City's Paving Program Stalled Second Time

The current paving program of the city was stalled for the second time yesterday when only two bids were received and one of the bidders had not bid on the entire paving project.

The bids were opened at 10 a.m. yesterday by the City Commission and upon learning that one of the two contractors bidding on the paving project had not bid on the entire job, the commission rejected the bids.

The commission ordered the city secretary to advertise for new bids to be opened at 10 a.m. July 9.

The paving project had previously been stalled when bids were first advertised for and no bids were received from contractors. The paving contractors reported that they could not carry the notes of individual property owners as was done last year. As a result, the commission advertised for bids to be opened yesterday on a cash only basis and urged property owners desiring paving adjacent to their property to make arrangements for loan so that cash could be paid for the paving.

In other action yesterday, the commission purchased a Wayne street sweeper from Browning Ferris of Lubbock at a bid price of $10,587.00, less one per cent. Two other bids were received last week and the commission had delayed action until yesterday so that each of the sweepers could be studied.

Other firms entering bids on the sweepers were: Cap Rock Machinery Company, $11,775.00; and Tom W. Carpenter, $10,495.00. All of the bids were for the sweepers without a trade-in. After studying the different types of sweepers, the commission decided to purchase the Wayne sweeper.

Speedy Rights Action Predicted In Senate

By WARREN DUFFEE

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland predicted today that the Senate will pass its Judiciary Committee to speed action on President Eisenhower's House-approved civil rights bill.

Knowland made the prediction to newsmen as Republicans set out to take away from northern and western Democrats the leadership in the fight for the civil rights bill.

The strategy of the measure's supporters was to take advantage of a parliamentary maneuver to put it directly on the Senate calendar. Under usual procedure, it would be referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) and three other southern opponents of civil rights legislation, have bottled up a similar bill in the Judiciary Committee for the past three months. Supporters feared the House bill would suffer the same fate in the committee.

The Senate agreed to first reading of the House bill shortly after noon today. But the parliamentary maneuvering wasn't expected to last more than a few days at most, start until Thursday on the second reading.

The House approved the bill 218-126 Tuesday after eight days of debate, sometimes stormy. Southern segregationists today called House passage of the civil rights bill a bitter setback but looked toward a much stronger fight against the measure in the Senate.

Sen. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.) said in Washington the House couldn't filibuster now.

The showdown fight, which could last for weeks, probably will start next month.

Southern segregationists today called House passage of the civil rights bill a bitter setback but looked toward a much stronger fight against the measure in the Senate.

Sen. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.) said in Washington the House couldn't filibuster now.

tion was the "greatest blow that has befallen civil rights since the nobles wrested the Magna Carta from King John at Runnymede."

But Talmadge, in his first term in the Senate, confidently predicted that what he thus labeled a "74-year setback" will be overturned in the upper house.

"There is a growing body of determined men in the U.S. Senate who will utilize every weapon at their command to preserve constitutional government in America," Talmadge said.

"A southern filibuster is our only salvation," Lt. Gov. Guy Hardwick of Alabama said.

Other spokesmen for the South's conservative viewpoint claimed the bill would hurt, not improve, race relations, would permit federal control of local affairs.

Ship Collision Kills 9

BREST, France (UP)—An American and a Greek tanker collided in heavy fog today in the Atlantic "graveyard of ships" off the Brittany coast of France. Both ships burned so fiercely that smoke rose 4,000 feet above the sea.

Radio reports said nine persons were known dead—one on the 10,506-ton U. S. tanker Stony Point and eight on the 9,345-ton Greek ship Itanos.

Four other persons were missing and feared dead. Many of the survivors were severely burned.

Vessels from four nations converged on the crash area and radio reports said they had picked up 64 of the 77 crew members of the two vessels. Shipping reports said the American tanker had a crew of 41 and the Greek vessel 36.

Survivors Picked Up
An American airman who flew over the area said he had received a report that "all survivors" had been picked up, but said he did not know how many were involved.

Capt. Lowell Dibert, of St. Louis, Mich., said visibility was so bad the rescue planes could barely see the burning ships.

The Stony Point, owned by the U.S. Petroleum Carriers Inc., of New York, and the Greek tanker collided shortly before 5 a.m. Their crews jumped overboard immediately.

Desperate calls went out for medical supplies. The big liner America, with a hospital aboard, hurried into the area.

The sky remained overcast throughout the area for most of the day, preventing seaplanes and helicopters from getting in close. The U. S. Air Force flew air-sea rescue planes to the scene from England and German bases.

"Sailor's Graveyard"
The early morning crash occurred 30 miles from Brest and 15 miles off Wissant, a rocky peninsula stretching out from the Breton Coast and known as "the sailor's graveyard." Fishermen there have a saying, "he who sees Wissant drinks his own blood."

An international armada of rescue ships including the luxury liner America, converged on the disaster scene with doctors and medical supplies. But fog patches hampered aerial rescue attempts and may have added to the death toll.

Conflicting reports from dozens of radio messages from ship to ship and from ship to shore left the casualty count indefinite at midday, but it was clear many crewmen were badly injured, some suffering from burns.

At 11 a.m., French naval authorities announced that according to reports from rescue ships eight crewmen of the Greek tanker died in the collision. The captain of the American vessel said he had seen some of his men drowning in the oil waters.

A Shocking Experience!

NOTTINGHAM, England (UP)—The mayor of Nottingham touched off what may have been the world's most spirited "milk shake" at a dairy festival Monday.

The mayor pushed a button which started automatic milking machines and also set a herd of cows kicking, bellowing, jumping and mooing.

An official said the Jerseys bounced because a short circuit in the wiring of the milk machines gave each bovine a jolting series of electric shocks.

Work On Road Is Delayed Again

Bids for the construction of the paved road from Bowers City to Lefors were pulled yesterday when it developed that work would be blocked by a demand from the Texas Company.

The oil company, in its latest communication with the county, has requested a total of $1,082 for casing and lowering lines that cross the right-of-way of the road.

The latest sum wanted by the company is less than the original sum requested, but the county commissioners still feel that it would be settling a precedent to pay for the lowering of the lines.

In the past, companies effected by such construction work have paid all costs of changing their lines and the commissioners report that the county does not have the money to start paying for such work at this time.

Earlier work had been blocked on the road and bids were pulled when Phillips Petroleum Company raised a similar demand but a settlement was reached between the company and the county.

Right-of-way has been obtained for the proposed road between Bowers City and Lefors and fences have been moved to align with the new right-of-way. The road has been torn up and a passable route has been graded along the new right-of-way.

Judge Bruce Parker reported that the pulling of the bids yesterday would result in at least a month's delay on awarding a contract for the construction work and that if all questions are not settled by then and the bids are pulled a third time it would mean a delay of over a year before another attempt could be made to build the road.

Judge Parker reported to the News that he will present the problem to representatives of the various oil companies tomorrow morning when the representatives of the firms meet with the county tax equalization board on a hearing on evaluations set by the county on property owned by the oil firms.

John D. Bynum of Carson County was being held this morning by the police department for the sheriff's department at Panhandle.

Bynum admitted to local officers last night that he had stolen automobile parts and accessories in Carson and Potter Counties after being questioned by local officers in regards to hucups, a man-fold, army canteen, army shovel and other automobile accessories found in his car.

In making statements to the officers, Bynum also admitted that he was AWOL from the Navy.

The officers reported that Bynum had apparently sold some hucups to some local youths and when the hucups did not fit the youths' car, Bynum refused to refund their money. The youths brought Bynum to the police station and the resulting investigation disclosed that the items were in Bynum's car.

Sheriff John Nunn of Panhandle and an officer from the Amarillo sheriff's department were expected to arrive in Pampa today to question Bynum and Nunn was to take him to Panhandle later today.

For City

Federal Aid May Lose McClellan

A letter was received this week by Fred Brook, city manager, from the federal Forestry Service in Albuquerque, N.M., concerning the Lake McClellan issue.

The city, in order to receive the lake from the federal government as offered, must repair the damaged spillway.

City and county officials had been investigating the possibilities of receiving federal aid from the Civil Defense Agency for the repair work on the grounds that the spillway in its present condition might endanger health and life.

However, the letter from the Forestry Service, government agency through which the lake was offered to Pampa, stated that if the city was seeking federal aid for repairs from another agency then it was not sure it could extend the offer.

They promised further investigation.

Meanwhile County Judge Bruce Parker is checking the Civil Defense Agency for its answer to furnish aid money. An answer is expected today or tomorrow.

The Forestry Service, in its letter to Brook, also set July 1 as a deadline for Pampa's acceptance or rejection of the lake.

Brook said he might ask for an extension on this time limit because he thought the city would not be ready to answer by that date.

Ove-heated bearings in an air conditioner at 601 N. Somerville resulted in the only alarm received yesterday by the fire department.

The alarm was received at 6:30 p.m. and firemen answering the alarm reported that "damages" was limited to the air conditioner which was extensively damaged.

Wheat Referendum Voting Tomorrow

Voting on the wheat marketing quota for the 1958 wheat crop will take place in Gray County tomorrow.

The polls will open at 8 a. m. and will close at 7 p. m. Farmers and their wives can vote at the following places: Grandview school, Laketown store, McLean City Hall and the Courthouse in Pampa.

Husbands and wives are both eligible to vote if they have an interest in more than 15 acres of wheat for next year.

The officers reported that Bynum had apparently sold some hucups to some local youths and when the hucups did not fit the youths' car, Bynum refused to refund their money. The youths brought Bynum to the police station and the resulting investigation disclosed that the items were in Bynum's car.

The new traffic ordinance contains many traffic regulations which cannot be mentioned in this amount of space. Motorists who drive on Pampa streets have been urged by city officials to obtain a copy of the 27-page booklet containing the complete ordinance from the office of the city manager in City Hall or from the police station and familiarize themselves with the new regulations so that they will not violate the traffic regulations of the city.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce, in its weekly meeting yesterday at noon in the Palm Room of City Hall, heard a talk by E. O. (Red) Wedgeworth.

Wedgeworth, chamber manager, gave a rundown on the general organization of the senior chamber of commerce and its relation to the general organization of the senior chamber of commerce and its relation to the Jaycees.

He also reviewed some of the recent projects of the chamber and their development. The community hotel and the coming of the Cabot Franks Division were discussed.

Ray and Eldon Blumer were selected as "Jaycees-of-the-month." The brothers are responsible for printing the Jaycee bulletin and had made two trips out-of-town to attend other meetings. They also had each served as committee chairman.

At the present, the Jaycees are discussing several plans for promoting the August 3-10 Top o' Texas rodeo, according to President Johnny Campbell.

POISON HEMLOCK—Mrs. Doty Warner, 1137 Terrace, prepares to cut down her pet plant which she discovered yesterday was actually a poison hemlock. An expert identified the herb as such after Mrs. Warner had become suspicious. An aunt brought the plant to her four years ago from Colorado. The plant expert promised The News a full report Thursday or Friday about the plant and its effects.

Specialist Says Plant Was 'Poison Hemlock'

By BILL NEAL

Pampa News Staff Writer

"Don't boil any strange 'greens'. Ma, cause there's poison hemlock in them thar hills."

After a close inspection by a plant identification specialist, the strange plant which was pictured in yesterday's News and growing in the back yard of Mrs. Doty Warner, 1137 Terrace, was pronounced, "poison hemlock."

The Amarillo plant specialist, E. Everhart, said that as far as he could tell without inspection under a microscope the plant was really a hemlock. He took a branch to his Amarillo office for further examination and promised a report to The News Thursday or Friday.

Poison hemlock, Everhart explained, when consumed in large amounts builds up toxic poisoning in the body with death as a possible result if enough is consumed.

"It is chiefly dangerous to animals which eat large quantities," he said.

The chief danger to people is when children either chew on the plant or fashion "whistles" out of the hollow stems.

Poisonous hemlock, an ancient medicine as well as poison, was used in the execution of Greek criminals in Biblical times. The famous Greek philosopher, Socrates, committed suicide by drinking "hemlock juice."

It generally grows in marshy regions, but because of the large amount of rain this spring it is possible that a few scattered specimens are likely to grow in this region.

Mrs. Warner, who got her hemlock plant from an aunt who brought it to her from Colorado four years ago, said that it had never been more than "just a weed" until this spring when all the rains came. It was almost five feet tall when she cut it down yesterday.

Mrs. Warner said that the plant resembled a carrot or parsley plant when small.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it. Lewis Hdw. (Adv.)

Copies Are Available

The hemlock has no hairs or "fuzz" on its stem, and the green stems have reddish spots. It produces a nauseous smell, especially when rubbed together.

Alkaloid and methylocine are the poisonous ingredients in the hemlock, and death is caused by these agents attacking the nervous system.

However, they are used in medicine sometimes as a sedative.

Other Pampans have been calling The News to report that they suspected they might have poison hemlock growing in their yards. They have reported that they planned to have their plants examined to determine whether or not it was the hemlock.

Fancher said prizes in several categories will be awarded the night of Aug. 6, when the contest ends. A street dance is also planned to celebrate the end of the "beard-growing season" on that day.

Ordinance To Change Driving Habits

By FRED M. PARKER

Pampa News Staff Writer

A new traffic ordinance went into effect yesterday in Pampa and with this ordinance, changes have been made that will cause a change in the driving habits of Pampa motorists.

The ordinance was approved by the City Commission on third reading on January 2, but, due to having the ordinance indexed and 5,000 copies of the ordinance printed it did not become effective until yesterday.

The change that will immediately effect more Pampa motorists than any other will be the stopping of the practice of making right turns on red lights. In Section 43, Paragraph C-1, it states, "Vehicular traffic facing the (stop) signal shall stop before entering the cross walk on the near side of the intersection or, if none, then before entering the intersection and shall remain standing until green or 'GO' is shown alone."

The above paragraph means that no vehicle will legally proceed into the intersection when facing a red light.

Another new part of the traffic ordinance is found in Section 38. This part of the ordinance requires that a motorist who is involved in an accident within the city limits "resulting in injury to or death of any person or property damage to an apparent extent of $25 or more, shall immediately by the quickest means of communication give notice of such accident to the police department."

Any accident that is not investigated to the city within 10 days by means of a written report. According to Bob Gordon, city attorney, who helped with the formation of the new ordinance, the above articles are the only important changes. Other changes were made in the wording of the various sections, he reported, so that it would be easier to understand the regulations.

The ordinance also deals with many traffic regulations which have been in effect before, either by city ordinance or state law, but have been clarified and placed in one combined ordinance.

Many of these regulations are being violated every day by Pampa motorists, local police officers report. One violation is that which apparently most people "do not understand the meaning of," parking.

The new ordinance states that parking means the standing of a vehicle, whether occupied or not, otherwise than temporarily for the purpose of and while actually engaged in loading or unloading. Section 37 states, "No person shall stand or park a vehicle in a roadway other than parallel with the edge of a roadway headed in the direction of lawful traffic movement and the right-hand wheels of the vehicle within 18 inches of the curb or edge of the roadway except as otherwise provided in this article." Sec. 101 states, "Upon those streets which have been signed or marked by the city engineer for angle parking, no person shall park or stand a vehicle other than at the angle to the curb or edge of the roadway indicated by such signs or markings."

In dealing with pedestrians, the new ordinance provides that a pedestrian shall have the right-of-way at all intersections. According to the ordinance, all motorists approaching an intersection in which a pedestrian is crossing shall either slow down to allow the pedestrian to cross safely or, if necessary, shall stop the vehicle. This is one part of the ordinance the City Commission has instructed the police department to pay particular attention to and to stop all violators who are seen by the officers.

Another item regulated by the ordinance is that of identifying funeral processions. The ordinance stipulates that all funeral processions will be identified with an insignia designated by the city. The ordinance also provides for traffic control for such processions and provides penalties for motorists who do not stop for such processions.

The new traffic ordinance contains many traffic regulations which cannot be mentioned in this amount of space. Motorists who drive on Pampa streets have been urged by city officials to obtain a copy of the 27-page booklet containing the complete ordinance from the office of the city manager in City Hall or from the police station and familiarize themselves with the new regulations so that they will not violate the traffic regulations of the city.

Girard Incident Points Up How US Foreign Policy Has Changed

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Peace makes strange bedfellows, too, just as politics does. Perhaps that explains some of the misunderstanding and resentment in the United States about the plight of Specialist 3C William S. Girard.

It is possible, also, that U.S. citizens have not been able to adjust themselves to the rapidly shifting objectives of American foreign policy. Most Americans now alive adjusted themselves a very few years ago to foreign policy objectives which basically were these: —Kill Germans; —Destroy their homes and their industry; —Ditto for the Japanese.

United States foreign policy now is based on two considerations of fact which it would have been almost treasonable to suggest during war time. The facts are these: —Germany now is the free nations' anchor man in the West against Communism.

—Japan ditto in the East.

Such considerations of fact as these have led to some events which scarcely could have been foreseen nor credited if they had been suggested a few short years ago. For example: —Girard, a Midwest farm boy, has been handed over by the U.S. government to be tried by Japanese courts on charges of shooting and killing a Japanese woman on a U.S. target range in Japan. This has caused resentment in the United States.

U.S. officials are aware that failure to turn Girard over to Japanese trial would cause even greater resentment in Japan.

This "situation" is a used Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.) to say a few days ago that the United States is proceeding on a course of "mass appeasement" of the Japanese people — and others — in making the status of forces agreements with foreign nations. These agreements provide for the trial of American military personnel by local courts for offenses committed while not in the performance of duty.

The other side of the argument is provided by the Formosa incident in which Chinese soldiers sacked the U.S. Embassy. The riot took place after a U.S. military court tried an American soldier on charges of shooting a Chinese peeping tom. The soldier was cleared and released.

Focuses Attention
However that may be, the Girard incident has focused the attention of American citizens on their changed relations with the late enemy.

The change is not only in the East. The Western enemy's role of friend and ally against the Kremlin long since was formalized by admission of West Germany to membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. American officials over the years had been preparing public opinion in the United States for something like that.

President Eisenhower visited Germany in 1951 as the supreme commander of Atlantic defenses. It was a good visit during which Eisenhower told the Germans "bygones are bygones" so far as World War II enmity was concerned. He said the Germans could become equal partners with the West and that he did not question the "honor" of most Germans against whom he fought.

The partnership has become steadily more secure, so firmly established by now that the nomination on Feb. 7 of this year of German Lt. Gen. Hans Speidel to be commander of NATO ground forces in Central Europe caused hardly a ripple in the United States.

US Production Of Newsprint Is Increasing

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government says U.S. production of newsprint is increasing so rapidly that by 1959 American mills should be able to supply about one-third of the nation's newsprint consumption.

Last year they supplied only about 23 per cent and prior to 1950, only 18 per cent.

The Commerce Department has reported to Congress that by 1959 American dependence on imported newsprint may be cut by one-half million tons below last year's level.

The department's report was submitted to a House commerce subcommittee by H. B. McCoy, administrator of the department's business and defense services administration.

The subcommittee requested the report 13 months ago. McCoy termed it the first comprehensive study ever prepared by the department analyzing future supply and demand for one of the nation's major manufacturing industries.

If domestic mills operate at capacity in 1959, the report said, they may produce 2,360,000 tons, or about one-third of the estimated domestic demand of 7,100,000 tons.

It "seems reasonable," the report continued, to expect that by 1965 U.S. production of newsprint will total 2,700,000 tons. That would be an increase of 67.2 per cent over 1954 output.

New African Nation's Leader Having Wonderful Time!

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent
Kwame Nkrumah, leader of Africa's newest nation, seems to be having a wonderful time.

Not only is he prime minister of Ghana, the former British Gold Coast colony, but he also is its foreign and defense minister.

He enjoys virtual dictatorial power as head of his Convention People's Party.

He has moved into magnificent Christiansborg Castle, which used to be the residence of the British colonial governor.

And now Nkrumah is having his own head, instead of that of Queen Elizabeth II, put on Ghana's stamps and coins.

His political opponents are not pleased. They complain that he spent nearly $200,000 in having the 300-year-old castle, built by Danish traders, fixed up for himself and his mother. He is a bachelor and she is his official hostess.

Supporters Answer Complaints
Nkrumah's supporters say the castle was renovated to house the Duchess of Kent, who represented her niece Queen Elizabeth when Ghana attained its independence last March 6 as the ninth member of the British Commonwealth. The opponents report that with Nkrumah occupying the castle, the taxpayers will have to pay for the construction of a new and equally impressive residence for the new British governor-general.

In the castle incident, and in the decision to put Nkrumah's head on the stamps and coins, his opponents see signs of delusions of grandeur and hint that Ghana is heading toward a dictatorship which might take either a Fascist or an extreme leftist slant.

Nkrumah said in his inaugural speech that he would pursue a pro-Western policy. He asked Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who represented President Eisenhower at the ceremony, for American cooperation.

Nkrumah's enemies say that at one time he carried a Communist Party membership card. Nkrumah points out that it was unsigned. He says he carried it only so he could get into Communist meetings and learn about Communist techniques. He describes himself as a Marxian Socialist. Both Britain and the United States regard him as a Democratic-minded man and an anti-Communist.

Nkrumah is 47. He is an eloquent speaker. He has a thick head of bushy frizzled hair.

He was born in a mud hut, the son of a goldsmith. After he attended a Roman Catholic mission school and Achimota College in the Gold Coast, a diamond-prospecting uncle gave him the money to go to the United States. Nkrumah entered Lincoln University, near Philadelphia in 1935. He took degrees as a bachelor of arts and of sacred theology.

Returns Home In 1947
After his graduation, he became an instructor in philosophy, and also took the degree of master of arts in anthropology at the University of Pennsylvania. After 10 years in the United States, he went to London and returned home in 1947 after attending the London School of Economics.

As soon as he got home, Nkrumah got political. He was jailed for taking part in strike riots and later got a three-year prison term for fomenting strikes. While he was in prison, Britain gave its colony a constitution and held elections. Nkrumah's party won a landslide victory.

The governor, accepting him as a popular hero, released him and he was made leader of the native government, with powers approximating those of a prime minister.

Officials To Appeal Girard Case To The Supreme Court

By HELEN THOMAS

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The government today was expected to bypass the U.S. Court of Appeals and take its appeal in the Girard case directly to the Supreme Court.

A decision already has been made to challenge in a higher court Tuesday's ruling by District Court Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy. He held that the government cannot proceed with its plan to turn GI William S. Girard over to the Japanese for a manslaughter trial but must try Girard before an American military court-martial.

Justice Department officials planned a top-level conference today to decide whether to ask the Supreme Court to assert jurisdiction over the government's appeal. Such a request would be made on grounds that a final decision in the case is important to one phase of U.S. foreign policy.

Background of Case
The government, acting under an agreement with Japan, had decided in the interest of good relations with that country to release Girard, a 21-year-old soldier from Ottawa, Ill., to a Japanese court. He was to stand trial there for killing Naka Sakai, a Japanese woman who was scavenging for scrap metal on a military firing range where Girard was on official guard duty.

But McGarraghy ruled that the government's decision, approved by President Eisenhower, "is illegal and in violation of the Constitution and laws of the United States."

He said that since Girard was "acting as a member of the American armed forces in the performance of his official duties as guard" when the shooting occurred, he "is accountable only to the United States federal jurisdiction."

Government officials said that if the Supreme Court upholds this ruling, the United States may be forced to close many vital defense bases overseas.

Jap Premier Arrives

To add further to the government's discomfort, the McGarraghy decision came on the eve of today's arrival here for a state visit of Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi. White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said he did not know whether the Girard case would figure in conversations between Eisenhower and Kishi.

In Tokyo, the Japanese procurator general said Japan has not changed its plans to try Girard. He said the McGarraghy decision "is based on American domestic law and as far as Japan is concerned we will go on the pronouncement of the American government that Girard will be handed over to Japanese courts."

Girard himself, in a transpacific telephone call to his brother at Ottawa, Ill., said, "I sure feel good" about the McGarraghy ruling.

Man Receives Minor Injuries In Accident

Charles "Shorty" Henson of Pampa received minor injuries yesterday afternoon when he fell from a pickup on Cuyler, five feet north of Ford, at 2:35.

Investigating officers reported that Henson fell from the '35 Chevrolet pickup, driven by Raymond F. Cox of Pampa, as the pickup was making a turn.

Henson was treated at Highland General Hospital for minor injuries and was released. The extent of the injuries were not reported. The only other accident reported to the police department yesterday occurred at the intersection of Cook and Gray at 6:30 p.m. A '56 Chevrolet, driven by Shanon O'Keefe of Fort Worth, and a '54 Ford pickup, driven by Harry F. Cook, Pampa, were in collision. Damages to the Chevrolet were estimated at $200 and the pickup encountered damages estimated at $250.

The installation dinner will be a "ladies night" affair and all members are requested to bring their wives, according to Paul West, program chairman for the dinner.

Court Fines Safeway For Price War

FORT WORTH (UP)—Safeway Stores Inc., and two of its officials were slapped with a $187,000 fine by Federal District Judge Joe Estes Tuesday for carrying on a bitter price war in the Southwest.

Former Safeway President Lingan A. Warren of Oakland, Calif., and Earl Cluff, manager of the chain's Dallas division, were given a year's probation sentence each in addition to their fines.

The corporation was fined $105,000, Warren $75,000 and Cluff $10,000. The Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division told Judge Estes before he handed down the sentences that Safeway fought a 22-month long price war in 50 Texas and New Mexico towns and had forced "a number" of grocers out of business.

She said Safeway lost four million dollars by selling 1,500 grocery items below cost.

Charges were brought under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and the Robinson-Patman act. They were filed in 1955.

Miss Brass said it was the largest fine ever levied under present anti-trust laws.

The defendants entered no contest pleas, leaving themselves at the mercy of the court.

Chief Defense Counsel Elton L. Marshall of Kansas City argued that to sell below cost is not a violation of the law. He said competitors did the same, and produced newspaper advertisements to back up his statement.

PHIL RAGLAND
... new manager

Firestone Has New Manager

The Firestone Store, 117 S. Cuyler, has announced the coming of a new manager.

Phil Ragland, former commercial salesman with the Lubbock Firestone store, has been named to succeed Al Osko who has been moved to manager of the Tulsa, Okla., store.

Ragland, 31, as yet is not settled in Pampa. He expects to bring his wife and two children, Kent, 7, and Sherry, 4, soon.

He was graduated from Lubbock High School and attended Texas Tech for two years.

A West Texan at heart, Ragland has lived in Lubbock since 1936. "I really do like Pampa and am looking forward to living here," he said.

Ragland is a member of the Baptist Church, Masons and formerly an Optimist.

"We want everyone, especially the old customers, to come in the store and get acquainted," Ragland said.

Graham Preaches On The Nature Of Satan

NEW YORK (UP)—The devil leaves alone the people he knows he's trapped but doesn't really start working on others until they give their lives to Christ, evangelist Billy Graham said Tuesday night.

Among those to whom the devil represents a constant thorn in the side, Graham said, is Billy Graham.

In a sermon on the nature and works of Satan, Graham told a Madison Square Garden audience of 16,500 persons that every time he preached on the devil "his satanic majesty has tried to hamper my delivery."

"I keep a diary and I'm writing down every way Satan has attacked this crusade," Graham said. "I have to admit he's done a lot to hurt it."

"I don't know whether Satan controls the weather, but he's done what to him must be a good job over the weekend."

Since a stifling heat wave hit the East a week ago attendance at Graham's sermons has dropped an average 1,500 persons a night. However, as of the close of the fifth week of the crusade, more than 600,000 persons attended the sermons and 19,387 have made "decisions for Christ."

Graham said "the tragedy is that a lot of supposedly good Christians cooperated with the devil by staying away from here with him."

"At a time like this," he said, "if Christians don't bring some of their unchurched friends with them to our meetings every single night to give them the good news, it amounts to criminal negligence."

He said his sermon on Satan "has always been one of the most difficult for me to prepare and preach, because the devil's in there working."

"Today, for instance, as I was dictating my sermon notes, the telephone caught fire and we had to get the hotel engineers to fix it. Then I lost two pages of the notes. Something like this always happens when I preach on the devil."

Sin of Pride
The 38-year-old North Carolinian said that Lucifer's great sin was pride. "I will"—and that as a result "this mighty prince of God was kicked out of heaven and came to this planet and made it his abode."

"Jesus said we must subject ourselves to self-crucifixion," Graham said. "The greatest sin against God is pride—I will. The middle letter of sin is 'I'. The middle letter of pride is 'I'. And the middle letter of Lucifer is 'I'."

Local police officers arrested Forest L. Billingsley, 1145 Prairie Dr., at 12:34 this morning for the sheriff's department in Borger on a warrant issued in Hutchinson County charging Billingsley with giving worthless checks.

The Borger officers arrived in Pampa today and returned Billingsley to Borger to answer the charge against him.

Polio Chapter Sets Meeting
Gray County Polio Chapter will meet Friday afternoon at 5 in the Chamber of Commerce conference room.

Fred Brook, city manager, is secretary of the board.

Routine business is all that is expected in the meeting.

Goonsquad Tactics Charged To Union

By HERBERT FOSTER

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate investigators summoned President James G. Cross of the Bakery Workers' Union today to answer charges that he used goon squad tactics, connived with an employer and misused union funds.

The dark-haired, well-dressed union president promised the Senate Labor Rackets Committee he would not invoke the Fifth amendment on any "pertinent" question in his testimony.

Cross was pictured in three days of previous testimony as a "dictator" who borrowed large sums from an employer while his union tried to keep workers on substandard wages; who beat up opponents with the aid of a goon squad and pistol-packing Vice president George L. Stuart; and who used union funds for his personal pleasure.

Committee Counsel Robert F. Kennedy told reporters he would produce evidence today that Cross had borrowed $106,000 from Martin Phillipsborn Sr. and his brother, Herbert, since 1948—including $40,000 last November after the union withdrew strike permission from 125 of its members who worked for Zion Industries, Inc., a bakery and candy factory operated by Martin Phillipsborn, Jr.

Peter Carbonara, secretary-treasurer of Local 1, Chicago, testified Tuesday that Cross gave strike authority to the workers at Zion, Ill., last October after they had voted overwhelmingly to walk out when negotiations failed to improve their substandard contract.

Predictions Made
But this reaction was coupled with predictions that the measure, if passed by the Senate, will not be tolerated by either the North or the South for long after it is tried out.

State Sen. Sam Engelhardt of Alabama, a white citizens council leader in his state, predicted that "within five years other sections—besides the South—will be happy to repeal this bill."

Engelhardt, like most other critics of the bill, deplored most the South's failure to inject a provision for jury trials of defendants in civil rights cases.

Engelhardt said abandoning the right of trial by jury "is comparable to the Hitler regime," while Georgia Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook called it an insult to southern whites.

Cook said he was most disturbed by the charge of U.S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. that the government could not get convictions "from white juries" in civil rights violations.

"Vicious Attack"
"Such thinking on the part of Brownell is a most vicious attack on the integrity of southerners and upon the jury system itself," Cook said.

Royal Family At Party For Actor's Girl

By JOHN D. PARRY

United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—The royal family attended the coming out party for Douglas Fairbanks' daughter Daphne Tuesday night and Princess Margaret danced till dawn with an Irish peer 3½ years her junior.

Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh attended with Princess Margaret and Princess Alexandra in another sign that the social stigma attached to divorcees in Britain is rapidly breaking down.

Both Fairbanks, former husband of actress Joan Crawford, and his wife have been married before. The Queen and Duke's attendance at a Fairbanks private dinner two years ago touched off a storm of protest.

Margaret's new boy friend was Lord Patrick Beresford, 23, who plays polo with the Duke and says he prefers spending his time in the stables to "wasting his time" with debutantes.

Advertising For Rodeo Is Arriving In Rodeo Office

Advertising for the annual Top of Texas Rodeo slated for August 5-10 is arriving in the rodeo office and distribution of these materials will begin July 1, according to Mrs. Weldon Steward, secretary of the rodeo association.

Rules and regulations for the show have been mailed to all previous contestants. Some 2,500 cowboys and cowgirls over the Southwest are to receive the literature.

About 25,000 attended the four performances last year.

More than 1,000 posters printed in three colors will be distributed July 10 when five carloads of girls clad in western attire will fan out in different directions for a tour of surrounding towns. In the past, the Kit Kat Klub and the Sub D & B Club, have furnished the girls for this booster trip.

The rodeo office will be set up July 29 to handle the entries for the rodeo and kid pony show. The location of the office has not been decided yet, but will be downtown.

The rodeo secretary also announced that all who wanted on the reserve box seat "waiting list" should get in contact with her at the Chamber of Commerce office.

"This is considered one of the world's greatest amateur shows, and we are expecting a big turnout," E. O. Wedgeworth, chamber manager said.

Shantz Tags 8th Win In "Comeback Of The Year"

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

Bobby Shantz, the New York Yankees' 142-pound pitching giant, owns an 8-1 record and 1.84 earned run average today that make him baseball's No. 1 candidate for "comeback of the year" honors.

Shantz, showing the same form that made him the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1952, turned in his seventh straight victory Tuesday night when he beat the Detroit Tigers, 2-1, to move the Yankees within 2 1/2 games of the first place Chicago White Sox. The White Sox suffered their sixth loss in 10 games when Billy Pierce walked over the winning run in a 2-1 defeat at the hands of the Baltimore Orioles.

Bobby Richardson, the man who made Billy Martin expendable, delivered a sacrifice fly in the second inning and singled home the winning yankee run in the fifth to help hand Billy Hoeltz his fourth defeat. A crowd of 33,124 saw the Tigers score their only run on a walk and two singles.

Pierce suffered his fourth loss against 10 when he walked Billy Gardner, Bob Nieman and Jim Busby in succession to give the Orioles their decisive run. George Zuverink shut out the White Sox for the last 2-2-3 innings to gain credit for his seventh victory for Baltimore.

a double and a homer as the Dodgers tagged the slumping Redlegs with their fourth straight loss and eighth in nine games. The Dodgers combed five Cincinnati pitchers for 13 hits as Newcombe flipped his third shutout for his sixth triumph.

Ray Crone shut out his teammates for six innings to win his first game for the Giants who've won six of their last seven games. Darryl Spencer's two-run sixth-inning single was the decisive blow after an error by Bill Bruton paved the way for Warren Spahn's fourth loss. Wes Westrum homered for the Giants.

Rookie Harry Anderson's grand slam and Rip Repulski's three-run homer provided the Phillies with all their runs as Jim Hearn picked up his first win with 4-1-3 innings of one-run relief pitching. Hearn struck out six of the 15 batters he faced after rookie Jack Sanford, trying for his ninth win, fanned seven batters in 4-2-3 frames.

Ballerger Gains 1st In SW League

By UNITED PRESS

Ballerger, after weeks of struggling, has the Southwestern League lead today.

The Westerners stopped Carlsbad 5-1 Tuesday night to knock the Potashers out of first place and move in after a long stay in second place.

Midland whipped El Paso 9-3 and Hobbs edged San Angelo 5-4. Gene Lippold set Carlsbad down with three hits as Ballerger scored all five runs before the Potashers counted their one tally.

Ron Kiser and Stubby Greer opened the scoring in the fourth for Ballerger with singles. Carlsbad hurler Jonas Gaines sent them to second and third with a wild pitch and successive sacrifice flies by Jim Moore and Walt O'Neil sent Ballerger off to a lead he never lost.

Carlsbad picked up its lone run in the eighth when Ballerger right fielder Frank Coffone dropped Glen Rediger's fly for a two-base error and Dick Babcock singled him home.

Even A Loser Can't Rob Enthusiasm From Rigney

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — The school kids came out of the Eighth Avenue entrances to the Polo Grounds in irregular groups and were herded into lines so the PAL or YMCA people who had brought them to the game could count heads and put them on the chartered buses.

The kids all had on baseball caps and polo shirts and they had yelled a lot during the game, but their noise was lost in the empty seats.

A few older men straggled out of the bleacher entrance and headed for the subway. Some others came out of the general admission exits. But they were only a handful and the cops on duty chatted with each other. There was no crowd to handle.

The crowd — about 1,800 paid, the 4,000 kids were let in free — had gotten out of the park in a couple of minutes after the game ended and up in the press box behind home plate, a newspaper guy was writing a story for the next day's paper, saying that "anybody who jumps on the field and interferes with play at the Polo Grounds will be punished by being forced to remain for the entire game."

It was the end of a typical day for the New York Giants, a losing club in a town that has little time for anything except the winner.

The standings show the Giants have been sixth or seventh since the season opened and they were that way last year, too. So with home games being piped into bars on television, only die-hard bother to go to the park and the Polo Grounds is a boring, quiet place and the games seem the same, too.

But inside the Giants' clubhouse in center field, Bill Rigney talked as if this had been a live, vibrant day.

"How do you like my knuckler?" he snapped to reporters. "Pitched 10 minutes of batting practice and still came in." He was talking about Jim Davis, who had won a game in relief for him.

"Listen," Rigney went on with a sharp chatter, "it's early yet. Things can happen. We get winning five, six straight, we'll be right in the middle of it. Don't you worry. It can happen easily. Look at the race — nobody's gaining any ground on anybody. They're beating each other. We got a shot at the whole thing. We got to take advantage of it."

Then the manager got up, pulled off his uniform and walked into the private shower alongside his office.

"How," he was asked inside, "can you keep your enthusiasm? I mean, you sit and talk as if everything were just terrific. But you could have a long summer. And you sure had one last year."

"All the time," Rigney said. "I'm like this all the time. On the bench, I yell. Every hitter comes up I give him a blast. 'Come on! YOU can do it! You're the man!' It may not help him get a hit. But it might. And I play every errand, so I yell. That's the only way you can do it in this business. 'If I came in here and sat down and started sulking or fooling around — you know, give it up —

why every player out there would catch right away. They'd say to hell with it, too. I've got to keep going. Lose one today, walk right in here yelling about tomorrow. And you better believe it, too. I don't kid myself. It's my life. I'm excited around here . . . yes, even with a club in sixth place."

It is one of the mysteries of sports how a clear-thinking guy like Rigney can force himself into enthusiasm over a club such as the Giants. Day after day, he sits on the bench and sees plays which the average fan doesn't notice, the box score never shows — but leave Rigney's mid-section jumping.

Lefors, Front'r Win Industrial Softball Tilts

In Industrial League softball last night Lefors downed Schlumberger, 10-9, and Frontier defeated Celanese, 7-0.

In the first closely contested tilt Lefors pulled their 10 runs out of 9 hits while Schlumberger had 10 hits and mustered only 9 runs.

Frontier's decisive victory over Celanese came through the pitching of Stephens, who struck out 8 men during the game. As a team they mustered 7 runs, 10 hits and allowed only one error. Celanese had no runs on 2 hits with four errors. Frontier's Gallagher had the home run for the evening and aided Brown in the only double play of the game.

Coe Top Favorite Again In Trans-Miss Tournney

By ED FITE United Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (UP)—Charlie Coe, the Oklahoma thin man who is almost a sure bet to earn another Walker Cup berth this year, opened defense of his Trans-Mississippi golf championship today.

It will be the veteran Coe, an Oklahoma City insurance man who's been winning golf titles for a decade or more, against a strong field of youthful challengers in this 54th revival of one of the top amateur competitions in the nation.

Coe starts out the 126-hole match play grind that could lead to his fifth Trans-Miss crown against a little known Houston entry, Chuck Dresser, who slipped into the 64-player title flight with a five over par 76 in Tuesday's portion of qualifying play.

Coe didn't have to qualify, so he limited himself to only nine holes of practice Tuesday over the long and tortuous Brook Hollow Golf Course, whose par 36-35-71 stretched out over 6,706 yards eluded all but two of the 242 entries.

"Around Par" Coe, who said he was "around par" quit when a mid-afternoon thundershower dumped a full inch of rain on the already well-soaked layout.

But a good many of the others who had waited until the second day to earn their championship berth, had to play on through the hard rain. Their scores soared as a result.

Not a one of the 130-odd would-be qualifiers even managed to match par Tuesday. And that left the medalist honors safely in the hands of Jack Moore, the Big Seven conference champion from the University of Oklahoma.

Moore, a 19-year-old sophomore from Duncan, Okla., had mastered the Brook Hollow layout with a 33-35-68 in scorching heat on Monday, and sat back to watch the rest of the field shoot at his score Tuesday.

Strong Contender Today Moore was paired against Bradley Smith of Dallas, who qualified with a 77.

One of today's top matches sent Jim Vickers of Wichita, Kan., a 1983 runner-up and always a strong contender, against Willard Crenshaw, a Dallas veteran whose opening day 33-37-70 was the only other sub-par round fashioned by any of the competitors.

16-MILE HAUL—4300 FEET UP—When Sheriff Cal Boles of Maricopa County, Arizona, sends his 4-wheel-drive GMC to his radio transmitting station on a mountain peak, one round trip deals out more punishment than a year's ordinary use.

IT CROSSES 3 MOUNTAIN CHAINS, wades through shifting sand, picks its way over boulder-strewn passes — goes where no sane horse would set foot. The deal includes climbing up a 65% grade. But — "It hasn't even breathed hard yet," says the Sheriff.

How tough
could you make it for this GMC 4-WHEEL DRIVE?

You probably never would push a GMC truck this far.

But it's great to know that GMC's can do incredible jobs, beyond all normal requirements for their class — and still run longer, cheaper and with fewer repairs than other trucks.

Got some tough assignments for this GMC 4-wheel drive? It's just about the handiest truck ever built — goes anywhere, makes its own roads, has full traction in muck or deep snow, has clearance on high-crowned roads.

With a few accessories, it pulls stumps, drills postholes or wells, stretches fence, pumps water, hoists anything. It takes a king-size cargo and — in 2-wheel drive — gives you full road speeds.

The GMC 4-wheel drive is really two trucks in one — and it costs surprisingly little. Just ask your GMC dealer!

Ideas In Ownership

Most of us have a rather healthy respect for the property of others. This is not only quite right and proper, but basic, for property rights are upheld by the Ten Commandments. They are so important, in fact, that two of the commandments relate directly to property ownership—the stealing and the coveting commandments.

In this connection, let us think for a moment about the ideas that people own. In a very real sense, the ideas held by a particular person also constitute property. And many ideas are very important to the person, particularly when the ideas are original and have been arrived at through conscious effort.

We are not referring here to ideas relating to invention, discovery, trade marks, written works, illustrations, music and so forth. These are ideas which have a market value. We are not concerned for the moment with ideas which have a market value. Rather we are concerned with a man's philosophic convictions. We are concerned with his spiritual beliefs, his political conclusions.

There are many and varying beliefs related to philosophy, spiritual things and political matters. What is important to us as libertarians, is that we recognize, while they may differ from our own, are important to them. And while we would not think of stealing anyone's physical property and making off with it we sometimes tend to tread with heavy steps upon the beliefs of others, disregarding the devotion they have for ideas which, while we hold them wrong, are nonetheless important and the property of the owner.

This is a problem that confronts any merchant of ideas. If he has a saleable idea, he must do what he can to find a market for it. But if the market is already glutted with an opposing idea, then it will inevitably be felt by customers of the opposing doctrine, that the newcomer is a thief and is disparaging of all prior ideas, whatever their validity.

The job of the idea merchant must be to convince the market place that he is trying to replace a bad idea with a good idea. A replacement is a form of trade and no robbery. Yet, ideas are so personal, that for anyone to admit that an idea he has is invalid, illogical, bad, or even harmful, is a very great admission indeed.

This is, in essence, the problem that confronts lovers of liberty. The market place at the moment is saturated with collectivist ideas. These ideas are not without appeal. They can be arrived at by almost any individual who will abandon principle and keep a sharp eye on the cash register. And because of that cash register appeal, collectivist thought seems more like personal property than almost any other kind of thought. The man who believes that he is being aided financially by a subsidy, by a union, by a regulation which hurts someone else, will take most unkindly to any argument which tends to show him in the wrong. It is to him as though what he owns is being taken away.

How do we meet this man, convert him to principle, have him adopt sound American ideas, and at the same time not antagonize him? For it must be remembered that if we antagonize him, we have lost the sale, however superior our product (idea) may be.

To us it seems that there is only one way to proceed. A head-on collision between ideologies will serve to firmify each person in his own convictions. What must happen, instead, is that each person must CONVINCE HIMSELF of the superiority of ideas relating to liberty and the inferiority of ideas relating to collectivism, rather than having someone else convince him. In his secret place, within his own conscience, quietly and with no one looking on, the individual can and will face up to truth. He will rarely do it under fire. For to do so constitutes a major admission of error which is too grievous a burden for the average ego to sustain, at least in public.

Thus, those of us who endorse ideas relating to liberty should concentrate on coming ever closer to the truth for its own sake. If someone, in the process of our own exploration, convinces himself of the validity of ideas relating to liberty, that is clear gain, an unexpected bonus. There is surprising strength in gentleness.

THE NATION'S PRESS

HIGH PROFITS-PROPAGANDA

(Washington Report)

Railing against profits has risen in shrillness during recent weeks. "Enormous profits" of corporations, according to AFL-CIO chiefs, are to blame for all rising prices and are the root of inflation.

This is a familiar technique to divert public attention from the rise in payments to labor in the past 10 years and the wage contracts which have pushed up the cost of living. It also helps to divert public attention from the fact that the cost of living has risen in the past 10 years and the wage contracts which have pushed up the cost of living.

The vociferous anti-profit propaganda also is intended to mask revealing figures contained in a new Labor Department report. This is a highly technical analysis covering productivity and wages in the last decade.

Although hedged and qualified, the report's statistics show that wages have far out-distanced productivity. Specifically, in 10 years, payments to labor rose 61 per cent, productivity only 26 per cent. This means that "real" labor costs for each unit of output rose by 28 per cent.

Economists studying the report are compelled to acknowledge that labor costs have been the trigger to price increases, especially in the last five years.

Meanwhile, what about the propaganda target — "enormous profits?"

From 1950 to 1956, the gross private product (excluding the government) increased by $112 billion. Compensation of employees rose by $85 billion.

Corporate profits before taxes increased by $3.7 billion, but profits after taxes actually declined by almost a half billion dollars!

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILEY

Is The Right To Private Property Absolute?

In the last issue I was quoting from the "Freedom First" magazine on "Liberty and Property."

The author of the article in the last paragraph made this statement:

"This right" (The right to private property) "however, is not to be regarded as absolute, nor can it be isolated from other rights."

That certainly is an important question to decide. The decision made will have a lot to do with the integrity, character, well-being, justice and prosperity of mankind. It seems to me it makes no difference whether the author refers to a legal right or a moral right.

It is a natural right. Every man should get all he produces — no more, no less. And, parenthetically, how to determine what each man produces is to have jobs interchangeable for those who are capable of doing work that others are doing.

The author of the article contended that man had no right in private property if his owning it meant the loss of life of another. But if he has no right to own property under that condition, then who is to be the final judge as to whether or not he wants to give it away or still continue to own it.

The Great Architect certainly gave man the right to choose, the right to be wise or the right to be foolish, the right to be right or the right to be wrong. And if this inalienable right is to be interfered with by any other individual or by the government or by a group, then we are putting them above the divine plan of the Great Architect.

It is undoubtedly because people do not believe that the right to own private property is absolute that we have progressive taxation, that we have the right of eminent domain, the legal right to interfere with wages and hours, protective tariffs, immigration quotas, etc. etc. If people believed in private property being absolute, they would not believe in any of these things.

Oh, yes, I hear the man who does not believe that ownership of private property is absolute contending that we must have the right of eminent domain for such things as roads and railroads. But suppose there was no right of eminent domain and the man owns land and wouldn't sell it at a reasonable price. Then suppose the government then says, "Very well, keep your land, but from now on you cannot use the roads or the railroads." It wouldn't be very long before that man would realize that he was isolated and that there was no violation of men's rights to own property to cause that man to reconsider and decide that he would sell his property at a value determined by arbitrating by impartial persons.

It is this belief that has been growing, that the right to private property is not absolute, that has led to more and more of the welfare state and greatly retarded production and demoralized character and caused more and more people to believe in certain degrees of communism and socialism.

Probably the author who said the right to own private property is not regarded as absolute did not mean that the state or anyone else had the right to force him to surrender his property. He probably meant that it was his duty, under certain circumstances, to give or lend his property on a voluntary basis.

The author finished the article in this manner:

"The truth is that the right to private property is meaningless if the state can at will take over any property on the grounds that this will be for the general benefit of the community at large. If this were so, the right to life could be abrogated on similar grounds."

"Today, many despair of any successful resistance to Socialism. They see Socialist attacks on private property unrecognized or disregarded. After each spell of power of the only alternative government, less will remain of private property, and the field of government control will have grown larger. They have seen how difficult it is to stage any counter-revolution. Onerous taxation once imposed is with very great difficulty removed. To remove it would entail what are pilloried as 'savage cuts' in the Welfare State." Every ill-considered expenditure becomes a sacrosanct right which is defended notwithstanding chains on stealing and dividing gold reserves. But facts cannot be denied, and inflation stalks the land proving that there is indeed no way of evading the issue. "No men," said Edmund Burke, "voluntarily surrender freedom except under some delusion."

The delusion today is that the state can maintain a welfare state of its present size on the earnings of the nation without inflation and whilst, in comparison with other free countries, its productivity is slackening. It may be that some labour

Great Opening For Right Man

English Like Birds, Bees Coverage In Newspapers

By HENRY McLEMORE

LONDON — I like the job I have and wouldn't swap it for any I know of, but if I had to make a change I think I'd try to get a position as Nature Correspondent for an English newspaper.

Most of the good-sized English papers have such a man. He isn't always known as Nature Correspondent. In some papers he signs his articles Rural Correspondent, and in others as Country Observer. One uses the heading Wood and Vale.

One only has to read these articles for a short time to know that the authors have one of the softest touches in the newspaper field. To start with, they write only about the birds, bushes, flowers and creatures they can see from their front porches, or by taking short walks in their immediate neighborhoods. They take no extended trips to see what nature is doing on the other side of the hill, or in the next county.

If a deer runs through their hedge, or a stoat does a jig under their plum tree, they record it. But a leopard could knit a sweater around the corner and never have his feat reach the light of print. Whether this refusal to roam far afield is due to a clause in their contracts, or just plain laziness, I don't know. All I do know is that these nature editors undoubtedly have a lot of time for plain and fancy sitting down.

Another angle of the job that appeals to me is the right they have to the negative approach. If they don't see anything to write about, they go ahead and write about not seeing anything. Dull days afford just as good copy as days when nature is cutting up.

Here is an example of what I mean:

"Nothing was to be seen or heard today. Nature appeared to be on a Bank Holiday. Even the red-crested gudge, usually to be seen near sun - down, dauntlessly searching the spinney for food, was absent. Even the leaves of the trees were asleep. Not a rustle."

This was followed by two or three hundred more words on what didn't happen. The author might just as well have looked into an empty barn and described what he didn't see. If you have ever been a columnist, you will appreciate what a blessing it would be to be able to get by with filling space with a description of something that didn't exist.

These English nature correspondents also can get by with a lot of wondering about what has happened to this bird, this flower, this animal. With the deadline approaching, they have already seen the danger of nationalization to our economy. Some, indeed, already describe the nationalization of all the means of production, distribution and exchange as stupid and unreal and even immoral. But, few yet see the bond between liberty and property. What, however, is the most disturbing feature of these days is the exodus of the ambitious young men who have refused to come to the conclusion that liberty is due to go on a long holiday from England if not into perpetual exile. It is penal taxation which is eliminating private property. It is liberty which is on the danger list."

Painter's Palette

Harry Truman has become a grandfather and like most grandfathers he feels a deep and honest concern for those who will come after him. "We must not be panicked," he said recently, "by the praching, and nothing written, they needn't worry. All they have to do, judging by what I have read, is something like this:

"A year ago the fields were alive with gay, saucy blooms of the Philodendrum, that crimson gypsy of early summer. Today there are none. We wonder why. We wonder where they are pitching their acrobatic tents this year. Don't they like us anymore? The fields aren't the same without them, and would that we knew how to bring them back..."

The nature correspondents don't have to do a dilly stint, either. There's no counting on them for regular contributions. They seem to work only when the spirit moves them. They'll write three days in a row and then skip a week or more. That comes close to being the ideal set-up for a columnist.

I may have a shot at it while I'm over here. I already have my pen name — Billy Batchelorston. Or does Zeke Zinnia have a better ring? Both good, though.

Soviet campaign of fear-incitement, either through threats of the use of the bomb or by their propaganda of the horrors of the fallout, intended primarily to cripple the defense efforts of the West... Our only safe course is to REMAIN STRONG, be patient, and continue to improve our knowledge of the great new source of energy."

Dulles' Foreign Policy Too Rigid, Many Senators Feel

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The newest and most serious indictment of the Eisenhower Administration's general foreign policy is that it suffers from a virulent form of "intellectual isolationism."

And the responsibility for the West's reverses in the "war of ideas" is placed upon Secretary John Foster Dulles rather than upon President Eisenhower.

In the House of Representatives, as well as in the American Congress, our amiable and well-intentioned Secretary of State is generally flexible, according to the viewpoint, to meet the subtle and shifting challenges and crises posed by the Khrushchev - Bulganin strategists.

Although they have not voiced this criticism too blatantly, numerous illustrious visitors from overseas have suggested it in their conferences with Eisenhower. Several prominent Senators, both Democrats and Republicans, have also raised the question at White House sessions. And finally, when these pressures produced no effect, Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson openly demanded that Washington make an effort to break through the "Iron Curtain."

The Khrushchev television show, which he appeared to deplore as a mere "commercial" enterprise, furnished the climax in this controversy, but it had been simmering long before the Soviet Communist's adventure in international propaganda. Instead of answering Khrushchev, Dulles and like preferred to ignore him. They missed an opportunity to counteract his charges that it was this country which was blocking peace by refusing to engage in friendly discussions with Moscow.

Even Senator William F. Knowland, apostle of political and military isolationism, seems to have rebelled against this kind of indifference to world opinion. He had new anti-Red ideas and suggested recently that Norway might be neutralized if Russia withdrew troops from Hungary, which would be a test of Red's sincerity, a first step toward settling the territorial divisions that bedevil Europe.

Dulles' refusal to engage in intellectual or commercial contacts with Red China is listed as another example of official obstinacy. He has been generally condemned for his refusal to permit American newspaper correspondents to enter that country and report on conditions. He dismisses the suggestion that even such unofficial representation might tend to soften the Chinese rulers' and people's hostility toward the United States.

Senator Johnson has also assailed the Dulles opposition to trade with Peiping, in which the Secretary of State persists, despite the fact that our Allies have deserted us on this question. With Mao Tse-tung emerging as a more popular Communist evangelist in Eastern Europe than Khrushchev, the belief prevails that the Administration should show more regard for Mao's role.

Mao, for instance, maintains that "contradictions" do exist between the rulers and the people in Communist countries. Khrushchev denies such as heretical statement, for it violates the Marx - Lenin creed. But it is on the basis of "contradictions" that every satellite now maintains its right to differ from the Kremlin's ideologies and policies.

In the opinion of Dulles' critics, it should be Washington's aim to magnify and dramatize these "contradictions" in the hope that Russia will have to admit that they exist, and perhaps free her puppets so that they may go their own way, possibly westward. Having conceded during the Hungarian revolution that we cannot contribute to the "liberation" of Communist - controlled countries, the alternative would seem to be an effort to inspire revolt and restlessness within the Red empire.

Instead, the State Department haggled and bargained over Warsaw's request for a loan, and ended by giving the Gomulka regime less than one - third of the amount it needed and requested. The outcome will hardly incline other satellites to place any reliance upon American economic aid, which now flows only to countries that should fight communism for their own interests, and not because of grants from Washington.

Dulles, in short, suffers from "pacomania," according to some critics. He seems to believe that the west can win the "cold war" through negotiation of mere military alliances, although several of them — the Baghdad and SEATO organizations — are only paper affairs. He refuses to note or admit that even our NATO Allies are repudiating his policies by turning a more friendly countenance toward Moscow and Peiping.

No Dulles critic suggests that he throw his arms around Mao or Khrushchev, or that he even drink a glass of vodka with them. But they do believe that he should descend from his remote, ivory tower and meet their challenge to combat in the field of ideas. Now that the Communists appear to have shifted from military to intellectual aggression, that is where the war to preserve and expand the democratic system must be won.

The Doctor Says

By Edwin J. Jordan, M. D.

Dandruff of the scalp must be one of the most common health nuisances in our society.

No matter how often I write on this subject I continue to receive a great deal of correspondence asking for more.

Incidentally, I prefer to call it a nuisance because it constitutes no danger to general health. It does sometimes cause itching of the scalp and it probably speeds the loss of hair in some instances. Furthermore, the shedding of dandruff on the hair and clothing often creates a problem of personal appearance.

I do not know whether dandruff is more frequent today. There is some possibility that this is the case. If so, possible factors include the greater use of barber shops and beauty salons where dandruff seems to be sometimes picked up from combs or brushes.

There are many reasons for believing that dandruff is at least in part the result of some infection. However, it has not been possible to agree on any single germ as the cause.

It is almost impossible to avoid dandruff. Nearly all of us have at one time or another developed dandruff and have found that once acquired it is difficult to cure. One thinks it is gone and then if some illness develops or one gets overtired it comes back worse than ever.

Care in avoiding combs and brushes used by others is about all that can be done to try to prevent dandruff. So far as treatment is concerned there are many things which can be done.

The general health should be kept in good shape and exercise, tonics, nutritious foods and anything else which contribute to health may not cure dandruff, but are often suggested as measures which may keep it from getting worse.

Local treatment of the scalp is important. The aim is to keep the scalp free of the small greasy scales which clog up the skin. These can be removed by shampooing, but it is often helpful to soak them first with some oily preparation which softens the scales.

Sometimes a good deal of hair comes out with the shampoo. Lotions or ointments containing stimulating chemicals are often prescribed by skin specialists.

Treatment of the scalp for dandruff usually has to be kept up for months, or even years. Also there are certain other skin diseases such as seborrheic dermatitis and psoriasis which resemble dandruff but which may require different treatment.

HSU Cowboy Band To Hit Rodeo Trail

(Special To The News)
ABILENE — The Hardin-Simmons University Cowboy Band, famous for its western performances, will hit the rodeo trail this week as it begins playing for shows throughout West Texas this summer.

Marion B. McClure, director of the band, will take the Cowboy musicians to Baird Tuesday and Wednesday for the Callahan County Sheriff's Posse show.

The band will play for a three-day show Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Seymour. An old settlers reunion will be on in Seymour as well as the rodeo performances.

The Cowboys began summer rehearsals Monday morning. McClure said 16 freshmen musicians have joined the band for first rehearsal sessions.

A highlight of the summer rodeo season in West Texas, of course, is the Texas Cowboy Reunion in Stamford. That show is held over the July 4 holidays.

McClure, who has carried the band to Europe and over all the 48 states, estimates that if all the rodeos the Cowboy Band has played since its organization in 1923 were put together, it would take five years playing one a day to complete the total number of performances.

The Cowboy Band got its start in rodeo performances at the Stamford Reunion. Will Rogers, the world-famous cowboy humorist of the roaring twenties and depression thirties, attended Stamford show in the early twenties and heard the newly-organized Cowboy Band.

He walked over to the band stand after the show and said: "Here is a hundred dollars. Go and buy yourselves some music."

The band did go and buy itself some music. It went on to play in every major rodeo in the country including Madison Square Garden in New York.

Will Rogers didn't know that his $100 bill would send the band to so many places, McClure says now that "the band will never forget the confidence that hundred-dollar bill expressed in our young and struggling organization at that time."

'Monitor's' Weather Girl Sends Temperatures High

(TV-RADIO)
By WILLIAM EWALD

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Red-haired Tedi Thurman stacks up, if that is the word, as the only weather broadcaster who actually affects temperatures. She sends them climbing.

Miss Thurman, a Midville, Ga., peach with a voice like runny ice cream, is the gal who delivers the weather patter on NBC Radio's "Monitor." She has been known as "Miss Monitor" since June, 1955, when the weekend show was uncorked.

While most weather spicers deal in prediction, Miss Thurman goes them one better. She deals in promise.

"Well, yes, there is a kind of sex in my voice, I suppose," said Tedi as she dipped her eyelashes to half-mast. "Southern girls generally have sexier voices. They have a kind of languid quality. They're not in a hurry. . . know what I mean?"

No Monopoly In South
Still, confessed Miss Thurman, the South does not have a monopoly on sexy cities. "Almost all the cities are a little sexy," she said. "But some are more sexy than others."

"Now, you take M-i-n-n-e-a-p-o-l-i-s. . . a lovely sound. You can give it lots of breath. You can give it lots more inflection than you can, say Newark or Detroit. Los Angeles is another sexy name. Generally, if you can string the name out, it sounds more sexy."

"The same thing goes for numbers. A temperature of '50' is not nearly as sexy as '49' or '79'. And, of course, '102' is the end."

Conditions vary, too, said Miss Thurman. "A very unsexy condition is 'clear,'" she pointed out. "What can you do with 'clear'?" But "fog" is a wonderful word and I just love "thunderstorm."

"Partly cloudy" I like better than "cloudy." I don't know whether it's sexier, it's just that it gives me more to say."

The 28-year-old Miss Thurman, a former model, is the frequent recipient of letters inspired by the com-hither vapors she expels. "They ask me to marry them and things like that," she said vaguely.

"One fellow in Canada wires flowers to me and there's another guy who writes me three times a week. Air mail special delivery—this has been going on for eight months now."

"One farmer in Texas who wanted to marry me said he didn't care if he ever saw me—he was just c-r-a-z-y about my voice."
