Trade deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit worsened dramatically in July as the imbalance in merchandise soared to the second highest level in history, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said that the overall deficit in goods and services jumped 21.6 percent to $10.99 billion, reflecting weakness in American exports, especially sales of commercial aircraft, and a rise in foreign oil prices.

Marines expand mission in Haiti

CAP-HAITIEN, Haiti (AP) — U.S. Marines landed this morning in northern Haiti, expanding their peacekeeping mission to the country's second largest city. Curious civilians who came to the water's edge watched the show.

In Port-au-Prince, Haitian police fired shots in the air today to disperse a crowd of Haitians chasing a convoy of U.S. military vehicles. It was the first major disturbance since American forces took control of the Haitian capital.

At least a dozen police officers went into the crowd swinging clubs and several shots were fired in the air from automatic weapons, sending the crowd scrambling. The incident occurred near the police station in Cite Soleil, a stronghold of the exiled Haitian president.

In another sign of potential trouble, deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide waited until today — two days after a deal was struck with Haiti's military rulers to peacefully restore him to power — before making a comment. Even then, he avoided specific mention of the accord.

In a brief statement, he said that during three years since his ouster, "We have traveled with the people of Haiti back toward this democracy — choosing a path that will not add to the 5,000 murders already suffered, a path that will not lead toward greater violence."

He said nothing to refute an aide's statement Monday night that Aristide, elected Dec. 16, 1990, and deposed after seven months in office, has "severe problems" with the no-invasion agreement reached this weekend.

Burt Wides, counsel to Aristide, said the populist priest believes the Oct. 15 deadline for the Haitian military to step down leaves pro-democracy forces in Haiti at their mercy for too long.

"They've got four weeks to bump off as many of the people who might be helpful to the pro-democracy forces as they can in the coming (legislative) elections," Wides said in Washington.

Haitian police cooperated with today's landing in Cap-Haitien, keeping the crowds out of the Marines' way.

The first 200 of 1,600 Marines bound for Cap-Haitien set off at 7:20 a.m. as 14 armored amphibious vehicles left the USS Nashville and threaded through tiny fishing vessels on the way to the city's port.

At the same time, waves of troop-carrying helicopters, supported by Cobra gunships, left the USS Wasp off the craggy north coast to secure the airfield on the second day of the U.S. operation to restore Haiti's elected government.

The Cap-Haitien air-and-sea operation touched Haitian soil precisely at 8 a.m. There was no resistance, much like Monday when 3,000 U.S. forces took control of the Port-au-Prince airport and harbor.

"The operation appears to be going fairly smoothly so far with cooperation between U.S. Marines and the Haitian people," Lt. Scott Gureck, a Navy spokesman, said today.

Chamber banquet will coincide with buffalo unveiling

Snyder Chamber of Commerce board members on Monday finalized plans for the upcoming banquet, granted a request from the White Buffalo Committee for funds and briefly discussed an offer to manage the county coliseum.

The chamber banquet will be held on Saturday, Oct. 8, the evening of the day-long White Buffalo Festival. Entertainment will be provided by acclaimed photographer and author Wyman Meinzer, who will show "The Great Buffalo Hunts," and by Dr. Robert Taylor, the artist who crafted the bronze buffalo which will be unveiled on the courthouse square earlier in the day.

Tickets for the 6 p.m. event will be $10 each and will be available at the chamber beginning this Friday. Price of the ticket includes a steak dinner.

The banquet will be held at the First Baptist Church multi-purpose center. Presentation of the McLaughlin Award, Winston Award, Sizemore Award, Vestal Award and Educational Excellence Award will highlight the event.

Dress will be casual. "We want people to be able to come over from the White Buffalo Festival and walk right in. Boots and jeans will be fine," said Chamber Manager Ricky Fritz.

The festival itself will be an all-day event, beginning with a "Parade of History" at 10 a.m. and ending with a street dance at 7 p.m. Slide shows, quilt shows and continuous entertainment, along with art, craft and food booths, will follow the unveiling of the statue, which is to take place at 11 a.m.

Eddie Williams, former chamber board president and currently a member of the White Buffalo Festival committee, said the festival is shaping up to be "something really big and really special."

Williams also said that 160 of the 200 engraved pavers which will be placed around the statue have been sold. The pavers, at $200 each, are being sold as a fund-raiser for the event.

On Monday, the chamber board also unanimously approved $2,300 in hotel/motel tax funds for the festival committee.

Chamber board members also briefly discussed an offer by the county commissioners court that would put the chamber in charge of managing the coliseum.

"The response I've had has been very positive and upbeat overall," said Pearlene Stewart-Nolan, board president. "One thing people should understand is that we are not looking to merge the chamber with the coliseum, but to run it as a business and as a separate entity. Of course, right now, this is still just something we're looking at. We don't even have a proposal ready for the commissioners to look at yet."

Board member Daryl Thomas noted that the county would continue to subsidize the coliseum. "They are aware we don't have the funds, and we know our source of funds is limited. We will look at

Ritz Theatre tickets go on sale this week

Season tickets for the Ritz Community Theatre will go on sale Thursday at the Scurry County Fair.

The tickets will be available at the Ritz booth in the coliseum Thursday through Saturday. They may also be purchased at the chamber of commerce and at the White Buffalo Celebration on the square on Oct. 8.

Season tickets will be available until Oct. 23 and are priced at $30 for 6, $60 for 12 and $100 for 24. These may be used for any of the productions and will be a considerable savings over the price of tickets for each production.

The Ritz Community Theatre has announced its roster of plays for the 1994-95 season.

Rehearsals are already underway for the first production, "The Cemetery Club," a comedy by Ivan Menchell. Dates of the performances are Oct. 21-23 and 28-30 at the former North Elementary auditorium.

The Christmas production will be a children's play entitled "The Toys Take Over Christmas." It is scheduled for Dec. 2-5 in the Western Texas College Fine Arts Theatre.

The spring production will be a "Broadway Musical Revue" and dinner theatre at Martha Ann Woman's Club on Feb. 24-26 and March 3-5.

Tickets for "The Cemetery Club" and the "Broadway Musical Revue" will be $7 at the door and tickets will be $6 for the Christmas play. Dinner theatre on Friday and Saturday nights of the Broadway Revue will cost an additional $8 per adult and $6 for children 10 and under; however the Sunday matinees will not include dinner.

Boles wins football contest

Una Boles of 202 33rd St. had only two misses in last week's SDN Football Contest, giving her the $50 first prize.

Four entrants had three misses, causing the tie-breaker procedure to determine the second and third place winners.

Thomas Bullard of 9481 Road Runner Path won the second place $25, and Greg Jones of 543 Elm in Colorado City won the third place $15.

Honorable mention goes to Gayland Vaughan and Morris Allred who had three misses, but guessed too high on the total points.

Winners will be mailed their checks.

Another contest appears in this issue.

Judge gets last laugh

AMARILLO (AP) — When a teen-ager laughed at his $2,000 bond on a charge of burglarizing a vehicle, the judge more than doubled it.

District Judge Samuel Kiser set bond for Phovphet Sayasane, 17, via television monitor. When the arraignment procedure ended, Sayasane apparently thought the camera and microphone had been turned off. Kiser and others in the arraignment room watched as Sayasane laughed about the bond.

"I only have to come up with $250, then zoom," Sayasane joked.

Kiser then asked jail officials to put Sayasane back in front of the camera and told him he had heard the remarks.

"It's a serious charge. It's a felony offense, and I want you to think about it," Kiser said.

Kiser then raised Sayasane's bond to $5,000.

The youth was released after posting the bond, jail records show.

Youth center board will hold fund-raiser

Scurry County Youth Center board will be selling chances on beef and videos at the county fair.

The group is offering chances on four 125-pound packages of beef and five sets of 20 video rentals — a total of nine prizes in all. Tickets are $1 each and will be available at the youth center booth at the fair, beginning Thursday.

Tickets are also available from board members.

The winning tickets will be drawn during the fair at 6 p.m. Saturday.

The immediate goal of the board is to acquire a building to be used as a youth center. Board members say they have a building prospect at this time, but no deal has been finalized.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "You know you reached a balance in life when you fear the known as much as the unknown."

A recent story about banker Joe Jackson's encounter with a squirrel has resulted in numerous other reports of squirrel incidents, espcially in southwest Snyder.

None of the reports, however, can compare to one that occurred in an office in Kirkland, Wash.

According to a news report, more than 50 workers at the John L. Scott real estate office were held hostage for one entire morning by what was described as "a vicious, red-headed, beady-eyed squirrel."

Office employees lined one wall holding boxes and coats in front of them. When anyone would attempt to leave the room, the squirrel would charge at them.

Finally somebody called the emergency 9-1-1 number. The unlucky officer who responded to the call was Steve Oskiefko. He was forced to call for backup when his trousers split while trying to corner and snare the critter.

When reinforcements arrived with a change of clothing for the red-faced officer, the beast was finally captured and taken to a local veterinarian who tested it for rabies.

Not to be outdone, the squirrel immediately gnawed through its plastic cage, attacked the vet, scared others in the office and escaped to the great outdoors.

Now on the town's most-wanted list, the fugitive is still at large.

And more strange news. The Farmer's Almanac for 1995 calls it a cultural barometer.

A deaf man in Sweden was cured when doctors pulled a 47-year-old bus ticket from his ear.

We wonder if the guy remembers missing the bus?

Dole says it's too late...

Senators still working on health reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of "mainstream" senators is still laboring to bring an extensive health reform bill to the floor in the closing weeks of Congress. But Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole says the effort is futile.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell and the moderates led by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., planned to sit down again this afternoon in hopes of ironing out their last differences.

They spent more than two hours Monday talking about both health reform and the procedural hurdles to getting a bill through at this late date.

"I can tell you, if they bring out some complicated bill, it's not going to go anywhere," Dole said of Chafee's group.

Dole, addressing a think tank called the Independent Institute, said that unless a miracle occurs, health reform is dead for the year.

"Time has almost run out. I don't see anything happening this year," said Dole, R-Kan. "Maybe next year we'll have a more rational approach to health care."

"Nothing went wrong. It went right," said Dole. The American people decided they "don't want any of these big, big packages."

But Mitchell told reporters Monday evening, "My objective is to pass a bill. ... We're doing it as fast as we can."

Sen. John Breaux, D-La., joked that the mainstream group was changing its name to the "upstream" coalition. He also quipped, "It's time for us to call in Jimmy Carter to help rescue us."

Some moderates seemed to be looking toward next year.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., said, "We're trying to develop some agreement to at least be able to put a bill down that we can take to the American people. Whether it's voted on this year or not is another story."

Mitchell, who is retiring at the end of the year and who passed up a possible Supreme Court nomination to push for health reform, said, "We recognize the very tight time constraints under which we're operating."

Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., said the moderates were encouraged by preliminary Congressional Budget Office figures indicating their plan could cut the deficit by $56 billion over a decade and boost coverage to 93 percent or 94 percent. It is built around subsidies, market reforms and changes in deductibility of health expenses.

They were still trying to work out differences with Mitchell over drug coverage for the elderly, long-term care and what size companies could self-insufe, he said before Monday's meeting with the majority leader.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, last week called for the Chafee group to give up, saying its approach would harm Medicare and Medicaid.

Dole said Moynihan had "shut the window" on health reform.

But Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the top Republican on Finance, said, "It would be possible still to pass a very skinny bill. But it would be skinnier than the 'mainstream' plan."

The House has taken no action, waiting to see first whether Mitchell can revive a bill in the Senate.

Dolphin dies in sea park

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A dolphin that was found stranded on a Padre Island beach a year ago has died of lingering health problems remaining from her beaching, officials said.

Turbo, a female Risso's dolphin, had lived at Sea World of Texas since shortly after she was found by fishermen in April 1993. She died at the sea life park Sunday, said spokesman Bob McCullough.

A post-mortem examination will be performed to determine the cause of death, McCullough said. Results will take about six weeks to compile, he said.

The dolphin arrived as a malnourished weeks-old calf, with a lung infection, shark bites and puncture wounds, park officials said.

The marine mammal responded well to bottle feedings and medication. She grew from 4-feet long and 55 pounds to 7-feet long and 280 pounds, park officials said.

"It made some dramatic progress," McCullough said. "But overall, it had some tremendous difficulties to deal with."

An Atlantic bottlenose porpoise rescued in May, named Gilly, appears to be growing stronger, park officials said.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Sept. 21, 1994

More of your energy than usual could be devoted to commercial endeavors in the year ahead. Your possibilities for success look good, provided you give your customers a fair shot.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be cognizant of details in the conduct of your commercial affairs today. Through impulsiveness, you might make a series of small, but costly, mistakes. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you might not be very tolerant with persons who disagree with you. Avoid companions whose ideas historically tend to clash with your own.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are a keen observer today and the infractions of others won't escape your attention. However, please be careful not to make a big deal over something petty and insignificant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In competitive social games with friends today, don't let betting enter the picture. This could produce bad feelings regardless of who wins or loses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't create openings for outsiders to butt into private domestic affairs today. External influences could really fan the flames of discontent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually, you're a rather passive and easygoing person, but today you might take things that should be treated lightly far too seriously.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Where your resources are concerned, there might not be any middle ground today. You could be equally as extravagant with small expenditures as you are with large ones.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Instead of following through on matters the way you initially envisioned, today you might let others talk you into a less effective way of doing things.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before jumping on co-workers today, be certain your own work is up to par. Genuine anger is likely if you set standards that even you fail to achieve.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unbridled curiosity today might impel you to ask embarrassing questions of a friend about matters which he/she wishes to keep secret.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Objectives might elude you today if you don't plan your moves carefully in advance. Trying to get airborne without your propeller won't work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A close friend might momentarily anger you today. If you respond before thinking, you may make some nasty comments that prove difficult to retract.

AP correction

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — In a story Sept. 17 about a $5 billion punitive damages verdict against Exxon Corp., The Associated Press misattributed two quotations.

The story attributed to former Cordova Mayor Kelly Weaverling the statements that the settlement would help people "put their lives back together" but that an appeal by Exxon would continue the company's "scorched earth" tactic of wearing down the plaintiffs.

Those statements were actually made by Brian O'Neill, lawyer for the plaintiffs.

Dear Abby

Daughter's Loss of Mother Is Smoker's Inspiration to Quit

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing your column that inspired me to quit smoking. It wasn't right away — it took me three tries before I actually quit — but it will be one year on Sept. 20, 1994.

I used the nicotine patch method and it worked for me. Please tell your readers that they can do it. I am so glad I quit; now my two small sons will never have to watch me die from smoking.

Abby, please print that column again.

MICHELLE IN OMAHA

DEAR MICHELLE: Congratulations on the first anniversary of your liberation from tobacco. Thank you for sharing your good news with me. My readers may be interested in seeing the column that inspired you to quit smoking:

DEAR ABBY: I have been carrying around a letter I clipped from your column several years ago. For me, it was the most important column you have ever written, I am enclosing a copy.

I am begging you to run it again. It had such a strong impact on two people I love very much; I truly believe it saved their lives.

VICKI IN ANNAPOLIS, MD.

DEAR VICKI: With apologies to those who dislike reruns, here it is:

DEAR ABBY: (July 7, 1989) I am writing this letter in the waiting room of the intensive care unit of the Boulder (Colo.) Community Hospital. My mother is on a respirator due to severe lung damage. She has asthma and smoked cigarettes for 50 years. Now she has emphysema and pneumonia.

Before she was hooked up to the respirator, she begged me to help her. Now I can only comfort her and pray for her. For years, the family asked her to quit smoking, but it was something she couldn't — or didn't want to — do. My mother is a strong woman, but her addiction to cigarettes got the best of her, even after seeing my father go through surgery for lung cancer eight months ago.

(Aug. 6, 1989) I was interrupted when I started to write the above letter and am now able to finish it.

My mother passed away on July 18. She was only 65 years old. It's too late to save her now, but it may not be too late for some of your readers.

Smokers, please think about the pain and suffering you can cause yourself and your family by continuing to smoke.

I don't have a mother now, and my children, ages 12 and 18, don't have a grandma anymore. Please, please quit smoking now, if not for yourself, then for those who love you.

SUSAN ORTEZ, DENVER

DEAR SUSAN: My heart goes out to you and your family. If your letter inspires only one person to quit smoking, it will be well worth the space in this column. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I laughed at those letters you printed on nudity. Here's another one: In the summer of 1944 while stationed on the beach in Normandy, we were unloading military supplies from offshore vessels.

One day, after a very grimy shift, we were washing up in a GI bath (open field) and using GI wash basins (our helmets). Eddie Koslowski, a blond, muscular kid from Utica, N.Y., was in the road in his birthday suit, when along came two trucks loaded with Army nurses. One young nurse called out, "Look at the tan on the blond kid!" whereupon Koslowski covered his face with a washcloth! We all had a great laugh at his expense.

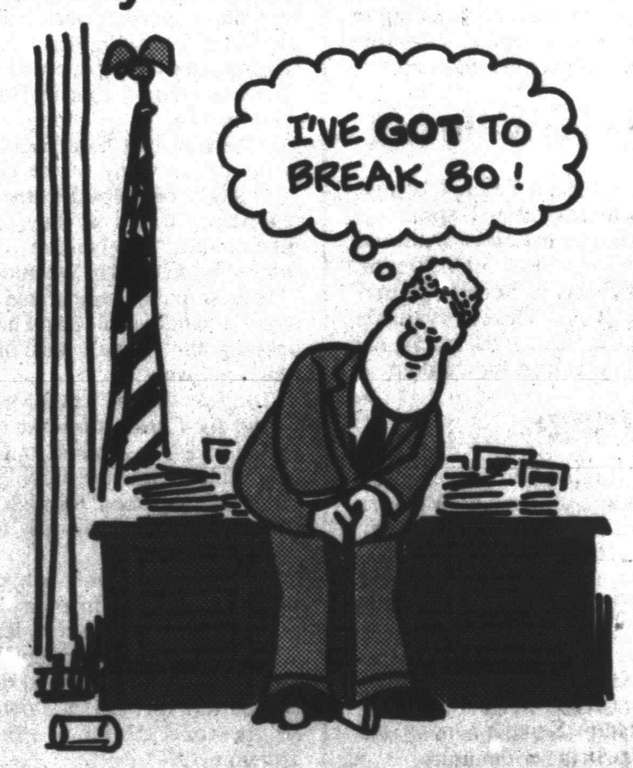

JOHN C. JONES (MY REAL NAME), BLOOMFIELD, N.J.

DEAR JOHN: Thanks for a good clean Army story.

Smart ideas for after-school snacks

By Marialisa Calta

My kids come home from school ravenous, and would like nothing better than to dive head first into the cookie jar, and surface around dinner time. Now, I'm no nutritionist, but it seems obvious that a snack diet of cookies, or of chips, soda or sugar-based juices, is a dumb idea.

My friend Betsy Hiser IS a nutritionist, as well as being the nutrition editor at Eating Well magazine, and the mother of three kids. What I like about Betsy is that she lives in the real world, not some imaginary place in which kids snack happily on tofu and zucchini slices, and moms whip up endless batches of high-fiber muffins. Here are her real-world ideas for quick, healthy, inexpensive snacks.

— A glass of 1 percent milk and graham crackers (plain, or lightly spread with jelly or peanut butter). Kids over age 2 should drink 1 percent milk, she says.

— Popcorn popped in a small amount of canola oil (1 tablespoon will do for ¼ cup popcorn) and sprinkled with Parmesan cheese. (Let's face it, the air-popped stuff tastes terrible, unless you drench it in butter, which is less than healthy.)

— Fruit or saltines and cheese (regular cheese or the reduced-fat variety).

— Canned tomato soup made with low-fat milk.

— An egg and whole-wheat toast. According to Betsy, an egg a day is OK for a healthy child. Use a monounsaturated oil like canola and a nonstick skillet when scrambling or frying.

— Plain yogurt mixed with preserves (cheaper and better tasting than the already-mixed fruit yogurts).

— Rice cakes.

— Sourdough pretzels.

When Betsy has time, she makes oatmeal cookies, substituting whole wheat for white flour and canola oil for butter or margarine. Sometimes she puts in chocolate chips.

"Exotic" fruits, like pomegranates, champagne grapes, apple-pears, starfruit and kumquats, are expensive, but make wonderful seasonal treats. And I've gotten my kids to drink tons more water by buying inexpensive "sports" waterbottles. They fill these bottles daily and take them to school and on car trips, and I've saved a bundle on beverages.

I'd also like to plug my favorite "convenience" food, which I serve my kids for dinner or for an extra-hearty after-school snack, on days when dinner might be delayed due to a soccer game or other event. It is "Annie's Homegrown" brand macaroni and cheese. There are three types — Shells and Cheddar, Alfredo with Basil, and Whole Wheat Shells and Cheddar — and my kids like them all. Look in your local health food store or contact Annie's Homegrown Inc., P.O. Box 128, Hampton, CT 06247; (203) 455-0276. A case of 12 boxes costs $26, mail-order.

The recipes below are simple and kid-friendly. Try them when you have a spare minute, and sit down with your kids to share. Then, get them busy. Kids, like grown-ups, will overeat when they're bored.

Note: You may use low- or reduced-fat cheeses and yogurt in the following recipes. A good substitute for cream cheese is Neufchatel cheese, which is naturally lower in fat.

QUESADILLAS

- Oil for pan
- 16 corn tortillas
- 12 ounces Monterey Jack cheese, grated
- 1 cup tomato salsa, homemade or canned
- Chopped chili peppers or sweet red peppers (optional)

Lightly oil a cast-iron skillet or griddle and heat over medium heat.

Lay out 8 tortillas on a table and sprinkle cheese evenly over each one. Spoon on salsa. If you like, add chili peppers or sweet peppers. Top with the remaining 8 tortillas — like making sandwiches.

Using a spatula, slip the tortilla sandwich into the hot pan. Cook for 2 to 3 minutes. Turn over and cook another minute or so, until cheese is melted. Remove with spatula, cut into quarters, and serve immediately.

BRIGHT PINK FRUIT DIP

- Spears of melon
- Spears of fresh, firm banana
- Apple or pear slices

- ¼ cup softened cream cheese
- 1 cup plain, firm yogurt
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Arrange fruit on a plate.

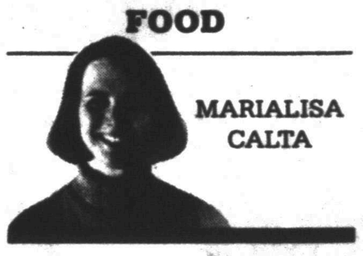

Place the raspberries (including all juice) and cream cheese in a blender or food processor, and puree until uniform. Transfer to a bowl.

Add yogurt and lemon juice and whisk until it is all one color. Pour into bowl and serve with fruit for dipping.

Bridge in schools

By Phillip Alder

In an effort to increase the number of young people playing bridge, the American Contract Bridge League has been sponsoring classes in schools. If the results attained in Manhattan are anything to go by, the program is bearing fruit. Today's deal occurred during the all-day individual held last June that is the series finale for 10-year-olds at PS 158. The winner was Luc Gruson. He benefited from excellent play by his partner, Tomoko Mikawa, on this deal.

How do you bid a hand containing a nine-card suit? There is no clear answer. This East decided to go slowly, apparently being pushed higher and higher. But as he bid at every level, the tactic was transparent. He should have passed for a round or two after his initial two-diamond overcall.

It was understandable that West thought he could defeat six hearts. And if he had led a club, he would have. But when he attacked with the diamond king, Mikawa gave him no second chance. Judging West held all five trumps, Mikawa ruffed in the dummy, played a spade to her ace, ruffed her last diamond with dummy's heart king and cashed dummy's four spade winners, discarding all her club losers. Next, Mikawa ruffed a club in her hand, leaving herself and West with five trumps each. After cashing the heart ace, Mikawa calmly led the heart seven, endplaying West.

That was card reading worthy of a world champion. For a 10-year-old, it was phenomenal.

Lions outlast Dallas 20-17

Sanders helps Detroit snap Pokes' 10-game win streak

IRVING (AP) — Barry Sanders outran Emmitt Smith and Scott Mitchell bested Troy Aikman over three quarters Monday night, carrying the Detroit Lions to a 17-10 lead over the Dallas Cowboys.

Sanders had big runs in the first half to set up the first two scores by Detroit, and Mitchell then made the clutch plays on Detroit's third-quarter touchdown drive.

Mitchell beat a Dallas blitz on fourth-and-3 by lobbing a wobbly 25-yard pass that Herman Moore caught over Kevin Smith. It kept the drive alive and put the Lions on the Dallas 11.

Two plays later, Mitchell faked a handoff to Sanders and threw a 9-yard dart to Moore in the end zone that put Detroit ahead 17-7 with 9:44 left in the third quarter.

Then it was Smith's turn to show why he's the three-time defending NFL rushing champion.

Smith, who sprained an ankle just before halftime, ran for 36 yards of a 58-yard drive that ended with a 19-yard field goal by Chris Boniol with 44 seconds left in the period.

Getting only three points was a disappointment for Dallas as it had faced first-and-goal from the and second-and-goal from the 1. The Cowboys declined a penalty on Detroit that would've given them first-and-goal from the 4.

Smith had a 39-yard run on fourth-and-1 wiped out by an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on lineman Erik Williams.

Detroit's Ryan McNeil already had been flagged for facemasking Smith at the end of the run, which would have put Dallas on the Lions' 6.

But Williams charged to the sidelines and was caught throwing a punch to the head of a Detroit player. The penalties offset and the play was done again, this time with Smith gaining 11 yards.

After three quarters, each star running back had 19 carries. Sanders had 116 yards to Smith's 78.

Detroit led 10-7 at halftime behind a 25-yard touchdown pass from Mitchell to Brett Perriman and a 32-yard field goal by Jason Hanson.

Sanders set up both scores, running for 25 of the 44 yards on the drive that set up Hanson's kick and pulling off two of his nicest runs of the night during the 94-yard drive that ended with Perriman's TD catch.

The Cowboys' lone touchdown came on its first possession when Aikman lofted a 17-yard pass to Alvin Harper in the end zone.

Harper's catch ended a 13-play, 80-yard drive that took 5:49 on the Cowboys' first possession.

This game wrapped up the NFL's "Throwbacks" weekend in honor of the league's 75th anniversary, and both teams kept up the trend with jerseys from previous eras.

Dallas wore the uniform of its inaugural team, which could have been a bad omen. That 1960 squad led by first-year coach Tom Landry went 0-11-1.

Detroit donned the dark blue jerseys, silver pants and silver helmets worn by its 1935 league champions.

The Cowboys entered the game leading the regular-season series 7-5. Dallas was 22-19 on Monday nights compared to Detroit's 7-9-1 record.

This was the first time the teams met in Texas Stadium since a 37-0 Dallas victory in 1977.

COWBOYS NOTES — Honorary captains for the Lions were former stars Billy Sims and Doug English. Randy White did the honors for the Cowboys...Emmitt Smith went over 6,000 rushing yards for his career on his first carry of the second half with a three-yard run...Smith caught his 200th career pass in the second quarter...Barry Sanders surpassed 7,000 career yards in the second quarter...Sanders' 40 carries represented the most ever by a Cowboys opponent...Cowboys Nickel back Bill Bates had his left wrist put in a cast after suffering an injury during the game. The wrist is believed to be broken but medical personnel will further evaluate the injury Tuesday...Dallas rookie placekicker Chris Boniol hit a 19-yarder, his shortest of the season, making him seven-for-seven.

Gerulaitis' death apparent accident

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis died in an apparent accident when he was overcome by carbon monoxide.

The 40-year-old tennis player appears to have died when fumes from a "faulty propane heater installation" seeped into the heating and air conditioning system of a friend's home, Southampton Village police said Monday night.

Police said they did not know whether Gerulaitis was asleep before fumes swept through the house. His body was discovered shortly after 3 p.m. EDT Sunday and he was the only person in the guest cottage of the oceanfront estate in this affluent Long Island town.

Gerulaitis' body was found on the bed, fully clothed. Police said there were no signs of drugs or crime.

Instead, investigators found "lethal levels" of carbon monoxide inside the entire home near Shinnecock Bay. Police said there was no history of carbon monoxide trouble at the residence.

The Suffolk County Medical Examiner's office conducted an autopsy Monday. The examiner said further toxicological tests were being done.

Gerulaitis won the Australian Open in 1977 and was ranked as high as No. 3 in the world 15 years ago. He remained in the top 10 from 1977 to 1983.

Yet it was pursuit of the fast lane that made him as much a personality off the courts. Even he conceded that drugs and long nights eventually halted a career that won him a place among the tennis elite.

But behind the after-hours partying and cascade of blond curls was a driven athlete who sometimes practiced as many as seven hours a day to prepare for big matches. And if he lacked Jimmy Connors' backhand or Bjorn Borg's forehand, he made up for it with an indomitable heart.

It was that image of Gerulaitis that friends chose to remember on Monday, along with his wit and generosity.

"He was a dynamite kid," said comedian Alan King, a fixture at the U.S. Open each summer who had known Gerulaitis since the tennis star was a prodigy on the junior circuit. "Although he was a high liver — he went all the way — every year he used to give away hundreds and hundreds of rackets. There wasn't a charity event he didn't show up for."

Gerulaitis acknowledged using cocaine during the late 1970s and '80s. He was treated for substance abuse and was implicated, though never charged, in a cocaine-dealing conspiracy in 1983.

Casillas signs pact with New York Jets

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Jets have a new defensive lineman, and it won't be long before Tony Casillas sees some playing time.

General manager Dick Steinberg said the 30-year-old defensive tackle is expected to play Sunday night against the Chicago Bears.

"He worked out for us, he impressed us with his conditioning and we definitely feel he can play this week," Steinberg said. "We're not going to be foolish and put him on the field for too long a period."

Casillas signed a one-year contract Monday. He was declared a free agent this summer after leaving the Kansas City Chiefs to be treated for hypertension.

"I'm just glad to have a chance to get back and start playing football because that's what I do," Casillas said. "The Jets have a great chance of doing a lot of things and I came here to be part of hopefully a Super Bowl contending team."

Casillas spent the last three seasons with the Dallas Cowboys before signing with the Chiefs as a free agent last winter. His four-year, $6 million deal was voided by the league.

The Jets will announce a roster move today to clear space for Casillas. A possible option is cutting defensive end Coleman Rudolph, a 1993 second-round draft pick who has been inactive for all three games.

SHS girls golf beats Lee

Snyder High School's girls golf team defeated Midland Lee 329-371 at Snyder Country Club Saturday.

The win plays a huge part in building the team's confidence for the upcoming season. Primarily because Midland Lee was last season's 5A state runner-up.

Snyder's 42 stroke win was led by an outstanding performance by Brooke Lowrance. Lowrance had eight birdies on her way to shooting a sizzling hot 68.

Snyder head coach Matt Glenn was encouraged by the team's strong start.

"Last year at this time we were shooting in the three-fifties," he said. "Its great to see that we can come out and shoot a 329 in our first match.

"I think that a real advantage for us is the fact that we play from the men's tees. Midland Lee wasn't really expecting that."

Glenn was also impressed with the individual effort of Lowrance.

"She has been working real hard," he said. "I think she was tournament ready because of all the AJGA tournaments she played in this summer."

Other scores from the Lady Tigers include Kelly Lacik's 83, and Brooke Kubena's 89. Daysha Weaver had an 89, Mandy Baker finished at 92 along with Paige Bell. Kayla Drain shot a 102 and Julie Doolittle finished the round at 106.

Snyder competes next on Oct. 1 at Robert Lee golf course. They will play against San Angelo Central and tee times will begin at 8 a.m.

HEY REF!

Clipping versus blocking in the back

HEY REF!: I have often wondered what the difference is between clipping and blocking in the back. What are those rules and how are they enforced?

—BACK BREAKER

HEY BREAKER: Rule 2 (Definitions), section 4 (Clipping), article 1(a) defines clipping as a block against an opponent occurring when the force of the initial contact is from behind and at or below the waist.

Rule 2 (Definitions), section 3 (Blocking), article 4(a) says that a block in the back is contact against an opponent occurring when the force of the initial contact is from behind and above the waist.

PENALTY—(Clipping) 15 yards from the basic spot and a first down for the infraction. Flagrant offenders shall be disqualified. (Block in the back) 10 yards from the basic spot.

SIDENOTE—The position of the blocker's head or feet does not neccesarily indicate the point of initial contact.

Woodstock event investigated for waste violations

NEW YORK (AP) — As thousands grooved to the music, some Woodstock '94 revelers visited a solar-powered "Eco Village," read about saving the earth and soothed their consciences by tossing the brochures in recycling bins.

But one month later, nearly 1,500 tons of beer cans, soda bottles, crumpled lawn chairs, muddy tents and other concert trash are buried in landfills. And what was billed as an environmentally friendly event is being investigated for possibly breaking pollution laws.

Ulster County authorities claim organizers of the 25th anniversary concert in Saugerties recycled a scant 2 percent of the refuse — far less than the 50 percent they promised. County law requires recyclable materials to be kept out of landfills.

"In a festival such as this, that was billed as an environmental concert, recycling should have had a high priority on the agenda. I don't believe it did," said Charles Shaw, executive director of the Ulster County Resource Recovery Agency, which manages solid waste and recycling for the area.

Wetlands also were trashed and toilets overflowed into the Beaver Kill stream. The state Department of Environmental Conservation tested the water twice, but hasn't said what it found.

"There could be some basis for water pollution violations, but we haven't determined that," said department spokesman R.W Groneman.

Shaw says the Saugerties-based concert promoter, Woodstock Ventures, could face up to $4,000 in fines for each day of the massive trash cleanup, which is only now wrapping up. About 250,000 people came to the concert, which ended Aug. 15.

Woodstock spokeswoman Ilene Marder conceded that only a few tons of material was recycled, but insisted it wasn't all the organizers' fault.

It rained for most of the three-day festival and trash got buried in ankle-deep clay mud on the 840-acre site, a former dairy farm. Once trash is tainted with mud or other garbage, it is no longer readily recyclable.

Also, while Greenpeace urged companies in the concert's Eco Village to "Clean Up Your Act, Not Your Corporate Image" and reggae singer Jimmy Cliff led thousands in singing "Save Our Planet Earth," crowds tossed non-recyclables in recycling bins and crews couldn't get through to empty them.

Workers are still finding dirty socks and crumpled soda cups between tufts of grass and tree limbs, but Marder said the site's original beauty is being quickly restored.

"The site is clean. The fields are cleared of trash. The frogs are jumping ... and the rare plants are growing back," she said. "No long-lasting environmental damage has been found, and in fact we're restoring grass and soil conditions to even better than they were before the concert."

Judge rejects Simpson's bid to throw out charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Judge Lance Ito thought he had seen everything in the O.J. Simpson case. He was wrong.

On a day when Ito did the expected — refusing to dismiss the two murder charges against Simpson — he heard the unexpected: Prosecutors said Simpson's secretary destroyed a document that authorities had been trying to seize.

"Just when I think there are no more surprises ..." said Ito, on his first day back from vacation.

He closed Monday's hearing by saying: "Is there anything else? I'm afraid to ask."

In addition to the shredding revelation, prosecutors also gave their most detailed theory about the June 12 killings. Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark said that Simpson intended to murder only ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson at her condominium.

"When Ron Goldman showed up that was something the defendant didn't bargain for and there was obviously a struggle," Clark said.

Defense lawyers probably had low expectations going into the dismissal hearing, a routine skirmish that the defense usually loses. Ito rejected defense arguments that the prosecution's case was based on sloppy and dishonest detective work.

He also upheld an earlier ruling, by Municipal Court Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell, that detectives acted properly when they entered Simpson's estate hours after the slayings without a search warrant.

The ruling means that evidence seized in that search — including the bloody glove found behind the guest house and blood drops on the driveway — probably will be allowed at trial.

"Obviously, this bodes poorly for the defense," said University of Southern California law professor Erwin Chemerinsky. "The judge thus far has not bought any of the defense claims of police misconduct."

The shredding revelation was another threat.

"It will be very negative on O.J.," said Robert Pugsley, a Southwestern University Law School professor. "It will say clearly there was something resembling a smoking gun and they felt it was necessary to destroy."

The smoking gun may have been a boring pamphlet. Defense lawyer Robert Shapiro said the document in question was literature on domestic violence that Simpson was required to read after his 1989 wife-beating conviction.

But if the document was so innocuous, why shred it? Its very destruction, Pugsley said, elevated the document to a position of importance.

Simpson's secretary, Cathy Randa, is scheduled to testify Wednesday.

Defense attorney Gerald Uelmen argued in court that Simpson's people are shredding a lot of papers to keep them away from reporters rummaging through garbage.

Simpson, 47, has pleaded innocent. Jury selection is to begin Sept. 26.

In offering her theory of the murders, Clark said that Goldman, a waiter at a neighborhood restaurant, was killed only because he had stopped by the condo to return a pair of eyeglasses Ms. Simpson had left at the restaurant. She said the killer probably panicked and fled, leaving a bloody glove and a knit cap near the bodies.

After she offered the theory, defense lawyers pressed for more details.

Shapiro wanted to know why Simpson would drop a glove in his back yard, then duck into his front door when he could have entered through a more discreet side door. He also questioned how Simpson could have left drops of blood on his driveway, not along the route where a limousine driver reported seeing a black person.

Clark responded by telling the judge, "Murder is a messy thing, your honor."

Tom Hoopes, a former prosecutor who is now a criminal defense lawyer in Boston, said Clark made a mistake by offering a theory, which she is not required to do.

"All she needs to do is say there's a reasonable possibility that he committed the crime," he said.

"I think she's going to regret it," Hoopes said. "Unless you know for certain how the evidence at trial is going to shape up, why do you want to commit now to that theory?"

Haiti accord raises tough questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Haiti is likely to be a trouble spot for months to come, bedeviling President Clinton with a myriad of problems raised by the 11th-hour compromise that headed off a U.S. invasion.

In one sign of potential trouble, deposed Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide waited until today — two days after the deal was struck to peacefully restore him to power — before making a comment. Even then, he avoided specific mention of the accord as he called for "a new beginning" in democracy.

The democratically elected leader, in a brief, vaguely written statement, said that during three years since his ouster, "We have traveled with the people of Haiti back toward this democracy — choosing a path that will not add to the 5,000 murders already suffered, a path that will not lead toward greater violence."

Aristide left it to aides and supporters to criticize the U.S.-Haitian agreement for the departure of Haiti's military rulers.

One aide said Aristide has "severe problems" with the agreement reached this weekend in Haiti and is outraged at U.S. statements indicating he approved it.

Burt Wides, counsel to Aristide, said the populist Roman Catholic priest believes the Oct. 15 deadline for the Haitian military to leave office leaves pro-democracy forces in Haiti at their mercy for almost a month.

Aristide has often been at odds with the Clinton administration and his future actions or comments could throw a wrench into U.S. plans.

The new agreement, with seven briefly stated points, leaves open questions ranging from the ultimate status and living arrangements for Haiti's coup leaders to the relationship between the Haitian military and the civilian population to the flow of U.S. reconstruction aid.

Critics on Monday complained about several aspects:

— The provision for a "general amnesty" by the Haitian Parliament raises the prospect that military officers may be held blameless for a raft of rape, torture and killings that Clinton has called a "nightmare of bloodshed."

U.S. officials said the parliament would have to determine the scope of the amnesty — whether it should just cover involvement in the 1991 coup, as originally envisioned by Aristide, or would extend to human right abuses.

Court fight clouding fate of radioactive fuel from Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Somewhere on the high seas, two European freighters are creeping toward the United States not knowing whether their cargo of highly radioactive uranium fuel will be unloaded.

The dispute over what to do about the two civilian ships is unfolding in two federal courts and has pitted the environmental concerns of South Carolina's governor against the Clinton administration's nuclear nonproliferation policy.

The cargo of 153 fuel rods from research reactors in Europe is supposed to go to the Energy Department's Savannah River nuclear weapons complex near Aiken, S.C., for safekeeping.

The department has agreed to take the shipment from the Europeans so the weapons-grade material is not sent to a reprocessing plant in Scotland where plutonium — the material needed for making a nuclear weapon — would be extracted.

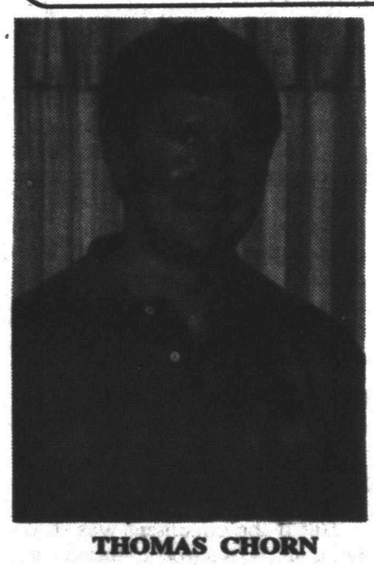

But that strategy was thrown into doubt last week when a federal judge in South Carolina barred the uranium from U.S. waters — even after the freighters had already set to sea — until a detailed study is completed on the environmental impact of storing the fuel rods at Savannah River.

Justice Department lawyers told the U.S. Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., on Monday that the injunction "would gravely jeopardize" the government's program "to prevent nuclear proliferation and deter nuclear terrorism."

The two freighters in the Atlantic have been ordered to reduce speed, hoping that the appellate court will overturn the injunction. Energy Department officials said the ships remained outside the 12-mile limit, but for security reasons they declined to be more specific on their location.

The earlier ruling by Judge Matthew Perry in U.S. District Court in Columbia, S.C., last Thursday was in response to a lawsuit filed by South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell, who said the Energy Department was violating federal environmental laws by not completing a full environmental impact review.

3 teen-age suspects are in custody today

GARLAND (AP) — Three teen-agers sought in a carjacking and pistol-whipping of a state trooper were in custody today after one of the suspects was shot by Garland police, officials said.

Late Monday, Garland officers spotted the vehicle that matched the description of the one used during the assault on the trooper earlier in the evening. The officers approached the vehicle as it was stopped at a train crossing. One suspect got out and pointed a gun at them, Garland officer Larry Rollins said today.

The officers fired, hitting the gunman, who was identified as 18-year-old Christian Esquivel of Devine. He was in serious condition at Baylor University Medical Center, Rollins said.

Ruben Deleon, 17, of Garland was in the Hill County Jail today, said Hill County Lt. William Kelley. A 16-year-old juvenile from Devine was in the Dallas County Juvenile Detention Center, Rollins said.

Kelley said his Sheriff's Department obtained warrants Monday night for the arrests of all three teen-agers on charges of aggravated assault on a peace officer. Charges with other jurisdictions were pending, officers said.

Trooper Doug Childs, 34, of Whitney was in surgery this morning at Harris Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth, where he was airlifted after the beating. His condition was not immediately available, spokeswoman Tricia Musslewhite said.

Childs was beaten about 8:30 p.m. on Interstate 35 in the outskirts of Hillsboro. Department of Public Safety spokesman Mike Cox said Childs' gun was missing and may have been used to beat the trooper.

Childs, a six-year veteran, had stopped the car for a routine traffic violation when he was attacked, Cox said.

The vehicle involved had been reported stolen in a carjacking near White Rock Lake in Dallas, Cox said.

Tracy Walentiny, 29, of Tulsa, Okla., was about to go jogging when she was attacked, police said.

"They roughed her up a bit, but she's all right," said the woman's mother, Nancy Walentiny of Tulsa.

The younger Ms. Walentiny, a sales representative for a gift company, was in Dallas on business, her mother said.

"She was putting her purse under the seat of the car when one of these boys walked up and hit her on the back," Mrs. Walentiny said.

AT&T, McCraw close deal and look ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having gotten federal blessing for their $12.6 billion marriage, telecommunications giants AT&T and McCaw Cellular are charting plans for their new life together.

The deal, the nation's largest merger between telecommunications companies, was completed Monday just hours after the Federal Communications Commission approved it and 13 months after being announced.

AT&T Corp. Chairman Robert Allen and McCaw Cellular Communications Inc. President James Barksdale arranged a news conference today to discuss their plans for moving the new company ahead in the rapidly growing wireless communications business.

The FCC approved transferring dozens of cellular licenses held by McCaw, the country's largest cellular phone operator, to telecommunications giant AT&T.

FCC Chairman Reed Hundt said the merger will "increase competition for cellular services ... benefiting consumers and growing the economy."

The commission imposed a number of requirements to ensure that the companies act competitively. Those safeguards mostly revolve around sale of AT&T equipment to competitors. AT&T is a leading supplier of cellular phone equipment.

Two regional phone companies, Bell Atlantic Corp. and Nynex, are fighting the merger in a federal court in New York. A trial is scheduled Nov. 1. A ruling against AT&T could force the company to divest all or part of its holdings in McCaw.

Jim Young, vice president and general counsel of Bell Atlantic, called the merger "anti-consumer" and "anti-competitive." The company doesn't believe safeguards imposed by either the Justice Department or the FCC are sufficient.

The deal was recently cleared by the Justice Department and a federal judge in Washington.

McCaw holds more than 400 communications licenses covering everything from cellular, paging and TV stations to microwave systems used for the delivery of voice, data and video signals.

Lottery tickets reported stolen in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A break-in today has netted an unlucky thief about $7,000 worth of Texas Lottery scratch-off tickets.

Safeguards in the system allow officials to electronically verify the tickets and identify them as stolen, said Lottery spokesman Steve Levine.

"The smaller tickets just can't get cashed at the retailer level. But if somebody gets a $1,000 winner and they take it in to the Lottery, that's usually how we catch those folks," said Levine.

The suspect remained at large following the predawn break-in, said police.

The thief fled with a plastic dispenser full of lottery tickets taken from Johnny's Mini Mart in west San Antonio.

the numbers to see if it is economically feasible. We are not going off into a venture that would use any chamber funds," he said.

Chamber member Tom Restifo suggested that if the chamber and county reach an agreement, a separate coliseum corporation be formed to keep operations of the facility and the chamber separate.

In other activity Monday, Sonic Drive-Inn was named business of the month. The chamber also announced that it has limited edition Christmas ornaments for sale for $10 each. Some member businesses will also be selling the ornaments, which depict the white buffalo.

Board members present Monday were Stewart-Nolan, Restifo, Thomas, Pat Cain, Howard Limmer, Jeff Martin, Donna Gray and Travis Bunch.

Espy reimburses U.S. government for leased jeep

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy, whose travel is under investigation by an independent counsel, reimbursed the government about $6,200 in lease payments for a Jeep he sometimes uses for personal transportation, his attorney told The Washington Post.

The paper reported in today's editions that Espy kept the car at the Jackson, Miss., airport.

The paper quoted Espy's attorney, Reid Weingarten, as saying Espy occasionally used the Jeep to "ferry his children around" and for official Agriculture Department business in Mississippi.

Espy, 40, a former House member from Mississippi, is divorced and has two children in the state.

Espy reimbursed the department recently — he could not say exactly when — to eliminate any appearance of impropriety, Weingarten told The Post. "Legally, I don't think he had to," the attorney said.

Among the areas of inquiry by an independent counsel appointed by a three-judge panel is Espy's acceptance of travel on a corporate jet, lodging and professional sports tickets from Tyson Foods Inc., the Arkansas-based poultry empire with ties to President Clinton.

Teacher resigns

AUSTIN (AP) — A special education teacher has resigned her Round Rock school district job after pleading guilty to growing 14 marijuana plants in her home, according to officials.

Williamson County District Attorney Ken Anderson said Judith Hayes, 46, was sentenced earlier this month to 30 days in jail and 10 years' probation for the third-degree felony.

Quiet time for officers

Area law enforcement officers witnessed a relatively quiet 24-hour period Monday.

Ralph Trevey contacted sheriff's deputies at 8:45 a.m. Monday to report some criminal mischief done to a dozer.

At 9:03 a.m., Snyder police took an 18-year-old man into custody in the 300 block of Coliseum Drive on a warrant for failure to appear. The man was taken to Municipal Court and later released.

Central Elementary administrators contacted police at 10:13 a.m. in reference to a nine-year-old girl who walked away from the school. The child was returned to school by her mother.

Mrs. William Atwood contacted police at 10:19 a.m. Monday in reference to the theft of some checks. A report for Class C theft was filed.

An individual contacted police at 2:41 p.m. Monday to file assault charges against a man. A report for Class C assault was filed.

A woman notified police of a fight between some students in front of Northeast Elementary at 3:50 p.m. Monday. Police made contact with the individuals involved and turned the students' names over to the high school principal.

Don't give in to gout attacks

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I get gout in one foot or the other every two to three weeks. Is there a medication I can take on a daily basis to prevent this problem from recurring?

DEAR READER: Nobody with gout should have to suffer more than an occasional attack of arthritis. Not only is gouty arthritis excruciatingly painful, it can affect the kidneys, too, leading to chronic renal disease.

Allopurinol, a drug that blocks the formation of uric acid (the cause of gout), will prevent most gout attacks. Ask your doctor about this.

Another prescription medicine, Probenecid, is also available for patients who can't take Allopurinol, because of an allergy to the drug. There is ample preventive therapy for gout.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "About Gout." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 21-year-old college student completing my undergraduate studies. I plan to go on to medical school and would like to become a surgeon, but the sight of severed flesh and internal organs nauseates me nearly to the point of illness. I view this as an obstacle that can be overcome and would hate for it to ruin my career goals. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Almost any person is bound to have a violent reaction the first time he sees blood and gore. Early in their training, policemen, emergency medical technicians, soldiers, doctors (and others who must witness graphic violence), all feel uncomfortable when confronted with real-life scenes that are bloody.

In fact, it's practically an aphorism that new and inexperienced medical students will either faint, throw up or get lightheaded when they view their first operation. You are not alone.

The best way to overcome this obstacle is by rationing your exposure. Start by observing a live birth. This wondrous event is so fulfilling that you won't be greatly discomforted by what you see. Then progress to viewing minor surgery. Finally, once you have become accustomed to the operating room routine, you'll be ready to see major surgery.

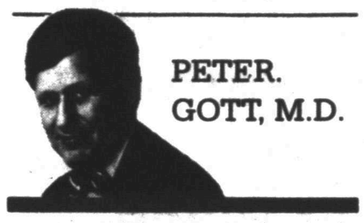

Your family physician can assist you greatly in your endeavor. He should be able — after proper permission, of course — to find a way to get you into the delivery/operating suites, under the guidance of an experienced obstetrician/surgeon.

Once you have become familiar with the newness of the situations, you'll become more objective: Blood and internal organs will become just that. You'll find yourself less distracted and more easily caught up in the marvelous skill of the competent surgeon.

Eventually, you can repay your debt by performing the same service for a soon-to-be medical student. This is how it works. Ask your family doctor to help you.

Along with houses, Carter rehabilitating his reputation

WASHINGTON (AP) — It seems ironic that Bill Clinton, whose foreign policy record has been jagged at best, has come to look for diplomatic rescues by Jimmy Carter — whose foreign policy record was jagged at best.

Foreign policy disasters — the Iranian hostage crisis and an Arab oil embargo — helped drive Carter from office. Now foreign policy successes — averting a nuclear showdown with North Korea and striking an 11th-hour deal for Haiti's future — are giving Carter luster. Along with houses, he's rehabilitating his reputation.

But not without some demurrals — and suspicions that he may be better at defusing crises than settling hard issues.

After they left office, Herbert Hoover helped feed the European victims of war and Richard Nixon carried messages to Beijing and Moscow. Other former presidents went to funerals.

But no ex-president can match the energy of Carter, who turns 70 on Oct. 1. His international good will and his independence work for him as a diplomat.

"Jimmy Carter has used his ex-presidential status as a springboard to accomplish remarkable things," says political scientist Mark Rozell of Mary Washington College in Virginia, who wrote a study on Carter's "rehabilitation."

"He has not spent his ex-presidency enriching himself personally, collecting huge speaking fees, sitting on corporate boards and playing golf with Bob Hope," added Rozell, in jabs at Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

Carter has done more than bargain with despots. Entirely at home in blue jeans and plaid shirt, he helped build houses in flooded Georgia and in Uganda. He monitored elections in several countries, including the December 1990 voting in Haiti that brought Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power.

He mediated in Sudan's civil war and worked to eradicate worm disease in Africa and river blindness in Latin America. He brought warring Ethiopian factions to Atlanta.

In North Korea's Pyongyang and Haiti's Port-au-Prince, Carter's tenacity recalled his singular diplomatic success. In 1978, he kept Egypt's Anwar Sadat and Israel's Menachim Begin at Camp David for 13 days and shuttled between their cabins. Worn down, they finally made a peace that's still expanding.

But that glorious moment was overshadowed by Iran's seizure of American hostages, the collapse of a rescue mission, an oil embargo that forced Americans to line up for gasoline.

Historian Tim Blessing, director of the Presidential Performance Study at Alvernia College in Reading, Pa., said nothing Carter can do can change his place in history, though his fellow citizens may feel more kindly toward him these days.

In a 1982 poll of 846 historians, Carter was ranked "average," just below Ford and just above Benjamin Harrison.

Republicans aren't likely to quit using Carter as a symbol for hapless ineptitude. To them, he's still "President Malaise." When they want to be mean, they compare Clinton to Carter.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, is nominating Carter for the Nobel Peace Prize. And there's no arguing with retired Gen. Colin Powell, who said that at least the country isn't seeing pictures "of American youngsters killing Haitian youngsters and Haitian youngsters killing American youngsters."

Still, the verdict is out. Carter's visit to Pyongyang defused a crisis, but the issue of nuclear inspections remains. And the ultimate outcome in Haiti is far from certain.

Clinton has had foreign policy nightmares in Bosnia and Somalia as well as North Korea and Haiti. But when Carter came back from North Korea, Clinton kept his distance, skipping a face-to-face meeting. And when Clinton sent Carter to Haiti, he buffered him with Powell and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"I really wish he'd stayed home," said former Secetary of State Lawrence Eagleburger of Carter's visit in June to Pyongyang. Eagleburger is no fan of the new Port-au-Prince accord, either.

Old friends in the human rights community also are wary. They think Carter may have lost the game in granting a still-to-be defined amnesty to the Haitian junta.

Four hostages held in pizza restaurant

UNIVERSAL CITY (AP) — A gunman held four people hostage for seven hours inside a pizza restaurant before surrendering to officers in this San Antonio suburb, police say.

Michael Anderson, 23, was charged with one count of aggravated robbery and four counts of aggravated kidnapping, officials said. He remained in Bexar County Jail on Monday in lieu of a $125,000 bond set by Magistrate Homer Walls.

"He had them (employees) make pizza, he drank Cokes, the negotiators bought him a pack of cigarettes," Universal City Police Lt. Charles Dewey said.

The cigarettes, police later said, were for one of the hostages.

The seven-hour standoff ended peacefully Monday morning at a Little Caesar's Pizza restaurant.

"From my understanding, he (suspect) had the employees fix him something to eat at different times," Universal City Police Lt. Ron Meek said.

Those held hostage could not be reached for comment, the San Antonio Express-News reported today.

Police said the pizza gunman invited the hostages to dine with him.

"All of them ate pizza," Dewey said. "Everybody ate pizza."

Dewey added that the gunman became so frustrated that he tore up all of the money he had taken in the robbery that triggered the standoff.

"He said if he couldn't have the money, no one could," Dewey said, adding that officers believe the amount totaled between $1,000 and $2,000. "He just ripped it with his hands. He ripped it into little shreds."

The man fired one shot to attract attention of police, but there were no injuries.

"Any time you have a situation like this, you're very fortunate to get everybody out safe," Dewey said. "It could have been very tragic."

Sgt. Gary W. Speer, a hostage negotiator for the Universal City Police Department, convinced the man to release all hostages unharmed and then surrender, Dewey said.

Meek identified the hostages as a male employee, a female co-manager, a 22-year-old male customer and a 19- year-old female customer.

The incident began shortly after 10:30 p.m. Sunday and concluded at 5:38 a.m. Monday.

"The suspect walked out of the store behind the co-manager," Meek said. "Both had their hands up in the air. He surrendered peacefully."

Officers said that Anderson robbed the store, took the money and was leaving when he saw a police unit that had been sent in response to a telephone report concerning the robbery.

The gunman at first placed the hostages in a cold-storage freezer, but after they complained about the chill, he ordered them out and made them lie down on the floor behind a metal cart, police said.

Anderson began releasing hostages about an hour after the standoff began.

The male customer was released at 11:30 p.m. Sunday, followed by the female customer at 1:09 a.m. Monday and then the male employee at 5:08 a.m., Meek said. About 30 minutes later, he surrendered.

Former attorney executed for Ft. Worth courthouse slayings

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Ex-attorney George Lott, refusing legal help that may have saved his life, was put to death early today for a shooting rampage two years ago at the Tarrant County Courthouse that killed two attorneys and wounded three others.

Lott had handled his own defense at trial and continued to represent himself in the appeals process, spurning offers of assistance.

His shunning of appeals made his time on death row from arrival to execution — 18 months — the shortest of the 81 convicted killers executed in Texas since the state resumed the death penalty in 1982. The average prison time for inmates executed in Texas is 81/2 years.

Utah's Gary Gilmore was executed by a firing squad in 1977, three months after his conviction. That was the fastest nationwide since the death penalty was reinstated. Gilmore shunned all appeals and pressed authorities for a swift execution.

Lott had no final statement, responding with a simple "No" when asked by Warden Morris Jones if he had anything to say.

He was pronounced dead at 12:19 a.m., seven minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing into his arms.

Lott was found competent to represent himself at trial and his refusal to accept outside legal help thwarted efforts by others to try to block the execution, the 10th this year in Texas.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Monday rejected a petition from the Austin-based Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association, which sought a review whether Lott, a University of Texas law school graduate, indeed was competent to represent himself and waive appeals.

Nothing else was filed although a valid challenge likely would have halted the execution, Chip Wilkinson, who handles capital appeals in the Tarrant County district attorney's office, said.

One of the men killed by Lott, Chris Marshall, 41, was Wilkinson's boss.

"It's regretful and sad," Wilkinson said of the case. "The sentence should be carried out."

"It's something we've all anticipated occurring as part of his sentence," added Clyde Ashworth, 71, a judge who was shot and seriously wounded during the gunfire July 1, 1992. "I have no sense of satisfaction. It's a shame his life has been wasted as well as the lives of those he killed and those who have been affected by those deaths."

"It's just a shame all the way around."

Lott walked into a Tarrant County Courthouse courtroom that morning, sat down for a while, then stood and began firing his 9 mm handgun. He shot at least 17 times before fleeing the building and surrendering later in the day at a Dallas television station.

He told the station he wanted to draw attention to wrongs allegedly done to him by the legal system during a divorce and in a child-molesting charge brought against him by his ex-wife.

State Bar of Texas records show Lott became a licensed attorney in 1981 but became inactive in 1988 and was not eligible to practice. Prison records listed his last occupation as computer programmer.

Besides Marshall, another assistant prosecutor, John Edwards, 33, was killed. Ashworth and another 2nd Court of Appeals judge, John Hill, along with anassistant prosecutor, Steve Conder, were wounded.

As has become the routine for most Texas executions, only one death penalty opponent carried a candle outside the Walls Unit prison in downtown Huntsville. He was joined by about 50 curious students from nearby Sam Houston University. Their presence easily was dwarfed by cheers from inmates inside the prison watching a Dallas Cowboys Monday night football game.

Survey says children eating too much fat

WASHINGTON (AP) — American children still eat too much fat and sugar and, instead of working off the calories, watch enough TV to steal two months out of each year, says a health survey.

Prevention magazine says two-thirds of U.S. children fail its Children's Health Index, a measure of good health and safety released today.

Its most surprising finding was that parents appear to be slacking off in the nutrition battle even as their kids get fatter.

About 31 percent of children ages 3 to 17 are overweight, an increase of 29 percent since 1984, the survey said.

But only 50 percent of parents surveyed really try to limit fat in their menus, down from 64 percent in 1991. Only 49 percent fight sugar, down from 72 percent.

What happened?

Competing information on what's best to eat might be overwhelming parents, speculated Prevention's Tom Dybdahl. "Lots of people are feeling, 'I might just as well eat what I want.'"

But children also spend 912 hours a year watching television — equal to two months of waking hours, the survey said.

Yet parents report that 66 percent of children get 20 minutes of strenuous exercise at least three times a week.

"Clearly, parents need to be educated about the difference between an active child, which is normal, and one who is physically fit," said Prevention managing editor Lewis Vaughn.

Among the survey's other findings:

—41 percent of the families that own guns say the weapons are "just hidden away" and not locked up.

—Only one-third of all children and 13 percent of teen-agers wear helmets while bicycling.

The Health Index is based on a telephone survey of 424 parents by Princeton Survey Research Associates. It has an error margin of plus or minus 5 percentage points.

Police confirm raids on gay bars by masked policemen

HOUSTON (AP) — A police official has confirmed that uniformed officers wore ski masks during raids on local gay bars, but he said the practice will stop immediately.

Local gay leaders had complained that officers were masked when they raided the bars in July. Police officials at the time had dismissed the complaints as unfounded.

"It should not happen. Our officers have been put on notice that this will not be tolerated. They will be dealt with," Assistant Chief Art Contreras said.

He said only undercover officers, upon reentering a bar to point out suspects to arresting officers, are allowed to wear masks to protect their identity.

Even then, undercover officers are required to wear "raid" jackets with their names on the backs.

The allegations about the masked raiders had been included in a three-page report given to Contreras and Chief Sam Nuchia by Anise Parker of the Citizen Advisory Committee. Parker is a member of

In each advertisement on this page you will find the contestants in a prominent football game being played around the country this weekend. On the entry blank at the bottom of the page, fill in your selection of the WINNING TEAM only...opposite the name of the business firm on the entry blank. Then clip out the entry blank and send it to FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR, Snyder Daily News, Box 949, Snyder, TX 79550, or bring it by the news office at 3600 College Ave. Entries must be in the hands of the editor by 5:00 p.m. Friday. Games ending in a tie must be specified as a tie or else it will be considered a miss.

To avoid splitting the prize money a TIE-BREAKER slot will be provided on each entry blank. Pick the total points of the score for that game and in case of a tie the one who picks the winner and the nearest number of total points will receive the prize money. The same formula will apply to second and third place winners. In the case of a perfect score, the formula would apply for the $250 cash prize. To win the $1,000 cash prize, all twenty games must be picked correctly, plus the exact score must be predicted on the tie-breaker.

There will be fun for the entire family. Only one entry blank will be permitted for any one person. More than one will disqualify all that person's entries. Entries must be on the official entry blank (No Copies Please). Scores listed on the entry blank will have no bearing except in the case of the tie-breaker. Sign your entry blank and list your address and phone number and watch for the winner's story in next Tuesday's SDN. Employees of the SDN and their families are not eligible to enter.
