Inspectors from the state health department's Division of Water Hygiene arrived in Pampa Thursday, but did not meet with Pampa city officials on a formal basis to discuss the city's recent foul water problems.

Inspectors Michael Edmiston and Robert Adcock of the department's Canyon office took water samples from Pampa's water treatment plant yesterday, according to a spokesman at the plant.

However, Ron Freeman, a spokesman for the Canyon office, said today the inspectors were "on their way over there now" at press time.

The samples will be taken to laboratories in Amarillo and Austin for chemical analysis. Preliminary results on the analysis should be available this afternoon, according to Freeman.

Ruben Alvarado, a spokesman for the health department, said other samples should arrive in the Austin labs Monday, and tests would probably take a week to complete.

Alvarado said yesterday's report of a meeting between inspectors and city officials was the result of "a bit of a misunderstanding."

"I had said they had to be in the area anyway and would check into the situation," Alvarado said.

He said "apparently the inspectors decided all that information could be recieved on the phone anyway."

Freeman said his office contacted the city manager and water officials by phone and discussed the problem.

He said there was no new information on the cause of the water's intermittent foul odor and taste. Alvarado said "the city knows they have a problem... but they are not sure where the cause of the taste and odor is."

The bad water has been attributed by a source at the city's water department to impurities entering the system during a rupture March 17 in the main water line that supplies the whole city.

The Pampa News staff could observe no water pressure anywhere in the city between approximately 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. that day. However, Freeman and Alvarado said the city did not report the shutdown to health officials.

"I didn't know of any rupture," said Freeman. "They didn't contact us."

Alvarado said city officials assured him that "the lines were never dry."

"There may have been a low pressure drop," Alvarado said, but a total loss of pressure would normally bring complaints. To have such a drop in pressure without complaints, he said, "is an extremely unusual situation; usually the phone is ringing off the wall."

Pampans were advised of the water shutoff March 17 through radio and other news announcements.

U.S. gives up peace hopes, sides with Britain

By The Associated Press

Britain's total air and sea blockade of the Falkland Islands went into effect today, and the United States abandoned its peace efforts because of what it called Argentine intransigence and sided with Britain in the conflict.

There were no immediate reports of clashes in the 200-mile war zone around the Falklands, but Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said in Washington that the "South Atlantic was about to enter a new and dangerous phase in which large-scale military action is likely."

He said in light of Argentina's "failure to accept compromise," its "use of unlawful force to resolve disputes" and its unyielding demand for sovereignty over the Falklands, the United States was abandoning its peace efforts and siding with Britain.

He said the U.S. government was suspending military exports to Argentina, Export-Import Bank credits, and Commodity Credit Corporation guarantees and giving materiel support to British forces in the dispute. However, he said there would be no U.S. military involvement in the crisis.

The London Daily Mail said President Reagan had already ordered U.S. tankers to be ready to steam to the South Atlantic to back up the British fleet. Defense Department officials in Washington said U.S. Navy ships were staying away from the scene of a possible outbreak of war.

A Defense Ministry spokesman in London said "there is no sign of the Argentine fleet moving into our operational area." He refused to disclose the whereabouts of the British armada, but when asked if British warships were ready to block any attempts by Argentina to penetrate the war zone, he replied: "I won't disagree with that."

There was speculation in London of an attack later today by British carrier planes on the airfield at Stanley, the Falklands capital and the bridgehead for Argentina's airlift to the estimated 9,000 troops occupying the British island colony.

With Argentina's ruling military junta refusing to pull back from the islands its forces seized April 2, Britain set the countdown clock running Wednesday with the announcement that it was expanding its 200-mile maritime blockade around the Falklands to the skies over the area at noon today — 7 a.m. EDT.

The Argentine junta retaliated Thursday night with an immediate embargo against British ships and aircraft within 200 miles of the Argentine coast and for 200 miles around the Falklands and its dependencies, South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands.

It said British violators of these zones would be "treated accordingly."

A spokesman for British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said the Argentine declaration "does not change Britain's position one iota. We are sticking to our plans for a 200-mile total exclusion zone."

The British on Sunday recaptured South Georgia, 800 miles east of the Falklands, putting one of Argentina's four submarines out of action, and the Sandwich Islands have not been touched by the conflict so far.

Mrs. Thatcher was urged again Thursday by the opposition Labor Party in the House of Commons to hold back the fleet and pursue diplomacy, and again she refused.

"It would be highly dangerous to bluff in that way," she replied. "Gentle persuasion is not going to make the Argentine government give up what it seized by force."

Reagan asks voters to 'do it again'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is launching a new budget campaign with a call to the voters to "do it again" and convince Congress to line up for his economic program.

Reagan summoned congressional Republicans to the White House today and planned to meet with prospective Democratic allies Monday in an apparent attempt to reassemble the coalition that delivered his first round of tax and budget cuts last year.

A White House spokesman said that about three hours after the president's speech, 2,967 telephone calls had been received and most of them — 2,352 — supported Reagan.

However, results of a Washington Post-ABC News poll published today by the Post indicated that 59 percent of those interviewed wanted Congress to make substantial changes in Reagan's budget proposals, with 28 percent opposed. And by a 58-35 margin, the Post said, those surveyed wanted Reagan to drop his proposal for social budget and tax cuts and try something else.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he expected Reagan to hold fast to overall targets of $122 billion in tax increases over three years and a $28 billion cutback in his proposed defense buildup.

Dole, who took part in a month of secret talks that failed to produce a compromise budget agreement, said he hopes Congress can agree swiftly on at least a partial package of measures aimed at reducing fiscal 1983 budget deficits. Dole wants Congress to pass the measures as part of a debt limit bill expected to reach the House and Senate floors by June.

In a nationally broadcast address Thursday night, the president told the public to let "your representatives know that you think this is no time for politics as usual — that you, too, want an end to runaway taxes, spending, government debt and high interest rates."

"You did it once — you can do it again," Reagan said.

With the first budget Reagan submitted to Congress this year all but forgotten — and efforts to find a bipartisan alternative to it in shambles — Reagan said he intends "to forge the beginnings of an acceptable budget initiative."

Congressional Democrats, however, said Reagan's strategy will not work this year and will succeed only in tying Congress in knots.

Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri, giving the Democrats' broadcast response immediately after Reagan's speech, said the president was being too political and making an appeal that threatens to deadlock Congress on the budget issue.

"If we work together effectively we can produce something that's good for you and good for the country and good for the future of the country," said Bolling, responding without a prepared text.

He said the budget problem is neither Republican nor Democratic and "it's very important that we have bipartisan cooperation all the way through."

Later, Bolling told reporters the president's speech "almost assures it will tie up the Congress in a situation where we don't get a result."

He added that he had pushed for budget negotiations with the administration rather than confrontation this year "because I feel so strongly that we've got to be able to function this year, in one way or another."

But Reagan declared in his speech that his Democratic critics only "want more and more spending and more and more taxes."

U.S. places sanctions against Argentines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. today announced economic sanctions and the suspension of military exports to Argentina and said the United States would "respond positively to requests for materiel support" for Britain in the crisis over the Falkland Islands.

"There will of course be no direct U.S. military involvement," Haig said in announcing the sanctions ordered by President Reagan after Argentina on Thursday rejected anew U.S. efforts to mediate the dispute.

Haig said while he pressed the effort at mediation, the United States refrained from taking sides in the crisis, and Britain understood that position.

"Now, however, in light of Argentina's failure to accept a compromise, we must take concrete steps to underscore that the United States cannot and will not condone the use of unlawful force to resolve disputes," he said.

Argentina invaded the British-held islands on April 2, and the British sent their fleet t to the South Atlantic to mount a blockade that took full effect at 7 a.m., EDT today.

Even as he announced American support for Britain, "our closest ally," Haig said that in the end there will have to be a negotiated settlement of the territorial dispute over the sparsely-populated islands 250 miles off the Argentina coast.

"Otherwise we will all face unending hostility and insecurity in the South Atlantic," Haig said.

He began by saying that the crisis was entering "a new and dangerous phase in which large-scale military action is likely."

He reviewed what he called an "extraordinary effort" by the United States to find a peaceful solution, an effort that sent him shuttling between London and Buenos Aires.

Haig said the United States had proposed "a fair and sound" settlement that would have included an end to hostilities, military withdrawal by both sides, creation of an interim British-Argentine-U.S. authority to administer the islands and the creation of a framework for negotiations to determine the final settlement.

He said the final arrangement would have had to take into account "the interests of both sides and the wishes of the inhabitants," most of them of British descent.

He said the administration had reason to hope the British would consider those terms, "but Argentina informed us yesterday that it could not accept" them.

12 killed in Hoboken hotel fire

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — A fire of suspicious origin raced through a four-story residential hotel before dawn today, killing 12 people and injuring several others who leaped from windows to escape the flames.

One woman at a top floor window tossed her baby into the arms of two men down below, before she jumped herself.

Deputy Fire Chief Edward McDonald said "an empty container of unknown substance was removed from the building. Something was there that shouldn't have been."

Officials said 31 people, including 13 children were in the Pinters Hotel at the time of the fire.

As firefighters dug through the charred debris, Deputy Fire Chief Ray Sheehan reported, "We brought out 10 (bodies) and two are in the hospital."

Nephew of plane crash victim dies in cr

HOUSTON — William Arlen Spradley, 48, a Houston firefighter and nephew of the late Wyatt Lemons of Pampa, was killed Wednesday in a plane crash at Hobby Airport.

Lemons died in a plane crash near Perry Lefors Airport earlier this year.

Spradley and lawyer Harry Noe were supposed to fly a pair of light planes from Houston to Georgia and they took off in tandem. Moments later, Noe heard that a private plane had gone down.

"I just immediately thought it must be Bill because I had lost him," Noe said of the Wednesday crash that killed Spradley.

Witnesses told fire investigators the left engine of Spradley's Cessna 411 appeared to catch fire as the plane lifted off from Hobby Airport.

A fire official said the plane circled back toward the airport but hit a telephone pole and narrowly missed a mobile home before it crashed and exploded in flames. Spradley was alone aboard the twin-engine light plane, officials said.

Noe pleaded no contest last week to charges he filed a false $134,000 insurance claim involving the airplane Spradley was flying. Noe said he and Spradley intended to take the plane to Georgia to sell it.

FAA executive George Masterson said officials from his agency's regional office would investigate the crash.

Spradley, a captain who was a 21-year veteran of the fire department, had been named an unindicted co-conspirator in a federal drug trial of Houston country-western singer Roy McLemore and two Miami men. The case is pending in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on charges that arose after Spradley and McLemore in Colombia in 1979 and there for more than a mo

Reservations slower than expected

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Trucks and backhoes, painters and food vendors rushed around the grounds of the 1982 World's Fair early today, putting on the finishing touches for the weekend opening of the festivities expected to draw 100,000 people to town.

The first world's fair since 1975 and the first ever in the Southeast opens Saturday for a six-month run. President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will be on hand.

Exhibits from 22 nations, four states and more than 50 corporations and organizations are unveiled on a 72-acre downtown site. The exhibits are based on the fair's energy theme, noted in a commemorative postage stamp that went on sale here Thursday.

Mrs. Reagan will fly to Knoxville tonight and then take a helicopter ride to the home of Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., in rural Huntsville, where she and the president will be weekend house guests.

Reagan is flying to Knoxville Saturday for the opening, a national radio address, and a fund-raiser for fellow Republican Rep. Robin Beard.

Elsewhere in Knoxville, World's Fair clerks were cataloging accommodations that include hotel rooms, private homes, dormitories, campgrounds, houseboats and a remodeled tobacco warehouse.

Charlotte Ware, who handles alternative housing for the fair, said reservations have been coming in slowly, but are starting to pick up.

Fair officials Thursday stood by their predictions that 100,000 people would attend the weekend opening.

Consultants' projections call for an average of 60,000 people a day to visit the exposition during its six-month run. That number would be about 60 times Knoxville's population of 183,000.

Despite reports of price gouging and evictions of more than 1,000 tenants by landlords eager to rent apartments overnight, people should have no trouble finding accommodations if they're willing to shop around and pay the price, officials said.

Four hijackers hold 28 hostages

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Four leftist hijackers held 28 hostages including eight Americans for the second night aboard an airliner at the Tegucigalpa airport, but the Vatican ambassador negotiating with them showed some optimism.

The armed guerrillas reduced their demands three times Thursday and allowed the pilot's children to visit him on board. But the government insisted it would do no more than fly the men out of the country in exchange for their captives.

"The negotiations are on the right path," sdaid Monsignor Andres Cordero Lanza, the papal nuncio to Honduras, after his fourth visit to the plane since the four leftists seized it during a domestic flight Wednesday.

He said the gunmen were talking about going to Mexico or Panama.

The prelate said the hijackers, who on Wdnesday threatened to kill American hostage Gregory Bascom of the Standard Fruit and Steamship Co. and blow up the plane, CUT THEIR PRICE FROM !⅛ MILLION TO !¼⅝?,???, THEN TO !⅛⅝?,??? AND THEN TO !⅛??,???.

An adviser to President Roberto Suazo Cordoba said the men abandoned a demand for the release of 52 political prisoners after the government denied it was holding any of those listed.

A crowd of 300 gathered outside the airport Thursday night demanding that the government take action against the hijackers. The government doubled the number of soldiers and police at the airport to 400 and refused to let the demonstrators onto the airport grounds. The demonstrators left after several hours.

The U.S. Emjassy s id in addition to Bascom, the Americans held hostage included NBC-TV correspondent Brian Ross and U.S. Army Spec. 4 Frank Hubbard from Fort Ord, Calif., who with his wife and infant son had been visiting his wife's Honduran family.

The hijackers released 16 hostages Wednesday, including Bascom's wife, Hubbard's wife and child and three other Americans. The embassy said then that Hubbard also got off, but later it said the soldier was still aboard.

Government officials said the hijackers were members of the Revolutionary Popular Forces-Lorenzo Zelaya, named after a student killed by police in a 1976 demonstration.

Alabama gathers in three awards

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) — The rocking country band called Alabama was the big winner at the 17th annual Academy of Country Music awards, taking two honors in addition to being named entertainers of the year.

Barbara Mandrell was named top female vocalist Thursday. Merle Haggard won top male vocalist, and the duo of David Frizzell and Shelly West won top vocal duo and song of the year, for "You're the Reason God Made Oklahoma," in the ceremony at Knott's Berry Farm.

Alabama, which less than two years ago was playing a bar in Myrtle Beach, S.C., claimed "Hat" trophies for top vocal group and album of the year for their "Feels So Right." A year ago the band won the top vocal group award.

"I think the academy just kind of leads the way," said lead singer Randy Owen. "It's a great honor. Last year we did 300 days (on the road) and we're glad all the people listened."

Frizzell and Miss West had something more to celebrate than their awards — Miss West gave birth Tuesday to her first child.

Miss West is the daughter of Dottie West, who was co-emcee of the NBC telecast, and her husband, Alan Frizzell, is her singing partner's brother.

"All this in one week — it's been an amazing week," David Frizzell said backstage.

Dottie West got her first glimpse of her new granddaughter, Tess Marie Frizzell, during the program as co-hosts Mickey Gilley and Conway Twitty introduced a videotape of the baby and her parents.

Miss Mandrell's top female vocalist award marked her fourth honor from the Los Angeles-based academy. "You've been very, very good to me for a very long time," the blond singer told the audience of 2,000 at the amusement park.

Haggard was not on hand to claim his best male vocalist trophy — his 14th Hat trophy and his sixth for male vocalist.

Juice Newton was another absentee winner in the best new female vocalist category. But Ricky Skaggs said, "Thank you, Lord" as he collected his award for best new male vocalist.

The Oak Ridge Boys, gospel singers turned country, won the single record of the year award for "Elvira." The song is the subject of a $10 million federal lawsuit by members and survivors of the Rivingtons, who claim that the "Oo-papa-mau-mau" refrain of "Elvira" was stolen from a Rivingtons hit.

However, in accepting the best single award, Oak Ridge Boy Joe Bonsall said without referring to the lawsuit that the band had first heard "Elvira" sung by a group in Texas a few years ago.

Defense to play newscasts at hearing

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A defense attorney trying to keep secret parts of a bond reduction hearing for a man accused of conspiring to kill a federal judge says he'll show the court examples of news coverage in the case.

Charles Roberts, a defense attorney for El Paso lawyer Joseph Chagra, says he plans Monday to play in court a collection of newscasts aired over the last three years about the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. and the investigation into the slaying.

Roberts told Chief U.S. District Judge William Sessions during a hearing Thursday that he will need equipment to play the cassette tapes during a Monday hearing on a motion filed by four newspapers.

Attorneys for The San Antonio Express, The San Antonio News, The San Antonio Light and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram demanded and received the evidentiary hearing under the Gannett Decision, which requires parties to prove the necessity for closing court procedings from public view.

The Dallas Morning News and KENS-TV of San Antonio joined the others last week in formally objecting to U.S. Magistrate Robert O'Connor's conducting part of Chagra's bond reduction hearing "in camera."

Roberts had asked that the hearing be closed on grounds evidence about negotiations Chagra had with the government would jeopardize his Fifth Amendment rights against self incrimination and his Sixth Amendment right to a fair trial.

Roberts said Thursday he plans to display during Monday's hearing "most of the newscasts filmed on the Judge Wood case over the past three years."

He would not say where the defense obtained the cassette tapes.

In other action Thursday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn agreed to comply with Roberts' motion that the government provide in the bond hearing a complete FBI report and all notes of an interview agents had with Chagra on March 20, 1981.

Roberts had filed two motions requesting that the government introduce the FBI report and all notes concerning the interview, rather than exercerpts as Jahn had originally proposed.

Sessions promptly sealed from public view both documents.

Leading indicators index continues falling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's Index of Leading Indicators, an important gauge of future economic activity, fell for the 11th straight month in March, the Commerce Department reported today.

The 0.5 percent decline in the index was the same as in February, hardly a sign that the recession might be nearing an end.

The index is designed to forecast economic trends one month or more in advance.

Many economists, including those in the Reagan administration, are forecasting at least some recovery by late spring or summer. But few signs of that are showing up so far.

The government reported last week that new orders for durable goods rose strongly in March. But other "leading indicators" in the new report were less encouraging.

A decline in the average workweek was the biggest factor holding down the March index, the report said, indicating that the national unemployment rate may well rise above the March level of 9 percent — already matching the highest mark since World War II.

Other negative indicators for March included initial claims for state unemployment aid — another bad sign for the jobless rate — vendor deliveries, raw materials prices, stock prices and total liquid assets, the new report said.

Positive indicators included new orders for consumer goods and materials, contracts and orders for new plants and equipment, rising building materials and an increase in the nation's money supply.

The Commerce Department had originally reported February's decline at 0.3 percent, revising that figure in the new report. The latest 0.5 percent drop is also subject to later revision.

All of the figures are adjusted for normal seasonal variation.

Rightest split elects independent president

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A split in the rightist coalition in the Constituent Assembly made possible the election of a banker favored by military leaders, the Christian Democrats and the United States as provisional president of El Salvador.

The National Conciliation Party broke with the assembly's ultra-rightist speaker, Roberto d'Aubuisson, and sided with the centrist Christian Democrats to elect Alvaro Magana, 56-year-old head of the National Mortgage Bank for the last 17 years. He is a political independent who is considered to have moderately conservative views.

The vote in the assembly Thursday was 36-17 with seven abstentions.

The assembly also elected three vice presidents, one each from the Christian Democrats, National Conciliation and d'Aubuisson's Republican Nationalist Alliance, or ARENA.

Although the Christian Democrats are the largest party in the assembly and ARENA is second, National Conciliation's Raul Molina got the first vice presidency and will become acting president if Magana dies, travels abroad or is incapacitated.

Dr. Gabriel Gutierrez Castro of ARENA was elected second vice president, and the Christian Democrats' Dr. Paulo Mauricio Albergue got the third vice presidency.

Magana and the three vice presidents will be sworn in Sunday at a ceremony that will terminate the U.S.-backed civilian-military junta that has headed the government since a coup in October 1979.

"The principal thing for El Salvador will be economic recovery, and that will create a climate of confidence," Magana said in a recent interview.

"The provisional government should create this climate so that the constitutional government has it available."

U.S. Ambassador Deane R. Hinton said in a statement that the election of "a government of national unity is good news for El Salvador."

[illegible]n cut in half and [illegible]en plucked out [illegible]hursday, but all [illegible]vered and Miss [illegible]ure the designer would know just how to fix it. The main thing, she said, was that it had been found.

"Two pieces or not, it is a one in a million shot," she said.

Miss DuBois was told of the find as she arrived in Biloxi, Miss., Thursday for the Miss USA contest May 13.

"I'm thrilled to death, it's a miracle," she said after pageant officials told her the pendant was found.

"No one else has one like it. It was made just for me. I wore it to bed and in the shower," Miss DuBois said of the pendant. She said her mother had priced the pendant at $7,000.

"My mistake was that I wore it outside my blouse. Maybe I was just a little bit naive."

Miss DuBois beat long odds in getting the pendant back. Police Crime Analysis Unit statistics show that last year 4,815 chain snatchings were reported in the city and 1,274 arrests were made.

Detective Chris Surillo, who recovered it, said he was "going to be in the front row when she comes to claim it."

But officials of the beauty pageant said they were trying to make arrangements to have the detectives involved in the case flown to Biloxi to make the return presentation.

Montoya was charged with possessing stolen property, Surillo said.

Beau Boulter makes last minute effort here

Beau Boulter, one of the Republican candidates for 13th District U.S. Representative, returned to Pampa Thursday to repeat his supply - side economic stance and his support for the economic policies of President Reagan.

Although Boulter is opposing Amarillo businessman Ron Slover in tomorrow's Republican primary, he focused his criticisms on the voting record of incumbent Democrat Jack Hightower.

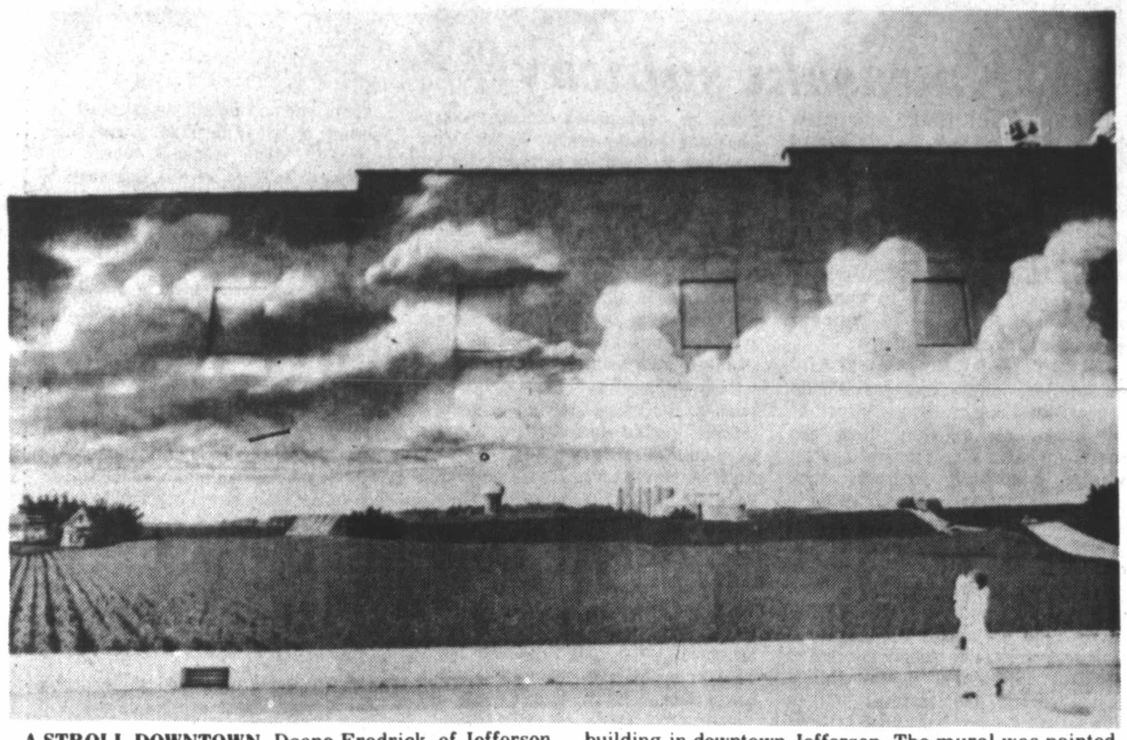

He said Hightower's claims of support for Reagan's budget and tax cuts are false, and that Hightower is a "do - nothing Congressman, a big spender, and a Congressman who is more interested in tax breaks for himself than for the people who sent him to Washington.

He said Hightower has consistently supported the " budget - breaking" policies of Congressman Tip O'Neill while "giving us... poor representation while he pays virtually no taxes himself."

"In November 1980 Americans elected Ronald Reagan president and not Tip O'Neill," he said.

Boulter also reiterated his support of balancing the federal budget, a move that Reagan recommended be put in the form of a Constitutional amendment in his television address last night. A balanced budget would remove much of the federal government's power to influence the national economy through tax and benefit fluctuations.

Boulter was born in El Paso and grew up in Levelland, and is presently a partner in Chambers, Sturgeon and, Boulter, an Amarillo law firm.

Manges setting contribution record

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Clinton Manges, the Freer banker-rancher who is breaking state records for campaign contributions, has not been able to find willing takers for all the money he wants to give away.

Manges has found donees for about $450,000, but a $50,000 contribution to gubernatorial candidate Buddy Temple was returned, as was a $25,000 gift to land commissioner candidate Pete Snelson.

San Antonio lawyer Pat Maloney, who oversees Manges' political spending, said it was difficult to figure out why Temple and Snelson returned the money because they had asked for it.

Spokesmen for Temple and Snelson said it didn't happen exactly that way.

Manges has been in and out of the headlines during his 20-year rise from high-school dropout to millionaire recluse. He was convicted in 1965 for making false statements on a Small Business Administration loan application. His bank holdings also have drawn suspicious looks from authorities.

In 1975, a $15,000 Manges donation to then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe was returned because Briscoe said he didn't know Manges well enough to take that much money from him.

This year Manges is being generous beyond precedent in Texas politics.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, the least well-financed of the three major Democratic gubernatorial contenders, has taken $270,000 from Manges or his political action committee (which, as of Thursday, had not filed its required report). Manges money makes up about 40 percent of Armstrong's total campaign chest.

"Lefty Morris (Armstrong's campaign manager) is a dear friend of mine and he told me they were not going to have any last-week television."

The flight more important than being pioneers for minorities

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronauts Sally K. Ride and Guion S. Bluford say they are more excited about flying into space than about becoming minority pioneers.

"I not as hyped up on being the first black in space as I am just looking forward to flying in space," said Bluford, 39, an Air Force lieutenant colonel. "I thought it would be more fun to be the second or third. There's more tension when you are first than for those who come behind."

Miss Ride, 31, said she thought the press was making too much of her role as the first American woman in space, but she expected it.

"We knew it was going to be an event," said Miss Ride. "But I'm so eager to go up in the shuttle that I'm willing to put up with just about anything."

Bluford, one of three black men in the astronaut corps, will be a mission specialist on the eighth flight of the space shuttle, a three-day mission now set for July of 1983. Miss Ride will be mission specialist on shuttle flight number seven, set for launch in April of next year.

Both astronauts said they stepped into the flight crews "without a ripple."

"This has been a very smooth transistion," said Bluford. "It has really worked out extremely well."

Miss Ride said she should have no problem finding privacy aboard the roomy space shuttle, which is much larger than the Apollo spacecraft of an earlier era.

Restroom facilities on the shuttle, she said, "are just like a lavatory on earth." Asked where she will sleep, Miss Ride said: "Probably upside down in some corner. I don't know where all the nooks and crannies are yet, but I'll find a place."

Miss Ride said she and the other five women astronauts requested some additions to the crew equipment when they were first selected as astronauts in 1978. One of the additions they asked for were sleeping garments, she said. In the past, astronauts in space slept in their underwear.

Both Miss Ride and Bluford believe the space agency selection of minority astronauts was "evolutionary", prompted by the need for mission specialists who are not required to be pilots. Their job on the missions will be to operate instruments and experiments. The flying is performed by two pilot crewmen.

"They had no choice but to select some women," said Miss Ride. "There were women who were qualified."

Bluford said there are now black pilots and black mission specialists in the astronaut corps.

Neither Bluford nor Miss Ride believed they had to overcome minority hardships reach the astronaut corps.

"My father was a mechanical engineer and he faced a lot of problems in his field. I haven't faced any ofthose problems at all," said Bluford.

Miss Ride said she was a member of the National Organization of Women at Stanford University in California, but actually found no barriers because of her sex.

"I've been fortunate to come along when I did," she said. "There had been women before me who broke the way and I could just follow along." NASA, she added, "did an excellent job of preparing everybody for our arrival."

Both Bluford and Miss Ride were selected as astronauts in 1978.

Marketplace rule pressures Nigeria

The troubled Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries managed to achieve enough unity last month to inaugurate a strategy to deal with the world surplus of oil. Members of the would - be cartel agreed to production cutbacks which eventually could wipe out the surplus and forestall a further decline in prices.

That's a long - range plan, however, and OPEC may be facing a more immediate test. It is trying to force oil companies to buy oil at a premium price from an OPEC member in desperate need of money.

The needy case is Nigeria, which has seen its oil exports decline so sharply that its national economy is on the rocks. Not only are Nigerian exports suffering from the worldwide delicne in demand for crude, but Nigeria is asking $35.50 a barrel for oil of the same quality that is available from the North Sea at $31 a barrel.

Saudi Arabia, the no. 1 OPEC producer and the one with the most clout on the market, has let it be known that if oil companies do not increase their orders from Nigeria they might find themselves blacklisted the next time they want to contract for oil from the Saudis. That kind of threat is wrothy of Al Capon.

The Saudi concern for Nigeria is not altruistic. If Nigeria gets desperate enough to cut its price to match what Britain and Norway are charging for North Sea oil, it could lead to a wave of price - cutting by other OPEC members and shatter what remains of the organization's strength.

Although some oil companies are said to have increased their orders for Nigerian crude for April, they are otherwise non - committal about their purchases for the future. They should be. It is not their responsibility to bail out the Nigerian economy at the expense of their customers and shareholders — nor is it their obligation to help OPEC sustain exerbitant prices. They should shop for oil at the best price.

OPEC or no OPEC, Nigeria faces a simple rule of the marketplace: If you're being undersold by the competition, you meet the competitor's price. Or go out of business.

Urban decay goals remain from past

There were some incurable optimists who hoped that the election of Ronald Reagan would signal a major turnaround in the attitude of the federal government toward urban decay.

Numerous studies, beginning in the early '60s with the pioneering working of Martin Anderson on urban renewal, had demonstrated the bankruptcy of the traditional "appropriate - lots - of - federal - money - and - hope - for - the - best" approach to urban problems.

Federal housing programs have destroyed more housing than they have built, and much of what the feds have built has proven sterile, demoralizing and unpopular with those who lived there. Clearly, it was time for a change.

In fact, grouping the poor and minorities in housing projects is not only costly in terms of upkeep over the years, but it actually works to the detriment of them because it institutionalizes the ghetto.

But there was hope that this massive "put - em - in - a - house - and - forget - em" approach to social ills was going to be abandoned.

Reagan's endorsement in principle of the urban enterprise zone concept was seen as evidence that a real change was in the wind. The idea was to repeal or relax laws the deter enterprise in inner cities (including — in various versions of the program — minimum wage laws, Social Security requirements, licensing provisions, zoning, and some health and safety codes). That would give prospective inner - city entrepreneurs with little money a chance to get started. Clearly, this approach offers more promise than the old, failed formula of spending money on bureaucrats, government managers, planners, urban "experts" and endless studies.

Recent news indicates, however, that for all the rhetoric, the wave of the past is still sweeping Washington.

The issue is the old - fangled approach to the South Bronx, an area that has come to serve as a medial symbol of urban decay. The South Bronx Development Organization, created by New York Mayor Ed Koch to institutionalize the old - fashioned, paternalistic approach, has always depended on federal funds for much of its funding. Now, it claims that if it doesn't get a million dollars from the federal taxpayers soon, it may have to close its doors. The crocodile tears are flowing from most of the conventional politicos of New York City.

The administration has an opportunity to make a decision here that will have both symbolic and substantial value. The old approach has failed; indeed a good deal of the agony of the South Bronx can be traced to sometimes well - meaning or opportunistic government activities. Now is a good time to cut it off, to refuse to waste even a million more dollars of the taxpayers' money on a fundamentally flawed approach.

At the same time, the administration should move from lofty rhetoric and preliminary skirmishing to concrete proposals and aggressive lobbying on the urban enterprise - zone idea. In so doing, it would suggest that realch are on the way while offering some new hope to the residents of America's inner cities.

Kawasaki subway

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The New York subway is as American as apple pie. Or it used to be. In the future, it will be stamped "made in Japan."

Generations of New Yorkers traveled to work or home to the Bronx, Brooklyn or Queens on underground railway cars that seemed to symbolize the energy and pace of life in America's great metropolis. They were noisy, crowded, often dirty and, in recent years, dangerous, but they were part of America.

Well, New York City is giving up on American - made subway cars. The Metropolitan Transit Authority plans to spend some $1.4 billion on 325 new subway cars made by Kawasaki Heavy Industries, one of Japan's major industrial concerns. The reason the city is buying the cars is that they will be delivered at an early date and, more importantly, because the Japanese have offered a bargain loan on part of the order, with the backing of Japan's Export - Import Bank.

THE NEW YORK TIMES editorial on the purchase said that the city had to make the best deal possible. It failed to provide one key piece of information, namely that Kawasaki receives a subsidy from the Japanese National Railway, which is state - owned. The lone U.S. manufacturer of this type of equipment can't hope to compete against what is a government subsidized company.

THE TIMES, New York City authorities, and Congress should ponder the long - range effect of subsidized competition. How can American companies compete against foreign countries? Obviously, they can't. Sooner or later, Japan's government - subsidized, directed and guided industries will take away the business enjoyed by American companies in many fields.

The political leadership of New York City — and its leading newspaper as well — profess to be deeply concerned about unemployment in the United States. Yet they don't raise a fuss when a froeign - subsidized industry takes jobs away from American workers. The purchase of Japanese subway cars by New York's transit authority will deny employment of the skilled American workmen who build such cars. The deal has a short - range advantage for New York City, but will hurt Americans elsewhere. It is this type of deal, repeated again and again, that decline in the country's industrial system. How short - sighted can a great city be?

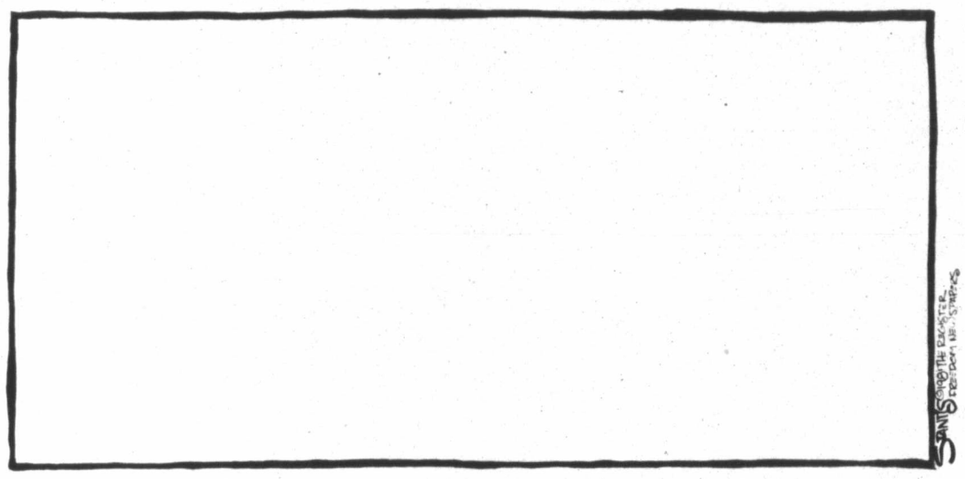

It isn't only in heavy industrial products that this situation is causing a crunch. Textile and apparel imports were up 18 percent last year — largely from Asian countries — while the domestic industry is in a severe slump. One reads of long - established textile plants closing in the Carolinas.

The Japanese also are moving into the grain exporting business. TIME Magazine recently reported that gigantic Japanese trading houses such as Mitsui & Co., and Mitsubishi Corp. "have quietly bought some two dozen grain elevators to store crops for export, and now handle an estimated 10 perent of all American grain sales abroad." One wonders where the Japanese will go in this business. A decade hence they may have the position in U.S. grain exports that they now have in automobile sales in America.

Americans aren't looking closely at this situation. They speak of free trade, while ignoring Japan's system of subsidization and industry direction and its determination to prevent the sale of American goods in its domestic market.

Many Americans say they don't care who builds their automobiles as long as they are cheap. New York City has said the same thing about its subway cars. What they don't see is the developing pattern of Japanese economic domination, which Americans will pay for dearly by the end of the century.

THE DEMOCRATS' ECONOMIC ALTERNATIVE:

A welfare state? well, partly

By OSCAR COOLEY

The U.S.A. used to be highly productive. Americans worked, produced goods and services, sold them and made income. Now we are primarily a political society, says Paul Craig Roberts, political scientist, Georgetown University. We look to government for our income. We count on living off government spending rather than in return for our own production.

Roberts was evidently alluding to the idea that the U.S.A., traditional stronghold of free enterprise, has become largely a welfare state. The emphasis on production is no longer heard.

Is this true? Has a major change occurred? Just how much of a welfare state are we?

It is not pleasant to think we have stopped being a nation of producers and become a flock of welfairies. Are we more concerned to get that government benefit than we are to pick up the wage envelope? Is Washington paying men not to work, rather than Detroit, Pittsburgh, etc., paying them to produce?

The media, committed to the principle that the worst news merits the front page, stresses the 9 percent of the labor force that are unemployed, saying nothing about the 91 percent who are working and producing. But let's not lose our sense of proportion.

Detroit is making and selling fewer automobiles. This is such a change from the time when production was continually growing that it is stressed by the media. But Detroit is still making cars — millions of them. And Americans are buying and driving them. There are two cars in many more garages than formerly.

The competition of foreign - built cars has been the best thing that ever happened to the American auto industry. It has forced us to make better cars and sell them at lower prices.

Ten to 20 percent fewer workers are employed by the auto makers than formerly. Many of those laid off, are seeing little prospect of work in Detroit, have done the one thing necessary: moved to other parts of the country where, they hear, demand for labor is keener. Some have gone to Texas, some to California.

There they do not expet to get UAW wages, but they are hopeful of getting work, which is their main concern.

Roberts is right in warning that too much may be going for welfare, too little for production. Unemployed workers would be more mobile, more flexible, if welfare benefits were not so easy to come by.

Admittedly, the U.S. is more of a welfare state than it was 100 years ago. Isn't this because of the increase of mechanization, the growth of specialization and mass production. When a plant shuts down, a large number of workers lose their jobs, larger than can hope to get jobs in the locality. Some must move.

But many own homes. They are longtime citizens of the community. They have savings in the bank that will support them for a time, piecing out their unemployment insurance, so they are slow to take off. In due time, however, many will conclude they cannot count on staying put. The need for mobility will increase. More will find it practical to live in mobile homes rather than fixed residences.

Readiness to move from place to place, and willingness to bargain over wage rate, asking all the traffic will bear but no more, may be expected to increase. These changes are more significant than is the increased availability of welfare benefits.

Let no one jump to the conclusion that every American has stopped working and gone on welfare.

Babies having babies

Pregnancy among school - agers is not new.

The Salvation Army founded and funded the Booth Memorial Home in Chicago to care for unmarried mothers in 1897.

A home for babies having babies . . .

There's one other, I understand. In Dallas

Girls those many years ago were usually in love with an equally young boyfriend . . .

Recent years they were more often victimized by older men . . .

But Booth Memorial Home providews a clean, comfortable environment —

Where the girls, who may be as young as 11, tend the scrubbed halls and their own rooms —

Which they decorate, often with cudly dolls or posters of the Rolling Stones.

The girls attend school every morning, eight to noon — study math and English, sewing and cooking . . .

Each semester, several graduate from high school — or from grammar school.

Christmas at Booth Memorial Home has to be the only place in the world where, when the Christmas play is re - enacted, both Mary and Joseph are pregnant.

And Easter Sunday there was an Easter egg hunt.

After 85 years, the Booth Home will close this year.

The need is greater but the funds are less.

And that is a tragic loss.

The record is so excellent. Nobody squeezes more cents out of a dollar than does the Salvation Army.

The army has been able to care for, feed and educate these girls for $30 a day. Hospitals charge hundreds of dollars a day.

And though most all pregnancies at Booth are problem pregnancies and many babies are premature, Booth has the second lowest infant mortality rate of all area hospitals.

Eighty percent of these girls keep their babies, adjust to a productive life . . .

Where elsewhere only 20 percent do.

John Shadeuck of Blue Cross calls Booth the "cleanest, most compassionate, most cost effective health care facility in the city of Chicago."

And it will close when what money is left runs out — sometime this year.

Twice in my life I've wished I were very rich — had a lot of money.

Once when my widowed mother went to work as a charwoman.

And now.

Today in history

Today is Friday, April 30, the 120th day of 1982. There are 245 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 30, 1789, George Washington was inaugurated as the first president of the United States.

On this date:

In 1803, the United States purchased the Louisiana Territory from France.

In 1900, Hawaii was organized as a territory of the United States.

In 1948, the charter of the Organization of American States was signed.

And in 1975, Communist troops of North Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government took over Saigon, ending the Vietnam war.

Ten years ago: Warring India and Pakistan agreed to a summit meeting as a step toward reaching a peace settlement.

Five years ago: A blowout at an oil well in the North Sea off Norway was successfully capped after four previous attempts in eight days had failed.

One year ago: The United States, Britain and France vetoed four U.N. Security Council resolutions calling for a halt to trade with South Africa.

Today's birthdays: Actress Eve Arden is 70 years old. Actress Cloris Leachman is 56.

Thought for today: There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so. — William Shakespeare, English playwright (1564-1616).

Weinberger backs Reagan on superiority of Russian arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger is backing President Reagan's statement that the Soviet Union has a "definite margin of superiority" over the United States in nuclear arms.

"It is unfortunately true," Weinberger said of Reagan's assessment as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened a three-week series of hearings on the arms race Thursday.

Former Secretaries of Defense James Schlesinger and Harold Brown, who served in the Ford and Carter administrations, were to appear before the committee today.

Reagan, at his March 31 news conference, said, "On balance, the Soviet Union does have a definite margin of superiority, enough so that there is a risk." In response to another question, he said that "the Soviets' great edge is one in which they could absorb a retaliatory blow and hit us again."

Weinberger told the committee, "The Soviets will continue to have a substantial lead in most of the customary measures of strategic forces — total number of systems, total number of ballistic missiles, and total destructive potential.

"The one area in which the U.S. still retains some advantage is in total numbers of deliverable warheads," he said.

"But, the Soviets may equal or surpass us in the total number of warheads during the 1980s as they continue the rapid expansion of their strategic nuclear arsenal."

"This does not mean that we have lost our ability to deter a Soviet attack on the United States and on our allies," Weinberger said.

But he added, "If this trend is not reversed, it will lead to a marked Soviet strategic advantage which will seriously undermine the credibility of our deterrence in the mid-1980s."

Asked by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., about the president's statement, Weinberger said, "They now have an edge and a momentum and unless we do something about it.

Wreckage of bomber found in Asian jungle

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (AP) — U.S. Army investigators have found the wreckage of a World War II B - 24 Liberator bomber with the remains of 19 Americans in the jungles of Papua New Guinea.

A team from the Army's Central Identification Laboratory at Fort Shafer, Hawaii, and members of the Papua New Guinea museum staff found the wreck 8,856 feet up the slopes of Mount Thumb, 43 miles northeast of here.

Col. David Rosenberg, of Fort Shafer, said the searchers found the wreckage a week ago with the help of local villagers.

He said he and his team had "pieced together" the remains of 19 American airmen and soldiers. They were trying to locate the remains of three others thought to have been on the ill-fated flight.

The Liberator left Ward's Field, Port Moresby for the Nadzab Air Base near Lae on the Pacific Island's east coast at about 2:40 p.m. on March 22, 1944, Rosenberg said.

"The pilot and or the navigator at the time were from the 22nd Bomb Group and the other personnel from the 345th Bomb Group, the 38th Bomb Group and the Medical Corps," he said. The dead were not identified.

Bruce Hoy, curator of the Papua New Guinea Aviation and War Museum, said the four-engine plane was on a courier flight when it crashed.

Homebuilders want more federal help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home builders and sellers, mired in deep recession, say they need more federal help than President Reagan's Housing Commission is willing to recommend.

The commission, which made its final report Thursday, proposed substantial changes for the future of housing finance.

But for now, it said, the best hope for the housing industry is to rely on the administration's economic plans to ignite overall economic recovery and bring down interest rates.

As if to underscore the industry's problems, the government reported Thursday that sales of new single-family houses fell in March to the lowest annual rate officials have recorded in the two decades they've been keeping track.

New construction and sales of existing houses also are way down, although they've risen a bit recently.

The figures prompted a spokesman for the National Association of Home Builders to raise the possibility that as many as half the nation's home builders could be out of business by mid-year if things don't improve.

The administration's housing commission, however, said very little about short-term aid to the industry.

"Dependency on emergency government programs will not yield prosperity for the economy as a whole or any significant sector of it," the report said.

The report, which has only the force of recommendations, has gone to Reagan and to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Officials of trade groups representing builders and sellers praised proposals to cut government housing regulations and to provide tax incentives for investment in home loans — and possibly for first-time home buyers.

But the National Association of Realtors worried that the availability of home loans would be stifled by the recommendation that savings and loan associations be given greater leeway to invest their money in areas other than mortgages.

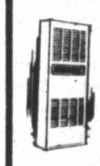

"Literally translated, the commission's recommendations would allow for the total abandonment of housing by the savings and loan industry," said Julio Laguarta, president of the realtors group.

Builders said they feared commission recommendations of less government involvement in subsidizing, insuring and otherwise supporting new housing will make it tougher for their industry to recover.

Thursday's new sales figures from the Commerce Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development were one more indication of how bad the times have gotten.

Actual sales in March totaled about 31,000, up from the 28,000 of February.

TOM AND FAITH NIX

Hi-Land Pentecostal hosts gospel singing team tonight

Tom and Faith Nix, a husband - and - wife gospel singing team, will appear 7:30 tonnight at the Hi - Land Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1733 N. Banks.

The team is based in Oklahoma City and has traveled extensively in gospel singing groups, choirs and evangelistic associations. The Nix's latest recording is on the Vine label.

JOSEPHINE SKAGGS

Missionary at Baptist churches

Josephine Skaggs, a retired missionary from Nigeria, will speak at Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl, at 11 a.m. and at Calvary Baptist Church, 900 E. 23rd, at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 2.

On May 3, she will be part of a prayer retreat and covered - dish luncheon for the Baptist women of the Palo Duro Association at the First Baptist Church in Skellytown.

Skaggs received her bachelor's degree from the University of Arkansas. In Nigeria, she taught at Nigerian Baptist Theological Seminary, and was principal and teacher for young pastors and church developer and director of Homecraft Center.

Lefors Church of Christ schedules gospel meetings

LEFORS - Jimmy Jividen of Abilene, will be guest evangelist in a series of gospel meetings at the Lefors Church of Christ beginning Sunday and continuing through Thursday, according to David Fultz, minister.

Jividen will speak to a bombined adult and teenage class at 10 a.m. Sunday on the subject, "The Home in Crisis." Services Sunday will be at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

A "pot luck" dinner will be served at noon Sunday in the Fellowship Hall and at 2 p.m. Sunday the Good News Quartet from Lubbock Christian College will sing.

Services Monday through Thursday will be at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Lay renewal weekend at Highland Baptist Church

A Lay Renewal Weekend has been scheduled at Highland Baptist Church, 1301 N. Banks, beginning at 6:30 this evening at continuing through Sunday.

Twenty - four visiting witnesses from various churches in Oklahoma and Texas will attend the weekend. The visitors, some of whom are youth workers studying at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, will stay at church members' homes for the weekend.

Wayne Maddox, a Miami rancher and church leader, will coordinate the 42 - hour event.

Activities include sharing groups, witnessing experiences, covered - dish suppers at 6:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and a 24 - hour prayer vigil beginning at Friday's supper.

A "ladies only" salad luncheon will be held at noon Saturday at the church. Young people will lunch at a hamburger fry Saturday at Hobart Baptist Church, and men participants will have a "dutch lunch" in a local restaurant.

Saturday evening, the visiting witnesses will lead sharing and group meetings, which will be followed by a commitment service at 9 p.m.

The visitors will lead various youth and adult Sunday school class activities and the morning worship service. The Pampa Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary will worship with Highland Baptist Church at 10:55 a.m.

A noon sandwich lunch is scheduled for Sunday noon, and a "Victory Service" is to be led by lay people of the church at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Reggie DeHay, Highland Baptist Men's Brotherhood director, is the local general chairman for the Lay Renewal Mission.

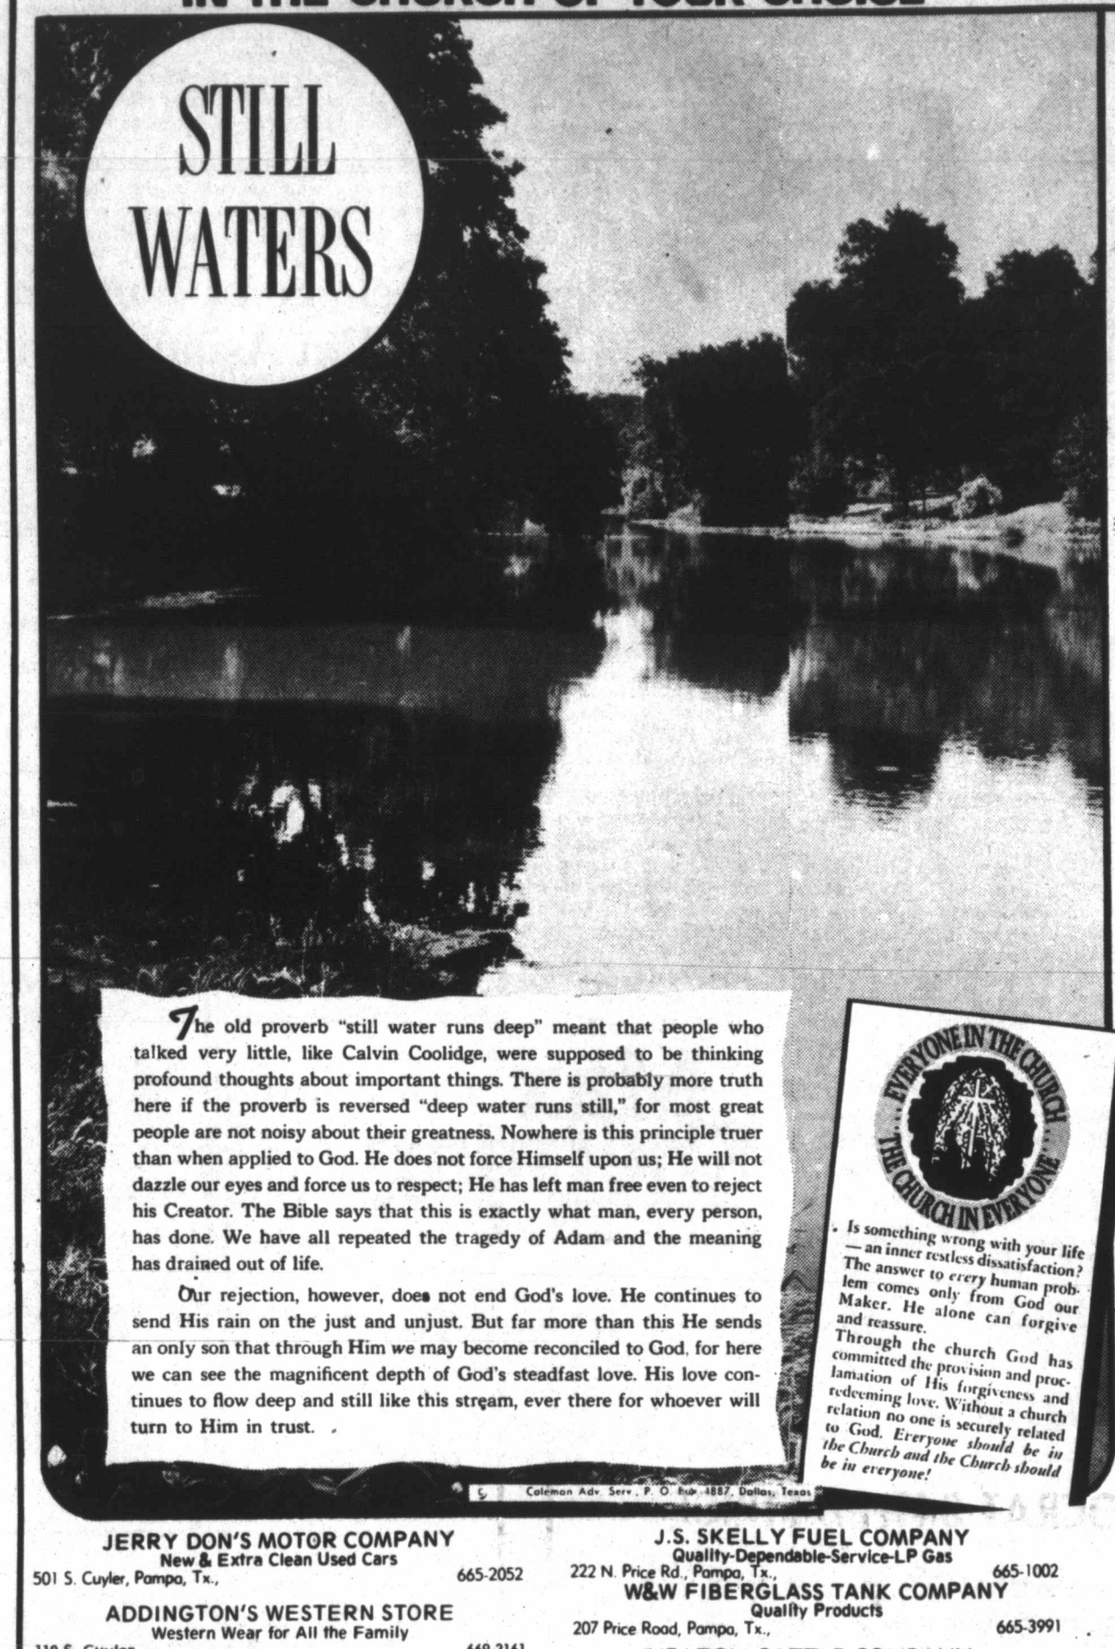

Gospel music concert tonight

SHAMROCK - Fred Johnson will present a concert of gospel music at 7 p.m. tonight in the Shamrock National Guard Armory on Highway 83 south.

Johnson sang for three years on the Jimmy Swaggart Crusade Team, and is now traveling full - time.

The concert will be sponsored by Calvary Christian Fellowship Church of Shamrock, the Rev. Joe Jernigan, pastor.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

The old proverb "still water runs deep" meant that people who talked very little, like Calvin Coolidge, were supposed to be thinking profound thoughts about important things. There is probably more truth here if the proverb is reversed "deep water runs still," for most great people are not noisy about their greatness. Nowhere is this principle truer than when applied to God. He does not force Himself upon us; He will not dazzle our eyes and force us to respect; He has left man free even to reject his Creator. The Bible says that this is exactly what man, every person, has done. We have all repeated the tragedy of Adam and the meaning has drained out of life.

Our rejection, however, does not end God's love. He continues to send His rain on the just and unjust. But far more than this He sends an only son that through Him we may become reconciled to God, for here we can see the magnificent depth of God's steadfast love. His love continues to flow deep and still like this stream, ever there for whoever will turn to Him in trust.

Coleman Adv. Serv., P. O. Box 4887, Dallas, Texas

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

- Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure.

Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church should be in everyone!

12-year-old to graduate from college

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A professor of a senior-level college math course says he's had bright, young students before, but none like 12-year-old Jay Luo — who is about to become the youngest university graduate in U.S. history.

In June, Luo will receive his degree in mathematics from Boise State University. He is already planning to do post-graduate work at Stanford University.

"He's the brightest 12-year-old I've even been associated with," says Robert Hughes, who taught Luo a linear programming math course.

Luo enrolled at Boise State at age 9. In three years he has exceeded the requirements for a bachelor of science degree, maintaining a B-plus average, said Boise State spokesman Larry Burke.

The boy's father, Zong Luo, a computer engineer for Hewlett-Packard in Boise, enrolled him at the university after reading an article in 1978 about exceptionally gifted students. The elder Luo, an American citizen of Taiwanese ancestry, sought out Boise State's Dr. William Mech, a former president of the National Collegiate Honors Council.

Mech has been the boy's adviser and a guiding force in his life for the last three years, and has been thrust into the role of the boy's spokesman because Luo's father, has refused to allow his son to be interviewed.

Luo scored in the 98th percentile in mathematics and in the top 80 percent in verbal skills in the Scholastic Aptitude Test. He began his college career by taking two part-time courses in May 1979. By the end of the year, he had skipped junior and senior high school and was carrying more than a full load of college courses.

Luo's rapid development has raised some unanswered questions about his future emotional and social well-being, Mech said.

"We had some other young students before, but nothing like this," Hughes said, but added: "I treated him like an adult and nothing really wild ever happened."

Small businessmen are mortgaging their homes

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Pressed by slow sales and the reluctance of old credit sources, many small businesses are mortgaging their homes.

The extent of activity isn't quite clear, but many consumer credit companies are involved, and one company, BA Business Credit Corp., has $100 million of such loans outstanding and is growing swiftly.

All the loans, said William R. Hobson, president of the BankAmerica Corp. financial services company, are made to small businesses, often retail outlets, restaurants or taverns, with homes as collateral.

Hobson stresses that some of the loans are for expansion, or even for seed money in new businesses, rather than to meet emergencies. But he also provides figures to show the latter is very much at work.

Last year, he said, 30 percent of applicants were rejected, though screened by brokers, accountants and others who refer potential customers. The ratio this year is 45 percent to 50 percent, he said.

Adding to the pressures on small businesses, said Hobson, is that traditional sources are tending to draw away from small business loans. Banks, he said, say they can't afford to make them, and some commercial finance companies establish a minimum of $500,000 a loan.

Hobson's company, based in Allentown, Pa., offers loans from $10,000 to $500,000, although the latter is relatively rare.

"Our current loans average $100,000, except in California, where the average has been $200,000," he said. Collateral generally is the borrower's home, but rental and commercial properties are accepted.

Making possible this source of financing has been the sharp rise in the market values of houses. A home bought for $45,000 a decade ago might be worth $110,000 now. Assuming a mortgage of $20,000, up to 80 percent of the remainder, $90,000, might be available for borrowing.

Hobson's rates now range from 18 percent to 21 percent, payable in five years, but with installments made on the basis of a 15-year loan. That means the borrower's monthly repayments are manageable, but he is presented with a "balloon" payment after five years.

Assuming the borrower's credit standing has remained good, he usually can be considered for another loan at that time, based on current interest rates. No one can say what rates will be then, but Hobson suggests there is at least a chance they might be lower.

One criticism of such practices is that the loans are made on the basis of total rather than business income. The important factor is the overall ability to handle the loan, said Hobson, and therefore his company includes income from sources other than the business.

Tasting Bee at St. Paul's

A Spring Tasting Bee will be held Thursday, May 6 from 5 to 8 p.m. at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 515 N. Hobart (opposite Taco Villa) to raise funds for parsonage and church renovations and maintenance.

Donations of $4 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12 who wish to participate will be accepted.

WHO HIJACKED THE REAGAN REVOLUTION

The Eastern Republicans! That's Who!

Those who were never really for Reagan in the first place. They only jumped on the Reagan bandwagon after he got the Republican nomination. But somehow an awful lot of them wormed their way into key positions:

—on the White House staff!
—in the Cabinet and Federal Courts
—and in far too many other places in government.

That's why the massive tax and budget cuts originally proposed by Reagan have been chopped in half. And that's the key reason the economy is in the shape that it's in.

The Johnny come latelys just don't believe in the Reagan revolution—and their half measures just don't work.

Can we do anything about it? You bet! Elect men to office who have been supporters of Reagan from the beginning, real men who are absolutely committed to the conservative philosophy;

men who can't be stampeded by the TV networks or influenced by the New York Times, the Washington Post, or the Eastern liberal Republicans.

You can elect such a man this Saturday, May 1st—in the Republican Primary—for the U.S. Senate. The man who'll help recapture the Reagan revolution—the Sunbelt revolution—Republican State Senator Walter Mengden.

He's solid conservative—a staunch Reagan supporter in both Texas presidential primaries in 1976 and 1980.

Mengden's opponent did not support Reagan in either of those primaries!

In 1976 Texas gave Reagan his first big Primary win—he won all 100 delegates from our state. That got his presidential campaign rolling. Texas can get the Reagan revolution rolling again in 1982 by electing Walter Mengden U.S. Senator—

Man builds monument to son killed in Vietnam

EDITOR'S NOTE — Grieving relatives come to the chapel. Most often, they are next of kin. Victor Westphall is next of kin, too. That's why he built the Vietnam Veterans Peace and Brotherhood Chapel. It's a memorial to his dead son; a memorial, he says, to peace.

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer

EAGLE NEST, N.M. (AP) — The old man hunched forward in the dark, watching flickering home movies that proved his dead son was once a flesh-and-blood part of his life.

Over and over again, Victor Westphall stared at the fading celluloid image of the golden-haired, tanned runner sprinting up a dusty road. Too soon, the reel stopped.

The stooped mourner shrugged into his coat and trudged into the cold New Mexico sunset to make a final inspection of his monument to his son.

Victor Westphall's life has become consumed with being a survivor of David Westphall's death. In paying homage to his lost child, and to all who went to Vietnam, Westphall has spent all his money. He's forsaken the comfort of middle age. He's quarreled with his wife.

Westphall has chosen to remember instead of forget. He seeks the company of the living who come to him to talk about their own dead. He has built a shrine of peace for pilgrims who come to curse war.

Soaring stark against the sky like some space age Stonehenge, the Vietnam Veterans Peace and Brotherhood Chapel was awash in floodlights. Westphall thought, as often before, that he was gazing on one of the most beautiful buildings in the world. It reared from the crest of the hill like a giant stray gull, inexplicably earthbound. Once, an awe-struck visitor had compared it to a fallen angel. That memory makes Westphall smile.

He said a prayer for all of war's dead, then leaned on a cane to protect his arthritic leg and hobbled the 20 yards back down to his makeshift one-room home.

With slight variance, Westphall has obeyed the same ritual for most of the past 14 years. He dates his life in two chapters. Part I ended May 22, 1968, the day his first born son David died in an ambush in Vietnam.

Part II began when Westphall and his wife Jeanne buried 1st Lt. Victor David Westphall III, U.S.M.C., aged 28, in a flag-draped coffin in the Santa Fe National Cemetery on June 10, 1968.

Their only other child, Douglas, who'd flown U.S. Air Force missions in Southeast Asia, came back to college at home while the grieving parents returned to Eagle Nest, 30 miles northeast of Taos.

There, dry-eyed and desolate, they contemplated the sweeping vista of earth and sky, the snowcapped Sangre de Cristo mountains, and made a decision. They would take David's $30,000 life insurance policy and build a small, simple memorial in the valley he had loved.

Westphall Sr. had been a successful home builder and teacher who'd earned his Ph.D. in history in his mid-40s. He was a student of history, a student of architecture, a man who prided himself on knowing how to get things done. So he threw himself into the project he hoped would symbolize peace.

Today, the 68-year-old builder hopes the third chapter of his life is about to begin. It could end the constant financial strain, the endless cares of almost singlehandedly maintaining the monument, and perhaps even allow him to live his final years with some peace of mind.

The Disabled American Veterans (DAV), with the blessing of Westphall, is working out plans to assume responsibility for perpetuating the chapel. DAV Communications Director Dick Wilson said the group hopes to establish a nonprofit corporation, with a $750,000 trust fund, to preserve the chapel and add a 2,000-square-foot underground expansion with office space, exhibit area, and a small apartment for Westphall, who would be hired as curator.

Except for small private donations, the DAV has been the only organization to help Westphall pay for his $215,000 tribute, which averages $13,000 in annual operating expenses. The DAV now contributes $10,000 a year to help Westphall. He makes up the difference out of his Social Security and some history book royalties.

Westphall originally conceived a modest building on five acres in his Eagle Nest housing development, a subdivision long since sold at a loss during chapel construction. But Santa Fe architect Ted Luna created an ambitious design of three soaring sides rising 50 feet in the air to a point. The concept delighted Westphall, who thought "private foundations would be falling all over themselves to help us."

But that didn't happen, "and being an impatient man, I decided to proceed anyway. So I worked with my own hands. I climbed the ladders, crawled across the scaffolding, put the outside plaster on with a million strokes of a trowel. It wasn't only for David. It was for all those who fought in Vietnam, particularly the maimed in body and spirit, and most epecially those who gave the most precious gift of all — life itself."

The Westphalls sold their home and moved to a smaller place in Springer, 60 miles east. Husband and wife disagreed over the ever-burgeoning chapel effort. Westphall commuted more than 250,000 miles to the construction site. Finally, he built a tiny cabin into the hill below the chapel, where he now spends most of his time.

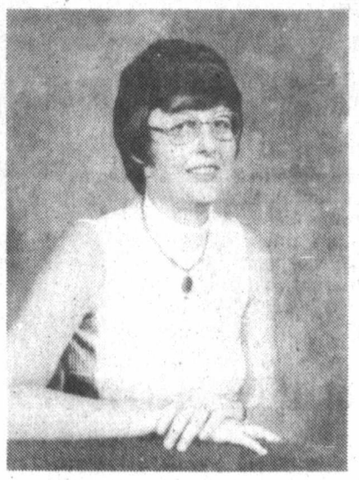

Lady, his 160-pound St. Bernard, keeps him company. He also has a smattering of books and papers, an exercise bike, a TV set, some old furniture, those precious fading home movies, and the typewriter he uses to write books about David, New Mexico history, and treatises on the senselessness of war.

He believes himself a man with a good cause. Outsiders wonder if it's a self-destructive obsession. His grief seems as real today as it did in 1968. Tears come easily, smiles are scarce.

"His was the first memorial built to honor those who gave their lives serving our country in the Vietnam conflict. It reflects a lasting concern and a selfless sacrifice ..."

District nine, covering the entire state of Texas, has 42 clubs. Area III is comprised of clubs in Pampa, Borger, Amarillo, Lubbock, Plainview, Big Spring, Wichita Falls, Abilene, Odessa, Midland, San Angelo and Brownwood.

Free vacinations for area children

Two clinics in the area will offer free vaccinations against childhood diseases in May.

In Pampa, the clinic will be open May 13 at 1 - 4 p.m. in the Marcus Sanders Community Center, 407 Crawford. In Canadian, the clinic will be open May 4 at 1:30 - 5 p.m. in the first floor of City Hall.

Vaccinations will be offered against polio, diphtheria, lockjaw, whooping cough, measles, rubella and mumps.

Gardening By Moon Signs

May is the month for flowers & gophers

BY LOIS BOYNTON

The Moon will be increasing: 1 - 7; 23 - 31. The Moon will be decreasin: 8 - 22. The Fruitful Signs are : From 10:30 6th through 8th (Scorpio); 16 - 18 (Pices); 25 - 26 (Cancer).

Semi - fruitful: 4 - 5 (Libra); 11 - 13 (Capricorn); 21 - 22 (Tarus); 31 (Libra).

Barren Signs are 1 (Leo); 2 - 3 (Virgo); 9 - 10 (Sagittarius); 14 - 15 (Aquarius); 19 - 20 (Aries); 23 - 24 (Gemini); 27 - 28 (Leo); 29 - 30 (Virgo).

The Phases of the Moon are the first, second, third and fourth quarters.

The Signs are Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius and Pisces.

Keep in mind that the Fruitful Signs are the time to plant and transplant.

Consider Cannas, they make a useful border plant along driveways, walks and they make a nice center piece in a formal bed. The variety is unlimited with so many new varieties. The can be short or tall and they bloom throughtout the summer with a foliage that always adds interest to any planting.

They are easily cultivated. They like rich moist soil and should be planted fairly deep in a protected place. They may not require digging each fall because some varities do not freeze. The blooming season will continue into fall if the flowers are cut as they fade.

If you are considering a shade tree to plant this year, we would suggest the English Walnut. The hardy Carparhian is fine for this country. We have one that is 20 year - old which bears large nuts every year. It is a beautiful tree in winter the bark is very attractive which makes it a year around attraction. It has a large leaf more like the maple and not like most nut trees.

It is self - fertile, with both male and female flowers blooming on a single tree. The nuts grow inside green husks which split when the nut is ripe, dropping the nut to the ground. From there it is only a short trip to your holiday basket, cakes or cookies.

If you have tried everything to rid your lawn burrowing rodents and still have pests, try Gopher Purge, it is an herb and detested by the gopher. This is the natural way, no cruel traps or chemicals which can be dangerous to children and pets.

Euphorbia Lathris grows about five feet. It has been recently the subject of extensive study for reasons other than its ability to drive away rodents. The milky fluid that poisons moles and gophers has been found to be a nearly perfect hydro - carbon with potential use as a petrolum substitute. Imagine filling your gasoline tank with "sap".

Gopher Purge is an example of natural gardening at its best.

The annual war between the gardener and the pests is frustrating and annoying. Perhaps you have resorted to costly chemicals, the risk in using such weapons however is too high. They kill everything many times some special plant. They upset the balance of nature and they can be harmful to those who eat the food. Alternatives must be found, the scientists are looking more and more to the remedies of the past. Among the solutions has emerged the use of specific herbs, distasteful to many of the worst pests.

COMPANION :PLANTS FOR THE VEGETABLES IN THE GARDEN

Companion planting is not a new idea but it is one being carefully studied by gardeners looking for natural ways to control pests. Try for an example, encircling tomato plants with marigolds to repel whiteflies and nematodes, a much safer control than spraying with a chemical pesticide.

Herbs used as companion plants also offer the advantage of being themselves useful, desirable contributors to your table.

As companion plants, Golden Yarrow will repel many garden insects, flies and ants; spearmint repels ants, not themselves a threat, but they often carry disease.

Crumpled mint leaves scattered over cabbage heads will repel the cabbage worm. Plant chives near cucumbers to help prevent mildew; chives planted near carrots seem to improve the size and smoothness of the carrots. Celery and cauliflower grow better together. Lettuce grows well with carrots; cabbage and potatoes do well together; mint grown by broccoli is helpful. A few plants of barage in the strawberry bed is helpful. Beets like to grow near beans, onion or kohlrabi.

Perennial asters present a brilliant display of late summer and early fall bloom. They fill your garden with color and make beautiful fresh bouquets for your home. Use mix varieties, they will grow about 12 - 15 inches high and return year after year, spreading and blooming more abudnantly each season.

Dahlias are the royal residents of gardens everywhere, unrivaled by any other flower for majestic size, dazzling color and diversity of form. Still, with all the attention they're given, they are easily grown by beginners.

Plant this month (5th - 6th or 25th - 26th) with the tubers lying down and the eyes pointing upward about 8 inches deep cover with about two inches of top soil, remember we always put a handful of bone meal in each hole whenever we plant a bulb or a plant. As the tuber sprouts and grows fill in the dirt until it reaches the top of the hole. Place a stake by the tuber when planting, for future support of the plant. Keep them watered throughout the summer and enjoy the beautiful blooms. They cut well and are nice in arrangements, after cutting place in buckets a of warm water for two hours before arranging.

Plant a dwarf apple tree, instead of waiting 7 - 8 years for a standard tree to bear fruit. You can enjoy your fruit the first year. You will pick the apples with your feet squarely on the ground, rather than teetering on a ladder. The fruit is exactly the same size as grown on standard tree, yet the dwarf keeps its managable height.

Gifted & Talented winners travel to Austin meeting

Three Pampa students will travel to Austin Friday, April 30, to read their award - winning scenarios to participants at the State Future Problem Solving Bowl. The students are Jason Cameron, junior division; Karin Trgovac, intermediate divison; and Jessica Marcum, senior division.

A scenario is limited to 1,000 words and is written to describe a situation which could possibly arise in the near future. Students who participated in the Future Problem Solving Program are allowed to submit enteries in scenario writing and the subject must be one of the problems encountered during the school year.

Pampa is the only city in the state to have a winner in each division. Statewide, there are five junior winners, five intermediate winners, and three senior winners.

At the state level, winners are not ranked. However, winning entries are immediately submitted to national competition where they are ranked from first through tenth place. First and second place winners are invited to the National Future Problem Solving Bowl where they read their scenarios to team participants.

Community Day Care Center to hold open house

The Pampa Community Day Care Center located at 1100 Gwendolen will host an open house Sunday, May 2 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The open house is being held to share with the community the new facility built to care for Pampa's children.

The public is invited to attend.

Dear Abby

Photographer's model is underpaid & overexposed

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I met a man who said he was a top photographer for a famous magazine. He asked me to pose for him, saying I would get $100 for every picture. I agreed, and he came over Sunday with his camera.

I posed with nothing on but a policewoman's hat. He also took a lot of pictures of me naked in the shower with the water running. Then we drove to the beach and he got some shots of me on the beach and in the water. It took all day.

About halfway through, he ran out of film and didn't have his wallet, so I loaned him $30 for more film. Later we got hungry, so he borrowed $15 from me to pay for the food.

He promised he'd call me after the pictures were developed, but I haven't heard from him. I don't know how to get in touch with him. I want my $45 back, but I'm afraid to go to the police because I said I was 21 and I'm only 17, and I don't want to get into trouble for being underage and posing like that. Thanks for any help you can give me.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO: My guess is that the "photographer" is a phony. You could write to the magazine he claimed he works for, but don't be surprised if the people there never heard of him.

I can't help you get your $45 back, but I have some valuable advice for you: Don't pose for any more strangers. You could lose a lot more than $45!

DEAR ABBY: Someone who served with Gen. George Patton wrote that the general had entertained some visiting dignitaries at an elegant dinner in his headquarters in Germany. Later that evening an aide reported that two place settings of Hitler's monogrammed gold dishes, goblets and tableware were missing!

I would like to know how Patton came to have these things in the first place. I thought only Nazi generals stole other people's property.

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: In time of war, when property changes hands, they don't call it stealing — they call it confiscating.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: A woman I know carries around a small bottle of breath freshener, and right in the middle of a conversation she whips it out of her purse, opens her mouth and sprays!

I find this repulsive, and many others have commented on it.

Is there a nice way to tell her that this is something that should be done in private? Or am I mistaken?

REPULSED

DEAR REPULSED: You are not mistaken. After this hits print, you could mail it to her.

TV PROBLEM

NEW YORK (AP) — An international study will attempt to find out why England, the Netherlands and Japan seem to consistently offer more quality television for children while this country gives sporadic policy consideration or backing for such programming.

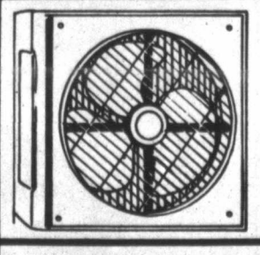

The comparative study will be undertaken by the Children's Television Workshop, producer of "Sesame Street," under a grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation of New York. The report is expected next year.

Dr. Edward L. Palmer, CTW's vice president for research who will direct the project, says the study will evaluate the forces that significantly affect the amount of quality children's TV in the four countries, and also determine what shapes the standards for children's television programming.

OAS: paralyzed by its own routine

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Soon after Simon Bolivar led the insurrection that chased the Spanish from South America, he dreamed of even greater considerations. "God grant," he said, "that some day we may install an august congress... to deal with subjects of vital concern to the people of the Americas."

That congress was created in 1890.

Today it's called the Organization of American States. It has 28 member nations and it's headquartered in Washington. It's in the news these days because of the conflict between Britain and Argentina over the Falkland Islands.

But Bolivar might not recognize it. For the OAS is a far cry from the active and authoritarian assembly he wanted. The group is charged with responsibilities for promoting peace and dignity from the Arctic Circle to the Scotia Sea, but there is evidence that it is failing on both counts.

El Salvador is an example. The civil war there has been raging for more than two years, yet the OAS has done nothing of consequence to intercede. Although the organization's governing body meets annually on matters of hemispheric concern, El Salvador has not even been formally discussed.

Then there is the ripening guerrilla conflict in Guatemala, the border skirmishes between Honduras and Nicaragua, and the U.S. claims of Communist intervention in the area. There is unprecedented turmoil throughout the whole of Central America, but critics say the OAS is powerless to help.

And to some extent the OAS agrees. Officials here at the Constitution Avenue headquarters say the organization is the oldest of its kind in the world, but one of the most bureaucratic. In other words, the officials say the organization is often paralyzed by its own routines and formalities.

One formality is that specific problems cannot be considered unless they are introduced by member nations. And that's what has happened in the case of Central America. An OAS spokesman puts it this way: "Nobody has complained about El Salvador. And we can't talk about it unless they do."

Why don't they complain? The spokesman says it's a matter of self interest. The states do not like to get involved in each other's affairs, because that would leave them vulnerable to reciprocal action. "No one is without sin," the spokesman says, "so no one likes to throw stones."

This doesn't mean the states have never interfered with one another's activities. They have. In 1969, for instance, when disagreement over a game of soccer led to bloody fighting between El Salvador and Honduras, the OAS imposed the negotiations that eventually led to a cease-fire and peace.

Then there was the Dominican Republic in 1965. When agitators there threatened to turn out the established government, the OAS joined a U.S. effort to stop it. The United States sent in a team of marines, and the OAS gave it credence by calling it an international peace-keeping force.

In all, the organized states helped stop actual or threatened violence on 20 occasions during the period between 1950 and 1975. And the activity was instrumental in creating a region that used to be generally known as the most peaceful in the world in terms of inter-state relations.

But that success may have become something of the fading past. Today OAS officers admit privately that the hostilities in the Americas are virtually beyond control. Particularly OAS control. The officers say they do not have enough men, money or real authority to keep the peace.

Regarding men, the OAS staff has been reduced from 1,500 to 1,200 in recent years. And the money situation is even tighter. The budget is now close to $100 million a year, but it is not keeping up with inflation; to do that, veteran employees insist that it should be at least doubled.

As for the lack of authority, the officials say the OAS may be a victim of its own structure. It cannot act without a general consensus among the members, yet nationalism and political divisions often combine to prevent it. One employee says flatly that "it's a perfect formula for failure."

Certainly the formula has failed to prevent recent violence. And it has never been encouraging with respect to promoting dignity. After nearly a century of OAS efforts, most member nations remain in economic despair, and American human rights are among the least protected in the world.

The record is so bad that some members of the OAS are said to be rethinking their commitments. Mexico, for one. And some South American nations. The United States would also like to step back a little; for one thing, Washington wants to reduce the $50 million it gives each year to the OAS budget.

Even some OAS employees are sniping. They say staff morale is the lowest it's been for years. "I like my job, I think I do good work," says a middle-level manager from Argentina. "The thing is, I have to pass a statue of Simon Bolivar when I come to work. It always ruins my day."

Federal Judges assume and wield more and more power over the lives of citizens as well as over cities, county and state governments. Yet never are they answerable to the people. The way to remedy that injustice is to elect them for a fixed term of office just as our State Judges are elected.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're the type who usually knows how to enjoy yourself, but today you could dampen events by taking fun things too seriously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make a point today to finish things you've already started before launching any new projects. Something will boil over if you have to watch too many pots.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be confronted by some rather heavy opposition today concerning an important goal. But instead of deterring you, this will arouse your determination to succeed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your possibilities for material gain look good today, but you won't be given a free ride. What you'll get you will have to truly earn.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Business and pleasure do not make a compatible mix today. If you have matters of importance to attend to, don't drag fun-loving pals along on your errands.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not seek assistance today from persons who have never helped you previously. Their refusals might embarrass you. Go to reliable allies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you try to force your ideas or views on others today you will meet with stiff resistance. What you espouse must stand on its own merit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even if your progress is slower take the sure, but cautious, route today where your work or career is concerned. Don't gamble on unknowns.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something could occur today to cause you and your mate to take opposing positions. A compromise will be necessary, although neither may get what he or she wants.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be so set upon doing things your way today that you fail to listen to the good ideas of others. Their suggestions might be better than yours.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't take any foolish risks today on things which could jeopardize your security if they fail to come off properly. Play it close to the vest.

SPEAKING OF SOAPS

by Mary Ann Cooper

He's on "General Hospital", he's popping up as the number one heart throb on soaps. He causes near-riots when he makes public appearances and his name is not Tony Geary. Tristan Rogers who plays Robert Scorpio on the highly touted ABC soap has quietly moved into the top spot among male actors on daytime dramas and his vast legion of fans couldn't be happier. Here's a look at the things he had to say during a recent interview.

Q.: Could you describe Robert Scorpio and what changes you would like to see in him?
A.: He is very much a man of the world, he relies on no one. He crawled up the hard way and exists as an individual and not part of a group or team. This is one of the reasons the public has taken to him. As for changes, I have given him flexibility, getting ideas as I go along. I have been able to incorporate these ideas along the way.

Q.: What do you say to the rumors that personality conflicts plague GH and will ruin its popularity?
A.: There are always rumors. When you are number one everyone tries to find fault with you. Everyone on the show is very supportive of one another. We don't air out dirty linen, we take care of things ourselves. This is a very strong show because everyone is supportive. No one blurts things out to the press, if anything is bothering them, they work it out themselves.

Q.: How long do you think you will stay with soaps?
A.: I have another two years to run on GH. Also, ABC and I are talking about a possible extension to that.

Q.: What was your childhood like?
A.: I tended to be much to myself. When I got older I started to mix more. I think this made me a bit of a loner. I like just to get away on my own not looking for anyone else to spend time with -- reading, listening to music, or just tinkering.

Considering Tristan's current popularity, he may find very little time to be alone. Now a look at what's been happening and what will happen on all afternoon dramas.

Recap: 4/26 - 4/30
Preview: 5/3 - 5/7

AS THE WORLD TURNS -- Barbara's dreams intensify in their brutality. Karen sees Jeff gravitate more and more toward Annie. Ariel sees more of John. Maggie and Steve realize what a mismatched couple they truly are.

THIS WEEK: Travis and Dane are not out of danger. Suzi and Brian are in terrible trouble.

Melanie Mayron: high hopes after 'Missing'

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — There are those who are calling the current Costa-Gavras film, "Missing," an exercise in subtle anti-Americanism. And it does paint some of our State Department employes as pretty despicable people. But Melanie Mayron, who is very involved in the picture, feels that criticism is unjustified. In fact, she believes that the essence of the film is decidedly pro-American.

Melanie Mayron plays a character named Terry Simon in the movie. There really is a Terry Simon; she was a friend of Charles Horman (played by John Shea), a man who disappeared in Chile and was sought by his father (played by Jack Lemmon) and his wife (played by Sissy Spacek).

"The mere fact that this movie was made at all," Melanie says, "and then that it was shown here without too much furor is proof to me that it is pro-American. Costa-Gavras told me that if he had made the picture in almost any other country in the world, he would have been put in jail. But not here."

Costa-Gavras would not allow any of his actors to meet the real people they were portraying before or during the shooting because he didn't want them influenced. But Melanie Mayron did meet Terry Simon later.

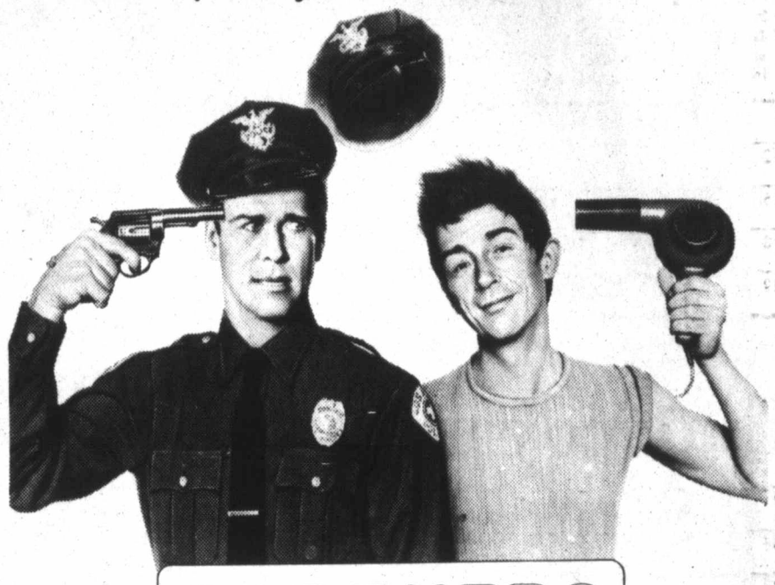

She says that her father, a Philadelphia realtor, talked to Miss Simon at that post-production party and asked her if Costa-Gavras' unflattering portrayal of U.S. State Department officials was at all accurate.

"She told him that, in fact, Costa-Gavras was very nice to them," Melanie says. "In reality, those State Department men were very heavy people."

Cupecoy's Joy draws No. 1 spot in Saturday's Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Cupecoy's Joy, a fast-working New York-bred filly, Saturday will test 18 colts — including a one-eyed runner — and a gelding, survivors from a Kentucky Derby field that has been stripped by illness and injury.

In 107 previous Derbies at Churchill Downs, only two fillies have won — Genuine Risk in 1980 and Regret in 1915.

Cupecoy's Joy, who ranked sixth on the money earning list which determined the field at a maximum 20 3-year-olds, also had been entered in today's Kentucky Oaks for 3-year-olds.

However, after Cupecoy's Joy drew the favorable No.1 position for the richest Derby ever with a gross purse of $527,600, owner Roberto Perez said, "We're in for the big one. If we had drawn on the outside, we would have scratched immediately and run in the Oaks."

Bettors, perhaps remembering that Genuine Risk paid $28.20 for a $2 win ticket here, don't figure to get that high a payoff on Cupecoy's Joy since she will be part of the parimutel field with seven others because there can be only 12 betting interests.

The parimutuel field was listed at 8-1 in the early line, which favored El Baba, winner of eight of 10 starts, at 5-2, followed by unbeaten Air Forbes Won, the Wood Memorial winner, 7-2, and Muttering, the Santa Anita Derby winner at 4-1.

Cupecoy's Joy, to be ridden by Angel Santiago, has four victories — all against New York-bred competition — five seconds and four thirds in 14 starts, earning $213,420. Royal Roberto, a 20-1 outsider, is the other New York-bred in the field for the 1¼-mile first leg of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

No New York-bred has ever won the Derby which has been dominated by Kentucky-breds who have won 81 times.

The bay daughter of Northerly-Lady Alba made her last start in the Spiral Stakes at Latonia March 27 where she finished third. She has been impessive during her workouts here this week.

Mrs. Joe W. Brown's El Baba won the Louisiana Derby and ran second to Hostage, who fractured a sesamoid earlier this week, in the Arkansas Derby. The son of Raja Baba-Hail to El, tops the money winners among the Derby field with earnings of $384,863.

El Baba, who won twice here as a 2-year-old, will leave from the No.4 post position with Don Brumfield aboard.

"Good," said trainer Dewey Smith when he heard his colt's post position. "That's just good, couldn't be better. I'm very happy."

Edward Anchel's Air Forbes Won will go from post No.7 under Angel Cordero Jr., who rode the colt's sire, Bold Forbes, to victory in the 1976 Derby. "Sitting on him is like sitting on his daddy," said Cordero after a workout earlier this week.

Air Forbes Won didn't go to the races until March 4 this year and has won all four starts. The last horse to win the Derby that didn't race as a 2-year-old was Apollo in 1882. He also was bred in Ohio which has produced only one Derby winner, Wintergreen in 1909.

Muttering, owned by the Tartan Stable, heads a contingent of five who prepared for the Kentucky Derby on the West Coast. He has raced only twice this year but has earned $317,299 off a career record of four wins and two seconds in nine starts.

Laffit Pincay Jr. will ride Muttering from the No.11 post position for trainer Wayne Lukas.

There is plenty of curiosity here over 20-20 Stable's Cassaleria, who lost his left eye in a stall mishap shortly after his birth. Because he is claustrophic, according to his trainer, Ron McAnally, he has been stabled here in a special outdoor pen.

Cassaleria and Water Bank, who will run as a McAnally-trained entry, were listed at 20-1. Cassaleria has earned $355,670, second highest in the Derby field, with three victories, two seconds and six thirds in 12 career starts.

Because of his handicap he has been involved in several brushing or bumping incidents. He finished third in his last start, the California Derby, as Water Bank ran second to Rockwall, also in the Derby field.

Cassaleria drew the No.18 post position, which pleased McAnally who said his late-charging colt runs better on the outside.

Bill Shoemaker, who has won three Derbies, will be riding in his record 22nd Derby aboard Star Gallant, the undersized colt who finished second in the Derby Trial last Saturday and ran second in the Florida Derby to Timely Writer, the early Derby favorite who was withdrawn last week after intestinal problems and surgery.

Star Gallant, who had won his first four starts before his two seconds was listed at 8-1. Sent off at 1-5 odds in the Derby Trial, he lost to Listcapade, a non-Derby nominee.

The absence of Timely Writer, Hostage and Linkage, the Blue Graavor of the May 15 Preakness at Pimlico, prompted a rush to Churchill Downs for Saturday's race.

Some of those late-comers, mostly with unimpressive records, were joined in the mutuel field with Cupecoy's Joy. They were New Discovery, Rock Steady, Wolfie's Rascal, Majesty's Prince, Music Leader, Reinvested and Real Dare, the gelding.

Gato Del Sol, second in the Blue Grass, was listed at 10-1. Bold Style, third in the Arkansas Derby.

Hooten hurls one-hitter at Phillies

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Around the Los Angeles Dodger clubhouse, they call Burt Hooton "Happy" — a tongue-in-cheek nickname for his unsmiling demeanor.

Thursday night, he really had something to be happy about.

"I'm just happy I got a good, solid game under my belt," said Hooton after pitching a one-hitter to lead the Dodgers to 4-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. "I felt like I had things in control all the way. I felt like I was throwing consistently well all game."

Hooton retired the first 10 Phillies he faced before Ivan DeJesus lined a 1-2 pitch to center for a clean single in the fourth inning. Pete Rose then drew the only walk the Phillies got, but Hooton was able to pitch out of trouble.

DeJesus's hit came on a mistake, Hooton said.

"It wasn't a pitch that I wanted to throw, I wanted to bounce it, but I didn't," he said of the knuckle-curve. "I guess you'd call low and inside a good pitch to a lot of hitters, but he chokes up a lot and can handle that pitch."

Hooton, 1-1, hadn't had much success in his four previous starts.

"I have been a notoriously slow starter," he said. "I've had games like this early in the season, but I haven't usually put them back-to-back until the second half of the year.

"I haven't really been confident all year. When you aren't as confident as you should be, it throws your control off. I was sharp, but I've been sharper."

Hooton, recording his first complete game of the season in his fifth start, walked one and struck out two. He brought a 4.43 earned run average into the game.

The Dodgers got their first run in the first inning off loser Dick Ruthven, 0-3, on Steve Garvey's sacrifice fly. They made it 2-0 in the third on a sacrifice fly by Dusty Baker and wrapped up their scoring with two more in the fifth as Hooton triggered the uprising with a double.

In other National League action, it was San Francisco 7, Montreal 3; Atlanta 3, Chicago 0; Pittsburgh 9, Houston 6 and San Diego 6, New York 0.

Giants 7, Expos 3

Darrell Evans hit a three-run homer, climaxing a five-run, first-inning rally that propelled San Francisco over Montreal.

Montreal starter Ray Burris, 0-4, went into the game with a sparkling 1.17 earned run average, best in the National League. But it climbed to 3.12 after three innings of work in which he gave up all seven San Francisco runs.

Rookie Alan Fowlkes, 3-1, was the winning pitcher, allowing 12 hits and striking out seven in his first complete game.

Braves 3, Cubs 0

Dale Murphy and Bob Horner hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning to lead Atlanta over Chicago.

After Chicago veteran Ferguson Jenkins and Atlanta rookie Joe Cowley had battled for seven scoreless innings, Claudell Washington singled off Jenkins, 2-2, with one out in the Braves' eighth.

Washington stole second and took third on Chicago catcher Keith Moreland's throwing error before Murphy hit a two-run homer for the game's first runs. Murphy's homer, his sixth, increased his league-leading RBI total to 22.

Horner added an insurance run with his sixth homer.

Gene Garber, 2-1, who relieved Cowley after seven innings, got the victory.

Pirates 9, Astros 6

Tony Pena hit a three-run homer and Dave Parker added a solo shot to power Pittsburgh over Houston. Pena put the Pirates ahead 4-1 in the first inning with his homer off Houston starter Bob Knepper. Bill Madlock had singled in the first Pirate run.

The Pirates extended their lead to 6-2 with a pair of fourth-inning runs, one on a wild pitch by Knepper and the other on Dale Berra's sacrifice fly.

Houston chased Pirate starter Don Robinson during a four-run fifth inning that tied the game at 6-6, but the Pirates moved back ahead with a run in the fifth off loser Mike LaCoss, 1-1, on Madlock's RBI single. Parker blasted his home run in the seventh off Randy Moffitt.

Padres 6, Mets 0

Tim Lollar limited New York to five hits in hurling his first major league shutout and belted his second home run of the season as San Diego beat the Mets.

ASTRONAUTS REAH SEDDON GIBSON and ROBERT GIBSON

Names in the News

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Rhea Seddon Gibson — the first member of the U.S. astronaut corps to become pregnant — says she will take maternity leave to have her first child late this summer.

Mrs. Gibson, 34, declined Thursday to reveal the exact date her child is due. She and her husband, Robert, who also is an astronaut, were married in May 1981 in her hometown of Murfreesboro, Tenn.

The Gibsons, one of two married couples in the corps, joined the space agency in January 1978.

Gibson, 35, is a Navy lieutenant commander from Lakewood, Calif. He is expected to pilot a future space shuttle mission and Mrs. Gibson, a physician, hopes to serve as a mission specialist.

BOSTON (AP) — Her performance with the Boston Symphony Orchestra canceled, actress Vanessa Redgrave says she'll appear in a concert tonight sponsored by an Arab group.

At a news conference Thursday announcing the substitute concert, Ms. Redgrave said she'll file a breach of contract lawsuit against the symphony for canceling her $31,000 contract for narrative performance.

The symphony, which declined further comment Thursday, has said it called off the Redgrave concert series after receiving complaints about the 45-year-old actress' support for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., and his wife, sports commentator Phyllis George, will host 1,000 celebrities at a Kentucky Derby breakfast with an eclectic guest list.

Among those invited are artist Andy Warhol, Gov. and Mrs. Charles Robb of Virginia, actress Cathy Lee Crosby, economist Alan Greenspan, and Brig. Gen. James Dozier, newly appointed deputy commander of Fort Knox after being held hostage by the Red Brigades in Italy.

Other guests will be folk singer Waylon Jennings and his wife, singer Jessi Coulter; comedian Foster Brooks; Barbara Walters of ABC and NBC president Robert Mulholland; and former CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite.

The traditional breakfast will be held at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington. It caps a week of pre-Derby celebrations that will end with the "Run For The Roses" Saturday afternoon at Churchill Downs.

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered country-western singer Johnny Paycheck to appear in court within 20 days to answer questions about his personal and corporate taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service is seeking more than $100,000 in back taxes from Paycheck and about $50,000 in various taxes from Johnny Paycheck Enterprises, based in Destin.

News Briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be millions more "beep-beeps" from telephone paging devices as a result of a decision by the Federal Communications Commission to open up more radio frequencies for the devices, FCC officials say.

"There is a huge and growing demand for paging services, and the industry was running out of frequencies to satisfy it," James McKillen, the chief of the FCC's private radio bureau, said Thursday.

He made the comments after the commission voted to allocate 80 new paging channels and make it easier for manufacturers to market devices that conform to federal standards.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revital powder and gel — sold as a healing agent for wounds, burns and sores — has been recalled because samples were contaminated with organisms that could worsen an injury, the Food and Drug Administration says.

The agency announced Thursday that the substance, manufactured by Robertson Resources Ltd. of Salisbury, Md., was subject to a Class I recall, meaning that its use carries a reasonable probability of serious injury and perhaps death.

Bruce Brown, an FDA spokesman, said that consumers should return the over-the-counter product to the place of purchase and consult a physician if use of the substance appears to have intensified an infection.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Elections Commission has made it official: a potential political candidate merely "testing the waters" is not subject to campaign fundraising regulations.
