose, director of the water development board staff, for the $43,700-a-year job that legislators called the "water czar" because of its immense power.

Also passed over was Bob Schneider, director of the Texas Water Righs Commission.

Selections were made in executive session by the water development board, which will make policy for the new department.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he will appoint a three-member Texas Water Commission this week. The commission will operate within the new department but will issue permits and settle water rights disputes independently.

Rose, 56, was offered a $40,000 subordinate job in the water development field but turned it down.

Yantis, 63, made it clear from the start that he was interested only in the top job.

Rose said he would join Dallas businessmen Bob Alpert and Ron Chamness in starting a firm that will help political subdivisions with natural resources planning. Alpert is owner of the Alpert Corp., a development and financial firm, and Chamness owns Continental Mechanical Engineering.

Board chairman A. L. Black would not say why Rose and Yantis were passed over, but each has been a controversial figure and has enemies in the legislature.

The board adopted a $19.2 million departmental budget for the coming fiscal year, retaining all employes of the three agencies but assuming a normal 10 per cent attrition rate.

In Nemir and Whittington, the new department has two experienced but uncontroversial hands to run it temporarily until the board makes up its mind on permanent leadership.

Nemir holds bachelors and masters degrees in petroleum engineering.

Cattlemen spokesman believes price-setting lawsuit will win

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman for cattlemen who have filed suit against major supermarket chains says the beef producers can prove the stores set meat prices despite one company's statement that similar suits have been thrown out of court.

The suit was filed in federal court here by more than 150 Texas and New Mexico cattlemen alleging that 26 defendants, including major supermarket chains, have stifled competition by agreeing on beef prices.

The defendants include Safeway and A&P, two of the nation's largest grocery companies.

A Safeway spokesman at the company's Oakland, Calif., headquarters said Tuesday the company has not heard of the suit but added, "We have had a number of suits filed by cattlemen and this sounds similar.

"A number of those others have been terminated with respect to Safeway by court orders confirming that we do not and have not engaged in any unlawful activity in connection with the purchase or sale of meat. We do deny any allegation that we have violated any law," spokesman Felicia Del[illegible]mpo said.

But a cattlemen spokesman said the top chains set the price. "No one else will pay more to the packers," he said.

The spokesman said beef prices have fluctuated as much as 25 cents per pound since 1973 but consumers have not seen the change at the supermarket because of price-fixing by major retail chains.

Producers have received as low as 30 cents per pound of beef and as high as 57 cents per pound during the last four years, the spokesman added.

"We've had big drops like this several times yet the retail prices have never changed," he said. "The retailers can control the prices paid to packers and if they pay less it's passed down to the producer."

The suit alleges that some of the top chains, including A&P and Safeway, accept bids one day prior to other retail chains. The major supermarkets set their prices and the nationwide prices are then based at those levels.

He added that producers and consumers lose in the scheme while the supermarkets continue to sell beef at artificially high prices.

The suit further alleges that the price setting practice is reducing beef consumption and some feedlot operators report they are losing cattle because they cannot sell it.

Competition among supermarkets has also been reduced by a nationally distributed beef price listing, the producers claim.

Greenwood school plans new student registration

New students, grades kindergarten through 12, planning to attend Greenwood School may register from 8 to 10 a.m. Aug. 23.

Students who have previously attended Greenwood will register at the time assigned to their class.

Grades seven and eight will register at 10 a.m., grade nine at 2 p.m., grade 10 at 1 p.m. and grades 11 and 12 at 11 a.m.

Students in grades kindergarten through six who have attended Greenwood will not need to register.

Students must have shot records.

Ashley says company tried pressure tactic

By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. executive James H. Ashley says his 1974 suspension was an attempt to pressure him into incriminating the company's top Texas official.

Ashley gave the testimony Tuesday afternoon in the state court trial of a $29 million damage suit against Southwestern Bell. He filed the suit with the family of the late T. O. Gravitt.

Gravitt was Bell's top Texas executive when he committed suicide at his Dallas home Oct. 17, 1974. Ashley was a $55,000-a-year company official in San Antonio when he was suspended Oct. 9, 1974, and fired a few weeks later.

The suit alleges Southwestern Bell drove Gravitt to insanity and suicide and wrongfully fired Ashley as a result of an improper internal investigation conducted in 1974.

Ashley said he knew nothing of any investigation until Oct. 9, 1974, when his boss drove him to a San Antonio hotel and suspended him for reasons that included alleged sexual promiscuity with female Bell employes.

He said he was interviewed at the hotel by two Bell security agents who told him if he made a "full disclosure" about Gravitt that "things would go well for me."

"They (security agents) seemed obsessed that Gravitt, through me perhaps, was getting massive amounts of money" through a kickback scheme with a local printing firm, Ashley stated.

"The whole thrust was to 'tell us what you know about Gravitt'," Ashley said.

He said that when, despite warnings that he tell the truth or possibly lose his job, he insisted he knew of no wrongdoing by Gravitt, the security men turned to allegations of sexual impropriety.

Ashley said he denied any sexual involvement with any Bell employes because "there was no substance to any of the allegations."

Lawyers searching for final juror

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for the defense and prosecution continue their week-long search for a final juror today in the capital murder trial of Fort Worth industrialist Cullen Davis.

Thus, the defense has but two and the state three remaining strikes, the vehicle by which attorneys can excuse prospective jurors without cause.

It was a week ago Tuesday that the 11th juror was selected. A total of 145 prospects have been examined since the trial began June 27.

Davis, 43, is on trial for the 1976 slaying death of his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, one of two persons slain during a shooting spree last summer at Davis' Fort Worth mansion. Two others were wounded.

Basin to receive new signals

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A $165,360 state highway project will install trafic signals at several intersections in Midland and Odessa.

Department of Highways and Public Transportation is accepting bids on the work until Sept. 14.

Installation will be at the following intersections in Midland: U.S. 80 with Thomason Drive and with Midkiff Road, SP 268 with Williams Street, Texas 158 with Mareinfeld Street and with Texas 349, and Texas 349 with Louisiana Avenue; and in Odessa at the intersection of Spur 450 with F, 1882.

Enjoy a call across the country and you could say all this for just $2.57.

"Hello?" "Hi, it's me." "Marge! I was just thinking of calling you!" "That's funny, I was just thinking of calling you. How are you?" "How are you?" "Is there an echo in here? I called you first, you tell me." "Ha. Ha. Ha. I'm fine. That is, I think I'm fine." "What do you mean, you think you're fine?" "Well, it's a long story." "Tell it. Your stories are always a riot." "Well ... at 9:30 this morning, our seventy-two-year-old neighbor, Mr. Phillips, brought over his new deluxe vacuum cleaner." "What?" "He wanted to demonstrate it, he said, so he emptied it all over my living room floor. Then he proceeds to vacuum not only the living room floor, but also the furniture and the walls, using about three hundred different attachments." "How nice." "Well, you see, he only did half of everything. And since I don't clean as often as I should, everything was half clean. Now the story gets better." "I hope so." "You see, his vacuum cleaner has a special air freshener feature. You put it in reverse, fill it up with air freshener and let it rip." "Hmmm." "The only problem was, he had forgotten to empty the bag. So he hits the switch and the entire living room was immediately filled with this black, dirty cloud of dust. Not to mention the smell of perfumed air freshener! I mean, I think the man has lost his mind. He says, 'This vacuum cleaner can handle anything!' and then takes off vacuuming everything in sight! Now, in the middle of all this, who should arrive but Jack, coming home for lunch! And what does he do? He goes into the closet and pulls out our vacuum cleaner, and the two of them began comparing features!" "I don't believe it." "Then he challenges Mr. Phillips to a race to see who can vacuum up the mess first. And whoever wins gets the other guy's vacuum cleaner." "Who won?" "Well, let me put it this way. Mr. Phillips has two vacuum cleaners. We have none." "Ha. Ha. Ha." "It's not funny!" "Yes it is." "Here's the culprit now. Jack, do you want to talk to Fred? He says no. Put Fred on." "Hello? Jack are you there? Jack? Yoo-hoo, Jack???" "Yes, I'm here." "Marge tells me you gambled away the family vacuum cleaner." "Yeah, well it was close. I'm challenging the winner to a weight lifting contest tomorrow." "Who's the winner?" "Our neighbor. He's seventy-two years old. I'll tell you, Fred, I don't get any respect anymore." "Now where have I heard that?" "Suzie asked me to take out the garbage last night and I told her I'd already taken out the garbage, and you know what she says? 'Well', then go out and keep an eye on it." "Funny." "Yeah, I bought Jimmy a bat for his birthday and the first day he plays with it he lets it go." "No respect." "No respect at all. I'll tell you we're sending Alice to a private school now, you know." "Yes, I know." "It's so private, she won't even tell us where it is." "Ha. Ha. Ha." "Well, now I've lost the family vacuum cleaner and run out of old jokes, you tell me what's new with you." "Well, not one whole heck of a lot." "Then why are we talking?" "One interesting thing did happen down at the plant." "Are you going to tell me about it, or is this some kind of a test?" "Last week one of the workers asked me if he could take some sawdust home." "Was he going to open a bar, or what?" "So I say sure ..." "Maybe he had a new vacuum cleaner he wanted to test ..." "... take all the sawdust you want ..." "Or make sawdust pancakes ..." "Are you listening?" "Yeah, I'm listening." "So I say, 'Sure, take all the sawdust you want.'" "You already said that." "And I fill out a form authorizing him to remove the sawdust in a wheelbarrow past the security guard." "That was a dull story." "I'm not finished yet." "Well, hurry up." "So every day for a week this guy takes a wheelbarrow of sawdust out to his car." "Hurry up!" "Until yesterday, one of his fellow workers came up to him and said, 'Hey, what's this with all the sawdust? Are you stealing it or what?' and the guy looks at him and says 'Heck no. I couldn't care less about this stupid sawdust. I'm stealing wheelbarrows.'" "Now that's funny." "I thought you'd like it." "Great gag!" "You know, I have a neighbor like yours. He's an old guy, very lazy. Every day he sits out on his front porch rocking away watching the cars go by. And yesterday I was talking to him and I asked him if he ever got bored – just sitting there." "Yeah? So what?" "And he said, 'No, I never get bored. Because I have a hobby.' I said, 'Hobby? You couldn't have a hobby. All you do is sit here all day. What's your hobby?' 'Bees,' he said. 'I raise bees.' Well, I couldn't believe this. I said, 'Where's the beehive? I've never seen any beehive around here.' And he said, 'I keep my bees inside.' 'Inside?' I said, 'Let me see them.' So the old man took me inside and I said, 'Okay, where are your bees?' And he said, 'They're in the bedroom.' So we went into the bedroom and still no bees. So I said, 'Where are the bees?' And he said, 'I keep them in the closet.' 'You keep your bees in the closet?' I said. And he said, 'Yeah, I keep them in a jar in the closet.' 'But if you keep them in a jar, they'll die.' And he turned to me and said, 'Hey, look, I told you it was only a hobby.'" "Funny. That's pretty funny." "Hey, when are you people coming back here to visit us?" "Never." "You old sour puss." "You're coming here next time." "Not until you get a new vacuum cleaner." "It's bring your own vacuum cleaner, and we'll sweep the town." "Listen, Suzie is yelling in my ear to get off the phone and let her talk to Marge some more." "Okay." "Take it easy, Fred, and remember our invitation. If you don't come here, we'll never see you again." "Okay." "Bye." "Bye." "Marge?" "Yeah, hi." "How's your garden these days?" "Everything is very hot and very dry here. But I'm managing to grow a strong and healthy batch of weeds." "Oh, good." "I mean they're some of the biggest weeds you've ever seen." "Terrific, you can use them in a salad. Or make weed sandwiches!" "How's your garden?" "Oh, it's okay. I just unleashed one entire carton of frozen lady bugs yesterday, so they should keep the predators away." "Frozen lady bugs?" "Yeah, you can buy them frozen in cartons of several thousand, and you thaw them out and let them go. They drive away other insects." "I bet." "No, really, they're great. You should try them sometime." "Plain, or with butter sauce?" "Hey, did Freddie ever finish building his car?" "Oh, yes, it's finished all right." "How does it look?" "Oh, Suzie, it looks awful. I mean they did a terrific job, but it looks like a hot rod." "Oh, no." "Oh, yes. Fred hates it. He says he's going to pay to have it stolen some night." "He would, too." "Only problem is, Freddie does everything but sleep in that car, and if anyone started it in the middle of the night, you'd hear it a mile away." "He'll outgrow it." "I suppose so, but guess what the latest project is?" "What?" "They're building a gyrocopter." "A what?" "Gyrocopter. It's a one man helicopter." "Isn't that dangerous?" "What can we say? It belongs to the neighbors' kid." "The one with the big tool shop." "Right." "What do his parents think?" "I don't think they know what it is." "Hummm. Jack, have you ever heard of a gyrocopter? He says ... wait a minute. — Marge, did you say Freddie is building a gyrocopter?" "Yes, Jack, why?" "I want one. I've always wanted one. Will he let me ride in it?" "Oh, you're impossible." "I'm serious. I've always wanted a gyrocopter." "Well, I'm sure Fred would be delighted if you came out here and got this one." "I will. Here's Suzie again." "Hi." "Your husband is crazy." "I know." "But also one of the most delightful people I've ever known." "Thanks." "What's happening in the old home town these days? Anything interesting?" "Well, let me think ... Peter and Corinne moved away." "Oh? Yes, he's going to work in Winnemucca, Nevada, of all places." "Nice. How does Corinne feel about it?" "Well, apparently it's only for a few years. He'll be working on a new project, then I guess they'll come back here or move somewhere else." "Have you talked to them since they left? How do they like it?" "I haven't called them yet. They just moved a few days ago. The Blooms had a big going away party for them." "How nice." "Yes. It was nice but you know what a problem I have remembering people's names?" "Oh yes!" "Well, this was terribly embarrassing, a man came up to me at the party and he was one of these guys I'd seen before in the neighborhood, and I should have remembered who he was, but didn't. And he was very nice and came up to me and said hello, and while he was holding my hand, Sally came by — you remember her — " "Yes." "And I waved and said, 'Hi, Sally! How's your handsome husband these days?' And she gave me this strange look and said, 'You should know, you're holding hands with him!'" "You know, I did almost the same thing one time." "You did?" "Yeah, Fred and I were given two tickets to a show, but we couldn't use them because we were going out for dinner that night. So thinking fast, I phoned these people down the street and said, 'We have been given two tickets for the show tonight, but we can't use them because of an unfortunate dinner engagement, would you like to have them?' And the gal says, 'Fine, we'd love to go, but we happen to be your unfortunate hosts!'" "You're kidding." "Bad, eh?" "That's bad." "Well listen, kiddo, take care of yourself and please try to keep that husband of yours out of trouble." "You, too." "And make him buy you a new vacuum cleaner." "You better believe it. You take care, too. And I hope we'll see you guys sometime." "I hope you'll see us, too." "We had a fabulous time at your house last time we came out." "Well, you're invited any time." "No, you're invited here." "Okay, take it easy. We sure miss you." "We miss you, too." "Bye." "Bye."

Generation feels Elvis' passing

DENNIS MONTGOMERY

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Suddenly a generation feels old. Elvis, the slick-haired, sneering-lipped, slinky-hipped king of their teen-age rock 'n' roll dreams is dead.

It is enough to say Elvis; just as it was enough to say Ike, the fellow in the White House when the king claimed his throne.

His hips twisted, his body shook, he had a way of looking at you sideways, with his chin pulled in, that said more than his curling lips could. He was as cocksure as a strutting rooster and twice as proud; as proud and as certain as his adolescent fans longed to be.

Ducktails were as common as Elvis fan clubs. Kids who hoped to go to Harvard tried to speak with the inflections of the sons of Mississippi dirt farmers — just like he did.

That didn't worry the parents so much. It was the sex that concerned them. That's what Presley was about. Sex. He brought it out into the open. He took the raunchy back beat of the black blues and made it top 40 fare — with just enough whitewash to give it the patina of respectability.

There's a red-haired woman with two children, a woman who'll be 30 this year and who used to watch Elvis play pickup football on a grade school playground in her Memphis neighborhood.

When she heard the news Tuesday night all she could say was, "Who? Who? Who?" Her voice rose with each question, as if the news would change. A part of her — a blushing, rubbernecking, gosh-and-golly schoolgirl memory — seemed strangely more distant.

Some of her peers remember having their first really serious fight with their parents over Elvis. There was one night in particular, a Sunday evening back in 1956, when Ed Sullivan gave the nation its first look at its newest bad boy. Families fought at dinner tables over whether children could watch the show.

The tube was going to bring a kid with a sassy Southern drawl and swivel hips who needed a haircut to life in their living rooms. From the looks of him, he didn't care a brokenguitar string for what the parents thought. And the kids loved him for that.

There were so many screaming bobby-soxers in Sullivan's studio audience that nearly no one in TV land could hear Elvis' voice through the din.

There wasn't much the folks could do. Anyway, the guy mumbled.

He was the king. The king is dead. And a generation suddenly feels old.

Court refuses execution stay

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today turned down a request for a stay of execution submitted by Mark Milton Moore, scheduled to die in the electric chair before sunrise Friday.

Moore's lawyers declined comment after court's denial. With time running out, they were expected to go to a federal court.

If the courts refuse the stay of execution, Moore could request a 30-day stay from Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

At Huntsville, where Moore is scheduled to die, a spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections said "everything was ready," for the execution.

150 TI workers taken to hospitals

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON and JIM STEINBERG

About 150 employes of the Texas Instruments plant at Midland Regional Air Terminal were rushed to Midland and Odessa hospitals after they became ill about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

Some workers were still being treated at 3 a.m. today.

In a release issued at 6:30 a.m. today, Bill Steele, plant manager, said the plant was evacuated shortly before midnight when one assembly line operator fainted about 10:10 p.m., and three others had similar symptoms about 11 p.m.

After the plant was evacuated, some of the 300 employes outside the building began to be affected by what Texas Instruments medical director Dr. Milton Schulman believed to be "mass anxiety and hyperventilation."

Texas Instruments plant engineers, safety and medical personnel and other officials, who flew in early today from Dallas, have checked the plant thoroughly, Steele said.

When asked if the first four incidents could have had an organic cause, Texas Instruments public information director Dick Perdue said evasively, "That's the other side of the coin of hyperventilation. There was no organic cause. Hyperventilation can be caused by mass hysteria or excitement."

Perdue cited quotes from incidents where one-half of a high school band became affected with chest pains, choking and fainting during two separate football games in Texas last year.

Then he added, "It's hysteria—like girls at concerts."

Texas Instruments site service manager Floyd Purvis said today that there was probably some organic cause to the first group of women getting sick, such as a stomach flu, and that hysteria would account for the spread to other group members.

Emergency room spokesmen for both Midland Memorial Hospital and Medical Center Hospital in Odesss said early today that all 150 employes were treated and released.

A physician at Medical Center Hospital, where 95 employes were taken for treatment, said those who were not treated for hyperventilation were treated for inhalation of activated resin flux.

"It was 90 per cent hysteria and 10 per cent mild gas inhalation," the physician said.

However, Purvis discounted the physician's report that the victims were treated for a resin flux by saying, "I stuck my nose right in those two small cans and there was nothing to it."

Purvis said tests showed no

Heart fails King of Rock

By LES SEAGO

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley, the one-time truck driver who as a rock 'n' roll singer was idolized by fans and denounced by preachers as the devil's tool, is dead of a heart ailment at age 42.

Doctors denied Presley's death was drug-connected.

Dr. George Nichopoulos, longtime physician to the swivel-hipped, throaty baritone who was known as the "King of Rock 'n' Roll," said an autopsy revealed a constriction in one of the main arteries to the hear, which restricted blood flow and brought on a heart attack.

"What caused it? Any one of a number of things," he said following Presley's death Tuesday.

Nichopoulos said his patient, who carried about 175 pounds on a six-foot frame as a young man but recently had been reported grossly overweight, had been taking a number of appetite depressants, but did not have a drug problem.

Dr. Jerry Francisco, the Shelby County medical examiner, discounted rumors that Presley, who had been a virtual recluse at his white-columned Graceland mansion for 20 years, had suffered from a drug problem.

"There was no indication of drug abuse at all," Francisco said. "I was aware of the rumors and that is why I mention it."

Delbert "Sonny" West, who was a Presley bodyguard for 16 years, said in Chicago just hours before Presley died that the singer was heavily addicted to drugs and haunted by fears that drove him into seclusion.

Presley, whose recording of "Heartbreak Hotel" helped to put him on top of the entertainment world 21 years ago, was discovered unconscious at Graceland in suburban Memphis on Tuesday afternoon.

He was taken to Baptist Hospital in a Fire Department ambulance while Nichopoulos and emergency medical technicians worked to revive him.

The doctor said attempts to revive Presley, who appeared in 31 films — including "Love Me Tender," "GI Blues," and "Jailhouse Rock"—continued because of a slight chance life still existed in his body.

"The reason we continued to resuscitate him was his pupils were constricted," the doctor said at a hospital news conference after an autopsy. "Usually in death, there's not enough oxygen and the pupils dilate."

"Heartbreak Hotel," the first hit for Presley, was released in January 1956. It was one of 45 records that sold more than one million copies, including "Hound Dog," "All Shook Up" and "It's Now Or Never."

Booming record sales and overflowing audiences at personal appearances made the entertainer who

Culver asks Judge Culp to disqualify

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

County Judge Barbara Culver requested Tuesday that District Judge Vann Culp disqualify himself from hearing a lawsuit brought against her and other county officials in connection with a juvenile rape case.

Judge Culver made the request in Her answer to a petition filed by John B. Billingsley Jr. as parent of 16 year-old Glenn Bryce Billingsley, who was indicted July 6 on charges of aggravated rape and burglary.

The Billingsley petition also named as defendants County Attorney Leslie Acker, District Attorney Vern Martin and juvenile probation and intake officer Grover B. Green.

Billingsley alleged in the suit, filed July 27, that the transfer of the rape case from juvenile court to district court and the subsequent indictment were not valid because the county court cannot, under state law, be the juvenile court.

Judge Culver said in her reply, filed Tuesday, Culp should disqualify himself because he was Democratic county chairman in 1976 and, in that role, "actively solicited the candidacy of Billingsley for political office in the Democratic party primary in 1976."

Billingsley was the Democratic nominee for state representative until he withdrew after the party primary. Before Billingsley withdrew, Judge Culver said, Culp "gave his political support and counsel" to Billingsley.

In addition, Judge Culver said, Culp should disqualify himself because he is a former law partner in the firm of Lynch, Chappell, Allday and

'Mystery malady' dazes employes

By ED TODD

The workers seemed dazed. They appeared as if they had just been awakened from a long, deep sleep.

Something definitely was awry.

Some were lying motionless on hospital stretchers, some were sitting half-awake in wheelchairs and just plain chairs, and still others were just standing around in the hospital corridor.

All were bleary-eyed — that is, those who could kept their eyes open.

He one of about 50 or so Texas Instruments workers who were treated for a mass sickness at Midland Memorial Hospital at midnight and later today.

TI officials called the cause of the common symptons "mass anxiety and hyperventilation."

Butler didn't have a name for it. Butler, who was working on the 4 p.m.-to-midnight shift, was doing soldering work on watches when "it" struck him.

His shift was close to an end.

"Several people just started passing out," Butler said.

About 300 employes were working in the plant's watch and calculator divisions when the symptoms suddenly struck.

"They said it was some kind of gas . . . coming through the vents," said Vanessa Medlock, who works in the watchmaking division.

Most were half-dazed and were breathing hard, she said.

The ill-feeling workers-turned-patients were carried to hospitals in Midland, Odessa and Big Spring by Midland Fire Department ambulances, Midland police units, Department of Public Safety patrol cars, and by private vehicles.

Peggy Everett, 36, of Odessa, seemed to be coming out of a daze. She's a TI timekeeper.

"I still feel funny . . ." she said about 1:30 a.m. today. Called in and on-duty doctors and nurses were still bustling in examining and treating the TI workers for their midnight malady.

"I don't know," she said of the cause of the nausea, headaches and occasional faintings. "They told us to clear the building," Mrs. Everett said.

The workers, some staggering, exited.

"I saw a bunch of people lying around the the door outside the building," she said.

Workers in the calculator division apparently were struck more severely by the sudden illness than those workling o the timepieces, she said.

School tax rate to decrease, but overall, taxes to be higher

By KAY HORD

Midland school board Tuesday afternoon approved a 45.5 cents decrease in the tax rate for 1977-78, compared with the 1976-77 tax rate. The board approved a tax rate of $1.17 per $100 of assessed valuation, compared to the 1976-77 tax rate of $1.62½.

Although the tax rate has been lowered and homeowners are paying lower tax rates, they may be paying higher taxes because of the property reevaluation.

Of the $1.17, $1.01 would go towards maintenance and building a surplus in the reserve funds.

The other 16 cents would be for debt service, which will be planned deficit funding requiring the board to withdraw $20,927 from the debt service reserve fund.

"That will be deficit funding," said board member Joe Dominey.

With the increased property evaluation from $641,867,140 to $960,551,790, the $1.17 tax rate is 4 cents above the $1.13 tax rate calculated earlier to equalize the amount of taxes brought in in 1976-77 with a $1.62½ tax rate.

The $1.17 tax rate would mean that on a $40,000 home, at 25 per cent of the assessed valuation, a homeowner would pay $351 in taxes.

The increase of 4 cents in the tax rate, from $1.13 to $1.17, will be used to cover higher utility costs, a 10.7 per cent teachers' pay increase, a 10 per cent increase in administrators' salaries and a surplus in reserve funds.

Approximately $550,000 from reserve funds were used during 1976-77 for land acquisition, buses for the

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

CRANE — Berry Ingram is an enterprising lad. If he were in tattered clothing, he might be a promising candidate for the Horatio Alger "rags-to-riches" rainbow.

"I'm 16, fixing to be 17," he said in an unrushed moment.

He was helping cover Crane's once-in-an-eternity Golden Jubilee that rightfully, paid tribute to the oil field pioneers, the hired hands, their rigs and about everything else that smacks of black gold.

It's Crane County's basic economy.

Young Ingram had just viewed the parade and the skydiving, and was toying with the idea of joining in on another celebration just down Sixth Street.

But he had priorities.

"I'd like to go out to that (goings-on), but I've got to run out to the station."

He has responsibilities, you know. Ingram, who's still in high school and has a bit of a way to go before he makes the big time, toils away at Crane's KBSN radio station. It's heavy on the religious side.

"I'm part-time everything," said the lad. "I'm public relations director . . . When they need somebody, I'm there."

This Ingram youth is the station's part-timer. He works mostly on weekends, when he plays religious tapes and, for a whole hour, is a for-real record-spinning DJ.

Although he does drive a motorcar, this enthusiastic radio lad has other ways of handily getting around.

"I crawled on my KBSN bicycle up there," he said. See over there? "And rode over there," he said of a jubilee event he eye-witnessed.

Fairly regularly, too, he said, he pedals his reliable two-wheeler to the station that's a mile north of town.

"I ride it to the station just for exercise," he said.

That's a good start for an up-and-coming lad, huh?

Memorial held for former coach

EL PASO — Memorial services for Mike Brumbelow, 71, former head football coach at Texas Western College and a former resident of Midland, were held here Friday.

Brumbelow, who also was president of El Paso's Sun Travel, died Thursday after a long illness.

Brumbelow became football coach at El Paso High School in 1931 and was named head coach at Texas Western (now The University of Texas at El Paso) in the late 1950s. He became athletic director after ending his coaching career in 1956. In 1959, he accepted a position in the advertising and public relations department of El Paso Natural Gas Co., retiring from that position several years ago.

Brumbelow was a stellar football player at Texas Christian University and later served on the school's coaching staff before moving to Midland in the early 1950s, where he and Tex Carlton established a sporting goods store. He later was one of the founders and owners of the old Ranch House Restaurant at Midland before moving to El Paso.

He was inducted into the El Paso Athletic Hall of Fame in 1964 and was a member of Texas Christian University's Hall of Fame. He was a former director and district vice president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Nomination of Johnson expected, sources say

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter plans to nominate Frank Johnson, a deep South judge with a strong civil rights record, as the next director of the FBI, knowledgeable administration sources say.

The White House was expected to announce today that Carter will send Johnson's name to the Senate, which must confirm his selection. The choice ends a seven-month search for a director to take charge of the bureau and its 8,000 agents.

Carter and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell chose the 58-year-old federal district judge to succeed Clarence M. Kelley after rejecting four candidates recommended by a presidentially-appointed search committee, the sources said.

By choosing Johnson, a Republican, Carter and Bell may have a candidate who can sail through the Senate hearings with little, if any opposition.

But Sen James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee that will first consider Johnson's nomination, would not comment Tuesday night.

"I know the whole score," Eastland said, "and I don't leak stories. I have no comment."

Johnson's nomination is certain to please civil rights groups who assailed the bureau in the 1960s for allegedly ignoring beatings of black activists in the South.

That charge came while J. Edgar Hoover, the director, was carrying out a secret campaign to discredit the movement's chief leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Johnson's record seems to show a quality Bell particularly sought in an FBI director. The attorney general had said he wanted someone strong enough to control "the dominant personalities" in the bureau's hierarchy.

While Kelley was respected for his sincerity and good intentions, he was often criticized by congressmen and others who deal with the bureau for being too weak to control the old Hoover hands still holding powerful FBI jobs.

Kelley is retiring Jan. 1. His announcement last winter that he would step down followed criticism by Carter during his campaign for the presidency.

Appointed a federal judge in Alabama in 1955, Johnson has handed numerous victories to civil rights activists pressing suits before his court.

His judicial record has earned him bitter enemies in his home state, chief among them Gov. George C. Wallace, his one-time law school classmate.

Chapter, stores schedule dystrophy bike-a-thon

Members of the Midland Muscular Dystrophy Associations Chapter and the 7-11 Stores will sponsor a bike-a-thon against muscular dystrophy beginning at 7 a.m. on Saturday.

"There is still plenty of room for bicycling participants to enter the contest," Jim Galyean, chairman of the bike-a-thon, said today. The route will consist of six and two-thirds miles and is open to all students and citizens of the Permian Basin Area.

He said, "Participants in the bike-a-thon secure sponsors who agree to pay them a specified amount for MDAA (Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America Inc.) for every mile they ride. There is no limit to the number of sponsors a rider may sign up. Individual riders are encouraged, and organizations may contribute by sponsoring a single rider or several riders from within their group."

The entire route, from its beginning at the 7-11 store at 4308 Neely Ave., will be supervised by the Midland Police Department. Checkpoints have been set up along the route to offer first aid, refreshments and rest areas.

Children under 12 years of age must be accompanied by an adult on the ride. Sponsor sheets and further information are available at any Midland 7-11 store or by phoning 694-0157.

Prizes will be awarded for the rider completing the most miles, the oldest rider, the best decorated bike, the hard luck award, and the best funny costume or riding outfit.

MDAA provides a wide range of services at no cost to individuals. It sponsors a series of 146 MD clinics across the country, providing examinations and tests for suspected MD patients to insure differential diagnosis.

When prescribed by a physician, MDAA will assist in the purchase and repair of orthopedic appliances such as walkers, crutches, braces, orthopedic shoes, wheelchairs, hydraulic lifts, hospital beds, surgical corsets and nightsplints. MDAA also can provide physical therapy treatments under medical supervision. The clinic program works in cooperation with the patient's personal physician.

Braniff, TI facing another indictment

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Braniff Airways Inc. and Texas International Airlines Inc. face a second federal indictment in less than three years on charges the two firms conspired to monopolize airline traffic among three Texas airports.

A federal grand jury returned the indictment Tuesday accusing the companies of trying to squeeze Southwest Airlines Inc. out of the market that included flights between Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio.

The first indictment against Braniff and Texas International, which was returned in February 1975, was dismissed by a federal judge last Feb. 22.

A Braniff spokesman in Dallas said the company had not had a chance to study the new indictment but "it appears to be a repeat of old and discredited charges that were made in the indictment of February of 1975."

"We will defend the case vigorously and will demonstrate to the court that all of our conduct was fully consistent with the antitrust laws and with the standards of airline competitive conduct as enforced by the CAB (Civil Aeronautics Board)," the spokesman said.

Sam Coats, Texas International's general counsel, denied the charges and said his firm will exert every effort to have the charges dismissed again.

The new indictment accuses Braniff and Texas International of conspiring from around May 1971 to at least 1973 "to impair the ability of Southwest to commence and maintain operations as an air carrier among the major Texas cities."

Southwest began regular flights in June 1971 between Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston and between Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio. A few months later, Southwest started service between Houston and San Antonio.

Southwest became a strong new competitor for Braniff and Texas International, which had dominated that market.

The indictment charged that Braniff and Texas International together plotted their strategy for fighting the Southwest challenge.

Among those tactics, the indictment said, Braniff and Texas International tried to prevent passengers from switching to Southwest flights when their own flights were canceled, filed a flurry of requests and petitions before court and federal agencies opposing Southwest's service, and tried to hamper Southwest operations at Houston's Hobby Airport.

As a result of the alleged conspiracy, "Southwest's entry each year as a competitor for the transportation of intrastate passengers by air among the major Texas cities was delayed."

Southwest's business relationships were injured and Southwest was denied a chance to compete in the market freely, the government charged.

In addition, "the public was denied the benefits of free and open competition," the indictment said.

If convicted, Braniff and Texas International each would face a maximum $50,000 fine.

Texas 'water czar' surprise pick

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas has a new "water czar" to head the super water agency that starts business Sept. 1, but only on an "acting" basis.

Charles Nemir, 45, was appointed interim chief of the Texas Department of Water Resources on Tuesday.

He has been assistant director of the Texas Water Development Board since 1972, and the six-member board elevated him to the new post.

It also appointed Dick Whittington, 49, currently No. 2 man on the Texas Water Quality Board staff, as acting deputy director.

The board rejected both Nemir's and Whittington's present bosses, who had been the most active candidates for the top job in the new agency. The department was created by the legislature this year and represents a merger of the existing three water agencies.

The board turned down Hugh Yantis, director of the water quality board, and James M. Rose, director of the water development board staff, for the $43,700-a-year job that legislators called the "water czar" because of its immense power.

Also passed over was Bob Schneider, director of the Texas Water Righs Commission.

Selections were made in executive session by the water development board, which will make policy for the new department.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he will appoint a three-member Texas Water Commission this week. The commission will operate within the new department but will issue permits and settle water rights disputes independently.

Rose, 56, was offered a $40,000 subordinate job in the water development field but turned it down.

Yantis, 63, made it clear from the start that he was interested only in the top job.

Rose said he would join Dallas businessmen Bob Alpert and Ron Chamness in starting a firm that will help political subdivisions with natural resources planning. Alpert is owner of the Alpert Corp., a development and financial firm, and Chamness owns Continental Mechanical Engineering.

Board chairman A. L. Black would not say why Rose and Yantis were passed over, but each has been a controversial figure and has enemies in the legislature.

The board adopted a $18.2 million departmental budget for the coming fiscal year, retaining all employes of the three agencies but assuming a normal 10 per cent attrition rate.

Mr. Nemir and Whittington, the new department has two experienced but uncontroversial hands to run it temporarily until the board makes up its mind on permanent leadership.

Nemir holds bachelors and masters degrees in petroleum engineering.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A spokesman for cattlemen who have filed suit against major supermarket chains says the beef producers can prove the stores set meat prices despite one company's statement that similar suits have been thrown out of court.

The suit was filed in federal court here by more than 150 Texas and New Mexico cattlemen alleging that 26 defendants, including major supermarket chains, have stifled competition by agreeing on beef prices.

The defendants include Safeway and A&P, two of the nation's largest grocery companies.

A Safeway spokesman at the company's Oakland, Calif., headquarters said Tuesday the company has not heard of the suit but added, "We have had a number of suits filed by cattlemen and this sounds similar.

"A number of those others have been terminated with respect to Safeway by court orders confirming that we do not and have not engaged in any unlawful activity in connection with the purchase or sale of meat. We do deny any allegation that we have violated any law," spokesman Felicia Del Campo said.

But a cattlemen spokesman said the top chains set the price. "No one else will pay more to the packers," he said.

The spokesman said beef prices have fluctuated as much as 25 cents per pound since 1973 but consumers have not seen the change at the supermarket because of price-fixing by major retail chains.

Producers have received as low as 30 cents per pound of beef and as high as 57 cents per pound during the last four years, the spokesman added.

"We've had big drops like this several times yet the retail prices have never changed," he said. "The retailers can control the prices paid to packers and if they pay less it's passed down to the producer."

The suit alleges that some of the top chains, including A&P and Safeway, accept bids one day prior to other retail chains. The major supermarkets set their prices and the nationwide prices are then based at those levels.

He added that producers and consumers lose in the scheme while the supermarkets continue to sell beef at artificially high prices.

The suit further alleges that the price setting practice is reducing beef consumption and some feedlot operators report they are losing cattle because they cannot sell it.

Competition among supermarkets has also been reduced by a nationally distributed beef price listing, the producers claim.

Ashley says company tried pressure tactic

By RICK SCOTT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. executive James H. Ashley says his 1974 suspension was an attempt to pressure him into incriminating the company's top Texas official.

Ashley gave the testimony Tuesday afternoon in the state court trial of a $29 million damage suit against Southwestern Bell. He filed the suit with the family of the late T. O. Gravitt.

Gravitt was Bell's top Texas executive when he committed suicide at his Dallas home Oct. 17, 1974. Ashley was a $55,000-a-year company official in San Antonio when he was suspended Oct. 9, 1974, and fired a few weeks later.

The suit alleges Southwestern Bell drove Gravitt to insanity and suicide and wrongfully fired Ashley as a result of an improper internal investigation conducted in 1974.

Ashley said he knew nothing of any investigation until Oct. 9, 1974, when his boss drove him to a San Antonio hotel and suspended him for reasons that included alleged sexual promiscuity with female Bell employes.

He said he was interviewed at the hotel by two Bell security agents who told him if he made a "full disclosure" about Gravitt that "things would go well for me."

"They (security agents) seemed obsessed that Gravitt, through me perhaps, was getting massive amounts of money" through a kickback scheme with a local printing firm, Ashley stated.

"The whole thrust was to 'tell us what you know about Gravitt'," Ashley said.

He said that when, despite warnings that he tell the truth or possibly lose his job, he insisted he knew of no wrongdoing by Gravitt, the security men turned to allegations of sexual impropriety.

Ashley said he denied any sexual involvement with any Bell employes because "there was no substance to any of the allegations."

Lawyers searching for final juror

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Lawyers for the defense and prosecution continue their week-long search for a final juror today in the capital murder trial of Fort Worth industrialist Cullen Davis.

Thus, the defense has but two and the state three remaining strikes, the vehicle by which attorneys can excuse prospective jurors without cause.

It was a week ago Tuesday that the 11th juror was selected. A total of 145 prospects have been examined since the trial began June 27.

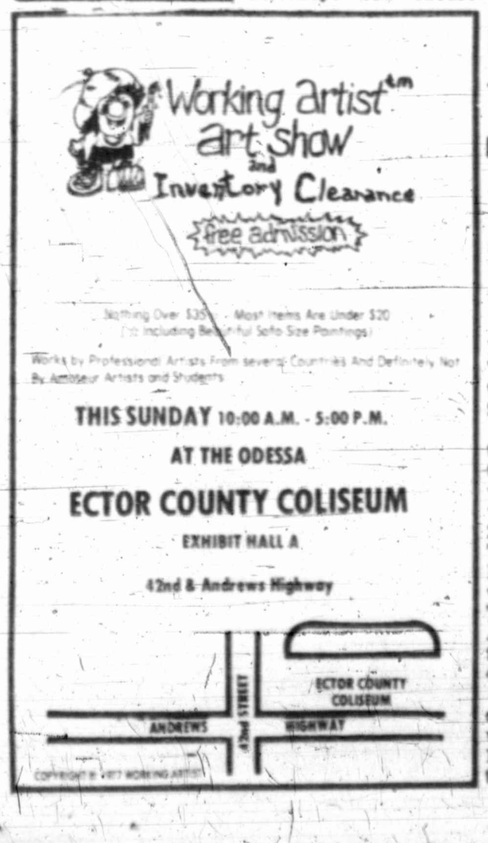

Davis, 43, is on trial for the 1976 slaying death of his stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, one of two persons slain during a shooting spree last summer at Davis' Fort Worth mansion. Two others were wounded.

Basin to receive new signals

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A $165,360 state highway project will install trafic signals at several intersections in Midland and Odessa.

Department of Highways and Public Transportation is accepting bids on the work until Sept. 14.

Installation will be at the following intersections in Midland: U.S. 80 with Thomason Drive and with Midkiff Road, SP 268 with Williams Street, Texas 158 with Mareinfeld Street and with Texas 349, and Texas 349 with Louisiana Avenue; and in Odessa at the intersection of Spur 450 with F, 1882.

Enjoy a call across the country and you could say all this for just $2.57.

"Hello?" "Hi, it's me." "Marge! I was just thinking of calling you!" "That's funny, I was just thinking of calling you. How are you?" "How are you?" "Is there an echo in here? I called you first, you tell me." "Ha. Ha. Ha. I'm fine. That is, I think I'm fine." "What do you mean, you think you're fine?" "Well, it's a long story." "Tell it. Your stories are always a riot." "Well ... at 9:30 this morning, our seventy-two-year-old neighbor, Mr. Phillips, brought over his new deluxe vacuum cleaner." "What?" "He wanted to demonstrate it, he said, so he emptied it all over my living room floor. There he proceeds to vacuum not only the living room floor, but also the furniture and the walls, using about three hundred different attachments." "How nice." "Well, you see, he was so proud of his new purchase. And since I don't clean as often as I should, everything was half clean. Now the story gets better." "I hope so." "You see, his vacuum cleaner has a special, air freshener feature. You put it in reverse, fill it up with air fresh ener and let it rip." "Hmmm." "The only problem was, he had forgotten to empty the bag. So he hits the switch and the entire living room was immediately filled with this black, dirty cloud of dust. Not to mention, the smell of perfumed air freshener." "I mean, I think the man has lost his mind ... He says, 'This vacuum cleaner can handle anything' and then takes off vacuuming everything in sight. Now in the middle of all this, who should arrive but Jack, coming home for lunch. And what does he do? He goes into the closet and pulls out our vacuum cleaner, and the two of them begin comparing features." "I don't believe it." "Then he challenges Mr. Phillips to a race to see who can vacuum up the mess first. And whoever wins gets the other guy's vacuum cleaner." "Who won?" "Well, let me put it this way. Mr. Phillips has two vacuum cleaners. We have none." "Ha. Ha. Ha. It's not funny." "Yes it is." "Here's the culprit now. Jack, do you want to talk to Fred? He says no. Put Fred on." "Hello." "Jack are you there? Jack, don't do this." "Yes, I'm here." "Marge tells me you gambled away the family vacuum cleaner." "Yeah, well it was close. I'm challenging the winner to a weight lifting contest tomorrow." "Who's the winner?" "Our neighbor. He's seventy-two years old. I'll tell you, Fred, I don't get any respect anymore." "Now where have I heard that." "Suzie asked me to take out the garbage last night and I told her I'd already taken out the garbage, and you know what she said? 'Well, then go on and keep on not doing it.'" "Funny." "Yeah, I bought Jimmy a hat for his birthday and the first day he plays with it he lets it go." "No respect." "No respect at all. I tell you, we're sending Abie to a private school now, you know." "Yes, I know!" "It's so private, she won't even tell us where it is." "Ha. Ha. Ha." "Well, now I've lost the family vacuum cleaner and run out of old jokes, you tell me what's new with you." "Well, not one whole heck of a lot." "Then why are we talking?" "One interesting thing did happen down at the plant." "Are you going to tell me about it, or is this some kind of a test?" "Last week one of the workers asked me if he could take some sawdust home." "Was he going to open a bar, or what?" "So I say sure ..." "Maybe he had a new vacuum cleaner he wanted to test." "... take all the sawdust you want ..." "Or make sawdust pancakes." "Are you listening?" "Yeah, I'm listening." "So I say, 'Sure, take all the sawdust you want. You already said that.' "And I fill out a form authorizing him to remove the sawdust in a wheelbarrow past the security guard." "That was a dull story. I'm not finished yet." "Well, hurry up." "So every day for a week this guy takes a wheelbarrow of sawdust out to his car." "Hurry up!" "Until yesterday, one of his fellow workers came up to him and said, 'Hey, what's this with all the sawdust? Are you stealing it or what?' and the guy looks at him and says 'Heck no. I wouldn't care less about this stupid sawdust. I'm stealing wheelbarrows.'" "Now that's funny." "I thought you'd like it." "Great gag." "You know, I have a neighbor like yours. He's an old guy, very lazy. Every day he sits out on his front porch rocking away watching the cars go by. And yesterday I was talking to him and I asked him if he ever get bored – just sitting there." "Yeah? So what?" "And he said, 'No, I never get bored. Because I have a hobby.' I said, 'Hobby? You couldn't have a hobby. All you do is sit here all day. What's your hobby?' 'Bees,' he said. 'I raise bees.' Well, I couldn't believe this, I said, 'Where's the beehive? Cuz, never seen any beehive around here.' And he said, 'I keep my bees inside.' 'Inside?' I said, 'Let me see them.' So the old man took me inside and I said, 'Okay, where are your bees?' And he said, 'They're in the bedroom.' So we went into the bedroom and still no bees. So I said, 'Where are the bees?' And he said, 'I keep them in the closet.' 'You keep your bees in the closet?' I said. And he said, 'Yeah, I keep them in a jar in the closet.' But if you keep them in a jar, they'll die.' And he turned to me and said, 'Hey, look, I told you it was only a hobby.'" "Funny. That's pretty funny." "Hey, when are you people coming back here to visit us." "Never." "You did your pass." "You're coming here next time." "Not until you get a new vacuum cleaner." "It's bring your own vacuum cleaner, and we'll sweep the town." "Listen, Suzie is yelling in my ear to get off the phone and let her talk to Marge some more." "Okay." "Take it easy, Fred, and remember our invitation. If you don't come here, we'll never see you again." "Okay." "Bye." "Bye." "Marge?" "Yeah, hi." "How's your garden these days?" "Everything is very hot and very dry here. But I'm managing to grow a strong and healthy batch of weeds." "Oh, good." "I mean they're some of the biggest weeds you've ever seen. Terrific, you can use them in a salad. Or make weed sandwiches!" "How's your garden?" "Oh, it's okay. I just unleashed one entire carton of frozen lady bugs yesterday, so they should keep the predators away." "Frozen lady bugs?" "Yeah, you can buy them frozen in cartons of several thousand, and you thaw them out and let them go. They drive away other insects." "I bet." "No, really, they're great. You should try them sometime." "Plain, or with butter sauce?" "Hey, did Freddie ever finish building his car?" "Oh, yes, it's finished all right." "How does it look?" "Oh, Suzie, it looks awful. I mean they did a terrific job, but it looks like a hot rod." "Oh, no." "Oh, yes. Fred hates it. He says he's going to pay to have it stolen some night." "He would, too." "Only problem is, Freddie does everything but sleep in that car, and if anyone started it in the middle of the night, you'd hear it a mile away." "He'll outgrow it." "I suppose so, but guess what the latest project is." "What?" "They're building a gyrocopter." "A what?" "Gyrocopter. It's a one man helicopter." "Isn't that dangerous?" "What can we say. It belongs to the neighbors, and The one with the big tool shop." "Right." "What do his parents think?" "I don't think they know what it is." "Hummm. Jack, have you ever heard of a gyrocopter? He says ... wait a minute ..." "Marge, did you say Freddie is building a gyrocopter?" "Yes, Jack, why?" "I want one. I've always wanted one. Will he let me ride in it?" "Oh, you're impossible." "I'm serious. I've always wanted a gyrocopter." "Well, I'm sure Fred would be delighted if you came out here and got this one." "I will. Here's Suzie again." "Hi." "Your husband is crazy." "I know." "But also one of the most delightful people I've ever known." "Thanks. What's happening in the old home town these days? Anything interesting?" "Well, let me think ... Peter and Corinne moved away." "Oh." "Yes, he's going to work in Winnemucca, Nevada, of all places." "Nice. How does Corinne feel about it?" "Well, apparently it's only for a few years. He'll be working on a new project, then I guess they'll come back here or move somewhere else." "Have you talked to them since they left? How do they like it?" "I haven't called them yet. They just moved a few days ago. The Blooms had a big going away party for them." "How nice." "Yes. It was nice, but you know what a problem I have remembering people's names." "Oh yes?" "Well, this was terribly embarrassing; a man came up to me at the party and he was one of these guys I'd seen before in the neighborhood, and I should have remembered who he was, but didn't. And he was very nice and came up to me and said hello, and while he was holding my hand, 'Sally' came to you remember her—" "Yes." "And I waved and said, 'Hi, Sally! How's your handsome husband these days.' And she gave me this strange look and said, 'You should know, you're holding hands with him!'" "You know, I did almost the same thing one time." "You did?" "Yeah, Fred and I were given two tickets to a show, but we couldn't use them because we were going out for dinner that night. So thinking fast, I phoned these people down the street and said, 'We have been given two tickets for the show tonight, but we can't use them because of an unfortunate dinner engagement, would you like to have them?' And the gal says, 'Fine, we'd love to go, but we happen to be your unfortunate hosts!'" "You're kidding." "Bad, eh?" "That's bad." "Well, listen, Sally, take care of yourself and please try to keep that husband of yours out of trouble." "You, too." "And make him buy you a new vacuum cleaner." "You better believe it. You take care, too. And I hope we'll see you guys sometime." "I hope you'll see us, too." "We had a fabulous time at your house last time we came out." "Well, you're invited any time." "No, you're invited here." "Okay, take it easy. We sure miss you." "We miss you, too." "Bye." "Bye."

By STUART AUERBACH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In 1969 an attorney named Philip Peltz stood before a federal court judge in New York City and was convicted on four felony charges involving a stock fraud.

Last week the same Philip Peltz appeared in another New York City courtroom — this time as an attorney who said he had been hired to represent David Berkowitz, 24, postal employe accused of being the mass killer nicknamed "Son of Sam."

Even though Peltz served three months in the federal penitentiary on the stock fraud convictoins, he still is licensed to practice law in the state of New York.

"I don't know why they have permitted a convicted felon to continue to practice," said William B. Spann Jr., president of the American Bar Association.

Robert B. Fiske Jr., U.S. attorney for Manhattan whose office prosecuted Peltz on the stock fraud case, urged an immediate investigation by the local bar associations "to find out why a man convicted of fraud in the federal courts is still allowed to practice law."

He said the U.S. Attorney's office notified the Bar Association of the City of New York of Peltz's conviction in 1972.

Officials in New York refused comment Monday on Peltz. They said they are forbidden by state law to discuss any disciplinary activities against a lawyer until it is made public by a court.

The Peltz case is the most graphic example to date of what many critics feel is the inability of the organized bar to discipline attorneys convicted of serious crimes as well as unethical and incompetent attorneys.

According to sources in Brooklyn, where Peltz practices law at 32 Court St., disciplinary action against him for his stock fraud convictions is pending before the state appeallate department that has jurisidction over disciplining lawyers who practice in Brooklyn.

Felony convictions in state courts bring an automatic disbarment, representatives of both the Bar Association of the City of New York and the Joint Bar Association that covers Brooklyn said in separate telephone interviews.

But convictions in federal court may require full hearings — first before two levels of bar association committees and then before the court. This is especially true where the federal and state crime may not be comparable.

In the Peltz case, sources said, he is arguing that the felonies he was convicted of in federal court would have been misdemeanors — lesser crimes — if they had been brought in the state court.

"He got three years on a bum rap," said one friend of Peltz. Peltz would not consent to an interview.

It is unclear how Peltz got into the case. He said a relative of Berkowitz — who he has refused to name — asked him to represent the accused slayer.

Late Monday he petitioned the state supreme court to remove him from the "Son of Sam" case for the good of Berkowitz, who he still called his client, and to preserve the reputation of the profession.

"I have been unjustifiably pilloried in the press," he said in an affidavit that will come before the court Tuesday.

"If I am guilty of anything," he continued, "it is my failure to foresee that anyone who becomes involved with this case would be the subject of media notoriety."

He said he turned over tapes of his conversations with Berkowitz (tapes two newspapers say were offered to them for sale — an offer, which, if it was made, Peltz says he had nothing to do with) "to a respected attorney in this community who is holding them in escrow awaiting further determination of the court or other interested parties."

Bum rap or not, Peltz was tried and convicted of a crime listed as a felony in the federal code. According to Minneapolis attorney John C. McNulty, head of the ABA's Standing Committee on Professional Discipline, he should have been immediately suspended from the practice of law.

"Every effort should have been made to see that such a person is properly disciplined," McNulty said.

But not everyone believes that the courts and organized bars are able to properly discipline lawyers on their own.

"Self regulation has collapsed," wrote attorneys Martin Garbus and Joel Seligman in the Ralph Nader-sponsored book, "Verdict on Lawyers."

"If the purpose of court and state bar association disciplinary proceedings is to assure the public high standards of diligence and propriety, self regulation is a nearly complete failure — an embarrassment for a profession which brags that the integrity of its practitioners is the very breath of justice," Garbus and Seligman continued.

In 1975, for example, American Bar Association statistics show that 693 of the nation's 404,772 lawyers were disciplined less than one per cent.

These disciplinary measures arose from more than 33,000 public complaints to bar groups and the courts — a record that the ABA said is a tremendous improvement comapred to 1970 when a special ABA committee called the problem of disciplining lawyers "a scandalous situation."

Yet a recent poll of law students and young lawyers taken by Juris Doctor, a magazine for lawyers, found "our readers ... see incompetence and dishonesty pervading their profession."

More than one fourth of those questioned believe that 20 per cent of all lawyers are incompetent. Moreover, they see the problem getting worse. Last year, the problem of lawyer incompetence ranked fifth while in this year's poll it had jumped to second place.

Farmer walks tall with law

POTLATCH, Idaho (AP) — By day, Lee Lisher tills 800 acres of wheat. At night, the man his neighbors call a rural Ralph Nader is a gadfly, hurling accusations at meetings of county commissioners, the highway department, the school board or even the cemetery district.

"He's a pain in the butt, but you can't help but like him," said Latah County Prosecuting Atty. William Hamlett.

When Lisher was punched in the mouth at a school board meeting, the blows barely budged the 6-foot farmer, whose 260-pound frame fits into an expansive pair of bib overalls.

Lisher, a 39-year-old father of four, had been taunting the school board about letting contracts without the bids required under state law when the son of a board member planted two haymakers on his jaw.

"I just stood there asking him what he was doing and then some other guys came over and dragged him away," Lisher said. The board member's son paid $10 to have Lisher's false teeth glued together.

Lisher quit school in the eighth grade. But he has a small library of law books and Idaho codes. If he can find a spare $97 after harvest, he wants to buy a new volume of the Idaho code of highway districts.

"I've never gotten after them for anything the law doesn't make them do," Lisher said. "Often the problem is that boards like the school board are ignorant of the law.

"It gravels these people, some of them with a college education, for someone like me to tell them they're breaking the law."

Lisher absolutely insists that "my and your elected officials" do their jobs by the letter of the law.

"One of the worst problems with county government is nepotism," Lisher said. "In the cemetery district the wife of one of the board members was the bookkeeper. She didn't make much money, but it is against the law."

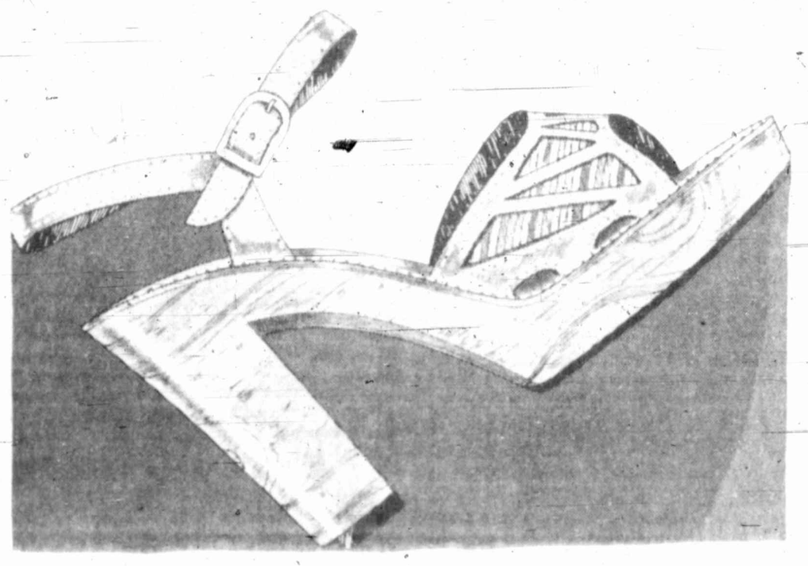

Lisher informed the Latah County Planning and Zoning Commission, "I'll stand right on my property line with a six-gun, and anyone who wants to come across will have to argue with me. No building permit and no way."

One-week diet plan released

Dear Readers: Because of the tremendous number of requests from you for a good, one-week reducing diet, I am starting to publish one today. Here are menu plans for days one and two. Plans for days three through seven will appear in future columns. Good luck!

DAY 1

BREAKFAST
½ grapefruit
1 scrambled egg
2 slices whole wheat diet bread, toasted
Coffee/Tea with artificial sweetener

LUNCH
6 oz. cottage cheese with chopped green pepper, celery and cucumber in lettuce cup
Bottled diet dressing
2 slices diet bread
Apple

DINNER
Consomme
Roast beef (6 oz.)
Carrots
Strawberry sponge

STRAWBERRY SPONGE
(serves 4)

1 package unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 tbsp. liquid sweetener
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 pint strawberries, crushed
2 egg whites

Soften gelatine in cold water in the top of double boiler. Add sweetener and lemon juice. Stir constantly over hot water until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat and add strawberries. Let stand until mixture thickens, then beat until light and fluffy. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into gelatine mixture. Spoon into mold.

DAY 2

BREAKFAST

Cornflakes
Skim milk
1 oz. hard cheese

LUNCH
Roast beef sandwich
Tossed green salad
Diet soda or coffee/tea
Orange

DINNER
6 oz. broiled fish
½ baked acorn squash
Green beans
Gelatine
Coffee

Film award goes to Evans

NEW YORK (AP) — Paramount Pictures has announced the presentation of the David di Donatello Award for best producer of the year to Robert Evans, an American, for the film "Marathon Man."

The award was recently given to Evans at the Grek Theater in Taormina, Sicily. The awards were established in 1955 by the Italian Association of Producers and Distributors for International Films and are sponsored by the Italian president.

"Marathon Man" was the third highest grossing film in Italy in 1976.

Despite break, issues in capital continue

By MIKE CAUSEY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the summer home stretch now, it seems as if everybody in government is either going on vacation or just getting back. Either way, here are some items you may want to ponder at the beach or mountains, or catch up on if you are just getting back in harness:

Pay Raise: White-collar federal civilians and military personnel are due one as of Oct. 1. For civilian employes the increase will be effective with the first pay period beginning on, or after Oct. 1.

President Carter hasn't settled — or at least hasn't made public — the amount yet. But it looks as if the increase will be an across-the-board 7.05 per cent raise, as recommended by his pay agents.

Word on the exact amount of the raise is due soon. If Carter decides to go with something other than the 7.05 per cent — a "catch up with industry raise" — Congress would have to approve it. Otherwise, the 7.05 per cent "comparability" figure — which will cost $3.5 billion — should be it.

Pensions: Retired federal and military personnel will get a 4.3 per cent cost-of-living raise effective Sept. 1. It will show up in checks received in early October.

Military retirees working in government as civilians will be eligible for both the civilian pay raise and the retiree cost-of-living increase.

Double Dippers: The House Investigations subcommittee will begin final work on legislation that could trim pensions for military retirees who take government jobs as civilians in future.

Odds are, Congress won't tamper with the pay and pensions of the 141,000 retired military people now serving in government. Nor is it expected to put a salary-pension curb on retired enlisted personnel. But some retired generals and admirals now earning as much as $80,000 on pay-pension from the government may have to take a pension reduction, or get out.

Hatch Act: Insiders doubt the Senate will have time this year to okay the House-passed bill giving full partisan political participation rights to government workers. They are now limited to passive, non-candidate roles by the Hatch Act.

Union leaders pushing for the Hatch Act changes are confident the Senate will clear the bill early in January or February, and that Carter will sign it. But it probably won't happen this year.

Grade Protection: Both Congress and the White House want to give some legal protection to federal workers facing demotions because of past classification errors, or reorganization. That probably won't happen this year either — if Congress sticks to its October adjournment plans. Meanwhile, the Civil Service Commission is being generous about giving agencies authority to defer demotions due because of unavoidable classification errors.

Trip to the bluff changes perspective

By CHARLIE SHEDD

"Dear Dr. Shedd: Would you like to know a little thing any father can do to help his children over the rough places?

"I grew up in Iowa and played girl's basketball. Girl's basketball is a big thing in Iowa. Because I was tall, I led our team in scoring from my sophomore year on. I got a lot of publicity and was mentioned for All-State. But in my sophomore and junior years I didn't make it. That nearly killed me, because I had my heart set on going to a particular small college which was always in competition for the collegiate championship. Because I didn't make it both of those years, I was way down and must have been awful to live with.

"One night at dinner my father said, 'Ruby, I think you need a trip to the bluff.' Of course, I knew what that meant. Overlooking the Mississippi River, there is a high bluff where our family would go picknicking. Up there you can see for miles and miles. You can also see the farms, the green fields, cows and horses grazing, some little towns and big ones. Plus the river winding forever. You can even see three states.

"So each of those years my father took me on a Saturday to the bluff. We packed a picnic and when we got there, he left me alone for a while just to look.

"Do you understand what I am talking about? When you are troubled and way down, you think that your problem is the only thing.

"But way up high, somehow, you get a different perspective and the bigness of things makes your troubles seem smaller. This is especially true if you are religious.

"My husband and I do this same thing with our children and without exception it has always worked.

"I thought maybe there might be other fathers who could use this idea.

"P. S.. You will be interested to know that when I was a senior, I did make All-State and went to the college of my choice."

Come on troops, let's head for the bluff!

Illegal aliens said easy victims for extortionists

By MILLER BONNER

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP) — Although they steal into America looking for a better way of life, illegal aliens often find themselves the victims of extortionists and narcotics traffickers, says a veteran Border Patrol agent.

Smugglers, charging aliens from $250 to $500 for passage to large American cities such as Houston, Dallas or Chicago, usually turn extortionists once the alien finds a job. Or the smuggler might entice the alien into carrying narcotics across the border in lieu of payment, says Tom Ball, the chief Border Patrol agent in this Rio Grande Valley city.

"Alien smuggling is a big business," Hall said Tuesday. "Last month we caught 69 smugglers and there's no telling how many we missed. They range from the organized crime types to the ones we call weekend smugglers."

The "weekend smugglers" are persons from Houston or San Antonio or Dallas who "come to the border for a weekend or partying and carry a couple of illegal aliens back with them to pay for their trip."

"They usually get $250 to $350 for smuggling an alien to Houston or Dallas and $500 for Detroit or Chicago.

"It's a C.O.D. (cash on delivery) sort of thing," he continued. "A relative in Dallas or Chicago might say, 'I want my brother with me...bring him to me. The smuggler gets half of his fee as a down payment and the other half when the brother arrives."

Journalist to produce flood docu-drama

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As a rule, docu-dramas — dramatized recreations of actual stories — are produced by entertainment types. But now there's a notable exception to the rule: Robert "Shad" Northshield of NBC News.

Now on loan from NBC News to the network's entertainment side, Northshield, a journalist most of his life, starts producing a docu-drama, "Survivors of Buffalo Creek," on Sept. 12 for NBC.

It stars Tony Perkins, will be entirely on videotape, and is about the West Virginia dam disaster that claimed 125 lives in 1972.

It's a radical change in the career of the man who produced the old "Huntley-Brinkley Report" for nearly four years and later made such respected NBC News documentaries as "Guilty by Reason of Race," "The Navajo Way" and "Sins of the Fathers."

Northshield, who began in journalism after World War II service as an infantryman, was asked why NBC's entertainment side tapped him for the two-hour Buffalo Creek show it'll air later this season.

ENTERTAINMENT

It happened the other way around, he said: "I went to them."

He said several things prompted his move. One was that he was restless — his last major NBC News assignment had been as executive producer of NBC's July 4 Bicentennial coverage a year ago.

Another factor was that he'd become impressed with the popularity of such docu-dramas as "Missiles of October" and "Helter-Skelter."

"It seemed to me a guy who'd done a lot of (news) documentary stuff could make a living at that, and also it'd be a lot of fun," he said by phone from his NBC office in New York.

And, he said, various NBC executives liked his docu-drama proposals, among them Richard C. Wald, president of NBC News.

"He'd wanted to do these things — like a re-enactment of the Watergate tapes, things of that sort — but was prevented from doing so because it was decided the news side couldn't use actors," he said.

NBC's heads of non-news shows, Irwin Segelstein and Paul Klein, liked the idea of a staffer doing docu-dramas, and NBC's business affairs chief, Don Carswell, liked it from a cost standpoint, he added.

As a result, Northshield is producing not only the Buffalo Creek show, but two other docu-dramas later on.

Off-Broadway dramatist David Epstein wrote the script of the first effort, Frank, "David and Lisa," Perry is irecting it, "and I'm the nonfiction nut," Northshield said.

"So we all come at it from different angles. ...I don't know a damn thing about how to cast a drama. On the other hand, Frank or David aren't all that interested in being sure it's absolutely accurate.

"But I am. Because I'm 55 years old, I've always done news for a living and I'm not about to become a fiction freak."

FALLING for the first time beneath the weight of the cross, Hans Jablonka, 37, portrays Christ in the new version of the famous Oberammergau, West Germany, Passion Play. The play, which was rewritten by Dr. Alois Fink because of alleged anti-Semitic tendencies, is on stage in Oberammergau this week. Normally produced once in each decade, as it was in 1970, current presentation is considered a test of the new version. (AP Laserphoto)

Press agentry remains oldest, liveliest of theater crafts

By RICHARD L. COE
The Washington Post

Sometimes defined as "the world's second-oldest profession," and sometimes practiced by snake-oil salesmen with the loosest of ethical codes, press agentry is one of the livelier crafts of the theater.

Such folk as Lillian Hellman, S.N. Behrman, Russell Crouse, John O'Hara and Robert Benchley were theatrical press agents in their leaner days, and time has evolved such euphemisms as "councillor on public relations" or "public relations council," the term a masterly practitioner, Edward L. Bernays, persuaded the phone companies to introduce into the Yellow Pages.

Their assignment in theater is to spread the word about their employer's attraction to boost business and prolong its run. This is achieved by supplying facts and bodies to the hungry media. Unless a production is talked about, written about, audiences will not appear.

Between media people and press agents the relationship is a supreme example of trust and suspicion, love and hate. It is vital that the agent be a complete ghost. Only exceptional employers fail to have fits when the agent's name is mentioned and their own ignored.

Thus, media people, relishing their apparent omniscience, and agents, anxious to keep their names out of print, veil the liaison. But when agents rise in the manner of Hellman, Behrman, Crouse, O'Hara and Benchley, it is permissible to mention their abandoned dealings.

Such a one is Harvey Sabinson, who began to edge his way "up" by teaching, first at Yale and now at City University of New York, Queensborough, closer to his Long Island home.

Don't rely heavily on reopening bid

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When the opening bidder's partner is too weak to respond, the fourth player should usually reopen the bidding even with a rather poor hand. It's foolish to rely heavily on such a reopening bid.

With a slightly better hand East would have doubled one heart (for takeout) instead of bidding two clubs. Since East's bid denied real strength, West should not have doubled two hearts.

West actually doubled in a very positive tone. After the plaster had stopped dropping from the ceiling, West opened the seven of clubs.

East could have defeated the contract by taking the ace of clubs and returning a diamond. Instead, East returned the queen of clubs at the second trick.

South won the king of clubs and innocently led the three of hearts toward dummy. West glared suspiciously at the card but played low, allowing dummy's eight to win.

MAKES OVERTRICK

Declarer led to the ace of spades and returned the king of hearts to force out the ace. Now West could get only one spade and one diamond, and South made the doubled contract with an overtrick.

If you want your partner to compete with a light hand, don't punish him by doubling the opponents prematurely. When in doubt, let the opponents play the hand undoubled.

Emmy effort revived

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — We hate to sadden award-show haters, but it seems there really will be a 29th annual Emmy awards show for evening programs after all — on NBC's "Big Event" next Sept. 11.

You'll recall this tuxedo rally once was set for May 15, but fell apart amid feuding by the New York and Los Angeles chapters of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The feud got so bad that TV stars here defected from the show by the gross. This raised the grave prospect that almost no one in nighttime TV would get an Emmy award this year. Unthinkable.

So in July they agreed on two separate Emmy tribes. The new Academy of Television Arts and Sciences here got custody of all evening Emmyizing. The Gotham gang got daytime and sports to salute.

ATAS, as the evening shift is called, issued its roster of nominations last week. The roster was impressive. It was more than a quarter-inch thick and weighed 11 ounces.

It contained 66 categories of nominations, compared to a parsinomious 18 for last April's rousing "Television Critics' Circle Awards" festival on CBS. ATAS does not mess around.

Fortunately, only the major categories — acting, writing, directing and showing up for last year's Emmys — will be announced on the air.

The roster also showed 594 names eligible for Emmys. This doesn't mean 594 folks were nominated, though. Many contenders were nominated for more than one show or in more than one category.

'Alice' had dream of being singer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's one of life's little ironies that Linda Lavin grew up intending to be a singer, now plays a widow lady who dreams of being a singer, but doesn't get to sing on camera in her series.

The rest of the time she just goes about her business as Alice Hyatt, mother of a 12-year-old boy, waitressing in a rundown Phoenix cafe full of assorted joke-cracking characters.

"The original concept was that Alice would do some singing, play the local Ramada Inn, but concepts change," said Miss L., a veteran of Broadway musicals as well as stage and TV dramas.

What happened, she said, is that CBS "decided it probably wouldn't be a good idea to have Alice always talking about wanting to go to Hollywood to be a singer, that she shouldn't be complaining.

"It felt she should be resigned to finding stimulation from her life and job as a waitress in a diner because she has a boy to raise.

"They thought it (the singing dream) was too frustrating to work on, also that people don't want to sit and listen to somebody sing in a sitcom for five minutes.

Agence France-Presse

HONG KONG — Officials in Hanoi have issued a "death notice" to people planning to flee the country, the English daily South China Morning Post reported Monday.

The paper said that Vietnamese refugees had been branded "traitors" and that at least 10 people were executed earlier this month as a warning to others planning to flee.

Refugees arriving in Hong Kong reported that 38 people were caught while trying to sail for Hong Kong from Danang last month. After being tried by a people's tribunal on July 25, 10 of them — six military men and four fleeing service in the armed forces — were labelled traitors and shot August 3, the Post said.

It added that, according to the refugees, the others were sentenced to 25 years hard labor.

Since the beginning of this year more than 400 Vietnamese refugees have landed in Hong Kong after being picked up from boats in the South China Sea.

Carter to consult allies on bomb decision

By WALTER PINCUS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter has postponed his expected decision on producing neutron artillery shells and Lance missile warheads partly because of sharp criticism of the new tactical nuclear weapons that has developed in West Germany, according to informed government sources.

A debate over the weapons, which would be used on West German territory, has been raging in that country and has taken on political significance for Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's government.

Opposition to the neutron weapons also has been fanned throughout Europe by a concerted Communist party campaign in countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The President, a White House source said Monday, "wants to consult with our allies," before announcing his decision on the weapons.

Carter, a White House spokesman said last month, was to disclose his final production decision shortly after Aug. 15, the date a Defense Department Energy Research and Development Administration report on the weapons was due at the White House.

A Carter aide said the report had been received, "but the President needs time to review it."

A presidential decision, the aide said, is not expected now until September.

Neutron weapons are the first tactical nuclear shells and warheads that kill enemy troops through enhanced radiation rather than destroying their tanks and installations by heat and blast.

Because the neutron shells and warheads cut down on blast and heat, proponents argue they cause less collateral damage off the immediate battlefield.

The larger proposed neutron 8-inch shell, however, also would deliver a radiation dose one mile from ground zero large enough to kill almost half the people exposed to it within 60 to 90 days. The others who took such a dose would become temporarily ill and, after recovery, be more likely than those not exposed to get leukemia or some other form of cancer in later years.

During the Senate debate on the funds for production of the neutron weapons, proponents argued the neutron weapons, since they would create less physical destruction in Europe, could be used in West Germany and on the territory of other NATO allies.

Up to that point, the general public understanding in Europe had been that tactical nuclear weapons deployed with NATO forces were to be used in East Germany or other Communist countries.

Disclosure of the neutron weapons and the idea they would be used in NATO rather than Warsaw Pact countries set off the present debate.

It has been acrimonious, in part, because NATO Commander Gen. Alexander M. Haig said the allies had already given the neutron weapons "enthusiastic support."

President Ford last November approved production of neutron shells for the 20-mile-range, 8-inch howitzer and the warhead of the 56-mile-range Lance missile. His decision, however, was classified and thus kept secret from the public.

When news stories on the new neutron weapons first appeared in June, both President Carter, his White House aides and NATO governments said they had not known about the planned shells and warheads.

Pentagon officials have said they wanted to keep development of neutron weapons secret from the Soviet and other Communist governments until they were produced and deployed to NATO forces in Europe.

Under current planning, that deployment — if the President decides to go ahead — would not take place until 1979.

According to Pentagon officials, NATO military commanders and defense ministers from the NATO countries were told last year about the neutron weapons as part of a U.S. program to modernize the tactical nuclear weapons in Europe.

Fischer may play again

The Washington Post

Just five years ago, the world's attention was turned to Reykjavik, Iceland, where Bobby Fischer of the United States and Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union were matching their wits over a marble and mahogany chess table.

Fischer, then 29, won the world championship, breaking a 26-year Russian monopoly of the title; it was the first time since 1946 that a non-Russian had even reached the world championship finals. Fischer earned a record purse of $250,000 and became a cult figure.

After spending most of his life working for the crown, Fischer didn't wear it well. He hasn't played chess in public since the Spassky games. In 1975, Fischer lost his title by default, refusing to defend it after a dispute over match rules. Rumors of new games, new opponents and new locals have surfaced periodically since then but were never realized. He emerged briefly into public view recently when he lost a $5-million lawsuit against Brad Darrach, who had written a book about his behavior before and during the match with Spassky.

The latest report of a prospective opponent comes from Holland, where former Soviet grandmaster Victor Korchnoi has told the press he hopes to play a match with Fischer next February. Korchnoi has just won his way to the finals of the world championship challengers' competition, and is a likely prospect to play champion Anatoly Karpov for the title next year. A match with Fischer could be an interesting warmup for this contest.

According to a Dutch newspaper, West German financier Wilfried Hilgert has agreed to pay Fischer $3 million for the match. "I've been in contact with Fischer and in early September I'll go to America to meet him and fix further details," Korchnoi told reporters.

Very few people have contact with Fischer today. He lives a secluded life in South Pasadena, Calif., where he moved shortly after the Spassky match. He chose the Pasadena area not only because of the weather, but because of its proximity to Ambassador College and the headquarters of the Worldwide Church of God. Fischer, according to some reports, has given large donations to the church.

"I've had no communications with Fischer lately," said Edmund M. Edmundson, an official of the U.S. Chess Federation. "As far as I know he lives in a small house in South Pasadena and he must live frugally because he does nothing for a living. He must depend on royalties and some leftover money from the Spassky match."

When he began to play in chess tournaments, the Brooklyn-born Fischer was still a small boy and would sometimes cry after losing a game. But as he fought his way to the U.S. championship and into the top ranks of international chess, he became known as stubborn, temperamental and myopic. At the time of the showdown with Spassky, Fischer was decribed by a U.S. grandmaster, Larry Evans, as "the most individualistic, intransigent, uncommunicative, uncooperative, solitary, self-contained and independent chess master of all time, the loneliest chess champion in the world. He is also the strongest player in the world. In fact, the strongest player who ever lived."

"Even though he hasn't let the world see much of Bobby Fischer recently, he did have an enormous impact on the popularity of chess. "There are now two dozen strong young players who wouldn't be as active if Fischer hadn't inspired them," said Edmundson, who added remorsefully, "The legacy he left is enormous."

Russian film praised

MOSCOW — A documentary film on Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's visit in June to Paris has been warmly praised by newspapers here after it was shown on Soviet television Sunday night.

The film, shot by a Soviet TV staff, extolled French-Soviet friendship. The film "shows once again how one can and should resolve international problems and deepen mutual understanding and confidence between peoples," the Communist party newspaper Pravda commented.

Pravda called Brezhnev a "knight of peace" and praised his "untiring activity" in stressing the Soviet Union's peace policy.

The Culture Ministry's newspaper Soviet Culture praised the documentary's producers for including extracts of Soviet news reels on past summit meetings.

Campaign opens to get favorable Senate bill

By JOHN JACOBS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The oil industry formally opened its campaign Tuesday to win in the Senate a set of energy concessions it had sought but lost in the House.

Charles DiBona, executive vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, said President Carter's energy plan, which the House approved Aug. 5, will do "more harm than good" and will not provide additional supplies of energy by 1985. He said it is more of a tax bill than an energy bill and added that increased domestic production of oil and gas, rather than the conservation the House bill envisions, is needed to meet rising energy needs.

Carter's House-passed plan calls for a sizeable tax on U.S. crude oil, to raise its price and deter consumption. The proceeds from this wellhead tax would go to the Treasury, then back to the public through income tax rebates.

The oil companies agree the price of their product should go up, but think some of the proceeds should stay with them, as incentives to increase production. They also think Congress should take all price controls off natural gas, intstead of just relaxing them somewhat, as Carter has proposed.

DiBona said the conservation measures in the House bill would only "slow the growth rate" of energy consumption. Even if Carter's goals are met, he said, U.S. energy consumption would be 25 per cent higher in 1985 than it was last year, requiring increased energy production.

DiBona said the House legislation would cost the American taxpayer an average of $18 billion a year through 1985, or a total of $145 billion. If approved by the Senate, it would be one of the largest, if not the largest, tax increases ever imposed by Congress, he said, with less than half of it refunded to the taxpayers through rebates.

A researcher at the Institute said in a telephone interview that DiBona had inflated the figures somewhat by assuming things about the bill that are not in it.

Recent statistics prepared by the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation show an anticipated $96.5 billion in gross federal revenues from taxes through 1985, or an average of $12.1 billion a year. With a total rebate of $43.6 billion for the same period, that yearly tax figure would drop to $6.6 billion, or one-third of what DiBona suggested it could cost the taxpayers.

One of the most important aspects of the House bill is the crude oil tax, that would increase the cost of a gallon of gasoline an estimated four to seven cents. The House bill scheduled the equalization tax to be phased out by 1981, but DiBona apparently included it in his calculations through 1985.

DiBona said at a news conference that the measure could send gas prices up to $1 a gallon, "not immediately, but in the long run."

"The price at the (gas) pump would be less under our plan" (than proposed in the House bill), DiBona said, "but I can't tell you how much."

In ending price controls on oil and natural gas, DiBona said the money that would go to the government in taxes could be better spent in searching for and developing new domestic supplies of energy. He said he was "absolutely confident" that, if the oil companies did not have to pay the equalization tax, they would plough back the additional revenues into new production of oil and gas. He said he could not guarantee that, however, and suggested that when the Senate considers the bill, it could find a way to force that guarantee.

Carter administration officials have said that oil industry profits are high enough even under price controls to encourage new discoveries. But DiBona said the incentives are just not there — that "the bill as it now stands actually would reduce capital available for exploration and production — not increase it."

Glasscock, Mitchell, Pecos get wildcats; pool extenders final

Exploration has been scheduled for Glasscock, Mitchell and Pecos counties, while strike offset sites have been staked in Pecos. Also, Pecos and Reeves fields gained extensions.

MAPCO, Inc., Tulsa, Okla., accounted for a 9,700-foot exploratory test in Glasscock, 23 miles south of Big Spring. It is No. 1-D. Ballenger.

MITCHELL TEST

Location is 2,200 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 88, block 26, T&P survey, 1⅝ mile northeast of the Champion Lake (Yates) gas field.

PECOS ACTIVITY

C&K Petroleum, Inc., operating from Midland, will attempt to reopen Devonian-Fusselman-Montoya gas production in the depleted Hershey field of Pecos County, with the scheduling of its No. 1 Maddox-State.

Located ⅜ mile northeast of the triple pay discovery, it spots 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 7, block 50, T-10, T&P survey. The projected depth is 17,000 feet.

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., Midland, plan No. 1 Steve, a ⅝-mile west offset to the Lehn-Apco, South (Ellenburger) oil opener in North Pecos, about 14 miles west of Girvin.

Location is 4,100 feet from south and 2,600 feet from east lines of section 605, Mrs. L. Merchant survey. The planned depth is 4,800 feet.

The discovery, Lovelady No. 1 Chalkley, finaled in February for 144 barrels of 44.2-gravity oil, plus 90,000 cubic feet of gas daily, through a 10-64-inch choke and from open hole at 4,700-4,714 feet.

Also, Costa Resources, Inc., Dallas, No. 3 Skua, Inc., is planned as a ⅜-mile southeast offset to the one-well Horsehead Crossing (Clear Fork) gas field of North Pecos.

Drillsite is 1,940 feet from south and 687 feet from east lines of section 41, block 9, H&GN survey, 10 miles east of Imperial. Contract depth is 3,900 feet.

The discovery, Costa No. 1 Skua, finaled last March for 430,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 3,203-3,308 feet.

WELL FINALS

Texaco Inc. has recompleted as a third Yates gasser in the TCI field of Pecos, its No. 1-A-5 H. J. Eaton, former Grayburg oiler, nine miles east of Imperial.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential was for 104,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 1,132-1,676 feet, following 500 gallons of acid on the pay section.

REEVES EXTENDER

Texaco also finaled a location north extension to the Reaves, North (3200) gas field of Reeves County, eight miles south of Orla.

It guaged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 260,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 3,078-3,116 feet. The pay had been acidized with 1,000 gallons and fractured with 3,000 gallons and 3,000 pounds of sand.

STERLING STEPOUT

Texaco Inc. No. 2-M Sterling Fee is slated as a ½-mile southeast stepout to Canyon oil production in the Big Salute pool of Sterling County.

The test is slated for a bottom depth of 8,100 feet, and spots 2,640 feet from north and 660 feet from west lines of section 27, block 31, T-5-S, T&P survey, 13 miles southwest of Sterling City.

Mesa gasser opens pool

Mesa Petroleum Co. of Midland has finaled a gas discovery and a pay confirmation in Crockett County, about 29 miles southwest of Ozona.

No. 1-62 Hoover finaled as a Wolfcamp gas strike for a calculated, absolute open flow of 900,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio of 48,000-1. Condensate gravity is 48 degrees.

Drilled to 7,708 feet, it has 4½-inch casing set on bottom. Tests in the Canyon zone from 7,220-7,630 feet, and in the Clear Fork from 4,032-4,044 feet, were unsuccessful.

The firm's No. 1-61 Hoover has been completed as a second Clear Fork gasser and ⅞-mile southeast extension in an undesignated area of Crockett County, 30 miles southwest of Ozona.

The well gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 625,000 cubic feet of dry gas, per day, through perforations at 2,590-2,605 feet, natural.

Drilled to 7,710 feet, it also tested through Canyon perforations at 6,192-6,644 feet.

Both of the above wells were scheduled for testing in the American (Canyon) gas field.

The Clear Fork discovery was Mesa No. 1-64 Hoover, which finaled in June for 470,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 4,094-4,110 feet.

Discovery indicated

An unidentified gas discovery has been indicated in Eddy County, N.M., with the flowing of gas to pits at the estimated, daily rate of 750,000 cubic feet, along with three to four barrels of water per hour, at R. C. Bennett and J. C. Ryan, Midland, No. 1 Penasco Communitized.

The flow was through perforations at 6,569-6,578 feet, which had been treated with 2,000 gallons of acid, and 10,000 cubic feet of nitrogen.

Drilled to 8,973 feet, it has 4½-inch casing set at 6,802 feet. A drillstem test from 8,800-8,973 feet, recovered only drilling fluid, as did a test from 8,325-8,425 feet.

Testing continues at the project which spots 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 31-18s-25e, 11 miles southwest of Artesia and two miles northwest of Morrow gas production in the Boyd field.

FGE slates Gainesprobe

Florida Gas Exploration, Midland, filed application to drill No. 1 John J. Swint, a 12,000-foot wildcat in Gaines County, 15 miles east of Seminole.

Drillsite is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 77, block H, Dallas & Wichita survey, five miles north of the Howland, South (Siluro-Devonian) field.

Gas strikes reported

HOUSTON — Transco Exploration Co. has announced discovery of three new gas reservoirs at East Cameron Block 263 offshore Louisiana in the Gulf of Mexico.

Initial discovery on the block was announced in 1976 and an 18-well platform was ordered. Drilling of the first four wells from "A" platform resulted in the new discoveries.

The No. A-11 discovered two gas sands more than a mile south of the platform in a new fault block and will require several additional development wells.

The No. A-7 well, now drilling, has confirmed the known field pays and found a new, deeper reservoir.

The development of this lease will continue into 1978 when production is expected to begin.

The 5,000-acre block was acquired in the July 1975 federal lease sale for $4.4 million. Owners are Transco, 75 per cent; Mesa Petroleum Co., 10 per cent, and McMoRan Exploration Co., 15 per cent.

Ward sector well finals

Exxon Corp. has finaled No. 3 R. Q. Seale, one location northeast extension in a southeast segment of the field, six miles south of Pyote.

It had a daily, flowing potential of 209 barrels of oil, with gravity and gas-oil ratio unreported, producing through perforations at 6,260-6,274 feet. Operator had fractured with 900 gallons and 6,750 pounds of sand.

HNG Oil Co., Midland, staked site for No. 4-C-124 Middleton, a link test on the northwest side of the field, 1,980 feet from northwest and southwest lines of section 124, block 34, H&TC survey, four miles southwest of Pyote. Slated depth is 6,700 feet.

HNG stakes Eddy test

HNG Oil Co., operating from Midland, filed application for a 13,000-foot wildcat in Eddy County, N.M., ½ mile northwest of Malaga townsite. It is No. 1 Kirkes-Federal.

Drillsite is 2,130 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 4-24s-28e, 1¼ mile northeast of the firm's No. 1-8 Ogden, recent Morrow gas discovery.

The strike finaled July 7 for a calculated, absolute open flow of 6.257 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, through perforations at 12,216-12,548 feet.

HNG Oil Co., Midland, No. 2-138 Robertson, Ward County Cherry Canyon prospect, and southeast twin to the discovery of the Phantom (Ellenburger) field, flowed gas at the daily rate of 1 million cubic feet, along with 60 barrels of water per hour.

The flow was through a 28-64-inch choke and perforations at 5,092-5,134 feet. The section earlier had been fractured with 20,000 gallons of fluid, plus 16,000 pounds of sand. Testing continued.

Gas shows in Runnels

North American Exploration Co., Abilene, was drilling below 5,155 feet on a 5,400-foot wildcat contract at No. 1 Cathey Estate, Runnels test, after it recovered gas and shows on a drillstem test in the Fry sand.

Tool was open one hour on the test taken from 4,5054,550 feet. Recovery was 220 feet of gas and 30 feet of heavily oil-cut mud.

Location is 3,990 feet from northwest and 3,2,000 feet from northeast lines of John Early survey 449, ½ mile west of Wingate and 1¼ mile west of the abandoned Sanford (Fry and Gardner) oil pool.

The flow was through perforations at 6,214-6,246 feet, which had been acidized with 5,600 gallons.

It was drilled to 6,250 feet, and has 4½-inch casing set at 6,259 feet.

Production was indicated while drilling in the Odom, with the recovery of 458 feet of gas and 75 feet of gas-cut muddy salt water on a drillstem test from 5,969-6,017 feet. Also, a 1½-hour test in the Ellenburger from 6,185-6,260 feet, recovered 540 feet of free oil and 444 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud, and flowed gas at the rate of 540,000 cubic feet per day.

By JIM STEINBERG

"President Jimmy Carter's energy policy is a disaster for Texas and the country," U.S. Rep. James Collins of Dallas said Tuesday in Midland.

While clutching the 500-page energy plan, the veteran member of the Interstate Commerce Committee said that there is a good chance the Senate will be able to make improvements in the plan that the House of Representatives has not made.

Collins told members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association that legislation as proposed gives the Federal Power Commission absolute control over the industry and abolishes the separate status given to intrastate gas.

But worst of all the legislation gives the government power to "tax, tax, tax" oil operations in this country.

The sacrifices made by abolishing the various depletions for oil production and raising the price of U.S. produced oil to match the price of foreign oil will not be plowed back into production under the Carter plan, but instead be used to provide for social welfare programs, Collins said.

During the eight years of the program, Collins said he calculated $360 billion would be funneled into Arab economies to pay for oil.

The tragic thing about this, Collins said, is that this money exodus would cost about seven million jobs.

"For every $40,000 sent overseas, we lose one permanent job in the United States," Collins said.

"The bill is designed to tax anyone who produces oil and gas or anyone who uses oil and gas, especially the utilities people. The house version of the bill that was passed will increase the cost of electricity in Texas 300 per cent," Collins said.

He called the government regulation energy the worst ever federal intrusion on the business front. He quoted figures showing that it cost more to run those agencies than all the money spent on wildcat drilling, development drilling and workover operations.

Collins expressed hope that senatorial friends of the oil industry from the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Alabama and New Mexico would help to get needed complete deregulation of gas prices and plowback provisions so that cash could be put back into production, development and refining.

Of President Carter, the Dallas Republican said, he "has been in Washington for seven months, and has not accomplished one constructive thing for America."

And Collins said about Midland: "It's the most solidly Republican section in the South."

Renovations provide digs

By KAREN DEYOUNG
The Washington Post

HAVANA — According to Fidel Castro, his government is charging the United States $250,000 to renovate the old American embassy building here.

The United States, Castro said last week, is billing Cuba $1 million for the same amount of repairs on the old Cuban embassy in Washington.

What those figures prove, Castro said in one of his frequent, not-so-subtle digs at capitalism, is that the Cuban people are very honest, that American wages are so high that Cubans can do three times the work for the same price, and that he is saving the U.S. State Department $750,000.

Whatever the price, neither Washington nor Havana feel much like quibbling at this point. On Sept. 1, after 16 years of broken diplomatic relations, the two countries will exchange 10-person interest sections in each other's capitals.

The delegations will be a far cry from full diplomatic representation — with the Cubans operating under the Czechoslovakian flag in Washington, and the Americans formally attached to the Swiss embassy here. But they are among the first steps in the construction of what Castro's brother, Raul, described last spring as a bridge, being built "brick by brick, 90 miles from Key West to Varadero beach."

Once the U.S. delegation arrives here, few people in Havana will be happier than the Swiss. Since the day the United States severed relations with Cuba in 1961, they have served as consulate, bank, friend and family to hundreds of Americans here, as well as occasional diplomatic go-between for Washington and Havana.

While the Swiss perform the same functions for the governments of Ecuador, Brazil, Guatemala and Honduras — none of which have diplomatic relations with Cuba, and all of which pay Switzerland to conduct their business here — it is the United States that has taken up by far the most time and manpower. When the Americans arrive Sept. 1, the Swiss embassy's foreign interest section staff will be reduced from six foreign service officers to one.

That one will move out of the old American embassy building, where the interest section has been housed, and back into the Swiss embassy across town.

"The Americans will take over completely," one relieved Swiss official said. "We are very glad."

Among the duties the U.S. representatives will take over is visiting several dozen U.S. citizens — some American-born, some naturalized Cubans — in Cuban jails for crimes ranging from espionage to drug smuggling.

In addition to sending each prisoner a package of medicine and toiletries four times a year, "We usually request visits with each of them three or four times a year," the Swiss official said. But with most of the prisoners, he said, the Cubans rarely allow more than one annual visit.

'Influx-control' policy enforced

By JACK FOISIE
The Los Angeles Times

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Bulldozers flattened the squatter village of Modderdam here last week, destroying the shacks that had housed 8,000 black people.

For the most part, the blacks looked on silently and sullenly. A few protesters, white churchmen among them, were arrested or dispersed by tear gas.

The bulldozers had been ordered in by authorities enforcing the so-called influx-control laws, which were enacted to limit the number of blacks in the area so that they will not take jobs from the "coloreds." Coloreds are people of mixed race who are themselves discriminated against, although not to the same extent as blacks.

Another black squatter village is scheduled for destruction this week and, in all, the influx-control program is expected to displace about 26,000 black squatters.

Where these thousands will go is not clear. The government wants them to go back to their tribal homelands but few blacks are inclined to do so. There is no work for them there and they are not really wanted, since tribal chiefs often feel that urban blacks are no longer loyal tribesmen.

"I believe that most of the evicted people will end up just squatting somewhere else in Cape Town," a municipal official said.

He expressed repugnance at having to carry out the eviction order but said it had come from Pretoria, South Africa's administrative capital, and he had no choice but to comply with it.

Opponents of the influx-control laws had gone into court in an effort to halt destruction of the squatter villages but Parliament prevailed and the government went ahead with its program. The action was generally seen as a further hardening of Prime Minister John Vorster's apartheid policy.

Alliance, PTA to man centers

Three special school information centers will be manned by the City Council Parent Teacher Association (PTA) in cooperation with the Midland Alliance.

Free brochures and maps will be distributed at the booths between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday and again on August 20 and 21.

The booths will be located inside Gibsons, 3111 Cuthbert Ave., Skaggs Albertsons, 1002 Andrews Highway, and Sears, Cuthbert Avenue and Midkiff Drive.

Also at the booths will be materials for people to write out questions on school matters relating to school attendance areas, busing or general school subjects of concern. Someone from the Midland Independent School District will return the call, Mrs. Joan Baskin of the Midland Alliance said.

During the weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., information on schools is available by calling the Midland Alliance at 682-0024.

Firemen called to truck mishap

BIG LAKE — Volunteer firemen were called out at approximately 2:30 a.m. Tuesday when a propane transport truck with a full load of about 9,000 gallons overturned four miles south of Big Lake.

The driver was not injured. Firemen washed the highway down and extinguished several small fires caused by sparks.

New York designer, Blass, to visit Midland

Bill Blass, widely-acclaimed New York City fashion designer, will narrate an Aug. 25 showing of his 1977-78 fall and winter collection in Midland Country Club.

Cocktails and dinner will precede the fashion modeling at this black-tie affair and seating will be both reserved, to be filled in order of receipt, and on a first-come basis.

Persons wishing more information or invitations may dial 683-7366.

The style show is the annual fund-raising event of the Midland Symphony Guild to benefit the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale. The collection is being brought to Midland through the courtesy of Julian Gold, Inc.

Fashion director blends clothes with seasons

By LINDA KAY
Copley News Service

"I don't believe in buying anything that doesn't do 10,000 things."

The lady practices what she preaches.

"I'll wear these pants with sweaters for fall, Van Wagner said after the show, grabbing a midnight blue sweater from a nearby chair and holding the thigh-length, dolman-sleeved, loosely knit number to her.

"To soften the blazer for fall, I'll use a ruffled blouse," she said.

Van Wagner recently returned from a three-week trip to Europe, where she previewed fashions for fall. She is fashion director for a department store chain.

Clothing for fall will be pale, shades of pink, blue and yellow joining traditional tan, camel and brown.

Advice on operating fireplace dampers

By GENE GARY
Copley News Service

Q. We have a fireplace with a damper and our friends have given us conflicting advice on closing the damper. Some say to close the damper, even if hot embers are left in the fireplace. They say if not, the chimney will draw the heat out of the room. We have a gas furnace for main heat. Others say to leave the damper open all night and they say that the fumes would be locked in the house when the damper is closed, which is not good for our health. What is your opinion, please? — C.J.

A. Here is professional advice on the operation of fireplace dampers taken from a technical publication. Make sure the damper is wide open before lighting the fire. Many fireplaces are operated with dampers constantly open, but dampers do not have to be constantly opened and closed in order to be of great value in promoting smooth discharge of smoke and arresting the down draft. Experiment to see how much the damper opening can be cut down to save heat while discharging all the smoke. When only a bed of glowing coals remain, the damper can be brought to nearly a fully closed position. But again, be sure to open it before refueling with a smoke-producing fuel.

Q. I have an area of about 10x10-feet on the front of our brick house that has been discolored by harsh chemical cleaners.

Is there any dye that could be purchased to color these bricks. The original color was chocolate brown. Of course I would want a dye that would withstand the weather and not color the mortar. Or would some other treatment be better, such as sand-blasting? Your advice will be appreciated. — E.E.

A. I would recommend sandblasting as I know of no practical way to restore the bricks to match the undamaged areas without coloring the mortar. And application of a new dye might give the area a completely different appearance. As the color of brick goes completely through the brick, removing the damaged surface should restore the color. You could try an electric sander and coarse sandpaper, which might do the desired job.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My 24-year-old daughter has made a decision that is breaking my heart. I honestly wonder if she's in her right mind.

At 16 she married because she was pregnant, and now she has seven children. The last two were identical twin girls born only five days ago. She and her husband have decided to keep one of the twins, and give the other up for adoption. Abby, can you believe this? Their reason is so terrible that I'm almost ashamed to tell you.

One of the twins was born with a club foot and cleft palate. The other twin is perfect. Both are beautiful and otherwise healthy. They want to keep the perfect one and give the other one away. The thought of separating those twin babies makes me sick.

I've tried to tell my daughter that the club foot and cleft palate can be corrected with surgery, but she says that six children are all they can afford.

I offered to take the defective baby, but she says it would create problems to have her in the family. She's already contacted an adoption agency, and a childless couple is waiting to adopt the twin.

Can you help me? Please hurry. — HEARTSICK GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Urge your daughter to see a psychiatrist. She could be disturbed, or suffering from a temporary depression from which she would recover. Should she go through with the adoption it will not be final for a year. Perhaps she'll regain her senses by that time, but if so, what a cruel ordeal for the adoptive parents!

DEAR ABBY: My sister has developed an allergy to doing dishes. The minute she starts doing the dishes, she sneezes. It's not just one sneeze, but a long string of them.

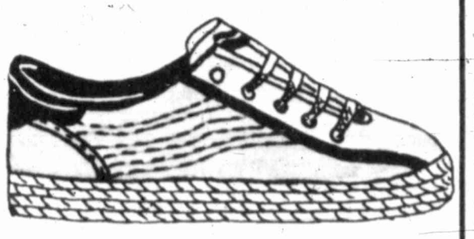

—Mama says she can't help it, so I have to do the dishes alone. What should I do? I think my sister is just trying to get out of doing the dishes. — DISHWASHFR

DEAR DISH: Your sister could be allergic to the soap powder or liquid detergent you use for dishwashing. A doctor could determine this. If that's the case, it's time for a change. (What a spot for a commercial!)

Vikki Branch, Boatman marry in Nacogdoches

NACOGDOCHES — Vikki Vyn Branch and Gerrel Timothy Boatman, both of Nacogdoches, were married in a double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. Saturday in the First Christian Church here. Rev. Clark Sanner of Uvalde officiated the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are D. T. Branch of 2420 Apperson St. in Midland, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Boatman of Nacogdoches.

When presented in marriage by her father the bride wore a formal gown of white Tiffany knit. Re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearls enhanced the fitted bodice and high neckline. Buttons closed the cuffs on the Victorian sleeves. Matching lace edged the hemline of the full circular skirt which flowed into a chapel train.

Serving as the bride's attendants were Gayle Hester, the bride's sister of Andrews; Connie Rowell of Nacogdoches; Lauri Hester, the bride's niece of Andrews, and Sue Boatman, the bridegroom's sister-in-law of Nacogdoches. Flower girl was Stephanie Manness, the bridegroom's niece of Beaumont.

The bridegroom's attendants were David Chandler of Nacogdoches; Ronnie Boatman and Jackie Boatman, the bridegroom's brothers of Nacogdoches, and Brian Presley, the bride's cousin of Jennings, La.

Ushers were Lynn Westmoreland, Johnny Hill, Kent Crank and Stan Sisco, all of Nacogdoches. Ring bearer was Guy Hester, the bride's nephew of Andrews.

Mrs. Gerrel Timothy Boatman

Birth announced

ELGIN — Mr. and Mrs. Steve Cavender of Elgin, formerly of Midland, announce the birth of a son, Kit Colvin, in Kings Daughters Hospital in Temple.

Both parents taught in Midland schools. Cavender now is curriculum director in the Elgin Independent School District.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Cavender of Odessa and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. James of Temple, and Mrs. H. E. James of Pendleton is a great-grandmother.

Designer turns to home field

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The pretty designer with the carrot-green hair, Zandra Rhodes of London, whose dress fashions include the chains, safety pins, holes and tears of the street styles known as "punk" fashions, is taking a more conservative approach in designing home fashions for Americans.

"America has turned the home furnishings market into a fashion industry, a moving market," she says. "Americans care terribly how their homes look and they are proud of every room. In Europe people don't invite you to see their bedrooms or bathrooms as they do in America."

Although "the sky is the limit" in American home fashion, she says, the bath rugs she has designed are conservative, considering her reputation. But she points out she has always seemed "more vivacious in the media" than she really is.

Only her little "squiggle," a worm-like motif, shows up as the motif on the rug. The squiggle, which has become more or less a trademark, "works its way into many things and more or less takes over," she says.

Zandra's street fashions and her line of topless nightgowns and slips are widely known. Her fashion inspiration has come from many sources. One dress, sunbursts on a red background, is based on a trip to Mexico; a beautiful green accordion-pleated silk chiffon is the color of an early morning landscape. She isn't sure what her summer trip to Utah will provide but she was taking her sketch pad with her.

"I trained as a textile designer at the Royal College of Art in London, but in the '60s all the factories considered my work too extreme and too personal. I decided to set up my own print works and for two years I sold my work to dress designers. I didn't like what they were doing with them so I began to make my own dresses."

Her success was built on personal initiative with "some American backing," she says. Her day began at 5 a.m. and she had one operator helping her do everything.

The ritual team of Permian Area No. 286 of the Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Eagles received a score of 96 in competition at the National Fraternal Order of Eagles convention held in Minneapolis, Minn.

Ex-residents visit

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Derache of Jefferson, S.D., are visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lynch of Midland. Mr. and Mrs. Derache are former residents of Midland. Their daughter, Barbara, was married recently in Jefferson to Thomas Bernard.

Carrie Lynn Morgan bride of Dean Feuge

Carrie Lynn Morgan of Rankin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Morgan, also of Rankin and formerly of Midland, Saturday became the bride of Gehrig Dean Feuge of Rankin in Crestview Baptist Church. The Rev. Kenneth James officiated the double ring vows.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon H. Feuge of Rankin.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown designed and made by her mother. The princess silhouette featured a Queen Anne neckline on a fitted Empire bodice, and an A-line skirt. A cotton Knottingham lace overlay and long tapered lace sleeves accented the dress. The chapel-length lace train gathered to a bow at the back, and delicate flower lace edged the neckline, sleeves and train.

The bridal bouquet was made up of white roses and carnations accented with baby's breath and white streamers.

Bridal attendants were Elaine Evans, Karen Zeitler and Judy Hopson, all of Midland. Marcy Northcott of Rankin, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

Best man was Kirby Shipp of Rankin. Other attendants of the bridegroom were Gerald Head of Midkiff and Tommy Gray of Rankin. Roger Morgan and Eddie Morgan, both of Midland and brothers of the bride, Carl Feuge of Rankin, brother of the bridegroom, and Gary McSpadden of Rankin seated the guests.

A reception was held in the Parlor Room of Crestview Baptist Church. After a wedding trip to San Angelo, the couple will live in College Station, where both will be sophomore students in the fall.

Mrs. Gehrig Dean Feuge

Among guests at the reception were Mrs. Ruby Stenbridge of Fort Worth, grandmother of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Morgan of Rankin and Mrs. Geraldine Padgett of Midland, grandparents of the bride.

Givenchy furs more exotic

By MICHELE COOPER
Agence France-Presse

PARIS — Furs are everywhere in the high fashion collections for next autumn and winter, but it is the usually classic Givenchy who gives them the most exotic treatment.

In the last full day of fashion shows for the coming season, Givenchy presented not only the traditional minks and sables but also used wide bands of plum-dyed opposum or curly lamb as accents to ensembles for daytime wear.

Givenchy's trademark style was an over-jacket of astrakan, appliqued heavily with Chinese cut-out designs in suede. Other versions used mini astrakan appliques in paisley or Chinese designs against a suede background.

A Chinese mood was present in much of the collection, but its interpretation was very European. One ensemble, which summed up the Givenchy look for 1977-1978, teamed a brown suede culotte skirt with an all-suede appliqued coat-jacket of beige on brown over a matching beige-on-brown wool challis print tunic. Accessories included brown leather boots and a suede pill-box hat trimmed in beige, worn over a hide, knotted cashmere scarf.

Givenchy's collection was among the most unified and was built around a few complementary themes, including culotte skirts and dresses, full tunics over pleated skirts, poncho-coats and high-waisted coats and dresses.

The color scheme centered on warm, sustained browns, rust and deep dark reds. Bright China blue and lipstick red alternated with black and gold for evening.

A dressy dinner look had a long tunic and pleated skirt in black satin with an all-over print of green, violet and ocre figures. A hem band of black sable on the tunic danced around the base of the hips, and a "Tonkin" hat with pointed crown in the same satin print, also banded in sable, completed the ensemble.

A new name appeared in Paris haute couture this week — Per Spook, a Norwegian who spent the past 15 years as principal designer at Louis Feraud and now who wants to make it on his own.

Success looks likely for Per Spook, after a well-received first collection, presented today, which fell just one vote short of winning the "golden needle" awarded each season to the young designer whose styles demonstrate the greatest creativity.

Per Spook had fun with vibrant reds and blues for Mameluke trousers updated from the middle ages, but he also used more sober shades and body-hugging lines for a modern romanticism.

One outfit had kitt striped in black, caramel and beige with a coordinated tweed sleeveless V-neck and a beige overblouse banded boldly across the bosom.

Another costume used wool challis in exclusive Per Spook coordinated prints for a full tunic, skirt and scarf tied around the waist. A little silk square in a childlike duck print was knotted at the neckline, and the whole thing was set off by a large shawl around the shoulders in the same print as the skirt.

Per Spook has his own way with shawls, tucking them through the belt in front for an easy jacket effect — a look that is bound to be copied widely next season.

Adrian designed originals sought by Smithsonian

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian is looking for gowns and dresses designed by Adrian, who dressed such stars as Joan Crawford, Katherine Hepburn, Greta garbo, Myrna Loy and Jean Harlow.

One of the most sought-after designers in Hollywood in the 1930s and 1940s, he went on to create a line of designer clothes for women that were so popular that stores had difficulty keeping them in stock. One such store was Garfinckel's in Washington, which sold Adrian originals exclusively in the years 1942-52.

"As the exhibit takes shape," the Smithsonian said, "it is hoped that women who wore Adrian originals during that period and still have them stashed away in mothballs in trunks, attics or basements will contact the Smithsonian at once."

Gowns, dresses and suits are needed to round out an exhibit of Adrian designer originals from the collection of Cheltenham Township High School in Wyncote, Pa., which has the largest collection of Adrians in the country.

That collection was gathered by a history teacher, Joseph Sims, who used them as working tools for classes in the history of the American cinema. These costumes and couture designs are not part of a museum collection, so they can be worn and exhibited.

The fashion tribute to Adrian will be exhibited at Garfinckel's Oct. 3-10 as part of a fund raising effort for the costume collection at the Smithsonian's Museum of History and Technology.

Elder, Mrs. J.S. Kirkpatrick mark 40 years of marriage

Elder and Mrs. J. S. Kirkpatrick, longtime Midland residents, were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary with a celebration in the home of a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kirkpatrick of 4517 Pleasant St.

Also hosting the event were other children of the couple and their spouses: Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Andersen, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. I. P. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Ward and Jo Ann Kirkpatrick.

Others attending the event were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Giles, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Kirkpatrick and her daughter, Julie Giles, and 15 grandchildren of the honorees.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick were married Aug. 1, 1937 in Monahans and have lived in Midland since June 1944.

By ERICA WILSON

When one thinks of smocking, what usually comes to mind are frilly christening gowns and little party dresses for children, but did you know that smocking started out on worker's garments? The word "smock" means "shift" or "chemise," and goes back to the days in rural England when shifts were plain, shirt-like clothes worn by farmers in the fields.

Gathering at the neck and cuffs of peasant shirts was traditionally smocked with decorative stitches to hold the folds together. This smocking was developed in England to be worked all over the shoulders and yokes, so the garment would be both warm and decorative. Besides it had the advantage of being elastic, so it was excellent for working in.

Smocking is the only true, traditional needlework of England, and its increasing popularity in this country makes me think it might follow in the footsteps of blue jeans. All sorts of things can be smocked—peasant blouses, nightgowns or simply a pocket, to give some zip to a blouse or a denim workshirt. And smocking doesn't have to stop at clothing—I've seen the smocking needle taken to throw pillows, handbags, lampshades.

About the same time the English were making their smocked garments useful in the fields, the Hungarians, Rumanians, Yugoslavs and Russians were decorating their costumes with smocking, too. Again, it started out for practical reasons—the big, bell sleeves and full shirts were gathered in place to keep everything crisp and together. Narrow bands of smocking stitches were then worked over the folds at the cuffs and neck to finish things off.

You could do what the English farmer's wives did and take smocking a step further—extending the stitches all the way down to the waist, back and front.

If you're up to a smocking project that all your friends will admire and want, you could simply copy one of these beautiful classic "smocks", which were always made from completely square or rectangle pieces of fabric. Without a single curve, these smocks hung so beautifully and were reversible back to front. On either side, the smock was embroidered in feather stitch, each different pattern designating the wearer's occupation. One pattern represented a wheelright, another a dairy farmer, and so on.

I have a friend in Italy who has made herself a whole series of traditional English smocks in different colors. In each case, the smocking is the same color as the material, which gives a wonderful, classic look. Although she's not a dairy farmer (she's a stage costume designer), she finds them the most practical working attire.

Whatever you decide to "smock," here are the basics you'll need to get started:

1) You'll need three times the width of your finished design. In other words, the fabric will draw up to one-third the width once you're done smocking.

2) Choose fabric with a regular pattern (i.e. checked gingham, spotted cotton, striped poplin, etc.) or buy smocking spot transfers in specialty needlework stores (or write to me for special addresses) and iron it onto the reverse side of your fabric; using a strong, cotton thread. Start with a knot and a back stitch for security, and run across, line by line, going in at one spot or check and out the next. Repeat exactly on the line below, so that vertical pleats will be formed when the threads are drawn up.

3) Draw up the threads so the pleats lie smoothly side by side—not too tight or too lose. Group the gathering threads in bundles of three or four, and instead of knotting or fastening them at the edge of the folds, wrap them around a pin so that they will hold firm, yet can be adjusted if necessary. No need to secure them, because they are only there to hold your fabric in place while you do the smocking, and they will be drawn out afterward. UUU 4) Start the stitching, using firm thread such as six-strand embroidery floss, crochet cotton, etc. Begin with a knot and a back stitch on the back of the first pleat— —either on the left or the right, depending upon the stitch you are using (some are worked left to right, some from right to left). Don't pull the stitches too tightly, yet don't leave loose loops. The finished result should have a firm elasticity.

5) When you're finished, withdraw the gathering threads and stand the steam iron up on the end of the ironing board. Hold the smocking in the steam above the iron, right side up, and stretch it slightly, first width-ways, then length-ways. This raises the pleats and gives each one a lovely broad, smooth, even look.

HOME EC NOTES

Although for years and years cooks have been directed to grease just the bottom of cake pans, greasing the sides of the pan usually doesn't hurt and the sides of the cake will probably be less crumby. Greasing the sides of the cake pan is supposed to produce a cake with less volume but as a rule the difference in height is extremely small.

A piece of foam rubber glued to the bottom of your old sewing machine's foot control keeps it from creeping.

One of the changes Judith Guest has noticed in her life is that an inordinate number of people keep asking her how her life has changed.

It is not a question commonly asked by strangers to 41-year-old housewives. It is more likely to be asked of the newest sensation of the publishing world.

Guest, with her warm, wonderful novel, "Ordinary People," is the newest sensation of the publishing world. It is pleasant, but she would just as soon remain a 41-year-old housewife.

"Change is an attitudinal thing," she said. "I kind of like my life the way it was. I'm not looking to change it. Because of the tours and promotions, some of the externals have to change, of course. But I really like it the way it was."

The way it was was rather uncomplicated — a comfortable home in Edina, Minn., and a comfortable life with her husband and their three sons, 17, 15 and 12, with time for her to write often and laboriously.

"I'm a very, very slow writer," she said. "I'm constantly revising."

She is also a very persistent writer. She began, to the best of her recollection, "when I was 12, or maybe a few years before that."

One of her early efforts was a Western, peopled with such characters as the pioneer woman who turned to her husband during an Indian attack "with quaking fingers." That manuscript, she said, is lost, as are many of her early manuscripts.

"I went from Westerns to romances," she said. "I really thought I had saved everything, but I can't find any of it now. That's fortunate, although it would be funny to look back at some of it to see how bad I was."

Nothing she wrote was published. Very little was even submitted. She did not exactly abound with confidence. And then came "Ordinary People," on which she had worked for three years.

The story of its publication is almost as remarkable as the novel itself. It was, first of all, an unsolicited manuscript, quickly rejected by two publishers.

Unsolicited manuscripts rate slightly behind germ warfare on a list of things evil. Incredibly, Viking Press accepted it, the first such manuscript it had taken in 27 years.

"Ordinary People" was a selection of five book clubs. It was serialized in one magazine, condensed in another. For months it was on nine major best-seller lists, including five months on the New York Times list. It was acclaimed as "admirable," "touching," "beautiful," "moving," "rich." Movie rights were bought by Robert Redford.

Guest's novel is everything everyone has said about it, but it still cannot be accurately described. It must be read. Its people are ordinary. They are unforgettable and achingly human.

Guest holds the thought that she has not changed a great deal. Her work around her Edina home is the same as it has always been — washing, ironing, some civic endeavors and many, many telephone conversations with friends.

She once considered herself "a walking tape recorder," but she is not quite as sure of her memory now.

"Maybe it's the excitement," she said, "but my memory isn't as good as it was. I'm relying more and more on my journal. You know, something to jot notes in. Every writer, I guess, has something like it. Well, I find myself using it more and more."

Devoted doctor finds death to be normal part of life

By DARLA WELLES
Copley News Service

Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross has devoted the last 12 years of her life to working with the dying.

And she doesn't find that work depressing.

"I find it gratifying and beautiful. In working with the dying, there are mutual benefits. You help them with their dying, and they help you with your living. You can learn from the dying what life is really all about."

Kubler-Ross, a psychiatrist, began her medical career as a country doctor in Switzerland.

In an interview she discussed her views on life and death and the meaning of both.

"As a doctor in Switzerland, I found death to be a very normal part of life," she said, "especially the life of a country doctor. You took care of people when they were sick, you fixed cuts and broken legs. You cared for them when you could make them well and you took care of them when they were beyond medical help.

"It was normal for me after I finished my house calls to stop and visit the old, the lonely and the dying. It was a beautiful way to finish the day. It was all part of the normal, natural way of things.

"But in this country there is so much resistance. The old, the sick, the dying don't fit. This country is so oriented to youth and production. Death is not something to be looked at during life, or the dying by the living."

But it is Kubler-Ross' view that death should be seen and dealt with and not feared in order to live a fuller life.

Last year she released the results of a survey based on hundreds of interviews with patients who had lived through "near-death experiences" — persons who were considered clinically dead, but were revived.

While none of the experiences reported by the patients could actually be termed identical, Kubler-Ross discovered a basic pattern that led her to the conclusions that death is not a fearful thing and that there is life beyond the death of the physical body.

Common to all the patients' accounts of their experiences, she said, were:

The sensation of actually leaving the physical body behind.

A feeling of physical wholeness and complete mobility — even in those cases where the physical body had been crippled by degenerative disease.

A reluctance to return to that body and a life limited by pain and suffering.

The experience of being greeted by a loved one who had died.

And the experience of being in the presence of a pure and all-encompassing light or love.

Moreover, she said, none of the patients ever feared death again after the near-death experiences.

"People who have had such experiences," she said, "begin to look at values rather than valuables."

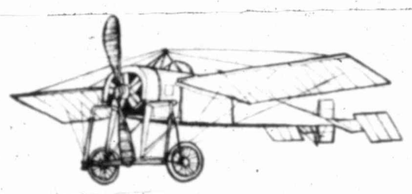

Her studies indicate, she said, that death is not an experience in which there is judgment by a punitive God, but rather a time at which the dying person, in the presence of an ultimate and uncompromising love, reviews his entire life and condemns himself.

Houston paper among finalists for APME award

NEW YORK (AP) — In Illinois, a newspaper's campaign revealing the absence of prenatal care for indigents prompted the establishment of hospital based clinics.

In South Carolina, a newspaper's graphic series of reports on rape and its victims brought about changes in state law.

An Ohio newspaper opened its pages to special educational materials to help meet a crisis occurring when schools were closed because of an energy shortage.

These three papers were among 20 finalists nominated for the Associated Press Managing Editors Association Public Service Awards. Two winners will be named — one for papers with more than 50,000 circulation and one for smaller papers — at the APME convention in New Orleans, Oct. 25-28.

"All the judges were impressed by the depth and range of public service by U.S. newspapers shown in the 133 entries we considered," said Larry Jinks, editor of the San Jose, Calif., Mercury and News and chairman of the judging committee.

Jinks noted that the finalists included several examples of dogged reporting on complex public issues, involving heavy investment of manpower and newsprint.

As in the past, exposure of corruption was a favorite entry subject.

Finalists in the 5,000-and over group, listed alphabetically by city, are:

The Boston Globe for continuing coverage of public personnel abuses in Boston and in Massachusetts.

The Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch for publication of special educational materials when schools were closed for several weeks because of a severe energy shortage.

The Detroit Free Press for a comprehensive series called: "Crime in Detroit: A Search for Solutions."

The Fort Myers, Fla., NewsPress for articles on the misuse of federal funds earmarked for aid to needy farm workers.

The Houston Post for articles which helped lead to the removal of an associate justice of the Texas Supreme Court.

The Louisville Times for articles about financial mismanagement in the Jefferson County Public School System in Kentucky.

The Philadelphia Inquirer for articles detailing illegal and brutal practices within the Philadelphia Police Department.

The Washington Post for revelations about South Korean efforts to bribe members of the U.S. Congress.

Finalists in the under 50,000 category, also listed alphabetically, are:

The Ann Arbor, Mich., News for reports on the collapse of an oil and gas tax shelter firm.

The Decatur, Ill., Herald and Review for its coverage of a prenatal care crisis in Decatur.

The Rock Hill, S.C., Evening Herald, for a series of graphic reports on rape and its victims, leading to changes in state law.

The Tampa, Fla., Times for articles on mob use of a federal employment program.

This was the second year the contest has been divided into two categories. Winners last year were the Washington Post and the Anchorage Daily News.

Salutes well merited

Drive on most any road — county or state — in Midland County and vicinity and chances are that two Midland men have had a hand in planning, building and maintaining same.

And it just so happens that both men have retired from their assignments in recent weeks after long years of service.

They are C. E. "Buddy", Kennedy, who has just stepped down as superintendent of Midland County's road and bridge department, and William R. "Bill" Harral who has retired as Midland resident engineer with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

These two men certainly qualify as pioneers in road building in West Texas. They also qualify as authorities on the subject through decades of experience in their respective posts. They have seen and been a part of the transition from two-lane roads and highways, many of which were gravel or unpaved in their earlier years, to super, four-lane, divided state highways and vastly improved county roads, many of which are paved.

Both Harral and Kennedy are due votes of thanks for their roles in building and maintaining the excellent system of state and county roads, of which we are all proud.

We take so much for granted, particularly in our good roads, without giving thought to the persons responsible for improved highways and other public facilities. This is an occasion when we can and do express appreciation to two veteran highway builders who have done magnificent jobs.

Buddy Kennedy has headed the county's road and bridge department since 1941, during which time the county system has expanded to include 450 miles of paved and unpaved roads. Midland County is widely recognized as having one of the best road and bridge departments in the state, and although Kennedy gives much of the credit for same to his "good, loyal men," the just retired superintendent supervised the whole business and was actively engaged in much of it.

Bill Harral's career with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation spans 27 years and five months. A native of Fort Stockton, he first joined the department in 1948 while a student at Texas Tech University. He had served in the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II.

After receiving a bachelor of science degree in civil engineering from Tech in 1950, he returned to the highway department and served for a brief period as an engineering assistant here. He transferred to Fort Stockton in August 1951, but he returned to Midland in July 1956. He was promoted to resident engineer in 1968. He also is a retired lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserve.

It is said that Harral, during his almost three decades with the state agency, has supervised approximately $100 million worth of highway construction work in this section of West Texas.

Both Midlanders can, and will if given the opportunity, spin some interesting stories concerning highway building in this region during the early days of their careers. Good roads really have come into their own in West Texas during the years of service of these two dedicated road builders.

And it is great to learn that both Mr. and Mrs. Harral and Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will continue to make their homes in Midland.

When you are riding on and enjoying the good roads and highways in the Midland area, think of Bill Harral and Buddy Kennedy and give them the snappy salutes to which they are so richly entitled for jobs well done over long periods of time.

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Latin America hopes U.S. will not devalue

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

William Giandoni

Latins are not worried about the dollar itself.

As they see it, the U.S. economy is in enviably fine shape. Perhaps not recovering as fast as they would like, and therefore not buying all the Latin raw materials they have to sell. But nevertheless, as H. Johannes Witteveen, managing director of the International Monetary Fund told the National Federation of Banks in Manaus, Brazil, in July, the consensus is that "the United States is the country where the recovery seems the most firmly established."

What concerns Latin America is the possibility that the United States may not realize how relatively well off it is and may take steps to "protect" the dollar that would have unfavorable repercussions elsewhere in the hemisphere.

The degree of concern does not seem to be uniform throughout Latin America.

It varies with each country's geographical proximity to the United States and with the proportion of each nation's foreign trade that involves the United States.

Mexico, probably, is the country most worried. Although the Mexican peso has been "floating" on foreign exchange marts since it was devalued last year, the government has been trying to insure that the rate of exchange remains around 22.80 pesos to the dollar.

That is to say that, for all practical purposes, the peso is pegged to the dollar.

Were the United States to devalue the dollar, the peso probably would slide with it.

Mexico has had too much experience with devaluation to think well of such an eventuality.

In the year since former President Luis Echeverria decided to devalue the peso, which had been steady at 12.50 to the dollar for over 22 years, Mexicans have been reconvinced that devaluation is no solution. They realize the wisdom of the words of then presidential candidate Jose Lopez Portillo who, early in 1976, had said that devaluation would not benefit the Mexican economy.

Lopez Portillo's argument then was that Mexico was exporting just about everything that it produced for export and that devaluation could not stimulate additional sales abroad if only because there was nothing much extra to export.

Lopez Portillo, who had been Mexican treasury minister before he resigned to seek and win the presidency, also pointed out that most of what Mexico was importing was goods needed for the nation's economic development. Any manipulation of the currency that had the effect of increasing the price of imports would also increase the costs of national progress, he warned.

As Mexican and other Latin commentators have pointed out, the United States is in a different position.

Were it not for the billions of dollars of foreign oil that the United States has to import, the U.S. trade balance would be quite favorable.

What is more, and this is what Latin America hopes the Carter administration does not ignore, trade between the United States and Latin America is very much in the United States' favor. That is to say that the United States already is selling Latin America more than it buys from the other hemisphere countries.

What the Latin Americans hope is that the United States will be able to come up with a way of easing its own problems without worsening the plight of its neighbors.

President Ernesto Geisel of Brazil summed up the problem at the same conference which the International Monetary Fund managing director addressed.

The Western world, said Geisel, is "now experiencing a situation in which each attempt made by the petroleum-importing countries to bring their balances of payment to a point of equilibrium through monetary, fiscal or exchange measures would only be a useless game, with recessive effects to practically all mankind..."

Brazil, as well as the United States, is a petroleum-importing country.

"In view of this prospect, if the developed countries insist on returning to their traditional position of having surpluses in their current accounts, they would only worsen the foreign debt deficits of the developing countries, as happened in 1975," Geisel said.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Jailed dissident's own story

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Another Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn is crying out to us from deep within the Soviet prison system. He is Yosyp Terelya, a 34-year-old dissident poet, who has spent 14 years in Soviet prisons and psychiatric hospitals for refusing to renounce his beliefs.

He was finally turned loose late last year, then rearrested in June. He is now back in a grim Soviet institution. But during his brief months of freedom, he wrote movingly about his long ordeal. His story, written in longhand, has been smuggled out to us.

Some Soviet prisons, writes the determined poet, would have been the envy of Dante for characters and descriptions of scenes from hell.

The KGB secret police first began harassing Terelya when he was 19. He was guilty of two offenses against the Kremlin. First, he is a Ukranian, a proud breed of 50 million people who refuse to abandon their ancient culture.

Second, he is a devout member of the Urkanian Uniate Church, which places God ahead of the state. But it was probably Terelya's eloquence, his ability to express his independent views in stirring language, that most alarmed the Soviet establishment.

Terelya was first railroaded into prison in 1962. But he was young and strong in those days; he escaped and lived for months under assumed names. Eventually, he was recaptured and jailed in the village of Ladyshyno.

"My poems, notes and even my thoughts — all this became evidence of criminal activities aimed at creating a so-called independent Ukraine," he writes.

What was a day like in the life of Yosyp Terelya? "We were made to pickup and stack granite slabs ... We were given three twigs to clean the cells of water sloshed on the floor. We were forced to stand for days on one spot," recalls the poet.

Beatings became routine. "Religious" prisoners were lashed to their chairs by telephone wires and made objects of humiliating ridicule.

In the winter, the snow and rain soaked Terelya's summer uniform. Yet "for inserting towels underneath our shirts and thus violating the uniform dress code, we were severely beaten ... I did not know that 'cruel' treatment could also be official, that is, sanctioned by law."

For the following two years, Terelya was tortured by the KGB, which demanded that he admit to membership in a Ukranian nationalist group that was disbanded when he was three years old.

"They placed me in a penal cell for 15 days. The temperature of the cell was changed every hour — one hour hot, one hour cold. Here I got hypertonia and hemorrhoids."

KGB officers told Terelya that if he cooperated, "They would free me in a year, give me a woman and good food." But the continuous physical abuse took its toll; his spine was struck by paralysis; he began to hemorrhage profusely from the nose, mouth and ear. He was transferred to a psychiatric hospital, where his fingers were broken for trying to write with pencil and paper.

One night, after the stubborn poet refused to renounce his religious beliefs, he was tied to a cross, his mouth gagged, and was beaten by the guards. He was later made to drink water from a toilet bowl.

Terelya's harshest treatment came at Sychovka, another psychiatric hospital where he was imprisoned in 1972. Soon after he arrived, "Some ten persons — guards and orderlies — burst into the section, jumped on me, beat me and tied me to my bed, all the time demanding to know who I planned to kill.

"I remained tied to my bed for a full two months, receiving a nightly 'kulazin treatment' from the guards and orderlies, who beat me with their boots and keys."

He recalls that the prison administration sanctioned the extra abuse of Jewish prisoners. "For laughs, they would force the sick to eat live frogs. They raped the sick and thus satisfied their own sexual needs — and all for laughs!"

One patient was killed "with a hammer because he had asked for permission to go to the lavatory," Terelya testifies. A Georgian Jew, pronounced mentally ill for seeking to emigrate to Israel, was tortured to death. Still another patient was beaten nightly by orderlies for two months until he died.

One mentally disturbed prisoner was shot in cold blood after an escape attempt. "Tell me," he asks, "in what other country do they shoot the mentally ill?"

Terelya charges that a total of 475 inmates at Sychovka "were killed or tortured to death," between 1963 and 1973. They are listed in the hospital records as having "died."

The anguished Terelya, now an invalid, speaks to the world from his prison cell. "What kind of attitude can one have toward murderers?" he asks. "Can a mentally ill person shake the foundations of the Soviet state? How unsure of itself must this state be when it considers all who have their own ideas either 'mentally ill' or enemies of the state?"

Footnote: Terelya's account was translated for us from his native Ukranian. U.S. officials verified the authenticity of the sources who brought his letter to us. A Soviet embassy spokesman, however, told us he had never heard of Terelya. He dismissed the letters of jailed dissidents as "just personal insinuations" that do not reflect the true facts of Soviet prison life.

INSIDE REPORT:

Jimmy Carter's first 'calamity' seen by observers

BY ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

WASHINGTON — The corrosive impact of the Bert Lance affair within the administration is seen in this privately expressed judgment by a member of Jimmy Carter's subcabinet: "This is the first real test to show just what kind of President he really is."

Since this Assistant Secretary had informed his colleagues two weeks earlier that Lance simply had to go as director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), the "test" in this official's mind was whether or not President Carter had the toughness to fire the cabinet's strongman. Such talk promoting the fall of Bert Lance, not always expressed in sorrow, is widespread among administration officials.

But there is countervailing bitterness elsewhere in the administration that a decent man who has not yet been shown to have committed one illegal act is being crucified by the press, aided by officials in the Treasury and other departments. Partisans of Lance, then, see a very different "test" for the President: Whether he will play Harry Truman by defying the press and the growing consensus within his administration.

Lance's fall, which now seems inevitable, will deprive the administration of its invaluable "deputy President" and its principal link to the business community. Following recent setbacks for the budget-balancers, the end of Lance signals more federal spending. But beyond this, the political death of Lance will bequeath animosity and suspicion among those left behind in the administration. From many aspects, then, the Lance affair is not only President Carter's first crisis but his first calamity.

Lance's closest friends and allies here are convinced the interest in Lance's private financial affairs was partially fueled by non-friends of Lance inside the administration, and their suspicions concentrate on the Treasury. Whether or not Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal is involved, Lance is no favorite among Treasury subordinates.

Hostility within the Lance camp focuses on John Heiman, the new Comptroller of the Currency in charge of the Lance investigation. Heiman, a former New York state banking superintendent, was pushed successfully for the comptroller's post by Blumenthal against Vice President Mondale's choice, who had wider support. Heiman is intensely ambitious, so much so that some officials believe he is angling to become the next Federal Reserve chairman.

That ambition explains the venemous emotions of some of Lance's friends, including one cabinet member, in their private complaints about Heiman's aggressive investigation. When Heiman's office labelled Lance's Aug. 5 press conference as ill-advised, OMB officials thought the comptroller was shooting at Lance's lifeboat.

High officials in other departments, while in no way sabotaging Lance, shed few tears over his predicament. Middle-level liberals who want higher, not lower, federal spending perceive Lance as linch-pin of the balanced budget policy and believe the President will loosen federal pursestrings without the big, soft-spoken banker from Calhoun County, Ga., at his side.

Actually, Lance's policy has been eroding over the last month. He failed to trigger an all-out presidential economizing drive against the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) appropriations bill. The new welfare reform plan, expected to boost spending by more than the advertised $3 billion, was another Lance defeat; preoccupied by personal difficulties, he missed the key July 27 presidential meeting to consider welfare options.

Ever since he learned on Aug. 5 about that Manufacturers Hanover Bank memo appearing to link a personal loan to Lance with deposits from his Atlanta bank, the normally high-spirited Lance has been deeply depressed. Usually the most accessible of men, he spent days at his summer home in Sea Island, Ga., declining to take calls even from friends.

Although some White House aides and cabinet members privateiy insist that Lance has done nothing illegal, they worry that public perceptions, fed by a midsummer, dog-days press campaign, have frozen against Lance. Moreover, when Democratic Senators who weeks ago gave Lance a hasty clean bill of health return from the August recess, they will be anxious to balance their ledgers by going after him — if he is still around.

So only Jimmy Carter can now save Lance. The barely credible claim that the two old friends have not even discussed the problem seems true. Nor, at this writing, has the President solicited opinions within the cabinet. His principal contacts on the question are senior aides Hamilton Jordan and Robert Lipshutz.

All of this points to the departure of Bert Lance, probably quite soon. Less obviously, whenever Lance leaves, internal scars not likely to heal anytime soon.

Mark Russell says

•

At the close of the convention, the lawyers observed a moment of silent prayer for their dear, departed brothers in minimum security prisons.

•

Lawyers can now advertise. So it's easier to find one. Just let your fingers do the walking.

•

Soon a little man will appear on the tube saying, "Please don't squeeze F. Lee Bailey."

•

I can hear it now — "Time for 'Let's Make a Deal' — brought to you by Melvin Belli and Associates."

One-week diet plan released

Dear Readers: Because of the tremendous number of requests from you for a good, one-week reducing diet, I am starting to publish one today. Here are menu plans for days one and two. Plans for days three through seven will appear in future columns. Good luck!

DAY 1

BREAKFAST
½ grapefruit
1 scrambled egg
2 slices whole wheat diet bread, toasted

LUNCH
6 oz. cottage cheese with chopped green pepper, celery and cucumber in lettuce cup
Bottled diet dressing.
2 slices diet bread
Apple

DINNER
Consomme
Roast beef (6 oz.)
Carrots
Strawberry sponge

STRAWBERRY SPONGE
(serves 4)

1 package unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
1 tbsp. liquid sweetener
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 pint strawberries, crushed
2 egg whites

Soften gelatine in cold water in the top of double boiler. Add sweetener and lemon juice. Stir constantly over hot water until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat and add strawberries. Let stand until mixture thickens, then beat until light and fluffy. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into gelatine mixture. Spoon into mold.

DAY 2

BREAKFAST
4 oz. orange juice
Cornflakes
Skim milk
1 oz. hard cheese

LUNCH
Roast beef sandwich
Tossed green salad
Diet soda or coffee/tea
Orange

DINNER
6 oz. broiled fish
½ baked acorn squash
Green beans
Gelatine
Coffee

Film award goes to Evans

NEW YORK (AP) — Paramount Pictures has announced the presentation of the David di Donatello Award for best producer of the year to Robert Evans, an American, for the film "Marathon Man."

The award was recently given to Evans at the Grek Theater in Taormina, Sicily. The awards were established in 1955 by the Italian Association of Producers and Distributors for International Films and are sponsored by the Italian president.

"Marathon Man" was the third highest grossing film in Italy in 1976.

Despite break, issues in capital continue

By MIKE CAUSEY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the summer home stretch now it seems as if everybody in government is either going on vacation or just getting back. Either way, here are some items you may want to ponder at the beach or mountains, or catch up on if you are just getting back in harness:

Pay Raise White-collar federal civilians and military personnel are due one as of Oct. 1. For civilian employes the increase will be effective with the first pay period beginning on or after Oct. 1.

President Carter hasn't settled — or at least hasn't made public — the amount yet. But it looks as if the increase will be an across-the-board 7.05 per cent raise, as recommended by his pay agents.

Word on the exact amount of the raise is due soon. If Carter decides to go with something other than the 7.05 per cent — a "catch up with industry raise" — Congress would have to approve it. Otherwise, the 7.05 per cent "comparability" figure — which will cost $3.5 billion — should be it.

Pensions: Retired federal and military personnel will get a 4.3 per cent cost-of-living raise effective Sept. 1. It will show up in checks received in early October.

Military retirees working in government as civilians will be eligible for both the civilian pay raise and the retiree cost-of-living increase.

Double Dippers: The House Investigations subcommittee will begin final work on legislation that could trim pensions for military retirees who take government jobs as civilians in future.

Odds are, Congress won't tamper with the pay and pensions of the 141,000 retired military people now serving in government. Nor is it expected to put a salary-pension curb on retired enlisted personnel. But some retired generals and admirals now earning as much as $80,000 on pay-pension from the government may have to take a pension reduction, or get out.

Hatch Act: Insiders doubt the Senate will have time this year to okay the House-passed bill giving full partisan political participation rights to government workers. They are now limited to passive, non-candidate roles by the Hatch Act.

Union leaders pushing for the Hatch Act changes are confident the Senate will clear the bill early in January or February, and that Carter will sign it. But it probably won't happen this year.

Grade Protection: Both Congress and the White House want to give some legal protection to federal workers facing demotions because of past classification errors, or reorganization. That probably won't happen this year either — if Congress sticks to its October adjournment plans. Meanwhile, the Civil Service Commission is being generous about giving agencies authority to defer demotions due because of unavoidable classification errors.

Trip to the bluff changes perspective

By CHARLIE SHEDD

"Dear Dr. Shedd: Would you like to know a little thing any father can do to help his children over the rough places?

"I grew up in Iowa and played girl's basketball. Girl's basketball is a big thing in Iowa. Because I was tall, I led our team in scoring from my sophomore year on. I got a lot of publicity and was mentioned for All-State. But in my sophomore and junior years I didn't make it. That nearly killed me, because I had my heart set on going to a particular small college which was always in competition for the collegiate championship. Because I didn't make it both of those years, I was way down and must have been awful to live with.

"One night at dinner my father said, 'Ruby, I think you need a trip to the bluff.' Of course, I knew what that meant. Overlooking the Mississippi River, there is a high bluff where our family would go picknicking. Up there you can see for miles and miles. You can also see the farms, the green fields, cows and horses grazing, some little towns and big ones. Plus the river winding forever. You can even see three states.

"So each of those years my father took me on a Saturday to the bluff. We packed a picnic and when we got there, he left me alone for a while just to look.

"Do you understand what I am talking about? When you are troubled and way down, you think that your problem is the only thing.

"But way up high, somehow, you get a different perspective and the bigness of things makes your troubles seem smaller. This is especially true if you are religious.

"My husband and I do this same thing with our children and without exception it has always worked.

"I thought maybe there might be other fathers who could use this idea.

"P. S. You will be interested to know that when I was a senior, I did make All-State and went to the college of my choice."

Come on troops, let's head for the bluff!

Illegal aliens said easy victims for extortionists

By MILLER BONNER

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP) — Although they steal into America looking for a better way of life, illegal aliens often find themselves the victims of extortionists and narcotics traffickers, says a veteran Border Patrol agent.

Smugglers, charging aliens from $250 to $500 for passage to large American cities such as Houston, Dallas or Chicago, usually turn extortionists once the alien finds a job. Or the smuggler might entice the alien into carrying narcotics across the border in lieu of payment, says Tom Ball, the chief Border Patrol agent in this Rio Grande Valley city.

"Alien smuggling is a big business," Hall said Tuesday. "Last month we caught 69 smugglers and there's no telling how many we missed. They range from the organized crime types to the ones we call weekend smugglers."

The "weekend smugglers" are persons from Houston or San Antonio or Dallas who "come to the border for a weekend or partying and carry a couple of illegal aliens back with them to pay for their trip."

"They usually get $250 to $350 for smuggling an alien to Houston or Dallas and $500 for Detroit or Chicago.

"It's a C.O.D. (cash on delivery) sort of thing," he continued. "A relative in Dallas or Chicago might say, 'I want my brother with me...bring him to me.' The smuggler gets half of his fee as a down payment and the other half when the brother arrives."

House committee requests treaty explanation

By RICHARD PYLE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee, accusing the Carter administration of ignoring Congress in agreeing to a proposed new Panama Canal treaty, wants the President's negotiators to explain the pact at a special hearing.

Ambassadors Sol Linowitz and Ellsworth Bunker are planning to testify today before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, panel aides said. Two State Department officials also were to appear.

Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., the committee's chairman, said in a statement announcing the hearing that the panel "is not prepared to watch the American canal in Panama go down the drain — or to allow its constitutional rights to be violated."

Carter evidently has decided to press for Senate ratification of the treaty after the August recess. The President also faces stiff resistance in the House, where opponents charge the treaty would be a "giveaway" of U.S. property, and risks letting the canal fall into communist hands.

Committee sources said some objections to the treaty were based on fears that it would increase sharply the amount of money the United States pays Panama annually. Some committee members reportedly also fear that the pact would give Panama too large a voice in running the canal before the year 2000, when the waterway is to come under Panamanian control.

Opponents also object to turning over the Canal Zone, with its numerous U.S.-built facilities, to Panama. They disagree with the Carter administration's position that the United States enjoys property "rights," but not ownership, in the 10-mile-wide zone.

Murphy called it "no accident" that a Soviet "economic team" was recently in Panama working out what he said were commercial agreements with the government led by Panamanian President Omar Torrijos.

The Carter administration already has won support from former President Gerald R. Ford and former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for the treaty.

Ford, who was briefed Tuesday by Linowitz and Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said he would "do what I can" to win support for the treaty among conservative Republicans.

Ford endorses treaty after Vail meeting

By EDWARD WALSH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Former President Ford endorsed the proposed new Panama Canal treaties Tuesday. White House aides hope it will improve the chances of winning Republican support in the Senate for ratification.

After a 90-minute meeting with Carter administration officials at his vacation home in Vail, Colo., Ford described the treaties as "an important step forward" and said he is "absolutely convinced it's in the national interest of the United States that the two treaties be approved."

Ford was briefed on details of the treaties by Ambassador Sol Linowtiz, one of the two chief American negotiators in the canal talks with Panama, and by Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. At the former President's request, the administration also arranged to fly Brent Scowcroft, Ford's national security adviser, to Vail for the meeting.

While Ford was being briefed, a similar session was being held in Washington to acquaint his former Secretary of State, Henry A. Kissinger, with the details of the treaties, Kissinger, who voiced qualified support for the agreements on Monday, was also expected to call for ratification.

The well orchestrated wooing of Replublican leaders was part of a concerted White House effort to line up bipartisan support for what they concede will be an uphill Senate battle.

The treaties, according to the White House, would turn over the canal to Panama in stages, with Panama assuming complete control by the year 2000, and would give the United States an indefinite right to defend the canal's neutrality.

Reagan softens treaty position

By KENNETH REICH
The Los Angeles Times

A spokesman for former California Governor Ronald Reagan disclosed Tuesday that President Carter telephoned Reagan Sunday to ask him to support ratification of the pending Panama Canal treaty and that Reagan had agreed to reserve his position until he saw the precise treaty language.

The spokesman, senior Reagan aide Michael Deaver, added that reports published last week in the Miami Herald that Reagan had agreed to become a "point" man for conservatives opposed to the treaty were incorrect. "That's their idea, not ours," said Deaver of the conservatives quoted in the Herald report.

In Washington, D.C., a Carter administration official confirmed the call and said it was one of about 20 the President has made in recent days to senators and other prominent political figures believed to have key influence in the expected battle over ratification in the U.S. Senate.

Reagan made permanent American control of the canal and the Panama Canal Zone a major issue in his drive last year for the Republican presidential nomination, saying he would tell the Panamanians, "We bought it, we paid for it, we built it and we intend to keep it."

But last week, Reagan took a somewhat less adamant stand in commenting on the proposed treaty, which would allow Panama to take control over the canal at the end of the century, and 70 per cent of the Canal Zone as soon as the treaty was ratified. In a statement, he reiterated his belief that the U.S. should maintain control over the canal, but he omitted any commitment to oppose ratification of the treaty by the Senate.

U.S. image may 'depend on treaty'

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young after a 12-day tour of Caribbean nations says the standing of the United States in Latin America and the rest of the world depends on Senate ratification of the new Panama Canal treaty.

"If it works, we're on our way. If it doesn't work, we're in trouble," the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations told a news conference Tuesday at the end of his 10-nation swing.

Asked what might happen if the Senate doesn't ratify the treaty, Young replied:

"It could be very serious. It just can't happen. It's too important to our standing in the rest of the world. It's not a great sacrifice. It's no loss to us at all. We've just got to have that agreement ratified."

He said Venezuela, Trinidad, Canada, Britain and The Netherlands are ready to join the United States in an international effort to provide economic stability to the Caribbean countries. This, he said, would preserve and strengthen democracy.

Throughout his trip, Young stressed the "tremendous potential" of the Caribbean Basin. By the year 2000, he said, the region will have more than 200 million people.

"If we just look at it in market terms," he said, "that's a considerable market.

Defense key to 1977 Aggies

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

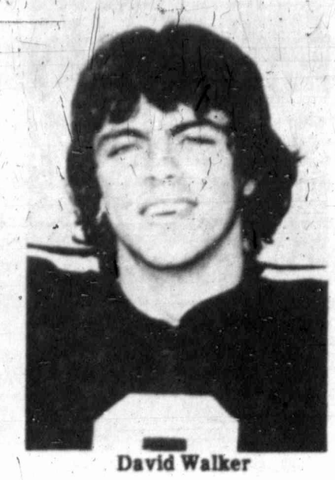

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Nobody can stay on top forever," said Melvin Robertson, a Texas A&M assistant coach. It sounded as though he was bracing for a letdown—and he may be getting one.

His defensive teams allowed an average of less than 10 points a game and forced an average of eight punts and four turnovers a game the past three years. And every Aggie defensive starter that has graduated the past two years has signed a pro contract.

But with only three defensive regulars returning this season—linebacker Kevin Monk, cornerback Mike Williams and safety Carl Grulich—the glory days of the Aggie defense may be fading.

James Zachery

David Walker

However, if the Aggies' highpowered offense, directed by quarterback David Walker and carried by fullback George Woodard, can perform to expectations, Texas A&M could match last season's 10-2 record that included a victory over Florida in the Sun Bowl.

"For the past few years we've had to dominate people on defense to get going," Robertson said. "We don't have the firepower to do that right off this year. But we've got an offense that can move the ball.

"That should allow us to get by with a little bit younger bunch on defense. If the offense can score a few points, that will allow us to do a few things."

The new defensive line likely will have ends Eddie Heath and Phil Bennett and tackles Johnnie Donahue and Steve Spitzenberger. Frank Lemons and Midland's James Zachery could join Monk at linebacker while Jimmy Hamilton and Kenneth Taylor round out the secondary.

Kubski's blast powers Diablos past Cubs, 7-2

EL PASO — Gil Kubski's two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth inning Tuesday night, triggered the El Paso Diablos to an easy 7-2 victory over the Midland Cubs in a Texas League game in Dudley Field before a crowd of 5,861 fans.

The victory gives the Diablos a 2-0 edge in the five-game series and drops Midland back into second place behind El Paso in the West Division race.

Tommy Smith, centerfielder for the Diablos, kept his hitting streak alive at 22 games with a single while Scott Moffitt added three hits to the attack.

Starter Chuck Porter went seven innings to pick up the victory which gives him a 6-1 record. Jeff Albert was a tagged with the loss.

Midland took a 1-0 lead off Porter in the first inning on a leadoff single by second baseman Kurt Seibert along with a fielder's choice and by Joe Hernandez.

EL PASO tied in it in the bottom of the first, but Midland took a temporary 2-1 lead in the fifth on a single by walk to Seibert and triple by Seibert.

Then came the fatal fifth inning for the Cubs when El Paao tallied three runs.

The Diablos added two more runs in the seventh and a single tally in the eighth inning to ice the win.

The Cubs return home Saturday to open a 10-game home stand against Amarillo and El Paso in Cubs Stadium.

Leaving hospital

BUFFALO (AP) — Former New York Yankees manager Joe McCarthy, who fractured his left hip July 27, was released from Millard Fillmore Hospital Tuesday.

McCarthy, 90, known in the baseball world as Marse Joe, went to his farm home in suburban Amherst, where he was injured in a fall.

He underwent surgery at the hospital and since then has been taking therapy.

Bad bounce triple gives Phils victory

Tom Seaver

The Philadelphia Phillies are getting all the bounces these days — even the bad ones.

Supposedly constructed to provide true bounces, the carpet at Montreal's Olympic Stadium turned up a nice kink for the National League East leaders Tuesday night.

The ball off the bat of Dave Johnson hit a seam in left field, skipped by Montreal's Del Unser, skittered to the wall and turned into a two-run triple that helped the streaking Phillies beat the Expos 7-5.

The Pirates dropped further behind the Phillies by dropping a 15-inning, 6-5 decision to the Chicago Cubs. In other National League action, the West-leading Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the San Francisco Giants 3-2; the Cincinnati Reds turned back the San Diego Padres 5-1; the New York Mets whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 and the Houston Astros defeated the Atlanta Braves 4-1.

Cubs 6, Pirates 5

SPORTS

After Manny Trillo flied out, Gene Clines beat out an infield single to Stennett, who threw wildly past third trying to get Murcer rounding the bag.

The triumph broke a fivegame Cub losing streak and ended Pittsburgh's seven-game winning streak. Willie Hernandez, 6-4, picked up the victory in relief while Larry Demery, 5-4, was the loser.

Dodgers 3, Giants 2

Dusty Baker's run-scoring single capped a two-run rally in the ninth inning that boosted Los Angeles over San Francisco.

A two-out error by third baseman Bill Madlock allowed the tying run to come home after San Francisco's Derrel Thomas had broken a 1-1 tie in the eighth with a homer.

Reds 5, Padres 1

Pete Rose and Dan Driessen each homered to back Tom Seaver's five-hit pitching and power Cincinnati over San Diego.

Seaver, 13-5, pitched his 12th complete game of the season, his seventh for the Reds, the most by any Cincinnati pitcher. Since being aquired by the New York Mets in a four-for-one blockbuster trade June 15, Seaver has a 6-2 record.

Mets 5, Cardinals 1

Steve Henderson and Doug Flynn each collected three hits to help New York whip St. Louis behind righthander Pat Zachry's seven-hitter. Henderson also scored two runs as New York blasted St. Louis pitcher Tom Underwood, Butch Metzger and Al Hrabosky for 11 hits.

Astros 4, Braves 1

Rob Sperring had three hits and drove in one run and two other runs scored on errors as Houston beat Atlanta. Mark Lemongello, 5-13, pitched eight innings for the Astros, scattering 10 hits and working out of a bases-loaded jam in the third after the Braves had scored their run.

Detroit Lions happy; Bear linebacker quits

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Lions were roaring over the acquisition of running back Marv Hubbard. Howard Twilley was warning the Miami Dolphins not to give away his uniform, and the Chicago Bears were upset over the unexpected retirement of linebacker Ross Brupbacher.

Those were among the major developments Tuesday at the training camps of the 28 National Football League teams.

Detroit, acting like "Paper Lions" in recent years—they have made the playoffs only once in the past 19 seasons— were rejoicing over the signing of the rugged Hubbard to a multiyear contract.

Hubbard, obtained from Oakland after starring with the Raiders for seven years, set the Super Bowl champions' singleseason rushing record of 1,100 yards, in 1972.

Twilley, a standout pass receiver with the Dolphins for 11 years, is on Miami's injured reserve list because of an injured knee.

At his home in Tulsa, Okla., where he is recuperating, Twilley said: "I only want to come back if I can play. I don't want to act like I'm giving up, but I'd rather stay in Tulsa if I can't help the team.

"I've had a good career, a long career. It would really bother me to do anything to tarnish that."

Then, he added, "Just tell them (the Dolphins) not to give away my (jersey) number."

Brupbacher, a key player in Chicago's plans after leading NFL linebackers in interceptions with seven last year and starting 12 games after Doug Buffone was injured, stunned the Bears when he walked out of their camp.

A practicing lawyer in Louisiana, Brupbacher apparently has not fully recovered from a knee operation and was upset over being cast in a backup role with Buffone's return.

"Ross felt the knee he had surgery on in the off-season was not as strong as he wanted it," said Bears' Coach Jack Pardee. "He was second-guessing his decision to return this year."

Minor Leagues top baseball meetings

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Baseball's summer meetings opened today with most of the game's executives hoping to end the two-day sessions early.

"The feeling is the whole thing could wind up by Thursday morning," said a major league spokesman. "But this is uncertain."

The agenda contains several important issues, including a reduction in the number of minor league clubs, dates for a new inter-league trading period and rules governing player tampering and incentive bonuses. But major changes will require approval in a final vote at the annual winter meetings in December.

Until last year the interleague trading period began five days after the World Series and ended at the close of the winter meetings. This was changed last year to the period from Feb. 15 to March 15, but a study committee will recommend vi no$me be changed to March 1-April 1.

"This would give the clubs a chance to virtually go through all of spring training before the trading deadline passes," said Bob Wirz, director of information for major league baseball.

"But if that amendment passes it will require discussion and negotiation with the Player's Association. They have a lot of stock in what happens to players that late in spring training because of the difficulty it would cause players who are traded that close to the opening of the season."

Major league franchises, currently obligated to operate minor league teams at the AAA, AA and A levels, could halt support of the AA facility under another proposed amendment.

Another amendment would prevent a major league team from withdrawing support of any minor league club if the withdrawal would trim the number of teams in a league below six.

David Koetter went the distance for Dobie Tuesday night to register the win over Brazoswood. He gave up five hits and two unearned runs.

Dodgers sweep pair from Sox

By The Associated Press

Jackson edged Arkansas, 2-1 while the San Antonio Dodgers swept a pair of Texas League games from the sinking Amarillo Gold Sox by scores of 7-2 and 8-2 Tuesday night.

Mike Scott, 13-9, went the distance to pick up the win, giving up only five hits. Andy Replogle, 7-10, surrendered six hits, but still was the loser.

In the second game of its twin bill, San Antonio's Mike Martin and Dan Smith combined for an eight-hitter. Martin, 7-6, got the win.

Randy Rogers blasted his fifth homer of the year and had three runs batted in for San Antonio's Dodgers. Charlie Myers added to the winning attack with a two-run double.

Has surgery

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Rookie linebacker Allan Hodakievic will undergo surgery on his knee, a spokesman for the Cleveland Browns said Tuesday.

YACHTING
NEWPORT, R.I. — Skipper Noel Robins sailed the 12-meter yacht Australia to the most lopsided victory of the America's Cup summer Tuesday, whipping France I by 10:14 and apparently ending another French challenge.

The only thing that could keep Baron Marcel Bich's boat in the current semifinal series would be a ruling from the Yacht Club D'Hyeres' protest committee that Australia was in the wrong when the two yachts collided at the start.

Also on Tuesday, Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner brought Courageous back from a two-week break to beat Enterprise, his chief rival for the defense, by 56 seconds and 15 seconds in their first two meetings of the defense finals.

TRACK AND FIELD
BRUSSELS — Steve Williams led an American sweep of the sprint events and New Zealand's John Walker just missed a world 1,500-meter record Tuesday at the Ivo Van Damme Memorial Track Meet.

Walker, the first man to break 3:50 in the mile, won the 1,500 meter race easily in 3:32.7, a half second over the world mark of 3:32.2 held by Tanzania's Filbert Bayi.

Williams led a 1-2-3 U.S. sweep of the 100-meter dash in 10.25 seconds, followed by Bill Collins at 10.34 and Clifford Wiley in 10.35.

Edwin Moses of the United States, the world record holder for the 400 meter hurdles, ran the 400 meter dash and was beaten by Belgium's Fons Brijdenbach, who was timed in 45.13 seconds to 45.60 for Moses.

TENNIS
TORONTO — Top-seeded Mexican Raul Ramirez overcame bad weather and lapses of concentration to defeat Alvero Betancur of Colombia 2-6, 6-4, 6-1 in a 3¼ hour first-round match at the Canadian Open tennis championship.

The Colombian, who was a qualifier for this $160,000 tournament, took advantage of Ramirez' lapses. When the Mexican star tried to attack the net, Betancur blasted passing shots by Ramirez until the middle of the second set. Then, Ramirez concentrated on breaking down Betancur's backhand and finally won it.

In women's action, South African Brigitte Cuypers upset No. 6 seed Laura Dupont of the United States 6-2, 6-4.

PHILADELPHIA — Tracy Austin of Rolling Hills, Calif. beat Kathy Jordan, King of Prussia, Pa., 6-2, 6-0, on grass and won the singles title at the 60th U.S. Tennis Association's girls 18-and-under national championship.

The 14-year-old Miss Austin, seeded third, entered the match with a run of nine straight games from 3-2 in the opening set. She made few errors in the match and hit with great control.

Miss Jordan and Lea Antonopolis, the Wimbledon junior champion from Glendora, Calif., won the doubles championship by defeating Trey Lewis, San Pedro, Calif., and Ann Henrickson, Mahtomedi, Minn., 6-0, 6-1.

State Supreme Court Justice Alfred M. Ascione issued a preliminary injunction Tuesday barring the U.S. Tennis Association, the U.S. Open Tennis Championship Committee and the Women's Tennis Association from excluding Dr. Richards, a 43-year-old transsexual, from the U.S. Open because of her inability to pass a sex chromatin test.

In a 13-page decision, Ascione held that there was "overwhelming medical evidence" that the 6-foot-2, 147-pound ophthalmologist, formerly known as Richard Raskind, "is now female."

To demand that Dr. Richards pass the Barr body test in order to be eligible to play in the Open was "grossly unfair, discriminatory and inequitable," Ascione said. HORSE RACING

SARATOGA SPRINGS — Johnny D., $3, rallied in the final yards to take the $25,000 Great Saratoga Chamber of Commerce Handicap at Saratoga by a half-length over Dominion.

OCEANPORT, N.J. — Super Boy, $4.60, scored a three-quarter length victory over Advisedly in the feature at Monmouth Park.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Fashion News, $7.80, went wire-to-wire to capture the feature at Atlantic City Race Course over Going Line.

Harris' win husband-wife tennis title

The Harris' ousted Larry and Susie Tomson of Dallas in the finals, 2-6, 6-0, 6-1.

That brought to three the number of titles won by Midlanders at the tournament. Vicki Vasicek won the Girls 18 singles event, and Lance Armstrong captured the Boys 14 singles crown.

Arrest 2

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Twenty persons suspected of being illegal aliens were arrested in the stable area of the Saratoga Race Track Wednesday.

The raid, was conducted by U.S. Immigration and Naturalization officials, state police from Loudonville and Saratoga police.

The suspected aliens were taken to the Loudonville barracks and arrangements were being made to transport them to New York City for deportation proceedings.

Option two

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Catcher Kevin Pasley and outfielder Joe Simpson have been optioned to Albuquerque of the Pacific Coast League, the Los Angeles Dodgers say.

The two players were sent down on a 24-hour recall basis, officials of the National League baseball club said Tuesday night.

The move leaves the Dodgers two short of the 25-player limit. Pinch-hitter Ed Goodson will come off the disabled list Friday.

New coach

ATLANTA (AP) — Roger Couch, a native Atlantan and former assistant basketball coach at Vanderbilt University, has been named head basketball coach at Georgia State University.

Couch had coached high school basketball in Atlanta and at DeKalb Junior College's south campus before going to Vanderbilt.

Dandridge negotiates with Washington team

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks and Washington Bullets have agreed on a solution to the Bucks' thorny Bob Dandridge problem, leaving Dandridge and the Bullets to work out the final details.

The Bucks are to receive an undisclosed cash settlement, reportedly in the area of $500,000, as compensation if the Bullets sign Dandridge, who is now a free agent. This agreement allows the Bullets to negotiate with Dandridge without having to wonder what his signing would cost them—as would be the case if the compensation issue were left to NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien.

Dandridge, the Bucks' best player last season and the team's last link to its NBA championship club of 1971, was not available for comment.

But the Bullets have scheduled a news conference for today, and there appeared little doubt Dandridge would sign with Washington.

Dandridge, who averaged 20.8 points per game last season, had said last March he would not play another season in Milwaukee.

He has been a free agent since the end of the season and had expressed a preference to play for the Bullets because they are perennial NBA contenders and because Washington is near his Richmond, Va., home.

The deal with Washington culminated extensive negotiations between Fitzgerald and Bullets owner Abe Pollin. The Bucks originally had hoped to obtain a player—preferably veteran center Wes Unseld or Mitch Kupchak, one of the NBA's most promising young centers—from Washington.

They were not interested in draft choices because they already are one of the NBA's youngest teams and own two first-round picks in next year's draft.

They picked up three players in the first round this past June. They have signed one, center Kent Benson of Indiana, to a six-year contract, but the other two, forwards Marques Johnson of UCLA and Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee, are as yet unsigned.

Lose star

Mattick had injured his knee Thursday when he missed a step on a ladder while painting an apartment, school officials said.

Virginia Wade nabs victory over Barker

By The Associated Press

Virginia Wade turned the corner in her tennis career when she won the Wimbledon title two months ago. Tuesday night, she turned the corner for the New York Apples with a victory over her British countrywoman Sue Barker of the Indiana Loves.

Keyed by Miss Wade's 6-2 triumph over Miss Barker, the Apples opened defense of their World Team Tennis title with a 33-21 victory over the Loves at New York.

In other opening matches in best-of-three opening-round series, Boston's Eastern Division champions edged the Cleveland Nets 30-26 at Boston, the Phoenix Racquets blasted the Sea-Port Cascades 30-14 at Phoenix and the San Diego Friars shaded the Golden Gaters 24-22 at San Francisco.

The triumph, Miss Wade's third over Miss Barker in five meetings this year, gave the Apples a 13-8 lead after New York's Billie Jean King and Ray Ruffels had outlasted Indiana's Ann Kiyomura and Allan Stone 7-6 in a hard-fought opening match, decided on a 5-0 tie-breaker.

In another close match, New York's Sandy Mayer defeated arch-rival Vitas Gerulaitis 7-6, taking the tie-breaker 5-2. Gerulaitis yielded only one point in six service games, winning the last 22 points he served. But he doublefaulted the first point of the tie-breaker and never recovered.

Gerulaitis was despondent after his loss and his team's loss of all five matches.

"If we couldn't win tonight, the way the New York girls played, we're in trouble," he said. "Billie Jean had one of the worst nights I've ever seen her have."

Despite Ms. King's apparent lacklustre play, she figured in two victories. In addition to teaming with Ruffels for the mixed doubles triumph, she collaborated with Miss Wade for a 7-5 decision over Miss Kiyomura and Sue Mappin in women's doubles.

Tony Roche led Boston past Cleveland. He downed Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg 7-6 in men's singles for his third triumph over the Swedish star this season, then combined with Mike Estep to beat Borg and Nets player-coach Marty Riessen 7-5 in men's doubles, clinching the Boston victory.

Chris Evert, former Wimbledon champion, paced Phoenix' victory over Sea-Port. Miss Evert defeated this year's Wimbledon runner-up Betty Stove 6-4 in women's singles and teamed with Kristien Shaw for a 6-4 triumph over Miss Stove and Joanne Russell in women's doubles.

The San Diego Friars, who had lost four of six decisions to the Golden Gaters in regular season play, were led by Rod Laver and Cliff Drysdale. The two veterans teamed to upset Frew McMillan and Tom Okker 6-4 in men's doubles to break a tie and give the Friars a 24-22 victory.

Chambliss hits home run in ninth for victory

By BOB GREENE
By The Associated Press

The New York first baseman blasted a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth off rookie Randy Wiles to give the Yankees a wild 11-10 victory over the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night in a game that saw 12 runs scored in the final two innings.

"I didn't hit it real good," Chambliss said of his ninth-inning heroics. "The short fence helped me."

But Chambliss didn't realize he was hitting against Wiles, who was brought up from the minors earlier this month. Chambliss thought the pitcher was White Sox reliever Dave Hamilton, who faced one batter in the eighth inning.

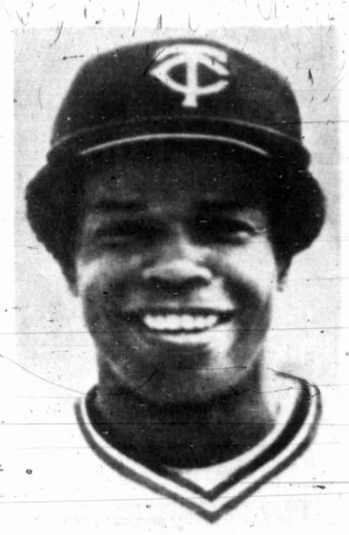

"Yeah, I've faced him before," Chambliss said. When told it was Wiles, he replied: "Oh, it wasn't Hamilton. Well, I watched him warm up anyway."

It was Chambliss who led off the ninth inning of the final game of the American League playoffs against Kansas City with a home run to send the Yankees into the World Series. Chicago Manager Bob Lemon was the Yankee pitching coach then.

"I liked one and I didn't like the other," Lemon said of Chambliss' two roundtrippers. "He's a good hitter and he can rise to the occasion."

In other AL games Tuesday, Boston defeated Kansas City 5-3, Baltimore edged Minnesota 6-5 in 13 innings, California stopped Toronto 7-2, Oakland downed Cleveland 7-3, Seattle nipped Detroit 3-2 and Texas clobbered Milwaukee 11-3.

The Yankees had snapped a 4-4 tie in the seventh, then scored four runs in the eighth to take a 9-4 lead. But Kansas City's Mark Littell, making his first start of the season. Then he started the Boston seventh with a single, took second on a sacrifice, moved to third on an infield single and scored on Rick Burleson's single. Fred Lynn's sacrifice fly scored an insurance run.

Rod Carew

Jim Spencer slammed his second homer of the game, a two-run shot, to trigger a six-run Chicago rally in the top of the ninth and give the White Sox a 10-9 lead.

"I was trying to get a hit," Chambliss said. "I don't try for homers. Whenever I try for homers I don't get them."

Red Sox 5, Royals 3

Boston rallied for its 16th victory in the last 17 games when Butch Hobson drilled a threerun homer and triggered a tie-breaking two-run seventh inning with a single to down Kansas City.

Hobson belted his 23rd homer into the left field screen in the fourth off

Orioles 6, Twins 5, 13 innings

Doug DeCinces snapped a slump with a single to drive in Eddie Murray with the winning run as Baltimore clipped Kansas City in 13 innings. Murray led off the inning with a double off loser Tom Johnson, 12-5, as Dennis Martinez, 11-6, got the victory in relief.

The Orioles had tied the score 5-5 with a four-run rally in the seventh, capped by Lee May's two-run homer. It was May's 20th homer of the season and his third in four games.

Rangers 11, Brewers 3

Texas exploded for six runs in the second inning, sparked by Claudell Washington's tworun double, to roll over Milwaukee. Washington had four hits and knocked in three runs while Bump Wills and Jim Sundberg had two RBI's apiece as Doyle Alexander, 13-7, limited the Brewers to just seven hits.

Mariners 3, Tigers 2

A two-run homer by Bob Stinson in the sixth inning snapped Seattle's nine-game losing streak as the Mariners edged Detroit. Glenn Abbott picked up his seventh consecutive victory, pitching out of trouble often as he scattered 10 hits and was helped by four double plays.

A's 7, Indians 3

Jerry Tabb slammed a pair of leadoff home runs and Manny Sanguillen added a solo blast as Oakland won for the second time in its last 18 games and snapped Cleveland's threegame winning streak.

Vida Blue, 11-15, got the complete-game victory as Tabb led off the second and and fourth innings with homers. Sanguillen slammed his home run in the second.

Angels 7, Blue Jays 2

Paul Hartzell's three-hit pitching was backed by home runs by Tony Solaita and Bobby Bonds and a two-run triple by Gil Flores as California defeated Toronto. Trailing 2-1, Dave Chalk led off the sixth with a walk and Rance Mulliniks was safe on an error. Flores then followed with his triple off the center field fence.

Solaita hit his 10th home run of the season in the seventh and Bonds belted his 30th in the ninth, tying him for the league's leadership with Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox.

First Fontana was hit with a flood of weekend cancellations, including the withdrawal of the tournament's top seed, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, because of fatigue. Vilas had won five events in a row, most recently a clay-court tournament in Dublin, Ohio which concluded Monday.

Next came heavy rain that reduced Tuesday's program at the York University Tennis Center to just nine matches— five men's singles and four women's singles.

Play was suspended five times before organizers decided to postpone the remainder of the program until today. And if the weatherman's long-range forecast for rain off and on the rest of the week is accurate, organizers may be forced to move play indoors.

One of those rained out was Evonne Goolagong's match with Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany. Miss Goolagong is making her return to tournament play following the birth of her first child.

In the feature match of the day, Raul Ramirez of Mexico, who inherited the men's top seeding when Vilas withdrew, overcame lapses of concentration to defeat Alvero Betancur of Colombia 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

In other men's first-round matches, Jaime Fillol of Chile defeated Dale Power of Toronto, 6-2, 6-3, Jim Delaney of Potomac, Md. beat Harry Fritz of Toronto, 6-4, 6-4, John Picken of Vancouver, the Canadian national under-21 champion, put up a game fight but lost 6-3, 6-4 to India's Sashi Menon and Andrew Pattison of Rhodesia beat Nikki Spear of Yugoslavia 1-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Ramirez' match may have been the longest in the Open's 87-year history. The players took the court at 11 a.m. as scheduled, but rain forced them off before they could start play. In all, there were four rain delays, so the three-set match took 5 hours 15 minutes to complete.

"I should be used to playing in any kind of different conditions," said Ramirez. "The only thing that's very difficult is to have to go in and out. For me it's impossible for me to concentrate. I lost the first set 6-2 because I was just thinking that any second it was going to rain again and we were going to have to walk off court."

In women's play, Brigitte Cuypers of South Africa upset sixth-seed Laura Dupont of Matthews, N.C. 6-2, 6-4; Chris Evert's younger sister, Jeanne, a qualifier, overpowered another qualifier, Michele Gurdal of Belgium, 6-3, 6-2; Zenda Liess of South Africa defeated Kathy Harter of Seal Beach, Calif., 76, 7-5, and Ilana Kloss of South Africa beat Wendy Barlow of Canada 6-0, 6-3.

Dorsett will return to workouts today

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — No. 1 draft choice Tony Dorsett was to return to full drills Wednesday as the Dallas Cowboys prepared for a preseason game against Miami Saturday.

Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy winning running back from Pittsburgh, sat out last Saturday's game with Seattle because of a knee injury.

Tuesday's practice at the Cowboys' training camp focused on the work of Randy White at defensive tackle. White has been switched from strongside linebacker to tackle. Third-year man Thomas Henderson and second-year man Mike Hegman worked in the strongside slot Tuesday.

Cornerback Aaron Kyle, the club's top draft choice a year ago, worked extensively at right corner. Mark Washington, who has been slowed by an ankle injury, is the listed starter.

The only veteran definitely out for Saturday's game at Irving because of injury is tackle Jim Eidson, who still is recovering from a neck sprain. Right guard Barton Lawless, who didn't play in the 23-17 loss to Seattle, may also miss the matchup against the Dolphins.

U.S. star is ready this time

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Harvey Glance, America's top sprinter at the World University Games, says he won't repeat the mistake that cost him a medal in the 100 meters at the Montreal Olympics.

"I just got off to a bad start at Montreal. I hope I can maintain my strength for the entire race this time because it has been a long season," Glance said Tuesday evening following a workout on the Tartan track at Vassil Levski National Stadium.

"It's one of the better tracks I've run on—Tartan is my best surface. I look forward to running well here," the captain of the mens's portion of the 180member U.S. team said.

About 5,000 athletes from 90 nations, the biggest gathering of sportsmen outside the Olympics, are competing in 10 sports disciplines at the 10 days of competitions, starting Thursday.

Glance, a student at Auburn University, earned his ticket to Sofia by winning the NCAA 100meter title this spring in 10.21 seconds. That's his fastest electronic time this season, but slower than the 10.11 clocking he posted at the 1976 Olympic Trials.

At the Olympics, Glance was edged out of the bronze medal by Russia's Valery Borzov, 10.14 to 10.19.

Clubs being checked for Westchester golf

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — About three dozen players lined up to have their clubs checked prior to the start of the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

"I was busy from nine o'clock to noon," Jack Tuthill, tournament director for the PGA tour, said Tuesday.

"I found a few clubs—a halfdozen, maybe a dozen—that didn't conform to specifications. Almost all of them were old, worn clubs, clubs that had gone over the limits simply through usage. It doen't take much, particularly on a pitching wedge or sand wedge."

The club check was completely voluntary on the part of the players, said Tuthill and PGA tour Commissioner Deane Beman. It followed a controversy at last weekend's PGA National Championship in Pebble Beach, Calif., in which irons belonging to Tom Watson and several other players were found to exceed U.S. Golf Association specifications regarding the width and spacing of grooves on the face of the clubs.

Watson had to return the clubs with which he had won the British Open and the Masters to the manufacturer. They were re-ground, re-examined and now are legal. He'll use them in the event that starts Thursday on the vandalized, 6,601-yard, par-71 Westchester Country Club course.

"I issued a release, which has been put on the tees, reminding the players they are responsible for their clubs," Beman said. "It's simply a rule of golf, like any other rule. The player is responsible, just as he's responsible for having 14 clubs in his bag. We're not going to have an official checking clubs—unless they're asked— any more than we'd station an official at every water hazard."

In addition to Watson, the game's outstanding performer this season, the 159-man field includes most of golf's leading names, including newlycrowned PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, defending title-holder David Graham of Australia and Jack Nicklaus, who missed a playoff with Wadkins and Gene Littler by a single stroke last weekend.

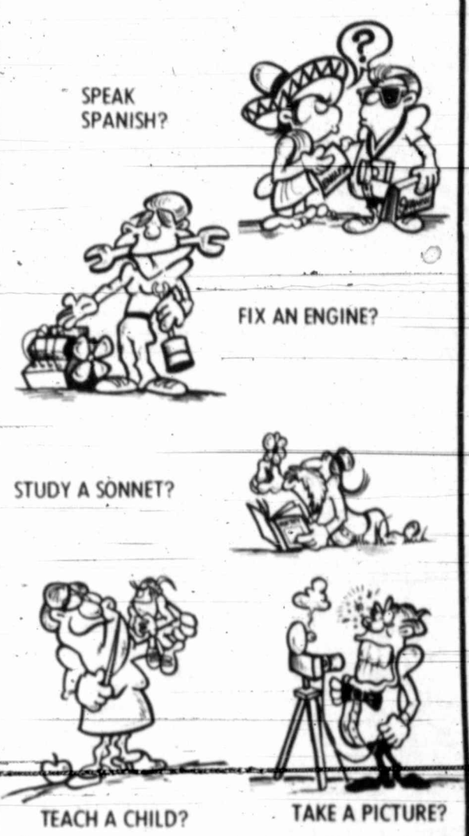

Nicklaus, a three-time winner this season and twice a victor in this suburban New York event, trails Watson by only $16,000 on the year's moneywinning list and could take a major step toward a ninth money title in this event that offers $60,000 to the winner and a total purse equal to the largest on the tour this year.

Other standouts include Littler, Gary Player, Ben Crenshaw, Hale Irwin, Tom Weiskopf, Bruce Lietzke, Johnny Miller and Mark Hayes.

The course was damaged a month ago by vandals who poured oil on some greens and burned swastikas into the grass. The damage has been repaired.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS-TV.

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As a rule, docu-dramas — dramatized recreations of actual stories — are produced by entertainment types. But now there's a notable exception to the rule: Robert "Shad" Northshield of NBC News.

Now on loan from NBC News to the network's entertainment side, Northshield, a journalist most of his life, starts producing a docu-drama, "Survivors of Buffalo Creek," on Sept. 12 for NBC.

It stars Tony Perkins, will be entirely on videotape, and is about the West Virginia dam disaster that claimed 125 lives in 1972.

It's a radical change in the career of the man who produced the old "Huntley-Brinkley Report" for nearly four years and later made such respected NBC News documentaries as "Guilty by Reason of Race," "The Navajo Way" and "Sins of the Fathers."

Northshield, who began in journalism after World War II service as an infantryman, was asked why NBC's entertainment side tapped him for the two-hour Buffalo Creek show it'll air later this season.

ENTERTAINMENT

It happened the other way around, he said: "I went to them."

He said several things prompted his move. One was that he was restless — his last major NBC News assignment had been as executive producer of NBC's July 4 Bicentennial coverage a year ago.

Another factor was that he'd become impressed with the popularity of such docu-dramas as "Missiles of October" and "Helter-Skelter."

"It seemed to me a guy who'd done a lot of (news) documentary stuff could make a living at that, and also it'd be a lot of fun," he said by phone from his NBC office in New York.

And, he said, various NBC executives liked his docu-drama proposals, among them Richard C. Wald, president of NBC News.

"He'd wanted to do these things — like a re-enactment of the Watergate tapes, things of that sort — but was prevented from doing so because it was decided the news side couldn't use actors," he said.

NBC's heads of non-news shows, Irwin Segelstein and Paul Klein, liked the idea of a staffer doing docu-dramas, and NBC's business affairs chief, Don Carswell, liked it from a cost standpoint, he added.

As a result, Northshield is producing not only the Buffalo Creek show, but two other docu-dramas later on.

Off-Broadway dramatist David Epstein wrote the script of the first effort, Frank, "David and Lisa," Perry is irecting it, "and I'm the nonfiction nut," Northshield said.

"So we all come at it from different angles. ... I don't know a damn thing about how to cast a drama. On the other hand, Frank or David aren't all that interested in being sure it's absolutely accurate.

"But I am. Because I'm 55 years old, I've always done news for a living and I'm not about to become a fiction freak."

FALLING for the first time beneath the weight of the cross, Hans Jablonka, 37, portrays Christ in the new version of the famous Oberammergau, West Germany, Passion Play. The play, which was rewritten by Dr. Klaus Fink because of alleged anti-Semitic tendencies, is on stage in Oberammergau this week. Normally produced once in each decade, as it was in 1970, current presentation is considered a test of the new version. (AP Laserphoto)

Press agentry remains oldest, liveliest of theater crafts

By RICHARD L. COE
The Washington Post

Sometimes defined as "the world's second-oldest profession," and sometimes practiced by snake-oil salesmen with the loosest of ethical codes, press agentry is one of the livelier crafts of the theater.

Such folk as Lillian Hellman, S.N. Behrman, Russell Crouse, John O'Hara and Robert Benchley were theatrical press agents in their leaner days, and time has evolved such euphemisms as "councillor on public relations" or "public relations council," the term a masterly practitioner, Edward L. Bernays, persuaded the phone companies to introduce into the Yellow Pages.

Their assignment in theater is to spread the word about their employer's attraction to boost business and prolong its run. This is achieved by supplying facts and bodies to the hungry media. Unless a production is talked about, written about, audiences will not appear.

Between media people and press agents the relationship is a supreme example of trust and suspicion, love and hate. It is vital that the agent be a complete ghost. Only exceptional employers fail to have fits when the agent's name is mentioned and their own ignored.

Thus, media people, relishing their apparent omniscience, and agents, anxious to keep their names out of print, veil the liaison. But when agents rise in the manner of Hellman, Behrman, Crouse, O'Hara and Benchley, it is permissible to mention their abandoned dealings.

Such a one is Harvey Sabinson, who began to edge his way "up" by teaching, first at Yale and now at City University of New York, Queensborough, closer to his Long Island home

Don't rely heavily on reopening bid

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

When the opening bidder's partner is too weak to respond, the fourth player should usually reopen the bidding even with a rather poor hand. It's foolish to rely heavily on such a reopening bid.

Opening lead — ♣ 7

With a slightly better hand East would have doubled one heart (for takeout) instead of bidding two clubs. Since East's bid denied real strength, West should not have doubled two hearts.

West actually doubled in a very positive tone. After the plaster had stopped dropping from the ceiling, West opened the seven of clubs.

East could have defeated the contract by taking the ace of clubs and returning a diamond. Instead, East returned the queen of clubs at the second trick.

South won the king of clubs and innocently led the three of hearts toward dummy. West glared suspiciously at the card but played low, allowing dummy's eight to win.

MAKES OVERTRICK

Declarer led to the ace of spades and returned the king of hearts to force out the ace. Now West could get only one spade and one diamond, and South made the doubled contract with an overtrick.

If you want your partner to compete with a light hand, don't punish him by doubling the opponents prematurely. When in doubt, let the opponents play the hand undoubled.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your left, bids one club and the next two players pass. You hold: S-A6; H-6; D-Q10652; C-AQ7. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. Don't reopen the bidding when you have considerable length in the opponent's suit. Take your profit.

Emmy effort revived

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — We hate to sadden award-show haters, but it seems there really will be a 29th annual Emmy awards show for evening programs after all — on NBC's "Big Event" next Sept. 11.

You'll recall this tuxedo rally once was set for May 15, but fell apart amid feuding by the New York and Los Angeles chapters of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

The feud got so bad that TV stars here defected from the show by the gross. This raised the grave prospect that almost no one in nighttime TV would get an Emmy award this year. Unthinkable.

So in July they agreed on two separate Emmy tribes. The new Academy of Television Arts and Sciences here got custody of all evening Emmyizing. The Gotham gang got daytime and sports to salute.

ATAS, as the evening shift is called, issued its roster of nominations last week. The roster was impressive. It was more than a quarter-inch thick and weighed 11 ounces.

It contained 66 categories of nominations, compared to a parsinomious 18 for last April's rousing "Television Critics' Circle Awards" festival on CBS. ATAS does not mess around.

Fortunately, only the major categories — acting, writing, directing and showing up for last year's Emmys — will be announced on the air.

The roster also showed 594 names eligible for Emmys. This doesn't mean 594 folks were nominated, though. Many contenders were nominated for more than one show or in more than one category.

'Alice' had dream of being singer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's one of life's little ironies that Linda Lavin grew up intending to be a singer, now plays a widow lady who dreams of being a singer, but doesn't get to sing on-camera in her series.

The rest of the time she just goes about her business as Alice Hyatt, mother of a 12-year-old boy, waitressing in a rundown Phoenix cafe full of assorted joke-cracking characters.

"The original concept was that Alice would do some singing, play the local Ramada Inn, but concepts change," said Miss L., a veteran of Broadway musicals as well as stage and TV dramas.

What happened, she said, is that CBS "decided it probably wouldn't be a good idea to have Alice always talking about wanting to go to Hollywood to be a singer, that she shouldn't be complaining.

"It felt she should be resigned to finding stimulation from her life and job as a waitress in a diner because she has a boy to raise.

"They thought it (the singing dream) was too frustrating to work on, also that people don't want to sit and listen to somebody sing in a sitcom for five minutes.

Wildcats, field tests staked; well completes

Wildcat sites have been staked in Reagan and Fisher counties, while stepouts have been planned for Dawson and Crockett areas and a Crockett pool gained an extension.

The Petroleum Corp. of Delaware, operating from Dallas, plans No. 1-35 University, a 10,800-foot Bend venture in Reagan, one mile west of Best.

FISHER ACTIVITY

Fisher-Webb, Inc., Abilene, accounted for the 7,000-foot Ellenburber wildcat in Fioher County. It is No. 1 Nunn.

Location is 467 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 8, block Y, T&P survey, seven miles south of Longworth and three miles southeast of Strawn oil production in the Glen Peeler field. It also is 1⅞ mile southeast of a depleted discovery.

James P. Dunigan, Inc., Abilene, No. 1 Nettie Johnson is scheduled as a location east offset to the Flippen pay opener in the Bonner field, and as a 3,700-foot Tannehill wildcat in Fisher County.

DAWSON STEPOUT

It is slated for a bottom depth of 5,000 feet, and spots 660 feet from south and east lines of section 20, block 36, T-5-N, T&P survey, four miles southwest of Lamesa.

CROCKETT TEST

A one-mile northwest outpost to Grayburg-San Andres oil production in the Howard Draw field of Crockett has been scheduled by C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., of Midland. It is No. 1-A Todd.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 69, block UV, GC&SF survey, 17 mileo northwest of Ozona. It is slated to 1,600 feet.

WELL COMPLETES

The Ecklaw (San Andres) pool of Crockett gained a fifth well and location northeast extension with completion of C. F. Lawrence No. 5-58 Eck, to pump 57 barrels of 32-gravity oil per day.

It is 1,691 feet from north and 1,777 feet from east lines of section 58, block OP, GC&SF survey, 14 miles north of Ozona.

Explorers scheduled

Delta Drilling Co., Odessa, slated the deepest of the wildcats. It is No. 1 Dugger Estate, a 9,100-foot test, one mile southeast of Key.

The Crosby wildcat is H. L. Brown Jr., Midland, No. 1 T. A. Poulson, a 6,400-foot test to be drilled five miles southeast of Lorenzo.

By JOHN JACOBS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The oil industry formally opened its campaign Tuesday to win in the Senate a set of energy concessions it had sought but lost in the House.

Charles DiBona, executive vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, said President Carter's energy plan, which the House approved Aug. 5, will do "more harm than good" and will not provide additional supplies of energy by 1985. He said it is more of a tax bill than an energy bill and added that increased domestic production of oil and gas, rather than the conservation the House bill envisions, is needed to meet rising energy needs.

Carter's House-passed plan calls for a sizeable tax on U.S. crude oil, to raise its price and deter consumption. The proceeds from this wellhead tax would go to the Treasury, then back to the public through income tax rebates.

The oil companies agree the price of their product should go up, but think some of the proceeds should stay with them, as incentives to increase production. They also think Congress should take all price controls off natural gas, intstead of just relaxing them somewhat, as Carter has proposed.

DiBona said the conservation measures in the House bill would only "slow the growth rate" of energy consumption. Even if Carter's goals are met, he said, U.S. energy consumption would be 25 per cent higher in 1985 than it was last year, requiring increased energy production.

DiBona said the House legislation would cost the American taxpayer an average of $18 billion a year through 1985, or a total of $145 billion. If approved by the Senate, it would be one of the largest, if not the largest, tax increases ever imposed by Congress, he said, with less than half of it refunded to the taxpayers through rebates.

A researcher at the Institute said in a telephone interview that DiBona had inflated the figures somewhat by assuming things about the bill that are not in it.

Recent statistics prepared by the staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation show an anticipated $96.5 billion in gross federal revenues from taxes through 1985, or an average of $12.1 billion a year. With a total rebate of $43.6 billion for the same period, that yearly tax figure would drop to $6.6 billion, or one-third of what DiBona suggested it could cost the taxpayers.

One of the most important aspects of the House bill is the crude oil tax, that would increase the cost of a gallon of gasoline an estimated four to seven cents. The House bill scheduled the equalization tax to be phased out by 1981, but DiBona apparently included it in his calculations through 1985.

DiBona said at a news conference that the measure could send gas prices up to $1 a gallon, "not immediately, but in the long run."

"The price at the (gas) pump would be less under our plan" (than proposed in the House bill), DiBona said, "but I can't tell you how much."

In ending price controls on oil and natural gas, DiBona said the money that would go to the government in taxes could be better spent in searching for and developing new domestic supplies of energy. He said he was "absolutely confident" that, if the oil companies did not have to pay the equalization tax, they would plough back the additional revenues into new production of oil and gas. He said he could not guarantee that, however, and suggested that when the Senate considers the bill, it could find a way to force that guarantee.

Carter administration officials have said that oil industry profits are high enough even under price controls to encourage new discoveries. But DiBona said the incentives are just not there — that "the bill as it now stands actually would reduce capital available for exploration and production — not increase it."

A Ward County project recovered gas and oil in additional pay section, production was reestablished in pay zone in an Andrews pool and a stepout site has been staked in a Pecos gas field.

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-13-18 University, south stepout to the War-Wink, South (Wolfcamp) oil field of Ward, flowed gas and reversed out oil on a drillstem test from 6,194-6,325 feet.

Time the tool was open was unreported. It surfaced gas in 10 minutes, flowing at the rate of 300,000 cubic feet per day, and reversed out 17¾ barrels of oil and 12 barrels of water. The sampler recovered 825 cubic centimeters of fluid, being 50 per cent oil, 50 per cent water, plus 9.49 cubic feet of gas.

PECOS SITE

Way & Mills, Midland, have scheduled No. 1-26 Slaughter, a location west stepout to the five-well Pennsylvanian detrital gas area of the Yucca Butte field of Pecos.

It is slated to 8,900 feet, and spots 639 feet from south and 1,770 feet from west lines of section 26, block A-2, TCRR survey, seven miles southwest of Sheffield.

ANDREWS REOPENER

Shell Oil Co. has recompleted its No. 8 E. F. King, former Devonian strike, to reopen Wolfcamp production in the Fuhrman field of Andrews County, eight miles west of Andrews.

The well gauged a daily pumping potential of 36 barrels of 40.3-gravity oil, and two barrels of water. Production was through perforations at 8,481-8,924 feet, following treatment on the pay section with 7,300 gallons of acid.

The old total depth is 12,660 feet, and it is now plugged back to 9,052 feet, in 5½-inch casing set at 10,200 feet.

Located 2,310 feet north of the former Wolfcamp opener, it is 440 feet from north and 1,765 feet from east lines of section 10, block A-42, PSL survey.

HNG Oil Co., Midland, No. 2-138 Robertson, Ward County Cherry Canyon prospect, and southeast twin to the discovery of the Phantom (Ellenburger) field, flowed gas at the daily rate of 1 million cubic feet, along with 60 barrels of water per hour.

The flow was through a 28-64-inch choke and perforations at 5,092-5,134 feet. The section earlier had been fractured with 20,000 gallons of fluid, plus 16,000 pounds of sand. Testing continued.

FGE slates Gainesprobe

Florida Gas Exploration, Midland, filed application to drill No. 1 John J. Swint, a 12,000-foot wildcat in Gaines County, 15 miles east of Seminole.

Gas shows in Runnels

North American Exploration Co., Abilene, was drilling below 5,155 feet on a 5,400-foot wildcat contract at No. 1 Cathey Estate, Runnels test, after it recovered gas and shows on a drillstem test in the Fry sand.

Tool was open one hour on the test taken from 4,5054,550 feet. Recovery was 220 feet of gas and 30 feet of heavily oil-cut mud.

Location is 3,990 feet from northwest and 3 2,000 feet from northeast lines of John Early survey 449, ½ mile west of Wingate and 1¼ mile west of the abandoned Sanford (Fry and Gardner) oil pool.

HNG stakes Eddy test

HNG Oil Co., operating from Midland, filed application for a 13,000-foot wildcat in Eddy County, N.M., ½ mile northwest of Malaga townsite. It is No. 1 Kirkes-Federal.

Drillsite is 2,130 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 4-24s-28e, 1¼ mile northeast of the firm's No. 1-8 Ogden, recent Morrow gas discovery.

The strike finaled July 7 for a calculated, absolute open flow of 6,257 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, through perforations at 12,216-12,548 feet.

Explorer rates flow

The flow was through perforations at 6,214-6,246 feet, which had been acidized with 5,600 gallons.

It was drilled to 6,250 feet, and has 4½-inch casing set at 6,259 feet.

Production was indicated while drilling in the Odom, with the recovery of 458 feet of gas and 75 feet of gas-cut muddy salt water on a drillstem test from 5,969-6,017 feet. Also, a 1½-hour test in the Ellenburger from 6,185-6,260 feet, recovered 540 feet of free oil and 444 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud, and flowed gas at the rate of 540,000 cubic feet per day.

Blaze out at wellsite

Fire has been extinguished and the damaged rig moved off at a wellfire site in West Central Mitchell County, about 23 miles southeast of Big Spring.

Mabee Petroleum Corp. is operator of No. 17 Bell, which caught fire late last Friday when it hit gas and water.

Ellenburger test staked

North American Royalties, Inc., operating from Midland, will drill No. 2-46 Epperson, a 5,200-foot Ellenburger wildcat in Edwards County, five miles north of Rocksprings.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 46, block 12, GC&SF survey, two miles southeast of the Campanero, East (Canyon) gas field.

Application approved

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission of Texas has approved the application of Mitchell Energy Corp. of Houston for unit operation and initiation of a secondary recovery program in the M. R. Clayton Ranch (Caddo) field of Jack County.

Chairmam Mack Wallace and Commissioners Jim C. Langdon and Jon Newton were advised at a recent Oil and Gas Division conference that unitization of the field and the secondary recovery program is expected to result in additional recovery of 623,000 barrels of oil, with a value of approximately $9 million.

Evidence submitted at the conference showed:

Initial plans for the secondary recovery program call for injection of water from the Buttram sand which has been used in at least five waterflood units in the area. The water is classified as salt water by the Texas Water Development Board.

Gas strikes reported

HOUSTON — Transco Exploration Co. has announced discovery of three new gas reservoirs at East Cameron Block 263 offshore Louisiana in the Gulf of Mexico.

Initial discovery on the block was announced in 1976 and an 18-well platform was ordered. Drilling of the first four wells from "A" platform resulted in the new discoveries.

The No. A-11 discovered two gas sands more than a mile south of the platform in a new fault block and will require several additional development wells.

The No. A-7 well, now drilling, has confirmed the known field pays and found a new, deeper reservoir.

The development of this lease will continue into 1978 when production is expected to begin.

The 5,000-acre block was acquired in the July 1975 federal lease sale for $4.4 million. Owners are Transco, 75 per cent; Mesa Petroleum Co., 10 per cent, and McMoRan Exploration Co., 15 per cent.

Oil shows develop

Flag-Refern Oil Co., Midland, No. 1-X Moore-Gilmore, Pecos County wildcat replacement, 21 miles north of Fort Stockton, was drilling below 5,957 feet in lime, after it recovered shows on a drillstem test in an unidentified pay section.

Tool was open 1¼ hour on the test taken from 5,886-5,937 feet. Gas surfaced immediately, with a three- to four-foot flare, on a ¼-inch choke. Reversed out of the tool was 1,042 feet of heavily gas-cut oil and water emulsion and 3,285 feet of gas-cut water with a trace of oil. Sampler recovery was 2.79 cubic feet of gas and 1,300 cubic centimeters of water.

Two Eddy County, N.M., projects, have indicated production on drillstem tests.

Penroc Oil Corp., Midland, No. 2 Foxie-Federal, ½ mile southeast of its No. 1 Foxie-Federal, opener of the Foxie (Morrow) gas field, recovered 50 feet of free oil and 220 feet of drilling fluid on a one-hour drillstem test in the Delaware sand.

The test was taken from 4,265-4,493 feet.

It is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 18-20s-28e, 11 miles north of Carlsbad.

Monsanto Co. No. 1 Mayer, 1¼-mile southwest outpost to the Cemetary (Morrow) field, recovered 775 feet of gas-cut mud on a drillstem test from 9,304-9,550 feet.

Operator was preparing to take another straddle-packer drillstem test in the Strawn from 8,745-8,840 feet.

DRY HOLES

COKE — Florida Gas Exploration Co. No. 1 Mary Sisk, wildcat, 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of S. J. Martin survey 2, 10 miles southeast of Robert Lee, td 6,220 feet.

Representative raps Carter energy policy

By JIM STEINBERG

"President Jimmy Carter's energy policy is a disaster for Texas and the country," U.S. Rep. James Collins of Dallas said Tuesday in Midland.

While clutching the 500-page energy plan, the veteran member of the Interstate Commerce Committee said that there is a good chance the Senate will be able to make improvements in the plan that the House of Representatives has not made.

Collins told members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association that legislation as proposed gives the Federal Power Commission absolute control over the industry and abolishes the separate status given to intrastate gas.

But worst of all the legislation gives the government power to "tax, tax, tax" oil operations in this country.

The sacrifices made by abolishing the various depletions for oil production and raising the price of U.S. produced oil to match the price of foreign oil will not be plowed back into production under the Carter plan, but instead be used to provide for social welfare programs, Collins said.

During the eight years of the program, Collins said he calculated $360 billion would be funneled into Arab economies to pay for oil.

The tragic thing about this, Collins said, is that this money exodus would cost about seven million jobs.

"For every $40,000 sent overseas, we lose one permanent job in the United States," Collins said.

"The bill is designed to tax anyone who produces oil and gas or anyone who uses oil and gas, especially the utilities people. The house version of the bill that was passed will increase the cost of electricity in Texas 300 per cent," Collins said.

He called the government regulation energy the worst ever federal intrusion on the business front. He quoted figures showing that it cost more to run those agencies than all the money spent on wildcat drilling, development drilling and workover operations.

Collins expressed hope that senatorial friends of the oil industry from the states of Texas, Oklahoma, Alabama and New Mexico would help to get needed complete deregulation of gas prices and plowback provisions so that cash could be put back into production, development and refining.

Of President Carter, the Dallas Republican said, he "has been in Washington for seven months, and has not accomplished one constructive thing for America."

And Collins said about Midland: "It's the most solidly Republican section in the South."

By KAREN DEYOUNG
The Washington Post

HAVANA — According to Fidel Castro, his government is charging the United States $250,000 to renovate the old American embassy building here.

The United States, Castro said last week, is billing Cuba $1 million for the same amount of repairs on the old Cuban embassy in Washington.

What those figures prove, Castro said in one of his frequent, not-so-subtle digs at capitalism, is that the Cuban people are very honest, that American wages are so high that Cubans can do three times the work for the same price, and that he is saving the U.S. State Department $750,000.

Whatever the price, neither Washington nor Havana feel much like quibbling at this point. On Sept. 1, after 16 years of broken diplomatic relations, the two countries will exchange 10-person interest sections in each other's capitals.

The delegations will be a far cry from full diplomatic representation — with the Cubans operating under the Czechoslovakian flag in Washington, and the Americans formally attached to the Swiss embassy here. But they are among the first steps in the construction of what Castro's brother, Raul, described last spring as a bridge, being built "brick by brick, 90 miles from Key West to Varadero beach."

Once the U.S. delegation arrives here, few people in Havana will be happier than the Swiss. Since the day the United States severed relations with Cuba in 1961, they have served as consulate, bank, friend and family to hundreds of Americans here, as well as occasional diplomatic go-between for Washington and Havana.

While the Swiss perform the same functions for the governments of Ecuador, Brazil, Guatemala and Honduras — none of which have diplomatic relations with Cuba, and all of which pay Switzerland to conduct their business here — it is the United States that has taken up by far the most time and manpower. When the Americans arrive Sept. 1, the Swiss embassy's foreign interest section staff will be reduced from six foreign service officers to one.

That one will move out of the old American embassy building, where the interest section has been housed, and back into the Swiss embassy across town.

"The Americans will take over completely," one relieved Swiss official said. "We are very glad."

Among the duties the U.S. representatives will take over is visiting several dozen U.S. citizens — some American-born, some naturalized Cubans — in Cuban jails for crimes ranging from espionage to drug smuggling.

In addition to sending each prisoner a package of medicine and toiletries four times a year, "We usually request visits with each of them three or four times a year," the Swiss official said. But with most of the prisoners, he said, the Cubans rarely allow more than one annual visit.

'Influx-control' policy enforced

By JACK FOISIE
The Los Angeles Times

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Bulldozers flattened the squatter village of Modderdam here last week, destroying the shacks that had housed 8,000 black people.

For the most part, the blacks looked on silently and sullenly. A few protesters, white churchmen among them, were arrested or dispersed by tear gas.

The bulldozers had been ordered in by authorities enforcing the so-called influx-control laws, which were enacted to limit the number of blacks in the area so that they will not take jobs from the "coloreds." Coloreds are people of mixed race who are themselves discriminated against, although not to the same extent as blacks.

Another black squatter village is scheduled for destruction this week and, in all, the influx-control program is expected to displace about 26,000 black squatters.

Alliance, PTA to man centers

Three special school information centers will be manned by the City Council Parent Teacher Association (PTA) in cooperation with the Midland Alliance.

Free brochures and maps will be distributed at the booths between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday and again on August 27 and 28.

The booths will be located inside Gibsons, 3111 Cuthbert Ave., Skaggs Albertsons, 1002 Andrews Highway, and Sears, Cuthbert Avenue and Midkiff Drive.

Also at the booths will be materials for people to write out questions on school matters relating to school attendance areas, busing or general school subjects of concern. Someone from the Midland Independent School District will return the call, Mrs. Joan Baskin of the Midland Alliance said.

During the weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., information on schools is available by calling the Midland Alliance at 682-0024.

Firemen called to truck mishap

BIG LAKE — Volunteer firemen were called out at approximately 2:30 a.m. Tuesday when a propane transport truck with a full load of about 9,000 gallons overturned four miles south of Big Lake.

The driver was not injured. Firemen washed the highway down and extinguished several small fires caused by sparks.

Probation given

A sentence of eight years probation was assessed today against Mark Anthony Rutledge of Midland after he pleaed guilty in 238th District Court to burglary.

He also was ordered to pay $530 restitution in the May 22 incident.

The sentence is to run concurrent with a five-year probated sentence which Rutledge received in May after he pleaded guilty to a burglary charge.

The books will be distributed from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Midland Youth Center.

Temporary Openings

Tired of staying home . . . or working at a job you don't like? Is inflation ruining your budget? Are you good with your hands (sewing, crocheting, building models, or do-it-yourself hobbies)? Texas Instruments has opportunities for you as an electronic assembler, making digital watches, calculators, CB radios, and other consumer products that are capturing the attention of your family and friends. Texas Instruments will train you. The important thing is for you to have good hand-eye coordination. Then you can get in on the ground floor of an exciting opportunity with Texas Instruments.

Right now, Texas Instruments is interviewing people for temporary work to meet its increased manufacturing needs. The money's good. And you get premium pay for the second shift. The sooner you start, the sooner you'll be seeing those paychecks.

To apply, come to the Employment Center, Texas Instruments, Midland-Odessa Air Terminal. Open 8 AM to 4 PM, Monday through Friday.
