From Aug. 20, 1970

EVERY ONCE in a while, little echoes of wise lectures from a sociology professor at Baylor make me remember hot it was he always explained what happens eventually to young people he called "The wild ones."

That was before such label as "rebel, the establishment, liberal, conservative" became all too trite. Before people talked about "the generation gap."

"The wild ones," that PhD professor used to point out, grow older and become the staid and sober ones, staunch citizens, community leaders.

All it takes, he held, is time, money in the bank, property, matrimony and children to make "The wild ones" over into the cautious ones.

If he were still teaching today he would be saying "To make a conservative out of a rebel give him a few years to sample financial and social success."

SOMETIMES, too, take to remembering the first real rebel ever encountered personally.

He was a tall young pre-med student assistant in math and biology. He liked to shock people, including innocent young co-eds. He professed not to believe in anything much, including such frivolities as pep rallies and football and such serious things as church choirs, even God.

Met him once, some twenty-something years later, to find that he was a Sunday School superintendent and a Chamber of Commerce director in good standing.

He wasn't one of "The wild ones" any more. Just a solid citizen, this reformed rebel, taking the football season and his family, driving a new Cadillac, and wearing a fraternal order diamond ring.

WENT HOME and scribbled a poem of sorts about him, that being the poem scribbling era of this checkered career. Well as can be remembered, the comment went like this--

"Recalling him as he was then... Nineteen I think he was at first... Thick hair down in his eyes, smooth chin... A hard young mouth that mocked or cursed... At all who held with Genesis... When there were evolutions laws... At churches, prayer, and politics... It seems preposterous that he... Now 40, bald, with golf-course tan, should publicly proclaim to be... A deacon and Republican."

ART LINKLETTER has defined the generation gap as "the distance between what older people forget and younger people don't know."

What older people are prone to forget is that younger people go through rebellion along with voice changing and love in bloom. What younger people do not know is that all too soon they will be wringing their hands over rebellion of "The wild ones" of the next generation. You can count on that.

Had never had the slightest desire to live to be 100. But am beginning to think it might be worth it just to have the fun of seeing what the generations to come can think up to shock their elders.

They will think of something. And the long-hairs of today will turn into the gray-hairs of tomorrow. So it goes... because so it always has gone... and always will go.

TALKED to three people in a row the last few days, all middle-aged or older, who declared sorrowfully how the young people are headed for disaster if not damnation.

They were not referring to rock throwing or arson-minded real rebels, either. Just being horrified over the clothes, hair and habits of "The wild ones" in this better-than-average community.

Right then and there was when there came echoes from the philosophy of that old sociology professor. Thought him an old man, then, anyhow. Why he must have been nearly 50!

But he had a way of planting hope and the promise of responsible adulthood for "The wild ones" of his day. Mostly, the years have proved him right.

Main thing older people forget is that they were younger once!

From Aug. 20, 1970

EVERY ONCE in a while, little echoes of wise lectures from a sociology professor at Baylor make me remember hot it was he always explained what happens eventually to young people he called "The wild ones."

That was before such label as "rebel, the establishment, liberal, conservative" became all too trite. Before people talked about "the generation gap."

"The wild ones," that PhD professor used to point out, grow older and become the staid and sober ones, staunch citizens, community leaders.

All it takes, he told, is time, money in the bank, property, matrimony and children to make "The wild ones" over into the cautious ones.

If he were still teaching today he would be saying "To make a conservative out of a rebel give him a few years to sample financial and social success."

SOMETIMES, too, take to remembering the first real rebel ever encountered personally.

He was a tall young pre-med student assistant in math and biology. He liked to shock people, including innocent young co-eds. He professed not to believe in anything much, including such frivolities as pep rallies and football and such serious things as church choirs, even God.

Met him once, some twenty-something years later, to find that he was a Sunday School superintendent and a Chamber of Commerce director in good standing.

He wasn't one of "The wild ones" any more. Just a solid citizen, this reformed rebel, taking the football season and his family, driving a new Cadillac, and wearing a fraternal order diamond ring.

WENT HOME and scribbled a poem of sorts about him, that being the poem scribbling era of this checkered career. Well as can be remembered, the comment went like this--

"Recalling him as he was then, . . . Nineteen I think he was at first. . . Thick hair down in his eyes, smooth chin . . . A hard young mouth that mocked or cursed. . . At all who held with Genesis. . . When there were evolutions laws. . . At churches, prayer, and politics. . . It seems preposterous that he. . . Now 40, bald, with golf-course tan. . . Should publicly proclaim to be. . . A deacon and Republican."

ART LINKLETTER has defined the generation gap as "the distance between what older people forget and younger people don't know."

What older people are prone to forget is that younger people go through rebellion along with voice changing and love in bloom. What younger people do not know is that all too soon they will be wringing their hands over rebellion of "The wild ones" of the next generation. You can count on that.

Had never had the slightest desire to live to be 100. But am beginning to think it might be worth it just to have the fun of seeing what the generations to come can think up to shock their elders.

They will think of something. And the long-hairs of today will turn into the gray-hairs of tomorrow. So it goes. . . because so it always has gone. . . and always will go.

TALKED to three people in a row the last few days, all mid-decades or older, who declared sorrowfully how the young people are headed for disaster if not damnation.

They were not referring to rock throwing or arson-minded real rebels, either. Just being horrified over the clothes, hair and habits of "The wild ones" in this better-than-average community.

Right then and there was when there came echoes from the philosophy of that old sociology professor. Thought him an old man, then, anyhow. Why he must have been nearly 50!

But he had a way of planting hope and the promise of responsible adulthood for "The wild ones" of his day. Mostly, the years have proved him right.

Main thing older people forget is that they were younger once!

Freshmen Legislators Face Task In Upcoming Session

The 77 freshmen state legislators face a monumental task during the upcoming legislative session and three of those legislators said here last week that one of their main concerns will be reform of rules in the legislature.

State Rep. Elmer Martin of Colorado City invited a fellow freshman Bill Sullivan of Gainesville, and a legislator Fred Head of Troop one of the famed "Dirty 30" in last year's legislature, to West Texas to take a look at the situation here.

The two visitors who districts are similar to Martin's said, they too are concerned with attracting industry to rural areas and believe they can attain the help of legislators from metropolitan areas in funding the rural development commission.

The Commission was created and appointed by the last legislature and Gov. Preston Smith but no funding was provided to make the organization effective.

The three men said they are determined to establish new rules for the House of Representatives and to take away the dictatorial powers of the speaker of the house and other representatives.

In addition, the three men said they are strongly in favor of and believe an ethics bill with teeth will be passed during this session of the legislature.

Here's is the consensus of the opinion of the three men toward issues facing the legislature:

--On school taxing, they want as much authority as possible left with the local school officials are opposed to the closing of small schools just for the sake of economy.

--On taxes, they are hopeful there will not be a need for an increase.

--On rewriting of the constitution, need to proceed immediately.

The legislature needs to regain the confidence of the people, the three men agreed, and be more responsive to people's needs.

Head pointed out that this legislature in the history of Texas since just after the Civil War when the existing constitution was written.

A number of rules changes that have been proposed include:

--Reduction of the number of committees from more than 40 to 21.

--Reduce committee assignments to 3 per member and limit chairmen of committees to serving on only one other committee. Limit chairmen of appropriations committee to that committee only.

--Provide tape recordings of testimony before committees and standing sub-committees.

--Make record of all committee proceedings including record attendance.

--Require that committees give 5 calendar day notice of all formal hearings on bills and require that all committee meetings be held in public.

--Institute a limited seniority system whereby each member will have the right to serve on one committee of his choice based on his cumulative seniority; provided, however, that this shall apply to the filling of no more than 50 per cent of the membership of each committee exclusive of the chairman and vice chairman.

riff's office, $7,890 for two tractors, $2,525 for a new pickup and $6,200 for two new cars for the sheriff's department.

The city of Colorado City is making plans to purchase a new fire truck which will take up most of its $23,302. Of the amount not spent on the fire truck, if it is purchased, plans are being made to pave a number of one-block long segments of city streets that are not presently paved.

The city of Loraine has not made any definite plans for use of its money but a large part of the funds is expected to be earmarked to improve the city sewage treatment plant.

Westbrook has not announced intentions for use of the funds it received.

The amount of money received was a slight surprise for all four of the governments as the county was to receive less than they actually got and the three cities in the county were to receive more.

However, in a cover letter that accompanied the check, it was pointed out that any mistakes in calculations would be corrected when the second check for revenue sharing covering the 1972 year is sent out in early January.

Initially it was announced that the county would receive $120,043, the City of Colorado City was to receive more than $60,000 and the cities of Westbrook and Loraine were to receive more than $11,000 each.

City Manager J. A. Sadler Jr., told city council Monday night that it is hoped the government will make an adjustment in the second check to bring the city's receipts up to the expected amount.

Nobles-Acuff Win Suit

A 32nd District Court jury has ruled in favor of dirt contractors Acuff and Nobles in a civil suit brought by the Mobile Pipeline Co.

The suit was brought to recover damages to a pipeline ruptured Feb. 6, 1971 in a terracing operation on a farm four miles south of here.

The pipeline company was seeking to recover $14,977.32 for damages to the pipeline and lost oil.

Acuff and Nobles filed a cross action asking for $1,500 for repair to the mainline and for lost time while the break was being repaired.

The jury found that the dirt contractors were not negligent in cutting the line, ruling that the line was not buried deep enough and stating that damages to the contractor were $2,000.

Damages to the pipeline company was set at $14,977 but the jury ruled that the break was due to the pipeline company's negligence.

Judge Weldon Kirk presided at the trial.

She also said that five men will be sent to Colorado City within the next few days to start work on the building, Pickens said.

It is anticipated that Mrs. McMullen will attempt to restore all the facilities that made the former Baker Hotel such an attraction in the early 1960's.

These facilities include restaurant, rooms converted into apartments, swimming pool, club, banquet room and office space.

Mrs. McMullen indicated to Pickens that she will have an apartment in the hotel for herself and will live here part of the time.

Suspension Fencing New Innovation For Farmers

With the cost of production increasing annually, most ranchers and farmers are interested in new technology and innovations, says George Willis, Range Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service.

One of those innovations that has not been used extensively in this county is suspension fencing.

Most standard fences built today have posts set 20 to 30 feet apart, one or two stays between, a brace frame every one-fourth mile or at every turn, and the wire stretched tight as it will go.

The wire on standard fences has very little movement, "give or play" due to the amount of stretch and the manner which staples are used; causing some wires to break easily when cattle push against them or when deer run into them.

A suspension fence, according to Willis, has posts set at 80 to 100 feet and stays spaced every 16 feet between.

The spacing of posts and stays are dependent on the type of terrain the closer the posts,

In some areas of this county, suspension fences are not practical to install because of the extremely rough terrain. Wire on suspension fences is not stretched as tight as for standard fences but is given enough play that movement can be seen when the wind blows strongly.

Brace frames are needed every one-fourth mile and larger heavier corner posts are needed due to the added pressure put on them. The play of the wire does not allow deer to become as easily entangled and also discourages bulls from fighting across the fence as it will have a whipping action to it that tends to punish the animals as they try to move through the fence.

Because a suspension fence is more flexible than a standard fence, usually much less damage is done to the fence when bulls are fighting along the fence line.

Construction costs are approximately one-fourth to one-third less for this type fence and maintenance cost will be less as there are generally fewer breaks to repair.

Suspension fences are not recommended for outside or boundary fences; however, when they are used as cross fences, they are one of the most valuable tools a rancher can use in managing the production of forage.

Cost-share assistance is available through the Great Plains Conservation Program or the Rural Environmental Assistance Program.

Specifications for suspension fences are available from the local field office of the SCS.

Electricity that helps make products and jobs better.

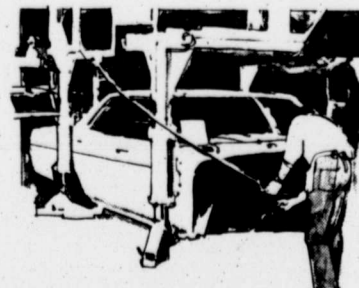

No matter where you look in industry today, electric energy is there. It is powerful energy that stamps and molds, that pushes and pulls, that heats and cools. Or sensitive energy that sews and scrolls, calculates and controls. Whether you build cars, or airplanes, or mobile homes, or make clothes, or process petroleum and petrochemical products—whatever your job, electricity helps you in a hundred ways to do it better, faster, easier. Electricity is one of the things that has helped build America's great industrial capability, and helped raise our standard of living—by putting better products in everyone's reach, and by making better jobs available. And it's clear that industrial uses of electricity will continue to increase in the years ahead. When additional power is needed, we'll be ready to provide it to industry and to all our customers.

But getting ready and staying ready is an increasingly expensive, never-ending job at Texas Electric. Our construction expenditures are at a record high for facilities necessary to keep an adequate and reliable power supply at your service.

Heat Ruins Venison, Tips For Field Dressing Deer

It's no wonder that so many people claim not to like venison, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials. They wouldn't like steak either if it was handled as badly as some venison.

"We still see hunters hauling their kill home on the hood of their car. This may be classical, but the heat from the engine spoils the meat," said one official.

According to experienced meat handlers, heat is the enemy of meat. It is so important to dissipate heat, even body heat, that a deer should be field dressed as soon as the hunter is able to recover and tag it.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has a leaflet entitled, "Now That You've Killed It," which tells how to field dress a deer. It is free upon request.

Field dressing a deer entails removing the internal organs and draining as much blood as possible from the animal. Care should be taken not to puncture the organs since this will taint the meat.

The skin of the deer should be removed as soon as possible since this holds in body heat. The deer should be hung head up for about twenty minutes immediately after field dressing to allow the blood to drain.

However, when allowing the carcass to cool, the deer should be hung head down since blood collecting in the hams spoils the meat. The carcass should always be hung in the shade and covered with a sheet or cheesecloth after it is skinned.

If the weather is cool, the carcass can be covered and transported for short distances on the trunk or roof of the car. In warm weather, it is best to cut up the carcass and ice it down.

Rites For Mrs. Banta

Harvey of Colorado City; two sons, Don Banta of Colorado City and Roy Banta of Canyon; one sister, Mrs. Ruby Purvis of Strawn; two brothers, Otho Green of Colorado City and J.W. Cotton Prices Up

Harvest Ahead Of Last Year

The U.S.D.A. Cotton Classing Office, Abilene, classed approximately 40,000 samples for the week ending December 8.

This was almost twice the number classed the previous week, and brings the season total to 124,000 classed. Only 11,715 samples had been classed by this date last season, according to B.B. Manly, Jr..

in charge of the Classing Office.

Dry weather allowed farmers to make considerable progress with harvest. Cold, windy weather did slow harvest one day, however.

Grades and staples of samples class remained much the same as those of the previous week.
Forty-seven percent of the samples graded white, forty-four percent graded light spotted, and nine percent graded spotted. Staple lengths 30,31, and 32 were 16, 50, and 27 percent, respectively.

The presence of bark in samples declined for the second week straight. Only 22 percent was barky this past week, as compared to 32 and 56 percent
the two prior weeks.

Micronaire readings were little changed: with 82 percent in the premium range, 16 percent lower than premium, and 2 percent higher than premium.

Cotton prices were steady or increased. The price for grade 4131 ranged from 21.55 to 23.25
4131 ranged from 21.55 to 23.25.
4231's ranged in price from 20.
25 to 22.25 and 5231's brought from 19.10 to 19.75 cents per pound. Prices paid farmers for cottonseed varied from 47 to 54 dollars per ton.

TESCO

He has been active in many civic affairs including serving as president of the chamber of commerce, chairman of the Industrial Committee of the chamber of the chamber, president of the Jaycees, of the United Fund and the Quarterback Club. Benson was also volunteer fire chief for three years and a warden of All Saints Episcopal Church for three years.

Benson and his wife, Jackie,
have three sons, Dave and Bobby who are both now living in Austin, and Russell who is a sophomore at Colorado High School.

"My family and I have enjoyed being a part of the community in Colorado City and it is with mixed emotions that we move to Fort Worth.

"However, this promotion will enable me to explore new frontiers of TESCO operations."

"We will miss our many friends and acquaintances here.
However, we will be back often to visit and my new position with TESCO will bring me through Mitchell County frequently. We encourage everyone to keep in contact.

"It is my belief that B.B. Hardee will serve this community in the best manner possible as the new manager of our office here. It is my hope that everyone will come by, get acquainted with him and welcome him to Colorado City," Benson said.

Hardee is no stranger to this area as he has lived in this vicinity for many years and has worked in oil field power sales in Mitchell County.

Colorado City is almost a second hometown for him as he has relatives here including two aunts, Mrs. E. T. Strain and Mrs. Delia Clark and an uncle, Milton Hardee.

"My family and I are looking forward with a great deal of anticipation to our move to Colorado City," Hardee said. "We want to meet and become friends of every member of the com-

given to those with the best beards and mustaches to the ones with the scraggliest beard and mustache.

During the course of the day, everyone who does not have a beard must have a shaving permit costing 50¢ and women will be fined 50¢ if they are not dressed in a western fashion.

The fine for women is for a special "indecent exposure" law in effect Saturday only. Indecent exposure amounts to wearing a dress that is not ankle length.

Plans are to jail everyone who is clean shaven and women wearing modern day dresses in a special jail downtown.

There is to be a chuckwagon in the downtown area, serving hot dogs and soft drinks and Colorado City stores will be open until 7 p.m. Saturday for the shopping convenience of everyone who comes downtown to join the fun.

All proceeds from the day's activities will go to the Mitchell County Boy's Club.

City Judge Re-appointed

City Council Monday night appointed City Judge W. A.
Brimberry to another two-year term as city judge.

The council also heard and approved a request from the Ministerial Alliance as requested by Rev. John Mikow to blow the fire siren for a 14-day period beginning Dec. 24 at noon rather than 6 p.m., as part of a religious observance.

The purpose of blowing the whistle at noon is to remind residents of Colorado City to take time out for a moment of prayer. The whistle will be blown at noon Dec. 24 thru Jan 6.

A special meeting of the council has been called for 6:30 p.m.
next Monday to inspect a fire truck that the city is considering purchasing.

Airman's Body Found In Lake

The body of an airman missing for more than three weeks was found floating in Lake Colorado City at 3:50 p.m. Monday, some 200 yards north of Cooper's Cove on the east shore of Lake Colorado City.

The body was fully clothed when Burt was pulled from the lake at 4:30 p.m. Monday. He was wearing wading boots and it appeared that he had been fishing and it is possible he stepped off into a deep hole while wading in the lake, officers said.

The Air Force has identified him as Charles T. Burt, 20, of China Springs, Texas, who disappeared from Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring just two days after he was assigned there.

He had completed basic training just prior to his assignment to Big Spring.

An autopsy was to be performed on the body by Air Force officials Wednesday. A ruling on the death was pending the results of the autopsy.

There were no apparent signs of foul play.

Burt's car was found parked near Cooper's Cove Nov. 19 and a week-long search that included the use of two helicopters and horseback riders was conducted in vain.

The car was locked and Burt's billfold and Air Force pay records were inside the car.

Off-duty Highway Patrolman Tommy Parker of Colorado City discovered the body when he went to the lake Monday afternoon to go fishing.

He notified the sheriff's office and Parker along with Deputy Sheriff Troy Walls recovered the body from the lake.

The body was transferred from Kiker - Rains - Seale Funeral Home here to Webb Air Force Base late Monday at the request of the Air Force.

BASKETS
Ronald Mayfield will be in the office and can be contacted by phoning 728-3223.

Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt asked that anyone knowing of persons needing to receive a basket to contact the clearinghouse and those who wish to make contributions should also phone Mrs. Mayfield.

Mitchell County churches will be collecting funds in Sunday services for the Christmas basket project of the alliance.
